Mr. Speaker, I can hear the Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism speaking a joke to the effect that what I am saying is a Buteo proverb, but this is Buteo logic, not a Buteo proverb, but this is Government cannot assess the seriousness of a situation within twenty-one days, then the only way to assess it is use us to tell what is cooking in Butere or in the Northern Frontier District. Therefore, I totally object to and very strongly reject the idea of twenty-one days and so the seven days period must remain. A lot of harm can be done within twenty-one days. I have been through state of emergency, Mr. Speaker, and I know what it means. I was in Nairobi during the Emergency in 1952 and I know what happened.

I feel we are not going to make the same mistake, and with a bad Government or a bad person it does not depend whether he is white, black, green or yellow. We may say that that was in the imperialist times, but are people not arrested today? But that is the Government, and the Government is the Government, be it black or white, so in twenty-one days a hell of a lot can happen. One of the Members said that Africans cannot go on murdering each other—that was said by the Member for Emuhaya—and that in twenty-one days the Africans would not go on butchering each other. The question of butchering one another does not arise. The Congo is a typical country with Africans blacker than some of our people. What is cooking there, Mr. Speaker? They are butchering each other from A to Z and beyond. Some of the people may feel that that is happening in the Congo and it cannot happen in Kenya, but you must be stupid if you think that way because anything that has happened elsewhere, history can repeat itself somewhere else too. I am of the opinion, Mr. Speaker, as far as the Abaluhya customs are concerned, when a leopard attacks your goats, your neighbours usually come to your aid, whether the leopard usually gets its goats or not, to help you. So what is happening is that the leopard is eating goats in the Congo, after which the leopard might come here. Therefore, we must be on our guard to go and help the Congo to solve its situation for our own salvation, and here, Mr. Speaker, having this in mind we must not allow the Government to go on for twenty-one days without convening Parliament, because Africans may butcher at any time within those twenty-one days.

With that, Mr. Speaker, may I come to the question of referendum.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I want hon. Members to be careful to avoid repetition, but they are entitled to say whether they agree with other Members on a particular point, and if they have a new argument on that same point, they are entitled to bring it forward. I do not think Mr. Shikuku has really been repeating very much of what was said by other Members on this point.

Mr. Shikuku: You are very right, Sir. I have not repeated anything. I have put it in a very practical way, Sir.

The other issue I want to mention, Sir, is the question of a referendum. I remember what happened when it came to the question of voting. There was a lot of scheming in this Parliament. We voted against the amendment of the Constitution that is amendment Bill 133 (a). When it was sent to the Senate, the Government understood very clearly, in no uncertain terms, that it was short of four men to be able to amend the Constitution Bill in the Upper House.

What happened, Mr. Speaker, was negotiations went on and on and on until such time when some of us—of course, we will have to pay for it some time in the future—started crossing the Floor without the mandate of their people and amended the Constitution.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku we are talking on the referendum.

Mr. Shikuku: I am coming to that, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Well, come on to it as soon as you can then.

Mr. Shikuku: Yes, Sir.

They changed the Constitution in the Parliament whereas the feelings of the people in the country were otherwise. I am of the opinion, Sir, that in view of the fact that some of the Members here feel that the question of referendum must be retained—Having listened to the views of the Members here and of those of the Members of the other House, I feel that people are not going to accept this amendment as such, and if we do not agree here then I think it is the fairest way to give the man and woman in the street the opportunity to decide their fate. We are not going to call ourselves the only clever men. That is not a true fact. The fact that we are elected to this Parliament does not necessarily mean that we are the geniuses or we are the brightest of all species of humanity in Kenya.

As a matter of fact you will be surprised, Sir, to find that there are quite a number of people outside this Parliament who are very, very clever,

[Mr. Shikuku] Constitution is for the country, and it concerns all of us, but is it an immediate issue? Why, therefore, is there this hurry to amend the Constitution. In my opinion, Mr. Speaker, the people of Butere and indeed many people in Kenya are not interested in the Constitution, but they are definitely interested in what the Government is going to do to provide them with food, and not the Constitution. The Constitution, Mr. Speaker, is there to give power to some individuals in this country, and not food to the people, so what we should be concerned with, Mr. Speaker, in this House, as far as Butere people are concerned, and I am sure in other parts of Kenya, is to try and find ways and means to provide food, shelter, education, and medical facilities to our people. That should be our foremost duty, and not to talk of power.

Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We are dealing with the Constitution now, though.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, what I was trying to explain is that I do not see the reason why we should hurry up with this amendment, but nevertheless, I shall raise this question when the House discuss the reduction of salaries of Ministers, etc., in order to facilitate the Uhuru na Tumbo policy.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I have said, that some of the Members are now seeing a bit of light, you will find that they are just talking, and if we may refer to the Harambee during the debate when they are talking of the amendments to the Constitution, Amendment Bill, Bill 138 (a), you will find that what is being said is exactly what was said, and if not more than what was said by the Opposition during that time. But, does this help us.

I would like the Attorney-General to note it very seriously, that the representatives in this House are responsible to the people who elected them, and it would be completely unfair for him or his department to try and confuse us. It may not be intentional, but I am of the opinion that this amendment is definitely confusing the Members, and personally, I confess that I am not following up the amendments at all, because I have had the Amendment Bill, Bill 138 (a), and in addition to that I had Amendment Bill, Bill No. 2. Today, we have a 1955 Amendment Bill and this will go on confusing the Members of this Parliament, and naturally confuse the masses, because the Members will not be in a better position to clarify or to explain to the masses. If the Member of Parliament can be confused, how about the ordinary man and woman in Butere?

Mr. Speaker, I am of the opinion that the amendment so tabled in this House is confusing us, and the Attorney-General should be kind enough to let us have all the amendments, and let them come in one lump so that we look at them as such.

Mr. Speaker, the other issue which has been referred to by some of the hon. speakers here is this question of Majimbo, of Regional Members' salaries and so forth. I think the time has come, Mr. Speaker, for the Members of this Parliament to stop playing about with words and fooling the public, because what I think is that the Members of this House have no principles at all, and I—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must not say that.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I am of the opinion that the Members of this Parliament are ungrateful and they have no definite policy to follow, or they are intentionally trying to fool the public.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must not impute improper intentions, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: I am sorry, Mr. Speaker.

They do not, as a matter of fact, really know what they are doing, because you find, as someone has said already, that it was and is in their own manifesto that Majimbo should be scrapped and done away with completely. Some of us resisted this, but now we are in a one-party state, and it is equally the same for one to say that they do not eat chicken, but they eat chicken, some. Here, when they talk of the salaries of Members of Regional Assemblies, and at the same time talk of scrapping Majimbo, then they are actually telling the House that they do not eat the chicken, but they are prepared to eat its soup. One thing I would like to tell the House, Mr. Speaker, is that we either go wholeheartedly, for body and soul, for Umoja, plus Harambee, or for Majimbo, but not two things at the same time. Mr. Speaker, I do not believe that it is physically possible for one to be tall and short at the same time, for if these Members are trying to think that they can be short and tall at the same time, then they are really fooling themselves. One thing we are agreeing to, and we have agreed to it, is that we are going to have unitary Government, which means doing away with the Majimbo Constitution, which has already been done away with somehow. Therefore we must agree in this House, and I refuse to give any support to those Members who talk in terms of salaries to the members of the [Mr. Shikuku] Regional Assemblies, because I do not see any reason why they should be paid any salary when all the powers have been withdrawn from the Regional Assemblies. In addition to that, Mr. Speaker, we advocated unitary Government, Majimbo must go plus the members of the Majimbo. We cannot talk in terms of doing away with the Lower House and saying at the same time that the Members can meet in the Parliament Buildings. I am of the opinion, when we talk of the scrapping of Majimbo, that we must scrap Majimbo plus the members themselves. Mr. Speaker, for the hon. members in the Regional Assemblies, as I am told they are elected, and indeed they are. The Kari Regional Members were elected on the Kari ticket which meant scrapping the Majimbo. Hence, they supported the scrapping of Majimbo without knowing they were supporting the scrapping of themselves. So, the time has come when they must harvest the bitter fruits of their own folly. The only people I have any sympathy for, Mr. Speaker, are those regional members in the Coast, in the Rift Valley, and those members in the Western Region.

I say this because they stuck to their guns, but when the majority prevailed, the Majimbo was to be done away with, but if the majority votes are that the Majimbo should be scrapped, will any of our brothers in the Coast, Rift Valley, or Western Region have to suffer that, so that we have Umoja, and if possible we should try and approach one of the big factories who deal with bed making, to make a very big bed for all of us so as to ensure that we have Umoja by sleeping in one bed.

Mr. Speaker, I also feel that this question of provinces is, in itself, falling back to what the imperialists did. We who made this Constitution, originally deleted the word "Province" substituted it with the word "Region", and then to my surprise, the Government of Harambee, the Government of Umoja, the Nationalistic Government, falls back again to what the imperialists called our regions, and before we pass this Bill in this Parliament, they are already calling the regional or civil secretaries, as district commissioners or provincial commissioners which are not even approved by this House. I feel, Mr. Speaker, something is definitely wrong somewhere, and I hope the Attorney-General would pay attention to this. We would like the Parliament to be the supreme authority, and whatever the Parliament passes should become law with effect from the time it is passed and not before.

Today, Mr. Speaker, I read in the Press that the hon. Vice-President has asked Members to be present in this House so that they can vote and have the Bill passed. Outside this Parliament we have people who call themselves, or so called because we have not passed the Bill, district commissioners, provincial commissioners and all the rest of it. Are we going to be used as rubber stamps? As the Member for Butere I do not recognize them at all. I recognize them as regional government agents, civil secretaries and so forth, but not as district commissioners, provincial commissioners or district officers until the law is passed.

I think it should be the practice of this House, and if we allow these things to go on where people call themselves various names before they are passed in the House, then we will not be surprised, Mr. Speaker, to find later on that something has been passed by the Cabinet and continued in the country without our approval. That is why I feel, even on the clause we are coming to tonight—this question of twenty-one days—we might as well hear there is an emergency and it will continue even for twenty-eight days and nobody will ever refer to the elected representatives of this country. We must warn the Government that we are not going to have people calling themselves names before they are approved in this House.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may come to one of the sections here where we have the question of percentage, from seventy-five to sixty per cent, we have talked a lot about it and the many people have talked a lot about it and the last speaker, the hon. Mr. Khasakhala, member for Emukhaya, talked in terms of two-thirds Nigerian, two-thirds America, and so forth. I understand, Mr. Speaker, he was a teacher before he came to this Parliament, but if you calculate two-thirds—that is, two over three—of 100, it is about sixty-seven and here he is talking in terms of two-thirds in other places; actually he implied that two-thirds was a smaller figure than sixty, but if you calculate two-thirds of 100, it is five, but if you calculate two-thirds of 100, it is definitely more than sixty-six. Sir, the hon. Member, unfortunately, is not here and I would have had the privilege to teach him a bit of mathematics to help him in future calculations!

I feel there is no point in trying to reduce the seventy-five per cent to sixty-five because we are one party, there is no question of opposition, we believe in Harambee now, we are all brothers. Why should we worry about reducing this, and if it is a question of reducing, then we should even reduce it to zero per cent. So we would like the percentage to stay as it is, because there is no opposition. Of course, they

[The Deputy Speaker] look out to see that there is no tedious repetition, and if there is any repetition, of course, the speaker will be drawn to order. But I would request hon. Members particularly to avoid repetition of what has already been said. Perhaps some of them are not fully aware of what has been said because many of them have not been here when other speakers have been speaking, but I would like hon. Members to be as brief as possible and not to repeat themselves, and if possible not to repeat what other speakers have said.

Mr. Warithi: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, do we understand that it is only today that time is allotted for debating this Bill, and unless we can go through it today there will be no other time set aside for it?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): This Bill, like all other Bills, will be debated until it is in fact put to the vote. It was hoped by some hon. Members that this vote would take place earlier on today, but I have instructions from Mr. Speaker, to allow as many speakers as possible to speak on this Bill, considering that it is a very important Bill, a Bill which is going to amend the Constitution of our country, and that we should not allow a closure at an early stage. But, on the other hand, it is therefore equally vital to ensure that hon. Members do not keep on repeating what has been said. So I do ask the co-operation of the Members to make sure there is no repetition.

Mr. Khasakhal: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not feel that I have been repeating myself. I am correcting some of the allegations which Members had made, and if the hon. Member thinks that he has finished his time and he would like to go and rest, he should go and rest.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I was dealing with emergency measures and the time since the Constitutional amendments. I think that it is quite opportune and the Government requires this time so that it can assess the situation before it can really start mishandling its own people. The fears which we had when the imperialists were here were that the imperialists did not know our people and they could go on killing people without any mercy, and that happened during the Mau Mau time when we had an emergency in Kenya. But this being our own Government, I do not think Africans would be interested in killing one another during the emergency situation.

Now, another question, Mr. Deputy Speaker, which has been dealt with by the hon. Members comes as the objection to the Provincial Councils.

I was in Kadu and I was a party to the Majimbo Constitution following a Kanu Election Manifesto. Now Members are wearing a different coat. They want to tell the world; they want to tell the people of Kenya they are fighting for Majimbo which they themselves opposed. Now, where are we? They are the same people, Mr. Deputy Speaker, who opposed Majimbo and I was for Majimbo, because I knew the goodness of Majimbo. These same people—

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is the Member in order blaming other Members for asking that Majimbo should be abolished whereas the Member himself also opposed Kanu and is now in Kanu? Is he in order?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): That is not a point of order. Under let me make this quite clear. We do not want frivolous points of order, and this is not a point of order. Please do not do it again. It is not fair. You are abusing the procedure of the House by trying to get a debating point to score a debating point on the other side in interrupting him on a point of order. This is not a point of order. Wait until your time comes and then make your speech. Let us not have any more frivolous points of order because this is very serious matter and should be treated with seriousness. You should not get an individual point in by interrupting a particular speaker.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, in view of your ruling and in view of the fact that the hon. Member in question has twice today been warned in this House by the Speaker for frivolous points of order, would it not be in order for you to send him out of this Chamber?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): It is not in order for an hon. Member to ask the Speaker to send anyone out of order out of the Chamber; it is for the Speaker to decide what punishment he should give. I would like to point out that if any hon. Member is asked to leave the precincts of this Chamber, usually he cannot come back even at the vote. This in fact happened last time when Mr. Ekiella, if you remember, was asked to leave the Chamber and he could not come back when it was a very vital vote. Therefore, obviously any Speaker would be reluctant to ask anybody to leave this Chamber during this vote. But I do not think hon. Members also therefore to co-operate and not to interrupt this debate, which is a very important debate, on a frivolous point of order.

Mr. Khasakhal: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not like so many interjections because I am speaking the truth.

It is most surprising, Sir, to hear a former member of Kanu now, when we have this amendment in the House, starting to tell the House why regionalism are abolished, and yet they themselves in their Manifesto stated very clearly that they should have no Majimbo. I even would appeal to the Government to remove Provincial Councils completely, because it is a complete duplication of work and there is no need to negotiate on salaries when we know that there is no work done by the Provincial Councils. I strongly feel that the Government should have abolished the creation of Provincial Councils and have county councils doing their work as they used to do previously, because we are now moving towards a unitary Government which a Kanu Manifesto won the election on. If they want the election on a unitary Government, this is the time we should have it and they should not oppose by wearing a different coat, fighting for people's salaries, whereas they are trying to create a political situation for their own positions.

The next thing, Mr. Deputy Speaker, are the legislative powers. Some Members raised an argument that legislative powers had been removed from the Parliament, which is not true. If you look at page 66 clause 1 of the Constitution you will see that all the deletions which have been included in the amendments on sections 67, 68, 69 and 70 are those referring to section 1 which appears on page 181 of this Constitution, the powers of the Regional Assemblies. Therefore, having a unitary Government, these powers do not exist and that is the reason why we are asking to delete them. If Members would like to know where these powers are found in their own Constitution, they are in this good document we have on page 181, and that is Schedule No. 1 of part 1, the powers of the Regional Assemblies. These were exclusive powers given to the Regional Assemblies. Now, because we have no Regional Assemblies having their own laws or making their own laws, having their own powers, there is no need to have sections 67, 68, 69 and 70 because these were exclusive powers given to the Regional Assemblies in this Constitution.

Now, the Member for Kandara dealt with a few things here he said that decreasing the majority vote in the declaration of emergency was an attempt to produce dictatorship.

I do not see where that comes in, Mr. Speaker, because it is the same Government which has to eliminate or declare the emergency, and as a result, this House still has the powers, the administrative powers. I do not see where the Government can become dictatorial in its own country.

Now, the other one which was dealt with was concerning the emergency in the Western Region, whereby someone raised an argument on why the Government was not asking to vote again for the extension of the emergency in the Northern Region, dealing with the Shifita. Now, that is in the Constitution, section nineteen, whereby an Independent Order in Council was issued and that deals with this extension of the emergency in the Western Region, and as a result, this does not arise at all.

I, therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, feel very strongly that this amendment has a lot of meaning to this House, and it makes the Government work well. If we want to progress, we have to vote and pass this amendment forthwith.

With these few remarks, I support it.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, much has already been touched on by most of the hon. Members. One thing is certain, and that is that there is a definite confusion in this House, and this confusion is to continue indefinitely, in my opinion, in view of the fact that we have this amendment being brought in this Parliament, but the Members get themselves completely confused. The first major amendment, which was Amendment Bill, Bill 138 (a) was very drastic indeed, and I may recall, Sir, a lot of Members in this Parliament spoke in favour of this amendment, but then some of us were in the Opposition, and we tried our best to put light to the Members off this House, but unfortunately—and I say unfortunately, because none of them saw any light at that time—hon. Members were led by emotions but I am glad now that the dirt in their eyes is being cleared and some of them are now trying to talk clearly and some with authority on the subject, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that I foresaw this a long time ago, and I stuck to my guns right to the end. It is known, Mr. Speaker, that I was the last person to cross the Floor of this House, and I do not think I did practically.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

I say practically, because I do not remember having actually physically crossed the Floor, but on the order of the Butepe people, I crossed over theoretically. But, one thing I would like to point out, is that I do not see yet, and I do not intend to see any reason why there is this hurry for the amendment of the Constitution. We all know the [Mr. Khasakhala] adjournment and then you looked and said I had not spoken on this. I thank you for the correction and I would now like to speak on this Amendment Bill.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when I spoke on the Motion for the adjournment I was very blunt and said that the Government should withdraw the Bill simply because I had not done enough homework. After doing some homework, Mr. Speaker, Sir, and going through the Amendment Bill I would now like to quote quite a number of things this afternoon to try and educate, or help some of my hon. Members who have perhaps not done enough homework on the Amendment Bill.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, most of the Members have complained about the powers given to the President. It is true that we may have a President who is not merciful or who has not any understanding about human beings, but I still feel that the President of an elected Government, like the one we have, who is popular with the people, should be given enough power to deal with the distant enemies who might one day try to mislead the Government. If, however, the President has no powers, Mr. Speaker, Sir, he then becomes a figure-head. We do not want in our Republic of Kenya to have a President who is just a mere figure-head who has no power to execute his fully entrenched powers in the Constitution. Referring back to one elderly African independent country, namely Ghana; the President of Ghana, if we look at him, is one good example of a National President, who even handles his own Ministers, who deals with his Government. I would like the President in Kenya who can also tell a Minister when he is going wrong and tell him that the Minister belongs to him and if he does not behave then he must get out. We have a President here so that he can deal with any other person who is trying to lead his Government, but if we have a President who is just a figure-head, who does not order, who does not execute power, then the President has no meaning in our own Government.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Ours is a popular elected Government then I do not see the reason why the hon. Members fear unless they suspect themselves of their own ulterior private movements. If they have ulterior movements then they should fear the powers given to the President. People who are innocent, people who are for the Government should not fear the powers of the President at all, because they know that when they come to this House, as elected Members, they have their position to oppose whatever a person says and whatever a person says in this House will not be called to stand in a court of law. Therefore, we can challenge the President in the House: knowing very well that he cannot take us to court. But if you have your own private movements by encouraging crime, going to places to tell them that we want freedom which has never happened in our country at all, then such people should be dealt with by the powers given to the President. That is the reason why we should give our President this power to handle such people who are law breakers. With this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not see any reason why people should have any fear of the power given to the President.

The other fear which occurred seemed to be on the Constitutional Amendment. The question was, "why sixty-five per cent?" Mr. Speaker, Sir, sixty-five per cent of the number of Members we have have in this House amounts to eighty-four people in order that the Constitution may be amended. Now eighty-four is not a small number, in fact, we are always ringing the bell, because there is no quorum. Now this is going to make people tired if they have to sit here all the time, so that they can do their duties as elected Members. For example, these benches are supposed to be full now and often we have Members sitting outside the House, instead of dealing with the matters which they are supposed to be dealing with, who then complain that they are sitting five per cent too small. Yes, if I look around five per cent they may have not this sixty-five per cent. If they are sincere in their criticism then they should be sitting here in full strength, and not just to criticize because a Bill has been brought by the Government, but when they look at the percentage they say that it is too small and yet we have not the right amount of Members—eighty-four Members—in this House at this minute who are supposed to pass this Constitutional change.

I therefore feel, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the argument provided by the Members in this debate is not valid, it is completely invalid. Let us look at the democratic countries we have in the world. What percentages are provided for in a place like Nigeria, for example for a Constitutional change? It is still very high. In Nigeria they only need two-thirds majority, then they amend their Constitution. Let us now look at America, which is a vast country which has millions of people, they only need two-thirds majority. Now looking at Great Britain and they only need a simple majority to amend their Constitution and yet we [Mr. Khasakhala] need this enormous majority before we are able to amend our Constitution. Our Constitution should not be a stumbling block to make some elements to use the Constitution to do wrong to the Government. It should be a Constitution which is amendable so that whenever we feel that we should amend it, and it should be amended without any difficulties. Last time, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may be allowed to quote; I had gone to Kampala to attend a very important board, and before I had started, and after having wasted my petrol in getting to Kampala to attend the Railway Advisory Board, there was a telephone call from Nairobi which was telling me to come home. There was a crisis and we cannot amend the Constitution. I drove like a madman from Kampala.

Supposing I died on the road? My vote would have been lost, which would have been very important for the Government. Therefore, in order to avoid such circumstances, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I strongly support the percentage provided for here by the Government.

Now, looking at section 29—I am going on for one hour—which appears on page forty-seven of our Constitution it mentions emergency powers. The number of days provided for calling the Parliament to give powers to the Government to execute the emergency are quite enough. In the previous Constitution on page forty-seven, which is an imperialist constitution and we do not want it—we are making our own Constitution and this was an imperialist constitution—

Mr. Sikukuu: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, is it in order for an hon. Member who knows only too well that the Constitution—the one we are talking about—was actually arrived at by two parties of which he was a Member, to call it imperialistic?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes, I think the hon. Member was out of order. It is now the Kenya Constitution. It was accepted.

Mr. Khasakhala: I withdraw that.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, emergency powers are referred to in section twenty-nine. Most Members have raised the objection to the word "majority", but is one point. It does not mean the majority of those Members in the House at that time at all. If you read in the Constitution itself where sixty-five per cent appears, it states clearly "of all the Members of that House". Now that House means this House of Representatives and the Senate. That is the majority, the majority of all the Members of those Houses; a majority of 130

Members in this House and forty-one Members in the Senate. Majority means the total number divided by two plus one; that is a majority. I do not see the reason why Members should argue on that, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

Now, if we look at the situation that makes an emergency to be declared, it is not a happy situation. Who would like to have an emergency in his area? Why should it be there? The emergency is created by certain elements who only want to break the law and if these elements in their own area want to break their own Government, want to break the law, the President and the Government should have the power to declare a state of emergency in that particular area so that the Government can assess the situation accordingly. You can never assess the situation of an emergency within seven days, never. By the time you come to the end of seven days you may not know exactly what has happened to declare an emergency in that particular area. That is the reason why the Government would like to have more time to assess the situation and by assessing the situation it can either correct its own position and call the Parliament to pass that or allow it to continue with that state of emergency. I therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, do not see the reasons why Members are panicking on this particular point. It is a very clear point on when a state of emergency arises. If it has arisen, it must be met, and if it has to be met, the Government must have the power to meet it. Therefore, if we want to tie the Government's hands in declaring—

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello- Odongo): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that it is a very important Bill and it has been indicated that it should be completed today and many other Members might like to express themselves on it before the debate is closed, I wonder whether there is any way in which we could limit the time to be taken by a Member especially when Members are repeating more or less what has been said here so many times?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): This is no way of limiting a debate unless this House passes a resolution to that effect, in which case the Sessional Committee should be approached and the Government would then promote the resolution, limiting the time allotted to the speaker to speak on the subject of debate. I am afraid it is a bit too late to do it just now, but it can still be done by having a resolution to that effect moved tomorrow.

As far as repetition is concerned, obviously I am, and Mr. Speaker would be, very much on the

POINT OF ORDER

FOLLOW UP TO WRITTEN REPLIES

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Again I must answer one of them as a point of order, because it is a question as to what an hon. Member can do to follow up a written reply. There cannot be any supplementary questions on a written reply, but there can be a further set of questions on further matter raised by the reply; which is really in effect the same thing; but it is a fresh question with a fresh number, picking out something in the written reply for further questioning. That could be put in as a question for oral reply if it is a short point or a question for written reply if it is long.

(Resumption of debate)

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that we have exhausted these Motions, could we ask the Mover to be called upon to reply?

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President of Office (Dr. Waiyaki): Mr. Speaker, as the Members have consented on Standing Order No. 26 (5) because they fear that possibly we are trying to limit their energies in putting nasty questions across to the Ministers, because they feel that maybe the Government is trying to shield itself from what we regard as the nastier movements in this House when a Minister is bombarded from the Back-benchers in an attempt to bring him down to his knees. As a matter of fact, Mr. Speaker, I think most of the Ministers and Assistant Ministers in this House enjoy, as much as the members of the Back-bench the to and fro of the questions in this House. I, for one, do not mind for a moment if members stand twenty at a time to bombard me with questions they believe will bring me down, because as a politician I rather enjoy hitting back and I am sure that that is the case of many Ministers here, so there is no question of fear.

The other point that was raised, one Member thought that this is a way of providing a comfortable exit for Ministers, because those of them who have been known, I have not known them myself, but some Members feel that there have been Ministers who have absented themselves when there were questions that they were afraid to answer or circumstances which were very involved. As a matter of fact, Mr. Speaker, I have not heard, as I have said, of any Ministers absenting themselves specifically because they were afraid to face this House. I think the Government must resist that kind of insinuation. The facts of the case are, that we have found there was a tendency to hold questions for a long time and that these questions were coming much later than the event to which they refer and we are of the opinion that we are making it easier for business in this House to proceed more smoothly and for questions to refer to events of the day.

The other point that I think I must make is that the Speaker has in fact the right to decide, he has the right to use his own discretion and that is an important point which I would like to emphasize because it does not lay down here in the amendment in these Standing Orders especially to Standing Order 26 (5) that the Speaker must, it is his own discretion that must rule the day.

Today, we had twelve questions on the Order Paper, we only dealt with eleven here and every Member saw how long that took. I think that Members must agree with us that the more time you can spend on a question the better. Those questions that are not of national importance, the Speaker must use his own discretion and he will I am sure refer them to the Ministry so that they might answer them individually through the Member concerned in writing but we would like very much, as a Government to discuss here matters which are of national importance and I can assure the Members that the Government has taken great notice of what they have said. I am glad the Speaker, himself, has answered those questions levelled at me which referred specifically to his own position as the person who decides "what and what shall not" come before this House. The assurance that the hon. Member Khalif or any other Member can bring to the House on a Motion for the adjournment, matters which were the result of unsatisfactory written replies to an hon. Member from a Minister is an assurance that I am sure hon. Members welcome. In any case we all knew that you did in fact bring a matter forward on a Motion for adjournment that was not the subject of a question which the Speaker deems fit to allow to be brought because it was a matter of national importance. We have had such cases since we started sitting in this House. Of course, the Speaker has the final say as to what questions will come on the Order Paper and what questions will go for written reply. With those few remarks to the few questions put forward I beg to reply.

CONSIDERED RULING

NUMBER AND PRIORITY OF QUESTIONS ON ORDER PAPER

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): For the information of hon. Members, I would like to make two comments on this question, and the effect of these amendments to Standing Orders. One is that this particular proviso, concerning questions on the Order Paper, will only arise if the flow of questions exceeds the rate of twelve for every normal day. Actually, the present rate of flow of questions taken over the number of days we expect sit in the course of the year is thirteen a day; so, unless the flow of questions increases, this proviso may not have to be used very often.

The other point is that it is my intention, now that this amendment has been tabled, to advise hon. Members, when putting in their questions, to mark those which they regard as most important, so that, if it comes to a point where we have to exclude any Member's question—which will only be because he has more than one question—we will know which one he prefers to have kept on the Order Paper.

BILL

Second Reading

THE CONSTITUTION OF KENYA (AMENDMENT) BILL
(Attorney-General on 24th March 1965)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 20th April 1965)

Mr. Makokha: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on the interruption of business yesterday I was talking about the Provincial Councils and I think that I have exhausted my argument with regard to this subject.

Another point which has been troubling me about the Constitution is the position of the President. Our Constitution provides that the President is the Leader of Government Business. Now in his capacity as Leader of Government Business we Members are free to attack him in any way. At the same time he is the Head of State and he requires that honour and respect which is befitting to that office. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it makes extremely difficult for us, because even when the President is here, as Leader of Government Business, it is extremely embarrassing, not only to ourselves but also to the President, because it is not easy to draw the line. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like the Attorney-General to think again and probably provide in the Constitution, or draw a line in the Constitution so that we have a different person as Leader of Government Business whom we can attack and blast in the House without any embarrassment to either party.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, another point which I would like to ask the Attorney-General to think about is the fact that it would be better for all concerned to think about the Constitution as one document. Since last year we have had a series of Bills, and it has become extremely difficult for Members to think clearly about the Constitution as a whole. I would like to venture to suggest that the Attorney-General think about a parliamentary committee so that we can go into the question of the whole document as one, because at the moment some of us are thinking of this Bill and it is difficult to think of the very first Bill that we had last year.

Next Mr. Speaker, Sir, in introducing this Bill the Attorney-General here, and also outside, and also the Minister for Economic Planning and Development, referred to the constitutions of other countries. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I personally feel that we should not compare Kenya with any other country. It was unfortunate to have compared Kenya with Nigeria for example, because there they have a federal constitution. America has the same. Somebody outside this House compared us with Britain, but in Britain of course, they do not have a written constitution as we understand it here. There the constitution was made as problems were encountered.

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in finishing, I urge the Attorney-General again, and I believe that most of the Members who have spoken have not opposed the Bill, but they have merely asked the Attorney-General that we should think again, and if possible, take into consideration the points raised by the hon. Members, particularly section 29, which refers to the declaration of a state of emergency, and section 71 which provides machinery for the changing of the Constitution.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I sit down believing that the Attorney-General will consider withdrawing this Bill and set up a parliamentary committee to go into the whole thing or to consider all the Bills as one document. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir,—

QUORUM

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it in order for us to continue to debate an important point like this when we have no quorum?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We do not have a quorum. Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have a quorum now, Mr. Khasakhala.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, yesterday when you took the names of the people who had spoken, I had spoken on a Motion for the [Mr. Khalif] very recently which should warrant or make this additional proviso necessary.

It should be appreciated that according to the present Standing Orders a Member, after submitting a question and, for that matter perhaps being given unsatisfactory replies, has the right to raise the matter on adjournment. There is no indication here to suggest that if a Member is given a written reply which he considers to be unsatisfactory, he can then raise the matter on an adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You mean that he should be able to raise the matter on an adjournment?

Mr. Khalif: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would like to say here, Mr. Khalif, that hon. Members can raise any matter on adjournment by notice to the Speaker provided it is suitable matter. Even if there is no answer to a question at all, but certainly on account of an unsatisfactory written reply.

Mr. Khalif: Do you mean, Mr. Speaker, that if a written reply is submitted to a question one can raise the matter on adjournment if he is not satisfied?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes. Even if there has been no question or reply at all.

Mr. Khalif: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office (Dr. Waiyaki): That covers your problem.

Mr. Khalif: It does.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, although the position has been clear on this, I feel that it is quite unnecessary to allow written replies to questions, because although we appreciate the difficulties involved at present in dealing with questions, I think this would be denying Members the privilege to raise supplementary questions.

I do not want to repeat myself, Mr. Speaker, and I would like to support.

Mr. Warhithi: Mr. Speaker, I have one or two points to comment on Standing Order 26 (5). It is quite true, Mr. Speaker, that question time is the most interesting part of our proceedings in this House, apart from Private Members' Day. I also feel that the life of the House becomes more interesting when Members ask supplementary questions.

I can see that the purpose of this amendment to the Standing Orders is to allow more questions to go through at one sitting and it provides that we have more than two questions. The Members who have other questions receive written replies.

My only comment on this, Mr. Speaker, is that I would request whoever is in charge of putting questions on the Order Paper should, as far as possible, see that we do not have questions with written replies. The reason I say this is because some questions are of a general nature and they cover problems not particularly of a certain constituency but of the whole country, and it is of interest to other Members to hear what is said. Some Members may say that this will appear in HANSARD but then HANSARD may come a few days later.

So, what I am asking here is for an assurance that all effort should be made to see that we do not have more than the number required, that is, twelve questions a day, and if at all we do, every effort should be made to eliminate written replies, as much as possible, which deny Members chance of participating in supplementary questions.

With these few words I beg to support this together with the other Standing Orders 111 and 145.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, I rise to endorse the views expressed by my two colleagues who have spoken on Standing Order No. 26 (5). I wish to give two examples regarding written replies to questions. I submitted a few questions a little while ago to the Ministry of Works, Communications and Power which I thought were of national importance, and I was surprised to receive written replies when, in fact the next day I saw about eight questions by one hon. Member on the Order Paper. Now, I do not know whether I should blame the Clerk, the Council or the Ministry concerned, but I thought it was very unfair that this was done the way it was done because this question actually concerned the railways as opposed to the roads where we are having bitter competition between transportation by railways and transportation by roads. Probably had that question been brought to the House I am sure that most Members would have been very interested and would have had something on record in the House concerning such competition.

I only hope that the issue of giving written replies will be considered carefully and also what sort of questions can be replied to in writing and what should be brought to the House. I wish also that someone could make it quite clear as to [Mr. Ochwada] has had the final decision on whether a question should be replied to in writing or brought to the House for reply.

The other point is regarding Standing Order No. 145. I have no quarrel with Standing Order 111 at all. However, with regard to Standing Order No. 145, this Standing Order was, I think, made a long time ago when this House consisted only of fifty-six Members. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have more than double the figure and the limitation on debates on Committee of Supply has denied quite a number of hon. Members the opportunity to voice their views. In fact, last year, Sir, I found great difficulty to try and express my views within twenty minutes. Not only that, Sir, but it was rather disappointing that in the end we were told that on a certain day the guideline would be applied and, therefore, there would be no further discussion on the Estimates, whereas most Members had a few points to raise on certain Ministries with regard to the policies of those Ministries. I only hope that this also will be taken into account in the Vice-President's Office and that in future perhaps we might have an extension of more than fifteen days to discuss matters in the Committee of Supply.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

POINT OF ORDER

WRITTEN REPLIES TO QUESTIONS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I might answer Mr. Ochwada's question about the procedure with regard to written replies as a point of order. It is really a matter of order, since it is in the hands of the Speaker and the Clerks. The rule and practice with regard to written replies is first of all that if any hon. Member asks for a written reply rather than an oral reply he will get a written reply. But, further than that, if the question involves a long or detailed reply and it is thought that it will not be easy for hon. Members hearing it orally in this House to assimilate it, then Mr. Speaker or the Clerk directs that it shall be put in as a written reply.

Even if a question goes forward to a Ministry as a question for oral reply and the Ministry decides that it is unsuitable for oral reply because the reply will be so long or so detailed, that they think it will be better for the hon. Member to have the answer in writing, then the Ministry have the right to say that they will give a written reply. Those are the circumstances in which written replies come forward even though an hon. Member may have been looking for an oral reply.

This is quite separate from the proposal now made, which is that questions which are normally questions for oral reply will get written replies because they have been excluded from the Order Paper.

Mr. Loreman: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have also only one point on which I would like to comment on this Standing Order No. 26 (5). This is with regard to questions. Now, an hon. Member has just commented on an hon. Member asking so many questions from various Ministries and I also would like to raise an explanation so that when these questions are set out there will be no questions put to one Ministry, for example, the Ministry of Commerce and Industry and on the other hand we get some Members asking another Ministry so many questions. Sometimes you find that there are questions which involve a great deal of work and so you find that the Ministers absent themselves simply because they do not want to answer those questions or they find the questions tricky. They may not want to answer the questions promptly. So I would like to state that the questions should be set out to the various Ministries, because I am sure the hon. Members do address their questions to the various Ministries. Also, regarding written and oral replies, I do not know whether an ordinary Member has the right to ask a supplementary question in writing and sent it to the correct Ministry for a reply. This might be taken for example that just because a Ministry has felt that this question is very involved and has got so many details and at one point the whole question touches one's constituency, an hon. Member's constituency so I do not know whether an hon. Member is entitled to write a supplementary question and send that supplementary question to the Ministry through the approval of the Speaker.

Thirdly, Mr. Speaker, about the numbering of these questions, as it has been stated here, it appears that twelve questions will have to be answered on a different day. Now, these questions might have been numbered but it depends when the questions have been given notice of and we might find that there is a question which is of national importance and incidentally, it is bound to be number thirteen or fourteen for example, which is more than the top priority of twelve and you find that this question which should have been answered orally, for the interest of the country, has just to have a written reply handed in which cannot be heard by anybody. So, Mr. Speaker, to those three points I would like to get a reply when the Minister replies to this Motion. Thank you Mr. Speaker.

[The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office] Time, then any Member may move, either forthwith or with notice upon a subsequent day, that with or without notice to a joint committee of both Houses, and a question upon such Motion shall be put forthwith without amendment or debate."

The third amendment that we propose to make is to Standing Order 145, which refers to procedure on Supplementary Estimates. Mr. Speaker, we wish to delete the following words from subparagraph (3) of Standing Order 145: "On any day on which an Order of the Day for Committee of Supply has been set down under this Standing Order, the Chairman shall, one hour before the time for interruption of business . . .". We will insert in place thereof the following words: "On any day on which an Order of the Day for Committee of Supply has been put down under this Standing Order, the business of such Order shall commence not later than three hours before the time for interruption of business and unless the House otherwise orders that such business shall continue for more than one day, the Chairman shall, half an hour before the time of interruption of business, move the closure of such business."

Mr. Speaker, the proposed amendment there is designed to ensure that sufficient time—three hours or, if the House agrees, a full day—is set aside specifically for consideration to be given to Motions in respect of the business of Supply. It is most essential that ample time should be made available so that Members may fully ventilate their views on this very important matter. I would imagine that, since there have been on many occasions misgivings that time had run out before Members had enough time to consider business before them, the Members in this House would welcome such a change.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Dr. Waiyaki, with reference to paragraph (2) of this Sessional Paper, I think there is some mistake which has been made concerning amendments to Standing Order 27. Quite clearly this proviso with regard to questions should come at the end of Standing Order 26 (5) and not 27 (4). Could we take it that you are moving the approval of the Sessional Paper with that amendment? The context is quite clear, I think.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office (Dr. Waiyaki): Yes, thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki) seconded.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, I am not trying to oppose this Motion, but I am trying to express my dissatisfaction to the Assistant Minister for trying, first of all, on Standing Order 26 (5), to deprive Members of their right to criticize the Ministers in this House. Some of my questions have been replied to in writing without coming to this House and I find myself most dissatisfied with the way they are answered in writing before they are brought to this House. So this amendment will not limit the questions which will come to the House and allow the Ministers to reply in writing, and thus at least deprive the House of some very nice times when Members ask questions at Ministers and know exactly what that will be.

When a Minister is asked a question and the reply is given in writing, that is usually another way of sheltering behind the written reply, so that the motive behind asking the question will not be understood in the House. Therefore, I am quite dissatisfied with that one and I hope if this one goes through the Ministers will not adopt the policy of putting everything in writing instead of bringing them to be discussed in the House.

The other Standing Order, 111, Mr. Speaker, is quite in order because I think if this House passes something and then it is dissatisfied with the Senate's amendment, even in the Constitution we are always allowed to do that, except if it is referred to a joint committee, the Minister in replying will tell this House how many members of the joint committee will be required—that is, from the Senate and from the House of Representatives—who will be the chairman of the joint committee, how the business will be conducted and how the vote will be taken when it comes to voting in that case.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think that really arises on this Motion, Mr. Mbogoh, because this is a proposal for some alternative procedure to the joint committee. The procedure for joint committee is not touched by this amendment at all.

Mr. Mbogoh: Well, Mr. Speaker, I do not have very much to criticize there, but I cannot support.

So, Mr. Speaker, this addition of sufficient time for us to discuss things—that is, from one hour to three hours—is fully supported because for most of the time we find that somebody wants to speak and he has very little time and in that case he will not find sufficient time to speak his mind. Therefore, that one is fully supported and also therefore, that one is supported if enough explanation is given.

Mr. Githony: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the Assistant Minister for presenting to the House what is more of the manufacture of the House; in other words, something made by the House.

It is the first time, Mr. Speaker, Sir, through the inconvenience we have suffered in the past that the Ministry responsible for this House has come forward with something concrete to help the smooth running of this House.

An hon. Member: Question.

Mr. Githony: I think it is the first time because the Standing Orders we adopted when we never knew what a Standing Order was, what the procedure was, we simply adopted for the sake of putting ourselves in a position of being able to say that we have our own Standing Orders, but today we are improving the old Standing Orders to suit the changed conditions.

More than once people have tried to find out whether some questions could be limited and whether questions coming from a particular hon. Member of this House could be removed in order to give space to other people's questions, but quite often the blame has been put on the administrative office of this Parliament. Mr. Speaker, I say this because I was one of those people who questioned as to why we should have Mbogoh, Mbogoh, Mbogoh, three questions consecutively on one day, when other people's questions were just lying idle and they could not be allowed time. Consequently, the Sessional Committee has now tried to give a chance to everybody, in a way of spreading the democratic right of every Member to be listened to in this House and his people to know that he is doing something for them. Under Standing Order 27, the proviso which has already been provided for gives every Member an opportunity to air his questions at least once; if he has put more than one question, at least he hears an answer to one before the Parliament is closed.

Consequently, Mr. Speaker, I say the outcome of our complaints in this House is that there were no Standing Orders giving us a specific limitation that only so many questions could be answered in a day and over and above that, that one person should not be allowed more questions while there are other questions pending. This gives us the impression that Ministers who were accustomed to sitting on the questions of other Members will have now to work day and night and give us the answers to the questions. They will realize that twelve questions are needed per day when we come to this House and each Minister must prove that the ten days' limit for each question to be answered must be adhered to and they must be presented to the House, either in writing or orally. I do not mind if I receive a written answer to any of my questions so long as the answer is given to the question. That is the only thing a questioner expects.

If this is done I am in a position to tell my people that this is the problem and the Government is doing this and that. If the Minister keeps quiet, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will say that the Government is not doing anything for my people. However, when the question has been answered, whether orally or in writing I am satisfied that my Government has given me the answer. This is where I say the amendments which have been brought here now are very welcome. In other words, Sir, they are very wholesome and we are happy about them.

The other thing I would like to say, Sir, is this. The time that we used to have before the interruption of business or the Supply days were so limited that now we have more time for more Members to express their views. It was complaining a few days ago, Mr. Speaker, that I was shocked to hear that the guillotine was to be used in connexion with the Supply days. We are told that today we vote for the Constitution of this country. Why should we vote for it before we express our views over it?

So, in the same way as we are allowing more time in regard to the Supply days I beg also that the amendment of the Constitution should be given more time.

With these few words I support the Motion.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have only one thing to say on this amendment in respect of the additional proviso. I am in disagreement with regard to the question of Members receiving written replies to their questions. Although I appreciate that sometimes the questions submitted by Members are too many, I feel that if we allow written replies to be submitted then it would, in fact, be denying Members the opportunity to raise supplementaries. As a matter of fact it happens that when one is given a written reply he will be denied, naturally, the privilege of raising supplementaries which sometimes are very important.

I do not want to say anything in respect of Standing Orders Nos. 111 and 145. This House has been going on very smoothly in respect of questions being submitted by hon. Members. I questions being submitted by hon. Members, I do not think that, if in the past we could stick to the Standing Orders without allowing written replies to be submitted to questions by hon. Members, there is anything which has developed

[Mr. Achleng-Oaeke] Turkana who knows Swahili and can speak other languages, he can apply in the normal way. The question is, however, whether a programme can be provided for them, and since this question has arisen, we have been trying to find out how many radios sets there are in this district. For the information of the hon. Members, there are only a very few sets which are possessed by the policemen in the Police Force and a few Turkana.

Mr. Lorema; Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, would he tell the House how many radios are required in a place in order to warrant a person from each tribe being employed by the Voice of Kenya as an announcer?

Mr. Achleng-Oaeke: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question of how many radios does not arise.

Question No. 1095

CLOSURE OF AFRICAN COURTS AT THE COAST

Mr. Omar asked the Attorney-General if he would state the reasons why some of the African Courts were closed in the Coast Province.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It was found that some African Courts in the Coast Province were under-employed, in other words there was not enough court work for them, and certain courts were therefore amalgamated in order to provide a full day's work for each court. This has enabled the courts to be staffed by better trained and more experienced members.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Attorney-General aware that, since some of the African Courts have closed down in the Coast Province, it has caused inconvenience to some people who have to walk over sixty miles to go to another African Court?

Mr. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I have already indicated, it is quite possible that some litigants have now to walk longer distances, but against that we also have to see whether the courts which are situated in different parts of the country are fully occupied during the day. That is why these courts were amalgamated.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Attorney-General explain to us why the policy of the courts following the people was not adopted when this adjustment was made for Malindi Sub-district, where the Minister determined Malindi—which has less cases of this type—and left out Marafa which is thickly populated with people concerned with the cases? Why was it not situated in the places where people are concerned with the majority of the primary cases?

Mr. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as the hon. Member knows, the African Courts deal primarily with African cases, cases affecting the local customs, and that is why the assize assisted that is the court moving from one district to another as we have in our Supreme Court and Magistrate's Court. This has not been introduced in the case of African Courts, because if you take an African Court from Nairobi to a district, those Africans will not be familiar with the African customs in that area.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Attorney-General, with due respect, has not replied to my question: I am not asking for people to be transferred from other places to go to Malindi; I am asking why, in the adjustment, in the determination of where the courts would exist, in the case of Malindi Sub-district, the Minister chose Malindi which is not mainly populated with Africans, and created unnecessary hardship by causing the people from Marafa and Kakomzi to walk sixty miles to go to Malindi to hear cases, instead of the court following them to the places of residence?

Mr. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, I do not have my map here, and of course I cannot question the hon. Member's geography of these places, but the explanation of this is that we were advised that the way the courts were amalgamated, as I have indicated, was going to suit the local conditions. If, of course, we are now told that this system is not working and people have to walk longer distances, we can change the location of these courts to another place.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Attorney-General not remember my advising him outside this House on this question, and why has he not taken action since I gave him the advice, or investigated the geography of the place?

Mr. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, I am not denying that the hon. Member did speak to me about this matter, but another hon. Member also discussed this matter with me and I was given a different distance, but I would like to say this, and this is quite serious and I recognize that if these people have to walk long distances—sixty miles as the hon. Mr. Ngala says—I am prepared to change the place.

Mr. Mwananzindi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Attorney-General aware that mobile courts might [Mr. Mwananzindi] help the local people in the Coast instead of walking so many miles down to an African Court?

Mr. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have no mobile courts.

Question No. 1012

"KENYA WORKERS" TO REPLACE "CIVIL SERVANTS"

Mr. Godia asked the Attorney-General if he would consider amendment of the Republic Constitution so that the words "Kenya workers" replaced "civil servants", since the words "civil servants" referred to the local servants of Her Majesty's British Government, who were appointed in the name of Her Majesty's Government in Britain to work in her territories.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The words "civil servants" do not appear in the Constitution so an amendment is necessary. People in the public service of the Government are referred to in the Constitution as "public officers".

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have to remind hon. Members that at the interruption of business today, Mr. Ekheila is to raise the matter noted on the Order Paper.

MOTION

SESSIONAL PAPER NO. 12: AMENDMENTS TO STANDING ORDERS

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office (Dr. Wajakij): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move:—

THAT this House makes the amendments to the Standing Orders of the House of Representatives set out in Sessional Paper No. 12 of 1963/65.

The amendments to the Standing Order set out in Sessional Paper No. 12 of 1963/65, Mr. Speaker, are in general trying to ensure that business of the House is conducted efficiently, and is despatched. The House has, in the past, frequently got bogged down, and this has increased the time which could be devoted to items which needed to be dealt with first. Individually, the objectives of the proposed amendments are as follows:—

First there is a general amendment, Mr. Speaker, in the Standing Orders; for example in Standing Order 27 (13), it refers to a Parliamentary Secretary, that by virtue of the changes in our Constitution, whereby a Parliamentary Secretary has been redesignated an Assistant Minister, we have to make an amendment so that wherever we find the words "Parliamentary Secretary" we read "Assistant Minister". Now, we also intend to amend Standing Order No. 27 which refers to contents of the questions asked in this House, so that at the end of Standing Order 27 (4), we will provide the following proviso:—

"Provided that on any day more than twelve questions are due to be placed on the Order Paper, and if Mr. Speaker, is of the opinion that the number of that question succeeding twelve cannot be spread over the next three sitting days without the questions on one of these days exceeding twelve, each Member shall be limited equally to such number of questions on the Order Paper as will reduce the total number of questions to twelve and shall receive forthwith a written reply to all other questions which are thus excluded from the Order Paper."

The purpose of that amendment, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is to speed up the business of the House by enabling the Speaker to limit, at his discretion the number of questions to twelve per day, and to direct the questions beyond that number to be replied to in writing rather than orally.

Then, we propose to amend Standing Order No. 111, which refers to commitment of Bills to a joint committee of both Houses. So, we will add to Standing Order No. 111 the following subparagraph:—

"If, at any time, before any such Motion has been agreed to a message is received from the Senate communicating a resolution that the Senate shall give further consideration to such amendments, that message shall be notified to the House by the Speaker at the earliest opportunity, and the Bills shall be returned to the Senate accordingly, whereafter procedure shall be as described by Standing Orders No. 110-117 inclusive."

Then, Mr. Speaker, adding the amendment to Standing Order No. 111 to the previous amendments to the Standing Orders so that the Members will know what I was referring to, I quote again:—

"If the House has agreed to all or any of the amendments made by the Senate to a Bill which originated in the House when the Senate has insisted on such amendments, or postponed for six months the consideration of amendments upon which the Senate has still insisted (Inaudible) to agree to a Motion that a Bill that originated in the Senate be read a Second Time or Third

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 1055: IMPORT OF SOUTH AFRICAN GOODS

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that I have some concrete proof in respect of this question, and in view of the fact that I consider the answers to be unsatisfactory, I would like to raise this matter on adjournment.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 1071

LOANS TO TRADERS BY KAKAMEGA COUNTY COUNCIL

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would ask the Kakamega County Council to begin giving loans to traders while bringing the defaulters to justice.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiatio): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am afraid that the hon. Member has been misinformed about his district. The embargo on traders' loans which was imposed because of the large number of defaulters was lifted as early as 1963, and there is nothing at present to stop the Kakamega Joint Loans Board (now known as the Kakamega Trade Development Board) from issuing loans.

In the year 1964, loans amounting to Sh. 50,000 were granted to nineteen traders and, by the end of the year, the board had an unspent balance of Sh. 75,778 which will be allocated as soon as further applications are processed and approved by the board.

Therefore, the question is not whether we shall lift the ban; the ban has not been in existence since 1963.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that some of the traders who want loans from the board have their application forms delayed deliberately by the district officers who are responsible for recommending them.

Dr. Kiatio: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is an entirely different question.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister telling the House that there existed a ban on issuing loans to traders at one time? And if so, why should other traders be penalized because of some other defaulters who may not have any connexion with the traders at all?

Dr. Kiatio: Mr. Speaker, Sir, Yes, I am saying that there was a ban, very definitely. If borrowers borrow money from this revolving fund and do not pay it back, then we have no other money to lend. Therefore, we put on a ban.

Question No. 1083

IMPORT LICENCES FOR AFRICAN TRADERS

Mr. Amali asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would tell the House when the Government intended to withdraw some of the Import Licences now held by non-Africans and issue them to African Traders.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiatio): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It is not necessary for a trader to have an import licence in order to import goods unless he intends to import restricted items which require a specific licence for the protection of our local industries. When such a licence is issued for these restricted items, it is for a particular consignment to be imported at a particular time.

As we do not operate on the basis of a quota system, therefore, the question of withdrawing licences from Asians to give them to Africans does not arise.

Mr. Amali: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, the answer given to the House by the Minister is not enough, and in view of the fact that the black men and women in this country have been suffering for the last six years, it is no use saying that Kenya is independent while the import licences are still owned by foreigners and others.

Therefore, would the Minister consider withdrawing some of these import licences from the Asians and give them to the black Africans who are still suffering?

Dr. Kiatio: Mr. Speaker, Sir, with all due respect to my very good friend, the point is this. Most of the imports into our country are on the basis of what we call the general open licence which means that any person can import if he has the money and the company to import. There are no restrictions, therefore, it is not a question of going to these people, taking the licence away from them and giving them to somebody else. If my friend wishes to import tomorrow, he can do so tomorrow, because most of the items are on what is known as a general open licence.

Now, Sir, there are a few items, some of which were issued only yesterday on the front page of the East African Standard, which we put on import licence. When they come to apply for the licence, if we get an appropriate African wholesale company, we shall be very glad to give the licence, but Sir, we cannot give licences that are not applied for.

NUMBER OF SUPPLEMENTARIES ALLOWED

Mr. Anyien: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, I would like to have your ruling: If there is a question asked and there are very many Members who would like to raise supplementary questions, I would like to raise the principle which guides the Speaker to stop the supplementary questions when only two supplementary questions have been raised.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The principles which guide me as to the time allowed for each question are, first of all, that we have to get through all the questions within a reasonable time, so as to allow us to do some other business in the course of the afternoon. The next is the degree of interest shown by the House, also the intelligence of the questions asked by way of supplementary questions. Lastly, the real progress made on supplementary questions. All those things I take into account. Also again, how many questions have already been asked by one Member or the other and which Members have not yet had a question. All this comes into it.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 1083: IMPORT LICENCES FOR AFRICAN TRADERS

Mr. Onari: Mr. Speaker, in view of the importance of this question, and since the Minister has not answered it satisfactorily, I would like to raise this matter on the adjournment.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 1091

TURKANA ANNOUNCER FOR VOICE OF KENYA

Mr. Ekdella asked the Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism whether, in view of the fact that the majority of the Turkana people did not understand Swahili or English, he would consider appointing a Turkana as an announcer in the Voice of Kenya.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. At the present time, the Voice of Kenya broadcasts in eleven vernacular languages. The Government policy is to minimize as much as possible the vernacular languages, in order to encourage the use of the national language: that is Swahili. Already, some vernaculars have been dropped in preference to Swahili.

In these circumstances, it is considered that to introduce the Turkana language in the Voice of Kenya would be a step towards the encouragement of more vernacular languages rather than cutting them down. As such, the Government considers it is inappropriate to introduce the language in question.

Again, there is one thing which ought to be considered: whether the people of Turkana possess enough radio sets, and I am very sympathetic with the hon. Member and we feel that it is the duty of the Government, and in this case the duty of my Ministry, to loan, if possible, radio sets to the area. If these are found to be useful in this way, then we would consider how best to help that remote part of the country further.

Mr. Ekdella: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I just want to know whether the Minister for Broadcasting and Tourism knows that most of the Turkana—I do not want any Member to laugh, it is a very serious thing—do not know the language of Kiswahili, and I would like to know whether he could be kind enough and put one, two or three Turkana in the Voice of Kenya?

Mr. Achieng-Onoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not a question of employing the Turkana in the Voice of Kenya. It is a question of getting the Turkana a programme of their own and in their own language, and I have already answered that and I have said that we are really sympathetic and we hope to loan some radio sets to the area. Again, there is one difficulty which the hon. Member should appreciate, and that is the local people are scattered, and it is always very difficult to locate where they are, especially when it is very dry in the area. I know the place very well and this is why we are trying to sympathize and to do as much as we can to help them.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, Sir. The question as it stands here does not indicate that the Member for Turkana demands an establishment of a Turkana programme. The question is unemployment, appointment of a Turkana. Now, this is the point I do not understand, because the Minister—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think that is a point of order at all.

Mr. Arerman: Mr. Speaker, Sir, does the Minister agree with me that in appointing one or two Turkana chaps in the Voice of Kenya, would encourage the Turkana to buy some radios to listen to the broadcasting?

Mr. Achieng-Onoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is no sense in that, because if there is a qualified students learn and therefore we are trying to have the language taught in every school where there is a teacher capable of instructing the students.

Mr. Anyien: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that there are certain Members who wish to have Swahili as the language which should be used in this House and in view of the fact we do not have sufficient teachers, could the Assistant Minister tell us whether the Government is willing to take some teachers from Tanzania to teach the Members of this House? If the Government is not willing to do this will it give us an assurance that Swahili is not going to be accepted as the language to be used in this House before we have sufficient teachers to teach potential Members of this House Swahili?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. Could you answer the first question and forget about the rest, Mr. Konchellah.

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, I have found that it will not be possible to instruct the Members of this House unless they are willing to return to classes, but what we are doing at the moment is teaching the future citizens of this country Swahili in the schools.

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, will the Government employ more people from the Coast to teach Swahili?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we need trained teachers. If the hon. Member would be kind enough to give us a list of teachers who are qualified to teach Swahili, we will be very willing to employ them.

Mr. Kamuren: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that the Swahili which is spoken at the Coast is the Swahili that is not supposed to come from other places of the country, in other words it is not standard Swahili?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do agree that my friend comes from the settled areas, therefore the Swahili he speaks is known as Kf-swili, the better Swahili is known as the Standard Swahili and it is Standard Swahili which has been taught in our schools which, I quite agree, originated at the Coast.

Mr. Turwel: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister tell us if it has ever been the policy of the Government that the official language of this House would be Swahili? If so, what steps has the Government taken to see that there are sufficient teachers to ensure that Swahili will be taught in all schools so that the language may be spoken here?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the use of Swahili in this House as an official language is not the concern of my Ministry, but rather it is the concern of this House to judge whether Swahili is to be introduced or not.

Question No. 1081

SECONDARY SCHOOL IN MANDERA AREA

Mr. Amin asked the Minister for Education if he had considered providing a secondary school in the Mandera area.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. No, Sir, secondary school facilities in the North-Eastern Province are adequate at present. When the need increases, consideration will be given to establishing new classes in the province, but it is likely that additional streams will be opened at Wajir Secondary School before new schools are started at Mandera or elsewhere in the North-Eastern Region.

Mr. Amin: Mr. Speaker, Sir, Mandera is in one of the remotest corners of Kenya and it was forgotten during colonial rule and it is now purely up to this Government to consider giving priority to such under-developed areas?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the North-Eastern Region twenty-four candidates did their K.P.E. and only ten passed and obtained their certificates. A number of them are in the secondary schools. I therefore hope that the hon. Member from Mandera will be satisfied when I tell him that if we get enough candidates who can do their K.P.E. properly, we will be willing to add another stream at the secondary schools.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that there has been a tendency on the part of the Educational Department to say that there has been an insufficient number of children to warrant the establishment of schools?

Mr. Konchellah: At the moment the North-Eastern Region has no students who can go to secondary schools.

Mr. Khalif: Arising from the reply of the Assistant Minister when he implied that there are no students who can go to secondary schools is he aware that the secondary school which was established in Wajir early this year was done so [Mr. Khalif] for the purpose of the children of the North-Eastern Region attending?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in this case I think I need to give the hon. Members an explanation. The Ministry of Education has opened a single-stream secondary school at Wajir, far in advance of any of the district's educational needs, with the result that all candidates from the North-Eastern Province who took their preliminary examinations in 1964 have been admitted to Form 1 this year whether they passed or failed. There were twenty-four candidates taking K.P.E. last year and ten of them obtained K.P.E. certificates. The Ministry proposes to increase the number of streams at a time yet to be decided, when the increasing number and rising quality of Form 1 candidates justifies further expansion of facilities for secondary education in the region.

CONTINUATION OF IMPORT OF SOUTH AFRICAN GOODS

Mr. Kall asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry:

- (1) If the Minister was aware that despite the Government's ban on South African goods, South African manufactured goods were still coming into this country purporting to be from Southern Rhodesia?
- (2) What was the volume of trade between Kenya and Southern Rhodesia since 1963?

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiano): I have heard from various sources that South African goods are coming into Kenya through Southern Rhodesia, but, so far, I have not had any concrete proof of this statement. The Government is very watchful and we are doing everything possible to stamp out all sales of prohibited goods. In this connection, Mr. Speaker, a Bill is now being prepared which will be introduced into the House in the very near future which will make it illegal to possess for purposes of trade any goods which are banned in Kenya, that means goods from South Africa or from Portugal.

In so far as the second part is concerned, the trade figures for the year 1963 included the figures from both Southern Rhodesia and Malawi, and these figures are as follows:

Exports from Kenya	£ 230,969
Imports from Rhodesia and Nyasaland	442,047

However, the volume of trade between Kenya and Southern Rhodesia alone for the year 1964 that is not inclusive of the Malawi figures are as follows:

Exports from Kenya	£ 310,195
Imports from Southern Rhodesia	268,811

Mr. Kall: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Minister assure this House that his Ministry goes around to the local shops where we have some evidence of some merchants who have been importing goods from South Africa through some friends in Southern Rhodesia?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as soon as the law is passed by this House which, as I said, will be in the very near future, we shall be able to prosecute.

Mr. Choge: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister tell this House when the Bill is going to be introduced in this House?

Dr. Kiano: I am assured by the Attorney-General that he is working on it right now.

Mr. Choge: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister has not answered my question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order, I am afraid.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, has the Minister been informed that the corks used in the fishing industry have been imported from Holland but manufactured in Portugal?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very grateful for that information; I was not aware of it.

Mr. Mhogohi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was asking the Minister whether he took any action when he received—I showed him and his Permanent Secretary—some containers which were made in South Africa, and which were being used in this country. What action did he take?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very much aware of the incident that the hon. Member is referring to. As a matter of fact, it was very disrespectful behaviour, because it was at a party attended by His Excellency the President and some people had given us paper cups made in South Africa during luncheon. It was very disrespectful and hon. Members brought that to my notice. The facts are, Sir, that, until this House has passed a law, we cannot punish people.

[The Assistant Minister, President's Office.] priorities and there are more pressing demands upon the Police Force at the present time. The matter will not, however, be lost sight of, and the Government intends to do so as soon as funds permit.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the thefts and other criminal acts by the people in the district, could the Assistant Minister tell the House whether the Ministry is looking for funds and when these funds will be available?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, provisions are being made to be contained in the Estimates of 1965/66.

Mr. Malsori-Iumbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, in view of the fact that last year the same question was asked in this House and the answer was almost the same, could he assure the House that the Minister will not repeat the same mistake by telling us what the funds are going to be found and yet nothing will be done about it?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I personally did not reply to this question last year, but if it was replied to last year, I now make it known to the hon. Member for Kuria that arrangements are being made and there will be something in the next year's Estimates.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, that it is a question of priority, would the Assistant Minister tell us the number of crimes committed since last year in the district, because the Government was forced to send the General Service Unit to the district two weeks ago to put down some criminal acts in the district?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to be drawn away from the question of giving the number of crimes committed in Homa Bay or in that district, but what I want to do is to repeat to the hon. Member for Homa Bay is that the Government considers the establishment of police headquarters at Homa Bay as one of the priorities.

Mr. ole Tipli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that instead of spending a lot of public money, the Member for the area ought to educate his people?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we all know that the hon. Members of this House are duty-bound to help to maintain law and order and it is our duty, as the hon. Members of this House, to educate our people that it does not pay to commit a crime. This is not only for the Member for Homa Bay but it applies to all of us.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that the Masai are known to be notorious people for stealing cattle.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order, Mr. Ngala-Abok, you must know that you are completely out of order. It was not a point of order to start with and it was not the sort of thing to say in the second place. You must be much more careful of what you say in this Chamber. You had better withdraw what you said.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I withdraw it.

Question No. 2017

STRIKES AT YALA AND MASENO SECONDARY SCHOOLS

Mr. Odera-Sar asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House what were the causes which led the students at Yala and Maseno Secondary Schools to go on strike.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. ole Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(i) Yala

The strike at Yala was caused by a dispute between Forms III and II on the one hand and Form IV, on the other, regarding which group should serve the other at mealtimes.

It has been the practice in the school for Form III to serve Form IV at mealtimes. This year for reasons best known to the class, Form III refused to serve Form IV. Tempers naturally rose in both classes, with Form III demanding emancipation classes, with Form IV insisting that it was their turn and privilege to be served by Form III.

At one stage, the relations between the two forms were so bad that there was violence and disorder threatened. School authorities took every possible step to halt this bad trend and increase the maintenance of order and discipline. Form III were ordered to serve Form IV in accordance with the tradition of the school and when they refused to comply, another order suspending them was issued immediately. The authorities then turned to Form II and ordered them to serve Form IV. They too refused to do so, and were immediately suspended.

(2) Maseno

The immediate cause of strike at Maseno School was the rather poor performance by the parts of that School in the 1964 School Certificate Examination. The general causes included a complaint that students were made to perform manual work in order to clean their dormitories and compound; a complaint about poor staffing in the lower school (i.e. Forms I and II); and a complaint about poor school management.

Mr. Odera-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell the House what remedy he is planning to carry out in order to stop these students going on strike in connexion with serving food and other things?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, as I have said before, what caused the strike is a sort of tradition which reflected the significance of seniority in the life of the school. This has been looked into and we are not expecting any more strikes.

Mr. Mbooghi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it the policy of the Kenya Ministry of Education to have the lower grade students serve the higher grade students in schools?

Mr. Konchellah: I must say, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that this is not a policy of the Ministry of Education, but is a tradition which is being followed by a particular school.

Mr. Ngala: Arising from that reply by the Assistant Minister, could he assure us that since the tradition is wrong and causes chaos in schools he will stop it immediately by instruction?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the report which we received from the particular school is that this tradition has been going on for years and so far there has been no trouble. At the moment the school is quiet, but if we find that the school does not follow the same tradition we will ask the headmaster to put an end to it.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, would he not agree with me that if this tradition is a part of this school and some of us have been doing that and have even emerged into great leaders and as such that tradition should continue?

Mr. Konchellah: Yes, Sir.

Question No. 1063

TEACHING OF SWAHILI IN SCHOOLS

Mr. Jamal asked the Minister for Education:—

(a) If he was aware that many Government and grant-aided schools were not teaching Swahili.

(b) What plans his Ministry had to introduce the compulsory teaching of Swahili in all schools.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) The Minister is aware that not all schools can teach Swahili at present because of lack of teachers but, where teachers are available, Swahili is generally being taught.

(b) The hon. Member will be aware that the Government is at present studying the whole education system on the basis of the Education Commission Report and, as such, my Ministry is not prepared to take any precipitate action and, in any case, making any subject compulsory when teachers are not available would not serve the purpose which the hon. Member may be having in mind.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, Sir, does the Assistant Minister imply that Kenya, whose indigenous language is Swahili, has not been able to produce the requisite number of teachers to teach Swahili in Kenya schools?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in some of the schools, especially in Asian schools, you can hardly find a teacher who can speak fluent Swahili and so this means that we do not have enough teachers in every school to teach Swahili. However, in the schools where teachers are available, Swahili is being taught.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, would the Assistant Minister make it compulsory for all schools where Swahili is not taught, to advertise for teachers who can teach Swahili?

Mr. Konchellah: I have not heard the question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I must say I am not surprised.

Mr. Jamal: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, when he stated that a sufficient number of teachers who can speak Swahili are not available, will the Ministry make it compulsory for the schools who are not teaching Swahili at this time to advertise for teachers who can teach Swahili?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, at the moment we have a problem in finding teachers who can read Swahili. We would like to teach Swahili in the same manner in which we teach other subjects such as French, but we can only do this when we have enough teachers. French is another language which we are trying to introduce into the Kenya schools. But Swahili is a language which we are most keen to see our

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIR

RULING ON MR. MALINDA'S MOTION

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, on Thursday, the 1st April, this year Mr. Malinda gave Notice of a Motion which called for investigation and action by Government in respect of alleged evidence that arms were being smuggled into Kenya by communistic and other countries.

In accordance with a resolution of the Sessional Committee, this Motion was placed on the Order Paper next day, Friday, the 2nd April, with due warning to Mr. Malinda; but, when the time came for the Motion to be moved, Mr. Malinda was absent from the Chamber.

Yesterday, Mr. Malinda made a Personal Statement to the House, in which he explained his failure to appear at the time appointed for his Motion, and apologized. At the same time, he indicated his readiness still to proceed with this Motion next Friday, if I would allow him to do so.

Having heard Mr. Malinda's explanation and apology to the House for an incident which aroused justifiable indignation at the time, I am no longer concerned with his personal conduct in this matter; except so far as it affects the decision whether or not to allow this Motion to appear again on the Order Paper, which, as he rightly says, now rests with me.

Standing Order 33 provides, in effect, that a Motion which has not been moved at the time appointed shall not thereafter, during the same Session, be placed on an Order Paper again without the leave of the Speaker.

Normally, when a situation of this kind arises, I make and communicate my decision privately, with little or no explanation to the House. On this occasion, however, knowing the atmosphere in which Notice of this Motion was given and the feelings that were thereby intensified, I think that the House is entitled to hear a full explanation of my decision.

In all such cases, the first question that your Speaker has to consider is whether or not the Member concerned had such good reason for his apparent default—for example, sudden illness, or insufficient warning of the Order Paper —as to justify, in fairness to him personally, a further opportunity to move this Motion. In this case, while accepting Mr. Malinda's explanation and apology, I do not think that his explanation is such as to demand, in fairness to him personally, that further opportunity.

But that is not the only question. Your Speaker has also to consider whether the nature and circumstances of the Motion are such that, in spite of any default on the part of the Mover, it is in the best interests of this House, and of the country which this House serves, that he be allowed, if willing, still to move the Motion.

Naturally, the answer to that question depends largely upon what appears to be the will of the House, but it is one of those comparatively few occasions when the will of the House does not necessarily prevail. The will of the House, which is the will of the majority, must always prevail in resolution of any substantive issue; but when it is a question of what is to be heard or not to be heard in this House, and your Speaker is given the last word, he has to consider also both the right of minority or even an individual Member to be heard, and the overriding interests of the House and nation as a whole.

Since the day when Mr. Malinda gave notice of this Motion, nearly three weeks ago, much has occurred. On the following day, his failure to move the Motion resulted in a Motion for Adjournment under Standing Order fourteen, when some of his anxieties were ventilated by other Members, and the Minister for Internal Security and Defence replied; and, in the course of the substantive Motion for Adjournment which followed, the Minister gave a further reply to certain further questions on the same issue. Thereafter, local newspapers published various facts and rumours, which have been publicly explained or answered by the Minister and other Members through Press conferences or otherwise. Moreover, the rains have broken; and those tensions from which most of us suffered during the last hot month of atmospheric tension have been largely dissolved.

I can see only three possible reasons for allowing this Motion yet to be moved.

The first is that hon. Members may wish to hear whether Mr. Malinda has evidence of arms being smuggled into Kenya, beyond the facts and rumours of which this House and the country are now already aware. I am authorized by him to say that he has no further facts to lay before this House.

The next reason might be that the House and the Nation wish to hear Government's answer to these facts and rumours; but the Minister's

[The Speaker] answers and explanations have already been heard, both in this House and elsewhere, and he tells me that he has nothing to add.

The third, and not the least important, reason might be that the Motion implied some charge against Members of this House, which they must be allowed to answer in this House. That would be sufficient reason by itself for the Motion to be moved, unless withdrawn by the Mover. But he moved, in the terms of this Notice of Motion to associate it with any individual Member or Members. If there has been any such unfortunate association, that can only have been due to rumours outside this House, which have already been answered outside this House, and with which the House itself must refuse to be concerned, unless, and until they are brought before the House. Moreover, Mr. Malinda has assured me that he did not intend, in moving this Motion, to attack any Member of the House.

In conclusion, I feel—and I believe that the majority of hon. Members really feel—that personal suspicions and enmities which seemed to be developing on this issue, to the detriment of this House and the nation, and the atmospheric tensions of three weeks ago, are now on the mend; and that nothing could result from the reopening of this Motion but the reopening of sores which are now nearly healed.

For these reasons, Mr. Malinda's Motion will not reappear on the Order Paper during the present Session.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

POLICY FOR HARAMBEE SECONDARY SCHOOLS.

Mr. Makokha: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:

"That this House calls upon the Government urgently to state more clearly its policy with regard to Harambee secondary schools; and to revise the policy about secondary education generally."

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 1050

ISSUING OF STAFF LISTS

Mr. Makokha asked the President whether the Republic of Kenya was going to compile and issue periodic staff lists as was the practice during the colonial régime.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyanweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir I beg to reply. Yes. Arrangements are already in hand to prepare a staff list and it is hoped that one will be issued by July this year.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, will the Assistant Minister tell the House why it has taken so long to compile a list and publish it?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the last staff list was issued in September 1962. When arrangements were made to issue the 1963 list as at September 1963, the regional constitution upset this arrangement, since it was not possible to determine regional establishments. The 1964 staff list was also made impossible by the fact that the Pratt terms of service were implemented and a lot of changes in salary scales were effected, which meant that the staff list which would have been issued would have been out of date before it was printed.

Mr. Ochwada: Since this list must be given on a certain date, would the Assistant Minister tell the House how the Pratt Commission Report's implementation affected the publishing of the list?

Mr. Murrill: Mr. Speaker, Sir, does the Assistant Minister not agree with me that this list has not come out simply because the jobs have been allocated tribally?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, No. I want to deny emphatically that the list has been delayed because of the tribal set-up of the civil servants.

DEMOTIVE OF MAJOR OGUTU

Mr. Odeyo-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since I have discussed this matter with the Minister for Internal Security and Defence, I would like to withdraw the question.

POLICE HEADQUARTERS AT HOMA BAY

Mr. Ngala-Abok asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence if he would tell the House how soon he intended to establish a police command headquarters at Homa Bay for South Nyanza District.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyanweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister for Internal Security and Defence, I beg to reply. The question of establishing divisional headquarters at Homa Bay has received considerable attention. It is, however, a question

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Odinga, we do not accept that any hon. Member is wasting our time or his by raising what he is entitled to raise in this House, even if it is your private opinion.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): I am very sorry, Mr. Speaker, I withdraw that.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gochago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, as the hon. Vice-President has very clearly stated, this matter arose from a question which was asked in this House by the hon. Member who has seen fit and thought it appropriate to raise this matter again on the adjournment.

Mr. Speaker, let me say this, before I go on. He viewed the matter that the answer was unsatisfactory. I do not think the reply which was given was unsatisfactory at all, because there were no differences between what the hon. Member thought and what he claimed and what the Government thought. The only difference was that, after the original agreement both the Turkana and the Samburu had a conflict. The Samburu, after they had made an agreement to follow a certain line of demarcation, intimated that, in order to have a line drawn, the Turkana should be pushed back to the valley, and this was contrary to the agreement which was made. Now, if the Government went on forcing this issue, it would mean that the Government would leave these people fighting on the question of the boundary for ever and, therefore, this is why it is very important that the two tribes, which are living next to one another, should agree themselves, instead of the Government going in and imposing a solution to what is actually their own problem. It is not a problem of the Government. The Government has no problem here at all. The Government is willing and as the hon. Vice-President has put it, the Government is prepared to carry out an investigation without delay, an investigation as to whether the two tribes have now agreed, or the two tribes have now sorted out their differences, and this is what the Government is prepared to do.

I would appeal to the hon. Member, Mr. Speaker, that instead of bringing this matter when the Government has agreed that there is a case, to contact the Ministry of Lands and Settlement so that this matter can be discussed and if necessary the Commissioner of Lands will go further and investigate on the spot whether these two tribes are prepared to agree so that a solution to their problem can be reached.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I do not see the point for dissatisfaction here, or the suggestion that the reply which was given was unsatisfactory, because all the Government said was that this difference existed. It is not the intention of the Government to make a decision which will lead to perpetual conflict, perpetual fighting between two tribes. The Government would like to avoid conflict between tribes as much as possible, and I am sure the hon. Member would not like the Government to reach a decision which would keep his people, his tribe the Samburu, fighting the Turkana from time to time. I am sure he is as anxious as the Government is to avoid such a conflict.

Mr. Speaker, the Ministry of Lands and Settlement has open hands to receive the hon. Member, if possible with a delegation, and to go as deep as possible into the matter so that this shauri can be investigated. It is not fair, and I am sure the hon. Member will agree with me, at this stage, and at a point where there is a disagreement between the two tribes, that the Government should impose a solution.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

(Question put and agreed to)

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The House is now adjourned until tomorrow, Wednesday, 21st April, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at fifty-two minutes past six o'clock.

WRITTEN REPLY TO QUESTION

CO-ORDINATION OF ECONOMIC PLANNING AND DEVELOPMENT

Mr. Ngala-Abok asked the Minister for Economic Planning and Development if he would give a detailed explanation of how his Ministry co-ordinated and channelled the economic planning and development policy of this country with other Ministries.

REPLY

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): As the hon. Member is aware the planning organization of the Government was set out in chapter 2 of the Six-Year Development Plan for the period 1964-70, which was published last year. This description will be brought up to date when the revision of the Plan is published later this year.

(The Minister for Economic Planning and Development)

The Ministry operates through three divisions namely, the Planning, the Statistics and the Administrative Divisions. The Planning and Statistical divisions have subsections which specialize in matters concerning various Ministries.

The development plans from each Ministry are prepared in close consultation with officials of my Ministry specializing in various sectors. Once the plans are cleared with my Ministry, they are submitted to the Cabinet Development Committee of which I am chairman, for scrutiny. Any ministry with interests is also consulted. When adopted by the Development Committee, these plans become part of the country's 1964-70 Development Plan which is approved by the Cabinet. My Ministry does also take the initiative to propose suitable projects to a Ministry or Ministries for inclusion in the Development Plan. We are also concerned with technical assistance. The Treasury controls the money, but we decide the priorities of projects and work closely with the Treasury to ensure funds are available or explore new sources.

My Ministry studies the programme of execution of the plan and calls for information on progress made. It also discusses weaknesses in the plan and possible switch in emphasis or order of implementation with the Ministries concerned. My Ministry ensures there is discipline in the development of the economy and no department or Ministry may initiate any new project not already in the plan without discussing it with us and getting approval of the Development Committee.

At the moment, we do not have planning officers in the field. Arrangements are, however, under way for appointing provincial planning officers who will, inter alia, ensure co-ordination of plans prepared by departmental heads for provinces and also co-ordinate social, physical and economic planning at the provincial and district level. These officers will also provide liaison with provincial development and make recommendations for the improvement of plan implementation procedures at the provincial and district level.

This, briefly, is how my Ministry co-ordinates and channels the economic planning and development policy of this country with other Ministries. Should the hon. Member be interested in a more detailed account, I will be pleased to arrange for my officials to describe to him how the planning organization works.

[Mr. Makokha] Lurambi is not representing a bigger constituency than the Member for Emukhaya? What I was trying to say is that because some of these members represent larger areas—I am not talking about population, geographically they have to cover large areas—they need money. They are required to meet their electors, and so they must receive a salary so that they find it easy to move about either by bus, motor bicycles, etc.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid we have come to the time for the interruption of business. Would you like to break off and continue next time?

Mr. Makokha: I will continue next time, Mr. Speaker.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

LAND VESTED IN SAMBURU COUNTY COUNCIL.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time for the interruption of business and I will therefore call upon a Minister to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angaine) seconded.

Mr. Rurumban: Mr. Speaker, when I requested you that I be allowed to raise the matter now before the House, I did so because I felt that the replies given by the Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement were both unsatisfactory and irrelevant to my Question 952. My question was simply a request asking the Government to vest the Samburu land into the Samburu County Council as we were once promised in this House by the then Minister for Justice and Constitutional Affairs.

Sir, I was surprised and shocked to hear from the Assistant Minister that the Government is opposed to converting the Samburu land into land units simply because there is a little dispute between the Turkana Samburu who are living in the Samburu District and the Samburu themselves over the grazing rights. Sir, I think it is unfair for the Government to refuse to convert the Samburu land into land units simply because of that dispute between the Samburu and the Turkana over the grazing rights. The question of demarcating the Samburu District or of creating another district within the Samburu District is really unacceptable to the Samburu tribes. The Samburu have never suggested or entertained the idea of yielding any part of their land to anybody. The land is theirs and it will remain theirs, and anybody who claims any part of the Samburu District has no right to demand it. The Turkana we have in the district, Mr. Speaker, will remain in the district by virtue of their long stay in the district. The Samburu have never said they do not want these Turkana in the district, and if the Government does not want to vest the Samburu land in the county council then it is not fair at all. I would accuse the Government of denying the Samburu their freedom over their land.

The county council, and we, Members of Parliament, have requested this Government several times, even during the colonial régime, to declare the Samburu District as a Native Land Unit, like many other districts in the country or other tribal lands. This is another Government now, Mr. Speaker, a Government which is the Government of the country and I fail to understand, therefore, why the Samburu land is not vested within the county council of Samburu like many other tribal lands in this country. Sir, the reason for the Government refusing to convert this land into land units because of that little dispute over the grazing land between the Turkana and the Samburu is not sufficient.

The Samburu are opposed to the infiltration from the Turkana District into the Samburu District. The land of the Turkana is enough for the Turkana and we object very strongly, Mr. Speaker, to any Turkana from Lodwar coming to our district.

Mr. Ekitella: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member speaking on Turkana or the people of his district?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What is your point of order?

Mr. Ekitella: My point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is this: is the hon. Member speaking on the Turkana or the Samburu?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order. You can ask for clarification, if he gives way; but that is not a point of order.

Mr. Rurumban: Mr. Speaker, I think the hon. Member is not aware that the reply I was given by the Minister was that the main reason why the Government is opposed to converting the Samburu land into land units is because of the disputes over grazing between the Turkana and the Samburu.

[Mr. Rurumban]

Sir, I believe that for the Government to object to converting the Samburu land into land units merely because of this dispute is unreasonable.

With these few words, Sir, I beg to move.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, I think the Mover of the Motion has spoken with sufficient sincerity to make the Government understand the needs of the Samburu people, and I would like to mention only a few points.

It was agreed during the Lancaster House Conference, when we were discussing the Constitution, that a great deal of this land which used to be Crown land in these districts of Samburu and Turkana was to be vested in the people themselves and, because of this agreement, the people of the area, the Turkana and the Samburu, are absolutely entitled to ask for their land back as Trust land. I think the idea is to have this land converted from Government land to Trust land. It is very clear that once the land becomes Trust land, the local people will have more say in their own land constitutionally.

Another thing is this. We were not convinced when the Government was giving its reply, because the Government said it had stopped acting because of the quarrels between the Turkana and the Samburu. Now, this is not convincing, because this is not the first time two tribes have had quarrels over land or any other property. Therefore, I submit very strongly that the Government should transfer the Government land to Trust land and demarcate the boundary between these two districts, so that the Samburu can continue with the land as their own property.

It is very difficult to have a county council which practically has no land, where all the land belongs to the Government. Since the county council has a great deal to do with economic development, I think it is depriving the county council of the chance of developing economically since the land does not belong to the people.

The Samburu have always been keen on keeping ranches. If the land is controlled from Nairobi, this would hinder local projects and schemes.

Now, if the Government admits that it cannot settle any quarrel between the Samburu and the Turkana, then it is reflecting gross weakness in not being able to settle the problem which does exist between the two tribes. There can always be disputes even over small areas and Government can determine that there is a belt of land which does not belong to either of the tribes and that small piece of land could be left as Government land. The majority of the land, however, could be given to the people.

I think there is something more behind this. The Government wants to own land over these areas and that is why it refuses to vest the land in the county councils. We have experienced this in the Tana River area, the Lamu area, where huge tracts of land have been withheld from the county councils. Now, if this is the intention of the Government we should be told in no uncertain terms that Government wishes to keep that land and it is not the question of any quarrels between the tribes. I believe that Government is capable of negotiating with the elders of the Samburu and the elders of the Turkana and of coming to some agreeable formula. It is possible that any belt of land over which there is intense feeling and quarrelling should be retained by Government, but the bulk of the land should be given to the people. It should go back to the county councils to enable the county councils to go ahead with development schemes within the Six-Year Plan.

With these words I would like to support the Mover and feel that the Government should consider sorting out the problem in order to enable the Turkana and the Samburu people to own their own land as Trust land.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not see any controversy over this particular issue, because it is clear from the reply given by the Government to the hon. Member opposite that the boundary in this agreement—Mr. Speaker, if I may be allowed to quote, it says, "A boundary of this nature can only be broached with amicable agreement on both sides, for, if it is imposed without the agreement of both sides it is bound to lead to troubles later."

Then the Government went on. I have no evidence yet that the Samburu have reconsidered this matter or agree to all of the previous agreements with the Turkana, but if the hon. Member for Korossi wishes to pursue the matter further, my Ministry will be prepared to carry out an investigation without delay. Therefore, I must say that the Government is being charged wrongly because they agree that if the initiative comes from the Samburu elders and the Samburu County Council, the Government is prepared to cooperate and to work to see that justice is carried out. As such, Mr. Speaker, I would only ask the hon. Member that, instead of wasting his time coming here with talk, talk and talk, the best thing would be for him to go on with the work of trying to initiate the discussions and let the Government also go on and let the Turkana and Samburu areas agree on what should be done.

the office is nothing, but the people will always be right in as far as they choose their representatives in this House democratically. This is why we seek to see this Government acting according to the promise it gave to the people during the elections. The party that won and formed the Government here pledged that it did not want a regional constitution, a federal constitution in other words. We want to see the Government bravely abolishing regions altogether and creating a central Government related, connected and giving its own direction to local government, which is the county councils. We do not want something in the middle. We want this Government to increase confidence in this House by raising the maximum of fourteen days as the days of emergency. But to seek the mandate in this House to allow them to rule more than that means they are beginning to fail, to suspect, to feel cowardly. Let us face the people, let us serve them and let us seek their consent on everything we do.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we would like to inform this Government that—an hon. Member is asking me whether I am sincere. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, he should ask himself first whether he is sincere in asking me this.

Mr. Oduya: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am wondering whether it is in order for a Member who just the other day—on the 1st of this month—when we were talking about twenty-one days, voted in favour of twenty-one days and now today coming to this debate and saying the exact opposite. He is now going to confuse the nation just for the sake of making people read the HANSARD, saying that Omolo Agar spoke?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order, order. Mr. Oduya, that is not a point of order, and you know very well that it is not a point of order. It is very wrong for you to try and make a debating point under the guise of a point of order. You have been told this so often, that it is quite wrong to interrupt an hon. Member in the middle of his speech under the guise of a point of order. Please do not do it again.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is not unusual to see some Members subject to certain definite discipline and directions interfering with the free expression of a Member of Parliament who is speaking on behalf of the people of Kenya.

I come now to my last point, Mr. Deputy Speaker. I appeal to this House, in the interest of this country and of unity, that the Attorney-General should withdraw the amendment Bill to these parts of the Constitution, retain those parts which only deal with consequential amendments, leave out those parts which deal with fundamental rights of our people, and constitute a committee of experts from Government and from the Members of this House to find an acceptable part, percentages, and the right of fitting changes which would be acceptable to this country and trusted by this country. Further, the Attorney-General and the President of this country should review the whole Constitution without bias, without any particular urge or plan, consulting individuals or groups, and find an acceptable and flexible Constitution that will fit this country for as many years as possible to come. Meanwhile, I want to say that I am not for an inflexible Constitution that cannot be changed, but I stand for a Constitution that will enable a just and a popular Government to function properly and make the people of Kenya feel that they are being ruled for their own good and in their best interests.

Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

Mr. Makokha: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, one difficult thing about this particular Bill is the fact that either you throw out the whole thing or you accept the whole thing.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, as the former speaker has just said, some of the sections in this Bill are completely unacceptable. In fact, it would have been wiser for the Attorney-General, as the hon. Mr. Omolo Agar has said, to have divided this into two, so that we have a Bill dealing with consequential changes and another one dealing with those important changes. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I personally find it very, very difficult to vote for this Bill for the reasons I am going to give.

This Bill we are talking about now intends to amend section 29 dealing with a state of emergency. The Minister for Economic Planning and Development used very clever words and tried to convince us that there was not any difference between fourteen or seven or twenty-one. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it is obvious. Let us first of all argue about the word "within". I believe that all argue about the word "within". The President word means inside of, so that if the President was a bad one or had some evil intentions, he could call Parliament after twenty days, after nineteen days or even on the twenty-first day; it would still be within twenty-one days. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the word "emergency", of course, is special, as the Minister says, the days of emergency are not normal days, so I do not see any reason why we should not act abnormally

[Mr. Makokha:] I do not see why we should say at that time I do not see why we should say that it is very difficult to call Parliament within seven days, let us therefore have twenty-one days. This is an emergency.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair.]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair.]
Probably in a certain area people are being shot down.

Mr. Khassakha: By you.

Mr. Makokha: Although I was a teacher once, I do not want to teach the Member for Emukhaya.

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, just to differ from the hon. Mr. Omolo Agar a little, I still insist on seven days. I believe that all Members of this House are quite civilized, all of us have radios and even with the use of radio only this House could be called within seven days.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister also here and outside this House accused a lot of us of being pessimistic; that is, that we do not have confidence in the President or probably in the Government, so that we should not worry about some of these amendments. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I believe that the Constitution is a set of rules to guide those in power and, at the same time, a set of rules to guard against those people who may be in power and who may have some evil intentions. So for that reason, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we must not take lightly whatever there is in this amendment Bill.

Now, Mr. Speaker, come to section 71. First, the reduction of percentage from 75 to 65. I remember, outside of this place, some hon. Members tried to convince us that the fact that we are now one party—we do not have two parties and, therefore, there is no need to have the higher percentage. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I personally, think otherwise. If we are one party we are united and I do not see the need for reducing the majority from 75 per cent to 65. After all we are one party, we speak with one voice, if the change is reasonable we can give it an O.K.

A Constitution is a very important document and I feel that whatever change is made should be as popular as possible and for that reason I feel that the percentage of 75 should remain.

Also, this amendment to subsection (3) which refers to the referendum is being deleted, that is, in future should both this House and the Senate have to reach an agreement as to the change that should be made, we shall not have a referendum.

We shall not be able to refer to the people, or to the country. Personally, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is unfortunate and should have been retained, because in a matter of changing the Constitution I feel that if we, here, the elected Members, fail to reach an agreement I think the people who elected us should be given an opportunity to say whether we were wrong or whether we were right. For example, now we have an argument, as I have said before, where there are some people who said that twenty-one days when it comes to the declaration of emergency is all right, while there are others who say that seven days is all right. Now, should we not agree here I do not see why we should not go to the country and tell the people that some of us feel seven days is enough while others feel twenty-one days are enough. As usual the people of this country will give the correct answer in a referendum. So, I repeat that that particular subsection, subsection (3) of section 71 should remain.

I come next to the provincial councils. As the previous speaker has spoken, being an original Kaniu like myself, some of us would have liked to see the Regional Assemblies or the Provincial Councils go altogether. However, in this Bill we are talking about now, it has not got rid of the Provincial Councils, they are still there and because they are still there something should be done for the members, because this Bill does not get rid of them. My argument is because we have left these people in, we have left the councils and members in something must be done for these people. I may agree that it is not necessary to include a reference to their salaries in the Bill, but we want an assurance from the Government, or from the Attorney-General, that something will be done. I know a lot of Provincial Councillors who represent larger constituencies than some of the Members of Parliament. For example, the Member for Emukhaya is always exhibiting his ignorance and I will tell him about this.

Mr. Khassakha: On a point of information, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Do you give way, Mr. Makokha?

Mr. Makokha: No, Sir, I do not. I will explain my reasons for what I said. In the Western Province we have three districts. Now, in these three districts Busia is the smallest and therefore the members of the Regional Assembly of Busia represent smaller areas. Take Lurambi Constituency for example. Do you mean to tell me that a Regional Assembly member in House at this time or rather anybody who wants to lead this country through this House must make sure that he has not used any other machines to change the laws of this country for his own personal benefit or personal opinions or ways leading to dictatorship. That is why we would prefer at this stage Kenya, or any other newly independent country, to continue to feel that a law on fundamental rights is only changed in as far as their representatives in overwhelming majority agree to it. This is why we even instructed the Attorney-General to withdraw this Bill or separate it to enable us to feel the pulse of the country so that they know exactly where they are through their representatives. I am sure, Mr. Speaker, nobody wants to reduce the majority on constitutional changes on fundamental rights at this stage because, as I said at the beginning, we have not been unified sufficiently to feel safe on tribal level, on provincial level on racial level. This House alone, when it gives itself the majority of three-quarters, means we can accept that change. Therefore I reject the reduction of the majority for changing the Constitution on fundamental rights.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are three ways in which we judge whether a Government is doing well or not. We consider the laws the Government enacts in a country. If a law is enacted and that law is practicable, that law can be affected among the people. Then we know that Government has the confidence of the citizens. If a Government passes a law which cannot be obeyed, or a law which causes friction, we know that that Government does not have the confidence of the people. Therefore, the laws of the land, those which concern fundamental rights in this country, should be absolutely trusted and believed and must with the confidence of the people of this country. On this particular question of constitutional law, I say this. When this nation was born, we understood very well that we would follow the path on which this Government was going to be carried out democratically without coercion on the laws which would be practised in this country, without coercion or force on the leadership which would be in this country. Our main life in this country was on the land. We knew that nobody was going to interfere with the land in this country and therefore we must advise the Government not to interfere with laws concerning land, certain fundamental laws and laws of leadership.

In the last amendment, Mr. Speaker, there was an amendment section which was mistakenly passed in this House and that is how to elect the President of this country. The amendment was that if a Member of Parliament stood, on his nomination paper he had a sign upon be supported as a president, to qualify as a candidate for Parliament. Mr. Speaker, Sir, why should somebody become president on my votes? People may have different opinions in constituencies as to whether Omolo Apat or James Nyamwaya should be the President of Kenya. There will be a difference in their minds, but they want someone to be president and another man to be the Member for that constituency.

The point I am making is this, constituency X may have a definite opinion that they want a particular Y to become a member of that constituency. Then they do not want a particular Z to become President of Kenya. The candidate X or Y may like that particular president. Now, people will be confused as to whether to vote on a ticket for the presidency or a ticket for a particular representative. This is why we propose that such parts, although they were amended recently, should be reamended so that people are given the chance to vote separately for the president of the whole Republic and also for the member for that particular constituency. They cannot do otherwise and still make the right choice.

Mr. Speaker, I now come to that part which deals with emergency—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would like to interrupt you for a moment on a matter of order. I said that Mr. Khasakhia had already spoken in this debate. I have checked now. There was a little mistake in the note I had. He spoke on the Motion for adjournment of this debate, but not the debate itself; so he has a right to speak now on the original Motion.

Mr. Agar: Why should the Government think at this particular stage about the days on which the President can declare an emergency without consulting Parliament to be changed from seven days to twenty-one days? This is trebling it, multiplying it by three.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister who has just sat down, the former Minister for Constitutional Affairs, and who is now out—

An hon. Member: He is present.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, elementary arithmetic would show the Minister that fourteen days are different from twenty-one days.

I cannot see why a person wants to subject any part of Kenya, whether a district or the whole country, to twenty-one days' emergency

[Mr. Agar] rule, which is quite a long time, instead of seven days, before he seeks the opinion of the elected Members. If something is wrong for Kenya, something that undermines the integrity and the unity of the nation or the security of the nation, the Members and the people will support the Government.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

I do not see how the people of Kenya elect people into this House and then one particular piece of Government happens to be at the top of Government is given twenty-one days to introduce and carry out emergency rule before he consults the whole country through the elected Members of every constituency in the whole country. We say—and we express the genuine desire of the people—that twenty-one days is too much.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I was arrested and kept in custody for twenty-eight days by the imperialists before I was charged. That was in the days when the imperialists had one reason to keep us shut up: that was, to keep on African Government inactivity. Why should an African Government which claims to cater for African interests seek twenty-one days before receiving the mandate of the people, through the elected representatives? I cannot see, Mr. Deputy Speaker, why this should be so. Many Members have expressed their thoughts that the Constitution is not made in good faith for a particular person ruling, particularly when we refer to Mzee Jomo Kenyatta who has been called the Father of our Nation and who is now in power. We may say that probably he has our faith and our confidence, that we can give him power as Head of State to keep on ruling this country under a state of emergency for twenty-one days. But, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, a person or a group of persons by any indefinite method or plan may come to power in this country at any time. A man is not a god and if we give him power to rule this country for twenty-one days without consulting the representatives democratically elected by the people, that person or group may do harm to this country, irreparable harm that will raise conflict in this country which will never be quashed, like we see in the Congo and elsewhere. That is why we want to request the Government to withdraw this particular part of the Bill and reduce it to fourteen days.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the imperialists used to say that the reason why they allowed the law to give the Governor power to rule this country for a long time under a state of emergency was because they thought the African mentality or level of understanding was low. Does this House or this Government still believe that the African level of understanding is lower on the affairs of this country? I am sure it is not. I am sure if anybody dare say that, he will say that the mentality and level of understanding of all Members of this House are still low. Therefore, this House must be assured that there is no Government that will come up here to rule at its own whim without consulting the representatives of the people from all constituencies.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the idea at the back of democracy in old countries like Greece and Rome, people well understood that vox populi, vox Dei: that is, the voice of people is the voice of God.

An hon. Member: You are philosophizing.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I cannot understand why people feel I am joking, but I am saying this, that for all time, at any level of civilization, it has been known that the voice, the opinion, the intellect and the understanding of one man—a man who is not a God—cannot be judged as a guarantor for the freedom of the people. But an idea born by the majority of people in a community, in a country or in a nation is a sufficient guarantee to protect their rights. That is, why, Mr. Deputy Speaker, we say we will never consider any amendment to the Constitution which seeks to give a particular person or a particular office of the Head of State too much power; we have a guarantee only in the people. That guarantee in the people can only be safeguarded and protected by the people elected by them to rule through this House.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in conclusion I would say that although Members do not agree, although I hear many running commentaries, when somebody says there is a kind of African democracy, you can do without Parliament in African countries; I cannot agree with them. If any particular leadership, whether it be me or anybody else, has failed to rally the nation behind it, it is its own fault. If somebody feels this House is not patriotic or this House is difficult, it is probably the machinery to guide and control this House that has failed. Therefore, we submit that we will stick to the rights of our people, we will safeguard the rights of our people through the Constitution. We will not give in over those part of the Constitution which deal with the universal, fundamental rights of mankind; we will not surrender them to an office or to a person, at his own whims, because

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development] a point on which the formula cannot be found merely within the confines of technicalities and arguments of law. Whether or not seven days is enough, is a matter of opinion. For some people it is quite enough. For other people seven days is too long. There is this other opinion which is built on genuine experience. It is built on a genuine approval of the position and of the difficulties that might confront us in meeting this situation. Now, Sir, we are talking not of normal conditions but we are talking of a state of emergency, and the emergency situation quite often, and as such in every case, will require to be met by emergency measures. Not the reasonable normal measure and procedures which you would use in a normal situation.

Now, Sir, I am told that we cannot assume. But, Sir, if you oppose these twenty-one days, are you not assuming something? Are you not assuming that someone might misuse that period? Are you not assuming that the future Government will only require fourteen days? What is wrong in my stating certain assumptions if the hon. Member who opposes those assumptions is also talking from his own assumptions? If, Sir, we were talking about a legal technicality then I doubt whether the hon. Members in front of me, would be the one to argue the legal point. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to be drawn away from the main subject.

Mr. Khalif: Interjection.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Would you like to say that again?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Mr. Khalif. A few interjections are all right, but not a running commentary. You will have your chance to speak.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will keep to the original subject, despite the attempts of the hon. Member to take me away from it.

Now, Sir, I would like to say quite clearly that the provision of twenty-one days is what the Government, in its consideration of the matter, have found it necessary, bearing in mind that what we are providing for, is not, in effect that Parliament would be convened after twenty-one days. That is not what the Government is asking. What the Government in fact says is that Parliament will be convened within twenty-one days, not after twenty-one days. There is a very big difference between the two. If we had said after twenty-one days then it would mean that we were trying to get three clear weeks before any action is taken, but if we say within twenty-one days it means that Parliament could be convened in four days, if conditions so permitted it could be convened in ten days, if conditions so permitted it could be convened in fourteen days, but in any case it must be convened, at the latest, by the twenty-first day. That, Sir, is what this provision is meant to see, and it would not be fair to misunderstand the meaning of this. That covers those Members, in such, who may feel that Parliament should be convened earlier than twenty-one days. If someone said that then we would agree with them.

In fact, we do agree that it should be convened earlier than twenty-one days, that is why we say that it should be convened within twenty-one days. But, we are aware that there may be difficult conditions when it might not be possible to convene it within seven days, and so we do not want to find ourselves in a situation in which having said seven days purely for some practical difficulties, legally we have no state of emergency with troops somewhere in an emergency area unable to continue action because technically it is outside and unconstitutional. This is what we are concerned with. I would very gladly agree with the hon. Member for Karachuonyo that we should make it fourteen days, but if it is fourteen days, why not twenty-one days, because I cannot understand the magic in the word "fourteen", because, as I have said, if you say within twenty-one days, it includes fourteen days, and it means that you can convene Parliament within the fourteen days. Nobody is saying, that you convene after twenty-one days. It is within twenty-one days, which includes convening Parliament on the tenth day, or the ninth day, or the eighth day. That is the position.

Now, some Members have said why not amend it to come to fourteen days, I would like to explain one technical problem. If you amend any part of this Bill, you have to throw out the whole Bill, and start all over again. You cannot amend any part of this Bill, except by throwing out the whole Bill. That is a technical and constitutional position which hon. Members, I am sure, appreciate, and I do not believe myself that they really wish to do this.

An hon. Member: Some of us do!

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On the contrary, I do not agree. I believe that experience will teach us in due time whether or not twenty-one days

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development] is adequate, but nobody can say—neither me nor the hon. Members who are against twenty-one days—that by experience in Kenya, twenty-one days is long enough or too long.

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, in view of the fact that the hon. Minister has been the Minister for Justice, and he knows quite a bit about the Constitution, would I be in order to ask him to move on from the emergency, so that he can move on to the next point to tell us about the Bill, instead of dealing with fourteen days?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is for the hon. Member speaking to choose the time for moving on to the next point, unless he is repeating himself so much that he must move on; but I think the hon. Member has pretty well covered this point.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, if hon. Members were patient enough to listen to what I have to say, without their running commentaries, and questions from behind and in front of me, I would have finished long before now, but if hon. Members are so interested in what I am saying that they want me to answer some of their questions while I am still speaking, I am quite available and will continue until 6.30 p.m.

Mr. Speaker: I cannot leave this matter without the speaker.

The hon. Member for Karachuonyo has just come back, and I deal with this deleting for quite a long time before he came back, and I cannot quite honestly leave this particular point without emphasizing the points which I have made here and those which we have made outside the House, but this is a matter which is not by itself quite capable of discussion merely as a legal technicality. It is a matter in which it is necessary for us quite clearly to decide as a reasonable and logical question of what should be provided in the Constitution, and from the outset, I said that what we wanted to achieve was a reasonable and workable Constitution.

Now, the hon. Members who were here when I started will know that I have already dealt with the question of deleting and the answer to it is very simple. We delete redundant provisions from the Constitution. They are redundant, because after the amendments that have already been passed by Parliament, those provisions do not any longer apply. They relate to certain schedules in the original Constitution which have now been struck off, and having been struck off, they are no longer necessary.

Sir, the other question is the change in Provincial Councils which some Members raised. The Regional Assemblies become Provincial Councils, and the purpose of this is quite clear. The concept of a region or a federal type Constitution, has been superseded by a unitary type Constitution. Consequently, it is no longer necessary to have the same structure and facilities which were available at the time we had a federal type Constitution. The idea of having a unitary type Constitution is one which this House has accepted, and by voting on previous amendments, it has given Kenya a unitary type Constitution. Hence the need for us to rename the Regional Assemblies to Provincial Councils. With regard to their functions, in some cases they have very large measures of executive powers, and in other cases, a large measure of legislative powers. By virtue of amendments already accepted by these executive powers and legislative powers have now been taken over and lodged with the Kenya Government, consequently, the change in name. Similarly, having changed the name and having taken away the executive and legislative powers, the whole question of committees of the Regional Assemblies have had to be revised.

It is no longer necessary to have high-powered committees at the Regional Assembly level as we had before, because these functions now fall within the portfolio of the different Ministries and Ministers, and they will be handled in the normal way, bearing in mind the priority in each particular Ministry. The decision making and policy making powers now rest with the Ministries, and the Ministries will themselves arrange suitable decentralization, where it is necessary, of these decision making and policy making organs as well as the execution powers of their programmes and decisions. Thus, the whole question of security committees or a law and order committee at the regional level, or an agricultural committee, an education committee, and so on, no longer have the same significance as they had in the Constitution previously.

The Regional Assemblies and the naming of the officials or the officers of the Regional Assemblies. We had seven presidents at the time of the previous Constitution. We cannot continue to have seven presidents because, again, it would be most misleading and the ordinary man in the street would find it very difficult to know which president is being referred to. The President of the Republic, or the president of the Regional Assembly. Consequently, we now have the Provincial Councils headed by chairmen, instead of by presidents.

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

entrenched clauses of the Constitution which still refer to the Governor-General and which must be amended so that the word "President" replaces the words "Governor-General", and similar such technical amendments which clearly must be made. If the entrenched clauses have to have any meaning at all in the Constitution. This is the extent of the nature of the amendments but no citizen and no resident of this country need have any fear in so far as these amendments are concerned, because they will leave intact his rights, the independence of the Judiciary, the guarantees of the Rule of Law, the Citizenship Rights and the Bill of Rights in general.

Now, Sir, the main aspect of the amendments, apart from the consequential and technical amendments, relate to two other important points which it is in the interest of the House and the public that we should explain quite clearly, again because it appeared that there was bound to be some misunderstanding as to the progress and scope of these amendments.

The first one relates to the amendment of the amendment machinery as provided for in the Constitution. This is an amendment which is intended to make the Constitution more logical and reasonable. Every Member will appreciate that when the previous machinery for amending the Constitution introduced it was at a time and under circumstances where it was impossible to get reasonable arrangements accepted. There were fears, there were doubts and there were suspicions, and we ended up with a Constitutional position which was the most rigid in any part of the world; the requirement that any amendment of certain provisions cannot be brought about unless there was seventy-five per cent support in the Lower House and ninety per cent support in the Upper House is the most rigid that has been provided for in any Constitution in the Commonwealth and, indeed, in any Constitution in the world. It amounts to giving the complete say in these matters in the hands of a minority, and in some cases a minority of one or two Members of the Senate being able to veto a popular decision of the people at the polls, and a popular decision of the people given through their representatives in this House and in the Senate itself. Consequently, when we came to amending the Constitution it has been thought necessary that the amending machinery itself should be the subject of an amendment, and it is for these reasons of bringing about a more reasonable and flexible arrangement that it has been found necessary to reduce the percentage in the case of the Lower House from seventy-five per cent to sixty-five and in the case of the Upper House, that is the Senate from ninety per cent to sixty-five.

These proposals will in effect give Kenya quite a strong, and in many cases rigid Constitution, but it will also ensure that the Constitution, whilst it cannot be tampered with, whilst it cannot be amended at the whim of the Government or the party in power at any time in which it sees fit, it can and should be capable of amendment when the vast majority of the people of this country feel it necessary to do so. This working arrangement, in fact, itself would ensure that the Constitution is more respected and more respected and ensure that it does work for a long time without people feeling that it is an encumbrance on the will of the majority of feeling that it is a burden and they must carry it for the sake of doing so, and without creating the temptation of any Government or party in power trying to outside it, because it is not reasonably easy to deal with it within the democratic processes of Parliament and also of voters in the country at large.

This, Sir, is the purpose of the amendment, and as I said I hope that the explanations which have been made patiently throughout these past few months have helped all the Members now to appreciate the motivation behind the proposed amendment.

The other one which seemed to draw a lot of attention, and on which a lot of comments were made, is that dealing with emergency powers. In the previous Constitution, the provisions were that the state of emergency once declared by the Government, Parliament would be convened within seven days, and it would confirm the state of emergency, and secondly, that the Government would report to Parliament at the end of one month; on the progress of the emergency, and seek further a mandate to continue the emergency. Now the proposed amendment in this particular case, is that, instead of convening Parliament within seven days, it is proposed in the future that Parliament be convened within one day, and instead of reporting within one month, it is proposed that the Government report the progress of the state of emergency within three months.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this needs explaining and it is important that it is understood so that again we do not create unnecessary fears, suspicions and commotion. The purpose is very clear. Firstly, it must be assumed that the Government of this country, including the Government of the members of this House, including a reasonable Government, and a reasonable Parliament, which is serving the people, elected by the people, and representing the people. Now, if the hon. Member from North Eastern Region does not feel confident that he speaks for his people, then, of course, it is very difficult to help him, but I have to assume that every person elected to this House has been given a mandate to speak for his people. That is a very proper assumption, but if the two Members in front of me do not feel that they represent their people any more, then I cannot help them. We will just have to wait until the next election. However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sure that the majority of the Members in this House are confident that they speak for the people who elected them, and that the people who elected all of us expect us to form a reasonable Government.

An hon. Member: What about Moinbo?

The Minister: For Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): You go there more often than I do, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I just hope that the Members will restrain their interest in Moinbo.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sure that if the hon. Member has anything to say then he has some right to speak, and he might allow me to continue my speech. The point I am making is of vital importance to the nation and to this House, and it is not one on which we want to joke unnecessarily. The point is very clear, that when a Government wishes or sees that there is a need to declare a state of emergency, then there must be a very good reason for it to do so. No Government in its proper mind, no Government that is representing the people, no Government that is a reasonable Government which the people of any country deserve, will go out its way and unnecessarily, and without cause and without good reason declare a state of emergency. Also no Government would wish to continue a state of emergency beyond some reasonable time, bearing in mind only, and I repeat only, the state of emergency in the country for a state of emergency, once declared, creates many problems including psychological problems, including problems of the image of the country outside and inside the country, and any Government that is interested in that image and in the continuation of good relations within the country and outside, which is interested in continuing the development of the country is not going to treat this as a light matter. This Parliament would never allow it. The people of this country would never allow it. For any Government to declare a state of emergency lightly, and if we believe, and I know we all must, that the Government of this country is built on the true and genuine democratic processes and is elected and is answerable to the people of this country, then we must believe also that it will behave reasonably in these matters. To continue a state of emergency is in itself a very expensive matter, as we already know, and therefore, no Government in its right mind would wish to continue it unnecessarily and without good cause.

Consequently, some of the fears that are expressed, whilst they are understandable, they are not clearly based on anything other than the fear of the future. Indeed, some Members said that they were quite confident that this Government would not do it, but what about the next and the next and the next? Certainly we ought to be interested in what the future Government might do, but even if we are legislating for a future Government we must also have the confidence and faith in people of this country in electing a reasonable Government. If, on the other hand, we are talking about a state of affairs in which everything has broken down, in which there is chaos and there is no democratic Government, then of course, that is not the Government which will work within or for this Constitution, and we might as well be talking about something else. But when we discuss this Constitution, then we discuss it in terms of our own generation, and the future generations, and we discuss it in the hope, and certainly in confidence, that it will be used by future generations and that is why I emphasize that the main consideration in the mind of the Members must be that here we are laying down a Constitution for our country and that it must be in itself a reasonable instrument of Government, but we are not going to assume that Government will want to behave reasonably in order that they use that reasonable instrument.

If, on the other hand, Sir, we are assuming the worst, then, Sir, we might as well give up trying to run the country through a Parliament. The whole idea that we have a Parliament is on the assumption that we all agree to regulate our relations according to a certain laid down procedure and code. If we did not assume that then we would not pass laws here, we might as well say, "what about it if we pass the law and nobody will obey?" But we are assuming that every time we pass a law here that the majority of the people of this country will abide by these laws because they are reasonable laws for reasonable men. This is the only way you can go about laying the foundations for the future of this country; I include women, Sir, in your concern. Now, Sir, this is a very important point; it can be a very sensitive point and it is, unfortunately,

Mr. Lorema: Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

I rise to air my views about this point because the hon. Members have said something about rejecting this amendment of the Senate, but I do not see that there is anything which is very serious here because if we apply the negative attitude of opposing all the amendments the Senate brings, then there will be a tug-of-war. Here I feel that there is a necessity of putting this amendment in, in that all these people represent various bodies; for example, the Ministry of Education, the Ministry of Labour and Social Services, etc., will have to send their own representatives who, in the same way, will have to speak on behalf of that Ministry.

Here, again, in the Ministry of Education they may appoint a representative who is so sophisticated that he may decide to bring in such books that children at primary level and nursery level will not be able to understand. By bringing these three other people it will be possible to introduce a balance. Now, in the whole debate these people will be able to bring things which can suit them. For example, we may choose somebody, say, a headmaster from a primary school, and this man will introduce his own views which may be neglected by these other people who may be highly qualified, and so on. So, I think it is necessary that we must bring these other three people. We must not merely oppose for the sake of opposing.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Konchella): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to assure my friend who has just spoken, the hon. Mr. Lorema, that these points have been touched in effect, Sir, before he came into the House. These points were looked into and we found that the list, which is in the Schedule, of the people who are going to represent various Ministries and various departments in the library board are the people who are actually sufficient to make a committee of the board. We are of the opinion that these people will be selected by the departments and the people who are going to represent each Ministry or department understand what a library is. If, for instance, a representative of the city council will be a person who moves about libraries and who can mention a number of things such as books which are suitable for children in a primary school. A representative of the Ministry of Education will understand what sort of books are wanted for secondary education or for adult literacy.

So, the question which was put forward by the hon. Mr. Wariihl saying that the members of the board are going to be selected in a funny way because friends might be called to help members of the board—I assure him that we would like this library run in an efficient way and, therefore, we do not want anybody who does not know anything about libraries and books. What we would like to see on the board are people who can really represent the library and build it up. I assure him that we are going to look into this matter because we are not going to introduce a library which is not going to continue for a long time. We are going to build a library which will actually be important and which will serve the country.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I agree with my friend, the hon. Mr. Khasakhalu, when he said that when we get a bigger board there will be a lot of argument and when the bigger board brings a lot of arguments there will be a lot of confusion. So, I think that the people who have been selected to represent departments and Ministries, and also each region who has a representative, will, I think, make quite a big and sufficient board to decide things in the committee.

I think that perhaps the Senate's amendments are not suitable enough to be decided upon.

THAT paragraph 3 of the Schedule be amended by adding subparagraph (8) as follows:

(8) The board may in its discretion invite any person who is not a member of the board to attend a meeting free to vote at such meeting or meetings.

Mr. Khalif: Although, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have been opposing most of these amendments I feel that honestly I cannot oppose this amendment. I agree with this amendment. Having rejected the Senate amendment which reads that, "not more than three such other persons as the Minister may in his discretion determine" I feel that it would be unfair on our part to disagree to this amendment. We should not disagree to the addition of this subparagraph because if we disagree with the nomination of the Minister of these other persons, I feel that we should agree that in the discretion of the board any person may be invited, who is not a member, to attend a meeting or meetings of the board but such person shall not have power to vote at such meeting or meetings. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I rejected the first suggestion because I felt that this would be giving the Minister more powers than what he himself deserves. In other words, if we give him power to nominate at his discretion three more members to the board then it will seem as if he could nominate three Governmental members who would normally agree with the principles of the foregoing members of the Government. Now this particular Schedule suggests not that the Minister decide in his own discretion but that the board should at its discretion—where all the members are combined—invite any persons to the meeting, I feel this is quite agreeable and is also in accordance with the principles of democracy which we want to adopt in this country.

I think this is very necessary because there might be persons, experts, or otherwise, who may be of importance to any meeting of the board but who are not members of the board.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order, order. I apologize for the interruption but before you continue with your speech, Mr. Khalif, I might as well, officially for the sake of the record, propose the question which is that the House do agree with the Senate in the said amendment.

Mr. Khalif: If I may repeat what I have said, Sir, I would like to say that the addition of this subparagraph is very essential for two reasons: one that it does not give any individual, the Minister, any power to nominate his own people or to determine at his discretion the nomination of the members. Here it says that the board may need technical advice from people of that profession and they may not be members of the board. So, it is essential that the board is allowed at its own discretion to invite any persons to attend the meeting or meetings of the board, persons who are not already members of the board.

I would like to support the amendment of the Senate in respect of the addition of this particular subparagraph.

(Question put and negatived)

(Ordered that the Clerk carry the said Bill to the Senate and acquaint them with the decision of the House on their amendments thereto)

Second Reading

THE CONSTITUTION OF KENYA (AMENDMENT) BILL

(The Attorney-General on 24th March 1965)

(Retirement of debate interrupted on 1st April 1965)

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Deputy Speaker, when the House adjourned last time on this Bill I was speaking, and if I may start off by, perhaps, recalling some of the points a had made just before we adjourned.

The first point that I made was that the amendments, that is, as a consequence of the amendments already passed by the House it is necessary to weed out of the Constitution some of the redundant provisions that are dead because certain parts of the Constitution have been amended.

There was reference by some Members to precisely some of these clauses at the time of discussion, here in the House and also outside. For example, where some Members complained that there was a lot of reference to delete this, delete that and delete the other, the deletions or the parts of the Constitution which are already dead or which have already been amended by the previous Bills that have been passed by the House. For instance, any part of the Constitution which still refers to Schedule I or any part of Schedule I in the previous Constitution, is automatically dead because Schedule I itself has been deleted from the Constitution by the amendments passed last time in the House. These consequential amendments seem to have quite clearly been misunderstood and misled some Members into thinking that something quite new was being done in amending the Constitution. But, Sir, that is not so, and I hope that this assurance and the discussions we held outside the House in the Parliamentary groups have helped to clear the air. I would like to state quite categorically that the consequential amendments do not go beyond the purpose of bringing the Constitution into line with the amendments as already passed by the House and which are already in operation.

The second point which I made, which I want to repeat and re-emphasize, is that the amendments do not in any way encroach upon some of the fundamental provisions in the Constitution. I refer especially to the Bill of Rights, to the independence of the Judiciary and the rights of the citizens of this country and those people who live in this country. These remain intact and, as provided for in the original Constitution at the time of independence and which were not touched in the amendments that took place in this House previously, it is quite true that at some stages during previous debates the Government stated that amendments which were dealing with the entrenched provisions were not going to be introduced. But it is true that in this particular Bill there are amendments which touch on some of the entrenched clauses of the Constitution. These, as I have said, are technical and consequential in nature. For example, there are

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think, Mr. Khalif, you misunderstood the proposed amendment. It is not proposed to interfere with sub-paragraph (d). It is to add another thing. If the Senate's first amendment was made, that paragraph (d) would be deleted, then all the other ones are changed, and what Mr. Khalif is referring to as (g) becomes (f); then the Senate would propose a completely new additional subparagraph (g); but that would now have to be (h), if (d) is not deleted.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, again I am opposed to the proposed additional paragraph to the Bill; I do not feel as if I should really agree with an addition of three persons, as the Minister may, in his discretion determine.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, whether the Government is opposed to this or not, I do not know, but I feel as if when the Bill is laid down, that it is a privilege for one person from each province, I do not know why the Senate should ask for three more persons, as according to the discretion of the Minister it is only giving the Minister more power to undermine the authority of this Chamber, of this House. I feel that if we give the Minister three more chances to determine things, at his discretion, I think this would only make the Minister more dictatorial than the Bill intends him to be.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the Bill in no uncertain terms indicated that from each province, would be represented by one Member. That is enough to indicate nation-wide representation but three more persons, as it is said here very plainly, at the discretion of the Minister, I think gives the Minister more power to become more dictatorial than the Bill originally allowed.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, without repeating myself I would like to submit categorically that it is not the aim of this House to agree with the amendment by the Senate which would make any Minister a dictator.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in the committee there are enough members on the Government side to determine the majority vote, if that is asked for, and if three more members would be added on the Government side, then it would mean, that there would not be enough independent members to determine for themselves without the influence of the Government members the way to run the National Library. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it is not our aim, nor do I think it is the aim of the Senate, to give enough powers to a Minister, which might as well make him a dictator. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in Kenya our aim and policy, as far as the Government is concerned, is to be as democratic as it could be, and such an amendment, I think, is not only contrary but completely opposed to the principles of democracy.

In the first place, Mr. Deputy Speaker, for your information, I am completely opposed to any suggestion which will give an individual, whether he is a Minister, an Assistant Minister, or a President, powers to allow him to delegate certain things for himself. Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is for the Bill which is before us in this House to determine the number of members in a committee of the proposed National Library Board, if the Senate, with due respect to the Senate, for the Senate to determine the additional number of nominated members. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think I would have supported this, because I do not know the motives behind this particular Schedule. If the amendment only indicated that the Senate wanted to have three more members in this Council, in accordance with the votes of this Chamber or of the Senate, then I would not have seen any reason why I should oppose this, but now that it indicates point blank that not more than three such other persons as the Minister may in his discretion determine, I do not see why I should fall a victim to this amendment.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Please do not repeat yourself, Mr. Khalif.

Mr. Khalif: No, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am trying my best not to repeat myself. In any case, Mr. Deputy Speaker, so as to refrain from any disagreement, either with the Members or with the Chair, I oppose very strongly and vehemently this particular amendment to the Schedule.

Mr. Godla: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do feel that when the Senate is discussing such an important Bill, it should be possible for the Attorney-General to attend so that he may give an explanation on points which they do not understand, instead of their proposing amendments which we cannot accept, because I feel that this is one way in which this House and the Senate cannot agree, for if they keep on making amendments to Bills for which they are quite straightforward, it will mean which to us are quite straightforward, it will mean that either the Senate or this House will be the law-making body. Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I suggest that in future it ought to be possible for the Attorney-General or someone from his Ministry to attend the proceedings of the Senate where important Bills like this are being discussed, in order to give a full explanation to the Members of the Senate, so that they do not make a mistake

[Mr. Godla] Therefore, I beg to oppose the amendment. We are not going to support the amendment. Mr. Deputy Speaker, and I think already the number provided by the Constitution, the number of the members of the board, is quite sufficient. It is, therefore, not necessary to add three more. Therefore, I oppose the Senate amendments.

Mr. Warilith: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the amendment proposed by the Senate.

My reasons are these. If you go through the list of the members of the board, you find that the people to be on this board are all representatives of various Ministries or departments, and the Minister as a person or the Government as such is not given a chance of nominating certain persons who, because of merit, because of their ability, because of their training, could be useful to this board. The reason why I feel that the Minister should be given an opportunity to select these three more people is that there could be some people in the country who are not in any of the departments mentioned in the Schedule and may be required for the sake of guiding the nation, as to the way the Library should be built, expanded, and who may assist with their training. But now under Schedule, we only have, as I said earlier, representatives of various departments, and I think it is not really necessary always to feel that if a Minister is given powers to select certain people, he is going to nominate his own friends. The man to be on such a board must be a man of merit, he must be somebody who has something extra, something which cannot be had from somebody from the Ministry of Labour and Social Services or Local Government or Education. Despite the fact that some other Members feel that the Senate have tried to expand the number of this board, the present number is seen and when we accept this amendment it will be ten which, I feel, is quite reasonable.

With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

The Minister for Education (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I just want to make one point. Under (g) it says, "a representative from each region", and since this Bill was amended it means there are more people selected, as the previous speaker has said, from each region, and the board will have more than the number stated here, because of the representatives of the regions. Therefore, to add more people over and above those representatives from the regions would make the board too large. So the hon. Member's point of view is well taken, because of the number of members from each region who will be selected on the basis of merit.

Therefore, I beg to oppose the amendment.

Mr. Khasakhalu: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, once more I still do not see the need for an increase of three. Here we already have thirteen members and these thirteen members representing a board should be quite adequate. Supposing the Minister decides to have a chairman from outside, it then would mean that we are going to have fourteen members in all because already six members have been appointed by various Ministries and educational institutes, and the city council, plus one member from the British Council, and then seven members—if I take it that we have seven provinces—and the total comes to thirteen members. Knowing that the Government has a collective responsibility, I do not see the need for other members to represent various Ministries because already the Ministries which are involved in public activities, such as the Ministry of Labour and Social Services, the Ministry of Local Government and the Ministry of Education, are represented. Those are the three Ministries which are actively engaged in public affairs. To add three more members would make the figure very awkward; there would be seventeen. A board of seventeen cannot decide on a book; it is, it is very, very difficult. Knowing how difficult it is to make selections of library books, I do not think we even need all these thirteen members. The board should have about five members only to go into the details of books which are required by a library, and this figure being already so big, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I could not accept the Senate's amendment.

Just as my colleague said a few minutes ago, I think the Senate should also take time to read our HANSARD, to know exactly what we speak on these points, because when the Minister replies to them, he gives the reasons why the representation, for example, is the figure we have here. If they just get the Bill and start afresh as though we have not considered the Bill here, it then misinterprets that we in the House of Representatives do not go deeper into these Bills, whereas the same matters which they might have raised in the amendment might have come to this House and the Minister might have replied during his speech, but because they do not go through these speeches, they start afresh and bring amendments on matters which we have already dealt with.

Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I feel that this amendment is not accepted and I oppose it.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, after having fully discussed this matter, could I ask for the question to be put?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I will give Mr. Lorema a chance to speak.

[The Assistant Minister for Finance] to have these representatives for consultations at meetings. It seems to me that it is quite against our principle to single out the British Council as a representative of a member of the board, while being a foreign member because, after all, we might be getting aid for this from other countries; we might get it from the United States of America, we might get it from the U.S.S.R., or any other place and these people might say also, "If it is a practice, if we establish a precedent then whoever gives us money has the right to be represented on the board." They would also require that they have their members on this library board which would not correspond to our independent position, so I agree with the Senate's suggestion on this that if we want to use the know-how that a member coming from the British Council might have, we can use this through the powers of co-opting the members.

Mr. Speaker, I do support the amendment proposed by the Senate.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, here there is a misunderstanding. I think, of course, as far as the Minister is concerned, we have been told point blank that the British Government provides a large sum for the upkeep of the library and, therefore, the British Council should have a member on the committee. I feel, Sir, that when one undertakes to pay a large sum of money for any particular thing, that one should at least have a representative. For example, now that the British Council is paying a large sum for the upkeep of this national library, I should think that the British Council has the right, or at least we should consider it as a right, of having at least one member on this committee. As a matter of fact, one is not encouraged to assist financially when one is deprived of representation. This is purely for interest sake. If we in Kenya do agree that the Russians, for that matter, assist us in anything, say, for example, the Lumumba Institute, I should think it would be logical, for the Russians to have at least the privilege of having their own representatives as they have now, or some thing of that sort. It is a matter of diplomacy, Mr. Speaker. The British Government would rather not agree to assist, such a project in Kenya when they are not represented on the committee. For example, the British Government would not assist a project in Kenya when the Russians, or for that matter the Americans, are represented on that committee when they are themselves deprived of representation.

Mr. Speaker, therefore, I do not know why this House should accept the amendment of the Senate because, logically, I do not think it holds water. It does not hold water as far as I am concerned and therefore I completely oppose such an amendment.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I should think that the Members of the Senate who opposed the representation of the British Council on this committee either thought that the principles of neutrality, the principles of non-alignment, would not be helped if the British Council were a member or was allowed to participate in this committee. I do not think that this is logical at all because even though we hold our principles of non-alignment, the fact that any nation, any foreign nation, reports or aids financially any project in particular in Kenya, would render it necessary to have its own representation in that particular project.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would like to oppose the amendment of the Senate.

The Minister for Education (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, in passing this amendment, I want to say that actually taking in the representative of this council has not only a financial advantage over us, but also the ability for us to get more books from overseas, particularly from Britain, because in Britain you find that so many books relating to Africa are published there as well as in other countries.

Now, when this House agreed unanimously to the original representative from the British Council, they knew this advantage, and even when we have Independence Day, one representative from the council of more than eleven cannot be capable of bringing the old type of colonialism or anything of that kind, at a time when today, we are more or less more friendly. We have taken a different friendly attitude to the British Government, and since we are independent, one man as a representative is no danger to us. Therefore, I oppose.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this point is very simple. It is well known that at the moment we are a free country where we are, although we were being ruled by the British people, it does not mean that as soon as we achieved our independence, we created enemies of them. At the moment, Mr. Speaker, every Member will agree with me that even today we are still asking the British Government, and I do friends, to supply us with technicians, and I do not see any wrong with having a representative in this board who will make sure that all the generosity—the British Government has extended to us, either in kind or in money, is being used according to our requirements. Being this board,

Mr. Kamau: It does not mean that we can bring the colonialism the other way round.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is high time we should discuss that wherever we have representatives from either country in any of our boards who have any interest of our doings at heart, it should be displayed to the world how efficient the Kenya Government is. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have no doubt that all the hon. Members will understand this, because it is said that the board shall consist of the following Members appointed by the Minister. The Minister for the time being, I think, shall be the Minister who has the country at heart, and we will always know that the person he nominates to be on that board is a man who also has the interests of the country at heart, and I do not see any reason why we should say that we should not have a representative from the British people.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I entirely oppose the amendment.

Mr. Khasakhata: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not understand the reasons why the Senate has agreed with this clause, because by having a representative from the British Council, it is to our own advantage simply because they will know where we can buy these books, and where particular books are printed. If we have someone who does not know, it would then require our sending a representative to the United Kingdom to go and negotiate with a particular book or (particular books) we want in our library.

I strongly feel that this amendment is very unnecessary, and I would oppose it, simply because it is cheaper to get books from a person within the board who sits there, and from his own experience, being a native of the country that brings these books, can assist us in the way of ordering the books, or advising the board on how they can get a particular book that they require to add to their library. Someone said that perhaps if we have a British representative, the Russians might also demand a representative. I do not know how many books we shall require from Russia in our library, if any, because we do not read the Russian language here, and most of the books they have in their country, from what I understand, are always obtained from English speaking countries.

Therefore, I do not see where that need arises. I strongly would recommend to my hon. Members that the Senate's amendment should not be accepted by this House. We should pass the Bill as we had passed it before.

Therefore, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think we should expect an explanation from the Senate when they make such an amendment, because we want to understand on what they base their amendment.

In clause 2, the Senate recommends that the word 'Minister' be deleted, but they do not consider other clauses where the word 'Minister' appears, and therefore, Mr. Speaker, I cannot see the reasons for deleting 'Minister' in one clause and leaving it in the other clauses. Therefore, I think regarding the elimination of a representative from the British Council, that representative would do no harm to the board. It would, in fact, be in an advisory capacity to the board on whatever books the board wanted to buy.

Therefore, I feel, Mr. Speaker, that the Senate amendment is unwarranted, and I think we must reject it. In future we should urge them to give an explanation for such amendments, because this appears to be a waste of our time.

The Speaker (Mr. Slado): I must point out that they are not required by their Standing Orders, or by ours, to give a reason for any amendment they propose. In fact, if hon. Members are interested in the reasons given by the Senate for any amendment that they propose, and certainly hon. Members should be interested, you will find it all in the HANSSARD report of the Senate. We must not blame the Senate for not having told us something if we do not take the trouble to read their HANSSARD.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I wonder if I am right to call upon the Mover to reply now?

The Speaker (Mr. Slado): I do not think there is very much more to be said on this point, so the House can consider that question. The question is not actually that the Mover be called upon to reply, but that the question be now put.

(Question put and agreed to)

(Question that the Senate amendments be now agreed, put and negatived)

Schedule

(i) Adding subparagraph (h) as follows:—

(h) not more than three such other persons as the Minister may in his discretion determine.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like always to respect the amendments of the Senate, but I feel as if in this particular case I have to disagree. That particular paragraph wants representatives from each province. Only three would be disagreed to as far as this is concerned.

Mr. Speaker, Sir—

Report and Third Reading

THE BROADCAST RECEIVING (LICENSING) BILL

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to report that a Committee of the Whole House has considered The Broadcast Receiving (Licensing) Bill and approved the same without amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will call upon you to move that the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Report.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Report.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo) seconded.

(Question put and agreed to)

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very pleased in the way in which the House has treated this Bill, and I wish now to move the Bill be now read the Third Time. Since there are no comments, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would not like to take the time of the House unnecessarily. Thank you.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo) seconded.

(Question proposed)

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was accordingly read the Third Time and passed)

(Ordered that the Clerk carry the said Bill to the Senate and desire their concurrence)

(Consideration of Senate amendments)

THE KENYA NATIONAL LIBRARY SERVICE BOARD
BILL

The Minister for Education (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that this amendment be now considered.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo) seconded.

(Question proposed)

QUORUM

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, do we have a quorum in this House.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, we do not have a quorum. Ring the Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We now have a quorum. I had just proposed the question that the Senate amendments of the Kenya National Library Service Board Bill be now considered.

(Question that the Senate amendment be now considered put and agreed to)

Clause 2

That clause 2 of the Bill be amended by deleting the definition of the word "Minister" thereof.

(Question of the amendment proposed)

The Minister for Education (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to support the resolution because of the fact that since this Bill was laid, the department officer for the Library is now under the Ministry of Education; if it is deleted perhaps it will be suitable in that it will perhaps bear the interpretation that that Minister is responsible.

(Clause 2 as amended agreed to)

That Schedule Paragraph 1 (f) of the Bill be amended by—

(i) deleting (d) and renumbering (e), (f) and (g) as (d), (e) and (f).

(ii) adding sub-paragraph (g) as follows—

"(g) not more than three such other persons as the Minister may in his discretion determine."

(Question of the amendment proposed)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Koinange, do you wish to comment on this?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I have some difficulty about the suggested amendment because clause 2 in the Act says "the Minister means the Minister for the time being responsible for social services".

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have dealt with that one.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Oh, it is the Schedule now.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have agreed with it. It is the amendment of the Schedule now which you see on the notice attached to the Order Paper.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): The Schedule paragraph 1 (f) that the Bill be amended by (i) deleting (d), a representative of the British Council?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): When this Bill, Mr. Speaker, was being debated in this House, the Minister representative of the Ministry did say that the purpose of including the British Council representative in this body was because they have technical knowledge and useful information and also run a library here which might be useful to us. I personally, Mr. Speaker, do not see the purpose of the amendment. They will be very useful representatives in this body and I beg to oppose the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think perhaps we had better take that amendment by itself. The Clerk did read out two amendments of paragraph 1 (f) of the Schedule and I proposed the question with regard to both of those amendments. I see that they are separate, so I will propose again the question.

Mr. Mbogobi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, though the Attorney-General has just decided to oppose this one, I think if he looks at paragraph 3 of the Schedule, (b) at the bottom of the amendments, he will find that this allows for somebody else to attend the board who is not a member of the board if the board agrees, and if that is the case and we allow it to go through as amended, this would allow the British adviser to attend in that capacity with the Minister's consent.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odongo): Mr. Speaker, I did say something about this particular paragraph when the Bill was being discussed in the House and I questioned the principle of having the British Council represented on the board. The Attorney-General gave a reason, but since then I have also spoken with the previous Minister for Education who was there when this matter came up and he told me that one of the main reasons why the British Council was represented on the board was because they gave quite a big portion of the money.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know that this has been the practice in some of the boards we have which are economic boards, but these boards generally have to do with the disbursements of funds which these people have contributed to the various organizations. In this particular case, it seems to me that it will not be really necessary because it is to do with the allocation of organization and it is not a commercial enterprise. There will be no need at all to have anybody who has contributed on the board, then, since the board has powers to co-opt members, the board could use these powers

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, it will be in order to do that. Mr. Khalif, provided you remember my warning that you will not be able to criticize the conduct of an inquest in an adjournment debate. It can only be done by substantive Motion.

Before we move on, I would remind hon. Members of one of our Standing Orders, that questions cannot be asked as to the accuracy of newspaper reports, unless they are reports of what has been said by a Minister or a representative of the Government, and then inquiring whether or not he said it.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

BRIDGES LINKING NORTH AND SOUTH TURKANA

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would like to remind hon. Members that today Mr. Kuruumban is to raise on adjournment the matter noted on the Order Paper.

I have received notice from Mr. Ekiella of his desire to raise on adjournment the matter of bridges in Turkana which first appeared in the nature of a question. I have arranged for this matter to be raised on adjournment at the interruption of business tomorrow.

Now I think Mr. Malinda has a personal statement to make.

PERSONAL STATEMENT

ABSENCE OF MOVER TO MOVE MOTION

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I should like to make a Personal Statement to this House, and to give reasons why I was absent when the Motion, of which I had given notice, was called on Friday, 2nd April 1965.

In view of the importance and seriousness of the Motion, I felt duty-bound to collect all extra and necessary information required to substantiate it. This was to be collected from various people who were scattered all over the town, and I had hoped that by 9 o'clock that morning, the essential part of the information would be in my possession. As the information was not ready by 9.30 a.m., I had to rush out to get it. This took more time than I had expected and, as soon as the extra information was received, I was back in Parliament.

I took some trouble, however, that morning while I was out collecting the required facts, to find out how far the first Motion had gone. I learned that my Motion had been called and, the House finding that I was out, had proceeded to discuss it as a matter of national importance. My intention was, however, to come and move it as a substantive Motion. At this stage, Sir, I concluded that I should concentrate on getting all the extra facts which I had gone out for, and further thought, rightly or wrongly, that it would have been out of order for me to interrupt the House by coming in and moving the Motion, when the House had gone so far with the matter.

It was important that these extra facts should be in my possession, because other facts which I had would have inevitably been ruled out of order as being sub judice. There was no question of running away or trying to abdicate my responsibilities in moving the Motion. If, however, this was the impression of the House, I must apologize to the Members for having given that view, and I wish to state here quite categorically that, what I have said, in my view, was both in good faith and in the best interests and well-being of the Kenya nation as a whole, and I am still prepared to move the Motion on Friday, the 23rd of this month, if you, Mr. Speaker, Sir, will allow this to be done.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members have heard and doubtless will accept that apology from Mr. Malinda and his reasons for not being here to move his Motion. He failed, as he says, because of a miscalculation of time and in such circumstances the Motion cannot come on the Order Paper again unless I think that it should. I must have good reason for allowing the Motion to come up again once the Mover has failed to move it. But in a Motion which has excited so much interest, I have to consider carefully the interests of the House and the feeling of hon. Members apart from the conduct of the individual Member concerned. The position now is that I do not quite know the feeling of the House; I would like to be sure that if I do allow this to come on the Order Paper next Friday it is the desire of the majority of the House that I should do so and I shall therefore take another twenty-four hours to get a clear idea of the feeling of the House before I make my decision.

Mr. Anyleni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, though this matter has lasted for about three weeks and so far the Government has succeeded in stamping—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Are you on a point of order?

Mr. Anyleni: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

So far the Government has succeeded in stamping out any possibility of a coup d'état to overthrow the Government. I do not know whether it would be in order in asking that all business be suspended in view of the fact that hon. Member has had three weeks to find the necessary information, so that this matter can be discussed today.

[Mr. Anyleni]

This matter is creating a lot of rumours in the country, rumours which are not favourable to Kenya either internally or externally. So, we should suspend all other business, Mr. Speaker, and discuss just this particular issue.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): This matter cannot be discussed until I allow it to come on the Order Paper. I am not ready to decide this for another twenty-four hours, and so it will not be discussed any more today.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, following your ruling, is there no Standing Order which would allow an hon. Member to move anything in question to be discussed any day in particular?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have given my ruling.

We will now move on to the next Order.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is there no procedure for a Member to refer to the Speaker when a Member is to be absent to collect information on a serious Motion like the one now under discussion, so that the Speaker is in a position to tell the House what the situation is. Such an incident may be repeated to the disadvantage of the Members in this House and the public.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not want to follow up the subject much more, on this question of what happened on that day, but I would advise hon. Members that if they see any danger of their not being here at the time when their Motion is due to be called, or if they decide after all that they do not want to be here, then they are well advised to warn the Speaker, who will do his best to help them and put them at ease with the House.

MOTION

REDUCTION IN BILL PUBLICATION PERIOD: THE LANDLORD AND TENANT (SHOPS, HOTELS AND CATERING ESTABLISHMENTS) BILL

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiako): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move:—

THAT this House agrees that the period of the publication of the Landlord and Tenant (Shops, Hotels and Catering Establishments) Bill (Bill No. 62) be reduced from fourteen days to eleven days.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Bill was published on the 9th of this month, and the reason for this Motion, which is fairly procedural, is to enable the House to debate this very, very important Motion and to give it, say, a sort of priority position in the debate that will take place in the next two weeks. If we had waited until the fourteen days are over other things would be debated before it and perhaps we may not reach debating this particular Bill. It is only a matter of three days, from fourteen days to eleven days, and, as I said, the reason for this Motion is purely procedural. It is to make sure that this Bill will actually be debated during the two weeks that we are going to be here.

I beg to move.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, I do not have much to say on this Motion. I support the Motion because the Bill took a long time to be drafted; we do not know why such things are being delayed in this way. I support the Minister because it is very necessary that we get this Bill through so that some of the problems which have been outstanding because of this Bill can be introduced.

With this, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am of the same view as the two speakers who spoke before me. I hope that when the Minister comes to speak he will tell this House in no uncertain terms the reasons as to why this Bill was so delayed. We would also like to know whether it will be possible to try and pay back the heavy sums of money paid by the tenants all this time while the Bill was being drafted.

I support very strongly that this Bill should come here as soon as possible and, therefore, I beg to support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If no other Member wishes to speak, I will call on the Mover to reply.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiako): Mr. Speaker, I am very happy that I have been allowed to have this Motion approved and I want to say that I shall be ready to answer some of the problems which are worrying the hon. Members, as why this Bill was not introduced into the House earlier.

Sir, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

Question No. 2020

ACTION AGAINST GENERAL SERVICE UNIT MEN

Mr. Khalif asked the Attorney-General what legal action had been taken against the men of the General Service Unit who had been found guilty by an Inquest Court in Nairobi early this year of deliberately killing seven loyal Somalis in Wajir last year.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. This unfortunate and regrettable incident, to which the hon. Member is referring, started with a Somali stabbing and murdering a General Service Unit soldier in an attempt to rob him of his rifle. In the ensuing confusion, eight people were killed. Although at the Inquest which I directed, twenty-eight witnesses gave evidence, the Senior Resident Magistrate was unable to say which particular individuals of the General Service Unit had been implicated in the killing. In the circumstances, I hope that the hon. Member will understand that it would be futile to institute a prosecution against persons unknown.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, before I ask this question, I would like to raise a point of order as to whether I would be allowed to ask four supplementary questions?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I should not think so, but ask one at a time and see how you get on.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the first question is whether the Attorney-General is aware that the entire number of people who were sent to the Court of Inquest, I mean as far as the General Service Unit man was concerned, were all regarded as having deliberately killed seven loyal Somalis in Wajir? That is my first question.

Mr. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, I want to say this, and very seriously. I have already said that the proper investigations were carried out by the police and when I received the file I directed an inquest to be held to find out who the culprits were. The hon. Member here should realize this as he, personally, had a case not very long ago and an enquiry was conducted and because there was not sufficient evidence to go to trial, the case was withdrawn. The same thing happened in this case, there was no person who could have been pointed out as the person who had killed another person.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I shall not allow any more supplementary question criticizing the conduct of this inquest or any other judicial proceedings. If hon. Members want to do that, they must do it by way of substantive Motion.

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the question talks of people who were found by the inquest court in Nairobi early this year to have deliberately killed; that is the result of the inquest. Is the question assuming that the inquest found the General Service Unit people to have killed these people for nothing, or is the Attorney-General now saying that the question as it is worded is completely untrue?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think the Attorney-General has made the position quite clear; that no particular individuals were found by the inquest to have done this deed.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it for the Chair to assume the conclusions of members of the Government, or is it for the questioner to prove beyond all reasonable doubt that what the Attorney-General said was false?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, it is not for anybody to prove anything at question time, except Government in support of what it says by way of answer. I have said on other occasions that if a Minister can be proved to have given a false answer to this House, then he will come and acknowledge that fact to this House on a later occasion, or Mr. Speaker must be informed of the circumstances. But when it comes to criticisms of the conduct of an inquest, we have special rules—very strict—that they can only be levelled by way of substantive Motion.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, arising from your ruling, I should have thought that allowing some supplementary questions on this would have given me the opportunity of showing how wrong the Attorney-General is.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not understand what you mean, Mr. Khalif.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I think that there have been enough points of order on this issue.

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for an hon. Member of this House to impute wrong motives on the Chair?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, that is another thing which can only be done by substantive Motion.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. Here you are another supplementary question?

Mr. Khalif: Will you allow me?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You may ask it now.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Attorney-General aware that the inquest court ruled that the men of that particular platoon of the General Service Unit deliberately killed these loyal Somalis, and if so, what is he doing in his capacity as Attorney-General of Kenya to prosecute these people according to law? Answer that.

Mr. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, might I preface my answer by saying this. I know the hon. Member who has been asking these questions was involved in a car accident. As a result of that car accident, somebody was killed, but because of lack of sufficient evidence, the hon. Member was not prosecuted. The result of this inquest was that I am going to read the result of the inquest now—the Senior Resident Magistrate found that—

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Attorney-General is saying that the hon. Member did some crime and he was not prosecuted because of lack of sufficient evidence?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. Will you keep silent while I am answering a point of order.

What I understood the Attorney-General to say was that Mr. Khalif had been involved in an accident and there was no prosecution. I think it was unnecessary for the Attorney-General to refer to that case at all, but it was not actually out of order.

Mr. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, the findings of the Senior Resident Magistrate were as follows.

The Senior Resident found that (a) one General Service Unit man had been murdered, that (b) the killing of his murderers was justified and that (c) six other civilians were murdered by persons unknown.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reading of the court's finding of this inquest, would the Attorney-General not agree with me that—Wait a minute.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member in order to speak with emotion and, above all, not to refer to the Chair?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think the hon. Member knows he must address the Chair, especially when heated.

Mr. Khalif: I beg your pardon, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, is the Attorney-General not aware that, notwithstanding the findings of the court which he read to us, according to the newspapers—although I was not in this inquest court—the findings of the court were that the men of the General Service Unit deliberately killed six loyal Somalis?

Mr. Kall: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I wonder whether the Member is questioning the findings which have been read or he is referring to a different finding of the inquest?

Mr. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, I am not reporting to this hon. House what has been written in the Press, I am informing this House of what was said by witnesses in a court of law. As I have already said, the magistrate's finding was that these people were killed by persons unknown and I wonder if the hon. Member can tell me who this culprit was. Every member of the public was entitled to give evidence at the inquest, so if he knew the culprit why did he not go to the inquest and give evidence?

Mr. Ogle: Mr. Speaker, during the judicial inquiry which followed, it was established that a police sergeant—in this case, in the General Service Unit—fired more than thirty rounds of ammunition from his sten gun directed at fleeing Somalis. So will the Attorney-General agree with me that we should get hold of this sergeant, charge him and make him mention the real?

Mr. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, I fail to understand how I can make this clear, but I have said—and I am going to repeat it—that when the witnesses gave evidence in court, none of them could identify the person who is alleged to have fired the six shots. I have read the report, I have read the newspapers, I have read the file, and I have also interviewed the inquiry, the Deputy Public Prosecutor, No soldier admitted or confessed that he was the one who fired the shots.

Mr. Tannu: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that this question has confused us a great deal, would I be in order to ask the Attorney-General to ask the court to submit this report of what the witnesses said, so that we may study it?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, it would be in order for you to do it, but not to raise it as a point of order.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 2020: ACTION AGAINST GENERAL SERVICE UNIT MEN

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, assuming that you are closing this question, may I be allowed to bring this matter on an adjournment, so that I can tell all these Members the truth?

Mr. Ayodo: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

As far as I am aware, my game warden and game scouts are not arresting people in the Lambe area unreasonably. Only those found with sticks used normally for hunting and with spears, are arrested and stopped for questioning.

Mr. Muruli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, does the Minister not agree with me that since this question was brought up in 1964, his Ministry has done nothing besides drawing up plans?

Mr. Ayodo: I do not agree, because I have just said that we are starting, at the beginning of the new financial year, to increase staff and the re-organization I referred to. Perhaps he did not pay attention when I was replying.

Mr. Tanui: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Minister tell us what plans he has made for Baringo District; because we have not seen a scout or a game warden there?

Mr. Ayodo: Mr. Speaker, perhaps I had better explain a little what plans we have in mind.

At the beginning of the next financial year, we propose to open four divisional game headquarters, and these will be at Maralal, Nanyuki, Kilifi and Ngong. These divisional headquarters will have game stations under them, and Baringo will be taken care of.

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION No. 2011:
CONTROL OF WILDLIFE OUTSIDE
NATIONAL PARKS AND GAME RESERVES

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that I consider the answers that were given to this question were very unsatisfactory, I would like to raise this matter on an Adjournment.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, am I in order to pursue the Minister because the House would be interested to know whether there is any difference between the ordinary club which the farmers use and that used for hunting.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is certainly not in order.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 1019

MARKETING OF KENYA'S PRODUCTS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have to inform hon. Members that the next question should not have appeared on the Order Paper today. It should have been addressed to the Minister for Agriculture and as he is not quite ready to answer it, we will leave it until tomorrow.

Mr. Anyleni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, are you deferring this question because the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing does not deal with any crops which are exported from Kenya?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It has been decided by Government that the appropriate Minister to answer this is the Minister for Agriculture and it is not for me to rule.

Mr. armp Too: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order: You will remember that I asked a question last session to the Vice-President's Office and found later on that it was answered by the Minister for Economic Planning and Development. I do not, therefore see the reason why this Minister who was asked this question should not answer it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must leave it to Government to decide among themselves which Minister should be regarded as responsible for a particular matter raised by a question, and accept that that Minister answers it. What this House wants is an answer from Government.

Mr. Anyleni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, we know that the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing also has something to do with the exporting of our crops. Now is it in order for Government to fall in supplying a reply at the required time and give the excuse of the actual Minister: not being present in view of the fact that there are Assistant Ministers and Permanent Secretaries to give the replies, and who are supposed to reply when the actual Minister is not present?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): This is a case of a Minister not being ready to answer. The Question has only just become due, and Mr. Malinda is perfectly happy for it to be answered tomorrow, and I do not see why the House should not be happy about it, too.

ADDITIONAL LOANS FOR COTTON GROWERS

Mr. Ngala-Abok asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing whether he would consider as a matter of urgency the need for issuing additional loans to cotton growers for weeding and picking, as the present loans were not enough.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiako): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of my

[The Minister for Commerce and Industry] and picking cotton, and I have said, no, Sir, we want to increase the acreage for cultivation of cotton. I beg to reply.

No, Sir, in the spirit of self-help, cotton growers in Kenya are at present able to cope with weeding and picking their crops. Besides, the purpose of loans is to help the growers to raise the average cotton acreage and by use of the revolving fund we wish, at least, to double the acreage now under cotton. The assistance, which is a pilot scheme in its first year of operation, is intended for ploughing and for insecticides.

The sum of money which the Government has authorized to the Cotton Lint and Seed Marketing Board to make available for cultivation loans in the current cotton crop season is £100,000. This sum is already fully committed and a major portion of it has already been delivered and allocated to individuals. But the Government is looking into the possibility of making still more funds available in the next year's season.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that larger areas of land were cultivated by people who were not used to handle such large areas—about two or three acres? At this time, weeding and picking will be most difficult for the farmers. Will the Minister therefore be kind enough to give additional loans to these farmers?

Dr. Kiako: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are quite aware of the fact that the people in Nyanza and elsewhere can weed their gardens, their shambar, and they can also pick the cotton, so we want to increase the total acreage for planting the cotton, not just help the people with weeding. I am sure the hon. Member will talk to the farmers to make them work a little harder than they are working now.

Mr. Balu: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, is he aware that the Director of Agriculture, when he came to Central Nyanza Province, told people that he would give bigger loans to those people who can work hard on their shambar and, as a result, you find that we have only one co-operative society in one location and in other areas there are four or five co-operative societies who are getting Sh. 40,000 per co-operative society? What can the Minister do in order to assist some of these people who have only one co-operative society in one location whereas some people have three or four co-operative societies in another location?

Dr. Kiako: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question is, will the Government provide loans for weeding and picking cotton, and I have said, no, Sir, we want to increase the acreage for cultivation of cotton.

AFRICANIZATION: KHADI POST IN NORTH-EASTERN PROVINCE

Mr. Amin asked the Attorney-General when the post of Khadi in the North-Eastern Province would be Africanized.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, not knowing the system used to word questions, I would like to seek your ruling on this. I do not know what method was used to word this question because it happens to be completely contrary to the meaning which Mr. Amin meant.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Well, it is for Mr. Amin to correct it if it is wrong.

Mr. Amin: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my question would have been, when will the post of Khadi in the North-Eastern Province be filled by a local man?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, I am afraid then that your question has been misinterpreted. I think we had better take it off the Order Paper and put it on again in a day or two's time. There is no point in altering it now. I do not think the Attorney-General will be prepared to answer it.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I am prepared to answer it, Mr. Speaker, Sir. I know what Mr. Amin wants to know.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If Mr. Njonjo knows what you mean, he can answer what you meant.

Mr. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, I was first of all going to say, with the greatest respect to the hon. Member, that the question is not understood. It is a misnomer to speak of Africanizing a post which has always been held by a Kenya citizen.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think, in fact, you are now answering the question as it is written and not as Mr. Amin meant. It will be much better, therefore, if we leave this now and allow some time for the question to be put right on the Order Paper.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, arising from your ruling, I think the Attorney-General has answered in accordance with the latest form of the question, and I wonder whether you can allow it to go through?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Khalif, there is too much confusion.

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION No. 1068: ELIMINATION OF THE KENYA PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, in view of the fact that the answer to this question has been unsatisfactory, I beg to raise this matter on adjournment!

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 2002

HIDES AND SKINS INDUSTRY FOR SAMBURU

Mr. Rurumban asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry whether, in view of the fact that the Samburu District produced a large number of hides and skins, he would consider establishing a hides and skins industry there.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Olotiplitip): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The Ministry of Commerce and Industry provides advice and loans for industrial projects through the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation. Thus, if the people of the Samburu District wish to establish a hides and skins industry in their—

Mr. Mutiso: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it seems that the palatynists are not able to hear what the Minister is talking about.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Thank you. I am grateful Mr. Mutiso. It is rather difficult for the palatynists to hear hon. Members at that end of the House.

Mr. Gatigwa: Is it in order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, for the hon. Member of the House to stand and say that members of the public, strangers, and palatynists are not hearing the debate.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We are only too grateful if we are informed about the palatynists. We do not worry quite so much about the public.

Mr. Anyleni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, could it be ruled, could you make a rule in this House, that when an Assistant Minister or a Minister is replying and he is sitting on the Front Bench, he must always come to the Table so that the palatynists will be able to hear, so that we do not have such points of order again?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will not make a particular order like that. All I ask is that hon. Members make it their business to be heard. If they find that they are not heard when they stand, they must go where they will be heard.

Mr. Olotiplitip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The Ministry of Commerce and Industry provides advice and loans for industrial projects through the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation. Thus, if the people of the Samburu District wish to establish a hides and skins industry in their district they should organize themselves in a group and then apply for help from the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell this House how his advice is channelled, whether it is through officers or through himself, because at Samburu we do not have the officers to explain the formation of this company?

Mr. Olotiplitip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is very unfortunate that the Member does not know that we have loans officers in every region who go around explaining to the people the ways they should apply to the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation.

Mr. Anyleni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister give a guarantee to this House that after the applications have been made, the Minister or the Assistant Minister will not give a guarantee that the factory is going to be created there as they have given guarantees in other areas like Kisii and have failed to fulfil the guarantees given?

Mr. Olotiplitip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that if a Minister replies to a question, he means it.

Mr. Khalifi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the answer of the Minister, is the Assistant Minister not aware even now, that commercial and industrial matters do not exist in every region or for that matter in every province?

Mr. Olotiplitip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am aware that trade officers are all over other regions, except his own respective region, the North-Eastern Region.

Mr. Khalifi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, does the Assistant Minister agree with me that the number of hides and skins available in the Samburu District warrants the establishment of a hides and skins industry in Samburu District?

Mr. Olotiplitip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have just said that if the people of Samburu organize themselves and bring forward a proposal to my Ministry that there are sufficient hides and skins to warrant a factory, we are ready to accept their claim and we shall give them loans to carry on.

Question No. 2008

Sisal FACTORY FOR SOUTH NYANZA

Mr. Maitori-Itumbo asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would tell the House when he was proposing to set up a sisal factory in South Nyanza to process the sisal which was there in abundance, specially in Kuria constituency.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Olotiplitip): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It is the intention of my Ministry that a sisal factory costing Sh. 120,000 should be established in Migori by September this year. The Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation is quite prepared to get the project going provided people in the constituency of the hon. Member are prepared to raise Sh. 25,000.

The South Nyanza Farmers' Co-operative Union was informed by my Ministry of this requirement in February this year, but all we have been told is that the farmers' union would soon be discussing the project. If the project is to start as we had planned, then people in South Nyanza should get organized quickly and submit an application for assistance.

Mr. Okwanyo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, could the Assistant Minister read again the figures that he gave?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Will you give the figures again, Mr. Olotiplitip: the amount the Government is prepared to give, and the amount of that part which has to be subscribed by the local people.

Mr. Olotiplitip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the total figure is Sh. 120,000 and the required figure for the people of South Nyanza to raise is Sh. 25,000.

Mr. Maitori-Itumbo: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, could he assure the House that this factory is going to be owned by the co-operative societies and not individual commercial people of South Nyanza who exploit the local farmers?

Mr. Olotiplitip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are talking on the basis of South Nyanza Farmers' Co-operative Union, and it depends on how they organize themselves.

Mr. Maitori-Itumbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, can he tell the House how these co-operative societies are going to come into the running of the factory?

Mr. Olotiplitip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question is whether our Ministry is going to assist the sisal industry in South Nyanza, and it depends on how these people organize themselves, and all our Ministry will do is to assist them financially to establish a factory.

CONTROL OF WILDLIFE OUTSIDE NATIONAL PARKS AND GAME RESERVES

Mr. Kase asked the Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife if he would tell the House the ways and means found by his Ministry to control wildlife outside the national parks and game reserves as promised on Thursday, 8th October 1964.

The Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife (Mr. Ayodo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I did not promise, Sir, to find ways and means of controlling wildlife outside national parks and game reserves, because such ways and means have always been known by my Ministry. However, the Motion passed on 8th October 1964 urged the Government to find ways and means of increasing the control of wildlife outside the parks and reserves.

Since that time, Sir, my Ministry has drawn up a plan to reorganize the Game Department. Under this plan, there will be a large increase in the department's staff, and game stations will be opened in most areas where large numbers of game animals still exist. Increased transport and communications facilities will be provided so as to enable the department's staff to move faster and cover larger districts.

Such a reorganization will, however, require a great deal of money and will take a long time. The first part of it will be effected at the beginning of the coming financial year, which commences July this year.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the Minister's reply, is he aware that his game wardens at Lambwe are arresting people with clubs and sticks while they use to work with normally, because they are suspected of killing the wild game in the area, and what is the Minister going to do about these injustices and unnecessary arrests?

Mr. Ayodo: Mr. Speaker, perhaps you can help me on this. I am quite prepared to answer the question, but I wonder whether it is relevant to the question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, it is. I think it is relevant because the question is referring to control of wildlife, which might involve allowing private citizens to share in that control.

[The Assistant Minister for Education] established, so that collections made during the first year of their existence can be devoted to the much greater expenses of the second year, and so on in succeeding years.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, would the Assistant Minister tell the House whether this policy which the Ministry is advocating of producing Sh. 40,000 cash before any school is opened, applies to all or most of the Harambee schools which started last year, and if this is so, which ones?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, there has been a need for more secondary schools and local people themselves indicated that they would collect money and build schools. Well, if we continue saying that we do not want to observe the standards in the schools, then we will find that the standard of education in Kenya has gone down. We would like to see that the standard of education is high and, therefore, we must insist on getting this amount of Sh. 40,000 before a school is established.

Mr. Onweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell us how this figure of Sh. 40,000 was arrived at? On what estimate? Whether annual estimates are sent in by the schools, or whether it is the amount meant for a secondary school to run for four years? When once it has reached Form I, we expect it to run up to the fourth year before it reaches school certificate standard.

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, my hon. friend was once a teacher and so he knows very well that when a school is opened there must be a qualified teacher. The Government has no money to pay the teacher, so part of the money which is being collected goes to pay the salary of the teacher who is going to start Form I. Secondly, school equipment is needed. There is also the upkeep of the school until the end of the year. There must also be money to start the class going in the new year because by then there will be two classes. So, this money is actually collected for paying the teacher's salary, school equipment and other commitments connected with the school.

Mr. Choge: Is school fees included in the Sh. 40,000?

Mr. Konchellah: No, Sir.

Mr. Tani: Would the Assistant Minister tell us about the closing of a certain Harambee school just because they did not pay Sh. 40,000?

Mr. Konchellah: This Harambee school, Mr. Speaker, has been newly built. However, at the moment I am not ready to give the name of a school which has run down because of shortage of funds. I will be prepared to give this in writing later.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, is the Assistant Minister aware that the Sh. 40,000 which is wanted by the Government before a school is opened discourages the opening of more schools?

Mr. Konchellah: No, Sir.

Mr. Gatuguta: Mr. Speaker, could the Assistant Minister give an assurance to this House that a school which has proper buildings already put up will not be required to raise the Sh. 40,000?

Mr. Konchellah: I do not agree with that proposition.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION No. 1064: FUNDS FOR HARAMBEE SECONDARY SCHOOLS

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that we have not received satisfactory reply from the Assistant Minister I would like to raise this matter on adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): All right.

Next question.

Mr. Bala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say something on the last question. The questioner asked whether it is necessary for a school which has permanent buildings to raise the Sh. 40,000 and, therefore, is it in order that the Assistant Minister should refuse to answer the question? The questioner only asks whether a school which has permanent buildings should be excluded from paying Sh. 40,000.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have explained to hon. Members many times that the Minister, or Assistant Minister, replying is quite in order if refusing to answer the question altogether or only giving half an answer. It is up to the House to judge whether or not his answer is satisfactory. In this case, the Assistant Minister said he did not agree with that proposition and I think it was a clear answer in the negative.

We will now move on to the next question.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 1068

ELIMINATION OF THE KENYA PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Education if he would consider appointing a special committee to plan ways and means of eliminating the Kenya Preliminary Examination before 1967, so that students could proceed from primary to secondary school without examination.

The Minister for Education (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir I beg to reply, No, Sir, but if the hon. Member has thought of something better than the Kenya Preliminary Examination which would be used for selecting secondary school pupils, he is very welcome to discuss his ideas with me first.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, arising from the Minister's reply, is the Minister not aware that the standard of the Kenya Preliminary Examination results does not help the African child at the moment to get employment?

Mr. Koinange: We can only take 10 per cent of all the pupils who pass the Kenya Preliminary Examination into secondary schools.

Mr. Khasakala: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that Government has room only for 10 per cent of the students who sit for the Kenya Preliminary Examination every year to move on to the secondary schools, could the Minister tell the House what arrangements he has for the rest of the 90 per cent?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is another question altogether.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Arising from the Minister's reply that if a Member has a suggestion to make with regard to the best system to be adopted this could be discussed, could the Minister tell us, since he has come to answer this question in this House, whether there is a means to devise the best system by which the Kenya Preliminary Examination could be got rid of?

Mr. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, the Kenya Preliminary Examination is quite good, because it is the only means that we have at present of selecting local students who will move on to further education in secondary schools. So far, we have not found any fault in that system.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that for about three years there have been allegations that the papers for the Kenya Preliminary Examination have leaked out before the examination takes place, and that some students have passed this examination due to the fact that they saw the examination papers in advance, can the Minister agree that passing the Kenya Preliminary Examination does not, in actual fact and, therefore, he should give serious consideration to the suggestion made in this question?

Mr. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, first of all, we did not have a leakage of examinations this year, and also, Mr. Speaker, Sir, of three years ago.

The second point is that so far the means of examination by the Kenya Preliminary Examination still stand good, and the Government is no doubt prepared, as we get teachers and other people, to revise if need be, the examination, but for the time being the Kenya Preliminary Examination is still good.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, and in view of the fact that at present every firm or every institution, whether it is commercial or what, is insisting on secondary school standard, and because a good number of children are stopped at Standard 8 level, then they do not have the facility of joining any institution at all. Is it necessary that we leave these pupils who have just to reach secondary standard?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! This question only relates to how you are going to select those who go on to such places as are available. You cannot discuss under this question what you are going to do with those whom you are not able to place.

Mr. Onweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, and in view of the fact that in Professor Ominde's report there is the inclusion that there will be a proper way of selecting students for Form I from primary schools, and in view of the fact that at the moment the Kenya Preliminary Examination is held in various stages, some schools hold the Kenya Preliminary Examination in Standard 7 and others hold it in Standard 8, and it looks so meaningless that this Kenya Preliminary Examination has no meaning now. Would the Minister agree to implement that suggested method of selection immediately?

Mr. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we will look into it, but I must say, in emphasis, that the selection of 103,000 pupils of the Kenya Preliminary Examination who have passed will have no question about their examinations, there is no question about examination at all. Those 103,000 pupils passed and no one raised a question that the examination was not as it should be.

[The Minister for Internal Security and Defence]
Malawians, who have since gone away since this question was asked, were three.

Rhodesians, who have also gone away since this question was asked, were two.

Angolans two, who have also left. Zambians one and he has also left, and Comorians two.

Mr. Makokha: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may the House know from the Minister whether these refugees are living in camps or are left to float around the country anyhow?

Dr. Mungali: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are some who are being supported by the missionaries, like the 119 Sudanese by the Christian Council of Kenya, and they are not floating around. There are others who come through and usually go to our neighbouring states, or are on their way out, of Africa, and they could only be called refugees in transit and they are also not floating, but are staying for some time, a few days, and then leaving. For instance, the Mozambiguans who are here, are on their way back to Lusaka and Dar es Salaam.

Mr. Jahaari: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister tell the House how many Zanzibar refugees we have because I did not hear any mention made of them?

Dr. Mungali: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have not had any Zanzibarians as such as refugees, but some of them have come from Tanzania. You could hardly call people from Tanzania refugees.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister tell the House whether these refugees carry with them some documents of identification so that they can prove they are real refugees and not spies?

Dr. Mungali: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I have said, some of them, as I have enumerated, go through Kenya, others are taken care of by the Church groups and, indeed, some of them even go to other schools and are taught by them. We are very watchful and if we find people of doubtful character who could become spies in this country, naturally, we turn them back immediately before they even enter the country.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, would he tell this House what sort of facilities the Kenya Government is giving to these refugees?

Dr. Mungali: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I have identified them, most of these are being supported by various groups, like the Church groups, but then of the others there is a Committee of Nine in Dar es Salaam which takes care of these things and we are quite willing to support the Committee of Nine. Of the others coming from Uganda side, there is an agreement that they have to stay in a refugee camp in Uganda, to which the Kenya Government could contribute, but here in Kenya we will not accept refugees as such, until the agreement within the African countries has been completed and there are places and facilities provided for them in those areas, which we do support because we feel it is necessary.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister tell the House under what principles regulations this Committee of Nine is working, and which regulations are being carried out by the Kenya Government at present?

Dr. Mungali: Mr. Speaker, I do not know what that has to do with the particular question on how many refugees we have in Kenya. The Committee of Nine is in Dar es Salaam.

Question No. 1026

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have to inform hon. Members that the next question is on the Order Paper by mistake, having already been asked and answered. The mistake occurred due to the temporary illness of one of our clerks.

We will go on to the next one.

SCHOOL CERTIFICATE RESULTS: HOMA BAY

Mr. Ngala-Aboki asked the Minister for Education what reasons had led to such poor results in last year's school certificate examinations, especially those of Homa Bay Secondary School.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The results of the 1964 school certificate examinations in Kenya schools as a whole were not poor, indeed they compared favourably with those of previous years. Generally, old-established schools can be expected to produce consistently good results, but new schools, particularly those which, like Homa Bay, are taking the examination for the first time, have to gain some experience in doing their examinations before their results equal those of the older schools.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell the House what improvements are carried out by the Government in connection with these new schools can gain experience, so that the next examination results will not be as poor as those which have been obtained by the Homa Bay Secondary School so far?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am the very first to admit that in this very school at Homa Bay we had new teachers. These new teachers were newly qualified and they are now gaining experience in teaching.

Secondly, in older schools there are Form II, Form III and Form IV, and usually a child in Form I copies a lot even from the Form II or Form III, and these new schools have only Form I.

Mr. Malsori-Itumbi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, can he agree with us in the House that many transfers of teachers affect the studies of students in every school?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, Homa Bay is a very new school and we have not transferred a single teacher, so this question does not arise.

Mr. Masade: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's replies, could the Minister tell this House what are the chances of those boys or girls who are in new schools as an experiment for the first year, passing the examinations?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, although this is a different question, I think that we are equipping our schools with qualified teachers and also we do not need to bring other children to come and stay with others while we have just opened Form I only.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister agree with me, having said that the new teachers at Homa Bay are newly qualified, that they are the sort of teachers who would teach better because they are fresh from training colleges, and is the Assistant Minister aware that at Homa Bay children are boycotting school because the teaching of English is so bad?

Mr. Konchellah: No, Sir. Mr. Speaker, Sir, my friend here who has asked the question has been a Minister for Education for some time, and I think he is very much aware of what is going on. When he talks of English being taught in a different way, I do not know whether he means that—I am not aware of English being taught badly in Homa Bay School, and if the hon. questioner could tell me how it is being taught, I will reply to him.

Mr. Ngala: Arising from that reply, Sir, is the Assistant Minister prepared to look into the causes of the recent strike of the students at Homa Bay?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this has been carried out.

Mr. Anylen: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the school at Homa Bay and other schools were very bad, would the Minister consider transferring all the teachers who have already taught boys for secondary education to new schools and then mixing some new teachers in the old secondary schools and new secondary schools so that we do not have the question of new teachers in particularly new secondary schools?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hope the hon. Member in this House is very much aware of the fact that as many schools have been opened. Therefore, there is shortage of teachers in the country already. If we transfer teachers from another school, that will mean that we will be bringing old teachers to new schools and then the other schools will remain with new teachers. Our only problem here is shortage of teachers.

Mr. Murnu: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell this House the result of the inquiry that was conducted on the Homa Bay Secondary School?

Mr. Konchellah: Although this is a supplementary question, Mr. Speaker, I am not ready at the moment to disclose the facts of the inquiry into the Homa Bay Secondary School.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I draw your attention to another question I am going to ask? It should be corrected to read as follows: Question No. 1057 instead of 1059 as on the Order Paper.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): All right.

FUND RAISING POLICY FOR HARAMBEE SCHOOLS

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Education if the Minister was prepared to alter his Ministry's policy whereby each new Harambee Secondary School had to produce Sh. 40,000 in cash before the school could open, on the basis that once a school had opened with Sh. 20,000, the balance of Sh. 20,000 or more, could easily be reached by the end of the year.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. No, Sir. In view of the fact that the managements of these schools can expect to have to maintain them without Government aid for an indefinite period, it is considered that the necessary sum to ensure satisfactory standards during the first year should be in hand when the schools are first

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, can we continue without a quorum?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I did hope nobody would be so stupid as to create a question which would involve our adjourning today and sitting again tomorrow to preclude a Motion for adjournment for five minutes. I do not think I heard anybody say anything about a quorum.

An hon. Member: On a point of order—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I do not think we need have any more points of order.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very pleased to say that I have listened very attentively to very many points raised by Members from this side and from the opposite side. Some of them were very excited indeed and very emotional. Let me say that, having been in this House all these years, I am used to one thing: that Kenya has developed a kind of emotionalism which comes on every now and then, and all this is normally subject to outside influence. It was not started by us, but from outside. At one time, we had emotionalism of something called Mau Mau, and everybody was frightened of a trouble called Mau Mau. I remember one of the strongest speakers then, who was with me, and when I mentioned Kenya's name here, he sent me—he was in Japan by then—a telegram to say that he was not with me in support of Mau Mau, and that he would not support me in anything. He is not in the House at the moment; he is the Member for Kilifi. Today, I find that he is one of the staunch champions of Kenya today. I must say that later things went on, and there was "Mili Miling", and everybody was frightened of it. I accepted that these were just stories. Many people argued about it. Now, I find that they drink in hotels with "Mili Miling".

Mr. Speaker, today, we people who stood strongly, have never changed our policies; our policies stand on African nationalism. I have toured the African land, and I am glad, and today the Member for Butere pleased me when he talked about our principles. I challenge the Members here, that each Member should stand on their principles and not waver or move this way and that. There is a lot of trouble today which is being carefully formed, and that is the trouble of communism, which is not new. I have known it, I have been charged with it, I have accepted that charge for a long time. Today, all these people who want to divide the Africans and to create disunity, are trying again to bring it about with vigour and force. People ask me whether we are in danger of communism and so on. If you ask them where it is, what it looks like and where it is so that we can find it, and discuss it with them so that we can find out whether it is right or wrong, whether they are right or wrong, so that we follow them if it is right, they cannot tell you. I say that we in Kenya are free to make friends with anybody. If I find people, say, Russians, and they appeal to me that what they stand for is right, and therefore their association with me is correct, to help us to build our country, I will avail myself of their help. I will persuade my Government also to avail itself. If I find Americans anywhere, and they say that America is right in other ways, and they can get on with us, I will tell them about capitalism, that they should not be capitalists, or imperialists, because I do not believe that they are going to help us any longer. Make no bones about it, I will always look into it if I am told and I am strong and calm and I will always get it. Today I was out of the House talking to the Members. I will say but next time, when I have more time, I will say more. I would appeal to the Members to maintain unity, and let us this afternoon vote for the Kana candidates whom we have actually much faith in.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 1048

POLITICAL REFUGEES IN KENYA

Mr. Makokha asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence—

(a) how many political refugees there were in this country;

(b) whether the Minister would give their breakdown by countries of origin.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There are 207 refugees in Kenya. Their breakdown is as follows:

Congolese	27
Mozambiquans	23
Mwandese	22
Sudanese	119
South Africans	6

[Mr. Shikuko]

If I may come to the most important thing, namely, what we are supposed to do for our people, is to see to it that we feed them, to clothe them and to make sure that our people have a shelter over their heads, but instead of doing that, we are now full of fears and talking of power. Some people want to be in power all the time, despite the fact that they are doing nothing. There are a lot of brains, Mr. Speaker, which are being wasted, just because some people managed to get to the top of the ladder and do not wish to come down. I resent most strongly, Mr. Speaker, the question of some people being considered senior. If a man is unable to lead the country, despite his age, he should climb down and let other people lead the country. If it is a question of age, Mr. Speaker, some of us are going to be referred to as young throughout, because there is no question of overtaking one in age. If the hon. Vice-President is fifty today and I am thirty, I will never overtake him, he will always look down upon me as a young man, even at the age of 80, because then he will be 100 years old. Mr. Speaker, I feel the late President Kennedy proved to the world that young brains could also be of much value and wisdom. Hence the question of referring to some Members as being more senior, as stated by one of the hon. Members here, should be stopped; let us go by logic and not by age, because there are old idiots, as well as young wise men.

Mr. Speaker, if I may come to another point, it is the question of Uhuru na tumbao, and I would like to emphasize this. There are people who are suffering today and I suggest in this House that the present cost of living should be reduced to facilitate more employment of the people who are loitering without employment or food for themselves, while you people are talking of power. You will never keep power so long as the empty bellies of the unemployed are not filled. They will pull you down in the end.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): As regards the time that is left for this debate, Mr. Odinga will not reply until five minutes past one, unless the closure is moved before then.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we will have to record today as an historical day, when Members spoke their minds freely. The time has come, Sir, when Africa should be left free to solve its own problems. At the moment, it appears as though we are involved in the cold wars of big powers, which do not exist in Africa at all.

The reason why this unfortunate situation has come to Kenya especially is, Mr. Speaker—and I would point out that Kenya has been involved in this cold war because of one thing and one thing alone—the awarding of scholarships from various countries. Some scholarships have been channelled through individuals and, as a result, these individuals have been looked upon as agents of those countries, whereas it may not be so, because it might be that they were known to these countries before the other Members were known. There may be scholarships to America, there may be scholarships to China, to Russia, to Great Britain.

Mr. Speaker, this is what is creating the cold war in Kenya. It is because of this. I am going to explain the reason why we have been lunched into this cold war. Take the number of people who are studying in various countries: some are studying to become soldiers; some are studying to become doctors; some are studying to become lawyers; some are studying even to become politicians, they take a course of political science. When one looks at the balance of the Kenyans who have been sent outside the country to train in these activities, one sees an imbalance. The balance does not cover the whole country and, as a result, Mr. Speaker, we have been lunched into this cold war, because of fear. This fear is here and no one can deny it.

There is a fear, Mr. Speaker, that some people may come back and overthrow the Government because they have trained as pilots, as army officers, they have trained as big, important, international captains. So if one can deceive this House that there is no cold war in Kenya, one will be telling the world a lie. There is definitely a cold war in Kenya and this must be stopped. I would call upon my own Government, the Government of Kenya, to represent the African interests and do away with interference by foreign powers. We have had interference; we cannot even solve the Congo situation today, the Sir. The Congo was in the Congo West and at the present time, the people dying in the Congo are not the Europeans from the East, they are not from the West, they are Africans of our blood.

We cannot allow this situation to come to Kenya at this juncture. We want, Mr. Speaker, if our Government is working well, and if it has got a Special Branch, to tell the people of this country, where this cold war started from. We need to know the truth about all these things. There is no smoke without fire and we want to be told where this fire comes from. You can never stop that here. You may shout at me, you may tell me that I am creating it, but I can as well say the same to you, that you are creating it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are not addressing me?

Mr. Khasakhala: I was not referring to you, Mr. Speaker!

I would appeal very strongly to His Excellency, who is very much honoured by the ordinary people of this country, and to whom we are all loyal, to find out where this fire is, because already there is enough smoke to prove to us that there is a fire burning somewhere.

With these few remarks, I beg to support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can have four minutes.

Mr. Kibura: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Sir, I would like to mention something which has been mentioned by quite a number of people, and this is African socialism. It is good; I would like the fact that the Government is working on it, so that we are presented with a paper, defining what African socialism is and how it is to be put into practice. I find that we have to appeal to the Members of the Cabinet, to the Ministers. I see that the Ministers themselves are not united on the meaning of the words "African socialism", and their own interpretations differ. We cannot afford to confuse the masses in the country by giving them different interpretations. This paper is supposed to come out in May, I would request the Government to see that this thing comes out during the next sitting, so that we know exactly where we stand.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, is that I would also like to appeal to the Ministers of this Government and Government as a whole. I see things outside, and I would like to ask the Government whether the Ministers and Members of this Parliament are really sincere. You find some people who are not working, they are not employed, they are not employed by the Government, but every day you see them in cars, going to big hotels, talking with certain Ministers. If this is the Kenya Government, then these people should be employed by the Government, but not by individual Ministers. We shall start to wonder and try to find out where this money is coming from. Is it from the salaries of the Ministers given by the Kenya Government or is it coming from outside? I appeal to the Ministers to see that this ceases.

Here in the House, you hear the Minister saying, "Well, we are one Government." Outside, you see individuals coming and saying, "So-and-so is the right person, the right leader." This is very bad indeed, and it is confusing the public.

Now with regard to the question of the smuggling of arms. If there are all these allegations—and once you go outside, you hear even more rumours. You will hear people saying, "You will see." I mean people outside. They say, "You will see within a certain time." And then here the Government says, "Well, everything is all right, there is no smuggling of arms, and the army is ready to deal with anything which crops up." But outside, their supporters talk differently.

I do not want to talk of any particular Minister, but if we are to be sincere we should say one thing here in the House and then say the same thing outside.

In finishing, Mr. Speaker, I would like to appeal to the Government, and would like to support the hon. Mr. Khasakhala when he said that when individuals go to different countries on scholarships and then come back, they support that individual country instead of supporting their own country of Kenya. I would appeal to the Government to see that if we are to get aid from America, from Russia, from China, from Britain, let us get help in materials and train our people in our own country.

When they go to these countries, they are taught certain ideologies and, as a result, when they come here, they get confused. You fight with East and West. If we are sincere with ourselves, we should be Kenyans, and should ask the President and his Ministers to give us a lead, but not to confuse the public.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will now call upon the Mover to reply.

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Sir, I wonder whether you could use your discretion with this, and allow two people to speak before the Mover is called upon to reply?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I am afraid not. It is by Resolution of the House that there is a time limit of an hour and a half for this particular kind of Motion. There are always some hon. Members who are unlucky. The only way one could continue for another ten minutes would be with the leave of the House, that is, if no Member objects. If any Member objects, we have to stand by the Resolution. Does any Member object to continuing for another ten minutes?

An hon. Member: I object.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): All right. I will call upon the Mover to reply.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): Mr. Speaker, Sir—

with it, that would help up. He has been dealing with a certain foreign country which is trying to use this country, and now that he sees that he has no chance, he is trying to place the blame cleverly that there is a threat to take over the Government from the Members in the House so that he may capture the leadership of this country. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it has been reported that most of the Members have been called to certain meetings and even some Members here, and some of them have wanted to speak, and I even mention to you Mr. Speaker, Sir, that they have been promised that their expenses will be paid by somebody in this House, a very clever person, who, in fact, enjoys the most senior position in our Cabinet, and in fact, one of the leading nationalists who is now to pay the Members they have forced into doing it, this must be stopped.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, is it in order, for the hon. Member to make this allegation, because this is a very serious allegation?

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I am saying is that it is unfortunate that those Members were here, and this is a matter for them to come and to say that they were taken by surprise and told that you cannot agree with everything we are coming to, I mean that you do not ask who is paying the bill. Now if the Member wants substantiation then I will bring that particular individual.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, I am not satisfied.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are right, Mr. Khasakhala, I do not think that anyone in the House could be satisfied with that one. You have made a very serious allegation and I think you should follow it right through now, and say what you are referring to.

Mr. Oduya: All right then I will withdraw.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would remind hon. Members to be more careful in what they say. You have been Members of this House for nearly two years and you have learnt the responsibility of Membership and the privilege of being able to say things here without being taken to court, and the responsibility that goes with that privilege. Many of you today have criticized the Member who gave notice of a Motion, and then, when it was time, the Member was not here to move it. Still you say things that alarm people and you will not substantiate them.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have been anxious to speak ever since I entered this House, because of the terrible situation in which we find ourselves today.

At the moment, I would just like to dwell on the position of the President. What I would like to say is this: it has been suggested that certain groups of people are not satisfied with his leadership. Because of this, they are trying to find out a system which will overthrow his Government, put the country into confusion, and then confine the President. This is what happened in Malawi. In Malawi, some clever people alleged that the Government of Dr. Banda was being overthrown, and that Dr. Banda had to get a new Cabinet and that he would be able to find the people who were trying to overthrow him. This happening was done very cleverly and now the whole of Africa knows what type of Government Dr. Banda is having. This is not to allege that something sinister happened, but to give an example of what is happening in the whole of Africa today. From this time, we have confusion in the Government one way or the other. If our President is not careful about those who claim to be his first and foremost supporters and also about the people claiming to be his supporters in this country, and fails to identify these two groups and sees what their ideas are, he will find himself in difficulties with some of these members or groups of people who are fighting on the basis of personality country. In the first place, he should find out who his friends are. Is it the person who stands up here, who has the guts to criticize his policy, to criticize his Africanization policies, to criticize the combined responsibility of the Cabinet, or is he the person who goes bowing to him all the time, but tells him nothing? I think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would respect a person more if he came straight out with his criticisms about me, and made me learn to act properly also made me see where my business was, and made me know so-and-so, rather than a person who makes out that he is a good organizer and yet he is the one that brings confusion. Now, what would happen today if the President thought that the Motion which was tabled had some weight? He would cease to be ruled properly or cases to conduct himself in a proper manner and put the country into a state of chaos. This is what the President could do, but who knows what they are doing, but he may find himself in difficulty. Today, the whole of Africa looks upon him as the only person who can lead Kenya. We would like to appeal to the President to be very, very careful about the people who claim to be his supporters. This does not mean that the whole of the personality cult group are fighting a campaign for power.

[Mr. Ngala-Aboki]

I am sure that the people who elected me do support me. But if people think that I am doing the wrong thing or that I am trying to overthrow the Government, by voting against the Government, then they are wrong, because to vote against the Government is not the same as planning to overthrow the Government. Let us now collect and produce evidence before a court of law. Everybody is subject to arrest, whether a Minister or not. If I felt that somebody else, another Minister, was going to take over my Ministry, then the first thing that I would do would be to employ some one to investigate him and find out whether he was innocent or guilty. We must base things on the Government machinery. We cannot have Members using propaganda just purely for the sake of achieving leadership through rumours. We cannot live on propaganda and on underground planning, so that we make life poor.

Moreover, we are very used to these calculated machinations. Somebody is again encouraging two parties. These were formed on the basis of divide and rule tactics, so when Kadu was dissolved, I did not know that there was another move to form another party, but if any other party were formed, it means that joining a party allows me to speak without minding anybody. If anybody wants to form another party, and if anybody wants to make use of this to overthrow the Government of Mr. Kenyatta, in the disguise of support for Mr. Kenyatta, he is as clever as those people think, and therefore he will not allow himself to be fooled by people who want to take over the leadership. This is what I would like to impress on the President: to keep calm, to run the country as before, to elect a Minister or a Member of Parliament who is definitely a friend of his. Therefore, he should not be fooled by people who want to replace him. This is the job of any Ministry to stop all rumours.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may say a few things. I have one thing to say and that is about the question of the present cloud of fear that is hanging over the hon. Members of this House and the other House.

One thing is obvious, and I am talking with all sincerity, because I do not belong to any ideology; I do not belong to any ideology other than that of Kenya. I have no axe to grind, and I would like to take this opportunity, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to make it known that all this present confusion in the country is due to the fact that we now have a one-party state, which, of course, I did oppose from the beginning, and it has gone down in history, and is on the record that Mr. Shikuku was the last person to cross the Floor. I did so because I foresaw all these things, but today I am glad that the Members are now feeling the pinch of what I know about. I took it this way, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that once you have closed all the windows of your house, then, it is obvious that you are going to suffocate. Well, they closed all the windows and they now find themselves in the smoke, and they are suffocating. May I now take this opportunity and tell them that the question of communism, the question of accusing each other of being capitalist or non-capitalist, etc., is because the hon. Members here have no moral obligations. They have no principles. They go by what they feel today, and then tomorrow they say a different thing. I just do not understand, Mr. Speaker, why elected, responsible, supposed-to-be-intelligent people, could come here and dwell on rumours, instead of trying to find out how people could be best fed in this country.

May I come to the most important thing? I do not believe in all this nonsense that has been said in this House; I call it nonsense, because there is nobody daring enough who has put up a case and produced any concrete evidence for the people of Kenya or the world, for that matter, apart from expressing the fears of something which probably does not even exist.

Mr. Speaker, when it comes to the question of communism, you find at the moment we have time and again heard of capitalism, imperialism, and communism. Where is this communism? If the people here, as has been stated, have some money from communist countries and are using this money to try and get some support in this country, why has the Government up to this very moment not acted, even arrested some people? Even some of the Government people have admitted that there is some money coming in from these various countries, and it is used for campaigning and trying to get support in the country. Why has not the Government been able to arrest these people and also stop the money from coming into the country? Most of the Members here, Mr. Speaker, want to drink, want to have a nice time, but the salary here I must admit, is very small indeed, and probably it is due to that fact, that some of the Members are being persecuted by some individuals and being fed by this dirty money from outside the country. I denounce, this most strongly, because I am a Kenyan and I believe in Kenya and not in any communist bloc. I have denounced the east and I have denounced the west, and I hope I am quite clear on that.

what we are doing and what we intend to do. They expect us to work for them but not to try, Mr. Speaker, to confuse the country. I am very surprised that the hon. Member who wanted to move this Motion went away. The two English journalists, immediately after the Minister for Information, on behalf of the Government, had denied that there were any arms being imported into this country, were deported; they were declared prohibited immigrants and were sent away. These two gentlemen were Mr. Richard Beeston and Mr. Douglas Brown. Now people should not pretend to know a lot of things and come to this House and tell us that arms are being imported into this country. Where is he now, the sponsor of this Motion? This is very bad, Mr. Speaker.

Kenya has what very many independent African states do not have. Kenya is a very rich country and we should not be in a held of a hurry. Most of the Members of this House have a bright future; they will always get whatever they want, if they are prepared to wait and accept the leadership of other senior leaders of this country.

Mr. Shikuku: Are you also a senior?

Mr. Obok: No, I mean there are some senior people: my hon. friend, the Member for Butere, is too junior, and he should accept that. It is rather bad that he is not toeing the party line, he is out of the way already. And there are few Members like him in this House who, in fact, one of these days, when they go back to their constituencies, will be told that they cannot come back to this House, because they will always follow anybody's ideas and that is not the way we should conduct ourselves in this House.

I think, Mr. Speaker, if we are really sincere, that we know that the life of this country is in the hands of Members of this House and we must be responsible and avoid bringing Motions to this House which will destroy the dignity of this House. Already the dignity of this House has been destroyed when an hon. Member of this House was assassinated.

With these few remarks, I oppose this Motion.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office (Dr. Wajacki): Thank you, Mr. Speaker, for allowing me also to say a few words in this debate. I have a feeling that what was intended to come as a bombshell has, in fact, ricocheted and has hit the head of a man and, probably, a group, squarely; and I am absolutely certain that it has embarrassed the intention originally planned.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are not children in this country and I am glad that the people of this country, the masses, know what they are doing. There is a struggle for power within the Kenya African National Union, which is emerging in this debate very clearly. The facts of the case are that we have a one-party state.

The second fact is that our President is the Chairman of the Congo ad hoc Commission and, to that extent, we are exposed to international manoeuvres between the East and the West. This struggle is being reflected within this struggle in the party. Why do we not speak openly? As I said, do not come here and talk to us about communism and hope that we will swallow that story hook, line and sinker. We will not. I am myself not a communist. I have a definite dislike for communism I have indeed struggled. Long before even the Vice-President used to go to the communist countries, I was travelling in those same communist countries. I have struggled to look for communism even in the Soviet Union. I am not saying that they have achieved it. Who is it tell us that in Kenya we can achieve it in one day? It is a matter of definition. Who do you mean by communist? Do you mean an African nationalist is a communist? Is that what you mean? If that is the definition, then I am a communist. I am declaring today, Mr. Speaker, openly, that at one time I myself labelled a communist, because when the Mau Mau was fighting here, I absconded from Scotland, made a boat for a Russian ship and went and preached Mau Mau in the East. To that end, I was declared a communist.

In fact, today I am prepared to own up that I borrowed a British passport, which was originally given to me in Kenya, because I could not come back to Kenya without it or I would have been detained. It was very serious, but I was fighting as nationalist, not as a communist. Here, today we have seen exhibited the most sneaky and abhorrent method of struggle for power within our party. The hon. Minister for Economic Planning has said clearly here that he is working on a document which is circulating through different Ministries of this Government on African socialism, the practical implications of African socialism. This is what I want to get in, African socialism, this is what I have detected on. The Kanui Manifesto clearly says that we stand for African socialism. Now I smell a rat. Somebody does not want this socialism and because he does not want it, he says it is communism. Some people know the details of this. Why can they not come out in the open and say that what you are in fact deferring—many of you gentlemen—is the right to hold large tracts of [The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office] and why the majority of our people are poor? I oppose this idea.

Mr. Speaker, we are going to abide by the wishes of our people, we are going to abide by the philosophy of African socialism. We do not want any intelligent man to use us in order to remind us of such and such in the annual delegates' conference. We know that there is some clever person who has gone and amassed together people of different opinions in one group to fight another so-called communist group. Mr. Speaker, when there is a struggle for power, a clever man, or two or three, have combined and they have tried to involve most of the Members here. The people of Kenya demand that they should have this explained: African socialism only, we do not want to be pushed there.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Motion.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to join with my colleagues who have expressed their views on this unfortunate Motion which came to this House this morning.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, I rise to seek your guidance because we normally end a Motion on adjournment at 12.30 and would you like to tell the House at what time we are finishing?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. The ordinary time for interruption of business is 12.30, but when we have a Motion for the House to be adjourned to some other day than the next normal sitting day, then either we have to let that Motion run the full length of time allowed, which is an hour and a half, which takes us to 1 o'clock, or we have to sit another day to finish it off. I have a certain discretion, according to Standing Orders, to modify the time for closing business in accord with the convenience of Members, so on these occasions, when we get the Motion of Adjournment at roundabout 11.30, then, if necessary, the debate continues till about 1 o'clock.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, I also would like to say that I am one of the men alleged to be a hard-core communist, and even recently, you might have come across a circular, which I think has been received by the Press, the public and Members of this House, and which specifically mentions Oduya and Anyieni as hard-core communists and that they must be crushed. Although it is a paper which has come from an unknown source, it is very clear that it is planned by a group of certain Members in the House and probably outside the House. Now, if this kind of thing continues, then I am afraid that one of these days we may not only mislead the people, but also we may allow the foreign powers to come and play here and turn Kenya into an ideological playground, it is very, very dangerous. So I think I agree with the last speaker in saying that this rumour, or circular, which has been going around, and also other unfounded rumours and branding other people and calling them communists is only based one thing: the general election in the national headquarters of the national party which is forthcoming. Some clever chaps have decided to play a game in a very clever manner on other Members who are probably not well informed of the communist stand, right from the time it was formed. If you came when it was formed, it was known in the national party as member-head elections, because of the confusion which has been there, and of some people's struggle for power. Today, they have taken advantage of the one-party system here and are trying to confuse the Members who came here to represent the interests of their people in this House. They have been engaged to fight a war or to fight an item which is not in existence. Somebody clever enough is trying to mislead the masses and the Members that there is something in Kenya, so that we will forget all our deliberations. We will start thinking, where is that communism? The man in the countryside will forget to work on his shamba, he will forget to work in the office, but will think, "Oh, communism is going to ruin this country." Now through the back door, that very clever man again goes and conspires with certain delegates. As we know, there is on a certain international stand today, there are groups who, even now, control the economy of Kenya. As we know, they are planning now to mislead us, make us believe that there is communism somewhere by branding certain Members of this House, and then accusing them in public, so that the public will declare war against communism. Then they, on the other side, will come through the door and overrun the Government.

So, the Minister for Internal Security and Defence has made it quite clear that in his Ministry, his experts, let us say the Special Branch and the Criminal Investigation Department, have nothing in the records showing that there is the smuggling of arms into this country. Now, if we trust that we have a Government which is popular, then we trust the Minister, and I do not think that there is anything we have to doubt about as far as the security of this country is concerned. If we could just know that the rumour which is now going around is only intended to divide the country into several pieces so that somebody clever enough will get away

[The Minister for Internal Security and Defence]—must be very strict and I have issued orders to the police to be very, very strict from now onwards and to arrest those people and get their names, so they can be dealt with if any one of them is found with any arms on them—any person whether a Member of this House or outside this House. So hon. Members I hope will excuse me if one of these days they are arrested because they are in possession of arms.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is the end of your time.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungali): It will be at your request, and I shall be obliged if you support this.

Mr. Kagga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is very unfortunate that we had to discuss this question before the Motion was moved. When the Notice of this Motion was given, the Sessional Committee thought that it was a very important Motion and also a very serious one. We thought that we must give the House and the Government a chance to remove the fears and suspicions and confusion which might have been caused by this Motion. But, unfortunately, the Mover of this Motion deliberately absented himself.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is a high time that this House made a ruling on cases like this, because this is not the first time that a Motion of certain gravity has been given notice in this House only to be withdrawn when the Mover absented himself. If I may recall, Mr. Speaker, there was another Motion which was moved on the famous Kisumu meeting, and the Sessional Committee gave it a priority because we thought that this kind of Motion was drawing us into the cold war, which we must fight against. So we thought that this thing must be discussed. When we came here, the Mover ran away. This is the second time we have had a Motion of great seriousness withdrawn because of the Mover absenting himself. It was moved yesterday and it could have been debated yesterday if the Speaker had agreed to this. Then we find this morning that the Mover has stayed away.

Mr. Speaker, it is very important, or it was very important for the Mover to give evidence to the Government, because it says very clearly in his Motion that he has evidence. Anyone would have thought that the first thing the Mover would have done, would be to give this evidence to the Minister at once so that he could take steps to stop this or arrest those who were responsible for this smuggling. All the same, even if he did not give this information to the Minister, the Motion in this House would have given the Minister the chance to tell the House and the country the truth, and also the Government could have given the Ministry and the Government the evidence which might help the Government to arrest these people.

Now, it has become the habit of this House to bring Motions every now and then dealing with the ideological struggle. Kenya has been very fortunate in the past not to have been dragged into this kind of struggle. But there is a tendency of this now coming about in the House. I think it is important, whenever a Member of this House, a responsible Member of this House, gives notice of a Motion, he must be there to stand by it and to give evidence and defend it. We should not allow this House to be used as a platform for propaganda. One comes in, gives a notice of a Motion, to get headlines in the newspaper and yet he is not prepared to come and stand here and give evidence.

Mr. Speaker, I was glad that one of the Ministers was about to give evidence, as the speaker says, and it seems that he had some evidence, but he did not give enough evidence. Therefore, it is very important that we have this debated so that we have this evidence. It is also very important to know exactly what Members of this House mean when they refer to communists. There was a story among Europeans; they used to call to all communists, those who were fighting for the wishes of the people. I used to be termed one of them, our President used to be called one of them, our President used to be called one. We want to know, and this is why we want this evidence, to see who these communists are in this country. If it means those who are fighting for the wishes of the people, then I would like to be told.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, I am glad that the Minister has made this statement saying that he is not aware of it, but this is not enough. We would like to see that this House gives a ruling that if it is necessary, we should move this Member here. We should have the evidence and see that our Government acts upon the evidence.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to start what I am going to say by saying that the thing which worries people in this House is that we have already achieved our independence, but the thing I have found which worries this House is power because, if we are adopting the African way of socialism, we should not be fighting here for outside ideologies.

I would draw the attention of this House, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to the fact that, whenever we go out of this country as delegates, you find that it

[Mr. Kamau] every country we go to, the delegates return with an Asian hat, with a European hat, with a Russian hat. Now the fact remains, Sir, that every hat, every uniform, which is brought here from outside, represents an ideology which is associated with the country it came from.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I dare say—

Mr. Anyieni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when the hon. Member was mentioning his hat, the hon. Member behind me did touch my hat. I want to inform hon. Members that I got my hat in Nairobi, near here and any Member who wants to buy a hat like this can go and buy it there.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no point of order.

Mr. Kamau: I would appeal to anybody in the House, if they are not fighting for unnecessary power, that they should come forward with traditional hats and wear them in this House, not hats which come from outside Kenya.

Mr. Malsori-Jumbo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, can the hon. Member substantiate or tell the House which type of national hat he would wish to be used instead of the ones that we have?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am getting rather tired of these false points of order. We are getting too many again.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I appeal to the real Africans to follow the African way of life, to come forward and give leadership in the country and in the House. In the Kikuyu country, as they had in the past, they have got customs and traditions amongst the people and hon. Members who come here to represent the nation should follow them, because what I have found, Mr. Speaker, in the House, is that what we should have is a real African ideology to which one may hold. I believe that this country can have such an ideology of its own without following any outside ideology, and I think if we are to come forward today united and find out and agree on a principle, that we are adopting the African socialist way of life, there should not be any conflict. This conflict comes because, if, for example, we go about with foreign aid money which I use as my own to be used. These are the allegations which are being made.

I urgently request the Government, from today, that we must stop all these conflicts from outside. If we fight for the freedom of this country, to enjoy the fruits of independence, as an African State, we should, from today, not have these conflicts. We get these people who think, "Today, I am not somebody, but tomorrow I will be somebody." But if we represent the interests of the real Africans in this country, there would be no conflict of ideology.

Therefore, I appeal to the Members of this House to believe and to trust our way of life. And as long as we have a stable Government, we should not try to adopt anything new from outside. I will end with these words, Mr. Speaker, Sir. Today, if you go round the country, you will hear that so-and-so has got enough money to buy so many Members. Now I am not directing these allegations at anybody. But if a Member knows he was elected by his own people, without bribing them, why should any Member of this House be bribed by another Member, to be put in his pocket? I stand to oppose anybody who agrees to be bought in order to be put in someone's pocket.

Therefore, my conclusion is that we must be proud of our country and not import any new ideology from any outside country which wants to impose on people among us. Let us say that we have got enough people for this country, but we do not want somebody else here.

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to waste the time of the hon. Members as to speak on this Motion. But I wonder, Mr. Speaker, whether we are really sincere when we talk in this House. We should ask ourselves, we, the young men, Members of this House, because if we play around with the leadership of this country, we will find ourselves in a lot of difficulty. Mr. Speaker, rumours in a democracy are dangerous. A Member of this House was recently murdered and that was a serious matter and a thing like this, a Motion saying that arms are being imported into this country, this is not only going to destroy this country and the confidence that has been assured after a lot of work has been done, but it will do other things. What I would like to warn the House of, Mr. Speaker, is that it was only Sunday Telegraph, said exactly the same thing, the same words of the Motion, notice of which was given yesterday in this House. The sponsor of this Motion, Mr. Speaker, listed the very wording of that notorious newspaper, which is anti-Kenya and which is bent on sabotaging the work of this independent Government. This is the sort of thing that we should try not to let destroy us, not let it be used by other people for no reason at all.

This is one thing which I think, if we are really sincere in this House, we must think about. The citizens of this country are trying to find out

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. O'Leende): What I am trying to point out is that the recent happenings have made some Members very insecure and therefore I would like this House take notice of the fact that there are too many people carrying offensive weapons and the Government should examine whether those weapons are licensed or otherwise.

Rumour outside has it that some of the arms in this country are not bought directly from the shops. I cannot prove that, but this Motion reminded me of the fact that there may be something happening, not because the Government is unaware, because the Minister will come and tells us, but what I would like to say is that this country is a democracy where we are free to go about, freely expressing our views, whether they differ from others or not, and nobody should be frightened that he will be shot dead at the next corner. Therefore, I urge today that we should not discuss this Motion, whether the Mover ran away or not, but the Government should take steps from today to collect all arms that are illegally possessed, and put heavy sentences on those people who carry arms.

Mr. Agar: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, for giving me this chance.

I think this House, as my colleague, the hon. Mr. Alexander said, must be given proper information by the Government which is well informed about these things. A Motion came up for debate in this House this morning, a very serious Motion, which should have gone on into next week. We wanted to know the facts; we wanted to know where the fears come from, what evidence these fellows have, but this seems to have been something fishy going on and this matter has been suppressed. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if it was suppressed by those who initiated it, because probably they had no evidence, but just at the outset somebody thought he was going to embarrass somebody, it is very wrong. On the other hand, if those who know something or who might be connected with things like this are the ones who might have intimidated the Mover, it is also very tragic for this country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the background of foreign alliances with us in this country dates from colonial days. The countries in the west and in the east were interested for their own reasons in helping us fight against British colonialism. They supplied us with scholarships to train our people. At that time, there was no question of anybody going through Government channels to educate himself overseas. Therefore, the nationalists were free to smuggle people to America, to Russia and to India, anywhere. After they have come back, we would not like to hear of Government discriminating against those who come from any foreign country, simply because they were formerly sent by nationalists, because those are nationalists are now in the Government. On the question of foreign money, Mr. Speaker, there is one stand I will always take. It was all right for us to take money from a foreign country and use it to organize our political front, our national front, to overthrow the British. But, Mr. Speaker, as soon as we obtained our Uluru, if we want this country to stand neutral and secure, the Government must take a clear stand. The Cabinet must collectively take a clear stand as to how much foreigners are going to interfere with our Ministers and with our Members of Parliament.

Mr. Speaker, it is quite a different thing to tip ourselves with foreign elements interfering in our affairs and activities and relating to us. It is another thing to discuss and allow ourselves with foreigners to assist us as friends. I was all for people coming from the east and the west to help us as friends, and I request all our Ministers in the Cabinet to channel all our aid from foreign countries particularly from Government sources, to come through our President, to come through the Cabinet, through the Government; individual assistance must stop.

To finish, Mr. Speaker, I quote Abraham Lincoln: quoting from the New Testament, "A house divided against itself cannot stand". This country is suffering from special tensions at the moment. Nobody can ignore them. The Minister for Defence must take steps to see that the fears of the people in this House and outside are cleared. We must make sure that this country belongs to the Africans and not to foreigners. We do not want another Vietnam here; we do not want another Korea here; we do not want another Congo here. So long as the foreign powers interfere with us, whether they come from east or west, Mr. Speaker, this country may be driven to untold conflict and we may have perpetual tension which may divide this country into pieces in future.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungali): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was up here before when I was speaking on the Motion to assure the people of the country that we have a large police force, intelligence department, Criminal Investigation Department, who are working day and night, and we are quite aware of the dangers that could come in from smuggling of arms. I feel, Sir, that some people did not get the point. I did not want to stand up and say "yes" and "no" before we had the evidence, I did not want

[The Minister for Internal Security and Defence] to kill the Motion notice of which had been given notice in this House; I wanted this Motion to be noted, so that I would have full time to reply. But I do feel, because this will cause a lot of error, whether this Motion is coming later or not, that I still have to go on and say little more.

Mr. Speaker, I was giving the Mover a chance, and everybody else who knows something about it, to speak about it before I talked. I felt it was my duty, at the time, to assure people that they were well protected. Our Special Branch, intelligence department, and the Criminal Investigation Department are for ever on the look-out, particularly for the smuggling of arms which is a danger to any country, be it Kenya or any other country coming through other places even when they are coming through lorries at night to try to smuggle them. We have had some little smuggling of arms from a certain country and that is why we have the Shifita movement and we are fighting them, because Kenya's Government has not given the Shifita ammunition to fight against our people. We therefore cannot stand up here and say that there is no smuggling of arms, because we know those Shifita got them from somewhere and they were not supplied legally by the Kenya Government. This has been told to this House before, and it has been discussed, and you know the Kenya Government has taken action on it and we are taking action about it because we are fighting against them, and we are winning.

On the other hand, there may be some people who think there are large arms which are being smuggled into this country. The intelligence services which we employ are working day and night. I would like to assure this House that as of today our intelligence department, the Criminal Investigation Department and others, do not have anything to show that this is going on. If it was, do you think that the Government would just fold its hands and go to sleep when something like that was going on? It would take action, as I said here before, not only the army, as one of my colleagues said, because I said the army may even go to rest and the Kenya women will handle them. So I included the largest part of the people, because I know the people of this country have confidence in the President of this country and the Government of this country, and if they are called upon to go into action, they will do so immediately.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are not the judges, we are just deal with them and then we hand them over to the people who are going to finally finish them off. If we are called upon to finish them, we shall do the job. Although I have mentioned this before, we bring in cargoes of arms; naturally we have to equip our army so that it is well equipped with modern weapons, and we have to keep on buying new weapons because we do not make any arms in Kenya, we have to buy them. They may come from any place, and as I said before, I am quite willing to negotiate with the Russians, with the Czechoslovaks, with the Americans, with the British, for the best weapons for Kenya, for the Kenya Army and police. Whenever they come, it is the practice of the Government not to advertise the fact and let everybody know what our army has.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it will be stupid to do so, and our Army is going to continue importing goods, modern weapons, so that they can handle anything which may come up, and I do not feel that I have to advertise this to anybody and tell them the items which we are importing for our police and army. This is confidential information which I cannot give to anybody and it is not necessary that I tell them where we get our weapons and ammunition from, so long as I can assure this House that the army and police are well equipped. I feel that this is our duty, and also to protect this nation.

Finally, we have the East African Customs. I do not say that there have not been some individuals who have tried to bring in some pistols at some time; sometimes they are searched for and found. Sometimes people have been found and they have some weapons, pistols hidden, and they do have some weapons, pistols and the East African are always taken and left. As I do not say Customs. This is always done, but I do not say that it is not possible that an individual could have slipped in one weapon; I cannot always be sure because there is always human error and the East African Customs may have made an error sometime. I am staying on this subject, Sir, because I do not want to be misunderstood, I still would like, if there is any evidence, as indeed there may be. There may be some smuggling of arms which somebody has come to know about, and which maybe this Government does not know about. We would appreciate it if we could be told about this so that we can take action immediately. As I say, we are on the lookout and we are going to continue to be on the lookout.

Finally, I would like to say that we should not be drawn into this could war by those people who make this ammunition. We have to be on our guard. We do not want just to get loads of ammunition over here so that finally we find we are fighting against Uganda, Tanzania or fighting amongst ourselves. Therefore, the control of arms—as one of my colleagues said over here

[Mr. Alexander] believe the Government owe it to this country, before we leave this Chamber within the next half-hour, to tell us here and to tell the country whether they have got any evidence whatsoever. And if they have, Mr. Speaker, what they are doing about it.

We cannot leave this debate today with this cloud over this Chamber and over this country for the next weeks. It will do us internally and externally so much damage that we may never be able to repair it.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to speak on something which I consider to be of grave concern to the people of Kenya, especially when it arises from a very responsible House and from a very responsible hon. Members of Parliament. Mr. Speaker, I am not a capitalist thinker but I am a man of practical ways and I have seen in this House, very deplorably, that the situation here needs some correction. We have a camp of very irresponsible people, all trying to advocate different political ideologies or systems, from the way I have heard them speak. But when the House adjourns, Mr. Speaker, I go as a state parliamentarian, I go back to my constituency as a bewildered politician, unable to face the challenge of my constituents when they ask me where the Parliament is going to—

An hon. Member: Tell them it is going to the dogs.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): And what shall I say? Where is the Parliament going to? What the people of Kenya will ask is, what is communism, what is Americanism, what is capitalism, what is nepotism, and all sorts of questions. These questions are going to be created in the minds of the people of Kenya who love this country; and we will be creating this in their way of thinking.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the "ism" must be ours, not anything from outside, not even from Russia, America, England or China. We must build our own "ism". People have stood up and said, "Let us bring in the yellow men." "Let us bring in the Americans and the British." Personally, I have no quarrel with these people. Why should I? Because I am the one who is going to decide what sort of suit I am going to wear, I have to decide what sort of suit I am going to wear. But if the Members of Parliament are going to have other people decide on what sort of ties they are going to buy, we are going to have confusion in this country. And we are the people who are responsible for guiding the people outside this House; we are responsible for prosperity, progress, but not confusion, in an honourable House like this.

When people are thinking outside or asking in to go back to tell them what we have done, and say that the public money has been wasted, in our coming here and having a new "Magis". When I say this word, "Magis" I do not have how to pronounce it—but it is the Parliament in Persia where people in 1941 or 1951 used to beat each other and they had to think in the way of who was the stronger, not thinking what is best for the people, but thinking that so long as I can shout, so long as I have a slogan to hurl at the other person, the other hon. Member here, then I am the victor. But the masses outside are the people I am worried about.

We have a united Cabinet, but we have a divided Parliament, and we have the people of Kenya, outside the walls of this Chamber. They are waiting to see prosperity. This is serious, Sir, and if I were to cry, if my days of crying were not finished during my days of exile in the struggle to emancipate this country, I would cry for the sons and daughters of our country outside, when I see a responsible crowd of hon. Members throwing mud at each other when we should be sitting down to decide our own set of clothes. Let these "isms" be ours, I am not prepared to get an "ism" from Washington, London, Moscow, Peking or anywhere, even from underground. The suit must be of our own making. The "ism" must be a Kenya "ism".

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourist (Mr. Achieng-Otienko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, time is limited but I would like to say a few words which are going to be a sort of appeal to the hon. Members of this House. Mr. Speaker, we are fighting a force which is invisible, a force which we cannot touch; and we are trying to stage a war even though we do not know how or where it was started. Why, Mr. Speaker? Here in this House there was a Motion this morning about illegal arms coming into the country. The Mover unfortunately was not here. He absented himself. Now hon. Members of this House stand and say that they can give evidence of such activities.

When we try to get closer to ask for evidence, it seems that these people appear to be alibip.

Mr. Speaker, I think we have already become a victim of something that we do not see and this is very serious. Even though I am on the Front Bench of the Government, I think I should speak for my people and this country. I love this country, because I have struggled for it; I spent part of my youth in detention, only to find that I am now fighting against my own brother, who has become the victim of another man from outside who is bringing in, in a very clever way, a means of dividing the country.

People speak of socialism and communism, etc., and yet no one in this country can stand up and define these words. There is only one call which we do understand and that is capitalism; it is something which we have inherited and we are trying to bring it into its proper perspective so that it may be made suitable for use by African people.

There is only one point on which I might feel inclined to speak against my Government. From my point of view, I feel that the Ministry of Economic Planning and Development, came into existence a little too late. Had it come into existence a little earlier, we might have been better able to define our African socialism and we would have been in a much better situation. Now we, Members of Parliament, are being overwhelmed by our own personal interests and when personal interest predominate in any society, a man has got to come out in defence of himself and not in the interest of others.

I would have liked, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to have seen the Mover here today, because there should be somebody in the House who could stand up and say "I have seen a ship coming to this country" or "I have information with regard to this matter".

I remember the President of Kenya telling me the other day that some one had come to his house and told him that such and such a person had brought loads and loads of illegal arms into the country. The President asked him "Where do you think he is hiding them?" The person replied "They are right inside the forest somewhere." Then, the President asked this particular person if he could go there to see these arms and the person replied: "No, because they are so well guarded that you will not be able to reach the place." Now, you can see from this small example that this is just a well planned rumour circulated in order to disrupt the Government.

I am very sorry that Mr. Malinda is not here, but I hope the Minister for Defence will be able to clarify this situation, but he must be careful to get information from the man who alleges that he has evidence. We have said that we have an army, but it is not a matter of having an army there, we must have the confidence of our people or we shall never be self-sufficient. Thank you.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I see that the argument has taken quite a different turn. I was speaking in terms of a particular subject, but I was cut short and another subject was introduced.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Otieno, any hon. Member can move at any time, as a point of order, the adjournment of the House. That is what Mr. Odings did, and it did interrupt anything else that was going on. But having come on to that new Motion, that the House do now adjourn until the 20th April, you are allowed to speak again and you may speak now; if you like.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): Because I wanted to develop something then; now I have not much time.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, you have five minutes.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): I was saying whether the Members are arguing that people are not confident or not, the point is this: that, at present, in Kenya, we have got a lot of rumours going around. Not only that, but I am appalled at the fact that we have become a people who go about with revolvers and pistols in our pockets, even in our own Parliament.

Mr. Odinyi: On a point of order, I would like the Minister to substantiate to the House that some Members do come in with pistols in their pockets, because it was only recently that the Speaker made it quite clear that no Member was to come into the Chamber with arms. All arms were to be left outside. Now, could the Minister substantiate his statement that some Members come into the Chamber with arms?

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thought I was helping hon. Members, but if their substantiation on that statement, I think I shall have to withdraw it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If you know of any hon. Member, or if it comes to your notice that there are any hon. Members who are carrying fire-arms anywhere in this building, the Sergeant-at-Arms must be informed.

Mr. Oboki: I think it was in this House some time last year that I saw a Minister with a pistol and I informed you and you gave a warning the following afternoon with regard to the carrying of fire-arms inside the building.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would not like it to be suggested that Ministers are not Members of Parliament!

[The Minister for Labour and Social Services] Member, that we will be hanged. He actually told me that we will all be hanged. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was not alone.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I shall give hon. Members one more warning. Any more disorder, and I shall suspend the sittings of this House and we will have to sit another day to move the adjournment of it. No more warnings.

Will you continue, Mr. Mwendwa?

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Speaker, I was told actually that we will be hanged and that in this country there is going to be the biggest riot ever seen anywhere. My answer was, when the hon. Member said they were going to hang us, where will I be? I will be able to fight. That is what I replied. What have I got to apologize for?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! This is a most unfortunate argument, but you had better continue and explain, Mr. Oduya.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister has alleged that I told him that all the Ministers were going to be hanged, that I personally said that. He said I told him that all the Ministers of the Government were going to be hanged. Now could he produce the Members he alleged, because I remember I only sat with the Minister one evening, not at a table, on an occasion when we had got several Members with us; I think I remember Mr. Muliro, the Member for Trans Nzoia. He was also there. And when we were discussing things generally, just joking, and the Minister, who has been my friend for a long time, now says this. But I did not tell him anything about the policy that we believed in the platform which involved hanging the Government—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! No, Mr. Oduya. Sit down. It is apparent to me, being familiar with the hon. Members concerned, that what started as a joke has been taken seriously both ways. But I do warn hon. Members to be a little more careful about their jokes when there is such tension as we have today.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Koethe): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I thought this was a Motion for half an hour only and that the Ministry was quite keen to have this matter thrashed out thoroughly. Is it not time now that we move to the next Order so that this is brought another day when we can deal with it thoroughly?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, a Motion for adjournment of this kind continues until it is withdrawn, or until it is properly superseded by some other business. It could be superseded by a substantive Motion, raised on a point of order, that the House do now adjourn until another date. But it continues until that time.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

ADJOURNMENT OF THE HOUSE: TO A DAY OTHER THAN THE NEXT NORMAL SITTING DAY.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odings): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that this House do now adjourn until Tuesday, 20th April 1965.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Koethe) seconded.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will explain. That can be moved as a point of order, and I have to deal with it when it is so moved.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odongo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to support this Motion, and, at the same time, I would like to say a few words with regard to our work in the Kenya Government and in this Parliament.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that we have always said that in Kenya we are non-aligned and that in the world we are not taking the East way or the West way; and that we are going to remain African and we are going to adopt what is practical for us.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very important ideology and I do believe that when a Minister was talking about this a while ago—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Would hon. Members please leave the Chamber more quietly.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odongo): When one of the Minister was talking about an ideology that he had, during the time that he was fighting British colonialism, I do trust that he was fighting British colonialism, I do trust that this was the ideology, that this should be an African country and that we should endeavour to solve our problems and endeavour to live with our fellow human beings as equals and as people of Africa. If this is the case, Mr. Speaker, I think we have reached a point in Kenya where we need to re-examine ourselves and find out where we are going. I am saying this. Mr. Speaker, because, recently, people have taken to using slogans, labels and all that. People are called Communists, people are called British stooges, people are called American stooges and also Chinese stooges and what not.

[The Assistant Minister for Finance]

Now, Sir, it is important, because those whom we call American stooges or those we call Communists are all Kenya citizens and we are all Africans and are all interested in the interests of the people of this country and the Government of this country. Now a house which is divided against itself cannot be expected to stand, and I think it is very important that we, as the leaders of this country, elected by the people of this country, to lead them out of colonialism and to lead them to a better world and a better country, need to take this very seriously. We need to find out just what a Communist is and just what an American stooge is and just what is wrong in the Government and in this country.

Now this word "communism" is not new to us. Long ago our President was one of the chief Communists and was somebody who was very evil, so we were told, and somebody we should not follow. We were told this several years back. The thing is that some of us believed it, and some of us did not believe it.

Now, it seems that those of us who did not believe it—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I seek your guidance on this. I was wondering whether we have discontinued the original Motion on the adjournment and whether the hon. Vice-President has moved another Motion on the adjournment which has nothing to do with the matter we have been discussing.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! It is quite reasonable for Mr. Shikuku to raise this question, but on a substantive Motion for the adjournment of the House, hon. Members are free to discuss about anything, either on the grounds of not supporting because it has to be considered, or as food for consideration or action by Government, before the House sits again. We do not allow references in the way to a debate which has been concluded; but a Motion for the adjournment of the House, raising a matter for debate without a vote, does not conclude the matter, as there is no vote taken. So hon. Members are entitled, in the course of this debate on the adjournment of the House, to refer to the same sort of matter as was raised by the other Motion for adjournment under Standing Order 14, which has now been superseded.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odongo): Thank you, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

To go on, I think it is very important that we take quite clear in our minds and we know what we are talking about. If the people who are being labelled as communists now are being labelled that in the same sense as our President was called a communist, then we need to know that. But if the people who have been called communists are communists and have a Communist Party in Kenya, with an office, and are having an organization, in the way any organization can be formed and people can belong to it, if there is such an association in Kenya, then we should also know. If it is being used as in the colonial days, in that anyone who fought for the Africans and who fought for democracy and who fought for the progress of African progress and economic progress was labelled a communist, if that is the way, then we should also know about it. If that is the way, then we will also examine the position of, say, the American stooge or the British stooge.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that I am for the African line and the African ideology.

I think, in conclusion, I would like to say that the people who come up with this idea of persons belonging to one group and others belonging to another group need to make some explanation and do away with this injustice to this country. We have already resolved, since the time of independence, to have African socialism. This is going to be given to us by the Government and I do not see why people do not wait and see what the Government has done and follow that—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid your time is up.

Mr. Alexander: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the paper we have received about our schedule for the rest of the year shows we will not meet again, as a result of this Motion, until 20th April, roughly three weeks from now. We depart from this Chamber today with a very serious cloud over our heads. There has been a Motion tabled which says there is evidence of arms coming into this country. We had the Minister for Health interrupted in the middle of what he was going to say, and he seemed to be on the point of giving some evidence. We heard the Member for Kilifi say that if only that Motion had been debated, we would have had some evidence. We had the Minister for Security—and it is most unfortunate that he seems to have left the Chamber—telling us what an excellent Army, Police Force and General Service Unit we have. I am sure we are encouraged by this and we entirely agree, but what we have not got from the Government is whether they have got any evidence. The Government have got all the tools, all the instruments, to detect this sort of horrible crime; they have the C.I.D. and they have the Special Branch. I

[The Minister for Internal Security and Defence] calling on the army at all, because the general population of this nation is behind the President and the Government and the Members of this House. Even if we did not call upon the men to deal with those people who are dreaming of a revolution, the men and the army can stand behind the women of Kenya who deal with those revolutionaries.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not in order for me to demand that the Minister for Defence states whether there is evidence, as far as his Ministry is concerned, of arms being smuggled, because the Ministry has only assured us that he will defend the country and he has not stated whether he has any evidence of these arms being smuggled—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can ask these things, Mr. Ngala-Abok, but not as a point of order.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, first of all I would like to say that this Motion is very important and serious and it is very unfortunate that the Mover has not been here to move it, because he would have given the evidence.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, some of the Members who are very noisy in this House, when we were fighting for our independence, were eating potatoes with their mothers somewhere. We feel strongly that we have just finished fighting against imperialism, but we are bound to finish it, but there are some other who shout very loudly and yet they want another from of imperialism in the form of communism to come into this country—

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member has alleged that there are some young men who were in their mother's womb at that time. He has said that some of these are planning to introduce Governments of different types. Would the Member say which Members are trying to do this.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I do not think the hon. Member said any Member was doing this particular thing. If we go on these points of order, we shall never get any value out of this debate. Will hon. Members please preserve a little order.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we can never put this country in order if Members are not going to be patient enough to hear the views of other Members when we are patient and listen to views. For this matter I would like to say that the Government, the Minister responsible, the Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism, have the duty of telling us what is going on. Fortunately, the statement that was made by the Minister gave every assurance that anybody who is trying to smuggle, or anybody who is trying to upset our Government, the Minister would deal with him, and we would be behind the Minister.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to put one document here, if I may, which shows that our country is in danger of invasion by people of this kind of thinking. Mr. Speaker, Sir, here is a book which was written by somebody from the East.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Acheng-Oneko): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, he is referring to this document with all the matters in, and I would just like to know from the hon. Member what source he got it and where it was written!

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Of course he has not stated the nature of the document, but not the source from where it came.

Mr. Ngala: I was just doing that if the Minister wants to see where it is written and where it comes from, then I can give it to him, but as Minister for Information, he should know and be able to tell us where it comes from.

Mr. Speaker, on page 27 of this paper, I say that the revolution will spread in Kenya and Uganda, nationalists and reactionaries such as Mr. Nyerere, Mr. Kenyatta and Mr. Obote will try to talk out of both sides of their mouths at the same time, and they will suffer the same fate as the former Sultan of Zanzibar did, when his Government fell and he was banished. This is why, Mr. Speaker Sir, I feel that it is very unfortunate that the Mover was not here, because then I would have given clear evidence that this country is in danger, and I would like to warn the Government that this is no time to sleep, it is no time to be carelessly confident. We have to be very, very ruthless about this matter, because we have fought for the independence of this country by death and sweat, and therefore anyone who wants to use it in this manner, then I thoroughly disagree with him.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this document is addressed to the militant people of Africa. Who are these militant people of Africa? These militant people of Africa are the people who are smuggling these things, and they are wanted to give evidence. Mr. Speaker, Sir, even the policy of socialism is condemned by these militants. Our Government stands for African socialism. In this document I quote, Mr. Speaker, Sir, these people should wait while I speak.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Oboto): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to seek your guidance. There could be several sources of papers, one could get a paper from South Africa, start reading it and say how the white, black and so forth—. It seems to me to be a bit out of order, that the last speaker should dwell on this document which we do not know, and whose writer—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Hon. Members are entitled to refer to any document, if they will say what it is and where they obtained it from. Mr. Ngala has not yet said where he obtained it from, but he has said what it is.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on page 6 of this document, it states "the time has arrived to condemn African socialism and to expose its full import. All African political activities should be aware of the statements made by the two Marxists of Africa. It goes on to say that "what we want is scientific socialism not African socialism". Mr. Speaker, Sir, these people purport to belong to us and they want scientific socialism and not African socialism!

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! I think the House wants to get on with discussing this matter, but if they cannot keep order, then I shall have to resort to the extreme measure of suspending the sitting. You do not want that.

Mr. Makokha: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the speaker says that he would have given evidence that arms were being brought into this country, is there any way in which we could ask him to go and tell the Minister for Internal Security and Defence?

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, some hon. Members have said that they have asked me about African socialism. The Minister responsible has been on the ground for one or two weeks, he will give us a policy which is adopted on the East of our own Kenya policy and our own Kenya socialism. We shall be satisfied with this policy and the majority of this House will support the Government on this paper.

As I say that I would like to end, by stating that it is very unfortunate we cannot debate this Motion today; the evidence is all here and we would have given it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order!

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Oduya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand here because of two reasons.

One of the reasons is that I happen to be one of the very first people who started the first political union in Kenya, and for 20 years I have had an ideology, and when I hear that someone else is raising his ideology, I am out on the warpath. We did not fight the British Government, and we did not send away the Europeans, so that the yellow men could take over our country. They may not come in a straightforward manner, of gun-boat policy, like the British used to do, own a few houses down and then declare the country taken. They have a more sinister manner in which they come; they influence the minds of the people, and therefore, although the Mover of this Motion is not here, I thank him because he has pointed to a danger which is now in this country, which we want to save today. We do not want to hear outside this Parliament that this Government can be given only six months and—

Mr. Oduya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it in order when the Minister for Health and Housing is speaking, that the Minister for Labour—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Five times, during the last fortnight, I have said that hon. Members' points of orders will be heard in silence, and the answers in silence. If there is any further disorder in disregard of that direction, then the Member responsible will be sent out.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it in order when the Minister for Health and Housing is speaking for the Minister for Labour and Social Services to point to other Members, and especially point at me when the Minister referred to the question of the Government being given six months? He pointed at me, as if to say that I was the one. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it in order and could the Minister be called upon to substantiate that I have said at any public rally that the Government is being given under six months notice, because it seems that when we speak on this issue, some Members are thinking, in their minds, that certain people are communists. Now this could be crushed, and made very clear, that the people should not think about. This is very serious, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The Minister is utterly out of order, and should apologize.

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not going to apologize to something which can substantiate. I can speak for myself. The other day—and I can swear that this is the truth—when I was having tea there, I was told by a Member, this great challenge and I think is a matter of concern for our Minister for Internal Security and Defence, because he should have known this in order that people could have been dealt with, without giving notice to this House, because if it is true that arms are coming into this country and since the fact has been made public these people have a good opportunity to hide these arms, and we will never get to know the truth.

Mr. Speaker, as you know, in the past, there have been many instances in which people have referred to certain Members as being communists. I do not know whether you were informed with regard to this matter, but some time ago several documents, which I might say were unsigned, were circulated saying that some of us were called big-mouthed communists. Now, this Mr. Speaker, is very dangerous for us because if it is true that certain Members can sit in a place and say that certain Members are communists, and they bring a Motion to this House to the effect that the communists are bringing arms into the country, then it is saying that a person like myself is aiding communists in the shipping of arms into the country and trying to overthrow the Government.

Mr. Speaker, you may not have been aware of certain rumours in overseas newspapers to the effect that some communists in this country are trying to ship arms into this country and they have made these statements in connexion with the Vice-President and a few Members of the Cabinet. We would like the Government to take a stand in order to stop any arms, if they are being brought into the country, or stop the spread of rumours which are introducing into this country discontent and fear. I must say that there are people in this House who have no confidence in the leadership of the President, so much so that they want to do something which will overthrow him.

With those few words, Mr. Speaker, I hope that the Government will take very strong action in this matter to see that these rumours are suppressed and investigate this situation on the whole and see that this House will not be used as a means of bringing Motions just for the sake of moving and then when the Mover does not wish to substantiate the allegations, he simply absents himself.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mulliro, you are seconding the Motion?

Mr. Mulliro: Yes, Sir.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this hon. Member who gave notice of this Motion in this House did a disservice to Kenya, because the very same hon.

Member was in this House and he came to this House to claim his Sh. 120 and then walked out—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mulliro, it was not to discuss the conduct of Mr. Malinda that I allowed this very special procedure for moving the adjournment of the House. It is to discuss what is alleged by Mr. Malinda's Notice of Motion, and we must wait to hear his explanation before judging his conduct, what we must now discuss is the substance of the allegation made by the Motion.

Mr. Mulliro: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

This is a very serious Motion which will have very serious repercussions throughout the country and today the House has been denied the right to hear the information and the evidence which led to the introduction of a Motion like this in this House. Sir, if hon. Members in this House are to safeguard the independence of our country, those who get information like that which led to the giving of notice of such Motion here should see the Government, they should see the Minister responsible in the Government and give that information. Why should these hon. Members go behind closed doors and discuss things in secret at night, and then come here to alarm the country, to create despondency, frustration, among the investors and people of this country? The Sir, is a very, very serious issue. If there was any way by which we could appoint a Committee of this House to investigate these allegations, we would be helping our country. We cannot accept this very irresponsible attitude from hon. Members who ought to know better, hon. Members who are in charge of the affairs of the Nation.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order, I say again that it is not for the purpose of criticising Mr. Malinda's notice of Motion, or his absence, that I have allowed a Motion for the adjournment of this House now. It is for the purpose of discussing the matter raised by that notice of Motion.

Mr. Mulliro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I terminate my speech by asking the Minister for Internal Security if he has any information to give to this House, in order to allay the fears which have been created by this irresponsible act.

(Question proposed)

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, I consider this to be a very serious issue and I think it would be very, very interesting for this country to know the sources of information and evidence from where this particular Member or group of persons, who have the knowledge that there are some arrangements from overseas for other places for smuggling arms into this country with the intention of over-throwing our Government, obtained their information to the Minister responsible for the security and defence of this country and, instead, they saw fit to bring such a Motion into this House, as if there was some differences of opinion as to whether or not there were some people who would like to support a revolution or who were opposed to a revolution. I consider, Mr. Speaker, that this kind of Motion, being the intention of trying—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. For the third time, we are not here to discuss the merits of giving notice of such a Motion; we are here to discuss the substance of the notice of Motion.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I would like to try and confine myself to the substance of the Motion and to state with all the power and energy I have that this allegation is the most serious kind of allegation that this country has ever heard. I think, Mr. Speaker, it would be very fitting for the Minister for Defence to state very clearly in this House whether he has any knowledge of this allegation, and if we find that the Minister responsible for the security and defence of this State is not aware of such an allegation, then I think it would be very fitting for this House to demand an explanation from the person responsible as to what was the substance of the Motion, whether it was to alert the Government and people of this country or to try and create a bad feeling of distaste, locally and overseas, or if it was with the intention of trying to humiliate the Minister responsible for defence, as if he was incapable of handling or looking for the evidence and all sorts of information which would lead to this kind of action which is being perhaps organized in the country.

So, Mr. Speaker, without taking much time of the House, I would personally demand that we must have a clear statement from the Minister for Defence and should this House fail to be satisfied by the statement given by the Minister, or should we find that the Minister is not aware of the Government as a whole is not aware of this allegation, then this House should demand the reasons why this Motion was introduced.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Motion is a very serious one as far as the Government, Members of this House and the people of this country generally are concerned. It says that, "in view of the evidence that arms and ammunition are continuously being smuggled from communist countries and others"; and I should have welcomed and the Government would have welcomed having this Motion debated in full, so that we can answer in full. I want to answer this Motion in full. What I do not want is just to make a statement here and dismiss everything. There may be evidence that this is happening, so I want to answer it. Why should I not answer it, if there is?

However, what I would like to assure this House and the people of the nation that if there is anybody who has in mind to smuggle weapons or even to start a revolution, he is going to find that the Kenya Army is not asleep. I want to assure the whole nation—because the kind of publicity that goes out with this sort of Motion may be from various people and various papers—that the Kenya army is ready and will be prepared to handle any of these people who try smuggling or bringing about any kind of revolution in Kenya to upset this popularly elected Government.

The Kenya army, the General Service Unit and the Kenya police are all loyal to this Government, and there is nobody better trained than those three branches of the armed forces to deal with those who come into Kenya, either from within our outside to try and upset this Government. So if anybody has that in mind, let him think again.

To go beyond that, let me also say that the Kenya Government is not limited to buying weapons and ammunition from any particular country, whether the country be communist or not, capitalist or not, if we find that the weapons and ammunition from those countries are suitable for Kenya and the Kenya Army and police, we are going to purchase them if the price is right. I want to make this very clear because I am not evading the Motion. I am just reassuring the people of the nation, that wherever we find good weapons, so long as they are suitable and the price is right, we are not going to hesitate because we are not aligned to any big powers. I say that when we feel we want American ammunition, British ammunition, Russian ammunition, or ammunition from anywhere, we shall get it.

Finally, for those people who are thinking of bringing about a revolution, I would like to assure them that the people of this country are fully behind the Government and even if we did not call out the Army, the people themselves would deal with such revolutionaries without policy; and that the Government, in the next few weeks, intends to make public its approach to the land problem, including, if necessary, the setting up of a working party to investigate the whole land problem.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): On a point of order, Sir, may I seek your guidance as to whether it is proper for a Government Minister to remain in this Chamber and abstain from voting?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! That has nothing to do with a point of order. The Speaker cannot rule on a point of order about the voting of a Member for a Motion or against it. It has nothing to do with the Speaker or with a point of order.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir,—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, I am afraid that no speeches are allowed.

I must tell the House that we do not want to raise different points on this debate or to rise on points of order. Once it was over, the Government wanted to make a Ministerial statement, as the Government had defeated the Motion. I could perhaps take a point of order on something which has nothing to do with that debate.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is too much. I thought that you would allow me, since I moved that Motion, to make a short statement of appreciation of the Minister's statement.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, Mr. Anyieni, you can raise a point of order, but you cannot make a speech to appreciate what the hon. Minister said. That is 'out of order. I think I must be firm.

Mr. Ochwada: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, since the Assistant Minister and other Members do not seem to realize that Ministers and Assistant Ministers are in this House, as elected Members of this House can you make the position clear to some of the hon. Members who may not be aware that Ministers can exercise their right to vote, as the Assistant Minister for Health has suggested?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order, order! I have already stated that it is not part of the Speaker's or the Deputy Speaker's duty to comment on any vote or any abstention from any vote.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

MOTION

SMUGGLING OF ARMS AND AMMUNITION

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If Mr. Malinda is not here, we will go on to the next order.

POINT OF ORDER

ABSENCE OF MOVER OF MOTION

Mr. Makokha: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that the allegation in this Motion are very strong and very serious, and have received high priority in the Press, is there any way in which this House can force this hon. Member to make a statement to the House as to the reasons why he saw fit not to be present?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, I think, in a case of this kind, it would be right to require the hon. Member who gave notice of this Motion and who wanted it to be put on the Order Paper to make a personal statement when he is available, explaining why he was not here to move it.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyok): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I noticed that the hon. Member who intended to move this Motion was in the House, and that, therefore, he is due for payment for today's sitting. In view of the seriousness of this particular Motion, which is going to upset the whole of Kenya, and which may also upset the tourist industry of this country, can we be advised, further by you, Sir, what can be done and whether it is in order to look for the Member by sending out police officers?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, we have no power to ask the police to look for Members. I am glad to say.

As I say, it would be reasonable to ask for an explanation and I shall ask Mr. Malinda to make a Personal Statement to this House as to why he has not appeared to move such a very serious Motion. Now we can do nothing but to move on to the next Order.

Mr. Githoyan: On a point of order, because the Speaker has discretion to allow a Motion which has already been withdrawn to be tabled again, or be discussed in the same session, in view of the fact that this Motion is of National importance and it has already been put before the House and we are very serious about it, could we in the House be allowed, either next week or during the next session, to set a specific time for this Motion?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): As regards moving again a Motion which an hon. Member has failed

[The Speaker] is true that I can allow that in my discretion; that would depend entirely upon the description that would depend entirely upon the explanation: Mr. Malinda gives as to why he is not here today. It would not in any case prevent me from allowing some other hon. Member to move the same Motion after further notice.

With regard to sittings of the House, that is with the House so far as adjournment goes, and it is up to the Government to say when we will sit again. I have no control of that either.

Mr. Anyieni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, this is a very serious allegation which has been made in this House threatening the violent overthrow of the elected Government of our President and this Member has deliberately abstained from coming to move the Motion, despite the fact that he was informed and was here this morning. Would it be in order to demand a statement from the Government, from the Ministry of Internal Security and Defence to explain that the country will not be kept in suspense with regard to this matter and that the country is made aware that there may be a revolution at any time between now and the next time the Parliament sits?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think your right procedure, Mr. Anyieni, if I understand what you want correctly, is to move now, under Standing Order 14, that the House adjourn to discuss this matter. Mr. Ngala-Abok, as you may remember, suggested that yesterday, I had to say then that an allegation of this kind is a definite matter of urgent public importance, so I think you would be entitled to move that this House now adjourn for a discussion of this matter, if you have ten members in support of this Motion. I would point out that it will be superseded by a substantive Motion for the adjournment of the House in about half an hour's time.

Mr. Anyieni: I do so move, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must say what you are moving an adjournment to discuss.

Well, I will say it for you. You are moving the adjournment for the House to discuss the allegations in yesterday's notice of Motion, that arms and ammunition are being secretly smuggled from communist and other foreign countries into Kenya for subversive activities.

Mr. Kamau: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to seek your guidance on this matter because most of us, including myself, may be interested in knowing how to discuss a question of this nature in a case where the Mover has absented himself. Could you please advise the junior Members of Parliament, on how this type of Motion which is not being directed by the Mover, will be depicted, because I see the seriousness of the Motion and I would like to get your guidance in order that we may have a clarification as to how this Motion is going to be moved?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We are now away from the actual Motion that Mr. Malinda wanted to move. That is not going to come before the House today. What we are now working is Standing Order 14, which allows procedural adjournment on a Motion for adjournment in order to discuss a particular matter with no vote being taken. This is similar to the procedure which we sometimes have on adjournment of the House in the last half hour. What happens now is that they move that the House do now adjourn, and I propose the question formally, and if any hon. Member wishes to speak he may do so on this issue upon which the allegation is made. So you move that this House does now adjourn, Mr. Anyieni?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Odongo): On a point of order, just before he moves Mr. Speaker, my point of order is that with regard to a Specially Elected Member, is it possible for this House to pass a vote of no confidence in him?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. No, there is no such thing as a vote of no confidence in a Specially Elected Member.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

(Under S.O. 14)

ALLEGATIONS OF ARMS SMUGGLING

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in moving that the House do adjourn, the point was not, as a matter of fact to discuss this Motion. I believe, Mr. Speaker, that this matter may be very serious, because when the hon. Member gave the notice, there were a great many fears, etc. Many Members felt that it was not a very serious matter, but it must be kept in mind that when this type of thing goes to the country it can be a very serious matter and for that reason and since we do have a very capable Government, that priority should be given to the security of this country and to the elected Government of this country. Mr. Speaker, if there are some communists who are trying to ship arms into this country or any other countries in order that they may throw our country into a bloody revolution, we would like to know. This, Mr. Speaker, I believe comes as a Member went further, deviating from the Motion and said that the Kisiu have too much land and as a result they had to import some members of other tribes to settle in the Kisiu District. Honestly speaking, Mr. Speaker, he could not substantiate what he said, and I was wondering whether this Member was really trying to represent the people of his tribe who may be living in Kisiu. I told him that if the people in Kisiu did have any spare land, I could not see how we could be so selfish as to refuse a brother the opportunity of coming to live with us. I think that this is a typical example of the spirit of African socialism in practice. If the hon. Member was trying to tell us that the Kisiu Members should take no steps to remove these people, then I do not know what his purpose was in trying to represent them in the way he did.

[Mr. Anyien]

Mr. Speaker, another thing I would like to point out is that this Motion has nothing to do, for example, with the African reserves. If a person has a great deal of land in the African reserves, this Motion will not affect him at all. The hon. Member, Mr. Moi, can have one million acres, and if this is in the reserve this Motion has nothing to do with it. This Motion has made it very clear that it has nothing to do with it. What I am saying, Mr. Speaker, and this is a very important point, is that you find that some members like myself, like the hon. Minister for Home Affairs, have got a piece of land. I have not got the right to blame him, because there is no ruling on the amount of land which he is allowed to buy, and he has the right to buy as much as one million acres. That being the case, Mr. Speaker, anyone can buy as much land as he wishes because there is no law. That is why I am saying that the Government should set up a committee, and perhaps the Minister for Economic Planning, should be the gentleman who should have the responsibility of doing this part of our planned economy, so that no one will be able to accuse any one else of buying too much land. I believe it would be in keeping with Government policy. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that this is in keeping with our policy of urging people to go back to the land. We always say that people should go back to the land. We do not want only a few people to go back to the land, we want as many people as possible to go back to the land. Therefore I do not see why anyone should want to try to misrepresent this Motion.

Another thing I would like to bring up at this time, Mr. Speaker, is that I do not see here why we should have a common maximum in all areas because this cannot work.

When I was speaking I made it very clear that in some areas it might be necessary to allow 2,000 acres or even 3,000. It is not me who is going to set up a policy of land reform, but a committee, especially appointed to do the job. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that even I would like to buy a piece of land, but there is no principle to guide me. One hon. Member from my district bought a piece of land in the Scheduled Areas, then when I went home I had a lot of people saying that he has bought too much land, but he bought only 100 acres. So we would like this to be made clear. If Government says this is enough, then I can also think of going to buy a piece of land in some place.

The other thing is this, Mr. Speaker. The hon. Mr. Nyagah did say that this was not a Motion to be brought into this House, that this should have been done through the Party. Mr. Speaker, I am not an official of Kanu and therefore I cannot call on the Party to discuss the land policy. The only place I can bring a thing like this is in the House where we have Members elected by the people we are trying to represent here. One hon. Member, Mr. Speaker, was saying that I was trying to claim the credit of representing the people. I have never done this and I have always said that I am the Member for Majengo-Bassi, and that is all; I am no more. This being the case, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that nobody should try and misunderstand what I have tried to say. When I ask that the Government should set up a committee, it should be understood that if this is not done—and here I must be very honest—if we allow a few individuals to buy as much land as they wish, this is going to create a class struggle in our country which is not in the interest of the Government, nor in the interest of the people of this country. This being the case, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that whoever accuses me of behaving as if I was the champion of the African cause, if he feels that he is not the champion of the African cause, it is his own mistake. I believe, as a representative of the people, I have as much right as any hon. Member here to champion the rights of the people of our country.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that the hon. Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement has been trying to speak very loudly and he has confessed that he personally does not have as much of land. That being the case, he is all right because he is a Member and he is a Minister, but he must also know that he is not alone in this respect. There are people from his own constituency who do not have any land. If we allow a few people who have money today to buy almost all the land, when is the hon. Member going to have a chance? Mr. Speaker, it must be understood that today many of the African people may not have enough money to buy any land. If we give them time, later on they may be able to afford a few shillings to pay for the land, but if we allow the few people who have land, today to buy all the land without any restriction, they are going to buy all the land and then they will start selling it back to the poor people, and they may charge prices which the Government may not be able to approve.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I would like to tell the hon. Minister for Information that I am not going to withdraw from this Motion today. We are going to vote for this Motion. I may be alone in voting for it, but one thing will be made clear: that is, that the majority of Members of this House do not want any restriction on land, they want to allow Asians, Africans and Europeans to own as much land as possible. Let nobody mistake—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member in order to insinuate that it is the view of people in this House that land should be given to the Asians, and so forth?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. It is quite in order for an hon. Member to express his own views, and to say he thinks he is expressing the views of others.

Mr. Anyien: I should say that the hon. Members should accuse me if I went too far, but what I was saying is that if today the majority of Members vote against the Motion, then they do not disapprove of the idea of Anyien, if he has money, buying the whole of Kenya and putting it in his own pocket.

With those few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the Motion.

MINISTERIAL STATEMENT

GOVERNMENT POLICY ON LAND

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the result of the division on the Motion that has just been before the House should be explained so as to avoid any misunderstanding as regards the Government's attitude on this very important and sensitive issue. I want to make it quite clear that the Government, like those who voted for the Motion, has very strong feelings on the land question. I want to make it quite clear that the Government has always been concerned that there should be a thorough review of the land policy for the country. It was not possible to accept this Motion; and indeed, my colleague, the Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism, pointed out in his speech that it might have been wiser for the Mover of the Motion, having expressed the various points of view, to withdraw it because at this very moment the Government is engaged in the revision of the development plan and, among those issues that are receiving priority in that revision, is the entire question of land policy.

Now, Sir, it was only a matter of waiting for a few more weeks to receive this Government's policy statement. I am sorry that the Mover and his supporters did not see fit to exercise a little restraint and patience, and wait for this policy. The vote, therefore, is not against the principles outlined but against the unfortunate timing and unfortunate insistence on a vote, even after Government assurances of what was being done. Why there was this insistence, I do not know, and I do not wish to go into it.

Mr. Speaker, for reasons that are obvious to the Mover, it was not possible to amend the Motion, and for reasons that were very clearly explained to the Mover.

In conclusion, I want, on behalf of the Government and of those who supported the Government in this Motion, to state, here and now, that Government is not satisfied with the present land

[The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement] acres of land, all the coffee estates, all the sisal estates, in the Scheduled Areas, will have to be broken up into very uneconomic units. And in addition to the fact that we want to give our people land, we also have the economy of the country to think about, and farming large areas of land as one unit will be proved to be more economical than breaking them up into smaller units that are uneconomical. The Government must adhere to what is economical for the country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have heard allegations that this Government has failed to allocate land to the poor people, as we promised during our election campaign. What I say, is what about those people whom we have given land in the former White Highlands, these 26,000 families? Most of them were landless, were unemployed. What are these people? Are they not Kenyans? They are Kenyans and, Mr. Speaker, the Government is doing its best to continue trying to find money to continue buying more land so that more poor people can continue to be settled.

We have said that, instead of bringing people from Nairobi, instead of bringing people from the Central Province, from the Coast Province or from anywhere, people who can find alternative employment, the first duty of the Government is to settle those people who have been working on the farms.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Will all these private conversations cease, please.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): The policy of the Government is first to settle all those landless and poor people who have a long time been working on the farms and who, we presume, had been exploited by the former owner of such land. Is this not to the credit of Government? Why can't one day at least one Member be frank enough to say exactly what this Government has done? When an hon. Member stands in this House and says the Government just allows rich people to buy land and allows people like members to buy land, why can I not see any hon. Member having the courage to stand up in this House and actually give at least credit for one thing to the Government, for what it has done for our people?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, within the Government, we have had consultations with the Ministry of Economic Planning, and Government is intending to produce a statement or an economic plan, an economic development plan. And since, in this country, land is our number one asset, I am sure that the Government, in producing this plan, will include land and will formulate a land policy.

With this in mind, Mr. Speaker, we cannot accept a Motion like this because what it will do is to jeopardize what the Government is already doing. Mr. Speaker, a Motion like this is very prejudicial to the efforts and the initiative of the Government, in trying to improve the economy and in trying to raise the standard of living of our own people in this country. It is the Government which is more concerned about the poverty of the people, more than any individual Member in this House.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Otienko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I can see that time is very short and I shall therefore try to be very brief.

Mr. Speaker, the House will remember that just under 1½ days ago the Minister for Economic Planning and Development promised the House that a paper on development would be tabled, and which, of course, would be given to the hon. Members for them to study. I heard one hon. Member mentioning the "Party" The Government will give the Party, the Kenya African National Union; its executive its governing council and district officials, a chance to study the plan. The Party does exist, because we are all Party members. I presume.

Therefore, I am trying to appeal to the House that instead of taking the risk of moving this Motion here today, it would be much better for the House to be patient until next month, when the programme has been tabled. By then, we shall have had the opportunity of studying it and, if necessary, discussing it.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if there was any point—if the hon. Member would agree to withdraw, we could decide on this particular Motion without even asking for a division or a vote, because I think it is unnecessary; the points have been raised and again, when the hon. Assistant Minister replied on behalf of Government, he appeared to be sympathetic towards what is being said here. At the same time, the hon. Member should have also appreciated what the Kenya Government has done for the country, since it became independent. The Government has done a good job and the Government must be thanked for what it has done. We know that "land is a big bone of contention and we do not want to scare our people when we start talking here, with votes being taken here and there. And probably the assumptions and unnecessary conclusions will be drawn, that the House of Representatives does not appreciate that there are some landless people

[The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism]

The Government has done its best to settle landless people and it is going to continue. There is to be a comprehensive plan of development by the Minister for Economic Planning and Development, as he promised. He is going to indicate the readiness of the Kenya Government to meet the requirements of the country.

Therefore, the Motion is unnecessary at this moment, and I would like to appeal to the Mover to withdraw this Motion in all good faith, because the plan which we expect to come up in this House will go a very long way to meeting the wishes of the people of Kenya.

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Sir, I would like your guidance on the following point. The Minister says that because we expect a programme of the Government in the coming month or two, we should guide the Ministry or the Government as to what they should do. Are we not, Sir, entitled to inform our Government that we expect these things to be—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. Of course you are. But the Minister is equally entitled to suggest withdrawal of the Motion if he wants to.

Mr. Mbat: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the subject of this Motion is a matter which concerns everybody. In this case, we do not want this House or some hon. Members of this House to mislead the public along the lines that they are. The importance of the hunger of a particular group of people which are landless should be considered.

Mr. Speaker, it has already been noted that in various sections of this country, the Minister for Lands and Settlement has taken into account the question of the allocation of loans with minimum and maximum acreages quite seriously. Mr. Speaker, Sir, from this point of view, with the few comments which I have made, I beg to oppose the Motion.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say just one or two things to clarify the position of the Government on the question of land. It is true that the Kenya Government is faced with the very big problem of settling Kenya Africans on farms which were formerly owned by Europeans. While we are credited with being the only Government in Africa who have been able to settle people on formerly European-owned land so early on, we also know that we have a long way to go. It is one of the points that we have considered and feel that we should improve upon. There are, of course, practical difficulties when it comes to dealing with land, which no one can ignore. For example, how much land should a person have? In Kenya, we have to consider these problems from two points of view; (1) How much land is good for a person to farm in that particular area. I am told that even in the most fertile sections of Kenya, six hundred acres is the economic unit which can be made to work. In other areas where you graze and the Masai know this very well you need thousands of acres. So, when we speak about the maximum land people own we should bear in mind the quality of the land. (2) We must also be aware that if we ordered the White settlers out, we should replace them with good settlers from this country so that the economic position will not suffer. I have watched with great grief the resentment of Kiangonyi White at one time that area was capable of producing a great deal of wool and wheat for export, that land has now been subdivided according to what we like and what we now produce is only a few beans, potatoes and maize which grow only a few feet high. Now, if you call that wisdom, I am afraid that you are entirely wrong.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid I must interrupt you, because it is time for the Mover to reply.

Mr. Anyilegi: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, I should like to say one thing, and this is that I must thank the Government for the efforts which they have put forward so far in trying to settle the African people on the land. Mr. Speaker, I do not think it would be correct if I did not show my appreciation on behalf of my constituency and if I did not thank the Government for the work they have done so far in settling some of the people on the land.

I would like to say at this time that the hon. Mr. Gichoya made a very good point, which I think should be taken into account, and that is that the main point is to allow as many people on the land as possible, and I believe that, although Government may not accept the Motion, this should be the intention of the Government and this is the intention of the Government.

There was one speech which was made by the hon. Member Mr. Khasi Dala; it was his maiden speech, in which he said that the intention of this Motion was to bring it, let Government reject it and then accuse the Government. The hon. Member must know that all Members of this House have the right to introduce Motions in this House which they believe are representative of the people who elected the Government. The hon.

[The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs]

Mr. Speaker, when we speak of the maximum, we should also bear in mind that there is another word known as minimum, and the word that goes between the minimum and the maximum is average. Mr. Speaker, when we are talking about land, we must bear in mind quite a number of other aspects, such as the valuation of the land, the power of the land to produce so much, and so on. So we might say that this House has approved that each person should have a maximum of ten acres. What will happen if we put him in a place like Isiolo and give him ten acres? Ten acres in Isiolo is very different from ten acres in Kangondo or in Embu, for that matter, Mr. Speaker. So we should be very careful and for "maximum" use the words "reasonable average". If we want to be reasonable and useful to this Motion.

Rather than ask the Government to do it alone, to produce something that perhaps will be attacked in this House or in the country, why do we not call for a Kani party conference or seminar where views would be expressed and then the Government, in the light of what is said in that conference, may formulate a policy for land in this country? Mr. Speaker, Sir, I notice, as regards the land which was known formerly as the Scheduled Areas, about two million acres of this land within a period of nearly two years has been taken by the Government and a number of people—Kenya citizens—have been settled. Admittedly, there are some people who have caused the alarm of the hon. Members here who have come during this process of doing good to the greatest number of our people and got large tracts of land and who are not necessarily Kenya citizens. I do not think the Government or this country can be called blind to this.

Mr. Speaker, the attitude towards African ownership of large tracts of land or even big businesses—shops, buildings, or what have you—is against African socialism. We should call for a bold plan based on African socialism before we produce any of these controversial discussions in this country or in this House. For that reason, Mr. Speaker, I would like to oppose the Motion as it is worded here.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Gachago, are you answering for the Government?

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): I am, Sir, and if the hon. Minister for Information wants to speak I would allow him to speak.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The only thing is that if you want your twenty minutes, the time is running a bit short, as I have to call on the Mover to reply at five minutes past ten, which gives us about twenty-five minutes for now.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Then I will start, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Motion, I am sure, and the matters being discussed here are being heard by our people outside this Parliament and I think this is a matter which we should treat with the greatest care, because the matter of land is an important one. The question of land should not be used in this Parliament or on any platform outside to give the impression that somebody is the champion of the public, because this Government is a Government for the public. No person shall speak on an important matter like this, with the sole intention of influencing people outside this Parliament, to make them think he is the only person who has seen that the people are poor, and the Government does not see it.

Mr. Anylen: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is saying that the motive behind introducing a Motion like this is to show that the Mover is the only person who sees the poverty that exists among the African people. Is this not imputing improper motive?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I do not think that it is improper. It is out of order to impute any improper motive, such as an intention to mislead, but to impute a motive that a Member wishes to represent himself as a champion of the public is not. If Members have that motive, there is nothing actually wrong with it, nor indeed is it uncommon.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I actually wanted to say is this, that no one in this country is more conscious about land hunger and poverty and the need to reconstruct economy than the Government of the Republic of Kenya.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, speeches have been made to-day that it is necessary to have land reforms. I belong to a Ministry that was not there before. Other Ministries which are in this Government have been in existence for a period of time, but the Ministry of Lands and Settlement, was constituted by the Government and charged principally with the duty of conducting a system of land reform, and there is a system of land reform going on now for the information of the hon. Members. Before we became independent, Mr. Speaker, Sir, there was an area which was known as the White Highlands and by foreigners. Mr.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Sir, we now have 26,000 families in what we called the "Scheduled Areas" and these are African families, and these families have been settled by the policy of the Government, not because somebody brought a Motion in this House, because we asked the Government to do that, but because the Government right from the beginning, was conscious of the problem of land in general, and this is why the Government has used all their initiative to settle the people on the land from the former European settlers and distribute it to the Africans. I do not understand the words "land reform" if what the Government of Kenya is doing today is not land reform.

It has been stated that the intention and the idea behind the Motion is to stabilize this Government, as if this Government is not stable. This Government, I would say, is stable. If the hon. Member of the Motion is not stable himself, then my Ministry would be prepared to give him a piece of land and settle him so that he can be stable, but this Government is stable.

In our settlement schemes, Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are plenty of farms which have been bought by the Government, by my Ministry, and which have been set aside for allocation to co-operative societies. We have said, in the Ministry, that the Government cannot tolerate people who own large tracts of land as individuals and who say that these farms are being allocated particularly to co-operatives. It is stated though, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that these co-operatives must consist of people without alternative employment or land, these are the people of Kenya, the so-called poor people. There is land for them waiting, and instead of coming here, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to say that the people are poor, to tell the Government that the people are poor, when the Government knows that the people are poor, we should go back to our consciences, organize co-operative societies and then make applications for this land.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, my Ministry will help these people, and I am very glad that the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing has clarified this position, and I would be prepared to show any group of hon. Members who are interested, that the farmhands we have particularly set aside for allocation to the co-operatives, are not for individuals and here the Government cannot be accused of seeing to it that these farms are being bought by individuals only. We are not doing that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order!

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): What I think and believe is that the hon. Members are confusing Government projects with the open market in land. The Government of Kenya has rendered its services of making it possible to acquire land, and to acquire land as an economic unit. For instance a coffee estate, which is well organized and well developed, I cannot reasonably see how that could be taken away from a person and then be divided up into small plots. I do not see what sort of an economic asset that would be.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister substantiate that this Motion was only dealing with already developed land.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not a matter of order for an hon. Member to substantiate what a Motion means. Hon. Members can argue what it means, but I do not think it is a subject for substantiation on a point of order.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In addition—

Mr. Anylen: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, several times you have ruled that it is not fair for an hon. Member to misrepresent another. Nobody who has spoken on this Motion has said that the developed land should be carved up into pieces to give to the poor, and the hon. Assistant Minister is actually alleging that some Members have said so; the Motion does not say so and no Member has alleged this.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I don't think that the hon. Member was actually alleging that. If he was, and it was clearly directed to any particular Member, that Member can, on a point of order, correct the Assistant Minister. If there is a general suggestion that some Members have said this, then there is no great harm.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I should not be misunderstood because I gave very clearly a coffee estate as an example; and it is quite in order for a Member to give an example in this House.

Mr. Speaker, I do not have a square inch of land to call my own. The hon. Member is imputing an ulterior motive on my part.

What I said is this, that if we advocate a maximum acreage of land, and if we pass this resolution in this House then the Government will have to act on that resolution. If we say that no person should own more than, say twenty [Mr. Kagglia] at the outset that it is wrong for hon. Members to stand in this House and mislead the people of this country by misreading this Motion.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is equally wrong to say that hon. Members are trying to mislead anyone.

Mr. Kagglia: Mr. Speaker, I am going to read the Motion and prove that the hon. Member who has just spoken, is trying to mislead us.

The Motion deals with former Scheduled Areas. It has nothing to do with the land owned by Africans and I feel that in saying this that the hon. Member is trying to enlist the support of ignorant Africans who may think that this Motion intends to take away their acreage.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. Now, get this quite clear, please. You may disagree with hon. Members, you may point out that they have misunderstood, you may point out that they are misrepresenting what is said, but you cannot impute intention to mislead, or other improper intention, in what hon. Members say in this House. You cannot do it.

Mr. Kagglia: I withdraw, Mr. Speaker. What I was going to say, Mr. Speaker, is that the Motion is very clear. It deals very clearly with the land which was owned by Europeans, that is, the former Scheduled Areas. It again says very clearly that it only limits the acreage that one could buy from the Scheduled Areas. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would not like anyone to believe that this is dealing with my two or three acres in the Kikuyu Reserve.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is understood and it is known by all of us here that for many, many years we have been complaining about the European settlers who have been owning miles and miles of land in this country while thousands and thousands of Africans were going hungry. It is impossible for us today, now that the European settlers have gone, to allow a few landowners to replace the European settlers. We cannot allow this, because it is only a few Africans who would benefit and we would therefore be making fools of ourselves. This would also mean that we were only opposing the European settlers because they were Europeans. We were opposing Europeans, not because they were Europeans, but rather because they were selfish, they were exploiters, they were exploiting the millions of Africans in this country. They were owning miles of land when others were dying. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, it is very important for us to understand from the beginning that the intention of this Motion is to try and accommodate the millions of poor Africans who are today crying for land, who are crying for employment and for bread. Mr. Speaker, since we have obtained independence, the Government has agreed to the policy of willing buyer and willing seller, and all this land which was formerly owned by Europeans has been exchanging hands very quickly. There are many Asians who have the money, and who have now left their businesses and begun purchasing land because there is no limit on the acreage which can be purchased as long as you have the money. These Asians are taking over land in all provinces where the Scheduled Areas were. If the Government does not consider restricting the acreage, we shall see in a very short time that the European settlers have been replaced by Asians and perhaps a few Africans who have enough money to purchase land. I therefore feel, Mr. Speaker, that this Motion is the only solution to our problem. It is very important for us to realize the importance of land in this House that the land problem has been the backbone of our political struggle and that we should not deceive ourselves in this regard. Most of our people in this country depend on agriculture, they have no money to go into business because of the monopoly of the capitalists who have entrenched themselves for years. They can only rely on the land. Government has the power to give our people land. This is the duty of the Government, to give our people land. If today, we come and say we cannot restrict the purchase of land and it is all right for the people who have the money to purchase as much land as they wish, then, we are betraying our people, the very people who laid down their lives for independence.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order, when the House is to quiet for an hon. Member to speak so loudly?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no actual order which controls the volume at which an hon. Member speaks. I was on the point of suggesting to Mr. Kagglia, myself that it is not necessarily to speak so loudly in this House. Indeed, as I pointed out a few days ago, hon. Members are more accustomed to a controlled style in this House, as opposed to public platform.

Mr. Kagglia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must apologize if I am speaking rather loudly, but I must confess that this is a matter which heats my blood and therefore I cannot help speaking with some emotion.

[Mr. Kagglia]

Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member has just spoken. He has spoken about co-operatives. We had agreed since Independence and we have given the Government a chance to try and distribute land evenly and properly but, I must say that I am surprised that the hon. Member from Embuhaya should speak in this manner, when we have seen that we have so many co-operatives in this country which have failed to buy land because of the restrictions which have been made. So there is no sense in saying that co-operatives are buying land, they are not buying land. They are only collecting money and the Ministry of Agriculture is not giving them loans because of the restrictions which state that unless they have more than forty-one members they are unable to get the loan. So, what I would like to know is, who is purchasing? Only the rich people, and these are going to exploit the millions of landless people in this country. We have known difficulties which have arisen in many countries from this policy of land lordism when a few people own land and others are left as beggars, squatters and serfs. For this reason, Mr. Speaker, we should see that this difficulty does not come into this country. It has been here during the colonial rule and it is up to our Government to see that it is completely removed so that the land should be distributed properly and our people should have no business, who have no land, should have something to eat. It is important, Mr. Speaker, to restrict the acreages so that the rich people will not buy land that could have been bought by the poor people.

It is also important, Mr. Speaker, for the Government to formulate a true land policy which takes into account the interest of our people, because the land policy that we are following today does not consider the interest of the poor people, it only considers the interest of the rich people and the interest of the former European settlers, because all the money that we are borrowing today is going into the pockets of settlers and going back to England, and our poor people are not benefitting much.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would be very glad if the Government would consider accepting this Motion and restrict the size of land purchases from today so that the land which is not yet bought should remain there and the Government should find a method of distributing it in a better way.

I should also like to say, Mr. Speaker, that co-operatives should be encouraged and restrictions removed from them.

Therefore, I strongly support the Motion.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to speak on some points which I have been raised about co-operatives, for which I am responsible.

I would like to say that there are no legal restrictions at all on co-operatives buying land. Therefore, the allegation that there are restrictions is not valid at all.

It has been said, Mr. Speaker, in the past that there were some restrictions, but according to the law there is nothing laid down to restrict the co-operative societies from purchasing land.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few words I only wanted to comment on that. Thank you very much.

Mr. Kagglia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that this was accepted only a few months ago by the Minister for Agriculture, would the Minister for Co-operatives explain when this restriction was removed?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order, but you can ask explanation from the Minister, if he will give it before we have another speech.

Mr. Chow: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. I would like to get an explanation from you because it is not clear to me as to whether we are referring to settlement schemes or to the land in the reserve?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no doubt as to what is meant by "former Scheduled Areas." They were defined by the Agricultural Ordinance as certain areas which corresponded roughly to what were known as the "White Highlands." Those are the areas to which this Motion refers.

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say a few words on this Motion.

First of all, I must say that I agree with the real spirit behind the Motion, but it is most unfortunate that the way we are talking and the way the words that have been framed seem to be a bit out of context. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this House should be really and, indeed, concerned that there is no farm land reform in this country. This is a thing which has concerned this House as long ago as 1957/58, when we were Members of a group known as AEMO, African Elected Members Organization. Rather than at this time blaming the Government or anyone, we should ask for a farm land reform without necessarily confining ourselves to what used to be known as the Scheduled Areas.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I am not concerned with that, what I am concerned with is the allegation of corruption, Mr. Gichoya.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, corruption, as I see it, is based on one thing or it emanates from one passage of our own manifesto. Getting land from the white settlers back to the people, then instead of giving it back to the people it is given back to ourselves, Sir, is that not corruption?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It depends what you call corruption, but you must still say who you mean by "ourselves".

Mr. Gichoya: Those who have money and who told the ordinary person that land would be available for them, the moment the country became independent. Instead of going into their own hands, it is going to the people who have the money, of whom a good section is within this House.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is that what you call corruption?

Mr. Gichoya: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Well, it is not the right term. I think you had better withdraw the word.

Mr. Gichoya: I am withdrawing that continually.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is wrong for those people who are now planting their shambas not accepting an limitation or the ceiling of land which an individual can buy and which would give a chance to many more people to have a piece of land under the sun. It would be very unfortunate for the Member for Kisi, if his people could hear him asking that question; then they would never allow him back in this House.

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, what we are asking in this Motion is to set up a committee, a committee willing to set up a programme of settlement for our people, limiting the acreage which a man with money can buy and which a man with money cannot buy. When you say ten acres per person, Gichuru will never get more than two acres—

Mr. Komora: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it in order to refer to the Minister as Gichuru?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No.

Mr. Gichoya: I mean the hon. Mr. Gichuru, Minister for Finance. He can afford to buy more than two acres, but if the limitation is two acres, he will not be able to buy more than that. Consequently, we shall have more space for more people and then the stability of this country will be assured. It is ridiculous, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that a son of a rich man should live at the side of a poor man and a poor man should die. Starvation is a way of bringing death. When somebody has no means of existence and most of our people depend mainly on farming, it means that they are being condemned in the Republic of Kenya to die, by this House, if it rejects a limitation of the acreage to allow more people to have a place under the sun.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I request, or I appeal to the hon. Members of this House to accept that a committee be set up by the Government; then, it should be used to stabilize the Government. Most people can never get the meaning of it, but they must come to understand it—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Hon. Members must keep calm.

Mr. Gichoya: The idea is to give our national Government a stable authority based on the support of the masses. If the Government is not supported by those people who do not have anything, and they constitute the majority, I feel that these Ministers, Sir, should never be Ministers of the present Government.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to second the Motion.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that it is most unfortunate that such a Motion should come to this House, because already, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in Kenya today, Africans own their own properties which they are proud of as their own. You cannot say that you are going to divide the property of someone which belongs only to him as a person.

Mr. Anyieni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member is saying that the essence of the Motion is to divide someone's property for another man. Is that the essence of the Motion, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the hon. Member is trying to misrepresent the Motion?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think anyone could misrepresent the Motion; it is there for the House to see. He might misrepresent what you said, but I think you had better hear him a little further before you say that.

Mr. Khasakhala: Instead of hon. Members assisting the Government in its good policy of encouraging the formation of co-operative societies, encouraging the formation of companies, and that these people can unite together and buy land

[Mr. Khasakhala] speaking has already a Government policy, they bring such a Motion to injure the people. It is already a Government policy, Mr. Speaker, as far as I know, that a co-operative society in Kenya today can buy land. Where is the society, produced by this particular Member who has brought this Motion to the House, which has been refused, so that he now accuses the Government? I know very well that Government is settling people within the former Scheduled Areas. These areas were reserved in the past and now they are not reserved any longer.

At present, we have thousands of Africans who are being settled and the Government is assisting them and doing all it can to help the landless Africans to get land on the settlement schemes. The people with money, Mr. Speaker, have also their position, have also their place in the settled area, and these are the people who are being condemned. If the hon. Member can tell the House how he wants vacant land to be made useful, we would look around and find a method of using these vacated farms. But only to say that we want a limitation of land, a limitation to a certain number of acres, that, in my opinion, is a use in Kenya today.

I know very well, Mr. Speaker, that with regard to such land in Kenya which is not filled, a big own area, the Kisi area, where that hon. Member comes from, they have taken people from Bunyore and Maragoli to go and settle there, because there are not enough people to occupy that land.

Mr. Anyieni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, could the hon. Member substantiate that there are too few people living in Kisi and therefore we have to import some people from Bunyore and Maragoli Districts?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Can you substantiate that, Mr. Khasakhala?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, I can introduce names of people from those areas who have gone to Kisi to buy land and who are settling there.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is what you are being asked to do here.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, if I am given time I can produce the list in this House. I cannot produce it now, but this is a fact which exists, and if the hon. Member does not want to live in Kisi, well, we have large settlement schemes and—

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odongo): On a point of order, Sir, I do not know whether there is a way whereby we can protect the House, because the hon. Member who is speaking has made an allegation about people going to Kisi, because there are no people in Kisi to live in those areas, when, in fact, it is true that the Bunyore population—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What is your point of order?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odongo): My point of order is asking if there is any way in which Members of this House can be protected from these wrong allegations which are made?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order!

All hon. Members know very well that the protection of the House against wrong allegations, such as you are asking about, Mr. Okello-Odongo, is the rule that an hon. Member can be required to substantiate what he says. He cannot always substantiate at the moment of allegation. If he undertakes to substantiate afterwards, that is quite all right, provided he does so. If he fails to do so, he is required to come and make a personal statement to this House and apologize.

I thought that all hon. Members knew that by now.

Mr. Khasakhala: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, in defence of my statement I would like to say that the hon. Member from Kisi had admitted and said: "that they are not selfish like you". "You", can mean, many, so, Mr. Speaker, I therefore believe that this is a Motion which will mislead a great number of people in Kenya.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Khasakhala, you do not say things like that. You do not impute improper motives to hon. Members in anything they move. You will withdraw that.

Mr. Khasakhala: I withdraw that, Mr. Speaker. The nature of the Motion should have been to encourage or to ask the Government to give more opportunity to the Africans who have formed community and co-operative societies, and money so that can make use of land which is lying idle at present. Most of the land in Kenya, Mr. Speaker, is not utilized and it is surprising to hear that some people or Members feel that the Government should limit the acreage of land that is to be bought. Mr. Speaker, I personally feel that I cannot agree with this Motion and I therefore oppose it.

Mr. Kagzia: Mr. Speaker, I am very happy to support this Motion and I would like to say under the Constitution of this country. It is necessary to make this point because some people might run away with the idea that the purpose of these amendments is to remove or in any way weaken those things that they hold to be of importance to them as citizens and individuals resident in this country. The whole structure of Government and the protections under the Constitution will continue to guarantee the right of a citizen to vote, the equality before the law, and things like that.

Secondly—and quite important, too—is the position of the Judiciary. This, again, is a point which is dear to many people but one again which is not encroached upon by the amendments which are now proposed. The Judiciary remains independent and its whole set-up and position is fully established and protected in the Constitution. Thus, regardless of these amendments, the person who has always enjoyed this safeguard and security or, shall I say, confidence in our judicial system, needs have no fear at all as regards the future of that system. That system remains entrenched in the Constitution of this country.

Sir, another point which I think needs to be stated is the fact that, although the Bill suggests an amendment to the amendment procedure—that is the procedure by which the Constitution can, in future, be amended—in that it varies the percentages, it does not in any way reduce us to the position where we have no safeguards for a stable Constitution. It would be readily, I am sure, agreed by all of us here—and the country at large, I am sure—that the original procedure for amending the Constitution was the most rigid in the world. It required 90 per cent, in the Senate and 75 per cent in this House, not of Members present and voting but of the membership of both Houses. Thus it almost amounted to suggesting that before any part or provision of the Constitution could be amended, it would be necessary to get what amounts to a unanimous decision of the Senate and a near-unanimous decision of the House of Representatives. Sir, the weakness of this need not be over-stressed because it goes without saying that a Constitution as a working document, intended to regulate the relationships within our country as between the Government and Parliament, the Government and the public, and the public themselves, needs to be a document that is capable of amendment, and not only capable of amendment but of reasonable amendment. In other words, where experience shows that the Constitution is not working properly and not working in the interests of the country, it should be for the country, through their elected representatives, reasonably to be able to amend it. Now, it must not give room for unreasonable action on the part of a small minority in the country who merely would wish to obstruct reasonable amendment of the Constitution or modification of its provisions for unreasonable reasons. Sir, I do not have to convince the House about this because we see what is happening in some countries in the world today where an archaic Constitution is being upheld merely because they are unable reasonably to amend it, and because they are unable reasonably to amend it, they have had to countenance a situation in which violence and bloodshed have been the only answer to this unfortunate strait-jacket. We would not like that to occur in this country.

Mr. Speaker, perhaps I should stop at this point and continue when we meet next.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time for the interruption of business. The House is adjourned until tomorrow, Friday 2nd April, at 9 a.m.

The House rose at thirty minutes past six o'clock.

Friday, 2nd April 1965

The House met at nine o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERS

NOTICE OF MOTION

MERGING OF STATUTORY BOARD

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to give notice of the following Motion:—

That, because of increasing costs resulting in lower returns to producers and because of emasculation in the use of trained manpower, this House deplores the continued existence of the many agricultural commodity marketing boards and urges the Government to take the necessary steps to merge some, if not all, of them within the next six months.

MOTION

CONTROL OF LAND SALES: SIZE OF ACREAGES

That this House notes with great concern the attitude of a few money possessors who are buying as much land as possible in the former scheduled areas; and urges the Kenya Government to set up a committee to recommend the maximum acreage an individual or a group of individuals may be permitted to buy and own in the former scheduled areas.

(Mr. Anyieni on 26th March, 1965)

(Resumption of consideration of Motion interrupted on 26th March 1965)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would remind the Members that on this Motion of Mr. Anyieni, he was just at the end of moving the Motion and he had one minute left, which means that there is an hour and ten minutes of this debate still to run if so desired. Who, is seconding?

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to second this Motion, because we have today the problem of scarcity of land and this scarcity of land, of course, has been there for ages.

During the Mau Mau war which—

Mr. Gatuguta: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, can we get clarification as to whether it is in order for someone else to move a Motion which has been given by another hon. Member? What is the correct procedure with regard to this?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He is seconding the Motion, Mr. Gatuguta, Mr. Anyieni has already spoken.

Mr. Gichoya: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, for clarifying the matter.

The position as it is today, particularly for people coming from the Central Province, is that, although the war in Kenya which was known as the Mau Mau war was motivated by the desire to free this country, the principal aim of this war was to put the land back into hands of the Africans. That was understood by everybody, because people had been removed from their own homes and made squatters. Consequently, the only method for the ordinary person was to understand that he had a duty to fight for the liberation of his country, that he was fighting in order to get back what had been taken from him. After so many people have died fighting for the land and independence, we are lucky enough already to have obtained independence, and that is an achievement which came as a result of the shedding of blood and of humiliation.

The other thing which was more painful to the ordinary person was the question of land and today, when the Government has already embarked on a programme of buying off the white settlers, in order to give way for the Africans to get settlement, what we see today is those who are rich, who perhaps managed to be in better positions during the emergency, are the ones particularly who are now benefiting from the fruits of our struggle.

Hon. Members: Question, question.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, there is no point in people saying, "Question." Most of the Ministers here, Mr. Speaker—I say most of them—might have been involved in this buying of large areas of land. It means that if the big lands are being bought by those people with money who, by circumstances, happen to be in this House after they have been voted in by the ordinary person now does not have a single piece of land. These people, now that they are in power seem to think they must have everything. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it means that there is a process of corruption going on. We who put up a fight for independence and for the removal of the white settlers, now see other wealthy people going on to our land.

Mr. Gatuguta: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member has made a serious allegation that there is corruption in the Government and in this House. Could he substantiate that?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Certainly, he should be required to substantiate that.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, when we told the people that we were getting land—to the driver, ready for production when the need arises.

So Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I have tried to clarify some of the points which have been raised this afternoon on this particular Bill, and I must thank the House for having supported the Bill in the manner they did.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was accordingly read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the whole House tomorrow)

BILL

Second Reading

THE CONSTITUTION OF KENYA (AMENDMENT) BILL

(The Attorney-General on 25th March 1965)

(Resumption of debate "that the debate be now adjourned" interrupted on 25th March 1965)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members will recall that at the adjournment of this debate we were actually debating, not the main question, but a Motion that the debate be now adjourned. That Motion is still continuing until it is disposed of. Mr. Ngala was speaking, but I see he is not here now. I do not know if any other hon. Member wishes to speak on the Motion that the debate be now adjourned, or whether the Mover wishes to withdraw it, or what.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, what does the Motion actually mean in the context of today?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It means that the debate be now adjourned until another day.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): I mean does it mean that the debate is adjourned, to be resumed at the next sitting, or what exactly does it mean? I was not here at that time and I am trying to understand exactly what the Motion is about.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): When a Motion of this kind is carried, it simply means that the debate is no longer continued that day. It is adjourned until another day, and, if then, rests with Government, if it is Government business, to put it on the Order Paper again when the Government is so disposed. It might be the next day of Government business or a week later. It is back in Government's hands to be put on the Order Paper on another day, but no longer on that day.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyko): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I remember when the last speaker, the hon. Mr. Ngala-Abok, had made his speech, it appeared as though we had had the last speaker in this particular debate, and I thought you were going to call upon the Mover to reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. Someone sought to move the closure of the debate, but as we had just come to the time for the interruption of business, I thought it was pointless, so we did not have the closure moved. I should imagine that hon. Members do not wish to pursue the Motion for Adjournment, so perhaps Mr. Ngala-Abok would withdraw it, by leave of the House.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not wish to withdraw, but I think I should clarify in reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Oh, No; there is no right of reply on this procedural Motion does any hon. Member wish to speak on the Motion for the adjournment of this debate?

Mr. Warithi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I remember when the hon. Member moved this Motion that the debate be adjourned, it was for the purpose of enabling the Government and Members of the House to discuss the amendment to the Constitution and also to allow the Members to study the amendment. Since the last time the House considered this Bill, there have been several meetings between the Government and the Members of the House and considerable progress has been made in discussions. Personally, I do not see any need for adjourning the debate and I feel that the Mover should be called upon to reply so that we can continue with the debate on this Bill.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If no other hon. Member wishes to speak, I will put the question. There is no question of a reply on a procedural Motion of this kind.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, I would like to get my position clear, whether I could speak or not. And, at the same time, withdraw and also say a few words.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If you wish to withdraw the Motion, you can say why, and then be given the leave of the House.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the aim of my Motion to adjourn the debate on the Constitution (Amendment) Bill was to allow the Attorney-General to explain some clauses which are intricate and difficult for most of the Members of this House, who are not lawyers, to understand. I think we have now achieved the aim of the Motion, in that we have now had the Ministers concerned and the Attorney-General explaining quite a number of points. I think the Members are satisfied that the explanations were adequate and this will now enable me to withdraw the Motion which demanded an adjournment for the same purpose which we have now achieved.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to withdraw the Motion so that the debate on the main Motion can get going again.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If no other hon. Member objects, then, with the leave of the House, the Motion for adjournment of debate is withdrawn.

(By leave of House the Motion was withdrawn)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The debate now continues on the main Motion.

(Resumption of debate on main Motion)

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the few minutes left before the House adjourns, I merely want to make a few observations about the Bill before the House, bearing in mind, of course, that there has been a lot of discussion and debate and consultation outside the House on some of the clauses on which doubt or concern had been expressed.

First, I would like to make the point that this Bill is the direct result of questions that have been asked in the House before amending the Constitution that we had at the time of independence. Most of the clauses are, in fact, consequential amendments and some of them are technical amendments. Some of these technical amendments touch upon some of the entrenched clauses of the Constitution. For example, some of the technical amendments are merely amendments "which require the substitution of the word "President" for the words "Governor-General", and in some cases, the substitution of the words "Chairman of the Provincial Council" for the words "President of the Regional Assembly". These are changes which are made necessary by the very fact that Parliament has, in its wisdom, agreed to amend the original Constitution from that which gave us a highly de-centralized Government to a unitary Government, with consequential changes in the type of supporting machinery for the Government. I refer, Sir, to such machinery as the original Regional Assemblies and also to the county councils.

I think one of the problems during the debate upon this Bill was the reference in many parts of the First Schedule to deletion of this or the other of the clauses in the Constitution. Clearly, this may have puzzled some Members but not because they introduced any new matter or controversial matter, but merely because it was necessary to read the Bill in relation to the whole Constitution and not the Bill in isolation of the Constitution. I think when one reads quite a few of the clauses which it is intended to delete, one would find that, in fact, those clauses as they stand at the moment are redundant. They are redundant especially because they are clauses which were included in the Constitution specifically either to safeguard the position of Regional Assemblies, as they then existed, or to provide power for Parliament or Government to act on matters which were specifically reserved for Regional Assemblies but which are no longer so reserved, or in cases where matters were referred to under the Constitution which belonged to some of the Schedules; for example, Schedule I which contained matters reserved to the Regional Assemblies, but which is no longer the case since the various amendments have been passed in the House.

Sir, I think, therefore, that it is necessary, especially since some of these points have been made in Parliament, in fairness to the public, to explain away some of the fears and anxieties which may have exercised the minds of the people, including Members of Parliament, who have had the opportunity to private to discuss these matters with Government and who now, I hope, are quite clear as to what the position is. I think it is fair, as I was saying, that the public also have the opportunity to know what has since happened and what explanation has been given to the Members of Parliament and which the members of the public may, themselves, want still to have.

The next point that it is necessary to state is with regard to certain of the most important entrenched clauses of the Constitution. I am referring, Sir, to those very important questions which are bound to be of great interest to members of the public, such as the individual liberties and rights of the citizens of this country and to the people residing in this country which are not in any form or manner being encroached upon by the amendments proposed in this Bill. These rights of the individuals are left intact, and the citizens and people in this country should be assured that the amendment which are proposed in this Bill will not, in any way, affect the rights and the security, the protection and the safeguards which they have always enjoyed have decided it to have a fixed fee to every set sold, there will be a nominal fee of Sh. 20, and I think that this is very reasonable. As I said yesterday, we have compared it, and find that it is a bit lower than in many countries.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is also the question of police action and inspector and our investigation team. Here we are dealing with our people and we are not going to fan out anyone. This is the reason why we have provisions in clause 5. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in clause 4, the Director of Broadcasting shall receive the licensing officers. All the district commissioners shall also be licensing officers. The Minister, may by notice in the Kenya Gazette, appoint such other licensing officers which are necessary to the purpose of this Act. This brings me, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to a suggestion which was put forward by the hon. Mr. Makokha that the receipts should be included. Now, it is very important that we should have officers of the rank of inspector. An inspector is a very responsible Government officer and so also a district commissioner. The Minister, under that Act, may appoint people to serve, and that naturally may include the chiefs. However, I feel that the principal man in the district should be included in this Bill, and that is, the district commissioner of each particular district. If it becomes necessary, then such officers below the district commissioner can be assigned the facilities and the work of the district commissioner.

Now, section 5 dealt with the repairers of the radio sets. I think that here we are trying to safeguard the licensed dealers or repairers, because if this provision is not made then you will find that some people, for example some businessmen, who probably have a little bit of work here and there, taking the opportunity of cutting out a licensed dealer in repairing radios. Therefore, we must make the law more rigid in this respect in order to protect the licensed dealers. Hence, under clause 5 (f) it states:

"No dealer or repairer shall carry on trade or business as such unless he holds a valid dealer's or repairer's licence, as the case may be."

The licence fee is Sh. 200 per shop, as you will see in the schedule, and the repairer or dealer must be protected by the law.

One hon. Member was not quite sure as to how much is going to be paid, and in this particular case I think he was referring to the dealer. He appealed for half-yearly or quarterly payment. I believe that if a dealer is able to have about 200 or 300 sets in his shop, then he must at least be able to pay Sh. 200 at one time.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is also the question under section 9, where some Members referred to sticking the licence on the radio. Now it is not a question of sticking it, but attaching it to the radio. Attached licences on the radio can mean that you could attach it by a piece of string or by pasting it on or hanging it for the inspector to see. This is not a new thing, but it has been a regulation for some time. The inspectors have been very human indeed and I do not think that they have been intruding in the houses. They have been to my house several times and I have never heard any complaints. They did not know that it was my house, and I do not think that they have any hon. Members who complained when their licences were inspected.

I feel hon. Members think that they should support the Bill, because if their licence is valid it will cause the owner of the radio less trouble. It will cause the inspectors less trouble and will waste no time.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel very strongly that this licence should always be handy by attaching it, as provided for in the Bill, section 9.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is also the question of appeals. Suggestion was put forward that appeals should be made to the court of law. This is very difficult because if a person is charged for failing to pay Sh. 10, is charged, and be wants to appeal to a court of law, the charges for appealing to the court of law will be about Sh. 200, and I think, therefore, the best thing would be to appeal to the Minister. In most cases it is just a provision in the Bill, but normally these appeals may be made to the district commissioners who have been assigned by the Ministers to do this on his behalf.

Therefore, I do not think it is right to demand that it must go to a court of law. A court of law is not composed of angels; the Minister can also use his common sense to make decisions concerning things. I do not think that at this stage there is any need for one to go to a court of law for an appeal.

Under the Schedule, there has been a suggestion that secondary schools and training centres should be included. One must remember that these secondary schools and training centres are more or less self-contained in a way, and the fees are high, and the Government provides many facilities. I therefore think it is unnecessary to try to do them. But the reason why primary and intermediate schools are provided for here is that we have quite a number of primary schools being managed by local people in the rural areas and is important that they should be given some extra exemption in this particular matter. I do not, however, think that the training centres, which, of course, are heavily financed by the Government, will need to be exempted by us.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, under this you will find primary and intermediate schools, youth clubs, Mwandao Ya Wanawake, armed forces contingents, charitable institutions, because they are all doing quite a good job and if there are any clubs at all I do not see the reason why they cannot be considered. With regard to the fire brigade, it is led that depends on who runs it; if it is the City Council of Nairobi I think the city council is quite rich enough to afford at least Sh. 50 or Sh. 100 to pay for a licence.

Mr. Speaker, I must again take this opportunity to reject a suggestion here, a suggestion which which I think was put forward under a misapprehension. It has, I think, now been clarified in my explanation, that the licences are not going to cost more than Sh. 40. Again there was a complaint under section 5 (d), where protests have been made against confiscation. It is not confiscation, it is retention by us of the owner's set. This set, if it is not licensed, can be taken away by a police officer or authorized inspector for retention, and once the licence has been obtained, this set can be returned to the owner. This, of course, does not mean that the set is being confiscated. But, if the owner does not go for a licence, it means that the owner has no business to have with it. However, in most cases, a person would not leave his radio set that might have cost him about Sh. 400 or Sh. 500 just because he was busy like hon. Members of Parliament who are travelling all the time, leaving his set lying around in a police station, or in the district commissioner's office or in Broadcasting House, for that matter.

I do not think we should be misunderstood here, Mr. Speaker; when the radios are taken from owners who have not bought licences for them, they are only to be retained until the licences have been paid for.

Now, we come to the question of the domestic comprehensive sound receiving licences. Under this law a family of five could have at least ten primary radio sets, and only have to pay Sh. 40. This is why we have proposed in this Bill that, instead of paying only Sh. 40 for about ten radios in the house, each radio should have a licence. If one has about ten radio sets in one's house, that is, a wireless could be in the toilet and if there are four bedrooms, one in each one of them, etc.; yet the Government only required this householder to pay Sh. 40. We are trying to change this so that each set will be licensed at the flat rate of Sh. 20. I would also like to emphasize that if one can afford to buy ten radio sets, and a television set, one must be able to pay at least Sh. 20 for each set. If a man has five sets, it is just the question of £5, and I do not think this is a lot of money for somebody who can afford to buy five radio sets. Five radio sets would cost, on the average, about Sh. 2,000.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to state how much we really expect to get. But, before I come to that, Mr. Speaker, I must refer to section 10 where there is some confusion. Section 10 says that any person possessing more than one sound receiving set and who holds a valid domestic comprehensive sound receiving licence must surrender such a licence. This clause only provides for the current year. If you have two radio sets for one licence, the licence will continue until the time expires. But as soon as the time has expired, the owner will pay for two sets at the rate of Sh. 20 each, so it will amount to Sh. 40 all the same. But, if, after this Bill has been amended, he has, say, three sets, then he will be required to pay for them at the rate of Sh. 20 each which will mean, of course, that he will pay an additional Sh. 20 for the extra set.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I would like also to raise one point here. This is the amount of revenue that we expect to raise if our efforts are successful. We hope to increase our revenue by about £100,000. This is a reasonable figure for the Government of Kenya. As I said yesterday, the administration of this Bill will involve expenditure of about £5,500 a year of public funds in the collection of fees and payments, but this will only be about two and a third per cent of the expected revenue of approximately £100,000 a year.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to summarize as follows. This Bill provides that each set, whether radio or television, shall have a licence at a standard fee. That fee, at the moment to the ordinary buyer is Sh. 20, but it varies, for instance, in the case of community centres according to size; these, of course, may naturally be required to pay more. Secondly, it requires that the licence be attached to the set all the time, which means that the licence will be handy for inspection. I do not think the hon. Members will quarrel with me if what the Bill requires is only to facilitate inspection of licences, if there is a need for it. If the wireless is in a car, Mr. Speaker, it is very easy indeed, because it will be just next whether one is in the car or one is in your pocket when you are in the house or in the National Park, you will get the same news.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Anyieni has already made that point. If hon. Members do not listen to the debate they had better assume that their points have been made by other hon. Members.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I accept your ruling, but sometimes, you do not listen 100 per cent to what we are saying, while you are noting other points. Therefore, I assume that another hon. Member has made the same point.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, also on the question of confiscation, I know many Members felt very strongly about this and I would like to support them by saying that it would be legalized robbery if the Minister tried to create an impression of revenge on people who have failed, sometimes through no fault of their own, to pay the fees. We realize that when somebody is late in paying a tax, whether it is personal tax, vehicle tax, licence or something, there has never been this confiscation system. It is a revolutionary idea of the Ministry which has introduced this confiscation business, and I would say that if it has to start anywhere, it should not start from the Minister for Information, because it is too strong, and I would appeal to the Minister to withdraw that particular point, Mr. Speaker.

Also, I would like to support the point raised about using police because that is also revolutionary. When it is a question of a simple thing like a licence which costs Sh. 20, it is really harsh to use the police to try and tell the people that they should pay this; some softer method could be used, because the Minister can be assured that people are not actually opposing paying for radio licences, they are willing to pay, but through certain circumstances they sometimes fail to pay. The weakness is that there is no proper machinery to collect these licences so the fault should not be on the users, as nobody is prepared to pay, all of us are not that honest. Others need a little push, especially when it means paying for a licence. Therefore, the Minister should try to find a method of pushing, to remind the people. I mean he should not do it harshly. Before using the police he can create a new department, and I am sure that through the revenue collected he will be able to pay for those people who will go round the houses and tell the people to pay for radio licences because, Mr. Speaker, the problem does not start with buying a radio. Anyone is prepared to pay Sh. 20 when he takes a new set, but the trouble starts after he has paid that for one year, when the reminder comes to pay for the second year; that is where the trouble starts, and I think the Minister should concentrate more on the second payment because the first one is easy, the dealer can deal with that. I have seen people receiving a reminder that the renewal of their licence is due in such-and-such a month and when they do not pay, nothing happens. I hope that when the Minister sends a reminder to somebody that his licence is due for renewal on such-and-such a date, they will not sit quiet; they should follow up that reminder. Because the man is on record, there should be no difficulty about sending an askari to knock at his door, because it is known that his licence expires at a certain time. Therefore, if he has neglected the two reminders, it is easy to prosecute him, and even then it is fair to confiscate his set; you can fine him double or one-and-a-quarter times, but complete confiscation of the set—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Jahazi, you have mentioned this twice and other hon. Members have mentioned this about five times. Please do not repeat your own or other hon. Members' arguments.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, I was only repeating it in support, not making a new point. However, Mr. Speaker, since I seem to be colliding with you in this, I would beg to support.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, I do not have much to say, but there are a few, I hope, new points which I would like to raise.

I have one question which comes possibly through my own ignorance. There has been a lot of prosecution and I wonder whether this Bill which we are trying to pass is new legislation or amended legislation. I hope the Minister will have been able to clarify that, otherwise he might have been penalizing people illegally without any legislation at all.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, is that I have seen here the number of sets in the country and that a good number of them—about half—have not been licensed. My problem is this. I am not doubting the figure, but I would like to know how many of these sets are working and why the Minister is sure that, if we pass this Bill, he will be able to get so much money according to the figures here.

Also, Mr. Speaker, we have talked about licensing the dealer, but I do not think the Bill has gone further to protect the same dealer. There is no point in licensing the dealer when you are not going to give him business. So, in raising this point in view of the fact that we might be legislating this to ask whoever goes to the dealer should purchase a new receiving set with a licence fee of Sh. 20 which would be for the first licence. But a person who is on the border of Uganda, like myself, can travel a few miles to Tororo for a week-end and buy there a set, and then walk back to Kenya without being asked anything. But the poor man next door to me who is licensed as a dealer or repairer, who is selling these sets, does not get the business. Because of this a good number of our people, when they go to various places in our neighbouring countries, will be buying these sets. The question here, Sir, is what the Ministry is going to do in this situation—because we have to accept that we are human beings and every person plans how to spend his money. If he knows that buying one pound of sugar in Uganda is cheaper than it is in Kenya, he will have to walk so that he can purchase it where it is cheaper, and this is exactly the same, unless the Minister also protects this person.

I do not know what the Minister is going to do because here you have regular registration and you know what number of sets are lying in stores and what number of sets have been issued to various customers, but those people who are on the border, can cross the border to purchase their sets and need not have a licence and no one will know about it. What happens if you buy a set in Tanzania and bring it to Kenya? Is there any system whereby the Minister will know that because of this legislation some clever people will avoid buying from Kenya and will buy from other neighbouring countries? Unless the Minister clarifies that, I think it will be completely valueless to legislate this Bill.

Sir, I do not want to mention points which have already been touched on by some of my colleagues, but I think this is important. My friend who visited by Bill strongly on licensing, one person who has two, three or four radios, but I still doubt what the Minister is going to do if our attitude is one of not accepting it, as it is. The Minister has also to assure this House that he is going to do a bit of modification on the otherwise there is a bit of injustice. Since it appears that he is concentrating on particular sets which are being sold outside or to various customers, but he did not consider including a clause to a person who would own a good number of sets and how to use them. Because of this he is not using all the sets at the same time, but it means that we will actually be getting money from one person. If it is a question of taxing those who are highly paid, then the Minister has to explain that. If that is the case, then I will not oppose; in fact I will see how I can work and reduce the high expenses. But here again, Sir, it will mean that a number of people who have bought very many sets and increased the actual output of sets will not be buying any more and that again will be a very great reduction in the radio industry. Sir, I do not know what is in the mind of the Minister, because we might encourage one side and discourage the other side, and here what I say is that if we are not very careful we shall be discouraging the local purchasing of radios because of these licences.

Sir, with this, I beg to reserve my decision.

The Assistant Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Onamu): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move that the Mover be called upon to reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Enough time has elapsed for the House to consider that question again, so I will put the question.

(Question put and agreed to)

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Oneko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to take this opportunity of thanking the hon. Members for their very helpful contributions to this Bill.

I know one thing; in such a Bill, where funds and money are involved, we have to be very, very careful because it is something which touches on the income and the spending of our people. However, at the same time, we must also consider that we have to pay for the services which are given.

Some hon. Members have questioned whether this is an amendment. It is very unfortunate that when I moved the Bill yesterday these Members were not in the Chamber and they missed my introduction. In fact, this is an amendment and there are major changes in the law as at present constituted. These changes were to make it necessary that every set, whether radio or television, shall have a licence at a standard fee. I think some of the Members will remember that there were some considerations as to the income of the individuals, but this is also very difficult to assess because you find that somebody who probably is earning about Sh. 200 was exempted or had to pay a little bit less than somebody earning Sh. 201, and it was very difficult to work out that difference, especially with those who do not receive salaries and whose income can only be based on some sort of guesswork. So what we

[Mr. Anylen] with lots of children, in houses such as they have, I think it wrong to create this difficulty. If the officers are able to walk into the house, they will demand to see the licence and the licence should be able to be given to them. I do not think it is really necessary that a licence should be fixed on the radio itself, because what is going to happen is that some time when mummy and daddy buy the radio, the children will even sometimes break the radios, they will come and take off these licences, and then, when the parents come back, they will not be able to find the licences.

Again there is a point here, which I am not altogether sure I understand. There is a provision that if you have lost your licence then you will have to pay another Sh. 5 for the issue of another one. Now the Minister should be able to know that it will inconvenience our people very much because the Minister said in another section, which I do not think is very fair, that certain persons will be exempted, and they will be able to get a licence for Sh. 5. That being the case, if such a person loses his licence, for which he has paid Sh. 5, I do not see the point in his paying another Sh. 5 to get a new licence. It is understandable if the original licence cost about Sh. 50 or so that a person should pay Sh. 5 if he loses it; but I think it is a little too much if the original licence only cost Sh. 5 that one should have to pay another Sh. 5 to replace it.

Another thing I would like to comment on with regard to this Bill is that these exemptions—I think what the Minister should be able to do roughly is probably to ask a person for his graduated tax. If, for example, a person like myself, pays Sh. 600 tax, then I will automatically pay Sh. 20. But with our people at home, the chief, the sub-headmen, should be able to advise on this; they should be able to advise that such and such a man should only pay Sh. 5. I see here that the only person who can grant this exemption is the Minister. Now a person may come with only a little money; and the Minister should know that many of our people do not have money. But now that the technicians are making cheap but good radios, a person like this goes to a shop, he is not known; but he should be able to state that financially he is able to pay more. It would be a shame, for example, for a person like myself to go to a shop and tell the assistant, "Oh, I am a very poor man, and I want to pay only Sh. 5." And if I say something wrong, when the police officer comes to my home and finds that I have deceived the man from whom I bought my set, then he finds out that I have done something wrong; and I think there should be provision included here to stop people trying to deceive the men in the shops, saying they are poor, when actually they are able to afford it.

Now I see here that the subject of names is mentioned, that a licence must be in the name of a person. The Minister then should be able to advise me as to whether, when I am buying a family radio, I am going to specify the name of my wife or my own name or anyone living in my house, because I may be having two radios, all of which are in my name. I think what the Minister should do is to say that in the future there shall be a licence which has on it the number of the radio. So that if somebody sells me his radio, he should also give me the licence so that I do not have to go again and buy the new licence just because the radio has changed hands. I think that if the Minister would look into that, that would also help.

Another thing is that the Ministry intends that if somebody fails to pay for the licence, then the radio may be confiscated. If this is thought to be reasonable, well and good; but I think the Minister, in order to get more money from the people, should also say that if you do not repay your car loans, then you should forfeit your car. But this is not so. I think the Ministry should say that if a person has not paid a card should be given and after one week or one month, if this man has not got a licence, then he should be taken to court and be made to pay, let us say, three or four times the amount he should have originally paid. But this idea of confiscating the radio, I think it is too much, and I do not think the Minister should really insist that a person shall lose his property like that.

For example, Mr. Speaker, at a time when I have money I can buy my father a radio, worth about Sh. 500 or Sh. 600, and then tomorrow I do not have any money, and my father, who is supposed to pay only Sh. 5, because he is a poor man, is not able to pay. Then the Ministry will come and take away the radio which is worth Sh. 500. I think the people will think the Government are thieves. I think what should happen is what has been happening in the past, but I think that would be robbery, sanctioned by the Members of this House.

I think what should be done is if the person was to pay Sh. 5 and did not pay, that they should pay about Sh. 50 in the form of a fine so that they will know that they should pay on time, but they surely cannot take the radio. I think it is too much to take the radio away.

[Mr. Anylen]

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the Ministry and I hope that they will not allow any person other than the Chief Inspector of Police to come into the homes, because if you allow people to get below that rank to come into the homes of set owners, you may find that you will have thieves coming into these homes without identification and asking the owner of the house to produce a licence and then they may say "since you are not able to produce a licence we must take the radio", and later on, you find that these people were not policemen at all, but rather thieves, so, I say that these police officers should be in uniform. As you know, many of our mothers and fathers are illiterate and any person can come into their homes and present a card with a picture on it to them and take their radios if they are unable to produce a licence, so I think the best idea would be, as section 14 of the Bill says, "unless these gentlemen are of the rank not lower than that of a Chief Inspector of Police they should also be in uniform." I do not really believe that it is necessary to oppose the Bill, but I believe that this matter should be brought up for discussion so that Members can give their views and when the Ministry brings this Bill up for the First Reading, as has been the case with the Ministry of Agriculture, I believe it will be in order to incorporate some amendments into the Bill so that it does not bring unnecessary inconvenience to persons willing to pay for their radios. With those few remarks, I do not think it will be necessary to oppose the Bill.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. Having heard considerable repetition of several points on the Bill, I think the House is entitled to consider the clause now.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would point out that there is some repetition on a number of points. I hope that hon. Members will try to make new points only.

Mr. Jahari: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think we intend to oppose this Bill, but our intention is to try and correct the weaker points of the Bill. The intention of the Minister is all right and as the Minister has been doing a good job in clearing out all the rubbish which was in that Ministry and the Voice of Kenya also has done a wonderful job since it has taken over. We therefore hope that when we correct the few weaker points of this Bill the Minister will not misunderstand our intentions, which are to correct these weaker points thereby simplifying his work.

Mr. Speaker, first of all the duty of the Minister for Information is to enlighten the people, particularly of Kenya, with regard to all the plans and intentions, also with news of what is going on within the country and internationally. We believe that the simplest way to spread this news is through broadcasting and perhaps telecasting and therefore the first intention of the Minister should be to extend this news to the people of Kenya, at a minimal cost, but the Ministry should also be prepared to pay a little money for the cost of carrying on this department. That is why we accept the fact that we should not pay a fee for receiving the news and information transmitted to us through our radios, televisions, etc. from the Ministry, but on the other hand, we should not pay for this service in the same manner in which we pay for our daily newspapers.

The plans for collection as given by the K.B.C. were very bad, I must say, poorly organized and that is why you find today, that although we have some the Ministry is unable to collect even 50 per cent of the fees which they should be able to collect. First of all, it was because the fees were very high, Sh. 40 was a great deal of money to pay for a radio licence and I see here that the Minister has reduced it to Sh. 20 all around. There are still people with low incomes who will suffer a bit, because to them it means a matter of raising the fees of Sh. 20, but I think it has been an all round fair figure. I must say, Mr. Speaker, that it is a much better figure from that of 1962-65 and earnings have been raised and I believe that a fee of Sh. 20 will not be too much, but there is one aspect which is unfair, and that is with regard to those people who own more than one set. You will find, for instance, a Member of Parliament may have a radio in the house, and it is necessary that he have a radio in the car, and a radio in his pocket because he has to listen to the news, he has to listen to all broadcasts because you may hear through a broadcast over the radio that there has been an emergency meeting called, and if you do not have a radio handy, either somewhere in your pocket or in the car you may not know what is going on, and that is why I feel it is unfair for a person who owns more than one radio through necessity to pay Sh. 20 on each set.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Several Members have made this point already. It is still in order to say that you agree with them, but we do not want to have the argument all over again.

Mr. Jahari: There is one argument which no one has mentioned on that point and that is, Mr. Speaker, the type of broadcast is the same. You do not get different news on different radios, so

[Mr. Shikuku]

What payment, Mr. Deputy Speaker? Here the man has had a licence and probably it has been destroyed or lost. Has he got to pay again a certain sum of money to get another licence or is it that he has only got to pay a nominal or small amount as a sort of penalty for having lost the licence or having been careless with it? I would be very happy if the Minister would try and enlighten us on this. If it is a question of paying for the licence because you have lost it, then it is a bit too much; but one could pay a certain sum of money—let us say, Sh. 3 or Sh. 2 for having lost one's licence. And I do not think he would lose it the next time, Mr. Deputy Speaker, if the system I have suggested is adopted, whereby it is put beside his radio, after the payment of the amount required for the licence.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not think I have much on this. I hope the Minister will consider the few observations I have made. But before I finish, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I must say something about clause 15, where the case of obstruction is concerned. Here there will be a lot of misunderstanding because when these people come into your house, you might be having a bath in the bathroom; your radio set is on, these guys come and knock at your door and then you might be late in opening the door. And then they get furious when they come in and say "Why did you not open your door?" You will have the askaris getting tough with you and they might well sue you for obstruction, when actually you have not been obstructing them, it is merely a question of being unable to open the door.

But if we leave the clause as it is, namely, "a person willfully obstructs, intending hindering or resisting any person in the execution of his duty under this Act shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable to a term of imprisonment not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding Sh. 1,000 or both such imprisonment and fine," there will be a lot of misunderstanding; and I think that if the system I suggest could be adopted, this would not arise at all. If these people are going to pop in at any time, sometimes they are really a nuisance, then these people are going to get very vexed and might answer the officers rudely because they might knock on the door very loudly with their cards in their hands. But if we had a system of returns, whereby the people with sets have given in their addresses and they can be written to, then if such a man comes in, the person concerned or the owner of the set was then rude in those circumstances, he would be conscious of being rude and would be guilty of it.

But sometimes you have these people popping into your house in a very rude manner when you have paid for your licence; and then there will be a lot of trouble, with people being asked for obstruction, when in fact they were actually interfered with and the askaris were actually rude. Of course, we must have the addresses of all these people and they should only be contacted in the way the East African Power and Lighting Company gets in touch with the people who do not pay their electricity bills. If such a person fails to pay for two or three months, then that person will be dealt with. This would be much better than going round all the houses and stopping every Tom, Dick and Harry on the way, checking up on these licences.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to reserve my support.

Mr. Anylen: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, on a Bill like this, which requires the payment of certain sum of money, I know it is a bother; so before I start saying what I want to say, it is not that we do not want this Bill to go through, but that people do not have to pay for a licence for their radios, but we would like to give some wires. I hope the Minister is trying to take these points down so he can try to lessen the trouble as much as possible, while maintaining the payment of these licences.

I must, first of all, thank the Minister for saying that not everybody will be allowed to come into people's places, since the Minister has said, in clause 14, that "at all reasonable times, a licensing officer or police officer of or above the rank of chief inspector may enter the premises." I hope that people who have attained the rank of chief inspector will be responsible and therefore I hope they will not trouble people who have got licences or who might have not bought them merely because they have forgotten.

I must thank the Ministry for their past practices. The past practice has been very good to me, although I do not know whether other people found it as good. I remember one of these officers coming to my house; he knocked at the door, he did not want to come in; I walked out of my house and he showed me a card and asked me to read it. I read the card, and he said that if I had a radio licence I should fill the number in on the card, and if I did not have one I should go and buy one almost immediately and report it. If I did not do that within a specified time, they would come back again and prosecute me. I think this is very fair because, you know, a lot of people just forget; we are busy people at times and we forget. It is not that we do not have the money, but we just forget; and if they will come round and remind us, unless the fact is that we do not want to pay, we will pay immediately. I hope this will continue to work.

For example, my friend, the Minister for Education, may not be thinking about his radio licence at all, he may be thinking of something else altogether; it is not that he will not pay. But if someone can come to his house and remind him, even if he is not at home, that person can have a card in the house. Then when the Minister returns, he will see the card and he will say, "Oh, I forgot my licence, the time has expired." Then he will send someone to renew it. I think this could help very much.

Another thing I would like to say, Mr. Speaker, is that I think the Ministry here has been a little bit unkind to people who must have more than one radio. I see here from the Minister's speech that if you have got two radios you will pay for one and an officer who comes in will give you two licences, and you will not pay extra; I hope I am right in saying that. But then sometimes you do have two or three radios. For example, sometimes I stay in my car so I have got a radio in the car. Also at home I have got a small radio with which I can move around in the house; and I have got a big one. If my guests come, I offer it to them.

Honestly, the Minister should not make me pay for too many licences, because while I am using the big radio, I am not using the small one and when I am away from the house, I do not see that radio, I use the one in the car. Now I would like the Minister to make it clear that if, for example, I have brought one radio for my family and I am leaving it for them when I go away, then I think it would be understandable. But then to say that strictly you must pay for three if you have got three, I think that is a bit too much and I hope the Minister will be able to consider that and make sure that, in a given situation, you do not have to pay for too many licences, when actually you only use one radio at one time.

Again, Mr. Speaker, I do not see why a person who has got a television set, which has also got a radio, should pay twice, because you will find that he does not use the radio at the same time as the television. What the Minister should do is to let the Minister be listening to some of these points, because it will help him to get a good relationship between the Government and those who listen to the radio—what the Minister should probably do is: since it costs a little bit more to buy a television set, a person who has got a television set and a radio should pay for the television licence only, so that we make sure that no one uses television without paying any money.

That would be fair, because if the Minister can prove to us that a man who is listening to television will also listen to the radio, which is on at the same time as television, then that man should pay twice, but I do not see why one should pay twice otherwise. It is the same as asking me to pay twice for one windscreen, the one in front and the one behind, when I only use one at a time.

Now, Mr. Speaker, provision should be made; the Ministry should know that in the countryside we have got people who have got those old radios which require a Sh. 25 battery before they will work. Many of our people have got these radios and they have no money to buy a battery; they do not have the necessary Sh. 25. So these radios, many of them, as the Minister will have heard during the greetings programme, are like boxes. If somebody, therefore, should come and find that the radio is there but there is no battery—the owner is very poor and he used to have money, but now the money has gone and he cannot afford to change the older battery—then I do not think the Ministry should insist that the man pays for a licence, without his actually being able to use the radio. Even as regards road licences for cars; you do not have to get a licence for a car without wheels; you only have to get a road licence if the car is actually on the road. So I would be glad if it could be specified in an amendment later that if the radio is not in use—and I think these officers must be capable of seeing whether a radio is in use or not; they must be able to distinguish between one that is not being used and one that is nice and clean and in a prominent position and whose owner has merely removed the battery. I think someone of the standard of a chief inspector of police will be able to say whether such a radio has actually been in use or not.

Another point is the question of fixing the licences on the radios. The Minister, I think, is forgetting that the majority of our people live in thatched houses with bare floors, and you will find that there is a lot of dust. And he should also know that clean methods of using tables and other furniture of that kind are not very much used by our people at home. This may not be very difficult for people like the Minister and the Members here, but for our people at home,

[Mr. Shikuku]

When a man buys a radio, he will get a book with all the years stated in that book. It should be a small book which could be kept tidy, and the which could be kept inside the radio, and the receiving licences which will be issued after that will be able to be pasted lightly in this small booklet. It is better than having the licences pasted on the radio, which will make it look terrible, I hope. Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the hon. Minister will agree with me on this, because even his own set will look terrible. This also applies to the television sets. Television sets have so little space to put the licence, and therefore this little booklet will help as far as the receiving licences of these sets are concerned.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, which I would like to raise under section 9 (4), which says that:—

"A set seized and retained under this section shall be released to the owner or the person who had possession thereof on production of a valid receiving licence relating to such set, and such owner or possessor."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it so happens that some of the poor people, for example, the people from Butere and also the rural areas, are unable to pay for these licences, and sometimes it is difficult for a poor man or woman to pay these yearly receiving licences, which is Sh. 40, so I am told. Shall we pay more this time? Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I should give way in order that the Minister for Information can tell us what the correct amount is.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that it is better if the hon. Member carries on, and I will tell him all about it when I come to an answer.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you. Well I assume at the moment that the cost is Sh. 40. In subsection 4 it is only a question of when one person fails to pay, then what will happen to them? It does not say how much one has to pay, but nevertheless, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if it is a question of Sh. 40 being the fee, then it is too much for a person in the rural areas or the poor people to pay, because we also have to face the fact that the income of these people in the remote areas is so small that they cannot afford to pay Sh. 40 every year for a set, because the Personal Tax itself, which is Sh. 48 is sending a lot of them to prison because they are not able to pay. If they cannot pay their Sh. 48, then how can you expect them to pay Sh. 40? I think that this amount should be graded in accordance with how much a person earns. Only the people who are earning enough money to pay the Sh. 40 should be made to pay that amount and then the others who do not earn as much as the high class people, should only have to pay something in the region of Sh. 10 per year. What I feel, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is this, that if it is as it is stated in subsection 4, where it says that a person failing to pay these fees will have his or her set confiscated or taken over by the aitari or by the Government, then what will happen to that particular set when the particular person to whom it belongs, has still been unable to take it back, is the Minister prepared to tell us where this radio so taken will be sent? If it is going to be sold, then will the balance, after taking the money for the licence from it, be given back to the particular person? Confiscating a radio which may have cost anywhere in the region of Sh. 300 to Sh. 600, just because one has failed to pay Sh. 40 for the licence, is in itself too much, but I would be happy, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Minister would tell the House what would happen to such a set which had been taken if the particular person is unable to pay in order to get it back? If they have to sell it, then could the Minister assure the House that they would only take the Sh. 40 and give the remaining money to the owner of that particular set?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister seems to be a bit frivolous on this point:—

An hon. Member: So are you.

Mr. Shikuku: No, I am very serious, because I know what is going to happen. I would like to know:—

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sorry to interrupt, but I have noticed that the hon. Member, who is speaking tends to treat us to some frivolous exposition of the Bill which is clearly not written in the Bill. If he was to be more serious then perhaps we would be more serious too.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think the hon. Member was objecting to, as he says, you being frivolous with regards to the Bill.

Of course you are allowed to speak, strictly hon. Members can only stand up on a point of order, unless you give way to him, which you did.

Mr. Shikuku: I did not. Is that a point of order?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, it is not a point of order. He stood up and you gave way.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sorry I thought it was a point of order only to find that it is a point of information, which has been completely:—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Let us proceed.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may continue, I do not think that I am talking frivolously, I am being very serious and I am speaking the mind of the Butere people here. As the hon. Member is not representing any constituency, and he does not know what I am talking about.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You must stick to the point, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: I will thank you, Mr. Speaker. In clause 9 (5) where it states that:—

"A police officer of or above the rank of Chief Inspector, or a licensing officer, who has reason to believe that there is an unlicensed set in any premises and that any delay occasioned by obtaining a search warrant would substantially prejudice the investigation or such matter . . ."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that this clause should be done away with because when someone buys a set, and it appears to me that the hon. Minister agrees with me when I suggest this, that when someone buys a set, and he buys at the same time a licence, and also purchases a booklet, in which he could then have a place for a receiving licence for years. I do not think it will be wise for a police officer when he finds that such a radio is not licensed, he forces himself into the house. I suggest, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that when someone has a receiving licence for that year, then his returns are made and his name is noted, and then these people are supposed to submit their returns to the officer concerned, so that the people can always contact him wherever their set is, and this could be issued very efficiently. It is wrong, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to get this officer and have him travelling around all the houses, among those houses and when he comes in the face that you have paid your licence. He goes off, apologizes and probably he has interrupted you while you had visitors. I feel, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if these returns are made, the person's address is there, and if he does not pay, if he fails to pay for the licence, then this particular officer should go very definitely to the house of that particular man and ask him for a licence, after having warned him twice that he has not paid for his radio licence. I would not welcome people popping into my house and into the houses of people in Butere and harassing them for their receiving licences.

The hon. Minister is also aware that these people when they come look terrifying in their terrible uniforms, and they look foreign. It is internationally known that there are very few people who like seeing policemen, with the exception of Ministers, of course, but they do not keep them in the houses, they keep them at the gate, where they sit, then the Ministers do not have to look at them all the time.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other issue is in clause 10 of the Bill. Here it says that:—

"Any person possessing more than one sound receiving set, who holds a valid domestic comprehensive or domestic concessionary sound receiving licence must surrender such licence to a licensing officer who shall issue two domestic sound receiving licences in lieu of a domestic comprehensive licence . . ."

I do not understand this clause, Mr. Speaker, and perhaps the Minister would enlighten me. At the moment, the system is that if you have a licence for one radio, it covers all the sets you have. Is the Minister, in stating this here, trying to tell us that all those people who have got more than one radio have got to go back and have new licences issued, at no extra cost, because I do not quite understand whether, when you go you have got to pay for it. The system now is that if you have one radio, its licence covers one or two or four radios, any other number you have. I have three radios, and I have got a licence for one, and I was told it covered the other two as well. If this system is going to be changed, will the Minister tell the House whether all those with more than one radio will have to go back and then have licences for all the radios, all these documents.

This is very important. If it is going to be every set needing a licence, Mr. Speaker, then I think it is a bit unfair for an ordinary man who wishes to trade in radios. I think the present system should be carried on, except that we should have licences or documents to prove that we have paid for the first radio and therefore all the other radios, apart from the first radio, will be included, and you only get a kind of duplicate receipt to show that you paid for a licence for the first radio.

On the same page, Mr. Deputy Speaker, there is, clause 11, where it is stated:—

"If he is satisfied that any licence is lost or destroyed, a licensing officer shall, on payment of the prescribed fee, issue a certificate of issue of such licence to the licensee, and such certificate of issue shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be a licence."

out, but personally I feel that they should be included in these groups that are to have concessionary licences.

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, in section 17 I think the Minister for including a subsection on people who are not able to pay certain amounts of fees and who applied for exemption, but I hope, Mr. Speaker, it will be easier for these people to apply for this exemption. I cannot imagine somebody in Bustia who owns a set applying to somebody in Nairobi. I would like, Mr. Speaker, if chiefs are going to be included among licensing officers—that is, if the Minister agrees with me—or if they are not and this does not go through, at least the district commissioners will be allowed to give exemption to those people who feel they should apply for exemption.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, and believing that at the Committee stage the Minister will take into consideration certain points I have raised, I support the Bill.

Mr. Waritithi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Bill intends to provide control of the licensing of radios and televisions and I would say at the outset that it is a very welcome Bill and we hope that the Minister will be able to make use of the radio and television, after we give him the powers to collect revenue which will be forthcoming from the licences on radios and televisions.

It is appalling that under the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, we find that so many radios were used in 1963 without licences and I think it is important that people who get services from the Voice of Kenya—either through radio or television, should pay for it. On the other hand, I would say that whilst the members of the public have been asked to pay for licences, either for radio or television, they would expect to benefit greatly from the programmes which are put on the radio and television.

I would like to say that in television, for instance, I would prefer the Minister to make use of this medium in enabling the people of Kenya to know what is happening all over the country. There are many projects and developments which could be made use of greatly by being shown on television—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Waritithi, this Bill is concerned with the collection of revenue only. I am afraid.

Mr. Waritithi: I do not want to say much on that, I was just making a general remark on it.

To go further, Mr. Speaker, section 5, subsection (2), says, "No person shall be in possession of a set unless there is in force in relation to such set, and to such person a valid receiving licence issued under this Act". It then goes on to provide no dealer shall sell or let or hire without licence and no repairer shall accept. When this section is read with section 9, I fail to understand why the Minister requires power to be given to a police officer to seize a radio. I feel that sufficient powers are given under section 5, subsection (5), which makes provision for the punishment of any person who uses a radio without a licence. It is provided that he can be imprisoned for a term of six months or to a fine not exceeding Sh. 5,000 or to both such fine and such imprisonment. Then under section 9 you find that a police officer is given power to search and to require production of a radio, so that the police officer may search for a licence. If a licence is not available, it also provides that the radio can be seized by the police officer. Here, Mr. Speaker, I fail to understand why the Minister wants the powers under section 5 and also under section 9 where the radio is going to be seized from members of the public. I am not saying that somebody should keep a radio without a licence, but what I am saying is that under section 5 I feel quite satisfied that any person who uses a radio can be dealt with.

There are other commodities which require licensing and I do not think there is any other case where it is provided that the article has to be seized by the police for lack of a licence. So here I would request the Minister, which he comes to reply, to satisfy me as to why he has found it necessary to require the powers given under section 9.

To go further, Mr. Speaker, I would like to comment on the Schedule. As the hon. Member, Mr. Makokha has said, there are certain community concessionary sound receiving licences and the classes which are covered by these types of licences are categorized. We have in the country halls which are meant for recreation purposes, halls which are called in most parts of the country, and if the Minister has considered it fit country, to allow such concession to youth clubs, Maendeleo ya Wanawake and others, I would request him to consider to include social halls which have been set up in individual headquarters where people go for recreation and these are not used for any benefit whatsoever. So, Mr. Speaker, I would request the Minister to consider including social halls for recreation purposes and also, as my hon. friend said, secondary schools and other institutions.

I see that the implementation of this Bill will cost the taxpayers £5,500 but comparing that with the amount of revenue to be collected from the Bill I feel that this sum is worthwhile spending and we hope that the Minister, after having obtained these powers for collecting revenue, will see that radio and television services are improved to the benefit of the country.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have a few points here which require clarification from the Minister concerned, and there are some parts with which I totally disagree.

[The Deputy Speaker (Mr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Looking at the Bill as it is, on page 89; under clause 5, subsection 3 says, "No dealer shall sell, let or hire on transfer possession of a set to any person unless such person has produced or until he takes out a valid receiving licence in his own name and relating to such a set." Mr. Deputy Speaker, here is a problem which is going to affect most of the people, particularly in the rural areas. I hope the Minister has not quite forgotten that life in the rural areas is quite different from the life in the town. It so happens, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that when you buy a set here in Nairobi, you go home with it and probably your mother would like to have it or your father-in-law or mother-in-law, who know nothing about these licences. If this is applied, it means that if that radio goes out of order, while the son is in Nairobi, whoever has the set will not be able to repair that particular radio just because the son is away in Nairobi. I am of the opinion, Mr. Deputy Speaker, on the question of a dealer repairing or selling a radio, that it is enough for that particular dealer to sell or repair a radio provided that he has a licence, and I do hope they all apply for a licence to repair. But if the dealer is not going to sell or repair the radio of somebody who has brought it to him, then that is a bit too much. I personally have three radios—one in my car, one in my house and the other with my mother—for which I have licences. But it so happens that one can lose these and it becomes very difficult at times to find the receipts of the radios I have bought; I can hardly find them even today. But, this does not mean that I will not have these radios repaired if they go wrong. That is why I am trying to raise the point that this question of refusing the dealer the opportunity to repair the radio should not arise at all but it should be that the dealer must have a licence to repair.

As far as the question of the radios being sent to the dealer is concerned, the particular person who buys the radio shall only buy from the dealer who is licensed and who will be giving returns to the Government and, therefore, when the person buys a radio from the dealer, he will automatically be given a licence before he gets that radio. That is the only way of helping the people, because some of us are very good at losing documents, particularly when we have so many papers to handle.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, of course that goes also for subclass 4 of clause 5 which says, "No repairer shall accept from any person a set for repair, or after repairing it deliver a set to any person unless such person has produced a valid receiving licence in his own name and relating to such set." Of course, a receiving licence should be issued at the same time as the radio is being sold. I think it would be easier for the Government, if when a person buys a radio, before the radio is delivered to him, he also buys the receiving licence, so that he does not have to be bothered later on. I would hate very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker, to see an askari of the hon. Minister for information coming and knocking at my door when I am listening to a very good record and then he asks me for the licence; I do not like this embarrassment. I think it can be safeguarded.

That is one of the contributions I wanted to make, Mr. Deputy Speaker, and I hope the Minister agrees with me that this should be done that way.

The other issue is in connexion with clause 9, subsection (1), where it says, "Every set shall at all times have attached to it a valid receiving licence . . ." Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think this is getting rather too much. A radio is supposed to be a very polished sort of container with machines in it and it looks very beautiful, but I just do not know how it would look if you have licences pasted on one side of the radio. Of course, I suppose the Minister is aware that we have to pay for receiving licences every year. If it is so, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it means that licences for 1964 will be fixed somewhere, then for 1965 they will be fixed somewhere, and in 1966 it will be pasted somewhere else, and in the end we will find that the whole radio is covered in nothing but receiving licences. I do not think this is logical and sensible at all. I am of the opinion that this question of licences being pasted on the radios looks odd and almost irresponsible, because it will look terrible to have a nice, beautiful set with receiving licences pasted all over it. Here I feel that we must not have these receiving licences pasted on at all, but a book should be introduced with dealers.

[The Minister for Commerce and Industry]

As far as my hon. predecessor in the Ministry is concerned, the point is that if we do accept this constitutional violation, then the position will be that the law we are trying to pass will not be able to operate because it will be in conflict with our Constitution. Therefore we will not have been doing ourselves any good at all by going against the provisions of the Constitution.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I gather that hon. Member wish to hear what procedure is available before I put the question. I cannot add much to what I have already said, I am afraid. If the House now disagrees with this amendment and insists on its own amendment, then there is only one move that can be taken immediately under our Standing Orders, and that is reference to a Joint Committee, consisting of representatives of both Houses appointed by the Sessional Committees of both Houses. Such a joint committee makes a report to the Houses, and if it is unanimous, and the Houses accept the report, then that report takes effect. If, in this case, the Joint Committee reported that, after all, the Senate amendment should be withdrawn, it would be withdrawn and the Bill would go through. There would not be very much danger in that procedure, if it were known from the Senate before hand that they were taking that line.

If, on the other hand, the Joint Committee made a report which the House found it could not accept, then the Bill would have to be withdrawn.

There is another alternative, not yet available to us, which might be considered by our Sessional Committee, and that is the amendment of our Standing Orders to enable the return of the Bill to the Senate at their request. It would have to be accompanied by a similar amendment of the Senate Standing Orders. That alternative could easily be considered by our Sessional Committee, even this evening.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): On a point of clarification, Mr. Speaker, if I understand quite correctly, I believe that this Joint Committee of both Houses will have to consider this Bill, if it is indeed referred to this committee, and the report would have to be submitted to both Houses, or to this House, within six months. Now this would mean that some other discussion could have been introduced in the same report, thus meaning that this Bill will never become law until after six months or seven months or something of that kind.

Now is there no procedure whereby, if it is the Standing Order which lays down this period of six months, we could amend that Standing Order to make the time less than six months, so that we can speed up this matter, since this is our first experience of Bills being referred to the Senate, and we never had this kind of procedure before?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no period of six months which has to elapse before the Joint Committee reports. I think the hon. Member is confusing this with another Standing Order, which says that this House can resolve that consideration of the amendment be delayed for six months. The Joint Committee could do as soon as it is appointed, and report as quickly as it is disposed to do so.

I do not think I can tell the House any more. (Question of the Senate amendment put and negatived)

(Ordered that the Clerk acquaint the Senate with the decision of the House on their amendment thereto)

BILLS

Second Reading

THE BROADCAST RECEIVING (LICENSING) BILL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members will recall that we had at the close of business yesterday proposed the question that this Bill now be read a Second Time.

Mr. Makokha: Thank you Mr. Speaker. This is not a particularly bad Bill. As the Minister said yesterday the purpose is to see that every set will have a licence and also to see that licences are attached to sets, but I have various criticisms of this Bill, which I would like to see amended at committee stage. But before I come to this, I would like to say a few words on interpretation. Now, first the word "repairer". Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hope that with regard to the word "repairer" the technical definition will be word "repairer" who is a person who adhered to because I know a lot of people who repair radios as a hobby, but who do not repair radios as a trade and whose business is not the repair of radios, but they are able to do so because it is their hobby. I therefore hope that the word "repairer" will be clarified so that people will not be unnecessarily penalized.

(Mr. Makokha)

Another point that I am seeking clarification on is with regard to the word "sets". I do not, and this may be due to the fact that I am not a learned person as a lawyer, but I do not see anything in the Bill which says that broken or spent radios or sets which have already been scrapped, will not require a licence. I would therefore like, unless the Minister convinces me otherwise, that this Bill contains a subsection or a section that will ban the licensing officer or the police from demanding licences from those people who own radios which have been scrapped and which are not in a working condition.

Another point that I wish to bring up at this time is section 4. Appointment of Licensing Officer will be the Director of Broadcasting and the chief commissioner. I would personally like to see Mr. Speaker, chiefs included because out of the country, the chiefs know better than anyone else the number of people owning sets, thus they will be able to help the Ministry to collect more tax from people owning sets. I remember, just to give an example, Mr. Speaker, that at the moment in my district there is complete confusion with regard to graduated personal tax, because the district commissioners including the chiefs still believe that it is the responsibility of the county councils and the county councils say that if we may have the same problem here, unless we clearly define that chiefs are also taxing officers.

Now, with regard to subsection 4, in this subsection, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Bill is declaring a war between repairers and owners of the sets, because in that subsection it says a repairer of a set is not to return a set to the owner, unless and until the owner produces a licence for that set. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must say, that I do not see any need for this because in section 9 we have already given power to the police officers to search the premises and ask for licences, so, I would therefore beg to the Minister, unless he can get a very good reason for this, to remove that particular subsection from section 5.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I now come to section 8, which deals with the duration of licences. I see in the Schedule that some fees or licences cost as much as Sh. 200, others are Sh. 100. I do not see any reason for not allowing licences to be purchased annually, so that a person who has not got a Sh. 100 there and then, can pay Sh. 50 for the first six months and the remaining Sh. 50 for the following six months. I have found, that in my home particularly that taxes seem to fall due at the same time, so you will find that you will have a person paying, graduated personal tax, school fees and more than likely, at the same time he will be required to pay the tax on his set licence and therefore that particular person may have to pay as much as Sh. 900 or Sh. 1,000 in taxes all at one time, so that is why I ask the Minister to reconsider and perhaps allow the licence fees amounting to large sums to be paid bi-annually or quarterly, if possible.

With regard to section 9, subsection 1, we have a subsection requiring that these licences must be attached to the sets. Here, Mr. Speaker, I must say I disagree and I would like to see this requirement removed, unless the Minister tells me that he is going to make these licences from plastic or metal so that you can tie it to the set, but if it is a piece of paper, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is going to be a nuisance, because children are likely to damage it or soil it. I believe that most set owners are capable of looking after their licences and are able to keep them within reach in case a police officer comes into their homes and demands to see it. I am sure they would be able to locate these licences and present them upon request without necessarily having them attached to the set. I believe the Minister is well aware of the size of some of these sets. Some of them are so small you can put them into your pocket easily, now if you are required to paste this paper licence on to the set, I doubt if it will last very long.

Now, section 12, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I take to be very harsh and very unfair in the way it is drafted in this section. It says where a dealer or repairer is refused a licence by the licensing officer, he may appeal to the Minister, but the Minister has the last word as to whether the repairer is allowed to have a licence. Should the Minister concur with the Chief Licensing Officer, the poor dealer or repairer has no other place to go to, so I feel, Mr. Speaker, that this is very harsh; in fact we may be killing the goose that lays the golden egg. I feel that if the Minister should concur with the Chief Licensing Officer the dealer or repairer should be allowed to go to a court, if not a court of law, perhaps another court should be set up where these people could take their grievances.

Now, as to the Schedule, Mr. Speaker, I see that we have groups where concessionary licences will be issued, but in both these groups I see that primary and intermediate schools are allowed to have concessionary licences, but for some reason or other, I do not see secondary schools and teachers' training colleges included, perhaps the Minister has a reason for leaving secondary schools and teachers' training colleges

[The Minister for Commerce and Industry] would necessarily mean a Constitutional amendment, not a simple legislative process, and therefore if you were to accept what the Senate has said, we would, in fact, be considering a Constitutional amendment giving powers to the Senate to control financial measures which up to now, have been left to the House of Representatives.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I am unable to recommend the Senate's amendment, and we must insist on the position taken by the House previously.

Mr. Warlthi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is, I think, the second time we have had to discuss an amendment, sent back by the Senate, which touches on constitutional provisions. And I would ask the Government to try and explain the position. If it is a constitutional provision, I fall to see why the Upper House should insist on an amendment which is against the Constitution and I believe it is the duty of the Government to use any machinery which may be available to show, not that we reject or do not respect the Upper House, that some of the amendments they insist upon cannot be accepted.

In supporting what the Minister has said, I would really request the Government to explain the position, otherwise it will appear as if we are having a tug-of-war with the Upper House, and that is not the case.

Mr. Ngala-Ahoki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, before the Minister explains the position, I would just remind hon. Members that I doubt whether the Minister will explain the position any more fully than has already been done by the Speaker, about the reasons for not returning this amendment to the Senate, because it does not appear anywhere in the Standing Orders that such an amendment can be returned to the Senate again, that since this is the second time the Senate has returned this amendment, this House cannot return it to the Senate a third time.

May I just make my position clear, now, if this is the second time that the Senate has insisted on getting these clauses amended, and if there is anywhere in our Constitution a clause which allows the Minister from this House to refer it back to the Senate, I think it would be a good idea if we did refer it back to the Senate, this time to show them that it will not pay to keep on insisting having these amendments, which will make this House a party to the position of having to send it back again. That is the point that the Senators should learn; the Senators should learn that it is not in our Constitution and that, when they send an amendment back to this House and insist on it, this House will have no regard for their intentions, except to reject the idea of sending it back to the Senate and therefore let the Bill lie dormant. This explanation is required to be understood by the Senate, and if this is the second time that they have sent this Bill back, I would like to ask the Minister, just merely for teaching purposes, to send it back, to advise the Senate and let the Senate this time know that they have got to accept what was in the original Bill.

That is all I have to say, and I hope the Minister will clarify this issue.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): With regard to procedure, I must explain again that there is no provision in our Standing Orders or in those of the Senate, for the Bill to be sent back to the Senate after it has been twice to and fro. The only further move available immediately is reference to a Joint Committee.

That does not prevent some amendment to Standing Orders, if recommended by the Sessional Committee, and accepted by this House and by the Senate, which would provide for a Bill going back yet again to one House or the other, if the House, of its own volition, invites it. There will have to be a limit to it; one cannot have Bills going to and fro an unlimited number of times, but the Sessional Committee might like to consider an amendment to Standing Orders, in consultation with the Senate, and in a case like that of the Kenya Meat Commission (Amendment) Bill, we know that the Senate would like to have it back and withdraw their amendment.

This may occur on future occasions, but at the present moment it is simply a case of this House agreeing or disagreeing with the Senate amendments. I should point out that, in insisting on their amendment, the Senate have also disagreed with the amendment which was subsequently made by this House, when their own amendment first came back here.

If the House now disagrees with the Senate amendment, I think it is implicit that the House still insists on the amendment which this House made.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Muisoi): I would like to know, on a point of clarification, Mr. Speaker, in this respect whether it is not possible—since we understand that the Bill has been sent back a second time from the Senate, and since this procedure is known to the Senate and also to the Ministers responsible for such Bills—for them to, first of all, move the Bill to the Senate the second time it is returned

[The Assistant Minister for Education] from this House and explain to them the position, so that when it is returned here we could bear the reasons why the Senate has insisted on their amendment. This is because when the Bill is brought back here at this stage, we do not hear any mention of whether the Senate were given an explanation as to the actual reasons why the Bill should not be amended by the Senate, thereby causing it to be unacceptable to the House of Representatives.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): When the Senate returns the Bill to this House with amendments, or when they are insisting on these amendments, it is accompanied by a copy of the Votes and Proceedings of the Senate, briefly recording why. Of course, HANSARD is available for hon. Members to study in detail what sort of argument was on the occasion of the Senate debate. I would suggest, if hon. Members are interested in these reasons, then they should study the HANSARD for the full report.

Mr. Muisoi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would ask the Minister for Commerce and Industry, who is in charge of this Bill, in order not to afford any further delay, to accept the Senate amendment because the two Houses of Parliament are the ones that constitute the authority together to make the laws of Kenya. Now, if one of the two Houses disagrees with the other, that is, if the Senate disagrees with what the Lower House does, and their argument is that we should replace the words "House of Representatives" with the words "National Assembly", this should not meet with any serious objection from the Members of the Lower House or from the Minister himself.

I am sure that the Minister, like all other hon. Members who are interested in speeding up the industrial development of this country, would not like to see this Bill not becoming law; and I would therefore urge my colleague—

AN hon. Member: What about the Constitution?

Mr. Muisoi: Well, if the Constitution does not cover the two Houses then that Constitution is wrong somewhere, and, in fact, that portion should have been included in the amendment Bills to the Constitution.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether there is any point in making a comment on what the hon. Member said. There are two Houses and the functions of both Houses are clearly set out in the Constitution. Section 60 restricts the functions of the Senate, and therefore they are unable to do what they would like with this Bill, because their powers are restricted. Section 60 imposes restrictions with regard to certain financial matters as far as the Senate is concerned. Financial matters are matters for the Lower House.

Mr. Muisoi: Mr. Speaker, Sir,—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You cannot speak again, Mr. Muisoi.

Mr. Muisoi: But, Mr. Speaker, I thought we were in Committee.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If you were in Committee, I should not be sitting in this Chair.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that being the case, could the Attorney-General then explain—or probably the Minister for Commerce and Industry—as to how much he did to explain the position of the Constitution to the Senate. It does look as if the Senate is determined to delay this Bill; and, as far as some of us are concerned, industrial development in some parts of Kenya is absolutely essential and very urgent. And to try and delay the Bill or keep it dormant for some time would mean some delay in the industrial development of some areas.

I would like the Minister to try and give us an idea of what he intends to do about this and how much he has already done.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If no other hon. Member wishes to speak, I think it is right for the Minister to speak by way of reply.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiavo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will be very brief. This Bill was introduced in the House by myself in person and then, when an amendment came up and was taken to the Senate, it was introduced there by my Assistant Minister, who is himself a Senator.

The point, however, is that from the points you have indicated, Sir, to us in terms of procedure, we would seek guidance as to how we could amend the Standing Orders in order to enable the Senate to withdraw its objections to the line we have taken. I have also the same feeling as my hon. friend, Mr. Osogo, that some discussions with the Senators, before we reach the Floor of the House, will enable the Senators to withdraw their insistence and to allow the Bill to pass. So we will be seeking your guidance as to how to amend the Standing Orders, in order that we can have this matter taken back again to the Senate; and this time, I am sure, it would meet with their approval.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I beg to move that the Committee doth report to the House its consideration of the Pensions (Amendment) Bill without amendment, the Trade Marks (Amendment) Bill with amendment and the Nurses, Midwives and Health Visitors Bill without amendment.

THE TRADE MARKS (AMENDMENT) BILL

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to report that a Committee of the whole House has considered the Trade Marks (Amendment) Bill and its approval thereof with amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I understand that the amendments are so small that the House will probably agree to the consideration of the Report today.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to move that the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Report.

Dr. De Souza seconded.

THE KENYA MEAT COMMISSION (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now consider the Senate insistence on the amendments of the Kenya Meat Commission (Amendment) Bill.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo) seconded.
(Question proposed)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Probably Mr. Osogo you would like to me put that question, then you will be able to say whether you agree or disagree.

(Question that the Senate amendments be now considered again, put and agreed to)

Clause 2 read—

That clause 2 (a) be amended by inserting the following words after the word "thereof"—

"but excludes dairy cattle and wool sheep".

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have looked at this clause and the Government has decided not to agree with the Senate insistence on this clause, because the Senate has overlooked the fact that dairy cattle and wool sheep grow old, and when they grow old they do not change, they still remain the dairy cattle and the wool sheep, and as such they will have to be sent to the Kenya Meat Commission for slaughtering. So we cannot accept the Senate insistence, because of this reason.

If I may remind the House here that we have given instructions to the Kenya Meat Commission not to slaughter young dairy cattle and young wool sheep, so this amendment which is axially to be enclosed in the Bill does not arise at this time.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do not agree with the Senate insistence upon this clause.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo) seconded.
(Question of the Senate amendment put and negatived)

Clause 7 read—

That clause 7 be amended by deleting subsection 24 (1) to (3).

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to inform the House that the Government do not agree with the Senate insistence on this clause too, because the meat industry in this country will be absolutely jeopardized if we passed this section of clause 7, and as such I have spoken to a few hon. Senators and they have already agreed with us that we should not jeopardize the future meat industry of this country and therefore, the clause should remain in the Bill.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the House not to agree with the Senate insistence on this clause.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): In putting the question I must point out there is some difficulty here, the Senate, if after returning an amendment for the second time with their insistence upon it, then say that they do not want to insist upon it. There is no procedure under our Standing Orders for sending a Bill back to them again, for them to have third thoughts. In fact, the only procedure available, if anything is to be done, is to have a reference to a Joint Committee of the two Houses; otherwise, the Bill will just have to lie dormant until a certain time has lapsed before this House can put it through.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo) seconded.
(Question of the Senate amendment put and negatived)

(Ordered that the Clerk acquaint the Senate with decision of the House on their amendments thereto)

THE INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiako): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now consider the Senate insistence on their amendment of the Industrial Development (Amendment) Bill.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo) seconded.
(Question proposed)

(Question that the Senate amendment be now considered again put and agreed to)

Clause 2 read—

That clause 2 of the Bill be amended by deleting the words "House of Representatives" appearing therein and inserting in place thereof the words "National Assembly".

(Question proposed)

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiako): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am afraid that I will have to ask the House to reject the Senate amendment. As I pointed out last time that the Senate amendment of this Bill, the section referring to the Legislative Council, one section has to deal with the question of the Minister for Finance giving money to the Industrial Development Corporation, and in accordance to our Constitution that power is left solely to the House of Representatives. The amendment indicated by the Senate wrinkle and as in the case of one particular lady who had to discontinue the use of this product because of financial inability to keep up the treatments, as the product must be applied daily, and I hope the Minister has heard that, the skin becomes hopeless.

Now, I understand, from an hon. Member here, Mr. Alexander, that this product is only to be applied to the chest. May I point out that I did not look at her chest but I did look at her face and it was only through her courage in pointing out this matter to me that I learned of the ill effects this product has on men and women. I feel Sir, that the use of this particular product to lighten the skin is ridiculous as you will on occasion find some people with brown faces, black chests, brown hands and black arms and legs, they look like a leopard.

Mr. Speaker, I find, upon looking at clause 13 that any person who sells a cosmetic which has in it any substance that may cause harm to the user when the cosmetic is applied, I feel this is a very good clause, but when you look at the clause to which I just referred, clause 2, page 364, I do not see how this is going to work. Here, we are allowing the question of altering the complexion, skin hair, and eyes or teeth, but at the same time in clause 13 we are prohibiting it. Why can we not do away with the subsection here which permits cosmetics to be used which change the complexion so that we can enforce clause 13.

When a person changes their complexion as this woman changed her complexion, if there are any ill effects, it is forbidden to sue because the sale of these products has been allowed in clause 2. I hope the Minister sees my point. I do not see why we should allow this. Either we should delete clause 2, so as to enforce 13 or vice versa. The deletion of clause 13, I feel would not be a very good idea as it should be put into full effect.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid, Mr. Shikuku, that there is no point at this stage in suggesting detailed amendments of the Bill. Just the question whether you are in favour of the general principle is all that you can discuss on a Third Reading.

Mr. Shikuku: I hope the Minister will take note of that.

As far as the drugs are concerned, Mr. Speaker, I do not think I have much to say, apart from saying that there are drugs in this country which some of the women, when they get into trouble, try to use. For example, we have had some instances where women have tried to get some drugs in order to get rid of something in their belly and continue to look young and attractive to us.

An hon. Member: To us?

Mr. Shikuku: All the men, including the Assistant Minister for Education, the hon. Mr. Mutiso.

Under these drugs, Mr. Speaker, I do not seem to see a clause—I stand for correction on that one—strictly playing down this question of using other drugs for lessening the population of Kenya. As you said, Mr. Speaker, it is impossible to talk on any measure, alteration or amendment in the Third Reading. I will just have to be content with airing these views and I hope the Minister, when replying, will seriously take into account these observations I have made on this question of Amby and I hope there are more other drugs which are being applied. I would repeat, Mr. Speaker, that I am prepared to offer my services to this committee because I am completely fed-up with the present attitude of some of the Africans trying to use most of these chemicals to try and get themselves messed up; their hair is completely finished, some of them are going bald and they seem to be suffering from an inferiority complex. In view of the fact that we are now a republic, governing the country, we should do away with these sorts of cosmetics which are costing more—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, I think your hon. friend has attended the session rather in bits, but had he been here during all the stages, he might have been contented about cosmetics and other things. But I would like to say that he should not worry about cosmetics here because the whole aim of the Bill is to see that if any cosmetics are sold they are good ones, like the ones we knew before Amby came into the field. If any appliance is used for changing the colour of the skin, it should not be injurious to the skin. Therefore, if Amby or any other drug is causing the skin to go wrong or causing the skin to wrinkle and if we can prove, chemically that that is the case, we shall deal with Amby under C, and see that it is not sold.

Secondly, I would like to assure the hon. Member, who seems to be worried about the population of Kenya, that the questions of drugs which can cause harm in that way is not included in this Bill, that one would come under the general criminal laws of Kenya. If the hon. Member cares to study the criminal laws of Kenya, he will come across a section which deals with drugs which can be dangerous in that particular manner, and anybody who uses such drugs is able to be dealt with under the general laws. However, in this case we are talking about those drugs which may be used, as it says here, in packing food, in preserving food and yet which can be proved to be dangerous to the body. The whole aim of this Bill is to save the people who eat food, who use drugs and who use certain chemicals from those foods, drugs and chemicals which are bad. We are not here going into the whole moral issue of whether changing your skin to look a bit browner is wrong or right; that is a matter of opinion and this is not the place for it. But we shall see that our people are not harmed by any particular drug and when this Bill becomes law, the hon. Member can rest assured that we shall examine some of the articles he has mentioned with a view to seeing whether they are good for our people or otherwise.

[The Assistant Minister for Education]

In answer to part (b), in 1964 regional authorities were responsible for the approval and registration of secondary schools in the various regions. It appears, however, that no region had established a system of issuing registration certificates to schools, after the regions had approved them. The Ministry is now in the process of issuing registration certificates to all new schools when they have satisfied the requirements of the law. Therefore, it is not possible, at present, to give the figures which the hon. Member has requested.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply to the last part of the question, he says that the figures are not available. Would he agree that, in a question which was asked privately, the Ministry told me there were forty-nine secondary schools and that Government was going to take over nine of these this year as Government-aided secondary schools?

Mr. Koochehah: Mr. Speaker, I did not imply in my reply at all that the Government has not yet taken over any school which was previously not aided and started giving it aid. So my friend's question actually does not arise.

Question No. 988AFRICAN QUALIFIED DOCTORS FOR NYANZA GENERAL HOSPITAL

Mr. Bala asked the Minister for Health and Housing if he would (a) tell the House why Nyanza General Hospital had comparatively few qualified doctors and (b) why it was not possible, in view of the Africanization programme in the country, to have African doctors regularly in that hospital.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is considered that the Kisumu General Hospital is rather fortunate in having a good number of senior qualified staff. Action has been taken to strengthen the present team of doctors with two medical officers.

In answer to part (b), there are comparatively few African doctors in Kenya and the vacancies which have all the time been available have been offered and taken by those African who have completed their training and acquired adequate experience. We do not have enough African doctors to be able to post at least one to each hospital regularly.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, for the House to be satisfied that Kisumu is fortunate to have qualified and senior doctors, could the Assistant Minister tell us the qualifications and the seniority of these doctors at the Kisumu Hospital. How senior they are and how qualified they are.

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, they are fully qualified.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to draw the attention of the Assistant Minister to the fact that carelessness will not help him or us. I asked for the seniority of doctors at Kisumu Hospital and their qualifications. This is what the Assistant Minister should reply.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Sir, at one time we did discuss here and I think you did rule that it is not correct to discuss individual civil servants in the House. Now, what I would like to know is, is it correct to ask a question on behalf of one civil servant?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. It is certainly not right, Mr. Shikuku, to insinuate when a Member asks a question that he is biased by personal considerations. As regards to raising a question protecting civil servants we have a Standing Order prohibiting Questions which imply a charge against any individual, whether or not a civil servant, without very clear grounds. But, hon. Members are entitled to ask questions as to the standing, seniority and qualifications of staff. They must not make charges against them, but they must be allowed to ask questions like this in order to fulfill their obligations.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Kisumu has a physician and a provincial surgeon and in addition there is a maternity and child health station and other medical officers.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time to move on now, but before doing so, I believe Mr. Angaine has a personal statement by way of further information, on Question 991 asked yesterday.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angaine): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have been to my Commissioner of Lands and he has told me that this will be ready by next week, so, I shall report my findings to the House at that time.

BILLConsideration of Report and Third Reading*THE FOOD, DRUGS AND CHEMICAL SUBSTANCES BILL

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): Mr. Speaker, Sir, a Committee of the House has considered the Food, Drugs and Chemical Substances Bill and has approved the same with amendments. I beg to move that the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Report.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo) seconded.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was wondering if it would be in order for me to speak on this, because I did—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If you want to move that the Bill be referred back to the committee, now is the time to propose the amendment.

If you merely want to discuss the general principles of the Bill, again, you should leave that until the Third Reading.

(Question put and agreed to)

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Food, Drugs and Chemical Substances Bill be now read a Third Time.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiwo) seconded.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, much has been touched upon by various Members. Unfortunately, due to unforeseen circumstances I was unable to be in the House, but I have at this time a small point which I would like to raise which is in connexion with cosmetics.

I would like to refer you to page 364, Item No. 2, which states "Cosmetics includes any substance or mixture of substances, manufactured, sold, or represented for use in cleansing, improving or altering the complexion, skin, hair, eyes or teeth and includes deodorants and perfumes."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have a point here I would like to raise because I believe that it is of great importance. Here, we have a country of black men and women, also coloured, whites and browns, but when it comes to the question of whitening the skin, Mr. Speaker, it has become a craze among the black people of this country to try and lighten their skins. I think we of this House would be doing the country a service if we add our views opposing the present practice of the people in the country who are trying to change their beautiful skins which are God-given.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I am afraid not, Mr. Shikuku. Not on this Bill. It has already been pointed out to hon. Members several times on the Second Reading, that this Bill is concerned with drugs and other things injurious to health, and we cannot use this as an opportunity to discuss the merits of the use of cosmetics; we can only debate the protection of the public against the dangerous cosmetics.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. If I may say so, Mr. Speaker, the danger in the use of this cosmetic is that it may be injurious to the skin and the hair of our people.

The other day, I met two ladies who had been using a skin lightening product called "Amby Extra", which is applied to the face and the ladies who, after discontinuing the use of this chemical on their faces found that they were wrinkling. I was wondering, if the Minister for Health and Housing was aware of this product and also aware that there is on the market "Amby Special" for men. Now, I have seen a number of men who have used this product, and I must say that they do look terribly awkward. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that these are cases which the Minister for Health and Housing should look into and I would not mind offering my services to the committee, which will be appointed to look into the question of this particular cosmetic.

In the case of these women, I believe that they suffered from an inferiority complex, but that—

An hon. Member: How old was she?

Mr. Shikuku: Well, she was a woman, and you know you can never get that type of information out of a woman! But, what I am trying to point out is, that it is not important that she was suffering from an inferiority complex, the important thing is the effect which these drugs and chemicals or this particular product "Amby Extra" had. What I want to know, is are we going to continue to allow the sale of this product? If we are going to permit the sale of any products, they should be those which will not alter our skin and then render them to wrinkling before our people reach the age where the skin wrinkles normally.

As I mentioned before, people who do use these products find that when they discontinue the use of these products their skins begin to

[Mr. Mallada]

If the answer was in the affirmative, which did the Minister envisage rectifying this anomaly to enable handling of Kenya's products either by a Government body or by Kenya agents in Kenya.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I can only refer to the commodity which comes under my control, and the answer is negative. My hon. Minister for Agriculture and my hon. colleague the Minister for Commerce and Industry, it is their responsibility on marketing of some of the Kenya products and therefore my Ministry does not cater for all the Kenya products.

Mr. Kadi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, according to the question it refers to all Kenya products. I wonder whether the Minister is trying to evade this question, because, Mr. Speaker, Sir, as far as I know, we have—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry, Mr. Kadi, you cannot raise this as a point of order. I have said so many times in this House the Minister can evade answering a question altogether if he likes. All the hon. Members can do is ask supplementary questions.

Mr. Mallada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, when I submitted this question, I had in mind such products as agricultural products, and I realized yesterday that these do not fall within the portfolios of the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing and he has confirmed that in this particular case. Now, as it is not possible to get a satisfactory answer from him, not through his own fault, what channel is therefore open to me to get it replied to by the proper Minister?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that, if the Minister says that he cannot answer it at all, then it is in order to ask it again of the appropriate Ministry on another occasion.

TELEVISION RECEPTION AT KISUMU

Mr. Jamal asked the Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism whether he was aware that television reception in Kisumu was far from satisfactory; and, secondly, if he had any plans to post an engineer to Kisumu to watch the situation from time to time.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The reports from Kisumu indicate that since modifications to the aerial system were carried out in Timboroa early in December 1964, reception has greatly improved. During the past few days, there have been a number of severe thunderstorms and this has caused interference to reception.

There is a resident engineer in Kisumu who reports regularly on reception on both sound and television broadcasts, and he is always available to discuss any problems with representatives of Government, trade or members of the public.

It might be noted that a number of developments, associated with the reception for the Kisumu area, are included in the Ministry's Development Plan and are at present under active consideration.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that the presence of the engineer at Kisumu is known only to the engineer himself and will he therefore make arrangements for his presence to be made known to the members of the general public?

Mr. Achieng-Onyko: I have already made it known now, Sir.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, in which he indicated that his engineers had improved the standard of television broadcasts, is he aware that around about 8 o'clock every evening it is practically impossible to hear anything from the Voice of Kenya, particularly the Swahili section. The sound, I mean.

Mr. Achieng-Onyko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not agree because I have been to Kisumu; I have a home in Kisumu, and the reception usually is very good indeed. I think some other Members can also bear me out on this.

Question No. 1002

POSTS OF DIVISIONAL ASSISTANTS

Mr. Bala asked the President if he would consider creating the post of divisional assistant to assist the district officers in each division.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. In view of the fact that we have district assistants who assist district officers in charge of divisions, the Government does not intend to appoint division assistants.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is he not aware that the district assistants in one division normally ask for so many Government requirements, and therefore many people do not find them in the offices; and that therefore the creation of these posts is very necessary, if the Government wants the administrative machinery to be efficient?

Mr. Nyamweya: I am aware of that, Mr. Speaker. I am also aware that in certain districts we are understaffed and we are looking into the matter of trying to fill up the gaps as soon as we are able to get the necessary personnel. What the Government hopes to do is not to create a new office of division assistant, which may mean that we will be reducing the standard of the people who are required to do our work of administration in the field.

Mr. Lorema: Arising from that reply, would the Assistant Minister tell the House whether his Ministry would consider promoting senior chiefs to take up these posts?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the posts of Senior assistant and district officers are periodically advertised in the Press; and if there is a chief who thinks he could act satisfactorily as a district assistant or district officer, he could apply and his application will be processed through the normal channels.

AFRICANIZATION: POLICE TRAINING SCHOOL, KIGAMBO

Mr. Wamathanya asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence if he would tell the House the reasons why Kiganjo Police Training Depot had not been fully Africanized; and, secondly, if he was satisfied with the way and the manner in which the Africans who are stationed there were being treated by the existing expatriates.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The staff of the Kiganjo Police Training School will soon be Africanized. There is an Africanization programme laid down for the Force Training School within the overall plan for the Africanization of the Police Force. The Force Training School staff are being Africanized as speedily as possible. But we have to do it and also give priority to the Africanization programme of the overall Police Force.

In answer to the second part of the question, in the school we have laid down a very high standard of discipline, so that when those students go out and they have to serve the nation, they have to conform to the highest standards of discipline. Those who train them there are under an African Government, and if they deviate from the standards laid down by this African Government, naturally they will be asked to leave. This is why Kenya has one of the best police forces in the whole of independent Africa; and this House should be proud of the Kenya Police Force.

Mr. Wamathanya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that those people who are taking training there are being kicked and their heads are as smooth as my face here? Does the Minister not think that human beings should be treated in a proper way?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is part of the discipline and those who are there do love it.

Question No. 1013

POLICY ON SELF-HELP SECONDARY SCHOOLS

Mr. Bala asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House (a) what the Government policy was on self-help secondary schools; and (b) how many self-help secondary schools had been licensed in 1964 and how many had been refused licences in that year.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The concern of my Ministry at present is to see that the self-help schools are established in accordance with the provisions of the Education Act, which requires, inter alia, that the managers of schools are persons who are approved and registered as managers of schools. My Ministry too requires to be satisfied that: (1) the site is suitable for a school; (2) the buildings comply with the health regulations; (3) that there are suitably qualified teachers to teach in the schools; (4) that the schools follow a suitable curriculum; (5) that the managers of the schools have sufficient resources to establish and continue to support such a school independently and indefinitely.

The Minister, Mr. Speaker, Sir, will not hesitate to take action against any school which does not satisfy all the above requirements. However, a comprehensive survey is being carried out by my Ministry and the Kenya Education Commission has been asked to direct its attention to self-help schools with a view to making some recommendations which may help the Government to formulate a long-term policy towards these schools in the near future.

IMPROVING QUALITY OF KENYA'S BEER

Mr. Mhogoh asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry what the Government was doing to persuade breweries to improve the quality of Tusker beer, City beer and Pilsner beer to bring them up to world standard for export to other countries as an advertisement of the quality of our Kenya beer.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kioko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member is very misinformed about our beer. During the last two years, Kenya beer has won no fewer than seven international awards. Tusker beer, for example, won third prize in the whole of the Commonwealth Lager Beers competition last year out of fifty-seven countries which took part in the competition. Pilsner beer won first prize in the Breweries Exhibition last year in Brussels and City beer has won two awards.

The Government does not share the view, therefore, of the hon. Member by implying that our beer is not of very high standard, because, apart from the awards, our beers have won in recent years and the many customers it has in this House, all tourists to this country have continually complimented us on the very high standard of beer produced.

The hon. Member may know that sales of imported beer into Kenya have dropped to a very negligible figure over the last few years and the hon. Member might wish to know that when Tanzania put some restriction on our beers recently, there was alarm and despondency in Tanzania because they could not get our high quality beers. However, we are not going to rest on our laurels and we shall vigilantly watch our quality to keep it very high.

AERODROME FOR NORTH NYANZA

Mr. Odeoro-Sar asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power if he could tell the House what had happened to the proposal to establish an aerodrome in North Ugenya at Soga (Bar-Kowor).

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am not aware of such a proposal having been put to my Ministry. If the hon. Member will let me have the particulars of the proposal and by whom it was made, and at what date, then I shall be happy to make further inquiries.

Question No. 1018

AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE EXCHANGE FOR MACHAKOS

Mr. Mallinda asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power if he could tell the House—

- (1) when he intended to install an automatic telephone exchange switchboard in Machakos Post Office;
- (2) whether he was aware that it was, more often than not, quicker to drive to Machakos from Nairobi, or vice versa, than it was to get a telephone call through to the same destination;
- (3) if the reply to (2) was in the affirmative, what steps was he going to take to alleviate the problem.

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There is no place at the moment for an automatic telephone at Machakos. In answer to the second part of the question, the answer is "Yes".

In reply to the third part of the question, the question of additional lines is always taken up by the East African Posts and Telecommunications Administration who keep close watch on traffic of all groups.

Mr. Mallinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, how long does the Minister expect this anomaly to be alleviated?

Mr. Bomett: Will you repeat that please?

Mr. Mallinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister answered in the affirmative, to my second part of the question. Is that not an anomaly? I would like to know how long it is going to take to get rid of this.

Mr. Bomett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the lines are out of order, it is normal for trunk calls to be delayed considerably, but when there are no quantity of calls there are no delays at all.

Mr. Mallinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that, giving an example of last Tuesday, the lines were not out of order and he reply from the Post Office was that there was no unnecessary delay, and having booked a call from here to Machakos at eleven minutes past seven o'clock it did not come through until 12.20 and therefore the question that when the lines are not out of order the service is normal, is not true.

Question No. 1014

MAIZE MOVEMENT PERMITS: NYANZA PROVINCE

Mr. Bomett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not a question of delay. When members of the public book calls, they are booked according to the time they give their request, and it depends on whether there is heavy traffic. But unless the lines actually break down then usually our Posts and Telecommunication officers are very quick in answering calls.

Question No. 1024

EVICTION WITHOUT COMPENSATION OF FAMILIES IN MOMBASA

Mr. Omar asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement whether he was aware that the Mombasa Institute of Muslim Education intended to evict over 500 families in Mombasa Island without payment of compensation.

If the answer was in the affirmative, what action did the Minister intend taking in order to have them paid compensation.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am aware, Sir, that the Mombasa Institute of Muslim Education intends to evict a number of families from their school plot.

My Ministry does not intend to take any action to have them paid any compensation as this is a private matter between the landlord and the squatters concerned, and no situation has arisen to warrant Government intervention. In addition, they have been staying on the plot illegally and have known all along that they could be asked to leave any time.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that Mombasa Muslim Institute inherited this land from an Arab who got it free, and therefore it is not fair or just for the Muslim Institute of Education not to pay compensation to the evicted families?

Mr. Gachago: Well, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware of that. What I am aware of, however, is that Mombasa Institute of Muslim Education acquired this plot in 1953 from Fatall Dali for the purpose of giving staff quarters and other general improvements to their school. Now, if the hon. Member can persuade the Ministry to pay compensation, the Government will not stand in the way of the Muslim Association paying compensation, but the Government has no way of compelling them to pay compensation.

Mr. Bala asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing whether he would consider introducing methods of issuing maize movement permits in Nyanza Province which would avoid the unnecessary arrests of women on the road after having bought their produce from a legal market.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngeli): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Maize may be purchased and transported not only in Nyanza, but anywhere in Kenya without fear of arrest, providing those buying and transporting do so within the provisions of the law.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply, is the Minister aware that the women who go to buy maize from the market have no adequate transport and as such immediately after they have bought the maize are arrested on the charge of carrying maize without a permit, after it was bought from a legal market?

Mr. Ngeli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member is aware that there is a given quantity and any person can usually purchase up to 60 lb. of maize free, without a permit, and two bags within the district of production. If the women are buying large quantities of maize which the law does not allow them to do, then they have to be arrested, but if they can go to the local authority or the office of the district commissioner, they will be given permits to purchase maize from the Maize Marketing Board, and also to go and sell it wherever they want to go and sell it.

Mr. Taub: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that if someone buys maize at Maji Mzuri, which is the Baringo District and south of Eldama Ravine, and transports it, and no matter whether it is 60 lb. or less, he is arrested?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The question refers only to South Nyanza.

Question No. 1019

MARKETING OF KENYA'S PRODUCTS

Mr. Mallinda asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing if the Minister was aware that all Kenya products were marketed on the international market through "sole agents" who had headquarters outside Kenya.

Question No. 1020

IMPROVING QUALITY OF KENYA'S BEER

Mr. Mbogoh asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry what the Government was doing to persuade breweries to improve the quality of Tusker beer, City beer and Pilsner beer to bring them up to world standard for export to other countries as an advertisement of the quality of our Kenya beer.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiando): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member is very misinformed about our beer. During the last two years, Kenya beer has won no fewer than seven international awards. Tusker beer, for example, won third prize in the whole of the Commonwealth Lager Beers competition last year out of fifty-seven countries which took part in the competition. Mr. Tamu: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that if someone buys maize at Maji Mzuri, which is the Baringo District and south of Eldama Ravine, and transports it, and no matter whether it is 60 lb. or less, he is arrested?

EVICTION WITHOUT COMPENSATION OF FAMILIES IN MOMBASA

Mr. Omar asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement whether he was aware that the Mombasa Institute of Muslim Education intended to evict over 500 families in Mombasa land without payment of compensation.

If the answer was in the affirmative, what action did the Minister intend taking in order to have them paid compensation.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply, I am aware, Sir, that the Mombasa Institute of Muslim Education intends to evict a number of families from their school plot.

My Ministry does not intend to take any action to have them paid any compensation as this is a private matter between the landlord and the squatters concerned, and no situation has arisen to warrant Government intervention. Question No. 1026

POOR KENYA PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION RESULTS: COAST PROVINCE

Mr. Omar asked the Minister for Education:—

- (a) If the Minister could tell the House the reasons why the Kenya Preliminary Examination results for the year 1964 in the Coast Province had been so poor?
- (b) If the Minister could state the reasons why Coast Province Government Secondary School had no treble-stream secondary schools?

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, I beg to give the following reply. In the 1964 K.P.E. results, Coast Province were not poor compared with the previous years, in fact, Mr. Speaker they were the best since 1961.

(b) It is not correct to state that there are no multi-stream secondary schools in the Coast Province. Out of the ten secondary schools in the Coast Province, one has five streams, two have four streams, two have three streams and three have double streams each and seven have single stream each. The single-stream schools which are mainly new are expected to develop more streams in due course, and therefore, Mr. Speaker I would like to ask the hon. Member to check his facts before he puts a question like this.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell the House what steps he intends to take to see that those seven secondary schools which have a single stream get a double-stream or treble-stream next year?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is a different question, I think. Next one.

Question No. 1017

HOSPITAL-BUILDING AT UKWALA

Mr. Odero-Sar asked the Minister for Health and Housing what reason he could give the House regarding the failure to build a hospital at Ukwala near the administrative centre during the previous year, after the North Ugenya Local Council had been asked to set land aside for the site.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Ukwala already has a good health centre and it is not considered to have a high priority for a hospital when one considers the overall problem of lack of medical facilities in the country.

Government is now committed to the construction of hospitals in Homa Bay, Busia and Nyandarwa and so far as Central Nyanza is concerned, Siaya is considered to be more central for a hospital in the future.

Question No. 1030

MIGORI HEALTH CENTRE TO BE HOSPITAL

Mr. Okwanyo asked the Minister for Health and Housing, if the Minister had considered making Migori Health Centre a hospital in view of the fact that Migori was sixty miles from Homa Bay and fifty miles from Kisii?

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The question of making Migori Health Centre into a hospital is quite a good one, but it will have to be considered together with the development of the entire country and the availability of funds. At the moment, however, the Homa Bay Hospital and the two others which I have mentioned have been given top priority.

Mr. Okwanyo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that a previous Minister for Health promised that Migori would have a hospital by 1965?

Mr. Moss: No, Sir.

Question No. 1031

CHARGES AT MIGORI HEALTH CENTRE FOR TANZANIA PEOPLE

Mr. Okwanyo asked the Minister for Health and Housing whether, since half the patients treated at Migori Health Centre came from Tanzania, he would suggest an extra charge for them.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It is not considered advisable to charge extra fees to patients who come from outside the Republic of Kenya.

Mr. Okwanyo: Surely, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is not official Government policy?

Mr. Kalli: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, could we ask the hon. Member to ask his next question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Will you ask your next question now, Mr. Okwanyo?

Question No. 1032

PROHIBITION OF FEMALE CIRCUMCISION

Mr. Okwanyo asked the Minister for Health and Housing if he would tell the House why female circumcision could not be prohibited, since many girls had died during this operation.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Prohibition of female circumcision has been tried in many parts of this country and the results have been a total failure. This Ministry considers that this custom will gradually disappear when the majority of people are better educated.

Mr. Gatungu: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply in which the Minister has said that prohibition has been tried in some parts of this country and failed, may we know from the Assistant Minister in which of these parts this prohibition has been tried?

Mr. Moss: It has been tried in Nandi and Kikuyu areas where the people who practise it live.

Mr. Choge: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to know from the Assistant Minister whether he has considered in his Ministry extending the circumcision of women to the hon. questioner's constituency?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, that is not even a question I should answer, Mr. Speaker, and therefore I have no reply to such a question.

Mr. Anyalen: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister agree with me that the hon. questioner's custom is never to circumcise and, as such, it may be because they are trying to copy other people's customs, that their women are dying when they are circumcised?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members may find these questions very amusing, but they are not proper supplementary questions, and they are taking up time which, I think, Members regard as precious.

FACILITIES: MUHOBONI SETTLEMENT SCHEME

Mr. Nyalick asked the Minister for Local Government whether he could tell the House what steps had been taken to provide the following facilities in the Muhoroni Settlement Scheme:—

- (1) a health centre; and
- (2) a market place.

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Sagini): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The responsibility of providing health centres and market places lies with the local authorities. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Kisumu County Council has recommended the building of two health centres, one at Muhoroni to serve Koru, Muhoroni and Fort Ternan, and one at Kibigori to serve Mtwani, Kibos and Chemelli. At present a mobile clinic attends at Muhoroni once a month and two health assistants have been posted on the Muhoroni Settlement Scheme. I understand that two more health assistants are due to be posted to this area.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Kisumu County Council is also recommending the establishment of a market at Tamu to cater for the large population at Tamu and on the Muhoroni Settlement Scheme. The council has agreed to issue temporary licences in the settlement scheme for certain trades such as butchers, hotel, pusho-mill, part II medicine and petty trade shops. In addition, the council has recommended the establishment of markets and shopping centres in various areas including the Muhoroni area.

Mr. Nyalick: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that a number of settlers on the Muhoroni Settlement Scheme are running away because of the lack of facilities there, such as a market place and health centres?

Mr. Sagini: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am unaware of that. I also come from an area where there is a bigger settlement scheme in the Sotik area, and there is not a single clinic, and the settlers have not left.

Question No. 1008

CHALK INDUSTRY: KISII

Mr. Nyalick asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry whether he would tell the House if there was any possibility of establishing a blackboard chalk industry in Kisii or Karisandu.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiavo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Experiments have been carried out at Kisii and so far the results are very encouraging. However, we are still waiting for the final word from the experts.

As far as the possibility of establishing a blackboard chalks industry based on material from Karisandu is concerned, samples of the materials available in that area will be sent to the East African Industrial Research Centre for examination.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply: No, Sir. The Government is satisfied that Migori Division in South Nyanza is being effectively and efficiently run by the two administrative officers who are stationed there, and the Government with no advantage in the hon. Member's request, with due respect.

Mr. Okwanyo: Mr. Speaker, is the Assistant Minister aware that people have to go to Homa Bay, which is over fifty miles away, for even things like getting small permits, etc., and things like that?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am aware that the distance from Homa Bay to the place where the hon. Member for Migori wants the sub-district to be is only just over fifty miles. Government does not consider that this is such a formidable distance as to warrant the upgrading of Migori Division to sub-district status.

Besides, the hon. Member should know that that the distance alone is not the determining factor when consideration for the upgrading of a division to a sub-district is being made. The other factors are the state of development of the area, population, communications, security. The Government is of the opinion that the communications in this place are good and the security so far is good. As to the population, the hon. Member will encourage his people to do more to increase it!

EXPENSES OF ORGANIZATION OF AFRICAN UNITY MEETINGS

Mr. Nyalick asked the Minister for External Affairs, firstly, which country met the expenses of all the delegates who attended at the meetings of the Organization for African Unity, which had met here in Nairobi; and secondly, whether he could inform the House who met the expenses of the ad hoc Commission on the Congo.

The Assistant Minister for External Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, when a country acts as host to a conference, it undertakes to provide accommodation and transport for a limited number of delegates and to meet all expenses. In keeping with this generally accepted practice, the Government of Kenya provided accommodation for up to five members of each delegation to the Fourth Ordinary Session of the Organization for African Unity. In addition, two cars for each delegation, for the duration of the conference, were also provided. All other expenses were met from the O.A.U. fund to which all the member countries contribute.

On (b), expenses relating to the O.A.U. ad hoc Commission on the Congo were met by the Kenya Government. An amount of £25,000 was allocated to facilitate the work of the ad hoc Commission. To date, about £18,000 has been spent and it is anticipated that, when all the bills have been met, the figure will be slightly higher. Provision for the expenses of the O.A.U. ad hoc Commission and the O.A.U. meeting of the Council of Ministers held in Nairobi was contained in the Supplementary Estimates, in Vote VII, subhead N, amounting to approximately £55,000. A further sum of £3,000 was allocated for subscriptions to the O.A.U.

Question No. 1046

KENYA RECOGNITION OF EAST GERMANY

Mr. Odera-Sar asked the Minister for External Affairs if he would tell the House why the Republic of Kenya had not yet seen fit to grant recognition to the East German Government.

The Assistant Minister for External Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply: Kenya does not believe in the theory of divided nations. The general recognition by an overwhelming number of States of the Federal Republic of Germany to the exclusion of East Germany, the birth of East Germany in the context of cold-war politics in the aftermath of World War II, and our belief in the ultimate union of East Germany with her Western counterpart, all emphasize that recognition of East Germany would be a mistake at this stage. Our attitude, however, in no way hampers the development of legitimate trade relations on an informal basis between Kenya and East Germany.

Mr. Ndile: Mr. Speaker, will the Assistant Minister tell the House whether the Kenya Ambassador in Bonn caters for the interests of East Germany?

Mr. Matano: No, Sir, the Ambassador in Bonn caters for Kenya's interests in West Germany!

Question No. 1029

SPEAKING OF HEADMEN AND OTHERS AT MIGORI

Mr. Okwanyo asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence, if he was aware that at Migori a headman had been speared and two

(Mr. Okwanyo) other people had been speared to death in daylight in front of three armed policemen and an Inspector of Police and that up to this time no one had been arrested and charged.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. On 14th November 1962 a report was received at Migori Police Station that a man had been tied and left in the bush to die. A Sub-Inspector, two constables and a sub-chief went to the scene where they found the man still alive.

Whilst the police were at this scene, some 200 people from the Member's constituency, armed with spears and other weapons, gathered and became rather excited, bordering on hysteria. The police endeavoured to control the crowd without avail and brawls broke out resulting in two persons being speared to death—one of them being the person who had killed the first casualty. A sub-chief was also speared, but has since recovered.

The police, who were unarmed at the time of facia, were unable to arrest anyone for breach of the peace.

It was alleged that this incident had occurred because of domestic quarrels, as usual in that area, between the family of the sub-chief. A case Etawa prepared and placed before a magistrate who ruled that there was insufficient evidence to support a prima facie case against any person.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that incidents where people murder others and then get away are becoming quite a commonplace thing in South Nyanza and would therefore suggest that there is some inefficiency in the police force there.

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: If murdering, because of domestic problems, is a common-place thing, as the hon. Member has stated, then I think the Members from South Nyanza should come forward and assist the police.

STOCKTHEFT CASES IN MIGORI DIVISION

Mr. Okwanyo asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence if the Minister could tell the House how many cases of stocktheft there had been in Migori Division since the beginning of the year.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Since 1st January, five, there have been nine cases of stocktheft in the Migori area involving 103 head of cattle, of which forty-seven have been recovered. Arrests were made in five of these cases, and three men have been convicted; three other men are still before the courts. Investigations are still continuing into two cases and the other two have now been closed "undetected".

Mr. arap Kamurem: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, could the Assistant Minister tell the House what his Ministry is doing to see that there will be no more stocktheft in this country?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: If the hon. Member is asking me what the Ministry is doing to ensure that there will be no more stocktheft in this country, I would like to point out to him that I have already stated in my reply that three people have already been convicted and a number of cattle recovered.

Question No. 949

TRACTORS FOR COTTON GROWERS; UKWALA

Mr. Odera-Sar asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry, if the Minister could inform the House why the Government had failed to provide Ukwala cotton growers with the tractors which the Government had promised them?

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Tractors are already working for Ugenya cotton growers in the Ukwala Division and therefore the question does not arise.

Mr. Odera-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that the people were promised these tractors early in January of this year and these tractors were sent only last month.

Mr. Osogo: May I correct the hon. Member on one point? The hon. Member seems to be under the impression that these tractors were promised to the cotton growers in Ugenya. No tractors were promised to any cotton growers in Ugenya. It is the policy of the Cotton Seed and Lint Marketing Board to assist cotton growers in the expansion of cotton growing, and that is why the tractors were taken to Ugenya during early last month.

Thursday, 1st April 1965

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERS

PAPER LAID

The following Paper was laid on the Table:—
Kenya National Parks Report for 1963/64.

(By the Assistant Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife (Mr. Jan Mohamed) on behalf of the Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife (Mr. Ayodo).)

NOTICES OF MOTIONS

AFRICAN SOCIALISM AND NON-ALIGNMENT

Mr. Ndile: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT in view of the fact that Kenya is a non-aligned country, and believing in African socialism as an economic pattern suitable to Kenya, this House calls upon the Government to keep aloof from passing such ideological legislation which would pull Kenya into the cold war.

SMUGGLING OF ARMS AND AMMUNITION FROM ABROAD

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT in view of evidence that arms and ammunition are continuously being smuggled from communist and other foreign countries into or through Kenya for the purpose of staging an armed revolution to overthrow our beloved Government and involve us in external conflicts, this House urges the Government to use all means at its disposal to ensure that this secret plan is revealed and made public, and thereafter completely stop the smuggling of arms to ensure that stability of our Government is maintained.

POINT OF ORDER

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE SESSIONAL COMMITTEE ON PRIORITY OF MOTION

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyok): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the seriousness of the Motion, is it in order to ask for an urgent Sessional Committee meeting to consider this kind of Motion being tabled tomorrow. I feel very strongly about this and I think the Government will accept what I am asking if it could be given consideration either today or for debate tomorrow.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I cannot actually direct as a point of order that that should take place. It is for the Sessional Committee, as we now practice the priority of Motions, to decide. The Sessional Committee will be sitting this evening and this can be brought to their notice, and we shall see whether or not they agree with Mr. Onyok's point of view.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the Sessional Committee is responsible to this House, is it not in order then for the House to move that the Sessional Committee should give priority to the Motion, so that the House can debate it?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That could be the subject of a Motion, but I am afraid it is not the kind of Motion we could have without notice according to our Standing Orders. I think you will have to be content with the consideration by the Sessional Committee where, after all, the Government's and, I think, every point of view of the Back-benchers is adequately represented.

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would it be in order, in view of the seriousness of the situation that we have arms coming from some parts to overthrow the Government, and in view of the fact that this might be carried out tonight, for us to suspend all business today and discuss that first?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. I must remind hon. Members again that when hon. Members are raising points of order the House will hear the point of order and the reply in silence.

The answer to Mr. Anyien is no, there is no procedure whereby we can do this.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Ong'oro): Mr. Speaker, Sir, would it be in order to move the adjournment of the House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Oh, Yes. Hon. Members can move the adjournment of the House with the intent that we should actually adjourn, but what purpose will be gained by that? I do not know. Alternatively, there is a procedure under Standing Order 14 where an hon. Member can move that the House be adjourned in the course of the afternoon's proceedings to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance. That procedure might be adopted today if I were satisfied that the matter was definite enough and urgent enough, and it is up to Members to consider whether they wish to propose the adjournment for that purpose.

REQUEST OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

ADJOURNMENT OF THE HOUSE: FOR A MATTER OF URGENT PUBLIC IMPORTANCE

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to move that we do adjourn so that the House, even if my Motion is defeated, will have time to see into the urgency which, it is alleged that the Motion is urgent enough to call for an immediate debate on the Motion. I would like to state very clearly what I feel about the Motion, and why I feel that the House should adjourn to consider this situation.

Arising from what has been said here and there, and what the rumours are among the Parliamentary circles, it is sufficiently important to realize that we are going to be swept away by theological motions or ideological considerations for every time we want to decide to do our business.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I am sorry, Mr. Ngala-Abok, this is not the time to air these views. You can move that the House be adjourned at a certain time today to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance. It has to be a very definite matter, and I have to be satisfied that it is extremely urgent to demand discussion today. I would also like to point out that debate on adjournment is not allowed if it substitutes a substantive motion which is likely to be discussed very soon, so this Notice of Motion would have to be withdrawn if we were to substitute a discussion on an adjournment today.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to move the adjournment of the House to allow for the Motion, which has just been tabled, to be discussed immediately.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The Motion of which notice has been given suggests that there is factual evidence of smuggling arms into this country; that is a definite matter, which is a matter of public importance, and I say it is so. Therefore if ten Members rise to support Mr. Ngala-Abok in this request for discussion today on adjournment, I will allow it, provided as I say, Mr. Malinda wishes to withdraw his Notice of Motion. If there is a prospect of that being debated tomorrow then I cannot allow debate on the adjournment today. If Mr. Malinda does not withdraw his Notice of Motion, then we cannot debate it today.

NOTICE OF MOTION

INQUIRY INTO STUDENTS IN COMMUNIST COUNTRIES: MILITARY TRAINING

Mr. Kase: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT this House urges the Government to appoint a Special Commission to inquire into the number of students studying in communist countries and other foreign countries with a view to knowing and getting as much information as possible regarding persons being given military training to overthrow the Government in future.

CONSIDERED RULING

LARGE NUMBER OF QUESTIONS ON ORDER PAPER

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members will again see that what we have on our Order Paper a very large number of questions, which will necessitate our moving very fast through them in the House today. I know that hon. Members find this very unsatisfactory, but it will have to continue until either the pressure of questions diminishes or there is some amendment to Standing Orders. I will inform hon. Members that, on closer examination of the position, it is likely that the pressure of questions will diminish somewhat in the near future, because we have in fact, been clearing considerable arrears of questions. But in addition to that, I am going to make a suggestion to the Sessional Committee for possible amendment of Standing Orders which might help the position. Meanwhile, as I say, we have to get through this large number of questions at great speed, and therefore I am asking hon. Members to accept that position.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

MIGORI TO BECOME SUB-DISTRICT CENTRE

Mr. Okwango asked the President whether the Government, in view of the fact that Migori was sixty miles from Homs Bay, would consider making it a sub-district centre.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): I think some of the Members here must be asked to declare their interests!

An hon. Member: The interests of the settlers.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): There is a difference between personal interests and the interests of the voters.

Mr. Speaker, I am sure the officers we have in the Ministry valuing land are not angels and they can make mistakes, and the only way to prove that they have made mistakes is for alternative valuations to be conducted. If our valuer goes to a piece of land and values it and he arrives at a certain figure, and any of the tenants that we have on the land or any of the hon. Members, for that matter, goes there and sends a completely impartial valuer who gives a different value for the same land, then I do not see why the Government cannot reconsider the case. I think, Mr. Speaker, the man who argues about it will pay for it.

Mr. Speaker, there have been a number of very irrelevant matters which have been quoted in the raising of this subject, and one of them is the payment of the loans which are advanced to our settlers. It has been said that the payment of these loans have been with certain profits. Of course, all loans in any bank or in any place are being paid with interest. We are also operating with loans. We have taken loans from Britain, from Germany and from other countries and if we are paying interest, I do not see why the people that we are dealing with those loans, which we have borrowed from other countries, should not pay the loans back with interest. It is not because the Government wants to make money that it is charging the interest; it is because the Government is also committed to repaying these loans with interest. I hope this explains to the hon. Members why interest is charged.

With regard to the removal of fixtures and other things from houses on pieces of land which have been valued, I know for the short time I have been in the Ministry that the whole Ministry, the Minister, myself, the Permanent Secretary and the staff at the headquarters of the Ministry have been very much concerned about the removal of such things. We have made a tour of various settlement schemes to try and find out what property or what fixtures have been removed from the houses after valuation has been conducted, and this is still going on. I can assure hon. Members that if anything is found to be irregular, the Government will not hesitate to take action, but at the moment, without investigation, the Government cannot know to what extent this is taking place. However, at the moment I can assure the hon. Member that the Government is not aware of anything that is being removed, but this investigation is still continuing and if there is any irregularity in the whole exercise, the Ministry will definitely take action.

We have been told that the settlement schemes are to relieve land hunger and unemployment, but I must assure the hon. Member who raised this point that we know this, the Ministry knows this, the Government is aware of this, but the Government selects settlers and puts them on the land and the settlers go onto the land with full understanding that they have not only to pay a little amount for the land but also to repay the loans that have been advanced to them. If a settler undertakes to repay the loan and if a settler benefits from the land, I cannot see why one settler amongst many should not repay his loan—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will not pursue that irrelevancy any further, Mr. Gachago.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): I am replying to this, Mr. Speaker, because it was raised.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, but I think now we must keep on what is relevant.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): But, Mr. Speaker, I would like to assure the hon. Members that in each case of a house or a little farm or a piece of land that is valued, a lot of trouble is taken to make sure that the correct value is arrived at, and we shall continue to do that. Instead of coming to raise such a matter in this House, Mr. Speaker, we shall welcome any hon. Member who will come to the Ministry and raise with us, administratively, the matter of such a wrong valuation. We shall discuss it, we shall assess it and we shall investigate, and, if necessary, we shall review the case with a view to revaluation and see to it that to whoever the land is sold will be given the land at the fairest possible price.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very important Motion and I think—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have only one minute, I am afraid.

Mr. Makone: —the Mover is correct in bringing this Motion at the right time.

[Mr. Makone]

Mr. Speaker, I wish to substantiate one of the allegations made by the hon. Mr. Masinde, when he said that the former farmers destroyed things in the houses before they left. In my settlement scheme, a gentleman called Mr. Walker disconnected all the electrical wires, disconnected the water pumps and spoiled all the keys, so that out of 24 keys, only two are there. Mr. Speaker, I have written a letter to the Minister complaining and demanding a clear explanation as to why this was done, whether this was done as a matter of discontent; I want to know as a representative of the area.

Mr. Speaker, a Motion was brought here to this House demanding the eviction of the settlers and it was sort of debarred, but the most important thing is for the Members not to go into the causes of the failures to repay the loans, the cause was the over-valuation of the land—

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid that is the end of our time, Mr. Makone. The House is now adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, 1st April, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at fifty-eight minutes past Six o'clock.

[Mr. Masinde] did not question this; the man collected the money, he went away and sold those things which he had removed from the very farm to the local people around. Sir, that is one farm, but I can mention several of them—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry, Mr. Masinde, but I want this quite clear. You say that the man who sold the farm to the Settlement Board then sold the doors and windows to the local people?

Mr. Masinde: Yes, Sir.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since this is a very serious allegation, if in future this case is investigated and it is found that the Government is not aware of a case like that where doors and things were removed and sold, what action would the Ministry take on the hon. Member who is alleging that?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The same as on other occasions. You would first of all require the hon. Member to substantiate what he is alleging, to say on what evidence. If, in spite of this substantiation, you find afterwards that what he has said is untrue, then you point it out to him and ask him to make a Personal Statement to this House, acknowledging it is untrue, and if he is not prepared to do that, then the Speaker must be informed.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, going on very quickly, that example I have given is quite true and the Ministry can investigate according to that one example.

Sir, there are some other very serious cases where some houses have been bought by the Ministry of Lands and Settlement in the settlement schemes. In the Lugari Settlement Scheme, you have a person who has possibly 500 acres and the farm valued including some fixed assets, such as water running all over the farm, paddocks and things like that. Of course, that is one would rest with what I have already said about Mr. David Russell, but here it is a case where a person has been living in a temporary house made of mud and wattle, and this very house is valued at Sh. 26,000. At the time, this person sold the house, of course, he was living in it temporarily and he knew he was going to move away in about three years so he did not take care of this particular house, knowing very well that this House is going to fall down within a matter of two months or four months and it does not work but with this amount of money. The particular house that I am referring to at this time is now on the market for sale again and nobody can live in this house. The farm of (Inaudible) in the self-settlement scheme, the house of Jackson in the same scheme and the house of (Inaudible) in the scheme are now ready to be sold with a hundred acres plot allowed (Inaudible) he paid so much and you, if you want to go into this plot you will have to pay this. Sir, these are some of the things which are hitting people: very badly but he has the job nevertheless because somebody wants the land he has not got anything (Inaudible) The facts which the Ministry has got to tell us, if it is not on friendly terms, why should a house which cannot even cost £700 today, should be sold to a poor African, and it is in a completely unsuitable condition for living in? The only answer we have always said that settlement schemes were to relieve the lives of people, but these very people they have been told the condition when they go in, but they remain there and begin to repay their loans. Things which are bought by the Ministry, like barbed wire are charged to these people but they are not given the barbed wire. Now why should people be charged for something they never get? They sometimes pay out a lot of money, amounting to Sh. 1,000. Sir, this is what is very important and a very distressing point for people and we are now wondering what is left for Government to do to help these people. I hear that these people are to repay this amount to Government or they are to lose their land.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support Motion very strongly, as I, myself am one of the victim farmers of one of these wrong evaluations.

Mr. Speaker, the assessments and evaluations which were done in compassionate cases through and through were definitely too exorbitant and today the Africans who work those farms who are settled on such settlement schemes are naturally making no money at all because the evaluations were so high in the areas where the prices normally for an acre would have been £4, today they are anything up to £20. When one looks at the settlement scheme like Lugari and other settlement schemes within the Western Province, one would never pay on an open market more than £5 per acre, but today, Sir, the average price is at least £12 per acre in those settlement schemes. To make it worse, as soon as a new African farmer gets on the land, his duty is to find a timetable as to how he is to repay the loan. In fact, the first assignment is due within the first six months, normally before [Mr. Muliro] the farmer even builds a house on the plot which he has been allocated. Sir, I do not know how the present Government expects the African to go through a land market, when the landless Africans were to be given priority. These people have no source of income. How can any person expect him to start repayment of the loan immediately or within six months after he has settled on the plot?

Now, the hon. Minister says they should sign an agreement. These people need a home, but a home would not be such an expensive one. The Government must accept that the poor people in the country are the people who want to develop.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Muliro, you must keep to the point which was raised actually by Mr. Masinde, which is the method of valuation of land purchased for settlement schemes, as the terms on which the new settler is required to pay. That is a different matter.

Mr. Muliro: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. Now, these evaluations are the basis on which the failures are taking place, because of higher valuations and wrong valuations, in our view, these settlers are called upon to pay exorbitant prices in repayment. Therefore, the only way in which the Ministry could assist now, is to revalue these farms and if it is found that the valuations were wrong, then the Ministry must then accept the responsibility of their failure and tell these people, "The price now for this land is going to be this." Sir, it is no good doing something which is wrong and which is going to be a failure. We know, Sir, because of wrong assessments, these settlement schemes throughout the country are today a deplorable failure. The one of the ex-farmers themselves, who were selling land said, "Such and such a price is all right, and "you accept such and such". This, Sir, is without compensation. Today we are independent Kenya. Those valuations were done before Kenya entered into internal self-government, before it was a self-governing state. Today we realize that the valuations were wrong. Because they are wrong, a special committee would be set up to inquire into whether those valuations today are right or not.

Now, the Minister for Settlement, Sir, has turned a blind eye to this, but he must accept that they are creating conditions under which, because of frustrations, we might create a revolution. We are only asking the Minister for Settlement to appoint a special committee to inquire into these valuations because as the hon. Member alleged, there are farms where the farmer does not have a high valuation, so he removes all the wires around the farm. Then the farmers are told to pay for this particular move and they have not received anything at all. This, Sir, is not what we accept.

With this, Sir, I support this very, very strongly.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I believe that the hon. Member remembers that this Motion arose from a question which was placed in this Chamber regarding the valuation of land, and I sympathize very much with the hon. Member in his various statements, although I do not wholly agree with several statements which have been made by both the Mover and the Seconder of this Motion.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in my reply to the question from which this Motion arose, I explained that the valuation of land cannot be fixed. Land is valued according to a number of factors. It is valued according to fertility and also in accordance with the situation of the particular land to be valued. Therefore, the price of land has never been fixed in any country in the world, and Kenya is not going to start by fixing the value of land. However, I do agree in one aspect, that mistakes could have been made in the valuation of land. I say mistakes may have been made, but I do not believe in one statement that was made by the hon. Member for Trans-Nzoia, that the Ministry of Lands and Settlement has remained deaf because I cannot recall, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member having come to the Ministry and complained that any particular valuation was wrong and we have not taken any action. I would like to promise the House today that at any time, when any of the hon. Members present a case of wrong valuation to the Ministry, the Ministry will not hesitate to look into these particular cases. But I will not agree that the valuation of every piece of land, every single plot that has been valued by the Ministry of Lands and Settlement has been wrong. I am completely adamant about it and I am not going to agree with it, but it will give a reservation to this, Mr. Speaker—

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Assistant Minister is alleging that if he is presented with any case, he will look into it. Can I ask him to say what steps he has taken on my letter to—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, no, Mr. Makone, that is not a point of order.

now the Voice of Kenya, of many thousands of pounds of much needed revenue to the country. The following figures, of course, will enlarge on what I am saying now. I think you will agree that the figures are startling and have put us in a very awkward position indeed.

The number of radio sets which were imported in 1964 was 92,877. The increase in the number of radio licences issued was less than 3,000. Thus, in one year alone, the number of radio sets in Kenya has increased by some 90,000 whilst the number of licences issued have only increased by about 3,000. This means that most of the people who own radio sets are enjoying the facilities by purchasing the domestic comprehensive sound receiving licence. In the last ten years, over 400,000 radio sets have been imported, but at present the number of licences issued is only—to make it a round figure—about 100,000. These figures show that additional radio sets are being purchased on domestic comprehensive licences, so that no additional licence revenue, or if there is, very little, accrues to the Voice of Kenya, or even accrues to the Government for that matter. Under the proposed legislation in 1964, £92,000 revenue would have been received in respect of new sets imported during the year, without taking into account the revenue on existing sets. I have dealt with the provisions of the Bill in this case, so far as it concerns radios, although it applies equally to the television sets. The effect is not likely to be so marked.

The second fundamental change which I mentioned is a requirement under the proposed legislation that each set should have a valid receiving licence attached to it as you will see in section 9. This provision is designed to assist the work of the licence investigators who are doing a good job, inspecting the licences and in the logical consequence, checking to see that each set has a licence as we want it in this Bill. Even the law will thus make it difficult, and a set which does not have a licence attached to it will be liable to seizure. This provision will also apply to radios in cars. There is no provision in the new legislation for domestic comprehensive sound licences. This class of licence was issued to persons whose incomes did not exceed £120. Difficulties were always experienced in establishing what a person's income was and the concession was undoubtedly open to considerable abuse.

Since what is now the national service of the Voice of Kenya has been considerably expanded and improved, it is felt that a Sh. 20 licence fee is not excessive and is a great deal cheaper than in many countries. Provision is, however, made for community licences as well as those genuine cases of hardship through old age or infirmity. Persons in the last category may apply for exemption from the licence fee under section 17, as you will see in the Bill.

I mentioned previously other provisions designed to improve enforcement of the licensing laws. These provisions require dealers and retailers to keep records of the licences of the sets which pass through their hands; that is when a new set is sold, the name of the purchaser and the details of his licence must be recorded in a book which will be subsequently available for inspection and checking by the licence investigators. Similar records must be kept of sets brought in for repair.

A further provision enables licence investigators to search premises if it is thought that a radio or television set is there. This, also, is not a new thing, but we would like more power in this particular clause. Previously, no such power was held and checking was difficult to carry out in those cases where an unco-operative attitude was met with, because in certain cases it has been reported to us that members of the public do not co-operate with the investigators when they ask for the production of their licences.

It is estimated that there are probably about 300,000 or more radio sets in use in Kenya today. Whilst inevitably the situation where every radio is licensed will never be achieved, even if 80 per cent are licensed, revenue amounting to about £240,000 should be collected. This is an increase of about £100,000 on revenue collected in 1964, and will be necessary to assist in financing the very considerable developments that have already taken place and are planned for the future of television and broadcasting in Kenya. The figures quoted above, Mr. Speaker, Sir, are the very latest available and relate to the year 1964.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, you will find in the Bill we have shown that consideration will be given to community centres, such as primary and intermediate schools, youth clubs, Mwengeles ya Wanawake clubs, Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. hostels, police messes, Tribal Police, prison and armed forces canteens and also other charitable institutions. Concessions are given when licences of this nature are applied for, but what I would like to emphasize, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that it is important that this Bill should be supported fully in order to remove the domestic comprehensive sound receiving licence which, of course, was probably used at a time when the majority of radio set holders were more or less of a higher social standing.

As you will see, Mr. Speaker, in the Memorandum of Object and Reasons it is stated that the enactment of this Bill will involve an expenditure of approximately £5,500 per year of public funds in the collection of fees and payments, but this sum will only be about 24 per cent of the expected revenue of approximately £220,000 per year. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, since the hon. Members have studied the Bill I hope they will give a full support to facilitate the collection of fees as outlined in my speech. Thank you.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo) seconded.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

COST OF LAND IN KENYA HIGHLANDS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): This is a good point for the interruption of business, so I will call on a Minister to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Olando): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo) seconded.
(Question proposed)

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to move a Motion which arose from Question No. 69, which is concerned with the price of the former Highlands of Kenya.

What is important here is that which we could not get from the Minister. I had a few points which I wanted to mention and which we must get from the Ministry of Lands and Settlement.

Sir, if I can deal with the settlement schemes first, where Government was directly involved in how money and buy these farms to enable the African landless to be settled. Outside, Sir, it is known that a good number of farms have been bought and quite a number of people have been settled on these farms, but the main problem here which compels us to question the Ministry is about the prices which the new settlers are now being asked to refund. Sir, the problem arose with the valuers of these farms. They all happened to be the former settler Europeans. Some were employees of the Ministry of Lands and Settlement, but because the person who was selling these farms was a European, it was necessary that another friendly European had to value this farm at a very high price, including some of the things already taken off the farm, particularly when we say that a farm which has some improvement like fences, housing, or possibly water, terraces, and power; all these things were included in the price of a given farm. But what has happened, particularly on the settlement schemes, is that when the settlement officer moves on to this plot, he finds that a number of things which were included in the cost of this particular farm are not on the farm as permanent improvements. The Ministry has never taken steps to question why particular items were included in the cost of the farm and yet were not in existence at the time the Ministry took over. This was unnecessary expense to those who have been settled in these farms because they are requested to pay even with the profit on.

Sir, as the hon. Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement requested, I am going to give specific examples of three farms in one of the settlement schemes of which I am a representative. One is the farm of Mr. David Russell, which today is in the Kipkarrin Scheme. It was valued at a very high price. It had a very good house and, of course, it is still there, but most of the things were moved out, including doors of the house, baths, but when you look at the valuation sheet on which this man was given money, all these things are included, but—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Will you stop for a moment, Mr. Masinde. If you are alleging that the vendor himself removed these things, you should make it quite clear, and state your reasons for saying so.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, the fact remains that the farm is valued before this person goes away and when he has the valuation through, now waiting for the cheque from Government, he decides to remove some of the things which were valued to be sold with the farm.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are alleging that the vendor did remove them?

Mr. Masinde: I am not actually alleging, I am giving a specific example of what has happened on this particular farm.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I know, but we must get this clear, Mr. Masinde, having regard to the responsibility of Members in this House for what they say. If you are alleging that the doors and windows disappeared because the seller of the farm took them away, you must make that quite clear and say on what evidence you base it.

Mr. Masinde: This man came from just next door to me and he did so, but the Government

[The Minister for Health and Housing] It is being decided now in my Ministry whether we should not have what we call a community nurse, that is a nurse, midwife, health visitor all in one, because at present we train them separately, and in our health centres they work separately, but there is a case, I think—and this is soon to be decided—as to whether we should not have a person who combines the three qualifications for use in out-of-the-way places and the North-Eastern Region and north of this country, where it is impossible to keep three people. One person could be the nurse, midwife and health visitor.

This Bill that comes before you is an old Bill. I said at the beginning that it is as old as 1949. When this Bill was brought before this House I was not here, so I do not know about it, but nobody seems to have read the questions of defining the word "nurse" or including in the definition of "nurse" the hospital assistants of that time. The practice has been, in my Ministry, that hospital assistants have been given that rank and recognized as higher than these other people in their own sphere by their employer. The employer may be the local authority, the Kenya Government, or a private mission hospital, but they have their own rank. But, they are not actually affected by this law. The fact that they may not be represented in this council does not affect them. In fact, I understand that they represent themselves very well and they have their own organization which represents them and sends their grievances to the Government.

So, I would, if I may, to just clear the Bill, that this Bill is only for nurses, midwives, and health visitors. The higher grade of qualifications are known as registered people. The next grade are enrolled and put on a roll. There are enrolled nurses and registered nurses. It is just the way things are arranged in this council that some are registered and some are enrolled. It does not mean that they are better qualified than the people from England, for example, but it is just the way they are arranged. A nurses' council, midwives' council, health visitors' council was made in 1949. What I am asking the House to do is to approve of amendments, first of all, by upgrading the assistant enrolled nurses to be known as enrolled nurses. If you cut out the word "assistant", and just use the word "enrolled", she is still doing the work of the enrolled nurse. That is what I am asking the House to do, because we found that our nurses were doing very good, and so far we are training our own-registered nurses in Nairobi as Kenya registered nurses. It is no use calling them "assistants" because they have the qualifications, they have the Cambridge School Certificate, and they trained with both European and Indian girls on an equal footing, and their training is supposed to be very good. So, where does the word "assistant" come in? Some years ago, because of the composition of this country, the word "assistant" was very useful. Even our present doctors were known as "assistant medical officers", but now they are full medical officers and are doing the work very well.

So, that is one of the things I am asking you to do. I am not asking the House to quarrel or to argue as to whether the hospital assistants are well represented. I would like that subject to be left aside. If the Members, as I notice today, are very anxious to deal with this other subject of hospital assistants, medical assistants, and clinical assistants, I am prepared to give a guarantee that I will look into the laws of the medical profession to see where they come in provided they do not interfere with these regulations about nurses, midwives and health visitors, which are quite different.

Usually, I am advised by the legal authorities that the position is very difficult and that it is very hard to define and an obvious thing. For example, to define a nurse; many people have attempted to define what a nurse is. You will be surprised at the attempts that have been made, but the legal people cannot find a definition of this word. You can only say, for example, that a nurse means a person charged with, or trained for, the care of the sick, or something like that, but you cannot go further than that. Nor can you even define a doctor. So, I would like my friends, who were asking for definitions of a nurse, midwife, or health visitor, to bear with me and take the definitions here, that a registered nurse is one who appears on the registers. We know that she is a nurse, but she is a registered one. There may be other nurses who are not registered; in fact, there are plenty of nurses in Kenya who are not registered and who always endeavour to get registered, but we cannot cover every nurse. We do not even cover the doctor when he is doing nursing; we do cover the medical assistant when he is doing nursing some time in his career, but he is doing doctoring at sometime. So, when you ask me to define this clearly, I tell you it is quite impossible. I would like the House to be contented with the definition that these are the people who appear on the registers, various registers, whether of mental nurses or of midwives or of ordinary nurses or if they are on a long list which is called a roll, because enrolled nurses are in this too.

Now, in our Ministry, we recognize the various grades apart from these three. The title of clinical assistant has just been brought in, and, as you heard today, the Government had to stop training clinical assistants for some reasons that were given today. We hope in future to be able to resume training them when we have found the money and also found out where their positions will be. I would like, therefore, to ask the House to bear with me and deal only with the people mentioned, that is, nurses, enrolled nurses and registered nurses, midwives and health visitors. It does not mean that we do not recognize the duties of our other friends and in this case, most of the people we deal with are females. You will see that the Bill in some cases says "her", using the female gender, because in many cases the nurses are female and men usually are in other categories. So, there are, in fact, apart from people who are called medical assistants, other people in the medical profession for whom we are trying to find a place. We have got pharmacists, assistant pharmacists—we used to call them compounders—and we have laboratory assistants, assistant radiographers, who learn to use X-ray machines, and we have also got physiotherapists, but at present the ones who are to be entered for are the medical assistants, and laboratory assistants, physiotherapists, and assistant pharmacists. The others have already found a place.

So, I would like to ask the Members, with all the nice arguments I have listened to and heard, to be a little when I say that I will take into consideration all they have said, but I would like to be given the opportunity to get this law passed early for those categories concerned here.

Someone mentioned trainees. We have trainees of various types but I do not think it would be in order to represent trainees on this council at all because they are not yet qualified to be registered. I do not know how things went on in the past, but now we are going to encourage in-training so that if a person comes in as a hospital assistant, he may end up by being a doctor. I know that that has not been allowed in the past, but I can say this for the Ministry of Health, that they have had the distinction of a person who entered the Ministry as a sweeper, and now he has not only got an O.B.E. but is also a very high person in the laboratory.

That is an encouragement and it shows that anyone can do it. If he could go through all these grades of illiteracy right up to the man in charge of all the examinations of all those specimens which come into the laboratory, then surely anybody else can do it. We shall see that people do not get content with only being dressers all their lives, but that they work themselves up and become anything up to a doctor. I would like to say that the complaint from the hon. Mr. Mbogoh will be looked into, and I am very appreciative about it, and I think that the young doctors need a little bit of supervision before they are given power.

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to ask the House to pass this Bill so that we can go ahead with the improvement of the services of our nurses, midwives and health visitors.

Thank you Mr. Speaker, Sir.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was read a second time and committed to a Committee of the whole House tomorrow)

Second Reading

THE BROADCAST RECEIVING (LICENSING) BILL

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism: (Mr. Achieng-Onoko): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Broadcast Receiving (Licencing) Bill, be read a Second Time.

This Bill, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is designed to make major changes in the law as at present constituted. The changes are, firstly to make it necessary that every set, whether radio or television shall have a licence at a standard fee. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I shall come to that later on. Secondly, to require that the licence be attached to the sets at all times, except when it is in the hands of a dealer, whether for sale or repair. There are other provisions to facilitate enforcement of the law which, again, I will deal with later.

The first point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, deals particularly with, and is relevant to, sound licences in its present form, which is, that by purchasing what we call a domestic comprehensive sound receiving licence, a member of the public may then possess any number of radio sets.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

This licence costs Sh. 40 and in practice will often cover quite a large number of sets, including a radiogram, transistor sets, perhaps a car radio and sets used by members of the same household. The licence, in fact, applies to the premises or household of a family and not to the individual sets purchased. This situation has the effect of depriving the broadcasting services,

[Mr. Anyiel]

The reason why I say that mission hospitals are much better than Government hospitals, is because of the spirit they have, the feeling that they were sent by God to serve God's people and they pray for people and console them and they feel much better. I therefore think, that Government should lend more assistance to these mission hospitals.

I would like to advise the Ministers that Kisii Hospital has been so badly run that the county councils and other leaders of the district have approached the Catholics the Seventh Day Adventists to take it over and run it, or any other religion, because you find the people who go there are not well cared for and that is why I say that Government should give more money. As a matter of fact, if you were to ask me I would vote more money to mission hospitals than to Government hospitals. There are very few Government hospitals where you receive proper treatment, one of which is Kenyatta National Hospital, but even in Kenyatta National Hospital, Mr. Speaker, you also find that the medical assistants are the ones who are really interested in you. Sometimes, you can sit there for five hours and find that there is no doctor around, but if you go to a mission hospital you will be attended to immediately and they will even pray for you.

Mr. Speaker, with regard to representation I feel that the more mission hospitals each faith has, the more representation it should receive from the Government so that it cannot blame anyone for hindering or interfering with their wish to serve the people. Even the reporters should not report that any Member of this House has said that mission hospitals are below standard because that would only discourage people who come from distant lands and whom I believe have no other interest in our country other than to try and help our people. And with those few words I support the Bill.

Mr. Mbogohi: Mr. Speaker, though I understand that the Minister is very sincere about this Bill, I would also like to speak for a few minutes on this clause on representation, now though the Attorney-General said that he did not know the definition of a doctor, I would define him as a highly qualified nurse, but I do not know whether they would agree with me because I find that when I go to the nurses there are men who are called nurses and men who are called everything, including dressers; as a matter of fact, we even have men who are called "midwives" in the medical profession, men and women can use the same names and you find that representation as I said, (I do not understand whether the nurses which will be represented in this country will be male nurses or female nurses) and what the Minister replies, I hope he will tell me what type of nurses are to be represented. When we have a doctor, he is called a doctor and nurse it is a matter of whether it is a man or a woman, but in this case, we must have a division between the two to know whether it is two female nurses or two male nurses.

Mr. Speaker, what I would like to add to that is now that we have many Africans joining this medical profession, we find that, in some cases, an African who has been working as a hospital assistant for twenty years, is kept under a doctor who came from training perhaps only last month and probably does not know any more than he has learned in school and when he comes into this profession he thinks because he has just left training he knows much more than the assistant who is working under him. Now, if the Government could establish an institution whereby if a medical assistant has worked in the hospital for so long, he can be taken for some further course so that he can be promoted and become a doctor after so many years of training. I think that this would encourage so many of our people to join. Now, if you are a dresser, it is possible that you will die a dresser, and that does not encourage you very much to join the medical department. After all, if the Government could look into that, I hope that this will be better.

Now, there was a point last week, on a day when I was speaking about Embu hospital, and the Minister himself stood up and said that I should declare by interests with this hospital. Now, this is the right time to make it clear to the Minister that I was not against the doctor who is there at present, because I take him as a very hon. doctor, and a very capable man.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

But, the doctor who was there before failed to control his staff and he let them go so loose that even the present doctor is finding it very difficult to control them, because they want out of control, they do what they want, they sell what they want, and they treat people when they want, and as a result this hospital is a mess, and nobody wants to go there because it looks so terrible. Corruption in that hospital does not apply to the doctor who is there, but to the doctor who was there before and did not take action, and I understand now that this doctor who was there before is spending the Kenya Government money in London while studying for some more degrees just be made a mess of things here. I believe that if they are doctors there should be a certain qualified doctor or a body of qualified doctors to go and check the activities of the young doctors who are still in the trade and know that they are doing a proper job and not just going there to get money.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have found that wherever something is written in this Bill, it is requiring registered nurses, registered health visitors, registered doctors, and everything else. I am wondering whether there are people practicing today before they are registered, because that might mean that those women who look their courses some time ago, and were registered as midwives in grade II or dressers in grade II are not represented in that case, because when it comes to practice there is now a Kenya registration nurse, and those old nurses who are the assistant nurses who have done a lot for this country. If this organization is only for the Kenya registered nurses who are very highly qualified, then the whole of that lot which have worked in this country for many years will be without representation and there will be no compromise on anything, because they will know that they do not have their people inside the organization.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I will now go to the fact that I believe that the organization will be able to be sued and sue because it is no use giving property to somebody who cannot defend that property. It is useless to give me something and then tell me that if somebody takes that thing from me, I cannot sue. If I take anything from somebody else, I cannot be sued. Then, I would be a very awkward little creature in this world, on the one hand, and a very big one on the other hand, and it would be most controversial. So, that clause should not be permitted because that shows that this body is most independent and I will not like to see the Government using its solicitors to go and defend a body which is so independent.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I wish to hear from the Minister when he comes to reply and at the Committee stage I wish to see him amend what should be amended and add what should be added, and after that I will report.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, can I move that the—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think you have already spoken.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: I was just moving that the Member be called upon—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): It was going to call on him in any case.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir.

I would like perhaps to start by saying how interesting the contributions of the Members of the House have been to this Bill. But, in their efforts to be useful to me and my Ministry, perhaps they went beyond what this Bill wants. This Bill only intends to deal with registered nurses, registered midwives, and registered health visitors. It is not the intention of this Bill to deal with hospital assistants, medical assistants, clinical, or even health assistants, or health inspectors. The only time that a hospital assistant is included in this Bill is when a hospital assistant, not a medical assistant, not a clinical assistant, but a hospital assistant is doing nursing, because he sometimes does nursing. Otherwise, all the other grades of very useful staff of the Ministry, good creatures, on whom we depend so much in Kenya, who look after all our hospitals in our country, who are not included here. Perhaps that will clear the air. But, the hospital assistant may be included here if he likes as far as he is a nurse, because he is also a nurse—

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is in order for the Minister to say that in Kenya today we do have such a person as a hospital assistant, but all hospital assistants are now medical assistants? This is misleading, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): If it is a question of information, then perhaps the Minister could clarify this point?

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): Thank you, Sir, for drawing my attention to this. The names change so fast that that is one of the reasons why they are not included in the laws, because tomorrow we do not know what they will be called. The training in this country is going higher—and this is not our fault now yet, as a country—and this is not our fault now—decided whether there will be an intermediary grade as Tanganyika has between the qualified East African doctor and the other group of these nurses, midwives and so on. At present we have dressers, a grade of dressers, in our hospitals. Then we have the various grades of nurses, and midwives, and health visitors. Then, we have this group that was trained many years ago to do community work, and maybe we are coming to that again. We have these so-called hospital assistants who are now called medical assistants. We have a senior group of those promoted, and what were called clinical assistants.

[Mr. Kamau] In many parts of Kenya we know most important part in our community. We know most of the hospitals in Kenya are being served by hospital assistants without any doctor at all, and if we allow this Bill to pass, without giving a chance to the hospital assistants to be represented in that body, it means we are creating trouble in the whole country because the nurses will be overall commanders in the hospitals and wherever a controversial issue comes up in a hospital, the hospital assistant will have no say. I think it is high time the Minister looked into this point and saw that these hospital assistants are fully represented, because, if I may refer to cases I have noticed in most of the hospitals I have visited, I have found quarrels between the nurses and the hospital assistants because of their attitude of accusing the hospital assistants, the doctors in the hospital, only to maintain their standard or to remain peacefully with either doctors, or the rest of it. I think it is high time, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the Minister should see that the system of our hospitals is completely changed, because the old administration always gave, to a certain extent, very unsatisfactory work, and this has brought a collision between hospital assistants, nurses and doctors. This has hospital assistants, nurses and doctors—because most of the Africans who are now in the hospitals do not have a full training.

I would also request the Minister, Mr. Speaker, Sir, when replying to assure this House, because we are at the stage of Africanizing every position in Kenya, that he is going to establish a nurses' training college, whereby our womenfolk are going to be trained as soon as possible, so as to help as many of them in this council of nurses and doctors. My reason for bringing this point, Mr. Speaker, is that at this moment you find in most of the hospitals we have very few nurses—fully trained, and I request the Minister to look very sincerely into the point of these hospital assistants, to be fully represented. I do not want to repeat what has already been said by other hon. Members, but I very strongly support that the hospital assistants should be members of this council.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I will reserve my position on this—whether to support or not—until the Minister replies and satisfies this House that he is going to amend the whole of this Act to see that it is fully Africanized and we are not passing this Bill here for the benefit of any foreigner, but for the benefit of the Africans in Kenya.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I will only take two minutes, Mr. Speaker.

I want only to comment upon the section which was referred to by my hon. friend: namely, section 3. of this proposed Bill, the establishment of a council which shall have a corporate being and a perpetual succession and be capable of being sued and also able to sue. Some hon. Members will remember that we had a similar debate here not a very long time ago and a certain word was played about with, but the important thing, I think, to remember is that you are here establishing a body which would be in a position to employ staff in their headquarters and this headquarters must be situated in a certain place and must have a piece of land and offices, and you must have somebody who can be sued if, for instance, they do not pay servants' salaries or if they do not pay rates to the City Council. The only way you can do that is to create a legal persona: that is a corporate body of all these nurses, midwives and health visitors whom anybody can sue in a court of law and be responsible for paying whatever the court assesses; in other words, you will not need to sue the Director of Medical Services individually or the Matron-in-Chief, but you sue this body which is a legal persona.

I hope that, Mr. Speaker, explains that position. I might also say I understand a question was raised on the definition of nurses and doctors. With respect, Mr. Speaker, if one were to define every terminology in a Bill or in legislation, of course there would be no end to this. We know who nurses are and their qualifications are, of course, clearly laid down. Some of these young ladies will be trained in our own hospital here, and their qualifications and syllabuses will be laid down by this organization.

Mr. Speaker, I support.

Mr. Kamau: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, could it be made clear by the hon. Attorney-General, because we are now confused with the word "nurses", whether that word legally also includes hospital assistants?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not actually a point of order. However, we do not mind if the Attorney-General continues his speech before any other Member speaks.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, I think that question can best be answered by the Minister.

Mr. Anyien: Mr. Speaker, Sir, here is where I think we need more of our hon. Members who might have been doctors or who have worked in hospitals, and I am glad that we have the hon. Mr. Ngala-Abok here and the hon. Mr. Ekitella [Mr. Anyien] I do not see the hon. Mr. Ekitella around here —to be able to tell us what some of these clauses mean.

Mr. Speaker, I understand that one of the reasons why hospital assistants are not mentioned here is because the word has been removed and now they are called medical assistants. If this is the case, we would like to know whether this was written in the Official Gazette and why it was not incorporated in a Bill like this, so that we do not get confused between hospital assistants and medical assistants.

I understand, Mr. Speaker, that a hospital assistant was a person who was a little lower than a medical assistant. After having completed standard 8 the hospital assistant underwent a course for some years and the people above called 8, who qualified after training were called medical assistants. Now, here is where it does become a little confusing and I would like to say that the Minister should not take this as being a very controversial thing. If they have changed the title "hospital assistant" and have replaced it with the title "medical assistant" and we are here debating because the other group should also have representation, I propose that the Minister when arriving at the committee stage, should reduce the number of people mentioned in the following clauses to keep the number to a minimum: clauses 4, D, E, and F. Instead of four registered nurses, four registered midwives and four registered health visitors, he should decrease the number by one in each of these groups to give the vacancies available which would be one in each group, to medical assistants, so that they cannot complain that they are not being represented and that their views are not being represented in this body. I believe this would help a great deal and the Ministry would find that in doing they would be satisfying the desires of the others.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I am not a doctor, and therefore I do not know a great deal about this profession, but as a person who has been treated, I find that patients complain very bitterly. Unfortunately, we are not always able to understand their problems.

Mr. Speaker, you find that some students have failed and obtained a school certificate, but have not been able to obtain a high enough mark to go into a university to study medicine, but who are desirous of joining the Medical Department. I feel that the Minister should be able to find a place for these people which would be in between the position of the medical assistant and a doctor, because you will find that in very many respects these persons do work in the same capacity as doctors and nurses in many places where you find there is no doctor and these medical assistants are very capable of handling the work. I, personally would rather go to see a medical assistant than to see a doctor, because some times you find that the medical assistant is more sympathetic and understands your problems, whereas the doctor does not seem to take a personal interest in your problems. I know one of my Ministers used to take his children to a hospital assistant instead of bringing them to a doctor, because the hospital assistant took a much keener interest in his patients. So, I feel that if these people are capable of doing good work the department should try, after these people have received very good training to place them in a position which is lower than that of a doctor but, higher than that of a hospital assistant when they are in charge of an area. For example, Mr. Speaker, in my constituency which has a population of 105,000, we do not have a doctor. The only people who deal with the problems of maintaining the health are these medical assistants and there are times when these medical assistants are dissatisfied because they feel that they are underpaid, and their life is unbecoming, etc. I therefore hope that the Minister will not only consider their representation, but he will also consider them a better title when they have done their work so well.

Another thing I would like to point out at this time, Mr. Speaker, is, we have many mission hospitals, and I would like to differ with the hon. Member who said that many of these mission hospitals are of a very low standard. Personally, I would like to say that we have a Government hospital in Kisii Town, but you will find people from my home going 60 miles to Kipsa Bay which is a mission hospital and also people who live in my constituency going to Kabrone which is very many miles away and not attending the Government hospital which is very near. So, I personally cannot agree with anyone who is saying that the mission hospitals are of a very low standard, but what I think we should urge the Government on is, that the Government should supervise the training. I think it is very important that Government supervise training because I know instances where some of our young girls and young boys go to the mission hospitals and later on they cannot pass the Government examinations and I think if the Government could help the mission hospitals in supervising training it would be for the benefit of the country.

[Mr. Mate]

Speaker, Sir, normally they have staff from overseas who volunteer to come and help, but disease is disease wherever you are. Wherever you are, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government should give more time to these bodies, supervise them and make them raise the standards of the treatment that they are advocating here, so that the treatment which is given is adequate.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel very hard pressed not to blame them, but I do blame the so-called voluntary hospitals. I know they are handicapped, but this does not only happen in Kenya, but we should not just keep quiet and hope that nature will take its own course. The hospitals in Meru have been given facilities for training nurses, but, Mr. Speaker, Sir, they fall short of what we would like to see. They are frustrating their students, because religiously they are very biased. They also feel that they should do it as a matter of favour. I would therefore request the Minister, most sincerely, and I take Meru for example, not as it is in Kenya, to see what can be done for the so-called voluntary bodies to come up to standard. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sure that the Minister is already aware of conditions in Kenya here and there, but this kind of thing is very obvious, not to mention Kiamosi or Maseno, or any other place that is near the Minister's own home, but I do feel that the trainees themselves suffer so much, that it is time the Government should not mind even if it intervened, and I would not mind even if it meant that they were to be trained in a fever hospital, for example, Chegoria, or Maua, or Kikobo, and then make sure that those who are trained have been properly trained whether they stay in Meru or go elsewhere but to frustrate men and young girls on semi half-hearted so-called medical grounds through lack of funds then I feel it most unfair to the youth of Kenya for the future, as they think that they are needed.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I go further?

There are those who have been trained in these hospitals, then they are given half fees, and nobody cares what they do and as a result the Meru population complains about the inefficiency of these hospitals.

Secondly, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to propose the nationalizing of all the hospitals in Kenya, if not in terms of money but with regards to the standards and everything. The Government must take a much more interest in making sure that the so-called self-appointed series of African body are not given priority to anything they like. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to come to a very homely point. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have known cases, very sad cases, of the so-called self-appointed African bodies who had no inclination of what they were doing but just believed that God had sent them to do what they liked. Why next? Mr. Speaker, Sir, although I am very sympathetic to the attitude of the missionaries, I feel the missionaries should come up to the standard which is required. Why should it be the case that a missionary doctor does as he likes when a health officer, who is under Government, is controlled by regulations? Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would not like to labour on this one point for too long, but I would like to ask the Minister for Health to try and standardize whatever there is. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I speak for my own constituency, Meru Central and Meru generally, could the Government pay more attention to the health questions at Meru, and give more grants, we are taxpayers, and we would like more X-rays and more hospitals, and also Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the Government should have a look at the hospitals in Meru and see what they can do.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid the scope of this Bill does not enable us to discuss hospitals or equipment for hospitals; it is concerned with the training, registration and enrolment of nurses and other professional people. So far as you have been dealing with training facilities in hospitals, that is relevant; but it is when you talk of the general need for more money to provide hospitals or to equip hospitals, that you get outside the scope of this Bill.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I take your correction.

I would say I am very sympathetic and I do support the Minister for Health in the efforts he has made, but I do know that the particular cadre of the members of the medical profession who are concerned here have been in need of getting this kind of Bill passed. I do support the Minister with those reservations, but I would like the Minister to give the House a clear explanation of where the medical assistant and health inspector come in in this particular Bill.

With these remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Omari: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also rise to congratulate the Minister for introducing this Bill.

I would also like to support what the hon. Mr. Ngala-Abok has said about the composition of this council. I feel that it is very important, Mr. Speaker, that the medical assistants should also be fully represented on this council because of the work which they are doing in the clinics and health centres throughout the country. I do not think it is right for the midwives and health visitors to be represented on this council and to select the medical assistants whose experience in medical matters is wider than that of the midwives and health visitors.

Another thing I would like to say, Mr. Speaker, is about the Church having representatives on this council. I think it is right for the Church to have representatives, but at the same time I feel that some other medical institutions which are not subsidized by the Government should also have representatives. There are some clinics and hospitals which are run by groups of persons, and I think it is important that they should have a representative, so that they can air their interests on this council.

As regards the functions of this council, Mr. Speaker, it seems very clear that it is for the benefit of the health visitors, midwives and nurses. In clause 9 it is specifically stated: "The functions of the council shall be—(a) to maintain and improve the standards of the professions of nursing, midwifery and health visiting and to safeguard the interests of nurses, midwives and health visitors"; It is shown clearly here that one of the main purposes of this Council is to safeguard the interests of nurses, midwives and health visitors. These are not only staff to serve the medical services; there are these medical assistants also who work with medical services. So, if one of the purposes is to safeguard the interests of the midwives, nurse and health visitors, I do not see any reason why medical assistants also should not be represented, so that they are safeguarded and their interests could also be looked after by this council.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, to which I would like to draw the Minister's attention is about the nurses in the medical profession. I think it would be fair if the trainees also were represented in this Council, because there are always complaints from the trainees in the medical services from all over the country that the conditions of employment and treatment in the medical training schools are not good enough. A few months ago there was a strike in the Kenyatta National Hospital, and the main reason for that, Mr. Speaker, was the treatment that the trainees were getting from the teachers. So I think it would be much better if we could get the trainees represented on this council, so that if they have a grievance they can mention it and then the council would go into it and try to settle it.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Bill.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I have very little to say on this Bill, but I would call it a very unfortunate Bill which has come to this House before it has been debated by the Parliamentary Group. It is the case, Mr. Speaker, that most of the Bills which cause dispute in this House are those which should have been discussed by the Parliamentary Group to clarify the points which always bring argument here.

As regards this Bill, Sir, I think the Minister for Health should have looked very carefully and would even have been able himself to amend this before it came to the Parliament.

There is a point here which is very clear, Mr. Speaker. In Part II—Administration, it says, "There is hereby established a council known as the Nurses, Midwives and Health Visitors Council of Kenya which shall be a body corporate of perpetual succession and a common seal having power to sue and be sued and to purchase, hold, manage and dispose of land and other property . . ." This, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I call a political association because if the nurses are now going to be given a chance to own a piece of land, then it is going to revise the land issue. I do not see why this class of nurses should come to interfere with the land. The clause continues, ". . . and to enter into such contracts as it may consider necessary or expedient." We come to fear now that we are bringing a land issue in through the back door, to be a body corporate of medical practitioners who are supposed only to deal with the health of the people and have nothing to do with the land, nothing to do with any property. If I have read it correctly, this body was established somewhere in 1949. If that is the case, this was in the colonial days when the African nurses had no position at all. What I would advise the Minister to do is to forget this clause and establish a training centre where our womenfolk can qualify to become nurses of the African nationalism.

This is a fact to be faced. If we pass this Bill here now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it means we are inheriting what we have been opposing, and, to that extent, I come to the point of opposing that clause very much because if we allow them to have any power to purchase a piece of land, to sue or to be sued, then we bring a political issue into the medical field. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would like the Minister, when he replies, not to overlook that point.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, Sir—and I would emphasize this very strongly—is that I support my honourable friend who spoke on the hospital assistants. These are the people who have been omitted from this Bill, who are playing a very [Mr. Ngala-Aboki] nurses, who are going to dominate this council, will have an African opinion—an opinion of some usefulness, as far as what is going on now is concerned. Otherwise, this Bill will not serve its proper purpose. And when I become the Minister for Health—I know I may become one—I will make a complete check of the members of this council.

We want this council to serve the country. If we have registered nurses to represent us here, they will not be Africans. We have no African registered health visitor, no African registered midwife. Nor do we have many of these people with advanced qualifications in this country. We must now, however, forget a group of staff who could help even the Director of Medical Services, for example. One of his medical assistants is now working in Walji, but the Director, who is the chairman of the council, probably will not know. Probably there is one teacher. He may make a report but this report may not favour anybody in that field. So for the purposes of getting to know your staff, it is better that you distinguish between the most important group of your staff and bring them as near to you as possible.

I do not think the Minister is going to tell me that they are creating another Bill which will cater for the hospital assistants' interests. I do not think so. This is the Bill in which they could be represented.

Now, just going back to the definition of nurses, Mr. Speaker, I wanted to know whether the word "nurse" also includes the medical assistants, but it does not do that, as far as I know. I have explained the job of the nurse, and I do not want to repeat what I have said. I have also explained that although the medical assistant is trained in nursing, that nursing is just a part of his lesson. He is given more training in diagnosing, examining, treating, and even doing more advanced treatment than just mere washing and feeding of a patient and standing at the bedside, giving the doctors spoons and other things that the medical assistant or the doctor may want to use.

I do not think that, in regulating the syllabus for training which is now claimed to be the job for the council, I doubt whether a medical assistant like myself, like anyone qualified outside—how would a nurse regulate my training, if a nurse does not know how to diagnose tuberculosis with a stethoscope? How would this nurse regulate the training of a medical assistant? A nurse does not know what a hernia is, does not know what to do with a patient when a patient comes in with one. If a patient does have that condition, the nurse just looks surprised and then rushes for the medical assistant to come and see. When the medical assistant has done the job, the nurse again is in charge of this medical assistant. She goes to give a very poor report which is now swimming here in medical head-quarters; very poor reports are given by nurses who do not understand the job which is done by a medical assistant in the field. There is too much disorganization and too much responsibility, because too much power is given to the nurses in the hospitals and they are causing a lot of disagreement among the staff there. This I know for certain and the Ministry of Health must start now acting very carefully to make provision for proper representation here.

Now, Sir, let me not be misunderstood here. In criticizing the Bill, I do not underrate the duties of the nurses, but I would like to question how a nurse would represent a medical assistant, who is a physician, a surgeon, a nurse, a health visitor and a midwife? How could a midwife, for example, represent such a person? For a long time now there have not been African midwives and in many cases, in hospitals these medical assistants have been helping people to have babies. It is going on even now. How could a midwife then represent him? Even the health visitor who is giving lectures, does things which many of my friends may not know. These things are being done by medical assistants. If you look at their salary and the conditions under which they work, they pretend to be holding very high positions when they walk majestically in the hospitals, but when you look at the nursing service which is led by nurses from overseas, then the Africans who have done so well cannot be represented here.

We want the Ministry to be very, very careful. I would like, however, to congratulate the nurses and the midwives from overseas, who have served this country very well. Nevertheless, they are not going to stay in this country for longer than one year, and this Bill must establish bringing the Africans in. If somebody, or one of you, went to the Kenyatta National Hospital now, he would not be able to find an African sister; he would be able to find the little ladies in pink dresses, who are undergoing training, and they are taught by the other nurses. They get very, very biased lectures which are given by these nurses, because some of these nurses are not prepared for the African nurses to replace them. Now, they want to get a rule here where they would be the same as a Minister. The Minister would have to understand the meaning of these things.

Mr. Omar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the hon. Member right in alleging that the Minister does not understand?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not know whether he is right or not, but he is not out of order.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to say that the Minister does not understand, but what I would like to say, is that the Minister did not notice that this Bill is meant to restrict that interest, because if I am excluding a Bill in which it was to be represented, the fact is that it is meant to harm me one way or another. When the Minister was presenting this, then I think he should have known that in Kakamega there is a medical assistant there, at the home town of one of the Minister's, who is his doctor and who has been treating children and he does not think that by bringing these which represent an African midwife, that they should be registered ones. I think that the word "registered" should be underlined. The registered ones who are not assistants, are the only ones who are represented here.

Now, these medical assistants with all their problems, with all the doctors' duties they do will be starting in the areas that they represent. Who will bring the interest in the country here up to date? Nobody. This is what I am querying very, very strongly, and I would like the Minister to explain it.

Now, there is another important point, here. I think that I have only the strongest objection to that particular clause, because all these other terms are not all that bad, but I just want the Minister to answer that one, and to answer it positively, because I do not want to repeat myself. I just want this Bill to succeed, and in reading this Bill to succeed, it does not mean, but if the Minister does not say whether the medical assistants are not going to be represented here; then we can sabotage this Bill at the Committee stage, because we have emphasized the importance of this particular Bill, and we have every opportunity and every right to do something about it at the Committee stage.

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in congratulating and supporting the Minister for Health in bringing this Bill, I would like to make one or two remarks.

I support my friend, Mr. Ngala-Aboki, who spoke before me, in that the medical assistants and the health inspectors are not included either directly, indirectly or by implication and I think that it is only logical that the Minister for Health should be very clear and tell this House where these two categories of the medical people belong.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think we should be historical. As the former Minister for Health, I am only too sympathetic, for the Minister for Health that we must be historical. The training of the medical people in Kenya has been haphazard. The Government, or whoever started it, had to have someone to assist the qualified men and the African, because he was not qualified then, was not able to qualify for the clear-cut positions like medical practitioners. I know that the following Minister, as it so happens, arranged that we have all these graded nurses, medical assistants, health visitors and such things. I do not know anything that could really hamper the passing of this Bill, but I feel that the House should be historical, Mr. Speaker, Sir, and particularly the Minister.

I have only one clause of the Bill that generally hampers the problems which are facing the African population of Kenya today, or the Kenya nation, because of what we have inherited, and although it is not the fault of the Minister, this should be looked into. I would like to refer myself particularly, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to the so-called non-Government hospitals of the medical facilities in Kenya, particularly the so-called Mission Hospitals.

The missions in Kenya, I do not mind what denomination they are, Presbyterian or Catholic, have contributed considerably to the progress and the health of the African people, but I wonder whether Government is aware of the kind of training given to the staff and the trainees of the Mission Hospitals throughout Kenya, it is so inadequate, partly because they are voluntary bodies who are looked down upon, by Government, as a matter of course, and with this they feel inferior. Again, the funds at their disposal are not adequate enough to be able to do what the country would like, as a result they do it, but, whatever they do, they do it half-heartedly. To quote a perfect example, I am sorry, Mr. Speaker, Sir, but I am being very parochial, but I shall quote Meru as an example.

We have three important hospitals in Meru, at Kikobo, Chogoria and Maua, which are Mission Hospitals—Presbyterian, Catholic and Methodist—and we have also the Meru Hospital which is Government. I give them every credit for what they are doing or trying to do, but Mr.

advised to explain this before just putting forward the Bill superficially to the House, for the lay Members of this Parliament who may not very much know what these terms mean.

Now what is important here, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is that the council is mainly meant for registered nurses, registered midwives and registered health visitors, but I wonder about this, because within the nursing field, there are groups of people whose jobs, although nursing is mainly concerned, are quite different from those which are performed by the registered nurses in the hospitals and the enrolled nurses. This group is that of medical assistants and clinical assistants.

I can see here, just mentioning clauses now, the membership of the council which is in clause 4. I do not have any quarrel with the Director of Medical Services being the Chairman, and the Matron-in-Chief, but I would like to see here the medical assistants also represented on this board, because I can see here that in clause 2 it says there will be three medical practitioners, being members of the Medical Association of Kenya, nominated by the Association, of whom one shall be engaged in obstetrical practice and so on.

Now here is the question. There is going to be a standing committee for health visitors on this council, there is going to be a standing committee for midwives on this council and there is going to be a standing committee for nurses on this council. But where is the standing committee for the medical assistants? We must include the medical assistants here. This question of enrolled nurses including medical assistants does not convey what the hospital assistants are actually doing. We all know them in the field, we see how they work, we know that they must have a definite place on the council. It is important that they have this definite place on the council and they must be represented on the council through their association. The medical and clinical assistants have an association which is functioning very well and I hope the Minister will be kind enough to ask this group to be represented on the council, so that the Minister could be informed of the various jobs which are being carried out by the medical assistants themselves.

I wonder how the Minister would get the representation from this particular group, because this group works in various places, and sometimes they run small districts, they run big health centres and they have got different difficulties and problems which cannot be represented by the nurses, who are mainly confined to provincial and district hospitals. How could the nurses represent the medical assistants of whom, for example, one is now running Wajir, one is running Nandi Hills, and others are running other places. How could the interests of this particular group of staff be represented on such an important council which is going to look after the interests of the entire medical service? We see here that the doctors are represented, the nurses are represented, in the council, and so are the health visitors and the midwives, so what about the medical assistants? One could not convince me that the medical assistants are covered in this Bill because that is not so. This Bill is meant to cover the interests of this particular section of the staff and their interests cannot be just that of enrolment.

The fact that someone has a certificate of enrolment does not mean that this Bill is going to cater for him because his work is not the same as that of the enrolled nurses, his staff consists of assisting doctors or replacing doctors when there is nobody else, or at least doing the jobs that the doctors usually do; but because of the shortage of doctors you find that they are performing these duties very well.

Mr. Speaker, I am not claiming that the medical assistants are doctors but I am saying that they do a lot of work, because even our Ministers and the very top officials of the Ministry of Health, when they go to their homes, the only doctor who looks after them is the medical assistant. Now the problems and the interests and the frustrations of these people cannot be represented by the nurses. This is the argument. The nurses will not even give an intravenous drip, in other words, food through a puncture. A nurse is not allowed to do a lumbar puncture on a patient, in other words, drawing off fluid from his spine. A nurse will not even introduce a tube to feed a patient, which is complicated. A nurse will not examine, diagnose and treat a patient. A nurse's duty is to wash a patient, make the beds, see to the patient, see he is comfortable and look after the nursing side of the business. This is the expert knowledge which a nurse has to use in all circumstances and this is what they are doing. But the work which is done by medical assistants is actually to be a little doctor, to do a little doctoring. And I do not see how the nurses could represent these people on a council like this.

So I appeal to the Minister to consider getting the Medical Assistants' Association to recommend a number of members, at least two or three, to represent it on this council here, which is a very, very important council. Otherwise I have no quarrel with the Bill, because it is important, it is timely and I would commend the Ministry for bringing the Bill to this House.

But for a very long time, this particular group of people, the medical assistants, have not had a say in the affairs of the Ministry of Health. And I wonder when they are going to have a say. Just now, the Director of Medical Services who has been Africanized, or replaced, by the present Director, when he was working in Kakamega District, as medical officer of health, gave a complete recommendation and made a comparison of the training received by the medical assistants at the Kenyatta National Hospital and that one received by the overseas nurses in the British colleges and schools. He said that the duration of the training here at the Kenyatta National Hospital is longer than that received by the nurses overseas; and even the lessons and lectures they are given are also given in greater detail than those overseas. And when these people pass out from the training centre here, they are engaged, more or less, in doctor's work, which is quite different from what the nurses are doing.

Then you find that from time to time these people are subjected to pressure from the nurses, which is a point of very great disagreement between the hospital assistants and sisters. Sisters have no regard for people whom they ask to come and see a patient. You would be surprised to see a medical assistant rushing with his stethoscope, as a doctor, going to examine a patient, when a nurse is standing, because a nurse has no knowledge of examining or doing anything. I think that these medical assistants are teachers from overseas, who have no knowledge of tropical diseases, who have no knowledge of the routine that has to be carried out in Africa here. After being here for some time, they boast and they never care about the position of these people.

These people are trained for four or five years, they are sent into the field and are most helpful. So we must see them represented on this council. If this cannot be done, then the intentions behind the council are not good.

I have set out my argument, Sir. I have explained why they should be represented here, and there is no doubt that the Minister is going to answer this one because this is the point at which I want to dwell very much. Since the Medical Assistants' Association was formed in the late 1950s, they have been trying to get one single designation which would signify and explain what duty these people are doing. One would be surprised to see a very important official of the Ministry of Health saying that the name "medical assistant" or "clinical assistant" is interchangeable, and he could even call them nurses. Good. Why not call them nurses and let us see if they leave all the medical work they are now doing. We will see what happens when they concentrate on making beds and washing patients; then we shall see who is going to run the health centres they are running now. We shall see who is going to examine the patients. If anyone went to Kisii now, or Bungoma, or South Nyanza or any of these districts, he will not find a single doctor. If there is one doctor, this doctor cannot deal with patients. The nurses merely speak abuse and cause a lot of stubbornness in the wards.

We want these people to be represented here so that nurses could be taught a lesson and could be told to behave. I am not against the nurses, Mr. Speaker, far from it, because they are performing a very useful duty. But this is what the Ministry is going to notice. The Ministry is going to see that the registered nurses, who are supposed to be represented on this council, are all overseas staff, expatriates, because we have no African registered nurses in this country. This Bill is purely an expatriate Bill. British nurses and Asian nurses are going to be represented here because they are the only registered ones. We are going to get registered midwives who are purely overseas staff, who are working here. We are going to get registered health visitors who are also purely overseas staff. And then we may get practising doctors, of course, from the doctors' association, but I doubt whether there will be many African doctors. Here we may get African dentists or African representation, which is terribly important. It is most unwise for a Minister of this Government to create a council which is purely represented by overseas staff, who will always look after their own interests in this country.

I want it to be noted that I am not against anybody but this council, which I have no African advice; all it will do is manoeuvre and maintain the sort of people who are now to be Africanized and as soon as possible. This council is going to entrench the position of these people. So we would like the medical assistants, who are the only Africans who can voice something in the field of nursing and in the field of simple medical work, to be represented on the council so that the nurses here, the overseas nurses, the expatriate

[The Minister for Health and Housing] Nurses and Midwives Council, laid down the constitution of the council and provided for the setting-up of a register of nurses and midwives, and also a roll of assistant nurses grade one and grade two, and assistant midwives. In 1940, further regulations were made under the Act which set out the conditions of approval of hospitals as training schools for nurses and/or midwives, and the course of training to be followed in each case. These regulations also provided for the establishment of a single qualification of enrolled assistant nurse to replace grade 1 and grade 2 assistant nurses.

With the expansion of hospital and health services and the changes in the Government of Kenya it became obvious, even before independence that there was a need to provide further courses of training under the authority of the council and to reconstitute the council on broader lines.

The Bill now before Parliament proposes a reconstitution to give representation to all three groups of professional persons, nurses, midwives, and health visitors—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): There is too much talking in the Chamber.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otende):—and to ensure that the people engaged in teaching and training these people are responsible for the administration of the institution in which that training is connected and that they are adequately represented.

Up to yesterday there has been no provision for information on the qualification of the registered or enrolled Health Visitor, by the Nurses' and Midwives' Council. Furthermore, the Bill provides for representation from the Ministry of Education, the medical profession and the local government authorities in Kenya.

By including the registration and enrolment of persons engaged in public health services as health visitors the Bill makes possible closer integration and co-operation both in training and in practice between nurses, midwives and health visitors, for the mutual benefit of the workers of the service.

It has been proposed that the word "assistant" be removed from the title of enrolled nurse and midwife and also from health visitor, because it is felt that these persons are qualified in their own branches and while their training is less advanced than that of the registered nurse, midwife or health visitor they are carrying out the duties of trained persons within a limited field.

From the professional point of view, the objectives of the Bill are to maintain and further improve the standard of training and practice of nurses, midwives and health visitors in that the individual and the services of the country will benefit thereby. With these remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I just want to say a few words in support of this Bill.

The introduction of the Bill is most welcome. One of the things I would like to do, is to congratulate the Minister for having seen fit to preserve the democratic principle of electing representation to the council. Clause 4 of the Bill, that is D, E, and F, empowers the nurses, midwives and health visitors to select one among themselves to represent them in the council. This is the best way of dealing with the situation, and still have the interests of the people adequately represented. I am glad that the Minister did not think it fit to take these powers away from the nurses, midwives and health visitors by trying to nominate or appoint people among them, by himself.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to point out at this time is that the Minister has gone a long way to do what, perhaps in the past, the previous Government has failed to do: that is, I am, Mr. Speaker, referring to clause 22, whereby disciplinary action or powers are vested within the council, the Minister has been wise enough in this case. Because, in the past, such Acts used to be referred to him where the nurse or midwife, whose name has been removed or cancelled from the register or the roll could appeal to the Minister whose decision would be final. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am glad to note that the Minister in this case did not keep this power solely within his hands, which would make him the final judge in any matter of this type. I am glad that under clause 25 he has given powers of appeal to the Supreme Court for any person who feels that he has been aggrieved by the decision of the council to appeal to the Supreme Court within three calendar months from the date of the decision of the cancellation or the removal of their name from the register. I believe that this is the best way to maintain the professional standard, by having a Judicial body to make a final decision on the profession of a person. We know that in the past very many, or quite a good number of African professional persons have suffered at the hands of the Ministers because they had the power to decide what should be done in such circumstances. It is very gratifying therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to see that [The Assistant Minister, President's Office] friend the hon. Minister for Health and Housing has seen fit to bring in the Supreme Court in this matter, whereby the aggrieved parties could appeal.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, clause 19 of this Bill deals with the offences of persons conducting training courses or examinations without authority.

In Kenya today, we are facing a very grave situation where there is a very great lack of training and educational facilities. Some people who have failed in business are trying to exploit this situation we have today in many parts of the country. There are some Asian traders who are now exploiting this situation. They put up schools, certain institutions for the purpose of winning people in certain courses.

I hope that the Minister will be on his guard to see that no such unscrupulous persons put up institutions to try to train nurses, health visitors and midwives. As a matter of fact, some of these people, as has been seen in the field of general education, go a long way by setting their own examinations and issuing certificates. And, of course, the holders of such certificates do not benefit from them at all. This is something which we must guard against and we must not allow the standards to fall.

I hope that by introducing this Bill the Minister intends to maintain the existing standards, and, as a matter of fact, to increase the efficiency and the competence of our nurses, midwives and health visitors.

The idea of establishing the council is most welcome; the idea of preserving the democratic principles I have referred to in the legislation is also welcome. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have only one plea to make to the Minister and that is to safeguard against the falling of the standards, particularly if there is not sufficient control from him, although if there is too much control, that again will render the purpose or the principles I have already mentioned more or less futile.

On the whole, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have nothing further to say except to support the Bill and the Minister for introducing it in this House.

Mr. Ngila-Ahok: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think first of all I should congratulate the Minister on the introduction of this Bill into this House. I know that this Bill is so useful to this country that if my colleagues were willing to contribute in debating this Bill the country could be helped a great to know what this Bill is meant to convey and what it really is about. I do not know what it is in the mind of the Minister in introducing this Bill, but apart from congratulating the Minister, I would like to oppose certain clauses in this Bill and ask the Minister to review his decision in asking for some of these clauses to be approved by this House without taking into consideration what is the actual set-up of his Minister, as far as the nursing staff, midwives and health visitors are concerned.

I know many of the terms used in this Bill may not be followed by my colleagues, but I would like to ask the Minister to attempt, in the first place, to explain what the word "nurse" means. It is no argument as to what a nurse means in terms of seeing a person moving in a ward, as we generally see such a person, but for the purpose of classification and for the purposes of this Bill, the word "nurse" alone must have a place, because as far as I can see, there is an explanation here, stating that a registered nurse, and not a simple nurse, but a registered nurse, is that person whose name appears in the register kept by the Registrar under section 12 (1) (d) of this Act, which is also just a list of names. This is the explanation of "registered nurse". The same applies to registered midwives and registered mental nurses, but I know my colleagues would like to know what the definition of a mental nurse is. Is a mental nurse dealing with only mental cases or can this nurse deal with other cases as well.

I think for the administration of this Bill, it is important to let the House know, and also to specify in the Bill, what a mental nurse is. And also a midwife. It is also better to clarify in the Bill what a midwife means and how the midwife works. But the word "registered", "registered" in every case really does not convey very much sense as far as this Bill is concerned, because we know that it is claimed that a registered nurse is one who is more qualified than an enrolled nurse. That is understood as far as that goes. But what makes this nurse better than the other nurse, is the word "registered" alone, or good training. What standard of training has this nurse got? Why does the Bill not explain what sort of training is given to a nurse which makes this nurse so important that she must be represented on a board or council like this one.

I just want clarification on the actual titles used in the Bill, that is, what is a nurse, what is a midwife and what is a health visitor; how their jobs differ and how they are going to be used, with regard to this Bill, when we have already heard or read, or when the Minister has explained, in each case what the titles in the Bill mean. I think the Minister would be well

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, I must first of all congratulate the Attorney-General for his wise move to cut our connexion with the former colonialists, Britain, and to have an independent body which would approve these trade marks, but I hope, when the Attorney-General replies, he will clear a few points which I would like to raise.

I would like to know whether it means that by cutting the connexion we shall nullify all the existing trade marks which were first approved in the United Kingdom and in Kenya, or whether a local manufacturer with some sort of inferior quality of goods could copy a trade mark used by the British or other manufacturers and trade his goods under the same trade mark. For instance, if the Aspro trade mark was approved both in the United Kingdom and here, I would like to know whether a manufacturer here could use something which is not actually Aspro and could copy the trade mark used, or with baby food, such as Cow and Gate, whether he could put a baby trade mark with the crown of Cow and Gate; and although these goods would be inferior, under the advantage created by the Attorney-General he could copy any trade mark to try to exploit the good name of the overseas manufacturers, so that he could push his inferior goods on to the people.

Mr. Speaker, when the Attorney-General replies, I would like clarification on how the new Bill will work, whether the existing trade marks which were first recognized in Kenya and Britain would still be recognized and only new ones, which will not look like those which exist today on the goods which are commonly sold in the shops, will not be affected.

Mr. Speaker, with those few remarks, I beg to support.

Mr. Gichuru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I have just a mere addition to what the hon. Specialty Elected Member, just put forward, but I would like to put it in a slightly different way.

Under the old arrangements, we used to have goods sold here in a particular name, a trade mark which was registered both in Kenya and the United Kingdom. I am querying whether duplication could not be allowed to continue here, or otherwise, with the approval of the already established industry with its own trade marks, a similar one could produce such goods in Kenya; whether the same trade mark could be used with a statement that it is by courtesy of the original company or original firm which introduced that trade mark. We might, say, be manufacturers of the Parker pen: the Parker 51 or 61. If they are British or American made, and it happens that our Minister for Commerce and Industry, being smart enough, introduces a industry for Parker pens, we could use the name Parker, made in East Africa, but with the approval of the Parker Company which has a trade mark registered under their own seal.

With the abolition of the facilities that used to connect the former Kenya and the United Kingdom with the achievement of a republic, I do not think there is very much need to change certain things because we are a republic. I thought facilities could be extended, so long as we are members of the same sort of organization, the Commonwealth of Nations, equal partners, and we stay good friends. These types of trade marks which are registered in Britain and whose goods are being sold within East Africa could surely use the same trade mark within Kenya, a trade mark could be used by a local company here not with the approval of, but by courtesy of—because arrangements do exist—with the original company. We could do it like that, rather than abolish the whole thing. Instead of having Aspro, for example, we might call it Dispro, which would mean the same thing, and doctors would say that Dispro would be equal to Aspro, in terms of its effect. That means something which has already been approved and accepted by people as a medicine gets a per name and one gets confused as to whether Dispro or Aspro is the better.

This confusion comes about because we have yet to establish our own standards. The new companies are coming up, they have their own trade marks registered in the registrar of companies office here and, consequently, they are hand in hand with existing trade marks. For example, we have the trade mark of Cambridge University. It is a commercial institution although academic, but we pay for the students who go to sit for this examination, although it is a trade mark of the University of Cambridge, not the University of East Africa. If those facilities could be used here effectively and nicely, I do not see by the reason why we should not still continue with some of the existing arrangements in terms of trade marks.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have only two points to answer, raised by the hon. Mr. Jahazi and supported by the Member for Gichuru.

The first point is to say Yes and that the registrar kept by the registrar of trade marks in Nairobi will be kept and those trade marks which are on the register will remain and will be protected by law. What this amendment intends to

[The Attorney-General] help us to do is that we can register new trade marks in Kenya in Nairobi here, instead of them having first to be registered in London and then to do double registration in Nairobi.

With those few words, Mr. Speaker, I support.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the whole House tomorrow)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think this would be a good moment, Mr. Gichuru, for you to make your statement.

MINISTERIAL STATEMENT

CUSTOMS DUTIES

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the purpose of this statement is to let hon. Members know that certain changes in the rates of customs and excise duty will come into force with effect from midnight tonight.

Hon. Members will, I am sure, not be surprised to learn that these changes are in an upward direction. Full details are given in the Provisional Collection Order and Customs and Excise Tariff (Amendment) Bill, which are being published this evening. I hope when I have finished you will find them in your pigeon-holes.

The main changes are, one, an increase in the assisted and general rates of customs duty from 14 per cent and 25 per cent to 15 and 30 respectively. It is not as bad as all that, perhaps if I put it this way: from 12½ per cent to 15 and from 25 per cent to 30. So it is not all that high. There are some consequential amendments of certain rates of specific duty. Secondly, there is an increase in the existing protective rate of 3½ per cent to 37 per cent. Thirdly, the creation of a new tariff item, 70a, extends the duty to all sewing machines other than those imported primarily for industrial purposes, such as for a factory, engaged in the manufacture of shirts. Duty is already charged on sewing machines imported by housewives. Fourthly, there is an increase of about 10 per cent in the customs and excise duty on cigars, cheroots, cigarettes, and manufactured tobacco. Fifthly, there are new provisions covering the arrangements for refunds of duty to diplomatic missions and certain international organizations.

The general increase combined with the small addition to the present duty on tobacco and cigarettes, will give the Government a modest amount of additional revenue on a very large number of items without seriously affecting the level of prices. I am advised that the Nairobi wage-earners' index and the middle income group index would not rise by more than one point. The total effect of the increases will be to produce in a full financial year additional revenue of approximately £1 million. The reason for introducing these changes now is partly because we need the money to meet the cost of our Supplementary Estimates and to make good part of the shortfall in the estimated receipts from the export tax on sisal. You will remember the price of sisal has gone down.

Another is to defeat speculation which has been indulged in in the past by traders who stock up with commodities which they expect to rise in price as a result of additional duties imposed at the time of the Budget.

In relation to the 1965/66 financial year, hon. Members will be aware that these measures and the income tax changes which have already been announced will provide in additional revenue of only a little more than £1.25 million which we received as a grant from the British Government this year and which we will not receive in the 1965/66 financial year. It will, therefore, be appreciated that I will have further taxation proposals to bring forward at the time of the Budget.

Similar changes in taxation are being announced today at about this time by the Uganda and Tanzania Governments. I do not wish, at this stage, to anticipate my Budget statement, but I can say that I am confident that I will be able to present a balanced budget in June and that in 1965/66, for the first time since 1952, we will be meeting all our recurrent expenditure from our own resources.

THE NURSES, MIDWIVES AND HEALTH VISITORS BILL

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Ottende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Nurses, Midwives and Health Visitors Bill, 1965, be read a Second Time.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

The first nursing registration in Kenya was made in 1949, under the heading of Nurses, Midwives Registration Act. It made provision for the training and registration of suitable persons as nurses and midwives. This Act established the

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Odongo): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I beg to move that the Committee report to the House its consideration of the Civil Contingencies Fund (Amendment) Bill and its approval thereof without amendment, and the consideration of the Food, Drugs and Chemical Substances Bill and its approval thereof with amendment.

THE CIVIL CONTINGENCIES FUND (AMENDMENT) BILL

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that a Committee of the Whole House has considered the Civil Contingencies Fund (Amendment) Bill, and approved the same without amendment.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Odongo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Report.

Dr. De Souza seconded.

THE FOOD, DRUGS AND CHEMICAL SUBSTANCES BILL (BILL NO. 50)

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to report that a Committee of the whole House has considered the Food, Drugs and Chemical Substances Bill and approved the same with amendment.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): Mr. Speaker, Sir, with the leave of the House, I would like to take the consideration of Report now.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I just want to seek your guidance on this, whether any hon. Member can speak.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): On a point of order, as regards taking the consideration today or tomorrow.

The position is that normally, if a Bill is amended in Committee, we do not consider the report until the next day. With the leave of the House we take it the same day.

If you object, Mr. Shikuku, then you can say your objection.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I object.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is all right, we will take it tomorrow then.

You can give a reason for your objection, if you like.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have reasons for that. I have something in the Third Reading which I wish to raise, particularly when it comes to the question of cosmetics, because I have some instances—whereby—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think it is enough now, Mr. Shikuku, to say that you have matters to raise on the Third Reading.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it in order for the hon. Member to say why he objects to taking the consideration of report today?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, when the question is by the leave of the House. That means that no single Member objects.

Other matters are subject to order of the House, that means an ordinary majority resolution, but if our Standing Orders or practice says that nothing can be done without the leave of the House, nothing can be done without the leave of every single Member who is present at the time.

THE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL

QUORUM

Mr. Odero-Sar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wonder if we have a quorum?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. Will you ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We now have a quorum.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Odongo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Pensions (Amendment) Bill be now read a Second Time.

The main object of the Bill is to legalize the payment of pensions and gratuities to officers who have retired or who retire in accordance with the provisions of the limited and general schemes of retirement. The details of the schemes were laid on the Table of the House of Representatives on the 10th September 1963. The main object of the limited scheme of retirement, which was introduced with effect from the 20th July 1961, was to permit non-designated officers, serving on overseas leave terms, to retire voluntarily if their posts were required for the localisation of the Civil Service, or they were habitually superseded for promotion as a result of the Government's localization policy. An offer whose option to retire under the scheme was accepted by the Government, was entitled to receive payment of his earned pension, plus in addition to his pension. He was also entitled to commute up to one-quarter of the earned pension and additional pension at the actual age factor provided in this scheme. The general scheme of retirement, which came into effect from the 1st June 1963, contains the following provisions: one, the right of any non-designated officer serving on overseas leave terms to retire voluntarily if due notice was given and to receive his earned pension without any addition thereto. Two, where an officer retires as a result of his being superseded on the grounds of Kenyanization, or where an officer is compulsorily retired on the same grounds, of Kenyanization, redundancy or age, he is entitled to receive any earned pension and additional pension. Three, all officers retiring under the scheme, whether voluntarily or compulsorily, are entitled to commute up to one-quarter of their pension plus additional allowance, where applicable, but the actual age factor is provided in the scheme.

In addition to the amendments arising from the general and limited scheme, the Bill proposes to introduce certain other amendments to the Pensions Act, which are unconnected with those schemes and which have been found necessary. They are designed, firstly, to enable public officers to transfer from the service of the Government to the service of local authorities in Kenya, and vice versa without laws of authorization rights.

Secondly, to remove the necessity, under the existing law, of the frequent publication in the Gazette of lists of pensionable officers and offices which are fit to be pensionable.

Thirdly, to clarify, beyond doubt, that pension or any other allowance awarded under the Pensions Act shall cease on the date of the death of the person to whom it was awarded, and fourthly, to rectify certain anomalies which have come to light, in relation to the existing provisions governing the payment of compensation under the Act.

Mr. Speaker: Sir, I beg to move.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru) seconded.

(Question put and agreed to)

Second Reading

THE TRADE MARKS (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very small amending Bill. hon. Members, of the Trade Mark Act. The registration of trade marks in Kenya, as hon. Members may know, is governed by the Trade Marks Act (Cap. 506). Although registration is undertaken here by the Registrar-General, the existing registration, in a number of respects, ties us to the registry of trade marks in the United Kingdom. At present, a mark registered as a distinctive mark in the United Kingdom, is deemed automatically to be a distinctive mark for the purpose of registration under the Kenya Act. I mean that the trade marks to be used on textile and metal goods have first to be registered in the United Kingdom, before they can be registered in this country, by the registrar of trade marks.

A further point is that the strengthened legislation provides for reciprocity with foreign states with which the United Kingdom has made arrangements for the mutual means of protection of trade marks. These provisions clearly, can no longer be allowed to remain, in the light of the country's independence, and the present Bill seeks to make the necessary amendments to bring the Act into line with our Republican status.

With those few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru) seconded.

[Mr. Mulro]—

Therefore, Sir, I support the amendment as proposed by the Member for Gichugu and as amended further by the Minister.

Mr. Gichugu: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I do not have objections to having a second Asian within the board, but I would be strongly opposed to having the industry represented as an industry. Luckily enough, the Minister has put it clearly that it is not the industry which is going to be represented, but we will have the knowledge of a man who has been in the industry for a certain period of time and who is needed to serve on the board. So long as that is the case, I agree with the amendment.

But in connexion with the point where I said that we should have the Matron of the Kenyatta National Hospital, there should be no mistake over this one. I do not mean a particular matron, no; I am talking in terms of the very position which exists there, one of the very senior positions held by one of the topmost servants of the public, in terms of health, for a number of years, which means that this woman is a matron. So the question of replacing the Matron of the Kenyatta National Hospital I cannot agree with, unless I am given a very good substitute to assure me that the matron will always be within the board, plus another person who will take the place of this Chambers of Commerce man. I am not in agreement with the proposition that one member shall be nominated by the Association of Chambers of Commerce of East Africa, and I want the Minister to tell me that these Chambers of Commerce will no longer have a representative and that somebody dealing with health will take their place; or perhaps a Member of this House could be co-opted—though perhaps that is not the right word—by virtue of his position as a Member he should be retained as being a member of that board with a voting right, not just merely being nominated without a voting right. On that one, I agree entirely with the Minister.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I just wanted to say briefly that I think my hon. friend opposite perhaps missed the point of the Minister's remarks on the matron. I think the Minister did say definitely that he would prefer a lady to be there but I think it would be wrong to specify who that lady should be. And since he has promised definitely that there will be a lady with enough qualifications I support him on that.

Mr. Gichugu: I think a confusion has been brought forward by the Finance Minister. Here what concerns us is that we should be assured that in that particular institution, the board, there will be somebody who has been dealing with our health, and that is actually why I say she should be there. Now when the Minister says that the question of the Matron should not come into this, let us hear from him whether the leader of the Maendeleo Ya Wanawake, which deals with the well-being of the children of this country, the well-being of our own houses, should be the person to replace this matron. The other alternative is that instead of having this Maendeleo lady we should have a Member of this House, and it should be put clearly: Member of the National Assembly.

No, the feeling seems to be that you do not need a lady. It is very unfortunate, because they are the people who really do things for us. However, let us understand from the Minister for Health that a Member from this House will definitely be included, and this will, of course, amount to guaranteeing that this Member must also have a very close link with those who are dealing with health arrangements, whether it be the Maendeleo Ya Wanawake movement or some other body.

Mr. Warlith: Mr. Chairman, I fail to understand what my colleague, the hon. Member for Gichugu, is labouring for. If it is a question of ensuring that in this Board we have people who are concerned with our health, under 2 (g) the Chairman will be the Director of Medical Services, or a person deputed by him in writing for the purposes of this Act: The Vice-Chairman will be the Chief Health Inspector; Ministry of Health and Housing. Now, these persons—if we want to forge ahead in this country as far as the health of its citizens is concerned—are the people directly concerned. Now, if you have a matron, or whoever the hon. Member is labouring to put on this board, as far as I can see, there is no need for this person whatsoever. If you have these people who are very highly trained, very concerned with the health of our people, I do not see the need for a matron to be included.

I would agree with the Ministry that under (d) we retain this expert to represent the food packing industry; and I am quite happy that the Minister has agreed with the hon. Member that under (e) we delete the member representing the Chambers of Commerce, and include in its place a Member of this House. But I fail to understand why Mr. Gichugu is particularly keen on his idea. If I understood him properly, and he is only concerned with a person dealing with health, I do not think he should have any say if he looks at the composition of this board.

Bill—in Committee—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I will put the question in two parts and I think I will put the positive side of it, as it were, later on.
(Question of the second part of the amendment that the words proposed to be inserted in place thereof be inserted put and agreed to)

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Now, I will put the positive part in two parts again, and the Government amendment to the amendment of Mr. Gichugu, the Member for Gichugu, and that is that clause 27 (2) be amended to read that it is that right? Yes, in place packing industry". Is that right? Yes, in place of the words proposed by Mr. Gichugu; namely, "one member representing the Parliamentary Group". I might as well explain to Mr. Gichugu that the Minister has accepted one Member of the Parliamentary Group under section 27 (2) (d).

(Question of the amendment to the amendment that the words proposed to be inserted in place thereof be inserted proposed)
The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I will now put the second part of the question, that the suggested amendment to clause 27 (2) (g) be amended by deleting the words "the Matron of the Kenyatta National Hospital" and inserting in place thereof "one Member representing the Parliamentary Group".

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Is that the right terminology, or should it be "Member of the National Assembly"?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Well, I only read the amendment as proposed. Are you amending your amendment, Mr. Gichugu?

Mr. Gichugu: I think I would rather accept the wording "the Parliamentary Group". "National Assembly" is very general. All right, but excluding a Minister.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Well, a Minister has formally got to propose that amendment, if the Attorney-General would like to, because any other Member must give written notice. No hon. Member can propose an amendment without notice; the only person who can do so is a Minister. So if it is suggested to amend the amendment as suggested by Mr. Gichugu, the Minister will have to propose formally that clause 27 (2) (g) is to be read as follows: "one member representing the National Assembly of Kenya".

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I do so now.

(Question of the amendment to the second part of the amendment that the words proposed to be inserted in place thereof be inserted put and agreed to)

(Question of the amendment as amended put and agreed to)

(Clause 27, as amended, agreed to)
(Clauses 28, 29, 30, 31, 32 and 33 agreed to)
(Clauses 34, 35 and 36 agreed to)

Clause 37

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I propose that clause 37 be amended, firstly, by deleting the marginal note thereto and substituting in place thereof the new marginal note, which reads: "Certificates of analyses and presumptions."

Secondly, by inserting after paragraph (b) thereof of the three new paragraphs which I will read:

"(c) Any substance commonly used for human consumption shall, if sold or offered, exposed or kept for sale, be presumed, until the contrary is proved, to have been sold or, as the case may be, to have been or to be intended for sale for human consumption;

(d) Any substance commonly used for human consumption which is found on premises used in the preparation, storage, or sale of that substance and any substance commonly used in the manufacture of products for human consumption which is found on premises used for the preparation, storage or sale of those products, shall be presumed, until the contrary is proved, to be intended for sale, or for manufacturing products for sale, for human consumption;

(e) Any substance capable of being used in the composition or preparation of any substance commonly used for human consumption which is found on premises on which that substance is prepared shall, until the contrary is proved, be presumed to be intended for such use."

(Question that the words to be left out be left out put and agreed to)

(Question that the words to be inserted be inserted put and agreed to)

(Clause 37 as amended agreed to)
(Clauses 38, 39, 40, 41 and 42 agreed to)

(Schedule agreed to)
(Title agreed to)
(Clause 1 agreed to)

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Chairman, Sir, the amendment that is proposed is that clause 2 of the Bill be amended by deleting the definition of "Authorized Officer", which now appears therein, and by substituting in place thereof the new definition, which is as follows:—

"authorized officer" means a medical officer of health, a health inspector or any suitably qualified person authorized in writing by a local authority for the purposes of this Act, and—

- (a) for the purpose of any provision of this Act relating to the taking of samples, includes a police officer or of above the rank of sub-inspector,
- (b) for the purpose of section 29 of this Act, includes a veterinary surgeon registered or licensed under the Veterinary Surgeons Act,
- (c) for the purpose of any proceedings under section 35 of this Act, includes the clerk of a local authority".

These points, Sir, were discussed yesterday and, as hon. Members will see, the purpose of the amendments is to mention clearly in the Act the persons who will be responsible for the supervision of this Act, all of them people who are qualified to undertake this task.

(Question of the amendment proposed)

(Question that the words to be inserted in place thereof be inserted put and agreed to)

(Clause 2 as amended agreed to)

(Clauses 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 agreed to)

(Clauses 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 agreed to)

(Clauses 13, 14 and 15 agreed to)

(Clauses 16, 17, 18 and 19 agreed to)

Clause 27

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): There is an amendment proposed by the Minister; may be he would like to put that first.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I would like to propose the following amendments to this clause, firstly, in subsection (2) (f) thereof by deleting the words "East Africa," which appear therein, and substituting in place thereof the word "Kenya". Secondly, by renumbering subsection (6) of that clause as subsection (7) of the clause. Thirdly, by inserting therein the new subsection which I will read:

"(6) The board may invite any person to attend any particular meeting for the purpose of assisting or advising the board, but no such person shall have any right to vote at such meeting."

Mr. Chairman, Sir, those were the original amendments, but I do not know what happens. Shall I let the hon. Member for Gichugu move his or—?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): No, after we have finished with your amendments, then we will deal with his.

(Question of the amendment proposed)

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I think I need not talk too much on the amendments proposed by me because they are very clear and they were more or less understood yesterday and more or less accepted. I will assume today that it will be just a mere formality, in the way we have considered the other amendments. I would like to propose that we delete completely the words which allow one member representing the food packing industry to be on the board and replace that particular person with one member representing the Parliamentary Group. The intention of having a member representing the Parliamentary Group is to associate the Members of Parliament with the health conditions of the country. And this man, definitely, as a Member of the House, would be in a position to assist the Minister concerned with health, and at the same time form a link between the Government and the general public. It would be a kind of two-way traffic, a two-way job for him. He would be able to understand the facts put forward by the Government; and he would also be able to put across the case of the ordinary person in that particular board, which deals with drugs and food and chemical substances.

Now, Sir, that is one thing, and I do not think we need to labour very much over it. I hope the Minister will definitely accept it. The other thing is this. Yesterday, the Minister did say, in actual fact, that cleanliness is next to godliness, and the people who are very concerned with general cleanliness are those who work in hospitals. Here we think it would be a big mistake to allow one of the ladies in the Kenyatta national hospital in Kenya, that is, the Kenyatta National Hospital, to take a position on this particular board.

(Mr. Gichoya)

Of course, you could not doubt the integrity of a matron, or, for that matter, a nursing sister in the senior ranks. It would be contrary to the practices of such a woman's profession. She is expected to be one of the cleanest ladies in the country, a woman such as a matron. So, Mr. Chairman, here we thought it was wise to have the Matron of the Kenyatta National Hospital. We do not have a particular person in our mind, but we would like to have someone, who holds a position of that kind, on the board and we feel that she would be capable of holding that position by virtue of her ability and integrity. We thought that if we had the Matron of the Kenyatta National Hospital, she would be a worthy member of the panel of judges who are to decide about our health conditions, the food we eat, the drugs used in our country and the chemical substances.

With those few words, Mr. Chairman, I do not think I need labour this, but just say that I think that all the Members who are here, and also the Minister particularly, will agree that these two amendments should be incorporated in the Bill.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): It may be desirable for you, Mr. Gichoya, to read fully the exact amendments that you propose and then propose them formally.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Chairman, Sir, my amendment to clause 27 is that it be amended by deleting the two subsections (2) (d) and (2) (g) and inserting in place thereof the following: "(d) One Member representing the Parliamentary Group. (e) A Matron of the Kenyatta National Hospital."

(Question of the first part of the further amendments to clause 27 that the words proposed to be left out be left out proposed, put and agreed to)

(Question of the second part of the amendment that the words proposed to be inserted in place thereof be inserted proposed)

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I appreciate the move behind the amendment proposed by my hon. friend opposite, but I would like perhaps to help to put this amendment in a more acceptable form, because it is not proper to mention the name of the Kenyatta National Hospital in a legal document like this. In any case, she is an official and can be catered for under (2) (c).

As to the contention that (2) (d) should be deleted, I am advised that the person required under (d) is not required for his representation of the food packing industry as such, but for his expert knowledge of the packing of various foods.

I would therefore urge, that if we cater for the person whom my hon. friend calls the Matron as one of the four members in (c), and alter (2) (d) to read "one member who has a knowledge of the food packing industry", that there should be ample space, if we delete (2) (g), to have a Member of this House or of the public, representing this body, in (2) (g). This means that we would have what my hon. friend wants, a lady, but an official lady, without mentioning her title, as one of the four members under (2) (c); and we would also have the expert advice, which I am advised the board cannot do without, of an expert in the food packing industry, who need not necessarily be employed there, he may be a retired person. And in (g), I agree that we do away with one member nominated by the Association of Chambers of Commerce, in order to make way for a member of the public, as my hon. friend wants.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Just a minute. I want to get the amendments quite clear. You suggest that clause 26 (2) (d) be amended by deleting the words "one member representing the food packing industry", as suggested, and that you keep the sense of it, in other words, that you have a member with a knowledge of the food packing industry. So in any case, as far as our first part is concerned, you accept that these words be deleted. And you also accept, as far as I understood, that in subsection (g) the words "members of Commerce" should also be deleted. So I think we will deal with that part first and then we can propose the rest of the amendment later. (Question of the amendment to the second part of the amendment proposed)

Mr. Mulliro: While speaking on this, Mr. Chairman, Sir, I fully agree with the Minister that clean food is a very essential aspect of our national life; and therefore with regard to all the food which is passed there must be someone who is an authority on food packing on this board. Therefore, I think my hon. colleague, the Member for Gichugu, will accept the Minister's amendment. In fact, the Minister's amendment meets completely the case which my colleague has put forward, in that he wanted a Member of the Parliamentary Group to be represented, this has been catered for and the Matron has also been catered for. At the same time, we will make provision for this very important member who represents the food-packing industry, which is very important to the whole aspect of the Bill.

[Mr. Murgor] and I hope the memorandum of the Member who asked the question will be one of the best submitted.

Question No. 1012

PASSION FRUIT PRODUCTION: KISII

Mr. Makone asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry—

(a) In view of the fact that Kisii produced considerable quantities of passion fruit juice, what was the Minister doing to help the farmers in combating occasional diseases which at times attacked this crop seriously.

(b) When was the Minister considering setting up a processing passion fruit factory to cope with the production of this crop?

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Two diseases of passion fruit are known to occur occasionally in Kisii. My senior plant pathologist is to conduct spraying trials to find out which fungicide could be used against these two diseases. May I ask the hon. Member for Kintu East to ask farmers in his constituency to weed their passion fruit shambas so that the overgrowth of weed does not encourage and help the spread of these diseases in the shambas.

The answer to the second part of the question is that a factory already exists in Soik which processes all the passion fruit that Kisii can grow.

Mr. Anylen: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that the quantity of passion fruit grown in Kisii District is becoming too much for the small, individual-owned factory to cater for?

Mr. Osogo: I am not aware of that, Mr. Speaker. I am sure that the factory, which is there now can process very well the production in Kisii.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister said that I should go and advise my people to clean up their shambas. Is this the result of his Ministry's research? Did the Ministry discover that, as a result of the farmers' carelessness in not weeding their shambas, these plants are dying in the way they are dying on the shambas?

Mr. Osogo: I am afraid I did not get the question, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I can make it clear. The question was whether, in view of your reply, you regarded the carelessness of the farmers as the cause of the disease?

Mr. Osogo: In that case, the answer is No, Sir, but the carelessness of the farmers in not weeding their farms properly encourages the multiplication of the fungi that cause these diseases.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will have to vote on now.

POINT OF ORDER

QUESTIONS ON THE ORDER PAPER

Mr. Gichoya: There is something on which I need clarification from you, Sir. I see on the Order Paper we have six questions from one Member, and so far as we understand, we have put quite a few questions to the Ministry for answers, and some of them are coming to him, after the Minister has prepared himself, particularly, say, this one of Muranga as an example, is there any way out, whereby three or four or even five peoples' questions could be included, instead of giving one person the time of the whole House with his own questions, while others would also like to have their questions answered?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have to get all the questions on to the Order Paper within the time prescribed by Standing Orders. That is what we are now trying to do, and that is why we have so many questions that it is impossible to give so much time for supplementaries on each hon. Member would be a little more restrained in the number of questions they ask and in the choice of questions, we would have more time to deal with each when they come on to the Order Paper.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I notice nowadays that too many questions are put on the Order Paper. The Speaker now allows very few, or no supplementaries at all. Is it not right to decrease the number of these questions so that some questions are not treated so haphazardly?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not follow your final question, Mr. Khalif. What is your question?

Mr. Khalif: My question is whether the number of these questions could be reduced so that some of the very important questions are not treated haphazardly because of lack of time?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Are you suggesting that some questions should be rejected because I or somebody else thinks that they are of no importance? What are you suggesting?

Mr. Khalif: No. If fewer questions are put on the Order Paper, Mr. Speaker, Members would have ample opportunity to ask supplementary questions.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What will happen to the rest?

Mr. Khalif: If the number of questions is limited—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): And what happens to the rest? I am not going to continue this discussion; I am only going to refer hon. Members to what I said at some length on Friday morning when we first had a large number of questions on the Order Paper, and that can be read in HANSARD if any hon. Member is interested enough.

NOTICE OF MINISTERIAL STATEMENT

CUSTOMS DUTIES

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Gichuru, I think you have a Ministerial Statement to make today?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): I have, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Would you like to make it now or do you have a reason for choosing some other time?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): I would rather not make it now, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I take it you have some special reason for choosing the exact time?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): I have, Sir. It is an important statement which has to be synchronized with Dar es Salaam and Uganda. It has been agreed that it should be made round about half past four.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You want it at exactly half past four or round about that time?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Round about that time, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will find time for it in the course of a debate, if necessary.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

COST OF LAND IN KENYA HIGHLANDS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have to remind hon. Members that on adjournment today Mr. Mbatia is to raise the matter which is noted on the Order Paper.

BILLS

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE

(Order for Committee read)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): In the unlikely event of this Committee continuing to sit until half past four, I would suggest that they then report progress and beg leave to sit again, so that we can hear Mr. Gichuru's statement.

IN THE COMMITTEE

[The Chairman (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

THE CIVIL CONTINGENCIES FUND (AMENDMENT)

BILL, 1965

(Clause 2 agreed to)

(Title agreed to)

(Clause 1 agreed to)

THE FOOD, DRUGS AND CHEMICAL SUPPLIEMENTS BILL

Clause 2

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Is there any hon. Minister or Assistant Minister who is in charge of this Bill? Because there are amendments suggested by the Government which have to be proposed by the Government.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, if there is nobody replying or nobody responsible for this Bill, would it not be in order for us to demand that we leave this Bill aside?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Moss is here now.

Mr. Moss: We are now discussing clause 2 and there are some amendments proposed by the Government. Would you like to propose them? Somebody has to propose these amendments. They are on the Order Paper.

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, in view of the fact that the Minister responsible is not here and the Assistant Minister seems to be reluctant to take the responsibility, could we carry on putting forward our proposals on this Bill and continue debating it?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Yes, of course, that is possible, except that if there should be any debate on the points which arise, I do not know which Minister would like to answer. Or perhaps we could leave it to tomorrow.

Ah, I see that the Attorney-General is willing to do it. That is all right.

(d) Dr. Maina was posted to Meru on the same reason.

(e) Dr. Kanani was employed as a Medical Officer (Intern), that is, a learner Medical Officer. He was never a Medical Officer of Health. When he finished his studies, he was posted to Voi as a leave relief.

Mr. Ndlele: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister tell the House what the Ministry has done to remove the cause of frustration which led Mr. Warambo to ask leave to go to another place?

Mr. Otiende: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it was not frustration for everybody. It was personal to Mr. Warambo. He personally was frustrated, not everybody.

Mr. Oboko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, is it true that Mr. Warambo, who is the only African qualified surgeon at present at the Kenyatta National Hospital, is again to be transferred from there?

Mr. Otiende: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question of transferring doctors is entirely an administrative matter. If I had been asked, then I would have answered this question. If I could have answered it then I should not make Members ask for rumours. However, we consider Mr. Warambo as a very good young doctor. There are more senior doctors, of course, who have been carrying on before him.

Question No. 980TRANSFER OF STAFF FROM HOSPITAL

Mr. Ndlele asked the Minister for Health and Housing if he could tell the House why the following staff members were transferred from the hospital: Mr. J. K. Mutiso, Mr. Mongali and Mr. C. Kilongo.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, before I reply may I seek your guidance as to whether it is in order for me to ask the hon. Member to clarify which hospital he means.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think it is Machakos Hospital. These things arise sometimes from the fact that an hon. Member puts in two separate questions as one question, and then they get divided by our clerical staff into two separate questions without their noticing that, there should be fresh reference to the hospital concerned. It is Machakos Hospital.

Mr. Moss: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, for your clarification.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Since this question is why were the following staff members transferred from the hospital, I would give the answer they were transferred because they were due for promotion.

Question No. 991AFRICAN TRADERS WITH TITLE DEEDS: CENTRAL NYANZA

Mr. Odeero-Sar asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement if he would tell the House how many African traders were in possession of title deeds in:

- Central Nyanza; and
- Ugenya Constituency.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angaine): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The number of leases issued to members of all races in respect of townships in Central Nyanza are as follows:

Asembo	16
Homa Bay	63
Kabimo	2
Kibigori	14
Kaloka	3
Kibos	5
Kisumu	1,254
Maseno	5
Muthoroni	15
Yala	34

Two adjudication sections exist at Baholo Location, but no titles have so far been registered in the Ugenya Constituency.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the hon. Minister tell us from this list, how many of these leases are owned by Africans?

Mr. Angaine: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know the hon. Member or one of the hon. Members, would bring this up as a supplementary question, but being wise enough, I decided to bring all the number of title deeds issued to both Africans and non-Africans, so as to avoid such a question. Therefore, I cannot give you the definite number now, but if the hon. Member would care to wait, I can bring this later on.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The original question was Africans.

Mr. Angaine: Yes, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is what I know.

Mr. Gikoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, and in view of the fact that the question as it is, is so clear, so open, is the Minister prepared to tell the House that he is going to bring the answer to this House, say tomorrow or the day after?

Mr. Angaine: Yes, Sir.
The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You mean that you will make a Personal Statement?
Mr. Angaine: Yes, Sir.

Question No. 996CLOSURE OF POLICE POSTS: MARAKWET DIVISION

Mr. arap Too asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence if he would tell the House the reasons why the Labot and Tot police outposts in Marakwet Division had been closed and when was he intending to reopen them.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There were several reasons which forced the closure of Labot and Tot police posts in Marakwet Division. They include:

- the extreme isolation of the outposts which hindered police efficiency;
- the dilapidated condition of the buildings; and
- the extremely high altitude at which the stations were situated (between 10,000 and 11,000 feet).

I do not intend to reopen these stations, as I am satisfied that the areas are properly covered by police from Kapchorop and Chepkorio.

Mr. arap Too: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that it is 74 miles from Tebach and it is 46 miles from Chebiemlit to Tot, and it is not correct to say that the area is being covered properly? In view of this, will he consider reopening these police outposts?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did not mention about Tebach at all or Chebiemlit; I mentioned Chepkorio. The point is Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the police are completely satisfied that this particular area is properly covered by the police in the area.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE
ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 996:
CLOSURE OF POLICE POSTS, MARAKWET

Mr. arap Too: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to raise this matter on adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You will have to give notice in writing.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONSQuestion No. 995*CANNING FACTORY FOR MARAKWET

Mr. arap Too asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry to tell the House why he had not considered establishing a canning factory in Marakwet Division.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiatio): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. As a matter of fact, no individual or co-operative society has, in fact, applied for any assistance to establish a canning factory in Marakwet Division. However, we have taken the initiative and are sending a team of experts from the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation to see whether such a factory, or any other small factories, can be established in the area. But I stress again that we would appreciate initiative, also, from the people of the area.

Mr. arap Too: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister assure this House that the experts will visit Marakwet as soon as possible, so that we can give any detailed information they may require?

Dr. Kiatio: Mr. Speaker, Yes, I would assure the hon. Member of that, and, as a matter of fact, if he would like to arrange a date with my officers, we would be most appreciative to hear his proposition.

Question No. 984ENCOURAGEMENT OF POULTRY BREEDING

Mr. Bala asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry what plans the Ministry had to encourage chicken breeding in Central Nyanza.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The establishment of a committee to make recommendations on the chicken industry on a country-wide basis was published in yesterday's Gazette. This committee is going to look into the chicken industry in the whole country, including Central Nyanza.

Mr. Ngala-Aboko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell us when this committee was appointed and when its work will be finished?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this committee was set up yesterday and gazetted in yesterday's Gazette. The public are invited to give memoranda.

[The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing]

stopped temporarily because of lack of establishment for absorbing those who have qualified. This problem is now being considered, in consultation with the Directorate of Personnel and the Treasury, and if increased establishment is allowed, it is most likely that the training will be re-established.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Would the Assistant Minister say at least when his Ministry intends to re-establish the training for this particular cadre of staff?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as soon as funds are available.

Question No. 963

RUNNING OF NEW HEALTH CENTRES

Mr. Ngala-Abok asked the Minister for Health and Housing if he would tell the House what plans he had for the running of the numerous self-help built health centres which were now cropping up over the country, taking into account the trained manpower available for health centre work.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Whilst the Ministry welcomes the voluntary movement in the country to sponsor self-help projects, including the construction of health centres through this effort, it must be emphasized that such projects must now be integrated into the approved Government development programme. This matter is now being considered by the Government as a whole. Not only my own Ministry is concerned, but the Ministry of Economic Planning and Development as well as the Treasury, are equally keen that self-help schemes should be properly considered in order to determine how both the capital and recurrent expenditure will be met before the construction can be allowed to commence.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since many self-help centres have been built and the people are rapidly building more, will the Ministry then take steps to stop the building, since consideration is still being made as to how many can be maintained by the Government?

Mr. Otieno: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have said that the Government is looking into every case of self-help, and my Ministry is trying to find out how many proposed health centres are being built as part of self-help schemes. In every case, we shall endeavour to help where we think that a health centre should be and, in every case, we try to offer our technical advice.

DOCTORS AND MEDICAL ASSISTANTS IN GOVERNMENT SERVICE

Mr. Ngala-Abok asked the Minister for Health and Housing to tell the House how many clinical or medical assistants and doctors were in Government service by June 1963, and how many of each category had resigned to join private firms.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There were 138 doctors in the Public Service of Kenya in June 1963, as well as 320 medical and clinical assistants. Of these, 23 clinical and medical assistants and 83 doctors have since resigned from the Service. We have not got any record of how many of those who have resigned have joined private employment. Moreover, it is not our duty to find out what a person does after he has left Government Service.

MARKETING BOARDS UNDER MINISTRY OF CO-OPERATIVES

Mr. Ngala-Abok asked the President if he would tell the House why the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing was not responsible for the entire National Agricultural Produce Marketing Boards in the country.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamwaya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would refer the hon. Member to my reply to more or less a similar question which I answered in the House yesterday as to the allocations of duties and functions. Apart from that, Sir, I would like to add that there are two categories of agricultural marketing boards. Firstly, those which cater for local markets. Secondly, those which cater for world markets.

It is mainly in accordance with these two categories that agricultural marketing boards have been allocated between the Ministries of Co-operatives and Marketing and Agriculture. The Ministry of Agriculture is responsible for those marketing boards which cater for world markets, while the Ministry of Co-operatives and Marketing is responsible for those which cater for local markets. The reason for allocating those boards dealing with crops which are mainly for world markets to the Ministry of Agriculture is that these crops require specialized production and marketing techniques which can best be provided by the Ministry of Agriculture.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, would the Assistant Minister tell the House whether the three boards under the Ministry for Co-operatives do not deal with exports, world exports of produce, such as cashew nuts, cotton and such things?

Mr. Nyamwaya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member for Emuhakaya, who is the Chairman of the Kenya Agricultural Produce Marketing Board, does not know that the Ministry of Co-operatives and Marketing does not deal with the Seal Board, and this is under the Ministry of Agriculture.

Mr. Khasakhala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Assistant Minister has not answered my question. I mention cashew nuts and cotton.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order, but you can repeat your question.

Mr. Khasakhala: I am repeating it, then, Sir, with your permission.

Mr. Nyamwaya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will also repeat my reply to the hon. Member for Emuhakaya, for his benefit. What I said was for one other reason why this division has become necessary is that those boards which are under the Ministry of Agriculture require specialized production and marketing techniques. I do concede that there are boards which are under the Ministry of Co-operatives and Marketing and which do a certain amount of exporting, to a certain degree, but then it is that degree which makes this difference, Mr. Speaker.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 965: MARKETING BOARDS TO BE UNDER MINISTRY OF CO-OPERATIVES

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the unsatisfactory reply to the last question, I would like to raise this matter on an adjournment.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 967

AFRICANIZATION OF PROSECUTION BRANCH

Mr. Mbozob asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence what he was doing to Africanize the Prosecution Branch of the Kenya Police.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mugala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It is Government's declared policy to Africanize the Kenya Police Force, including the Prosecution Branch. In this respect, the establishment of the branch is '36. The racial breakdown is as follows:—

Africans	29
Europeans	3

It is therefore evident that the entire Africanization of this branch is well under way, and what remains to be done, is going to be done rapidly.

Question No. 979

TRANSFER OF DOCTORS FROM MACHAKOS

Mr. Ndleke asked the Minister for Health and Housing if he would tell the House the reasons for transferring the following doctors from Machakos:—

- Mr. Warambo,
- Dr. Vaja,
- Dr. Mugola,
- Dr. Maina,
- Dr. Kanani.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) Mr. Warambo, who is a qualified surgical specialist, was frustrated and discontented in his term of office at Machakos and asked to be transferred and was therefore transferred to the Kenyatta National Hospital, at his own request, to carry out relief work during the absence on leave of the General Surgical Specialist. He has now been absorbed in the regular professional staff of the Kenyatta National Hospital and has been allocated necessary beds. In the meantime, the Ministry is reviewing the position of the Machakos General Hospital, to determine whether the volume of surgical work there justifies the presence of a full-time surgical specialist. The doctors already there are able to cope with the situation. Nobody has died so far in the Surgical Unit since Dr. Umaru took charge. It is considered that Mr. Warambo's posting to Kenyatta National Hospital is in his best interests, as he now works in close collaboration with senior specialists, which will enable him to gain in experience and to increase in professional depth. In the long run, it is Kenya which will benefit, as he is the only senior and qualified African surgeon with the requisite qualification of F.R.C.S. in General Surgery at present.

(b) Dr. Vaja resigned from his post as Medical Officer at Machakos for family reasons.

(c) Dr. Mugola was transferred to Nyeri because of the shortage of doctors there.

[The Assistant Minister, President's Office] Muranga have been appointed, the question therefore does not arise.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will not have any supplementaries on this question. Next question.

POINT OF ORDER

QUESTIONS AND SUPPLEMENTARIES

Mr. Kagga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask some supplementary questions on a point of order even though the Assistant Minister has said that the point should not arise. A question was put on the Order Paper.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I know hon. Members will be disappointed on many occasions, when we have so very many questions before the House, by the few opportunities they have for supplementary questions, and sometimes even none. Now, in order to allow as much time as possible for questions which seem to call for supplementary questions there are some in which I will not allow any supplementary questions. Therefore, when the Minister has said that the point does not arise because all posts have been filled, it seems to me there is no reason for not moving on and making the best use of the time we have.

Mr. Kagga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We are not going to discuss this matter any longer.

Mr. Kall: I want to make a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): On that?

Mr. Kall: No, on a point of order in general. I have heard a lot of questions put by Members where the subject needs attention, but it takes so many months that by the time they are placed on the Order Paper it is too late. So, I was wondering whether there is a way in Standing Orders that where a question needs attention, it can be given priority.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If we comply strictly with Standing Orders, all questions come on the Order Paper in a very short time after they are put into this House. If there is a question of a very urgent nature, and of public importance, I allow it to be asked as a Question by Private Notice, without the usual formalities. That is the one way to deal with any important matter which has to be brought up straight way, in the form of question. Otherwise, we have to rely on Standing Orders for questions to appear on the Order Paper; which, as I have said, they do quite soon.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 97: APPOINTMENT OF CHIEFS IN MURANGA

Mr. Kagga: On a point of order. In view of the fact that these appointments were only made after a year's delay, I would like to raise this matter on adjournment.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 959

ARREST AND ASSAULT OF MR. KIENJA KARACHUI

Mr. Kagga asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence to tell the House what steps the Government had taken to punish the inspector who authorized the arrest and assault of Mr. Kienja Karachui and his customers at Ndungu Stadium shop on 21st October 1964, and if compensation had been awarded to Mr. Karachui and his customers for the loss of his goods, assault and illegal detention.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. This particular incident is at the moment with the Attorney-General and we shall wait until the result of the deliberations and considerations by the Attorney-General are ready before we make a decision.

Mr. Kagga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that I reported these incidents several times to the Ministry of Internal Security and Defence and to the Attorney-General himself, could the Minister tell us how far has he gone with the investigations?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member has no doubt reported, but whatever he has made there has been action taken by the Ministry. The Ministry is not a prosecuting Ministry.

Mr. Kagga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I told the Minister that, when this inspector arrested these people, the shop was looted, then they were falsely accused of drunkenness and assaulting the police. These people were imprisoned although the allegations were false. Would the Minister tell us why no action could be taken even after the decision of the court?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Action is being taken but regarding the question put forward about the police getting the shop looted, I completely deny and deprecate most strongly that allegation.

ATIKIRIKI BURURI UNION ARRESTS

Mr. Kagga asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence if he could tell the House why the police had been unable to arrest and prosecute members of Atikiriki Bururi Union who attacked and injured Kanu youth wingers at Kagunduni Market, Kandara, on 1st January 1965.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I have been very sympathetic with complaints from the hon. Member from Kandara, but it seems this time there is a mistake in the question. It seems that the Kanu youth wingers were singing songs that the school children nearby did not like and therefore the school children being annoyed started stoning the youth wingers.

Mr. Kagga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply I would like to say that this is entirely untrue, there is no truth in this—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must ask a question.

Mr. Kagga: That is what I am asking. In view of the incorrectness of the reply, could the Minister tell us from which school these children came as there is no school near Kagunduni Market.

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the school children do not necessarily have to come from a school in the market, they could have been from a school nearby. They were school children, and school children were nearby and I did not get the details of what school they came from. The only thing that we knew was, that they were school children and they were not pleased with the songs which were being sung by the youth wingers.

Mr. Kagga: In view of the fact that it was on a market day, and this incident took place at the market, will the Minister agree with me that his reply is incorrect?

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 960: ATIKIRIKI BURURI UNION ARRESTS

Mr. Kagga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the unsatisfactory replies from the Minister, I would like to raise this matter on an adjournment.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 961

SENIOR MEDICAL VACANCIES

Mr. Ngala-Abok asked the Minister for Health and Housing if he would tell the House why the following senior medical posts had been vacant for over two years:

- Senior Medical Specialist,
- Senior Surgical Specialist,
- Senior Laboratory Specialist.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It is incorrect to state that the posts of Senior Medical Specialist and Senior Surgical Specialist have been vacant for more than two years.

(a) The Senior Medical Specialist left on 150 days' leave pending retirement on 11th April 1964 thus the post became vacant on 8th September 1964.

(b) The Senior Surgical Specialist left on 75 days' leave pending retirement on 1st December 1963, thus the post became vacant on 14th February 1964.

(c) There is no such post as Senior Laboratory Specialist in my Ministry.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: I would like to ask a supplementary, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I do not think so. Can we have your next question, Mr. Ngala-Abok?

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 962

TRAINING FOR CLINICAL ASSISTANTS

Mr. Ngala-Abok asked the Minister for Health and Housing if he would explain in fuller detail the reasons which led the Ministry to abolish promotional training for clinical assistants throughout the country.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The training for clinical assistants has been

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angiano). Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Settlement schemes in the Western Province are not for any particular tribe. The main aims of the settlement schemes in the whole country are to help to relieve landlessness and unemployment amongst the nation. If the hon. Member for Ugenya considers the Luo living in the Western Province have been overlooked, he should put up a case to the Chairman of the Western Province Advisory Council who, under the terms of the Constitution, is responsible for selection of farmers to the settlement schemes in his province.

My Ministry has confidence in the Chairmen of the Provincial Councils and accepts the farmers who are selected without questioning their tribal breakdown.

IMPROVING STANDARD OF KENYA FOOTBALL

Mr. Mbogoh asked the Minister for Labour and Social Services whether, in view of the fact that the Kenya Football Team had been suffering defeat at the hands of other teams, the Minister was thinking of, firstly, employing a qualified coach and, secondly, turning Kenya football professional.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odero-Jowi). Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. My Ministry cannot accept the fact that Kenya National Football Team is always suffering defeat. As a matter of fact, Sir, our team has achieved very memorable results in some cases and, naturally, as in any forms of sport, they cannot expect to win all the games. As regards the first part of the question, Sir, financial considerations alone will not allow us to employ a qualified coach at this time. A coach of international standards would require a very high salary and coaches of a lower standard would not meet our needs. It is therefore planned by my Ministry to look into the possibility of sending one of our experienced footballers to take a coaching course abroad, and get himself attached to one of the international football teams for some time.

As regards the second part of the question, Sir, it is only the footballers who can answer that.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, could the Assistant Minister agree with me that there are many countries who would like to send a coach here—and these countries are very good at football—to come and help our Kenya players to train and be able to challenge any international team?

Mr. Odero-Jowi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know of any country willing to send us a coach free.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is he aware that, at the moment, the Government has not even given encouragement to the present local coach or any hint as to whether it is prepared to send him abroad for further training, and is he also aware that this is one of the things that has been making our team lose, because we do not have that enthusiasm and there is no help and encouragement being given to them?

Mr. Odero-Jowi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware of all these circumstances.

Question No. 1053

AFRICANIZATION: REGISTRAR-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT

Mr. Kall asked the Attorney-General if he could tell us why the following posts had not been Africanized: (a) Trust Office, (b) Assistant Registrar of Societies, (c) Assistant Secretary, and (d) Secret Registry Clerk.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Might I, with your permission, Mr. Speaker, Sir, congratulate the hon. Member who has asked this question. It does reveal a very intimate knowledge of the working of my Department.

The question of Africanizing posts in the Registrar-General's Department is kept under constant review. Such posts as that of Trust Officer call for officers with considerable experience of highly technical subjects and it is not possible to Africanize them quickly. An in-service training scheme is in operation which is designed specifically to train Africans for executive posts where technical knowledge is essential.

In the case of the Assistant Registrar of Societies, an African executive officer was, until recently, under studying the holder of the post but he has now left the Department.

An hon. Member: Why?

Mr. Njonjo: You will get that answer if you ask for it.

The posts of Assistant Secretary and Secret Registry Clerk are in the establishment of my Office. Assistant Secretaries are in a common cadre of administrative officers and, at present, there are over thirty vacancies in the cadre. Until

(Mr. Njonjo) these vacancies are filled, the question of Africanizing an administrative post which is already filled does not arise.

The important security nature of the post of Secret Registry Clerk requires that it be held by a senior clerk of mature years. All my senior African clerks have been promoted to executive posts. The post is therefore being filled on a temporary basis until it can be filled substantively by an African.

Mr. Bly: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for an hon. Member of this House to refer to Africanization rather than Kenyanization in the present Republic of Kenya?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Bly, you will see to understand soon, I hope, that you cannot raise questions like that as points of order. So I will not answer it.

Mr. Kall: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the Attorney-General has really given a detailed answer to this question, I would like to know, with regard to the post of Secret Registry Clerk which requires merely a clerk of mature age, whether it is not true that we have some clerks in various Ministries who have been using Government for the last thirty years, and why can he not transfer one of these people to take over the Secret Registry?

Secondly, Mr. Speaker, when we talk about under studying these posts—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): One question at a time, please, Mr. Kall.

Mr. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I assume that the hon. Member, who seemed to be very familiar with the working of the Government, will know that I cannot demand a clerk from another Ministry. This post of Secretary Registry Clerk, as I indicated in my reply, is filled by somebody on a temporary basis. Applications will be invited and person from another Ministry can be applied for that post.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid we will have to go on now without any further supplementary questions.

Question No. 1061

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT SCHEME: SAKWA

Mr. Ngala-Abok asked the Minister for Labour and Social Services whether the Minister would tell the House why there had been a delay in starting the proposed community development pilot scheme in Sakwa Location, South Nyanza, and when it was now intended to start it.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odero-Jowi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The hon. Member is under a misapprehension as to the area chosen for this survey. In South Nyanza, the location of Kalondo has been chosen and in Busia District, Samia Location has been chosen.

..... (Inaudible.)
and I would like to point out, Sir, that

..... (Inaudible.)

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, will the Assistant Minister tell me what led his Ministry to choose Kalondo instead of Sakwa which was recommended by the committee of experts, headed by a professor?

Mr. Odero-Jowi: I do not know this man the hon. Member talks about. As far as I am concerned it is the Ministry that decides and not a professor.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in my opinion, the most important thing is that a committee was asked to make recommendations and Sakwa District was selected. Now, how is it that the Ministry has chosen Kalondo instead of Sakwa which was recommended?

Mr. Odero-Jowi: The Ministry's selection was made after several visits to the areas concerned. A mandate was obtained from the local people and Samia District was chosen. Community development is much more important than we originally thought.

NOTICES OF MOTIONS

CONDUCT OF INFORMATION AND BROADCASTING SERVICES

Mr. Kibuga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT this House notes with great concern the manner in which the Information and Broadcasting Service in Kenya is conducted and urges the Government to ensure that the country's medium of information is utilized to the best advantage of the country and not a few individuals.

BANNING OF COMMUNISM IN KENYA

Mr. Kerich: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT this House urges the Government to enact legislation against communism and communist activities in Kenya, thereby declaring as illegal all political meetings and activities calculated to perpetuate and encourage communism in whatever form.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

MEMBER'S FAILURE TO VISIT UKWALA

Mr. Odoro-Sar asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing if he could tell the House why Mr. Masinde Muliro, the Chairman of the Cotton and Lint Board, had not visited Ukwala Division during his first tour in Central Nyanza.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngel): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The reply is negative. The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing does not arrange the itinerary for the Chairman of the Statutory Board.

Mr. Odoro-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Minister is not aware, why has he—

An hon. Member: He is aware.

Mr. Odoro-Sar: He said he is not aware. Since he is not aware of the division concerned, why has he stood to answer the question?

Mr. Ngel: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have stated very clearly, that the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing does not arrange the itinerary for the Chairman of the Statutory Board.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 998

APPOINTMENT OF AFRICAN LAY MAGISTRATES

Mr. Bala asked the Attorney-General:

(a) How many Africans had been appointed lay magistrates in 1964.

(b) How many posts had been Africanized in the Judicial Department since independence?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) No lay magistrates were appointed in 1964.

(b) Ten posts have been Africanized in the Judicial Department since independence, in addition to posts which have been filled by Africans as vacancies arose in the normal way.

Mr. Bala: Arising from the reply, would the Attorney-General inform this House when he intends to appoint African lay magistrates?

Mr. Njonjo: I do not know whether the hon. Member knows, but at this moment a number of Africans are undergoing a course of training in legal matters at the Kabete Institute and as soon as they pass through this course they will be appointed as lay magistrates.

Mr. arap Too: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Attorney-General tell this House how many of these posts in the Legal Department have not been Africanized?

Mr. Njonjo: There are many.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, the question is how many have been, not how many have not been. Let us go on to the next question.

Question No. 999

FACTORS CONSIDERED IN LAND VALUATIONS

Mr. Bala asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement to state—

(a) what factors were taken into consideration when valuations of land were made; and

(b) how many flood victims living at Kibigori had, up to the time of asking the question, been allocated with land for settlement.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Agathe): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Valuations conducted by the Central Land Board for purchase of land are not based on an overall price per acre. In arriving at the fair purchase price for any property, the valuer assesses the general conditions of the farm, the acreage and quality of various soil types, the extent and conditions of permanent improvements and their suitability to the farm, profitability of the land and such factors as access, services, availability of markets, etc. The final assessment is related to previous sale prices of comparable properties on the open markets.

In reply to the second part of Question 367, families from the Kibigori Transit Village have been allocated holdings on the administrative settlement scheme at Kibigori. 198 others have been allocated plots at Songhor Settlement Scheme.

Already they are cultivating their new plots and will be building houses as soon as the plan for the scheme is completed. The scheme will be based on sugar within the Chemill Development Complex.

A number of other families from the Kibigori Transit Village have paid deposits for plots on the Luo Sugar Settlement Scheme. The actual number is not yet available.

Investigation is being made to find unoccupied lands which might be suitable for the flood victims at Kibigori.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I cannot allow supplementaries on the first part of the answer there, because it is too close to the matter which is going to be debated on the adjournment this evening. We can only have supplementaries on the second part of the answer.

Mr. Bala: Arising from the Minister's reply, Sir, could the Minister tell the House what factors are taken into account when valuing sugar-cane lands, in which you find that one part is not developed completely and the other part fully developed?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is just what I have been saying; we cannot have supplementary questions on that part of the answer. But I can allow a supplementary on the answer to the second part of the question.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, did you not give Mr. Bala a chance to ask another question so as to express his views?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That remains to be seen.

Mr. Tannai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister tell us what amount of sugar-cane these people who have been settled have planted so far?

Mr. Agathe: Well, Mr. Speaker, I have not got that in writing, but if the hon. Member wants to know the number I can supply it later.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 1005

SEVEN FORKS ELECTRICITY FOR WESTERN KENYA

Mr. Ochwada asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power if he would tell the House, now that the Seven Forks Hydro-Electric Scheme was in being, what plans he had to supply West Kenya with electricity, which they so urgently needed for economic development purposes.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. West Kenya covers a vast area and I am not sure which specific area the hon. Member had in mind. However, the East African Power and Lighting are in the process of extending electricity from Kisumu to Kakamega and places en route, and have agreed to extend the power line from Kisumu to Maseno.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, is the Minister aware that the places which are to be covered by the lines he has just mentioned are so small and that the places which have been left out are very large and the population in the area is also large, a factor which would justify the extension of electricity to those areas?

Mr. Mwanjumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am aware that the area covered is relatively very small. A survey is being carried out by my Ministry, together with the Ministry of Economic Planning and Development, to see in what places it would be economic to supply electricity. Until that survey is completed, Mr. Speaker, I am unable to give any further information in answer to this question.

SETTLEMENT SCHEMES FOR LUOS IN WESTERN PROVINCE

Mr. Odoro-Sar asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement whether, in view of the fact that, in Western Province, the land for Settlement Schemes was for the Abaluhya tribe only, he would inform the House of the position of Luo living in Western Province with regard to Settlement Schemes.

[The Vice-President]

from the opposite side. However, I can only say that I think what I have said is enough to clear the air and to make the hon. Member from Mombasa understand the feelings as well as the difficulties, the problems which the Government has, and, I think that if we are going to run this country amicably and peacefully, we must not deceive one another. I hope that he has not found that to be so.

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, it is very clear that the Leader of Government Business has misrepresented what I have said. I stand for your guidance on this, Sir, whether he can produce papers or any quotation with regard to what I said.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If an hon. Member says in this House that he himself heard a thing said or saw a thing done, that is accepted until proved that he is wrong. When an hon. Member has said something that can be proved wrong by record or by the testimony of any other witnesses, if it is a matter of importance to this House, or to a particular Member of this House, then after he has been shown that he was wrong, he is expected to come to this House and acknowledge that fact. So it would, in this case, be for you, Mr. Ngala, to show that by evidence or by the testimony of several, to show Mr. Odinga that his memory is wrong. If you do that, I am sure he will come and tell this House; and if he does not, then I would like to know.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Now, the half hour has expired, so the House is adjourned until tomorrow, Wednesday, 31st March 1965 at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at fifty-eight minutes past Six o'clock.

WRITTEN REPLIES TO QUESTIONSQuestion No. 971*MONEY FROM NAIROBI CITY COUNCIL TO COUNTY COUNCILS

Mr. Muruli asked the Minister for Local Government how much money had been received from the Nairobi City Council by Kakamega County Council and other county councils, as a result of the arrangements made by the Ministry, whereby, people living in Nairobi with families in their homes, could have part of their taxes sent to their respective county councils.

REPLY

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Sagial): The information sought is not available. The Nairobi City Council is at present working on the information given them in respect of each taxpayer with the object of assessing how much tax collected by the city council is to be transferred to other local authorities in cases where either the taxpayer did not live in Nairobi, or, if he did, none of his family lived in Nairobi. It is anticipated that the information will be available early in April 1965.

Question No. 989KENYA PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION PLACES, IN 1964

Mr. Otero-Sar asked the Minister for Education:

- How many pupils sat for the Kenya Preliminary Examination last year.
- How many of these had gone to secondary school.
- How many had joined other courses.
- What plans did Government have for the rest.

REPLY

The Minister for Education (Mr. Koinange):

- 103,000 pupils sat for K.P.E. in 1964.
- Approximately 16,555 pupils joined secondary schools. Of this number 11,655 joined institutions maintained either in full or in part by the Government. The rest joined private institutions including "Harambee Secondary Schools".
- 500 K.P.E. holders joined technical and trade schools and 1,776 K.P.E. holders joined teacher training colleges, for training as P3 teachers. Other forms of training falling outside the control of the Ministry of Education exist in the form of training for example in the East African Railways and Harbours, the East African Posts and Telecommunications, Medical and Nursing, and apprenticeships of various kinds. It is, therefore, not possible to give exact numbers of those joining other courses.
- Until the country can afford secondary education of various types for all children who complete primary education, there cannot be a Government plan for all primary school leavers as the majority have to look for employment in all forms of economic activity available in the country.

Question No. 1001FORM I ADMISSIONS IN 1965

- Mr. Bala asked the Minister for Education:
- How many pupils were taken into Form I in January 1965 in Kenya.
 - Would the Minister give the district breakdown of the Form I intake in January 1965.

REPLY

The Minister for Education (Mr. Koinange):

- There were 16,555 Form I places in the whole country in 1965 which should have been taken up by pupils. 11,655 are in maintained and assisted schools and the remainder in unaided or private schools.

(b) No, Sir. In admitting children of this country to secondary schools, my Ministry does not consider the origins of such pupils. The criteria are merit and availability of places in schools and, therefore, no statistics of the kind the hon. Member wants are kept in my Ministry. To attempt to identify the districts of origin of pupils entering secondary schools, would clearly be against the spirit of the Kenya Constitution which lays down that no discrimination of any kind will be practiced against persons on account of their race, tribe, place of origin, or place of residence, colour or creed.

[Mr. Ngala] considered that, all the citizens of Kenya period, and after that, all the citizens of Kenya are treated the same. If I were a person with a white face today, I would not tolerate living in Kenya, because I pay for the education of my children, I pay for their upbringing hoping that they will take up the same place as any other child without discrimination; and yet this discrimination is still going on. Now, it is high time that the principles—principles, mark you—that have been asked for, the assurances that have been asked for, are given, and I hear one hon. Member saying that we have no principles. In fact, citizenship is a matter of great principle and, therefore, if we have no principles, how can citizens of other origin have any confidence in this country? If this discrimination continues, there is no telling as to what will happen between Africans of a lighter colour and those of a much darker colour in Kenya. Therefore, we would like to get this assurance made in no uncertain terms.

I already said in a public meeting in Mombasa this weekend, that some offices require to be drastically put right as far as this imbalance is concerned, but when is the imbalance going to stop? Because we hear small politicians in other places strongly saying that it must be black Africanization throughout, every day and every year. I think that we, as responsible members of this nation, have to admit that other people are also citizens. The Minister responsible for citizenship himself, I think, will agree that once he signs a document making any person a citizen of this country, he has a responsibility to see that that person is treated equally as any other citizen.

Now are we trying to avoid this responsibility of treating our citizens equally? If we are avoiding it, we should say so. I was talking to one Member of Parliament just outside here a few minutes ago. He said very frankly, that what we ought to say is that the Asians have no place at all in this country and the Europeans have no place at all in this country; and I think that Member was very sincere. If wish Government said that here, so that these people know where they are and they know what their place is and they know the goods that are going to be delivered by the nation. If we agree with the statement that was made by the Father of the Nation, then I think the assurances on principles are quite right. The details can be defined by the Government because of the particular position and specific circumstances we find ourselves in. But in principle, Mr. Speaker, I very much deplore any perpetual discrimination against Kenya citizens, just because of the colour of their faces, as far as jobs are concerned. This is very wrong and should not happen in a country which has a Constitution which binds every one of us to equal treatment of all our citizens in this country. If there is something wrong which should be put right, then we should have a time limit for this so that, after that period, no one goes on saying, "We are going to ask for obligations to people of African indigenous origin." I think this would be entirely wrong.

With these few words, Sir, and as a matter of principle, I support this Motion and hope that the Government will make its intentions clear on principles, although I understand that the details have got to be worked out, and a time limit which is feasible in the circumstances in which we find ourselves today in this country.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is unfortunate that the hon. Member for Mombasa should have brought this highly sensational question at this time. I think it is inopportune for him to have actually brought this at this very moment; and therefore, any reply which I will give to this particular question will not be a reply which I should have given at this time, but since he has forced my hand and also has thought fit that I should make this statement which I am about to make, I am sorry but I must do so.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what the hon. Member contends, with regard to the question of the announcements which are in the Press—I will not actually try to deny that they are true. They are true and he has quite rightly quoted them from the Press. And even the quotations which he has made, may be they are true or not, but I am not prepared to go into all those arguments. I am dealing with a question which is a moral issue for this country. It is an issue which concerns a force which actually even changed the face of this House where we sit. Everybody will know, Mr. Speaker, that, at one time, this House was predominantly white; later on it became a little bit mixed, white, brown and black; and now, with all the resistance which went against it, it is predominantly black. This is a force which even we in the Government will have to contend with and which we have actually to consider very seriously, because it is this force which has also placed us in positions of power in the Government. If anyone thinks that we should ignore this force, I think he is only trying to avoid facing the realities of life, because such forces are also overwhelmed India. The hon. Member actually quoted to us, The hon. Member quoted India which previously

[The Vice-President] had an almost-while Parliament and now has a predominantly Indian one.

It must be understood by everyone that this country will not be different and this country's emotions will not be different from the emotions which exist in other countries in the world. I quite agree that we are going to treat everyone equally in the eyes of the law in this country, and let anyone challenge me, every citizen and everyone who accepts to be here is equal and will be treated fairly. But as regards the people of this country, who are running their own country, there may be such forces influencing the Government that the Africans themselves will not allow somebody else, whom they are not sure of, to be given a job. This should not in any way be construed as discriminating, and nobody should construe it that way. It is not. It is only according to the force which is natural in all human beings and which make up what we are. I want actually to make it very clear to everybody that though there is no opportunity for you in the Government, there is opportunity in all other fields in Kenya where any person can play a part.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the reflection of the composition which is in this House, if somebody is moving someone else, then Africans of this country need to proceed within all Government arrangements, sooner or later. That is a fact. This is a fact which we find ourselves faced with and which we have to contend. The African people of this country struggled to get the Government, to clear away the Colonial Government in order to man and run their own Government. That should be understood. We know that all other people of immigrant races will also be accepted in the Government, but they will be accepted by implication and consent of the African people; they will also be there with the clear understanding that should it be thought the African race who are qualified and able to man those services are able to do so, then those Africans will have to be considered first. They will have precedence, and this is something which is quite clear and which I must make clear. I do not mean to mince words, Mr. Speaker, today. This is something which we must make very clear. We have accepted to move along with all our friends who have decided to take Kenya their home. We say that many of these have better opportunities in the commercial field where the Africans still have very little chance and it is here that these other people have better opportunities. They have bigger chances also in other fields. We say that those who are still in Government are welcome to remain there, so long as they carry out their duties honestly and as well as they are told to do.

Now, Mr. Speaker, just as the Mover of this Motion spoke with a lot of emotion and tried to explain things very sincerely, I accepted it with equal sincerity. He was speaking from a very sincere feeling and I can assure him that on the side of the Government we are not going to be unfair to anybody if we can help it.

We will only have to contend with that force which I have told you about, the force of nationalism of the African people. I am surprised that the Member for Kilifi should stand here today and tell me something which he does not believe in himself, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. You must not say that, Mr. Odinga, about any Member. You must not say that he does not believe in what he says.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): I am going to give examples for that statement, Mr. Speaker. It is only a few years, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can allege that what he said elsewhere is not consistent with what he now says in this House, but you may not charge him with insincerity.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): I will say that he seems to be very inconsistent with what I have actually known him to say. It was only recently when I was in Mombasa when he made a public statement in front of me, telling me that he wanted all that land at the Coast, which is owned by the Arabs, that we should let the Africans have it.

Mr. Omar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I was present at that meeting which the Vice-President—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Put your point of order, put your point of order now, Mr. Omar.

Mr. Omar: Could the Vice-President please substantiate that the Member for Kilifi said at a public meeting in Mombasa that all the land in the Coastal strip which belongs to Arabs should be possessed by the Africans?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You will say on what information you base your statement, Mr. Odinga.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was the chief spokesman at the meeting and he was in front of me speaking. When I stood to speak I tried to moderate the language which he used and that is why I did not want to get into controversial questions with my hon. colleague

(Mr. Pandya) practice. There are discriminatory advertisements in the Official Gazette, and indeed, in the country's newspapers; and I would, Mr. Speaker, like to refer to an advertisement that appeared in the East African Standard of 8th January, with regard to the Kenya Government executive and clerical entrance examinations. At the top of it, it says that "This Notice applies only to Kenya citizens of African origin." You go further and see in the Kenya Gazette of 9th February, Legal Notice No. 470, published by the Public Service Commission of Kenya. This is what appears there, Mr. Speaker. Note, "In all cases, preference will be given to qualified candidates who are Kenya citizens of African origin." This, Sir, is continuing week after week in the newspapers of this country, and I could, in fact, bring several examples to show that the Government is determined to continue this apparent policy of discrimination.

Now, Sir, the Assistant Minister justified this discriminatory policy, in his Personal Statement which he made in this House only last Thursday. He recorded this, "that the Government wishes to correct the imbalance on racial lines in the composition of the Civil Service that it inherited from the previous Colonial Government".

Now, Mr. Speaker, I condemn very strongly this discriminatory policy of the Government. There can be no question, in the new and independent Kenya, of preferential treatment on the grounds of race or origin as between citizens. I concede that if there is to be discrimination, it can only be on the grounds of citizens and non-citizens. Preference is justified if it is given to citizens of whatever origin as against those people who are not committed with us and who have so far not identified themselves with the people of this country.

Mr. Speaker, the Attorney-General only last week, in answer to a supplementary question from me, after a minute or so's hesitation, said that, "Yes, this policy will have to be carried out to remove the racial imbalance." Mr. Speaker, I emphatically say that there is no question of removing any racial imbalances. If there is any question of removing imbalances, that must be as between citizens and non-citizens, for there is no purpose otherwise in offering citizenship to people of non-African origin under false pretences.

Now, Mr. Speaker, on 20th October 1964, our beloved President, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, who was then the Prime Minister, spoke on Kenyatta Day—that is a national day of great significance which honours the achievements and the hard struggle of the Father of our nation. I would like to quote, Mr. Speaker, from the speech he made that day. While on this subject, he is talking of Africanization. "I want to emphasize here one point that I have made before. The purpose of our Africanization programme is simple enough: to maintain an efficient and effective machine of Government by and for Kenya's people. Any breakdown in the machinery of Government at any level would not carry the country forward but would cast us back. For this reason, Africanization has not been and cannot be an automatic programme, based on colour or race. It is a process that needs not only talent and loyalty but also experience. This is why training schemes have been instituted and must be continued, to equip our people for posts of high responsibility, and give them opportunity to gain the maturity that comes from experience. I have made it clear many times that our Government will not discriminate against any citizens, on matters of employment opportunity, recruitment and promotion. All citizens of Kenya, regardless of their race or colour or country of origin, have equal opportunities and duties in the building of our public service. I expect all civil servants, including those who have become Kenya citizens, to work loyally for the country."

Now, Mr. Speaker, these are the words of a statesman and a great leader, and they should be the guide lines and principles on which this Government should work in practice, not by just paying lip-service, but by fair play and seeing that equality of treatment to each citizen is afforded in every aspect of our existence in this country.

I raised, Mr. Speaker, in the House some months ago the subject of the continuing policy of discrimination in the East African Common Services Organization, and this policy is still going on, because I have at my disposal specific examples of people who have taken up Kenya citizenship and who have been replaced in the process of Africanization on the grounds of race and origin. Now, Sir, Kenya is an important member of this Authority and still this injustice has not been removed and so many citizens have lost confidence because of this discriminatory policy, and lost their faith in the fairness of the Government in implementing the principles that were so loudly proclaimed in the past. In fact, Mr. Speaker, I have a letter here from the chief engineer, terminating the services of a Kenya citizen, on the grounds of race and origin.

Mr. Speaker, very recently a six-member Parliamentary delegation from Kenya went to India and the leader, Senator Onyango, said this

(Mr. Pandya) in the 22nd March in New Delhi. Referring to the question of citizenship in Kenya, he said that they would welcome very much the Indian population in Kenya to become naturalized citizens of that country because they had been in the country for a long time and had contributed to various developments of Kenya. Kenya, he said, was very anxious to give—and I underline these words, Mr. Speaker—full citizenship rights to those Indians who decided to throw in their lot with Kenyans. He wanted Indians in Kenya to take a firm decision as early as possible regarding the issue of citizenship. Once they took the decision it would be much easier, both for the Indians and for the Africans in Kenya, to forge-further friendship and closer links between the two countries.

Then, Mr. Speaker, he made a statement when he came back, which was reported in the Sunday Post, but because of lack of time I will not read it. This is again emphasizing the same points that were made in New Delhi at a reception that was given by one of the Deputy Ministers there.

Now, this is what is said by our representatives abroad, and then what happens here at home? Those people who have thrown in their lot with the majority are openly and, if I may say so, unashamedly, being discriminated against in matters of public appointments. If we so treat, Mr. Speaker, such a small section of our community, what right have we to condemn the racial policies of South Africa, or some of the other policies that are taking place in the United States, matters which we all proudly and loudly proclaim and so conveniently denounce, when we ourselves are carrying out such policies.

Now, Mr. Speaker, where are our principles if they are going to be conveniently forgotten and put on the shelf, while citizens of this country are being deprived of their livelihood, and only on the grounds of race?

Mr. Speaker, in view of this—I know the time is very limited—I want three assurances from this Government. One, that a Kenya citizen, of whatever race or origin, will not be removed or replaced for he is deemed to have been Africanized within the meaning of the term "Africanization". Two, that in the consideration of promotions, there will be no discrimination on the grounds of race or origin. Three, that in the future appointments and new recruitment, equal treatment and opportunities will be offered to all citizens, irrespective of race or origin.

Now, Mr. Speaker, these are the three clear assurances I am demanding from this Government, and I hope, Sir, that this Government will today support me in the principles that we, as the Parliament, as leaders of the country, have laid down for the future of this country. I hope, Sir, that I will not have occasion to bring this matter again, because the people of this country are waiting for a dynamic leadership from this Government, particularly in view of the speech, from which I quoted, of the Father of the Nation, the President of this country, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to support the Mover on this. As a matter of principle, I think this House has an undertaking to govern the country as a whole according to the Constitution. Now, what does the Constitution say? The Constitution does not discriminate against citizens of Kenya. They may be white, they may be yellow, they may be red, but there is no discrimination at all in the Constitution. I fully understand the need for removing the imbalance, but let not this imbalance, or the removal of it, be used as an excuse to discriminate against fellow-citizens of this country.

I would like to say that the Government, in principle, cannot afford to get away from giving an assurance that citizens of this country, be they white or red or yellow, should not be discriminated against, as a matter of principle. If we do not do this, it is a waste of time; Sir, to labour on the Constitution, and even to take an oath in this House that we shall do all things according to the Constitution. The Ministers and everybody took this oath, that we would uphold the Constitution. The statement by the leader of our nation has already been repeated and I need not add any more to that, but even if we are removing the imbalance, may we have an assumption from the Government as to whether one year after the Jambiri celebrations, the question of removing the imbalance will be over, so that there is no further discrimination from a certain period, with people getting these notices in the Official Gazette, showing very clearly that the discrimination does exist.

We must appear in a very bad light to other countries in the world. I would like to see sincerity in the nation, where, if we do not want the white faces, we tell them definitely that we do not want them, that they should pack up and go. But if we are playing the game of hide-and-seek with our own citizens, I think it is a very cowardly act, and a very cowardly show.

Now, I am not saying that there is no imbalance, but I am saying that the removal of this imbalance could be limited to a certain

[The Minister for Health and Housing] country, and that was the end. It was a very dangerous thing. Such things can happen, and also in tinned foods, which nowadays include tinned fruits, in a place like Kenya. We should always make sure that when we open a tin to listen to hear if any air is escaping, if there is any, then throw away the tin, because once air gets into any tinned food then it will turn poisonous immediately. We want to protect our people who buy tinned foods, from contamination and food poisoning. Therefore this Bill, the way it stands, affords all the general provisions to protect you against being sold things that are deceptive, adulterated things, and things that are prepared in insanitary conditions. Also in this Bill we would like to protect the people against dangerous drugs. We are not arguing which are the dangerous drugs today, because it is a matter of opinion. I have heard people raise certain opinions on the different drugs, but I am not going to do that. As you can see your questions and your arguments can only be—

Mr. Mbogoki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the hon. Minister addressing us or the Chair?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Please address the Chair, Mr. Otieno.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to draw the attention of the Members to section 27, in which I think they have some points to score. In section 27 it has been drawn to our attention that the membership of that board can be amended. On one hand I would like to explain that four members appointed to represent that Government are the Government's chemist, ad chief hygiene officer, a qualified veterinary surgeon and a legal man to prosecute the cases; those are the four that the Government has. Under the Act, one member will be nominated by the Pharmaceutical Society of East Africa, and that will be amended in due course to read "Kenya". The idea was that this man is the sort of top authority on mixtures of drugs, and he is there not to protect the Society but to give the best available information to the Board as to the components of any chemicals. That is why he was proposed, not because he represents his body, but to give the break-up. For example; they say, "what is the substance used?", and he will say that this substance contains so many parts of sodium, so many parts of something else. He is there merely to give the chemical analysis; he is not protecting anything else.

As to the member who represents the Chambers of Commerce, this is a new idea and I am prepared to look at it because I think he is there definitely to protect the Chambers of Commerce. As such, we can look at that again. I would like to take the advice of the hon. Members there and when we come to the Committee stage, we shall see whether we can.

Under the other heads—(d), for example: one member representing the food-packing industry—we shall see whether we cannot take one or two Members of the House, as we have one Member of the local authorities there. I think that is a very good suggestion.

Now, Sir, I do not think the hon. Members did have very much to say about the ingredients of, for example, 28 (iv): "the use of any substance as an ingredient in any food, drug, chemical substance . . .". I do not think they need worry because that is technical work which is looked after by scientists. The only thing we have to make sure of is that the board function properly.

Nobody should say that the Director of Medical Services or the Government gave me this board; this board acts as a sieve to knowledge and also to give an unbiased kind of judgment on any chemicals; for example, the chemicals all the Members are so worried about, which they are using now and have not yet been examined for harmful substances.

I may also let the House know that so far the criterion has been that if a medicine does not do any harm, then there is no use in worrying about it, so if we take Aspro and it does you no harm, then the board says, "That is all right, it does you no harm." Of all the patent medicines which you hear about, some have good effects but others are useless, but as long as there is no harmful effect in the substance, this board will take no action, so I do not know whether the Members want me to change that criterion and look at it in a different way, because all the Government was doing was protecting you against any poisonous substances. However, we could even go further and prevent certain things from being imported here because of their uselessness and perhaps they have other effects we do not know about.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): An hon. Member did refer to clause 9 which makes it an offence

[The Speaker] to advertise drugs, in terms which are deceptive as regards their character, potency, quality, and so on. I think that is what they were referring to.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): On that point, Sir, I have consulted the hon. Attorney-General, and I am assured that any action can be taken against anybody who advertises anything false under the general public health regulations, and not under Chapter 249. For example, if a person is doing what somebody mentioned where the plates are washed, but the plates are dirty, this does not quite come under this, but under the general public health laws, section 242, onwards. The police can easily prosecute somebody of this type. This particular part that I am asking the House to approve is to prevent people being given bad food or drugs, milk or any such thing. However, any other offences against public laws can still be prosecuted under the general laws.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I just want to say that it is the intention of my Ministry to start a vigorous campaign to stamp out dirt, especially where food is concerned and where people use public conveniences. Therefore, I would like to request the House to look with favour on this Bill as the beginning of good things. You will have noticed, Mr. Speaker, that under this Bill we ask for slightly more powers for people who do not help us, for example, the clerks of the county council; we can now fix something, get it all analysed by the Government Analyst and later on perhaps prosecute anybody who keeps dirty things. We are merely trying to improve on what went on before and get our health inspectors to do a bit of work.

I would like to make one personal remark, Mr. Speaker, Sir, and that is in connexion with the work of the health inspectors. It has been noticed that in places where they are, really inefficient, it is because in the morning, as they are going to their work; they stop in a place and have a little waargi and this waargi makes them very irritable the whole day. They are late for route inspection and I have known several of our health inspectors who have suffered from the effects of waargi. I am only saying this because I do not know why they are particularly affected to that thing but they are people who travel on bicycles and they know every place where this stuff is brewed; they stop on the way to have a bit of it and as a result they become very inefficient. I am trying to look into this in order to find out how we can stop members of our staff drinking too much. Our Ministry is going to have a clean-up because I feel that it is a public shame that public servants should be drunk in the morning instead of doing some work. I think what we want is action in this particular field and then the others will stop it too. That has been the practice so far, that anybody who is medically minded, is not often criticized and can usually do what he likes.

I would like to ask the House, Mr. Speaker, that this Bill be given a trial and let us see what we can do this year to improve the kind of food we eat.

Now if I, Mr. Speaker, do eat a little better food, it is not quite because I have more money, but because I am very careful not to eat bad food. So I would like to ask even those who cannot afford to go to high-class hotels to go to clean little hotels and to try to make the local people keep clean hotels with clean servants and clean water.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the whole House tomorrow)

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

REPLACEMENT OF EMPRATRIES BY KENYA CITIZENS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We are now near the time for the interruption of business. I think I will now call on a Minister to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno) seconded.

Mr. Pandya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want first to assure the hon. Members of this House that I am raising this matter in all sincerity and because of the answers by the Assistant Minister to the Vice-President's Office which, in my submission, are fundamentally against the spirit of the Constitution of Kenya. I refer, Mr. Speaker, to section 26 in Chapter II of the Constitution, which assures protection from discrimination on the grounds of race, etcetera.

Now this Chapter deals with the protection of fundamental rights and freedoms of the individual; the right to equal treatment for all citizens, irrespective of race or origin is guaranteed. But let us examine what happens in of allowing it to be brewed secretly and smuggled and sold furtively which, of course, brings about a lot of diseases.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I have understood the point and I think it is an ingenious way of bringing in something else, but I am afraid we have had enough of that. We will not be able to have any more debate on waragi in this particular debate. If any hon. Member wants the Government to legalize Nuhian gin, one can bring a substantive Motion to that effect, but one cannot bring it in this particular Bill. Quite clearly, it seeks to have protection for the public against foods which are dangerous for human consumption. That is the ruling and we must stick to it.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir,—

Mr. Malsori-Iumbo: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No more points of order.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in view of your ruling, and that is the most important thing, and since most of the points have been covered by my colleagues, I will end by supporting the Bill and knowing very well that I shall have to give notice of another Motion to enable this House to legalize waragi.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, whilst supporting the Minister for the work he has done in bringing up this Bill, I have a few observations which I hope the Minister, when replying, will consider.

One of the most important points is that the health inspectors, who are supposed to see that this Bill goes through, need some kind of training because since they left school they have forgotten their duty. The conditions of health in markets and in other places are so appalling that many honest members of the public suffer from the influence of the conditions in hotels and eating places where they go. Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I suggest to the Minister that within his Ministry he should consider getting all these health inspectors brought up for a kind of refresher course where they could be instructed how better to carry out the policy of the Ministry of Health.

As has been indicated by the other speakers, Mr. Deputy Speaker, many shops, particularly eating shops, are dirty. You find in certain hotels that the water which is used for washing for the whole day is in a basin. In that particular basin you wash all the cups for the whole day, and the water becomes very dirty and stinking. In that particular case, people get many diseases because of the food they get in the hotels. Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think the mistake lies with the inspectors who are not doing their work efficiently. Some of them, when they find the right thing to tell the showpayers, they do not do it; they would rather look the other way. So I feel that they should be advised to do their work most efficiently in order to bring about better conditions of health in markets and also in many other eating places.

You will find, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that some of the animals slaughtered in private butcheries and markets are so poor and, in some cases, they are not properly examined, and when the customers take the meat, some of them become sick and some people become unhealthy. The mistake, Mr. Deputy Speaker, lies with the staff of the Ministry of Health. Therefore, I think a standard must be set for these officers, so that they are told on what to base their judgment.

I suggest, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that, apart from giving lessons to the staff in the Ministry who are supposed to see that the rules are being carried out, it should be possible for the Ministry to advertise, through radio, the conditions which are required by the Ministry in markets. This would be a lesson not only to those who have shops or eating-houses but also to the people, so that they know what conditions are expected in various places. It would then be easy for any Member of the Provincial Council or of this House or of the Administration to keep a check on these houses, to make sure they are doing the right job. Then, if they find a certain shopkeeper not keeping his shop up to standard, then it is time that such a business man was deprived of the right to conduct that business, so that he can find some other business and the business house or shop can be closed. This would help to bring about better facilities and better conditions in our places.

Also, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would suggest that the Minister for Health should also arrange for a film to be shown at various centres, such as chiefs' centres and other market places, indicating the conditions expected in various hotels. This, Mr. Deputy Speaker, would be a very great encouragement to the people and also to those concerned who do not know, so that they know exactly what to do.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, it has been mentioned by the previous speaker that waragi is a drink which should be legalized in this country. It is true that as a drink it is a good drink for certain people, but in most cases some people take it to excess and as a result many people are killed through drinking waragi. Therefore, although many of our people consume it, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think it will be right for the Minister to consider the effect of it. If it is distilled properly and sold properly, just as it is done in Uganda, there will be no objection to it being consumed, provided that conditions are laid down as to how it can be—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We do not want to go too far on that, Mr. Godia.

Mr. Godia: Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

I do feel that the Bill as it stands, apart from the Ministry working on the officers who are to carry out aspects of the Bill and who are to see that it is effective, I feel that the Bill deserves praise and also I support it, and I do hope the Ministry will do their best to make conditions better in the country.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Oduya): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am very thankful for the views expressed and the suggestions made by various hon. Members, not that all of them really could be incorporated in here, but I think one or two of them are really helpful.

I would just like quickly to go through the various suggestions and see where they can fit in. First of all, the whole Ministry of Health needs to be made health-conscious, and also the Government. I dare say hon. Members of this House must become health-conscious, so that when they go to their own areas; they spread the word of health and cleanliness. It does not help for a Member to preach cleanliness here in the House and then, when you see the way of life he leads, you find that he has compromised with dirt. It is not also proper for a doctor to go giving injections to people outside when he lives around dirty places and he compromises with dirt. I was very glad to hear the hon. Mr. Gichoya say that some of my health inspectors are as dirty as the cooks in the hotels. I think they are. I have seen some and, therefore, I cannot say no; that is the point. We should not compromise with dirt; we should always preach cleanliness and we should see that in this new Government of ours we have a new lease of life, a new message to deliver to people to be clean, to practice clean habits, to eat clean food, to sweep round their houses, to have latrines and to drink water which is protected. My Ministry has been trying to encourage cleanliness for so many years and people have heard the gospel of cleanliness for a long time now that they do not care, they are not taking any advice. I know that it is not possible for our staff to cover the whole field. I know, for example, that in places it is very difficult for a health inspector to go from one market to another to inspect meat because the only means of travelling he has is a bicycle. Sometimes he goes on foot. In a township it is easy to inspect meat. In a township like Nairobi it is easier perhaps for the Municipality to keep the township clean, but I dare ask here now, is Nairobi as clean as it ought to be? I see shacks all over the road. Do I see dirt, do I smell dirty things as I pass around certain places in Nairobi? Yes, and this is the capital city which should be an example. They have all the water they want, they have all the money they want; and they have all the organization they want, therefore we should look at the subject a little more widely, because the people in the countryside are not so gifted as the people in the towns, and so let us clean our township here first, and then clean our countryside.

This Bill is not as extensive as some Members have made it. For example, we have been asked to consider certain aspects of health which I do not think comes under this chapter. This Bill comes under Chapter 249 in the Kenya Laws. I see that Members are asking us to go back to Chapter 242, consider the drinks, like water, and I have not even spoken of that good smoke which we call bang, which some hon. Members support, but I am not going to speak about it, nor waragi, because it does not come within the provision of this Bill. If Members want to consider waragi, we shall consider it under the proper headings. Dangerous liquids are to be considered under the Public Health Ordinance. This Bill merely intends to protect the public from contaminated food, from bad drugs, and from chemicals used by scientific people. It would not be out of place here if I mentioned some of the substances which are used in spraying our houses for mosquitoes, in spraying our coffee. If you come and examine them you will be surprised to find the amount of poison in them, and therefore it is the duty of my Ministry to protect the public from the ill effects of all these substances.

There was a time here, just after the last war when people began drinking a certain substance which was contained in a bottle. It was meant to be hair oil, but some people thought that it was very intoxicating and then you would find in River Road, people drinking this small bottle of hair oil until they fell down to the ground thoroughly intoxicated. That oil was made up of methylated spirits and when you put it on your hair, after a while it would evaporate, but I am very glad that this Ministry took immediate steps and took all the bottles, that were left in the

Another point I would like to bring to your attention at this time, at the risk of repeating myself, and also knowing that you have said I should not discuss this matter. As you know, an African is always respected internationally, whether male or female by the quality of his hair and when it is in its natural state and has not been disfigured he is very beautiful, more attractive and more pleasing than the other nationalities. It is a gift of nature that makes him appear more dignified and more pleasing than the other nationalities, therefore among the people who are supposed to be within the court there ought to be Mr. Speaker, Sir, a man who specializes in beauty. A man who has appreciation of beauty, in its natural state—Well my interest is, that I have a sister and I would wish her to remain beautiful, naturally beautiful. Mr. Speaker, I suggest, that in this Bill, we are aiming at having the representative of the Chamber of Commerce of East Africa, and instead we should have the Motion of the biggest hospital within Kenya, that is Kenyatta National Hospital, a woman who has experience in dealing with cosmetics to aid the African woman in achieving the beauty she so desires, but enhancing her naturally and not making her into an artificially beautiful woman.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): For the third time, Mr. Gichoya, I have told you what is relevant in this Bill and what is not. If you persist in being irrelevant, in such flagrant disregard of my ruling, you will have to sit down.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I will just get going, but in the right direction.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was saying that even a place where four Members can be appointed by the Government, here, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we need a person who really has the experience with various health conditions within the country, which means we should have even more people who are concerned with health, rather than to have people whose concern is mainly commercial.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in order to allow other hon. Members to make their speeches and also to give myself time to draft my amendment I beg to support the Bill so long as there will be an amendment not to elect a representative of the Chamber of Commerce of East Africa.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not have a point to say here but there is one very important point which I want to mention. Unless I have the assurance of the hon. Minister for Health, I will oppose the Bill, because this is a serious matter in which we are giving the Minister a great deal of authority. Nearly every Member of the House is in agreement but my worry is what will be the reaction of the public when we hand over these particulars to the police, will it become a dangerous situation for the Members of this House. When we talk of food, we have to specify what we are talking about, because it affects drink, and with reference to drink, I am talking about that which is largely drunk by Western Kenya people.

Whether it is illegal or not, the fact remains that here in Kenya today, particularly for those who come from the border of Uganda, where they have legalized waragi or Nubian gin, it is difficult for the police to control it because a person crossing the border goes to Uganda, buys a full bottle of waragi and the police cannot arrest him because with the East African Common Services and the East African Common Market you cannot stop it. Even the policemen drink waragi. Sir, in this case, unless we are going to be assured by the Minister that another Bill is going to be brought to this House to legalize waragi, I think we should allow the Minister to burn this Bill, because what is important now is that we have to realize what is happening in the neighbouring countries. We cannot continue to penalize our people if we know very well that whatever we are doing, we are not able to tell these people what is wrong with waragi. Even my father has said to me, "I have been drinking this stuff since before you were born, and I'm not dead. What is wrong here?" Even our Back-bencher, the hon. Ngalabok, is not able to tell us what is wrong with waragi. Sir, I think the Minister must suppress the two.

Here today, economically, our people are very poor and you cannot stop them from drinking, particularly those people who are working in the railways, in the godowns, who do hard jobs; they must have something to enable them to get to sleep. But they cannot afford to buy bottles of beer. One bottle of waragi costs only Sh. 6 or 8. And it is enough for eight people to drink and be drunk, but you spend a lot of money on beer for one person to be drunk. Because of this the beer today is only supposed to be for the highly-paid people, probably like myself or the Minister. Whisky or gin is the same; nobody can afford to pay Sh. 40 a bottle. Who can afford to buy this?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Masinde, would you just pause there to tell us what part of the Bill you are criticizing?

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am concerned with foodstuffs; I am emphasizing that [Mr. Masinde] this should not be used to penalize people who are poorly paid; it is those who are supporting themselves because they are drinking waragi—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It would help the House and the Assistant Minister if you could refer to the particular clauses you think might be so used. What part of the Bill are you referring to?

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, I am referring to substance of food because that is one of the sections—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Clause 3, is it, "any person who sells food which is unwholesome or unfit for human consumption"?

Mr. Masinde: Yes, Sir. That is the thing. In this case, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I intend to oppose the Bill, unless the Minister assures this House that he is going to introduce another Bill to allow people to drink waragi—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. You must keep within the bounds of this Bill. It is no good hon. Members saying the public must be allowed to drink wine because this Bill does not touch wine, unless it is unfit for human consumption. It is food, including drink, that is unfit for human consumption, dangerous, which this Bill is concerned with. We cannot talk about other foods or drinks which are not dangerous. You must keep to the subject matter of the Bill.

Mr. Ngalabok: Mr. Speaker, since food includes all consumable materials and if a Member just made a mention that probably material was omitted and without having to find a clause for it in the Bill, would that be out of order in the debate, where the waragi comes in, an omission which was important?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have pointed out that the definition of food in this Bill includes drink, but the whole Bill deals only with food which is poisonous or harmful, unwholesome, unfit for human consumption, and we cannot go on discussing what things should be sold or not sold to the public, which are not in some way dangerous to health.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if you can allow me to continue, the fact remains that waragi is not legalized; in other words, you cannot be allowed to drink publicly and, for that matter—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, here again let me tell hon. Members we are concerned with this Bill. If this Bill illegalizes a particular drink, it is because it is dangerous. If some other law illegalizes it, it is nothing to do with this Bill. We cannot discuss other laws under this Bill. Laws concerning the sale of liquor generally are quite irrelevant to this debate.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I have finished and, in fact, you have helped my friend, the fact still remains, Sir—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have tried to help the House!

Mr. Masinde: The fact still remains, Sir, that there are some facts, particularly on some other drugs and chemicals, on which I support the Minister very much, but on the point of foodstuffs, it appears that I have to bring up a completely new point and since this one is the most important one, I hope that the Minister takes note of it and that he will not take a long time, particularly if we legalize this one, to continue giving trouble to our people while knowing very well that we are doing wrong things to them, just because we have been slow to change some of our old colonial laws.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

This existed because some big firms like the Kenya Breweries and those who sell things like whisky and brandy know very well that if waragi is legalized, these industries will suffer, but, Sir, we are not going to protect a few hundred of those Africans who are working in breweries and the money we are getting from Kenya, because most of these people are living on this stuff—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Masinde, the Speaker has just ruled that the general laws of liquor are not applicable in this case and we are not discussing the general laws and we are only discussing the general laws of alcoholic drinks. We are only discussing of alcoholic drinks which is dangerous for human consumption, and I do not suppose you say that that particular drink you are referring to is, in fact, dangerous. It is not dangerous, but it is not relevant to this particular debate.

Mr. Odoyo: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think the hon. Member is not contradicting the issue. I think what he means actually is for the Ministry to allow the breweries to brew this drink he is talking about, so that it can be purified for human consumption, instead

[Mr. Gichoya]

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that I want to say is this: in our own districts, the remote areas where modernization has yet to come, we are faced with the food problem. I would say that an hotel is an eating place, yet you find on the board outside "Hotel". I think it is high time, Sir, that the Minister made a tour of his own district particularly and found out whether these eating places are really worthy of existence or whether they should be abolished, because a very filthy place is bound to spoil the food and make the food also filthy, as a consequence of the condition of the place where it is cooked and served.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in our own districts, where the water system is not reliable, fresh food is bound to be made filthy by lack of sufficient water to clean the place which is used by the customers. There was a time, Mr. Speaker, when we were told that water must be boiled, water for cleaning utensils, so that the food that was served was not spoiled by the dirty utensils. Then you go to these little places—I am talking not in terms of Nairobi but in terms of the places where we come from. Kirinyaga is a very good example, and most of Gichugu. You find that these conditions are prevalent; and you find that the inspectors of health, those who are living in these districts, are more or less of the same standard as the food or as the filthy conditions. They do not know how to make a place clean. If they did, they would have forced the man who is serving the public to dress decently, have decent clothes, so that he does not wear filthy clothes, a man calling himself a servant of the hotel. These things do not need debate in the House; they need just their commonsense on the part of the Administration, on the part of the Minister for Health, to see to it that we get better conditions which, in future, will make us more healthy, like the Minister himself. Luckily enough, the Minister does not seem to eat in these small places, but in these big places where health conditions are adhered to. I do not even need to substantiate that because his income demands that, as a wise man, he must have something decent in order to live longer.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we want to live longer in the villages and since we have got a national Government it ought to be not only the duty of the health inspectors but also the duty of the chiefs, the district officers, the headmen, the sub-chiefs, to tell the public and not even to do that, but to go round visiting places and finding out whether the conditions are conducive to good health or whether these places should be declared prohibited areas, where food should not be served.

Another thing is this, Mr. Speaker. In our own villages, where we have butcheries all over, when a cow has been butchered, you wait for an inspector to come and inspect the carcass so that it can legally be consumed. Yet you do not get him perhaps for a number of hours. Slaughtering hours are in the morning, but this man, who is employed entirely for that purpose by the divisional council, the area council and the county council, spends so much of his time going round in the villages drinking that, after getting the report that So-and-so is wanting to slaughter his cattle in a particular village and that he should come and examine it, find out whether it is good for human consumption or not, after that information has been sent to him and the slaughter has already been done, that man does not appear. This reflects, Sir, on the degeneration in the Administration machinery, so far as health is concerned.

It would be wrong, after independence, more so after our becoming a Republic, that our services must be so slow, must have so degenerated, that you cannot be proud of them. Now, when the man who is supposed to examine the animal comes, three or four hours after the slaughter, the files have already been feeding on that particular animal. And yet he comes and he passes it as all right because he does not see the tapeworms; he has got to examine certain parts of the body to find out whether it is O.K. or not, but the actual disease which has been put there by these files cannot be examined.

Consequently, you find that our society is now deteriorating in terms of health, and instead of producing healthy children they are now becoming very thin children, very poor children. This is a duty for the Ministry dealing with our health conditions, that it must do something about this pathetic situation.

Now we have seen, Sir, that the animal which was in good condition for human consumption, because of the delay in the administrative machine, in the examination of the carcass becomes a rotten animal. And we have to cry it, there is no doubt about it, because we eat it and believe that God will help us even if the medical authorities cannot. That has been the position. I think it does not argue a very good attitude on the part of the Administration.

I see here, Sir, we are told that, in order to get this Bill supervised properly in its operation, there will be a number of members on the board. Now I see there is provision for one member representing the food packing industry.

[Mr. Gichoya]

I do not think, Sir, that it is necessary for us to have someone representing this industry. What is needed is to have at least two Members of Parliament on that particular board, and so long as the Health Department does give a leg up to the packing materials I do not see that we need a commercial man, who would see that they really be allowed, by the operation of this Bill, to play with the board. If he is on the board, I have got the same fear as the hon. Mr. Ngala-Abok, when he said that this man is bound to restrict the operation of the Bill by trying to be clever enough, in order to safeguard his own industry.

Here, the Minister should not safeguard the industry, but human society, which has put him in this particular place. It is not a question of safeguarding the commercial houses; you must safeguard the local people, the consumers themselves, first. It is the duty of the packing industry to manufacture things according to specifications given to them by the Ministry of Health; it is up to the leaders of this industry to come and state to the Ministry, that such and such a way is the only good way for it. The Ministry must be in a position to know that such and such a substance is bound to spoil the beauty of packing and not for that man to come and justify his own wrong ways within the board, saying that they are very good, that when you pack things this way and that way it is the best way. We do not want these things. We want the Minister himself and cool-headed Members of this House to be on the board, along with the technicians on the side of the Government, particularly those on the health side. I see we have a number of them; they have been enumerated.

Again, I hear too that we are going to have as member nominated by the Association of Chambers of Trade of Eastern Africa.

Now, we need these because they give advice in terms of drugs that are bad or drugs which are good. We state that clean paper which has been approved by the medical authorities should be used. Do you need advice for that? A Bill of this kind must be carefully planned and constructed, and if there has been pressure from the commercial circles that unless they are represented in the Bill, they will not respect the Bill passed by this House, I do not see the point of having the Chamber of Commerce within the committee dealing with health. Commerce deals with trade, which is the market for the goods, but it does not deal with the health conditions of our people. So this one must be deleted and if it means adding a Motion to amend this one, I think I am about to do it, Mr. Speaker. I do not see the point of having the Chamber of Commerce being represented in the Ministry of Commerce and Industry. With regard to the Ministry of Health, I would even suggest that a teacher be placed there and not some of these people involved in commerce, a man who knows hygiene.

Mr. Speaker, we have doctors in the Back-benchers and those could be incorporated within the committee to advise on medical problems.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, whilst still continuing with my speech I would like to take this opportunity to seek your advice, if I am allowed, as to whether I should put a Motion immediately to cut off this one Member of the Chamber of Commerce.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): As long as you give written notice of your proposed amendment before the Committee sits you are able to move it in Committee.

Mr. Gichoya: Thank you, Sir. Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is my intention and I hope that the hon. Mr. Ngala-Abok will second my amendment to delete completely this particular clause which allows the Chamber of Commerce to go into another Ministry, as I do not see the point anyway, Sir.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what more important is that we do not use newspapers for packing our meats, as these second-hand newspapers have passed through so many hands. If you go to the villages you will find that this is the type of paper which is used to wrap our meat and I would like to ask the Health Ministry at this time, whether they have really concerned themselves with our food and our health. If the Minister could assure this House that materials used to wrap meat could be specifically enumerated by the Health Ministry and given for exhibit to the office of the chief, who is the smallest man within the administrative services and ask him to see that the people who are selling meat are advised as to the proper wrappings. In other words, an inspector of health should go to these areas and see to it that the proper materials are being used for wrappings, instead of these newspapers, where there is ink which has been used for printing. This ink is poisonous, and the Ministers have not even taken the initiative to find out whether this poisonous ink is endangering the health of our people.

Now, the Minister is healthy because he eats in places where the people of those hotels and restaurants abide by the regulations set up by the Ministry of Health, but what about those people, who cannot afford even two lb. of meat per day, those who have meat once a month or once a year, their health must also be preserved in the interests of our nation.

not going to criticize whatever clause I see, but I would like to mention here that if the Pharmaceutical Society is advising the sales of drugs and the business in drugs, and drug preparations and so on, the Minister is going to nullify what they intend to justify in the Bill. If you are going to appoint a member from this particular society to the board, then this member will know all the time how to manoeuvre other members who may not have pharmaceutical knowledge in the board, so that all the time they are operating, they may find time to visit the industries which are regulated in the Bill, so that the members of the board will tell them to make themselves very clean and then prepare the drugs which they know and which they have tested and they are justified to be correct, but all those drugs that they prepare in a hurry or the drugs which are prepared by half-educated people, this Bill will not expose. It will only expose those people who they have known to be scientifically up to date. I do not know whether the Minister is going to justify appointing a person who comes from a body which is controlled by the provision of this Bill. This is the basis of my argument. This is wrong. If you are supposed to deal with the person who is represented on your board, on your committee, on your political party or on your ideology, neither he nor his business should get any representation on such a board.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think that I have much to say, except that now I would like to speak on the advertising. I think the Ministry of Health should consult with the Ministry of Information, Broadcasting and Tourism on the advertising system, because if you now go to the Kenyatta National Hospital, for example, for tuberculosis treatment, you find that the medicine you are given for the treatment of tuberculosis is not the same as that which would not be given to you had you gone to a chemist. Do we understand that some of the drugs which are bought from the shops are merely advertised under different names to ensure that people buy them? This is why our Ministry is so worried about the advertising. Aspro, and in my own experience I have not known Aspro used by any qualified physician as a prescription for a patient unless it is just a case of a headache, which has not arisen from an illness or from any viral infection, like an infection of the throat or from any chronic condition, but a mere headache probably due to fatigue.

But with just a case of a mere headache, probably due to fatigue, this is where a qualified physician will prescribe Aspro for you. We would not like to give publicity to drugs which are unknown in our own Medical Department which are unknown to our own senior medical specialists, which should have under its control, as far as the Ministry is concerned, all the sales and the advertisements which are meant for financial gain, because I know that if we have an agent here, a businessman, his intention should not be so loudly advertised unless our Ministry, with its specialists, has approved of its products. We do not want to see these drugs, which are not of so much value when we go to our own physicians and see what they prescribe, consuming the salary of our taxpayers here. Our physicians have not approved of these drugs and in the majority of cases they are not prescribed for you. You find the agencies taking a lot of time on the radio and on television getting these things advertised. I think the whole thing is a mess and these things will not work unless the Ministry is satisfied that the medicine is popular and also down to earth and is not being used to try to cure a headache which is of a chronic nature associated with a chronic, vital disease from which a person is suffering.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have just a few things to suggest to the Minister and the first one is in connexion with clause 28 where it states that—

"The Minister, after consultation with the Board, may make regulations—

(b) respecting— . . .
(iv) the use of any substance as an ingredient in any food, drug, chemical substance or cosmetic or device . . ."

Mr. Speaker, my consideration has been directed to that particular clause in connexion with the situation which has already been described here by a number of Members, relating to cosmetics. It is high time that the Minister should issue instructions: I am trying to find out the exact disfigurement of these girls or ladies in this country, after using certain cosmetics. It is a general thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, and you do not need to try to ask for a case, a specific case. The Minister, if he really is a Minister for Health, and has made it a point to find out what the conditions are within the country, more particularly Nairobi, might have come across the cases of a number of girls who otherwise, in their normal, natural condition, are very beautiful, very charming, Sir, but who after putting on the new make-up, cosmetics, find that their faces have changed and the changes are as for the better, but for the worse. Yet they still continue to put those cosmetics on their faces, so as to attract men; and with most of them this comes about as a result of the health conditions of the country, in that prostitution has been allowed to continue openly, and the Minister for Health has done nothing. Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Gichoya, are you concerned with the physical injury which is done by cosmetics or with the aesthetic or moral issue? Because this Bill is not concerned with either of those things; it is only concerned with injuries caused by bad cosmetics. I rather think you are saying that there is something wrong with some of these ladies who wear cosmetics, regardless of any physical injury caused, and that is outside the scope of this Bill.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I am trying to do is this, to explain that certain cosmetics are not made actually to suit the conditions of Kenya or, for that matter, East Africa. Consequently, their adoption in this country be- comes injurious to the health of the people and this Bill is meant, Sir, to see to it that anything that is injurious, either through adulteration or by its own nature, should not be allowed to be used in the country.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I take it you mean physically injurious.

Mr. Gichoya: Yes, Sir. Here I am saying this, because I have seen a number of ladies, whom I knew previously, when we were school mates, either at high school or, particularly, in college, in their former condition, without this colour which they are trying to put on their cheeks and on their eyes, and without this change of hair which they are trying to achieve by chemicals, they were really beautiful, but it is up to the national Government to safeguard the beauty and the dignity of the people of the country.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Gichoya, I am sorry but you are still wandering away from the point. It is quite true what you say, but this Bill is concerned only with the physical health of people, not their morals or even their beauty.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am still just dealing—I will not deal with the moral aspect of it, but I will deal entirely with the physical aspect of involvement of these people.

I think hair is a part of our physical beauty.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We are not concerned with physical beauty, but with physical health.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, you are correct; hair is a part of the healthy component of our body or healthy aspects of our body. A man with a good head of healthy hair is equally physically and mentally strong; and here we find that, when these ladies have changed their hair, their very conditions of physical health are completely changed. They lose their hair, their hair disappears; and this spoils the health of a human being.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Ministry could at least learn from the experience of the past few months, it would definitely not require this Bill to be passed before the Minister issues directives to all concerned, whether it is the police or the district commissioners or the medical officers, telling them that these things are not conducive to good health in the country.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is this. There is an element of exploitation, nationwide exploitation, Mr. Speaker, by the encouragement of cosmetics. We need drugs, because we do not have our own factories to manufacture them, but cosmetics; for heaven's sake, we do not need them. We have natural beauty.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! That is not the point of this Bill. This Bill accepts that people may buy cosmetics; it only protects them against buying injurious cosmetics. We must stay on that.

Mr. Gichoya: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Now, it has been pointed out that some of these foreign cosmetics are injurious to our health, yet so much money is being spent by our people on buying these foreign cosmetics, which are not meant for our own health but have proved to be detrimental to it. I suggest, Sir, that the Minister should do something to prevent them from coming to this country.

Mr. Speaker, I think I had better explain to one of the ignorant hon. Members, who says, "How does it spoil our health?" It has been made very clear here, not necessarily by the Member for Gichugu but even by a Minister of the Kenya Government, that these things are very dangerous. Funny enough, he might have a sister and that sister might have been disfigured by these cosmetics. So in order to prevent others from falling into the same trap, he has just confessed in this House the dangers of these foreign cosmetics. I need not add more to that, because that has already been properly explained. Perhaps the hon. Member was so ignorant of the language that was being used that he could not get even the gist of what was being said.

[Mr. Ngala-Abok] person who labels, packages, treats, processes, sells or advertises any drug in contravention of any regulations made under this Act, or in a manner that is false, misleading or deceptive as regards its character, constitution, value, potency, quality, composition, merit, or safety, shall be guilty of an offence." Now, Mr. Speaker, this is vague in one sense: that we have not gone into the roots of what would make the person prepare a drug, for example, or prepare food which is adulterated or which the Ministry of Health may find not to be good for human consumption. To give another example, if one went to many of the restaurants and hotels in the towns of Kenya today or in the city, one would find that, first of all, the sink just near the person selling the beer or preparing or roasting meat is so filthy that nobody would wish even to wash his hands in it, even if he meant that they may be clean. This may mean that the man preparing the food has very good intentions; he does not want to adulterate the food, he does not want to touch anything that would adulterate the food, but because attention has not been paid to the sink, attention has not been paid to the latrines or the drains, or the things that would bring adulteration have not been looked into, this adulteration is going to take place definitely, and this Bill will do nothing to prevent it.

I think that the Ministry of Health must first of all go according to speech, throughout the city, to see what standards exist in restaurants and hotels today. We are not going to ask our people to make a lot of money because we have freedom and independence. We want to save the lives of the people, and if anybody is given a licence to run a society we must go to the very foundation of how, what we called an adulterating urgency, or what would make us seek, in terms of an organization, to prevent it? If we cannot prevent it then what should be done is to teach all those dealing in the preparation of food and drugs to be hygienic, especially when a certain medicine is being prepared. We will not prevent disease by means of disposing anything that has happened and many hotel-keepers will find themselves guilty for reasons which are not their own, and, Mr. Speaker, Sir, ignorance does not enter into this. I would not go before the court and then be prosecuted and then be convicted because it was alleged, that I was not aware, that our sinks are kept clean, the latrines are kept clean. Now, if we went to the Panafic Hotel or even to the Ambassador Hotel or even if you went to any other of the hotels you would see that all the latrines are clean and everything is swept clean, so that we should have no reason whatsoever to find food or anything that is touched by a person adulterated. We have not seen here what the Ministry of Health is going to do to prevent these adulterations. We have only seen that if an owner of a restaurant, or anyone is found preparing drugs or food, and the food is adulterated then it is a human offence. We would like the Minister for Health to tell us how the Minister would be justified in prosecuting a person who has been found with adulterated food, and who would explain before the court of law that this food was adulterated by the person, when the person knew that it was adulterated. I do not think that this would be justified.

The Minister for Health does not see to the latrines, does not see the villages, does not see the drains nor does he see to all these places where you could get your nails contaminated. He does not look at the nails of the person who is preparing food. For example, if we went to the Kariakoo market, then we would see the majority of the people here, including Ministers, going to the market to purchase some meat. This meat is prepared by the people there, and it is alleged to be clean, but if you look at the nails of the person who is preparing this meat then you would see that they were dirty. This could be looked into although I know it is not easy to keep somebody's fingers clean by force, but it is important to prevent the person from being licensed or for being authorized to sell food before he is told what he has to do. I think that the Minister for Health must be vigilant with the people who do not keep the rules of health, because so many people will be found guilty for reasons which are not known to them. It is really very shameful to see what is happening in many of the hotels owned by Africans and Asians, where adulterated and rotten food exists, as a result of lack of knowledge of elementary hygiene.

Personally I would not like to go to, for example, to the New Avenue Hotel. I have no money for such a highly-advanced place. I would like the simple polish off in a faithful attempt, and this must be enforced by the Ministry of Health. I want to agree with the Bill which states that if food is adulterated, if you have found that it is adulterated and it is not good for human consumption, you have been found guilty. Now, if you are found to be bartering a lot of rubbish, you will be guilty. This is a basic foundation. If you are found to be guilty, if your latrines, sinks, drains, and your corners

[Mr. Ngala-Abok] are full of cobwebs, then all this rubbish will be labour organisms which will adulterate. Could we know whether the Ministry of Health is practising the law of health? I think that the Minister should explain this, because at the moment it is too superficial, although I support the Bill, because—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Ngala-Abok, I think you may have overlooked clause 7 of the Bill.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Thank you very much Mr. Speaker, Sir, but I have looked over this Bill very carefully to enable me to speak the way I am, but this clause 7, also, Mr. Speaker, Sir, deals with the subject I am about to talk about.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, a man keeping a hotel or preparing food, working in a variety of conditions is what the Minister for Health is concerned about, and this is miserable. Even after my speech tomorrow, if one went to the hotels which I am referring to, which is catering for many of our people, he would find that what I am saying is actually going on. If this had been taken into account by his Ministry, he should consider most of these people who are trading these drugs are prepared and food is prepared. I am not referring to cosmetics. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am trying to warn the Ministry that what is happening in those places is terrible. There is no point in passing a Bill here, and then tomorrow finding that even a glass of beer has been handled by dirty fingers, and you can see the fingerprints. If this were so it would contain many organisms and were it to be analysed then it would be seen that it contained many organisms from the person who handled the glass that can kill, and has killed many, and this is what I was referring to. I do not want to dwell on that topic for a long time.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to go on to the membership of the board, which is clause 27. Mr. Speaker, Sir, could I ask the Minister when answering to explain what the five Members appointed to represent the Government will represent? On what basis will they be represented? The rules are not important Mr. Speaker, Sir, but in what capacity and how will the Minister appoint them and what will they represent? What will be their knowledge and which departments will they represent? I believe that if anything is to work, then the people who are supposed to execute the Bill, which I think is the membership of the board, must be the people that are actually going to understand this, and people who are going to work according to the direction of the Ministry under which the board will be instituted. I just wanted to know what these members are going to be and what departments they are going to represent, and on what basis is the Ministry going to appoint them to represent the Government?

Now if we can go to clause 27 (d) where it says: "any member representing the food-packing industry". It is this packing industry that may adulterate mostly, and probably it is the packing industry which is at fault. Many of our boards have been formed because of having representatives from boards which this Bill is supposed to deal with. I think it would be better, when appointing the members of these boards, to think that if they were to deal with Parliament, then it would be unwise to appoint a Member of Parliament as a member of the board. We would like to appoint a person with expert knowledge of the food-packing industry who is not a member of that packing industry. This board may authorize anyone with packing knowledge to go and examine the packing industry, see the conditions of packing, and see whether mistakes are being made by the packing industry. This will enable the board to work efficiently towards the packing industry, but this—in mind of the packing industry—means that all the time the board is going to fight, instead of the board trying to work and execute the Bill, as it speaks for itself, the board will find that there are representatives who have come there, who have come to represent interests of the packing industry, or the interests of the drugs and chemical industry, and all the time there is going to be a paragon for talking on an Agenda, with vested interests and tactics to weaken the provisions of the Bill. This is always going to confuse the execution of the jobs on many of these boards. Personally it is agreed that by appointing a person, a member of this board who comes from the food-packing industry, he must have an interest in it. It is better to appoint a person with knowledge of the packing industry, than appointing a person who all the time will be defending his industry and will not accept anything that the board may want to say, but will all the time be opposing the deliberations of the board as far as the packing industry, or any other industry, is concerned.

Local Authorities are better because they are a part of Government, and it is much better to get a person who is representing local government. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is the same. It is still clause 27 (h) which states that: "one member nominated by the Pharmaceutical Society of East Africa". I would like to say that I am fact that in plenty of villages people still have no quick access to a doctor and, therefore, Mr. Speaker, they are reduced to having to buy drugs and other things, and to apply them to themselves directly. They therefore go by the directions which are given on the sheets advertising these drugs. We hope that these drugs which are now in common use will be quickly checked by the Minister; he need not wait for a complaint because it is really so very obvious that what is claimed on these sheets just could not be true. On the other hand, Mr. Speaker, I think we should appeal to all our medical people who are in the field also to help in explaining to our population what drugs normally should be used for what ailment. This might be one other way, by spreading education about drugs, of limiting the market for this erroneous advertising.

Now, Mr. Speaker, in the case of foodstuffs, what really is shocking—I do not know whether it will be covered by this Bill—is the fact that although the foodstuffs which are sold here, particularly fresh food, may be in a good state when the wholesaler sells them to the retailer, particularly in our cities, after paying Sh. 2 for a pound of meat it is then wrapped up in a newspaper which is collected from anywhere. This is the most efficient way of spreading diseases, Mr. Speaker. I would, therefore, hope that under the section dealing with foods it will not only be adulteration of the food as such but that the conditions in which it is served may adulterate it, even if the meat, for instance, was examined when the cow was slaughtered, it is unfortunately true that between that time and the time it is served to us by retailers it will become adulterated because, believe it or not, Mr. Speaker, these people collect these newspapers from anyone who will take them to them and they pay a few cents for them, and they do not mind where newspapers come from. I would have thought that at the very high price we have to pay for foodstuffs here, particularly meat, which again of course really is unfortunate in a country which grows so much foodstuff, the little cost which the retailer would go into in buying proper wrapping and packaging material for meat and other foodstuffs, would be justified, and it might be perhaps under this Bill that the Minister will help us by insisting on proper conditions for the service of foods which we buy in town.

Mr. Speaker, I know you have ruled that the Bill where we deal with cosmetics deals only with adulteration and that it does not deal with complete prohibition of the sale of these things, but perhaps it is in this wide field, Mr. Speaker, that we have the best example of straight-forward, sheer exploitation based, once more, on ignorance. We know—and it is important for us here not to deceive ourselves—that men and particularly women, being women, putting the whole pursuit of beauty as priority number one in their lives, they will use and will seek to use any cosmetics that anyone will manufacture, so long as he can persuade them by use of example, by television advertising, by every other form of advertising, that this particular substance has the potency, has the quality to change their complexion, to change their outlook generally, in a certain way. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, let us be realistic. The stuff will continue to be used, and it is as bad as the old people who wanted to limit alcohol for anyone to stand up here and seek to ban the use of these substances altogether. As we have learned from the efforts of various countries to restrict the consumption of drinks, we must also learn that in this particular case the question of total prohibition is out of the question. What we should seek to do—and I believe this is what this Bill empowers the Minister to do—is to be able to check the chemical content of these make-ups, these cosmetics, which are now being sold under various names, and particularly, Mr. Speaker, to use this section of the Bill which allows the Minister to take action if it is found that the substance has a bad effect on the skin, for instance, of the user.

There are substances which are being sold in towns and other places for the straightening of hair, for instance. Some of our young girls who, through no fault of their own, must follow in the tradition of their sex to seek beauty, buy these substances and they smear them on their head, and they go bald. This having happened, it is a serious misfortune, Mr. Speaker, but it is rather more for pity than for anything else. This having happened, one would have thought that in general circumstances the rest would learn from the example, but they will not. The urge to pursue beauty is so great that whatever the risks, they will be taken. So, Mr. Speaker, I would have thought that on these substances, whose effects are already obvious on so many people in this town when you just walk around, the Minister might be able to take action quickly, virtually without waiting for any complaint to come about, because it does offend against the whole concept of integrity on the part of the businessman who, seeing these effects on his customers, still continues to utilize the advertising media in this country, to continue to tell the unfortunate young ladies that this substance is still good for you, irrespective of the obvious examples that we see. Mr. Speaker, this brings me to my last point, and I think this is strictly connected with these matters: the advertising, the way it is done, the media which are used. I know that some people will think that we are being harsh, but I think the time has come for complementary action to be taken to ensure that the purposes of this Bill are fulfilled. The complementary action in the field of the control of the use which can be made of the advertising media which are available: the newspapers, the radio and particularly these days, of course, the television. It is a great pity my friend, the Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism has just gone out, but I know this is in his own mind. However, the time has really come for whatever board that supervises the advertising on television to ensure that at least now this medium has become State-owned. It should not be the thing to be used to put over information which we may have reason to suspect is false or is badly exaggerated. This should also apply to newspapers. In that way, Mr. Speaker, we shall save the unfortunate people, the unsuspecting public who take what is advertised as being the gospel truth and go ahead and apply it without any check. This, Mr. Speaker, would help to make the purposes of this Bill effective, otherwise the Minister for Health, who is going to try and carry this Justice out, will be in a situation that will happen is that, when he has taken action against one of these people advertising substances which are wrong or which are bad or which are destructive, that opportunity will be used merely to advertise further other substances. Other people will claim, "Now, look, So-and-so was charged because he was selling a very bad substance; we are the people who are selling a better substance," and they will take that opportunity to further their own markets of things which may be very similar to the ones that have been discovered to be wrong. It means that we shall have a kind of vicious circle with the Minister for Health chasing a few people, such people as he can get hold of, while others will continue cashing in on the ignorance of our people.

So, Mr. Speaker, I really hope that my friend here will seek the help of his colleague, who is in charge of the information and advertising media, to ensure that at least the television, which is State-owned, is not used for the purpose of furthering the advertising of drugs, cosmetics or foodstuffs which have been discovered to be entirely wrong. I also hope, Mr. Speaker, that we can take the opportunity, of course, always within the law of libel, for the hon. Member of this House to speak out on this very great evil which threatens our society, this evil of advertising in a way that involves, telling half-truths, which is a thing which has become a very serious risk to the whole culture. We are in the process here, Mr. Speaker, of importing what in some other parts of the world was described as yellow culture, and it is time that if we want to preserve a certain sense of dignity in the tradition, in the culture of the Africans, we ourselves made it our responsibility to educate our own public, as I said always making sure that we do not get into trouble with the law by identifying too closely any particular item.

Mr. Speaker, with these very few words, I support this Bill.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to support the Bill very strongly and to congratulate the Minister for the wisdom that has prevailed in his mind to prepare such an important Bill.

Naturally, Mr. Speaker, it is not just enough to support the Bill without observing some clauses which may not be very helpful; whether the Bill is important or not, it is important to see certain sections of a Bill which, in the view of a Member, may not be very helpful to the Minister when he comes to the time when the Bill starts working. I do not disagree with many clauses, Mr. Speaker, and I think that this Bill is both timely and important for the country, but I would like to say generally that there has been a lot of vagueness in the Bill. Particularly in many clauses, I observe that it is stated that a person who fails to prepare food—I am now talking about food as, an example, although this is a general observation—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Which clause are you referring to, Mr. Ngala-Abok?

Mr. Ngala-Abok: I was making a general observation on many of the clauses. The clause regarding drugs, cosmetics and food—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You were just going to quote something.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: I was going to quote something. If you want me to read a clause—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): When you quote a passage from the Bill, it helps the Minister and every hon. Member if you refer to the clause you have in mind.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: I am going to quote one. For example, clause 9 under "Drugs" says, "Any [Mr. Kall] our girls who are trying to look more un-African than even non-Africans, by trying to apply all sorts of chemical substances to make themselves not Europeans or Asians, but something more than that. With all due respect to African girls, I want to say a few things about them. I am glad that I can see the matron in the Chamber and I think she takes this seriously. Although we are supposed to be people living in a free country, I do not think that the Minister can disagree with me that nobody is free to perish in this country and one of our biggest responsibilities is to look after the welfare of our people, their health in particular. Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this question of bleaching hair and bleaching skin and what not, originated from a country where a section of the people happen to be black and they are so frustrated after so many years of segregation, discrimination, socially and economically and some people have used this situation to make money, by that I mean the United States of America, where we have approximately 20 million black people. Some white people know that by sort of exploiting that situation and by using their scientific knowledge they could make up some chemicals which would bleach the hair or skins of the community, particularly the Negro girls and therefore they try to get as much money as possible. Now, this thing has spread. First it started in South Africa and now it has spread all over Africa. I remember on one occasion in London, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I attended a party somewhere where we had a good number of African girls and men, then somebody, a friend of mine asked me: "why is it that the African girls' hair differ from men?" I was so embarrassed I could not answer. The difference is that our girls have allowed themselves to be victims of the money mongers. They just go to the shop and buy chemicals, they bleach their hair and some of them even look like rain-soaked rag, if you look at them.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not think our girls are ugly.

An hon. Member: They are very beautiful.

Mr. Kall: I think we have very beautiful girls. When they go out they do not have to worry about the rain or the wind blowing. You do not see them doing like that, they are so intact, so nice so natural too. There is nothing better than being natural. We should try and we should force our people not to try and be artificial and I therefore charge the Minister for Health and Housing to issue directives through our matron, through our beautiful girls not to try and spoil their natural beauty. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am sure some of the merchants who sell these chemicals will not like this, but we are not here to please exploiters we are here to look after the welfare of our people come what may, so I was going to suggest instead of even forming this board we should stop these chemicals from coming into the country. These products could never be found in Europe or even any part of Asia. It is only something manufactured to exploit the African, because they know that some Africans suffer so deeply from an inferiority complex because of the colour of their skin and think they are very unfortunate to be born black. That is not our policy, we are very proud of our colour, we are very proud of our hair and we want to keep it as it is; we do not want anyone to bring drugs to spoil them. I believe that the only thing therefore, to do is to ban all these drugs and chemicals from entering our country. I do not see why we should spend so much money setting up a board, what for? If this medicine, these dyes, or what not, if they were good drugs, why are they not being used in our national hospitals? Why? We do not want anything which is meant to exploit our people and disfigure the faces of our girls. In my constituency you find so many boys playing records, attracting girls, telling them these drugs will make you more beautiful, lighten your skin and this and that. Now, is the time to ban this type of thing. We are not going to allow these kinds of things and Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am opposed to setting up any board, whereby the Government or the public will spend a lot of money for nothing.

We have got laws, existing laws which can ban all these things, so why set up a board? What for? We have doctors, experts, technicians who can tell you that these drugs are not good for the skin. So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want the Minister not to burden the country by establishing a board to look after these things because we already have laws which can do the job.

Now, I come to the question of food and here Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to mention one item and that is meat. We know we have Kenya Meat Commission, in which we have expert inspectors so that all the meat we buy from the shops is quite safe for everybody. But, at the same time we have people from Ngong and Kikuyu, who usually bring meat from [Mr. Kall] which has been slaughtered in the city and it has not been inspected by an authorized person and, as a result, we have so many people infected with worms in the city. So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this should be stopped and I think the Ministry and particularly the Health section of the Ministry is very lax. You have only to walk into one of the restaurants here to see what is happening, they do not care. Whenever an inspector is taken there they are just taken to the back of the hotel or that restaurant, given a few bottles of beer and that is the end of the inspecting, they certify it to be O.K., clean. Now the Minister has to be careful and more serious than he has been hitherto.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I support the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What the hon. Member has said about the use of cosmetics may be interesting to hon. Members, but in case Members are tempted to follow it up too much, I would point out that we are dealing with a Bill which is described as a Bill to make provision for the prevention of adulteration of food, drugs and chemical substances, and not to prohibit the use of cosmetics altogether. If hon. Members wanted legislation of that kind, I think they would have to seek a separate Bill from Government or else move a Special Instruction to the Committee of this House to enlarge the scope of this Bill. Now we are concerned with adulteration, rather than the principle of cosmetics or no cosmetics.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, I did, in fact, intend to speak on what you just read out of order, but I do not think I would be out of order if I spoke about advertising because in the Bill the intention also, as is said, for instance, in clause 9 is to make sure that if the advertiser claims that a drug has certain potency or has certain qualities, he should be able to show it and that the Board in question would be authorized to make sure whether or not he is telling a lie; I think I would be in order in that, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, I am keen to bring out this particular aspect because as it is today it appears to me that we, in Kenya, now run into trouble, as has happened in so many other developing nations, where a few people have made up their minds that they will, in fact, make money by and large through the ignorance of the customer. Mr. Speaker, all of us in this House do know, for example, that in the field of patent medicines, drugs, in the advertising that is now done in the African villages up-country it is always claimed that certain drugs have potency to cure virtually every conceivable disease. You will hear, Mr. Speaker, an advertiser who has food-speaker vans, and who will stop at an African market and, using people who are very persuasive, will proceed to explain to the whole ignorant population—I mean ignorant of the contents of the medicine, not ignorant otherwise—that this particular drug will cure virtually everything: from headaches to malaria, to any stomach troubles, to pneumonia, to anything, virtually anything. Others, Mr. Speaker, claim that the speed at which they will cure you is just a little short of a miracle.

This is what is happening here, Mr. Speaker, and a handful of people are making fortunes out of the sheer ignorance of our people as to the potency of these patent medicines. In every country one knows of in the world there have been efforts to control the process of advertising. This is very important and what I really hope, Mr. Speaker, is that the Minister in charge, once we pass this Bill, will quickly crack down on these people and ensure at least that what is claimed for these drugs has some relevance, some relation to what actually those drugs are able to do. It is pathetic that so many people take what is advertised as being true. For the reason, Mr. Speaker, that they have no other way of knowing whether or not these things are true. I, personally, would have no other way; I am not qualified to analyse these substances. If it was not possible for me to consult a doctor or go to hospital, if I lived in a remote village where I have to buy patent medicines, I would be entirely dependent on what is put on the little sheets of paper circulated or otherwise what is passed by word of mouth by the people employed to advertise these drugs in the market places.

So, Mr. Speaker, as well as having the law, the Minister will need to come out with a positive statement that we shall take a very serious view of the few individuals who have very organized campaigns to make fabulous sums of money out of the ignorance of the people, and not only out of the ignorance of the people, Mr. Speaker, but out of the present situation in Kenya where medical facilities are limited, through no fault of ours; we are trying to do whatever we can to improve them, but it is unfortunately still the [Mr. J. M. Karibali] will be in charge of this should investigate and checks up whether any chemical substances in a particular firm is used to a greater extent than is intended, because it can be very dangerous in the way of human consumption of food in the future.

Now, Sir, I can also see here in this clause 23, that "Any person who sells any chemical substance which—"

(a) is not in accordance with the professed standard under which it is sold; and

(b) resembles in a manner likely to deceive any branded chemical substance sold under a professed standard, shall be guilty of an offence."

Here again I would like to emphasize very strongly that there might be some chemicals brought from foreign countries. They come into this country through customs and they come in through Mombasa. I understand that in the past this could not be checked, because there was no established board to check these chemicals.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

It will remain the responsibility of our Government from the day we pass this Bill to see that they do not let chemicals from foreign countries enter this country before they are checked by this board and before they are inspected by the health authority. You will find quite a lot of foreigners bringing these chemicals here and because there was no check in the past we do have quite a lot of them.

We should not also content ourselves, Mr. Speaker, by saying that from now on we will be able to check whatever comes in from foreign countries in the way of chemicals or of drugs; we must also go into the details in trying to ensure that even what has been brought into this country in the past is also accepted as being satisfactory by this board and by the Government so that we avoid any foreseeable danger in the future. I think that clause is very important, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

I would like also to emphasize something else in section 30. I can see that the most important person here, in the administration of this Bill, will be the medical officer of health and the health inspector. But, Sir, from my experience in the day-to-day administration of public health laws of this nature, I am sure that the whole burden will be kept upon the shoulders of the health inspector. Here I would like to give the following warning to our Government and to the Minister concerned, that the Minister for Health should assure this House that the health inspector who will be the sole administrator of this Bill will have the right qualifications. If he is not of the right qualifications, I hope the Ministry will see to it that before such an officer is authorized to administer this important Act—because I think this is a very important Act—they will ensure that facilities are provided for these inspectors so that they can have the necessary equipment and facilities.

Now, Sir, having discussed this at length, I would like to give another warning to our Government and that is, that I can see one danger in the already established board and that danger is that we will have a medical officer of health and a chief inspector of health. Sir, these people will be sitting on that board. Now we must ensure that these people are contented in the work they are doing; and by that, I mean that most of the time our civil servants are frustrated. This is due to the fact that whatever salary they are getting, in most cases, is completely inadequate. We would like the Ministry to ensure that those people, especially, who are sitting on that board are contented.

I say this because it is this board which will be deciding what type of substances and what type of chemicals or drugs will be coming into this country. Here I want to point out—because I would like this to be on record, Mr. Speaker—that if somebody is not contented and he is sitting on that board here, there is quite a bit of temptation and scope for him to be drawn into what is known as corruption. There might be two or three companies wishing to bring their own chemicals and substances to this country and they would like their drugs and chemicals to be passed by the board. The chairman of that board, or the vice-chairman, for that matter, might accept some bribe in order that some particular drug would be given permission to come into this country. And in order to see that these people act properly, the best thing to do is to ensure that they have a good salary and that they will be satisfied, they will be contented, with what they are getting as civil servants.

You might have someone from India or from United Kingdom coming to this country with some sort of drugs and chemicals; he can then these drugs to be passed by the board. He can easily try to move heaven and earth in order to meet the chairman or the vice-chairman of that board to convince him. And if such a man could be offered £500, and he did not already have that money, it would be very difficult for him to leave £500 alone; he could go the wrong way and take the bribe. In this way, we will end up with what we have opposed right from the very beginning, because bad chemicals and bad drugs will thereby come into the country.

So, Sir, that is why I mention that it is most important to see that these people are contented in order that they may do their job properly.

Now, we must decide on two things. We must ensure, right from the beginning, that even some of these enterprises which sell these chemicals in this country are not represented in the board, because if they are represented on the board, it will be their responsibility to keep on urging a particular drug to come in and, therefore, it should be the responsibility of the Government, and the Ministry, and all concerned, to restrict membership to the number already mentioned in this Bill and never allow those people to participate in the meetings of the board. Because these people will try to do so. I would like to mention this in this House, that before this Bill is passed, most of them might try to say that they also want representation on the board. I would like to ask the Minister to turn a deaf ear completely to this request, if they try to get such representation. Because of technicalities that they would try to bring before the board, we would end up with bad cosmetics for our girls and bad drugs for general consumption. So I would ask the Minister to ensure that they are not represented on this board.

Another point, Sir, is this. Those officers who will be executing this Bill must also be informed that we are passing this Bill in the belief that they will be able to carry out this Bill as it stands and I am sure that the public in this country will then be in safe hands. Much relies on what they can pass and much relies on what they oppose. Sir, it is their responsibility to see that this country is not going to be ruined by the importation of bad drugs or by the importation of useless drugs which will not cure any disease.

I would also like the Minister to consider whether we are going to give these people, the medical officer of health and the chief inspector of health, real responsibility. If we are going to give them real responsibility, then the spirit of contentment must be there. If we are not going to give them this responsibility, Sir, then it would be better for the Bill to be withdrawn. But these who will do that job, because it is very important? Here I feel, I consider and I believe, that the Ministry concerned will consider this very seriously, because it is one of the best and most important Bills brought to this House and good results for these civil servants will be reached.

Now, Sir, I do not want to dwell very much on this process, as I have already made studies with them in the past, but I would like to know whether it is the intention of the Ministry concerned to check, in clause 27, the words "one member nominated by the Pharmaceutical Society of East Africa" and make the two last words read instead "Kenya". Now, I feel that this is very important. The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning is saying, "It is a name", yes it is a name, but it is very important to know right from the beginning what is going to happen afterwards. I do not say it is bad but we would like to know whether that is going to be changed from "East Africa" to "Kenya".

Now, Sir, I think I have now expressed the few points I had to make in connection with this Bill; and I hope and believe that this is one of the Bills which should not be taken lightly. We give it our blessing, but we also hope that the Ministry concerned will see that it is implemented in the right way, in the right spirit, and that the public will be saved from paying unnecessary money in some of the shops where there might be quite a lot of drugs which their sellers may say cures lots of diseases, but which you find in the end do not cure any diseases. I think that is the spirit in which the Ministry concerned have brought this Bill: to try to prevent our people from being put to unnecessary expense and also from the danger of being killed by some of the useless drugs.

With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support this Bill very strongly.

Mr. Kall: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I will say very little on this Bill and I will be more concerned with the drugs and chemical substances—

QUORUM

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki): On a point of order, Sir, is there a quorum in the House?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We now have a quorum. You may continue, Mr. Kall.

Mr. Kall: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was going to speak on drugs and chemical substances.

Mr. Speaker, Members should know something about this because these days we have some of Mr. J. M. Karinkki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am rising to support this Bill.

First of all I would like to congratulate the Minister, because I think that this is one of the most important Bills we are having in this House. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we look at this Bill, clause by clause, in Part II—General Provisions, clause 4, it says:—

"Any persons who labels, packages, treats, processes, sells or advertises any food in contravention of any regulations made under this Act, or in a manner that is false, misleading or deceptive as regards its character, nature, value, substance, quality, composition, merit or safety, shall be guilty of an offence."

Now, Sir, this is very important because most of our people, in many areas do not know how to read and get to know exactly what is inside a bottle and kept in a hotel, or in a shop. Something in a hotel may be eaten by some person or persons who do not know that it is bad for him, and he may get a very bad disease as a result of that, and this is why I am putting it to the Minister. If the butter or sahira is kept on the table, exposed to the public, it is accepted as a general acceptance that this butter was intended for human consumption. It may be that after this person has eaten this, he becomes sick, and in that case, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that this clause here is very important to the owner of that hotel who has to prove that he was not intending to put that butter there for human consumption, and it is up to him to prove the point that he was not doing so, or aiming to disease the human beings. This is a very important point Mr. Speaker, Sir, what the Government is intending to do here is to prevent, if I am not mistaken, culprit from this sort of danger.

In clause 5, it says that where a standard has been prescribed for any food, any person who labels, or packages this food, or sells or advertises any food which does not comply with that standard, in such a manner that it is likely to be mistaken for food of the prescribed standard, shall be guilty of an offence. This is very important, Sir, because this is going to prevent most of our people who may not be able to understand which type of food is bad for their consumption. This is very, very clear and I must say, quite honestly, that the Ministry has tried to explain the legal point here very, very clearly, because, Sir, our Government is now trying to help and protect the public from buying bad drugs.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may quote this, I remember there was a case in 1950, where there was written a description on the bottle which said that one of the drugs inside the bottle could cure lightning. Mr. Speaker, Sir, what could be more ridiculous than that? It is true that quite a lot of people went to the shop and bought it, but they bought this because they thought that this medicine was so good that in the future it might come and cure the lightning. What sort of lightning is that which is going to be cured by this drug? You can see, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that quite a lot of people bought this drug, but I am afraid that this sort of drug could cure the lightning. Most of our people bought this in great numbers but those drugs did not, in the end, prevent anything. I would like to say here that by putting this clause the Government is now trying to prevent our people from buying some of the drugs which are not useful to them or to anybody in the country.

If we look at clause 9 Sir, which prevents people from buying some uncertified drugs because it says that:—

"Any person who labels, packages, treats, processes, sells or advertises any drug in contravention of any regulations made under this Act, or in a manner that is false, misleading or deceptive as regards its character, constitution, value, potency, quality, composition, merit or safety, shall be guilty of an offence."

This is the one which prevents other people—

QUORUM

Mr. Gichoya: I wonder whether he is addressing an empty House, or whether we have a quorum?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, we do not. (The Division Bell was rung)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We now have a quorum, you may proceed Mr. Karinkki.

Mr. J. M. Karinkki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, even without going into it, I would like to proceed at C—cosmetics. I think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that this is the most important part of the whole Bill. This is because, Sir, in this stage we hear quite a bit about beauty contests in this country, and many other parts of the world.

Here in this country we also have that kind of contests and because of those many of our girls go to the shops and buy some stuff that I would brown. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I would

[Mr. J. M. Karinkki:] like to point out here is that if we are not going to be very careful then we will end up with most of our girls ending up without their hair. I will tell you the reason why I say this, and that is because there are some substances which our girls buy to the shops and buy. They smear it on their heads, then you will find that in the course of perhaps two or three weeks some of the hair is falling out. This is because some of the substances they are using are not checked and might be dangerous to their own heads, and if the Ministry did not bring this Bill to the House then I am afraid that in the future we could find ourselves in great difficulty of having so many girls trying to become more beautiful without any hair, and that would be ridiculous. Most of these girls, and that is very dangerous you do find that some of them do smear themselves with some sort of substances which are, of course, very, very dangerous. I found this out, Mr. Speaker, Sir, when this Bill was brought to the House. I have found out that there are some sort of substances which change the complexion of these girls.

With this Bill, the Minister may come in with one better idea for us that they are trying to find out what the good substances are available which should be used by these girls, but without this legislation then we may not be in a position to assist them. There are some chemicals which they use on their fingers, and for that matter, lipstick. I must tell this House it is dangerous to their health, and as these chemicals are being used, and are sold in the shops. It is not their fault because there has never been any such legislation. Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the past, they used to be very good and buy them, and because they want to become more beautiful then they are continuing to use them, but maybe one of these substances is very bad and dangerous to their health, and in future these drugs or these chemicals may change their skin. Others of course, try to smear themselves with these chemicals which, in the first instance, make their colour change, but suppose that somebody is not going to continue smearing herself with these kinds of chemicals, then you find that in a month's time, when she is not using them, the colour of her face changes again, because these chemicals are not useful to them. That is why I think that this particular Bill is very, very important because it will enable the Ministry, and the board itself, to go into details and find out what is the cure, what types of drugs are good for such use. I do not mean to say that they should not buy these chemicals, but let them buy what is already proved by the Government, what is good for them; but they must not buy what is simply brought into this country and put in the shops. This is the danger we are actually facing by allowing this sort of chemicals to be sold without registration.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to add here that this Bill, under clause 27, gives the Government, or the board so constituted under this Bill, more power to check the bad chemicals, and to prove which chemicals are suitable for this sort of use. You find that most of the substance which are used to put on women's eyes are very dangerous. This makes some of them look— I did not intend to mention this in this House, but it makes them look more or less like colobus monkeys. I am not abusing them but it is true, they do look like them. They do not know that these substances are very bad and that they can spoil their eyes but that is certainly how it looks. This board, which is going to be constituted under this Bill, can look into what sort of substances are good for them to use. We do not mean to say that they should not use this sort of thing, it is not the intention. The intention here is to look for what is good, those substances which cannot ruin their lives.

Let us now look at clause 20, that is, chemical substances. This is clearly to prevent the danger which might be brought about by excessive chemicals. To give an example, I was told that there were some children in Angola, who got themselves into bad trouble, after using some chemical substances; and most of them died. This is the same point which I am trying to put over to the Ministry, that the importance of this is also to prove whether spraying by aeroplanes or by an individual on a farm is done without putting excessive chemicals on the plants. I will give here another example. If chemicals are not sprayed in the right manner and there is some sort of excess in the plants, then you will find that with a plant like maize some chemicals might remain on the plant and that same maize, when it has been taken to the grinding mills and has been sold by some company like Maiza Limited or any other company and has been turned into posho, might kill lots of our people. Therefore it is very important that the Government should go into details and check up as to whether there has been excessive spraying of chemicals on common plants like maize, which is the food of the people in this country.

May I say here in this House that although it may be argued that not all of us eat maize, but I would like to say that we are only 139 Members in this House, but most of us do eat maize, posho, and therefore it is important that, when this Bill is passed, the inspector or whoever [Mr. Alexander] have been told that we must approve because the money has already been committed. I would like the Assistant Minister to tell us just what rules are applied in his Ministry when making use of this money. Is it applied only to real emergencies or does it stretch to the spending of moneys which could well have been approved in this Parliament in the ordinary course of events? Now that we are to sit more regularly—as I understand it, we are to have a timetable showing very regular meetings of this Parliament—is it really necessary to increase this sum? Is it not far better to use the normal processes of this Parliament to approve spending and to use this fund only for real and genuine emergencies?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If no other hon. Member wishes to speak, I will call on the Mover to reply.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, I did put a question to the Assistant Minister to get clarification, so that I can make up my mind as to whether to support the Bill or not, and he has not so far replied, so that I can make up my mind.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He could not until his turn came to reply. I think you are getting mixed up with the procedure in Committee, when an hon. Member can speak more than once and the person replying can also speak more than once before he replies. Here he has to answer you when replying.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odongo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think there are really serious points here which have been raised.

The point raised by the hon. Member, Mr. Khazkhalah, that there was an increase of £250,000, is not true, it is not on the overall expenditure, it is merely that this Contingencies Fund is going to be increased by that amount. The amount is not an extra expenditure, it is merely that it is being kept there.

That, of course, is in connexion with the point which was raised by the hon. Member, Mr. Gichoya, where he wanted clarification of what this fund was being used for. I think this has more or less been explained by the hon. Member, Mr. Alexander, when he defined that this Contingencies Fund is one which is set aside for emergency cases. This, I think, was the clarification that the hon. Members, Mr. Gichoya, wanted.

An hon. Member: Such as?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odongo): Such as anything. For instance, there are normal Votes for each Ministry, but at one time all of a sudden, due to some emergency, a Ministry may enter into unexpected expenditure and would like to spend the money immediately, and this occurs every now and again, so that is what happens.

Now, with regard to whether there are rules, definitely there are rules, and everybody knows that the Treasury is very strict; normally it is very difficult to get money from the Treasury. There are rules, and before any Ministry uses this Fund, the Ministry has to justify that the matter was really an emergency matter and was worthy of the Contingencies Fund.

Mr. Alexander: Why not bring it here then?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odongo): The thing is that when you have an emergency, you do not decide when it is going to take place; the emergency might take place when this House has just adjourned for, say, three weeks or for a month. In that case, the Government would be in a very difficult position. This is why it is so. But the important thing to remember is that also there is this matter. Even if you called the Parliament back to meet, we still would have to pass the Bill through the Lower House and then through the Senate which would take a much longer time than it used to take before when there was only one House.

Mr. Alexander: Not Supplementary Estimates.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odongo): They have to go there anyway, and the thing is the increase here is quite small, it is not much bigger than one would have thought reasonable, because, after all, the increase is less than one-half. The difficulty now is that we have two Houses instead of one and I think it is quite clear that the length of time required to get the Bill through the two Houses would certainly be longer than before, which has been estimated to be at least three months.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before putting the question, I might help hon. Members a little by explaining the procedure with reference to this Civil Contingencies Fund.

As has already been explained, it is a Fund which is there for Government to draw on for emergency expenditure which is not already covered by the Annual Estimates or by Supplementary Estimates and for which there is not [The Speaker] use to get from this House a Supplementary Estimate approved. That is the idea of the fund. When Government has spent money out of this fund and left, as it were, a hole in it, that as soon as possible afterwards Government comes back by way of a Supplementary Estimate for the requisite amount to be voted by this House to replenish the fund and restore it to its full maximum, whatever it may be: £3 million or £1 million. With that Supplementary Estimate, the money to be voted back to restore the Contingencies Fund, the reason for the expenditure out of the fund is, of course, given. The theory is that if Parliament does not approve that expenditure, it will not vote the money back to the Contingencies Fund and the Contingencies Fund will gradually get used up and nothing will be left to Government for emergency expenditure: that is the theory.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the whole House tomorrow)

Second Reading

THE FOOD, DRUGS AND CHEMICAL SUBSTANCES BILL

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Okello): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Food, Drugs and Chemical Substances Bill, to read a Second Time.

The present Food and Drugs Adulteration Act came into force in 1948, when it was considered necessary to prevent adulteration of food sold to the public. It was considered that such food as meat, milk and all tinned foods should be sold to the public in the purest form possible. The Act functioned reasonably well, but with the expansion of commerce and industry it was felt that the scope of the Act should be widened to cover new drugs and chemicals locally manufactured or imported into Kenya, in order to ensure that these also conformed to the standard laid down.

This Bill takes into account these developments and its provisions include the control of the manufacture and sale of food, drugs, cosmetics, medical appliances and scheduled chemical substances. The important part to be played by the local authorities in the implementation of this provision is recognized in this Bill, under clause 31.

A significant feature of this Bill is the establishment of a statutory body known as the Public Health (Standards) Board. Its members will represent a cross-section of the community, reflecting the interests of the Government, local authorities and commercial concerns; see clause 27. This Board will be responsible for advising the Minister who may make regulations controlling the preparation, packing, labelling, sampling and sale of food and drugs, cosmetics, certain medical appliances and chemical substances, whether imported or of local origin.

The Bill repeals the present Food and Drugs Adulteration Act, Cap. 127, 1948. I wish to add here that following the publication of this Bill in the Kenya Gazette Supplement No. 159 of 1st December 1964, there were representations made in regard to clause 2, clause 27 and clause 37, for certain amendments and substitutions which do not affect the substance of the Bill and are accepted by my Ministry. I will move these amendments at the Committee stage. Certain definitions of the said amendment are as follows.

New definitions have been added for Health Inspectors which are not in the published Bill, and this streamlines the whole matter. The powers for authorized officers are very clearly classified and now you can see the Medical Officer of Health, the Health Inspector, and the other persons authorized by the Local Authorities have all the powers as in section 30. Police officers, above the rank of sub-inspector, are allowed only to take samples. Veterinary officers will have the power of inspecting meat. The clerk of the Local Authority will be able to take legal proceedings. An additional clause (6) authorizes the board to invite particular persons to attend meetings but without voting rights. It has been necessary to include this important proviso without having to alter the membership of the board, which remains at ten.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the additions to clause 37 (c), (d) and (e), merely mean that if and when any article, substance, etc., which is normally used in preparation or found in premises where that work is normally carried on, and if those articles are found to be unfit for human consumption, and an analysis also proves them to be so, then the orders for proving them that they were not intended for human consumption shall rest with the person charged.

With those remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo) seconded.
(Question proposed)

[The Assistant Minister, President's Office]

As for the last part of the question, Mr. Speaker, the money realized from the property so confiscated, is paid into the Special Districts Administration Fund, or alternatively, to the Consolidated Fund. The money is used for the payment of compensation to those people who have lost their property as a result of hostilities by the Shifita, and for the development of areas affected. Further, if under section 33, any person whose property has been confiscated, feels he is aggrieved, he can appeal to the Provincial Commissioner and, if he is still not satisfied, he can appeal to the Minister in charge of the Administration whose decision will be final.

Mr. Mate: Would the Assistant Minister assure the House that some of the money so obtained will be used to compensate those who lost all their property from Shifita activity in the Meru area?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was specifically dealing with the question of the North-Eastern Province and not Meru. If the hon. Member for Meru Central could tell the house that his constituency is in North-Eastern Province, then perhaps I could go into the matter.

Mr. Ogle: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am given to understand that some of these confiscated cattle belonged to a certain man, Major Adams of the Kenya Army who only recently returned from the North-Eastern Region fighting the Shifita. Is the Minister prepared to tell us that such a man who was fighting the Shifita is hostile to the Government?

Mr. Nyanweya: I did not understand the question, Mr. Speaker, could the hon. Member repeat his question.

Mr. Ogle: I said, I am given to understand that some of these confiscated cattle belonged to one Major Adams of the Kenya Army who recently returned from the North-Eastern Region where he was fighting the Shifita. Is the Minister prepared to tell the House that man was either hostile to the Government or he was aiding the Shifita?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have referred to one confiscation order which has been the subject of an administrative inquiry in the North-Eastern Province. People whose property was confiscated: in this case, cattle, were all summoned before the District Commissioner to give evidence. Those who can prove to the satisfaction of the Presiding Officer at the inquiry that they were not involved in hostile activities, will not have their property confiscated.

MINISTERIAL STATEMENTPROMOTION OF TEACHERS

The Speaker* (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mutiso, I believe you have a Ministerial Statement to make.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Yes, Mr. Speaker, I do. On the 23rd of this month, while answering question No. 939 appearing on the Order Paper, I gave the understanding to this House that I would prove to the House that a number of teachers have been promoted purely on grounds of merit, as the question was trying to find out if this was possible. Now, Mr. Speaker, I confirm that a teacher who has not had a chance of passing the examination set for promotion, may still gain promotion when the Ministry is satisfied that such promotion is merited and, in the last year alone, Mr. Speaker, twenty teachers were promoted on these grounds.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not usual to allow any supplementary questions on a statement of that kind, but if any hon. Member requires further elaboration of that information, I think he is entitled to ask for it.

Mr. Choge: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister, further assure the House that these teachers, were not promoted because they had friends within the Ministry or were related to anyone there?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is quite beside the point.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENTREPLACEMENT OF EXPATRIATES BY KENYA CITIZENS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would like to remind hon. Members that Mr. Pandya is to raise on the adjournment today the matter which is noted on the Order Paper.

POINT OF ORDERDIRECTION OF QUESTION TO THE PRESIDENT'S OFFICE

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I remember one day that you ruled that a question directed to the President's Office on the Order Paper, should not be addressed to the Assistant Minister and I see here Mr. Speaker Sir, that the question which has been asked by the Member from Gichugu is directed to the Office of the President or the Assistant Minister.

Mr. Gichoya] This may be a clerical error of the Secretariat of the President's Office or the Parliament, but it is a question directed to the Assistant Minister, and I wonder whether this could be corrected in the future.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Which question are you referring to?

Mr. Gichoya: Question No. 956.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Something has gone wrong in the reply to that question. On the Order Paper you will find that the question is actually addressed to the President. At my rate, we are now addressing all such questions to the President. There has been a different practice in the past, and that is probably how that reply came in the wrong form, I think.

BILLSSecond Reading*THE CIVIL CONTINGENCIES FUND (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Ogogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Civil Contingencies Fund (Amendment) Bill be now read a Second Time. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very formal Bill and you may recall that on the 25th June 1964 this House passed the following Motion:

That this House regrets that the Government found it necessary in the exceptional circumstances to withdraw money from the Consolidated Fund without prior specific authorization by Parliament which has been recalled by the report dated 7th May 1964 of the Controller and Auditor-General and calls upon the Government to examine the sufficiency of the Contingencies Fund and other means in order to ensure that there need be no recurrence of such action.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the examination has now taken place and it has become clear that the limit of £500,000 on the capital of the Civil Contingencies Fund is too small to cover the present-day requirements. This limit was fixed in 1961 when the legislature consisted of one House and at that time we could cover all requirements by the bringing of a Supplementary Estimate within a period of two months. With the advent of the second House the time required for operation is now three months so that the financial limit needs to be raised proportionately to £1,500,000. As you will see, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this raising of the limit is to be effected by a small amendment to section 4, subsection (2) of the Civil Contingencies Fund Act. The raising of the limit will in no way increase Government's expenditure, although it will make for the smoother working of the financial system.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Oneko) seconded.

Mr. Khasakhalha: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not opposing the Bill, but I want some clarification from the Assistant Minister.

In his Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, he says, "No additional expenditure of public moneys will be incurred by reason of the enactment of this Bill." When I look at the Bill, I see that he wants an extra £250,000. Could the Assistant Minister satisfy the House as to what has made this increase be incurred, because he has not given us the reasons; he only wants us to alter one section in the Bill and has not given the reasons why this increase is necessary. I would like him to elaborate a little more on this, Mr. Speaker; otherwise I support the Bill.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want just to get some clarification from the Assistant Minister.

In this Civil Contingencies Fund meant to pay for the loss of lives in various places as a result, say, of accidents caused by animals, or for what purpose? What are these contingencies. When the Assistant Minister was putting forward the case for this Bill to be approved, he did not mention that the money is meant for this purpose or that purpose, and because of what happened previously, say perhaps three months or six months back, there is a need for changing it from the original amount to an additional amount.

I think I would like to have this clarification so that I know how to support the Bill.

Mr. Alexander: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I understand it, this Fund is to deal with what, in fact, it describes in the word "contingency": that is, to deal with the spending of money which is unexpected to the Government. What is worrying now about this particular increase is that it gives the Minister the opportunity, in fact, to compromise the authority of this Parliament, because he is able to come here after the spending of this money and tell us, "Well, you've spent to approve it because it's already been gone." We have had this before in this Parliament; we

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungali): Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have not had any difficulty with agreements we have with any other country for training our armed forces. Right now, we have an agreement with the United Kingdom to train our forces, and so far we find it satisfactory. If we had any reasons for not finding it satisfactory, we would shop elsewhere.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister agree with me that there are countries which are prepared to offer training for our personnel in the armed forces and therefore the Government should take advantage of these free offers?

Dr. Mungali: Mr. Speaker, Sir, such countries we have not come across. Anyway, we do not always want to get things free; we have principles and ideals which guide the Kenya Government.

Question No. 943

RUSSIAN-TRAINED PILOTS IN KENYA AIR FORCE

Mr. Agar asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence what reasons led him to delay the admission of one Mkamba and three Luo young men who had completed their training as fighter pilots in Russia into the Kenya Air Force.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungali): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister for Internal Security and Defence has not stopped any young Mkamba or three young Luo from joining the Air Force. Only, we would like all applicants for the Kenya Armed Forces to follow the procedures which have been laid down and be accepted through the same machinery, just like any other Kenya people.

The Kenya Government is now aware that there are many people who have been trained in the armed forces in various foreign countries and we only come to know about them when they get back to Kenya. We can not just forget Kenya boys and take these others without their going through the same machinery. They have all to be recruited and they have all to go through the same machinery and they will be accepted. I would say that we are not going to discriminate against those people who have been trained in the Soviet Union, just because they were trained over there; we welcome their knowledge and their skills in Kenya.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister agree with me that a person who has been fully trained on something cannot be expected to start with fresh people, if the Government wishes to be fair on these matters? And, if that is the principle, why do we not start, in every profession, people who come from other countries, who have been trained in medicine and other fields, at the bottom with those who have been trained here?

Dr. Mungali: In the case of the air force, Sir, there are various planes that are used, and in Kenya we do not have the planes which are used in the Soviet Union or in other places. We have certain types of planes which our Kenya pilots have to start by learning to fly. In the case of the medical services, everyone knows that pneumonia is caused by So-and-so and is cured by such and such methods; and this is not necessarily true of planes.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the Minister's reply, would he agree with me that someone who has trained in Russia or in any other part of the world to fly planes is more knowledgeable and would learn easily how to fly our small planes here, which are smaller than the ones they have been flying, and therefore these people should be taken on immediately?

Dr. Mungali: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I have said, we are not going to discriminate against these people who have been trained over there. We want them to apply and go through the same machinery and be accepted through the same machinery, just like anyone else trained, not necessarily in Moscow; they may have been trained in Israel, in Ethiopia, in the United Kingdom; and they are all going to go through the same machinery.

Mr. Agar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Minister has just answered on part of the question; he did not answer the second part.

Dr. Mungali: As regards the second part, Mr. Speaker, the machinery consists of a panel of Air Force men and Army and medical doctors who process these people who want to join the Kenya Air Force; they determine their health, their intelligence, and of course, their educational standard.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply about this panel, is he aware that there are boys who have applied and have been waiting for a reply for three months? How long does it take this panel to decide whom to take and whom to reject?

Dr. Mungali: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the applicants are so many; they come in thousands and you can only take a few, you cannot take everybody who applies. There are some who applied as much as nine months ago. We can only take the number

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE

CONFISCATION OF STOCK: NORTH-EASTERN PROVINCE

The Speaker (Mr. Slado): Mr. Abdi-Rahman, you have a question by Private Notice?

Mr. Abdi-Rahman: Yes, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to ask the President if:—

- The Government is aware that members of the security forces are confiscating cattle in the North-Eastern Province in large numbers without any just cause?
- What steps is the Government taking to prevent this?
- What compensation will be paid and when?

Question No. 948
STOCK THEFTS AND KANU YOUTH WING: UGUYA

Mr. Odoro-Sar asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence what the number of stock thefts in Uguya Constituency since January 1965, had been. Why did the Government appear to be against the Kanu Youth Wing in trying to help arrest any thieves found in the constituency.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The answer to part one of this question is that between the first of January this year, and the eighth of February this year, there have been nine cases of stock theft reported in the Uguya Constituency involving three head of cattle. Three head of cattle have since been recovered. Two men have been arrested in connexion with these thefts, one of them has been convicted and the other is still before the court.

With regard to the second half of the question, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I welcome this opportunity to clarify a certain position. The Government places a high value on close co-operation between the public and the police and the work of the police will be immeasurably assisted if the public will co-operate fully in providing information on all kinds of theft, including stock theft, but there has been a most distressing tendency on the part of certain youth wingers who take the law into their own hands independently of the police. This is particularly so in Nyanza and the Western Region. It is decidedly not the policy of the Government to put police, or Administrative responsibility in the hands of political parties. The strongest legal step will be taken, Mr. Speaker, against any person who tries to usurp police powers. I will again repeat that co-operation between the youth wingers and the police and the Administration will be welcomed.

Mr. Odoro-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, do I understand from the Assistant Minister that youth wingers are not the citizens of this country who help the police in arresting theft?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Member for Uguya is also a citizen of this country; he is one of the people I referred to as someone who should come forward and assist the police, but certainly not as a judge, or even by locking up the person himself.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamwaya): Mr. Speaker, I beg to reply. I am not aware of cattle being confiscated in the North-Eastern Province in large numbers without any just cause. I am aware of the justified confiscation of stock according to law. The Government is trying to take the necessary steps to bring an end to this confiscation by making the inhabitants of the North-Eastern Province, law abiding citizens, assisting the Government in fighting the Shifja.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may amplify on what the hon. Member knows, under the Special District Administration Act, a Provincial Commissioner or a District Commissioner may order the seizure of all or any property belonging to a tribe, or any section or members of such a tribe which has acted in a hostile manner towards the Government or members of another tribe and may order the retention of the property so seized. When the property has been seized, the Provincial Commissioner or the District Commissioner holds an inquiry into the circumstances leading to the alleged hostile act and when it is proved that any person from whom the offence has been seized has committed an offence, his property is confiscated and sold. The confiscation I have referred to, Mr. Speaker, is one where the Government, acting according to the law, has convinced itself that the people in certain parts of North-Eastern Province have acted in a hostile manner against the Government and that they have persistently helped the Shifja; that is, they are fighting against the Security Forces of the Kenya Government, by giving the Shifja shelter, food, information and directions concerning deployment and movement of the said Security Forces. The Government, acting upon this has made only one such confiscation order.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Section 5 (1) of the Kenya Immigration Act provides that where any person has been ordered to be deported by the authorities of any Commonwealth country and such person enters Kenya on his way to his final destination, any such person may be detained in prison or in police custody until such time as arrangements can be made for the continuation of his journey. Tanzania have a similar provision under section 5 (2) of their Act and Uganda have also made similar provision under section 11 (1) of their Act. The Governments of the three territories have only reaffirmed that these provisions should be effected when a deportation takes place. Each of the three Governments when they are satisfied that a particular case ought to be treated otherwise may decide not to effect the provisions of these sections.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister consider repealing these provisions, because Kenya would not find it possible to decide on merits of these deportations by themselves if they rely on what has happened in other countries?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: The hon. Member for Karachunyo misunderstood what I said. I repeated the word "may" twice and the Kenya Government is quite capable of deciding for itself on the merits of the case.

Question No. 956

DECLARATION OF MINISTERS' ASSETS

Mr. Gichoya asked the President whether the Government was prepared to introduce legislation to make it compulsory for Ministers to declare their assets within and outside Kenya, within three months of their taking up office.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyanweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Minister are required on appointment, to disclose to the President, in confidence, all their commercial interests and if the President feels that certain interests are likely to conflict with their Ministerial duties, then the President can ask such a Minister to relinquish them. The only conceivable reason for the hon. Member's question, it perhaps because the interest may conflict with the Ministerial duties.

The machinery exists to see that Ministers do not indulge in activities likely to conflict with their duties. Ministers have a right, like any other person, to own property.

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, Sir, such legislation would be against the spirit of section 20 of the Constitution which says that "except with his own consent, no person shall be subjected to the search of his person or his property". For the reasons outlined, Mr. Speaker, the Government does not see the reason for introducing such legislation.

Mr. Gichoya: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, does he agree with me that where one's property is there lies one's loyalty and that if, the Ministers, by any chance, might be having external transactions, then they might as well divide their loyalty between Kenya and those countries as well?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, one part of that question may contain a certain amount of truth, but I am very reluctant to say that our Ministers have pledged their loyalty outside. If the hon. Members know cases where our Ministers have commercial interests abroad, it is their duty, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to bring that sort of interest, which conflict with the loyalty of the Minister, to the attention of the President.

Mr. Anyleni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister give an assurance to this House that no Kenya Ministers are having any money kept overseas as that would show they do not have confidence with the Kenya Government.

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government has not investigated the accounts of the Ministers, if any, which are abroad, but we hope that there are no accounts held by our Ministers abroad. It equally applies, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the hon. Members of this House some of them may, as well have accounts in Uganda, accounts in Tanzania, accounts in Britain and accounts elsewhere. The point, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that if we are going to probe into the financial transactions of the Ministers, then the hon. Members of this House should be prepared for their own financial transactions also to be probed into.

Question No. 924

PRIORITY FOR MILK QUOTAS

Mr. Kerich asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry if he could tell the House what he was doing to give priority for milk quotas to Africans who had bought farms whose owners, previously, had had no milk quota.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The farmers of farms with no milk quotas attached to the previous owner may apply to the Secretary of the Joint Kenya Dairy Board and the Kenya Co-operative Creameries Committee for their names to be placed upon the quota waiting list of those persons wishing to buy quotas. As and when quotas are available for allocation by the quota committee, the applications on the waiting list are reviewed in terms of their average daily production. I have already instructed the Kenya Dairy Board and the Kenya Co-operative Creameries to give preference to the farmers referred to in this question.

Mr. Kerich: Would the Assistant Minister tell the House the number of African farmers who have been given milk quotas in the Rift Valley?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I could not give exactly the number of African farmers who have been given milk quotas in the Rift Valley, but the total number of African farmers who have been given milk quotas is already at 31 per cent of all the quotas given.

Question No. 926

TEZO-ROKA SETTLEMENT OFFICER

Mr. Mwatsumu asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry whether he was satisfied with the services of the Tezo-Roka Settlement Officer. Also, when was the post going to be Africanized.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I have not had any complaints concerning this officer to date, and as such, I am satisfied with his services. In answer to the second part of the question, Mr. Speaker, Sir, my Ministry is very short of African extension officers, with enough experience, but when I can find one, I will Africanize this post immediately.

Mr. Mwatsumu: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that there are some people who have been issued with more than one plot during 1964, whereas others have been on the waiting list for the last three years?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this may not be because of the inefficiency of the officer concerned. If the hon. Member is alleging that because of this officer that these people are on the waiting list. He should say this, Mr. Speaker.

Question No. 938

KURIA IN POLICE AND ARMY

Mr. Malsori-Itumbo asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence if he could give the breakdown of the number of Kuria in the Police and Army since Uhuru.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. As a matter of policy, I regret that I cannot give details of the composition of the Security Forces, as disclosure of such information, would only be of value to unfriendly people. Also, I deprecate the constant harping on tribalism. I will, however, say that the intake of Kurians into the army and police since independence, adequately reflects the size of the tribe.

Mr. Malsori-Itumbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, can he tell the House why some soldiers have been expelled from the forces, particularly those of my tribe?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, I am not aware that some soldiers from this particular tribe are being expelled from the forces, and if they are, they must be expelled for a very good reason. But I am aware of one fact, which does not reflect favourably on that particular tribe, and that is, that they usually desert.

Question No. 940

IMPROVEMENT IN QUALITY AND QUANTITY OF COTTON

Mr. Agar asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry what steps the Government had taken to improve the quality and quantity of cotton production in cotton producing areas in Nyanza and Western Provinces.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Cotton Lint and Seed Marketing Board has engaged an experienced officer to supervise work in the cotton ginneries. Research stations exist at Kiboa and Busia, which are finding ways and means of improving quantity and quality of cotton in the areas. The Cotton Lint and Seed Marketing Board has been authorized to make available £100,000 for planting and cultivation. A substantial proportion of this amount has gone to Western and Nyanza Provinces.

Question No. 942

TRAINING OF OFFICERS BY FOREIGN POWERS

Mr. Agar asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence what difficulties had been which had made it impossible for the Government to extend agreements with other Governments, other than the British Government, for training officers and men of the Kenya Armed Forces.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Central Housing Board advances loans to local authorities after having received details of housing schemes submitted for examination by the board's technical officers and following approval of such schemes by the board. The amount of money loaned is governed by the ability of the local authority to repay the loan. If the council wishes to make application for loan funds, it should approach the Central Housing Board.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, would the Assistant Minister tell the House how much money has been loaned to West Pokot Area Council up to date?

Mr. Moss: None, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I remember that in 1964 the West Pokot County Council applied to the Central Housing Board for a loan of about £4,000 for staff housing. Approval was not given by the board, as the council had not furnished the essential details of the scheme. A fresh application has not yet been submitted to the board by this council. If the council wishes to renew this application, the board's officers are available at all times to assist in drawing up of any scheme on behalf of the West Pokot Council.

Question No. 911

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON PROSTITUTION

Mr. Mboogoh asked the Minister for Labour and Social Services if, in view of the fact that a committee had been set up to look into the problem of prostitution in Nairobi, the report could now be laid on the Table of the House with its recommendations as to the causes and remedies for this social calamity.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Kubisi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The hon. Member for Embu North will be aware, that in November of last year, I outlined in this House the work of the Ministerial Committee on prostitution. I then stated categorically that much further work would be required before a definitive report was issued. I have said repeatedly that the roots of prostitution are buried in a complex of social problems and, unless the basic problems are identified and understood, we shall always be in danger of treating symptoms and not causes. At present, the work of the Ministerial Committee is hampered by the lack of factual information. I have been most concerned to initiate a socio-economic survey of Nairobi. From a socio-economic survey, it will prove possible to focus Government and voluntary action on those areas which require immediate attention and where expenditure of funds and effort will realize the best possible results. Needless to say, all Ministries and Departments of Government can profitably use the results of a socio-economic survey as an aid to planning. I am convinced that from scientifically assessed information, the Ministerial Committee can make positive recommendations leading to positive action on the problem of prostitution. The stumbling block, as usual, is finance. A socio-economic survey of Nairobi would cost approximately £25,000 and up to date, my efforts to obtain this money from sources outside Kenya have been unsuccessful. I am not discouraged and I shall continue in my efforts to find the money required.

In the meantime the Ministerial Committee, in association with the Churches and the voluntary organizations, will do all it can to make recommendations and to deal with the problem. We shall also gain some experience from the Nairobi Girls' Centre which is operating as a pilot scheme. As soon as the Ministerial Committee has anything significant to add to its interim reports, the hon. Member may rest assured that it will be reported.

Mr. Mboogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell this House whether the Government has taken a census of these ladies in Nairobi with a view to building some centres for rehabilitation and also for setting up a department in his Ministry to deal specifically with these girls?

Mr. Kubisi: Mr. Speaker, everything possible is being done in my Ministry to collect information and, as it have said, the report will not be ready until much further work has been done by the Ministerial Committee.

Question No. 929

SHIPMENTS OF MAIZE TO JAPAN

Mr. Kall asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing:—

- (a) Could the Minister explain why thousands of maize bags had to be shipped to Japan, thus creating the shortage of maize from which the country now suffers?
- (b) Was he aware of strong rumours that some merchants in Kenya had deliberately transported maize to Uganda only to send the same maize back to Kenya through the black-market?

[Mr. Kall]

(c) Could he assure the House that no officials of the Maize Marketing Board were involved in any such transaction?

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngel): Mr. Speaker, I beg to reply.

It cannot be said truly that the export of surplus maize to Japan created the current shortage of maize in Kenya. The surplus maize was exported because no shortage was foreseen at that time and the cost of holding maize in Kenya stores for long periods would probably have been very high.

Mr. Kall: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Minister has only dealt with part (a) of the question, but my question has three parts.

Mr. Ngel: In answer to part (b) of the question, Mr. Speaker, it is true that rumours have been spread that some Kenya people have been exporting maize through Busia on the Kenya/Uganda border. Investigations are being carried out extensively to find out the ways of blocking the black-marketing channel, and if the police or the Government or if my Ministry have sufficient information to show that some people are involved, obviously the law will take its course.

As to part (c), Mr. Speaker, Sir, the answer is yes, Sir.

Mr. Kall: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Minister agree with me that, having been a member of the Maize Marketing Board before he became a Minister, he knows much about what goes on within that Board and that the country expected much from him?

Mr. Ngel: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I can assure the House that I am very firm and investigations are being carried on, even to weighing the pros and cons of whether the storage of maize in Kenya would have cost the Kenya Government much more money or it would have cost less. Therefore, the Ministry is trying to find out why the export of maize to Japan was done and whether it was beneficial to this Government or not.

As to parts (b) and (c), my Ministry is very firm and as soon as it finds an officer behaving irregularly, he will be dealt with through the process of law.

Mr. Glehoy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply and also having seen the Chairman of the Maize Marketing Board, could he tell the House that during the period he was Chairman of the Maize Marketing Board, that he was incapable of calculating the future costs and also the cost of storage?

Mr. Ngel: I think the hon. Member is very ignorant as when I took over the chairmanship of the Maize Board, already negotiations had been made to ship maize to Japan before I took over the chairmanship of the Maize Board.

Question No. 937

REOPENING OF HEALTH CENTRES IN SOUTH NYANZA

Mr. Malsori-Itumbo asked the Minister for Health and Housing if he would tell the House when he was going to reopen the Health Centres of Chinato and Mabera, since the South Nyanza County Council had no money to keep them open.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The responsibility for finding the bulk of capital and all the recurrent expenditure for health centres rests with the local authorities. In the case of Chinato and Mabera Health Centres, it is the responsibility of the South Nyanza County Council to raise the necessary funds. This cannot, of course, be done unless the local people are willing to support the county council by paying the Graduated Personal Tax. The people must understand that, unless the councils receive adequate revenue annually, there will not be adequate funds to provide the health services they want.

I am sure that if the council's finances improve, there will be no difficulty in reopening the Health Centres of Chinato and Mabera.

Mr. Malsori-Itumbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply of the Assistant Minister, can he tell the House why it is necessary that whenever there is a shortage of money in South Nyanza District the only two places who have the health centres are the very places to be closed up? Can he tell the House why, and not anywhere else?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is a question which is not in conformity with this question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will go on anyway, as we have more questions to get through.

Question No. 944

AUTOMATIC DEPORTATIONS OF FOREIGNERS FROM KENYA

Mr. Agaz asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence whether he would state the reason for the automatic deportation of foreigners by the Kenya Government who had previously been deported by the Tanzania or Uganda Government.

Question No. 1036

MOVEMENT RESTRICTION ON KENYA'S AMBASSADOR IN CHINA

Mr. Okwango asked the Minister for External Affairs if he could tell the House why Kenya's Ambassador in Peking was not allowed outside a five miles radius of the city?

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply on behalf of my colleague the Minister for External Affairs who is abroad on Kenya business.

These laws are made by the Chinese Government and Kenya Government cannot explain laws made by the Government of China.

Mr. Okwango: Mr. Speaker, Sir, should we then consider that a Kenya citizen is a restrictive in a foreign country?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, not necessarily, we are only dealing with the Ambassador in Peking, not any foreign country.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister then consider also restricting the movement of the Chinese Ambassador to Kenya?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Chinese Ambassador will be treated like other ambassadors in Kenya and we have restrictions as to how far they can go out without permission and they are supposed to ask for permission before they go outside that area.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the Minister's reply, is he prepared to tell the House, that in view of the fact that Kenya Ambassadors are allowed five miles, what permission will the Kenya Government give the Chinese Ambassador to go how far?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, to clarify one point. It is not five miles, it is eight miles. Also we do not make our laws because the Chinese Government make their laws. We, in the Government, are independent minded and we make our laws according to what we think is most suitable for this country. If we feel we must limit Chinese Ambassadors within a radius of eight miles or thirty miles, we make these laws and we do not necessarily blindly follow what the Chinese Government does.

Mr. Kamureu: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, could the Minister tell this House whether Chinese Ambassadors are also restricted in any other foreign countries?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that is getting too far away from the subject we are now discussing. Next question.

Mr. Okwango: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this being an important matter, I would like to raise a Motion on adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. I am afraid, Mr. Okwango, that you will not be able to do that. The only matters to be raised on adjournment are matters of administration for which the Government is responsible. Questions can also be asked about matters with which the Government is officially connected. This, indeed is a proper Question, but since it is entirely a matter of administration for which the Chinese Government is responsible, it cannot be raised on adjournment.

Question No. 1049

NATIONAL YOUTH SERVICE DESERTERS

Mr. Makokha asked the Minister for Labour and Social Services—

- if the Minister could give the number of youths who had deserted the National Youth Service since its inception; and
- the breakdown of deserters by provinces and the probably reasons for these desertions.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Kubai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The number of Servicemen who had deserted up to the 23rd March 1965 was 86, representing slightly more than 4 per cent of the enrolment up to that date.

The breakdown by provinces is as follows:—

Central	15
Rift Valley	19
Nyanza	17
Coast	9
Western	12
Eastern	7
North-Eastern	3
Nairobi	4
	86

The principal reason for desertion is misunderstanding on the part of these recruits who were not fully briefed when selected by their Members of Parliament. Such men join up in the belief that they will receive salaries or will be given part-time academic and technical education, and full-time academic and technical education, and they desert when they find this is not the case. A secondary reason for desertion is a family commitment. Although it has been emphasized repeatedly that National Youth Servicemen should be without dependants, this is not always

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services

(Snowed, and subsequent alarms over such matters as a wife's sickness or problems over children's school fees lead men to desert.

Mr. Makokha: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that the principal reason for these desertions is the fact that the Government or the Ministry has failed to provide simple training in certain fields such as literacy, tractor driving, blacksmiths, as originally promised by the Ministry of Labour and Social Services?

Mr. Kubai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is untrue.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies by the Assistant Minister, Sir, and in view of the desertions, would the Assistant Minister consider having courses prior to in take at the National Youth Service headquarters, so that these effects can be told on the spot at the beginning before they actually take place.

Mr. Kubai: This is being done by Members of Parliament.

Mr. Ayleni: Mr. Speaker, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, would the Government consider establishing a little more pocket money for the use of these men, in view of the fact that most Africans get married before they are thirty years old.

Mr. Kubai: That will be looked into when finances become available.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 886

TRANSFER OF IMMIGRATION DEPARTMENT

Mr. Kiprotich asked the President why the responsibilities for the Immigration Department, which had, formerly been held by the Ministry of Home Affairs, had now been transferred to the Ministry of Internal Security and Defence.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Njirweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Section 77 of the Republican Constitution dealing with allocation of Portfolios to Ministers states:—

"Responsibility for any of the business of the Government of Kenya, including the administration of any of the departments of Government may be assigned to the Vice-President and to the several Ministers as the President may, by directions in writing, determine."

In exercise of the powers conferred on him by this section, the President allocated Portfolios and duties to the various Ministries.

The Department of Immigration works closely with the Department of Internal Security. Because of this unavoidable link, it is only natural that the Department of Immigration should be in the Ministry responsible for Internal Security.

Question No. 900

DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH FOREIGN COUNTRIES

Mr. Lorema asked the Minister for External Affairs whether the Minister would tell the House the next foreign countries with which Kenya was likely to open diplomatic relations when she became financially able to do so.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister for External Affairs, I beg to reply. The Kenya Government is very keen to open diplomatic relations with other foreign countries, particularly with international relations. This can only be done if the Kenya Government has enough finance, and when it comes to be done, we shall give priority to the African and Asian countries.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while the Government is still waiting to get money, would the Government consider expanding the jurisdiction of the present embassies, especially in the Far East, to cover more countries than they are covering at the moment?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we just cannot do it unless we increase personnel, because they are already working very hard and we need more money to put into these embassies, but, on the other hand, we cannot starve our development at home so that we just put money into these embassies.

Mr. Kall: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister agree with me that our ambassador in Washington could also represent Kenya in Canada, and our High Commissioner in London could also represent Kenya in all the Scandinavian countries?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, our ambassadors in those countries are very smart and they do the job fairly well even now. Our ambassador in London advises us on affairs of these countries, so does our ambassador in the United States.

Question No. 901

HOUSING LOANS: WEST POKOT

Mr. Lorema asked the Minister for Health and Housing whether the Minister could tell the House how much money his Ministry was prepared to loan to West Pokot for better house projects in the area.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 894

FORMATION OF MAIZE CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY

Mr. Lorema asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing whether the Government was prepared to aid financially the West Pokot people in the formation of a maize co-operative society.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It is not the Government's policy to aid financially in the formation of co-operative societies, as the basic principle of the co-operative movement is self-help and help thy neighbours.

Mr. Kamurem: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, is the Minister aware that West Pokot farmers are waiting to see what the Government is going to give to them as far as farming is concerned. Are they going to get loans and other aid from the Government for farming?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, Sir, though the answer may seem to be irrelevant to the question here, I may perhaps tell the hon. Members that there is a system, a harvesting system, whereby if a farmer has fifteen acres, then the Ministry is prepared to give him a given sum of money for preparation of the farm and for other preparations for harvesting provided that the farmer conforms with what is laid down in the minimum financial returns scheme.

Question No. 952

LAND VESTED IN SAMBURU COUNTY COUNCIL

Mr. Rurumbani asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement whether he could tell the House when the Samburu land, which had formerly been designated as Crown land, was going to be vested in the Samburu County Council.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It is appreciated that the Samburu were given an assurance that the Samburu District would be declared a land unit and that if this had been carried out, the land comprised in that District would now be vested in the County Council of Samburu instead of being Government land as is the present situation. The hon. Member will no doubt be aware that the line of the boundary between Turkana and Samburu was agreed upon in 1961 by the then district commissioners concerned and the elders. As the line followed no definite physical features, it was necessary, in order to gazette the proposed new land unit, to place beacons along its length, but it appears that before this was done the Samburu were prevailed upon to withdraw their previous agreement with the Turkana and to demand that all Turkana should be pushed back beyond the Suguta Valley. Quite clearly, a boundary, of this nature can only be drawn with the amicable agreement of both tribes for, if it is imposed without the agreement of both tribes, it is bound to lead to trouble later on. I have no evidence yet that the Samburu have reconsidered this matter or agreed to honour their previous agreement with the Turkana Elders, but if the hon. Member for Koroisi wishes to pursue the matter further, my Ministry would be prepared to carry out an investigation without delay.

Mr. Rurumbani: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the Assistant Minister's reply, could he tell the House why the question of boundaries has something to do with the question of designating the district as Trust land?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is really impossible to designate a district which consists of land which has no definite boundary lines and, as I have explained, a boundary can never be drawn without the tribes concerned being consulted first, and if this disagreement persists, then the beacons cannot be placed and a boundary cannot be defined.

Question No. 976

LOANS TO AFRICAN TRADERS: UGENYA

Mr. Odoro-Sar asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would tell the House the number of African traders who had received loans in Ugenya Constituency; and the number of defaulters on repayment of these loans?

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiario): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Nineteen loans have been issued to traders in Ugenya Constituency, totalling Sh. 35,000 since 1958. I am afraid, Mr. Speaker, that all these loan recipients are in arrears over repayment.

Mr. Rurumbani: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the unsatisfactory reply of the Assistant Minister, I wish to give notice that I am going to raise this matter on an adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Which one?

Mr. Rurumbani: Question No. 952.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I have told hon. Members before, Mr. Rurumbani, that they cannot wait until we are on another question and then

Question No. 986

U.S.S.R. AID FOR KANO IRRIGATION SCHEME

Mr. Bala asked the Minister for Finance when he expected to receive the U.S.S.R. financial aid towards the Kano Irrigation Scheme.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Odongo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Under the terms of the agreement for economic and technical co-operation between Kenya and the U.S.S.R., the Russians have undertaken, in principle, to provide assistance for the irrigation of the Kano Plain. A final decision on the project must, however, await the results of a feasibility study which is now under discussion between the two Governments and which will assess the economics of the project. Until the results of this investigation have been studied and accepted by both parties, it is not easy to say when financial aid may be expected.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, would he agree with me that it is not always advisable to give out these Press statements about something which has not been finalized by the Government; and as such the people feel they have been cheated by the Government because the Government has, in reality, not finalized the agreement?

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not agree that the Government has obviously misled the country. Whenever the Government makes announcements, it makes correct announcements at whatever time the announcement is made.

Question No. 1006

PRINCIPLES OF AFRICAN SOCIALISM

Mr. arap Too asked the Vice-President when he was going to explain to the House the principles of African socialism and make arrangements for the widest publicity through radio and pamphlets to educate the citizens of this country on these principles.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, these matters concerning planning and development are my concern and not the concern of the Vice-President's Office.

The Government is preparing a detailed statement on the principles of African socialism and hopes to put it before the House during May.

(The Speaker)

and say they want to raise the matter of a special question on an adjournment. In fact, they do not need to mention this desire to raise such an adjournment at all. In any case, you have given your notice first. But if you want to mention it, you must do it before we have passed on to another question.

Question No. 978

AFFORESTATION IN VIHIGA DIVISION

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife what his Ministry was doing to encourage the people in the hilly Vihiya Division of Western Province to afforest the hills.

The Assistant Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife (Mr. Mohamed): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. My Ministry has maintained a tree nursery at Maseno for the last seven years, doing so to make seedlings available to the people for planting on the hills and elsewhere. The Forest Department has also carried out a tree planting programme on Maragoli Hill, partly in order to demonstrate what can be done in afforesting the hills in this area.

For some time, Mr. Speaker, there has been considerable opposition to the Forest Department planting the Maragoli Hill Forest and there are numerous cases of arson. However, recent reports indicate that the people are gradually becoming more co-operative in stopping forest fires and other destruction of the forest cover.

Until recently, talks on forestry have been given to farmers taking courses at the Bukura Training Centre, with a view to encouraging them to plant more trees on their land. These talks have been temporarily stopped because of shortage of forestry staff, but will be resumed as soon as trained staff is available.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister now tell the House whether trees suitable for the paper industry at Brodericks Falls can be planted in that area?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Trees suitable for paper, did you say?

Mr. Godia: Yes, Sir.

Mr. Mohamed: Mr. Speaker, Sir, at the Maseno Nursery there are seedlings of all types available, and there is no question why the trees suitable for paper cannot be planted. These seedlings are available at the nursery and could be obtained at any time.

(The Minister for Works, Communications and Power)

amount of traffic that is likely to emanate from areas not now covered by the existing network. However, radio call facilities are available to any subscriber in these unserved areas.

Question No. 1051CONVICTIONS FOR PETTY OFFENCES AND SENTENCES, 1964/65

Mr. Ndile asked the Attorney-General if he would inform the House of the number of Africans convicted of petty offences who had been sentenced to long terms of imprisonment during 1964/65.

REPLY

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): This information could not be obtained unless an analysis were made of every petty offences register in every police station in the country, and I am reluctant to ask the police to do this when they are already fully occupied with their duties. However, I am able to say that the total number of persons of all races sentenced to imprisonment in 1964 for petty offences was 15,680. I would like to assure you however, that a person convicted of an offence which the Court considers as petty cannot be imprisoned for a long term. The question of a sentence is of course a matter for the Court to decide.

Question No. 1052CONVICTIONS FOR SERIOUS OFFENCES, 1964/65

Mr. Ndile asked the Attorney-General how many Africans had been convicted of serious offences and had been left on probation during 1964/65.

REPLY

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Figures for 1965 are not yet available. However, in 1964, 1,069 Africans who had been convicted of serious offences were placed on probation.

Tuesday, 30th March 1965

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

PRAYERSADMINISTRATION OF OATH

The Oath of Allegiance was administered to the following Member:—

Joseph Osero Nyaberi.

PAPER LAID

The following Paper was laid on the Table:—
Sessional Paper No. 11/1963-65, Proposal to hand over to Kitale Municipal Council Landline Buildings standing on Plot No. 2116/62/XIII, Kitale.

(By the Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago) on behalf of the Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angaine))

NOTICES OF MOTIONSREDUCTION OF SALARIES TO AID UNEMPLOYMENT

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT this House being conscious of the great and increasing number of unemployed people in Kenya, and being eager to find ways and means to remedy this unfortunate and grave situation which in itself is a threat to peace and prosperity of this country, urges the Government to adopt the following steps so that the amount thereby saved shall be used for building of small factories, employing more people and also by reducing the salaries in private firms or companies will enable the firms or companies to take on more of the unemployed. The steps are as follows:—

- (a) To reduce the present cost of living.
- (b) To reduce the present eighteen Ministries to ten only.
- (c) To reduce the Ministers', Permanent Secretaries', Under Secretaries', and all senior civil servants' salaries by twenty per cent.
- (d) The salaries of those in executive positions and highly paid workers in private firms or companies should be reduced by twenty per cent.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR BACKWARD AREAS

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT in view of the fact that some provinces and subsequently districts have benefited from the Government scholarships awarded in the name of Kenya by some generous and friendly foreign countries and whereas its distribution is unfair and constantly uneven, this House calls upon the Government to set aside some scholarships this year for the less-developed areas and to ensure that in future one-third of the scholarships go to such areas if the reasonable qualifications are obtainable in order to promote and centralize the true and practical spirit of Harambee.

CONSIDERED READINGBREVITY IN WORDING OF MOTIONS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before we go on to the next Order, I would remark that we have just heard notice of two somewhat verbose Motions. I would point out to hon. Members that both Movers of Motions and the House in general would benefit by economy in words. Not only is all the trapping of argument more suitable to the actual argument in the debate than to the terms of the Motion, but also very detailed propositions as well as trappings of argument give great scope for the main subject of the Motion to be missed or deliberately by-passed. I do recommend hon. Members to concentrate their Motions to the minimum of words, the minimum of detail and the minimum of support by argument.

Mr. Kall: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I thought before any Motion is brought to the House it is brought before you or the Clerk to the Council for approval, and I think that is the best time to advise the Mover on the economy of the wording of the Motion.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Quite true, but my only power of disapproving a Motion is when it is not in accordance with Standing Orders, and I am only too rarely invited by hon. Members to advise them on their Motions. Both of these notices of Motion are completely in order; I was not asked by the Movers whether they could be improved upon.

Mr. Kall: On another point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think that you can advise the Members because most of the Members present have only been in this House for a very short time, and I thought your advise would help a lot of us.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have just advised you.

[Mr. Anyien] throughout Kenya, but I would like to say, for example that in Pakistan, when President Ayub Khan took power, these land reforms were introduced and as a result the President's Government has, I think, proved to be very successful at the last elections. Also in Ghana we have got certain restrictions which mean that nobody should be allowed to have too much land or to buy much land, and thereby leave others landless. In Ceylon this has also worked, in Sekou Toure's Guinea this has worked, in the Congo Brazzaville this is also working, in Mali, in Algeria, in the United Arab Republic.

Mr. Speaker, I hear some Members saying, "socialism". I am glad they did not say communism because this is what they normally say, because in the communist countries there is no question of laying down the amount of land an individual can own. In the communist countries land belongs either to the Government or to the communes and so on, and this is not what I want to introduce in this country. I am glad that the hon. Members do understand.

Mr. Speaker, I do not want to be emotional at all, but I hear some few individuals shouting; I do not know what interests they are trying to promote but I do not see why they should be shouting like this. If they actually want to say, if the individuals who are trying to shout here are trying to say that they are asking this Parliament to set up an economic situation which will make them millionaires and which will force our poor African people to go without food, they must be able to say so. And if they are not saying so, then I do not see why they should shout at me, unless they feel that they have got so much land that they are afraid. But I do not think that even a person who has got a lot of land should be afraid, because this will show him what should be done.

I hear, Mr. Speaker, the roving ambassador of Taiwan shouting at me and I think that he should—

Mr. Okwanyo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, is the hon. Member in order in calling an hon. Member here the "roving ambassador of Taiwan"?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It does not seem to me to be out of order, unless people regard it as an insult to be called an ambassador of Taiwan.

Mr. Anyien: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it was not just that hon. Member. There were several hon. Members who made interjections, and I do not think the hon. Member who has just stood up to ask me to substantiate is the roving ambassador of Taiwan, and if he is it is just too bad.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I should like to continue by saying that I do not know why the hon. Members are shouting at me. It is not something ideological, it is a straightforward Motion which is representative of the people who elected my hon. friend to this House and who also elected me to this House. If these few hon. Members have now forgotten the people who elected them, they should keep quiet.

I would like to say that our country's situation will necessitate some measure of African socialism, as can be seen from countries which have taken it up. And in our party manifesto we also made it very clear that we wanted some amount of African democratic socialism, which cannot be Algerian socialism, which cannot be the socialism of the United Arab Republic, but which should be a Kenya socialism, according to the conditions which prevail in our own country, with the agreement of the majority of the people who are leading our country today.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it should not be thought, as some Members seem to think, that I am talking about communism; I should like to make it very clear that this should not be taken that way, because in a communist country there is no question of anyone owning land, because this does not apply at all. This, on the other hand, is what we believe to be in the interests of the African people.

Now when I am saying this I am not saying that all land should be divided up into small pieces. What I am actually trying to say is that if the Government wishes to maintain big tracts of land then it should be able to arrange for those pieces of land to be farmed on a co-operative basis so that people will be able to get a lot of crops out of the land to feed the people of Kenya. I do not think that we need any other revolution in Kenya because the Government, led by Mzee Kenyatta, is already a revolutionary Government. If a Government which was formed after many years of our brothers and sisters had lost their lives; and I do not think anybody who thinks in the normal way would want to create a situation which will lead our country again to have a class struggle or any other struggle. I think that we, as the Members of this House, should be able to accept this Motion, and when the committee is set up by Government some of the Members of this House should be included in this committee so that when they bring the recommendations to this House they will have been reached by agreement with the majority of the Members of [Mr. Anyien] and, not by the wish of one Member like myself or one Member like my hon. friend, the Minister for Home Affairs, for example.

With those few words, Mr. Speaker, I would like to urge hon. Members to know that it is not for my own interest; I think it is in the interests of everybody in this country. And if we really believe that we are the true representatives of our people, we must not come here to try to fill our pockets only, when the people who elected us are suffering.

With those few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time for the interruption of business. The House is adjourned until 2.30 p.m. on Tuesday, 30th March 1963.

The House rose at Thirty minutes past Twelve o'clock.

WRITTEN REPLIES TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 990

SONGHOR SETTLEMENT SCHEME:
CENTRAL NYANZA PEOPLE

Mr. Odera-Sar asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement how many people from each division in Central Nyanza had been provided with land in the Songhor Settlement Scheme. Of these, how many came from Ugenya Constituency.

REPLY

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Asquith): The hon. Member for Ugenya is aware, I believe, that the responsibility for the selection of settlers to settlement schemes is entirely in the hands of the provincial authorities led by the hon. Member for Ugenya—or any other hon. Member for that matter wishes to know anything concerning the people selected, the quickest way to get the answer would be for him to ask the Chairman of the Provincial Advisory Council direct.

However, in case the hon. Member for Ugenya was not aware of who does the selection of settlers, I have obtained the figures he has asked for from the Provincial Commissioner, Nyanza. They are as follows:—

Families who have been settled on Songhor Settlement Scheme—

From Winan Division	364
From Nyando Division	235
From Maseno Division	163
From Bondo Division	50
From Ukwala Division	72

Eight others have come from Homa Bay.

It is not possible to give the number of people from Ugenya Constituency who have been settled, as figures are not available by localities. It can be assumed, however, that a large number out of the seventy people from Ukwala are Ugenya constituents.

Question No. 1004

TELEPHONE AND POSTAL SERVICES IN WESTERN KENYA

Mr. Okwanda asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power if he was satisfied with the telephone and postal services in West Kenya; namely, Western and Nyanza Provinces.

If the answer was yes, could the Minister give a breakdown of the number of telephone exchanges and post offices; and the population served and the area covered by each telephone exchange and post office (excluding Kisumu and Kakamega townships).

If the answer was no, what plans did the Minister have for improving the services and how soon could the people in the area expect to have the services extended.

REPLY

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): The Minister is not satisfied with the telephone and postal services in the West Kenya areas.

Plans for the establishment of additional post offices are already in hand under which approximately forty offices are due to be established in the two provinces shortly and already eight of these have been opened. With this expansion it is expected that ultimately there will be a post office for every 32,000 people. The speed at which the additional offices can be established depends on the availability of suitable sub-postmasters and transporters for mail contractors and these are difficult to get.

Telephone services are, however, receiving separate consideration in view of the high cost of construction of land lines and the small agreed upon by all the representatives from the local area councils, the county councils, the Provincial Councils, and all the Members of this House and the Senators from that area, leading House and the Senators and all the other people personalities, traders and all the other people concerned. Sir, that is the only solution. I, coming from the Western Province, and a man from the Coast, Rift Valley or Central Province, should not come into this House and pass a resolution for the Kenya Government to take this drastic action, without knowing the opinions of the people living in the North-Eastern Province. It would be very serious and we would only encourage the Shifita there to come in and encourage the people in the area to ask for secession and the Government will have to start spending a lot of money. As I understand that the emergency operation is still on, I do not think it will be wise for the Kenya Government, at the moment, to entertain the ideas by the Member for Wajir North, asking the Government to create another problem which will eventually cause the Kenya Government to spend money and use the public funds of this country unnecessarily.

The Minister when replying will tell the Member exactly what I have said, that the matter should be discussed there, and when it comes to the attention of the Government then, it will receive a satisfactory answer which will solve the problems of the North-Eastern Region. They should not come to this House and waste our time by asking for unnecessary action which will eventually cause the Government more problems.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think it is very nearly time for the Mover to reply, so we had better dispose now of Mr. Gichoya's amendment. I must remind hon. Members that he has moved that there be added at the end of question the words: "if that removal will be for the better administration and happiness of the people of the district concerned."

(Question of the amendment that the words proposed to be added be added put and negatived)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The debate continues on the question as originally proposed. I do not know whether Mr. Niyamweya now wishes to move formally his amendment.

(Resumption of debate on original Motion)

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Niyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to clarify one point which was not understood by the hon. Members of the House—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You cannot make another speech, Mr. Niyamweya, you can only move formally your proposed amendment.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Niyamweya): That being the case, Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to press my amendment having heard what the hon. Members have to say on this.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odunga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to speak rather briefly on this Motion, which I understand was brought with very good intentions indeed, but which, as the hon. gentleman both from this side and the opposite side, have said, we, the Government think that the time is inopportune for us to consider the changes. One of the hon. Members from this side has made a suggestion which is very valid, that a mutual agreement between the people themselves in this area would help a great deal to ease the movements amongst themselves in the area. Taking into consideration what has already been expressed by many Members in this House, that the situation in the North-Eastern Region at the present moment would not encourage the Government to make changes, I think the Government would be happier to leave things as the status quo at the present moment. Later, when suggestions come from the people, initiated by the leaders of the area, with the mutual agreement of the people, the Government will be able to reconsider the position and see if some changes can be made.

At present, Mr. Speaker, I must say that we cannot see our way to accept this.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If no other Member wishes to speak, I will call upon the Mover to reply.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is very unfortunate that the Members in this Chamber have misunderstood completely the motives of this Motion. There are no bad motives behind the moving of this Motion. All this Motion asks for is an end to the policy of divide and rule which was introduced by the Colonial Government. I do not know why many Members seem to doubt the good motives in the moving of this Motion. Some Members are uncertain of the ultimate consequences. Many Members have said something about security in connexion with this Motion. I entirely agree that the security situation might not at present warrant the free movement of human beings and animals. I entirely agree with this, but I do not see why some Members should say that such a Motion should never be passed at all. If the reason for not passing this Motion in the North-Eastern Region, that is fair enough. To say that the Motion has bad motives behind it is very wrong.

[Mr. Khalif]

I submit that the area of the North-Eastern Region is a very difficult one, because it is semi-desert the inhabitants of the area would enjoy free movement for themselves and their animals if the Government would permit this. Some Members tended to say that the people in the area had not given me the mandate in regard to the moving of this Motion. I would like to challenge any hon. Member to stand and say that I do not have the mandate of my people to bring this Motion. Mr. Speaker, the last time I went to the area and held a meeting with the elders, the leaders, the heads, and even the Provincial Commissioner himself, and everybody, nobody wanted the continuation of such boundaries. Even the civil servants did not want them because it has been a headache, not only to the Administration but also the security forces. Instead of the security forces fighting the Shifita, they are engaged in trying to prevent these people coming from this side to this side and those going from this side to this side. Instead of fighting the Shifita, Tribal Police go out in patrols to confiscate animals of those people who cross from one side to another.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I do not see why some people should say it would be an inconvenience to the Administration and the security forces. In fact I should have thought that the removal of these boundaries would have helped them, with the security situation. The Administration of the area could be easier if these boundaries are removed.

The hon. Mr. Komora in his speech said that if this was allowed, perhaps the Somali would come to Tana River and take their grazing areas. Surely, if the hon. Mr. Komora paid a little attention to the Motion, he would have understood that we do not request that the Somalis be allowed to move to other people's areas. We only request that the grazing boundaries which exist between the Somali areas, namely Wajir, Garissa and Mandera, be removed. It does not request that the district boundaries be removed. Therefore, I do not think there was any logic whatsoever behind Mr. Komora's speech with regard to this particular point.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to make it very clear that unless we in this House know for certain that the removal of these grazing boundaries would amount to insecurity in the area, I do not see why any of us should object to such a removal. I am not opposing all those tactics employed by the Kenya Government to combat Shifita activities. In fact what I am opposing in my Motion, and what I want to be removed are the grazing boundaries which existed even before the Shifita activities started. It must be understood. I said in my first statement that these grazing boundaries were created in 1912. Up to now there are I should think about 100,000 head of cattle which have been confiscated by the former and the present Government, because of these boundaries. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not see what logic there is behind opposing the removal of these boundaries.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we should be told if it is the Government's policy to encourage the policy of divide and rule. If it is the policy of the Kenya Government to encourage the policy of divide and rule, then I am at loss in bringing this Motion to the Chamber. But, Mr. Speaker, surely as Kenya is independent now, the Government would have reviewed provisions of existing laws, so as to enable those provisions which are not practicable or which are against the national unity to be removed.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is very unfortunate that my hon. colleague, the Assistant Minister to the President's Office, is very reluctant to bring up his amendment. I do not see, Mr. Speaker, why the gentleman did not think to table his amendment as that amendment would have mediated the situation. If there are some hon. Members who think that the removal of these boundaries would amount to insecurity, and if I think that it would only amount to harmony between the citizens of the Somali tribe in the North-Eastern Region, I should have thought that the only mediation would be the amendment which was proposed by the Minister, which only urges the Government to review the provisions of the Special District Administration Ordinance.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, somebody had a deliberate motive to try and connect this Motion with the security of the region. Nevertheless, Mr. Speaker, there is little or no connexion whatsoever, but it is only put forward in good faith, in order to make the lives of the Somali nomads easier. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am being interrupted by remarks by some Members from the North-Eastern Region. Mr. Speaker, I submit, categorically, that these Members who are trying to oppose this Motion are, in fact, betraying the interests of their own people, because it is their own people who keep on asking for these borders to be removed.

Mr. Ogle: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think the hon. Member is trying to suggest that we have no mandate from our people, and I would like to contradict on that.

in the manner I have indicated, Mr. Speaker, I think it would be unwise on the part of the Government not to make certain arrangements as to the movement of people in these particular areas. But we would rather like to leave the matter in the hands, after the revision of these provisions, of the Special Districts Administration Act, in the hands of the Minister in charge of the Administration, who would make rules from time to time as to the movements of the people in this particular district.

Any tribesmen with genuine intentions, who wants to go from one district to another, as it has been in the past, can always get a pass from his district commissioner or provincial commissioner to visit or travel to any part of the province; he wants; and these passes cannot be denied to good citizens. Every district commissioner, Mr. Speaker, has adequate arrangements for grazing and watering of stock within his own district, and tribesmen take their stock to the places they are authorized to take them to, for this purpose, where they will not meet with other tribes who are hostile to them.

The main purpose of these provisions, Mr. Speaker, is really to try to avoid tribal clashes.

Now although I concede that we will revise the provisions of this Act, the hon. Members should know that the whole of the North-Eastern Region is at the present under a state of emergency, and therefore, even if we try to repeal these provisions today, yet we have emergency regulations applying in the whole of the North-Eastern Region and that would mean the Government would still control the movements of people in that region.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are claiming twenty minutes?

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): I am, Sir.

Our problem now is the problem of clearing the whole of the North-Eastern Region of the Shifita menace. As soon as we have been able to normalize the situation in the North-Eastern Province, I hope, Mr. Speaker, we will proceed to bring in new rules which will make the whole of the inhabitants of the North-Eastern Province happy, in the sense that whatever water facilities and grazing facilities are available, the district commissioner in charge of a district will be able to make adequate arrangements satisfactory to the inhabitants of that particular district. These arrangements can always be arrived at by mutual understanding between different districts in the North-Eastern Region.

Recently I visited another dry part of our country, that is the Turkana District and the Samburu District, where the inhabitants have similar problems, those of water and of grazing. I am quite sure some hon. Members who speak about these regions and who have not been there cannot appreciate the magnitude of the problem of water and grazing in these areas. Those who have been there know that the problem of the North-Eastern Region and some of these other arid districts, the main problem, is water, followed by grazing or pasture; and that is the reason, Mr. Speaker, why the Government pays great attention as to the arrangements which are made concerning water and concerning grazing.

The Government must ensure that every inhabitant in every district in the North-Eastern Region has adequate facilities for water and grazing. This does not stop there, and I think the hon. Members from the North-Eastern Province would help the Government by pointing out what the needs of the Province are. I sincerely believe that the need is water, the need is pasture, the need is economic development, the need really does not rely on trying to change the few provisions which are contained in a certain Act on the Statute Book.

Now, Mr. Speaker, if we were directed to these practical suggestions by the hon. Members from the area, if they could draw the attention of the Government to what the actual needs of the people are, then we would know that as soon as the conditions and the circumstances in the North-Eastern Province permit, the Government would strengthen its efforts to try to make good what is deficient in this part of the country.

That being the case, Mr. Speaker, much as I share the feelings and the sense of the Motion which has already been moved by the hon. Mr. Khalif, and the amendment, which reads that this House urges the Government to take the necessary steps to remove restrictions which curtail the movements of both human beings and animals within any of the districts of the North-Eastern Province, so as to enable the Somali nomads to move freely in search of water and pasture—I do not, Sir, dispute the sense in that amendment and Motion. My own problem, Sir, is that if a Motion is passed in this House it is always better if it makes sense. I do not say that it does not make sense as it stands, but we want a Motion which is clear. I have considered the amendment and in consequence I wish to table an amendment to the Motion. I have already spoken to the hon. Member and the hon. Member for Gichugu, who has put in an amendment to the original Motion, and they concede that the amendment which I will put forward on behalf of the Government will go a long way to satisfy their requirements. I have mentioned, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that this House urges the Government to consider the revision of the provisions of the Special Districts Administration Act, so as to enable the Somali nomads to move freely in search of water and pasture.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would like to point out, Mr. Nyamweya, that, as we are already considering an amendment of the original question, and the amendment which you proposed cannot be treated as an amendment of that amendment, but is in fact a proposal for another amendment, we cannot entertain it formally until we have disposed of the first amendment; but as soon as we have disposed of the first amendment, which is now under consideration, I can allow you formally to move this amendment without any further speech.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Having indicated that there will be an amendment in the manner I have already outlined, Mr. Speaker, I do not want to labour on this point any longer. We accept that water is a very important factor in the life of the North-Eastern Province inhabitants, we accept pasture is also an important factor and we accept that adequate arrangements in the North-Eastern Province to satisfy all inhabitants in that particular part of the country, therefore, we will only try to revise our provisions so that our District Commissioners and Provincial Commissioners will be empowered to make arrangements which will satisfy all the inhabitants of all the districts of the North-Eastern Region.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to be misunderstood by some hon. Members. Our purpose of revising the provisions is aimed at bringing the Act into conformity with the Constitution. It is aimed at giving sufficient powers to the District Commissioners, the people on the spot, to regulate water and pasture facilities available in the North-Eastern Region. With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I support the sense.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I take it, Mr. Nyamweya, that you are opposing the amendment now under consideration, because it does not agree with what you eventually want to propose?

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I oppose the two amendments as they now stand.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is there any other Member who wishes to speak?

Mr. Amin: Thank you very much Mr. Speaker. While opposing the Motion, Mr. Speaker, I want to bring up some facts to this House.

Mr. Speaker, to remove the district boundaries in the North-Eastern Region would only be creating more trouble and inviting problems in the North-Eastern Region. Mr. Speaker, now that we have an emergency in the North-Eastern Region and we are also fighting the Shifita, we shall not be able to do anything about these boundaries.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think the hon. Member is trying to misrepresent me. I have not stated anywhere in my speech that the Government intends to remove the district boundaries.

Mr. Amin: Mr. Speaker, I did not say so. The Assistant Minister was opposing the amendment, and I oppose it also.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this amendment will only mean useless attacks upon our people in the North-Eastern Region. In Mandera area now, we have got Garrifs and the Gorias who are fighting among themselves. It was only two months ago that 400 people were killed in Mandera District among the people themselves and this was because the Gorias crossed to the Garrifs' side and the Garrifs were crossing to the Gorias' side.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if this is going on then it will only stop the Kenya security forces who are fighting against the Shifita who are trying to make a settlement among the Somalis themselves. This will only mean a lot of difficulties among the Somalis. It was only five days ago when I saw the Provincial Commissioner in the North-Eastern Region who was trying to hold a baraza without success. This will only make a lot of difficulties and bring strife among the people of the North-Eastern Region. It does, of course, mean a lot of difficulties because we have a lot of tribes in the area and in our areas, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we allow a lot of people from one area to move outside boundary of that area, then what we shall cause is only a war and that war which you are causing will only mean that we are supporting the Shifita. This, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to give the hon. Members of this House time to speak, and I do not want to waste any time, but I totally reject the amendment and the Motion as a whole.

[Mr. Gichoya]

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move my amendment.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Mr. Acting Speaker, Sir—

Mr. Bala: On a point of order, is it in order for the hon. Member to call the Temporary Deputy Speaker the Acting Speaker?

The Temporary Deputy Speaker (Mr. Warrihi): I think the practice is for him to be referred to as the Speaker.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: I apologize, Mr. Speaker, but I wanted to be corrected by my friend.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I stand to speak on both the original Motion and the Motion as amended by the Member for Gichugu, and I would be very much in favour of the amendment because this clarifies the position as far as Administration is concerned, because this particular area is an area where the Administration is not running smoothly, because the Administration has to struggle with Shifita activities. As times, the removal of these restrictions may make it difficult for the Provincial Commissioner and his staff in the area to administer the area for the benefit, ease and progress of the area. Therefore, if this Motion is to be passed, it should be passed as amended, so that it is also going to be for the safety of the Members who come from that area. They should not allow freedom of movement of animals and human beings in an area where we already know that the movement of the people sometimes confuses the sorting out of those Shifita-minded people who are engaged in those activities of slaughtering others and those whose movements are for peaceful purposes; so the Administration must be asked in that area that, if this Motion is passed, in implementing this Motion, where the Member seeks to get these subsections removed, the Administration must take into account and must let the Government know exactly whether the removal of the sections will be for the peace, progress and advancement which is now required for that area. Otherwise, there would be no need at all, as far as I am concerned, for allowing freedom of movement without checking what consequences might be. We know that, sometimes, we may meet with very serious consequences in a situation where we are still struggling with fights brought about by people who are not interested in the progress of the area concerned.

I understand that the hon. Mover is not very interested in what I am talking about, but I would advise my colleague that this is for his own interests and for his own safety and, therefore, I would ask the hon. Member to accept the amendment suggested by the Member for Gichugu because I know he did it with a clean heart and he wanted the Motion of the Member to succeed. He also wanted to see that the safety of the Members in that area is guaranteed and that he is continuously contributing to this House without having to make troubles caused by his own Motion in his own area. The restrictions should be removed because when restrictions are not removed according to the order of the House, the Member himself gets entangled in the problems of the Shifita. So, the position here has a lot to do with security in this matter, because the districts that I wanted to be free, the places where freedom of movement is advocated, are in the North-Eastern Region where we have just defined a situation of Shifita activities, fighting and so on, and people smuggling arms from Somalia and so on and people involved. Moreover, if security is not involved, this Motion could go without debate. It is true that we want freedom of movement of human beings, and we do not want to be kept in a pot like fish when it is cooked. We want to see to it that the animals and human beings must not be looked after, whatever shortages we have, whatever shortcomings we have. We must see to it that while we are allowed to move freely we are also at the same time looked after.

Therefore, I support the amendment, and the Motion, of course, according to me, is fairly clear. If Members could just give support to the Motion as amended, then we could go to the next order. I think this would help the House rather than causing unnecessary debate, and I ask the Government to accept the Motion as amended.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

(Question of the amendment that the words proposed to be added be added proposed)

Mr. Ogle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, I am pleased that this Motion is to come, but before I proceed, I must say that this Motion will have serious consequences.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sure it is the duty of hon. Members of this House to ask what is really the real interest of the people, and I doubt if the hon. Member for Wajir North really meant what he said on this Motion. If he really meant it, I would say that he was doing a very great disservice to his people.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is wrong to suggest that hon. Members of this House do not know what is happening in the Northern Frontier District simply because they have never been there. It

[Mr. Ogle] fact, most of them who have not been there have only heard about it in their geography lessons at school, and everybody in this House know where most parts of Kenya lie.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what the hon. Member for Wajir North forgets is that these boundaries which are quite relevant were introduced when it was found that it was in the best interests of the people, and when the people asked for them.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, for the information of the House, we are having a lot of trouble in the District of Mandera, which originated from this business of people passing into another place that there were not supposed to go to.

[The Temporary Deputy Speaker (Mr. Warrihi) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

The hon. Member is quite aware that two of his people from Wajir North District were passing a place in which they are not allowed to go, and the two of them lost their lives. Hon. Members are quite aware of the fact that we are having a lot of trouble with the Shifita in the Northern Frontier District, and if it is going to increase by accepting this Motion, then I do not see that we are doing a service to the people.

On the other hand, these boundaries are in all the countries where nomadic life exists—and this is for the benefit of the hon. Member for Wajir North—like Saudi Arabia, and the Somalia Republic. For example, in Tunisia, if the hon. Member has been there, there is a district for as long as 10 miles in which they are not allowed to live. The committee that deals with this are quite happy about it. Now, the hon. Member has 200 miles to wander about in, and I do not see that he should complain about it. On the other hand, I assure him that the hon. Member for Wajir North is not getting the jack's share, and he has nothing to worry about.

If the hon. Member for Wajir North would come along the Kenyatta Avenue, that would be of course, with the permission of the hon. Member for Nairobi Central, but his camels might collide with a train.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, in order to allow other hon. Members to say something on this, I will conclude my speech by opposing this Motion, as it stands.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Njanyaya): Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Motion, as originally put, made it rather difficult for the Government to know exactly what the hon. Mover intended to achieve by it, but I have gone through this after listening to his speech, and after having gone through his amendment to the original Motion, I can now see what the hon. Member for Wajir North had in mind.

I see that the main bone of contention in this Motion is concerning the provisions of the Special Districts Administration Act. Now, Mr. Speaker, the Special Districts Administration Act has certain provisions, which, for obvious reasons, are intended to maintain friendly relations between people in any given district where these provisions apply. They are intended also to control the movements of the inhabitants of that particular district, primarily for their own interest and their personal safety. Thirdly, they are intended to provide the arrangements for grazing and water facilities in such districts where this Act applies.

The reason is that in some of these districts, Mr. Speaker, the Government cannot sit back and see the people fighting over grazing or water and it has to make definite arrangements so that every inhabitant of that particular district can benefit from whatever little water and grazing there is in that district. It is, though, the intention of the Government to review all the laws of Kenya, and this has been stated in the House in the past and even as recently as yesterday. The Government does not intend to review all laws and leave this particular Act, the Special Districts Administration Act, standing in isolation; we want to revise this Act, Sir, with a view to bringing it into conformity with the Constitution.

As I have said, Sir, the Act is designed to control the free movement of the tribesmen within the Province and, since we are dealing with the question of the North-Eastern Region in this case, it will not apply only to Somalis. In order to avoid the tribal clashes which frequently occur between them as a result of tribal contacts this Act was made; hon. Members must be aware that many lives and much property have been saved by the application of this Act by the officers of the Administration. The Act is also intended to protect the tribesmen from hostile neighbours who would otherwise wander about stealing livestock, killing people and burning the houses and property of the people in the North-Eastern Region. The movements of these people must be controlled and to do this the law must equally apply to our own people who indulge themselves in hostile activities against their neighbours.

Although we are prepared to concede that some of these provisions will have to be revised

[Mr. Khalif] created only for the purpose of Colonial Administration because the administration of the area was very hard then.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Temporary Deputy Speaker (Mr. Wariithi) took the Chair]

Of course—

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Temporary Deputy Speaker, on a point of order, from the outset, when the hon. Member was moving this Motion, I saw that it had nothing to do with the Minister for External Affairs. May I have your direction on this, as to which Ministry is responsible from the context of the speech given by the Member already?

The Temporary Deputy Speaker (Mr. Wariithi): I thought the Member was just moving his Motion. I think we should give him a little more time to speak on this. From the Order Paper it is the Ministry of External Affairs.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): On a point of order, Mr. Temporary Deputy Speaker, I think any Minister can answer for the Government, so it does not matter what Ministry he comes from.

The Temporary Deputy Speaker (Mr. Wariithi): Yes, quite right.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Temporary Deputy Speaker, the position now in the area, take Wajir District for example, is that it has been divided into three grazing areas. Although the Somalis from the northern section of Wajir and the Somalis from the southern section of Wajir are all Somalis and belong to one tribe; if anyone from a section in the southerly area, is found grazing their cattle in the northerly area, then nearly a quarter of their livestock are confiscated. This subjects the Somalis to unnecessary confiscation and penalties. Its removal will help the people in the area.

It should also be noted that during the dry seasons when any given area is lacking pasture and water for livestock, then the people of that area cannot move into another area. That also subjects them to unnecessary hardships. I personally do not see why this was not removed before this Motion was brought to Parliament. We expected that this thing would have been removed a long time ago, as soon as Kenya attained its independence. It should be noted that this was introduced by somebody, a big colonialist called Reece, who is now a Lord in the House of Lords in England. He was a chief administrator in the area. This has subjected the Somalis in the area to unnecessary confiscation. Losses in cattle usually range from 500 to 1,000 cattle, camels a year. This order is under the District Ordinance Act which, as we all know, is in existence in certain areas only of the country.

Mr. Temporary Deputy Speaker, as this Motion is a very short and brief one, I do not want to dwell very much on it, except to help the Members to understand the meaning of it. There are no motives behind it. We do not want the Somalis to move southerly into another area, we do not want the district boundaries to be removed, neither the regional boundaries. All we are asking for is for the grazing boundaries which exist in the districts, thus dividing the Somalis into various grazing areas, to be removed as soon as possible.

With these few remarks, Mr. Temporary Deputy Speaker, I will conclude by moving the amended Motion as it is.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Temporary Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to know whether I can second this and make an amendment also. I would like to make an amendment to this amendment—

The Temporary Deputy Speaker (Mr. Wariithi): Mr. Gichoya, the Motion has to be formally seconded. Then when we start debating the Motion, you can propose an amendment.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Temporary Deputy Speaker, may I know whether, if I seconded this, I will be allowed to move an amendment?

Mr. Anyten: I second, Sir.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Temporary Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to make an amendment to this amendment, and I would like to put it first so that I can speak freely and with confidence. My amendment starts from where the other amendment ends. It is as follows, "if that removal will be for the better administration and happiness for the people of the districts concerned." That being the—

The Temporary Deputy Speaker (Mr. Wariithi): You will have to give the amendment in writing.

Mr. Gichoya: Yes, Sir.

Sir, we have been confronted with a problem here which was created long, long ago, not only for the good of the area under those circumstances, but not perhaps for the good of the

[Mr. Gichoya] under the present circumstances. Now, the whole removal of these restrictions will depend mainly on the Administration being satisfied that the removal will mean better administrative arrangements—

The Temporary Deputy Speaker (Mr. Wariithi): I may just mention that the amendment from Mr. Gichoya cannot be divorced from the original Motion. So when Members speak on amendment, they can as well speak on the Motion. They will be dealt with together.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Temporary Deputy Speaker, Sir, the intention of my amendment is not to segregate the people of the North-Eastern Region. It is to make it possible for the Administration to use its own methods of finding a solution in the area, and not for the Parliament to dictate to the Administration. The solution in that area perhaps may not require the removal of the restriction. It gives the Administration a wide field so that it can find the best solution for the happiness of the people, the inhabitants of the area and the smooth running of the Administration.

Another point which ought to be taken into consideration, and which I did take into consideration, was the question of the Shifia in the area. The restrictions, if they are removed without the approval of the Administration, it may make it very difficult for the operation of the Administration in that particular area, because the Shifia might move from one of the quiet areas to the troubled areas and create more trouble or move from the troubled areas to the quiet areas and make them also troubled areas. Consequently, the situation in terms of Shifia menace, will never be put in check for a long time. On the other hand, everyone really feels it is necessary that the conditions of our people must be made easier. A free state means that the welfare of the inhabitants will be taken into consideration.

So, the happiness of the people and the smooth running of the Government should be taken into consideration, and in doing this, I would like to move this amendment. There has been a kind of solution in that area, as far as I know, where people are approved of on a clan basis. Either they differ in the way to find out the way to bring these clans together into an indigenous society, or to let them live as they are if that is for the happiness of the area, and the happiness of the country. We should aim at integrating the people of Kenya rather than keeping them in tribal compartments, racial compartments, tribal compartments, clan compartments. We must aim at bringing them together in the Harabee spirit of give and take. This is a big challenge which the country is facing today and I believe the Members from the North-Eastern Region who come from different clans, will agree with me that the idea of building one nation means sacrificing and forgetting the smaller ties, and aiming at greater ties. That is movement from the small ties to the greater ties. The bigger tie today in Kenya is the country, the nation as a whole. The smaller ties in Kenya are the tribes. Now these small ties must give way to the bigger ties, and therefore the Members from the North-Eastern Region must consider this.

This is their internal problem, but it is a national problem. An internal problem for a particular area will keep the national activities either behind or will make them move ahead. The internal problem of the North-Eastern Region is really the concern of the nation as a whole. Consequently, we should aim at trying to find a solution, an amicable solution, and not creating problems where problems need not be in existence.

I understand that in the good colonial days these people, the North-Eastern people, the Somalis, were being put into small compartments, isolated from one another for the sake of divide and rule, a policy which does not necessarily go very well with the present status of Kenya. We believe in national integration and we cannot integrate the people if they are still maintained in these old colonial compartments of isolation, either by one Government or another. We are now facing the problem of the Somalis, that the Somalis say they are a community by themselves, because the idea was conveyed to them by the former rulers of this country, the colonialists, who divided the people of Kenya into small segments, the Massi, Boran, and so on. These Massi have no development or anything, in terms of development. Today, it has become a problem of the Kenya Government to help these people, but it was the intention of the colonial rulers who believed in dividing the people into compartments. Now, it is up to the National Government of Kenya, and particularly the National Assembly, to make it possible for our Administration to find a solution for the Motion on hand, as amended by the hon. Member for Gichugu. The Administration must see it put it in black and white that the conditions of North-Eastern Region should be improved. If they cannot do so, the Government must accept those conditions if they are for the good of the Administration and the happiness of the people of Kenya, as far as we are facing the Shifia menace.

[The Minister for Internal Security and Defence] away with this menace in the North-Eastern Region.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the Organization for African Unity Meeting which was held in Lagos, Kenya and Somalia were asked by the Organization for African Unity to refrain from doing anything that may cause bad feeling between the two countries. We have not supplied arms to anybody to cross Somalia and disrupt their good Government over there, good or bad or stupid as it was called, I do not know. We have not, and if the Republic of Somalia respects the Organization for African Unity and would like to remain as a good Member, a supporter of the Organization for African Unity, they should respect this request from the Organization for African Unity, and they too should not supply arms to anybody to go and disrupt any good Government and terrorize the people. This was requested so that good relationship could start to exist between the two countries and we are not waiting for this to stop, because, what are we fighting for? What are they fighting for? They are never going to get the North-Eastern Region. We are anxious to develop social conditions for the people over there and this is what we have started to do. Instead of wasting their money and ammunition sending their people to come and fight in Kenya, why do they not do what we are doing and let them build their hospitals, their schools and provide water for their cattle, instead of trying to come across.

This is what we are persuading them to do and we are quite willing to discuss peaceful existence and common development of both Somalia and Kenya on both sides of the border, but not to discuss the North-Eastern Region, which is a part of Kenya and which we are never going to give to Somalia, at any time, today or tomorrow; and if they try any more funny business like crossing with troops, then they are going to find that the men of Kenya are going to respond and they are going to conquer the whole situation.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reject this Motion on the basis that it brings about negotiations on the North-Eastern Region which is an integral part of Kenya which we cannot negotiate with anybody.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time for the Mover to reply.

Mr. Rumbunban; Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to thank the hon. Members who contributed to this Motion. I was a little surprised to see that some other Members who spoke on this Motion did so rather emotionally and tried to go out of the scope of the Motion.

To start with individual points, the hon. Member, Mr. Ngala-Abok, said that the door is open, if the Somalis want to initiate negotiations with the Kenya Government. Sir, I do not think it really belittles our Government if it starts seriously to consider negotiations with the Somali Government in order to bring about a solution of the Northern Frontier District question. If our Government really is committed to the principles and the tenets of the Organization for African Unity, we should be willing to negotiate with Somalia. I should say that I do not want any sort of war between the countries. So long as the Kenya Government and the Somali Government are at loggerheads on this issue, I am sure that it will cause war between Kenya and Somalia later on.

Sir, some of the Members who opposed this Motion do so because they have not suffered at the hands of the Shifita. They have not even lost a single piece of property or some of their members. I am sure that if the Members who opposed this Motion had lost their brothers through the Shifita, they would not have spoken the way they have today.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, is that it seems as though most Members who spoke on this Motion threw the responsibility for the solution to the North-Eastern Region problem to the Somali Members, and they are not aware that even the Members from that area are the targets of the Shifita. I believe the House is aware that the brother of the hon. Mr. Khalif only recently returned from Somalia where he was smuggled.

Sir, I do not deny the fact that the Kenya Government is not doing all that it can to develop the North-Eastern Region. I know it does; but to seek a solution it ought at least to convene a meeting to try and convince the Somalia Government that what they are doing at the moment to back up the Shifita is not good. That was my aim. I did not say that if the Kenya Government convened a meeting with the Somalia Government that shows that our Government is cowardly. Sir, the Minister for Internal Security and Defence said that Kenya is not prepared to sit with the Somalia Government and discuss the solution of the Northern Frontier District. If Kenya stays like that and the Somalia Government says that they are going to supply arms to the Shifita, who are suffering? The Kenya citizens, the loyal citizens of Kenya. That is the reason why I moved a Motion on an adjournment recently and I told the House that the Samburu have so far lost about seventy lives and so many head of cattle. Supposing it was the Kikuyu who had lost those seventy lives.

was the Luo, I do not think the Members would then have spoken in the way they have today. Sir, my whole aim is to seek a peaceful solution because even the Somalis themselves are now demanding a solution to this problem. If they now really wish to support this Government and they are now seeing how they are suffering, I do not see how they are going to support this Government again.

Sir, my aim was to ask the Kenya Government not to act so that it looks little or cowardly, but if it is really committed to the principles and tenets of the Organization for African Unity, and again, for humanity's sake, it should convene a meeting with Somalia and convince them that what they are doing is not good.

Sir, the hon. Mr. Gichoya was very brave and he said that if we can get equipment for defence, we can even declare war now on Somalia. That is not the right attitude. All independent African States are looking to the Organization for African Unity, trying to seek way for independent African States. If each self-independent State says, "We are now independent and we can do anything to another independent African State", things just become worse. Surely, the tenets of the Organization for African Unity will not really be effective.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I support the Motion.

(Question put and negatived)

MOTION

GRANTIES: EAST AFRICAN RAILWAYS AND HARBOURS ADMINISTRATION EMPLOYEES

That this House views with grave concern the question of the East African Railways and Harbours employees who lost their gratuities after completing the period required by the Railway Administration by virtue of the fact that they were arrested and detained during the State of Emergency in Kenya between the years 1951 to 1960.

Mr. Waridhi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since notice of this Motion was given some time last year, a series of discussions and consultations have taken place with the Ministry of Works, Communications and Power and the East African Railways and Harbours, and satisfactory progress has been made, and because all the points have been fully satisfied, I have no intention of moving this Motion.

(Motion by leave of House withdrawn)

MOTION

REMOVAL OF RESTRICTIONS OF MOVEMENT: NORTH-EASTERN PROVINCE

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, before I move the Motion, I would like to request to be allowed to make an amendment to it. The amendment should read as follows:—

That this House urges the Government to take the necessary steps to remove restrictions which curtail the movement of both human beings and animals within any of the districts in the North-Eastern Province, so as to enable the Somali nomads to move freely in search of water and pasture.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, Standing Orders provide that an hon. Member may change the form of his Motion at the time of moving it. If Mr. Speaker thinks that it is similar in substance and there is no hurt done to anyone, I see no harm in the alteration Mr. Khalif proposes, so he may move his Motion in the terms which he has now stated, instead of the wording on the Order Paper.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Motion is a short one, and it simply requests the removal of grazing boundaries in the districts of the North-Eastern Province. Members should not misunderstand the meaning of the Motion. It does not request the removal of the regional boundaries, it does not request the removal of district boundaries, neither does it ask for the Somalis to move southwards from their region into other regions. It only requests that the grazing boundaries which exist in any given district in the North-Eastern Region should be removed.

This, Mr. Speaker, is very essential. I fail to understand how grazing boundaries should divide the Somalis who are a nomadic tribe and thus make it hard for a section of a tribe to move from area to another.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Sorry to interrupt, Mr. Khalif, but in the absence of the Deputy Speaker, I have to ask permission of the House for Mr. Waridhi to take my Chair for a short time. Can I please have that permission?

Thank you. Will you continue, Mr. Khalif.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, these boundaries were created by colonialists in pursuit of their own policy of divide and rule. I fail to understand why these grazing boundaries should exist now when Kenya is independent. These boundaries were in existence as far back as 1912. They were

Mr. Khalif: However, Sir, I would like to say that before we in Kenya, or the Government of Kenya, approach the Somalia Government for an amicable solution of this issue, it may be wise for the Kenya Government to try and settle this thing internally first of all.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that to start with, the Kenya Government should change its attitude towards the law-abiding Somalis in the North-Eastern Province. If an amicable solution is to be reached, it should be achieved, this Government should surely change its present hostile attitude towards the inhabitants of the North-Eastern Province. So many times we have heard this Government urging the inhabitants of the North-Eastern Province to be loyal, co-operative and report any unusual incidents which could lead to the security forces capturing the Shifita. However, Mr. Speaker, we cannot have this thing one way; if the Somalis in the North-Eastern Province are to co-operate with the Kenya Government, the Kenya Government surely should be prepared to change its hostile attitude towards our people.

It should co-operate with our people; it should, for instance, treat our people as any other tribe. We should not be treated as second-rate citizens and then be expected to co-operate with the Government. We will not co-operate with any Government which is prepared to treat the Somalis in the North-Eastern Province as second-class citizens. The fact, Sir, that there is a handful of our people among the Shifita in the North-Eastern Region does not necessarily render the Somalis in the province second-class citizens.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not see how the Somalia Government and the Kenya Government could come to an amicable solution when the people in the North-Eastern Province are themselves discontented with this Government. They are. There are indications today that my people in the North-Eastern Province are very much discontented with this Government because this Government has shown a hostile attitude towards our people. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, although I quite agree with this Motion, my advice is that an amicable solution which would stand, cannot be reached, unless this Government changes its tactics, its attitude, and treats the Somalis in the North-Eastern Region just like any other tribe in Kenya and stops treating us as second-class citizens.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Motion.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I must apologize to Mr. Khalif; my arithmetic has not been very good, and I have miscalculated the time for the hon. Member to reply by ten minutes. However, it is quite fortunate because the Minister who intended to reply on behalf of the Government had not realized that there was a shortage of time; and there are therefore now ten minutes available for him.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Thank you, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

Although really this Motion belongs to External Affairs, on behalf of the Ministry of External Affairs, I am replying for Government.

Sir, if you look at this Motion, the beginning of it is well worded until you come to the very last line: "... an amicable settlement of the North-Eastern Region disputes". I think we should make it very clear, Sir, and the Somalia Government should bear and know that the Kenya Government is not about to sit-down with the Somalia Government to talk about the North-Eastern Region. The North-Eastern Region is a part of Kenya and there is no time today or tomorrow when our Government is going to approach Somalia to talk on the North-Eastern Province disputes. There is no dispute as far as the Kenya Government is concerned. Every inch of the North-Eastern Region is a part of Kenya and not a part of Somalia and there is no negotiation on that basis. We mean to maintain all parts of Kenya as parts of Kenya, and a very good example was given here, that we have very many nationalities living here. If we give one inch to Somalia, that we are going to negotiate over the North-Eastern Region, then because there are many Indians living in Pangani we will have to negotiate with Pangani with India before they claim it back. Then we will find ourselves negotiating with Muthaiga with the United Kingdom because many Europeans live there. Will these negotiations ever stop?

So when I say that we are not going to approach them on this, I mean it and we have the full support of all the peoples of Kenya. I find that the Somalis who live in the North-Eastern Region—I have been there several times—support this Government fully on this question.

They have told me themselves, and they have told me publically and repeatedly, that the North-Eastern Region is an integral part of Kenya and they will never let it go to Somalia. They, themselves, have told me that. Therefore, when I say that we are going to use Kenya's might, the Army, the Police, and now we are building up an Air Force and a Navy, to defend this area from invaders or any nonsense, we are going to do so with the support of all people of Kenya plus the Somalis in the North-Eastern Region. I must say that our gallant men in this area have done extremely well. The conditions have been and we are moving out of colonialism and there are all kinds of tricks that were going on over there, but since these gallant men of Kenya took over they have been doing extremely well and I am sure the hon. Members from the North-Eastern Region will agree with me, that we have beaten the stuffing out of the Shifita. May I also emphasize that if Somalia wanted peaceful co-existence with Kenya, we are prepared. Indeed, during the African Summit Conference in Cairo in July 1964, the Kenya delegation approached the Somalia delegation to start talking about peaceful co-existence and development, but not negotiating the North-Eastern Region, and even at that time the Somalia Government did not respond properly and did not co-operate, and then they were having difficulties at home with their Government and therefore they went home without giving any kind of an answer. Therefore I should let them know, if Somalia troops were to cross the border to Kenya then they would be returned with all the might we have and drive them all the way back across to Mogadishu and beyond.

We, in Kenya, believe in peace and we are going to emphasize peaceful co-existence of all African States, and indeed, brotherhood. But we do would urge the Somali Government to recognize that although we are being peaceful it is because we want to promote development in Kenya and in the other territories, not because we do not have the men or the arms to deal with Somalia in a very definite way. I would like to assure hon. Members who were talking about ammunition and arms in Kenya, we have plenty to be able to handle Somalia any day, and we have men, and jet pilots, and we are quite ready any day to handle them.

Let me say, Sir, that the solution is not only talking. I say that we believe in peace and we are going to emphasize peace, and we are going to emphasize development in the area for the Somalis. I therefore would say, as far as this is concerned, that the everlasting peaceful solution for these areas is not our having troops in the area, or even in our accumulating ammunition in Kenya so that we can use it, but we have a strong army. These are only temporary measures that we should be ready to use any day, but I would like to emphasize that the Kenya Government would like to have the North-Eastern Region area developed. We would like to build many schools over there, so that these places that have lacked education in the past, and schools, may have a chance of development as much as the other provinces. These people are pastoral and nomadic; they keep cattle and they need water and we have to remember that we have to do better in the North-Eastern Region for the population over there than the Somalia Government does for the people who are across the border in Somalia, so that in comparison those people who live in Somalia would prefer to come and live in Kenya, and become Kenya citizens instead of Somalia making a lot of noise.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Government has embarked on the development programme for the North-Eastern Region where in a place like Garissa we have built a very modern hospital, that is even solar-heated and there are very few in Somalia like this. This is the only one we have started, and we are going to continue to build them in Mandera so that even the people of the Republic of Somalia can cross over to get the benefit of treatment from our good doctors and our hospitals that we are going to develop in the area. These people must feel that they are no longer neglected as they were during the Colonial Government time and that this Government means business to develop the area and to have them treated, not with any kind of discrimination but as first-class citizens of Kenya in every respect. Here I would say that the hon. Members for that area are doing extremely well. Sometimes I have been with them and they have explained to the people the aims of this Government. They have made it clear to them that they have been fed with propaganda from the Republic of Somalia and there are some seeds of hatred that have been created between the people there and the Government; but now the attitude has changed so much that in fact when you go over there they all come out with flags and receive you very well and they want to take you home and you feel that you are quite at home in the North-Eastern Region just as much as I do in the North-Eastern Province. This is a credit to the hon. Members who are in this House from the area and also to the Members of the Regional Assembly who have decided fully to co-operate with the Kenya Government. There are others, though, who still, because of, maybe, personal gains that they get, either in terms of funds or because they are ordinary common-born criminals, are trying to lead gangsters over there now, without real support from the people, and this has been shown because the local people have joined with the police force as Tribal Police and they fight, by side, and they give the proper information as to where these Shifita are to be found. So because of this we are meeting with a lot so success that before we could say this is good, as I said before, we are getting very good co-operation from the leaders of the area in trying to do

[Mr. Ogle.] Indeed. The cruel act of killing and brutality which has been continuous in the North-Eastern Region, must be stopped. We all share that view I think. On the other hand, we cannot reduce this cruelty on a military idea only.

The only other way that we could deal with the matter is by this Motion that was put forward by the hon. Member for Kororoi.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may say so, the Somalia Government, especially the present one, has been very helpful as far as it is concerned, and to prove my allegation, recently we had two chiefs who were abducted and taken across the border to Somalia. These two chiefs were brought back, and this was the final co-operation which was shown by the Somalia Government. On the other hand, the propaganda which existed, or which was directed from Radio Mogadishu to the local inhabitants of the North-Eastern Region was stopped, and that was the clear final co-operation. Now, the only thing I could tell hon. Members of this House is to refrain from cheap criticism of the Somali Government which might provoke them. We could do very little, in fact, without the co-operation of the Somalia Government, and as a Member of the North-Eastern Region, I know much, and if the Somalia Government still continues, or they direct their propaganda from Radio Mogadishu to the people in the North-Eastern Region, we shall have the same problem that we had. There is no point in asking the hon. Members of the North-Eastern Region to co-operate as hon. Members said just now, because what we have done could eradicate this, and I do not think any Member could suggest that we are not doing our best. On the other hand, I could not say that because the Somali Government is showing an unfriendly attitude, we should sit back and forget what we are doing here in Kenya.

Under Article 6 of the Somali Constitution, it is clearly laid down, Mr. Speaker, that the N.E.D. belongs to them, and because of that, that is why I say that our Government should not just sit back and forget that we have to defend our territory in the North-Eastern Region and the Northern Frontier District.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I would like to confine myself to is just to supporting the Motion as it stands, because it will give us something, even in the case of the Somali Government being reluctant to negotiate. Another hon. Member just stood here and said that the Somali Government was ignorant, stupid or primitive, or something of that kind, but I think, Mr. Speaker, there is a Standing Order which prohibits that hon. Members should say anything of that kind to a friendly country, so could we know the reason why it was allowed to continue in that way?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are quite right, Mr. Ogle, it is in Standing Orders, but "friendly relations" depends on the attitude of our Government. We have been told that we have ceased to have friendly relations with Somalia. About a year ago, or a little longer, the President, who was then the Prime Minister, told us in this House specifically, that our relations with Somalia were no longer friendly. So that Standing Order does not apply.

Mr. Ogle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, on the other hand, what the hon. Member said was that the Somali Government was primitive. This will go to the Somali Government, this is going to be reported in the Press, and so on, and I think we must be reasonable when we are speaking in the House.

However, I will conclude my speech here by supporting the Motion as it stands.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have just a few points to make on this Motion. One of them is that the hon. Member from the North-Eastern Region, or Province, is a true representative of the Somalia Government in Kenya, unfortunately within the Parliament of Kenya. It is true that he has enlightened the House that Article 6 of the Somalia Constitution says that the North-Eastern Province is a part of Somalia, and I thought he was going to tell us that he, himself, does not believe in that, and we should regard the Somalia Republic as an alien Republic—

Mr. Ogle: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think the hon. Member, Mr. Gichoya, is making a serious allegation against me. I said that I do not believe in Article 6, although it is laid down in the Constitution of the Somalia Republic, and I do not see the reason why he should charge me.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I said is that as long as the Member does feel that the words which have been spoken previously on the Somalia's public conditions that is, that the Government of Somalia is a Government which is led by people who do not understand what they are doing—I think the Member did put before the House that it was wrong to use such terms towards a friendly nation, or a country which we are trying to prove is unfriendly, by quoting the incidents that Mogadishu Radio does not broadcast what it did before, shows exactly that he really sympathizes with the Somalia Government as a representative of Kenya.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your guidance on this. I wonder [Mr. Khalif:] whether the hon. Member is in order to allege that the hon. Ogle sympathizes with the Somali Government?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He is not justified in saying that. He must withdraw it.

Mr. Gichoya: I withdraw that, Mr. Speaker.

What we know of the Somalia Government from quite a number of years back is that it is a Government of expansionists. The Somali people, or the Somalia Republic believes in Greater Somalia, and this Greater Somalia will be created by getting portions of Kenya and Ethiopia and merging them with existing Small Somalia, to form Greater Somalia. Either the Kenya Government, accepts like fools, that their own territory must be cut off from Kenya and be made part and parcel of a foreign country, or—

That is the principle which governs the existing Government of Somalia, and the previous Government of Somalia, that they must create a Greater Somalia. One thing must be certain, Sir, that in Kenya we have so many communities. We have European communities, and they do not say that "we, as Europeans, must have an area, or a portion of the country, and make it a part of the particular country that we belong to". The same thing applies with Asians. We have many Asians, Pakistani by origin, but they cannot claim that they must have an Indian place or a national place, because they cannot be joined together. We have to accept to live together, and the Somalia Government must accept, as well as those Somalis who were in Kenya must accept, that they are part and parcel of Kenya, and there is no question of saying that they must have certain parts. I will use the President's words, when he was Prime Minister, that if the Somalis want to go to Somalia, they can easily do it by packing up their cattle, and going there.

But the soil of Kenya will remain inch for inch as it has been from time immemorial. We have now got a case, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that if we are expansionists we ought even to have claimed Jubaland which was part of our own country in the past, but because we believe in a good relationship with our neighbours we say, "All right, Somalia can retain that part, it doesn't matter, but let others remain as they are and develop." We aim at development and not just mere bickering and thence. What I suggest to the Government of Kenya is this: that the Minister for Defence must make an effort to conclude a treaty with one of the big powers—I do not care whether it is America or Russia—so that we get enough equipment for our armed forces and we fight the Somalis, teach them a lesson, tell them we are not children and we can teach them, if they are primitive, how to live like good neighbours. If we are weak first, definitely the Somalis will always have the excuse of trying to keep us busy dealing with the Shifita. What are the Shifita? It has been proved that they are organized, trained and manned from Somalia. If that Government says we are dealing with petty raiders, this is wrong. The Government of Kenya must come here and make it clear that we are at war, total war, with Somalia, and from then on we shall give the Government adequate finance and personnel to fight a war, not just mere guerrilla warfare.

We cannot tolerate this; it is just frustrating the plans we have for implementing African socialism. African socialism, Mr. Speaker, Sir, has to be implemented and the money that is being wasted today just because we fear, fear, fear the Shifita must be used to crush the Somalia Government, if that is necessary, if they do not stop raiding our own area.

Mr. Speaker, Article 6 of the Somalia Constitution, which has been mentioned, has been made by selfish people. Ours is clear, it is understood. What we should do today is to declare that Somalia has already accepted to fight us and we should be prepared to fight them. The Minister for Internal Security and Defence, unless he tells me now that he is prepared to go and contract an arrangement with one of these powers so we have enough equipment, I will say he must resign and then we can have a better Minister to deal with the defence of this country. It is wrong that our people are being killed here and there, as if we were children, as if we were women. The Minister must accept that Kenya is a country of brave men and women and that we cannot tolerate this cheating sort of thing that makes us feel that we are inferior to the Somali people.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I disagree with this Motion and say it must be modified to force the Government to contract a treaty with a big power so that we fight a total war with Somalia.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support this Motion but also present a few ideas. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I quite agree with the idea of approaching the Somalia Government in an effort to try to get an amicable settlement of the North-Eastern Province problem. However, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry to interrupt you, Mr. Khalif, but I must warn you, you have only five minutes before I must call on the Mover to reply.

[The Assistant Minister, President's Office] House is aware, the Republic of Somalia is known by this House and the people of the country as an unfriendly country. I know, Mr. Speaker, we are not at war with Somalia; we are not in what one would call a state of armed conflict, but we are, in no doubt, in a state of confrontation with the Republic of Somalia, and this comes over on the question of the North-Eastern Region.

The Republic of Somalia is casting its covetous eye on the territory of the Republic of Kenya in this particular part, being the North-Eastern Region. The Government of Somalia is aiding, abetting and harbouring the Shifita in many ways. The Government of Somalia knows exactly what it wants. It has deliberately tried to undermine the authority of the Government of the Republic of Kenya in the North-Eastern Region, and believes that this situation will continue so long as what it believes to be one of their five stars is still held by the Republic of Kenya. We in Kenya believe that we do not own one of the five stars of Somalia and the Government is not prepared to concede one inch of the territory of Kenya to the Somalia Republic or, for that matter, any other foreign power.

The Kenya Government believes in maintaining the integrity and sovereignty of the Republic of Kenya by excluding all external influences which are destructive or subversive, whether these influences emanate from Somalia or from any other foreign power. For this reason, Mr. Speaker, it would be very unfair for the Government of Kenya to initiate discussions around the table with a Government of a foreign State which with we are already in major disagreement and which seeks to deprive the Republic of Kenya of what it believes to be its own. It is the duty of the Government of Kenya to protect the interests of all citizens of this country; it is the duty of the Government of Kenya to exclude any undesirable elements from the territory of Kenya. That is why I say, Mr. Speaker, that it is very unfortunate that this Motion has come in at this particular time. We were anxious before that the question of the North-Eastern Region should be discussed in a very friendly way with Somalia, to stabilize and normalize the situation at the inter-territorial boundaries of Kenya and Somalia, but the Somalia Government deliberately, after sending their delegates to Nairobi and after our delegates from Nairobi going to Mogadishu, and after having discussed this particular matter, trying to normalize the situation at the border, put up propaganda machinery from Mogadishu which was intended to incite the loyal and law-abiding citizens of Kenya. Not only did they put up this propaganda machinery, but the House and the Government are aware that most of the ammunition and arms which are used by the Shifita come from the Republic of Somalia. Most of the Shifita who operate their activities in the North-Eastern Region do so and then dash to be harboured by the Government of the Republic of Somalia. It is because of these factors, Mr. Speaker, we are really in a state where perhaps some of us, as some hon. Members have stated, feel we should be in a state of war rather than in a state of confrontation with Somalia rather indirectly.

I am quite sure that some hon. Members would have taken stronger measures, more so than the measures which are now being taken and confined only to the North-Eastern Region. I am quite sure that there are certain hon. Members in this House who would encourage the Government to go to the extent of declaring physical hostility towards the Government of Somalia. Because the Government of Kenya intends to confine itself to all the rules and principles of the international comity, we are therefore confining our activities to the sole purpose of eliminating the whole of the North-Eastern Region from the Shifita menace. This is not the policy of appeasement as has been referred to by the hon. Member for Karachuonyo. The hon. Member for Karachuonyo is less militant than the hon. Member for Nyaribari.

For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I believe that the hon. Members will concur with the views expressed by the hon. Member for Homa Bay to object to this Motion in full. We have been trying to look into the old Motion to see if it would be possible to amend it in any other form so as to accommodate the views which have been expressed by the hon. Member for Korossi. But as things stand now and our relationship with the Government of Somalia as it is, we believe it is the duty of the Kenya Government to uphold the integrity, independence and sovereignty of the Republic of Kenya by keeping the hands of Somalia off the North-Eastern Region.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipiti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I agree with the views expressed by the Member for Homa Bay, I still maintain that the intention of the Motion, as moved by the hon. Member, is not very bad. The Member for that area, at weekends, when he goes to his place, finds that cattle have been taken away from his people, and that his people have been killed. It is a very serious situation, Sir. The intention of the Motion is, because the members of his constituency are always complaining to him about what steps the Government has taken towards quelling the Shifita activities in that place, quite clear. But for the information of the Member, the Kenya Government has tried its level best to negotiate in talks with the Somalia Government. They come here to Nairobi and the Kenya Government at the same time sends representatives to Mogadishu, but the Somalia Government has no intention of coming together. Therefore, all it remains for Kenya to do today is to defend herself.

Mr. Speaker, I think the Kenya Government is doing all it can to see that enough security forces are sent to the North-Eastern Region to defend the citizens there. Sir, if the Member for Korossi thinks, as I am thinking, that the security forces are inadequate, it is high time that the Kenya Government saw fit to employ home guards, those Samburu Moran who consider themselves the best people in the world, the best Moran. The Turkana who are there also consider themselves to be the best men. They should all be employed by the Kenya Government and be made home guards so that at night when the Shifita come, they are already on the spot. People can look after their property, Sir.

These people in the North-Eastern Region, the Samburu people, the Turkana people and the rest of them can do a lot. I think they can help out by working free to defend their people. If the Kenya Government can just give them help by giving them weapons to defend themselves, and they have people in charge who are responsible, so that they will not kill each other as they used to do, that is the only way the Kenya Government can increase the security forces in that area. It is very important that the Kenya Government reconsiders employing home guards to defend the people of the area. This is very important. During the Emergency, we learned that home guards did a lot to defend the people on the spot and I see no reason why, at this time when there is an African Government, we should not employ home guards for the defence of our own people at night.

I believe that we might have enough security forces there, but there are places where there are not. The people in that area are always asking to defend their own people, but they must be given facilities. So, I suggest this. While I appreciate that the Kenya Government has done all it can to defend Kenya soil and Kenya citizens, I still insist that we should introduce and employ home guards and give them weapons to defend themselves.

Another point which was raised by the Member for Homa Bay, is that we have Members from the Somali community and members from the North-Eastern Region in this House and in the Senate as well. Another way we can convince our people in the North-Eastern Region not to act in the way they are acting now is to hold public meetings and these Members from the North-Eastern Region should invite Members from this House to go and talk to the public to see how we convince them. Then they will get away from the idea of killing each other. Mr. Speaker, this is very important. I ask the Members from that area to convene meetings, and Members from this House should go there and show these people that they are only being cheated.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I see no point in saying that the colonialist methods of drawing up arbitrary boundary lines to disunite Africa. I know that to a certain extent there is a mistake there. Before the colonialists came to this country, we were already separated. The Massi were sitting alone, the Kikuyu were sitting alone. The other tribes were sitting alone. The question of the Somalis claiming that the territory belongs to them does not arise at all. We Masai have half of three-quarters of our tribe in Tanganyika. The Masai have never come forward and claimed that we want that soil because it is ours. Whether it is in Tanzania or whether it is in Kenya, it is still African land. So they are ignorant, Mr. Speaker. It is really surprising. Therefore, I urge that the Members from that area should try to arrange meetings and we will all go there to try to educate our people so that they get rid of the idea of thinking about Somalia like that. There is no difference. We are all Africans, we are longing to rule Africa and to unite Africa. There is no question of Somali, Masai, or the rest. We are all Africans, we are all black men.

Mr. Speaker, that goal can be achieved only if we educate the masses. I urge the Members and I ask them not merely to oppose the Motion because it makes sense. It should be put in a way that the Kenya Government should increase the security forces and try to educate the masses of that particular area.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks, I beg to support the sense of the Motion.

Mr. Ogle: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support this Motion as it stands, since it is talking of settlement of the North-Eastern Region, which is something which we all would like very much

[Mr. Kase]
North-Eastern Region to be ceded away, but we would like our Government to find out whether they can reopen diplomatic relations. If they cannot, Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is the resolution from the Organization for African Unity. I wonder whether our Government could persuade the Organization for African Unity to ask Somalia to abide by the resolution, and if they cannot, then take them out of the Organization for African Unity, because we are placed in a position in which we are helpless. If Somalia is ready to recognize the resolution of the Organization for African Unity passed in Cairo, then they should be able to settle this trouble.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, which I would like to say is that, our Government seems to be a bit slow, or weak. It should, I think, at this stage, take more serious steps with the Somalia Government, because it is clearly known that the Somalia Government is helping these Shifita. You know, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that somebody is trying to offend you through somebody else. This somebody else is not as strong as yourself. Why do you not deal directly with that person? Deal with that person more effectively, rather than deal with his rebels. If our Government is afraid of the Somalia Government, then let them tell us, so that we know. This looks to me to be the thing. We know that the Shifita are being helped by the Somalia Government. What has the Kenya Government done to the Somalia Government? It shows a sign of cowardice, and I think our Government should not show that sign at all.

We believe, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the steps to solve this problem are not being taken effectively because some Ministers do not come from these troubled areas. I believe also that if these Shifita come and hit Nairobi or Muraंगा where there is a Minister or Kiambu where there are Ministers, this problem will receive more attention, but the Somalis do not have a Minister. The Pokomo people down there do not have a Minister, the Boran also do not have a Minister, so the whole thing will be left in that position. As I said in the first instance, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Motion is very straightforward: All we want to know is what is the Kenya Government trying to do now? Has it tried, during the last nine months, to open diplomatic relations with Somalia and failed? Is it afraid of the Somalia Government? If it is, as another Member says, then why do we not deal with the Somalis?

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that this Government should find a proper solution, instead of saying we harass the Shifita. I happen to have lived with Somalis from the time I was born up to now, and am still living with them. They can pretend to be as loyal as possible, but they are never loyal.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We do not allow general allegations, against any particular race or tribe, of that kind.

Mr. Kase: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I meant to say some of them.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is all right.

Mr. Kase: It must be realized, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that some of the Somalis can pretend here that they are good, but tomorrow they can easily cross the border and come back. We know, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that some Somalis leave Lamu, go to Mogadishu and come back. They go in Arab dhows.

Now, if our Government does not take this problem seriously then how will you find a solution to this one? This man can travel from Lamu to Mogadishu, trade with the Somalis in Mogadishu and then come back to Lamu very safely.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we allow this sort of system, we trade with the Somalia Government and yet they beat our people in Kenya and we do not do anything to them, do we really like our citizens in Kenya? We are interested in the trade aspect, but not in their lives. I think this is a most serious thing and that this Government should do something immediately. We want to be told clearly that the Government is defeated, and, for that matter, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if they cannot deal with the Somalia Government, I think that the only solution is not to persist but to give that land away, because we cannot afford to lose our lives while our Government sits down and looks at our lives being destroyed.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to second the Motion.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to oppose the Motion and to ask the Government to oppose it as well.

I am behind the Government in opposing the Motion, Mr. Speaker, Sir, because the Kenya Government has stated from time to time, and by the President himself, during the time he was still Prime Minister, and even up to now, that the door is open for any negotiations that may take place for the peaceful settlement of this North-Eastern Region.

In opposing the Motion, I do not mean to ask the Government to do nothing about it, but I do

[Mr. Ngala-Abok]
I do not think it would be a good idea for our Government to try to cheapen itself by approaching a man to try to convince the opponent that he should not misbehave. We know now that we have the right people; the right people are the Members from that area. They have to talk to their people; they are elected, their people have confidence in them and I think the Kenya Government now feels too comfortable because it has the Members from that area. If the Somalia Government is a Government with brains—and I believe it is Government with no brains; there are no brainy people—it can learn that the Shifita activities do nothing to the Kenya Government. I would like to give credit to our President who was lenient with the situation and who took most humane steps to try and convince our people to join us in this Parliament and to convince the people engaging in Shifita activities that the action they were taking was abortive and the Kenya Government was not going to settle down until the situation was brought to normality. In fact, this has been a big success.

The Motion, as it reads, does not really say anything new at all, because it is asking the Government as soon as possible to approach the Somalia Government, to seek an amicable solution of the North-Eastern Region dispute. Will the Minister for Defence of this country write a letter to the Minister for Defence of Somalia saying, "My Parliament has asked me to approach you, let us sit and amicably solve the problem"? This situation can never be accepted by this House. I am sure my colleagues will agree with me that the Somalia Government has learned a sufficient lesson, that the Kenya Government stands on its feet and we remain the Government of this country, but at the same time we know that the Somalia Government will one day learn the benefits of unity and I am sure they will join us in the East African Federation, or any other federation. The Somalia Government is a member of the Organization for African Unity and the Kenya Government is also a member, and I am sure we are waiting for a solution, but we must not fight as women, we must fight as men. We must refrain from striking each other and, in this case, we must now settle down. We must sit and talk together.

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Kenya Government should reject this Motion and ask the Somalia Government to behave.

What I would like to ask the Minister for Internal Security and Defence to consider very seriously is to be as ruthless as possible with any person that may be found to be promoting the activities that have caused a lot of loss lives.

This is the only position we can take and we can always be prepared to answer back should we be attacked. We would like the Minister, of course, in presenting his case, to explain what he has done to the people who go to trade in Mogadishu and come back safely to this country. We can only ask the Government to strengthen its forces, to strengthen its activities and to deal less severely with any person who may be encouraging the Shifita activities. We would also like to ask the Members for that area to step up their propaganda machinery for convincing their own people who are encouraging these criminal acts to stop doing it. We know through the Members from that area that will succeed more than anything else.

Personally, I do not believe in fighting. If a man loses his life, probably you will make a mistake. It is better to get the right person to go through and to convince the opponent that he should not misbehave. We know now that we have the right people; the right people are the Members from that area. They have to talk to their people; they are elected, their people have confidence in them and I think the Kenya Government now feels too comfortable because it has the Members from that area. If the Somalia Government is a Government with brains—and I believe it is Government with no brains; there are no brainy people—it can learn that the Shifita activities do nothing to the Kenya Government. I would like to give credit to our President who was lenient with the situation and who took most humane steps to try and convince our people to join us in this Parliament and to convince the people engaging in Shifita activities that the action they were taking was abortive and the Kenya Government was not going to settle down until the situation was brought to normality. In fact, this has been a big success.

The Motion, as it reads, does not really say anything new at all, because it is asking the Government as soon as possible to approach the Somalia Government, to seek an amicable solution of the North-Eastern Region dispute. Will the Minister for Defence of this country write a letter to the Minister for Defence of Somalia saying, "My Parliament has asked me to approach you, let us sit and amicably solve the problem"? This situation can never be accepted by this House. I am sure my colleagues will agree with me that the Somalia Government has learned a sufficient lesson, that the Kenya Government stands on its feet and we remain the Government of this country, but at the same time we know that the Somalia Government will one day learn the benefits of unity and I am sure they will join us in the East African Federation, or any other federation. The Somalia Government is a member of the Organization for African Unity and the Kenya Government is also a member, and I am sure we are waiting for a solution, but we must not fight as women, we must fight as men. We must refrain from striking each other and, in this case, we must now settle down. We must sit and talk together.

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Kenya Government should reject this Motion and ask the Somalia Government to behave.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyanweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Motion, much as I respect the feelings of the hon. Member, I think, is extremely untimely because, as the the Minister shall answer. It is, however, rather peculiar for him to say that he is answering on behalf of another Minister who is here.

Mr. Achleng-Oneko: Mr. Speaker, it is one of those joint responsibilities that we have. The answer is none, Sir.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the reply by the Minister, does he not agree with me that the names of the staff are of people more or less of the same family, looking at the names being as they are?

Mr. Achleng-Oneko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is very difficult to judge these things, because we know that there are certain people who have the same name but who do not come from the same family or the same clan.

Question No. 973

DISCOURAGEMENT OF LAND CONSOLIDATION
BY COURT ELDERS

Mr. Odera-Sar asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement whether the Government was aware that the work of the Land Consolidation Committee in Ugenya was being discouraged by the African Court Elders in Ukwala.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government is aware that there has been some misunderstanding between the African Courts and the Land Adjudication Committees over the question of hearing land cases in an adjudication area in accordance with the Land Adjudication Act. I presume that this is the difficulty to which the hon. Member is referring. The African Courts Officer has been consulted on this problem and the Provincial Commissioner, Nyanza, informed also. A directive is being sent out which will clarify the position so that all sides are fully aware of their position and responsibilities in Land Consolidation Work.

The Ministry has also written to the Attorney-General asking him to request the African Courts to co-operate in this exercise in order to speed up the work of land consolidation in the district, including Ukwala.

Question No. 1009

ESTABLISHMENT OF HARAMBEE FARMS

Mr. Bata, on behalf of Mr. Nyalick, asked the Minister for Labour and Social Services what steps the Ministry was taking to establish Harambee farms in various provinces for the National Youth Service.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odera-Jowi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The following steps are being taken. Firstly, a Harambee farm in the Nyandarua District of the Central Province has been taken over and is in operation by the National Youth Service. Negotiations are in hand for the acquisition of farms in the Western and Eastern Provinces, and it is expected that these will be concluded in the near future.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, when does he anticipate buying up these farms in Nyanza Province for the National Harambee Youth Service?

Mr. Odera-Jowi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I cannot give any date.

Mr. Nyala-Abeok: Mr. Speaker, will the Assistant Minister confirm that it was announced by the President himself that there was a farm already negotiated and taken over at Sotik in Nyanza Province, the Sotik area?

Mr. Odera-Jowi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I cannot confirm that.

Question No. 1011

EXPULSION OF KISII STUDENTS FROM KABIANGA

Mr. Makene asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House why the training of three Kisii students at Kabanga Teacher Training College had been discontinued after only one year's stay there.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Three Kisii students were asked to leave their courses at Kericho teachers' College at the end of their first year in December 1964. Two of them are men and one a woman. They all did so badly in the terminal examination, failing seven, ten and eight subjects, respectively, out of eleven, that there would have been no prospect at all of them passing their final examination at the end of 1965. In addition, the woman student was expectant.

MOTION

SOMALIA AND NORTH-EASTERN REGION
DISPUTE

THAT in view of Somalia's disrespect for the resolution adopted in O.A.U. Conference at Cairo on frontiers existing on independence, and in view of the continuity of the state of affairs in the North-Eastern Region of Kenya, this House urges the Kenya Government to seek, as soon as possible with the Somalia Government, an amicable settlement of the North-Eastern Region dispute.

19. Motion—

(Resumption of consideration of Motion interrupted on 5th November 1964)

(The Speaker: Mr. Rurumban on 5th November 1964)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would like to remind hon. Members that this debate is limited to an hour and a half, and it has already run thirteen minutes. Mr. Rurumban moving. He himself has seven minutes left.

Mr. Rurumban: Mr. Speaker, Sir, before I speak on this Motion, I would like to inform you of a little change which has occurred with regard to the Seconder of this Motion. Instead of Mr. Tigiti, Mr. Kase will now second this Motion.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, four months have elapsed since I moved this Motion and I am sure that this House may have forgotten some of the points which I raised on that day, or what motivated me to bring up this Motion. Sir, without wasting time I would like to reiterate on one point which I made when I moved this Motion. Sir, at that time I told the Government, or rather warned the Government, about the spreading activities of the Shifia in the country. Since then, much damage has been caused by the Shifia. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the northern districts, like Samburu, Meru and Golele, regularly suffered at the hands of these Shifia, both in terms of livestock and human beings, not to mention loss of money and land. Mr. Speaker, if the North-Eastern Region affair is going to continue, as I believe it is going to be a long-term affair, and so long as the Somalia Government backs up the North-Eastern Region Somalia, and so long as the Kenya Government puts off the solution of this affair, Mr. Speaker, the North-Eastern Region Somalis will not give up the struggle that they are now carrying out. Sir, I would like the Kenya Government to exert whatever influence it possesses with the Somali Government in order to get a settlement of the North-Eastern Region problem and also to make the Somali Government appreciate that the present problems we have in the country are the direct result of the imperialists which they manipulated in order to divide us nationally. Obviously, Mr. Speaker, during the colonial regime the Somalis in the North-Eastern Region did not struggle against the imperialist rule.

Sir, if the Kenya Government is fully committed to the principles of the Organization for African Unity, it should consider seriously convening meetings with the Somali Government in order to find a solution as it does now with the Congo problem. I think the Kenya Government should do more about trying to find a solution to the North-Eastern problem, which is more of a domestic problem, than it should do with the Congo. It is my feeling that the Kenya Government should rush the solution to the problems which are causing unrest in the North-Eastern Region. If not it will continue for a long time, perhaps for years, as is the case with the Somali-Ethiopian border dispute. Sir, the Kenya Government and the Somali Government should not betray their freedom. They should try to overcome the destructive forces which were set against them by the imperialists when they left this country and Government should try to forge ahead to achieve African unity.

Lastly, for the good of the Organization for African Unity and for the sake of humanity, I appeal to our President and the President of Somalia to convene, immediately, a meeting in order to solve the problems because, Mr. Speaker, since the start of this trouble we have lost very many human beings, we have lost much property and loyal citizens of this country. Now, is the Government prepared to—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is the end of your time, I am afraid, Mr. Rurumban. Just finish off your sentence.

Mr. Rurumban: Lastly, Mr. Speaker, for the unity and tranquillity of the Kenya nation, I would appeal to our Government to convene, as soon as possible, a meeting in order to solve the Northern Frontier District problem. With these remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

Mr. Kase: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Motion is very straightforward, and I do not think there is need for any argument. It was made quite clear in the first instance that diplomatic relations with Somalia had broken down. We would like to know, because we in this House understand it was back in 1963 when the Kenya Government tried negotiations with Somalia, but I think within the last seven or eight months we have had no news of any attempt by our Government to carry out the negotiations with the Somalia Government. We would like to know whether the Government feels that it is unable to find any solution or whether it cannot make any more negotiations.

I must say this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that some of us have suffered greatly from this problem, and I would not say that our security forces are not doing good; they are doing very well, in my opinion, but as long as this continues, then our people will continue to suffer. We would like this Government to find out whether the Somali Government is now ready to open diplomatic relations, so that we can find a simple solution. They already know that we cannot allow the

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister not aware that the examinations which pupils do once a year for promotion to the next class are quite rigid, and that some of the pupils who would go through due to the good work in class generally do not succeed?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, during the colonial times there was what was known as an entrance examination so as to enable the junior grade pupils to be moved up to the upper primary, but at the moment there are no such examinations. As soon as the teacher is satisfied that the child has completed a class, then he is promoted, so there have been some monthly and terminal examinations, but at the moment we have a system of pushing children to upper classes.

Mr. Mallinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, does the Assistant Minister not consider it more equitable for pupils who are in intermediate schools to be accorded the same procedure when going to secondary schools? Instead of K.A.P.E. the pass marks that a pupil has gained during the term time should be taken into consideration when promoting the pupil to secondary school.

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, according to the K.A.P.E. when promoting students to secondary schools, this has been the policy of the Kenya Government, and there was a law made that K.A.P.E. must be taken as a national examination. So if the Members in this House feel that K.A.P.E. examinations need not exist, then they can debate it.

Question No. 928

ADMISSION INTO FORM I WITHOUT K.P.E.

Mr. Bala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to seek your guidance. According to the original question I asked, there is some confusion in the correction made by the Clerk to the Assembly. In fact, what I wanted to know was whether early this year at least one pupil was accepted into a secondary school without having sat for K.P.E. examination. That is the information which I would like to know, whether I can be allowed to correct that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): "Whether" instead of "why"?

Mr. Bala: Yes, Sir, "Whether" instead of "why". Whether a pupil was accepted into a secondary school without having sat for K.P.E. examination.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is what the question says, I think, but it should be "whether" instead of "why".

Mr. Bala asked the Minister for Education why at least one pupil who never set for the Kenya Preliminary Examination last year had been admitted into a secondary school Form I early this year.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. A secondary school place was at one stage offered to a pupil who had not taken the preliminary examination on account of illness, but whose name appeared on the entry lists and who had been credited with the results of the candidate whose name preceded his on the list. This was one of the errors, of which hon. Members are already aware, in the tabulation of results by the computer. This mistake was discovered and corrected before either pupil was actually admitted to the school, and the place was allocated to the pupil who had taken and passed the examination.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, would he inform the House how many such students who never sat for examinations were admitted into secondary schools in Central Nyanza?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, I cannot say how many because the Ministry is not aware of such pupils.

Question No. 994

IMPROVEMENTS TO CHESOI-TOT ROAD

Mr. arap Too asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power if he would tell the House whether he had any plans for providing grants to Sirikwa County Council for improving dangerous portions of Chesoi-Tot Road along the Marakwet Escarpment.

Mr. Ngala-Ahoki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, this question seems to bear some weight, the question of some pupils having been admitted to the secondary school, and the Assistant Minister says that they have no evidence. I have more evidence to put to the Assistant Minister.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You cannot put forward evidence in the form of a question, can you?

We must move on, I have explained why, is there anyone who will reply on behalf of the Ministry, of Works, Communications and Power?

Mr. arap Too: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I can see the Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power sitting there. He is there. Can he not answer my question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Bomett, are you ready to answer Question 994? It is addressed to your Ministry.

You say that it has not come to your Ministry?

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. G. Godana): Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I reply to this question?

The Government is making no provision at present for the improvement of the Chesoi-Tot Road along the Marakwet Escarpment.

This road was not included in the priorities for road works submitted a short time ago by the Rift Valley Provincial Advisory Board and therefore cannot be considered by the Government in the selection of priorities.

Mr. arap Too: Would the Assistant Minister consider revising the list which was omitted by the former Regional Assembly?

Mr. G. Godana: Mr. Speaker, if the Member requires lists of application, I think he can get it from the Provincial Advisory Council.

Mr. Choge: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the roads in Marakwet District were not considered during the colonial time, would the Assistant Minister consider asking the Provincial Advisory Council to recommend some of the roads in these districts so they can make them up.

Mr. G. Godana: No, Sir, it is not for a Member to ask the Provincial Advisory Council to make a priority for a particular road.

Question No. 1034

TRANSFER OF KENYA'S AMBASSADOR FROM CHINA TO INDIA

Mr. Okwanyo asked the Minister for External Affairs if he would consider withdrawing our Ambassador from China, and sending him to India, since we had more business with India than China.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odiga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister for External Affairs, I beg to reply. Kenya has good and rapidly expanding relations in the economic field with both India and China. When finances permit, we shall be ready to open a diplomatic mission in India. Therefore, there is no need to withdraw our existing representation in the People's Republic of China.

Mr. Ndile: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister tell the House why China is given preference over India ambassadors?

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamwaya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member in order to refer to the Vice-President as the Minister?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is better for the Member to refer to him as the Vice-President, but he is a Minister, too, I think.

Mr. Ndile: Would the Vice-President tell the House why China was given preference when the allocation for ambassadors was given?

Mr. Odiga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think it is not the question of not giving preference to India because Kenya could only afford to give diplomatic representations to about six countries, and that is why preference was given to China, and instead of India. Any other person could also ask about any other country where we have no diplomatic representation and the same argument will apply to that. Therefore, I could not actually explain, but I think the Government, in consideration, thought it best in the way that it was arranged.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will now come back to Question 968. Is there someone here authorized to answer on behalf of the Minister?

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyok): Yes, Sir, I am.

Question No. 968

RELATED OFFICERS IN THE POLICE FORCE

Mr. Mbogoh asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence if he would tell the House what relationship existed between the following officers—

- M. S. Khan—A.S.P., Prosecution Branch;
- M. A. Khan—Chief Inspector, Prosecution Branch; and
- M. A. Khan—In Charge Traffic Prosecution Branch.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyok): On behalf of the Minister for Internal Security and Defence, I beg to reply.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it in order for the Minister to sit here and then a different Minister gets up and answers his question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, I have ruled on previous occasions that when questions are directed to a particular Ministry, it is open for Government to decide in its wisdom that some

Friday, 26th March 1965

The House met at nine o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERS

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIR

MORE QUESTIONS TO BE ON ORDER PAPER

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before calling for the first question, I have to inform hon. Members that the flow of questions is now so great that we have to put considerably more on the Order Paper every day. It is impossible for us to accumulate many questions, nor do Standing Orders allow us to do so. Questions are greatly valued by Ministers as much as by other hon. Members, although some have a greater value than others. Nevertheless, we cannot allow them to take up more than an hour of each day or more than half an hour on our short Friday sittings; which means that, as long as the present flow of questions continues, we shall simply have to move through questions more rapidly, and there may be some even where there is no time for supplementary questions at all. I would ask the hon. Members to understand that position.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 970

AID TO OLDER STUDENTS

Mr. Muruli asked the Minister for Education:

(a) What had been done to give adequate financial help to mature Kenya students with families who were taking up their studies in East African Universities and at the Kenya School of Law.

(b) How many students required such help and how much money it would cost the Government.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) The Kenya students who have gained admission to the University of East Africa through the "Mature Age Scheme" are being paid dependant allowances to the extent of 60 per cent of their salaries prior to entering the University. There are no students at the Kenya School of Law under this scheme.

(b) Twenty-two students have been admitted to the University of East Africa under this scheme. The allowances will cost the country £10,150 during the current financial year.

Mr. Muruli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that there are students at the Kenya School of Law who are mature and who have families and are in need of this help?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I have said before, we are not aware of such students in the School of Law.

Question No. 932

EMBU DISTRICT CLOSE TO BANKRUPTCY

Mr. Mbogoh asked the Minister for Local Government whether the Minister had taken any steps to stop the small district of Embu from running into bankruptcy due to disorganization in its services.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Njiriri): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It is true that at the beginning of 1964, the Embu County Council had a working balance of £34,500, but that the year 1964 produced a deficit of £25,500, which left them a balance at the beginning of January 1965 amounting to £9,000.

I would like to inform the hon. Members that the Embu County Council is not yet bankrupt. Nevertheless, if things continue as they have been doing, there is no doubt that a state of bankruptcy will soon be reached. The Government is taking steps to find out how they can correct the Graduated Personal Tax and is trying to do everything it can, because the former Regional Assemblies appear not to have done very much.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Assistant Minister tell this House what was the Graduated Personal Tax collection for Embu during 1964?

Mr. Njiriri: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I see that the Assistant Minister is replying to a question, but I cannot understand the question. The question asks whether the Minister has taken any steps to stop this small district from going bankrupt due to the disorganization of service. It is not understandable which district it is.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that the Assistant Minister understood quite clearly, and did in fact answer with reference to Embu County Council.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I asked the Minister whether he can tell this House the Graduated Personal Tax collection of Embu District in 1964?

Mr. Njiriri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not have the figure but you can get it in my office.

Question No. 953

OVERSEAS BURSARIES FOR SAMBURU BOYS

Mr. Rurumban asked the Minister for Education why not a single Samburu boy had ever been considered or given a bursary to study overseas.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Central Selection Board only considers and awards bursaries to persons who apply for such bursaries when they are advertised. If no Samburu boy and I may add—girl, has been considered for, or awarded, a bursary, it is because none has applied for any bursary. It is, however, necessary to point out that my Ministry works for all the people of Kenya, and not just for a particular tribe or unit.

Mr. Rurumban: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, if the Government were truly a national one, as it professes to be, would it not have been fair, had the Government distributed the scholarships to every tribe, particularly those backward tribes like Samburu?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as the hon. Member is quite aware, and also Members in this House, the Government cannot distribute scholarships to people who have not applied for those scholarships. The Government does not advertise these scholarships and I think it is the duty of the hon. Members to inform their people in the countryside when such advertisements are in the papers, to ask them to apply.

Question No. 968

RELATED OFFICERS IN THE POLICE FORCE

Mr. Mbogoh asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence whether he tell the House what relationships existed between the following officers:—

(a) M. S. Khan—A.S.P., Prosecution Branch.

(b) A. M. Khan—Chief Inspector Prosecution Branch, and

(c) M. A. Khan—In Charge Traffic Prosecution Branch.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is there no one here to answer for the Minister? We will move on to the next question and come to that one.

Question No. 973

DISCOURAGEMENT OF LAND CONSOLIDATION BY COURT ELDERS

Mr. Odera-Sar asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement whether the Government was aware that the work of the Land Consolidation

Committee in Ugenya was being discouraged by the African Court Elders at Ukulwa.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is there anyone here to speak for the Ministry of Lands and Settlement? Next question.

Question No. 974

CHIEFS AND ASSISTANT CHIEFS FOR LOCATIONS

Mr. Odera-Sar asked the President what the qualifications were for a location to have:

- a chief without an assistant chief; and
- a chief with an assistant chief.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamwaya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Many factors are taken into consideration before it is decided whether a location should have only a chief with an assistant chief or a chief with an assistant chief, e.g. population density, area and terrain of the country, and special problems pertaining to that location and its development.

Only when the need arises is an assistant chief appointed to assist in a location, else the post is abolished, even where one may have existed previously.

Mr. Odera-Sar: Mr. Speaker, would the Assistant Minister consider North Ugenya Location as a location which needs an assistant chief because the population is over 53,000?

(Mr. Nyamwaya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, each case is treated purely on its own merit, and if a strong case is put forward for the creation of an assistant chief's post in any location, including North Ugenya, this can always be considered.

Question No. 977

REGULAR CLASS TESTS FOR ALL SCHOOLS

Mr. Godla asked the Minister for Education if he was prepared to introduce regular class tests in schools as a substitute for rigid annual examinations.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. First of all, I must confess that I do not understand this question. There are no rigid examinations in Kenya's educational system.

As far as I know, teachers test their pupils as and when they feel it is necessary to do so, in order to find out whether the pupils are following what is being taught. The Ministry has no laid down rules and does not intend to lay any down in this connection, because it is believed that the class teachers are competent to determine when and how their pupils should be tested.

[Mr. Shikuku]

I feel, Mr. Speaker, that in order to give an opportunity to other Members to speak, I will end by saying that the only reason why I have spoken on this Motion is that I feel that the Government must pay for its own mistakes by getting double streams, treble streams in all areas. And I emphasize that if they want the confidence of the people, they must not forget that they have promised people free education, and yet when there are students who can afford to pay their own fees, there is not even a school for their children, just because the Government has been mistaken. If the Government wants to come back into power again, it must do something.

With these remarks, I beg to support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mutiso, you might find yourself cut out if you do not speak now.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have listened to the case put forward by the hon. Members, and just as much as I personally sympathize with the situation, I would like to draw the attention of the Members to the fact that some of the allegations which have been levelled against the Ministry and the civil servants, whom we hold dear on account of the great work they are doing for this country, are very unnecessary.

I would like, Sir, to clarify one point which has already been found out as a confusion, from which even the Members who have spoken here have suffered in that they have disagreed completely on this particular issue. That is that the hon. Mr. Gichoya, when he was speaking, did indicate that, by the time the results were known, only four schools in the Kirinyaga District had no K.P.E. results; and his colleague, the hon. Mr. Kibuga, also said that there were sixteen schools. But, Mr. Speaker—

Mr. Kilunga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Assistant Minister in order to misinterpret me when I actually said there were two occasions on which the results came out: sixteen schools were missing the first time and then when the marks were returned to Nairobi and then came back, four were missing. I mentioned this the last time: why does the Assistant Minister not admit it?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members must be careful when they are quoting from other Members' speeches. They must quote extracts correctly, otherwise we get points of order like this.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): I am sorry, Sir, maybe I did not catch very well what he said, but what I was saying is that although that might be the case all I want to say is this, that when I was answering this question from the hon. Mr. Kibuga I did state very clearly that as soon as this problem was discovered in the Ministry we, in fact, initiated emergency reports from all the provincial areas where this question of lateness of K.P.E. results occurred and, as a result, Mr. Speaker, and as I speak here in this House this evening most of the pupils whose results were received very late have already been found places. We have also, Mr. Speaker, instructed our provincial officers in the field to increase the Form I classes throughout the country by two additional pupils in every class. That, Sir, is going to give us 600 more pupils throughout the country.

This is a problem which even the hon. Members here are quite aware of and it is a problem whereby there has been a very big increase, despite this question of the results coming late, there has been a very big increase of pupils of K.P.E. standard who, even if they had 100 per cent passes throughout the country, could not all find places. This is a situation which in the Ministry have inherited from the Colonial Government.

Mr. Speaker, if hon. Members would be very calm, I could explain the position.

We have already, under the Six-Year Development Plan, laid down some proposals which will increase schools wherever possible. But it cannot be said that when this mistake was discovered the Government just sat idle and did nothing. This is not the case. I stated earlier that we have done our very best to alleviate the situation and I cannot accept the allegation from the hon. Members that there were some wrong intentions or bad motives, whereby the Government intended to keep some areas backward. I cannot understand this kind of mentality from the hon. Members, because it is not true and the hon. Member who said this did not even substantiate whether this sort of allegation is true and who is responsible for this. This is a Government of which the hon. Member himself is a part and I cannot understand why he thinks that the Ministry, as such, had some bad motives regarding his own particular area. If such was the case, then I cannot understand why the Member from Butere, the hon. Member, for another area in Nyanza, should come and complain of similar mistakes that did happen. This is a very clear indication, Sir, that this is a mistake which happened, which took place, and it was not done

[The Assistant Minister for Education] by the Ministry, it happened by sheer bad luck or by mistake: mistakes will happen. Mr. Speaker, we cannot be held responsible for this particular occurrence.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, to which I would like to draw the attention of the Members is that while the hon. Mr. Kibuga was speaking he did indicate that there was also this question of girls' papers being torn or girls being refused admission. While I was answering this particular question the other day, Mr. Speaker, I stated very clearly that I would request the hon. Member, if he had got a definite case of proof to show that the papers of these particular girls were destroyed by the officers of our Ministry, we should bring this case to the Ministry and we would be very pleased to handle this matter. So far, Mr. Speaker, he has not done so. We cannot accept such general allegations which have no foundation at all; and I would like any Member who has any specific issue dealing with education to bring it forward to the Ministry and we shall be prepared to investigate and do whatever is necessary.

As regards the other case which the hon. Mr. Shikuku mentioned, where he indicated that there were some pupils who were admitted to the Kenyatta College with very low marks, I would gladly disagree with him and would ask him, if he has got clear evidence of this allegation, he should bring it to our Ministry and we shall investigate the issue fully and find out where the mistake is.

However, Mr. Speaker, I would also like to draw the attention of the Members to one particular point and this is that the question of admitting pupils all over the country differs from area to area. For instance, I remember in this House I did state that in Turkana alone we could not compare the standard of education of the pupils from Turkana who have done their K.P.E. exams with the standard, for instance, of students or pupils from Central Province or from Nyanza Province. I say this because the question of admitting pupils does differ from place to place.

As regards the question of generalizing this issue, that some pupils were admitted with low marks when others had more marks, I cannot agree with this—

Mr. Aremam: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the Assistant Minister to mention Turkana District, for example, whereas Kirinyaga was the district about which allegations were made?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Oh, yes, it is relevant to what he has to say.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): So, Mr. Speaker, I think I have not got much to say on this particular point, but I think what I would tell hon. Members is that, when this issue was brought by the hon. Mr. Kibuga, there was a case and, between that time and now, we have done much to alleviate the position, and I am quite sure that even the hon. Members who are speaking in this House could not even produce a specific figure of the pupils who have passed well and who have—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Assistant Minister in order in alleging in this House that we have not been able to produce figures, when I actually produced figures and I still have them now?

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, what I meant is that if the hon. Member had a specific figure of pupils who passed well, they should bring this matter to our office and we would really find out, in fact, investigate the matter, and if we found that it was true that they had passed well and then they failed to secure places since we had put an officer in the field to try and find places for these pupils, then this case could have been investigated and surely something would have been done quickly and to the point.

That is all I want to say on this, Sir.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time for the interruption of business and therefore the House is adjourned until tomorrow, Friday, 26th March, at 9 a.m.

The House rose at Seven o'clock.

Mr. Ghehoyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I agree with you that the conditions are being looked into now. Those students did not benefit from the efforts of their own parents, did not benefit from their own efforts of study for their examinations. One can infer that either there was something cooking somewhere or things just took the turn they did. If things just took the turn, the Minister could have done something to allow these students to get chances elsewhere, or even allow seats in our own secondary, Harambee secondary schools. If he had done so, I would feel that he had an interest in it.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another thing is this. We have national secondary schools which are to be filled by students who have passed their K.A.P.E. in the best grades. Here you find they are filled before the results are out. They do not get a chance to go to these national schools. The national schools are run with the money which is contributed by the Kirinyaga people. Kirinyaga contributes more comparatively than other districts. They have a rice scheme which contributes a lot of money for the national welfare and the Minister for Finance would—if he were here—accept this statement as put before him by the Ministry of Agriculture through the manager of the scheme, that the scheme gives the Government a lot of money as compared to other undertakings in the country. In other words, my district is being used to finance other projects at the expense of my people.

A national secondary school has all the facilities. It has a better laboratory, a better library, better features than ordinary schools, yet our people have been denied the chances to get into those national schools, because the results came out too late. These national schools had been filled already. Yet when these schools were being earmarked as national schools, there was no criteria of saying that such and such a school should be a national school so that it can serve the Kirinyaga, the people of Embu, the people of Meru, and so on. Deliberately national schools were earmarked again on the basis of the Ministers to win the confidence, to determine which should be national schools and which should not. We were never consulted whether this should be a national school, or that should be made into a national school. Everyone would like to have a national school in his own district. If there are national schools in every district, it would mean that the standard of education would not be uniform. If it is low in the national schools, then we accept that the whole country is having a very low standard of education. Now certain places have the privilege of having national secondary schools. A place like Kirinyaga with its own Harambee secondary schools does not have a chance for the children to go to national secondary schools.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that there was a deliberate intention by the officers of the Government, or by the Ministry of Education, for that matter, to keep us behind and I regret it very strongly. The Ministry of Education has done nothing so far to give us a concrete answer as to why this took place and what steps should be taken to put those students, who are now sufferers, as human beings in the society which are now eager to learn, which is eager to develop. We are now doomed to remain where we are in spite of the fact that we have already established our own institutions through our own sweat.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in order to allow other people to speak, I will request that the Minister for Education institutes a committee of inquiry to find out what defeated those students and what can be done for those students. Kirinyaga should be allowed to have double-stream or triple-stream, and also all the areas which had this unfortunate situation. They should all be allowed to have additional accommodation for those students so that they are not neglected in the move for betterment in terms of intelligence.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

Mr. Kibuga: Mr. Speaker, the main thing about this unfortunate incident is that when the K.A.P.E. results came out, there were sixteen schools in my district without full results. Had it not been for the fact that our people suspected, by seeing that the best schools had so many failures, seeing that something was wrong, I would not have started to find out why there were so many failures. On returning the papers to Nairobi here, it was found that some of the marks were missing, in mathematics and English especially. Another thing to consider is the very fact that English had 300 marks, mathematics 300 marks, general knowledge, I think, was about 100. To know about the mathematics marks and the English marks, it meant a lot to the pupils. When the results came out, the national schools had already selected the pupils to go to their schools. So, the fate of the pupils in the sixteen schools was that they had lost their places in the national schools.

When some of the results came out, there were still the results from four schools missing. The most unfortunate thing was that when the Ministry of Education saw that there were mistakes, the Ministry did not take any trouble whatsoever to explain to the students and the parents what was happening. They were left just [Mr. Kibuga] He that to wonder out what was happening. I had a very difficult time with another Elected Member because some people became suspicious. They said, "because papers were marked by people from Thika, which are schools outside the area," they had teachers in those schools who were from Kirinyaga.

They started to suspect the fact that there was a Minister or Assistant Minister in Kirinyaga. So it is very unfortunate that the Ministry of Education should have allowed itself to become so inefficient. When it comes to the question of computing machines, the Assistant Minister said the machine refused to act properly. How could it refuse to act properly when there was somebody in charge of this machine and who was supposed to check that what went out was completely correct? I would call upon the Ministry to go into the details and dismiss this fellow deal with this person properly. I know the Assistant Minister will stand and tell me, "Oh, yes, now we are working very hard. We have discovered the result." It is true that I know that not of the results have been discovered. On the other hand, even though the results have been discovered, where will they go? The schools, the national schools, were filled. The schools in the region, the province, were filled. Where are these boys to go to? I would ask the Ministry to assure us what was actually wrong and what they are going to do with these people.

Within the same province, although there were incidences in the other provinces, I am only talking about Central Province because I know about that. It is unfortunate that this great inefficiency was throughout the country. To show that there was something fishy, when selection took place in Nyeri, the first time they were called was in January. There were papers for girls going to secondary schools. The application forms were sent. Because the results were not all received, the headmistresses were told, "You just go ahead and come back again in February." When they sent the papers were missing. I think this was an idea so that nobody would discover where a pupil comes from, even though they probably come from the same district.

I would not like to take up all the time, but I would like to give the others a chance. I will call upon this inefficient Ministry to tell us what is happening.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to point out to the Ministry of Education that we are disappointed at the way things went on. In the Western Region there were over 300 students who passed their examination with over 500 marks. But they were left out because of the inefficiency of the Ministry of Education and this Ministry is seeking to take us for a ride to cover its own folly and penalize the bright brains of Kenya. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it found out that in Butere alone six schools had no results at all; they came very late and these boys and girls passed so well. If the Minister for Education wants me to produce the names and the marks of the children, I am prepared to do so. I know of those who have got even 700 marks and they have not been admitted. And speaking in the spirit of Harambee, Sir, even in the Kenyatta National School here there are children, one student who was admitted with 244 marks only. I have got children in my constituency with over 700 marks and they have not been placed anywhere at all.

I feel, Mr. Speaker, that this is the mistake of the Ministry of Education and yet today the Government is not even prepared to pay for its own mistakes by running double streams in all these areas that were affected.

They tell us there is no money, but if there is no money, has the Ministry no money, no resources, which could be used in cases of emergency? There is an emergency here where brains worth the tuition in secondary schools have been left out and I feel the Government should do all it can to run double streams rather than tell us, as the Assistant Minister told us the other day, in reply to a question in this Parliament, that only two people are going to be added, two pupils to various classes of Form I standard in various areas. I demand, Mr. Speaker, in the name of Butere, and all affected areas in Kenya, that the Government pays for its mistakes by running double streams and triple streams in all areas if it is going to have the confidence of the parents who are the people who voted for this very Government.

Mr. Speaker, we are not going to allow brains that are not bright to go on because this is not consistent with our great ambition which is to promote a society of people with brains; we cannot leave these bright brains out just because a machine went wrong, just because the Post Office delayed—I do not know what happened that day, I am told the Post Office was also late, and something went wrong there and the results did not reach the Western Region in time. I feel, Mr. Speaker, that the question of no money should not arise at all. I have even suggested that these eighteen Ministers should be reduced to ten; the money thereby saved would help to run the double streams, which will enable these students to go to secondary school.

which you are entitled to raise when I propose the question, but the actual Motion for adjournment of the debate is completely in order. In any debate, any Member who is speaking in the course of the debate has a right to move the adjournment of the debate. It is the Speaker's discretion whether or not he is prepared to propose the question, but the Member can always claim the right to move it. When I propose the question of the adjournment, then you will have the opportunity of arguing about it.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I do not see the reason why the hon. friend of mine should be worried. We are only trying to put things right for his son and his daughter, and all the grandchildren after him. The Constitution, as such, is a very important document which caters for all his children—and I understand he is a father-in-law already.

Mr. Speaker: I feel that with these few remarks, I do not have to speak, but I suggest very strongly that this House do now adjourn, or we adjourn the debate on this amendment Bill, until such a time that we have a full explanation from the Attorney-General and we can come back and talk about it.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to second.

(Question that the debate be now adjourned proposed)

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipiti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hear a friend of mine telling me that I am not a proper Masai. I assure him that I am here because the Masai carefully selected their leader who is not chosen either by him or by anybody else.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to oppose this Motion for adjournment, for the simple reason that this Bill was introduced on 5th February 1965 and Members of the House who are the real representatives of the people have had enough time to read this Bill. Therefore, if this Bill was introduced just the day before yesterday I would have agreed with them if they had said that they had no time, but the Members have had enough time to consider and read through and amend this Bill. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, there is no question that any Member did not have enough time.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Assistant Minister in order to try and insinuate that we are talking in terms of time when we actually talk in terms of consultation. Is he in order to insinuate that we are complaining of lack of time?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not insinuation; but if you say that you have been misrepresented in what you have said, then you are entitled to correct that on a point of order.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipiti): I am not saying that Members have no time, but Mr. Speaker, Sir, if these Bills are brought to this House, I believe Members need time to study them so that they could argue them, but I was just putting across, Sir, that there is no reason why a Bill of this nature has not been brought to this House since 5th February 1965, yet no Parliamentary Group has yet met and said that they want the debate this Bill adjourned for consultation. I think, Sir, it is too late. The Attorney-General did ask the Parliamentary Group to—

An hon. Member: When?

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipiti): The Attorney-General is here, and he can explain when, but I am quite sure that he did say that—

Mr. Khasakhala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the Assistant Minister to tell the House that the Attorney-General had sought to meet the Parliamentary Group several times? Could he tell us that this was done on this particular Bill?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Are you asking for substantiation?

Mr. Khasakhala: Yes, Sir.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipiti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I cannot substantiate that, but I am going to express my views.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must withdraw or substantiate.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipiti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, according to my information, I think that the Attorney-General did seek a meeting with them.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not enough to say that according to your information you know this, when you are asked to substantiate. You must say what information and from whom.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipiti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I withdraw.

[The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I believe Mr. Ngala yesterday, when he spoke about the attached clauses of the Constitution, did not say that he wanted this to be removed. Today again, Sir, we have debated the whole thing up to that time, and what we are trying to agree is—

Mr. Oboko: On a point of order, Sir, is the Assistant Minister in order to refer to the Members of this House as people.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That was just a slip of the tongue which he has already corrected. He is addressing the Chair as long as he is referring to hon. Members in the third person, even if he looks towards them.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipiti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know that I had made a mistake in calling them people, but at the same time I corrected myself. Therefore, there was no point in that point of order.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel we have gone as far as we can in debating this Bill for a sufficient time. I think, Sir, that it is very important that if any Member has anything on his mind which needs clarification, then I think, since it is important, then we should correct all these things. There is no difference in any Member telling the House what he is doing on these Constitutional changes, or to tell the Government what to do when in a Parliamentary Group. It is the same people who will meet tomorrow, and it is the same Attorney-General whom they want to consult, who is here now. I agree with them that if the Attorney-General was not in the Chamber, then it would be the right thing, but as he is here, I see no reason why Members shall not put their views clearly as the hon. Mr. Anyieni did.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I believe it is high time that the Members should not waste time—

An hon. Member: On a point of information.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipiti): I will not give way.

Mr. Speaker, Sir,—

An hon. Member: Are you standing on one leg?

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipiti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, we feel very strongly that there is no point in any Member here in delaying any further. Hon. Members want to adjourn this Bill for matters of consultation. There is no reason why we should adjourn it, because the Attorney-General, who we want to consult with, is here. The question of consultation does not arise because he is here.

Mr. Glehoya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Assistant Minister to repeat himself on these few matters?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, he should not repeat himself.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipiti): Mr. Speaker, I think that if Members need consultation they can consult the Attorney-General here.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, with these few remarks, I beg to oppose the adjournment of debate.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Please will you sit down. I cannot have all the hon. Members standing up before a speaker has finished. Only one Member should be on his feet at a time.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyok): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I shall try to be very brief. I think we are being unfair to ourselves if the question of consultation is the cause for adjournment. I have already said here that the time is running out, and tomorrow, being Private Members' day, we shall have a long weekend, and the House will not resume until Tuesday next week. Even if we need consultation, we shall have enough time between now and Tuesday, before the House resumes again, and arrangements could be made for consultation without asking for an adjournment. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I think that the thirty minutes that have been wasted on discussing the adjournment of debate could have been used in discussing other matters, and seeking explanations. Members, even Government Ministers, would like to explain to the other Members, and to the House, some of the points which they have raised in this House. We are quite anxious to take part, and I would like to appeal to the House not to seek the adjournment, because time is on our side. The weekend is ours, and we will not meet until Tuesday. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I do not just oppose, but I do appeal to the hon. Members, not to take the Motion seriously because the Attorney-General is here and is prepared to explain any parts of the Bill between now and Tuesday, if he is approached.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to hurt my hon. colleagues by saying that I reject the Motion to adjourn the debate on this Bill. The reasons why I reject it is that the

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, I think the hon. Member was in order to claim that, whenever he joins the Government, he should have the status of a Minister, and that he would not be prepared to take the position of Assistant Minister. That is not derogatory to an Assistant Minister.

Mr. Anyieni: If I may now tell my hon. friend that I never intended to say that, it was actually as a result of an interruption from one Member who said that I would never become an Assistant Minister, anyway I think I am too big. However, I do not see in the future that anyone will see sense in making me an Assistant Minister, if they have not already made me one. Now according to the wish of the people.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not see why the hon. Assistant Ministers whose case I am going, or trying to put forward, keep interrupting me. I would like to say that the position, now that Government has agreed that the term Parliamentary Secretary should be changed into the title of Assistant Minister, he should really be an Assistant Minister. In other words he should be a mere person when there is a question in Parliament, and the Minister is not there, then the Permanent Secretary gives him right to come and reply in this House, he is harassed, he cannot contribute anything to the policy-making of the thing he is replying to. I think that this is unfair, Mr. Speaker. I think in this Constitution it should be made clear that an Assistant Minister is really an assistant to the Minister, so much so that the Assistant Minister should have immediate access to the papers pertaining to their Ministry. We do not want them, for example, to know everything which goes on in every Ministry, but particularly, I see that one Minister says that I am ignorant, but this Minister must know that there is one Assistant Minister who is saying that he agrees. He must know that we know some of our Assistant Ministers who have very good brains, and who are very intelligent, and whose policy could be for the interest of the country, but the Assistant Ministers who are frustrated because they do not know what is going on in the policy-making of their Ministry. I think it is very fair that if you give a person a title, that person, Mr. Speaker, Sir, must also be given a say, he is an Elected Member, should be given a say in the formulation policy for his Ministry, so that when this Assistant Minister comes to this House to answer questions, then he will have the background of what he is replying to, not merely to come and read an answer here, and when you ask him more questions then he turns round and says mosquito nets are poisonous.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You will have to stick rather more closely to the subject matter of the debate, namely, the amendments proposed by this Bill.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am saying this because the Government have agreed to change their name from Parliamentary Secretary and I am replying to say—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not being done by this Bill, is it?

Mr. Anyieni: Yes, Mr. Speaker. It is there. I thought I saw it. I think this was done by the Second Amendment Bill.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must stand by the Bill.

Mr. Anyieni: You do not even have the Bill, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I see here that in the Fourth Schedule, unless, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I misunderstood the whole thing, but in the Fourth Schedule, page 43 of the Bill, it says here that the "Governor-General" will be called "President", "Region" for the word "Province", "President" for the word "Chairman", "Regional Assembly" for the word "Provincial Council", "a Parliamentary Secretary" will be called "an Assistant Minister", and so on and so on; this is where I found it. I did not see why they should include it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): All right, Mr. Anyieni.

Mr. Anyieni: I do not want to say too much about this one.

I would like to say in finishing that in the change of title there should also be a change in the responsibility of these people, because the title was intended to boost my hon. friend's responsibility and therefore I think they should be given more responsibility so that when they reply to questions in this Parliament they will have the background, because I really sympathized with one person the other day when I asked my Assistant Minister for Education the question, he just did not have a reply. He was probably given it to read.

I think that the Attorney-General should give the Assistant Ministers some additional power so the Assistant Ministers might better be able to assist the Ministers, rather than merely being someone who can just come to this House and read on behalf of the Minister.

Now, Mr. Speaker, with regard to section 5, I see that titles have been changed and section 7, subsection (1) I see that any reference in an existing law to the Inspector-General of Police to a Regional Commissioner or to any other

[Mr. Anyieni] should be read and reviewed as police officers should be read and reviewed as from 12th December 1964, as if it included a reference to the Commissioner of Police, the police officer in charge of a province or police officer of equivalent rank as the case may be. Instead of having the Inspector-General of Police the name has been changed and it is now the Commissioner of Police. According to this, unless I have misunderstood, all the others, for example, the police commissioner in charge of Nyanza Region or Central will not be referred to as police officer in charge of Nyanza. I think this is not very dignified, let me read to you section 7 (h) I see there everyone else is going to have a more dignified title. They are going to become provincial commissioners, district commissioners and so on. In this particular respect I think that the police officers have titles that will give them respect and will clarify their positions rather than just merely saying that he is in charge of such and such a province or district. I think the Attorney-General should look into this matter also.

Another point I would like to bring up at this time, Mr. Speaker, is the fact there is a clause here, which I believe is in section 8, which says "all powers which were given to the Queen will be given to the President". I think this is a dangerous thing. It is all right today, because the President is Kenyatta; but eventually we may have a President who will abuse these powers. Therefore, I think that all the powers which are given to the President should be divided between the President and this House. At present, we can trust our President, the hon. Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, but with regard to the future I must again repeat that this is a very dangerous thing and I therefore think that this clause should be amended so that these powers should be divided equally between the President and the Parliament. I do not think there is any point in substituting the Queen, because I do not believe that all things were handled well at that time. If we allow the clause to remain as it is at present, this would be allowing the future Presidents of this country to do exactly as he likes.

I will try to be as brief as possible, but I would like to bring one other point up and that is this: I see that all the civil servants, I am not quoting, but rather stating, that all the civil servants that were employed during the colonial days will automatically become the civil servants of our independent Government. This is not good, because there are some civil servants who were extremely notorious during that time. They did everything to destroy the pride and dignity of our people. They did not know that some day our people would run the Government, that is why I say, Mr. Speaker, that these people must not be allowed to become civil servants, I think this is completely absurd. Mr. Speaker, you will remember that the other day, an hon. Member from Butere brought a Motion stating that civil servants should be responsible to this House, because some of the characters who were here during the colonial régime are unable to change their attitudes, they still retain these attitudes. Some of these people have not even heard the word "Kenyatta", they do not even know Kenyatta's intentions. They are now substituting the name of our President for the name of the Crown. Some of these people, Mr. Speaker—I am not saying all of them because I think it would be wrong to say all of them—do mistreat our people and sometimes they do misrepresent the Government, and many of them, Mr. Speaker, do not understand—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Anyieni, could you tell me what part of the Bill you are referring to.

Mr. Anyieni: Section 9, Mr. Speaker, existing offices. It says, "Subject to the provisions of this section, any person who immediately before 12th December 1964 held or was acting in any office established by or in pursuance of the Constitution shall, so far as is consistent with the provisions of the Constitution, be deemed as from 12th December 1964 to have been appointed, elected or otherwise selected to hold or to act in the same or in the equivalent office under the Constitution and to have taken any necessary oath under the Constitution."

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Anyieni, we are in the same position now as we were about existing laws. This amendment is a purely mechanical provision, and does not give hon. Members the opportunity to discuss in this debate every single person they think should be removed from office, just as I said, the provision for maintenance of existing laws does not give hon. Members in this debate the opportunity to discuss every existing law. No, no, we cannot have this, I am afraid.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I see one of the hon. Members who normally complains about this is saying, "Hear, hear," but then I think it has been good for me.

Mr. Speaker, section 10 (1) says, "Subject to the provisions of section 65 (4) of the Constitution . . ." and section 65 (4) of the Constitution

[Mr. Anyieni] creating a problem because some of these people who have been here for twenty years, some of them, have no interest in our country. They do not mind what happens here. These are the people who create a fifth column in our country. Every time they see a small thing they say, "Oh, the Government is not stable," and each time money flies—Shoo!—out of the country to London, Bombay, Washington and so on.

I hear one hon. Member telling me that some money does fly to Moscow, but, for his information, he must know there are no people here from Russia who are running businesses, who are carrying out any business here or who have invested any capital here so that they have the opportunity of taking money away from the country.

If they want to do that I think there is a problem for the future, and not for the past or the present.

Here I would like to warn particularly our brothers the Asians that there are very many in this country, very many of them have got no shamba, very many of them carry on businesses and the majority of the people who are buying things from them are Africans. Now we have said that we do not want to discriminate as the South African Government discriminates against its Africans, as some states in the United States discriminate against Negroes. We would like everybody who wants to come to this country to be free, provided he is not an exploiter. And we would like to have a person who has decided to be a citizen of this country to become a citizen completely as soon as possible. We would like to urge the Government to take very strong measures against those who have refused, because, Mr. Speaker, there are some people, there are some Europeans and some Asians, who have decided to be citizens of this country. But many have not so decided because of the activities of those Europeans and Asians who do not want to be citizens. They are going round saying things which will not create a very good relationship between the races in Kenya. Therefore we would like Government to make it very clear that unless a person who is a citizen is an expert, in a particular profession that person will not be given a chance to be employed in Kenya. The only person who is a non-Kenyan and whom we can accept as eligible to take up employment in Kenya is a person who is an expert, a person whose position cannot be filled by a citizen of Kenya. I think the Government ought to be able to do something about that.

Now before I leave citizenship, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that while we say that all citizens of Kenya will have equal status, one thing which must be recognized is that in the past the Europeans and the Asians were given more chances in every respect, in education, in employment, in all facilities of life, in all the good things of life.

If independence should mean anything at all to the African people, a certain period must be allowed, when this sort of imbalance can be put right so much so that— I see, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that one of the hon. Members is telling me that it is time, but I can speak until tomorrow, if I have something to say. I can even speak for two weeks, I asked this on a point of order yesterday, provided I am not repeating myself, and now I think I have time to continue speaking.

What I was saying before the hon. Member referred me to my watch, was that while we accept all people in our country a period must be given when the imbalance can be righted. So that being the case, I think it should be the same in all respects. That being the situation I hope that our Government will continue with the Africanization even through a person is a citizen of our country. I must emphasize again shamba, that Africanization must not mean Kikoinization, must not mean Akambanization, must not mean Luoinization, it must mean strictly Africanization, and if there is anyone from a particular district then I think that person could also be wrong. Also it should be true Africanization. If anybody is trying to give all jobs, in the sense of Africanizing to people of one tribe then I think he is going to find it very difficult in the future when there is a change in leadership.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to come, if Members look at the Bill, to page 23 of the Bill where the President is given chance to make laws, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we now have one party, and I think it would be right for us to pass any law here. In that case I would like to say that this power given to the President was not really necessary. It states here that without prejudice to the powers of the President under subsection 4 of this section:

"The President may by order made and published in the Kenya Gazette at any time before 12th December 1965"

He may repeal any laws made by law made by the Regional Assembly before 12th December 1964 to the extent which makes provision with respect to any matter to which under the Constitution, Parliament may make law if it appears to him to be necessary or expedient to do so in consequence of the coming into operation of the Constitution.

[Mr. Anyieni]

Now, also I think that since we, taking powers from the Regional Assemblies, are not taking those powers to give them to one individual, I think that if there are some laws which were made by different Regional Assemblies and which are not good laws then such laws should be brought to this House so that the Members of this House can also amend them. But I see that in clause 4, I read clause 5, in clause 4 the President is given powers even to amend any laws which were made in Kenya before, and I do not think that is right because you see, if we take this President, next time there is a different President, we are going to say that now that we have a new President we can also give him one year to make his own laws instead of Parliament doing so. This could be very dangerous, because if I was President of the Republic, and some of the laws were not very good laws, for my ruling anybody, then I could within one year take a lot of laws and execute, and do everything I liked, and then by the time my year is over it will be too late to do anything better. Therefore I say that I do not see any necessity for the President to be given powers. I think it should be given to the Attorney-General to recommend some of these things and bring them to this House and encourage it we have been given by our people by being voted into this House. Personally I do not see any need for that.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is also the adaptation of existing laws. There were some laws which were created in the colonial days and these laws were intended to safeguard the majority of the people of this House, not the majority of the people of this country, it was supposed to guarantee, or to do good to the majority of this House who were unfortunately settlers. I would like to say that the Government here has again failed us because there are some laws, for example, trespass laws, in our customs we do not have this trespass law. Probably the only time when someone can be accused of trespassing is when it is late at night, perhaps midnight, and someone knocks at your door, you do not hear if you are probably not there, he quietly gets inside and you find him sitting there and has been there all the time. That would probably be taken as trespassing, and so on—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Anyieni, I am afraid that this reference to the existing laws does not give hon. Members the opportunity to discuss every single act that we have in our existing laws; otherwise there would be no end to this debate. This is simply a mechanical provision that our laws remain unchanged by this new constitution. However, it does not stop you arguing on some other occasion that the existing laws should be changed; but this does not give you that opportunity.

Mr. Anyieni: I was referring to section 7 of the Bill, which says that the existing laws will immediately from this date become the laws of the Kenya Government and Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am saying that while this is all right, there are still some laws which are so colonial which the Government should do something to repeal them. I am not going to deal on that, I was only giving one example, and then I would go on to my next point.

One of the laws, Mr. Speaker, Sir, which I think I should mention is the idea of an African, for example, Mr. Konchellah is a personal friend of mine. I was there against the law, last week, he invited me to address a meeting in his area, this was against the law—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, no, Mr. Anyieni, you are not going to tell us about all the laws—

Mr. Anyieni: All right, Mr. Speaker, I will leave that alone, but I also see here that that is all right—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Do not encourage Mr. Anyieni to be irrelevant any further.

Mr. Anyieni: The hon. Member knows very well that I am capable of replying to any remarks he makes so he must be careful that he does not make remarks when I am on the Floor, that will make me say something—I will not deal with that now as it is not important.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we come to the question of Assistant Ministers. Formerly we used to refer to these gentlemen as Parliamentary Secretaries and more than once I have said that this was not proper. I am saying this, I am not an Assistant Minister, and therefore I think that I am qualified to say something. One hon. Member says that I will never become an Assistant Minister because I am too big to become an Assistant Minister.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, these Assistant Ministers—I am young and I believe one day unless you slaughter me that I will become an Assistant Minister. These gentlemen—

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Is it in order in the conduct in this House that hon. Members should cast aspersions on the intelligent Parliamentary Secretaries or the Assistant Ministers that they are small, according to his own standard?

[Mr. Anyjen] hon. Members to know that if we start treating the elected members of Regional Assemblies as nominated members, the one next time will fall on the Members of the House of Representatives, and it will also fall on the necks of the Senate, and all the elected representatives of the masses will always be regarded as nominated members, who do not have the mandate of the people. Therefore Members of this House should also demand to know what Government intends to do with the Provincial Councils.

I also see here, Mr. Speaker, that the Government has said that these people will no longer have a committee on education and so forth, but that this committee will be called the general purposes committee. This is what is there in the county council set-up. I would like to say, from the little or much I know of these Regional Assemblies, very many of these people, very many chairmen, have been doing very well, even though some of them have tried to delude themselves that they are Ministers and that Members of Parliament are mere Members of Parliament and nothing more but they themselves are regional Ministers. I think it must be understood that with independence there have been very many people who have got into power and they are blessed with those powers and they are drunk with them; and I do not think this is something which is typical only of members of Regional Assemblies. I think it is typical of many other members. I have even seen Members of Parliament going around, boasting that they are Members of Parliament, and then people say to them, "We know you are Members of Parliament, but you cannot go around boasting." And for that particular reason, we cannot support the idea of the amendment just because one or two Members have been going around boasting.

So I think that these ministerial committees in the regions should continue. Yesterday, Mr. Speaker, I made it clear that the Education Committee in Nyanza, for example, did say that Nyanza should be having fifteen secondary schools. Now in the answer to the question yesterday, we were told that Nyanza has only two secondary schools and as for the rest we have been asked to set up Harambee schools. And these Harambee schools have not been very successful.

I hear the hon. Member who was very recently with me as a Back-bencher and who spoke my language and who has since been made an Assistant Minister now asking, "Where is the money?" The hon. Member should keep quiet for a few days before coming here and asking me where the money is.

So I say here, Mr. Speaker, that we should allow these gentlemen in the regions to be able to recommend and after they have made recommendations we shall then be able to know, Mr. Speaker, what the position is. If the Nyanza Regional Assembly members have recommended fifteen secondary schools and, let us say, the members of the Coast Regional Assembly have recommended sixteen secondary schools and all the other regions have recommended certain numbers, if, in that context, the Minister, for example, has given only two schools, and the Central Region has been given, sixteen, or whatever was said yesterday—the Minister can tell me—then the Members of this House can go back and ask the members of the Regional Assemblies to give them details and then we can, with their advice, bring back the matter to the Minister for discussion.

I see that one of the Members from the Central Region is interrupting me but he must know that we all represent various areas and as such I am not here to repeat what he says or conform to the unfair distribution of educational facilities all over the country, because that would be misrepresenting the people who elected me to this House.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say something in connexion with our Parliament. The employees of our Parliament are regarded as civil servants. I think a special clause should be introduced so that the top servants of this House will be employed by Parliament itself so that they would not be subjected to unnecessary harassment by the members of the Civil Service Commission. I think this is important, so that these members of staff would know that if they are completely loyal to this House and to, for example, the Speaker who has been elected by the hon. Members of this House, they will be able to carry on; and the Members of this House will have the right to complain to any employee employed in this House, that, for example, such and such an employee is not a good man and therefore should be removed. But as the position stands today, an employee here can be very bad and Members of this House have no right to say anything; even the Speaker has very little say in the matter. I would like to say that some of these top employees in Parliament should be employed by Parliament itself and not by the Civil Service Commission.

Now, Mr. Speaker, today we have taken up a lot of time today discussing Bills which were discussed in this House; they were passed to the [Mr. Anyjen] Senate, they were brought back to this House, then back to the Senate, brought back to this House. And all this time it must be understood that money is entailed; there is no point in anybody saying, as most of the Bills them-selves say, that this does not entail any more expenditure of public money. This is not so because the moment we sit here to discuss a Bill we spend public money. Now whose money do we spend if we do not spend that of the public? We are paid for sitting, we are paid some salary, and I would like to say that as regards these amendments Government should have made this position very clear. If the Senate is not allowed to introduce any amendment to financial Bills, or if the Senate is not allowed to discuss or to amend Bills like the one we were discussing today, Mr. Speaker, then I personally do not see why it is necessary for the Senators, who are paid, to go and discuss it the whole day; they get paid, then they bring it back here, we do discuss it the whole day, and then we take it back here. If the money is carefully calculated, it will be found, Sir, that we are not being good guardians of the money which has been paid by taxpayers, the majority of whom are poor and the majority of whom are the people who need us as Members of both Houses.

So I would like to say that one of the reasons why I think the Government should withdraw this Bill and reintroduce it is to make this position very clear, so that the Senate will only be given Bills to discuss to which they can make an amendment. There is no point in giving someone something to discuss merely for the sake of discussion. This is not a debating place; we are supposed to be legislators. There is no point in giving them something in which they have no real say. Here I think it is going to look, in the eyes of the public, as if we are merely wasting time and money which belong to the public and not solely to the Members who have been elected to this House.

Therefore, the Attorney-General should take the Bill back and re-introduce it so that the position will be made very, very clear and so that everybody knows his line of action and will not waste the time and the money of the taxpayer.

Mr. Speaker, with regard to the amendment of Bill 1, I see that Government can introduce a Bill in this House and this House accepts the Bill as it is written. The Bill then can be taken to the Senate and the Government has got the right, or a Minister has got the right, to go to the Senate and introduce an amendment which was not known to the House of Representatives. Now I think this is a waste of time because what is going to happen is that this House is going to discuss a Bill, let us say, for three or four days, and after it has been passed it goes to the Senate. The Senate will discuss it for three or four days. And then the Minister will introduce an amendment and the amendment will be discussed. The amendment will then be brought back to this House. We shall discuss and discuss and then maybe we shall disagree, and then the Minister will take it back again. It will be going backwards and forwards, like this and like that.

It must be remembered that all the time money is involved. Why is money involved? Now that the Attorney-General is here, I will make this point again. Money is involved because you pay me for sitting here. It is no secret. And we do not want to be spending public money unnecessarily. So any Bill which Government wants to introduce should be full, should be complete, so that when it has passed through this House we shall not wait for it to be passed in the Senate. Here, I would like to say that I do not know if there are very many Senators here. I only see one Senator, Mr. Speaker, who referred to Members of this House as being one hundred and one youth wingers. I would like to say this to the Senate—Yes, one of the Senators did say that.

I would like to say that the Senators must also be responsible. Now the Senators know very well that if we pass a Bill, and they make an amendment, and it comes back here, in the end we are going to do exactly what we have done today, that is that we are going to lay it aside for one year and then it will automatically become law. This is not creating a good relationship, and I think the Senators should also be responsible enough and not say that we are youth wingers, because, after all, they must know that this is the House which produces Presidents and which produces the majority of the Ministers. So we are not youths. Mr. Speaker, in good faith I would also say that some of the Senators are now too old to be able to understand exactly what the younger men want to say for the interests of the youth who are going to live longer than the majority of the Members of the Senate.

Now I would like, Mr. Speaker, to come to section 25 which deals with citizenship. Here is where I think there is going to be quite a bit of a problem. We have asked several questions in this House in connexion with citizenship. It is very unfortunate, Mr. Speaker, that in this country we have got people who see fit to stay here and continue the old idea of licking the wealth of this country. But they do not want to identify themselves with the people of this country. This is

THE CONSTITUTION OF KENYA (AMENDMENT) BILL

(The Attorney-General on 23rd March 1965)
(Resumption of debate interrupted on 24th March 1965)

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, before the House rose yesterday, I was saying something in connexion with the Regional Assemblies which are now going to be known as Provincial Councils. I do not want to labour on that point, but I would like to remind any hon. Member who was not there, that as long as these gentlemen are elected in these places, they should not be treated as the former provincial advisory councillors. Since they are elected, and since in many cases they do help Members of Parliament to serve the people who elected them, and incidentally they are the people who elect us also to this House, they should be given some payment. I must say here that it is very important that a provision be included.

The other day, Members of this House did say that Sh. 833 which they were getting, or Sh. 1,400 which they were getting, was too little. This was mentioned and somebody made sure that this was given publicity in the papers. As a result, today, all people know what Members of this House who are not Ministers are being paid. While we Members of this House have had an increase in pay, it is not fair for the Members of this House not to approve any payment at all for other elected members, people elected like ourselves but to a different House. For that reason, I would like to ask hon. Members—and in this respect I would like to ask the Attorney-General—to consider this and see whether they can introduce another amendment to this Bill so that the members of the Regional Assemblies can be given some money to help them live. That they also can be given some allowances too. I see that the Assistant Minister for Education is shaking his head—

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Yes, I agree.

Mr. Anyieni: Oh, you agree with me? Thank you very much for not attacking me. I was going to attack him because he is getting a good salary and he can educate his children. I am labouring a little bit on this point but the members of Regional Assemblies—maybe some of them are Members here—are mainly good and even if there is a bad Regional Assembly member, he may lose the vote in the next election. So a better man can be elected. These people do help us. For example, we have been here since Monday. In my constituency there is nobody to help me to solve the problems which may arise. The member of the Regional Assembly is the gentleman who helps me, so some of the complaints do not reach me, they reach the Regional Assembly member. I consider them as being of assistance to the Members of the National Assembly. I do not think it will cost Government very much to do this.

It would create a good relationship between the Members of Parliament and the members of the Regional Assembly, and between the Kenya Government and the members of the Provincial Council. So I am asking Government to consider allowing these gentlemen some money to help them live like gentlemen and not like beggars.

I do not want to say too much on that. I would like now to mention the change in the Constitution. Mr. Speaker, in this amendment it is stipulated that while in the past, in the original Constitution, 75 per cent of the Members of this House were needed to change the Constitution, and 90 per cent of the Members of the Senate were required for the change, now only 65 per cent is needed to change the Constitution. The reason why the Members said 75 per cent was that they believed that here we had a Government which had 65 per cent of the Members of this House or of both Houses. In a one-party system, this is not a really big problem. But suppose in the future, in some ten or twenty years' time there are two parties in our country. This will be dangerous because if the ruling party commands only 65 per cent, which is not very difficult for a ruling party to have, then that ruling party can amend the Constitution so that it will suit them. Therefore, I would like the Government still to maintain 75 per cent. I do not see why there is any fear at this juncture. This has been formed with the belief that since we now have one party, this will not be a difficult thing. Since there is one party in Kenya, it will not be difficult to get 75 per cent of the Members of any House to change the Constitution. I should like to say that 75 per cent should be maintained and 90 per cent in the Senate should be maintained for the security of the minority. After all, what is democracy? Democracy is that we agree to disagree. While we agree to disagree, there might be on one belief a majority, and in the other there might be a minority. Now the minority also must have a part to play in the running of that country and for that reason, I ask Government—though the Attorney-General is walking out, I hope he has left somebody behind here to take notes—to maintain that 75 per cent.

I say this because I do not see any reason for fear since we have a one-party system. Even if they wanted 100 per cent, this could be. If things are done according to the wishes of the people of this country, for a long time Kenya will be a country which will be run by a Government elected as one party. For that reason I believe that 75 per cent should be maintained.

Mr. Speaker, I would like also to come to the declaration of emergency in section 29. Formerly, a great percentage was required to declare emergencies. Now they say that "there should be a majority". This is I think very dangerous, because an emergency is not a mere declaration. They are powers given to Government at the times of emergencies. For example, the forces will be allowed to shoot on sight, and they are free to shoot on sight. The President could be allowed, under the emergency regulations, to order that such-and-such a person should be detained without trial. A lot of things could be done. He would be able to say that in such-and-such areas there would be no movement after dark. This could continue and go on. Under the present leadership of President Kenyatta this may not be a problem, but we must realize that we are not creating a Constitution for the present President. We are creating a Constitution so that one day when, say, Anyieni is the President of this country, this law will be able to apply. I am trying to warn Members that they must be very careful, that one day they may have a very notorious President and he will have powers which is the Constitution which we have passed. We are passing them in the Constitution amendments. I say we must not blind ourselves by saying, "Oh, well, President Kenyatta is a very good President, he will never want to use these powers," and so on. This is blinding ourselves. This is not a mere sound Bill which we are trying to pass. This is the foundation of our own nation which we are trying to put down and which will guide whoever comes to power. That being the case, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that this low majority must never be accepted by Members of this House. If it is accepted, I pray to God that he will help us and that we will never have a notorious President who will use this law to declare unnecessary emergencies with low majorities.

Members of Parliament should be very careful when they accept this. That is one of the reasons I think the Attorney-General should not consider this. It is not like when we were passing the second amendment to the Bill, when it was said, "You see, if it is not passed now—this is the Constitution which is going to bring the Republic—we will never have a Republic." There is no question of Republic now. Even if we maintain the present Constitution, we can still continue without any problems. I would like to say that nobody should come up and say, "Oh, you must support Government on this." It is not a question of supporting Government. This is not the point, because there might be another Government after some time. That Government is not also going to bring in its own Constitution. This is a Constitution which we are creating for say Government which may come to power in this country. As such, we should know that there will always be some difference of opinion, and a President who may fear that he does not have the confidence of the masses, could in this respect declare an emergency and continue ruling under emergency powers.

Sir, I think it is very important that the Members of Parliament in this House should see this point and do something about it. There is another point which I think ought to be raised here. The Constitution does not specify who is going to convene the Provincial Councils. We do not know now whether the Provincial Councils are going to be under the administrative provincial commissioner of the province, and whether—we would like Government to make this clear—the Government will say that the provincial commissioner of a province will convene the meeting, or the chairman of the province will convene the meeting. This is very important for us to know. If the provincial officer or commissioner is going to convene the meeting, I think this will be extremely dangerous. If this is so, then what Government should do is to dissolve the Regional Assemblies and then nominate members of Regional Assemblies as the provincial commissioners are nominated. Then the provincial commissioner can convene a meeting and chair that meeting, in which case we have gone back to the days of the Provincial Advisory Councils.

Members should also know that in the days of the Provincial Advisory Council, there used to be a lot of bad things going on. What they used to do—hon. Members will remember that this was a time when we were not independent—was to pick a "Yes" man, a good man from an area. Then they would make very big decisions, very vital decisions. You would then be told this was done with the advice of the Provincial Advisory Council.

But then the position today, Mr. Speaker, is not that, the position is that according to the agreement reached in London we have got people who are elected to the Provincial Councils or as they were then called and are today called Regional Assemblies. These people who have been elected cannot be treated as nominated members. I think it is a mockery. Now I want

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Nyaga, will you please leave the Chamber.
(The hon. Member thereupon withdrew)

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Koedhek): The position as I see it, Sir, should continue in accordance with the way this matter was passed in this House. That is what I maintain should be done.

Mr. Glehoya: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not need to talk much about this, but I still have one thing to say on the part of the Government. There is always some sort of dispute being brought to us as amendments of the Senate, and perhaps I do not really blame the Senate as they lack one thing, and that is legal guidance. Now, my feelings are that, in order to signify things and make them easier for the House, it would even cost the Government very little, if we could lend them an Assistant Legal man in the Chamber of the Senate, so that whenever they are confronted with a legal technicality, they could easily consult a legal man and get the answer so that they do not have to waste more time discussing what otherwise has no meaning in the context of the Constitution.

Now, I feel also that the problem that is within the Senate is mainly because there is not a single lawyer put there by the Government to guide the Senate. Mr. Deputy Speaker, the Government should do something about this, Sir.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We have had a good debate on this, and we do not need to go into it again.

Mr. Glehoya: Mr. Deputy Speaker, what I am trying to suggest is not to the Senators but to the Government, that we have a Deputy Attorney-General for the Chamber of the Senate, or otherwise the Minister responsible for a particular thing should consult with the Attorney-General when returning a Bill to the Senators, and when there is a problem, he should go there instead of sending the Assistant Ministers. It also dignifies the Senators when they see a Minister, a Cabinet Member, going to explain to them the problems, rather than an Assistant Minister who never goes near the Cabinet.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, some of these things are not even technical, they are just mere illusions. The Members of the Senate feel that they are belittled, and consequently, they have to resort to blocking the Bills being made into law.

With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I suggest that the Government must appoint a Deputy Attorney-General to the Senate who will be able to advise on these things, or otherwise a Minister responsible. I think the Attorney-General should go to the Senate and explain to them the whole thing.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to correct a few wrong impressions which have been created in the minds of the Members by the last speaker. He said that the Senators would feel more dignified if, when the Bills are being presented to them, the Minister would go to the Senate and present his views. I would like to inform the hon. Member that, according to the present rules and the Constitution we have at the moment, the Assistant Minister does not sit in the Senate, but only the Minister himself. And, this has been the practice right from the beginning, so I think the hon. Member is a little misinformed.

The other point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is what my hon. colleague, Mr. Anyieni said. He wished that this Bill be referred to a Joint Committee. I understand, Sir, if my information is in order, that if it were that this Bill be referred to the Joint Committee, the implications would be that this Committee would sit for about six months. And whatever agreements or disagreements are reached by that committee, they would be brought again to this House subject to debate in both Houses, and this would automatically mean that this Bill will take almost another full year, without anything being done on the whole thing.

Therefore, I would have thought, Sir, that it is more appropriate that we accept the Bill as it was originally proposed by the House of Representatives, and that we will be in a position to let the Bill operate in a way pending this one year period, until it can be brought again by whoever is interested. So, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think it is a waste of time and also a waste of the tax payers' money if we ignore what is being agreed in the Senate, which would mean that this House is being denied its rights of judging some matters which are clearly stipulated in the Constitution. As several Members have said, and I personally feel this also, we have no quarrel with the Senate, and would not like to enter into the arguments with whatever merits or not they have between these two Houses.

With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to recommend that instead of deferring the debate to the Joint Committee of both Houses, we accept the information given by the Minister, so that we can operate for the time being and effect whatever changes or proposals are made by the Bill.

Mr. Nyaga-Aboki: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not have much to say, and I would like to express to the Members, that after my speech, no Member stands up to speak except to allow the Member to be put.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, much as I sympathize with the suggestion made by the Member for Githungu, that the Senate needs legal guidance as a person should sit with them there, I also appeal to the Members that when Ministers have made their positions clear on a subject as clear as this one, we should not need to be advised from time to time by our fellow Members of Parliament or Ministers. The position is that the Senate should be told through these speeches that in trying to block a Bill, or trying to block any proceedings in the Senate, thinking that it will cause difficulties in this House, they may find themselves without any useful job to do in the Senate. This is now the second or third time they have dealt with the same kind of Bills. All that is required is that one word be inserted, that is "National Assembly". Even the term "National Assembly" does not apply. It is a very vague term, particularly in the Constitution. When we sit together with the Senate here, as on ceremonial days, the term "National Assembly" really and correctly applies. The Senate then be sub judice. It will be in the select Committee's hands, without us knowing or predicting what the select Committee is going to recommend. For that period of six months, we cannot even anticipate the end. In this particular case, we know what the end is going to be and we can begin to act in the knowledge of the finality.

I have never known any Senator in any country who also uses the term "Member of Parliament" after his name. If that is the case, then the word "Senator" should not apply. He should just "be the hon. Senator So-and-so". This means that we can lend some of these experts to the Senate when proceedings are going on. This will help them a great deal and it will help this House as well. All this afternoon we have been dealing with questions which need not arise in this House. We are spending time in this House debating what people who are—decided to know the truth, to read the Constitution should have known a long time ago. But this does cannot stop the Bill falling to work. This is how the Bill is going to operate. It is going to be there and it will be operated when the period of one year has past. There will be no question of bringing it back to the House, nothing. If it is referred to a Joint Committee, it will not work in the manner in which it is now going to work.

With these few facts, I would like to ask Senators, kindly not to address themselves as "Senator So-and-so, M.P.". This will encourage such names to be connected with us here. So, with these few words, Mr. Speaker, I wish to make the suggestion that the question be now put.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not normally allow an hon. Member who has spoken for some length of time to move the closure at the end of his speech; but if no other Member wishes to speak, I will call upon the Mover to reply.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think enough has been said on this subject. I can only say that with the deepest respect for the hon. Member from Majoge-Bassi, I hope he at least appreciates why we do not feel inclined to agree to a select Committee on this matter. We are not suggesting that there are no matters which will arise where it would be useful to go to a select Committee, but in this particular case, there is no room for discussion in the select Committee.

In any case, we are not reducing the time factor by going to a select Committee, because it is provided that a select Committee will meet within six months, by which time, in fact, our hands will be completely tied because the matter will be sub judice. It will be in the select Committee's hands, without us knowing or predicting what the select Committee is going to recommend. For that period of six months, we cannot even anticipate the end. In this particular case, we know what the end is going to be and we can begin to act in the knowledge of the finality.

That, Sir, is the position.

(Question that the Senate amendments be now considered again, put and agreed to)

(Clause 3 read)

THAT clause 3 of the Bill be amended by deleting the words "House of Representatives" appearing therein and inserting in place thereof the words "National Assembly".

(Question proposed)

(Question put and negatived)

(Clause 6 read)

THAT clause 6 of the Bill be amended by deleting the words "House of Representatives" appearing therein and inserting in place thereof the words "National Assembly".

(Question proposed)

(Question put and negatived)

(Ordered that the Clerk carry the said Bill to the Senate and acquaint them with the decision of the House on their amendments thereto)

[Mr. Gichugu] goes to the House of Representatives will have these responsibilities, and whoever goes to the Upper House, which is the Senate, will have these responsibilities, and the voters definitely were very clear that when they sent their representatives to the House, they would take certain responsibilities. Our responsibility, which gives us a unique position so far as our relationship with the Senate is concerned, is the money aspect of the Constitution. If we relegate our responsibility and say, "All right, let's all be on a par," it means that we are abusing the Constitution.

Unless and until the Constitution is amended—and I do not see that there is any need for amending it—so that we are on the same terms of finance with the Senate, I think we must maintain the Constitution, respect the Constitution, and the Senate must do likewise. At the same time, it must be known that in Kenya our Constitution gives us a semi-House of Lords, and a complete House of Commons. This is exactly our status quo. Here, the Senators are the same as the Lords. Although the Senators are ordinary citizens of this country, they are put on the same level as the Lords in England. It also gives them another characteristic, whereby they look like the Senators of the United States, who normally represent a state and not a district. Here, the states are the districts.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, each particular group knows his own responsibility, and it is the decision on the part of this House to accept or reject their responsibility and feel that they are not competent, they are not enough to regulate the moneys of this country.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I say that with all due respect to the Senate, both Houses understand their responsibility.

(Question put and negatived)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Perhaps, a Member would like to consider moving that the Bill be committed to a Joint Committee of both Houses.

Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Anyieni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when I asked this in the form of a point of order, he said that if no Member says that we have a Joint Committee with the Senate, then this Bill will not become law for one year. The time is too short and as such we cannot wait until next week. That very Government now is supporting the idea of leaving the Bill for one year. Now, I do not understand the meaning behind it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That was what we had in mind.

The Minister For Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is this unfortunate arrangement in the Constitution which makes for this rather complicated machinery, but committal to a Joint Committee means, in effect, that the matter is not yet settled, that we still have to go and debate it and discuss it in the Committee as if it were that we were going to delay it. The fact of this matter is that the Constitution is clear, and until the Constitution is amended there is no room for discussion, because it is either this or the other. It is either within the Constitution or in conflict with the Constitution, and as the hon. Member for Gichugu has said, this House, under the Constitution, has its own responsibilities. Are we going to have a Joint Committee to discuss the responsibilities of the two Houses? Is the Committee going to discuss amending the Constitution and so on and so forth.

The other point is that if it is committed to such a Joint Committee, we still have to bring the report back here. Therefore, this discussion of this debate is still open, and we, in the Government, do not feel that the matter lends itself to a joint Committee discussion, nor do we think that we should even imply that there was any room to question the fact that this proposal from the Senate would be in conflict with the Constitution. We are quite happy to let the matter rest now where it is, in the understanding, Mr. Speaker, that at the end of the time stipulated, this Bill automatically moves on to become law, without any further discussion with anybody, without any further arguments on the part of anybody, and without any further return to the House to worry the heads of the Members in the House when the intention is so clear.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, there is a point I would like the Minister to make clear because—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We cannot have any further discussion of this unless some Member wishes to move. We do not have a question before the House at the moment, so we will move on to the next order.

(Ordered that the Clerk carry the said Bill to the Senate and acquaint them with the decision of the House on their amendment thereto)

Consideration of Senate insistence on their amendments

THE POST OFFICE SAVINGS BANK (AMENDMENT) BILL

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not think that the Members would like me to waste any more time merely repeating the arguments I have already given to the House in respect of Order No. 6. The Post Office Savings Bank (Amendment) Bill deals exactly with the same matter, and for the same reasons Government cannot accept the Senate proposed amendments. Unless the hon. Members want me to talk for the sake of talking, I will save more time by just moving it and saying that the same position applies.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You have to move completely that the Senate amendments be now considered again. After that is passed, we will then put the question of the amendment.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am sorry for not having done that. May I now move that the Senate's insistence on their amendments be now considered.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mwangi) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not know where we are going to end up. It is now going to be three years, because we have had the National Assembly, or the House of Representatives, for two years. Now, for another year, in our Bill, we are still going to maintain Legislative Council, because this is what is going to happen and the Government amendments will only be operational after one year. So, I am wondering whether Government could not try to get these committees made and see what happens. If we find that these committees are not suitable, then we will not refer to them any more, but you may find, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that even a committee like that is useful.

I thought the Minister should have been listening because he is to reply, but he is talking to his friends.

I was saying, Sir, if I may repeat myself in short, that I do not really like this idea of us being at loggerheads with each other, and then trying to maintain a colonial language in our Bills for three solid years of independence. I do not think this is good, and I would like the Government to try and see what really happens. If the Government will move that we have a Joint Committee meeting with the Senate and find out what could be the fruits, if we find that the Senators are so negative as to refuse what the majority of the Members of this House have recognized to be something that is necessary and essential for the interests of the country. Then, we shall start to question the rights of the Senate to allow us to maintain clauses like this for three years. But, then we may accuse the Senate falsely by saying that if we meet them they will not do anything. Here, I would like to appeal to the Senate that if the Government decides to convene this joint meeting, I would like to—

Mr. Nyaga: Interjection.

Mr. Anyieni: Surely, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon. Nyaga can give me time to speak.

Mr. Mboya: On a point of order, I thought that the Government told us that there is no discussion in the first Bill, but that has just been passed, and then brought this on the same lines. Then the Government has said that there is no discussion about it, because in this amendment the Government must do without the Senate so the Bill goes without these amendments.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I see your point, but that is not a point of order.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Deputy Speaker, the point I am trying to make is probably, if the Members of this House and that House meet, you must find that there are agreements, but if there are no agreements, in the future whenever there is a tug-of-war, there is no discussion, and it can just be put over like that.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not like to stand and talk on this particular matter, but perhaps a few words of explanation might be useful here. I see the view of my friend, Mr. Anyieni, but I think he is going a bit too far when he goes beyond the explanations which were given in connexion with the order which we have just finished. If we have to bring the whole of this matter to a Joint Committee of both Houses, we will have to forget it more or less as a matter of court procedure. It will be under the court, and we cannot act. But, since we have passed this in this House, it is not our business to tell the Senate what their business is. They should know, but if today we submit this Bill to a Joint Committee, we will not be able to do anything at all.

Mr. Nyaga: Interjection.

Mr. Anylen: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think we have heard all shades of opinion and I move that we now allow the question to be put so that we can go on.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think it is reasonable to allow that question now, and I will put the question that the Mover be now called on to reply.

(Question put and agreed to)

The Minister For Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I regret very much that there seems to have been a misunderstanding on the part of the Senate and a bit of a misunderstanding here as we discussed this particular clause. I want to make it quite clear from the outset that there is no intention whatsoever on the part of the Government to engage in any tug-of-war with the Senate. This is not a tug-of-war with the Senate; we are merely drawing attention to a situation that has arisen as a result of a misunderstanding in the Senate as regards the definition of this Bill and the extent of the powers of the Senate in relation to the powers of the Lower House.

To accept the Senate insistence would amount to a conflict with the Constitution. That, in fact, is the crux of the matter and what we are having to decide here. Our decision and the contention of the Government is that we are bound to uphold the Constitution until such time as the Constitution is itself amended.

Now, Sir, there are two aspects of the Constitution and perhaps here I might confess to having injected into the House some degree of misunderstanding when I first spoke. There are two aspects of the Constitution, the first of which deals with money Bills as defined in the Constitution, and this lays down the procedure by which such money Bills may be passed through the National Assembly and without the veto or delay by the Senate. The normal delay period by the Senate does not apply in those matters. It means that the Senate may consider them, but the Senate may not delay them or veto their passage. When they have been taken to the Senate and they have had the opportunity to express their views, these Bills, with the certificate of the Speaker of the Lower House, must be approved and the period stipulated of one month is then applied.

The other aspect is with regard to Bills which refer to money or financial matters. These are not dealt with under the certificate of the Speaker of the Lower House, but it is provided for under section 60 of the Constitution that the person presiding in the House would, in fact, draw attention to the fact that this Bill was a financial Bill in so far as it had any connexion with expenditures or any other monetary aspects. Under this section 60 (1) (b), the Speaker of the Senate could have—and I regret that this was not done—drawn the attention of the Senate and so ruled that this insistence would amount to a contradiction or a conflict with the Constitution as this was a financial matter. However, this was not done and I am not going to take issue with the Speaker of the Senate at this point. But the point is that in that case, in this second aspect of the Constitution, the final say rests with the Lower House, and the principle that the Government holds is that, whereas this is not a money Bill in the terms of the section requiring a certificate by the Speaker of the Lower House, it is a financial matter which would require expenditures and other related matters, which must rest with the Lower House, until such time as section 60 of the Constitution is amended. So long as section 60 stands, it is not possible to have this extended to the use of the words "National Assembly" as suggested by the Senate because that would imply that the final say would rest, in fact, with the Senate, whereas the Constitution stipulates that on these kinds of matters—money matters—the final say must rest with the Lower House.

Now, Sir, I hope that this clarification helps us to get over some of the misunderstandings that have arisen. I would like also to explain to those hon. Members who felt that perhaps Government was not anxious to reach agreement with either the Parliamentary Group or the Senators that that is, again, not so. In the last two days, the Assistant Minister for Finance made efforts to discuss this matter with the Parliamentary Group but without success, due to the fact that the Parliamentary Group was involved in quite a number of other things, in which many hon. Members here are aware. In fact, this morning, when the Assistant Minister attended the meeting, he specifically asked to speak on these Bills and he was told that there would be a lot of other business and that these could be left without discussion. So Government has, in fact, tried, outside the Chamber, to discuss these matters informally. I assure the hon. Members of the Senate that there is no intention of entering into a tug-of-war with them or to slight their position or dignity; in fact, we do recognize their position and dignity and wish to work with them in all harmony and co-operation, as we have done in the past and will continue to do in the future.

(The Minister for Economic Planning and Development)

Mr. Speaker, the issue is very simple. The law that exists today, as we speak here, still refers to "Legislative Council" and until this amendment is passed, we will have a law which refers to a "Legislative Council". We do not have a Legislative Council and have not had one for the last two years, so it is important and urgent that this amendment is approved, so that the law is brought into reality with the new situation. The body which takes over the place of the Legislative Council in this particular case is the House of Representatives: only in this particular case, but in many other cases the Acts refer to the "National Assembly" which does not mean, as was explained here, that when matters of this kind come here they will not go to the Senate. They will go as usual, the only thing is that the final say will rest with the Lower House, as the Constitution stipulates.

I hope, Sir, that these explanations help us now to agree that the Senate amendment should not be accepted and that the amendment as proposed in the Bill should be approved.

(Question, that the Senate amendment be now considered put and agreed to)

(Clause 4 read)

That clause 4 of the Bill be amended by deleting the words "House of Representatives" appearing therein and inserting in place thereof the words "National Assembly".

(Question proposed)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is open to debate now, but I think hon. Members, having said what they have had to say, may not need to say much more.

Mr. Anylen: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to speak on this but I want to ask your guidance. After we have rejected the Senate's amendment, will the Bill again go back to the Senate or is it going to go somewhere else, otherwise the tug of war continues?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, it does not go back to the Senate. It does not go further anywhere, pending the expiration of one year, unless a Member moves today that the Bill be committed to a Joint Committee of both Houses. It is open to any Member to move that, the moment the House has disagreed with the Senate amendment, then it will go to a Joint Committee of both Houses, with a certain number of representatives of each House appointed by the Sessional Committee of that House. They will put their heads together, see whether they cannot reach agreement, after which they will report back to their respective Houses what they think both Houses should agree.

The only other alternative is that the Bill lies dormant until a year has passed, after which it can become law in spite of the Senate opposition.

Mr. Mboya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I do not understand here is that now the Government says that this Bill is a money Bill like any other Bill—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, it is not a money Bill. It has been explained to hon. Members so much that a money Bill is in a clause by itself, and it is covered by certain special procedure, special privileges; but any special provision in any Bill which deals with money is the prerogative of this House, and this particular principal Act, which the present Bill seeks to amend, contains a provision which controls the indebtedness, the expenditure of public funds, by this particular corporation. So the amending Bill seeks to put that power in this House; the Senate seeks to get that power for both Houses. This House has said no; the Senate has said yes again, and here we are.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, one thing, I think, which ought to be very clear to the Members of the Senate is that each House, under the Constitution, has its own duty, its own responsibility, and its own dignity as well. Anything pertaining to money or money matters or financial aspects of the Kenya Government or this country, for that matter, is directly the responsibility of its Members of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Khasakhala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, as most of the explanation has been given to us, I move that the question be now put.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will allow that, but I think out of courtesy to Mr. Gichoya we should allow him to finish. He is trying. I think to ease relations between the two Houses.

Mr. Gichoya: What is more important, Sir, is that each House has to understand its own responsibility, humbly and honourably. Each House should respect the other. There has been somehow a feeling amongst Members of the Senate that because the Constitution does not give them the right to deal with money matters, their House is inferior. This is a feeling. Mr. Speaker, which is very wrong. It is erroneous because the Constitution stipulates—and it was stipulated before we were elected—that whoever what was inherited by the Government from the previous Government was the two-thirds of the moneys of the Savings Bank should be invested abroad in London markets. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is one of the things we feel, that if this Bill was passed it would be advantageous to us, because that money will be available for us.

[The Assistant Minister for Finance]

Now, as far as the point under dispute is concerned. Actually it is a matter of—Mr. Speaker, Sir, you have ruled that this is not a money Bill but it is quite clear that this is a matter which concerns finance and, as such, it is something that it is the business of the Lower House, House of Representatives.

We all know that when we have approved the Bills, whether they are financial Bills or not they also go to the Senate, and as in this case, this Bill went to the Senate. The fact is that it has been put here that we do not need, the Senate approval to the Bill, we only need the approval of the House of Representatives but this does not mean that whatever is decided the Bill will not go to the Senate. It will eventually go to the Senate and be passed. The only thing being stated here is that it would be wrong to say the "National Assembly", in other words the Senate, should have a say in this, because that amounts to more or less changing the Constitution which gives the approval of financial matters solely to the House of Representatives, and I think this is a point which is just a little confusing. It is just a question of using the name which is in the Constitution. The Constitution says that financial Bills can be passed by the House of Representatives and cannot be passed or amended by the Senate. Now, that does not mean that financial Bills cannot be referred to the Senate. They can go to the Senate, but the only thing, according to the Constitution, is that the Senate cannot amend them, but, if by implication here they would say that it should be referred to the Senate, it would be more or less changing the Constitution and this is the point we have been trying to put across.

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would appeal to the Members to see this point, and pass this Bill so that the Members of the Senate who have not been approached by the Government and this point has not been discussed with them, but I feel sure that when this matter is discussed with the hon. Senators, they will see the point and will accept the explanation that if we were to follow the instructions or the amendments, it would amount more or less to the changing of the Constitution which is not what they intend us to do, so it is just a question of, in this case, saying to the Sensors, that we need their understanding, because it appears that it is they who did not quite understand the position as far as the words "House of Representatives" and "National Assembly" is concerned.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, whilst I support the views of my colleagues who have said the Senate should have been given a briefing on this Bill, I do not see the reason why the Bill should be delayed. If we want the Government to draft the Bill at a later stage, I feel the necessity of making the Government carry out its work swiftly with regard to this Bill as it was brought here before and the Senate amendment was rejected at this juncture, because, it is going to cause unnecessary delay of the Bill because of a small technical wording that the Senate wanted to be part and parcel of the entrenchment in the Bill. It is not very necessary to change the wording of the Bill as a whole, but they only want it to be part and parcel of the entrenchment of the Bill, that does not mean that the House should delay this Bill up to six months. I feel that we should reject the Senate amendment and pass this Bill now, Mr. Speaker. With these few words I beg to oppose.

Mr. Nyaga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. Is it in order according to your ruling, if any Member in this House wishes to give some hints?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I did not quite understand you, Mr. Nyaga.

Mr. Nyaga: Is it in order if any Member, is it in order, if he or she wishes to hint on a point? Is it in order, Mr. Speaker if one wishes to give a hint on a point to be raised, is it in order?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members can only give hints to the House when they hold the Floor, as of right, unless when it is on a point of order, which any hon. Member can raise as of right any time, or the hon. Member who is speaking is prepared to give away. That is the only way that hints can be given.

Mr. Kamani: Mr. Speaker, I have found that most of the things which we depict here, I believe that we sometimes waste time and the taxpayers' money arguing on a small point. I would say that the explanation which was given by Mr. Speaker here and given by the Vice-President that the rejection of the Senate amendment was due to a technical point from the constitutional point of view. I think the Constitution is now being revised and amended by the Attorney-General, but in the Bill at our disposal at the moment, I think it is irrelevant that no Point of Order—

the House should support it to pass as the Vice-President has explained, and for the amendment of the Constitution to enable the hon. Members of the Senate to appear everywhere in the House. This should be thoroughly revised by the Attorney-General, but on this particular point, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think we Members of the House should support this Bill with the understanding that the rejection of the Senate amendment was only because it was not in the Constitution. With these few remarks I oppose the amendment.

Mr. Nyaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to oppose the amendment. We have down in this House, this House of Kenya here, that now went down and it is down. I have a chance of my own, you have had yours. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member thinks that we have got the two Germans here, the East and the West—

An hon. Member: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could we be told who those are as I happen not to understand.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I cannot really tell you because it is not at all relevant.

Mr. Nyaga: Could we just have one thing, I am only talking about the Senate and the House of Representatives. If we want to be divided in our workings, that is wrong. That is the Chief Staff of this House, that is the House of Representatives

..... (Inaudible.)
If I say yes then it is yes and that is all. Therefore and coming from Mr. Mboya, the word, the honourable word, I know where I am heading to anyway. What, what? After convincing us just because

..... (Inaudible.)
We have it here, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not reporting it. If we got to be something that is that and not the Senate and therefore we are and they are there. The Senate does not belong

..... (Inaudible.)
I do not know.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Nyaga, you must sit down.

POINT OF ORDER

CONDUCT IN THE CHAMBER

Mr. Odoyo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this is becoming a little bit too much and I am seeking your guidance on this. What happens if Members of this House speak and the Member who has just been speaking is under the influence of alcohol. We cannot allow this type of thing to continue in the Chamber with the public here. It does not boost the morale of this House.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have dealt with this point of order before. It is not for me to judge whether an hon. Member is drunk or sober, as I am not really able to do so. I have known some of the hon. Members who never touched a drop of strong drink but who behaved in a very drunken manner in this House; and then there are other hon. Members whom I have found, who can carry an enormous amount of alcohol and still not disgrace themselves in this House. All I am concerned with is the actual conduct of a Member, drunk or sober. If a Member, drunk or sober, so misconducts himself that he has to be ordered out of the Chamber, then he is ordered out of the Chamber. The hon. Member is not in that position, though he has become so irrelevant, I might say, incoherent, that I have to ask him to sit down.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamwaya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is there any other way by which an hon. Member in the House who feels that a particular Member is behaving in a manner which is not consistent with the dignity of this House, to ask the Speaker to order that particular hon. Member to leave the Chamber?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Only if the behaviour amounts to gross misconduct. Very often we have cases where an hon. Member behaves in a way of which other hon. Members do not approve, either in the manner of speaking or the substance of what he says, but unless it amounts to gross misconduct—it really has to be gross misconduct—it is not right for the Speaker to deprive that hon. Member of the right of attending this Chamber.

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to speak on the Motion.

I notice that what we are being asked here is to approve a consequential amendment of a principal Act which has already been passed, and as such, Mr. Speaker, I would like to urge the House not to take too much time over something that has already been dealt with before. As there appears to have been a little misunderstanding on the part of the Upper House which thought that they were entitled to take part in this kind of deliberation, I would like to oppose the amendment and urge that the consequential amendment, as requested originally, stand.

Mr. Ochwada: Which will take probably another six months?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It certainly should not take so long.

Mr. Anyien: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is becoming a very difficult matter for us, because I understand that what we want really changing was the words "Legislative Council" to the words "National Assembly" or to the "House of Representatives". Now we refused the amendment and then the Senate refused to withdraw their amendment and so it has gone on. I think, Mr. Speaker, that if we allow this to continue again it is going to create a very unfortunate relationship between this House and the other House, which may not be in the interests of the country as a whole. Therefore I would like to say that if this is strictly a money matter—and here I would like to ask the Attorney-General and whoever understands the Constitution fully not to tell the Members what is not true because I have tried to read the relevant clauses in the Constitution, but up to this time I have not been able to understand as to whether this is strictly a money matter.

Therefore I would like to say that Government should, if they want us to create a good relationship, probably withhold the Bill; then we can meet in our Parliamentary Group for discussion, either tomorrow or Tuesday or next week, and the Bill can be brought up again on Wednesday. This is so the position can be made clear to the Members because we do not want anybody to mislead us into thinking that this is, say, a money Bill and then we vote against it and then later on we come to discover it is not a money Bill; on the other hand, we do not want anyone to tell us that this is not a money Bill, so we say that if this is not a money Bill we will accept and then later on we discover it is otherwise. If it is a money Bill, then I do not see why we should waste the taxpayers' money discussing the thing all the time. In that case, we should say, "It is finished." Whether the Senators want it or not, if it is a money Bill then they can do nothing; after all, they accepted the Constitution.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I must explain again that this is not a money Bill, but that is not the end of the matter. The Constitution gives this House exclusive control of all financial matters, and although this is not a money Bill, the particular provision of the principal Act which the Senate wishes to alter is a money provision, which says who is to control the amount of indebtedness which this corporation can incur, whether it is to be this House or both Houses. That is the issue here. It is nothing to do with a money Bill, it is to do with a provision concerning the control of finance.

Mr. Anyien: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Perhaps I may be allowed to ask a question in order to make the position clear. Does it mean that constitutionally the Senators have the right to introduce an amendment?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): They have the right to propose any amendment. The question is whether this House will accept any amendment which they regard as going contrary to the Constitution.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would you please explain to the House or to me the Standing Order No. 111, the last paragraph of part 1, as to when matters of this kind should go to a Joint Committee?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is provided, either when the House has resolved to postpone consideration of this amendment for six months or has disagreed with the Senate. In either case, any Member can then move reference to a Joint Committee. After one of those two decisions has been made by this House, any Member can move reference to a Joint Committee.

I interrupted you there, Mr. Anyien.

Mr. Anyien: Therefore, if that is the case, I should like Government to explain to us why they do not think this should be for the National Assembly instead of for the House of Representatives. In this, I am not specifically referring to this Bill because this is not the only Bill of this kind, there might be many more such Bills in the future. We must do everything we can to prevent our having to come here, discuss something, agree to it, pass it on to the Senate, who refuse it, have it come back here, refuse it again, pass it back there and so on. I think the whole country will think we are not responsible enough. Some amount of understanding should be given and with regard to this particular Bill I think there is some little misunderstanding. I cannot blame the Government too much for not having consulted the Parliamentary Group because I understand that even yesterday the Ministry concerned wanted it to be returned to the Parliamentary Group but the Group was too busy with other things, as it has been today. Even so, I would like to ask the Government kindly, in order not to create bad feeling between us and the other House, if this Bill could be [Mr. Anyien:] put off until tomorrow, or next week, so that we can discuss it and then agree together and come back and get it finished.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odonga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, probably in my lay language I might be able to convey to the Members that the argument we have here is only a very slight misunderstanding. It is something that can actually be explained between ourselves as Members here and in the Senate and something which we can understand. In our Constitution it is clearly stated that any questions dealing with money matters are dealt with by the House of Representatives and this particular clause only quotes what is already in the Constitution, that any of those money questions will be dealt with by the House of Representatives, and this is where the Senate, probably because of a little bit of misunderstanding, think that they are being excluded unnecessarily, but it is only the Constitution which is being quoted. If later the Senate and this House agree to amend that one, that is another separate issue which can be discussed in either Bill which may be brought here, but this one should only stand as it is. The Bill, as Mr. Speaker said, is not a money Bill, but this particular clause deals with money which is usually a monopoly of this House, according to the Constitution and that is why I think if we really settle this, and agree that we have not seen any way of agreeing with the amendment that was suggested, I think that later if some of the Members, or even the Ministers, go to address the Senate, they will be able to explain it to the Senate to understand it, but I think this should not drag out all the time, that it has done, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think, Mr. Ochwada, you have had your go.

Mr. Ochwada: No, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I raised a point of order.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Oh, it was a point of order. I thought you were moving the adjournment of the debate and then decided not to. All right.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I tend to agree with the explanation given by the Vice-President, one wonders why, because this is an instance brought by the Senate on their amendment, it was brought to this House, we referred it back to the Senate. At least someone, from the Front Bench, on the other side, could have taken the initiative to explain to the Senators what exactly this clause referred to. I think it is unfair that the Minister should put us at loggerheads with the Senate unless, of course, there is a motive behind it. I hate to use the word motive.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have to be very careful how you do, too, Mr. Ochwada.

Mr. Ochwada: But this being the second time the Senate was referring back to us, there was ample opportunity for the Ministers to go to the Senate, and tell them exactly what it was about.

Mr. Nyaga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, may I have your ruling as to whether the raising on a point of order, and is it in accordance with the ruling?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He is not raising a point of order, now, Mr. Nyaga, he is saying that when he spoke previously it was only on a point of order. I allowed him that it was only a point of order he was speaking on before.

Mr. Ochwada: Now, Sir, that the Senate has again refused to accept it and has referred it back to us, and the Minister is insisting that we insist on our previous decision on the Bill: namely, to reject the Senate amendment, I would like the Minister when he comes to explain why this has been allowed to go on for a long time.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is the duty of this House, of course, to deal with certain Bills which may not be dealt with by the Senate and I would tend to have agreed with the Minister's proposal that we insist on our previous decision on the Bill, but unless I am satisfied by an explanation from the Minister that perhaps there was an effort made to convince the Senate that this did not fall within their scope of deliberations then I do tend to agree with my hon. Member for Majogo-Bassi that discussion on this Bill be deferred until next week.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odongo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that the Government is anxious to have this Bill passed and therefore the Government will not be anxious to support the postponement of the Bill, especially because one of the Bills deals with the money that belonged to the Post Office Savings Bank and one of the provisions here was that two-thirds of the moneys of the Post Office Savings Bank should be invested abroad. This has been changed by one of the Bills here, that this money should now be invested in Kenya, so the longer we wait then the more we are going to lose this opportunity of using this money in our development, but according to [Mr. Oduya] and also of the Senate, is misleading. The Minister has told us that the Government has rejected it. That means that the Cabinet must have met and decided on an issue. They failed to give us a warning that the decision had already been made, and they did not ask our opinion. The Government only found it necessary to wait until it came to the Chamber here to tell the Members that they had rejected the Senate amendments.

If this continues always it will not help the smooth running of the two Chambers on matters like this. The blame lies with the Cabinet and not us here. This time the Senate amendments must go through. The Minister insisted on the issue by referring us to several things. I must take this opportunity now to ask the Minister to allow the Bill to go through. If he again talks of the Constitution, then we should, since the Attorney-General is present in this Chamber, withdraw the Bill and then we should amend it again properly. We have amended so many parts of the Constitution which was drawn up in London. Since we have amended so many parts, we can also amend the paragraphs which forbid the Senate to take part in financial matters. If we can have a Republic, we can introduce a provision for the President, and other things like that. These things never existed when the Constitution was formed in the London Conference: I do not see why we cannot create some provisions whereby the Senate also can take part in financial matters because they are also elected like the Members here. I am not going to declare war against any Senator who is equally elected like myself on a matter like this Bill which is not strictly a Bill dealing with money. It does not stop the Government from using the money that this House has already approved. This is merely a Bill which the Government would like to come into operation so that it can be taken as a legal existing organization.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks, I beg to support the amendment of the Senate.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The actual Motion before the House at the moment, I would remind hon. Members, is that the amendments be now considered. If it is resolved that we do consider it, we then come to the question of whether we agree with it or do not agree with it. But there was at one stage, I thought, a suggestion by Mr. Oduya that the Bill should be withdrawn. If that is a serious suggestion, then that should be put as an amendment now to the Motion Bill that the amendment be now considered.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to make a suggestion to the House, or rather the Ministry concerned with the Bill, in the light of what explanation has been given by the Speaker, and the information we had first, well elaborated, from the Minister for Economic Planning. We know for certain that the powers relating to money is a privilege and a right of this House. The Senate has a privilege of balancing and checking whatever we process in this House.

It seems as if there is an attempt to frustrate whatever this House does. This comes as a result of the fact that perhaps the Ministers do not go to the Senate and explain these things very clearly to the Senators on whatever Bill we pass from here; that the explanation of a Bill is this and that. You have just made it clear to us, Mr. Speaker, that the Constitution does, to a certain extent, guarantee this Bill, so that the Senate can have a say over the corporation, or over the funds connected with the corporation. The Minister did say—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. I am sorry, I am afraid you have misunderstood me if you thought I said that. What I was pointing out was that this was not a money Bill within the special definition of a money Bill in the Constitution, and the special provisions, with regard to money Bills as defined by the Constitution, which require the Bill to become law within one month, even if it is not approved by the Senate. That is a special class of Bill which deals exclusively with money. But other provisions of the Constitution make all financial matters the responsibility of this House and place even a single financial provision in a Bill, which also deals with other things outside the jurisdiction of the Senate. That is the case which the Minister was putting forward mainly, and that is the case which I said must receive careful attention by this House.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel we should—in order not to have a tug-of-war between this House and the other House—as a trial have a joint committee of the two Houses whereby the implications of this Bill be examined from the context of the Constitution. The views of the Senators would then be carefully considered. It might be that the Senators, for one reason or another, thought it wise to insist, not just merely reject it and recommend amendments to be incorporated in this Bill. It might insist as a matter of right. When they maintain that it is a matter of right, it is a challenge to this House, that the House either rejects or accepts it. The Senate, if this House rejects it, will take certain steps to justify their stand. In order to

Mr. Gichoya] avoid this question of clashes between the two Houses, I suggest that the Minister accepts to have a joint committee of two Houses to go into—am sorry, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will not accept the Ministerial Committee. We would like to have a special committee composed of experts from the Senate, those who understand the Constitution from the Senate, and people from this House who understand the Constitution. If it is a matter of taking it to the Parliamentary Group, I am sure we would not do justice to the matter, because there are over 100 people in the Parliamentary Group. A small committee would just go into a issue better than a large number of people who will, when they are tired of certain explanations, decide to take a decision in a hurry.

What I feel should be done, is that we should have a committee of a few people, maybe five people from the Senate, five people from here, and the two Ministers, possibly: the Minister for Finance and the Attorney-General. The Attorney-General should state clearly and categorically the position with regard to the law. The Finance Minister should explain to the committee what conditions he needs to borrow this money, so that the House or the Parliament will be able to decide whether the money should be borrowed or not.

From there on, you see, you are going to get the money from the Consolidated Fund of this country. Now from there the decision will be taken and the Senators will be fully satisfied that justice has been done to their insistence on their amendment. It is very unfortunate that they had to insist. I would put it this way, that they are re-insisting on it, which means that a special way of approach must be found.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few words, I would suggest that the Government consider establishing a joint committee of the two Houses to examine this problem rather than merely voting for it or against it without first going deeper into the constitutional implications.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Gichoya, before you finish your speech, you might like to consider moving an amendment to the Motion, that consideration of this amendment be postponed for six months for the purpose of reference to a Joint Committee of the two Houses. Under our Standing Orders, if consideration is postponed, or if the House eventually disagrees with the Senate for the second time, then really there is an alternative to a reference to a Joint Committee of the two Houses. You can wait today until you find that this House disagrees with the Senate, and then move another Motion for reference to a Joint Committee; but if you want to avoid the point where we disagree again, you could move now these amendments, that all words after the word "that" be omitted and substitute therefore "consideration of the Senate amendment be postponed for six months".

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, I wonder whether this Joint Committee could meet earlier than in six months' time because this is more or less killing the Bill, which personally I do not think is very wise. Is there any other way out whereby we could have the Joint Committee dealing with the Bill, say, in one week's time or a month's time?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think postponement of consideration for six months, to wait for a Joint Committee to make a report and both Houses accepting the report within six months, really amounts to killing the Bill. But if you prefer to wait until the House has recorded its disagreement and then move reference to a Joint Committee, then you will still achieve your object.

Mr. Gichoya: Then, Mr. Speaker, in that connexion, I would concur with the views of the Minister so that we do not kill the Bill but the Bill could be considered in regard to another way out.

With those few words, Sir, I support the Minister with the intention that the Bill is going to be considered thoroughly.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, supposing we treated it in the way we treated the Agriculture Bill in deferring consideration of the Senate amendments for a few days and then probably next week, when we have had discussions among ourselves, we will reconsider the Senate amendments. Perhaps this might be a better way of doing it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You could move an adjournment of this debate if you wish. That is a way to get what you want. You can move to adjourn this debate until a week hence; if you like to do that now, you may do so, Mr. Ochwada. Do you wish to move that formally?

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, I see the Minister is shaking his head, also the Vice-President. I do not see the way out, because—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The best way, I think, Mr. Ochwada, is to let this debate be finished today, and then move a reference to a Joint Committee.

nearby and we have Manyani Hospital also, which is only a few miles away. Along the Nairobi-Mombasa Road, there are good bus services and it is therefore possible for people around this area to travel to these four hospitals. There is also a doctor at Voi, which is sixty miles away.

Mr. Kase: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister talks of there being a good bus service and railway service, is he aware that a poor person cannot afford to pay a hospital fee, plus bus fare or any fare, so is he prepared to make provisions to see that this place receives better medical services than it has at the present time?

Mr. Otende: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in comparison with other parts of Kenya, I may say this area has only a population of 2,000 people and the population is very scattered and it is in the Tsavo National Park and therefore this place, Mito Andoi, is suitable for a medical centre to cater for the people of the area.

Mr. Ndile: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that in spite of the low population, the area is full of snakes and wild animals and because of these things the people need medical attention?

Mr. Otende: I quite agree, Mr. Speaker, there are very many snakes and wild animals and the few human beings who are there are concentrated around the railway line, where we hope to provide medical services.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question. Mr. Kiprotich wishes to withdraw the next question, which he is entitled to. We will go on to the next question from Mr. Balala. Is Mr. Balala not here? Is there any hon. Member authorized to ask this question on Mr. Balala's behalf? Mr. Jahazi.

Question No. 890

RENT CONTROL BILL: INTRODUCTION OF

Mr. Jahazi, on behalf of Mr. Balala, asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry, when the Bill on rent control of business premises would be introduced in the House.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloithitip): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Landlord and General Shop Rent Control Bill and Cafe Establishment Bill, 1965, has already been drafted and sent to the Government Printer for printing before introduction into this House.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since this Bill is very important, would the Assistant Minister ask the printers to hurry it up because this House has been wanting it for a long time?

Mr. Oloithitip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we do not as a Ministry compel the printer of the Kenya Government to hurry, but may I assure the Members that next week, Sir, the Minister for Commerce and the members of this committee will sit down and discuss this Bill before it is introduced to this Parliament.

Mr. Kaggin: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the Minister for Commerce and Industry had been promising the traders this Bill for more than six months now, can the Assistant Minister tell us why this Bill up to now has not been printed?

Mr. Oloithitip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the delay over this Bill comes from the Treasury itself. The passage of this Bill has so far been held up by lack of financial resources in the Treasury, Sir. The original Bill provided for a tribunal which would have cost the Government about £6,000, but unfortunately the Treasury had said that there was no money available at that moment. Therefore, Sir, the delay was entirely the responsibility of the Treasury, and not of my Ministry.

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the urgency of this Bill, to be introduced in this House, will the Assistant Minister assure this House that as soon as this Bill has been printed he will seek the leave of this House to introduce it for debate before the forty days which are normally required?

Mr. Oloithitip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said that the Bill is about ready and it will be brought next week to our Ministry and those members in that committee will sit down and if they think it is fit that it should not be laid for forty days, then it will be their choice.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We must go on now. Before the next order, I think, Dr. Waiyaki, you had a personal statement to make?

PERSONAL STATEMENT

ADVERTISEMENTS FOR APPOINTMENTS TO THE PUBLIC SERVICE

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office (Dr. Waiyaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, in answering a supplementary question to Question No. 913 on 3rd March, asked me by the hon. Mr. Ngila, the Member for Kilifi South, I wrongly stated

792

[The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office] that an advertisement in the Official Gazette called for applications for posts in the Kenya Government by persons of African origin only. I also contended that a similar advertisement had appeared in the East African Standard. It has recently been brought to my notice that, in fact, such advertisements did appear in the said publications and, therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to correct the information I gave to the House on the 3rd March. The Government wishes to correct the imbalance on racial lines in the composition of the Civil Service that it inherited from the previous Colonial Government. A Kenya citizen of African origin will, in effect, be given preference when all other things are equal and there will be no lowering of standards.

NOTICES OF MOTIONS FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

RACIAL DISCRIMINATION IN PUBLIC APPOINTMENTS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. I have to inform hon. Members that I have had notice from Mr. Pandya of his desire to raise on an adjournment the same matter: that is, the matter of racial discrimination in public appointments, related to the question to which the hon. Member has just referred. I have appointed the close of business next Tuesday, 30th March, for Mr. Pandya to raise that matter.

PRICE OF LAND IN KENYA HIGHLANDS

I have also had notice from Mr. Masinde of his desire to raise on an adjournment the matter which was the subject of Question No. 879: that is, the price of land in the Kenya Highlands. I have allotted Wednesday, 31st March, at the close of business, for him to raise that matter.

BILLS

(Consideration of Senate insistence on their amendments)

THE KENYA MEAT COMMISSION (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Since this is the first time we have had to deal in this House with amendments which the Senate insists upon after rejection by this House, I would remind hon. Members of what I said when I reported this instance two weeks ago, as to the procedure which now follows.

I think the right procedure is for the Minister concerned to move as a matter of fact that these amendments be again considered; but on that Motion there can be an amendment moved, either that the consideration be postponed for six months or that the Bill be withdrawn altogether. Unless hon. Members wish to propose one amendment or the other, then the consideration should be carried and we move to the question of agreeing or disagreeing with the Senate amendments. I then propose the question that the House agrees with the Senate amendments, and the House can agree or disagree. If the House disagrees, the House can still propose an alternative amendment. If we find ourselves in the end disagreeing with the Senate and not being prepared to withdraw the Bill or postpone the consideration, or even if consideration is postponed, it is open to any hon. Member to move that the matter be referred to a Joint Committee of both Houses, and on that Motion the question is put without debate. I understand in this particular matter—the Kenya Meat Commission (Amendment) Bill—the Assistant Minister for Agriculture would like to delay the Motion for consideration for a matter of a week on account of discussions now pending between him and representatives of the Senate, in the hope that when it does come before this House it will be plain sailing.

That is so, is it not, Mr. Osogo?

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): That is so, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): So we will have it on the Order Paper next week?

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Yes, Sir. Thank you.

(By leave of the House consideration was deferred)

(Consideration of Senate insistence on their amendment)

THE CEREALS AND SUGAR FINANCE CORPORATION (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mboya, you are moving that the Senate amendment be again considered?

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Yes, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It would be helpful if, in moving, you could remind the House of exactly what amendment we are dealing with.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I

[Mr. Aremam] Minister will agree with me that the Turkwell/Keritor Road to Lodwar is cheaper than the one from Kitale to Uganda, which is more than 500 miles and this one is about 300 miles. Can he agree with me?

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I may agree, but that does not help at all, because as I said, if this project had been given by the provincial authority as being of priority over others from Rift Valley, definitely we would have considered it.

Mr. Ekitella: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I just want to know if the Minister could tell me straight-off, how many miles it is from here to Lodwar, 610, and could you please, coming back—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order! Mr. Ekitella, you have to remember to address the Chair. You must not address hon. Members direct.

Mr. Ekitella: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could he tell me instead of going into Uganda, could he just take a cross road from Nakuru to Lodwar, instead of using a lot of money?

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that may be the case but I hope that in the future the Rift Valley Provincial Authority will be in a position to recommend this as priority and definitely we will sympathize with it.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the Assistant Minister's replies, he has already told the House that he takes the advice of the Central Road Authority and at the same time he takes the advice of the Rift Valley Road Authority, could the Assistant Minister assure this House that the intention of Government is to develop those areas which were neglected by the previous Government, and for that matter this road deserves the first priority other than relying on what the Rift Valley Authority think?

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Rift Valley Provincial Authority has a representative elected by the people from Turkana and also in the road authority we have a representative from the Rift Valley who sits on behalf of the Rift Valley, and if they feel that this project deserves priority, we will always consider the fact. This is only one of thousands of applications that need the limited funds from Government.

Mr. Tanuli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell the House which road in Turkana has been given priority?

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is a priority list drawn up by the Rift Valley Provincial Council Authority and in that list, which was sent by the Rift Valley Provincial Authority there is no road from Turkana.

NOTICE OF MOTIONS FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 972: BRIDGE LINKING NORTH AND SOUTH TURKANA

Mr. Ekitella: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the unsatisfactory answer from the Assistant Minister, I would like to raise this matter on an adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You will remember, Mr. Ekitella that you have to give me written notice.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

/Question No. 975

BRIDGE ACROSS RIVER NZOIA

Mr. Odero-Sar asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power if he could tell the House what preparations the Government had made to build a bridge across River Nzoia to connect North Ugenya with Buholo Locations in Ugenya Constituency.

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bonnett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply, and the answer is exactly the same as I have given to the hon. Mr. Ekitella, that is that this project was not included in the Nyanza and Western Provincial Authorities list of priorities.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that the Regional Assembly, Nyanza Region, proposed to place a bridge across Nzoia River to connect Buholo with Ugenya and how he is to answer that?

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have a list in the office of these priorities given by Nyanza and Western Province Authorities and I can show it to the hon. Member if he wishes to see it, and this is not in at all.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell this House whether, he has contacted his officers at the Nyanza Region concerned and whether he has been told that this particular bridge needs priority or not?

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it was only a month ago that the first meeting of the Road Authority sat and the Chairman of the Works Committee in the Nyanza Province was actually at this meeting and he never brought it up at [Mr. Bonnett] in fact, even in the list supplied by the Nyanza Provincial Authority, it is not included at all.

Mr. Kase: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I being a member of this road authority, as if the Assistant Minister is aware that all the estimates brought by the various provinces were rejected by this authority and were referred back?

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, they were not rejected at all.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, would he tell the House why nothing is being done about these roads?

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would be interested to know which one the hon. Member is referring to.

Question No. 997

DIFFERENT PASSENGER CLASSES ON RAILWAYS

Mr. arap To asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power if—

(a) the different classes of passenger travel on East African Railways was originally designed to provide separate classes for each race;

(b) if so, had the Minister made representations to the appropriate authority to introduce some other systems which avoided the possibility of any such discrimination?

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bonnett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. No Sir, the different classes were designed to cater for the various income groups living within East Africa.

The answer to the second part of your question is that no discrimination is applied. Accommodation at the various classes is available irrespective of race subject to the passengers' willingness to pay the fare appropriate to the class.

Mr. arap To: Arising out of that reply, Sir, will the Assistant Minister assure this House that he is going to improve the standard of the hard wooden seats in the third class carriages?

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have the pleasure to inform the hon. Members in this House that actually this is the case and that the authorities of the East African Railways and Harbours are very conscious of the need to provide a better standard of comfort for the passengers in the lower income bracket of the community.

There is of course, a limit to what can be done, if raising the cost of passenger fares is to be avoided. The East African Railways and Harbours are in the process of converting third class seats from the present hard type to padded ones.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the Minister's replies where he said that he had no such classes, could he agree with me that today in some of the coaches on the East African Railways there are marked on toilet doors "Europeans" or "Non-Europeans", is this not discrimination?

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, for want of a better solution, past practice has been to differentiate people labelling these toilets as European type and non-European type, but such discriminations are now being altered to Eastern type and Western type.

Mr. Oduyo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I know one simple thing from the Assistant Minister, why in third class coaches you always find the toilets marked for "Women Only"? Where are the ones for good African men?

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware of that. All I know is that there are toilets for men only.

Question No. 866

HOSPITAL AT MITTO ANDEI

Mr. Nalle asked the Minister for Health and Housing when he intended to provide a hospital at Mitto Andei to serve the people of the Southern Division?

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. My Ministry intends to provide medical facilities at Mitto Andei to serve the people of the Southern Division when funds become available. If it is not possible, at this time, to do so or to indicate when this will happen, because the requirements of medical services are considered on a country-wide basis and this priority is determined on several factors, including the density of population and the availability of other medical centres with regard to distance. The area around Mitto Andei is very sparsely populated and there are alternative places where medical facilities can be found in that area.

Mr. Nalle: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister tell me how one or two of the places where medical facilities can be found?

Mr. Otende: Machakos, of course, Machakos is the centre of the district, but there is Makindu

Mr. Rurumban: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell the House the total number of applications made by Samburu people? We want to know the total number of applications made by the Samburu people and which were rejected?

Mr. Ghilzpllor: Sir, I said in my previous reply that there was no Joint Loans Board in Samburu District and therefore there were no applications received last year.

Mr. Ekitella: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, Sir, I want to emphasize this. We have just been speaking about Samburu and I am pretty sure that most of Samburu and Turkana, if mixed together— Could you tell me—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. No, Mr. Ekitella. I have warned hon. Members so often about the importance of rising on points of order only when they are proper points of order. Other Members have suffered the penalty of having to leave the precincts for raising points of order which are not points of order. The House has been very patient with Mr. Ekitella. I have often asked Mr. Ekitella to study the meaning of point of order before he raises one. He does not appear to have taken my advice. He is still raising points of order which are nowhere near points of order. I have to warn him now that the next time he does this, he will be ordered from the precincts of the House.

Question No. 957

RESERVED SEATS ON THE MOMBASA MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

Mr. Omar asked the Minister for Local Government if he was aware that, out of the eighteen Mombasa Municipal Council seats, six seats were reserved for landlords. If the answer was in the affirmative, what steps had the Minister taken to make it possible for the six seats to be open to any registered voter on the council?

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister for Local Government, I beg to reply. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am aware that the Constitution of the Municipal Council of Mombasa provides that six of the eight elected seats shall be ratepayer seats. In order to declare these seats open, it would be necessary for me to amend the Constitution of the Municipal Council of Mombasa.

I would add that no representation has yet been made to me on this subject.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply by the Minister that no representation has been made to him about the six seats which are reserved for the landlords, is he not aware that the majority of Mombasa Municipal Councillors wrote a letter and signed it and sent it to the Ministry concerned, asking that the reservation of the six seats for the landlords should cease immediately?

Mr. Mboya: No, Sir.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, could he tell the House whether the Mombasa Municipal Council has special conditions whereby its constitution is approved only by its council and not by the Minister?

Mr. Mboya: I never said anything of the sort, Mr. Speaker; the hon gentleman was obviously not listening to me.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Minister is overall commander of this Ministry, can he not change something if he sees it needs to be changed, rather than wait for representations from such a municipality?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, I do not believe that we want to engage in change for the sake of change; we want to change things if such a change improves the situation. The people on the ground will be better informed on the subject; and if they make representations, these will be considered.

Question No. 966

RECRUITING OF MAGISTRATES

Mr. Ngala-Abok asked the Attorney-General— If he would—

(a) tell the House whether he had any plans to recruit magistrates and judges from other African countries to replace the large number of expatriates in this country;

(b) give details of how he intended to Africanize his department.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) There are no plans for recruiting magistrates and judges from other African countries to replace expatriate officers in this country.

(b) My intention is to Africanize my department with Kenya Africans.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Attorney-General's reply, could the Attorney-General assure us that by recruiting other African magistrates in this country it will be more expensive than employing these expatriates who are employed in his department?

Mr. Njonjo: I am not quite sure I follow the question, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Would you like to repeat your question, Mr. Masinde?

Mr. Masinde: Yes, Mr. Speaker. I want the Attorney-General to assure this House whether it is more expensive to employ Africans from other African states to work in his department than to employ the expatriates who are now in his department?

Mr. Njonjo: It is more expensive in one way or another.

Mr. Makokha: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I know from the Attorney-General whether or not Africans from countries other than Kenya are not expatriates?

Mr. Njonjo: That is precisely the point. They are expatriates.

Mr. Pandya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in reply to (b) the Attorney-General did say that he proposes to Africanize the department with Kenya Africans. Does he include in the Kenya Africans, citizens irrespective of race or colour?

Mr. Njonjo: The intention, Sir, or the general policy of the Government, in particular my own department, is to balance the racial imbalance which still exists.

Mr. Kahi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Attorney-General assure this House that his intention is to Africanize top posts in his Ministry? Can he tell the House how many Africans are now understanding the top posts in his department?

Mr. Njonjo: I am surprised, Sir, that I should be asked that question because all the top posts in my department are already Africanized, and if the hon. Member wants us to Africanize Africans!

Mr. Waribibi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Attorney-General's reply, he has said that it is the intention of his Ministry to Africanize the department. Can he tell the House the programme he has for training Africans to take up posts as magistrates or judges?

Mr. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very interesting question coming from an hon. and learned friend. There is no training to be given to a person who has qualified as a lawyer to be trained as a magistrate. This should be well known to him from his experience sitting on the Bench. There is no training anywhere in the world whereby you can train a magistrate or a judge to be a magistrate or a judge.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the supplementary questions to my question have no information and it is unlikely I will ask a supplementary question, will it be in order for you to allow me to ask the Attorney-General to explain No. (b) part of my question as I see that the Attorney-General is not up to date in answering this question. I asked—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Ngala-Abok. You cannot work in a supplementary question as a point of order. We will go on to the next question.

Question No. 972

BRIDGE LINKING NORTH AND SOUTH TURKANA

Mr. Ekitella asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power whether the Government was prepared to build a bridge across the River Kerio and River Turkwell to link North and South Turkana.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to raise this matter on adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can do that, but you should not say so in the middle of the next question. It is not necessary to mention your intention at all; but if you wish to do so, you must do so before we move on to the next question.

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bonetti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Government has made no provision for building bridges over these rivers as no proposals for them have been included in the list of priorities for road works recently submitted to my Ministry by the Rift Valley Provincial Authority. In the selection of priorities, I take heed of the advice given by the Central Road Authority on which this province has a representative.

Mr. Araman: Mr. Speaker, Sir, before we go on with the question we must correct this somewhere. It is not the River Tenkil, but the River Turkwell. The question is, whether the Assistant

[Mr. Mboya]

Only in cases where there is evidence that the help of the Ministry is required, am I prepared to consider appointing a commission of inquiry, and in this case I am saying that only in the case of the works department was there enough evidence to warrant intervention by the Ministry. In the case of the other departments, it was still necessary for the local authority itself to go into the process and produce further evidence before intervention would be justified.

Question No. 947

PERMANENT CHIEF'S OFFICE: SOUTH UGENDA

Mr. Odera-Sar asked the President what the reasons were for not building a permanent office for the chief in South Ugenya?

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamwaya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There has not been sufficient funds to build permanent offices in all chiefs' centres in the country. However, plans have now been drawn up for all the chiefs' centres where permanent offices are required and for South Ugenya, the Provincial Commissioner, Nyanza, has put in a bid for £2,000 for an office and tribal police lines. This is now being included in the 1965/66 Estimates.

Mr. Glehoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply that the Government is taking into consideration chiefs' offices all over the country, would the Assistant Minister assure this House that in places where there are mud houses for the chiefs, permanent houses are going to be included in the coming financial year's estimates?

Mr. Nyamwaya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not wish to be drawn away from the question here which deals with a permanent office for the chief in South Ugenya.

Mr. Ekitelli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would just like to know from the Minister concerned in this, is he ready to put up permanent offices for all chiefs in Turkana and the rest of the districts?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think the Minister was quite right in saying that he was not going to be drawn away from the question of South Ugenya.

Question No. 950

TEACHERS' PROMOTIONS

Mr. Odera-Sar asked the Minister for Education if he was aware that in many schools promotions of teachers was based on the passing of examinations and not on hard work?

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Minister is aware that promotion of teachers is mainly dependent on passing appropriate examinations which cannot be passed without hard work. However, a teacher who has not had a chance of passing the examinations may still gain promotion when the Ministry is satisfied that such promotion is merited on grounds of demonstrable distinguished work done by the particular teacher.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, is the Minister aware that there are some people who have passed K.P.E., who have taught for many years and who have not been awarded certificates?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may enlighten the Member who is asking this question, I would like to add that promotion of teachers, in this context, is understood to mean translation of a teacher from one grade to a higher grade and does not include the selection of a teacher to become a headmaster or anything of that kind.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister not agree with me that a teacher who has passed K.P.E. and who has been practising as a qualified teacher for several years is due for promotion above T3?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, I have just said that this is dependent on the capability of that particular teacher, having passed the examination which is necessary.

Mr. Omari: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the Assistant Minister's replies, could he tell the House the method used by his Ministry to know whether a teacher is a hard worker or not, and that he qualifies for promotion?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Member was listening when I answered that question, I said that promotion does not depend on the examination alone, it is also dependent on the hard working of the teacher through having done his own examinations, and that shows that that particular teacher is working hard and he can, therefore, be promoted.

Mr. Kamurea: Arising out of the Assistant Minister's reply, is he aware that this particular promotion examination has failed some of the teachers who have been efficient in their work for years and years?

Mr. Mutiso: We are not aware of this.

Mr. Makoner: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister tell us the number of teachers who have been promoted on the merit of their hard work?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this question did not say that figures would be required, and I would like to be given notice on this particular point.

Mr. Choger: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would like to be given one particular example where teachers have been promoted because of their hard work, and not because of an examination?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know what the hon. Member wants, but I have just said that if it is only the question of those who have been promoted on the grounds of hard work, I would like notice of this, and I will then give the answer to the House.

Mr. Khasakhala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, will the Assistant Minister withdraw his previous statement if he cannot give us an example?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. I think the Assistant Minister must be given an opportunity of finding out facts. As he said, he could not necessarily expect to be asked for details on a question of this kind, yet if he can satisfy hon. Members by subsequent evidence, that there is a single case of the kind alleged, that will be in order.

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand for your guidance on this matter. If the Minister has made a detailed statement definitely saying that there are teachers in Kenya who are promoted on merit and good work, why should he be given time when he has not given details for substantiation?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have told the House why, Mr. Ngala. If he had been asked to state the policy, he did not expect to be asked for details of particular cases. He must be given time to add evidence to support his answer.

Question No. 955

JOINT LOANS BOARD FOR SAMBURU

Mr. Rurumban asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if—

(a) the Minister would tell the House why a Joint Loans Board had not been set up in Samburu District; and

(b) if the Minister was aware that no single trader in Samburu District had ever received a loan of more than Sh. 5,000.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitipiti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) A Joint Loans Board was established in Samburu District as long ago as 1961. This board issued fourteen loans, but due to the small amount of money available has not been able to issue any new loans during the past year. The operation of the Samburu Joint Loans Board became the responsibility of the old Regional Authorities who took steps to reform the board, but this was never done. As responsibility for traders' loans has once again reverted to my Ministry, I am taking steps to re-establish the Samburu Joint Loans Board.

(b) I am aware that no loan has been issued in Samburu over Sh. 5,000. The majority of loans issued were of Sh. 2,000, which the board considered adequate to stock the small shops with the requirements of the local people. There is no reason why loans of over Sh. 5,000 should not be granted in the future should the board find it desirable to do so, subject to funds being available.

Mr. Masinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, would he tell us who make up this Joint Loans Board, and are some of the traders, local traders, represented on this Joint Loans Board?

Mr. Oloitipiti: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the Member is aware of how this Joint Loans Board is made up. It consists of three representatives from the Government and three representatives from the county council which the local people themselves choose, Sir.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have two questions to ask: May I ask one first and then ask the other?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can ask one, but you will not necessarily be allowed to ask the next one. Ask the one you value most first.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is he quite satisfied that the fourteen loans in Samburu District were enough?

Mr. Oloitipiti: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Member knows that the Ministry of Commerce cannot provide sufficient money to meet all the demands for traders in the country. But, Sir, the sum of money which was allocated to Samburu was the money available at that time. I have said in my reply that that is now past. All I am doing now is to re-establish the Joint Loans Board, and I am giving them Sh. 20,000, straightaway to start with.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Acheng-Onoko): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, that is an allegation, and I do not know whether I am in order to ask if the hon. Member can substantiate his allegation, because it is an allegation against a civil servant.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are in order to ask him to substantiate certainly; and you, Mr. Oduya, must withdraw it if you cannot substantiate it.

Mr. Oduya: Yes, I withdraw.

Going further, we are just wasting minutes now, the Minister said further that there was a programme for Members there. The things that they want Members to go and say are only of one kind. A Member is asked, "What have you done for your people?" What can a Member say? A Member is not the Government. The Member is left to say, "Oh, we are backing our Government, the Government is very nice, they are doing very well now, we are closing down" and that is all. If the Member says anything—That is why I have been refused permission to go there because they know my language. If a Member says anything which is contrary to the Government, saying, "We have told the Government to do this and do that . . ."

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Acheng-Onoko): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member correct in saying that he has been refused?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can ask him to substantiate.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Acheng-Onoko): I will ask him to substantiate.

Mr. Oduya: All right. The Minister has made it clear that—the Voice of Kenya comes here and goes—I remember at one time I asked one of the officers here, "Can I be admitted?" and he said, "No, we have already got a long list covering Members and we cannot have you at this time." Sir, a full year has gone by and I have never been told I can go. It is a shame.

So, Mr. Speaker, this is a very clear thing. At one time I could tell my people that I told the Government to do such and such a thing. But up to now all these programmes that I have put before the Government have never been considered by my people because they are never broadcast by the Voice of Kenya. So when we talk in this House, we must know that the Voice of Kenya, which is the governing part of the Press, is democratic, not to be a sort of Voice of Ministers, it should be the Voice of the People and of all Members of this House.

So, Sir, with these few remarks, I hope the Minister is going to behave otherwise we must press the Minister to resign or else action will be taken.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have adjourned the end of our half-hour and I therefore reach the House until tomorrow, Thursday, 25th March, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at Seven o'clock.

WRITTEN REPLY TO QUESTION

Question No. 1003

ROAD VERSUS RAIL COMPETITION

Mr. Ochwada asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power if he was aware of the pressure from road transporters to determine the railway services for the transportation of goods. If so, what plans had the Ministry got to assist the East African Railways and Harbours to maintain their services, especially after the following roads have been tarmed: Leseru to Malabar; Kiganjo to Nanyuki; and Nairobi to Mombasa.

REPLY

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): In my address to the Transport Licensing Board on the 1st April 1964, I made it clear that the Railway's Differential Tariff must be protected and the boards must give full consideration to the relevant legislation which controls the issue of goods licences. The Transport Licensing Board is carrying out its functions with due regard to the requirements of the law, and the railway is therefore adequately protected.

Thursday, 25th March 1965

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERS

NOTICE OF MOTION

GOVERNMENT TAKE OVER OF LUMUMBA INSTITUTE

Mr. ole Tipti: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

That this House being grateful to the donors of the Lumumba Institute, urges the Government to firstly, take over the Lumumba Institute immediately and place it in the hands of the Minister for Education like any other education institute.

Secondly, to dissolve the Board of Governors of the Lumumba Institute, and give the Minister for Education the mandate to appoint a new board consisting of persons who have no political commitments.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 933

SALARY INQUIRY: EMBU COUNTY COUNCIL OFFICIALS

Mr. Mbogohi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is something omitted here. Where it says the "salaries of its officers", I meant of Embu County Council.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I hope that the Minister has realized that.

Mr. Mbogohi asked the Minister for Local Government when, arising from the Minister's reply to his question last year regarding salaries of the officers of Embu County Council, where he said he would set up a committee of inquiry, would the Minister report to this House the findings of this committee.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply on behalf of my colleague, the Minister for Local Government.

My Ministry did receive a request from the County Council of Embu that an inquiry should be carried out into the efficiency of all departments of the council. At the same time, the council did not produce evidence that they suspected inefficiency in departments other than the works department. It must be appreciated, as I stated in my answer to the hon. Member's previous question, that I am not prepared to order an inquiry into a council's affairs unless I am convinced that such an inquiry is necessary. If the members of the council feel they have cause for concern, and, can give definite examples of serious inefficiency—irresponsibility or lack of financial control, then in the light of the evidence they produce, I will consider whether or not an investigation needs to be carried out.

An investigation into the efficiency of the council's work's department was undertaken on the 2nd and 3rd of November 1964, and this investigation did reveal an unsatisfactory state of affairs. As a result of the investigation officer's report, I directed that the council's works supervisor should be dismissed with effect from 31st December 1964 on the grounds of inefficiency and incompetence and that the district roads supervisor be compulsorily retired on the same date.

Mr. Mbogohi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply that the council gave the Ministry the mandate to investigate the inefficiency of every department, did the Ministry expect any other body to come and to give them the mandate to investigate so that they may see that the council's work that needed investigations was not decided?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question is not clear. The only department concerned was the works department and I have stated what course of action was taken.

Mr. Mbogohi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question here again is whether, during the reply to that question the Minister said that he would consider taking this action of investigating every department if the council gives him the mandate to investigate, but now when they went to investigate they only investigated one department and ignored the rest of the departments. First of all, I would like to know what satisfaction did they get that enabled them to discontinue the investigations of the other departments?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, there is no question of mandate involved. What I have said in reply is that the council need to give evidence that there is cause for intervention by the Ministry. If we were to comply with each and every request without first ascertaining that an inquiry is fully justified, the officers of the Ministry would be employed full time in carrying out such investigations, a great number of which would prove to be unjustified. If local authorities are to be responsible for this, they must, in the first place, be able to manage and organize their own affairs, and carry out their own investigations if they are considered necessary.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyeko): In their activities in the House, their activities in the country life and what they have done for the country since they were elected to this House. It is, I think, the duty of the Parliamentary Group and of Back-benchers to choose who is to go to the Voice of Kenya and appeal or talk to the nation. Those who have not availed themselves of this opportunity, have, in fact, failed in their duties because there are facilities and opportunities for doing so. I can see that up in the gallery there is a representative from the Voice of Kenya who writes a report of the deliberations and discussions in this House, a report, of course which will have to appear tonight in the programme "Today in Parliament."

This, in fact, has not been appreciated by Members themselves. When Members make these allegations, they will have to consider one thing, that some of them—and maybe the Mover himself, though I am not specifically referring to him—when we had the conference of the Organization for African Unity were trying to prevail upon the Ministers, saying, "Why did you give so much publicity to Tshombe? Why do you allow the Press in Kenya to call our nationalist fighters in the Congo criminals or outlaws and things like that?" Sometimes, Mr. Speaker, the Members themselves come to the Government and blame the Government for having given publicity to Tshombe, and then on the other hand they say, "We want freedom of the Press." Government has already said that in our Constitution, clause 23, freedom of the Press is assured. It is not just a question of freedom of the Press, it is not just a question of privilege, but it is a right and a right of the Kenya people.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thought that the hon. Members were going to bring some details and factual—

Mr. Malsori-Inumbo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Minister implying that hon. Members are as evil as Tshombe?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order. You must be more careful with your points of order, you know.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyeko): I do not want to be interrupted on this because this pressure on the Press is a very serious allegation, because it challenges the right of the individual, the right of our people. I paid very serious attention to this and I would like to explain everything in detail. But I thought that hon. Members were going to bring instances and say that on such and such a day, such and such a thing happened. I was waiting to hear Members mention that on such and such a day an incident occurred, and a Minister of the Government, a senior official of the Kenya Government or a reporter, for that matter, told me, etc. Members must mention this in this House because we must substantiate whatever we say. One cannot just bring accusations and allegations against the Government by trying to hide behind—

Mr. Anyieni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Minister is trying to misrepresent me because when I stood up I mentioned specific cases. The Minister is now saying that we did not bring specific cases. I think, Mr. Speaker, that the Minister should be able to—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! You cannot use a point of order to make a point of clarification, Mr. Anyieni. We have heard what you said and what you did not say.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyeko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member who has stood up mentioned a case where somebody alleged that he had been shot and he sent his statement to the Press. In fact, Mr. Speaker,—

Mr. Odunya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I hope you will excuse me, I am only want your direction on this point. We normally take about five minutes, and the Minister is now talking about something new, so could we be given time in this five minutes to reply, because he is taking the whole twenty minutes? It is nonsense.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Standing Orders are perfectly clear on this. We are allowed half an hour altogether for discussion of this, and every Member is limited to ten minutes. The Minister has not had ten minutes yet. The only exception I make is if a Member is interrupted so much by points of order that he cannot get in his full ten minutes; then I might give him a minute or two more. I think I may have to give the Minister that.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyeko): Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

In fact here the hon. Member for Majoge-Baini mentioned someone who, he alleged, was shot and he said that he had reported this to the Ministry of Home Affairs. Now when reports of that nature reach the Ministries they must be checked, because the country must be fully informed and correctly informed. Therefore our Press is really responsible. When they get a report and they get a lot of [The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism] reports, they know they must check with the Government, they must check with the Police, whether such an incident which is reported is correct or not.

Therefore it is all wrong to say that there was pressure on the Press not to publish what the hon. Member had alleged.

I know that some Members here will say something like, "Oh, So-and-so spoke and he spoke in the presence of a Minister . . ." Oh, yes, according to one's own judgment, a Member will consider that he speaks better than a Minister because he is also a Member of Parliament. There is no question about that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to share a platform with anybody because when the platform was vacant I was there when the Members who are challenging me were not in existence. Well in politics anyway.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! We cannot waste our time with too much noise.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyeko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also like to challenge the Members but if they think the Press is not doing very well, I think it is high time that the Press—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order! I am asking hon. Members to keep calm and give us a chance of hearing what is said.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyeko): I am also challenging Members—

Mr. Sol: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the Minister not to be calling us "hon. Members", because he is saying just "Members" all the time?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think it is important for the Minister to remember.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyeko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am only prepared to use the words "hon. Members" when Members show themselves to be loquacious.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Oh, no, Order! Just because there is a tendency to heat on the part of the Members, we must remember good manners and stick very closely to them; the greater the heat, the greater the necessity for care in addressing the Chair and in referring to hon. Members as hon. Members.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyeko): Mr. Speaker, I wanted to suggest the hon. Members that there is a way open and this is a practical way of doing things. Probably they may be accusing the Government for nothing because of lack of technical knowledge of the running of a newspaper. It must be realized that there are so many things to be considered. A commercial paper must consider whether news is of value, and that is whether it is marketable. If the Members are not satisfied, I know I can see across from me a few Members who have been in the Press world, then the best thing is to start a paper for themselves and see how they can run it. I am not saying that there must be freedom of the Press without any interference whatsoever.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Your time is up, Mr. Onoko.

Order! I have already allowed Mr. Onoko another two minutes because of interruptions and his time is finished now.

Mr. Odunya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister has been given time and he has just been beating about the bush, without giving us the correct answer that we wanted. He has not replied exactly to what the hon. Member for Majoge-Bassi said.

Another example is about our meeting when our hon. Chairman of the Back-benchers' Parliamentary Group and all other hon. Members like the hon. Mr. Kaggia and the hon. Mr. Gichoya here were all present and they spoke and the Minister's own Ministry was represented; and there was not even a single thing mentioned by that particular Ministry on the Voice of Kenya.

An hon. Member: Cheap!

Mr. Odunya: There is no democracy in that.

The second point, Mr. Speaker, as this House will remember, is that one time we moved a Motion in this House warning the Government vigorously on this attitude of Ministers going to the public, collecting money unnecessarily. That was also there. And one of the officers of the Ministry of Information told us, a group of Members, "Well, gentlemen, we have nothing to do, our Minister telephoned to us and told us that . . . (inaudible) . . . because we can be sacked tomorrow . . . (inaudible) . . . They will not publish this sort of thing on the radio because if it appears in the papers, well, few people read the papers, but the radio covers the whole world. So they were afraid. They were instructed by the Minister himself.

[The Speaker] House. Unless Mr. Anyien could find a more convenient time to stop—and he can conserve what he has to say until tomorrow—I will call upon the Minister to move that this House do now adjourn.

Mr. Anyien: Mr. Speaker, actually I wanted to move the adjournment of the debate at about five o'clock, but now the time is finished, which is the point of my moving adjournment? I have started speaking, and I will continue speaking tomorrow.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

PRESS STATEMENTS BY MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will now call upon the Minister to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achings-Onoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Anyien: Mr. Speaker, it will be remembered that a question was asked in this House in connexion with the Press. The Minister tried to give us replies, but we were not satisfied and I am not going to say much on this. I am not the only hon. Member who has been frustrated in this respect. I would like to give two or three examples where the Government has been putting pressure on the Pressmen who want to publish statements by the Members of Parliament.

Mr. Speaker, at one time there was somebody in my area who was shot through the head by the tribal police. I wrote letters to the Ministry concerned, the Ministry of Home Affairs, but I did not have a reply. So I decided to write an open letter. I sent a copy first to the Press and before I had sent one to the Ministry concerned, I had a telephone call from the Ministry of Home Affairs saying that I must go to the Ministry quickly. I went there and I found that the Press had already informed the Ministry of the contents of the letter. The Ministry demanded that I withdraw the statement which I had given to the Press. This is one of the examples of the pressure under which the Press people have to suffer.

Mr. Speaker, when we went to the Coast, some of the hon. Members—one was the hon. George Oduya—made speeches. His was especially good and the people were pleased. When one of the Pressmen was asked why this speech was not published, he said that the Government would not be very happy if it was published. That is why they did not publish it.

There was another case in the hon. G. G. Karuki's area in Nyari. The Minister for Information spoke and some hon. Members spoke. The only person who was reported was the Minister for Information. One of the Members who spoke caused the people to clap and clap because they were very pleased and he was not reported, he was not on the radio. We want to know whether these people who are appointed as Ministers are the only people who are supposed to say what is happening in this country? We would like to tell our people what they would like to hear. The elected Members of this House can become Ministers, and maybe even better Ministers than the present ones. Some of the Members of this House express the ideas of the masses and they are more popular than the Ministers. The Press should be completely free.

We supported the idea of the Voice of Kenya being taken over by the Government, but now you cannot hear anybody except that the Minister for So-and-so said this and the Minister for So-and-so said that. The Press must be free. The Press is always used by the Ministers. Members who are unfortunate enough not to be made Ministers, are not heard by the public. When we make speeches in this House, even if they are very good, they are not reported; but sometimes there are stupid statements by a person who is a Minister and these are reported in the Press. The public will be against us if the Press keeps on like this.

The Government should not put any pressure on the Press people. That is the case now, and we Members do not want this to continue. The Press must be free. Some Pressmen went to a meeting which was convened by the hon. Mr. Kagga, the Member for Kaduna. They reported that there were 20,000 people at the meeting. There was another reporter who said that there was only 2,000 people. We want to know which is right. This man said that there were 2,000 people. He makes out that Kagga is not a very good man, because he only has 2,000 people attending his meeting. Therefore, he was wrong yesterday to say that there was 20,000 people. We are told to ignore the 20,000, and tell everybody that there were only 2,000 people. This is not fair. Pressure should not be put on the Pressmen.

[Mr. Anyien]

Members of Parliament must sit down and decide what we should do for the Press. They must not ignore the views of the elected representatives of the people just because they are not likely enough to be made Ministers and cannot make statements on behalf of the Government.

With those few words, I hope the Government will be able to leave the Press free and I hope the Press will be free, but we want them to be constructive.

Mr. Agari Mr. Speaker, Sir, Members have the right of thinking that when I stand up I will support the Government. Let me assure the Members that it is now obviously known in this country, all over, that the Government is putting domination and pressure on the Press, the National News Agency and others, to prevent them from publishing or from broadcasting speeches and statements made by Members of Parliament. The excuse is that Members have the right of bringing in destructive criticism. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government is trying to make itself a judge of which things are destructive and which are constructive. In many countries, and it should be also in our country, if a paper has published any seditious matter, both the man who wrote it and the publishers can be sued in the courts of law. If we have the courts of law, why should the Government not specify which are seditious statements or speeches by bringing these people to court? They can be convicted if they have gone against the laws of the country. Even in the colonial days, I remember, Mr. Speaker, I was editor of a paper called Uhuru. One day I came to this House when it was still called the Legislative Council. I had made a report in my paper on a certain Vote. I said that the Legislative Council at that time was not a Kenya Legislative Council, it was a European Community Legislative Council. I was called here to explain, Mr. Speaker. I gave my explanation. I explained that all the Europeans voted for a certain thing and all the Africans objected to it. There were only six people representing over seven million people. People representing six million people were defeated by a group representing about 56,000 people. After that explanation I was told that my opinion—nobody was interested—was very destructive and therefore I had to apologize.

Mr. Speaker, I was forced to write on the front page of the paper that I was foolish enough to say that the Government is running the same way, trying to say that any hon. Member who is not a Minister is foolish, is destructive and his statements should not be printed in this country.

Where will this end? They will say we started by denying Members freedom of speech and the Minister for Information, maybe not the present Minister, another one, will deny the Press freedom. I have already heard some Minister grumbling that even, if they give speeches, they are given in a corner.

So, Mr. Speaker, the Minister for Information must let the Press have freedom, otherwise this will lead to chaotic situations. Our people are now educated enough in the affairs of this country to see if a Member is going around and becoming destructive. They will see it at once. Let us not excuse ourselves by saying that the Africans are ignorant and therefore if we write this and that, we will mislead them. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is very shameful to hear reporters or the people working in these offices speaking openly in public places that So-and-so sent a statement to us, but we cannot publish it. They are saying this in the open. This is very shameful. We want the Minister to know that this House upholds and wants to make sure that there is freedom of speech, freedom of expression. The Government is free, according to the law to take anybody to court who says anything destructive.

I would like this to be discussed, where our Ministers think that everybody else is wrong and it is only they who are right. This thing will become chaotic and will cheapen our country. It will make out that we are ignorant and it may be the beginning of dictatorship.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achings-Onoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will take this opportunity to thank my hon. friend, the Member for Majoje-Bassi and also the hon. Member for Karachuonyo for having brought this Motion to the House in order to express the views which the Members have very close to their hearts. I would like to be brief but to the point. I feel that what the Members allegation here means is that they are being discriminated against or there is pressure. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also like Members to give me time so that I can answer them by stating the facts in this House.

Mr. Speaker, these statements which are alleged to have been written, and not given publicity may include reports in the Press, on the radio and also on television. But here I have not heard the hon. Member for Majoje-Bassi mentioning or appreciating the fact that provisions have been made for Members of Parliament to broadcast to the country what their activities are—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order! Presumably you want to hear the Minister?

[Mr. Kagala]

But, I think it is then that the Government thought of amending this section, and in fact, they removed it even before bringing it to the House, because the Government has not come back to us to approve the continuation of the state of emergency in the North-Eastern Region. Under the Constitution here, the state of emergency should have ceased on the seventh day when the Government failed to come to us for approval. The Government is really showing a contempt of this House. We should not allow the Government to play about with the Constitution of the country. The Constitution of the country is the life of the country and is the only protection for the ordinary man, and if this is removed then we do not know where the country is heading.

Now, section 71, removes the majority from three-quarters to 65 per cent. This, Mr. Deputy Speaker, deals with alterations of the Constitution. The Constitution is so important to the country, and before any change is made, it is important that the House should be satisfied. The House should support the amendment by a large majority, but is not a thing to allow that even a simple majority of sixty-five will have the right to amend the Constitution. Under the present Constitution, the Constitution is only amendable under this section with a three-quarters majority. Now, the Minister is asking us to reduce that majority to 65 per cent. I do not see the reason for this. The Government is trying to amend the whole Constitution in the way they want. I cannot see the reason why. It has always been a three-quarters majority, and if the Government can convince the House that this or that amendment is necessary, why are they afraid that they will not get a three-quarters majority. They must be prepared, and be capable of convincing us so as to win the three-quarters majority, but there is no need to change the Constitution by a simple majority of 65 per cent.

Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am going to say that I have taken a very short time to study this, and I need longer, but I think it would be very beneficial to us, hon. Members, to allow the hon. Members to have time to consider and study this Constitution, but if the Government is not prepared, as we have suggested, then I would oppose this whole thing completely, because the Government is taking advantage of the fact that many Members are ignorant of the law and so, on our behalf, the Government is trying to confuse us by telling us to delete this section here and to delete that section there, as they know that it will take a long time for hon. Members to read the Constitution and know what is to be deleted and what is not—we expect the Government to uphold the Constitution, and to honour the Constitution and to know what to change and what not to change, but I have seen that some of these proposed amendments are not for the benefit of this country, and they are unnecessary.

It appears from section 6 that the Government was intending to remove completely the powers of the National Assembly. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think the Government has told us many times that they recognize the supremacy of the National Assembly, but this must not be in word alone, it must be in action as well. The Government must respect this House and see that before anything is done, this House is consulted and this House is convinced, and it is agreeable to what is done. Things must not be done behind our backs, and without seeking our agreement and approval. Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think these sections should be retained in the Bill. If not, the whole thing should be rejected.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I intended to speak for a few minutes and then move the adjournment on this, but I see that we only have another seven or eight minutes. I think I would like to make a few observations.

First of all, before I come to this, I would like to say that it is very unfortunate that this Bill does not include the Attorney-General's definition of our law. This Constitution has not thought it fit to completely take it away from this argument.

It is very fortunate that the Attorney-General, who is supposed to be the guardian of the justice in this country, is here in Parliament today telling us what should be done in the Constitution and then having politicians replying. I would like to say that the deletions which the Constitution has mentioned are so numerous, and I know very many Members do not know what all these deletions mean. For example, I see that the section giving the powers of Parliament say that things should be deleted. This means that Members are at one time going to find themselves—because I do not think they have read all these deletions—doing practically nothing, or having no power.

The other thing is this, Mr. Speaker. If Government brings such amendments for the Members to approve, it is very important that Government does not carry out something to permit some mistakes and then bring them to this House to approve the mistakes which the Government has made. For example, as I said, I understand that in Nyanza Region today the members are not receiving any salaries. They do not know what is going on, and when I went home, two Regional Assembly members who were [Mr. Anyieni] my friends, turned away to become my enemies, because they are saying that it is we Members of Parliament who have passed a law in the Constitution to stop them from getting a salary or an allowance of anything. So, the Members of Parliament must know that some of these members of Regional Assemblies have been beneficial to us in the representation of our constituencies. Of course, we have a few of them who are not good, but we must not agree here that we are ourselves. Members of this House, are not good to each other. Sometimes we are not good to each other, and it could be true that we have some members of Regional Assemblies who may be calling themselves Ministers because they are chairmen of this and that. As such, we may see like them, but we must not be blinded that some of these people are the people who have tried to help. For example, Mr. Deputy Speaker, now the Government is taking almost all powers away from the Regional Assemblies and they are calling them Provincial Councils. Before these were demolished, Nyanza Regional Assembly had plans to have fifteen new secondary schools in the year 1965. They had worked this out very carefully, things had been worked out and everything was going well. We approved the first amendment to the Constitution, and we will do it again today, and as a result, how many new schools were opened in Nyanza? How many? One or two only. If the Regional Assemblies had had all powers, Nyanza Region would have had fifteen secondary schools during this year. As a result of the powers being taken away from them, there are only one or two secondary schools which have been opened.

Also, since the hon. Member who is now a Minister and who was a strong supporter of Majimbo is telling me that I was against Majimbo he must know that Majimbo was not brought about by this country. Majimbo was brought about by all Members of Parliament who went to London, they were the Legislative Council. While we are talking about Majimbo—

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member to call Members of the Legislative Council, Members of Parliament, because there was no Parliament then?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I do not think that is really a point of order, Mr. Gichoya. I think all hon. Members understand what is meant by that.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Deputy Speaker, it was not the tip of the tongue. This House was called the Legislative Council. When we became independent, this House was called Parliament. This the hon. Member should be able to understand. They were not Members of Parliament who went to London to make the Constitution. They were Members of the Legislative Council. The hon. Member should know that because it is part of the Constitution.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

By stating that we must be very happy to see that all powers have been taken away. It does not make me happy to see that the members of the Regional Assemblies are not doing anything. I must warn that this can be very dangerous. Here is a man who has been elected—and I expect some of the members of the Regional Assemblies hold more votes than some of the Members of this National Assembly—whom you told previously to stand for election. When he has been elected, then you tell him he is not wanted. This is wrong. We do not object to the change, but we maintain that these people have a mandate of the electorate just as we have. These people should be able to be paid a salary, even if it is a small salary. Some of the Members will say, no, some of the members of the Regional Assembly in their own areas are against them. But suppose a member of the Regional Assembly is a poor man and when you are participating in the proceedings of this House, this member of the Regional Assembly should be able to help you. I would like to tell hon. Members that we must not be against the members of the Regional Assemblies because they are elected. If—

Mr. Njalis-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, the Member speaking stood up to speak for the adjournment of this debate until tomorrow. We would like this to be made clear, whether he has now dropped that intention and is thinking of going on?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member is entitled whether or not intending, to move the adjournment of the debate, to speak in the debate in the ordinary way; and I understand he was called upon in the ordinary way. In fact, an hon. Member who proposes to move adjournment of a debate can only do it when he has the Floor as part of the debate, not on a point of order. If the hon. Member had in mind to move the adjournment of the debate, he is quite entitled to change his mind. It would hardly be reasonable, now, as it is the time for the interruption of business and to move the adjournment of the

[Mr. Ngala]

It looks as if the county councils are directly under the Ministry concerned, which I understand has a central pattern. I think on a matter concerning the land of a certain province or land which is in a certain province the Government should agree that it is right to consult with the Provincial Council; that is, to seek co-operation on land matters in the province. If Government does not even want to consult, there is no tying down to Government getting permission, if it does not want even consultation, I am afraid, Sir, that the land question is so touchy that Government will be faced sometimes with a very heated attitude from members of the Provincial Councils and it may be very, very unnecessary, indeed. I would have liked the Attorney-General in this Bill to mention that when a matter affects land situated in a certain province, the Provincial Council should be consulted, with that Haranbee spirit throughout, from the bottom to the top.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think we have not acted according to the expectation of some people in the country in bringing about this amendment. I would like here to talk on the control over transactions in agricultural land. Sir, I understand a separate law will be made. The original idea for inserting this in the Constitution was to make sure that something agreeable would be entrenched in the Constitution to safeguard people in matters of land, but this is now removed. It is removed, we are told, so that we may have smaller pockets, in order that the book may fit our small pockets. These are not satisfying reasons. I think this question of great importance should still be a part of this Constitution instead of being taken away from it and included in a separate, ordinary law of Kenya. I think the Attorney-General will understand the importance of land, particularly land transactions to this extent.

The other aspect I would like to touch on in connexion with land is the position of the Central Land Board, which has not been made, very, very clear. I understand—and it is indicated here—that it will be up to the President to determine the position of this. If this is the understanding of what the Attorney-General means, then what will take the place of the Central Land Board, because I understand the Government is borrowing a lot of money through this board. Therefore, the Government must be responsible enough to continue the application of this, either through a department of a certain Ministry, or through the creation of a certain board or absorption into another board, so that we still remain responsible for the money we are borrowing. I am not saying that I am endorsing the policy of borrowing money for buying our own soil. I am not endorsing that at all, but since it is the policy, we have to observe it. Therefore, I would like a clear explanation on the future of the Central Land Board, and if it is to die, what will be the set-up in future in relation to this.

Now, Sir, I think it is quite wrong for the appeal on results of voting to come to the Attorney-General in the first instance. I think, as the county council feel, they take this appeal straight to the town clerk and he deals with it. If I am wrong, the Attorney-General will correct me. Therefore, these appeals should be taken to the clerk of the council. If he wants me to give way to an explanation, I am quite willing.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njoro): It is important that he does not have wrong information on this, because it is rather important that everyone should have it clear. The hon. Member was not here yesterday, when I went through some of the points mentioned, and he would give other hon. Members the wrong impression. The petition that he is now talking about is at the moment being filed by the clerk of the council in the case of the House of Representatives, the petition is filed by the Attorney-General. The amendment he is suggesting is that the petition is a solution by the Attorney-General.

Mr. Ngala: I am grateful for the explanation given by the Attorney-General. I understand now that it is a petition that he was talking about, and not an ordinary Bill.

The other point, Sir, that I would like to mention is that I think that on the question of emergency here, a very important section has been deleted, and in the previous Constitution, the Parliament was given a great deal of importance in that it could be called to meet and discuss the situation in about seven days. Now, I understand from here that this has been deleted, and therefore, twenty-one days have been substituted.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, originally when we were talking about this Constitution, we suggested three days only, and then it went on to seven days. But, now it has gone on to twenty-one days. Now, all sorts of things can happen, and it is a very dangerous thing. I would like to have an explanation as to why the Attorney-General has deemed this necessary, so that the Parliament should not be convened for such a long time.

21 Second Reading—

[Mr. Ngala]

Now, Mr. Speaker, I personally, from the beginning have objected to these fundamental changes of the Constitution, and feel that I would like to state very clearly that I reserve my position on these changes.

Mr. Kagga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I support the view that this Bill needed more time for consideration, because most of us did not think that we had to debate this Bill today, as there were some other Bills before it.

What I would like to say, Mr. Speaker, is that the Constitution is the life of the country, and in my opinion, it is very important and is not a thing that people should screech everybody when we look at the objects in the last pages. It says that the object of this Bill is to amend certain entrenched and specially entrenched provisions of the Constitution. The House would like to have time to know exactly which of these entrenched and specially entrenched provisions are being amended, and that is why we thought we needed more time to study this Bill.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I will make some points on the few sections which I have been able to look at in the short time available.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kagga, I would like to mention that Mr. Anyieni was contemplating moving the adjournment of the debate for the reasons you are giving, and I understand that if you were to move the adjournment of the debate, which you have the right to do now that you are on your feet, Government would not oppose it. If you prefer not to make now a speech which you think would be better tomorrow, you can move the adjournment of the debate if you like.

Mr. Kagga: I think, Mr. Speaker, I will make a speech now.

I have looked at the few sections which have really alarmed me. Section 29, which is deleted in the First Schedule, subsection (a) substitutes the word "majority" for "65 per cent", and this section deals with the declaration of emergency. I think this is a very important thing in a country, and when a state of emergency is to be declared in a country, the House should be convinced, and should agree as the representative of the people, that the emergency was necessary, but when we are asked to delete 65 per cent and put just "majority", I think this is one of the attempts on the part of the Government to bring about a dictatorship in this country, because a small group can support the Government in such a move, and a state of emergency is declared affecting thousands of people in the country.

If I may give an example here, Mr. Speaker, of my fears. In my district the other day a few people thought that there was a threat to security in Fort Hall and urged the Government to ban meetings in this district. In my opinion, there was no reason for that. There was no situation warranting such drastic action. For instance, now, if we pass this Bill, somebody can go to the President and say that he thinks that there is a situation in Fort Hall and the only cure is to declare a state of emergency. If this Bill is passed and such a Motion is brought to the House here, probably on Friday morning, with very few Members, according to this amendment a small majority can pass this, and a state of emergency will be declared in Fort Hall affecting the whole district, which may even cause thousands of lives to be lost.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I think this is a very serious matter. We should not allow a few people to play about with our country. We should not allow a few people to play about with the lives of our people, because emergency means loss of lives.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the sections from 67 to 71 all deal with the powers of Parliament, and when we look at this, Mr. Speaker, we find all these sections deleted. That means the Government is trying to do away with the powers of Parliament. The Government is trying to have a way of doing things without bringing them to the Parliament. For instance, you find in section 67, Parliament has some powers to grant loans and so on. This is completely removed from the Parliament, and that means the Government can do anything it wants, without coming to Parliament.

Section 68 deals with international obligations, and this section is the only section where the Parliament can give its say on international obligations or international commitments under which the Government may commit the country. If we are denied the only say we have, that means the Government can commit the country in obligations, and the Parliament has no way of questioning or even expressing the feelings of the country.

Mr. Speaker, section 69 deals with the powers of this House regarding the declaring of emergencies. We remember that when the state of emergency was declared in the North-Eastern Region, the Government, following this section, came to us to approve the declaration of the state of emergency, and this Parliament approved it.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

[Mr. Ngala]

these matters affecting this particular section are not deleted at all so that the provision that was there originally is maintained.

Now, I see that the Minister has made it quite clear here, that the executive powers of the Provincial Council are removed. I would like to get a concise explanation of what is going to be the relationship between the Provincial Commissioner and the Chairman of the Provincial Council, because in the past, the Provincial Commissioner, who was the Civil Secretary, was a member of the establishment of the Regional Assembly. Is the Provincial Commissioner, who is not a member at this time of this establishment, but rather a civil servant, still going to continue sitting in the Provincial Council and if he is going to continue sitting in the Provincial Council, where is the provision in the amendment? I would like to see if there is an amendment to make it quite clear that the Provincial Commissioner, as against a Civil Secretary, is still required to sit in the Provincial Council and what merits his sitting in the Provincial Council because the Civil Secretary sat in the Provincial Council because he was a servant of the Regional Assembly and therefore he had no vote in the Assembly, but he could speak in the Regional Assembly. Now, the Provincial Commissioner is not a member of the establishment of the Regional Assembly and he is not a servant of the Provincial Council in any way. Now, he is going to sit there or not and if he is going to sit, is he going to vote or is he not going to vote? I assume Sir, that he is not going to vote as he is not a member and I also assume that he is not going to speak at all because it appears to me that there would be very little that concerns him in the Provincial Council. We would also like to know upon which matters the Minister would like him to speak.

My second point, Sir, is this House must feel very annoyed with regard to the general manner in which servants of the Government have been allowed to implement these amendments, even before the House sits down. I think this is one example in which civil servants have been allowed, intentionally, to use such terms as Provincial Commissioner in an official manner before this House passes this Bill. I think it is degrading the integrity of this House, Mr. Speaker, and I would like to make it quite clear that the Minister should apologize to this House for the use of these terms officially outside in the country before this House, which is the final authority, pass the law. Mr. Speaker, Sir, people are complaining to use the words "Provincial Commissioners", "District Commissioners" and all sorts of terms before this House has passed the law. It must be made clear by the law makers whether it is the Cabinet alone which is able to make its own law and dish it out to civil servants. I am not of the mind to speak on this Bill because everything that has been asked is already being done in the countryside, therefore what is the use of bringing the Bill into the House? I hope the Minister responsible will apologize for undermining the House in this matter.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as far as the committees are concerned, we feel that the Minister for Health has made a very good suggestion that the established committee, the finance established committee should be replaced by the general public committee.

Then he has gone further to say that the Provincial Council should create any further committees that they feel appropriate for their own areas, but because we do not want the Provincial Council committees to be dealing with things on which they do not have real authority, we would like to get a general direction as to whether the Government would delegate some of their powers to the provincial committees so that these provincial committees can be working committees. It would be quite a waste of money to call somebody chairman of a committee when you have not actually given him the authority, even on a delegation basis, to do the work.

Here the Minister for Information is saying provincial agricultural committees. This Bill does not say agricultural committees, it says Provincial Councils. He is the Minister for Information and he should know better what he is talking about. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Bill deals with Provincial Councils, and if there is an amendment, the Minister for Information should bring forward his amendment.

Therefore, I would like to get a clear explanation from the Minister concerned as to whether some powers will be delegated—education, and so on—to these committees so that they can be working committees, although the power is not actually vested in the Provincial Councils. Unless that is done, I think there will be a lot of confusion and money will be wasted, and time too.

Next, Sir, I would like to raise a point on the functions. The Minister says that a Provincial Council may make a law with retrospective effect in any case where the power to make the law is defined by this Constitution, and in any case where the power to make the law is defined by Act of Parliament. If the power to give the law retrospective effect is expressly conferred by that Act, there are two things here I would like the Attorney-General to make clear. Which are the [Mr. Ngala] powers that are conferred by this Constitution to the Provincial Councils to make laws, because they are very vague generally here? I want to know if this is covering everything. If it is covering everything, then the county councils, too, are part of the Provincial Councils. Therefore, it should be defined. The Attorney-General cannot leave it undefined and I think that the Provincial Councils will not make laws affecting county councils because the county councils are part and parcel of the progress. So we would like a clear definition of that.

Then, when will the Parliament confer powers on Provincial Councils; under what circumstances does the Parliament confer powers on the Provincial Councils? I think the Attorney-General was envisaging a situation which he has not clearly explained here, and we would like to know the circumstances under which a Provincial Council would have powers conferred on it by an Act of Parliament.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, is that in this Bill every financial power is removed from the Provincial Councils. Of course, I admit that the Commission is changed, but I would like to know how the Provincial Councils are going to do any work without any single financial power or provision of funds? How is the chairman going to live, how are the members going to live? How do you expect them to live or even attend? There is no provision, even for their constituency allowances. There is no provision even for a bus fare from one place to another for a member of the Regional Assembly. How are they going to live? Is it a secret way of killing the Provincial Councils? If it is a secret manner of killing the Provincial Councils, we should be told in no uncertain terms. How are they going to live? They have had their salaries increased, but the members of Regional Assemblies, which are now Provincial Councils, have no salaries. They have no constituency allowances, they have nothing; how are they going to live? I do not know. Ask the Attorney-General about it.

Mr. Speaker, in this Bill I would like a financial section in which the members of Provincial Councils are considered financially, so that they are not embarrassed in such a manner. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this is a matter which we should not take lightly. Some of the Provincial Council members stood down for some Members of this House when the elections were on. They stood down because they expected to be considered. Now they are put in a very difficult situation indeed. The Bill does not provide any section where the members of Provincial Councils are considered. A Minister writes to the members of the Provincial Council and says, "You meet me at Mombasa Airport on such-and-such a date," and these members rush to meet the Minister, but when they come to the question of money, they are told there is no Vote for this. Why did the Minister write to the Provincial Council members asking them to meet him? They leave their jobs to go on this State function, meeting the Minister at Mombasa Airport or Kisumu Airport.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyko): They do not need to.

Mr. Ngala: Is that a responsible reply? If the members are elected to carry out a certain function, if they do not need to, why do you not abolish them now?

I think, Mr. Speaker, this Bill needs further consideration. We do not want this Bill to bring a chaotic political situation in the country. Mr. Speaker, Sir, several times members use their cars, even chairman use their cars, and they are told, "There is no Vote, if you use your car, there is no Vote." What will they do? I want an assurance that a provision would be mentioned at least generally in the Constitution as to whether the Provincial Council members would have a financial provision to help them, otherwise these Provincial Councils which are very useful bodies will do a natural death. Is what the Government wants? We have heard the Government saying they will uphold the Constitution, but it is upholding the Constitution when you are doing away with all the entrenchments? The Government have said they will uphold the Constitution, but if the Provincial Councils are living in such environment, such conditions, imposed by this legislation, to such an extent as to cause their natural death, is that upholding the Constitution? Are we being sincere about them? If we do not want these councils, we had better say so now. There is no question about it, no hiding. I mean, if I do not want the face of the Attorney-General, I would tell him that I do not want his face, so that it is quite clear to him, any time, but—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You would not do it in this House, would you, Mr. Ngala?

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would not do it in this House because I like the face of the Attorney-General.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I will leave the question of accommodation, but I would like to touch on the question of Trust land.

[The Speaker]

It may be better for hon. Members to wait and see if Government would move the adjournment of the debate until tomorrow; or otherwise hon. Members, having said their piece as far as they are concerned, can move the adjournment of the debate.

Mr. Warithi: Is it not, Mr. Speaker, assumed that Members come prepared for a debate, if it is on the Order Paper, since we see the Bill long before it comes to the House. It is not assumed that we come prepared for it?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, Mr. Warithi, but I think you are beginning to debate a Motion for the adjournment of the debate which has not been moved yet. What you have to say is very relevant to a Motion for the adjournment of the debate, but we have not had one yet.

Does any hon. Member wish to speak in this debate?

Mr. Ngala: I am not moving the adjournment, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No.

Mr. Ngala (Mr. Speaker, Sir, having looked through the Bill, I think that it is a most serious Bill, that the Attorney-General has ever moved. It is serious because it does away with all the entrenched clauses over which we laboured for about three months in London. Now I think that the country generally expects to have a Constitution which does recognize that certain facts have to be safeguarded properly, and entrenched in a manner that will give citizens some security. This is being done away with. If this amendment or this Bill goes through, this is the most serious aspect of the Bill. The Government intends to do away with any entrenchment aspects in the Constitution, any safeguarding of certain rights. Originally, we thought that the Government would, and this was appreciated by the Government, before independence, support the question of entrenched clauses which was very much emphasized by the Government and we all supported the idea of having a Constitution that would have some aspects of entrenchment. Today, this is being done away with. It is a most serious aspect of this Bill.

My second point, Sir, is that looking through the Constitution, the amendment to the Constitution, I think that the Attorney-General should define to us, what he means by functions of the Provincial Councils in a clearer manner. I take it that the Provincial Councils have no executive powers, but I also take it that the Provincial Councils have legislative powers over all aspects affecting a matter of particular importance. I stand for correction if this is not the position. Sir, if the position is that the Provincial Councils have every legislative power, apart from the legislative power being concurrent with the Act of Parliament, that is waiting until the Parliament brings down an act to clarify the legislation of a Provincial Council, then the Provincial Councils can make laws over an area of their own.

Now how are these laws going to be executed? If it is true—I mean that I stand for correction on this—it is true that the Provincial Councils can enact legislation. I admit that this legislation can be nullified by an Act of Parliament at any time, but once they enact a legislation, who is going to carry out legislation that they enact? If it is the Provincial Councils and the Provincial Commissioner who is going to order the Provincial Commissioner to carry out the act or execution arising from the legislation of the Provincial Council? I hope that the Attorney-General will clear this so that the Provincial Council are not made into silted bodies that go on passing laws and enactment without having this effected in the Bill.

My third point is that I am assuming that the Attorney-General thinks that the Provincial Council should be convened or Members of the Provincial Council should be convened by the Provincial Commissioner. This has not been made clear in the Bill as to who is the convener of the Provincial Council members to hold a meeting of the Provincial Council. Is it the Provincial Commissioner or the Chairman of the Provincial Council? This, I think, has not been mentioned anywhere in the paragraphs. I think it should be made very, very clear that it is the responsibility of the Chairman to convene the Provincial Council meeting. If it is left to the responsibility of a civil servant, the civil servant may not want certain matters discussed and therefore he may use this responsibility to muddle or hold up a very necessary political discussion that is required in a province. Now, this has not been made clear in the Constitution and the Constitution amendments and therefore we would like to have it very clearly stated that the Provincial chairmen will be the people responsible for convening council meetings of the provinces.

My next point, Sir, would be the question of procedure. In conducting a meeting of the Provincial Council, we would like the Attorney-General to define clearly the procedure that would be followed so that the Provincial Council meetings can be conducted in a more uniform manner throughout the country. The county councils and the municipal councils have a definite uniform procedure that they adopt when they meet and we would like to know in view of the change now, what sort of procedure or conduct of meetings will be adopted when a Provincial Council is sitting. This is because of the change, Sir—I am aware of the procedure that different Regional Assemblies have been following in the past, but this has been dropped now by the change in the Constitution, that is why I am demanding the Attorney-General of the need for directing the Provincial Councils. Indeed some of the Provincial Councils have not been meeting because they do not know, there is no directive to tell them to do things. One, the procedure of the meeting of the Provincial Council, and two, how the legislation will be carried out in the Bill.

Another point I would like to raise, Sir, is that I am surprised that in this, as far as the Trust land is concerned the Minister for Natural Resources, or whatever Minister it was at that particular time, has been given a lot of powers which I think should have been restricted or limited. I would like to quote section 212 (a), page 40:—

(a) the Minister for the time being responsible for forests may, by order published in the Kenya Gazette, designate any area or areas of forest that are situated on Trust land as a central forest;

I think this is very dangerous. I am not surprised, now, that the Attorney-General has been defending the whole afternoon, the phrase, in good faith, because this means that the Minister responsible for Natural Resources could declare a county council forest in Lamu or in Kilifi at any time, a central Government forest even without consulting the local authority responsible. If this is what the Attorney-General is aiming at he should be told that we strongly resist this. We feel, Sir, that these powers should be very much restricted as far as the Minister is concerned. He should not be allowed, at his own discretion, to take away county council land or county council forest by mere declaration in the Kenya Gazette. I think that the Members here will realize that this is a most serious thing. This has happened, for example, I went to Masailand a few weeks ago and the county council was making a lot of noise because this power had been used already, and the county council there was complaining that the Minister from here, he is not here this afternoon, the particular Minister who I have in mind, but he had used it and the county council woke up to find finding that all their forests were to be kept their responsibility. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very dangerous power to put in the hands of a Minister without any time or check or restrictions.

I am not suggesting that the Ministers are angels they are far from it. They may be devils.

But, Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I wanted to emphasize was the danger of having this power entrusted to a Minister without any clause that defines or qualifies how he can use these powers.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if some of the entrenched powers are completely removed as the Attorney-General said that after we have passed this it will be no more necessary to have the entrenched clauses, this will mean that many things will be co-optic, for example the forty-one seats in the Senate will no longer be especially entrenched.

An hon. Member: Very cheap!

Mr. Ngala: I do not know what is cheap, whether you are very cheap or not, I do not know. But the point I am making is that the Attorney-General should make quite clear to us as to which entrenched aspects of the Constitution are not touched.

My next point, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is on the question of the aspects that are deleted. I would like to know, in no uncertain terms, what the Attorney-General means when he is referring to a clerk of a Provincial Council because throughout this Bill there is no place where specific provision has been mentioned of a clerk to a Provincial Council. Now is he talking of somebody who does not exist in the Bill? I stand for correction on this; if I have not seen the section, but I would like to know where the provision is, because at the moment, there are many Provincial Councils without a clerk, and it is not provided for here. Will it be a question of borrowing any clerk in an establishment to come and record the minutes of the Provincial Council like that, without any provision in the Constitution, or does the Attorney-General intend to provide itself specifically in the Constitution. If so, it should be put down here in the Constitution.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to emphasize the need for still making it possible for any Government Notice that is part of the Provincial Council to be published in the Kenya Gazette and the limit of days or weeks in which it should appear in the Kenya Gazette still continue. I understand that the danger of resistance by the Central Government, is now removed, but I think it is a very good provision. It would ensure that the Provincial Council's enactments would not be given undue delay in being published in the Kenya Gazette. Therefore, I would suggest that

[The Attorney-General] amendment to paragraph (c) is intended to make it clear that where Parliament confers powers on Provincial Councils to make laws, that does not include powers to make laws which have retrospective effects, unless Parliament expressly says so in the Act conferring the legislative power on the Council.

Section 111 provides for the prosecution of unqualified persons in the Provincial Councils by the Clerk. In other words, under the pending section, the prosecution should be initiated by the Clerk. It is considered that such prosecution should be brought by the Attorney-General.

Section 113 provides for the Finance and Establishment's Committee and for numerous other committees of the Regional Assembly. This provision is now obsolete and the substituted provision provides for a General Purposes Committee, a more appropriate title now, and for the possibility of other committees.

Sections 116 and 117 relate to the position of the Civil Secretary and other officers in the regions. They are not provisions which need to be included in the Constitution or, for that matter, in written law.

Section 181. In the Chapter on the Judiciary, I wish to refer in particular to section 181 which provides for appeals to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in England. It is considered that all appeals to this court should be abolished. Although the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is a court of very high legal standing, it is not our court. Also appeals to it take a long time and, by reason of distance, cost much more than appeals to our locally situated East African Court of Appeal. This apart, it is my personal view that continuing appeals to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council would not be in keeping with the dignity of our Republic. The Court of Appeal for Eastern Africa should become our final court of appeal.

Clause 15 of the Bill makes transitional provision and allows appeals to the Judicial Committee from any cases decided before Republic Day, if there was a right of appeal at that time, and provided that the record of the case is deposited with the committee before 12th March of this year. Hon. Members will have received notice and also seen the corrigendum in the Gazette; it was also referred to by you, Mr. Speaker, yesterday when I started to move this Bill.

I now come to Chapter XII on land. It is proposed to call this chapter "Trust Land" because that is what it will now be about. The amendments referring to Part 1, Part 2 and section 202 are consequential. Section 208 defines Trust land as vested in the county councils. The Government proposes that the powers of the Regional Assemblies to make laws in regard to the administration of Trust land by the county councils should now be conferred on Parliament. This is a matter for the national Parliament.

The other amendment to this section is the addition of a proviso to section (4). This is consequential upon the removal from the Constitution of the provisions vesting minerals in the Government. This amendment does not alter the law or give the Government anything it did not have before, but preserves the position that minerals, wherever they are, belong to the nation.

Section 209 (3). This section provides for the setting apart of Trust land for certain national purposes. The county council in whom the land is vested must be consulted before there is any setting apart. The Government considers that the further obligation to consult the chairman of the provincial council is no longer necessary or appropriate.

Now I come to sections 211 and 212. Firstly, section 211 provides that where an owner of land dies without heirs and without making a will, the land shall go to the Government.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I would ask hon. Members to listen to what is said.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njoro): I said, Sir, without heirs and without making a will. As Chapter XII now applies only to Trust land, section 211 is amended to apply only to Trust land. Clause 18 of the Bill contains a similar provision for land other than Trust land.

The new section 212 is necessary now that all reference to forests has been removed from the Constitution. All this section does is to preserve the existing right of the Government to manage central forests which are on Trust land. It does not give the Government any right it did not have before. The new section does not prevent Parliament from making laws modifying the position as it is now. Clause 16 of the Bill is simply designed to save the Minister for Natural Resources from having to designate the central forests all over again.

Part 3 of Chapter XII relates to the control over transactions in agricultural land. The Government considers that all these provisions form part of the ordinary written law and that it is unnecessary to include them in the Constitution. In other words, they will be written in our ordinary law and not in the Constitution. If we are to have a pocket-sized Constitution and our

[The Attorney-General] county council for the administration of Trust land. Clearly, the Commissioner of Lands is the best equipped person to assist the county council in this matter. The purpose of clause 20 is to continue in force the existing arrangement and procedure which governed the setting apart of Trust land by the county councils. This section does not change the law but keeps it in force.

Clause 21 of the Bill keeps Part 3 in force as part of the ordinary law, with necessary consequential amendments made to the First Schedule to this Bill; and Part 3 is deleted from the Constitution.

Section 212 is the interpretations section. The amendments proposed are of a consequential character.

Now, with regard to the Schedules, I wish to mention a few points. With regard to Schedule 1, now that the position of the provincial council is redefined in the Constitution, Schedule 1 is quite unnecessary. The amended Schedule is necessary in the first Amendment Act, because within it the specially entrenched provisions of the Constitution which could not be amended in that Act made no sense. We are trying to shorten the length of this book wherever we can.

Schedule 4 lists the specially entrenched provisions. This Schedule will become superfluous on the passing of this Bill because the distinction between entrenched and specially entrenched provisions will be abolished by the amendment to section 71.

Now with regard to the Second Schedule of the Bill on page 42, this deletes a number of sections of the Kenya Independence Order in Council, 1963 and a section of the Independence Act, which are now obsolete or "spent", as the lawyers say. Those sections have been reproduced in new transitional provisions in Part 3 of the Bill, in a form consistent with the new Republican Constitution. They will be included in a chapter of transitional provisions in the Constitution when it is revised and reprinted. But that will be the subject of further Parliamentary approval. As I stated yesterday, some of the transitional provisions in Part 3 of the Bill are replacements of transitional provisions in the first Amendment Act in this Second Schedule.

With regard to Part 4 of the Bill, clause 17 replaces section 207 of the Constitution, which has been deleted. Clause 17 provides the necessary legal authority for the Commissioner of Lands or any other duly authorized official to sell or lease Government land. Clause 18 is unnecessary now that section 211 of the Constitution only applies to Trust land.

The purpose of clause 19 is to continue the Commissioner of Lands in the position he has occupied for some years, as the agent of the county council for the administration of Trust land. Clearly, the Commissioner of Lands is the best equipped person to assist the county council in this matter. The purpose of clause 20 is to continue in force the existing arrangement and procedure which governed the setting apart of Trust land by the county councils. This section does not change the law but keeps it in force.

Clause 21 and the Third Schedule to the Bill continue Part 3 of Chapter XII of the Constitution, which relates to the control over transactions in agricultural land in force as part of the general law following the removal of that part from the Constitution.

Mr. Speaker: I have endeavoured to avoid wearying the House with too lengthy explanations and too many legal technicalities. I shall avail myself of any opportunity to give a fuller explanation where it is wanted.

Sir, I beg to move.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Aringwings-Kodhek) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not actually standing up to speak on the Bill. I have stood up to ask Government kindly to put off this Bill until tomorrow so that all Members can go and look through the Constitution, because I can see a lot of "delete section", "delete section" and we would like to be able to see exactly what is there before we accept the Bill. I have consulted the Attorney-General and he was not very much objecting, unless he has changed his mind.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are rising on a point of order, are you, Mr. Anyieni?

Mr. Anyieni: Is that supposed to be a point of order?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Well, you would not be able to speak again otherwise!

Mr. Anyieni: Oh, well, I am rising on a point of order, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will deal with it then. This is a matter which is entirely for Government; it is not actually a proper point of order. What hon. Members can do, if they like, is to move that the debate be adjourned until tomorrow. The only danger is that if he is unsuccessful risks by that Motion is that if he is unsuccessful that is the end of his speech in this debate; if he is successful, he can continue his speech when the debate is resumed.

[The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence]

hands at the back. I cannot believe that hon. Members in this House, after all the amount of discussion I have heard here, do not understand the meaning of good faith. They are speaking in very bad faith.

Mr. Chairman, Sir, I do not want to keep on labouring this point, and I suggest that all hon. Members understand what this means and they know nobody is to be cheated. If the special Member was chairman of this board or corporation, and if he fails badly, if he acts negligently, if he spends Kenya's money or money borrowed by Kenya for his own benefit, or having more wives, we will take him to court.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Chairman, Sir, if I may add a little to what my learned friend, Mr. Kodhek, has said, and the Attorney-General. I think it is only something small which has not been understood. Let me give an example. Let us imagine that an hon. Member—the hon. Member for Majoge-Bassi for example—takes his car to Cooper Motors for repairs. Then someone—"Kwangmor"—who works for Cooper Motors in the course of repairing this car, burns the car or causes some damage. Now the hon. Member for Majoge-Bassi will not accuse this "Kwangmor" for damaging this car. He will accuse Cooper Motors, who in turn will accuse this person. This is actually the difficult part of this. When somebody is protected here, this is straightforward, but the corporation can sue or can be sued. The corporation can sue this man who has done this in bad faith and with negligence. We are not intending that this man should be sued directly, but the corporation can sue him. I do not see what is difficult to understand here. I think probably the hon. Member for Majoge-Bassi and my friend—the national Member—may well know that these people are protected here, just as they are in Cooper Motors. We cannot accuse them directly. If we cannot accuse "Kwangmor", but can accuse Cooper Motors who in turn accuses the man, then I cannot see the difficulty. So, Mr. Chairman, hon. Members will probably agree with us at this stage that this clause should stand at it is in the Bill.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odongo): On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, in view of the fact that this matter has been thoroughly looked into, and I think that every Member has an idea what it is all about, would it be in order to move that the question be now put?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order, order. We have spent the better part of one hour on this one clause and I think it has been thrashed out fully. I will put the question.

THE AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION BILL

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am directed by the Committee of the whole House to report its consideration of The Agricultural Development Corporation Bill and its approval thereof with amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The consideration of the report will be tomorrow.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): I would like to ask the consideration for today, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Osogo, we postpone consideration of the report when there has been an amendment, unless you particularly want to ask leave of the House for today.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): I would like to ask leave of the House to have the consideration today, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is the practice of the House not to consider a report from the Committee the same day if there have been amendments, but with the leave of the House, there is no objection to doing so. If no hon. Member objects, you may move the consideration of the report now.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Report.

Second Reading

THE CONSTITUTION OF KENYA (AMENDMENT) BILL

(Resumption of consideration of Motion interrupted on 23rd March 1965)

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njengo): Mr. Speaker, when the House rose last night, I was dealing with some of the points which it is proposed in this Bill to amend. I was dealing, when we rose, with section 71. The next section, Mr. Speaker, is section 96 (1). I would like to tell the hon. Members that the only way to follow these amendments—I know all hon. Members have a copy of our Constitution—is to have the two amendments which we made last year and the copy of the proposed Bill. Otherwise it is very difficult to follow the amendments that have been suggested.

Section 96 (1), Mr. Speaker, deals with qualifications for elections to Provincial Councils. At present local government staff officers are disqualified under the present Constitution. This, as many hon. Members know, includes a number of school teachers. Now that the Provincial Councils have so responsibilities for local government authorities, there is no reason for this disqualification, and it is proposed to delete the section so that the teachers will be allowed to take part in the elections.

Section 101 provides for Provincial Councils' election petitions to go on to the High Court. At present these petitions are brought by voters or by the Clerk to the Provincial Councils. In the case of parliamentary elections, it is the Attorney-General who has power to bring petitions in the public interest, in addition to the right of voters to petition. Some hon. Members again mentioned that this is a very expensive exercise and it is proposed that these petitions should be undertaken by the Attorney-General on behalf of the voters and not by the clerk to the Councils, but it does not stop the individuals themselves. If they feel like it, undertaking the petition, but as I say, it is expensive petitioning in the High Court.

Part 3 of Chapter IX, the proposed deletion of section 102, and the substitution of two new sections, is for the purpose of redefining the functions of the Provincial Councils in view of the removal of their exclusive legislative powers. The new section 102 and 102 (a) lay down the position of the Provincial Councils as it is now under the amended Constitution.

Section 103 deals with the manner in which laws are to be made by Provincial Councils. Paragraph (a) of subsection 4 which makes elaborate provisions as to when a provincial amendment shall be published in the Gazette is no longer necessary. It appears to have been included because of some fear that the Central Government would frustrate Regional Government by refusing to print regional laws in the Official Gazette. The

[Mr. Masinde]

Sir, because if they are employees, then they will, of course, work under the direction of the corporation in the form of a statutory board, but we want to know who is going to act in "good faith", the members of the corporation or the staff, and who has the executive powers. It appears to be for the staff rather than for the board; if it is at all established, I think if we could establish the difference of what we are trying to protect there, then some of us will be able to help Government get out of these small technical wordings which are causing confusion.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Chairman, Sir, the hon. Mr. Gichoya is creating in the minds of the Members a monster who really does not exist. It is a pity that the hon. Member who has just spoken was not here earlier on. The corporation is a legal person; it can be sued, and can sue.

Secondly as far as the members of the corporation are concerned, they are not immune to the ordinary law of this country. They are subject to criminal law, they can be prosecuted if they are caught driving a car while drunk, or if they speed, just as any other person, but there are certain duties that they do as servants of the corporation. Let us also remember that although the words "good faith" have been emphasized, there are also the opposite words "bad faith", which can also be established, where it can be proved that a person has done his act in bad faith. In drafting a legislation we do not put the opposite. What we are trying to prove here is "good faith", but if it can be proved that this person's actions were done in bad faith, in his conduct as a servant only of this corporation, you can sue the corporation. But instead of suing the corporation, it can easily be established that the act was done in good faith, then the company can be sued and not the individual. But, as far as this is concerned, they are subject to the ordinary law of the land.

Mr. Anyikwa: Mr. Chairman, I would like the Attorney-General to understand what we are querying. We are not saying that if these people want to steal money there is no law to prosecute them. We are not saying that if they knock people down with their cars, they cannot be prosecuted. This is not the point we are making. The point we are making is that our country is an agricultural country, and our country is going to receive a lot of loans from overseas. This corporation is going to decide and advise where the money is going to be spent. If they decide that a project should be erected in such-and-such a place, and they advise wrongly, and after four years the whole project fails—an example of Tanzania has been given here where a project of £10 million fails—and the Kenya taxpayer is expected to find ways and means of paying the loans, this is what we are trying to avoid.

I would like to propose that instead of us continuing with this, I would like to say that this clause should not be part of the Bill, and if the Minister wants it to be part of the Bill, then the Minister should withdraw the whole Bill, discuss it, find an acceptable solution to it, then bring it here, because we cannot accept responsibility. If we look at everything that is done by the corporation, we will find that it is not only the employees. All the members of the corporation are fully protected, so what we would like is that these people must know that they have a great responsibility, and if they have a great responsibility, they can just say that they did this and that in good faith.

Now, have we got laws in Kenya by which, when somebody does something in good faith, the Attorney-General can tell us to what extent that good faith will be judged? If he can tell us that, then we will accept this part of the Bill, this clause. If that is not so, then I would like to ask the Assistant Minister kindly to withdraw this Bill, let us discuss it and find an acceptable method of guaranteeing that these people will not mislead the Kenya Government in spending money that they have as loans on useless projects which will flop and create chaos for our country. This is not the first time, Mr. Chairman, and I understand that in countries like Russia if they give you a responsibility of planning something, you plan it and tell them that you require so much money, then they give you that amount of money to run the project. If the project fails, then you are removed. We here, would like to see this clause working, and I do not think any Member here will accept this clause as it is now. It is dangerous and we cannot accept it.

Mr. J. M. Karuki: Mr. Chairman, I think the point that I would like to make here is that we are not protecting the corporation, but at the same time, these words "in good faith" means just this and it goes as far as to say that without negligence for the purpose of this Act—

Mr. Anyikwa: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, is it in order for a Member who can normally speak very loudly to whisper to the Chairman only. We want to hear what he is saying.

Mr. J. M. Karuki: Mr. Chairman, what I am saying here is that it seems to me that we are protecting the corporation and at the same time protecting individuals working in the corporation.

[Mr. J. M. Karuki]

Now, here it says that the actual thing be done in good faith, without negligence, for the purpose of this Act. Now, what I would like to know from the Assistant Minister is whether, while drafting that particular clause, they paid more attention in trying to find out whether this is actually going to prevent any punishment if they commit an offence in the corporation, and secondly, it seems to me that on the right side of the Bill itself. It shows only that the corporation is exempted from liability, but what is put here is not the corporation, but individuals. Now, I am not even sure whether there will be a committee to determine the extent to which somebody is allowed to go to determine whether he did it in good faith or in bad faith. It seems to me that the corporation is going to duplicate the work by telling somebody else to determine to what extent it is going to be termed "good faith".

Now, Mr. Chairman, here I must emphasize very strongly that passing a Bill in this House is one thing, but to execute the Bill itself, is a different thing. When we pass the Bill in this House, this will go to other people who will execute the provisions.

Now, it was only the other day, Mr. Chairman, I heard that somebody was going along the road and there was a collision with the police, but he was told that if he wanted to be let off he should go to the President in the spirit of Harumbee. He was told that this is the Harumbee spirit of the President. Now, we see here that the activities were not in the Harumbee spirit, so Mr. Chairman, we can pass this in this House, but if we are not assured that there will be some other people who will be determining to what extent these good faiths will go, I am sorry to say that we will find ourselves in great difficulties. Somebody will say that this has been passed in Parliament, and he will tend to think that he is protected by this Bill, and the Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development would hear me out on this. If I am not mistaken, somebody was keeping two different accounts in another board, and one account was getting money from another account, but here it can be argued whether that man was doing this in good faith. He knew what he was going. Therefore, he believed that he was acting in good faith.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order, order. Mr. Karuki, you know very well what is meant by "good faith". Before I call upon any other hon. Member, I would like to make clear that there is in fact a great deal of repetition on what has been said. We have had about twenty speakers who have repeated the same question about good faith. Some of them are tending to misrepresent the term "good faith". A criminal offence or an attempt to cheat or steal cannot be said to be in good faith. Every hon. Member knows what it means.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodiak): Mr. Chairman, I am standing in good faith and I am quite sure the National Youth Leader leads the youth in good faith. The unfortunate thing here is that we have been labouring the same point with so many speakers. The Members are blinded by the many clauses here. Instead they should look at the paper, this is the Agricultural Development Corporation Bill. Now once you have a corporation, a corporation is a legal body. They can sue. Some of you will be members of this corporation. We can pursue and can sue. I think some of you hon. Members may be members of this corporation. If for some reason you act negligently, we will send you to court.

Hon. Members: Address the Chair.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Yes, I think you had better address the Chair.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodiak): Even if the chairman of the corporation acts with negligence, then we will take him to court. If he acts without good faith, we will take him to court. But the part of the clause in which the Members are interested says that it must be done in good faith and without negligence. It is not or. These two must go together. It is if any hon. Member or person goes into this, we have to make sure it is in good faith all along. Mark you, human beings are only human beings. They are fallible. They are not enclosed in glass; they will make mistakes. That is why this corporation will have members to advise its servants and officers, because they want to attract some of the best brains in the country and some of the best men. We must give them protection for human failings and weaknesses; otherwise nobility will come forward. If you offer me chairmanship on this board, and there are no protections, I will say, "Good Lord, my father took me to a good school and he spent a lot of money." So, you will have to put a mushroom tone of teacher to do it.

Secondly, Mr. Chairman, all corporation, all boards of any importance—many of them have made mistakes—always have a clause to protect them. Even soldiers in the army, or army officers, who are sent out to fight. There are certain things that human beings do, and they need some protection, otherwise you will be tying people's [Mr. Anylen] The books were printed, we debated that here in Parliament and at last it was declared to be a useless thing, so now the Ministry of Economic Planning is re-drafting it. Again, this was good faith; I am referring to good faith. It was done in good faith, Mr. Chairman, and there was good faith in that document. These people were able to give a specific amount of money to some areas. For instance, of the £3.4 million, £1.8 million was given to one district and £1.6 million was supposed to go to all other districts in Kenya. What guarantee have we that this corporation in good faith is not going to repeat such things?

So I would like the Minister here to accept some sort of an amendment or to go and look to find an acceptable amendment, and to say that if these people make a mistake, they will be held responsible, as we are all held responsible.

With those few remarks, I should like to hear what the Minister says in this connection.

Mr. Khasakula: I will not speak much on this, Mr. Chairman. I would only ask for clarification not from the Minister but from the legal people. Why should clause 16 be included in the general rules of this Act, because I do not see the necessity of it?

Mr. Ngala: Delete it.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Chairman, I am surprised to hear the hon. Mr. Ngala say, "Delete it," because under clause 16 is the number of corporations, one of which he is the head of, there is a similar clause which protects the officers of these corporations, if they do any acts in the course of their duties. These are not criminal offences, these are acts which are liable to bring about a civil action against officers. If these people are not protected when they are carrying out the work of the corporation, then they will be personally liable, and one might feel—and I am sure the hon. Member will feel so—that if these people are the servants of this corporation, the corporation should protect them when they are carrying out these duties on behalf of this organization.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I was more or less on the point of saying the whole thing should be deleted, but again I have been reminded of one thing: that the corporation can be sued, which now gives us a chance of getting the head of the corporation and penalizing him indirectly by removing him from office. But still there is a danger, whereby somebody like King who was employed by the Kenya Meat Commission did in good faith run away from this country, without paying the money of the Kenya Meat Commission, and he went to his own country in good faith—

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, I think these words "in good faith" are being misused because if Mr. King had gone out of this country in good faith—in other words, if I had known that he was running out of this country—I would have been the first one to get him imprisoned. He ran away secretly, not in good faith. He ran out of this country and went to South Africa from where, as you know, we cannot bring him back because we have no extradition treaty with South Africa.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Chairman, I still maintain he left the country in good faith. He really acted in good faith. He knew that the conditions of a South African—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Gichoya, you are not allowed to misrepresent very obvious facts. Unless you are willing—

Mr. Gichoya: I withdraw that, Mr. Chairman.

There is another thing that was done in good faith in my own former Embu District. A number of million shillings were loaned to the Kiambu African District Council of the day for the purpose of tarmac-ing their own roads, and the African District Councillors of the day did it in good faith, but foolishly because in Embu District the tarmac is just on the edge, round about here, and they had enough money to cover most of the roads in Embu District and make them standard. I am talking of the old Embu. Now in good faith the council has given this money to Kiambu on condition that it should be repaid after fifty years: We are the sufferers because of things done in good faith, but in the wrong direction.

Mr. Chairman, it bores me when a man who is ignorant of the facts tries to talk of them. The Member from the Nandi area talks in terms of tribalism, when he knows that I am a Kikuyu. The money was given to the Kikuyu, so there is no question of tribalism. The method of doing it was wrong. That is why I am questioning the term "in good faith". Now, we have to have decisions taken by the manager and employers of his staff, in good faith, but in the wrong direction. What powers have we to get things corrected and make the man who did it know that there is something wrong? We can sue the corporation, but the man who really put the corporation in such a position is not penalized at all. He enjoys the phrase "good faith", having [Mr. Gichoya] done it in good faith. This is not to be pursued, because if it is pursued in the Court of Law, he can easily prove that he did it in good faith. We are told that no action can be taken, no proceedings can be taken against him. In other words, this man can never appear in a Court of Law. We expect justice for him, as an employee, and for us. These are the dangers I am bringing here, unless something is done to make it possible that in his own personal capacity he can be put before the dock and prove that he did it in good faith. This is exactly what we would like the Attorney-General to make us understand, so that we are assured that this man and these people who are assured that they make a mistake will be put in the dock when they make a mistake to prove that they did it good faith.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Chairman, before hon. Members get very far in this clause, I think we are stressing the wrong words at this time. One can read a sentence and stress the wrong words, and it may have several interpretations, but what is happening here is that no act or anything done by any member of the corporation—I am not stressing those words, of course—the general manager, or any officer of the corporation, "shall be done in good faith and without negligence". This is what matters, Mr. Chairman. One can do something, but with negligence. It can be in good faith, but he has done it with negligence. The phrase here that matters and should be emphasized or stressed is "without negligence". Now, if he does it in good faith, and without negligence, Mr. Chairman, how can we prosecute such a man who says, as the hon. Member for Maljoge-Basasi said, laws and taxes may be grown in one of the districts in this country, and that after a year or so this project is found to be a failure. Now, he did this, and if he did it with negligence, obviously he should be brought before the Court of Law because he neglected making a careful study of the project.

The Chairman, a comparison was made here of the Red Book, which the hon. Member for Kisi South or East, I do not know, pulled to pieces. Some people composed it in good faith, I agree, but some people did it with negligence, because they neglected some other areas, but they are different now. They did it in good faith with negligence, but here they have to do it in good faith without negligence, Mr. Chairman.

With this, I pray, Mr. Chairman, that hon. Members stress very hard the words "without negligence", which matter in this Bill in this clause.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Odongo): Mr. Chairman, I think that I would request a clarification either from the Assistant Minister, or preferably from the Attorney-General, who fortunately is here. What I think is important is for the Members to be assured that people who will be working in this corporation will not be enjoying any special privileges more than a person working in the Cooper Motors or a secondary school from outside this country. Do we understand that this money is protected, so that if he becomes unfaithful and smashes the picture of the President, for instance, then nothing will be done to him, because if that is not the case, then what is the difference between this man and a teacher who is teaching in our schools, or anybody who is working in the Cooper Motors? What is the difference? Is he enjoying any special privileges?

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Chairman, I think the Attorney-General should give a clear definition of what is meant by "good faith", his legal interpretation of these words "good faith". We have come across schemes and projects having been initiated with what would appear to be good faith but with a very high degree of cunning to spend a lot of taxpayers money.

Mr. Chairman, I remember one very big scheme which was carried out in Tanganyika some time ago. They used to call it the Overseas Food Corporation. That corporation, the Groundnuts Scheme, spent over £10 million. Now, if the man initiating that particular scheme was doing it in good faith, then we cannot afford, in this country, to have any schemes being initiated to that magnitude in what is termed to be good faith. What is going to be the yardstick measure to decide that such a scheme has been initiated in good faith.

Mr. Chairman, I think it is imperative that the Attorney-General should give a legal definition of these words "good faith", so that we know that if a certain scheme has been initiated and it fails to the point that Government money or the taxpayers' money is going to be spent and lost, that man should not be let off scot-free. He must be taken to Court to have it proved that he was doing this in good faith according to a definition incorporated in this Bill.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Chairman, what has been emphasized in the form of a question I think has already been answered, and I want to propose a similar question, as to whether it is for the employees of the corporation, or the corporation

[Mr. Osogo] the department concerned in connexion with such projects? That is all we would like to know.

QUORUM

Mr. Nyanga: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, Sir, is there a quorum in the House?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): No, we do not have a quorum. Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): We now have a quorum, Mr. Osogo.

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Chairman, Sir, may I refer the hon. Member to section 7 which states that the members of the corporation—and remember the members referred to under section 7 include co-opted members—shall be paid out of the funds of the corporation such remuneration as the Minister, after consultation with the corporation may determine, and that he will be paid from here, not salaries but allowances, sitting allowances when they are sitting on this.

(Clause 11 agreed to)

Clause 12

Mr. J. M. Kariki: In this clause it states:

"If the Minister, after consultation with the Minister for the time being responsible for finance—"

Mr. Chairman, Sir, it seems to me that if a project is not good and the Minister for Agriculture has instructed, after consulting the Minister for Finance, the corporation to undertake a certain project and that project is not good, then the corporation may stop pursuing that project and then the Government will reimburse the corporation so much money because of that. Now, does it not show here that a bad Minister for Agriculture if any can advise the Minister for Finance to give a bad project which might cause the Government a lot of money in the end?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Chairman, we did not mean it like that, and we hope there will not be a bad Minister for Agriculture who will do this kind of thing. However, it does not say that the corporation will stop. What it says is that the corporation will not be required to proceed with such a project until the Government has undertaken to reimburse it. Obviously, Mr. Chairman, Sir, the hon. Member will agree with me probably here that when I want to go on with a project when he wants me to go on with a project which, in my opinion, is not going to be viable, is not going to pay, then if I refuse it only keeps the door open. It is possible that a committee can be set up of people who are not member of the corporation, to advise the corporation. If I may give an example of this, Mr. Chairman, let us say that we have a project in Kirinyaga, which is the district of the hon. Member who has just spoken, where the advice of the local people will be needed. The corporation is empowered in this clause to set up a committee in that area which would advise on viability and the possibility carrying out the project in that area. To advise only, and then it will come to the corporation for discussion. That is only the possibility of not tying up the hands of the corporation on seeking advice from many other people and other places.

Mr. Chairman, if I may clarify a small point raised by the same hon. Member for Gichugu in saying that—What was his other point?

Mr. Gheboya: The problem was, as I said, that we should commit ourselves to something we know, otherwise let us know from your own Memorandum and Articles of Association of the corporation the number of committees stipulated.

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I thank the hon. Member for having reminded me of the point he had raised.

The Articles of the Association and agricultural committees. Mr. Chairman, can you be made when there is a law establishing that corporation. These are not to be included in the Act, because they are going to be made by the Members themselves in forming the rules and knowing how many committees they will require. In this law we cannot say they need ten committees, they need one committee, they need four committees. We cannot say that in this law because it is impossible at this stage to know the requirements of the corporation.

So, Mr. Chairman, I think the hon. Member will agree with me that these are principles which can be set by the management of the corporation and not included in a law like this one.

Mr. J. M. Kariki: Mr. Chairman, I am not going to argue on the side of the committees, but my original question was whether these Members of the other committee are paid and what are they going to receive when on duty, and that is what I would like to know, and if so, out of whose pocket, whether it is money that is already in the corporation or money that will be given by [Mr. Osogo] the same way as the Ministries, that is my biggest headache.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I would like to allay the fears of the hon. Member by saying that if one is able to bear in mind all the time the membership of the corporation, he will have sufficient safeguard there. If you look at the membership, for instance, and we are satisfied about the composition of the membership and all the other appointments, surely the Minister will not ignore the advice of the members of the corporation?

(Clause 12 agreed to)
(Clauses 13 and 14 agreed to)

Clause 15

Mr. Gheboya: Mr. Chairman, in connexion with the staff of the corporation at the present time, we are facing a problem of Africanization because we do not have people with sufficient education, or for that matter experience. I wonder why the Ministry did not see fit—of course this ought to have come in clause No. 14. Where there is a general manager, there should be a deputy general manager to undertake the general management for a number of years, but taking clause No. 15 as it is, there has also been a tendency to try to frustrate the few brains we have in the country by employing in responsible positions some people who, otherwise could not get into those positions had they not used influence and in this connexion, Sir, I feel that the Government should take appropriate steps in employing the staff of the corporation by either getting them through the normal channels, the Civil Service Commission or have a body which is subject to this House, to a certain degree, so that we do not have a Minister employing the group that appoints the officers. Mr. Njonjo, because he is connected with this particular Minister, I say this, Mr. Chairman, Sir, because we have many times fought in this House on the matter of "Brotherization". Questions have been coming into this House—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Gheboya, I hate to interrupt you, but we are discussing clause No. 15 of this Bill, we are not discussing the general Civil Service position of this country.

Mr. Gheboya: Now, Mr. Chairman, I agree with you that we are dealing with the servants of the corporation. Now, here unless we are given a very good picture of the best methods of employing the staff of this corporation, we shall remain in the same position as we are today, as so far as certain appointments to positions are concerned in the Civil Service. This corporation is concerned with the services of Kenya and the Government and it is my fear that with an institution of this nature that it may be operated in the same way as the Ministries, that is my biggest headache.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I would like to allay the fears of the hon. Member by saying that if one is able to bear in mind all the time the membership of the corporation, he will have sufficient safeguard there. If you look at the membership, for instance, and we are satisfied about the composition of the membership and all the other appointments, surely the Minister will not ignore the advice of the members of the corporation?

Mr. J. M. Kariki: Mr. Chairman, what we fear here is, as we have so many problems in this country now that our people are starving for the lack of jobs in these fields, we would like to have an assurance from the Assistant Minister that when the occasion arises for the employment of these people as officers in the corporation, then there will be somebody who will be responsible for knowing who is to be employed, rather than putting such officers as are stated here. This member says that the people who are to be employed or considered will be only persons who have come from the places where the money has come from and that is the danger we see here. What I was asking the Assistant Minister to make clear is whether a local consideration will be paramount in selecting those people. And also with regard to the other property which we will have within the course of one year. We have many youths who are trained in most of the fields stated here and we could give them what they need.

Mr. Gheboya: Mr. Chairman, after hearing the explanation given to this committee by the Attorney-General, I still have fears. Now, we have so far three officers of Kenya Government, that is three civil servants, and I have found that two of them come from the same area, the same of the province, the same tribe, for that matter, and the third from another tribe. Now, we are told that we should not worry because there are safeguards. Now it is human sometimes that one might make a mistake and put a number of people from the same area into the same department, but it is my fear that this disease is going to spread into the corporation which we are trying to create, of tribal implications of favouritism particularly—it is not even tribalism, it is more on the level of "brotherization". This is exactly the problem which the Attorney-General could not remove from me. Now if I look to the Minister for the time being responsible for agriculture, he comes to my district and he is not an African. Now I am putting it nicely, the Permanent Secretary to the Ministry for Finance, he comes to my district, he is a Kikuyu, Jeroge.

[The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry]

what he thinks of this Bill. If he looks at section 11, of this Bill, he will find that we are doing in this section what he wants us to do. If we are co-opting members from the public, if the hon. Member cares to look at this very carefully, he will see that in that section we are doing what he wants us to do, but even, though these additional seats for these additional four members we are putting in this Bill when amending it, this is still doing what the hon. Member for Gichoya again wants us to do. We are giving the Minister the chance to nominate or to appoint members of the public. We are not tying these to any section here. He can appoint them in one section. As I have said, if the hon. Member looks very closely at (b), he will see many things. It says, "not more than ten members appointed by the Minister who, in his opinion, possess qualities likely to be of benefit to the corporation".

Now this is among the ten, these ones are going to come there; the four that remain, Mr. Assistant Minister, come under point (f), (g) and (h). Or, as the hon. Mr. Khasakhala says, we have not put people who are in the field; he has forgotten section 5 (1) (c), where two members are to be appointed by the Minister from a panel of names of not less than five, submitted by the Central Agricultural Board, which, as I said yesterday, is an elected board, whose members are elected from all provinces in the country. We are giving the Minister a chance—and the hon. Member for Aberdarees would probably agree with me—to appoint, say, a Member of Parliament.

Now the Member for Aberdarees is indicating that the Bill, as it stands, provides for only six. It does not, Mr. Chairman, it only provides for six if it says "not more than one", that means appointing one; but the Minister may as well appoint two, and if it stands at six he cannot do this. So if the Minister wants to appoint, under (iii), two or three members, he cannot do it as the Bill stands at this time. He can do it, however, when the number is raised to ten very easily. So long as the person he is going to appoint is, in the opinion of the Minister; going to be of benefit to the corporation, then I do not see how he cannot appoint a member under (iii), for example.

Mr. Chairman, may I also correct the hon. Mr. Khasakhala on what he has said, that people who will be appointed under (i) and (ii) should be the same people as appointed under (d) and (e). This, Sir, is not true, because the Permanent Secretary will be on this corporation to convey the policy from the Treasury. He is not an accountant himself, he does not know about accounts, but he is going to convey to the corporation the views as expressed in the Treasury, of which the person appointed under (i) or (ii) has no idea. People appointed under (i) and (ii) do not stay in the Treasury. The Permanent Secretary appointed under (e) has nothing to do with the gentleman who will be appointed under (ii); they have no connexion. The Permanent Secretaries will convey to the corporation the details of the policy from their different Ministries, and that is all.

Let us now, however, overlook, Mr. Chairman, the fact that the public will be represented by the appointment under (iii), and also by the additional four if the Minister has a chance to play about with appointments from sectors of the public.

Mr. J. M. Karufki: Mr. Chairman, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that the appointments under (d), (e) and (f) are there because there is some sort of fear that when the corporation is implemented there might be some sort of arguments between the corporation and the Government and that each Ministry would like to see a representative of its own in the corporation so as to inform its respective Ministry what has been going on in the corporation?

Mr. Osoyo: It is not like that, Sir. Perhaps the hon. Member for Aberdarees would look at clause 20, where it says:

"The Minister may, after consultation . . . make rules generally for better carrying out the purposes and provisions of this Act and, in particular and without prejudice to the foregoing generality, make rules for—

(a) raising such loans and making investments, on such terms as the Minister may, after consultation with the Minister for the time being responsible for finance, approve . . ."

Now the Permanent Secretaries are there to relay the information carried from the corporation to their respective Ministers, so that the Permanent Secretary of the Ministry of Agriculture is going to bring information that has come from the corporation to his Minister, who, in turn, is going to consult the Minister for Finance; the latter also has got a representative there who will have given him the information so that they can consult amicably between themselves.

Clause 9

Mr. Osoyo: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I beg to move that clause 9 of the Bill be amended by deleting the full-stop at the end thereof and inserting in place thereof a colon, and by adding thereafter the following proviso—

"Provided that the provisions of this section shall not apply to a member who has been appointed in accordance with the provisions of section 5 (1) (b) (iv) of this Act, in respect of the interests he was appointed to represent."

Mr. Chairman, hon. Members will know that under clause 5 we have been discussing that a person may be appointed very well knowing that the interests he is appointed to represent, on the corporation, under section 11 (b) (iv) (?), and therefore we do not see why he should declare an interest where that interest is well known. It would be very illogical for him to declare his interest when it is already known.

Mr. Chairman, Sir, I beg to move.

(Question of the amendment proposed)

(Question that the words to be added be added put and agreed to)

(Clause 9 as amended agreed to)

(Clause 10 agreed to)

Clause 11

Mr. J. M. Karufki: Mr. Chairman, this clause 11 says, "The corporation may appoint committees, whether of its own members or otherwise . . ." This seems to mean that when it comes to "or otherwise" the corporation may have another committee which does not come out of the members of the corporation. Now what I would like to know from the Assistant Minister, because this was not quite clear to me, is whether that committee, which is not comprised of members of the corporation, is going to receive an honorarium when it is on duty?

Mr. Osoyo: Sir, it does not say that a different committee is going to be appointed. What is says here, Sir, is that committees will be appointed comprising members of the corporation or otherwise, which means that, in addition to members of the corporation, there will be members drawn from the public, not necessarily a separate committee of people from outside.

Here, Sir, we want to draw in members of the public who the corporation think will be of necessary service to it in advising on a particular project going on in a particular place. We do not want to tie our hands, because there may be somebody in the country, in a sector of this country, who might very well advise the corporation; if we leave this open, as it is now in this clause, then the corporation will be able to bring in such a person to give advice on any particular project which it is to be undertaken in that area.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Chairman, Sir, just on the same point, the language which is here shows that the corporation may appoint committees, whether of its own members, those who are already there, or going away from the members who are already getting other members of the public and forming committees. It does not state here: members of the corporation plus others or only the members of the corporation because we already understand that it means either the exact number of people who are there or additional numbers to the existing number should be made. Here I would like clarification from the Attorney-General in terms of the wording used. My own small understanding of it is this, that they could be either Members of the corporation or just a group of Members of the corporation or the Minister or by the people appointed by the Minister or by the corporation, whatever the case may be, who are not actually Members of this particular group so that the Assistant Minister should not make us understand what in actual fact is not true, that is one thing.

The other thing I would like to know is this. The number of these committees of necessity must be known because you cannot have a corporation without its rules, with a Memorandum and Articles of Association stipulating, or putting clearly, that they have so many committees dealing with the various things, consequently, the House would know exactly that we are being committed to so many committees when approving this institution, but now the Assistant Minister puts it that we shall have committees. How many are there? Nobody knows. These are the things which ought to be done. Just supposing there are ten. As far as I see, the number of Members who are coming to be part of this corporation will be very limited, so if we have ten committees, these people will not suffice. They cannot be sufficient to man the committees, so we should know the number of committees needed.

Secondly, the Minister must tell us that either the language is wrong or our language is wrong. So far as its own Members or otherwise is concerned, because our translation or interpretation is quite different from what the Assistant Minister is speaking about it. This is, perhaps, a question for the Attorney-General to speak about.

Mr. Osoyo: Mr. Chairman, before the Attorney-General can probably clarify the legal language

THE AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION BILL

(Clauses 2, 3 and 4 agreed to)

Clause 5

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I beg to move an amendment of clause 5 (1) (b) by inserting the word "ten" instead of the word "six" that appears therein.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Chairman, Sir, it is a very good thing that the Assistant Minister has moved an amendment to increase the number of the people who are supposed to be within the secretariat of the corporation. I think the Assistant Minister will be able to make my problem clear to me. Will the additional number of people from six to ten be drawn from the ordinary non-Government officials and technicians? I see that you have a number of technicians being quoted here that they have to produce accountancy knowledge, or another one has to have international finance knowledge, and another one should have knowledge of processing and marketing of agricultural produce. Now, are these four extra people to be Members of the Parliament, or are they to be members of the agricultural organizations within the country, or will they be businessmen or school teachers? These are the things that ought to be made clear to us, that we are increasing this number from six to ten so that we can bring into the picture new faces within the corporation?

Mr. J. M. Karuki: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I just want to have some clarifications from the Assistant Minister. He is amending this to ten, but in the explanation it is stated that not less than one shall be a member of one of the professional bodies. Now, there is some sort of explanation, and this explanation goes up to six members. Would it not have been better for him to have explained to the House whether these other four will be included in those other Schedules below that, so as to bring the total number to ten, because at the moment, by simply amending the word "six" and putting "ten", there is no explanation as to where these other four will function and how they will be elected.

Mr. Khasakhalu: Following that up, Mr. Speaker, could the Assistant Minister not tell us how he arrives at the figure, adding on the four? Yesterday the argument was that we wanted representations to come from each province and we have six provinces, but he has added only another four. How did he arrive at this figure of four and how are they going to be fitted into this Bill?

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): It is unfortunate, Sir, that the last speaker was not here when I was answering his proposal of appointing members from different provinces. Sir, I will also take this chance to correct what the Voice of Kenya has reported, that I said that there will be ten Members of Parliament on this corporation. I have already telephoned the Voice of Kenya to correct this, and I hope they will do so. The additional number, Mr. Chairman, Sir, is connected with— if hon. Members will look at what (b) says—(b), and with your permission, I will read it to the hon. Members. It says: "Not more than ten members appointed by the Minister who in his opinion possess qualities likely to be of benefit to the corporation." Mr. Chairman, it is "not less than", it does not say "not more than". So there is a possibility of the Minister appointing an additional three, maybe, in any of these provisions (1) to (iv) here. For example, the Minister may appoint an hon. Member of Parliament in section (b) (iii) who has qualities of processing and marketing of agricultural produce. It does not limit him there to the number he is going to appoint. All it says is, "not less than". We also thought that on (b) (iv), lenders might be more than one. A country from the so-called Western bloc might lend money and a country from the so-called Eastern bloc might lend us money. It is only those appropriate that representatives from these different countries and corners of the world should have places on this corporation. That is why we have thought it fit to increase the number. It does not also say that the Minister will appoint ten.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry]

It does not specifically say that. We only give a chance for the Minister to manoeuvre between clause 5 and ten; between six that are provided for here and ten. It does not tie the Minister down here and ten. It does not tie the Minister down to appoint one in each, except in (c) where the Minister is tied down to two only, and (d) and (e) is tied down to one. He can play with the word (b) (i), (ii), (iii) and (iv). That is how we reach the figure four, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. J. M. Karuki: Mr. Chairman, now that the Assessee-General is here, I would like to put forward a point of legality which we are not quite clear on. This Bill states that "not less than one Member" but in (c) the Minister is tied down to two Members. If you count up those Members, Mr. Chairman, they add up to six. If we change the number in (b) to 10 and we do not change these other clauses, then how are we going to claim that this number is not in the other clauses? This is causing confusion and it is high time we were told that they will remain either six or as ten, and be fitted in the Bill. Then we will know exactly where we stand in the Bill.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I still insist that something ought to be done by the Assistant Minister. Here we are apparently controlled by the board of technicians in the country. So far as the chances given in clause 5 are concerned, they are only given to those who have had the opportunity to go to technical institutions to become accountants, others international financiers, those who have been to university and then have qualified perhaps with one of the international bodies. It is only on rare occasions you find an African has had the opportunity of working in these big institutions dealing with international finance. In this respect, Sir, I feel that the number of ten should be increased to give any African with intelligence, basic intelligence, a chance to train under one of these international finance experts, so that sooner or later these institutions become local rather than foreign institutions. What I mean is that unless we open the doors for the Africans with less education and give them an opportunity to learn to handle responsibilities in this country, in a number of years to come, I feel we will no longer be in a position to handle our own affairs. We will have to convert them to the British colonial authority in this country with another authority, with the blessings of the people.

When you establish a board or corporation of this nature, which is going to deal with the life of this country in terms of money, I feel that the local people should be associating with the whole project in a greater measure than just merely having an institution for the sake of having an institution: I request the Assistant Minister to see to it that we do not, have "not more than ten", but have "not more than fifteen", so that fifteen becomes the maximum. Consequently, those people who are now doing very well in the co-operative movement, say managers of co-operatives, who know how to market their own products. Apparently they could be trained to handle higher responsibilities. The only Africans I can see who are participating in this project are the Permanent Secretaries, the civil servants, who are being shifted today from one Ministry to another. As it happened, when we had the Ujuzi changes, a Permanent Secretary in the Ministry of Agriculture was shifted to the Ministry of Defence; a man with no background of defence. However, these are the only Africans I can see who are in a position to participate in this corporation. The rest will not be Africans. The greater number will be non-Africans, although they could be Kenya citizens. If only we could think of giving those who had no opportunities during the period when we had no authority the chance to think and enjoy the fruits of our labour, and the fruits of independence.

The Assistant Minister should consider increasing the number so that the Minister will have the latitude of distributing them to various places where technical knowledge is not needed in a greater measure.

Mr. Khasakhalu: Mr. Chairman, following that up, we seem to be dealing with technicians only on this Bill and ignoring the people who are in the field. If you look at subhead (i) and (ii) of clause 5, these people could do the work which (c) and (f) could do. There it is all duplicated. The Permanent Secretary in the Planning Office and the Permanent Secretary in the Ministry of Finance are people who work on financial ideas, and in (i) and (ii) we are pursuing the same people. I feel that the Assistant Minister should redraft these particular clauses so that two technicians with financial ideas represent that organization in this corporation, and others to be represented by the people who know what is done in the field, instead of having all technicians here.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Chairman, Sir, it is very unfortunate that my friend, the Member for Gichugu, was not here yesterday. He seems to be taking this chance to explain planting of tea in Vihiga and also the extension of existing tea farms. As far as coffee is concerned, the Government intends to uphold the principles of the International Coffee Agreement.

Mr. Khasekha: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that the soil has proved that tea and coffee can be grown in these areas and it is the Ministry which is refusing these people the right to grow tea?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, this allegation from the hon. Member is not true. Vihiga is unfortunate in that soils differ in one place from another a very short distance away. At this time the tea development officer attached to soil testing is in that area and is finding difficulties in allocating a large area where tea could be grown, and it is not right for the hon. Member to say that soil has been tested and my Ministry has disagreed with the tests.

Mr. Khasekha: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, could the Minister tell the House whether the soil testing is followed by the roads, as they are doing in his Ministry, because they are all the time giving zones where tea can be grown up to a certain road, and not the soil?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, roads are just one of the factors which are looked into when considering expansion of tea planting, but, as I have said, soil tests have not been completed in this area. But I may inform the hon. Member who is pursuing this question that out of the allocated 300 acres for the Vihiga Division to plant tea, only 100 acres were planted last year and people did not come up to collect tea-plant stumps to plant up the 200 remaining acres, which proves to me and my Ministry that these people were not interested last year in planting more tea.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, could the Assistant Minister agree with me that it is high time for the Vihiga Division to be discouraged from growing coffee to enable Lurambi people to grow coffee and Vihiga people to grow tea?

Mr. Osogo: As I have said, Mr. Speaker, I did not want hon. Members to press me after having answered a Motion in this House that we are tied up with the International Agreement as far as coffee is concerned, but I would inform the hon. Member that out of the coffee-planting acreage which we were determining in the Ministerial Coffee Committee that was set up by the Prime Minister last year, Vihiga was allocated 484 acres of coffee out of the 1,716 acres that were allocated in Western Province.

MIRAA PRODUCTION IN CHULU HILLS

Mr. Ndile asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry whether the Minister was aware that large quantity of "miraa" commonly known as "mairungi" existed at Chulu Hills in Machakos. If so, was he prepared to encourage large-scale production of the crop in Machakos.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am aware that "miraa" exists in the Chulu Hills and at this moment investigations are proceeding to find out the acreage. The whole question of whether to encourage or not the production of "miraa" is being looked into by my Ministry and the Ministry of Health.

Mr. Mbozoh: Mr. Speaker, can the Assistant Minister tell this House how many tons of "miraa" were consumed in this country last year?

Mr. Osogo: 156 tons, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will now go back to Question No. 908.

Question No. 908

ANNUAL VISIT OF PRESIDENT TO DISTRICTS

Mr. Lorema asked the Assistant Minister in the President's Office whether arrangements could be made for the President to visit each district once a year.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyanweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply, No, Sir.

Although I agree that the idea is a good one, it is not possible, nor is it wise, to tie the President down to a timetable for visiting districts.

The President will, and usually does, visit as much of the country as he possibly can whenever a suitable opportunity arises.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that interesting reply, is the Assistant Minister aware that pressure has been put on the President by Ministers to visit their own areas instead of visiting other areas?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware of undue pressure which has been exerted on the President.

Mr. Ngũgĩ-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as we know the areas that have been visited by the President in this country became a republic and the achievement of internal self-government and independence, would the Assistant Minister in the President's Office explain what factors guided the President as to which areas he should visit and at what time, if it is not due to pressure?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are a lot of factors which are normally taken into consideration before a Minister or the President for that matter, visits a district. Some of the things which, I think, are taken into consideration are the economic projects which are intended to develop a particular district where it requires a Minister or the President to witness what is going on. For instance, the visit the President made two weeks ago to Kindaruma in the Tana River for the inauguration of the Seven Forks Hydro-electric Scheme and for the purpose of uniting people, particularly in former Kadu areas, required the presence of the president of the party to be seen and apart from this, Mr. Speaker, there are a lot of other things. If the hon. Members would like to bring things to the attention of the Minister or the President, the President would like to visit those areas, but I am objecting to the idea of tying the President down to a particular timetable. It is because the President wants to leave it open to study what is going on, and if he is invited and he thinks that the visit would serve any useful purpose, he would visit any district in Kenya.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's very interesting reply, could the Assistant Minister tell the House whether there has not been a proposed economic project in the Western Province, and whether an approach has not been made to His Excellency the President to visit this area, and whether there has been a proposal by the President to visit this area; and if so, when does he propose to visit the area?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are depots from district Kanu branches, from various districts, inviting the President to visit them. The President is one man and there are only fifty-two weekends in a year which would mean that the President could make about fifty-two visits in a year to various districts. He can make one visit a week.

Now, Mr. Speaker, it is impossible to accept every invitation which is received from constituencies or from every Kanu district branch. To have the President visit that particular area, and I think the President is doing his best to try and see as much of the country as possible.

Question No. 925

LOANS TO TRADERS, KERICHO DISTRICT

Mr. Bly, on behalf of Mr. Kerich, asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry to tell the House the numbers of traders in Kericho District who had been given trade loans.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kioko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply, Loans to traders in the Kericho District were previously granted by the Kericho Joint Loans Board and the Kericho Urban District Loans Committee. The Kericho Joint Loans Board has issued up to now sixty-six loans and in the Kericho Township, the Urban Committee issued ten loans.

Mr. Bly: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that these traders who have been given such loans are mostly non-Africans?

Dr. Kioko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is a very serious allegation which I would like to check, because the Joint Loans Board and the Special Loans Committee have been under strict restrictions from the time they were formed to issue loans exclusively to the Africans.

Mr. ole Tipsi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the hon. Minister give us the number of loans issued by the Industrial Development Corporation to Kericho traders instead of the Joint Loans Board which he talks about?

Dr. Kioko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question did not specify where. The facts are that we have just disbanded the Kericho Special Committee which had a balance of Sh. 100,000 and that will be taken over by the Joint Loans Board as soon as it is established, for the smaller loans, and the larger loans will then be taken over by the Industrial Development Corporation. We are now reorganizing whole system.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

PRESS STATEMENTS BY MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time to move on now. I would remind hon. Members that Mr. Anyieni is to raise on the Adjournment today the matter which is noted on the Order Paper.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE
(Order for Committee read)

Oral Answers 712

[The Assistant Minister for Education] the classes have been allocated to the various provinces as follows:—

Province	New Schools
	Boarding	Day	Total
Coast	1	—	1
Western	—	2	2
Rift Valley	7	1	8
Central	2	4	6

Province	New Form I Classes
	Boarding	Day	Total
Coast	1	—	1
Western	3	3	6
Rift Valley	7	1	8
Central	10	6	16

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that if the Members could listen then it would help them better than keep on shouting "where". I will repeat again.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If hon. Members cannot control themselves to keep quiet, then I will insist on complete silence. You will hear the answer to every question with any noise is being sent out of the Chamber if any noise is raised. We do not want that, but it will come to that. It is quite impossible to continue the way you are carrying on now.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso):—

Province	New Schools
	Boarding	Day	Total
Eastern	3	2	5
Nyanza	1	1	2
Nairobi	—	1	1

Province	New Form I Classes
	Boarding	Day	Total
Eastern	5	3	8
Nyanza	2	4	6
Nairobi	1	4	5

In this Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have also included Kenyatta College which is not included in Nairobi and we have one new school and new form classes, six boarding and no day school.

The total number is fifteen new boarding schools, eleven day schools and the total being twenty-six. In the new Form I classes we have thirty-five boarding, twenty-one new Form I classes, and that brings the total to fifty-six.

Mr. Odero-Sarr: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like the Assistant Minister to tell the House how the difference is made out, because there is a great difference according to the distribution to each province.

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, I would like to inform the hon. Member that in addition to the explanation I have just given, as to how this was arrived at, I will reply to that, as well.

I would like to advise the Members as to the difference between the schools and the new classes, and also perhaps the reason why the figures in certain provinces differ so much in some cases. The point, namely, is, allocation of Form I classes in the various provinces are as follows. The allocation of students or of classes with K.P.E. entrants in 1964. Some provinces had more pupils taking K.P.E. than others, for instance whereas 10,062 pupils took their K.P.E. in Western Province, the figure for Rift Valley was 17,919. These figures, Mr. Speaker, are taken as an expression of the need in the area for secondary schools and the allocations of Form I were accordingly made. Hon. Members have seen from the figures already mentioned Central Province was allocated the highest number of Form I classes, because its 1964 K.P.E. entrants were the highest. Its entrants were slightly more than those of Rift Valley which were second highest. This high figure of 1964 K.P.E. entrants in Central Province was caused by the fact that Central Province completely converted in 1964 from eight-year primary education to seven-year primary education. It should follow from this that had the other provinces similar conversions their entrants' figure would similarly have increased to necessitate higher allocations of Form I classes and it is therefore hoped that this temporary imbalance should be brought to an end when allocations are made in 1966.

That, Mr. Speaker, brings me to the first point which I undertook to reply to, namely, the fact that there are in some cases differences between the number of new schools and new schemes in one particular area. Once a province has had a certain number of new Form I classes allocated; it can advise the Ministry where these classes could be best placed whether they should be placed in schools that have already been established or in schools that are yet to be established. Some provinces wisely prefer to put the new Form I classes in schools which are already established and where there are good facilities and good teachers.

In a province like Rift Valley which covers such a large area of land, you will find that the demand is still very great for establishing new schools and each new Form I allocation was started in a new school.

The number of new Harambee secondary schools will not be available until such schools have been registered by the Ministry.

711 Oral Answers

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would like to remind all Ministries that where a question is put down for oral reply, if the question seems to require a very long reply, it is then open to the Ministry to give a written reply instead. It is very much better than they should do so, as very long replies involving many facts, figures or detail, are not really suitable for oral delivery in the House because they cannot be absorbed. So I advise Ministers to take advantage of the written reply in suitable cases such as this.

Mr. Kibogo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to know when the Minister gives a written reply, whether a Member will have a chance to ask supplementary questions.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He can put a question on another occasion. Of course, he cannot repeat the same question; but he can put a further question for oral reply in respect of something that arises out of the written reply that he sees recorded in HANSARD; and you will probably find that you are dealing with something on a smaller scale, then it is capable of being dealt with by an oral reply.

Mr. Tanni: On a point of order, Sir, with regard to written replies, some of us have been promised written replies and we have never seen them. May I inquire as to how one would object if he was to have received a written reply but did not and what action he should take in this regard?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If he does not receive a written reply within the prescribed time, he can report it to the Clerk.

Mr. Masinde: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, in view of the fact he has given as a breakdown which leads to the allocation or estimation of new Form I classes or schools, could the Minister tell me whether the existing schools were considered. For instance, today Coast Province has got more Form I's and yet there were fewer entrants in K.P.E. than Western Province which had 15,000 pupils entered and Coast had only 7,000. Second—

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, according to what the hon. Member has just said, I inform the House that the consideration which was given to these two classes was that where we had the highest number of entrants then this was taken as one of the factors which necessitated the establishment of classes, but again where we had a lower number of entrants and that particular area is regarded as one of those backward areas, then it had a better chance than another area.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I know that many hon. Members would like to ask questions about this, but it is a very wide field and we do not have time to follow it up today. We have to move on, I am afraid.

Question No. 954

SECONDARY SCHOOL FOR SAMBURU

Mr. Rurumban asked the Minister for Education when the Government hoped to build a secondary school for Samburu.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Government hopes to be able to build a secondary school for the Samburu as soon as Samburu pupils with the requisite Kenya Preliminary Examination passes are available in sufficient numbers to justify the establishment of such a school.

Mr. Rurumban: Will the Minister not agree with me that the number of pupils who sat for K.P.E. last year from the Samburu District could warrant the establishment of such an institution?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, last year only five Samburu passed the K.P.E. and all of them were admitted to secondary schools on very low marks compared with the marks of other candidates. At the end of 1965, Mr. Speaker, only seventy-two boys and twelve girls of Standard VII and VIII will qualify for K.P.E. It is too early yet to know how many will pass and qualify for secondary education, but adequate places will be reserved for the successful boys in Nanyuki and Thompson's Falls secondary schools.

Mr. Rurumban: Will the Minister tell the House why the Samburu District is not taken on a par with Marsabit District which has got a secondary school and which accept K.P.E. failures?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, these facts are not known to our Ministry.

Question No. 851

TEA AND COFFEE GROWING IN VIHIGA

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry if the Minister allowed tea and coffee to be grown in Vihiga Division of Kakamega by any farm willing to do so?

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Ministry will allow the

Question No. 935

OPENING OF ISIBANIA SECONDARY SCHOOL

Mr. Malsori-Itumbo asked the Minister for Education when the Ministry of Education was going to fulfill its promises of opening Isibania School as a secondary school.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. This Ministry is not aware of any such promises being made and it would be appreciated if the hon. questioner could be a little more specific and perhaps produce more information about these promises. The Ministry is quite prepared to pursue the matter.

Mr. Malsori-Itumbo: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, Mr. Speaker, is he aware that last year on 30th November 1964, the former Minister for Education visited Kuria Constituency and held a public meeting at a certain school. There were three places he visited and publicly he made promises that Isibania School would reach secondary status in this year, 1965. The same thing applied to both the other schools. What in 1965 the two schools would get secondary status?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think you have put a question, Mr. Malsori.

Mr. Malsori-Itumbo: Yes, Sir, I have.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are asking if the Assistant Minister denies this?

Mr. Malsori-Itumbo: I am asking, Sir, if he denies this.

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that if such a promise was made publicly, I have just said here that my Ministry is quite prepared to look into this matter. That is what I am asking the Member, if he could produce more evidence or information. I would like to bring to the notice of the House the fact that my Ministry is quite willing to pursue this matter, in view of the information supplied by the hon. Member.

Mr. Malsori-Itumbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that also in this year, 1965, a delegation from that very school came to see the present Minister for Education and they had a conference with the Minister; these same people were promised again that the Ministry of Education was going to look into this question?

Several hon. Members: Answer!

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members are very lively this afternoon! I am afraid it may be very difficult for the Minister to answer at all because of the noise! Please be more restrained.

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, I cannot add anything on this. I have just said that we are prepared to look into this matter on the grounds of the information the hon. Member has given.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 935: OPENING OF ISIBANIA SECONDARY SCHOOL

Mr. Malsori-Itumbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, in view of the fact that I failed to get satisfaction because of a continuous looking into the question, I beg to give notice of my intention to raise this matter on an adjournment.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 941

APPOINTMENT OF MINISTER OF STATE

Mr. Agar asked the Assistant Minister in the President's Office whether, in view of the fact that a good deal of Government's activities were handled by the President's Office, the President would consider appointing a full Cabinet Minister of State in his Office, to be responsible for and able to deal with such affairs at Ministerial level in Parliament.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I wish to draw the attention of the House to the fact that, under the Constitution, the President himself is a Member of this House. There is an Assistant Minister in the Office of the President, who assists the President in handling matters pertaining to his Office. Nevertheless, the President is keeping the matter under constant review. Appointment of Ministers is the sole prerogative of the President and should the President feel that the extra expenditure involved in appointing an extra Minister is justified, he will certainly appoint one.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply that the appointment of Ministers is the sole responsibility of the President, would the President consider also that if the House feels that it needs the presence of a Cabinet Minister to handle the President's Office matters, he would then be sort of compelled to do so, in accordance with the wishes of the House?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that point has been noted and will be conveyed.

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I see that the President is in charge of Administration and I see that all questions directed to the President are directed, instead of to him, to the Assistant Minister to the President's Office. Does this mean that the President is not supposed to answer any questions in Parliament?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! No, in fact, of course, questions concerning portfolios for which the President is responsible should strictly be directed to the President: but as it is known that he wishes his Assistant Minister to answer them as a rule in this House, to facilitate that each question are sent direct to him. It remains, of course, the President's responsibility for what is said in this House, even though it is said by the Assistant Minister.

Mr. Anyien: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, if this is the procedure, then we had Assistant Ministers replying to questions, for example, the hon. Mr. Mutiso, who is replying to a question on behalf of the Ministry of Education. Could we then have some questions, as in this case also in some other Ministry, questions being referred to an Assistant Minister and sometimes to a Minister, because this is a little bit vague.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am not quite clear what Mr. Anyien is worrying about. Is it the formal direction of the question? Whether it is directed to the President or to his Assistant Minister, then you will find the Assistant Minister answering, and I do not quite see the difference.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Let Mr. Anyien state himself clear first.

Mr. Anyien: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the point I am trying to make is not strictly in connexion with this question, it is that we have questions directed to the Ministries and always it is the same procedure that a Member is going to ask a Minister for so-and-so, but in this particular respect it is not the Minister, it is not the President who is being asked, it is the Assistant Minister. I was wondering whether in that case we could not also, next time, when we want, for example, the hon. Mr. Mutiso to reply to a question for the Ministry of Education, then then say that the Members are to ask the Assistant Minister for Education, it is vague, because in this particular case the Assistant Minister, who is alone here, is the only man supposed to reply.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would like to concede that this form is wrong and that all questions should in fact, be addressed to the Minister concerned and for the President they should be directed to the President.

In future that form will apply in every case.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply when he told the House that there was a possibility, or rather hinted that there would be a possibility, of increasing or having another Minister specifically in the President's Office, is he aware that the number of eighteen Ministries now, in Kenya, is in itself economically very extravagant and the addition of any more Ministries will be strongly resisted because there are so many people without jobs and without food in this country?

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I never said what the hon. Member for Butere is trying to say. What I said is, and I repeat again, that the appointment of Ministers is the sole prerogative of the President and should the President feel that the extra expenditure involved in appointing an extra Minister is justified, he will certainly appoint one.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell the House whether his reply amounts to not appointing a Minister at all, or whether it amounts to considering appointing a Minister, in which case, we should rest assured, that Minister will be appointed, because the reply of the Assistant Minister is as vague can be and I would like to know where he stands.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have replied very fully to this question and I do not think that my reply can be accused of being vague.

Question No. 946

NEW SECONDARY SCHOOLS OPENED IN 1964.

Mr. Odera-Sar asked the Minister for Education if he could tell the House how many new secondary schools had been opened in 1964 in each province.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The Ministry has this year opened 26 new schools but the total number of aided new Form I classes is 56. These new schools and new

Mr. Arhleg-Daeke: I have already said, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that we have now opened an office in Eldoret, and I also said that about four months ago the area was being covered from Nakuru, but now it is the responsibility of the officer who is based in Eldoret. I am sure he has visited the area.

Question No. 918

MEDICAL OFFICER OF HEALTH, EMBU: CLINIC

Mr. Mbogoh asked the Minister for Health and Housing why the Medical Officer of Health, who was a civil servant in charge of Embu Hospital, had established his own clinic at Embu Township.

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The present Medical Officer of Health in Embu has not established his own clinic in the township. It is known that his wife is also a doctor, by the same name, and maybe that is how the confusion arises. Dr. Bagshi, in her own name, qualified as a doctor before she was married and she is the wife of the Medical Officer of Health, and she has her own clinic in the township. She is quite entitled to establish this in her own right as she is a registered medical practitioner.

Secondly, I know that she is doing free and honorary work in the Embu Hospital when she has free time. Her husband, Dr. Bagshi, who is the Medical Officer, does not do any work in his wife's clinic.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, does the Minister want to tell this House that this information was not given to him by the doctor himself, so how can he now come here and say what he does?

Mr. Otiende: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to cross swords with my hon. friend, but I am surprised at the questions that have been levelled against the Medical Officer of Health at Embu. There are three questions before this House. One is about the death of some children, one about a dresser being caught with drugs, which we answered yesterday, and today this one about the same doctor having a clinic. I do not know whether I should ask the hon. Member to declare an interest in this case.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that I am the representative Member for that area and I have the right to speak about the area, will the Minister tell this House whether he is not falling in his job as the Minister for Health if a doctor establishes a clinic because he knows that he has lost confidence in that hospital?

Mr. Otiende: I would like to say here very categorically that any charge brought against a public officer must be substantiated. I have said that the wife of Dr. Bagshi has a clinic. I do not know whether the hon. Member has seen the Medical Officer of Health crossing the road and going to town to practise. If so, his wife is allowed, as a doctor in her own right, to have such a clinic.

Mr. Anyieni: On a point of order, is it in order, Mr. Speaker, for hon. Members to make false allegations against some people in the form of questions in this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): When there is a point of order raised, hon. Members will keep silent while I deal with it. It is not in order for Members to make allegations, even by way of a question, unless they are prepared to substantiate them, and our Standing Orders require the form of questions to be very carefully phrased, whether they are basic or supplementary, so as not to make improper accusations against anyone.

We will go on to the next question.

Question No. 919

LANDLESS KIKUYU FROM HABUA VILLAGE

Mr. Mbogoh asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement if the Minister could tell the House what had been the fate of the 600 landless Kikuyu (Aho) who had been left homeless after his Ministry had given land to 150 people from Habua village.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The fate of the 600 landless Kikuyu in Embu is not different from the fate of many other thousands of landless people throughout the country. It was in sympathy with these people that my Ministry agreed to settle 150 of them last year.

I believe that the hon. Member for Embu North appreciates that this was a generous gesture on the part of my Ministry as far as these people were concerned, in view of the great pressure placed on my Ministry to allocate land to the landless and the employed persons throughout the country. My Ministry is not therefore in a position to take in more of the Embu Kikuyu landless as present schemes are fully committed, to give in priority to the present employees on the farms that are sought for settlement, who will

[The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement] take up all the plots. I would call for the patience of the Embu landless Kikuyu until such time that my Ministry will be in a position to do something for them.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I apologize for standing before my maiden speech, but I will ask the so-called Minister whether he realizes that the Kikuyu are short of land?

Mr. Ngala-Ahok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. new Member in order in calling the well-established Assistant Minister "so-called"?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not in order, Mr. Mate, you must withdraw that phrase.

Mr. Mate: I withdraw.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply by the Assistant Minister, and in view of the fact that it is the right of these people, citizens of Kenya, to have a chance of being settled, does the Minister agree that their case is more desperate than many other places in Kenya?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the landless Kikuyu in Embu have no more right than any other landless people in the country over land. Although we appreciate that they are in difficulties, there are so many other groups in difficulties, and they are in no more difficulties than the labour on the farms which have been purchased.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that many big areas of land have been voted to settle Kikuyu in the Central Province, does the Assistant Minister not think that these people have the right to live in Central Province just like the Kikuyu there?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have not at any time suggested that these people have no right to live. In fact, we feel that they have the right to live like any other person. If the hon. Member knows of any farms or any plots being allocated in Central Region, I would ask him to go and settle these landless people to apply and then their applications will be considered in the normal course.

Mr. Turui: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell this House whether the policy of the Settlement Ministry is to settle the landless Kikuyu or to deal with money?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the policy of my Ministry is to settle the landless people when they apply for land.

Question No. 930

MANAGER OF MOMBASA DRIVE-IN CINEMA'S RETURN TO KENYA

Mr. Balala asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence, if he could tell the House why Mr. Patel, the manager of the Drive-In Cinema in Mombasa who was deported last year, had been allowed to return to Kenya.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Mr. Patel left Kenya by air for Bombay on the 6th November 1964, and has not since returned. Nor has any representation been made to me for authority for his return. If he returns without authority, it is a criminal offence and maybe he will be arrested and taken to court.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, it is Mr. Patel's own business.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mate, there is no use putting a point of order unless I can hear it.

Mr. Omar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I seek your guidance on this question, because it is put publicly here that Mr. Patel is back in the country, whereas the Minister has said very clearly here that Mr. Patel has not come back from India. I am wondering whether it is in order for an hon. Member to bring a question when he cannot substantiate the facts?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Omar is quite right to raise this point of order. Members are responsible for the accuracy of any facts which they allege as a basis for a question they ask in this House, and if they allege facts which are absolutely wrong, to that extent they suffer discredit in the eyes of the House.

Mr. Balala: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, Sir, apologize for not having raised a point of order on this question because I did not know that the question I put is different from the question put on the Order Paper. I apologize for not raising a point of order because my original question asked the Minister to tell the House whether Mr. Patel, the manager of the Drive-In Cinema, has returned to Mombasa or not. This was the original question I put.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. We are very glad that Mr. Balala has clarified the position. It is quite possible that there has been a mixup somewhere, either in this building or elsewhere. In that case we apologize. At any rate, Mr. Balala has made his own position quite clear.

REPLY

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): At the winding up of the airport construction unit in February 1959, direct Government expenditure was £2,529,940. This sum does not include prison departmental costs which are estimated to have been of the order of £200,000, making a round total of, say, £2,725,000.

The number of labourers employed for the work varied according to requirements and other surrounding circumstances. During the years 1955, 1956 and 1957 the monthly average figure varied between 3,500 and 4,000.

During the construction three prisoners died as a result of injuries sustained in a motor accident while they were actively engaged on construction work.

A prison warden, Ombima John Obare, who had been sent from Embakasi as part of the reinforcements to stem off a Mau Mau attack on the Lukeni Camp on 17th September 1954, was killed.

A European was shot and killed during a gang raid at the camp, and another European was killed in a blasting accident.

Of the daily population average of 3,500 labourers given above (excluding the six just mentioned), 101 people died from natural illnesses.

Compensation was paid as follows:—

- (a) The relatives of the two of the prisoners each received Sh. 3,465/58 ex gratia payments.
- (b) The relatives of the third prisoner received Sh. 1,732/59 also as an ex gratia payment.
- (c) The dependants of the prison warden received compensation of Sh. 4,363/20.
- (d) Widows and children of the two European officers killed were compensated under the Emergency Dependents Acts as: widow of Mr. Buger, £137 per annum, children £86 1s. per annum; widow of Mr. van de Westenhuysene, £275 12s., child (one), £20 per annum.

The two widows later remarried, the first one on 31st March 1961, and the second one on 24th March 1956. Consequently, both lost their allowances, but the children's allowances to date continue to be paid in accordance with the officers' terms of service.

Question No. 862.

JOBS FOR NATIONAL YOUTH SERVICE YOUTHS.

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Labour and Social Services if he would assure the House that all youths now in the National Youth Service who successfully completed their course would be given work or helped to get it.

REPLY

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): The Government is unable to guarantee employment to every serviceman—this could only be done at the cost of keeping the Service so small that it would defeat a main object of the Government, which is to offer training to the largest possible number of unemployed young men.

The emphasis of the Service will be on making the men self-reliant; on encouraging determination to find a means of self-employment, particularly in the agricultural sector of the economy; and in increasing the potential employability of the men by improving their knowledge, skill and reliability.

Close contact will be maintained with potential employers in commerce, industry and the public service; but the number of employment openings will depend, of course, on economic factors and on the reputation that the National Youth Service builds up for itself.

Question No. 906

MOST COMMON CRIMES IN THE COUNTRY

Mr. Lorema asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence what were the most common crimes committed in the country.

REPLY

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Using the police categories, the most numerous crimes of more serious kind are:—

Breakings (672 cases in December 1964). Cattle theft (288 cases in December 1964) and robbery and allied offences (228 cases in December 1964); and of the less serious crimes, there were 486 cases of assault in that month, and 256 thefts from vehicles and 209 thefts of bicycles.

Wednesday, 24th March 1965

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERS

NOTICE OF MOTION

MARKETING OF CASHEW NUTS AT THE COAST

Mr. Umar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT this House, being aware of the desire of Coast Province Cashew-Nut Growers to be independent of the United Africa Corporation, urges the Government to cancel the monopoly of the corporation so that the purchase and export of the crop could be the responsibility of the farmers co-operative societies.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 908

ANNUAL VISIT OF PRESIDENT TO ALL DISTRICTS

Mr. Lorema asked the Assistant Minister, President's Office whether arrangements could be made for the President to visit each district once a year.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): As the Assistant Minister is not here yet, we will leave this question and come back to it. Your next question, Mr. Lorema.

Question No. 909

NEWS AGENT FOR WEST POKOT

Mr. Lorema asked the Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism if he would tell the House why there was no news agent in West Pokot.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achleng-Onoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I presume the hon. Member for West Pokot is referring to basing a news reporter in West Pokot. I would like to answer this way as to help the hon. Member. Local newspapers have their representatives in most of the principal towns in Kenya, to cover activities taking place. For my Ministry, an information office has now been opened in Eldoret, to serve the Upper Rift which includes West Pokot. Of late—important events have been covered by the Provincial Information Office at Nakuru which is a long way off. Information Department reporters will therefore be available for future coverage of all activities taking place in this part of the country.

Tribal dances and other activities in this area could easily make consumable news.

Whenever there are important events taking place in any part of Kenya, news reporters and television cameramen are always at the scene from the "Voice of Kenya" based in Nairobi, if they can be spared.

Kenya has the only news agency in Nairobi which feeds subscriber newspaper firms with news from other countries and other places in the whole of Kenya.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that the public are tired of reading news from Nairobi only and not other districts in Kenya?

Mr. Achleng-Onoko: I do not think people are tired of reading news about what is happening in Kenya and it must be remembered that Nairobi is the centre of activity and where the Members of Parliament meet and we must see that the activities here are covered.

Mr. Choge: Arising from the Minister's reply, Sir, I would like to know which office of reporters cover Nandi District?

Mr. Achleng-Onoko: Districts will be covered beginning at Eldoret.

Mr. Rurumban: Will the Minister not agree with me that it boosts the morale of every tribe, if every tribe can read the news regarding the affairs in his own particular district in the newspapers?

Mr. Achleng-Onoko: No, Sir, but when the hon. Member makes news in Parliament, I do not go out of my way to get his tribesmen to read the news. Anybody who is capable of reading the news will read the news regarding the people of Kenya.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the Minister's reply, is he aware that Pokot, as such, is not well covered, and it is only covered when the Minister goes there?

Mr. Achleng-Onoko: If an hon. Member feels that it is not well covered, there is one practical way which I would like to suggest to the hon. Members by which this can be done, and that is they can start groups or companies or co-operative societies, and to operate their own newspapers.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the original reply by the Minister, will he tell the House whether this Information Officer stationed at Nakuru has visited Pokot area at any time to collect the news?

[The Attorney-General]

and in the Senate—so that each period of emergency should last for three months and not two months, subject, of course, to its earlier termination by the President. If the state of emergency comes to an end or there is no further need for a state of emergency, and that the period within which a House of the National Assembly must be called upon to approve an emergency should be extended from seven to twenty-one days.

The next point, Mr. Speaker, is section 60 (1). Section 60 at this time requires the person presiding in the Senate—

Mr. Anjien: Point of clarification, Mr. Speaker. The Attorney-General is referring to sections of the Constitution and I would ask him, from the point of view of clarity, to refer also to the amendments so we can follow them, and also follow in the Constitution. At the moment, Sir, he is referring mainly to the main Constitution, he is not referring directly to these amendments which we have here.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The Attorney-General is speaking to the First Schedule of the Bill, Part I. If you refer to that, you can keep up with him as he goes along.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I cannot help the hon. Member, Sir, because he has got my copy of the Constitution.

As you have said, Sir, I am now going through the sections of the First Schedule. I am mentioning the Constitution as it is now and also as it is in the Bill we are discussing.

Section 60, as it stands, requires the person presiding in the Senate to see to it that the Senate does not make any amendment to the financial provisions of a Bill. As paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of this section is at present worded, it is doubtful whether the Senate can make any amendment to any Bill which contains any financial provisions. Experience has already shown that this is unsatisfactory. There are times when just minor amendments have to be made to financial provisions of Bills after they have been passed by this House. It is therefore proposed that paragraph (b) should be amended so that the Government should be entitled to move to amend financial provisions in the Senate; a Minister or an Assistant Minister could then move an amendment in the Senate, not the Members of the Senate themselves. This House, of course, has a subsequent opportunity to consider such amendments.

It is considered a very good example which was dealt with by the Senate the other day. We had a Bill which was passed on to the Senate and it had a financial provision in it. This was a Bill which has made before Malawi became independent and was not known as Malawi, and the word "Nyasaland" appeared in the Bill. Now according to the provisions of the Constitution as it is today, the Senate cannot amend, for instance, this particular word and change it to "Malawi" and therefore it had to come back here.

I have already said that this House, of course, has a subsequent opportunity to consider such amendments. It is considered that the restriction on the powers of the Senate is too stringent if it has to be read as preventing the Senate from making any amendment whatsoever to any Bill which contains any financial provision, however incidental that financial provision may be to the general purport of the Bill. It is therefore proposed to amend the wording of this paragraph (b) so that it is clear that it is only the financial provisions themselves which the Senate cannot amend, except, of course, when the Government moves the amendment.

Section 71 contains the provisions governing the amendment of the Constitution. As hon. Members will be now be well aware, the present Constitution is divided into entrenched and specially entrenched positions. The former may be amended by a Bill supported by a 75 per cent majority of all Members entitled to vote on the Second and Third Readings in each House. There is an alternative means of amendment by way of referendum to be followed by the passing of a Bill by a simple majority in each House. The specially entrenched provisions cannot be amended by referendum and the majority required on both Readings in the National Assembly is 90 per cent of all Members entitled to vote. In comparison with other constitutions, these provisions are unduly restrictive on the power of Parliament. It does not appear that there is now any need to make a distinction between entrenched and specially entrenched provisions. Some of the provisions of the Constitution which are specially entrenched are those relating to fundamental rights, the independence of the judiciary, the establishment and function of the Senate and the safeguarding of (Inaudible) It is the will of our people as expressed through Parliament and made very clear in previous debates on the Constitution that those provisions of the Constitution should be retained. Their safeguard, however, is no longer to be found in special majorities but in the general will of the people expressed through this Parliament.

The other provisions of the Constitution which are entrenched but not specially entrenched are equally valuable to use and are equally safe in the hands of this Parliament without the presence of any exceptional majorities. In Nigeria, for example, the Constitution may be amended by a Bill supported by a two-thirds majority in the two Houses of Parliament. Such a requirement is a sufficient protection against ill-considered amendment. In the last resort—

Mr. Anjien: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order. I see the time is nearly finished and there is a point we wanted to have cleared up. In the debate on the second Constitution (Amendment) Bill, Members were allowed to speak for a long time, as long as they wanted. In regard to this Amendment Bill, are Members going to be allowed to speak as long as they want or are they going to be restricted to Standing Orders or thirty minutes or whatever it may be?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Oh no. The length of time for which any Member can speak during any debate is unlimited, except when, as provided by Standing Order, the House itself decides that there shall be a limitation of debate. The only resolution which has been passed by this House as regards limitations of time for debates have been those for Private Members' Motions and Motions for the Adjournment of the House, and debates on the Budget. So we will stand in the position whereby debate on any Bill, including this one, leaves any Member free to speak as long as he likes, so long as he remains relevant and does not repeat himself!

Would you like to finish off this particular point, Mr. Njonjo?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): If I may, Mr. Speaker, it is just a small paragraph.

In Nigeria, as I was saying, Mr. Speaker, the Constitution may be amended by a Bill supported by a two-thirds majority in the two Houses of Parliament. Such a requirement is a sufficient protection against ill-considered amendment. In the last resort, the only real safeguard of the Constitution is that it is acceptable to the majority of the people it governs. It is therefore proposed by this amendment that all provisions of the Constitution should have the same protection, namely that they may only be amended by a Bill supported by a 65 per cent majority of all Members entitled to vote on both readings in this House and in the Senate.

I think this might be a convenient moment to break off, Sir.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time for the interruption of business. I therefore adjourn the House until tomorrow, Wednesday, 24th March, 1965, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at thirty-two minutes past five o'clock.

WRITTEN REPLIES TO QUESTIONSQuestion No. 614*REGISTERED BUSINESS FIRMS IN KENYA

Mr. Godia asked the Attorney-General how many registered business firms had been established in Kenya by—

(a) Europeans, and

(b) Asians,

and which of the firms had admitted Kenya Africans as shareholders and what percentage of all the shareholders in these said firms were Africans.

REPLY

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): As at 31st December 1964 there were 28,502 business names registered under the Registration of Business Names Act. There were also 6,447 companies registered under the Companies Act. In the past, records have not been kept of the racial origins of all persons who have established businesses in Kenya. I have now given instructions that such records should be kept.

Question No. 764CONSTRUCTION OF EMBAKASI AIRPORT

Mr. Theuri asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power—

- (1) How much money had the Government spent on the construction of Embakasi Airport.
- (2) How many labourers had been employed.
- (3) How many had died while the construction of the field was going on.
- (4) Had their relatives been compensated, and if so, how much money had been received by them.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, I am surprised that the hon. Member says he advised the Government because I remember the single time he came to our Ministry. He came with the chairman of the board. We also discussed this at length, but there was an agreement between the board chairman and the Minister on this issue. The hon. Member did not come as an appointee of the Minister to tell him what he felt should happen on the board. He came as a delegation sent by the board, Mr. Speaker. However, I think it is only right that a Member appointed by the Minister—an hon. Member of this House—is subject to come and tell the Minister what his dissatisfaction is on the board, so that the Minister can rectify things. If he is sent by the board to complain, then he is not acting in his capacity as a Member of Parliament appointed by the Back-benchers on that board. He is coming as a delegate sent by the board to come and place facts and points of arguments before the Minister. I do not think Members should know this. Hon. Members might be surprised that we have had reports from some boards where hon. Members of this House have gone on these boards. They have only said "Good morning" to other Members, sat until the end of the time and gone away. Now, such a Member coming here and blaming the Government for not appointing Members on boards or not appreciating the advice, will not be justified because a Member going to a board meeting and then sitting quiet throughout the meeting—

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, could I ask for substantiation of the position as stated by the Assistant Minister for Agriculture in this House? I would like him to substantiate, because this is most important for members on various boards, which of these boards members have gone to only to say "Good morning", sit and then go away without contributing. This is most important.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think the hon. Member is entitled to ask for substantiation.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Yes, Mr. Speaker, I will substantiate this by saying that an hon. Member who was appointed by the Back-benchers to sit on the Egerton Board of Governors had hardly contributed to the board until this was brought to our notice and we called for him promptly because the time for appointing another member was not due. We understand he is now very active on this board, and even over-active, because he wants to speak for long times. This was before we called him and gave him advice.

So, Mr. Speaker, hon. Members of the House can see the position in which our Ministry is sometimes put.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): So you were speaking of the past rather than of the present?

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Indeed, Mr. Speaker.

Coming to a conclusion, Mr. Speaker, if I may finish what the hon. Member for Homa Bay said, that the system of appointing members on the corporation is not satisfactory, of course, the hon. Member had in mind that we should appoint members strictly from different provinces and so on. I would remind the hon. Member for Homa Bay that the Central Agricultural Board under which we want to bring all other statutory boards as committees—if I may mention this at this stage—has political representatives from all provinces now, people elected by popular votes in different provinces. The Central Agricultural Board is a board which is going to advise on these projects and a board which is going to receive a project right from the district so that it puts it on the evaluation committee which I spoke of when I was moving this Bill. So, the hon. Member should rest assured that no place will be forgotten in Kenya, because this is a board which is going to look into this before it goes to the Agricultural Development Corporation. The Central Agricultural Board is going to look into it, is going to discuss it, and this board has political representatives from different provinces of this country. My friend also said something about clause 12, that it is not given in this clause that the corporation can initiate any project. The hon. Member refused to read the whole of the clause, I think, Mr. Speaker, and when my friend, the Assistant Minister for Development, interjected and said he should read further and find out that what he was saying was covered in the clause, the hon. Member did not want to read further, but I will read now for him, Mr. Speaker, if he does not have the Bill in his hands, that the functions of the corporation shall be to promote and execute schemes for agricultural development and reconstruction in Kenya by the initiation, assistance and expansion of agricultural undertakings for enterprises. The initiation is there, but the corporation will have—

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of correction, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stated that it is not put down that the corporation itself be initiated, but it is stated there that the corporation will be assisted by agricultural enterprises and other bodies. I did not want it to be that way, I wanted that body to be responsible for the initiation of these programmes.

[Mr. Ngala-Abok] that would be what another body has handed over to me, and secondly, the body was not merely going to be used for schemes which were started by other enterprises or other organizations. This is what I stated, Mr. Speaker.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): If that is what the hon. Member said, indeed it is still wrong, Mr. Speaker, what the clause says here is that the board is going to initiate projects, and assist these projects and expand them. That is what is said here, Mr. Speaker, I am subject to correction. My English might be limited, but I will read this clause again: "The functions of the corporation shall be to promote and execute schemes for agricultural development and reconstruction in Kenya, by initiation." Now, Mr. Speaker, the corporation will be initiating a project and then assist that project and expand it.

I see, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member has now agreed with me, and maybe he just overlooked it when he was pressing a point of argument.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will assure the House on what the hon. Assistant Minister for Development said, that we are considering very seriously in the Ministry of Agriculture that boards that have overlapping duties, boards that have duplication, will come together, and we are on the verge of thinking how to do this, and I think hon. Members should give the Ministry time to do this, so that we bring all these boards that are overlapping under one board, and eliminate or reduce the number of boards that were started formerly by the Colonial Government. May I also point out here that the hon. Mr. Mwai Kibaki said the corporation will want a general manager and other people, whether he comes from overseas or under-tenants, as some people put it, and I would like to remind the House that they have seen in our local Press vacancies for posts advertised from as far away as Malawi and Zambia, looking for technicians who cannot be found in their own country. If we have advertised a post and find that we cannot get local people, I think the hon. Members will agree that we might take the initiative of advertising elsewhere to get a person to do a job of this kind. I am not saying, Mr. Speaker, that we are going to do this, because we have not advertised the post, and we have not failed to get a qualified person to do it. I am only saying that if we fail, which we hope we are not going to do, we might be able to advertise elsewhere, overseas, underseas, for the post.

With these remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the whole House tomorrow)

Second Reading

THE CONSTITUTION OF KENYA (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before calling on Mr. Njonjo to move the Second Reading of this Bill, I will remind hon. Members that the Bill that was published was amended in one particular place, that is clause 15, subclause 2, in that the date 12th March 1964, was changed by the publication in the Gazette to 12th March 1965. It is the Bill as so amended that has had its First Reading and is now the subject of this Second Reading.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the Constitution of Kenya (Amendment) Bill (Bill No. 53) be read a Second Time.

Mr. Speaker, this Constitution of Kenya (Amendment) Bill, 1965, continues, it is hoped, the final instalment of the important and substantial amendments which the Government proposes should be made to our Constitution. It has been necessary to amend the Constitution piecemeal, in fact, we have chopped it about so much that hon. Members will want to know when they will be seeing the Constitution in a reasonable form.

The Government is anxious to produce a final and revised Constitution as soon as possible. I am more anxious than anyone to complete the revision. I have to spend more time trying to read it in its present and mangled form than anyone, so it may be convenient if I begin by reminding hon. Members why it has been necessary to come to Parliament with three Bills, to explain to Members how the Government proposes to finalize the Constitution as soon as possible.

The first priority last year was to establish the Republic on the first anniversary of our Uhuru, to create a republican form of Government suited to our way of thinking, and our traditions, and to restore a strong Central Government. Hon. Members know that the first amendment, No. 28 of 1964, achieved some of these objects, but we were unable to include the necessary amendments to the specially entrenched provisions of the Constitution which could only be amended with a 90 per cent majority in the Senate. The passing of that Act was followed by the achievement of national unity in both Houses. This facilitated the passing of the second amendment, No. 38 of 1964,

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is correct.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): I was, Mr. Speaker, telling hon. Members that clause 5 (2) does say that the corporation may co-opt a person whom they think will give them advice and assistance as they may require. Here, of course, people from different provinces will be required.

The Member also asked why the Minister for Finance would not be consulted when appointing the Members. I think that my friend and colleague should have known that it is understood that we in the Ministry of Agriculture do not have anybody who has knowledge of international finance. He knows very well that we are only people who are concerned with agriculture and it should be understood that his Ministry is going to be consulted on the appointment of these people, because we do not know them. This should be understood, that because we do not put that the Ministry of Finance is going to be consulted, then the Minister for Finance is not going to be consulted. He is referred to in many places, but here it is understood that he is the person who is going to give us the people because it is his Ministry which knows these people, which knows the accounts, which knows the Act referred to. We in the Ministry of Agriculture do not know anything about this Act and the people qualified in that Act, so I presume it is understood that the Minister for Agriculture will consult the Minister for Finance.

The appointment of Members of Parliament brings me back again to what I said, that the Bill is going to be amended in the Committee stage, to increase the number of members to the corporation from six to ten. Therefore, hon. Members from this House—not all of course—will be appointed under this Bill. Although my friend said that the person to be appointed under clause 5 (iii) must be a person who has a knowledge of processing and marketing of agricultural produce, and also must know where to find money, I beg to differ. I am not a financial person, but I beg to differ with my friend. A person qualified in marketing, I think, should know where markets for his produce are, but he does not have to know where money is to be found. There should be somebody to know where money is found. People in the Ministry of Co-operatives and Marketing should then come under the Ministry of Finance, because people who qualify under clause 5 (iii) and who know where money is to be found should not stay where they are. I do not understand the logic of this. As I have said, I am not a man qualified in finance. My friend may be knowing better that somebody qualified in marketing knows where to find money. I know a bit about marketing and I would advise him that those who market their produce do not know where money comes from.

Mr. Speaker, may I quickly run over what Mr. Khasakhala said. He laboured at length on the difference between the Land Bank and the Agricultural Finance Corporation and the Agricultural Development Corporation, which is in the Bill we are now considering. Sir, as I have said before, I will not tire the House on this. These three bodies are completely different, particularly the last one, the one we are debating now, is completely different from the other two. The hon. Member challenged clause No. 5 (ii) which says, "not less than one person shall be appointed by reason of his knowledge of international finance". Now the hon. Mr. Khasakhala wonders why this person should be called this, and what the difference between such a person and a person appointed under clause (i) is. Well, Sir, we have consulted the Ministry of Finance; as I have said, we people in agriculture are not very learned in finance. They have advised us that these two people are completely different from each other, and the person qualifying under section 5 (i) does not necessarily need to qualify under section 5 (ii). So the hon. Mr. Khasakhala should rest assured that we had advice from the Ministry of Finance on this aspect.

He also challenged the meeting of the corporation. Sir, indeed it could not be said here that the corporation will meet one time in Western Province and another time in another province. I would assure the hon. Member that the Central Agricultural Board, which is also working under a Bill of this kind, its meetings have not been included in the same Bill. It is meeting, at this moment while I am speaking, in Nakuru. It was not included in the Bill that it would meet in Nakuru or anywhere. The Administration arranges when it is necessary for the board or the corporation to meet in a place where there is a project for them to see. So, it is not a specific point that the corporation's meetings are going to be held in Nairobi, and the hon. Member should agree that we should leave this to the administration of the corporation to decide on where they will hold their meetings. I do not see how they can debate or discuss a project which is going to be in a distant place, if they have not had a meeting and seen what this place looks like. I think they are going to do this.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I comment on what Mr. Kamau said. He spoke at length on clause 16, and I have answered about those two phrases, so I have answered his query on clause 16. He said

(The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry)

These people should not be exempted from law, but they are not exempted from law here, Mr. Speaker. It is only a matter of protecting them because of the advice they give, if it has nothing to do with negligence. Mr. Kamau went on referring to the general manager selling maize in foreign countries at a low price because he wants the maize industry to fall. Now, may I remind the hon. gentleman, that he thought the general manager of this corporation was going to sell maize. No, he is not going to sell maize. This man is going to deal with projects and not sell maize to foreign countries, and I think the hon. Mr. Kamau overlooked the point that there was no maize mentioned which the general manager was going to sell.

Commenting quickly on what my friend, the hon. Thomas Malinda said, Mr. Speaker, I can assure him that projects like the Yatta Furrow in Uluambani is going to be catered for by this corporation. He might not know at this time that when we had a foreign country investigating this project of Yatta Furrow, the country has turned the project down. It did not want to adopt the project. We cannot depend on foreign countries coming to work for us here. It is the corporation which is going to take up a project like the Yatta Furrow and go ahead with it. Whether this foreign country is willing to help us or not, it is up to them. So the hon. Member from Uluambani should rest assured the Yatta Furrow is one of the projects—I only mentioned a few—which is going to be handled by the Agricultural Development Corporation.

Many of the points which the hon. Mr. Malinda mentioned I agree with and I will look into two of them to see if we can make amendments. I am going to see the Attorney-General about these points, to see if amendments can be made at the Committee stage.

Coming to what Mr. Ngala-Abok said, Mr. Speaker, it is unfortunate that when I was moving the Bill, the hon. Member for Homa Bay was not in the House at that time and he started speaking very wildly about the Bill. The hon. Member made me laugh at a stage when he said that a Minister would call a critic on a board and tell him to keep quiet. I was waiting for the hon. Member to say he has been called because he is a member of a board and he was appointed by the Minister on this board. I was waiting for him to substantiate. That is why I did not rise on a point of order for substantiation, Mr. Speaker. I was waiting for the Member for Homa Bay to tell us that he has been called by the Minister, who appointed him to the board, and told to keep quiet because he had been a critic. Indeed, the hon. Member for Homa Bay has been a critic on the board which he attends and has been very helpful to our Ministry. There has not been any time that we have called the hon. Member and told him to keep quiet on this board, because we know of the suggestions he makes, we get the minutes, and we are always pleased with the suggestions he makes on this board. So the attack my friend made was very unfortunate.

He also said that there had been a lot of foreign advice on many of the boards in Kenya, but I do not understand what the hon. Members want. I do not know whether they want my Minister to go and sit on this board and fight the foreign advice that might be given on the board. We appoint hon. Members and other African members on this board simply because we want them to understand what is happening on this board and advise us, advise this Parliament advise the public and advise the Ministry. Hon. Members have not done this and I would like to ask if the Parliamentary Group of this Parliament has ever been advised by any Members who sit on this board, and there are quite a number of them.

Mr. Anyieni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is saying that the Members who have been appointed to these boards have not advised the Ministry and they have not advised even the Parliamentary Group. I would like him to substantiate. I substantiate that we gave our advice and they have not heeded our advice. He must substantiate that we have not.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): A general allegation of a negative is practically impossible to substantiate, but I think the Assistant Minister will give way long enough for Mr. Anyieni to quote an example or two which show he was wrong.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Assistant Minister is saying that Members are nominated to boards. I am one of the people who has been nominated to a board, that is the Maize Marketing Board. The price of maize is Sh. 32/50. We advised Government that this price was too low and there was not enough maize in Kenya. To induce farmers to grow more maize, Government should increase the price. Government completely rejected this advice and instead Government made an order for maize to come from the United States at Sh. 57 a bag.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think now Mr. Osogo had better continue.

[The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry]

the National Youth Service and, indeed, after the clearing of the bush by the National Youth Service, something must be done to develop the valley, and this development is what I said the corporation would look into.

May I come quickly to what the hon. Member for Majogo-Bassi said in his speech. Indeed, he accused me of having said that we would not be able to find an African general manager in this country. Mr. Speaker, of course, I raised a point of order, because I did not say that; I only said that hon. Members of this House may help us in trying to think of a suitable person to be the general manager of this corporation and suggest a name to us which we are going to consider. In fact, it would be a great help to us if hon. Members picked this person out and told us the person they have in mind. Of course, as the hon. Member for Majogo-Bassi said, it is not the intention of this Government to pay a general manager of this board very lavishly; we can only pay what we can afford. We are going to pay this general manager quite a little amount that he will not feel happy, but we are not going to pay him Sh. 15,000 per month, as the hon. Member for Majogo-Bassi suggested, saying that we are at present paying general managers as high a salary as that figure. I will assure the House that the salary of the general manager of this corporation is going to be in keeping with what the Government can afford to pay him, and it is not going to be very high, although I cannot quote the figure now. I would not suggest, Mr. Speaker, that it should be below or above the Ministers' salary; this, of course, is going to be left to the Treasury who are always consulted before such salaries are determined.

The hon. Member for Majogo-Bassi, again, said that he wanted to know whether these foreign representatives are going to earn salaries or are going to sit on this board permanently, whether they are going to live here or in their embassies. Sir, these people are not going to get salaries on this corporation and, in fact, it would be a mistake for them to ask for salaries because it will be money they have lent to us and we are not prepared to pay them salaries from the money they have lent to us. So these people will only be getting allowances from the corporation from a vote which is going to be set aside, but wherever they are going to stay it is upon them. If they are coming to attend meetings, we are not going to pay a lot on their transport from wherever they come from to this country; we are only going to pay probably their attendance allowance and subsistence allowance on the days on which they attend the meetings. Where they live and where they stay is a point for them to take care of.

The hon. Member also said that there should be people appointed to look at this country's problems at large. Indeed, I agree with the hon. Member for Majogo-Bassi. I am of the opinion that members appointed on this corporation should not concentrate themselves in one quarter, as, it has been said, the former Colonial Government used to concentrate itself in one section of this country. It is a body which is going to look into all projects, and by all projects I really mean all projects, because these projects will have come from all districts in this country and will have been included in the development plan of this country.

The hon. Member, too, said that clause 16 gives protection to members, individuals of the corporation. Sir, I will inform the hon. Member that if he had read this clause very, very carefully, he would have seen that there are two very, very important phrases in it. One is "in good faith" and the other is "without negligence". These two phrases are very important and as the hon. Member gave us an example of a general manager who advised that maize should be sold to a foreign country and then we ran short of maize, I think—

Mr. Anyten: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Assistant Minister is misquoting me. When I made my speech, I made reference to a group of individuals who sold maize—about half million to a country, and after one year we had to order maize from the United States, another half million, but he is saying that I mentioned the general manager and I did not specify one man; I referred to a group of people.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that is so.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): I am sorry, Mr. Speaker, if I did not understand the hon. Member's statement and withdraw what I said. Indeed, this group of individuals—and the hon. Member for Majogo-Bassi is a member of the Maize Marketing Board—should have brought this up in the board and then it would have been found whether it was in good faith that they did this and, and obviously, if the board found that it was through negligence, they should have been brought into the court of justice and made to pay for the losses they made. Where we mean here, Mr. Speaker, is a technician advises that sugar-cane should be planted in a certain area—say in the Mumias area—and then, unfortunately, a national disaster occurs, like locusts coming and eating only an amendment of the Agricultural Land Bank which was passed in this House before many of us came here, in 1963. At this time I am the one who is particularly looking for ways and means whereby we can revoke the amendment which set up the Agricultural Finance Corporation and bring it together with the Land Bank. Of course, hon. Members will appreciate that the work of the Land Bank and the work of the Agricultural Finance Corporation is quite different from the work which is going to be done by the Agricultural Development Corporation, because in so far as the Land Bank and the Agricultural Finance Corporation deal with individual farmers, the Agricultural Development Corporation is not going to deal with individual farmers, it is going to deal with a section.

Mr. Speaker, may I also assure the House that the corporation is not going to be interested in the battle on the ground, that my hon. friend, the Member for Majogo-Bassi said, where a project is started and then one finds someone who says he can do it better. This is not going to be so, Mr. Speaker. What is going to happen in this corporation is that a project initiated from the district and then accepted by the Cabinet Development Committee is going to be put to this corporation and going to be financed by the corporation, not before that. So I do not see where countries will come in, fighting over where when the Cabinet Development Committee will have directed that this project is going to be initiated and is going to be financed by money from such-and-such a country. This, of course, is given in the Bill, in section 20 where it says: "The Minister may, after consultation with the corporation, make rules generally for better carrying out the purposes and provisions of this Act, and, in particular and without prejudice to the foregoing generality, make rules for (a) raising such loans and making investments, on such terms as the Minister may, after consultation with the Minister for the time being responsible for finance, approve". Of course, all these things are going to be with Government approval. The Government is going to be answerable to this House when anything goes wrong.

I would also remind hon. Members here that section 18 (2) provides that the annual report of this corporation shall be laid on the Table of this House and is going to be subject to questioning by this Parliament.

Sir, may I come to what my friend and colleague, the hon. Mr. Okelo-Okongo said. He wanted to know why there should exist the Land Bank, the Agricultural Finance Corporation and this new corporation. Sir, I would inform the House here that my Ministry is in the process at this time of finding ways and means of putting the Land Bank and the Agricultural Finance Corporation in one corporation, because Mr. Speaker, the Agricultural Finance Corporation is only an amendment of the Agricultural Land Bank which was passed in this House before many of us came here, in 1963. At this time I am the one who is particularly looking for ways and means whereby we can revoke the amendment which set up the Agricultural Finance Corporation and bring it together with the Land Bank. Of course, hon. Members will appreciate that the work of the Land Bank and the work of the Agricultural Finance Corporation is quite different from the work which is going to be done by the Agricultural Development Corporation, because in so far as the Land Bank and the Agricultural Finance Corporation deal with individual farmers, the Agricultural Development Corporation is not going to deal with individual farmers, it is going to deal with a section.

It is going to deal with the section for development, a big section for development, and no individual comes into it. The hon. Member said that he was not happy with the composition of the corporation. Indeed, Sir, I do not agree with him. I would point out that it was because my hon. friend did not know why the Permanent Secretaries of the three Ministries were needed to sit on the board. They are needed to sit on the board to convey the technical aspects of the different Ministries. That means we have the Permanent Secretary from the Ministry of Finance. He has to bring the technical aspects from the Ministry of Finance. The advice from the Treasury is brought by the Permanent Secretary from the Ministry of Finance. Somebody could represent him, whom he delegates powers to in writing. So will the Permanent Secretary from the Ministry of Agriculture who will bring the technical aspects of it from the director who is a technician, who is not as you can see provided for on this board. The Ministry of Economic Planning sends a Permanent Secretary to advise on the development and planning of this country. I do not think my friend understood why these people should sit on this board.

The hon. Members mentioned section 5 (2). It says, "That the corporation may co-opt to serve on it for such length of time as it thinks fit any person or persons whose assistance or advice it may require." Here it brings to light the regional representations my hon. friends have asked about. If we feel there is a project in a province where a representative will come and advise—

Mr. Anylen: On a point of order, the hon. Member speaking has said that a Member referred to the regions, but instead he referred to the provinces. I think up to this time it is still regions. Until the Bill is discussed to date I think it is regions.

[The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

corporation running all these functions instead of having five, six, or ten corporations. I think, Mr. Speaker, this is entirely wrong because experience everywhere has shown that if you have a large corporation, one general manager sitting at his headquarters, one general manager sitting at his headquarters with regard to the smaller branches because if you have one corporation there must be central authorities which finally have the responsibility of deciding on matters of finance, recruitment and on other plans. Now if you follow this type of plan, Mr. Speaker, by sheer experience in many countries, that this sort of corporation tends to be far less efficient than functional corporations such as we are now setting up. Hon. Members could well imagine, that if instead of the fifteen or twenty corporations we have in agriculture we had only one central organization. I do not know where you would get the "superman" who, at the head of this would be able to appreciate, Mr. Speaker, the marketing of meat, the marketing of sisal, marketing of pyrethrum, marketing of coconuts, etc., and Mr. Speaker, at the same time will not only borrow money but will centrally direct the operation of all those central industries. I think it is fallacious and as you can see, the equivalent examples in so many countries have proven that these centralized organizations do not function efficiently.

Now, Mr. Speaker, what has been found necessary is that these corporations be split up and put on a functional basis so that you have one corporation dealing with one product. As it is now, each of these corporations deals with an industry worth £5 million to £10 million this I would think is a big enough job, difficult enough for any one person to handle and therefore, Mr. Speaker, I think the hon. Members will agree that the more efficient line to take is to have these functional corporations whilst assuring that we do not have too many of them and that they never overlap one another and duplicate each other's function.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to turn to one other point that was raised which is entirely erroneous. I think it is very unfair to accuse the Ministry of Agriculture, under clause 5, that the conditions or qualifications required of the gentleman that shall be appointed make it impossible for us to appoint local people. This is not true, Mr. Speaker. These qualifications are not rare at all, in fact it just shows that we have ourselves not taken the initiative to look into the matter to see who is available in Kenya. You would be surprised, Mr. Speaker, to see that when the advertisements are put up for these type of appointments to see the number of Kenya Africans who qualify in this field and there are more coming back every day.

An hon. Member: From where?

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki): From universities everywhere. It is wrong for us to imagine, or for us to state that we will not have people who have knowledge of international finance, knowledge of marketing, knowledge of accounting, knowledge of marketing, knowledge of accounting, and in fact, many people in these fields and in fact, many people you need these types of people you will find that you always have them available. That should ensure that there will be no shortage of qualified people should there be a demand.

That should ensure that there will be no problem at all in having the local qualified people. One point, Mr. Speaker, Sir, ought to be made, and this is clear in our own minds, if any hon. Member here wants himself appointed as general manager of a body so intricate as this one, he would be the first person to accept as a criterion for choosing the officers and members of this corporation, that they should be people who can do good service to the country. It is so often clear to those people who operate this kind of corporation, if they want someone to help them with international finance, if they cannot find a local person, I am sure everybody here, Mr. Speaker, Sir, would agree with me that in the interest of the country and of the corporation that they should recruit an able and efficient person wherever he may be from, even if he is not on contract but on temporary terms.

An hon. Member: Not from overseas?

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki): One hon. Member shouts not from overseas. He fails to see that what we require is skill, whether it comes from overseas or underseas or by the seas; this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is by the way, it is irrelevant. What could come from under the seas or by the seas, but what we want is that we should have one qualified person to advise us. These are intricate matters and these people who take the trouble today to consult the people who are operating our various marketing boards, they will know that this is a technical job and that it requires a qualified person.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have no intention of speaking at length because this Bill is self-explanatory, everybody wants it, but I would like to make one final point, Mr. Speaker. What I really hope the Ministry of Agriculture will do is to ensure that this corporation when it is established will have the first option in taking over and operating the mismanaged farms, the abandoned farms which the Ministry of Agriculture is taking over. It should be the function of this board, and the Ministry of Agriculture should ensure that these farms are not put out to tender for sale to anybody else, and that these farms, once taken over by them, then they will not be the nucleus given over to this board, and looking at it from the point of view of investment, it would be quite a good thing for this corporation to start off with farms like that and then run them properly.

[The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these very few words I would like to support the Bill.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will now call upon the Mover to reply.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am indeed delighted that hon. Members have seen the need for establishing a corporation which is going to cater for agricultural projects in this country, and I must thank all hon. Members that have spoken and those who have not shared in the debate in this Bill, for their cooperation and the points they have raised in the debate.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to apologize for not having told the hon. Members, when I moved this Bill, that these were amendments to be moved in the Committee stage on this Bill, and one is going to be in clause 5, the number of members in this corporation is going to be raised to ten from six. This is going to allow our Ministry to appoint a Member of this House on to the corporation, so that he can be answerable to Parliamentary Groups of the Parliament. I am very sorry that I overlooked this in my speech when moving the Bill.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to start by answering points raised by the hon. Member in the course of the debate and I will start with the hon. Mr. J. M. Kariuki, who congratulated my Ministry in initiating this Bill. I must also thank him because he was among those people who thought that it was high time we started a corporation of this kind. He said in his speech, Mr. Speaker, that most of the contributions will come from overseas. This, of course, is not very true because, as I said when moving the Bill, it is the Government's intention that a lot of little savings that can come from Kenyans in this country should be deposited in this corporation, so that the savings can be used for the development of this country.

The hon. Mr. Kariuki went on saying that the citizens of this country should make contributions to this corporation. Indeed, Sir, this is the thing we are after and it will be of great help if hon. Members told citizens of this country to deposit some of the savings they make in this corporation, so that the money they make can be used effectively and nicely in this country's development.

Just as the hon. Assistant Minister for Development has said, it is our basic point that the first item the corporation will have to deal with is to take over the mismanaged and abandoned farms. This is one of the main things the corporation will have to deal with, and the hon. J. M. Kariuki mentioned this and said that it is very important that the rehabilitation of these abandoned farms should be undertaken by the corporation. Indeed, the corporation is going to undertake this immediately it is initiated. Then, of course, it will run these abandoned farms and, as the hon. Mr. Kariuki said, hand them over eventually to cooperative societies or companies that may be able to run them.

It has been put across, Mr. Speaker, that the corporation will be directing what projects are to be initiated. It was unfortunate that when I was moving this Bill many hon. Members were not in the House and they did not hear me refreshing their minds on how a project starts right from the home district of hon. Members. It is true that this corporation is not going to direct a project. It has to get a project from the Government, a project which will originate from all districts in this country. As the hon. Mr. Mwai Kibaki has said, clause 12 (1) explains very, very clearly that the corporation is going to help to initiate, after advice of the Cabinet Development Committee, and help a project to start and be on a good footing.

Mr. Kariuki said that the employment on the projects should not come from overseas. I could not agree with him more; in fact, it is the intention of the Government that all these projects should employ all the local people possible, both technical and labour: that is, on any projects which will be taken over by the corporation. The National Youth Service programme is not going to be interfered with by the corporation. I only mentioned the Lambwe Valley as an example, but I am aware, Mr. Speaker, that the clearing of bush in the Lambwe Valley is being undertaken by

[Mr. Mallind]

Again, Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is a provision here that says that if on the advice of the corporation the Minister removes a person from the board, I would like to know what is done about it, because Mr. Speaker, if the corporation could gang up and recommend to the Ministers that so-and-so is not suitable to sit on this board, how is the Minister going to tell that they are telling the truth, that what they are actually doing is in the best interests of the corporation. What, if any, provision, is there for a Member who has been removed like that to appeal, either to the Minister or to a President, or to anybody else? There should be a provision of appeal for a member who has been removed due to something to do with the ganging up of other members of the board. As it appears, Mr. Speaker, this board—although the Minister will tell us that he will try as much as he can to appoint Africans, apart from the three civil servants, and the three Permanent Secretaries—will only have about one or two Africans, the rest being foreigners. This explanation is there. There is a description of the members who are going to be appointed to the board. Very few, if any, are going to be Africans.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, further on, we have another clause: A person who has been in prison for a term of six months— Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have had this before because this is typical of colonialist legislation. Mr. Speaker, it was impossible for a Member of this House to remain a Member of this House if he had been in prison for six months. Now, there are several reasons that could cause somebody to go to jail for six months or even longer. For instance, Mr. Speaker, if a person should go to jail on a traffic offence, is that really a reason why he should not serve on this board? Therefore, this section should be clarified, and made most specific as to show what offences would make a member not eligible to continue as a member of this board.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, section 10 does not make me very happy because it mentions the common seal of the corporation. The common seal of any corporation is the supreme instrument that has to be used in that corporation to signify that that corporation has given that particular order or has acceded to that particular transaction. The seal of this corporation is going to be authenticated by the signature of the chairman or such other member of the corporation as may be authorized by the corporation to act on that behalf together with the signature of some other member or officer authorized by the corporation to act on that behalf.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that Kenya, as such, is not represented in the signing of these documents. The seal of the corporation should, in my view, be authenticated, in addition to those already mentioned, by one of a Kenya Government representative, by one of the Permanent Secretaries of the Kenya Government, to show that the Kenya Government is part and parcel of that particular transaction.

Again, Mr. Speaker, I should like to mention section 14, where the general manager is supposed to be appointed by the Minister. I do not want to go back to what the Assistant Minister said, but it would seem as though, according to the Assistant Minister's opening remarks, that the man who is going to be appointed is going to be one of these big capitalistic-minded people who is probably not going to listen to anything that is being proposed by the other people because of its uselessness, according to the Assistant Minister.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, that should be taken into consideration in choosing the proper person to be general manager of this corporation.

With those few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to support.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, I wish to support the Bill, but at the same time I wish to comment on some sections, and in observing them I would like to warn the Ministry of Agriculture of the danger of borrowing money from private sources, from international banks, from commercial houses, and probably partly from the Kenya Government's finance corporation. It is very important that we should not start with money from outside, unless there is a genuine reason for starting it, I think it will most probably serve the country well. I am not very convinced as to what is now happening in the corporation in the country. We have the Ministry with its executive officers, we have a number of boards under this Ministry, and the boards have been already mentioned by the former speakers, and I should not like to support this Bill, but because I have observed in some places that it will help, I would just like to make these observations, that the Ministers, and particularly the Minister for Agriculture, has to remember that under that particular Ministry there are so many boards and corporations now that some of them should be squashed and replaced by the most genuine ones.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

If the Ministry feels that this is important, then this corporation is going to be more important than others, and the Ministry must find ways, as my colleague has said, of cancelling some of the boards that have been already created. The argument I have with this is that the sources of money for the establishment of this corporation are not so great of sources that will help the people of this country to promote and see the usefulness of this corporation, because if the World Bank gave money for the formation of this corporation, or some of these commercial institutions which are in the hands of foreigners, I think that this corporation would be run indirectly by the people who lend money for its formation. This is happening in many fields. The Kenya Government does not have an independent board in this country or an entirely independent corporation that is run by the Kenya Government, as such. As long as we do not devise ways and means of running our own corporations financed by our own local money, we are still heading to a very big disaster. I would like the Ministry to think in terms of getting a particular place or getting ways and means of raising money locally to initiate or to establish such a corporation. It is most important that we should try this for ourselves for getting our own money to run such important corporations. We know from history that there are many boards in this country, there are many bodies, many corporations, financial corporations and so on, that will never allow the Ministry to keep clear of its policies. If a Minister wants to think of a policy towards a certain object or a certain matter, he has to take months going from board to board consulting these boards, to see if these boards are helped by money from outside. The advice that is given to the members of this body will be purely foreign so that nothing could be done easily and swiftly for the interests of the country. This is actually a thing that we must now try to avoid. If I found that the source of the money was local, clear-cut, I would have no objection whatsoever to this particular clause or to the explanation given by the Assistant Minister. What we are trying to avoid actually is to borrow money from time to time for any body or institution that we want to start.

In this particular case, that of this corporation, I am not convinced that the duties that the corporation is going to carry out have not been previously carried out by any other institution. In fact, when the functions of the corporation were explained to us, I thought that they were really being carried out even now, although this corporation has not even started working. If there has not been any body or any organization that has been carrying out these functions, either within the Ministry itself or as part of the functions of some of the other boards, then an Assistant Minister will tell us. There is no genuine reason for us to authorize the use of a lot of money for four times a year, getting allowances, moving from place to place, touring districts or areas, observing and coming back to sit in the office, propagating as usual.

This is a thing which should be avoided, and if I may be allowed to comment briefly on section 5 which deals with the membership, I can see very clearly that once this body is formed the Members of Parliament may not have any say as to what the corporation should do unless the Minister permits it. You see, Sir, Ministers are not very open about coming to Parliament with matters which they know they can avoid bringing forward. So here, the members of this corporation will be directly responsible to the Minister and their appointment will be considered, decided and controlled by the Ministry itself. If the Minister did not like an individual, due to political reasons, one could not benefit from the deliberations of a corporation like this one.

I would like to see a system of election of the members of this corporation which is now acclaimed by the Assistant Minister as a very important body. Its importance could arise from the members appointed to the corporation itself; a system of appointments would give us reason to think that it is going to be of no use at all. And then we see that a single person is going to be responsible for each and everybody, and then we receive circulars from the corporation, saying that the corporation has decided this and that and the other and yet it is decided by a Minister or by an individual. We are not prepared to see things being done in a colonial way, when things were decided by one person and nobody else. If corporations such as these are to be run for the benefit of the ordinary man in the country, we must see institutions or organizations or giving local level appointing or recommending or giving a panel of names to the Minister. But here we see that the Minister is going to select people from London University or the University of Toronto, etc., sending them here to issue propaganda for the benefit of their own country. This is ridiculous in my opinion.

I very strongly object, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to this system of doing things. This is actually what we have criticized from time to time. I would like to congratulate our Government on having taken into account the number of criticisms brought during the last year, because we have seen a number of reshuffles and so on, and we

[Mr. Khasakha] will have to be paid by the Government. If not the Government who else will pay them? If they have to be paid, I do not see the reason why the Ministry could not find a way to combine all these three into one and then have subsections with advisers, so that when they meet, they meet as one board or one body, and decide on functions and put all this money into one pool. It is going to confuse the public. Mr. Deputy Speaker, because the people will want to know who to go to when they want money for a certain development. It appears as though it is another method to confuse us so that we will not know what to do. If you go to the Land Bank you are told, "This is not our shauri, go to the Agricultural Finance Corporation." When you go there they say, "No, this is too technical. It is a big project, go to the Agricultural Development Corporation." Then we find ourselves nowhere.

I would appeal to the Minister to find a method to put these three into one organization, and let this organization be the financing organization.

The second observation I would like to make, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is on clause No. 5. It appears as though the appointments—I know that they have to be done by the Minister for Agriculture—for the representatives do not cover the whole of Kenya. I do not see where the provinces are represented on the board. Just having a quick glance at the representations, it appears as though we are tending to stick to the old imperialist practice whereby projects are carried out on one side of the country, while the other side of the country is forgotten completely.

I have a criticism on this, Mr. Deputy Speaker. I would like the Assistant Minister, when he answers, to tell me the reasons why the Ministry did not find it feasible to have representatives from various provinces on this corporation because I feel it is very important to have representatives covering the whole country so that projects can be scattered throughout Kenya. If we leave it as it is, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it will not be long before I will complain that my Western Province has been forgotten. I will not be alone; other people will say the same. I know that up to this moment there is not a single factory in the whole of Western Province. There is not a single factory in the whole of Eastern Province. There is not one in the North-Eastern Province. These things are important because we have unemployment everywhere. Such a board which is very important and which looks into important projects which cover the whole country should be well represented. We should have representatives from all over the country so that they can advise the board on financing and on projects.

Another observation I would like to make is on clause No. 8: "The corporation shall be convened by the chairman at least four times every year." Four times every year. Where? Nairobi only. If these people meet in Nairobi four times a year, they will not understand the whole of Kenya unless they move and meet in various places where the projects are proposed. I feel that the meetings should be arranged in such a way like the Transport Licensing Board which moves from place to place. This being a financial corporation, I think that they should meet in every province. That will assist people in every province to come forward and give suggestions to this organization. Otherwise, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I feel that this is a very important Bill.

I would like to have some clarification from the Assistant Minister on the points I have made. With these few remarks, I beg to support.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I have no quarrel at all with the Ministry concerned, but I must point out that from reading this Bill, I feel that it makes one suspicious; that once one becomes a Minister, one literally has a moral command of this Parliament. If we refer to clause 16, I would request this Parliament to make very strong comments on it, and the Assistant Minister should note that we will not allow any servant of this Government to be exempted from the law. Further on it says: "No act or thing done by any member of the corporation, the general manager, or any officer or servant of the corporation shall, if the act or thing be done in good faith and without negligence for the purposes of this Act, render that member, the general manager, officer or employee, or any person acting by his directions, personally liable to any action, proceedings, claim or demand whatsoever." Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, if this House allows such a paragraph to pass through without some comments, we are going to endanger the Government. The general manager might be under the African Government protection. If he is dealing with the maize from the United States of America, or if he is taking our maize to India, he might sell this maize at the lowest possible rate so as to discourage the farmers from cultivating maize. He sells it at a lower rate. If we allow this clause to pass through, it will mean the Government will not have any power to sue this man.

Therefore, I think we ought to object to this measure, to give this power to an individual. Everybody in the Government should be subject to law. I find that here the Ministry has excluded

[Mr. Kamau] such a person from the law. You find that at the moment—if I am allowed to say this—we are exempted. In most cases you will find that we give a lot of power to the civil servants, whereas the law should be in this Parliament. I think these powers should be in the determining factor of anything which is happening in the country.

If I allow this to pass without comment, there will come a time when it will again be brought back here, and that is when something has gone wrong. I think it is right to comment at this stage that no person should be given such extraordinary power to do whatever he likes in the name of this corporation.

Supporting the other two hon. Members who spoke previously, it is a fact that this Ministry of Agriculture now is confusing the minds of the hon. Members here. They have so many sections within the Ministry, while there should be just one Ministry, which should control everything. Now you find that we have the Maize Board Corporation and Marketing, and the Agricultural Development Corporation Bill, while anything regarding the corporation should come under the Ministry of Co-operatives. It comes under the Ministry of Agriculture. There we have a Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing. This is causing confusion.

In my opinion, clause 16 should if at all possible be amended and not be left for the Maize Marketing Board to have it as they wish.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I support the Bill.

QUORUM

Mr. Masiiri-Imbibi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, as a point of order, is there a quorum in the House?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We now have a quorum.

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I wish to congratulate the Ministry of Agriculture in proposing this Bill, which I think is very overdue. Although it was discussed in the Back-benchers' Ministerial Committee, representing the Agricultural interests, I have one or two observations to make with regard to the Bill itself.

Section 5, Mr. Deputy Speaker, has been challenged and re-challenged, and I do not wish to labour on the floor what is shown in that section except to say that in subsection (b) (1) there is a description of some professional representatives which does not seem to be necessary. If the representative who is described here is only required to be a representative in that board simply because of his accounting knowledge, then I say that this is a duplication of appointment, because in subsection (b) (2), there is another representative who should have the same qualification, because if a man has international finance knowledge, he should also be able to be an accountant, as is described in the one above.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, as this board is going to be run on a purely commercial basis, and for that matter, it needs a lot of these technical people I wish to find out from the Minister for Agriculture, how he is going to have the interests of the whole country applicably represented at this board, because if, for instance, it is an agricultural project which has to be initiated so that it can be self-sufficient self-supporting financially, then, Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are a lot of areas in this country that will never be touched, such as Ukambani or the North-Eastern Region, where agricultural conditions are very difficult, and less rewarding financially. It is going to be very difficult for this corporation to find it fit to give out money for any projects that affect these places. Now, if that is the case, Mr. Speaker, Sir, how is the country going to be developed agriculturally. How much so far has been done in Ukambani or the North-Eastern Region agriculturally, to bring in any project that is self-sufficient or self-paying. Perhaps the Assistant Minister for Development will let me know.

That section, Mr. Speaker, Sir, has been thrashed out, and expertly so, by the Assistant Minister in the Ministry of Finance, so I do not wish to go on any further with it.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, that I would like to know is the method of re-appointment, according to how it has been explained here. There is provision for retirement for members of the corporation who have been in the corporation in the board longest. They retire and they are eligible for re-appointment. Now, if a person says that he is not willing to be re-appointed—supposing a person is one of those who have been appointed due to their knowledge of international finance, which is going to be mostly non-Africans, because very few Africans, in fact, I understand that there are only three Africans with that knowledge, who may be chosen for that appointment, then you bring in a European—I want to find out from the Minister how he intends to have re-appointments carried out to fill vacancies occurring after retirement.

[The Assistant Minister for Finance]

on technique here that the composition is based on technicians, people who have knowledge of agriculture or finance, and so on. I know one of the things these days is to avoid appointing politicians in boards and organizations, but I think that, here probably, it is overdue. There is so much weight on technicians and civil servants. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have no feelings against civil servants, but I feel that the role that civil servants can play in our Government is quite clearly defined, and the role of the politician is also quite clearly defined. I would take this opportunity, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to say that, although some people have tended to give the word "politician" a bad meaning or connotation, this is completely wrong. The President, who is the head of the Government of this country, is a politician, and so the politician is not just somebody who acts irresponsibly or is a troublemaker, or anything of that kind. It would seem that this is the sort of thing which some people have in their minds outside when they talk of politicians vis-à-vis civil servants.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one would say that the role of a civil servant is to carry out the programmes of the Government. In this case, we have Permanent Secretaries who are chosen to serve on this corporation by virtue of their offices. In the first place, I feel that some of the activities of the corporation would be very much in the area of policy making, especially when this organization is going to obtain money for lending to projects in Kenya. First of all, you have the problem of whose money you are going to take, because the money will come from different parts of the world: it will come from the United States of America, from Great Britain, from China and from the Soviet Union, and from any country you might think of. Now, who is going to decide that we should take So-and-so's money? This is a political problem and it is a policy-making problem which, I think, is not the responsibility of a Permanent Secretary, for instance, and in this case I think that we are being unfair to the civil servants here who should be carrying out programmes, rather than making these political decisions. This is one point, Mr. Speaker, that I wanted to put forward.

Another point is this. When one goes into the process of trying to select priorities as far as projects are concerned, one would take it that a corporation like this would be working on a commercial basis and, therefore, they would go where money that is loaned is safe, and things like that. Unfortunately, this kind of thinking is not very relevant in our economy at the present moment, because some of the projects in which we need very urgent investment do not promise very good or lucrative returns in the near future.

If a corporation like this is working on a commercial basis, it is very likely that it will avoid tackling some of the very major projects that should be tackled, which would lay a basis for our agricultural and industrial development in future, and instead simply concentrate on certain projects which give quick yields and quick returns in a short period. This would be a great danger to our over-all general economic progress in the country. So whoever is making the decision with regard to where the money should be invested is going to face this problem. There are certain investments which are going to be made on a long-term basis, and on a risk basis with very little return. If the Government is going to give the power to invest or to loan for projects to this corporation, then this corporation also must have within itself elements that would promote investment, based on long-term results rather than on quick profits or on safe investment for the money lenders. This is a basic problem and I feel that if, for instance, some of the members on the corporation were politicians and people who have a right to decide as far as policy is concerned in this country, it would help them very much. They could invest a bit of the money in projects where it would be a risk, but which would be good for the country in the long run.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that in a way we have been wasting our limited manpower, especially the educated manpower. There are very many Members of Parliament, for instance, who are very well educated in these matters and who may not be represented on this body. It seems to me that the corporation could draw personnel from Members of Parliament, and this would be a very useful thing in that within the corporation you would then have this element which will be able to make decisions based on policy. This would also give employment to Members of Parliament and would give them a chance to participate in the plans and actual working of these economic programmes for our country which, I am afraid to say, Mr. Speaker, Sir, many of our Members of Parliament do not have a chance to do. The Members of Parliament make laws in this House and pass resolutions, and so on, but when it comes to the actual implementation of the resolutions or the wishes expressed, then the Members of Parliament are generally not directly participating, and this is a chance whereby Members of Parliament would be given the opportunity to be directly involved in the actual economic development of this country and the general progress of our people. So I feel very strongly, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that while we have to use the civil servants on matters where administrative questions are concerned, and in this case somebody might say that a politician might be inclined to favour one place rather than another, I think we should not do this, because a civil servant also comes from a certain area of this country and there is no way in which one can ascertain that a civil servant is always going to be directed by administrative circumstances, and so on. This is a question of integrity and it can be found in a civil servant; it can as well be found in a politician.

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel very strongly about this particular one, the representation. This is weighted too much on the Civil Service side. Furthermore, I notice that the Permanent Secretary is to be a member and if he is not "for a person deputised by him in writing for the purposes of this Act," This, again, I think, is going a little far. I have a feeling that if the Permanent Secretary feels that he cannot be a member of the corporation, then it is either the Minister or somebody else who should make the appointment of the person to be on the corporation, because the civil servant, as much as he is a very responsible member of the Government, he does not have a mandate from anybody as far as choosing other people to work in certain things is concerned, which may involve policy making as with this corporation here.

Then, Mr. Speaker, Sir, other members represent the people who will lend the money and the people who are experts on international finance and people who know marketing and agricultural produce processing, and so on. This is a little too technical and it seems to me that it might not really be necessary, especially if there is somebody who knows marketing problems and processing problems; he should also know about finance and about international financial arrangements. After all, it is only a question of having the information with regard to which bank can be approached and who are the people in the world who have the money, and so on, and it is a matter that is not really difficult to find; it is something that anybody with average intelligence can find out in a matter of days or months.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair].

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair].

All one has to do is find out where the information is and remember it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this is not from a self-interested point of view, but I see here that all the powers to appoint members to the corporation are bestowed 80 the Minister for Agriculture. I think, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that the Minister for Finance should also participate in these matters since they are very much connected with finance, and I would like to know from my friend and colleague, the hon. Assistant Minister for Agriculture, why this was not done. In the Agricultural Finance Corporation there is good co-operation between the Minister for Finance and the Minister for Agriculture, and also in the Land Bank. In the Agricultural Land Bank there is co-operation between agriculture and finance. I do not know why in this particular case it is all agriculture and the Minister for Finance does not come in, as far as appointing chairmen, vice-chairmen and others is concerned. I would like to hear this stated by my friend, the hon. Assistant Minister.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, in addition to projects, the reason why I think that the position here, to go back on what I said—In some of the agricultural projects in our country at the moment, the problems that are faced in the field of agricultural development are very serious: problems of land policy, problems of land tenure policy and problems of land consolidation that we have in the country, and so forth. Some of these are going to need investment, projects, and so on. If the politicians are left out of these boards, and they are the people directly representing the people of this country, who are always being told the wishes of the people of this country, it would be difficult for a corporation like this to conceive the urgency of some of the problems that the people feel are more pressing than others.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I support the Motion and I believe that my hon. friend, the Assistant Minister for Agriculture, will bring me into the picture as regards some of the things which I have said, I feel may be based on lack of information. Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

Mr. Khasakhalal: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, while I support this Bill, I have a few observations to make.

The first one has already been covered by the Member who has just spoken, and that is: under the same Ministry of Agriculture we are now going to have three different financing bodies. One is the Land Bank, another will be known as the Agricultural Finance Corporation, and then this one will be the Agricultural Development Corporation. I am wondering why the Ministry did not find it necessary to combine all these three financing boards into one so that we would save manpower and finance. By having three different organizations it is going to cost us a lot of money. As I see it, we have general managers, chairmen, members on boards, and so on, who all

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, it is rather a case of misrepresenting what you said, because I did not hear anything like that. What you did say was that you hoped that an African general manager would be forthcoming, and that hon. Members will help you find him.

Mr. Anyienyi: Mr. Speaker, I was very attentively listening and as a matter of fact I made a quiet comment while sitting, then the Minister went further to clarify the position by saying, "If any Member knows of person who could do it," but he had said, "I know Africans will have to demand, but I am saying there may not be an African who can do this," but later on I think he was all right, but to start with he did not make his comment in the manner in which he is making it now. Anyway, Mr. Speaker, the point is that the Assistant Minister has now understood that he should do everything to get an African to do this work and of course if there is not an African, we cannot let the corporation down because there is not a black man to do it. All we want is some work done.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, sometimes some of these general managers are given very big salaries. Sometimes, I am given to understand it is Sh. 10,000 so that they may be able to work. Sometimes they can demand even more. I know some general managers of some boards earn more than our President does, and when one asks the Minister concerned, the Minister says that it is very difficult to find people of this type and if this man is so valuable as to be paid Sh. 15,000 a month for his services, this man is too expensive for us and we should get someone or two people to do it, but, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have also discovered, that when Government says, "Oh we cannot find a man to do it," then we take on an African with some good background, and he does the work even better than the expatriate, and the African gets about Sh. 5,000 and he is satisfied. The expatriate could not do the work for Sh. 10,000. So I hope that in this corporation the Government will try to see that in order that the expenses to the agricultural people should not be too high, the Government should try and make sure that they get the most efficient man but not too expensive a man in our country. Here I would like to say that the Government should make it impossible for any employee in our country to get more pay than the Minister's pay, and that should be the general feeling, because the hon. Members should not be getting more salary than the President, or the Vice-President, and after that the Ministers. No other person should get more money than a Minister. I think that this is a wrong policy, because the Minister above him is probably getting Sh. 7,000 and this chap who gets Sh. 15,000 will just turn round and say, after all who is this Minister. I earn more than he does and I think it is not fair. The Government should look into that and see that they put these things right.

In representation, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I see that some foreigners who are probably Chinese or Americans, will be represented in this corporation. I would like to know as to whether they will be paid a monthly salary or an attendance allowance and as to whether they are going to be residents of this place, probably from the embassy, probably they want to draw some people from the embassy, I have not read that one. I see one Member pointing at me, do you want me to sit down and you give us some information? So we would like to know this because we do not want it to be too expensive. So we hope that they will try to find a person who will not be too expensive to our country.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that we would like representation in this corporation to be spread as much as possible all over the countryside, so that when money is being loaned to our country, this money will not be concentrated in one particular area; this money will be spread all over Kenya for the interest of the whole nation, not for the interest of a few places. I am saying this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, because the other day we were told that there was going to be a factory for passion fruits and vegetables in Kisii District. Then later on we heard that Yugoslavians, I think it was, a Yugoslavian Delegation went to Sagana and said they were going to do some work there. Then later on we also had a West German Delegation who came to Sagana and a competition has been started and this is why I think that it is going to be very important so that this body, the Ministry is creating, will be able to direct any foreigner who wants to give us some help to be able to spread all these things and not to try and compete for a place which may not even be as fertile as many districts we have in Kenya. For this I would like to say that the Ministry should try, as much as possible, to get people with understanding from each region if possible. I am not saying that we shall have one man from each region but the Minister has within his discretion a chance to be able to say that, well I have this man, let us say, from Nyanza, now this man is coming and I am going to get another man from Central, or that the next man will come from the Coast, this will, I think, help Government to spread its economic aid plans and agricultural development in the whole of the nation, and not in one particular area. I see that in clause 16 of this Bill, that there

[Mr. Anyienyi] no liability, and I see that this is so in most of such boards. The clause reads:—

"No act or thing done by any member of the corporation, the general manager, or any officer or servant of the corporation shall, if the act or thing be done in good faith and without negligence for the purposes of this Act, render that member, the general manager, officer or employee, or any person acting by his directions, personally liable to any action, proceeding, claim or demand whatsoever."

This is good protection. I see here it is written, protection of the corporation, but, Mr. Speaker, Sir, while this is protection for the corporation this seems also to be protection for the individuals, because I know an instance, Mr. Speaker, Sir, where, for example, we had a shortage of maize. We had a little more maize, and somebody went and negotiated the sale of this maize and after selling that maize just one year after that, we are now ordering maize from the United States, a million bags of maize for consumption in Kenya, which is yellow maize, and which, after it arrives in Nairobi, will cost the consumer of maize, not maize flour, about Sh. 57 per bag. When Kenya previously sold maize to another country, we sold the maize at Sh. 19 to this foreign country.

Now, in a corporation like this, we do not want the general manager to be given the chance to make some very shortsighted estimates of what should be done and then after a few days what the country is in trouble, for example, the Minister has said that this corporation will direct the loans, if for example the corporation, the board and the general manager advise that these things should be set up in some dry place, let us say that we are going to grow cotton in Kisii District, and they do everything, and they say that we are going to grow cotton in Kisii District, knowing very well that Kisii District may not be able to grow cotton, when they have insisted that this should be done by experts; as the Assistant Minister has always said, that these people will be experts, that this man will be an expert, and I see that in nomination they are going to pick people acquainted with international finance and so on. If a thing like that is done, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that these people should be liable to some amount of punishment so that whenever they take a position they know that they are not to do things and then say, I did it in good faith. Of course, if it is in good faith, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are all human beings and we sometimes pretend that we are doing things in good faith, when in actual fact we have probably some other motives for doing it, and sometimes our good motives may be stupid motives and we may penalize the whole population for our so-called good motives, which maybe too shortsighted, and so Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the Ministry very much for bringing this, and I hope from this time we shall not have a situation like the one we had when you had more or less an ideological war being fought on the grounds, some people from the capitalist countries saying that you wanted to develop this and other people from the Eastern countries coming and saying that if we gave it to them it will be better. We do not want this to be done. We hope that with the formation of this corporation, it will be able to tell these people exactly what they want and direct them as to where they should do this development.

With those few remarks I wish to support the Bill.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Odongo): Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir. Members have said that this matter has been discussed thoroughly in the Back-benchers' meeting and in this case it seems that the Back-benchers are ahead of myself, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

I am going to support the Bill, but I have a few observations here which probably were discussed at this meeting, where the Bill was thoroughly discussed; but they seem to stand out in my mind as I read the Bill.

In the first place, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that in most of the Bills that come in connexion with agricultural finance—now we have three, like my colleague, the Assistant Minister for Agriculture said—it would appear to me that in order to save money and also save manpower, we should really have just one organization. The Land Bank deals with lending money to individuals for buying land while the Agricultural Finance Corporation lends money to individuals for development; and we now have this corporation which is going to be an over-all organization which is going to be another organization lending money for general agricultural development. It would appear that it were were only one organization with different departments it would just be as well and probably there would be a better co-ordination, and it would not only save money but also same manpower which we are very much in need of. I am quite sure that my colleague, the hon. Assistant Minister for Agriculture, must have some good reasons why this is so. At the moment I am not quite aware of these reasons.

The second point, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is on the composition of the members of the board. I person and he will be appointed. This is a new project which will involve millions of pounds, and we cannot afford at all to experiment with development and personnel simultaneously. So I would plead with hon. Members of this House that when they are speaking on this Bill to have in mind a person, a Kenyan who is of very high integrity whom we can appoint as general manager of this corporation.

When naming such a person, I would suggest to hon. Members that he should be, in the opinion of hon. Members, a person of very high understanding. I would assure hon. Members that all the people appointed to the corporation under section 5 will be Africans, except those that will be appointed under subsection (2) and subsection (4), who amount to only two people. So hon. Members should not be carried away by the fact that appointments to this corporation might be of other foreign people, except under those two subsections I have mentioned. If we look at these subsections we will see that it will be people lending money who will be represented, as far as subsection (4) is concerned; and with regard to subsection (2), we are at this moment looking for somebody who has got a knowledge of international banking so that we can appoint him to the corporation.

Now, Sir, I leave it to hon. Members to debate this Motion. With these words, I beg to move.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo) seconded.
(Question proposed)

Mr. J. M. Karuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am rising to support this Bill, and before I do so I would like to congratulate the Ministry concerned because it is the only Ministry which is taking the initiative of explaining to the Back-benchers what is going on in the Government machinery.

Now, Sir, before this Bill was brought to this House we had a look at it, we had a very good discussion with the Minister concerned; and most of the questions which we had were put forward and we had very good answers. Therefore I do not want to dwell on most of the clauses in this Bill. However, there are one or two things I would like to mention.

First of all, in the Bill itself, it is indicated in one clause that most of the money will come from countries outside Kenya and also that people in this country will be allowed to contribute to this corporation. Now, Sir, there should not be a tendency that people in this country cannot also raise the money so as to get some representation on this corporation, because as the Bill stands today, Sir, it is only those people from foreign countries who make contributions to this corporation will be represented on the corporation. But the people in this country will either be represented by a person elected or nominated by the Minister or from the Central Agricultural Board. It is not one hundred per cent sure whether this man will be a representative of the people who have contributed towards this corporation.

The other point, Sir, which I would like to mention here, because that part is not in the Bill although I was told about it sometimes by the Minister is that I hope it is the intention of the Ministry concerned to see to it that they get this corporation to undertake some projects like the rehabilitation of abandoned farms. This is a very important point, Mr. Speaker, Sir. If the present abandoned farms in the settlement area or in other parts of the country can be taken over by the Ministry of Agriculture and then the Ministry directs the corporation to rehabilitate those farms, first this would be a very good thing. It is only after rehabilitating those farms that they can be purchased or sold to African co-operatives who can run them afterwards. But it is very difficult, as most of the Members in this House know, for the Africans to take over these which have probably not been farmed for four or five years at least and put them into proper production right from the beginning. It would be advisable for this corporation to take over such farms, rehabilitate them and then sell them to the African co-operatives in the country, who can then go ahead with developing them so as to improve the economy of the country.

I wanted to mention this, Mr. Speaker, because it should not be taken for granted that what is laid down in this Bill is actually going to be followed by the corporation. The corporation might come tomorrow and say, "We think that it is important that we carry out this project, and leave that project", and they might come and start with the bigger projects which are not going to benefit this country at this stage. It will be a good thing if the Ministry can direct the corporation as to what they should start with and I feel that the Ministry of Agriculture and the Ministry of Economic Planning and the Ministry of Finance, before the corporation undertakes any project, should sit down together and think as to which are the important projects to be undertaken by the corporation. We should not have the corporation saying, "This is what we want to do and if you do not allow us to do this, then we will withdraw from it." That would be some sort of bad outside influence which might not serve our Government at all.

[Mr. J. M. Karuki]

The other point which I would like to mention here is that the hon. Assistant Minister has just mentioned some of the projects which he thinks the Agricultural Development Corporation might start and start undertaking immediately, among them being the Lambwe Valley scheme and some other projects. Here Mr. Speaker, I hope that the people who are going to be employed by the corporation to undertake this work will be local people. Or will the corporation bring a lot of people, or highly technically qualified people from abroad? If the majority of them come from foreign countries then the money that was lent to this country will go back to those countries? They will get quite a lot of money to undertake these projects from these resources. Therefore, I appeal very strongly to our Government that wherever it is responsible in this corporation must ensure that those people who are going to participate, either in the form of labour or in the form of technical know-how, are most of them local people who can undertake this sort of job. This is to ensure that the capital brought into this country is not going out again, all of it, at the same time.

I am also worried, Mr. Speaker, when I hear that some of these projects will be undertaken in places where the National Youth Service would have undertaken these projects. I wonder whether this is the intention of the Government, that the proposed projects for the National Youth Service will also be undertaken by the corporation. That means there cannot be any real reason for having National Youth Servicemen in those areas which the Assistant Minister has just indicated.

I must explain, Mr. Speaker, that at the moment we are in need of more and more projects in this country and the National Youth Service is now going to and from every Ministry trying to find out whether there are any projects which can be undertaken by the National Youth Service. One of the projects we thought we were going to start on very soon was Lambwe Valley, clearing for settlement, and now I understand that this is one which is earmarked for the corporation. Now I am puzzled as to whether we are going to pursue these points and move ahead so as to make plans for the National Youth Service. We, in the National Youth Service, are not asking anything from the Government, but this can help very strongly when the time does come for having a project established in those areas, otherwise we will not be in a position to know what to do. We would like the Government to come to a decision and then come to us and say, "This is what we want you to do in this place", and then we help the Government with the labour.

So this is another point I wanted to put across to the Assistant Minister so that we can also come in and assist the Ministry concerned to do some of the work before the corporation has undertaken those projects.

Mr. Speaker, I do support this Bill wholeheartedly, it is a Bill which we support very strongly and I think the Assistant Minister is also aware that I was the first to advocate this type of Bill in this House and therefore, Mr. Speaker, I hope that this Bill will pass in all stages as we very strongly support it.

Mr. Anyeni: Mr. Speaker, since we have our agricultural committee and our agricultural committee seems not to have had much trouble with the Ministry in connexion with this Bill, I will not have very much to say except to mention a few things after having read the Bill and after having heard the comments from the Assistant Minister. There was one comment the Assistant Minister made which, I think, the Assistant Minister should be advised not to make again in this House and the eyes of the world. The Assistant Minister was more or less prejudging when he stated that there is not an African in Kenya who can become the manager of this corporation. I think that the best thing for the Minister to do is to wait until a Member stand up and demands that an African be the general manager, then the Minister could stand up and say, "If you want an African to be the general manager, and you have someone, who believes he is capable, please recommend him to us and we shall see him," but it is unfair for the Minister to say in this House that there is not an African who is capable of doing this work. We have several Africans who have been in universities who have worked in this capacity and the only reason why it appears that they are unable to do this work is because they have not been given an opportunity to do it.

The Minister should be reminded that during the colonial period that an African was believed not to have been capable of doing this work and furthermore, an African was not even allowed to represent himself in this House; it was further believed that an African was not capable of running the Government and I hope the Assistant Minister will change his attitude and allow his mind to be open so that if he can—

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I do not remember any stage where I said that there will be no African, or it is not possible to get an African to be a general manager of this corporation in my speech, Mr. Speaker, and may I ask the hon. Member to substantiate that I said this in my speech.

[The Speaker] is now on the Order Paper at No. 12 will, at the request of the Minister for Health, be deferred until today week.

NOTICES OF MOTIONS FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

QUESTION NO. 812: GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF THE PRESS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have to inform hon. Members that I have received notice from Mr. Anylen of his desire to raise on adjournment, or rather pursue on adjournment, Question No. 812, concerning Government's control of the Press. I have allotted tomorrow, Wednesday, 24th, at the close of business, for that matter to be raised.

KENYA PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION RESULTS. KIRINYAGA

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have had notice from Mr. Gichoya of his desire to pursue Mr. Kibuga's question by private notice on 25th February concerning the Kenya Preliminary Examination Results in Kirinyaga, and that it is to be raised on Thursday, 23rd March, at the interruption or earlier conclusion of ordinary business.

Second Reading

THE AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION BILL

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Agricultural Development Corporation Bill be read a Second Time.

The Bill before the House, Mr. Speaker, is intended to set up an Agricultural Development Corporation of Kenya with the powers to raise money, to lend or to advance money to agricultural development projects, to acquire interest in agricultural undertakings and generally to promote and manage schemes for the agricultural development in Kenya.

There does not exist at present a body in Kenya with enough resources to execute the duties and responsibilities envisaged in this Bill before the House. The absence of such a body is one of the major impediments hampering the agricultural development of this country, and this Bill is designed to fill this gap. To give just one example, Mr. Speaker, a sugar project which is anticipated at Chemelil, involving about 16 million from which £1 million will be equity, will come under the Agricultural Development Corporation, and of course, several other development projects that are now being included in the new development plan.

May I refresh the minds of the hon. Member in this House by informing them how the project could be taken up and financed by the Agricultural Development Corporation. Somebody may have a project which he will suggest to the District Agricultural Committee, then to the Provincial Agricultural Committee and then to the Central Agricultural Board when it is fed to the Ministry of Agriculture, who then put it to the valuation section of the Ministry. This valuation section will decide the

[The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry]

At this stage, the Ministries of Finance and Economic Planning and Development will be put in the picture about this project. When the valuation section has completed its valuation the paper goes to the Ministry of Economic Planning and Development, on its way to the Development Committee of the Cabinet, after which it is included in the Development Plan. This, Mr. Speaker, is how projects originate right from the home districts of hon. Members in this House, up to the time it comes to this House for debate as a development project, as a development plan in this country. Money for this kind of project is very difficult to get, as lenders will always want a small Government body with which to deal, which is going to be this corporation. We know from the talks we have had with the World Bank and from the conditions imposed upon the money-borrowing operations we have already had, that lenders like a separate financial corporation to deal with this type of loan. Most of the foreign missions that have already been here, particularly those from the socialist countries, have expressed their desire to deal with a small body directed by the Government for any agricultural development project they may have indicated to assist with finance, with the Government direction and co-operation.

May I inform the House, Sir, that Kenya is not the first country to think of establishing a corporation on the lines anticipated in this Bill. A good number of African Independent states have established such corporations. Let it not be forgotten that this corporation is virtually going to be a Government owned, and Government operated body, because of the powers of direction from the Cabinet from the Ministry. A number of hon. Members may be asking themselves why we have not used the Land Bank, and the Agricultural Finance Corporation, for the purposes envisaged in the Agricultural Development Corporation Bill. Let me, Mr. Speaker, Sir, briefly explain the difference between the three.

First of all, the Land Bank operates with a certain amount of Kenya Government money, and a lot of British money—and I want hon. Members to note that—and a certain amount of local commercial money. It mainly lends money to individuals for buying land as its main purpose, to place money against a good security.

The Agricultural Finance Corporation is an organisation which raises money to lend to individual farmers for development purposes. It lends to both small- and large-scale farmers for articles like tractors, cattle and cattle food, fertilizers, and the like.

The Agricultural Development Corporation, which is going to be implemented if this Bill is passed, is going to cater for big projects for which the Government would not otherwise get the finances. It is difficult for the Government to find money for projects like the Lambwe Valley Project, the bush clearing on Lake Victoria shores, the sugar project at Chemelil, and Mumias, the Lungalunga Sisal Project, and the rehabilitation for Ramisi Sugar Farm, the ranching schemes in the different parts of this country, and several other agricultural projects. It is the Government's intention, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that in the early stages, the corporation must concern itself with the most viable projects, so that it can get itself financially under way. Once this happens, and the corporation begins to make some progress, there is no reason why it should not extend its activities to less favourable areas of this country and thus bring development where the Government, as such, will not have funds of itself to operate. I will, however, remind the House that as the composition of the corporation indicates, the Government will keep a very close look at its operations. In its initial stage, the corporation will have no funds of its own. It is envisaged that it will obtain money from other sources, commercial banks, international monetary sources, and even from the Kenya Government, I would like to make it quite clear that this is nothing like a dole or a subvention. When the corporation gets under way, it will pay back all the money advanced to it.

As the hon. Member will see from clause 13 (1), it will be possible for Members of the public to contribute to, and derive benefits from the corporation. It should, therefore, be clear that although the corporation will raise most of its funds from overseas sources, it is a wish by the Government that private individuals in Kenya should subscribe to the setting up of this organisation.

In this way the corporation will help to harness these small savings of Kenyans towards national development.

Turning to the appointment of the general manager and the members of this corporation, Sir, it is the intention of the Government to get the best person available as the general manager for this corporation. I can foresee hon. Members asking the Government to appoint an African or a Kenyan to this post, I accept this challenge and now ask hon. Members, the Chief Whip included, to give me the name of a capable

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, what is the Ministry doing to assist the co-operatives, because after training an officer in a given co-operative, this officer tends to leave to work for some other administrative department? What is the Minister doing to retain them in the co-operatives?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, I have said very clearly that my Ministry is reorganizing the whole thing on a district level and then there will be district supervision for the smaller unions, and also the Ministry is at the moment working on a multi-crop society, as you might say, or union. That means the district union will be tackling all the problems of the smaller societies and giving managerial services as well as technical ones.

On the question of the co-operative officers, those who take up the post in the districts run the whole show.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister tell the House whether these co-operatives have been started or this has been initiated by this question?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Member reads the newspapers, I think he will see that there are several such co-operatives already in the field, and much work is now being done in the field, and we have these societies running. The first one was in Nyeri District.

Mr. Anyleni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that his intention to unify different unions is meeting with some resistance from certain quarters because of the fear of loss of employment by the present employees of the unions?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that has not come to my notice, but we have to root out people who are not capable of running the societies properly for the benefit of the producers or the members of the society.

Mr. Mbohghi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have two questions to put to the Minister.

The first question is: according to his reply in which he said that they are discouraging the formation of small societies so that they can encourage the union level of societies, does the Minister want to imply that a union can be formed without societies?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I understand the shade and light of the English language, the word "union" means coming together, and that means the coming together of societies, but not destroying the existing small ones. The union will be there to be able to advise and give technical assistance as well as managerial to the smaller societies.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Mr. Mbohghi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I have two questions.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I know, but I think we must move on. I have to inform hon. Members that Question No. 960 appears on the Order Paper by mistake, being merely repeated of a question that has already been answered.

Question No. 828

CIVIL SERVANTS AND POLITICS

Mr. Komora, on behalf of Mr. Balala, asked the Assistant Minister to the President's Office whether, in view of the fact that Kenya was now a one-party state, the Minister could take appropriate steps to enable civil servants to take up membership and play an active part in the present ruling party, Kana.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Let me be misunderstood: there is a very great need for civil servants to be in general harmony with the political objectives of the Government. There ought, indeed, to be more particularly of the senior civil servants, an enthusiastic involvement in the programmes on the part of the civil servants, of their Ministries. It is one of the functions of the Civil Service itself to engender this enthusiasm. In the Government training courses, this element of instruction in the political aims and philosophy of the Government is constantly being borne in mind. However, the Government believes that the roles of party politicians and civil servants, although complementary, are quite distinct and separate. Both have an important part to play in the process of Government, but it would be a mistake to try to merge the two roles.

Because of the foregoing reasons, the Government does not wish to encourage civil servants to play an active part in the ruling political party or in any other party.

Mr. Mbohghi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that recently we have heard a lot of complaints about civil servants and that we have always thought the Ministries have to be on their feet to support civil servants, is it the Minister's intention to change the law which will prohibit a civil servant from taking part in the political arena, though not to stand as a party candidate?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did not understand the confused question of the hon. Member.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Could you repeat it, Mr. Mbohghi?

Mr. Mbohghi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my question is: we have seen that during the last session the Assistant Minister had to defend the civil servants many times in this House simply because he was not controlling them in the proper way they should be controlled. Now, when you go to the civil servants, you find that there is a lot of them who would also like to defend themselves.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have to ask a question, Mr. Mbohghi.

Mr. Mbohghi: I am putting it, Sir. The same law prohibits these civil servants from taking part in politics, so would the Assistant Minister in view of that fact, reconsider his decision not to allow the civil servants to take part in politics?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the mistakes and errors of the civil servants are brought to the attention of a particular Ministry, they could be rectified, but to say that we have been able to control the civil servants in the past, I think far fetched.

Question No. 923

PURCHASE PRICE OF 100-ACRE SCHEME FARMS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Has any Member been authorized to ask this question?

Mr. Sol: Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the Member for Belgut, Mr. Kerich, I beg to ask Question 923.

Mr. Sol asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement if any steps had been taken by the Government to reduce the high price paid by the "hundred-acre" settlers on Settlement Schemes in various districts.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. My Ministry normally resells the 100-acre plots at the same price as has been paid for them, although in some cases reductions have been made after discussions with the prospective owner. When the farms were originally purchased by the Settlement Board, the valuations prepared by the Board's valuers have shown, in many cases, that the houses have been worth anything up to £3,000 each. However, under the arrangements with the British Government, who have supplied money for purchasing these farms, we are not allowed to pay any more than £1,300, for any farmhouse. Thus, when a farmhouse is sold at £1,300, the purchaser of the plot and house receives a subsidy of anything up to £1,700, i.e. the difference between a possible value of £3,000 and the amount he has to pay.

Mr. Sol: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell the House why they are selling houses at a flat rate regardless of the conditions of the house?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is no flat rate for houses. The plots are usually valued. Each plot is valued and is sold according to its own merits.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, is the Assistant Minister aware that there are 100-acre settlement schemes where there are 100-acre plots, every person who has a 100-acre plot is paying the same amount regardless of the condition of the house, Sh. 26,000 or Sh. 40,000? Why is this so?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware that there is a flat rate, and if the hon. Member can produce evidence, then the Ministry would be prepared to go into this matter to find out the reasons why.

CORRECTIONS TO VOTES AND PROCEEDINGS

ERROR IN DIVISION LIST

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We must move on now. I must inform hon. Members of four matters.

First of all, in the Votes and Proceedings of the sittings of this House on 12th March, I regret there was an error in the record of the Division on Mr. Omolo Agar's amendment of the Motion concerning the Civil Service that day. Hon. Members will recall that there was a Division in which Mr. Omolo Agar's amendment was defeated. In the record of the Division, Mr. Ngala-Abok was marked as having voted both for Aye and No, whereas he voted only No. Mr. Ngei who did vote Aye, but was not recorded at all. He should be entered as an Aye in the place of Mr. Ngala-Abok. That correction will now be made in the Votes and Proceedings.

DEFERMENT OF SECOND READING OF BILL

THE FOOD, DRUGS AND CHEMICAL SUBSTANCES BILL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have to inform hon. Members that the Second Reading of the Food, Drugs and Chemical Substances Bill which

[The Assistant Minister for Education]

The idea behind this venture is to start teaching standard one classes using the new approach method in English right from the beginning. In order that such classes may be successful, not only must the teachers be trained to teach this way but constant supervision is necessary.

In South Nyanza there were ten English medium classes in 1964. This year fifty-four additional classes were opened.

For financial reasons, South Nyanza was allowed to employ only two supervisors plus an A.D. girl with centres at Homa Bay and Gendia. For each of supervision, therefore, it was imperative that the greater percentage of these schools be within a reasonable radius of the two centres.

Later, a third centre was established at Kamagambo to cater for Sakwa and Kamagambo Locations. This centre is looked after by the supervisor in Kisii, and was established through the kindness of Gusii County Council.

In 1966, it is hoped to spread the scheme all over the district and efforts are already afoot to provide for enough supervisors. Schools will be warned early enough to get ready for the scheme.

There was, therefore, no question of a particular area or people being overlooked. The spread of the scheme had to be gradual and depended on factors already outlined. Apart from Kuria Location, there are many others where the new primary approach classes have not been established for exactly the same reasons.

Mr. Malsori-Itumbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister for Education tell the House what has Kamagambo to do with Kuria Constituency?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this was a wide reply. As regards to this, Kamagambo is a part of this area.

Mr. Malsori-Itumbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question is that why was Kuria Constituency, as a whole, not considered as it is known, very well, that Kuria Constituency is one of the backward areas?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Member was listening to my reply, I have already outlined which areas these new primary approach classes are covering in that area; and in his own location of Kuria, already it is covered with the areas where these teachers can be easily obtained to teach in the areas I have already mentioned.

Mr. Ngala-Ahoki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister assure my hon. colleague, the Member for Kuria, that immediate steps will be taken to establish an English medium school for his people?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the policy of the Government is not to consider one particular area alone. This question of education, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is to cater for all the people in the country and I have already stated we have a scheme whereby not only is Kuria involved but also other places which will be considered in future.

Mr. Anyleni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister specifically tell this House the reasons which led to other areas, or other constituencies, being granted English-medium facilities and not Kuria? Was this tribal behaviour or the education officers in the field?

Mr. Mutiso: No, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies by the Assistant Minister, would the Assistant Minister not agree with me that the policy of his Ministry should be to give attention to the more backward areas such as Kuria Constituency, so that Kuria studying in English could catch up with Homa Bay instead of giving Homa Bay too much?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have already answered that question and I said that in 1966 it is hoped to spread the scheme all over the district, and that includes Kuria.

Question No. 951DELAY IN PUBLICATION OF K.P.E. RESULTS

Mr. Odoro-Sar: asked the Minister for Education what had caused the delay in publishing the Kenya Preliminary Examination results which had affected some schools, such as Mtenga and Got Osimbo in Ugenya Constituency.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I wish to make it clear that the 1964 K.P.E. results were published in time for the secondary school selection and also earlier than the 1963 results. This was a great achievement considering the fact that the number sitting the K.P.E. in 1964 had jumped from 57,000 candidates in 1963 to 103,000 candidates in 1964. When it is realized that more or less the same number of officers were processing twice the volume of work as for 1963, then I believe it will be appreciated why I consider it a great achievement.

[The Assistant Minister for Education]

It was not possible to publish the results of Got Oimbo and Mtenga schools with the rest of the schools in the area due to some technical difficulties which also affected other schools elsewhere. But I want to emphasize the fact that, even in the case of these two schools, the 1964 K.P.E. results were published in time for secondary school selection and two days before the 1963 K.P.E. results date of publication.

Mr. Odoro-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like the Assistant Minister to tell this House whether he is answering the question concerning also Standard VII, a special test which was done in the same year in which the results did not come out?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question here, as the hon. Member put it, was about what caused the delay in publishing the Kenya Preliminary Examination results, and that is what I have answered.

Mr. Odoro-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Standard VII special case examination was not the same Preliminary Examination. I would like the Assistant Minister to answer this question. Last year there were two types of examination, one for Standard VII and it was a special test that was also expected to join Form I, and the result has not come out. Is he answering that question also?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Your question is only about the Kenya Preliminary Examination.

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, if those pupils did the Kenya Preliminary Examination, then the answer is given in my reply.

Mr. Kagga: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that the so-called technical difficulties affected so many schools besides those mentioned in this question, would the Assistant Minister assure the House as to what arrangements the Ministry has made for the students affected to get places at secondary schools?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, it will be realized that some time ago I did tell the House that we encountered a bit of difficulty in this when the marks were to be made for the K.P.E. pupils and, as a result, Mr. Speaker, for the latecomers who had to get their marks in time, we have ordered each secondary school throughout the country to take two more pupils so as to cover those who were late in obtaining their marks.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, is the Assistant Minister aware that the figure he has already told the House of two pupils to be added to each Form I class is so small for there are so many pupils who passed with over 500 marks and who have not got a place in a secondary school. For example, in the Western Region there are 343 students who passed with over 500 marks and out of which only 66 will get a place. Will the Assistant Minister, therefore, agree that it was the Government's fault that all this happened and that it must run double streams of Form I throughout all secondary schools in the areas concerned to remedy the situation?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is right away from this question, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Anyleni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister deny the allegations that it was because of a suspected leakage that the results were delayed? If this is so, whose fault is this, is it the fault of the pupils who are now suffering for it, or is it the fault of the Government?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, I entirely disagree with the allegation the Member has just made.

Question No. 849INDEPENDENCE OF COFFEE CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES

Mr. Godia: asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing what the Minister was doing to assist local coffee co-operative societies to be independent of supervision from Central Government without affecting the proper and efficient running of these societies.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, first of all I would like to inform the House that on the Order Paper this question is supposed to be ordered, and I would like to make it known to the hon. Members that some of these questions which I am receiving were passed before to the Ministry of Commerce and Industry and are not the responsibility of the Ministry of Co-operatives and Marketing to answer quickly.

Mr. Speaker: Sir, I beg to reply. My Ministry is actively encouraging existing co-operatives societies to amalgamate into larger and more viable unions, so as to enable them to employ better qualified and more experienced staff who will be able to manage the societies with the minimum of Central Government's supervision. It is also the policy of my Ministry to encourage the association of all societies into a district union. These unions will then provide centralized accounting services and advisory services, both managerial and technical.

[The Minister for Internal Security and Defence] have, nevertheless, inflicted serious losses upon them. We had about 110 Shifja who surrendered during the period of validity of the amnesty and, additionally, people have surrendered after the amnesty. The forces in the North-Eastern Region of the army, the police, Tribal Police of the Administration, are doing extremely well, and they are being very successful. The Shifja morale is very low and the morale of our troops is very high.

As regards the forest fighters, it is to be regretted that there was a group that opened fire on the police and the police returned the fire. Three died and one person was injured. Also, on the part of the police, two were injured. The fight came to an end and the forest people came out. The Government and, I am sure, the Members, regret the death of those gallant men. By the end of the amnesty about 112 forest fighters came out and are now waiting peacefully at home to be settled.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the Shifja are taking people's lives in the form of instalments, would the Minister tell the House what steps the Government is taking towards final eradication of Shifja activities in this country?

Dr. Mungali: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have said that the Government is doing everything possible. We have sent an army there which is doing extremely well; we have the police there too and also the local Tribal Police. They are all working together in harmony towards the eradication of the menace of the Shifja. At the same time, we look for co-operation from the neighbouring States so we do not have the Shifja supplied with weapons by people from another country. Then I am sure that instead of using our energies fighting the Shifja, we would be able to use the money which is being spent there now for development of schools, hospitals, water supplies and general development of the area.

Mr. Ekitella: Mr. Speaker, Sir, really this is a very serious thing and I do not want anybody to laugh. This is a very serious thing. Many of my Turkana people have been killed—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must ask a question, Mr. Ekitella.

Mr. Ekitella: I would like to know what steps the Government, the Minister for Home Affairs, is taking to get rid of these people so that we do not have Shifja troubling us?

Dr. Mungali: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have said already that the Kenya Army, the Kenya Police and the Tribal Police—together with the co-operation of the local people in the area—are very ready to attack and to destroy these people who are not conforming to the law and order of Kenya.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the Minister's replies, to the effect that there were many people who surrendered and in view of the fact that there were those who did not surrender and who defied the amnesty, what is the Government doing about these people when they do surrender?

Dr. Mungali: Mr. Speaker, the Government is doing the best it can to settle them as peacefully and as fast as possible.

Question No. 905

WEST POKOT INCLUSION IN DEVELOPMENT PLAN

Mr. Lorema asked the Minister for Economic Planning and Development why West Pokot had not been mentioned in the Red Book of the Six-Year Economic Development Plan for Kenya.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. During the preparation of the 1964-1970 Development Plan, detailed planning for individual districts was regarded to be primarily the responsibility of regions, although individual Central Government Ministries had their own plans for districts, and West Pokot was included in these plans. The regions did not have enough time to prepare detailed plans before the publication of the national plan. However, in the revision of the published National Development Plan which is now being undertaken under the new Constitution, individual districts are being considered and steps will be taken, where possible and appropriate, to define their targets for the major sectors of the plan.

Question No. 917

THEFT OF DRUGS BY DRESSERS

Mr. Mbogoh asked the Minister for Health and Housing what action had been taken against dressers caught by a doctor at Embu stealing medicine and using it to treat patients privately for payment.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I did say I had no information with regard to dressers caught at Embu stealing medicine and using it to treat patients privately for payment. A check has been made by the Inspector of . . . (Inaudible.) . . . police and private practitioners, also the Provincial Medical Officer in Eastern Province. No one has had any report of dressers or other staff being caught by a doctor or anyone else stealing medicine. If anyone has any information, they should report it so that appropriate action can be taken by the Ministry.

[The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing]

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, can the Assistant Minister now tell this House he has not even tried to investigate, because in this case it is still in the police books today?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have replied to the question and I have indicated in my reply that there is no information whatsoever that has reached us. We have made adequate investigation but there is no report up to date and therefore the hon. Member cannot expect me to give false information to this House. This is why I went as far as inviting the hon. Member, I, personally speaking, hate this. The hon. Member should get us any further information he may have so that proper action can be taken.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Assistant Minister now agree with me that his reply has only encouraged the stealing of medicine in that area?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Mr. Anyieni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to know what we are doing Mr. Speaker, there is this question that there is an allegation that these people were arrested and the Minister said that they were not arrested. If in the latter case the Member can prove that the Minister is aware of the fact that some people were arrested in connexion with this stolen medicine, what course should the House take in connexion with the reply given by the Assistant Minister?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If a Minister or an Assistant Minister gives a reply on a point of fact in answer to a Question and it has been approved outside the House that his reply is completely wrong, in fact, then if it is an important enough matter, he should be required to correct and acknowledge to the House the fact that he was wrong, and if he is not prepared to do so, I think the Speaker should be informed.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 917: THEFT OF DRUGS AT EMBU

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to raise this matter on an adjournment.

Mr. Gachoga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in connexion with the second question, the Assistant Minister for Health and Housing, replied on behalf of his Ministry and it appears that if the case is now in the hands of the Police Department, it is now the responsibility of the Ministry of Defence and Internal Security, and is not the Minister for Health and Housing also responsible for the action which has been taken by the police?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): As some hon. Members have pointed out, there is such a thing as collective responsibility. All I can say is that if the Minister has misinformed the House, whether deliberately or by mistake, on a matter of importance, and it has been pointed out that the information was not accurate, then he must out of respect for the House, correct it in due course. That is all we are discussing.

Mr. Kagga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the question indicated that these people were caught, was it not the duty of the Minister to investigate instead of putting it on the hon. Member?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It might be his duty but it is no part of the order of this House that he should do so.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 934

ENGLISH MEDIUM FOR TEACHING: KURIA

Mr. Maitori-Jumbo asked the Minister for Education whether he could explain to the House why there was no school in Kuria Constituency teaching in the English medium as was being done elsewhere?

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The demand for provision of English medium (now the new primary approach) classes has completely outstripped the Ministry's resources. These new primary approach classes which have so far been conducted on an experimental basis have become so successful that the parents have begun to demand them all over the country.

[Mr. Maitlo] have returned to their original places where they came from before, and they are still teaching in those schools.

Question No. 853

EVICTON OF SQUATTERS: RIFT VALLEY

Mr. Godla asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement if he could tell the House how many of the illegal squatters who had been evicted from the Rift Valley Province by the new African farmers had now been given fresh settlements and how many had been unfortunate and were still homeless.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. As far as I am aware, no new African farmer in the Rift Valley has evicted the former ex-labourers who are now known as illegal squatters. However, complaints against these people have quite often been presented to the police who, in turn, have handed them over to the courts and, although the courts have quite often issued eviction orders, no action, so far, has been taken against any person who appears to have no alternative home.

It is estimated that there are roughly about 2,060 illegal squatters squatting on farms which have now been taken up by the new large-scale African farmers and the small plot-holders on the settlement schemes. Roughly, 140 of the former ex-labourers of all tribes (but the majority of whom are Kalenjin) have been allocated plots in settlement schemes. If action were taken on the eviction orders which have been issued by the courts, a large number of Kikuyu families would suffer, as many of them have no alternative homes.

During the last year, about 143 illegal squatters were evicted from settlement schemes and from a few farms now owned by large-scale African farmers, but it is highly doubtful that these people went away for good; in fact, some of them have been seen back on the same farms.

I can assure the hon. Member for Hamisi that my Ministry is very much aware of this problem and is at present holding discussions with the various interested parties with a view to seeking a way of providing these people with a living opportunity.

Mr. Godla: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, in which he said no evictions had been carried out by the African farmers against the squatters, does he imply that 100 per cent of the squatters who had been on these farms which have been taken over by Africans are still staying on these farms and that none of these has been evicted?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my reply was very clear and all I said was what I am aware of, but if the hon. Member is aware of any persons who have been evicted, my Ministry would welcome any representation he would like to make.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the Assistant Minister's reply where he stated that, although the Court had made decisions, no action had been taken, and secondly, that they have not been removed because they could not get a place to go—and specifically referring to the Kikuyu—do we understand that the decision of the Court has been flouted because its squatters concerned or involved were Kikuyu?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in my reply, I never at any time suggested that.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the Assistant Minister's replies, is he not aware of the specific case now in his Ministry about people who were evicted from Nalu low-density scheme and who are now being given accommodation by the Ministry of Lands and Settlement?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question referred to people who have been displaced from farms occupied by the new large-scale African farmers. If the hon. Member can assure me that all the people at Nalat are there as a result of eviction from farms occupied by the new African large-scale farmers, then I will agree with him, but I do not think that this is correct.

Mr. ole Tiplis: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the hon. Assistant Minister aware that despite the Resolution of this House to put a stop to this arbitrary eviction of squatters, the Government has done absolutely nothing to stop it? People are being evicted here and there.

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question has nothing to do with day-to-day evictions. This refers to the people so far who have been evicted, and I presume that the numbers I have stated must have been evicted prior to the passing of this Resolution.

Question No. 899

COST OF LAND IN THE KENYA HIGHLANDS

Mr. Lorema asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement if he would tell the House the present cost of land in the Kenya Highlands

[Mr. Lorema] per acre for developed, under-developed and non-developed land?

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There is no fixed price of land anywhere. The value of land depends on many factors, including its situation and potential—factors, which I believe the hon. Member for West Pokot will appreciate. Perhaps, he will also appreciate that it is difficult to differentiate the difference between developed and underdeveloped land or between underdeveloped and non-developed land. These terms are used so locally that the cost of land cannot be uniform throughout the country.

However, working out from purchases of land which have so far been carried out for settlement schemes, the sales of fully developed or partly developed land, over the whole of Kenya, are at an average cost of approximately Sh. 200 per acre. The cost varies widely from about Sh. 40 per acre for developed ranching land in the dry areas to about Sh. 300 for developed and highly productive land in the high rainfall medium altitude areas. Very few sales of non-developed land are taking place at present, and, even if they were, it would not be possible for my Ministry to give the values as these would not be the same for all areas.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply that it is very hard to indicate the value of land per acre, could he tell the House how his Ministry arrives at the total purchase of land in a given place?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, although I do not really understand what that question refers to, as I stated earlier on, there are so many factors to be considered in the valuation of land and these factors are considered and taken into account in accordance with the particular land which is being valued, but no one can say that land costs so much in general terms.

Mr. Mabori-Numbo: Mr. Speaker, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, that undeveloped land has a different valuation, can he tell the House why an African should buy his own land and not undeveloped?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think that the supplementary question has very much to do with the original question, because I have said very few sales of non-developed land have taken place at present. I think that answers the hon. Member's question.

Mr. Choge: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell us what factors he considers before a settler sells his land—I mean when a white settler sells his land—to an African, at say the price of Sh. 400 an acre, when the land has never been developed before?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is very difficult to answer the hon. Member's question, if it does not refer to a specific part of land. As I have said, the general points considered are situations—where the land is situated—and then the potential of land. These are the chief factors considered, and if the hon. Member would like to refer to a specific part of land, then he would see how this would be applied.

Mr. Ngata: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies by the Assistant Minister, could the Assistant Minister assure us that he would consider waiving the price for the soil in Kenya to allow money to be made available to Africans who buy land to develop the land, so that they do not have to buy their own soil?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not prepared to give such an assurance, but I am prepared to give one assurance, that each piece of land will be valued and the price will be fixed in accordance with the established factors.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION No. 899: COST OF LAND IN THE KENYA HIGHLANDS

Mr. Masinde: In view of the very unsatisfactory reply from the Assistant Minister, I would like to raise this matter on an adjournment.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 903

MEASURES AGAINST SHILLA AND FOREST FIGHTERS

Mr. Lorema asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence if he would tell the House if any measures had been taken by the Government against those Shilla and forest fighters who ignored the President's Jamhuri amnesty.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. As regards the Shilla, the security forces have been unremitting in their pursuit of Somali and Moran gangs of bandits who continue to attack peaceful inhabitants of the area, chiefly for the purpose of loot. These gangs have shown themselves ever less ready to encounter our forces who

[The Minister for Internal Security and Defence]

I am not aware, nor are the police that Mrs. Lpanare was pregnant at the time or that she has suffered a miscarriage; if this was the case, as the hon. Member is now suggesting (and neither he nor anyone else appear to have made any previous complaint to any of the competent authorities), it is of course a matter for regret.

Question No. 790PROMOTION TO ASSISTANT GAME WARDEN

Mr. Rurumban asked the Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife if he would tell the House whether the experience of Mr. Peter Loiyanae Ajore, plus the short course he underwent in the United Kingdom on wildlife, warranted his promotion to the post of Assistant Game Warden.

REPLY

The Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife (Mr. Ayodo): Mr. Ajore went on a six months' study tour of the United States National Parks Service with a view to being appointed by the Samburu County Council in their Game Reserve. On his return in December 1963, the council was unable to offer him a job, and he joined my Ministry as a Game Scout in February 1964. The six months' study tour and his one year's service with my Ministry do not qualify Mr. Ajore for promotion to the post of Assistant Game Warden. Before a person can be appointed as an Assistant Game Warden, he must be of Cambridge School Certificate standard and in addition undergo training for not less than one year including a course of instruction at the College of African Wildlife Management.

My Ministry has already arranged for Mr. Ajore to take an intensive course of nine months, beginning in January at the Mweka College of Wildlife Management in Tanzania. If he is successful at the end of his course, he will be considered for a promotion to the post of Assistant Game Warden.

Question No. 791PROMOTION OF POLICE SERGEANT

Mr. Rurumban asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence if he would tell the House why Sergeant Ogus of the police in Maralal was not considered for promotion after he had attended a Sub-Inspector's course twice.

REPLY

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): I am not prepared to discuss questions relating to individual civil servants in this House, as doing so would be contrary to the accepted practice whereby civil servants (and indeed any other persons who cannot defend themselves) are not brought into argument here. What I can do, if the hon. Member so desires, is to explain the general policy governing promotions in the Civil Service. Briefly a civil servant falls or rises by his character and performance and no reference is made to tribal or other factors. To discuss the reasons why a particular officer has not been promoted is to give the officer's falling publicity which is completely unjustified.

Question No. 793ABSENCE OF MEMBER AT CIVIL SECRETARY'S BARAZA

Mr. Odero-Sar asked the Assistant Minister, President's Office if he would tell the House why his presence was not required by the police at the Provincial Commissioner's Baraza at Boro in Alego Location on 10th October 1964, when the Alego chief and assistant chief were being appointed.

REPLY

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyanjwaya): There is no truth whatsoever in the allegation by the hon. Member that his presence was not required by the police at the Provincial Commissioner, Nyanza's Baraza at Boro in Alego on 10th October 1964. The whole truth of this incident is as follows:—

• The Provincial Commissioner, Nyanza, and the District Commissioner, Central Nyanza, went to Ukwala in the hon. Member's constituency, and installed the new Chief of Ugenya there. The hon. Member himself was present at this ceremony.

The party then left for Boro in Alego Location together with the Member of Parliament for the area, the hon. L. O. Rainey, to install the Chief and Assistant Chief of Alego. A large crowd had gathered at the place by the time the party arrived.

As a security precaution, the police cordoned the area and refused to allow any more people to enter the arena. Amongst those kept out was the hon. Member. He refused to disclose his identity, when asked so to do and besides, he was dressed in a manner that could not distinguish him from the other people who were being kept out.

Tuesday, 23rd March 1965

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

*[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]PRAYERS*ADMINISTRATION OF OATH

The Oath of Allegiance was administered to the following Member:—
Bernard Mate.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIRSENATE MESSAGES ON BILLS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have to inform hon. Members that the Senate has agreed to the Supplementary Appropriation Bill, without amendment, on the 9th March 1965, and has also agreed to the Electric Power (Amendment) Bill, without amendment, on the 12th March 1965.

PAPER LAID

The following Paper was laid on the Table:—
The Advocates (Admission) (Amendment) Regulations, 1965.

*(By the Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo)).NOTICES OF MOTIONS

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motions:—

GUIDANCE FOR FOREIGN-AID TEACHERS

THAT in view of the dangers likely to arise as a result of unchecked methods of teaching and lack of knowledge of local conditions by the foreign-aid teachers coming to this country, this House urges the Government to establish a reorientation institute in Nairobi whereby their teaching methods will be sufficiently guided.

GOVERNMENT TO CONTROL ECONOMIC STRUCTURE

THAT in view of the urgent need for the implementation of the African economic socialism in the Kenyan manifesto, this House urges the Government to negotiate and take bigger shares in the country's major companies and businesses, thereby facilitating a direct participation by Government of the people in the formulation, promotion, implementation and control of the economic structure and policies suitable to the aspirations of the majority of the people.

Mr. Wamuthanya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motions:—

LOANS FOR POOR FARMERS

THAT in view of the fact that the Government is granting loans for the purchasing of land in the former Scheduled Areas, this House calls upon the Government to give loans to the poor people who cannot afford to pay the percentage required before a loan is granted, and that such loans be supervised and controlled by a professional officer, and who shall after every harvest deduct a certain amount to repay the loans, leaving the rest to the poor farmers to pay for the labour and other expenses.

REORIENTATION COURSES FOR STUDENTS RETURNING FROM ABROAD

THAT in view of the fact that we have students studying abroad, either in Eastern and Western countries, and on completion of their studies return with various ideologies and cultures which can endanger our Government and the country, this House calls upon the Government to prepare courses of instruction on the Government's policy and the machinery at the Lumumba Institute for the reorientation prior to their taking up employment.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONSQuestion No. 832*AUSTRALIA-TRAINED TEACHERS

Mr. Komora asked the Minister for Education if any use had been made of the two gentlemen who trained for multiclass teaching in Australia in 1963.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The two teachers who returned to teach in their schools are doing useful work. The Ministry of Education is at present considering whether to introduce the system of multiclass teaching in the sparsely populated areas. If it is found possible to do so, then I believe these two gentlemen will be made full use of.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is he implying that teaching is not a useful job?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, I did not imply so.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell us what these two gentlemen are doing for the time being?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the two gentlemen referred to in this question at the moment

[Mr. Odury] ever been promoted by this Government, although there is one who is now in the administration who is now a district officer, this gentleman joined the Kenya Government service in 1958 as a district assistant, was promoted to a district officer and to date is still a district officer. Some young men with these qualifications who joined the services yesterday are now provincial commissioners, are now permanent secretaries, and yet this boy has a better brain than many of the civil servants who have been promoted. I know some of them only have Standard VIII education, and if the Minister wants the names I can give them to him. Some of these people are today district commissioners and yet do not have much education. I demand a statement from the President. For your information, Mr. Speaker, I have written more than five letters to the President regarding the Kenya Government services, he told me that I should write to him and remind him; this I have done and I have not received a reply since I have been in this House, and I have now been here for two years. I am wondering what is going on.

When I finish I want to talk to the Minister and tell him that we want the price of maize to be raised immediately. If he does not raise the price I can assure him that there will be no maize from the Western Region going to the Maize Marketing Board this year.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I must now call upon the Mover to reply.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the information which has been given to this House falls under two categories; those which are informative and for which I thank the hon. Members for letting me know what happens in various areas where they are responsible to the Parliament, and those which will be passed to the respective Ministers for the proper action. I have taken note of each of them and, of course, the Ministers do read the HANSARDS, and I will let them know what really happened during this Adjournment Debate. The second aspect, Mr. Speaker, is an aspect which calls upon the hon. Members to give real constructive criticism and asking them to try and help the Government because they are part and parcel of this Government since they do form the Parliament.

They should try their level best to make constructive criticism so that Government can act on their criticisms. However, if there are some segments—I may say without bad inference—which calculate to attract then they do not help the Government. I have never known any Government which has been run because of threats and I would like to ask the hon. Members to be more co-operative. You can always make your arguments more forceful if you do not include any threats.

On the question of the North-Eastern Region I will say this: Government cannot give preferential treatment to certain groups of people because the Constitution lays down that every citizen is equal to the other, whether you are X-this or X-that. I think it has been said in the Government that if there are special cases which warrant attention the Member responsible to that particular constituency should bring that to the attention of the appropriate Ministry for requisite action. Therefore, to threaten and say that they are going to secede is not good. The Government will take note if a Member raises that if so-and-so is not done then certain action will be taken, because the Government is prepared to take a note of such statements. However, at this moment I am appealing to the Member for North-Eastern Region to make his case to the appropriate Ministry.

I want to move to another very important topic which has been raised by another Member. This deals with the question of land policy. It has been said that the people want to know what is the land policy of the Government. May I assure the Members that this will reach the Government and the Government will in due course consider what is going to be the land policy. I think this is an important point and I will let the other Ministers know about it. It is true that there is this obstruction because many Africans are landless, but, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we must take time to lay our foundations and lay them properly by evolving a system of land policy which will not be subject to another Government coming to say, "This is no good at all." We must evolve this policy according to the wishes of the people of this country and this takes time because we have to take statistics and we have to consider deeply in what way the people will want us to act. I am very grateful to the hon. Member who raised this question.

There is one aspect on which I want to deal now and here I would like to mention that a lot of things have been said about socialism, partyism, nepotism and all sorts of things. I would like to assure this House that the ism which is going to be ours will be one of our own making, and it must suit our environment, the environment of the society and the existing conditions of the society. We are not prepared to borrow an ism

[The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing] from somewhere else. If it is a question of experience, the people of Kenya, Mr. Speaker, will borrow the experience which we think will be suitable and which will be good for the nation-building of this country. However, the question of ism must be our own. This is the point I want to stress. We are not going to borrow from the East or the West. The ism of our own making, that is, must be ours, it must not be a borrowed one. Therefore, any political ideology, Mr. Speaker, should be our own; perhaps this will be Kenyaism and socialism will be within ourselves.

We say a lot of things here. We are people who are responsible to our constituencies. Somebody has indicated about crime, about the Shifita and so on. Members must realize that the world is watching us to see whether there is an increase in crime during the time we have been independent or whether there is a decrease in crime. Our responsibility will depend on the decrease in crime. If we have no crime in this country then let us show everybody that we have no crime at all. The world will see that we have truly attained our independence and we know how to run our country. However, if we, the hon. Members, are going to make speeches which will be calculated to mean that we are conniving in establishing certain kinds of crime, when the crime is committed we shall be responsible and the dignity of this great country will be lowered.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, these are the things which I am asking the hon. Members to take note. There is a tendency to feel that the Cabinet Members are very different from the Members of Parliament. Am I not a Member of Parliament in the same way as you are? We should come together, we should work together in co-operation. If we bring our problems together I am sure we will find a solution to them. I do not think I am any more superior than you, I am not in a higher position than you except that I have a higher position perhaps because of the responsibility that I have to carry in this country. I do not think that we, the Cabinet Members, are superior at all, but we have a responsibility to carry. I ask the Members to come along with us, be with us. There has been a lot of talk behind our backs. You are responsible to your constituency, to the Government, to the Parliament and therefore you must contribute and co-operate with the Government who you elected.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks, I yield the floor to the hon. Members for what they have said, and the Government has made notes of their remarks.

(Question put and agreed to)

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The House is now adjourned until Tuesday, 23rd March at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at thirty minutes past Twelve o'clock.

WRITTEN REPLIES TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 787

REPLACEMENT OF TRIBAL POLICE UNIFORM

Mr. Rurumban asked the Minister for Home Affairs if he would consider replacing the red calico which the tribal policemen wear in Samburu District on their heads with a better hat.

REPLY

The Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Moi): Yes, Sir.

Question No. 788

ARREST OF COUPLE

Mr. Rurumban asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence:—

(a) The grounds that led to the arrest of Mr. and Mrs. Lpararen s/o Lepille by Chief Inspector of Police, Maralal, at Kirumun on 19th September 1964.

(b) Whether the Minister was aware that the arrest of the couple and their being transported on a lorry which was carrying a deceased person caused an abortion to Mrs. Lpararen.

REPLY

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. and Mrs. Lpararen were arrested on 18th September 1964 for the offence of trespass on the Kirumun holding ground in the Maralal police station area on the complaint of the Veterinary Officer-in-Charge. On 19th September 1964 they pleaded guilty to trespass and were fined Sh. 10 each.

They were transported on a police lorry to Maralal police station with five other persons and it is true a body was carried on the same lorry. This body was wrapped in blankets and also covered with an army-type greatcoat. There is only one lorry at Maralal and here, as in many other parts of Kenya, it sometimes happens that bodies have to be carried in a vehicle with passengers. Distances are so great and vehicles so scarce, it cannot be avoided.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, it was right by the hour-glass.

Mr. Nyalike: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have a point to make about my Winam Constituency. This constituency, from which I come, is one of the neglected areas in Kenya. I would not pretend that Winam Constituency has any development. In this constituency we do not have any secondary school at all to cater for intermediate boys, and it is annoying that we were neglected by the Colonial Government due to the fact that it is low lying land and as such it is muddy and not suitable. We have to have some irrigation, particularly in this area, in order to top up economic potentialities of these localities. Several times we have been told that irrigation is essential in order to control planting in this area. It is to my dismay, Sir, that we have been waiting for this irrigation, and nothing so far has been done. While we understand that the Government is doing all it can, there should have been some measure in order to control the stream and river flooding. Today, we are having drought, and it is a long one, but if we are going to have rain, it is obvious that we will have flooding, and it will not be surprising to see Government sending public funds, and visiting these areas. I call upon the Government, Sir, to see that something is done in this area to control the serious flooding.

While irrigation is not coming at the moment, we have people who have their land ready for cultivation of cotton and sugar cane, but as long as the land is dry, we cannot do anything, as a result of which, we are today coming to be a kind of begging community. We do not have anything in the area for our own consumption, and it is shameful that the Government should only give priority to the areas where there has been development already.

As far as our hospital facilities are concerned, Sir, we do not have one in this area to cater for our people, although we are being assisted by Kisumu Hospital, which is a national hospital, and as a result we have a number of patients visiting this hospital who are not properly cared for, and to my surprise, Sir, recently the Lord Mayor of Kisumu died in a ward where he should not have died. Many patients are sleeping on the ground, because the beds are full. We have been told that a hospital is to be built in Kisumu, but for how long are we going to wait? Something should be done now to see that the existing wards be expanded to accommodate people when there is the necessity.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, unless something is done in this constituency of mine, there is going to be a lot of trouble in the country. Recently, a number of farms around the Miwani have been burnt, and the people burnt these farms in order to try and obtain employment. As such, I call upon the Government to do something for them.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry but your time is up.

QUORUM

Mr. Mwarimazi: On a point of order, Sir, do we have a quorum?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have a quorum now.

Mr. E. D. Godana: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support several points raised by the hon. Member for Wajir North.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Mr. Khalif has just emphasized that the Shifita who have just come out of their forest were discriminated, and this is quite true, Mr. Speaker. There are quite a number of these people who have been Shifita, and now today, they are just in Nairobi, but they do not have a place to sleep or to stay or do anything, and they have been going to areas to be engaged in some kind of work, but there is no work for them which is a great shame.

I should like to request the Government to look into this state of affairs, and these people should be given jobs somewhere or in any scheme within Kenya. I would also like to speak on the question of Somalis not in the Kenya Cabinet or as Assistant Ministers. This has been a very disappointing point, Mr. Speaker. In all the country today, all the women and children talk about this, as to why the Somalis were not included in the Kenya Government as Cabinet or Assistant Ministers. This gives a very bad situation to our Government.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would ask this House to put this question very strongly to our President, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, that Somalia and the north country be included in the Kenya Cabinet, and as Assistant Ministers.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to go to another point about European police officers in my constituency.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I must interrupt you, Mr. Godana, because strictly in accordance with the Resolution of the House on this kind of Motion, it is now time to call on the Mover to reply for five minutes. We can go on

(The Speaker) If the House wishes and call on the Mover to reply a little later, if hon. Members do not object to giving us a little longer.

Mr. Oduya: are you objecting?

Mr. Oduya: No, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If no hon. Member objects, we will carry on and I will call on the Mover to reply at 12.25 p.m.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, when you put the question as to whether there were any objections, I thought Mr. Oduya had already objected.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You may continue, Mr. Godana.

Mr. E. D. Godana: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will just speak about European police officers in Marsabit and Mwea/Teberer. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the police officers do not give due respect to the M.P.s of that area. I would like to quote an example of what happened on the 1st December 1964. We had just arrived in Mwea/Teberer with the Assistant Minister, Mr. G. Godana. When we arrived at the airport some police S.P.s with a Chief Inspector of Police, all Europeans, came to the airport to give us a lift in a Land-Rover. The S.P. who was driving, asked the Chief Inspector to sit in the front of the Land-Rover, we had to sit in the back of the Land-Rover. The M.P.s and the respected people of the area had to sit in the dust in the top of the Land-Rover and the people noted this and asked themselves, what type of M.P.s are you when simple people like the Chief Inspector and a pilot can order you about and tell you where to go, what time you should leave? Mr. Speaker, this was a very disappointing incident and our Government should look into this affair. That is why I am supporting the Motion which has been today raised by Mr. Shikuku, because some civil servants—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We cannot go back to a Motion which has been dealt with.

Mr. E. D. Godana: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is why we said, that indeed it is very important that we should raise such a matter and that such a Motion should go through. Mr. Speaker, I would like the Government to make a note of this—I only see one Minister and Assistant Minister, to take this point to Government and report it—so that such incidents will be prevented in the future, and to ensure the Members will be given their respect. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, there are a few points which I want to make very clear to the Minister who is here, Mr. Speaker, we have noted very recently that the security for our Vice-President is not very good. The security escort which was given to him during the Republic celebrations was withdrawn and we want to know why, because in Tanzania the Vice-President, of course, is given permanent security. In Tanzania the Vice-President is given a permanent escort, and at the moment the Vice-President is just treated like any other ordinary Member, without any official escort. We want this noted and the House informed.

Another thing I want to mention to the House, Mr. Speaker, and the Minister should take this into account and present to this Government, is the salaries of the new chiefs. Some of these chiefs were highly paid people getting about Sh. 800, Sh. 900 a month, and some of the new ones are only being paid Sh. 160 a month, and some are paid Sh. 360 a month, which is very shameful because one could find that a subchief who has worked for some years is earning more than the chief. Now, when the subchief learns that he earns more than the chief I do not think that he will give him any regard. That should be noted.

I now come to the actual point which I wanted to put very clearly. I have always complained in this House, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that although the Kenya Government has stated very categorically that the Government of Kenya is for the peoples of Kenya, I do not see (how my people will negotiate with the Government when the Government is deliberately rejecting and refusing even to listen or to publish what I have always told this Government about the recruiting problems. On the question of employment, recently they employed about thirty-six district assistants and no notice was taken, although I remember about five of them did not apply, all with the senior K.P.E. and some of them had been teachers for nearly seven years and they are K.T.I. I now want a clear statement from the Government telling me exactly what I should tell my people at home but I remember when the Prime Minister, who is now the President of Kenya, came down, he assured my people that they would be given jobs in the Government of Kenya, the administration in the Government of Kenya, but to date they have not been particularly, but to date they have not been considered. They give all the big jobs to Kiambu people and this idea of one district being able to dictate over Kenya must be changed.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to inform the Minister to tell the President that it is high time that the Teso people are told and this House is told why, since the promotion has been established up to date, not a single Teso has

[Mr. Mbogoh] the Asian community stand in Kenya today. Asians in Kenya have decided to withdraw absolutely from all social life in Kenya and I think this is the high price—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mbogoh, I have said before that you must not make such generalisations about a certain community on anything. You can say some have, but you are not justified in saying "the whole of the community".

Mr. Mbogoh: I am sorry, Mr. Speaker, I withdraw "the whole of the community" and say some of the Asians in Kenya have decided to do that. I think this is the right time for the Government to decide to bring all the communities in Kenya together and let us see them working together, all the different races of this country. Mr. Speaker, this Government has promised free education in the country. It has promised nearly everything that a human being could get free, but just now we cannot get anything free from this Government. People were told to help themselves and then we would help them. For example, if I had that—

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngel): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member to allege the Government has promised all the things which are free? Is that really in order? The Government did promise certain things—not really promise, but mention—that they would do for the country.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid one sometimes cannot help over-statements of things, Mr. Ngel. The House knows really what promises Government has made and what they have not.

Mr. Mbogoh: However, Mr. Speaker, I have said that the Government promised that it would help those who help themselves, so the point or order, I think, is not necessary.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He is quite entitled to raise a point of order.

Mr. Mbogoh: So, Mr. Speaker, I say that in Embu we have built four secondary schools with our own hands and without any Government help. When we went to look for help from the Government because one of them had been taken over by the Government and, we thought that they could not take one of these over, we found that in some districts Government had taken over seven schools and in some other places they had taken ten. You will find that we Embu people are left to cater for ourselves. I think policy of the Government, developing some places and ignoring other should be forgotten right away and put in line with everything else.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Government discharged some chiefs on the grounds that they were out, but even today I find that there are very old chiefs who have not been discharged because they have colonial mentality and they are favoured by people in the offices. After all that the Government decided to leave them there.

So, Mr. Speaker, I support the adjournment.

Mr. Kase: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like first of all to say that we, Members from the Coast, were disappointed when the Vice-President visited Mombasa. We noticed that when some Ministers go there, they receive a very good reception, but when the Vice-President went there, the reception was very poor. We would like to know what happened; either the Vice-President gave very short notice, which I would object to, or the person in charge in Mombasa deliberately decided not to publicize the fact that the Vice-President was going. I say this because I went there a day earlier and I saw a Land-Rover of the Information Department going round and saying, "Well, tomorrow the Vice-President is coming. You can either come or not." I think this is wrong.

Mr. Speaker, I cannot remember the number of that Land-Rover, but if I go there, I can find out the number and hand it over, so that they can find the officer who was saying this. Now, this is very bad, the Vice-President of Kenya visiting Mombasa for the first time, to say, "You can either come or not come." Some people said, who were leaving, "We can still rest, perhaps he is not coming for something important." Now this is a very serious thing. We noticed, too, that once a certain Minister goes to Mombasa, the Mayor of Mombasa asks the shopkeepers to close their shops down in respect and attend the meeting. What happened when the Vice-President went? The Mayor said, "Well, I am not responsible for the closing of shops." How is it that he is not coming for something important? How is it not responsible to other Ministers to ask these shopkeepers to close down and yet he is not responsible to the Vice-President? We would like the Government to note this and go into this matter. We are greatly disappointed and we think something was cooking somewhere; that this thing was not handled properly. It was only after the Members had attacked the group, that they, people, turned up to see the Vice-President off. Those who accompanied the Vice-President can bear out, that when the Vice-President arrived at the station there were about fifty-five people. After the Members had quarrelled in the stadium, there

[Mr. Kase] were then a whole chain of people from the Oceanic Hotel to the stadium.

I think the Government should note this; they must trust the Members, because if they had told the Members about the Vice-President's visit this thing would not have happened. But because they trusted a few individuals this was what happened. The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing should inform his other Ministers that it is a great danger to rely on these gentlemen in this field. We, people from Mombasa, were greatly disappointed.

I will leave that point now. Another thing, Mr. Speaker, is something which is very small but very important. It is known that the chiefs play a very good part in this country, but what happens when a location remains for one year without a chief? What difficulties are there in appointing a chief? In my district, we have four locations without chiefs: from April 1964 up to today, they have not had one. I think the Government should decide to hurry things up and appoint someone, whether he is their favourite or whether he is somebody else's favourite, or anybody, but let us have someone whom we can look upon. They should not leave the location alone like that. What happens in these areas? I have known a location where people decided to appoint their own chief. They said, "This is our chief." Every month they decide to contribute a few shillings and give them to him. This is encouraging people to become corrupt. In this location, these people say, "This is our chief." They have caused the people to become confused. The Minister should inform the Ministry concerned so that we can have this thing squared up.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, the Minister for Information is not here but somebody will tell him—we are surprised that these information officers stay in Mombasa and Mombasa alone. They are supposed to be Coast Province Information Officers, but not for Mombasa. They should therefore make an effort to go to other places and see the progress which is happening in those places.

Mr. Gleboya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am disappointed to see that we do not have an adequate number of Ministers, only one, so they cannot hear what we say. However, they will have to look at the HANSARD to see what we have said.

I will start with the Voice of Kenya. The Voice of Kenya is the voice of Ministers and I would suggest to the Ministry concerned that they change the title Voice of Kenya to Voice of Ministers, V.O.M.

The reason for this is that since we came to nationalize this industry, it was very good, and we were doing it to bring it into the hands of the nation so that it could be used without any discrimination. Whether this is a question of the Government clearing the statements by Members, one can never tell. The position today is that if you have a public meeting to tell your own people to do this and that, or that the Government wants this and that to be done, it would never come onto the radio. You always hear the voice of the Minister. This is terrible. I listened to the radio recently, and I heard the Vice-President was doing this and that in Embu, but the Member who invited him to that area was never mentioned at all. Did he really go to a place where there were no Members? He ought to have been mentioned on the Voice of Kenya. The same thing happens with the newspapers. There is a lot of discrimination. They have their own representation. This kind of thing will stifle the freedom of the Press. We shall just have to say that there is to be no more freedom of the Press, because it is only freedom of a few, and not the others.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, let me take another issue. There is corruption going on somewhere somehow, in Mwea-Tabere; corruption in a scheme of the Kenya Government. The employment has become a kind of system whereby the man on top, the man with responsibility, is not just Africanizing, but patronizing. It becomes the property of the people. All these people come from Kisumu, or the majority of them do, and they cannot be employed as staff assistants.

Mr. Gatiguta: On a point of order, this question has been repeated so much in this House, so could the Member now speaking tell us how many officers in Mwea-Tabere are from Klambo?

Mr. Gleboya: I think I will give the hon. Member the information next time we come to the Parliament.

So far, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are not given the chance to help in the scheme. Morally that is wrong. Politically, it could be extended. They must come from the country, because the people who are controlling the machinery come from a particular area.

Mr. Nyallick: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have a few points to make, while supporting the adjournment of the House.

Mr. Speaker, I come from Winam Constituency, which is part of Central Nyanza, and this constituency—

Mr. Gleboya: On a point of order, I wonder whether I am right in inquiring whether I had my full five minutes?

[Mr. Mallada] something in this connexion as soon as possible in order to help these people to be able to grow more and more cotton. I know the Ministry of Agriculture is doing as much as it can but there is still plenty that can be done. If I turn to Makueni, Nzawi and Kikumbulu locations, where this cotton crop can grow easily, I would like to ask the Government to devise a method whereby the growers of cotton there can be in a position to be granted bigger loans than just £120, the sum which has been stipulated. This can easily be done by the fact that if land titles were issued to these people then the loans that the farmers could receive from Government would be secured on the land titles and could be much bigger for development purposes. For instance, Makueni has no land adjudication problems at all. I remember about six months ago I asked a question in this House regarding the land titles to be issued to Makueni settlers. I was told that by the beginning of this year land titles would be forthcoming, but so far nothing has been done. People are quite ready to receive these land titles, and to use them for economic purposes.

I would like to end my speech by supporting the Member for Nairobi East, the hon. Mr. Kali, in suggesting that Kamba dances should be encouraged and, if possible, introduced in schools. I would go as far, Mr. Speaker, as to say that not only Kamba dances but all African indigenous dances should be incorporated in the curriculum of the primary schools and, if necessary, in the secondary schools.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid your time is up, Mr. Mallada.

Mr. Mallada: I support the Motion.

Mr. Khalifa Mr. Speaker, I would like to use this time to register some complaints. The first one is about those people who surrendered from the Shifia. These people are being discriminated against and being neglected and ignored completely. This attitude, Sir, is a very discouraging one and might account unfortunately for the Shifia surrenders going back to the forest and starting their malicious activities again. Mr. Speaker, the Government has spent a lot of money to try and persuade all the Shifia to surrender. Now that they have surrendered they are expected to lead a normal life. How can they lead a normal life when they are denied jobs, when they are discriminated against? This sort of affairs in the North-Eastern Region can very easily develop into what we saw in Meru. The Government should, besides asking these people to surrender, make some initiative to help these people resettle themselves and lead normal lives. If the present attitude of the Government of neglecting these people, ignoring them and discriminating against them continues, then there is every possibility of these people reverting to the forest and coming back with force to smash the security of the North-Eastern Province.

Having said that I would like to touch on the question of the Somalis in this country. It is very unfortunate that after we have been asked to participate in the affairs of this country and to give up our secession demands, we only find ourselves discriminated against by other tribes. The Somalis have been denied participation in Government, and in all things in Kenya. This has been done, Sir, very cunningly and the Government intends to make us believe that there is nothing wrong. Sir, there is everything wrong and I would like to submit that the Somalis cannot continue to accept an attitude of being denied participation in their own Government. During the colonial times when we demanded secession, leading politicians like the hon. Mzee Jomo Kenyatta stated the Somalis that they would benefit by staying in Kenya rather than seceding to Somalia. I do not see how this has materialized at all because all I can see now is only one secondary school being built at Wajir. There is no other project which has been started since independence in the North-Eastern Province. If this is what the Government means by benefiting from Kenya then I would have thought, Mr. Speaker, that we were right in the first place to demand that the Government does not review the secession. If the Government does not review the position I submit, Mr. Speaker, that the Somalis in Kenya will review their position and see whether it is in their best interest not to meet their demands for secession.

Mr. Loreman: Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to point out a few things regarding my constituency.

Now, the most current issue in my constituency is in connexion with the issue of the Karungu Pokot. Though I have given notice of Motion of this nature there are things which are urgent. Now, the Kara-Pokot who are living in Uganda are in serious danger, especially at this time when Uganda is independent. Now, I know that if I leave Nairobi there will be so many people who will be waiting for me in Kapenguria because Kapenguria seems to be the place where people will be waiting for me in Kapenguria because there who are called the Pokot but when it became independent those who were in the majority, called Kara-Majong, threatened them.

They have told them, Mr. Speaker, that they must move to Kenya where they belong. This [Mr. Loreman] place which was formerly Kara-Suk and now is Kara-Pokot is a piece of land which is Kenyan and it is understood to be that, geographically and historically. When these people insist that they must come to Kenya, they do not get satisfactory answers and we have now entered to press the Government to transfer these people to Kenya immediately. When administrators from Uganda go there and the Kara-Pokot want to air their views on the threats of security, they are told they belong to Kenya and they are not entitled to have any of the social services. Similarly, when people from Kenya go there, the Kenya administrators in the same manner tell them they belong to Uganda, so they do not know where they stand. There have been so many killings, Mr. Speaker, even during the last few months there were many children killed on their way to school. The elders there found that it was not a good thing for these children to go to school when they have enemies surrounding them.

I would like to urge the Government, Mr. Speaker, to enter into the quickest possible negotiations with the Uganda Government and see what they can do for the immediate transfer of these people. Another thing is, regarding the school K.A.P.E. candidates, those who passed, I am also affected by this thing, Mr. Speaker, and I would like to tell the Government that the results of the K.A.P.E. in some cases, although they have been encouraging, have been futile because there is a discouraging figure for those entering secondary schools. There were many boys who passed but they did not get places there. It is very discouraging, Mr. Speaker, when a boy or a girl who has reached Standard VIII and has worked very hard does not get into secondary school. In my constituency we are still short of teachers. Without education no one can do anything. These boys passed but they did not get anywhere. You will find we have a small high school. Throughout the whole of my constituency only two boys were taken and all the other boys came from various districts of Kenya.

It is true that if you go to a school, a large-sized school you will find that the majority of the students are Kikuyu. If you go to Maseno, you will find that the majority of boys there are Luo; if you go to Kisii high school, the majority of the boys there are Kisii. I do not know why the Pokot cannot be given a chance to get into the schools in the districts. They are entitled to; but they are still being held back.

Mr. Speaker, also those who unfortunately have not gone to school or qualified for the secondary schools, are just left alone. The Government does not have the proper arrangements to see that those boys who passed are taken for training, or those who did not pass are put in a scheme or anything of that nature. They just leave them roaming from one place to another. This is very unfair, they are the citizens of Kenya. The Government should have a machinery whereby these boys can be put in secondary schools and not left as they are.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, on this Motion of Adjournment, I would like to mention scholarships. At one time in our constituencies we heard that there were some students who were leaving for other countries. Now we would like the Government to see that these boys do not leave when we are not there. Also the Ministers and the Government should look at this question—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid your time is up, Mr. Loreman, the red light is on.

Mr. Mbogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, though there is so little time, I would like to, first of all, express my dissatisfaction with the way the land policy of Kenya is being carried out. In Kenya today you find that some people are buying up all the big firms and making them commercial firms while we are complaining here all the time that there are people who are nearly killing us at home because they cannot have even an inch of land to work on, to feed from or do anything. Mr. Speaker, I think this land policy of Kenya should be revised as soon as possible.

Another point which I would like to bring to the notice of the Government is the so-called socialism in Kenya today. To start with, I should preach African socialism but this has failed disgracefully in Kenya today because African socialism has not been defined as yet; as to whether it is Kikuyu socialism, Luo socialism or Kamba socialism which we should follow. Everybody stands up and says, "This is socialism. I am following." Some people go to the West and say, "This is socialism." Some people go to the East and say, "This is socialism." This is the right time for the Government of Kenya to define what socialism means. This Government has been talking about positive neutrality and all sorts of slogans which are used in the world to cheat people about socialism. This Government should stop taking loans with chains attached, while they say they are loans without chains attached, we can see the chains. We can see everything. In that case, you find that this Government is chained to certain countries and they cannot unchain themselves for a long time.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, which I would like to bring to the notice of the Government is [Mr. Ngala-Abok] that the people who have been brought here to organize self-help schemes or to teach are still speaking a political language in the class-rooms, and the students will definitely grow more politically-minded.

Therefore the Ministry of Education must know that if anybody has come here to help us, he should simply do his job and no more. At the same time, what is important is to stick to the syllabus and not say that they will teach them in the American way of life. This is very, very important, Mr. Speaker. We would like all these teachers to be brought back to a certain institution where they will be asked to follow a definite line of teaching so that our people can succeed in passing the examinations which is the only qualification for anybody to enter a competitive life.

Sir, I would not like to go very deeply into this, but I would like these gentlemen not to speak politics in the class-rooms, and also not to decide on the books, because we still follow the British pattern of education.

An. hon. Member: It is not the best.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Whether it is the best or not, this is what is in the country today. These books must be followed; these teachers must give lessons and notes. They say they are not there to give notes, they only give lectures and these students do not bother to attend them. The syllabus lays it down that the teachers are advised to give notes and the teachers do not give notes, they talk a lot of politics and the American policy, which, because they are a rich country, in certain places is questionable. So I would like the Government to note this.

Just before I end—I know my time is nearly up—I would like to remind the Government of one thing. In 1963 it was in the Estimates that Homa Bay Hospital was going to be built, between that year and 1964. Again, last year—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, Mr. Ngala-Abok! You have had your allotted time.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, previously in this House I brought a case concerning stock thefts in Ugenya Constituency. This is now becoming too much because nearly every night people are losing their cattle and we have been reporting this to the police station at Ukwala but nothing has happened. People are complaining now because they are paying taxes for their services to be given; they expect the policemen to help them during the night when they are asleep, but today nearly everybody is a watchman for his own home. This is very bad indeed, Sir, because people are now—recently, when I was at home they came and told me that they are not going to pay even their taxes because they are not secure, their property is not secure. This is very wrong and I call upon the Government to see to it very quickly because people are worried. We want to have police posts in different places because it is claimed that perhaps some of the thieves come from the Western Region. We have been trying to find out if these people could be found out in the constituency; very many people say they are from the Western Region. We want this to be looked into by the Government.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the constituency the people have accepted land consolidation and they are doing their work, but the trouble is that after they have selected the committee for carrying out land consolidation the African court there goes and interferes with the work that has been done because there are a few individuals who perhaps do not want to consolidate their land; and they go and fight this in the court. Then the work of land consolidation is retarded by this.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like the Ministry concerned to look into this because the people are now wondering what they can do. We tell them "Consolidate your land," and after they have done this then the African courts go and interfere in what has been done.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Muhoroni Scheme was supposed to be for the poor man but when the settlement scheme is ready, the people are asked to pay Sh. 1,000; and people are now wondering why or how they can get this money because Sh. 1,000 is a lot of money which can only be paid by a man who is rich or who has plenty of money. This is one of the reasons why sometimes you hear that people are not going to the land; it is because they do not have the necessary money. Some have applied, and after they have been told they have to bring this money, they fail to go to join the settlement scheme.

There is also one bad thing, Mr. Speaker, which is that after one has applied he does not get a reply, even if the land has been set aside for him, these people who are perhaps working in Nairobi or different towns. There should be a clerk or somebody responsible for telling them whether they have been successful or not. This should be borne in mind and I think the Minister responsible should tell us how these people can be able to know whether they have been given land or not.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, previously the people have been promised by the Government that they would be given tractors for cultivating their land for cotton planting. After they were told, they set

[Mr. Odero-Sar] their land side and they have been waiting and waiting but they have not seen the tractors in their area yet. So during this year in my constituency the cotton planting will come very late because they were supposed to be planting their cotton seed in February, early February. But the Government has not sent any tractors there, even now. We would like to know about that.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, finally, here in Nairobi particularly, those people who are looking for jobs here are complaining very much because the jobs which are being provided are being provided according to tribe. If a person is a member of the Kikuyu tribe he will not let a man from Nyanza go to any other area to get employment where he is working. This is something which is taking place and this should be borne in mind and we could be told why this is taking place.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will be very glad. There is something with the system of planning of the Government and that system is the lack of policy and direction. Mr. Speaker, a few days ago a Member of this House asked for the policy of land settlement, the agricultural policy, and foreign policy. But, Sir, in all fields, in all Ministries, there are no directions, no policy to be followed, the policy which we preach to our people at meetings, the policy we should know as Members of Parliament.

Mr. Speaker, the time is short and I would like to explain something to the Members and the Select Committee with regard to yesterday's issue, which deal with the Settlement Bill. The Minister who spoke yesterday spoke of the people who failed to repay their loans, but he did not—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Makone, I am sure that hon. Members will understand that despite all the freedom that there is in a debate on an adjournment, you cannot actually refer back to another debate we have just had, still less a debate which has had to be adjourned to another day. We cannot deal with that Amendment Bill today.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, I was only quoting that Bill to air the views of my settlement area.

Sir, this Ministry should look into the activities of the settlement officers in this area. As some Members have said, they use the Government vehicles for their own private use at all times.

Not only that. When they are supposed to go round and advise the settlers they only sit in the offices and wait for the settlers to come and complain about their loans and the repayment of the loans.

There is one big issue now in this scheme. You find that if an African buys a big farm of about 2,000 acres he is asked to repay their loan within 30 years. During the days of the Colonial Government the farmer was allowed to repay his loan within 99 years. Why should we be asked to repay the loan in 30 years? What happens is that we ask them to repay in such big amounts that they cannot afford to do so. Even if a European was allowed to farm 2,000 acres and had been asked to repay the loan within 30 years he would find himself unable to do so. So, if these farmers who were there before our African farmers started farming, if they could farm very well but could not raise the money to repay the loans how can we ask our people to repay the loans in 30 years? Mr. Speaker, Sir, I maintain that in the long run such settlement schemes will fail.

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to draw the attention of the Government to one aspect of land purchases in this country, especially the feelings that are going round the countryside with regard to land being purchased by Asians. It has been said several times that Asians are buying land and because they are in a position to buy land they are doing so from what would seem to be for speculative purposes. We know that the Africans in this country have been suffering from lack of land and also have not had the opportunity to make as much money as the Asians had. The Asians are controllers of the economy as far as the urban parts of the country are concerned. Sir, if this is allowed to continue, if the Asians are allowed to continue to buy land in what used to be the European areas, then, Mr. Speaker, a time will come when the African has the money and the power to buy land that he will not be able to do so except to kneel to an Asian who is a man who will not let anything go at a reasonable or cheap price. So the African will still continue to suffer from lack of land. Although he has money to buy land he cannot do so because the land has passed on to the Asians. I suggest this should be looked into and, as far as possible, stopped immediately.

Another thing I would like to draw the attention of the Government to is that in Ukambani we have the unfortunate situation which always comes up, especially at this present moment, due to droughts and lack of rain, and this is famine which affects the country badly at the moment. There is a crop which can now be planted in the Ukambani so that it will bring money to the Kamba in order to enable them to earn a livelihood. This is cotton. Most of the low land in Machakos and Kitui Districts can grow good cotton and I would like the Government to do

[Mr. Anylen]

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to make another point. Recently there was a bombing, the Congo was using American bombs, American pilots to bomb Uganda. Only just yesterday I saw Mr. Tshombe here. I was moving to my house and the policeman stopped my car on the way. The policeman even stopped my Minister who is now sitting here, he merely let Mr. Tshombe pass. Why should he be allowed to come to our country? We would like to know why he was allowed to come to this country. We would ask our Government to nominate any other person to come here, but not Tshombe, because he is a murderer.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, no. You cannot air your views about the internal affairs of the Congo; you have no right to speak in that way, because we are not at war with the Congo and you must keep out of it. I am quite sure you realize that it will not help those people who are trying to settle these matters if you say this kind of thing.

Mr. Anylen: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

I go to another point and the point is that our Government has always said that it is neutral; in fact, I should say that our Government is not neutral. Why do I say this? Our Government has recognized West Germany and they have refused to recognize East Germany. Our Government has chosen to recognize Southern Korea, but has refused to recognize Northern Korea. We demand that our Government should be able to take the steps which the United Arab Republic and Tanzania have taken to recognize East Germany and also West Germany.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order! Your time is up.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have one or two points to touch on in this short time.

One is about the results of the K.P.E. in Butere. Mr. Speaker, and if it has happened elsewhere, the results are being so bad and selection has been so awkward that the Butere people are completely dissatisfied with the whole system. Mr. Speaker, I got in touch with the Minister for Education and tried to find out, and, as a matter of fact, I am seeing him again, what happened. I was told, Sir, that what happened was that they had a machine which refused to take any more work and the result was a delay, after which the sorting out was done and the results went to the various provinces on time, on which the headmistresses and the headmasters made a selection for the Form I entries. The other result, which came later, as a matter of fact, Mr. Speaker, I am told again, after the machine had refused to work—they managed to handle it somehow or other and got out something—they put in the Post Office and again, in the Post Office there was a delay. Now, as a result these results reached the Western Province, or some schools there, late, after the selection had been done. The result, Mr. Speaker, is that those results which came late—and this affected Butere very much—were so good, so high, where the girls passed with A+, A+, A+, and now these girls have been left out because the selection has been done and they cannot get into any schools. Mr. Speaker, it was no fault of the students or the pupils in Butere, it was no fault of the Minister of Education—I do not blame them because a machine can go wrong, even cars go wrong sometimes—but now we must find a solution, and the solution which I have proposed to the Ministry is that, since that has happened, we should have third or second streams in the Butere Girls High School, and in Muhlia, which is a boys secondary school, and also one stream at Butere Secondary School so that we could accommodate what, through no fault of their own, have been left out. The problem of money was posed, Mr. Speaker, they said that if they had the money they would look into it. Now, what I hate, and I entirely object to, is the excuse of money. If it is a question of money, then the Government must tell us whose fault it is that this situation arose, but as it is not the fault of the children, then we must now consider getting these pupils to schools. If that is not possible, Mr. Speaker, and I want to make it very clear, then we must go by merit. If a girl in Butere had 600 marks and the one who was admitted in the first lot had 400, then one with 400 must be removed from the Butere Girls-High School and my girl should be in that school with 600 marks. This would be on a fair basis of merit, which would be quite justified—I have very bright, beautiful girls who have grey matter upstairs, very good too; I also have boys, Mr. Speaker, very smart boys, and also smart upstairs who also passed from the lower school. I would also suggest at the same time that if we cannot have a double stream at Muhlia Secondary School or Butere Secondary School, then those boys who were admitted will have to give way to those with higher marks on a merit or qualification basis, which I think is very fair and that, of course, will cost the Government money. I can fix the question of transport to get all the boys and girls who had come to Butere Secondary School back to their own homes.

[Mr. Shikuku]

Mr. Speaker, before I go further, I have a voice from the women, and also from the men from Butere. They suggest that if the worst came to the worst, in order to express their feelings, they—particularly the women—would organize themselves to go to the Butere Girls High School and cook in the class-rooms. This is very unfortunate, Mr. Speaker, to cook in the class-rooms and their daughters should be admitted which means that if nothing is done, they must have their freedom to express their disgust at the Government's organization. Even further, Sir, you would find in the list of the K.P.E. results that the names of some women, who never even sat for the examination, appear; this shows the inefficiency of the whole Ministry of Education.

Mr. Ngala-Ahok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that—

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that some of the Members might not have spoken this morning, would it be in order to give some of the Members who have not spoken a chance today?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry, Mr. Makone, I did not quite catch your point of order.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that some of the Members have not spoken, would it not be in order to give a chance to those who have not spoken to speak now since it is the close of the Parliament today?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is quite in order for me to do so, Mr. Makone. It is entirely within the discretion of the Speaker as to who he calls on. He bears a point such as yours in mind, but he does not take direction from Members.

Mr. Ngala-Ahok: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

In speaking on this Motion on Adjournment, I would like to draw the attention of the Government to certain things that have gone on since the Government was formed and since independence, and which the Government does not seem to take into account.

First of all, I would like to start with the subject of teachers, and particularly the American teachers who are now helping us when we are very much short of teachers in our secondary schools. What has come to my notice, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that the Government does not realize that these people qualified in American universities, a fact which is quite different from the syllabus or the books that are written and prepared for the attention and for the study of the students at secondary school level. The authors of these books have quite different ideas; they studied their ideas in a different way, and the American teachers who are supposed to teach in these schools were taught by a different system.

This must be well known to our Government. Before they go to these secondary schools they have got to know exactly what the syllabus is and what they are going to teach. Now what is happening all over the country—and I think this is known by the Minister for Education, because they cry continually that they have no teachers, they have only sick teachers—is that the teachers they do have who are healthy go on teaching quite differently, and the results of the examinations, like the last Cambridge School Certification Examination, become so poor. How can you help it? It is better to have somebody going without education than trying to put some education into somebody which will make that person unable to get on well. It is better to discipline a person who has no education and who will submit and say, "I don't know something," rather than bringing somebody up who does not know anything, who is trying to make himself important and yet he has never learned anything at all from school.

Now what is happening in our secondary schools is just this. I have a case at Homa Bay secondary school where the students have gone on strike just because, first of all, they allege that they are not taught according to the syllabus and because the American teachers there tell them they came to acquaint themselves with the African way of life, not to teach. At the same time, they say they have come to teach for life and not for examinations. At the same time, they allege that the books were written by unintelligent people who were not qualified as well as themselves. At the same time they try to select certain subjects which they should teach and not those ones which are laid down in the syllabus.

I am telling the Government this because the students would not say all these things if the teachers did not say them. It is obviously true that when you get a person qualified at an Indian university, coming to teach, say, in Kenya here where we have been following the British books, if he does not know how to give these lectures, there must be something. At the same time, Mr. Speaker, what I have just said amounts to politics, and these students in secondary schools read their books, they read newspapers, they listen to the radio, and they are learned in politics generally like people in Britain. If you find a person from a country like America, for example, whose influence now is very favourable to some of the African countries—the bombing in Uganda is one example, and the Congo situation—then you find

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): I am pleased to hear the information, Sir, dealing with Government machinery is a slow process, it is true, but it has to be slow to make everything perfect; as the Minister for Information says "slow but sure" and it is the policy of this Government to go slow but have perfection after all.

Sir, there is another point I was going on to mention, and that is an example which has occurred in my Ministry. There is an ex-settler whose experience we have valued and we wanted him to teach new African farmers. It has been reported by an hon. Member of this House that when he approached this officer he was told he was not prepared to see this particular Member unless he was conveying a deportation order to him. Now, these are the kind of things that when they are reported to our Government, we are prepared to deal with, we are prepared and our Government is dealing with such cases. Mr. Deputy Speaker, so it is the duty of hon. Members, instead of coming and saying these things in this Parliament, to approach the Ministries concerned and point these mistakes out so that the officers who are doing this kind of thing is dealt with. We are not prepared to frustrate our people who are just going into the farming industry. I am sorry, Sir, that I seem to speak so much on the subject of farming but it is inevitable since this is my business as I am concerned with that Ministry.

Another thing, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I wanted to call upon the hon. Member to help us with it, we think all hon. Members should know the all the civil servants, leave alone the chiefs, in their respective constituencies. I was surprised one day, Mr. Deputy Speaker, when I went to a constituency as an Assistant Minister and found that the hon. Member of this House for that constituency did not know his district agricultural officer. He had a lot of complaints which he was conveying right up to Nairobi whilst he did not know that his district officer, to whom he was to go, knows all about local matters. I think it is certainly fair to say that all hon. Members should know their local officers who can solve their local problems and answer their local questions in those areas, so I think I will ask all hon. Members—I see the hon. Member for Gichugu is very eager to speak, I hope he is going to tell me that he knows all his officers in Kirinyaga District. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this is a very important issue here as it involves all the Members. If hon. Members know their local officers and provincial officers all the questions that are directed or most of them, could be answered locally. That way, information could be obtained and only the information that was unobtainable locally would be obtained here in Nairobi.

So I would ask hon. Members to co-operate by calling on local officers or local officers calling upon them if those are the words of the Motion which has just gone through, call upon them and show the difficulties that they have in their respective constituencies.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Kall: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think politics alone cannot build a nation, and therefore I want to speak on something different. My subject is games and sports.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, any big nation in the world takes an interest in sports. Take for example Russia and America, wherever you hear any news or read about the Olympic Games you find that America has won so many medals or Russians having won so many medals. It is simply that the Government of these two countries take an interest in sports. Here we have the potentialities for, say, footballers, runners and everything, but you find our Government does not even bother, and in fact even the Ministry concerned, and I can see one of the hon. Ministers, you can never see them watching a game of football.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odero-Jowi): Would the hon. Member give way?

Mr. Kall: I cannot give way. My Point here is that it is time that Members supported the Football Association of Kenya so that our people can be encouraged.

Also another important point is that we have some African dances, like the Kambas and Tharaka. I am inclined to say that all the county councils in Kenya should be instructed by the Government to order that all schools should teach African dances. If that is so we shall be proud of our own customs. Of course I know that there are some customs which are bad, but we have some customs which unless we are careful we are going to lose. We were told in the past that dances were evil, and that we should only dance European dances and forget our own dances. Who here can now tell us that everybody in this country is not interested in Kamba dances? I am only appealing to the two county councils in Ukambani to instruct that all the children in school to be taught Kamba dances.

An hon. Member: All over Kenya.

Mr. Kall: Yes, thank you, all over Kenya. If the country could agree that these dances are very important then why not order the county councils to order that all the children in Kenya, could be taught the Kamba dances?

Mr. Mwanuzi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, could I ask the question that when this Motion for the adjournment is moved by the Ministers or the Assistant Ministers should be present. We speak on matters in our constituencies, we do not speak about these matters because we ourselves are back-benchers. We tell either the Ministers or the Assistant Ministers themselves.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have just two Assistant Ministers and one Minister who do not take any notes at all, about what the Members are talking about, as a result of which, Mr. Speaker, I move that this Motion on the adjournment is suspended.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We are in fact moving the adjournment, but we cannot have a suspension of the adjournment but this is in fact a Motion for adjournment. I see your point about no Ministers being present, but I think we must presume that the other Ministers will read HANSARD. If they do not, then you can probably ensure that they do get their copies of speeches made. Otherwise bring it to their notice. I do not think this arises at the moment. I think that they will get details.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thought that I was going to have a little bit more time, because—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Had you started?

Mr. Anyieni: No, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You can have ten minutes.

Sir, Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very short time for anybody to say anything, but I will try. There has been a Motion here which has been withdrawn, demanding a Governmental explanation of the Kisumu meeting. Now the hon. Member who moved this Motion was under the impression that if we brought that Motion to Parliament the majority of Members of this House could disapprove the speeches which were made at Kisumu. Later on when he moved the Motion and he saw a lot of Members opposing him then he became scared and withdrew the Motion. We do not want these things to continue again. I stand here to fully support the Member who spoke at Kisumu, and those Members who spoke at Kisumu spoke the truth, the true policy of the party. But Mr. Speaker, Sir, what has been difficult is that Government has been unable to verify some of those promises, and it is not the fault of the people who were speaking at Kisumu that the Government has not been able to fulfill the promises which they gave to the people in the country. We would like to say here again that those people who are trying to accumulate a lot of wealth and are going around the country shouting out "communism", "communism", must know that we are not interested in it as yet which will be for the interests of the majority of the people of this country. If that is communism let it up. If that is communism and socialism let it come, but we want something which will be for the interests of the majority of people in this country. However, some people, Sir, are trying to hide themselves. After they have been elected by the masses, they are trying to use their positions to enrich themselves. They have houses, big plots of land, they have all these things and now they do not want to mind about the people. So we say, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that who ever was trying to bring this matter at Kisumu should know that our people have not realized what "Uhuru" means, as many of them have showed to me because they are the lackeys of something.

I would like to come back to another point, Mr. Speaker, Sir. The point is that we now and again demand nationalization of the main means of production in this country. These means of production are in the hands of those who came here to exploit our country in the old days, but it seems as if now what has happened is that some of these people have become excited just because some Africans a few of our leaders have become directors. We also hear that some of their wives are to become directors and as a result we have also in this House some Members of Parliament who will defend these means of production should continue to belong to the people that it belonged to before.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

Why? It is because they themselves have also joined. We say that it is not right for the masses to maintain that the main means of production should be in Government hands so Government can get the money to be able to supply the services which they promised to the people at the time of election. This means here that we are not interested in your small shamba or your small shop, what we are interested in is the main means of production.

[Mr. Gatuguta] debate it or not. Could you rule whether we have the right to continue debating a Motion of this nature, even if the Mover himself is not here?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think it has been made quite clear on previous points of order and rulings by the Speaker, that until the Motion has, in fact, been proposed and seconded, it before the House, so even if it is on the Order Paper, unless it has been proposed and seconded it can not be debated. Any Member can withdraw his Motion before it is proposed. No other hon. Members can propose this Motion, but what they can do is give notice of a similar Motion, and the Sessional Committee would then decide if and when it can be brought up for discussion. But, on the other hand, I do not think that the Sessional Committee would normally give precedence to a Motion which has already been brought on the Order Paper, and not been discussed.

Mr. Anylen: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, yesterday there was a Motion on adjournment on the Order Paper, and the hon. Mover, who was the hon. Mr. Kaggia, said he was going to withdraw it, but he also gave the circumstances under which he withdrew the Motion. He said that he had agreed with the Ministers that they would solve the problem outside, in which case the whole House was satisfied. Now, could we also be told the circumstances under which this is being withdrawn?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): This is, of course, entirely a question that the hon. Member himself decides. If he does want to give the circumstances, he can do so; but if he does not want to give the circumstances, and wants to stay outside he is entirely entitled to do so. We cannot force the hon. Member to give the circumstances or not to give the circumstances.

Mr. Kaggia: In view of the fact that the Sessional Committee considered this Motion to be very important, is it in order for a Member of the Sessional Committee to move the Motion?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I made it quite clear that if an hon. Member gives notice of a Motion, he and he only must propose that Motion. It is a Private Member's Motion, and not a Government Motion. A Government Motion can be proposed by anybody in the Government.

Mr. Malsori-Iumbo: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am asking whether in a case like this it is not in order to send for the Member to come and give the circumstances of withdrawing his Motion.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Hon. Members are grown-up people, and they have certain liberties and certain freedom. One of them is to propose a Motion in the House, and nobody else can send for him to propose a Motion or not to propose it. If any hon. Member feels that it is so important, he should give notice of it himself. He cannot or should not tell anybody to do something he does not want to do.

Mr. Gatuguta: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the Motion for the Adjournment is due to start at 11.30 a.m., this means that a great part of our Private Member's time has been wasted by this withdrawal of this Motion. So could you assure the House that in future this sort of thing will stop, in other words, bringing the Motion in the House and then withdrawing it, because if it had been withdrawn before it was put on the Order Paper, there would have been another Motion here.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I cannot give an assurance that Members will not withdraw their Motions. It is for the hon. Members to decide whether they will or will not withdraw their Motions. I do appreciate Members' feelings that they are losing time, but on the other hand, in the Adjournment Motion, it does not necessarily have to be definitely one hour in which to debate it. If it is more than one hour it does not matter, and Members will have more time to speak. It will do no harm, because more hon. Members will have an opportunity to speak on the Motion.

Mr. Anylen: Now that we are supposed to start the Motion for Adjournment at 11.30 a.m. will we continue up to the normal time?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT.

ADJOURNMENT OF THE HOUSE: TO A DAY OTHER THAN THE NEXT NORMAL SITTING DAY.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I will now call on the Minister to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngel): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn until Tuesday, 23rd March 1965.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achiong-Oneko) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, although I am not personally opposing the adjournment of this House, I feel there are quite a lot of things that we ought to tell this Government of ours. It was only yesterday, Sir, that we were debating a lot of things in connexion with the settlement, and people who are being settled by the Minister for Lands and Settlement; they are now at the point of being evicted, should what was being discussed in this House come about. I would like to inform our Government that there is quite a lot of time which is being wasted by the officers of this Ministry in the field, not by giving the people being settled in the settlement schemes enough time to develop their farms, mainly because the law said that they were supposed to be given a loan by the Government. But it is not given to them in time.

Secondly, Sir, there is quite a lot of unnecessary expenditure on cars being used by the officers in the field, and in the last two weeks I told the Ministry concerned that there were quite a lot of these cars being used by the officers of the Ministry of Transport and from work. Most of these officers do not use their transport on Government work, but to go to bars and nightclubs. I have given examples. Mr. Deputy Speaker, to the area controller concerned. In fact, I have found one or two people in my own district doing the same sort of thing, using the Government vehicles for their own business. We wonder whether a lot of this is being carried out on Sundays. One man, Mr. Deputy Speaker, did so on a Sunday, and he did not give the reasons as to why he was using it on Sunday. Not only that, there is a tendency in that Ministry that it is only the settlement officers, who are Europeans, who can be employed in a new settlement. This is true, because I have seen that wherever an old settlement is, you find so many African settlement officers, but on a new settlement there are only Europeans. Now, this is very serious, and it is something that should be stopped. If our people are going to be subjected to these bankrupt farmers who are taking over jobs in the settlements, this Government will come to this House with another Bill suggesting that the Government is running bankrupt, just because the money is coming from Europe by E.O.A.C., goes back the following morning by E.A.A. We are now giving the facts according to what we see going on in the field. We must also go to the causes and tell them what the Government is deciding. We have agreed to co-operate with the Government in that matter. But, Mr. Deputy Speaker, how can we co-operate with the Government if they do not listen to our complaints. I hope that the Ministry concerned will come up with good suggestions to the Cabinet now that he has these facts in writing.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not want to dwell on this, but since the Minister is here, I would like him to go into this matter with the Minister concerned and find out whether he has these details and facts given to him by the Member concerned.

The other point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to point out is that, we would like during this period, the Government to think very seriously in connexion with the security of this country, because as I can see today we are going to get into difficulty if the security of the Members of this House or that of the Ministers is not taken into consideration. With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support this Motion.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): In supporting the Motion on Adjournment, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have a few words to put on record. I am very pleased to hear what the hon. Mr. J. M. Kariuki has said and I would only ask hon. Members that if they have seen a Government vehicle being misused, it is the duty of the Members to report to the Ministry concerned so that an officer doing that kind of thing can be dealt with immediately and disciplined. It is a pity that officers of these Ministries could do this kind of thing. We in the Government know that it is a waste of public funds when vehicles are used in ways which are not permitted by the Government. So, Sir, I would ask hon. Members to help our Government by reporting such cases so that we may deal with them.

Another point is the hon. J. M. Kariuki's complaint about officers he terms as "old bankrupt settlers". It is the policy of our Government and particularly my Ministry, that if an officer appointed on a project, he is not co-operating or not, if it is reported, with the indigenous people with the local people, with the indigenous people of this country, we are prepared to remove this officer immediately, so I would ask hon. Members and any other person outside, that if an officer is found who is not co-operative with the farmers in the field and who was put there by the Government because of his experience to help these farmers, we are prepared to remove him and recruit another officer.

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to inform the hon. Assistant Minister for Agriculture that it was already reported that one of the officers in Ol Kalou Salient is not co-operative and nothing has even been done.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Well, we have only got rather less than twenty minutes before the Mover has to reply. Well, I would like to point out that if Mr. Nyamweya wants to take his twenty minutes, he must start now. There are only fifteen minutes left anyhow. Are you wanting to second the amendment?

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyok): I would like to second the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that Mr. Mwendwa was first in claiming to second this amendment.

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will only speak very briefly on this because my colleague is going to speak on behalf of Government. I stand to support the amendment and I want to clear only one point. The hon. Member—he has gone out—who is the Chairman of the Maize Marketing Board said that Kenya has a political Government. Now, Mr. Speaker, apart from the other countries that are in the eastern half of the world, all the countries that I know, Mr. Speaker, have political governments. Now he referred to Mr. Kenyatta being the head of the Government and said that he too is a politician. Now politicians actually go far, we have got them in the area councils. Mr. Speaker, the members who are running the area councils are politicians, the people who are running the county councils are politicians. But there is a great difference between the formation of a policy and its execution. We people who are sitting here, are the people who form the policy; and then, once the policy has been formed, we have to have people to execute that policy. Now surely if these people who execute our policy are influenced by our presence, there will be no government at all.

I will give a very good illustration, and I want the hon. Members of this House to tell me whether, simply because I am a Minister, it is the right thing, if a policeman wants to arrest my brother, he does not do so simply because he is the brother of a Minister. Is this what the House wants here? I will give the House an instance which happened on Wednesday in Kitui simply because the district commissioner wished to please everybody. I told him that the President was coming to Kitui, and he did not want to annoy the leaders from the south, he does not want to annoy the leaders from the west, he does not want to annoy the leaders from the central division. Who deals with this division, is

Mr. arap Soi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, may I know whether the Minister is speaking on the amendment?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, he is seconding the amendment. As a matter of order, when as hon. Member in the course of debate moves or seconds an amendment, he is speaking to the main question still, and he can cover anything that is relevant to the main question as well as the amendment.

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Speaker, what happened is that somebody suggested that all politicians should go out and then a programme should be drawn up. When we came back we were told that the President would stay in the area for two days, simply because they were afraid of every hon. Member. Mr. Speaker, there is a danger and I want to tell the Members in this House, that even we Ministers sometimes have to accept to listen to what a permanent secretary or the executive officers tell us. If there is any hon. Member in this House who says that he is not respected by the district commissioner or the district officer, there must be something wrong with him. There must be something wrong with him because no human beings will respect another human being if he is not given respect. I respect is something which you have to give to others if you expect them to give it to you. It is a two-way traffic.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I support the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will propose the question of the amendment. I think hon. Members heard that Mr. Omolo Agar proposes deleting all words after the start of the Motion, that is after "That, in view of the fact this", and that is after "many civil servants are substituting the tendency to minimize the role of status of elected representatives of the people in this House, this House urges the Government to instruct the civil servants to pay more attention to and treat the representatives with respect, by consulting with them in accordance with their responsibilities and status in the country". The question I have to propose now is simply that the words proposed to be left out, that is all words after "That in view of the fact that", be left out of the question.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have listened very carefully to all the facts which have been expressed by the hon. Mover of this Motion and

The Assistant Minister, President's Office

I could say right from the start that there may have been some shortcomings in our civil servants.

But I would like the hon. Members to examine themselves as well. We should examine ourselves and see whether we are always right. If we do that, Mr. Speaker, we will find that there is quite a lot to give and take from both sides. Everybody who is in any country you will not be able to run the Government of that country efficiently unless every person who occupies a certain role in that country is playing his part well. It is very elementary that in any country there is a body of persons who constitute the Legislature and that body of persons in this country consists of the Members of this House and other subsidiary bodies like the provincial council.

Now the role of these persons is very well known, Mr. Speaker. These people, including the hon. Members of this House, know the aspirations, the needs and the desire of their people. It is these people who translate the wishes and the desires of their people into what is known as law and in the way they would like the country to be governed. Now second to that, we have the executive part of the Government. The executive part of any Government consists of all these persons who carry out the wishes of the people as translated by the Legislature. That is what the civil servants are supposed to do. I know some Members do understand, but I find it necessary to clarify this.

Now, Mr. Speaker, it would be highly undesirable for a Legislator—if he really deserves the definition Plato gave to him—to come from his noble role of legislating and assume another function of acting as an executive. The original Motion as it stands, would if accepted, bring a lot of confusion to our Civil Service. We all know that the civil servants are not supposed to take part in politics. If the hon. Members have certain cases they would like to single out where a district commissioner, where a chief, where a sub-chief, has directly or indirectly involved himself in politics, that case would be examined on its own merits.

Mr. Gichoya: Point of information, Mr. Speaker—

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): I have very little time, Mr. Speaker, and I do not want to give way. That being the case, Mr. Speaker, I do not see how—as the hon. Mover mentioned in his district or in his constituency—his chief has tried to involve himself in political matters. I would like to be very polite to the hon. Member for Butere because he has raised this matter with the President's Office before and we were going to go into this matter. It is rather unfortunate that when an hon. Member of this House has placed the complaint with the appropriate Ministry, he should bring it as a subject matter for debate in this House. I note from—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am just trying to seek your guidance on this. The hon. Member is quoting me as having put this matter before the highest authorities to be investigated, but when I mentioned this it was unsubstantiated. Was I not in order to be unsubstantiated? When I mentioned the question of the chief here, he asked me to substantiate and I did.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. The Assistant Minister is not really out of order at all. He is regretting, rightly or wrongly, that you have brought up in this House a matter which you had already mentioned to his Ministry and was apparently being investigated by the Ministry. Of course, you did bring it up and by way of substantiation when you referred more specifically to this case, but you brought it up generally yourself in the first instance. Whether that was right or wrong is a matter of opinion for the House, it is not a matter of order.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Member for Butere could just be patient, I noticed that in some of the correspondence we have been having with him, he mentioned that at certain places when he failed to address a meeting, at Marama, which is part of his constituency, he informed the district commissioner that he intended to raise this matter with the highest authority and indeed he has done so, because this is the highest authority. It should be borne in mind, Mr. Speaker, that an hon. Member should not, because of certain personal reasons, convert a matter which is purely personal into a matter of national debate.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Assistant Minister in order to impute that the intention of this Motion is on personal reasons? That I raised this for my own personal reasons?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am not quite clear what the imputation or the objection is at the moment.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, Mr. Shikuku, the hon. Member for Butere, referred to public civil servants taking a part in politics and he referred to one chief of his area as having advised people possible, they should be able to have this idea that Members of Parliament and Senators must be respected. I know that there are some people who will say that civil servants too must be given respect, naturally; in my own home I first demand respect and the children are respected by me, but the children do expect me to respect them first. Therefore, civil servants must respect the Members of Parliament first. If this is done as policy number one I think we shall have got somewhere in trying to solve the problem.

We want assurance, therefore, from the Ministers that this motto of respecting Senators and Members of Parliament will be spread like fire throughout the country among the civil servants.

The second thing is that we must adopt the attitude of building the nation. When we preach this we know that civil servants are a vital part in building the nation. It hurts me very much, having fought for independence so much, seeing that a civil servant is misunderstanding the whole thing and that he thinks that a political Government has just come to give him a job or promotion; this is far from the truth. Therefore I would like to see both the sides want to get on with the nation building and the Tanzania system is the best. It is best because it recognizes the existence of a political Government, a politically run country, and I would finish up by saying that I advise the Government to set up a committee to look into what pattern of Government is feasible for a free Kenya and a political Kenya. Nobody should—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have had your time, Mr. Ngala.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I support the Motion.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to congratulate the Mover on the Motion. I do not agree entirely with the way in which he starts. It will offend various people in the country, various ideologists, various views, various attitudes, various groups if this Motion is passed it is, The danger I see is that we are going to confuse our civil servants, civil servants who have to carry out certain centralized Government policies and the policies are made by us here. If everybody is going to show him how to effect that policy I think we know what will happen. We would have a different kind of Motion and a different kind of temperament and therefore, Mr. Speaker, I do not agree with the Motion as it stands and I would like to move an amendment.

Mr. Speaker, I want the amendment to read as follows:—

THAT in view of the fact that many civil servants are of late showing a tendency to minimize the role and status of the elected representatives of the people in this House, this House urges the Government to instruct the civil servants to pay more attention to and treat the representatives with respect, by consulting with them in accordance with their responsibilities and status in the country.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I would ask hon. Members to hear in silence the precise wording of the amendment which is being proposed, otherwise we will not hear what we are going to talk about for the rest of the debate. Could we have a little more restraint please?

Mr. Agar: If only hon. Members were not afraid—but I think they are afraid—they would listen to why I put this amendment, Mr. Speaker, Sir. I do not want our country to move into chaos and I know many politicians are in the habit of looking for mistakes in the Government civil servants who are working very well are being worried by politicians. The fact is that I am elected to this House to represent the people and to legislate, but if the civil servant who handle Government instructions, Government finance and everything else are to be responsible to us individually, 116 people, 116 commanders in the country, this is humbling impossible. I know that there are many Members here who might not be elected in the common elections and who may then become civil servants. I am sure they would be the first to cry out that the politicians are harassing them.

Why I am moving this amendment, Mr. Speaker, is that it is enough for the Government to instruct civil servants to have regard for Members when Members go to them, either to complain on behalf of the people or to consult them as to how certain activities of the Government can be carried out. I heard one Member of Parliament saying that taxes are not collected properly. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we are honest with ourselves it is the politicians who have confused the country and who have prevented the people from paying taxes.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member has clearly stated in this House that some of the Members have stopped people from paying these taxes. Could he tell this House which politicians they are. Are the names of the politicians who are doing this kind of thing?

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hear one hon. Member behind me saying that this is very serious. I know that one day he had a meeting with chiefs and the district officer, in which he was trying to co-ordinate Government activities in this constituency and the youth wingers came and broke up the meeting and stoned his car; and now he is saying that politicians should not interfere. It was another politician who collected the youth wingers to go and harass him.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Agar, that will not do to substantiate your allegation.

Hon. Members, I say again that when we have a point of order you will hear it in silence. If there are any more interruptions, you are going to sit in silence for the rest of this morning.

Mr. Agar: I was coming to the point of substantiating this allegation. The local officials and some Members of the Regional Assembly went about telling people that if they were poor and were not employed, were not earning money by any employment, they were not to pay taxes.

It is only those who were employed, who were among wages or salaries, who would be paying taxes. Another incident, Mr. Speaker, is after the Ministry of Labour—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It would be better, Mr. Agar, if you made it quite clear here and say that you were not referring to Members of this House, that you were referring to other, respectable politicians. Is that so?

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I used the word "politician". (Inaudible.)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You were not referring to Members of this House. Is that right?

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, yes.

Sir, the point I was trying to make is this. It is only human that many of us would like to be friendly—

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Point of order, Mr. Speaker, in order that the hon. Member was in the course of reading his amendment when he was interrupted and you, Sir, ruled that hon. Members should listen, and before he finished reading his amendment he continued to expand on the amended Motion?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I did hear him reading his amendment.

Mr. Agar: I did finish it, Mr. Speaker, but I will repeat it later if the hon. Members wish.

The reason why I have moved this amendment is that I wanted the position to be made clear so that the civil servants, who form the permanent machinery of Government, would be protected from being exploited by irresponsible politicians. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I cannot exclude Members of this House for all time from any, or a number, of them becoming irresponsible in the country, because we are only human and it is possible that if we get too much power from the Government or too much obligation put on the civil servants to respect politicians, then the Government will be weakened by conflicts and by contradicting statements.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, only of late we have had people putting forward their respective theories on African socialism. Each politician has got his theory. Each politician has got his version of communism and so on. Now, Sir, we cannot go as far as saying that the members of the Civil Service, of all shades, should be responsible to Members of Parliament.

Of course, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not denying the desirability, I am not rejecting the desirability of civil servants giving Members due respect, listening to them attentively, informing them of what is taking place, and consulting them about their activities and about the difficulties which arise in their day-to-day life, so that Members of Parliament who are representing the people can popularize Government policies, Government activities and Government desires to be fulfilled in the country. We know that a civil servant is a person under rigid rule and that he can only put things into language that people can follow; it is a politician who comes in and helps.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, Members have suggested that I should read my amendment again and I hope that when Members hear it again they will come to realize that we cannot confuse the foundations of our Government by making civil servants responsible to small commanders, all kinds of people. It is:

THAT in view of the fact that many civil servants are of late showing a tendency to minimize the role and status of the elected representatives of the people in this House, this House urges the Government to instruct the civil servants to pay more attention to and treat the representatives with respect, by consulting with them in accordance with their responsibilities and status in the country.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Who is replying for the Government?

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onoko): I would like to speak on this amendment, Sir.

[The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing] the Members, the Member for— I have been told by the district commissioner at Meru, when I went down there to address a public meeting that a Member of the area went and asked— Mr. Speaker, it has been alleged that it was the Senator of the district and also another Member, Mr. Gacaita, who went to the district commissioner's office and called someone and told him that the district commissioner wanted to get in. I can go further, if the Members would like. I can give them the report in the meeting and then they can challenge it.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister substantiate further because when you go to an office of a district commissioner and you are a responsible person, you are to send someone to inform him that you would like to see him. This is a normal procedure.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Ngala-Abok, that is mere argument. What we are dealing with is substantiation. Now, Mr. Ngei has been explaining why he has alleged what he has alleged. I think, Mr. Ngei, before continuing I must ask hon. Members on both sides to be more careful with their allegations. They do not strengthen their case at all by making allegations which are unnecessary, or which in the final results are not quite as strong as they would appear at first sight. I do recommend that hon. Members use a little restraint in what they say.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I was trying to say to conclude when I was putting that argument about the question of seeing the civil servants, and so on, was a procedure where a Member is well versed with having an appointment to go and see the respective people and that is what I was driving at. Now civil servants, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is a disciplined body governed by a code of behaviour with a certain line of command.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Motion suggests a system whereby the civil servants in any given constituency will be responsible to elect representatives in that particular constituency. You see, this Motion, if I may say so, is not well framed and the Government cannot accept it. The Civil Service is entrusted with the responsibility from the proper inclusion of the Government policy and it derives its authority from the Government. The Civil Service must be completely insulated from political influence, and if you have a civil servant, a district officer, who is responsible to an elected representative who is a politician; how in the world can he say that that particular civil servant is insulated from political influence? Mr. Speaker, Sir, the civil servants must implement the Government policies with tact and civility. This is at the crux of the whole matter and even if the Government was to accept this Motion what does it amount to, Mr. Speaker? It amounts to amendment of the Constitution because page 135, subsection 188, lays down that if there is going to be any change of the Civil Service it amounts to a constitution.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, suggestions have been made that we should follow the Tanganyika pattern. That amounts again to amendment of the Constitution. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have never known anywhere in the world, a constitution where civil servants are responsible for a political elected Member—

Mr. Anyleni: On a point of information, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to inform the hon. Minister that just next door here, in Tanganyika, they have appointed area commissioners and they have also an equivalent of district commissioners who are politicians and who are in charge of districts and who are directly responsible to Government.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am well informed about the Tanzania Constitution and for your information, if you do not know, since Tanzania has been formed the Constitution has been under amendment, and even the area commissioner, Mr. Speaker, Sir, as such in the Tanzania Constitution is equivalent to a provincial commissioner in Kenya, but he is not a man who is an elected politician.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Your time is up, but I will give you another two minutes because of interruptions.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir, but the hon. Members are making interruptions because they know my argument is valid.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when a politician in Tanzania Government is appointed as a commissioner he gives up all his political influence and becomes a civil servant of the Tanzania Government. He is only put there, some have been Members of Parliament and they have been seconded as civil servants in charge of a region, and therefore the question of saying that these are political appointees in the area, political office is false, and not according to Tanzania Constitution at all.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I stand to say that I oppose the Motion and as it is, it cannot be accepted.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before inviting other hon. Members to speak, I would point out that hon. Members are extremely noisy this morning and therefore the speakers can hardly be heard at all. We cannot let that continue. I do not want to reach the point where I insist on complete silence, because sensible interjections help us, but I shall have to do that if the noise does not get less.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did not intend to speak at all in this debate—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Please listen to what I have just said.

Mr. Ngala: The gross ignorance of the hon. Minister who has just sat down has promoted me to stand and speak.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Minister has just said that in a political Government he does not know any political Government in the world where civil servants are responsible to a politician. This is number one ignorance. I am really surprised that this hon. friend of mine is so ignorant, probably because he is so new to the Cabinet. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Civil Service—we are told by this Government—and the whole of the Civil Service system is today under the President, under the hon. Jomo Kenyatta. This is a fact which the Minister and nobody in this country or this House can deny. Is His Excellency the President not a politician? Are the civil servants not responsible to him? Now to say that this is not the pattern in Kenya is a complete distortion of the truth. We have moved this Motion with a very sincere intention of finding out what is wrong and if possible we will put it right, but when Ministers get up to tell what they know is completely untrue then it even reduces the structure of the person concerned.

Mr. Speaker, Sir: I would like the Government to deny this when the Minister, who is responsible for this, says definitely that the Civil Service pattern here is not responsible to the President. I want the Minister who is going to reply to make this quite clear because this is the impression I have, and this is what I was given to understand. The Director of Personnel, for example, in Kenya knows very clearly that he is responsible to the President, who is a politician. He is not a civil servant he is a politician, and in all the political Governments in the world the civil servants are responsible to politicians that is why there are Ministers. Are you denying your responsibilities to Ministers? This is the wrong attitude. Now we are again, Sir, told that the Africanization system is responsible to the Vice-President, the hon. Mr. Odinga. Is the hon. Mr. Odinga not a politician?

Now to stand here and say that we are talking to schoolchildren who do not understand things, is a shame. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I have made it quite clear that the hon. His Excellency the President is a politician and the Civil Service is responsible to him. Also the hon. Mr. Odinga is a politician and the Africanization, a part of the Civil Service is responsible to him. Therefore it is false, untrue, to say that civil servants are never under a politician. This system is here in Kenya, it is also in many parts of the world. I now hope that my hon. friend does realize what the pattern is.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think we have two problems. The first one here is the question of a relationship between the civil servants and the elected representatives. This is a problem which this Motion has posed to us. This is a problem to which we should seek a reply. The second problem we pose here is a question of how we can run a political Government. Now I must say that Kenya has a political Government by virtue of being independent and free. We are running a political Government and although a few civil servants understand their place and have a favourable attitude towards Members of Parliament, a few civil servants, and we must give credit to some civil servants, these few that have this attitude and the understanding that it is a political Government. Therefore, they respect the elected representatives, but there is a majority of the civil servants who are self-centred, selfish and hopelessly proud. Now, I must emphasize that it is the majority, there is a good element of good material but the majority do not even understand that we are running a political Government. Therefore, these Ministers and the Government of discussing this Motion with these two ideas in mind. How are we going to run a political Government?

* There have been experiments in the world. Germany has tried to see how they would devise a (Inaudible.) to run a political Government, Japan has also tried, even local governments are always trying experiments. In Kenya we have never tried to put forward a scheme under which we could run a political Government and this is the cause of the trouble. I feel, Mr. Speaker, that first we must realize one big thing; a big thing which is the responsibility of everybody is that a Member of Parliament in his own country, or a Senator, must be given real responsibility. Now, this is policy number one which must be taught to the civil servants. The Ministers, too, must put this across to the civil servants. The Lumumba Institute must take in as many civil servants as

[Mr. Shikuku]

Mr. Speaker, there are people who have complained about this and have come to me. I have also heard it said that even the youths have gone and beaten up people and even killed others and they have been told they have done a good job. That was in my constituency on the 18th of February. I have the facts and I can quote from that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That again has nothing to do with this Motion.

Mr. Shikuku: The hon. Member wanted substantiation.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That has nothing to do with the Motion, and your substantiation must be relevant to the subject of the Motion, as indeed was your allegation.

Mr. Shikuku: I want to give another example of the civil servants in my own area who are actually trying to get into the political field and as a result instead of dealing with the Hararibee school there was an incident between the local politicians and the chief. As a result that school is not getting along very well.

I am asking the Ministry concerned to urge the civil servants to keep out of politics 100 per cent and leave everything to us.

Sir, I feel I must give an opportunity other Members who are also greatly touched with this present change of attitude by the civil servants.

With these remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before I allow any other hon. Member to speak, I must point out that when we have Motions speeches must be relevant to the Motion and nothing else, particularly when they are aggressive Motions, involving allegations against people or services.

Now, this Motion deals with the attitude of civil servants towards Elected Members and the relations between them, and hon. Members will confine themselves strictly to this subject.

Mr. Makokha: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in seconding this Motion I want to use very few words but to the point.

There is no doubt that the people of this country trust politicians more than they trust the civil servants and the reason why they trust politicians is mainly because they struggled for independence. It was the politicians who struggled for independence and Africanization and, therefore, our people will do nothing unless politicians are included.

Looking at my own district, I know that nothing can move, no taxes can be collected effectively, no self-help projects can be started, without us politicians taking part. Therefore, Sir, I believe the first priority must be given to the politicians in any area.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I remember in my own district, just to give an example, when we started Graduated Personal Tax last year, the politicians worked with the district commissioner, and the county council officials, and things went very smoothly. This district, in fact, did better than any other district in the Western Province, but immediately we were left out, we almost had a war in the district and at last the clerk to the county council has resigned, complaining that the politicians were behind his resignation. The fact was that he forgot that we were the leaders there, and he wanted to do everything for himself, and the people went on strike.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, is that the civil servants nowadays have forgotten that they are obedient servants of the people, and we, being the elected leaders of these people, must come first.

Hon. Members: Hear, hear.

Mr. Makokha: Mr. Speaker, Sir, personally, I believe the trouble started here in Nairobi, with the permanent secretaries who are the most senior civil servants, going down to the district assistant.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, not all the permanent secretaries, but some, are really big headed. You go into the office here in Nairobi to try to see one, and he will tell you to see the personal secretary. Later on when you find out what he was doing, he was doing practically nothing. Now, as a result of this big-headedness of the civil servants, the Civil Service has deteriorated very much, firstly as far as punctuality is concerned. When the Mzungus were here, Mr. Speaker, Sir, people were punctual in their offices, and when the district commissioner said he was going to come to a baraza at 9 o'clock, he came then, but now, if they say they will come at 9 o'clock, they just leave the people sitting in the sun until about midday. This is because they think they are so important. Mr. Speaker, I can prove I have seen a co-operative officer in my area who tells people he will come at such-and-such a time, and not only does he not even come late, but he fails to come altogether. Now, Mr. Speaker, how can we have such civil servants?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, something else that has happened is carelessness. I can give—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): This Motion is not an opportunity for a general attack on all the shortcomings of the Civil Service. It is a Motion dealing with the relationship of civil servants and Elected Members of this House. It is confined to an argument on that.

Notice—

[The Speaker]

Mr. Makokha: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, I was just trying to show that as a result of the civil servants forgetting their positions, the whole thing is getting worse.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I therefore, have several suggestions to make. First of all, beginning at the chief level, we should adopt the Tanzania system, where they have at every level a politician who is the head of the civil servants in that area. For example, Mr. Speaker, Sir, you have the area commissioner who is a politician, and an executive officer who is a civil servant, and nothing will happen in that area without the permission of the area commissioner who is a politician.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I believe that this is a good system and it would work very well in this country as well, because if we leave the politicians out, Mr. Speaker, we are going to get into trouble, because, as I said when I opened my speech, the people accept it that way, they accept that politicians will have the first priority.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I again compare Nairobi and the lowest area like a district. Now there is no doubt that the hon. Jomo Kenyatta is the head of the Government, and there is no doubt that the President, the hon. Jomo Kenyatta is a politician. He is the head of the State, he is the head of everything in this country and he is a politician at the same time. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I do not see why we should not have the same thing at all the levels. So, Mr. Speaker, Sir rather than Ministers thinking that we are probably trying to undermine anybody, we are really trying to put forward a very reasonable Motion, a very reasonable state of affairs which will help this country. Thank you very much Mr. Speaker.

(Question proposed)

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Thank you Mr. Speaker. I have listened very carefully to the Mover of this Motion and the only difference that exists is that I was keeping very quiet to listen to his arguments and as soon as I stood to speak, Mr. Speaker, the Members began moving about. I would like the Members also to listen to the Government's side. We listen very carefully and I do not think it really helps, Mr. Speaker, if a Minister or my hon. Member of the Parliament starts to speak and then we start shouting and heckling. It does not help at all.

I would like to say, on the question of the civil servants, Mr. Speaker, before, I come to the Motion itself and the consequences which would follow if the Government was to set up this Motion, that what has been said to the civil servants can be equally said to a few hon. Members for the few instances which we have heard about. We have heard that even some Members of Parliament, when they go to a district commissioner's office, have to announce their presence, by saying that outside we have the hon. So-and-so and then they send a messenger inside who may perhaps be a youth supporting the particular Member, trying to—

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order. The hon. Minister has alleged that some of the hon. Members do go to the district commissioner's office with a youth to announce that the hon. So-and-so has come. Now, we would like to know the names of these Members the district commissioner and the youth concerned. In other words we would like the Minister to substantiate his allegation.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I said was this: I said that what the Members alleged that the civil servants do, can be equally said of some of the hon. Members, and I said that some of the hon. Members— If you really understand the shades and lights of the English language you know that this information is coming from somewhere else and not from me, when I said—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have made it clear, by previous Communications from the Chair, that Members cannot escape their obligations to substantiate merely by referring to rumours. They may not allege things by way of rumour or hearsay unless there is some evidence upon which the allegation rests. It is too easy otherwise.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): If I am allowed to give the evidence, I am very prepared to give the evidence, as to the place where it is alleged that one Member sent an usher to a district commissioner and announced that the hon. So-and-so is outside, and would he let him in.

An hon. Member: We want to know who it is.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Members want to know to whom you are referring.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Well, has been done in Meru. I do not want to give the hon. Member's name.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must give us his name, or withdraw your allegation.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Well, I have been told that one of [Mr. Shikuku] the attitude of the civil servants towards the elected representatives of the people in this House.

When you go to the district commissioner's office you go there but you do not have to show that you are a very big man. The district commissioner asks someone to come and find out what you want, then when this man comes, sometimes a tribal policeman, Mr. Speaker, Sir, or an office boy, he asks you who you are. I tell him that I am Shikuku, Member for Butere. Then he goes back and reports to the district commissioner that Mr. So-and-so, hon. Member for such-and-such an area is outside. Then he sends him back again and asks him what does he want; then the boy comes back to you and says, "Dwana nasenia, tuku niini?" Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is the way we are going to live. I as a representative of the people to speak to office boy, to tell him why I want to see the district commissioner. Then he goes back there, he returns; it is completely ridiculous. This must be stopped immediately, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is a shameful thing. I do not know where they have assumed this air of importance. One thing I know, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that the civil servants are paid from the taxes, paid by the people who elected us to this House.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am on contract for five years and so are hon. Members in this House. This contract of five years ends in 1968, but Mr. Speaker, Sir, though we have little money in terms of salary we should be respected because we were elected to this House and the district commissioner or the district officer were never elected, they were appointed and they are taking my poll tax.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, you will find some of the civil servants now have the guts to say, "I, as the leader of the district," I quote, Mr. Speaker, Sir, as spoken by one of the district commissioners of Kakamega, who stood up at a meeting, and I think the Members in that area will bear me out. Apparently he stood and said, "I am the leader of this district." Since when was this district commissioner elected, who elected him to be the leader, if he is the leader then what are the Members in the Kakamega District doing now? You are now servants, yes you are right, because he is the leader. This is one of the points that I can never stomach.

We must get a categorical reply from the Government as to whether they have reversed the policy and now we must look upon the civil servants as the leaders and we are the followers of the civil servants. There is also a tendency on the part of the Kenya Press every now and then, when a meeting is held in a constituency it is not reported, but when the district commissioner holds a meeting it is given wide publicity. This is one of the things, Mr. Speaker, Sir, which is undermining the integrity of the representatives of the people, because the people are looking forward to hearing the man they elected. These days when you hear a district commissioner speaking it is reported. At any time from seven o'clock, nine o'clock, twelve o'clock to two o'clock, and seven o'clock. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if this is the policy of those in the Government, and I hope that it is not, that the district commissioners are now going to talk politics because as have one party, then I think that should also be made known to us here today. Or else we want to know who the boss is. Is he the district commissioner or the elected representative? Mr. Speaker, if I may come back to one of the points which I feel is very, very important. In my area something happened which was very improbable. When I was out, a system—and I have checked with the highest authorities and they say it is not true—was introduced by these very civil servants. The chiefs employed youths to help them in their work, youths who had no uniform, youths who had no training for arresting people, youths who had no experience in searching anybody, youths who had no power at all and youths, most of whom were thieves.

Mr. Speaker, I am a politician and I know what the youths have done, but the Government promised the people that they would give them jobs. We went round telling the people that they must register themselves as job-seekers. They registered, but there are no jobs. These young men have no jobs, and the chiefs are now exploiting them. I specifically speak of the chief in my own constituency, of whom I know only too well. He employs these youths, and the funny part of it, Mr. Speaker, is that these youths go round searching people and pretend they have been sent by the chief or the subchief and go to old people's houses. They pretend they are looking for Nubian gin and when they find it, they drink it, instead of salvaging, they drink it. After drinking it, they search the house and if they find Sh. 10 they take it.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, this is a very serious allegation about public officers.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. There must be silence on a point of order.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): It may be happening, Mr. Speaker, but this is a very serious allegation against the public officers. Could the hon. Member for Butere substantiate or give a single incident where a public officer who has been entrusted with the job of finding Nubian gin has drunk the gin and emptied the bottle?

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I am ready to substantiate beyond any point. I did not say the civil servants drank Nubian gin. He must have been confused, but I said these youths who are employed by the chiefs, go round searching for gin and when they find it, they drink it. I can give you an example. In Shikunga Sub-constituency, Mr. Speaker, in Shikunga Sub-constituency of Marano, there was an incident where a woman was arrested for brewing Nubian gin. They drank her gin and then afterwards they arrested her, after searching the house, and found four pieces of meat in her pot.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, I would like to know whether the hon. Member is referring to civil servants because from what he is saying now, it appears that these were young people, are not civil servants or the agents of the civil servant chiefs.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Let us get this clear, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I would like to make it very clear. I was talking and am talking about the civil servants, and what they do. This is one thing they did in my area, and I am specifically not talking of Butere Constituency as a whole but Marano Location which is a part of Butere Constituency. Youths were employed by the chief and these youths harassed the people. They went around searching houses and they took this gin and drank it. This is one of the things I am talking about. I was asked to substantiate.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyko): On a point of order, do I understand him to say that these youths are civil servants, because the fact that they are employed by the chiefs actually means that they are civil servants?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku is explaining exactly what he means; but I think it would be better if he could give us a case.

Mr. Shikuku: I am giving you a specific case, Mr. Speaker, in Shikunga Sublocation in Marano Location.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The date?

Mr. Shikuku: The date was in January, Mr. Speaker, 26th January while I was still outside. I went and investigated it. This woman who was arrested with her four pieces of meat in Marano, was taken to the nearest police station and was locked up there because they alleged that there was a certain cow which had been stolen and they said that the meat they found in her pot was the meat of that cow.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, this has nothing to do with your Motion, I am afraid.

Mr. Shikuku: He said to substantiate it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I know, but you started it, and having substantiated as far as you could, I should get on with something relevant to the Motion now.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Sir. If I may go on, Mr. Speaker, these civil servants are more or less trying to assume an air of importance over the elected representatives. I have even heard of someone talking in terms of "We are now the people, and you are not going to listen to any noisy politicians." This will be very sad because if we play about we shall be locked up.

Mr. Speaker, I have no quarrel with the civil servants but I want to know from the Government that the civil servants will remain civil servants; they will have nothing to do with politics, leave the planning of the area, the policy of any constituency to the elected representatives who know the needs of the people, and who will tell the district commissioners that they are only civil servants in the field and that they will only carry out their work and not act as leaders of the people. We are here to do that job.

The other thing, Sir, is that I would like an assurance from the Ministry whether they have given the power to the civil servants to go and talk politics in their barazas. I know the chiefs, instead of calling the people together to teach them, they tell them to project themselves as party men. As a result in Butere, in Marano, and other places none of the people, so far, have paid tax.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I do not want to interfere, but I think it would help the debate if the hon. Member for Butere would also give examples where public officers have engaged themselves in party enrolment.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I can substantiate that this happened at Butere, in Marano Location, and the Chief of Marama, is the man—I do not have to go further into this.

[Mr. Waribih] the question of the material, the books, to be stocked in these libraries. I would like the Minister to let us know, when he replies, which policy he is going to adopt. We have seen in the past some agencies or some governments making gifts of books to some schools or some libraries or some organizations. I think it would be far better for this board to have the powers to select the type of books which should be put into this libraries; and if a particular agency or government is keen about donating some books or some kind of assistance, it should be in the form of money, so that the board will select the type of books it is going to buy. I have seen, as I said earlier, some presents of books, and these books are bought by the donating party or whoever it may be, and they select the type of book they want to give. I think it is dangerous to allow another country or another organization to select the type of books which are suitable for reading by the people in another country. I am not suggesting that those countries do not have good reading material but it is for our board, I think, to have the power of decision as to what type of books should be put in these libraries.

The other point I would like to suggest to the Minister is that under section 4 the Bill provides that this board will establish libraries, shall we say, all over the country, and in so doing I think it is also important not to forget the other aspect, whereby, in addition to facilities for reading you need facilities for discussions.

When you put up a library, you require to set up a big hall where people from the area or from the vicinity who want to read could come in the evenings for any organized period or time and then they could discuss, maybe, the best ways of reading, they could be given lectures on how to read, they could have literary discussions; and also these halls could be utilized for social purposes. I believe as has been said by some other Members, that our people have not yet got into the habit of reading and I think it is in such places or such halls that this aspect could be developed.

The other question, Mr. Speaker, is that we have a number of schools which are springing up all over the country in the new spirit of Harambee; we have a number of Harambee secondary schools; and when one visits these secondary schools one finds that because of lack of funds most of them have no libraries. Some of us who have been through some of the best institutions in Kenya know very well that the reading facilities which are available in some of these schools are very useful for the development of the mind. I would like to know from the hon. Minister whether, in this promotion and planning which is given under this Bill, they have got a programme whereby some of these schools which are handicapped through financial difficulties in equipping themselves with good libraries could be assisted by the board in any way whatsoever.

Now, to go further, Mr. Speaker, I would like also to emphasize the importance of making the material which has got to be read by our people relevant to what is happening in our country. I am not talking of academic subjects; even if it is a story-book, written for the purpose of enjoyment, if it has got some local scenes and local descriptions, people would easily understand what the writer is talking about. Here I would suggest under section 6 the board has got the power to invest its moneys which are not required, and probably the board may consider investing in encouraging writing by African writers which will have local colour and local implications.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time for the interruption of business. The House is adjourned until tomorrow, Friday, 5th March, at 9 a.m.

The House rose at thirty minutes past Six o'clock.

Friday, 5th March 1965

The House met at Nine o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERS

NOTICE OF MOTION

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister was bringing to my attention the fact that I should give notice of Motion, but by that time the Clerk had already read the next Order, so could you please let me give notice of Motion?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry we cannot do that, when we have already moved on to another Order.

MOTION

CIVIL SERVANTS TO BE UNDER ELECTED MEMBERS

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the following Motion:—

THAT in view of the fact that there is now a tendency by some of the civil servants looking down upon the Elected Representatives of the people in this House and also taking part in the Kenya politics, this House calls upon the Government to introduce a system whereby the civil servants in any given constituency will be responsible to the elected representatives in that particular constituency to ensure smooth running of the area.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want anybody, or the Government, to have the feeling that I have other ulterior motives behind this Motion, which is as plain as Sunday school.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the reason why I brought this Motion here is that I am conscious of the fact that the elected representatives of this House are responsible people, people who were elected to this Parliament by the masses and who are supposed to be representing the people in this House and outside this House; hence, any interference by anybody will be resisted very much. While I am completely conscious of the fact that the civil servants as such are very important people and, as a matter of fact, they are the backbone of the Government, may I point out that the civil servants are the people who are actually supposed to carry out what this House, which is made up of elected representatives, decide and they are only there to carry out the wishes of the people in this House throughout the whole country, and not what they think. Politicians, of course, are not experts, but they decide the policy and those in the Civil Service who are experts in various fields can come and implement according to the wishes of us here. But, Mr. Speaker, if I may recall, I am very surprised to find that the attitude of the Civil Service now is completely changed and I think during the course of this Motion we might be able to learn the reason why their attitude has changed; probably it might be due to the fact that the big bosses, who are the Ministers, and who are their immediate bosses probably might have asked them to change their attitude because I remember, Mr. Speaker, when we were fighting for the independence of this country, some of us had a very hard time. During those days, Sir, if you held a small committee, what used to happen was this: you were trying to fight for independence by holding this small committee and some of the very civil servants, who are now the big bosses due to our shouting for them to be where they now are, were reporting us to the imperialists. They were, as a matter of fact, when you were holding a meeting running to the district commissioner or to the district officer and telling him "Look, bwana mkubwa, nimi na kwista ona Shikuku na kaa kuli na wata kumi, he hewa na fanya nini?", he asked "What was he doing?", he said "Oh! ye likawa na tema Wazungu lazima na kwenda", he is saying that Shikuku is presiding over a small committee and planning that the Europeans must leave this country, and, as such, most of us were prosecuted. Of course, they (Inaudible) living there, but I do not want to say, Sir, that we are bound to go back to the past, but I am only pointing out how difficult it was for us to fight for this independence, being hated by some of those civil servants who are now in higher posts, and then, when we eventually won our independence the very people again are on our side now. They say "You see, these big Europeans are still sitting on us, do please Africanize one higher post." Then we started again, Africanization, Africanization, Africanization. We went on dealing until now there are provincial commissioners, district commissioners, district officers, commanders and all the rest of it, and what do we get in return, Mr. Speaker? The civil servants have no respect whatsoever, some of them have no respect, for us. This is because they earn more than we do, Sir. I do not mean that they must earn as much as the civil servants but psychologically the provincial commissioners, the district officers, even the district assistants, because they earn more than a Member of Parliament, just forget, they do not care whether you are there or not, but they even tell a tribal policeman to keep you outside the office.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, having fought for independence during those critical times I heartily resent

[The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs] value to the readers; whether they are books which are difficult, whether they are books which would enlighten the people so that they may think for themselves or not. But I would urge that the board should look into the kind of material that is likely to be useful, suitable for all ages and abilities. In this regard, Mr. Speaker, I would also add, as a final point, that the librarians being trained in the University College for East Africa at Makerere should be available at specified centres throughout the country to encourage the readers. We should not strictly stick to those centres without trying to find out from the readers what their difficulties are, to undertake a type of research, and then pass on these difficulties and experiences to the central body, which is this board, so that the services provided by this board can be improved.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to support the Bill.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also rise to support this Bill because I feel that it is one of the most important Bills that has come into this House. What I would like to say, Mr. Speaker, is that we must have a starting point so that this Bill may become useful to our people in this country, and my suggestion is that the board should first concentrate on establishing the libraries in the primary schools and in the intermediate schools. Also, if this is possible, to establish a library, wherever there is a chief's office. Once we do that we will be training and encouraging our young men to make use of libraries and, therefore, the money which will be spent on this board will be serving all our people in the country. Unless we do that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the board will be wasting the money as it is now realized that the majority of the educated people do not make use of the libraries. It is because they were not given enough education on using the libraries. Now, if we start with the boys and girls in primary and intermediate schools; they will be starting their education by using the libraries and will continue doing so even after they leave school.

Now I would like to say something about clause 4, Mr. Speaker. Where another Member has already said something about the functions of the board, it shall be to promote, establish, manage, maintain and develop libraries in Kenya. Now, in the Coast Province, particularly Mombasa District, there are some religious libraries where you find only religious books. There are no general education books and I think the Minister should take this into account so that at the time when they want to promote they put more religious books into these religious libraries so that those people who are very keen on religion could also get some books to read and increase their religious knowledge.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, here is about clause 4 (2), where it is stated that "the board shall have power for the purpose of carrying out its functions to do all such acts as appear to it to be necessary, desirable, advantageous or convenient for, or in connexion with, the carrying out of its functions, or to be incidental or conducive to their proper discharge; and may carry on any activities in that behalf either alone or in association with another person or body, including the Government or a local authority."

Now here, Mr. Speaker, I am more concerned about the last part which says, "carry on any activities in that behalf either alone or in association with any other person". Now where it says, "in that behalf, either alone . . .", my point is that in Mombasa District there are some libraries which at the moment are privately owned and they are run by some associations or by some individuals. If this Board is going to carry on any activities in that behalf alone, I think it will not be fair. My suggestion is that this board should always discuss, whenever they want to promote the services of any library, they should always co-operate with the present individual owners or the associations which own these libraries, and not to be taken over by the board. If it is necessary that the board must take over the library, it should see to it that fair compensation is paid to the present individual owners or to a group of persons owning such a library.

Another point which I would like to make, Mr. Speaker, is about the composition of the board. It is stated that a representative will come from each province. My suggestion is that only Members of Parliament from each province would be appointed as members of this board, so that such members can express the running of libraries in his province, not to take a man who is not in the political field because he might not be acquainted with what is going on in his province.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Bill.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Odoongo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I only rise to emphasize a few points which have been made by the hon. Members who have spoken before me. The first one is this question of encouraging writers. This is going to be a very important thing for our country since we do not have many books written by the people of this country. What the library is going to be very useful in encouraging people to read, this would not be very useful

[The Assistant Minister for Finance] if there were no books to be read, or if the books to be read came solely from outside. So it is very important that the Board, while encouraging people to read, should take it as a matter of great importance, this question of encouraging the people of this country to write.

It seems to me that there are areas which could be encouraged, especially among the teachers both in the schools and in our colleges. It seems to me that this is a place where the Ministry really should make a definite plan and should have really concrete ways and means of encouraging people to write. People should be induced either by payment or by giving them holidays, these teachers, to enable them to have time to write, so that we can produce material that is local and that is relevant to the situations in our country. This would be very useful indeed for our people and it would be something that we could leave behind for the future generation.

I would like to emphasize, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that this part also should be taken very seriously by the board when it is constituted.

Another aspect is the membership of the board. Hon. Members have made various suggestions and it is important that the members of the board are qualified and have the necessary knowledge and understanding of the job they are engaged in. Since this Bill leaves out a lot of policy matters with regard to the type of material that should be read and encouraged, and also my colleague here, Mr. Agar, has pointed out that you have conflicting materials in the world today, the Bill itself will not prove to be useful on this point. It has been said that reading makes man but it is reading with a purpose and system to guide it. If one sits and reads anything that comes within one's notice, and consumes or tries to absorb and the next bit of reading matter and the next bit, one will reach a stage where one is thoroughly confused, not knowing what to believe, who is right and so on. So this is going to be important for our education and for our country, that our library system must have an educational system along with it whereby the reading habits of the public are— I should not say controlled but guided; I do not think we should be afraid of the word "guide" because it is a fact that when one is going to learn, one has to be guided. As I have pointed out, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that if one were left free in the wilderness of books coming from all parts of the world—to be read it is likely to leave one completely confused. Therefore, our library system should take this as one of the most important things and should lay down certain policies and certain methods of working, so as to enable the people to benefit from the system.

Now I notice, Mr. Speaker, Sir, here that in pointing out the members of the board various Ministries have been included here. The Ministry of Information, however, is missing. It seems to me that the Ministry of Information is one of the important Ministries because perhaps at some time we will want to open libraries outside Kenya or outside the continent, and it seems that in many countries the practice is to use the Ministry of Information for informing people outside our country of the books we have, the type of cultural life we enjoy in the country. So, Sir, I would suggest that my friend from the Ministry of Education considers the possibility of including the Ministry of Information as one of the Ministries that should be included on this board.

Hon. Members have made reference to the British Council and my hon. friend, Mr. Agar, said he was not very sure whether it should be included. I feel definitely that this thing to be a wrong thing to include the British Council here on the board, which is a Kenya board, a national board supported by our Government. Having the British Council representative on it, which is not even the British Council, it is just another organization which is coming from another government, this does not seem to be correct. As another hon. Member has pointed out very ably, if we were to continue this then, it would mean that we should also incorporate other institutions that originate from other countries in order to maintain our position of non-alignment. But I think that this system, of course, would in the end entail having quite a lot of people on the board from all parts of the world. I do not think we need to do this, so I would suggest that this is completely out of place and really should be struck out so that the British Council is not represented on the board. Our relationship with the British Council is quite clear, is known, we do not hate the British Council, we do not hate Britain as such; but the inclusion of the British Council on the board, exclusive of other such institutions originating from other countries, seems to be out of place.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Wariithi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the Bill and to support much of what has been said by other Members. While I support, I would like to say one or two things. First of all, on

[The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs] value to the readers; whether they are books which are difficult, whether they are books which would enlighten the people so that they may think for themselves or not. But I would urge that the board should look into the kind of material that is likely to be useful, suitable for all ages and abilities. With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to support the Bill.

Mr. Omari: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also rise to support this Bill because I feel that it is one of the most important Bills that has come into this House. What I would like to say, Mr. Speaker, is that we must have a starting point so that this Bill may become useful to our people in this country, and my suggestion is that the board should first concentrate on establishing the libraries in the primary schools and in the intermediate schools. The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Oldo-Odongo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I only rise to emphasize a few points which have been made by the hon. Members who have spoken before me. The first one is this question of encouraging writers. This is going to be a very important thing for our country since we do not have many books written by the people of this country. With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Warlithi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the Bill and to support much of what has been said by other Members. While I support, I would like to say one or two things. First of all, on [Mr. Agar] of provincial chairman; I do not know what they are called now.

Therefore I suggest that the Ministry looks into the way in which representatives from regions or from provinces are going to be selected. I do not agree with the idea of the old practice for selecting them at the hands of the chairmen of the provinces.

Concluding this matter, Mr. Speaker, the literature is a more dangerous thing than most people imagine. We also know that it is a double-edged knife which can cut both sides and harm the nation. We have seen in many countries the way literature pours in; cheap kinds, particularly in the light of the divisions in the world, religious divisions, political divisions, East, West relationships. Certain books come into the country at cheap prices and the main theme in all of them is that the opposite side is wholly bedevilled and wicked, their policies are wrong, their social life is wrong, their morality is rotten, their political system is rotten, and all you read is that the other side is a devil. Take for instance, if you read publications from the Republic of China, they will never admit that anything good is happening in the United States of America. The same thing goes for the others; if you read a publication from the United States, you will see that nothing good happens in the European Eastern countries.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not advocate the abolition or the prohibition of this literature in this country, but I feel there should be a certain amount of control of their inflow. Also I advocate that such literature will wholly be rejected by our national library, and not displayed because it will create a bad impression and make us enemies of the people whom we have nothing against. This sort of thing, of course, will depend on the machinery which will be established by the national service of the library. It depends on the people who will be on the board and those who will be serving as librarians. This is why we also emphasize the importance of particular selection of people who can help to select good books. I am sure that the House will agree with me that if we leave it to the chairmen of the provinces to select this man for the national library board, when he is selected he will not be able to distinguish which publications analyse Karl Marx writings, or Leninism, or social democracy and things like that. He will not be able to see which is more valuable, which is more readable for East Africans and so on. That means we shall have to be very careful in selecting people who will serve in this service.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in this respect, I support the Bill and I hope the Ministry will expedite the establishment of this service properly, will publicize this service properly, will whet the appetites of the masses, particularly the Africans in this country, to encourage the reading so that they do not spend most of their time in public bars and in cinemas.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Bill.

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the Bill before the House. I would like, however, to make a few observations on some of the sections of the Bill. First, section 4 outlines the functions of the board to be established. I see "that the functions of the board shall be to promote, establish, equip, manage, maintain and develop libraries in Kenya." I am not very clear what the words, "promote, establish, and develop libraries" mean. I do not see much difference. Perhaps the Assistant Minister when he replies will be able to throw some light on the three terms. The term "equip" also creates some confusion in my mind. I do not know whether this simply means that you go out in the country, collect or buy books, bring them here to this country to be read, or whether it means encouraging people to write books here relating to our own experiences, exploiting for the benefit of this country the knowledge which is contained in our learned men and women in this country. There again, I hope the Assistant Minister will explain, or perhaps throw some more light on this when he speaks. I would suggest, though, that this service should also offer an opportunity for our own people to write and to produce books, not only as text-books, but also books which will suit all ages and all abilities, and not only in the English language but also in Swahili, the language which we want to boost up as our national language.

The next clause, I want to comment on is clause 6. I see that the Bill seeks authority from the House "that the board may be given power to appoint a person". I would like to see a categorical statement that the board will definitely appoint a person, and not leave it obligatory like that. It must appoint a person at the same time and a person who knows something about libraries. If you leave it vague like this, we may find that the board may happily go on without a chief librarian; or they can appoint a person and say that that particular person was just holding the fort while, they were looking for the proper person to appoint

[The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs] as a chief librarian. It should be made compulsory that they appoint a person as a chief executive officer and a chief librarian.

I notice too, Sir, that in the Schedule there is a bit of an omission which seems to be spelt out in clause 8 (2). The powers of the Ministry—presume it is the Minister for Education—shall be exercised with the concurrence of the Minister for the time being responsible for Finance. In the Schedule, I do not see any representative of the Minister for Finance. It will make the work run more smoothly and expedite the discussions and execution of the policy and discussions of resolutions, if a representative of the Ministry of Finance were included in the list of members.

Talking about the members, Mr. Speaker, I would like to sound a note of warning to the Minister for Education. I see that in the Schedule 1(a) (ii), (iii) and (iv), the membership shall be a representative from the Ministry for the time being responsible for Social Services; (b) for Local Government; and (c) for education respectively. It is a bit dangerous to leave it like this. "A representative from those Ministries." Why do we not say Permanent Secretary or Chief Education Officer for that matter in the case of the Ministry of Education—somebody who really has powers. We do not want to, if I may put it in a rather derogatory way, we do not want to see simply a person who comes from the Ministry of Education. What would stop the Minister for Education or the Chief Education Officer or his deputy, if busy, from sending some new officer straight from the college, just a third assistant secretary in the Ministry to be on the board? What would stop the Minister for Local Government from sending somebody who has just been promoted from the Labour Department to the Headquarters of the Ministry of Social Services to represent the Ministry on this board? We should select and spell out the name of the particular class of person we want. It might be necessary to see a representative of the Ministry of Education, from the Ministry of Education, who shall hold the rank of a Senior Education Officer; a person who would know what he was talking about, not simply a representative from the Ministry of Education, and, for the same reason, from the Local Government or the Social Services Ministries. If it were not for fear of being accused of being a little selfish, I would say that Assistant Ministers, if the Ministers could not attend, from those Ministries, or a high official from those Ministries should be the representative on this board.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not very happy about a representative of the British Council; not that I do not like the British Council for its work and its gifts of books and the £900, I think we put a representative from the British Council on the board, we open the board to attack from other political groups. Others would ask why we do not have a representative from the news agency of Tass or some other place, why not one from the Carnegie Corporation or some of these charitable bodies? I would like to see these people put in at the discretion of the board as observers rather than full members of the board.

Mr. Speaker, the next point I would like to tackle is a very minor one. I would like to think that it was a typing or a printing error, that the word "Region" in section of the schedule, Part II talks about a representative from each region. This Bill coming to be House in the Republic of Kenya should speak of a province and not of a region and I hope that when the Bill is written in its final form we shall have the word "Province" rather than "Region". Again, here I would like some word of warning to be given to whoever is going to be responsible for selecting the regional representative, or the provincial representative; he must select a person who will be effective and who will know what he was talking about on the board, not simply a body to come and sit and fall asleep during board meetings. I agree very strongly with my friend, the hon. Member, Mr. Agar, on the selection or the appointment of a candidate to represent a province or region.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I would like very strongly to support those who have spoken before me on the idea of a mobile library. It would fit the aim of this Bill if we were to establish and promote these libraries, maintain them in places like Nairobi, Mombasa, Nakuru, Kisumu and such big towns. We should be able to reach the common man and woman in, his or her locality. It should not only be able to reach him, but we should also reach him with the material which would be suitable to him. We know that most of the schools, where today we have the nucleus of readers, would require a certain type of books to read, a certain type of print, and it should be the duty of this board to see that the right material is transported to the areas where they would be most usefully used. I do not know what kind of books we have received from the British Council or from the other donors, whether these books which we have received or are likely to receive would be the books which would have immediate [Mr. Mati] making people literate unless you can provide them with material to read, and I believe this system, when it is established, will fill a very important gap in our struggle against ignorance. Again, Mr. Speaker, as every person knows, books are a very expensive commodity and not many people can afford to buy all the books they need. A public library system, therefore, provides the means whereby a person can get hold of the books which he himself cannot afford to buy. This will help, Mr. Speaker, to kill one of the evils which has been referred to by my hon. friend, the previous speaker. One of the weaknesses of our educational system, Mr. Speaker, is that once students have left school they hardly ever bother to read, sometimes because they just cannot afford the cost of books. This therefore, is going to provide them with books, and the fact that the books will be available, and the fact that they will be able to read them, this will try to remove what we have seen happening when people leave school, and they stagnate intellectually, and what follows is retrogression. So that, today in Kenya, Mr. Speaker, we have many intellectual fossils.

The library system, Mr. Speaker, will also provide opportunities for those who want to learn certain arts or techniques. There will be technical books which will help those who want to promote their knowledge along certain lines. I also wish to stress the importance of the mobile library system. I do not believe, at this stage, that having books in various centres, especially in the larger districts, would be much use, unless this is supplemented for a system of mobile libraries.

Mr. Speaker, there are also dangers which we must guard against. The major danger in this endeavour is what the hon. Assistant Minister referred to when he quoted the U.N.E.S.C.O. manifesto. That is, we must guard against using the library system as a means of telling people what to think, and we should, in fact, provide them with material which they can think about. One of the dangers, Mr. Speaker, is that in a system which is chiefly dependent, or to a large extent dependent on free gifts there is a danger that these gifts may be given for a purpose. I do not imply, Mr. Speaker, that this is going to happen, or it has happened, in fact, I happen to know that a lot of the bodies which has been helping a lot in libraries in East Africa, has provided material which is so varied that nobody who is sane at all could accuse that body of being biased, but we must guard against the possibility of other bodies offering us gifts, be they books or money, with certain conditions which may, in fact, encroach upon the integrity and the independence of the system. It must be mainly a Kenya public library system uninfluenced by other biased opinions from anywhere. This, I believe we can do if we are careful in choosing the people who are going to run the system. In the appointment of the Chairman, Mr. Speaker, I agree with the hon. Member who said it is useless—in fact, it is dangerous—to appoint a person who is unfamiliar with books. This is not the type of board where you can take anybody for whatever reason, be they political or personal, and put them there and hope that everything will be all right. He must be a person who has interests in books, and who is familiar with books which means that a certain amount of academic background here is involved. He must also be intellectually mature, so that he is able to make judgements on books. He must be politically mature, also, Mr. Speaker, otherwise we will fall into the path which I mentioned before. This means, therefore, Mr. Speaker, that the chairman, and the board as a whole, must be non-aligned, in the true sense of the word. They must be independent, people who can make independent judgement on the quality of the material they are going to dish out to the people. There is no doubt the chief librarian, who is, I believe, the same person as the chief executive officer in the field, will be a qualified person, a man who knows his work, and it is important that the other people concerned with this work, the members of the board, and the chairman, must be people who also know what they are doing.

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, I think we should express our thanks to those international bodies who so kindly assist us, especially in matters like these, where we cannot do it alone.

Mr. Agar, Mr. Speaker, this is a very welcome and timely Bill for Kenya at this stage, and we want to assure the Minister that Members are keen to support this Bill.

The idea that the library should exist in modern countries, and in modern society, is a common one. It is not new. But, we have to be careful and prepare to make use of libraries that shall be established. In this country, Mr. Speaker, we have noticed that the habit of reading is not being encouraged by anybody. In many countries that we have visited, we have seen the literature of all kinds is encouraged for the public by various bodies, including the Government. We do not have private bodies here which are as active as those we see in other countries, and therefore, our Ministry has a long way to go to interest members of the public about the library that they will establish, the services that they will establish in this country.

[Mr. Agar]

Mr. Speaker, one despairs when he finds that in Nairobi in the last two years, places which used to be some communal libraries or societies, have been converted to eating-houses, and some have become bars for drinking. That means the public have not shown of late, any tendency to increase their reading habits. This is why the Government will see that it is necessary to establish a strong machinery for publicity, of usefulness for the library, to make people conscious of the benefits and the advantages of reading in the society from intellectual circles to ordinary men in the street. In this connexion, we will advise the Government very strongly to establish immediately a publicity board which will inform the public fully of our library services. This must be taken seriously by the Ministry of Education and probably the Ministry of Social Services.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the composition of people who will serve on the Board, the selection of people who will work in the library, is a very important thing. In a new country like Kenya, the tendency would be that appointments are made with certain considerations, some political and some tribal. But, this is where the library service, and the people who serve in it, is a place where the Government has to be very careful to see that it will be an impartial body, very conscientious body, which is interested in shifting the minds of the people in the right direction. I have seen that the British Council will be represented on the board. Mr. Speaker, I am not quite sure whether I should support this or not. I see that in this country, the United States Information Service is already rendering national service and is also trying to help a great deal. I have seen that the Librairie Francaise has been started in Nairobi. These other bodies are serving us and I do not know whether it is because of assistance that the British Council is giving us this, and make us include it on the board. Personally I feel that to encourage all idealists, all bodies and all other services like the British Council, to help us and to associate with us, we should not discriminate one particular foreign service and include it on our board while leaving out others which already exist, like the United States Information Service and the Librairie Francaise. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also see that the teachers have not been brought into the picture. We have a very powerful organization for teachers, the Kenya National Union of Teachers, and they, in fact, have done a lot to maintain the standards of education in schools for the public, so we should not ignore them for bodies like this one. As a matter of fact, the teachers on the intellectual side, on the academic side are the ones who know very well, know much better what needs to be done, more than any other person, to make the best possible use of a library service. Therefore I would like to suggest to the Ministry of Education which is in charge of the formation of this body, to include a representative or representatives from the National Union of Teachers, whether it be given to them to appoint one from among them or whether Government would consider to appoint one from among the National Union of Teachers.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also like to emphasize, as my hon. colleague Mr. Mati has said, that when considering who shall be on this board, the Bill says the Minister may choose any Members to serve on the board. It is vague and it is dangerous. We want to be given assurance that the person who shall be chosen to be in charge of the national library service will be a person who will be known for his interest in intellectual development, and for his ability to serve, to guide the library service in this country properly. It is quite possible, Mr. Speaker, that the Minister being a political person may find it difficult to find the time, and have the proper advice to get a man like this. I would suggest that another board, another intellectual body should be constituted, which will include university representatives, Education Department representatives to select a man from among members of the board, or outside the board to become the chairman of the board. In this way, I think, Mr. Speaker, we will always be able to guard against choosing a man for certain other considerations other than ability and intellectual interest.

We have seen, through experience, that people for national boards from provincial, former regional authorities, have been chosen in a very unsatisfactory manner. First of all, as soon as it is known that a board exists, and people are going to be appointed to represent the former regions, now provinces, for this board, people begin to campaign. The people who select those authorities which select the representatives to be included in the national body, are themselves politicians. In many cases, Mr. Speaker, with due respect, as a result of elections many people become chairmen, former presidents, who cannot be accepted, as those who can judge the ones who should serve on important national bodies. As a result we have had a lot of inadequate representatives in the national bodies because politicians at regional or provincial level have chosen certain friends for these very important boards, technical boards. This is a very technical board and we must find another way of selecting the people who represent the provinces in this national body, other than leaving it in the hands

[The Assistant Minister for Education]

When the East African Literature Bureau was established in 1948 the Director, Mr. Charles Richards, saw very clearly the need to supplement the main work of the Bureau which was the production of reading material. With a service of this kind, and for many years, the East African Literature Bureau libraries, through their book post and postal services, has been the main source of information for Africans. The Bureau Librarian in Kenya, Mr. John Ndegwa, F.L.A., has the distinction of becoming the first qualified African librarian in Kenya. Another member of the staff, Mr. Opundo, is now completing his training in England.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the services now being set up are to be effective, we shall need many librarians in Kenya. During the next ten years, and apart from the people who are now training overseas, I am glad to say that with the assistance of U.N.E.S.C.O., the Rockefeller Foundation and the Inghit Council, the Rockefeller Foundation is being set up at Makerere College. Some thirty students have already completed six months certificate courses and by next year it is hoped to set up a two-year diploma course which will provide an advanced qualification for East African librarians. Many of the young people now reaching secondary school standards are expressing an interest in librarianship as a career. As the service develops they will find it a satisfying and rewarding community service.

It was realized, however, that the resources of the Bill were completely inadequate to meet the increasing demand for library services throughout Kenya and Mr. Richards planned for the extension of the International Library Services which were given impetus in 1960 by an expert from the Secretary of State, offering through the British Council, financial assistance towards the establishment of library services throughout East Africa. A library organizer was appointed and after a survey of the area produced development plans for each territory. These plans were approved by the Advisory Committee set up for this purpose and submitted to the Governments concerned. Both Tanzania and Uganda have now established libraries boards and the development of public library services in these countries is going ahead rapidly. I am glad to say, Sir, that funds have been made available to my Ministry to launch a similar development programme in Kenya, and a branch library of the International Service is now being established in temporary premises at Wilson Airport.

Consideration will have to be given for the provision of properly designed buildings both for the headquarters and the branch libraries which will be needed throughout Kenya.

The British Council has already provided £9,000 worth of goods to maintain the existing Bureau Library, and with the establishment of a library board, which is the purpose of this Bill, and the assurance of the basic recurrent expenditure from the Kenya Government, continuing generous aids in the provision of books, visual aid equipment can be expected from the British Government and other overseas agencies which are interested in this important work.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it will be the task of the libraries' board to prepare and implement a plan of library development which, by means of branch libraries, mobile libraries, and any other means will make books and suitable reading material readily available throughout Kenya to all who can profit by them.

I would like, with your permission, to quote parts of the U.N.E.S.C.O. manifesto on public libraries which sets out the aims of the services of this kind. The quotation is as follows: "The public library should be active and positive in its policy and dynamic part of community life. It should not tell people what to think but it should help them to decide what to think about. The spotlight should be thrown on significant issues by exhibitions, film shows, discussions, lectures, courses, shows and individual reading guidance. Reading interest should be stimulated and the library services publicized through a well-planned continuous public relations programme. The public library should link its activities with the work of other educational, cultural and social agencies, the schools, universities, labor unions, study clubs, other education groups, etc. It should also co-operate with other libraries in the loan of publications and library associations for the advancement of public librarianship. The books in the library should be made accessible on open shelves by use of additional technical processes, and the library service should be brought close to the home and the work places of the people by means of branches and mobile units.

"With a well-trained, resourceful and imaginative staff, and adequate budget and public support, a public library can become what it should be: a university of the people offering a liberal education to all comers."

Mr. Speaker, a previous Minister for Education, speaking in the Literary Council in 1960, made this statement, and with your permission I would like to read. He mentioned, "It is obvious to me that this Government which is spending at the rate of over £6 million a year on educating people and enabling them to read, must give some thought to the vital means whereby books may be readily available to the people who are being educated." Since then we have considerably extended our educational and community development programmes at all levels. Unless we can now provide for the individual an opportunity to develop and extend the knowledge and skills he has acquired in the college, the workshop or even in the literacy campaign groups, much of this endeavour will be wasted."

[The Assistant Minister for Education]

So, Mr. Speaker, my Ministry feels that it is very necessary to start this Board which will be catering for the libraries which have at present been established.

With these few words I beg to move.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Makokha: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very welcome Bill, and I am speaking as a former teacher. In this country, particularly in African schools, the habit of reading, up to now, I dare say, is completely lacking. African children have not been taught the art and habit of reading, particularly reading for enjoyment and, therefore, Sir, we find that this follows them later in life. We find in Nairobi nowadays a lot of Africans who work in offices and in various places do not know that reading is a value, so that after office hours they find their way to the bars most of the time and this is not their fault. The fault lies in the fact that when they were at school they were not taught that reading was a good thing.

Therefore, when this service starts, I would like to see schools included in the programmes. The Board and the Librarian must be made to understand that suitable books are found for all grades of schools, that is, from primary up to secondary level, so that children form the habit of reading at an early age.

Looking at the Schedule, I see that we have a representative from the Ministry of Local Government. I hope the reason is that this service will be extended to all the districts of the country. Stressing on that particular point I would like the service of the Ministry concerned to approach the county councils so that we have libraries run by the county councils, and probably spreading to local or area councils. In this way the public at large can have access to the books given by the library.

Also, looking at the Schedule once again, I see that we have the various representatives: we have one from the British Council. While I do not have any quarrel with this, I would like to know why this particular group should have representatives only from the British Council, although we have other agencies in this country who would be of value to this Board.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in Schedule 2, the Minister may appoint any Member to be chairman of the board. That, I believe, means any Member or one of these people laid out in the Schedule.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like the Minister, while appointing this Chairman, not just to appoint anybody. I would like somebody who knows something about books, and is interested in reading, not just anybody who may not have any knowledge of books, or may not know the value of reading books.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another point is that I would like to see—and the Assistant Minister has referred to it—a mobile service. This should be of extreme value to this country because there are some areas where it may be difficult for people to go to the libraries, and in some areas, they suggest that the libraries should go to these people. That is why I support the Assistant Minister when he includes in his speech that we shall have mobile libraries. I believe, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that later on when we have a chance, we should have a vehicle for each district, or probably before we reach that stage, a vehicle for each province, so that in areas where people find it difficult to travel to the libraries, we shall have the service extended to as many people as possible.

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I see we are going to appoint a chief librarian and an executive officer. I would also like probably later on, or through the librarian, to see some kind of publicity to preach to the country the value of these books, and the value of reading, so that people everywhere in Kenya know that such a service exists, and can make use of it.

Mr. Mait: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support this Bill which I regard as one of the most important Bills that has come to this House. As the Assistant Minister said, the idea of establishing a library system in this country is not new, and we are glad that at last it is coming into being.

There are a few points I would like to make, just to stress why I think this Bill is important. First of all, Mr. Speaker, I think in this Bill we are declaring an open war with one of the three major evils that face us, that is the evil of ignorance. It is useless, Mr. Speaker, to talk about proved that we have actually defeated this Motion though it does not like that, which is very pitiful or done something not like that, as the Minister said. You must not do that and, as the Minister said, we are not all angels. even now I have just come doing a duty which should have been performed by one of the Members from that side. I was doing it for him when he had been told to do it. If we go on acting in that way, we shall not achieve much. You may also say that Ministers are not always perfect in this, and when we found that the Members from this side, opposite bench, or the Members from this side, have really made a case then we would be pleased.

What we should do is to get together with you, stick together and discuss this Bill. This is what we want. If all you want is for us to kill this Bill, and already there is a murmur, but a Member for Mandarua has made a case here that there are certain people who have actually applied for loans, who are now waiting to get some money, if we do not go into all these things together then when are you going to get these loans through? You will kill the Bill and then everybody will say you have, but the people will ask you what are you doing about this.

Let me put it this way. It is no use, the Government is yours, it is all of you who should go and co-operate to find a way of doing this. It is not the responsibility because I am aware that I should be more responsible than you. We are all responsible for all problems and we are all anxious that we should get the solutions. I think that what we request of you, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is to let me request the House. This attitude is that is about to develop the House. This attitude is that let the Ministers sit there and you sit there blaming one another, quarrelling, pouring scorn on one another, and it will not help.

One Member is trying to say that he is the man who knows everything, who is going to guide us. As soon as you said yourself, that you are going to guide other people, you actually retain a position which is very, very dangerous. What we should do is to help one another and therefore to find out how we are going to run this country, and I can say about this Bill that it refers to many of the questions which the hon. Members raised a few days ago when we were saying that we want African people to be settled here and there and now we are trying to clarify the position between the Government and those people who are being settled and also between the Members and I think that this is a very important question. We may only have to adjourn this for a week or ten days and within this time I have promised the Members that we will be able to sit with the Minister concerned, with the Members concerned, and let us see if we cannot get a proper solution to the whole problem. If you just want us to go and kill the Bill then I do not know what you are going to get in killing the Bill, except when you come out of this House, you will only be proud that you have defeated the Government. Is that the attitude?

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, if I may be allowed to say this, is the hon. Vice-President not imputing improper motives by saying that the only reason why we want to defeat this is to show that it is not the grade?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, that is not an improper motive.

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, the Vice-President says that

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Who?

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: The Vice-President.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): That is not considered in Standing Orders as imputing an improper motive. The Vice-President has said, all you want to do is to defeat the Government and be able to say so. That is not an improper motive, an improper motive has to be dishonest. I see your point but I cannot class it as an improper motive.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is it not in order for the Vice-President to explain to the House the urgency of this Bill, why it should come within seven days and not six months?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I get your point, but the Vice-President has been busy in the last seven days, and he has just been trying to explain, as a result of the meeting of the hon. Member, cannot on points of order, rise to tell what the Members should speak on. That is not in order.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): Thank you very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I should say that although the hon. Members are so anxious to rise and to suggest that I am being unfair, I am not being unfair, because it has been suggested by some Members that they wanted to show us what we should actually do.

In actual fact that amounts to the fact that, what they want to say to us is that when we want to pass this Bill then you will know that we are the people who understand all the things and the people who know, this means that we are going only to compete and this is very difficult indeed, on such an issue, where the Members feel so strongly. Only a few days ago we were debating here the question of our people who are being subjected to eviction, the question of settlement, the question of the people who are restless and so on. This Bill is one of those which at this time seeks to clarify the relationship, the future relationship, which the Government will have with those people who are to be settled, and also the question which may also clear the way for the Government even getting some loans to support these people who are to be settled, and today to kill the Bill and say that we killed this Bill, and then say what we want to do without it, then the people themselves will not be helped in the least. I want us to decide today that it is not a question of trying to get the better of or humiliate a Minister, it is a question of deciding what one wants for the country.

I would only like to ask and appeal to the Members that the debate should be adjourned for about a week or even a little bit longer, maybe about only ten days, and when we resume again we will, I am sure that the Government will also consider the points, which I think have been raised here by the hon. Members, and at the same time any discussion which we have with you may actually clarify the air much further and we will be able to put the Bill in a more acceptable manner.

[Question put and agreed to]

Mr. Anyieni: Division!

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is the Division supported by the correct number of Members?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think so, it is not quite sure.

[The Chairman (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

Mr. Gatuguta: On a point of order, Sir, it is true that the debate was going on when some Members were out and they have just come in, but do not know exactly what the position is, I wonder whether—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order!

Mr. Gatuguta: I wonder, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if you would be in a position to explain what we are voting for?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Now the question before the House is the question of adjournment of the debate. This particular debate was based on the Second Reading of the Agriculture (Amendment) Bill to which an amendment has been moved proposing that it be read six months hence, which means in effect killing the Bill. The question now before the House is that the debate be adjourned for one week. That means of course, that, if the Motion is carried, nothing more happens today; and one week hence, or as soon after that as the House sits again, we resume the debate exactly where we left off. If the Motion is lost we continue the debate immediately.

THE KENYA NATIONAL LIBRARY SERVICE BOARD
BILL

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Ole Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Kenya National Library Service Board Bill be now read a Second Time.

Sir, this Bill to establish a Library Board is the culmination of many years of endeavour to develop public library services throughout Kenya.

[The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry]

but I see that there is nothing wrong in adjourning this amendment until an agreement has been reached. Then we can pass it after a week. Members will have time to discuss this issue seriously later, but the Government wants a solution whereby repayment can be distributed. Therefore, I also support the adjournment by the Vice-President.

Mr. Kagalat Mr. Deputy Speaker, I rise to oppose this Motion very strongly. The reason for opposing is that although the suggestion has been so good that the debate should be adjourned so that the Minister can have time to discuss this with the Parliamentary Group, I submit that we have raised this matter a lot of times in this Parliament. We have said, we have begged our Ministers, that before they bring any Bill into this House, they should bring it to the Parliamentary Group, and discuss it. They never do this and the time they realize we are serious about this, is the time they think of calling us to the Parliamentary Group.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, another reason is that I do not think it is necessary—and I very strongly oppose this—because we had one instance of a Bill which was brought here by the Minister for Commerce and Industry. We raised many objections and as a result this was postponed and a Parliamentary Group was called. We discussed it with the Minister, but we could not be convinced and we asked him to withdraw the Bill. Instead of withdrawing the Bill, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it was brought on a Friday morning when they knew there would be very few Members here and the Bill was passed.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not think there is anything else, and I would ask the Speaker to put this question on votes so that we defeat this Motion and discuss the Motion as amended.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I oppose this adjournment for this Motion for one very clear reason; that the machinery for bringing this Motion to our Parliament is well-established and it is well-known by our Ministers. It is a complete waste of time. I cannot remember how many hours we have been debating this Motion. I realize that we are going to waste many more important hours discussing the faults of others, faults which are never ours. So I oppose this very, very strongly. We should continue debating the amendment and at the same time postpone this Bill for the next six months. For one thing, the people who are given money—these are reasons for opposing, Mr. Deputy Speaker, this Motion. It should be continued and also deferred for six months—buy up land which is not developed. This land was not owned by the former settlers.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Ngala-Abok, I think that you can raise that discussion later.

Mr. Ochwada: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, in view of the fact that we are only now repeating ourselves, is it not time that the Mover be called upon to reply?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, I think I will allow two more speakers.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker. Another reason for opposing this is that the Vice-President when proposing did not say exactly when we postponed, or when we adjourned the Motion, what exactly he is going to do. Whether he will refer it to the Parliamentary Group, or whether the Minister for Lands and Settlement will discuss it with the people who are affected, particularly those Members from where there are settlement schemes; or whether the Government will withdraw the Bill altogether. It seems that there was nothing in the mind of the Minister concerned as to what to do after the Motion had been adjourned, it was merely that we should adjourn for a week for discussion. We want to know clearly that the Ministers have now decided that it should be adjourned and then someone will go to see the Attorney-General or do something so that we should understand the position exactly—

The Vice-President (Mr. Odings): Would the Member give way?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Would the hon. Member speaking like to give way?

The Vice-President (Mr. Odings): Mr. Deputy Speaker, on a point of explanation, I would like to make a few facts clear. When I said that we should adjourn the debate on this Motion for a week, we do not actually have to adjourn the Bill, it is to give us time to establish what the Members want, and I understand that they want more consultations. This is what I proposed they should be given.

Mr. Giechyo: On a point of order, Sir, I wonder if I am right in wishing to state the conditions under which I accepted to bring in the Motion to keep the whole thing in perspective—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): That is not a point of order.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am sorry but I must state always that there must be an intention for an adjournment of a Motion

[Mr. Ngala-Abok] for the introduction of a Motion. The reason why I very much oppose any adjournment which might delay this Bill in the manner of this one is that we know there are manoeuvres all over. If the Motion is adjourned the Government may take any other steps. The Government may adopt any consultative measures. There are so many ways of consultation that if it is not specified as to what machinery will be employed in this consultation it is unfortunate that I must oppose this.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, I think that this is not a thing to take lightly. We are taking the views expressed by the Members quite seriously because we believe the Members wish to see certain provisions of the Bill looked into. When I spoke originally one or two Members specifically pointed to one of the subclauses of the Bill which they thought needed to be looked into; but it is not possible, in the course of the debate we have been holding, to go into that clause. It is quite obvious that there are certain great points which have been made by Members which require further consideration and what we intend to facilitate is not, in fact, in fact to kill the amendment which is before the House as such, but rather to postpone further debate to allow us the opportunity to appreciate or to be informed as to which particular clauses are objectionable and be able to see what the position of the Government is on them.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not see why anyone should feel so incensed about that because I believe that the reason why some Members have raised this matter is because they feel that the Government should take serious consideration, and because they feel that some action should be taken on them. If that is the case which of the Members who have brought the amendment, then here is a sincere effort to meet that sincere wish by going into the provisions that have been pinpointed by the Members. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not see why we should adopt a negative attitude on this. On the one hand we are accused of not having taken the Members' reactions seriously into account, and when we come forward and say that we are humble enough to—

Mr. Deputy Speaker, if all of us were to be judged by the things we ought to have done yesterday I wonder how many in this Chamber would stand up and claim to be angels.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the issue is very clear; do the hon. Members want a positive, practical approach to the problem or just to kill the Bill—is that the desire? Now, the hon. Member for Horna Bay has made a very valid point; he wants to know the nature of the consultations, and I think he is entitled to know this. I would have assumed that all of us would have been aware of the nature of consultations, but if it were spelling out then I will do so on behalf of the Government. The intention of the Government is that we should now adjourn this debate so that the Parliamentary Group will have the opportunity of putting before the Government the various points they have to make on the different subclauses and we will have the opportunity to explain to the Parliamentary Group if there is any reason why we can sit on any subclause. If agreement is reached we will all come back quite happy; if it is not reached we will all come back knowing the position we are taking, and each one will still have his right to vote in this House for the Motion when we come back, but having had the opportunity to consult.

Now, Sir, it will have to be asked why any Member refuses the opportunity of consultation. Why does any Member refuse the opportunity of consultation, because if the Member is interested in getting the right thing done and refuses consultation, how does he get that thing done?

Mr. Deputy Speaker, that is the crux of the matter; why does any Member refuse consultation when it is—

Mr. Ochwada: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I stand to oppose my—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): It is a point of order, is it?

Mr. Ochwada: Yes, Sir, it is that the Mover be now called upon to reply.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I must rule on that point first. My ruling is that I think we have had enough debate for the House to make up its mind whether it wants to continue with the Bill now or whether it wants to adjourn the debate to another day.

(Question, that the question of the amendment be now put, put and agreed to)

The Vice-President (Mr. Odings): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I stand again to make my final appeal to the hon. Members on the opposite bench that actually the attitude which I see developing will not help us. We must decide whether we seriously want to get the solution of our problem, or we only want to score a point of the Minister, or that we actually are

[The Minister for Internal Security and Defence]

I would say that this Bill that has been put forward here is to enable the poorer people to settle on the land, because if we had this tendency that we never collect money from the defaulters, who sometimes just do not pay because they use their money for other purposes, that number may go on increasing from 20 per cent, and it may be 80 per cent or 90 per cent. Therefore, Sir, we have to use the law, and at the same time we have to use our minds and our hearts, knowing that when an individual cannot genuinely pay, then we have to know that that individual has to have more time.

But when he refuses persistently not to pay several payments, and yet he has the means and the ability to pay—a really persistent defaulter—and he persistently refuses to pay, then that is when action is taken. We do not say that we are going to be so cruel that anyone who cannot afford to pay we will take immediate action, even if he fails to pay once. What we want to do is to have a broader distribution from those people who are settled, from those who actually do get their incomes and are able to pay, then we will settle more because this money will go into broader circulation so that more landless will be settled.

Sir, I feel that the difficulties we are facing maybe need only further consultation and then we will not fail to come to an agreement. Besides, Sir, these areas are now being surveyed so that all these people can get their title deeds. After they get them, these people will have to be taken to court if there is a case of defaulting. It will not just be, as it says over here, that the Trust will take over the property. First of all they will be taken to court, after they have received their title deeds. Now they are in the process of surveying so that we can give them their title deeds. This is only a short measure to encourage people to work hard on their lands, and not just own a piece of land somewhere in a settlement scheme and come back to Nairobi, not working on it, doing nothing for it, so that they cannot pay, yet in the meantime they just lounge around in Nairobi. We want people who are settled over there to go and work just like the other 80 per cent are working so that they will get the incomes to support themselves and their families, so they will be able to pay for that piece of land in accordance with the laws. If we do not have this kind of law, we are going to have these people who just settle there and then come back to town, not doing anything, and saying they cannot pay back their loans. They, up to this time, have just stayed in Nairobi and not farmed.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, because of these two main reasons, I would like to support the Vice-President and also the adjournment of this debate until next time. After consultations we will find that we have no problems, which we seem to be having today.

(Question that the debate be adjourned for one week proposed.)

Mr. J. M. Karuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think these Ministers are trying to confuse this House. First of all they come with a Bill, which they know very well that they have a lot of time to discuss before they bring it to the House, and it is only the last minute when the Bill is being debated in the House that they suggest that they meet to have more time to discuss this. We cannot allow this, Mr. Speaker, merely because this Bill is going to eliminate most of the new farmers who are settled in these settlements. This is only one example. The Ministers who are dealing with these Bills have overlooked one very important thing: that there are quite a lot of people in the settlement schemes who were told by the Ministry of Lands and Settlement that they were going to get loans in order to develop their farms. But up to date, they have not been given the loans. The Government is expecting these people to pay their loans. How can they afford to pay the loans?

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, it was only the other day when I was taking the Minister for Lands and Settlement around my constituency where there are quite a lot of people being settled. We have found that quite a number of people in the settlement, who were supposed to be given loans, up to date have never been given those loans. It has been kept in the offices of the settlement officers. How do you expect these people to develop their farms so as to enable them to repay the loans to the Government?

Therefore it is understood by the Government, that the officers they have put in the field used to be bankrupt farmers, and they are forcing our people to go bankrupt too.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I want you to speak on the Motion.

Mr. J. M. Karuki: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I understand this Motion is to adjourn the House. But I do not agree at all that we adjourn this Motion. It is the full understanding of the Government and the Ministers that this Bill is going to put our people in a very bad position.

Mr. J. M. Karuki: I think it is better we forget this Bill completely as such, it is better we forget this Bill completely and Government must consider putting another Bill which will suit the needs of the people. It is a pity, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that we would hate to see people who are settled failing to pay their loans. Nobody in this House would support anyone who is being idle on his farm. We would like to see somebody who has been given a loan by the Ministry of Lands and Settlement or by the Government failing to repay his loan. But how do you expect a person to repay his loan if the loan which he was supposed to operate with was never given to him by the Ministry concerned?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You will have an opportunity later on to say that in fact you agree with this Bill or not. The Motion before the House is whether this debate should be adjourned or not. Whether the Bill is good or bad, you can discuss later on. But at the moment we are only discussing the adjournment.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not think you have told the Members exactly what the Motion is. The Motion is not to adjourn the Motion only, but to adjourn for one week. We say that the Motion should be adjourned for six weeks.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Anyieni, I think that is another debate. The debate on the amendment which was proposed, I think, by Mr. Gichoya and seconded by Mr. Anyieni is in fact to adjourn this Motion for six months. That can be debated when and if the Motion is defeated. Then we will go back to the question of whether in fact that amendment should be accepted or not. At the present moment we are merely discussing whether the debate, namely the debate on the adjournment for six months, should be proceeded with now or should be proceeded in this House after one week. I want hon. Members to restrict themselves only to this one question of whether they want to debate the whole Motion now, including amendment for six months, or whether they are prepared to adjourn for a week.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think this must be made quite clear, the point which we are debating. The question is whether we should adjourn this debate for a week. The question of six months arises when the Motion actually is defeated in the House. If the Motion is defeated in the House, it can only be brought back by the Government after six months. But it can be adjourned for a week, or three weeks.

or even six months concerning the adjournment. Are we debating a question of adjournment or a question of defeating a Motion, in which case it can only be brought after six months? It is an important point, and after all, Mr. Deputy Speaker, in the Standing Orders there is no time limit within which we can adjourn the House.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I have made the position clear. Let me restate the position quite clearly. We have a Bill before us and there is an amendment. The amendment is a technical amendment to adjourn the Second Reading for six months, which in fact means that the Bill will be taken. Now we have another Motion which has been proposed by the hon. Vice-President that the debate on the amendment be adjourned for seven days, a week. Now we are clearly discussing this one point of whether the House wants to proceed with the debate on the Bill and the amendment, or whether the House wants to adjourn it for one week.

Mr. J. M. Karuki: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, if that is the case, I do not want to go ahead expressing more points which otherwise I will express later. But I oppose the adjournment of this Bill.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Ole Olotlipip): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the adjournment of the amendment by the Vice-President. Mr. Deputy Speaker, we are all very concerned with the building of the nation. The Vice-President, the moment he came into the House, noticed the seriousness of the nature of this amendment. Therefore, the intention of the Vice-President is to put this straight. I do not think there is anything wrong with that—I wish the Members could be patient. We all know what they are aiming at. We are not man-killers. We know that we are the representatives of the people. We represent them in the country, and they should not regard the Government as an enemy of the people.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the seriousness of the matter has already been noted by the Government and the Government wants to use the machinery to enable the Government and the Members so that this can be passed peacefully. There will be time for Members, perhaps in the Parliamentary Group, as the hon. Kamau suggested, to put it clearly. It is a question of time; the Government had time and Government still has time. Therefore the question of time does not arise.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I had a lot to say on this Bill because I know a lot of matters on this Bill.

[The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement] do sympathize with some hon. Members who have expressed fears about this Bill being passed, if they are expressing such fears because of their sympathy with the people who may suffer as a result of this Bill being put into operation.

However, I would like to give hon. Members some information, not necessarily for the sake of argument but for the sake of understanding one another, so that when one opposes or supports this Bill he may be in a position to understand what he is talking about.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this money that is being used to operate the settlement has almost entirely been borrowed from abroad. Now, this money is being used to settle poor people and we need more money. It is not that those who have been settled are the only poor people we have in the country. We have a lot more poor people and if we could get more money we would like them settled. Amongst those people who have already been settled it has been stated very clearly that only 20 per cent of the settlers are failing to pay their dues and hence are failing in their responsibility. I would like to explain how this failure of responsibility comes about.

It is not wholly because of poverty and inability to pay that these settlers are being irresponsible and negligent in paying their dues. We have experienced that it is those who are really negligent that are failing to pay their dues.

For example, Mr. Speaker, you find one settler in a settlement scheme or in a section of the settlement scheme, and I would like the hon. Member for Malajoe-Bassi to listen to this, because I did not think he had enough information when he was speaking. You find in a settlement scheme one person among about 200 or 300 people fails to pay. Upon investigation, it has been found that these settlers come and secure a plot and instead of farming it, he just goes out and looks for some work elsewhere. He is not able to pay because he does not make use of that land. Now, he fails to make use of the land, but that land cannot be made use of by another poor African. Therefore, that land remains idle and it is not properly utilized, which is just one of the examples of those people who fail to pay their dues.

Mr. Speaker, you find that in some other places, a person among hundreds and hundreds of settlers fails to pay because when he harvests, instead of meeting his obligations and his commitments, he indulges in excessive drinking, and goes out to buy other unnecessary commodities and he does not pay his dues, not because he is poor, but because he has the money and he utilizes the money to buy other things. There are many people who do that.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, what has been done in this Bill is to bring about a situation whereby if this land, after the procedures which should be followed, is acquired by the Government, the Government does not intend to use this land as one hon. Member said. That land will be given to another poor person. It is wrong that a piece of land should lie idle, when the Government can acquire it and give it to another poor person.

Mr. Speaker, there is no intention on the part of the Government to harass these people, or to harass the settlers. There is no intention on the part of the Government to harass anybody. Before a settler is required to meet his obligations and to meet his financial commitments and to repay his loans, it is always certain that he has some profits from his small holdings. Nobody will ever be asked to pay his original loan until it has been ascertained that he has been farming properly and he has harvested something. If a settler, who has not—an hon. Member: What happens if he has a crop failure?

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): I have just explained that for the information of hon. Members.

Mr. Speaker, before a settler is compelled to pay, he is given an opportunity to repay, and a thorough investigation is carried out to make sure that he has completely failed to pay because of negligence. If it is found that a person failed to pay simply because he is poor, I can assure the hon. Member that this person is not harassed in any manner, and his position would be understood by the Government. We could not harass a poor person just because a provision of the law exists.

Mr. Speaker, the question of the six months that was given, was just a time limit, because there must be some time limits. After all, Mr. Speaker, I would like to inform hon. Members that if in the ordinary court, in addition to the money that the settler owes the Government, in addition to the money that the settler owes the settlement scheme, through the normal court of law, more expenses are incurred on the settler, and an attempt should be made through the court of law to recover that money, and it is not the intention of the Government to add more money to a person who has already failed to pay, so that he has to pay even more. This is a situation the Government is trying to remedy. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would like to submit that if the

[The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement] hon. Members feel that there should be a discussion with the Members of the Parliamentary Group so that the hon. Members would understand what the implications were and want to be given information, and I am sure my Minister would be willing. Then the Government could not proceed with the Bill if the hon. Members want to discuss it. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would like the hon. Members to consider this information, and even if there are arguments, so that we can agree not to kill the Bill but to let the Bill stand.

I hope that the hon. Members will see reason in this, and will not attempt to kill the Bill.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odongo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I note the seriousness with which the hon. Members are treating this very important Bill. Should I say that it is only two days ago when I reminded the House that just as we begin to adjudge into this question of money making, and also trying to keep the loans that we have, we will land ourselves into many complex problems. As such, I can also understand very well the feelings of the hon. Members from the opposite benches, and, I would not like us to go as far as suggesting that the Bill should be killed for the time being. This could be very bad for our people who do not have the loans but who are just about to get the loans. They may find that this may block the way of getting other money which is necessary for cheaper development of agriculture and land.

As such, Mr. Speaker, with your permission, I would ask the House to adjourn the debate on this Motion for about a week in order to give us time, if the hon. Members would like some questions of clarification, to discuss it together, but not actually for such a long time which will amount to a standstill in many of our activities. I feel the Members on both sides are so much concerned about this, from the requests we have, that we are going to debate this particular Bill as soon as we are able.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker; I hope that the Members from the other side, who feel very strongly, will agree on this.

Mr. Kaman: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, as I understand it, the Vice-President has brought up a very sensible idea. Could I seek your guidance, Mr. Speaker, Sir, whether the Vice-President will tell this House whether the adjournment will be, that he will convene a meeting of the Parliamentary Group on this point, before it goes to any other small group to decide, before we know the consequence of this Motion.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not really a point of order, requiring an answer from the Minister; but I think he made it very clear that he proposed the adjournment of this debate to enable further discussion.

Mr. Ochwada: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I seek your ruling as to whether this is an amendment to be amended, or is a new Motion being brought up for discussion by the House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is purely a procedural Motion, which means that the debate on which we are now engaged, which is actually the question of the amendment, be postponed for a week and then we can resume the debate at the point where we leave off today.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, if this Motion is adjourned for a week, will the Government keep to that week, because in a week's time, Parliament may not be sitting. In that case, what will happen?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It will come a week hence, or as soon after that as the House sits again. The Government will presumably only wait as long as they have to, since it is their Bill; though they might not even bother to bring the debate on the Order Paper again, if they decided not to proceed with this Bill.

Mr. Anylen: On a point of order, there is a bit of confusion in my mind now. One hon. Member, I think it was the Chairman of the Back-benchers, already raised a point of order, and he ruled that if the amendment which has been introduced by the hon. Gichoya goes through, you, as the Speaker, have the power to allow that Bill to come even before six months' time. Did you say that, Mr. Speaker?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I did. I think that is the position, though I say so without reference to the book.

Mr. Anylen: If that is the ruling, then is it really necessary Mr. Speaker, —

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, you are not on a point of order. You are debating whether the adjournment is desirable.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say here that what we require is further consultation so that our differences could be settled elegantly, and I support the hon. Member for Kapenguria in what he said, that there should be a Parliamentary Group meeting if there are any more difficulties, so that we can discuss everything.

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development] also clearly stipulated in the Act that those who are dissatisfied may go to court. One of the difficulties is that if these people had individual title deeds, there would be no problem; we would not even have to ask for this amendment to be passed, because then it would be quite possible to take the matter to court without resorting to any other arrangement. But in the settlement schemes at the moment, while the survey is still going on, and until individual titles are granted, you cannot take action on the normal basis.

Therefore, it is necessary to make this amendment. Now, Sir, the issue is one which is so narrow that we do not see this apparent effort to enlarge it into a policy debate on a matter which does not really appear in the amendment. I think the question which any Member who is going to support this amendment must ask himself, and in his conscience satisfy himself, is whether it is right that when a man has entered an agreement and promised to be paying instalments on an agreed basis, and he belongs to a group of people—in this case the settlement scheme—that the majority in the scheme should be paying regularly as required and the minority should not be paying, and that nothing should be done about those who do not pay.

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I do not think the hon. Minister for Economic Planning has understood my point. I maintain that there is a chance for these people who refuse to pay to be taken to court and this is written in the Bill. So, the Minister should not say that I am saying that certain people should pay while others should not.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, you are quite right, Mr. Anyien. You have urged that there should be a chance for any person who does not pay to be taken to court. Whereas this Bill provides forfeiture of his land without resort to any court.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, this is precisely the point I am making: that there is no suggestion that there is going to be no resort to court. The amendment is so that action can be taken under the Debts Summary Recovery Ordinance.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The other half of the amendment, Mr. Mboya?

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Yes the first part.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Anyien is referring to the second part of the amendment, the proposed amendment to subsection (3). That is what Mr. Anyien has objected to.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, all the same I must state very clearly that the effect of the amendment before this House is to kill the whole Bill and it is not just subparagraph (2) which we are talking about. We are now talking on the amendment which is, to leave out the word "now" and in place thereof to substitute the words "six months hence". In effect this is killing the whole Bill. Mr. Speaker, if Members were only interested in one subclause of the Bill they would bring it in the normal way at the Committee stage to deal with that particular subclause. However, this amendment is to kill the whole Bill, regardless of the machinery that is intended to be used.

There is very little in effect on the attempt now to suggest that all that the hon. Member was worried about is subparagraph (iii). If that is all, then I submit that the amendment should be defeated and the subclause that he is worried about should be the subject that he raises at the Committee stage. Otherwise we have no Bill because the effect of the amendment is to kill the Bill altogether.

The point that must be made here in connection with I was saying originally, is that anyone who supports the amendment is in effect saying, if he says, "let it die" it is in effect to say that Government should have no way by which the 20 per cent of the people who do not pay their instalments can be dealt with.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, with all due respect to my hon. friend the Minister for Economic Planning, I think there is something slightly wrong in his thinking this afternoon.

The fact is, Sir, I support the amendment. All that the amendment does is to keep this Bill in abeyance for six months. Well, the hon. Minister has already shown that in effect this Bill—

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think the House ought to be clear what is the effect of the amendment and I would like you to explain that exactly what it means. The hon. Member for Kilifi South is suggesting to the House that this merely is suspension of this Bill. We contend it means killing the Bill altogether.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Parliamentary practice in connexion with an amendment of this kind is that an amendment which defers Second

[The Speaker] Reading has the effect of killing the Bill and it need not be considered again, unless it is introduced again by the Government within six months. The way to defer consideration of a Bill is to move the adjournment of the debate on the Second Reading to another time.

Mr. Warfah: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, if this amendment would amount to killing the Bill, does it set down any time limit when the Government can bring another Bill on the same subject?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): My understanding of this point is, whether in the event of this amendment being carried it is impossible for another Bill to be brought in during the six months. In view of the powers given to the Speaker to allow the House to rescind a decision within a given period, at his discretion, probably, the Speaker could allow the introduction of another Bill at any time.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, I stand to support the amendment. I support the amendment because the hon. Minister for Economic Planning has shown that already 80 per cent of the people settled are paying their dues. If 80 per cent are paying their dues there must be a very strong reason for the 20 per cent not to pay their dues. Now, because of this, I think if the minority are not paying their dues it is only right that the Minister concerned should have first discussed this with the Members of Parliament, probably in a Parliamentary Group, and cleared the position first before he can insist on passing this Bill now.

If the majority were indeed not paying then we would have had great sympathy for the argument that has been put forward by the Minister for Economic Planning. However, since it is only 20 per cent that are not paying, I think there is still time for us to suspend this Bill for six months and have a complete reconsideration of the matters.

I see some Ministers are looking pleased with this comment. I think they realize the importance of this statement and Bill.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is quite in order for the Government, if it wishes, to have discussions with the Members of Parliament and then bring this Bill forward again next week. It is up to the discretion of the Speaker to allow or not allow the Bill, but if there is general agreement the Speaker will of course bear in mind the feeling of the House. Therefore, this is why I say that the Government has a chance of bringing it up again. If the Government wants to get the sympathy of the House surely the Government must show that it has sympathy for the 20 per cent poor people who have various hardships that we do not know about.

Let me give you one example. Last week I went round one of the locations in the Western Province, a place called Kimilili and I saw a very poor person who had sold every bit of land that he had and gone to a settlement scheme. Now, I can imagine the hardship that this man will suffer if this Bill goes through. After selling all that belonged to him, if we pass this Bill he will be faced with the necessity of being evicted from his plot, the only property that he has under the sun.

Therefore, since this Bill does not concern the majority of the people, I submit very strongly that the Government should see the sense of withdrawing it for some time in order to give an opportunity to the Minister concerned to explain the facts to the Back-benchers. If the Government insists that they must go ahead with this Bill, I can assure them that they will come out with a big disappointment, because—I am entitled to threaten you here as a Member of Parliament—we are considering a matter here which should be gone into first by the Ministers and the Members before it comes to Parliament.

This afternoon, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we had questions dealing with settlement schemes elsewhere, Shimba Hills. It has been shown beyond any doubt that Government has just given the people the land and has not given them the facilities to develop that land. As a result of that the settlers abandoned the schemes. Now, Sir, it is no use just giving the land to the people; you have to follow them up and see what facilities and what help—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We cannot go into that now, Mr. Ngala. It is a question simply of what right Government shall have to recover payments that are overdue.

Mr. Ngala: I feel it is quite wrong for the Government to resort to take away land from settlers who are already settled. There are other methods in dealing with these 20 per cent. If we can come and sit round the table other methods can be devised, by which Government will be able to get their dues from the 20 per cent. However, we strongly reject land being acquired as payment in lieu of overdue payments. Since we are dealing with the minority group I hope the Minister or Assistant Minister responsible will see the sense of suspending this Bill for the time being.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I honestly who also clearly stipulated in the Act that those who are dissatisfied may go to court. One of the difficulties is that if these people, who have individual title deeds, there would be no problem; we would not even have to ask for this amendment to be passed, because then it would be quite possible to take the matter to court without resorting to any other arrangement. But in the settlement schemes at the moment, while the survey is still going on, and until individual titles are granted, you cannot take action on the normal basis.

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

Therefore, it is necessary to make this amendment. Now, Sir, the issue is one which is so narrow that we do not see this apparent effort to enlarge it into a policy debate on a matter which does not really appear in the amendment. I think the question which any Member who is going to support this amendment must ask himself, and in his conscience satisfy himself, is whether it is right that when a man has entered an agreement and promised to be paying instalments on an agreed basis, and he belongs to a group of people—in this case the settlement scheme—that the majority in the scheme should be paying regularly as required and the minority should not be paying, and that nothing should be done about those who do not pay.

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I do not think the hon. Minister for Economic Planning has understood my point. I maintain that there is a chance for these people who refuse to pay to be taken to court and this is written in the Bill. So, the Minister should not say that I am saying that certain people should pay while others should not.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, you are quite right, Mr. Anyien. You have urged that there should be a chance for any person who does not pay to be taken to court. Whereas this Bill provides forfeiture of his land without resort to any court.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, this is precisely the point I am making: that there is no suggestion that there is going to be no resort to court. The amendment is so that action can be taken under the Debts Summary Recovery Ordinance.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The other half of the amendment, Mr. Mboya?

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Yes the first part.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Anyien, is referring to the second part of the amendment, the proposed amendment to subsection (3). That is what Mr. Anyien has objected to.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, all the same I must state very clearly that the effect of the amendment before this House is to kill the whole Bill and it is not just subparagraph (c) which we were talking about. We are now talking on the amendment which is, to leave out the word "now" and in place thereof to substitute the words "six months hence". In effect this is killing the whole Bill. Mr. Speaker, if Members were only interested in one subclause of the Bill they would bring it in the normal way at the Committee stage to deal with that particular subclause. However, this amendment is to kill the whole Bill, regardless of the machinery that is intended to be used.

There is very little in effect on the attempt now to suggest that all that the hon. Member was worried about is subparagraph (iii). If that is all, then I submit that the amendment should be defeated and the subclause that he is worried about should be the subject that he raises at the Committee stage. Otherwise we have no Bill because the effect of the amendment is to kill the Bill altogether.

The point that must be made here in concerning what I was saying originally, is that anyone who supports the amendment is in effect saying, if he says, "let it die" it is in effect to say that Government should have no way by which the 20 per cent of the people who do not pay their instalments can be dealt with.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, with all due respect to my hon. friend the Minister for Economic Planning, I think there is something slightly wrong in his thinking this afternoon.

The fact is, Sir, I support the amendment. All that the amendment does is to keep this Bill in abeyance for six months. Well, the hon. Member has already shown that in effect this Bill—

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think the House ought to be clear what is the effect of the amendment and I would like you to explain that exactly what it means. The hon. Member for Kilifi South is suggesting to the House that this merely is suspension of this Bill. We contend it means killing the Bill altogether.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Parliamentary practice in connexion with an amendment of this kind is that an amendment which defers second the effect of killing the Bill and it will not be considered again, unless it is introduced again by the Government within six months. The way to defer consideration of a Bill is to move the adjournment of the debate on the Second Reading to another time.

Mr. Warilili: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, if this amendment would amount to killing the Bill, does it set down any time limit when the Government can bring another Bill on the same subject?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): My understanding of this point is, whether in the event of this amendment being carried it is impossible for another Bill to be brought in during the six months. In view of the powers given to the Speaker to allow the House to rescind a decision within a given period, at his discretion, probably, the Speaker could allow the introduction of another Bill at any time.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, I stand to support the amendment. I support the amendment because the hon. Minister for Economic Planning has shown that already 80 per cent of the people settled are paying their dues. If 80 per cent are paying their dues there must be a very strong reason for the 20 per cent not to pay their dues. Now, because of this, I think if the minority are not paying, their dues it is only right that the Minister concerned should have first discussed this with the Members of Parliament, probably in a Parliamentary Group, and cleared the position first before he can insist on passing this Bill now.

If the majority were indeed not paying then we would have had great sympathy for the argument that has been put forward by the Minister for Economic Planning. The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I honestly to take a gun and shoot somebody. Is this what the Kenya Government wants to create? Mr. Speaker, we want to maintain one thing, that the present set-up should be maintained and because of that we say let Government withdraw this Bill, because I can almost guarantee that many of the hon. Members elected in this House are the true representatives of the people living in the countryside not the people in Nairobi only.

Mr. Speaker, I do not see why Government should be selling underdeveloped land to poor people found walking the streets and asking them to go back to the land. We feel that developed land is much more appropriate as far as the aspects for developing the land in concerned, but as things are today, Government sells underdeveloped land to the poor people. When the people begin demonstrations on the streets against the Ministry of Labour, the President comes on the radio he says, "Go back to the land". How can we come into this House and pass a Bill removing them from the land that they have been unable to pay for.

Mr. Speaker, I had mentioned something about the families which have settled on the land. I feel that if Government wishes to remove these people, I think that Government should make a law stating that if you have more than five children you cannot settle on the land and if you have five children you should be given more land because what happens Mr. Speaker, is that—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We are not discussing the distribution of land we are discussing only loan repayment.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, one thing is this, if a man has ten children and many people do have ten children who are settled on ten acres of land, the food that comes from the land does not enable the settler to pay the loan because the children will consume the food and as a result, Mr. Speaker, he will be unable to repay the loan, that is the reason why I am saying it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): This Bill deals simply with what is to be done about overdue payment it does not deal with who is to have land, what rights are involved in having land, how long they have to pay, it only deals with what happens to a man who does not pay when the money become due.

Mr. Makone: Is it not in order to explain the circumstances which lead to the inability of the settler to make these payments?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, but only so far as relevant to enforcing payment. The question whether he should have more land is quite irrelevant.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that if the Government wishes to guarantee that there will be no defaulters—As a matter of fact our late Member, who was a specially elected Member did ask the Government to set up a Ministry for Co-operatives. If you will remember, Mr. Speaker, speeches were made in this House to the effect that people should be settled on the land in such a way, let us say that if Government gives 2,000 acres to a group of people, then the Government supervises this land and when the people on the land sell their crops Government will automatically take what these people are supposed to pay in the form of taxes to their county councils. These people, if they do not have anything, then the Government will also know they have to put up with reality. But the present set-up, Mr. Speaker, I think would be a betrayal of our people. As an elected Member, who was elected to represent my people in this House, including some on settlement schemes, I cannot support this Bill. Now, after having set up a Ministry for Co-operatives, we would like the Minister also to be able to carry out co-operative farming. This is one of the best ways of making sure that—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, no, we are getting off the subject of the Bill. We cannot go into all that really, Mr. Anyieni.

Mr. Anyieni: Yes, Mr. Speaker. So, Sir, we cannot allow this Bill to go through and I say that it should be delayed for another six months, during which time discussions could be held with the Parliamentary group before the Bill is again brought here. The Back-benchers should be consulted and then a way can be found to make this Bill acceptable to the people in the country.

With those few remarks, I beg to second my hon. friend's amendment to delay this for six months.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Of course, since this amendment is bound up with the whole question of the survival of the Bill, we can debate on the Bill and not merely on the amendment.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am intervening very early because I think it is important that those who are going to take part in this debate make speeches which are relevant to the Bill before the House.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

"It may be very interesting, Sir, to discuss the whole question of land and land policy, but that is not at issue in the amendment before the House. It may be very interesting to discuss the whole of the poor people of this country, but that again is not at issue. It may be very interesting, here on or at some other time, to discuss the whole policy and relevance of settlement schemes as opposed to co-operatives, but that again is not at issue in this amendment."

What is at issue in this amendment is this: we have settlement schemes that are going on and have been going on for several years and many people have already been put into these schemes. When a person is selected for such a scheme, he knows the terms under which he is going to enter into the scheme, and he accepts the terms in writing. It is clearly explained to him when he goes into the scheme that he will be required to pay his responsibilities, one of which is that he will be paying annually so much until he has discharged the whole loan that has been given to him. The loan extends over a period of many years in fact, thirty years. I am told, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that it varies, and I understand, Sir, in fact, I know for certain, that none of it is below twenty years.

Now, Sir, this man, having accepted all these conditions, having been given the support in order to start farming, for the first few months he is paid by the Government, he is assisted to put up a hut or a house, he is assisted with the habits of all the extension services, for which the Government pays, he is assisted by the bringing of the water and other services to the site; now, Sir, having been given all these facilities, like any other member of the settlement scheme, this man fails to pay, when everybody else around him is paying. This is the question. Out of the total number of people in settlement schemes, 80 per cent are paying regularly, and it is only about 20 per cent who are not paying regularly, who are in arrears.

Now, Sir, the case being put forward by the hon. Member for Bassi-Majoge amounts to this—Majoge-Bassi or Bassi-Majoge. Oh, the hon. Member for Majoge-Bassi: I stand corrected. I do not know whether it is important!

The point, Sir, is this; and this is the issue before the House, not the other things being said about by the hon. gentlemen. The issue before the House, Sir, is that this House should now agree that the 80 per cent who are paying their loans regularly are not, in fact, doing the right thing; the 20 per cent who are not paying are the people who belong to this country, who must be sympathized with. Now, Sir, the hon. gentleman cannot escape from this logical conclusion of what they are saying here. If you say that a scheme must be operated properly—and we are not here discussing the terms of the Act which controls the scheme, we are discussing merely the question of payments—if you say that a scheme must be run according to the regulations, to which every tenant has agreed, then you must tell us what you think we should do with the 80 per cent who are paying regularly.

Mr. Anyieni: On a point of order, Sir, the hon. Minister is all the time saying, "You must tell us", "you". Is he telling you, as the Speaker, or us, the hon. Members, that we must agree with him?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think actually Mr. Mboya was forgetting that rule.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thank the hon. Member, but he will not divert me from the point I want to make. The point I am making is that the hon. Member cannot have his cake and eat it. It is not possible for the hon. gentleman to say, on the one hand, that the scheme must be encouraged, that it must be expanded and, on the other, to say that it is quite all right for some members, a minority of the members, of the scheme not to pay and to ask the Government to sympathize with those who do not pay although the majority adhere to the terms of the scheme. That is the question which lies at the heart of the whole matter.

Now, Sir, it must be remembered by the hon. gentleman that the money we use in order to promote these schemes has either been provided by taxpayers or borrowed from outside Kenya. When we borrow money, we have an obligation to repay it. There is no country or government in the world which is going to give us money on loan and expect us not to repay it when the time comes. How do we pay back the money? Either the people on the scheme, who are taking advantage of the money, are called upon to repay it or the taxpayer in this country is called upon to pay for the minority of the people on the scheme who refuse to meet their obligations.

Sir, I use the word "refuse" deliberately because this Bill does not penalize a man who fails to pay because of adverse climatic circumstances. You cannot read this Amendment Bill in isolation from the Agriculture Act and regulations; and the regulations clearly stipulate that in administering the Act, where there are adverse climatic or other conditions, these are taken into account in administering the payment of instalments. It is [Mr. Gichoya] new landless so-called settlers, now being settled by the Ministry of Lands and Settlement.

Now, Sir, it is wrong to tell the people that we are assisting you when at the same time the conditions for assistance is made so difficult that they will not gain anything after being settled. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in order to allow other Members the opportunity to speak on this I say that this Bill should be kept in abeyance for six months. It has been a custom here that anything which is hereditary to our society, we are forced somehow to bless in this House, and now when we are settling these poor people in these settlement areas, the conditions for their settlement must be much more lenient than they would be under a different regime.

Secondly, Sir, it is the duty of the officers in the settlement schemes along with the agriculture officer, to persuade those settlers and show them the proper methods of farming so that they are capable of repaying whatever has been loaned to them.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, our Government, if I may be allowed to say so, is very deaf. It was very recently, Mr. Speaker, when a Member of this House introduced a Motion on Evictions and the Government did accept that Motion. Now, that day we were talking of evictions which came as a result of people who owned the land and thereby having squatters on the land which belongs to the people. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we agree to that question, I do not see why the Government should again introduce a Motion of this type because this Motion completely contradicts the first Motion. For the Bill here, this Motion is intended to remove those who have already been settled, some of the very poor people who have been settled in, for example, Nyardara, where the President has solved the problem of the landless former freedom fighters in places like this. Now, Government has gained a great deal after a few days and Government again asks this House to approve a Bill to evict these people from that land if these people are unable to pay for the land. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the reason why we do not want this Bill to go through this is because some of these pieces of land which were given to these poor people, perhaps ten acres, sometimes seven acres and sometimes twenty-five acres, some of this land is very tired and very unproductive, and as such you will find that sometimes, the new settlers may not be able to repay their loans on time.

Today when someone fails to repay his loan what happens is that someone is taken to court and he is charged, then the court rules that this person should be able to repay the loan, but now the Government, hon. Members, is asking us to give it power to go and evict somebody from the land, and take immediate possession of the land and give it to someone else.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is very dangerous because we know, for example, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in towns most of the traders are car traders who induce people, particularly poor Africans who do not understand very much about it to buy a motor vehicle. They persuade them to come and deposit about Sh. 5,000 then after two months the man fails to repay, the motor trader takes back the car, sells it again to another man, another African. Now, if this is what the Government is trying to put in the question of land then we want to tell Government that it is looking for too much trouble, because people who have been settled, for example, in my district, Mr. Speaker, for people who have been settled on ten acres of land they are supposed to deposit Sh. 1,700. These people are supposed to be very poor people but they are supposed to Sh. 1,700 so they go around asking me for money and other Members for money to be able to pay a deposit so that they can be settled on the land. Then as soon as they have been there for a few months then it is the Monday that they have to pay.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, here the Government is asking us to say that if after the short period that they are given they are unable to pay then Government comes back, takes them off the land, and then Government introduces new people on the land again. So the circle will continue to run like that bringing people in, and if they fail to pay then they will be removed. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I see that my hon. Minister for Justice is trying to shake his hand. The Minister for Justice, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may say so, is the Member for Nairobi Central. This problem is not very big in Nairobi Central.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the hon. Member disclose which Ministry he is talking about?

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sorry, you see I have not acquainted myself very much to the new set-up and I hope the former Minister of Justice is not ashamed of being referred to as the former Minister of Justice.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like your directions whether I am referred to in this House as the former Minister for Justice or whether as Minister for Economic Planning and Development. I think I belong to the new and not the old.

[The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is usual form to refer to an hon. Member by his present office rather than his past one unless his past office sometimes become relevant to a discussion. It may be of some importance to what is said that a Minister who holds an office today did hold another office, previously, and if so is quite in order to refer to that.

Mr. Anyieni: I never intended actually to upset my hon. Minister, actually what happened, Mr. Speaker, is that I have known my hon. Minister for a long time as the Minister for Justice and Constitutional Affairs and so today I was referring to him as the former Minister for Constitutional Affairs and now the Minister for Economic Development, so I hope the Minister does not take offence, because it was not done intentionally.

Mr. Speaker, I have not forgotten what I was saying it was a very bad settlement, it will be a place where you settle somebody and when he fails to pay, you remove him, then you settle another man when that man fails to pay, you remove him and settle another man. So, our country does willingly maintain the Ministry of Land Settlement for millions of years. We thought that the Ministry of Land Settlement would be temporarily set up during this transitional period where the land is being exchanged from the hands of the white settlers into the hands of poor African people who are landless. Now, Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Members here allow this Bill through the House, they are actually signing trouble for themselves which they will be faced with when they go to their constituencies.

Mr. Speaker, for example, I knew some people who are settled at Litego, now these people, Mr. Speaker, were given a loan and they bought cattle. I have raised this question in the House before, Mr. Speaker, and you may remember, that someone came and took all the cattle that these people bought with the loan they were given. Now, the Government says, "we do not care what happened to you, whether somebody took the cattle or not, we want you to pay your money this month" and so it is settled like that, it will not even be taken to a point where it will have to be explained before a magistrate, the reasons why they have failed to pay, I think, as the case is today, Government will have power to remove that man immediately from the shamba. How can we allow this? How does Government expect a person, like myself to accept a Bill like this to go through when it will be at the expense of the people who have elected me to this House. Mr. Speaker, if the Government wants this Bill to work let them make it this way, that the people of second class, people who have bought above one hundred acres of land, the richer people who have thousands and thousands of acres of land they should be able to be removed so that land can revert to the poorer class. But, we are not going to allow a situation whereby a person who is very poor, who has no land, coming from Nairobi, who has listened to the spirit of Harambee and to the call by the President of the nation that he should go back to the land and when he goes back to the land he has nothing. He has been running around here in Nairobi looking for somebody to give him one shilling, so he can have some food to eat, he goes back to the land and as soon as he goes back to the land Government starts demanding that he gets some money to pay for the loan. The poor man is not experienced he has never been a farmer. Some times, a man is settled, on a farm of ten acres and he has ten children, now the food that he can produce from the land is not enough to repay this loan which Government requires him to pay.

Mr. Speaker, it is very important that the present set-up should be maintained. Why do we say that the present set-up should be maintained? When these men, the new settlers fail to pay these loans he has got a chance of appealing before a magistrate so that he can explain the reason why he was unable to pay. For example there may have been drought, when there is drought his crop will not flourish he can go to the magistrate and tell him and then the magistrate can tell him all right you go next year we hope that there will be rain and then you can come back and pay, but if we give the Government power, — if the Minister or the Assistant Minister understand the problem they may be able to sympathize with the new settlers, but, Mr. Speaker, once we have made this law, but the people who execute the law will say, "Have you paid? You were supposed to pay yesterday, all right, off the land".

If this man, Mr. Speaker, has got, let us say ten children and he is kicked off of the land where does he go? This provision made here, is that going back to the land? This man is going into the streets and eventually he is going Mr. Gachago: I did not catch the question, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If hon. Members would sit quietly we should hear what Mr. Kerich says.

Mr. Kerich: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I repeat my question? I asked whether the Assistant Minister was aware that I have expressed very strongly to this House again and again that Muhoroni is part of Kipsigis and, therefore, the Luo should not be settled there?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That has nothing to do with this question.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, could he tell this House who is in charge of Lembwe Settlement Scheme?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Member implies that there is a settlement scheme in Lambwe, it is not my business to tell him whether there is such a scheme or not. I may not have visited Lambwe, because my Ministry has nothing to do with Lambwe.

Mr. Khasakhal: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, could he tell the House how many settlers the Ministry intends to settle at Muhoroni Settlement Scheme where the Ministry is going to spend a sum of £134,945?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the number of people at the moment settled in Muhoroni is 712 and we anticipate that another 716 people will be settled there.

Mr. Mwanamandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since Lambwe Valley is not a scheme can the Minister agree with me that this particular Lambwe Valley, not being a scheme, the question is brought illegally to this House?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there I cannot agree and if the hon. Member thinks that I should, I do not even agree.

Mr. Murgori: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that I have personally seen a Government form for the application for the settlement scheme at Lambwe Valley could the Minister tell us why he is denying a settlement scheme in Lambwe Valley run by Government?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Member has filled in a form applying for a piece of land in Lambwe Valley Settlement Scheme, then the hon. Member should be telling us where the settlement is and who manages it. But, Mr. Speaker, I represent the Ministry of Lands and Settlement and, as I have stated, the Ministry of Lands and Settlement is not aware of any settlement scheme in Lambwe Valley.

Question No. 727

ADVERSE TRADE BALANCES WITH KENYA

Mr. Obok (on behalf of the Member for Kisumu Town, Mr. Jamal) asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry:—

(a) How many countries had unfavourable trade balances with Kenya as at 31st December 1964; and

(b) what plans the Government had to restrict importation of goods from such countries.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Ole Oloitiplip): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

There were thirteen countries which had unfavourable trade balances with Kenya by the end of last year. My Ministry is very much concerned about these trade imbalances and it is anxious that our country should enjoy favourable trade with other countries. It is not, however, Sir, intended at present to impose trade restrictions purely on grounds of imbalances alone. Before one country resorts to this action against other countries, other considerations have to be taken into account as trade imbalances are not the only criterion for trade restrictions.

Mr. Anyleni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that Japan exports to our country goods worth more than £10,000,000 and our country exports to Japan goods worth less than £3,000,000? What steps is the Government taking to control this situation, and my the Assistant Minister tell us why Government is not doing anything?

Mr. Ole Oloitiplip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said already that thirteen countries are already involved in this matter, not only Japan. The United Kingdom, Australia, Nigeria, Bahrain, for the information of the Members, Sir, Hong Kong, India, Pakistan, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, France, Italy, Japan, Switzerland and the United States of America. But, Sir, we must appreciate that the fact that we have to buy all the capital goods necessary for our development schemes from these countries, like all other developing countries which are primarily committed to producers, we are bound to have some adverse balance of trade for some time to come. If we introduce any legislation aimed at restricting imports from countries, we shall be accused of having taken discriminatory measures in terms of international trade

(Mr. Ole Oloitiplip) and this is going to involve some retaliatory measures against us, especially by countries with whom we have a favourable trade balance.

The answer to our problem, Sir, is therefore not to be found in trade restriction, but in our endeavours to create an overriding market in which all can buy and sell, and in these places we shall be able to find outlets for our products. The other aspects, Sir, for example, development aid, which a country like Britain may give to Kenya for retaining a favourable trade balance with her.

Mr. Anyleni: On a point of order, Sir, is it in order for Government to give contradictory statements to Members of Parliament and outside this House, because there was a time when this question was raised, Mr. Speaker, to the Minister for Commerce and Industry. This Minister gave us an assurance that Government had—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is quite in order, as far as Standing Orders go, for the Government to contradict or appear to contradict what has been said by Government on another occasion. It is in order for Members to draw attention to this, but not as a point of order.

Mr. Kall: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that there are only thirteen countries with which we have had adverse trade balances and the world is so large, and as we have products like coffee, tea, sisal, can the Minister assure this House that the Government will only trade with the countries which buy our produce?

Mr. Ole Oloitiplip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I cannot assure the House that the Government would trade only with the countries which buy our produce, but, Sir, we are trying our level best to persuade most of the countries who do not buy our produce to buy it.

Question No. 799

MILK DISTRIBUTION IN MOMBASA

Mr. Balala asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry if he could tell us how many milk distributors there were in Mombasa under the Kenya Co-operative Creameries responsible for supplying small milk shops with milk.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There are no milk distributors in Mombasa under the Kenya Co-operative Creameries for supplying milk to small milk shops, but there are thirteen dairies in Mombasa licensed by the Kenya Dairy Board and the Mombasa health authorities which are supposed to supply milk to the small shops.

WITHDRAWAL OF MOTION ON THE ADJOURNMENT.

BAN ON PUBLIC MEETINGS IN MURANG'A

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will now go onto the next order, but before doing so, I refer hon. Members to the note on the Order Paper which reminds them that Mr. Kagga is to raise a matter on the adjournment today. I have since heard from Mr. Kagga that he does not wish to pursue that matter, having agreed with the Minister to try and seek satisfaction outside the House. Would you confirm that you wish to withdraw it?

Mr. Kagga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to withdraw the Motion as I have agreed with the Minister to settle the matter outside the Parliament.

BILL

Second Reading

THE AGRICULTURE (AMENDMENT) BILL

(Minister for Lands and Settlement on 3rd March 1965)

Amendment:

THAT the word "now" be left out of the Motion and there be added at the end thereof the words "upon this day six months".

(Mr. Gichoya on 3rd March 1965)

(Resumption of Mover's speech on the amendment interrupted on 3rd March 1965)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before I call Mr. Gichoya to resume his speech, I would like to remind hon. Members that he is in the process of moving an amendment of the Motion for the Second Reading by deleting the word "now" and by adding at the end of the Question the words "upon this day six months hence".

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the intention of keeping this Bill in abeyance is to give the Government of Kenya an opportunity to settle it itself and then, if we can, consider more thoroughly the ways a Bill like this could assist the African settlers. I have been objecting, Sir, to the question of smallholders being called settlers and being put in a very embarrassing sort of arrangement or humiliating arrangement by the Government. Previously the settlers who used to own estates were not being pursued so much as the

[The Assistant Minister for Natural Resources] local authorities are in agreement with the general proposal.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will now go back to Mr. Mbogoh.

Question No. 915

CHILDREN'S DEATH AND EMBU CHILD WELFARE SOCIETY

Mr. Mbogoh asked the Minister for Health and Housing if the Minister could tell the House the cause of the death of seven children in the home of the Kenya Child Welfare Society at Embu during the first week of January this year.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to apologise for coming in late.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. My Ministry is trying to do everything possible within the limited financial provisions to improve facilities at Embu Hospital in accordance with my Ministry's policy—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you are on the wrong question. It is Question No. 915.

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

According to my information the seven deaths which occurred in the home of the Kenya Child Welfare Society at Embu during the three months, November, December and January, were in the first place malnutrition and pneumonia. The second was bronchial pneumonia. The third and fourth cases were measles after malnutrition. The fifth case was also bronchial pneumonia. The sixth case was gastro-enteritis. The seventh case was malaria.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, does the Assistant Minister agree with me when I say that these deaths were caused by negligence, by the refusal of the Medical Officer of Health in the district to attend this Embu Child Welfare Society home? He left a private doctor and sisters trained by missionaries there with no Medical Officer of Health to help?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the hon. Member's allegation is very untrue, because always such cases are due to lack of proper care by the parents of their own children. This is why they are normally sent to such places, what we call, Child Welfare Centres or Homes, and by then it is often too late.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister then tell this House what they are doing to prevent such deaths from occurring for the second time?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, regarding that question, I must tell the hon. Members that we have put up a children's ward at Embu which is nearly ready now. Very recently the Right Hon., the President, Jomo Kenyatta, was generous enough to offer a donation out of his own pocket of about £3,000 to aid the ward's completion. The ward is almost ready now and very soon it will be used.

Mr. Mallinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, assuming that these children did not die on arrival at this home and also taking into account the fact that these are homes where children are looked after, will the Assistant Minister agree that what the hon. Member suggested was true, that these children died as a result of negligence on the part of his Ministry's doctors?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think my answer remains the same as before. We are not going to answer questions on assumptions.

Mr. Ekeltala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, could the Assistant Minister tell me now who—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You had better not raise any more points of order or you may find that you will be sent out of the Chamber.

Question No. 916

EMBU HOSPITAL: IMPROVEMENT IN SERVICES

Mr. Mbogoh asked the Minister for Health and Housing:

(a) what the Ministry had done to improve the services of Embu Hospital which were so inadequate that patients preferred to go to private doctors?

(b) could the Minister tell the House why in this hospital patients' rations had to be cut during the month of January.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) My Ministry is trying to do everything possible, within the limited financial provision, to improve facilities at Embu Hospital, in accordance with my Ministry's policy of trying to provide uniform improvement in all hospitals run by this Ministry in the Republic of Kenya.

(b) According to my information, there has been no cut in the rations issued during the month of January.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, can I take it that cut in rations for [Mr. Mbogoh] patients was not issued by the Ministry but by the dressers who are running the hospital?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the position remains the same. It is true that, according to my own record, the rations issued in December 1964 to January 1965 were identical and consisted of: 1 lb. beans; 9 lb. maize corn; 22 lb. maize meal; 20 lb. meat; 5 lb. rolls for soup; 14 lb. liver; 1 lb. onions; 32 pints fresh milk; 30 lb. potatoes; 9 lb. rice; 2 lb. salt; 8 lb. sugar; 20 lb. green vegetables; 1 lb. tea; 3 lb. jaggers; 3 lb. wimbi; 6 lb. cheese; 1 lb. curry powder. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, this allegation is untrue.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the repeated warnings to the Ministry that there was some swindling going on in this hospital, does the Assistant Minister then pledge his Ministry to investigate his swindling in the hospital, and report it accordingly?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will not deny an investigation into what we call "allegations", whenever necessary and should we find it true that there has been any swindling in any hospital, it will be our duty at the Ministry to make sure that such things do not happen any more.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the Assistant Minister's replies, is he now prepared to accept written documents by the members of Embu District quoting the incidents, so that he will accept the allegations and carry out an investigation?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is simple. I will accept the written documents.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Mr. Oboko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Member for Kisumu, may I be allowed to ask Question No. 927?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It can be asked at the end.

Question No. 936

TAKE-OVER OF ROADS, SOUTH NYANZA, BY MINISTRY OF WORKS

Mr. Malsori-Iumbo asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power when the Ministry of Works would take over the roads Kehacha Nyahaka and Ntumor, as the South Nyanza County Council was not in a financial position to run them.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Government do not intend to take over the roads Kehacha Nyahaka and Ntumor or any other roads from the South Nyanza County Council.

The roads in question are minor roads solely under the jurisdiction of the county council.

If the hon. Member wants any further information he should consult his county council.

Mr. Malsori-Iumbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my argument is that the county council is in a difficult financial position, therefore can the Minister not authorize the Regional Road Authority to take over these roads and run them?

Mr. Mwanjumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Member was helpful to his county council, he would persuade members of that county to pay cordially to the county council so that they have sufficient revenue to maintain these roads.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, could the Minister assure this House that, if the people have paid their rates fully to the county council, and yet they are still short of the finance for the jobs to be done, he will take over these roads if the county council fails to operate them?

Mr. Mwanjumba: No, Sir.

Question No. 939

MONEY SPENT ON SETTLEMENT SCHEMES

Mr. Agar asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement if he would inform the House how much money had been spent by the Government on settlement schemes at:—

(a) Lambwe Valley;

(b) Muhoroni Settlement Scheme, between June 1964 up to date?

What amount of money had been given as a loan to each farmer in the scheme?

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) The Ministry of Lands and Settlement does not operate and is not aware of any settlement scheme at Lambwe Valley.

(b) A sum of £134,945 has been spent on Muhoroni Settlement Scheme between June 1964 and February 1965.

Each settler on the schemes is given £185 land loan and £215 development loan.

Mr. Kericho: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it has been expressed again and again in this House that Muhoroni is Kipsigis land.

[The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism]

House that, under the Constitution, complete freedom of expression is guaranteed to the Press in Kenya. The Press is fully aware of the Government's policy on nation building and have been advised to be constructive in their reporting. The final decisions as to what is to be published rests entirely with the editors of the newspapers. They have also to consider whether the news is of value, educative and marketable.

Mr. Kericho: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister agree with me that he has told the Pressmen from Baraza, East African Standard, Daily Nation and Taiifa to sing only the tunes of the Ministers?

Mr. Achleng-Onoko: Mr. Speaker, I think that is a misleading question. Really, my answer stands as the one I have just given. It is entirely no.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, do I understand that some papers belong to certain Ministers and these papers have pledged to give publicity to the Ministers only?

Mr. Achleng-Onoko: Mr. Speaker, if this remark had been in the nature of an ordinary remark I would have asked the hon. Member to substantiate. However, because it is such an important question, I would like to inform the House that I have no knowledge whatsoever of a Minister or an Assistant Minister owning or having shares in any of the leading newspapers in Nairobi.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, would the Minister tell the House whether—by suggesting that the Press should only publish a statement when they think it is "nation-building"—he means that only statements made by Ministers and Assistant Ministers are nation-building and this does not apply to other Members of Parliament?

Mr. Achleng-Onoko: Mr. Speaker, when I referred to the policy of nation-building I did not intend to say that is what they are required to do. That is the policy which, of course, every Member of this House is interested in and also responsible for.

The newspapermen will also have to take into consideration whether the news is marketable, not too repetitive, because as it is known, some Members do repeat themselves.

Mr. Warthithi: Mr. Speaker, can the Minister tell the House why it is that when there are public meetings and at these meetings you have a Minister and other Members of Parliament, the only speeches reported are those made by the Ministers and usually there is not even a mention that there was a Member of Parliament present?

Mr. Achleng-Onoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is untrue.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for a Minister to continue denying that only Ministers' speeches are reported in the newspapers when it is true? Is it, therefore not in order for hon. Members to go to the library to bring newspapers to substantiate this?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Of course, it is in order for a Minister when answering questions to say, yes, or no. He can also say whether it is true or untrue. It is equally in order for hon. Members to adduce material by way of supplementary questions to suggest that the Minister is wrong.

Mr. Achleng-Onoko: Mr. Speaker, I was going to elaborate on that, because I can also produce a report where Members of Parliament have been mentioned in the newspapers as well as on the radio.

Mr. Kagula: Mr. Speaker, as the Minister has said, that it is untrue, could he answer and tell this House why at the two meetings we had, one in Nanyuki, and other one in Nyeri last month, which he attended, no other speaker was reported except him?

Mr. Achleng-Onoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the reporting of that particular meeting referred to was given full coverage on the radio, but what the newspapers did with their reporting, because most of the newspapermen were not at Nanyuki, is not my responsibility or of my Ministry.

Mr. Anyleni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if it is true that there is no pressure, could the Minister give an account of one meeting which took place in Mumaga's, where the papers and radio reported that there were 20,000 people present, and they issued an apology the following day stating that there were only 2,000 people?

Mr. Achleng-Onoko: Mr. Speaker, I think that is a different question altogether, because that was referring to the number of the people who attended the meeting and not the reporting, and I think these are two different questions.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Will the Minister agree with me that it is only natural and internationally true that the foreign press, or the press in an independent country run by foreigners, will always have interests of the Ministers at heart?

Mr. Achleng-Onoko: That is not true, because although we have some newspapers here which are partly controlled by outside businessmen or overseas businessmen, they are serving the country very reasonably.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister give this House an assurance that a pressman, who in his opinion, thinks that the nation is being built wrongly, would have every freedom to express his opinion without him sitting on him?

Mr. Achleng-Onoko: I am not going to give that assurance.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think hon. Members have had quite a good run on this question. We will go on now.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 812: PRESS STATEMENTS BY MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT

Mr. Anyleni: May I be allowed, Mr. Speaker, to raise this matter on an adjournment, at the earliest possible time?

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 821

CO-OPERATIVE OFFICERS IN KERICHO DISTRICT

Mr. arap Sol asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing:—

(i) How many Co-operatives Officers were operating in Kericho District?

(ii) Why Co-operatives Societies had been formed in the district?

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngel): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

There is one Co-operative Officer operating in Kericho District.

Secondly, it is the Government's stated policy to encourage Co-operative Societies throughout the country, and this policy is being vigorously pursued in Kericho District.

Mr. arap Sol: Would the Minister explain to the House which officer he means, because the officer who was stationed at Kericho has been transferred to Nakuru?

Mr. Ngel: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Co-operative Officer now operating in Kericho District is an officer of the Department of Co-operative Development, but he is financed by the Department of Settlement. At present, he is stationed at Kisumu, but he is shortly to move to a house on the Sotik Settlement Scheme which is being provided by the Department of Settlement. He was posted to Kericho in August 1964 to succeed another Co-operative Officer who left for training courses overseas.

Mr. arap Sol: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the officer he mentions is coming to work specially on the settlement scheme, does he agree with me that the co-operatives will not be formed at the same speed in other parts of the country, or in the reserves, as on the settlement schemes?

Mr. Ngel: I do not know what the hon. Member means when he says "reserves", whether he means settlement areas, or the African Land Unit. But, I have stated very clearly that this Co-operative Officer is at the moment in Kisumu, and will be moved very shortly to Kericho. As to how the Co-operative Societies are going to be formed, will depend on the manpower and ability of the Ministry for Co-operatives and Marketing.

Question No. 824

GALANA RIVER GAME SCHEME

Mr. Komora asked the Minister for Natural Resources if the Minister had any plans to expend and maintain satisfactorily the Galana River Game Management Scheme for the purpose of its present revenues?

The Assistant Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Mohamed): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The Galana River Game Management Scheme was initially started four years ago, with the grant of £10,000 from the Nuffield Foundation. It was intended as an experiment in the employment of Members of the Waliangu tribe on organized game management schemes. The experiment has been successful in that, in addition to supporting an average of seventy-five families, it also maintains two game wards. The scheme covers an area which has extensive parts of grass land in the centre. It is considered that this area can be more fully and profitably exploited in a combined scheme in cattle ranching as well as culling of game.

Such an extend scheme, with its commercial implications, can best be run by a commercial firm, and we, therefore, intend to put the scheme to a commercial enterprise, subject to conditions which will ensure that the best interests of game preservation are protected. The details of these conditions are still being worked out, and the

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order, but we will treat it as a supplementary question. Can you answer that, Mr. Mos?'

Mr. arap Moi: I do not want to go into the pros and cons. That is a figure I have given to the Members.

Mr. TAAHI: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could we be told by the Minister why, when you buy these carvings from the Prisons Department, they are more expensive than the carvings that are sold by the private men in the streets?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in reply to that question, I would like to enlighten the Members of this House that the articles and items produced by prisoners are of the best quality and they are sold at the same price.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will now go onto the next question.

Mr. Mhogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask Question 915.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will go onto the next question, as the Minister is not here, and hope that the Minister will be here later.

Mr. EKITELLA: Mr. Speaker, my point of order is this: Is it in order when a Member puts a question in this House, for the Minister not to be present.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, I have on many occasions answered that point of order; there is no Standing Order in this House which compels a Minister to be here to answer questions. Of course, whenever there is no one here to answer a question, the House can register dissatisfaction in various ways; very often, though, we give Ministers time to come later as with Back-benchers who have not been here to ask their questions but we find these here before we reach the end of the questions.

Question No. 814

NANDI SETTLERS IN THE SHIMBA HILLS

Mr. Mwanzandi asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry to tell the House:

- The number of Nandi settlers in the Shimba Hills Settlement Scheme who had abandoned their shambas and gone away?
- Why they had decided to leave the scheme?
- Had they already repaid the loans granted to them under the scheme?

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply, the answer to the first part of the question is ninety; to the second part of the question, for health reasons and also due to the opening of settlement schemes in the Nandi area, making it possible for them to acquire land nearer home. There was also the difficulty of keeping livestock, with tsetse fly and shortage of milk. And to "e", all loans lent by the Government have been repaid before the Nandi settlers left the schemes, as no farm would have been exchanged by settlers who have loans outstanding.

Mr. Mwanzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that the reason many people left their shambas is not for health reasons, but because of the inadequate help they get from the Government?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware of this, because I am satisfied that they get adequate help from the Government.

Mr. Mwanzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that they get only a loan for two acres— They only are assisted on two acres?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the hon. Member asking whether these people are given loans on only two acres of their land?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Would you like to elaborate your question, Mr. Mwanzandi?

Mr. Mwanzandi: Mr. Speaker, When a man goes to the Shimba Settlement Scheme, the Government is only helping the people with two acres, is he aware of that, or is he not?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, some of the farmers in this area were given adequate aid in the form of oxen, farm implements and poultry. Because of poor repayment of this loan, this was stopped sometime back.

Mr. Masudhi: Arising from that reply, is the Assistant Minister aware that, as it is generally elsewhere, the loans given to many settlers are not enough in relation to the plots given; Loans given to develop only two acres on a plot of ten acres?

Mr. Osogo: That question is not my concern. Mr. Speaker, this particular settlement scheme happens to come under my Ministry but loan schemes for other settlement areas is not the concern of my Ministry, but Mr. Speaker, I will assure the hon. Members that loans given to this particular settlement scheme were sufficient and are managed by the Administration and my Ministry.

Mr. Omeri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Assistant Minister holds that reason why these settlers are abandoning their settlement schemes, has he not thought of these settlers with other people who are prepared to take over, not considering the distance from Shimba Hills Settlement Scheme to their former homes?

Mr. Osogo: Yes, Sir, My Ministry is considering this point at the moment and if there are applicants who can bear the difficulties that these settlers have run away from we shall definitely settle them in this area.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies given by the Assistant Minister, is he aware that the two acres, that the settlers are usually helped with by his Ministry to enable them to clear the land, are completely destroyed then by elephants around this settlement scheme, and his Ministry has done nothing to protect the farms?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we in the Ministry, are aware of the destruction caused by wild game and we are doing all we can to negotiate with the Ministry of Natural Resources to try and control the animals.

Mr. Ngala: Arising from the statement that the Minister is aware of this destruction which is the cause of these people abandoning their farms, can we know when the Minister will facilitate negotiations with the hon. Minister, who is sitting on the same bench, to alleviate the position?

Mr. Osogo: At no time, Sir, have I suggested that the cause of these people abandoning their farms has been caused by wild animals, but we are sure that animals are destroying crops in many parts, not only in this area. At present we are negotiating with the Ministry of Natural Resources and, of course, the negotiations will depend on how much money we have to give to the Ministry of Natural Resources to try and keep the animals fenced in. Now, this, of course, as the hon. Members know, depends mostly on the finances that Government has. However, if the hon. Member is suggesting that my Ministry should go shooting the wild animals which would cripple an industry which is so important to the Ministry of Natural Resources, then this should be suggested to us.

Question No. 843

AFRICANIZATION: POSTS IN THE MARIAKANI MILK PLANT

Mr. Mwatama asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry if the Minister could tell the House when the posts of Manager and Assistant Manager of Mariakani Milk Plant would be Africanized.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The posts of Manager and Assistant Manager of the Mariakani Milk Plant will be localized when suitable local officers are available.

Mr. Omar: Arising from the reply by the Assistant Minister, Mr. Speaker, could he tell us what qualifications are required for the posts of Manager and Assistant Manager for the Mariakani Milk Plant?

Mr. Osogo: One must be qualified in dairy work to qualify for these posts.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Assistant Minister replying to the question said that these posts would be "localized" but the word in the question is "Africanized". Do we understand that there is no difference between the words "localized" and "Africanized"?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. That is not a point of order. It can be raised by way of supplementary question if you are called.

Mr. Ngala: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, can the Assistant Minister tell us when the African who is understudying the Manager of the Mariakani Milk Plant can take over because he has been there far too long?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, we have a student at the Egerton College now studying the science of dairy work and he will come in June next year.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, you say that I might raise a supplementary question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If you are called.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Yes, Sir, if called upon.

Question No. 812

PRESS STATEMENTS BY MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT

Mr. Kerich asked the Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism whether Pressmen had been put under pressure not to publish statements made by Members of Parliament.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Information (Mr. Achieng-Onoko): No, Sir. No pressure has been brought to bear on Pressmen not to publish statements made by Members of Parliament. I have repeatedly reminded this

[The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence] fighting for secession. They have finally abandoned this question.

It is suggested that perhaps our Intelligence Service is either faulty or does not know what is going on. Our Intelligence Service is doing its best and I would suggest that this Service depends upon every man and woman in this country to do his job properly; and particularly hon. Members who happen to know who the culprits are, who the criminals are, where they are; they should bring this information to the right quarters. We will destroy them without mercy.

Platoons of the General Service Unit were sent to the Samburu area very recently and extra police were added to the ordinary police force already there. In addition twenty-four extra Tribal Police have been employed. We do not want to do anything without good reason. We want to hurry slowly and get good results. If hon. Members can help us, we will do everything possible to help you. Every loyal citizen of Kenya is entitled to the maximum protection under the law, and protective measures are being taken, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in that area and for everybody else.

Also, Mr. Speaker, the House may be glad to know that there were a number of police posts which have been closed.

Hon. Members: Why? Why?

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Because the General Service Unit were being taken elsewhere. Now these police posts, including one at a place called Serolevi, are to be reopened. Plans for the re-establishment of a police post at Serolevi are already agreed upon. The only thing which the Government is waiting for is money and as soon as this money is available it will be reopened. I must say that the Government is determined to protect the Samburu in the same way as anybody else. Whatever happens, we shall protect them.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. We have had half an hour for this discussion and we must conclude now.

The House is adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, 4th March, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at Seven o'clock.

Thursday, 4th March 1965

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERS

PAPERS LAID

The following Papers were laid on the Table:

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 907

SALE OF PRISONERS' WORK,

Mr. Lorema asked the Minister for Home Affairs whether the Minister would tell the House through what system the carvings and any other woodwork made by the prisoners in jail were sold.

The Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The system by which carvings and any other woodwork made by prisoners are sold is that the customer, be it a Government department or a private customer, places an order with the Prisons Department for the item required. This system applies to all prison industries. On accepting the order, private customers are required to make a deposit of 75 per cent of the cost of the item and the balance is paid on delivery. In the case of Government departments, no deposit is required, and the order is normally in the form of a local purchase order.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, would the Minister tell the House whether prisoners receive any commission out of their carvings and woodwork?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is, I think, a different question.

Mr. ole Tipla: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the hon. Minister tell us how many contractors or how many Government departments buy these carvings from the Prisons Department?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are so many orders placed by different departments and different individuals and therefore I do not have to admit that the number of people who are coming are in large numbers.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister inform this House, how much money was obtained from works done by the prisoners in the year 1964?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is true that that one is a different question. I would like to enlighten the Members that my Ministry is a productive Ministry and they produced last year about £172,000.

Mr. Kalli: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think the questioner asked how much money the Ministry produced, but only how much money the Prison Department received?

[Mr. Rurumban] drought, because, Mr. Speaker, the divisions cannot accommodate all the people, nor can the land carry their stock. I want my people to be free, and also I want the Government to take any action which is necessary to achieve that end.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I urge the Government to take the following steps which I hope will be effective to combat the Shifita activity. First, I urge the Government to employ or recruit 400 tribal policemen so that the outposts which were deserted because of fear of Shifita could be used again. Each outpost should have a sufficient strength of force. Mr. Speaker, I would also like the Government to declare that particular area of lease-hold land as an Emergency area. This is a long-term business, because we are sure that we shall be attacked by these Somalis for years and years. The Shifita are Somalis, and the Somalis are Shifita.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, can the hon. Member substantiate that all the Somalis are Shifita?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member may be justified in saying that Shifita are Somalis, but he has gone too far in saying or implying that all Somalis are Shifita. He must withdraw that.

Mr. Rurumban: I was also asking the Government to make a provision to employ all the ex-K.A.R., ex-policemen, ex-tribal policemen as home guards to protect this area.

Mr. ole Tipis: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this is one of the most serious Motions, and I hope the Assistant Minister is taking it very seriously. I see that his eyes are wide open.

Firstly, Sir, the Government is charged with a heavy duty and responsibility, not only for protecting the lives and property of the inhabitants of this beautiful land. They cannot, by any means, try to pretend that all is well, as far as security measures are concerned. We have had these troubles, as far as tribal clashes and fights are concerned, since this country became independent, and there must be something wrong somewhere. This House is entitled to ask the Government most earnestly and seriously to reconsider the position. We have been told that Kenya has a strong army, navy, air force, police, and the G.S.U. Well, where have these forces been? What are they doing when people are being massacred?

Now, Mr. Speaker, this incident of the Samburu is very serious indeed, and consequently, the Samburu have suffered several raids, simply because the neighbouring tribes are friendly to them. This Government just sits and pretends that all is well, and we want to tell them that either they protect the Samburu or else they arm the Samburu so that they can protect themselves. It is no good boasting that we have a strong army and police and so on when these people are being buggered all.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must not use such language within the precincts of this House, Mr. Tipis.

Mr. ole Tipis: I withdraw that phrase, Sir.

Mr. Speaker, the position is quite clear. The Shifita are armed with automatic firearms, smuggled from across the border of our country, while the Samburu are merely armed with spears. If this Government cannot protect the Samburu then, of course, we would like them to be allowed to smuggle firearms in order to protect themselves. It is as clear as that. It is no good hon. Members sitting here and shaking their shoulder.

Mr. Speaker, we want to know whether the Intelligence Branch of our Government is still as active as it used to be, because my information is, Sir, that when the Samburu were attacked, the Shifita had planned and succeeded in removing from the area, their wives and children, together with all their moveable property, to areas of safety before their attack took place. This was not only known to the police, to the administration but to the C.I.D. and the Intelligence Branch. Surely, they must have used their common sense to realize that something serious was cooking somewhere? So, they should have taken immediate action to find out what that was! Mr. Speaker, twelve people were massacred. We would like to know everything, because we understand this incident was reported to the District Commissioner of Maralal. He said he had nothing to do with the incident, he could not do anything, he could not arrest the ringleaders in whose homes the wives and children were moved to. What sort of a Government is this?

To make things more serious, Mr. Speaker, the security forces followed the Samburu who were rightly horrified by the terrors that had taken place. The security forces followed the Samburu and shot dead two innocent people.

We want to be told whether the strong army we are talking about, the navy and the air force, is there to shoot our innocent people.

In such a serious issue the Government should act, and act quickly. Every now and then, Sir, we hear of border clashes elsewhere. Not only in Samburu District, but in places like Khat Masal, Turkana, and the Kipsigis, everywhere

[Mr. ole Tipis] are clashes. Is the Government just sitting there, doing nothing? Why did these incidents not take place when the imperialists were there? If we were quick to move and quick to act at the right time, rather than just say that we are inspecting the situation, these things would not happen today. Something must be done. We do not want inspection, we want action.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister is laughing. Was he laughing while our people were being murdered? I do not think so because he is an intelligent man.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, in order to allow the Assistant Minister to answer the various questions, I will not speak long, but only say this. The Samburu have been more than tolerant. They have sent petitions and delegations to almost every person in the higher offices of the Government. They have been attacked time and time again. They have not retaliated, because they believed that an African Government was going to protect them and bring those responsible to a court of law to be properly punished. So if this Government has failed in the discharge of its duties then let it make the situation a free for all. Let the people obtain weapons and defend themselves. Then the Government will not be in a position to complain, because, when it could do something, it did nothing.

Mr. Speaker, we do not want words, but action now.

Sir, I assist to support.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am glad to have heard what hon. Members have said in this debate. The Government is certainly not interested in inhumanity. The things which happened in Samburu area here, in some cases, been, unfortunately, true, and I will tell you in a moment the decisions the Government has taken and the plans the Government has to try to put an end to the inhumanity in that area.

I must also say here that, despite whatever happened, the Government appreciates and I am sure will continue to appreciate, the law-abiding nature of the Samburu people. They have, of course, asked for a lot of things in the past. They have been asking for a number of things. Now, we do not ignore this and we appreciate it.

The hon. Mr. ole Tipis spoke of smuggling hand-fir, guns, into the country and suggested that we should allow the Samburu to smuggle arms in. Of course, the Government cannot allow anybody to smuggle.

Further, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government does not agree with the syllogism that all Somalis are Shifita. This man is a Somali, therefore he is a Shifita. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is known that, within a period of nine to ten days during the month of February, a number of raids took place on innocent Samburu and a number of people were killed. The Government is not only a Government of the Samburu in Samburu areas. Like my friend the hon. Mr. ole Tipis said, there are border raids everywhere and the Government is looking into these border raids everywhere. The incidents which took place in the Samburu area, burnings and so on, are being looked into. The police is doing everything possible. I shall give you a few more details of this later on.

Now, the Samburu and some Boran thought it fit to take the law into their own hands. Even in this, one appreciates, of course, why they did this: because they were angry. If the Somalis who are armed with guns go and do all sorts of things why should the Samburu not do anything? That is how they felt. As a matter of fact, Sir, these folk are not Shifita at all. The Shifita are on the run. They are afraid of engaging with any of our security forces. These people are concerned only with looting and stealing. These are their main activities. They are ordinary folk who want to steal and who want to do the things which are not good. Mr. Speaker, it is not easy to know who is a Shifita. Some hon. Member here called me a Shifita. The retaliation which, at one stage, involved the unfortunate death of some Samburu was because the people, instead of leaving the matter to the police, went and murdered everybody they met.

The police will look into these incidents if you report to them. We are not satisfied with that. We have been going on, trying to give the Samburu the protection they need. We are trying to give them the best protection in Kenya like anybody else.

The criminal element in the particular area are now being followed up and the police and the security forces are unrelenting in their efforts to bring the gangsters to court. All hon. Members can rest assured that the situation is constantly under vigilance; that the commanders of our security forces over there will deploy their forces if necessary, wherever there may be people who are trying to be gangsters.

Also, Mr. Speaker, the Government is determined to pursue these gangsters ruthlessly wherever they are found and it is up to hon. Members to show us who they are and where they are. As you know, there are very few people now

[The Assistant Minister, President's Office] if he would be prepared to take them into account, will help him as well as the settlers to a very large extent, so that although we will give him the powers he seeks, we will be in a position to ensure that the settlers will not be unduly victimized.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this morning when I was looking through this Bill I decided to go through the principal Act, the Agricultural Act of 1952. Now, this Act, Sir, was primarily intended to cater for the European settled areas and it was intended for all practical purposes for European settlers. Now, that is the whole Act, and that is the Act we are trying to amend. The Minister himself has said that a certain part of this principal Act gives the Minister for Agriculture certain powers and indeed it does. My question is, why cannot the Minister for Lands and Settlement do this jointly with the Minister for Agriculture so that the powers which the Minister for Agriculture has, to help the farmers or the settlers under the principal Act, could also help the settlers in the settlement schemes.

Now, what are these facilities. Mr. Deputy Speaker, which the principal Act accords to the European settlers in the Scheduled Areas? First, Mr. Deputy Speaker, under the principal Act you have some provisions, in section 100 of the principal Act, whereby the chief executive officers in various provinces could send—it reads, Mr. Deputy Speaker (this is actually as regards the registering of all farmers): "Chief executive officers shall send by post to every person who, in his opinion, will or is likely to produce an essential crop and who is registered as the owner or occupier of agricultural land or such farms relating to farming operations concerning the production of essential crops."

Now, the first thing, Sir, which the Government should do, which the Minister for Lands and Settlement should also ask the Minister of Agriculture to help in is to register all these settlers and I hope he does. There are certain benefits in registering these farmers. Under the same Act, you come again to section 110 where you find the provisions of guaranteed minimum returns. Now what does this mean? Having guaranteed minimum returns, Mr. Deputy Speaker, a settler who is so registered is entitled to advances and grants. It says, "Every person upon whom a production approval or production order has been served shall be guaranteed by the Government such minimum returns of money for every acre of land appropriated for planting with an essential crop." Now, Sir, why cannot the Government, through the Minister for Lands and Settlement and the Minister for Agriculture, first of all register all our settlers in the settlement schemes? Secondly, give them the production orders of essential crops, which will guarantee that they will be able to raise a certain amount of money from their holdings in any given year? And, on the basis of this, the Government will be empowered to give them advances. These are the powers the Minister for Agriculture has.

It is no use trying to acquire power to turn someone out of the land unless you have given him all possible facilities to develop, that land and get the money to repay the loan.

The principal Act itself does specifically provide this, that the Government could guarantee such minimum return of money; and if the Government guarantees such a minimum return of money to every settler, then the settler will be in a position to get the money for development. As a matter of fact, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the principal Act goes on, in section 163, where it provides that "the Government may make grants or guarantee loans to be expended for agricultural development or any other agricultural purpose to any person or guarantee any credit afforded to any person for such development or purpose."

Now, Sir, what I ask the Minister for Lands and Settlement to do is to have a nice word with his colleague, so that these provisions of trying to help the farmers so that they can raise the money in other ways, not only, you know, by putting them on the land and leaving them to fate. They would be able to get the money to help them repay the loans.

Finally, Sir, I am puzzled; I do not know whether the Minister himself or the Attorney-General overlooked this point. When I read section 174, which we are requested to amend, I saw that this section deals with the power to employ staff. It would appear to me, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that the relevant section which we should be required to amend should have been section 176 or 177, because these are the sections which deal with security of advances and also deal with the remedies for recovery of advances made on land. While we should get these subsections 2 and 3 which suggests that we should get into section 174, it appears to me that this would be highly incongruous because it would not make sense. It may be that the Minister for Lands and Settlement, while this debate is going on, will have a word with the Attorney-General and see whether this was a clerical error and introduce an amendment for that purpose.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I sincerely feel that the Minister of Lands should take up the few points

[The Assistant Minister, President's Office] which I have given to him in the interests of the settlers so that the settlers who he wants to drive away from their holdings by seeking these powers, will have been afforded every opportunity available to make their holdings a success. Without doing this, I do not really see how the representatives of the people can very easily give this Minister these far reaching powers with a clear conscience.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I support the Bill.

Mr. Glehoy: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I have looked at this Bill and I have come to a very good conclusion; that this Bill should be kept pending for six months. The reasons for keeping it for six months are these. When I say six months, I mean that it should be reconsidered and amended. Now, what surprises everyone is this; we have a situation whereby the settlers referred to in the context are just mere former detainees, former prisoners, former landless, who otherwise have nothing in their possession. They are in fact typically poor people. It would be wrong, Sir, if instead of facilitating their ways of earning a living, we make it very difficult for any African who is poor, to accept to become a settler. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have seen in my own area 400 plots which were given to the former freedom fighters according to our President's instructions. These people were unable to go into those areas which were given to them by the Government because they were told they had to produce some money first. They were all given as gifts, otherwise. This money was the so-called fee to allow them to be settled in that area. I thought that when these plots were being given to the new settlers, the former freedom fighters, poor people, the intention was to make it possible for them to be settled, to have a settled life. But consequently, the way the Ministry of Lands and Settlement handled the situation, it proved that there was no sincere intention whatsoever, for the Ministry of Settlement to get these people settled, to make them feel that they are being given a place to live in under the sun. The condition which was made, that they had to pay so much, was to make it very difficult for them to even start a normal life.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, Africans who are being settled are accepted to be poor people. If this Bill was meant to cover those people who are buying large acreages of land, we would have supported it, but now the Bill is dealing with the peasants who call settlers. It is even, in grammatical terms, wrong to call a man who holds a plot a settler. It is wrong grammatically to call him a settler. So far as my knowledge goes, the practice in Kenya has been to call settlers those people who have estates and estates. It would not be surprising if the Minister for Settlement was a settler. He might be one of the settlers. There has been a tendency by the Ministers of this Government to buy the best lands up which were either abandoned or were sold by a willing settler. Because the Minister is a Member of Government—

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am seeking your ruling on this. Is the hon. Member right in implying that hon. Ministers of this House have chosen the best land and bought it?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I do not think there is anything wrong for the hon. Member to say that. The Minister can reply whether that land that they have bought is the best land or not. It is a question which concerns agricultural policy. The Minister could deny it, if the Minister for Land and Settlement is here. He could deny it if such is the case, but there is nothing as far as I can see which stops the Member alleging this.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is not right that the hon. Member should substantiate that a Minister has bought the best land?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes, if you ask that, it can be substantiated.

Mr. Glehoy: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Assistant Minister understands English, he would not have brought up that question. I said, and I used a very good word, "might". So, what, Sir, should I substantiate when I said "might"—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, no. That is not enough. You cannot get away from an allegation by saying "might have done so", because you might, for example, tomorrow say that you feel that, in fact that is an allegation. You have either to say on what basis you make that allegation that they have bought them, or either withdraw.

Mr. Glehoy: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I will put it this way. Last year we were just standing near the gate outside Parliament Buildings, the Minister—and I will mention the name of the Minister, the Minister then for Education who is now Minister for Health—did say to us, those who were there, that when the hon. Member for Aberdare, Mr. Kariuki, said that Ministers were

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Will you now move that the House doth agree with the Committee of the said report?

BILL

Second Reading

THE AGRICULTURE (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that The Agriculture (Amendment) Bill be read a Second Time.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, sections 167 to 183 of the Agriculture Act relate to land settlement and are thus the concern of the Ministry of Lands and Settlement even though that Act as a whole is the responsibility of the Ministry of Agriculture. Section 174 of the Act provides that where the Settlement Fund Trustees have made an advance to a settler for land purchase or for development and secured it on his land, the trustees in order to recover the advance, may take all the same steps for its recovery as are permitted to the Land Bank including the taking possession and selling by public auction of the land in question. However, it is not possible to secure an advance by way of a charge registered against the title until such a title has been issued to the settler, and issue of title has been held up owing to delays in completion of surveys, largely caused by the failure of settlers to hedge their easings. Survey plans are produced from aerial photographs and it would be wasteful to take such photographs until all the hedges have been planted. As a result a large part of the money advanced to settlers by the Settlement Fund Trustees is not secured on the land, and section 174 is of no help in recovering such advances when they become overdue. At present, the only method of recovering such advances is to sue the defaulters in a civil court which is a slow and cumbersome process.

The amount billed as at 31st December 1964, Mr. Speaker, on all settlement schemes amounts to £396,000. Of this, Mr. Speaker, £230,000 had been paid by the end of January 1965, and it is estimated that by the 30th June 1965 at least 90 per cent of the outstanding money will be paid. While many of our settlers are five or six months late in making their payments they are trying their very best and we are quite confident that 80 per cent of our settlers will meet their dues. However, there is a hard-core of people who are not making any attempt whatever to pay their bills and out of some 20,000 settlers already on the land roughly 562 settlers have had the whole of their accounts or part of it outstanding for over twelve months. It is toward these chronic non-payers that this Bill is directed.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in order to provide, a much simpler and more rapid means of recovery of advances not secured by a charge registered against a title to land, it is now proposed in this Bill, Mr. Speaker, to add two new subsections to section 174 of the Agriculture Act. The first subsection is designed to enable the trustees to recover the advances (and interest) as a civil debt recoverable summarily under the Debts (Summary Recovery) Act, which provides a quick court procedure followed by imprisonment for an adjudged debtor who still refuses to pay in spite of the court's order.

The second subsection authorizes the trustees to regain ownership and possession of the land from the defaulting settler where the money owed by him has been outstanding for more than six months without having to take the matter to the court. Hon. Members may be assured that the powers conferred on the trustees by the two new subsections will not be abused, since the trustees and their staff are anxious to see the settlers make a success of their holdings. These powers will only be exercised against persistent defaulters who are clearly never going to make a success of their settlement scheme plots and who are merely standing in the way of other capable would-be settlers.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to speak on this Bill and I think I can see why it has become necessary for the Minister for Lands and Settlement to bring this Bill. I once spoke here about our being faced with this problem, in the Ministry of Lands and Settlement, particularly for those settlers who have been settled, and I know that through this Bill the Minister is trying to recover money which he considers to be in arrears from the settlers. But, in fact, Sir, and this is a way I think the Bill is very unfortunate, and there is no need for it to be produced, he knows that settlers who have been selected to settle on given farms or plots have nothing, they are poor people, and we have to maintain them for some time. If possible they should remain on that land for a period of more than twelve months to enable them to obtain something from the land in order to start repaying their loans. But here, Sir, a settler is given a plot and within six months a Minister or the Ministry expects money from this person. This is a very wrong calculation. I do not know under which section the Minister is trying to say that a person shall have raised money from the land within six months. This happens in all areas, particularly the area which I represent, and I know that people who are settled now will find this difficult for the simple reason that we have only season in a year. If a person is settled, say in early December, this person or group will be able to start repaying their instalments in December of the following year. If they are settled in the middle of the year, say, the month of June, May or July, they should be expected to remain on such a farm for more than eighteen months because they went to the farm after the season for planting was over, without the chance to prepare their field to enable them to plant anything from which they could get some money.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry to interrupt you, Mr. Masinde, but I do not want hon. Members to debate a Bill on misunderstanding of what it says; and what this Bill refers to is money being over due for a certain period, say, for six months, beyond the time when it became due. It does not actually deal with the terms of payment. That may be one year or twelve years, for all I know. So we must not be confused that this Bill is saying that payment is to be within six months of taking possession. It is when money has been overdue for six months from whatever the official date of payment may be.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do understand the Bill very well but I think there is a terrible misunderstanding in the Bill itself. I know what has been happening in the drought, most of the settlers refused to start repaying their loan after six months due to the fact that they had just occupied their land and they had no money to start repaying their loan. It is on this count that the Ministry has no certain way of prosecuting them except to find a way of introducing this Bill. The argument still remains that whether this Bill goes through or not, these people—I know that they would be subject to imprisonment if this Bill goes through but they would be imprisoning people who do not deserve this punishment for the simple reason that the time limit is very short. That is why it would be necessary to specify in this Bill for how long a person is supposed to be on the land and when he should start repaying. It is for that reason, Sir, that I think the limit of six months should be deleted and re-worded properly by saying that a person should remain on the land for at least twelve months and thereafter should start to repay his loan. If it is not worded like that I can see the danger, Sir, it would remain like that and that is all. That is why I think that this Bill is unfortunate and I do not think that the House could approve this for the simple reason that we have to accept the time and the period and the season in which the person could raise the money.

With this, Sir, I beg to oppose the Bill.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, although I nodded for seconding this Bill, I am seconding it with some reservations.

Firstly, it is the policy of this Government to make land settlement all over the country a success. We do not want to be faced with a situation in six or nine months' time from now that all the people, we have settled in various settlement schemes in Kenya are turned out and their holdings taken by the Minister for Lands and Settlement, to be allotted to other prospective settlers. We, I hope, accept that once an allotment of land has been given it should be given to that settler who would make it a success. There is nothing wrong, in my speaking as a lawyer, for the Minister to require the powers he is seeking, but there is this very serious implication to which I have referred. Once the Minister has these powers his representatives will go around and if settlers have defaulted in making payments, they will very rightly turn out these settlers, and, of course, we, the representatives of the people, will have the weight of this on our shoulders. I would like to suggest a few points to the Minister which,

[The Minister for Works, Communications and Power]

This is merely a reference to a law which had been in force in India, which was debated here in the country, and which, in fact, is in force now. There is no question of taking anything from India. This is merely a reference to a law which is already in our law books. It was merely an Act, we call it the Land Acquisition Act, that they had in 1894 in India. It was the acquisition of land by Government from individual titles such as we have in Africa. Therefore, there is no fear about this law being applied to the country.

Some Members had sought an assurance from the Government about the partnership which I had mentioned of the company which is going to run the scheme; we call it the Tana River Development Company. I have mentioned that this company was going to be operated by only four partners, that is Government, the Commonwealth Development Corporation, East African Power and Lighting Company, and Power Securities.

Mr. Speaker, there is no question of the Government being, perhaps, as some Members fear, bullied by these other companies. The Government has not said anything at all in bringing about these loans. The loan has been raised by the Commonwealth Development Corporation in London, together with Power Securities in London, for which I am very thankful, because without their efforts and their assistance in this matter, we would never have raised this amount of money.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I repeat again that once the company has paid back the loan which, we have estimated will be in ten to fifteen years' time, the Government will own the project, the electricity project, 100 per cent. That is what the terms of the agreement with this company are, that the Government will own the company and the State company. Therefore, there should be no fear from any hon. Member that we are being, perhaps, colonized again by foreign money magnates in the United Kingdom, or other places. It is merely a loan that we have sought from the United Kingdom. We are satisfied, Mr. Speaker, that the terms of the loan are agreeable to the Government.

Mr. Speaker, the hon. Mr. Masinde asked whether it was going to be possible to cover all areas with electricity, and whether Western Province was going to be supplied with this electricity. I have said, Mr. Speaker, that that is what Government intends to do. We intend to flow back electricity to Western Kenya because the supply we have at the moment is not adequate to be able to meet the needs of the people there.

As I have said, also, referring to the question asked by the Member for Kilifi South, as to whether we are going to have electricity down at the Coast Province, this is being done, and when we are in a position to supply this, it will be made available right to Mombasa.

Another Member, the hon. Mr. Muliro, talked very strongly of why the Government does not nationalize the East African Power and Lighting Company. Mr. Speaker, I have stated on a number of occasions in this Chamber that it is not Government's intention to acquire somebody's property without compensating that person fairly. This is precisely what is happening in the East African Power and Lighting Company. If Members want to nationalize the East African Power and Lighting Company, this is perfectly all right, but what is the method of nationalizing the company? Do we just go and take this capital by force, or are we to compensate the company? Are we to use the money which we should use for expanding and getting more electricity to compensate this company merely for the sake of nationalizing? This is not happening. Mr. Speaker. If we have to take over the East African Power and Lighting Company, we must, in the first instance, look for money in order to compensate the company, and the Government is satisfied that we cannot look for money to compensate somebody if we still need electricity. Therefore, that money should be used to get more electricity instead of using it to nationalize the East African Power and Lighting Company.

Mr. Speaker, in the Constitution, it is said quite clearly, if hon. Members would like to refer to it, that we must pay fair compensation if Government has to take any property from anybody. After all, Mr. Speaker, some Members talk of nationalization and so on. How would they feel if the Government was to take over their own house and home, or take a piece of land? They would feel differently about the matter then. I believe, Mr. Speaker, this is not a very good way of securing a capital investment in the country if we have to frighten investors with this type of talk. We cannot afford, at present, Mr. Speaker, to nationalize the Company.

The hon. Member for Kilifi South, Mr. Ngala, also talked of Tanzania and Uganda having taken over electricity supplies in the country. I agree that they have done so, but they have done so by paying compensation. For example, Tanzania paid a compensation of £4 million, in order to buy out the East African Power and Lighting Company in Tanzania. Now, we think that we should have paid that amount of money, but rather than paying it by buying out a company which is running well, we should use it to develop more electricity for use in the country.

Mr. Speaker, my hon. friend, the Member for Gichoya, has talked so much about socialism, African socialism, and yet he failed to tell us what African socialism is. He did not define that African socialism. Mr. Speaker, I myself have been to socialist countries, I have been to the USSR, to China, East Germany, and many countries in the East, and I do not know what the hon. Member would think. Would he think that he could get a loan from Russia just for the sake of interest, and come and build a hospital here? Should we pay them first the money which they have given us as a loan or not, because we talk so much of this socialism, and so on.

Mr. Speaker, the same Member, the hon. Mr. Gichoya, talked about the short supply of electricity here and there in Nairobi, including his own constituency, and many other areas in the Central Province. This is precisely why the Government is going ahead with this plan to get more electricity so that we can satisfy the needs of not only big urban areas, but also rural areas. Mr. Speaker, unless Government can be given the right to acquire land for such purposes, it is going to be a long time before we achieve the purpose we are aiming at.

I was asked also by the hon. Mr. Muliro to say whether Government will have controlling powers. According to the terms of the agreement of the loan, the Government will still have controlling powers, although it will have only 25 per cent. Government will direct all the policies of this company. The Government, by that agreement, will still control the operation, and the tariffs of the company. Therefore, we are satisfied that Government will go right in the administration of the company.

Mr. Speaker, many of the problems faced by the hon. Members appear to be more or less the same, and I would not like to take much time to expand on them, except to say that I am very grateful to the hon. Members who have contributed to the debate, and I would appeal to Mr. Speaker, unless the Bill goes through, because Mr. Speaker, every piece of land is required; Government will have to negotiate with individual people here and there. It will frustrate the work of the company, it will delay the work the company is likely to undertake, and therefore, Mr. Speaker, it is extremely important that this Bill should go through, and I am fully satisfied that compensation will be given to land owners and people who own property in these areas when the need arises.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few words, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will go on to the Committee of the whole House if we have the leave of the House. Have we the leave of the House now?

(The Bill was read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the whole House today by leave of the House)

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE

(Order for Committee read)

(The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair)

IN THE COMMITTEE

(The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade) took the Chair)

THE ELECTRICITY POWER (AMENDMENT) BILL

(Classes 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11 agreed to)

(Classes 12 and 13 agreed to)

(Title agreed to)

(Clause 1 agreed to)

The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mwanumbwa will you move that the Committee do report to the House.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanumbwa): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I propose that the Committee do report to the House its consideration of the said Bill—The Electricity Power (Amendment) Bill, and its approval thereof without amendment.

(Question proposed)

(Question put and agreed to)

(The House resumed)

Report and Third Reading

THE ELECTRIC POWER (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanumbwa): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to report that a Committee of the whole House has considered the Electric Power (Amendment) Bill, 1965, and has approved the same without amendment.

[The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry]

so am I right at this juncture to move that the Mover be now called upon to reply?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes, since I have already put it once and it was negatived, I will put it again.

(Question put and agreed to)

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I take this opportunity to thank all those hon. Members who have contributed in this debate. I would like to be brief in my reply. Before I start replying to individual queries put by hon. Members, I would like to make one or two observations.

I want to assure this House that Government has considered this matter very carefully and that the Government is satisfied that this is the best way of expanding electricity supply in the country, the electricity supply which is so badly needed today. Government is therefore satisfied that the only way to be able to go ahead in expanding electricity supply throughout the country is to borrow loans from overseas in order to move ahead with this, very mighty project we call the Tana River Seven Forks project.

Mr. Speaker, according to the terms of the agreement we are satisfied, with the lenders of this money who are mostly companies in London, that we have borrowed this money to the satisfaction of Government, having confirmed that at the end, when the loan is finally repaid that the project will be owned by the State. I want to make it quite clear to hon. Members that the Government is going to own this project, Government is going to own the entire electricity supply in the country when the loan is repaid, which we think should be paid back in ten to fifteen years' time.

Mr. Speaker, the Government is not involved in paying any money at all. All the money has been borrowed from overseas, from elsewhere. The little money that Government has, Sir, would better be used in other social services or functions which we have in the country, which equally need a lot of money. We have things like education, we have other social services, like dispensaries and so on, and we feel that the little money we have in our Budget should be best used in developing our social side of things.

Many people have said the public here should have been asked to raise the money which we are going to use to build this project.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

Mr. Speaker, you are the Chairman of the National Fund which was started some time back, about two years ago. Up to now, I am told, the Fund has only raised £200,000. How can we expect the public who, after two years, have only been able to raise £200,000, to be able to raise millions of pounds in order to build this project?

Mr. Speaker, in November of last year this House had approved a guarantee of £6 million to begin the first phase of this Seven Forks project and that money has already been paid by the lenders in the United Kingdom. £6 million is only the first phase of this project which is going to be opened this week by His Excellency the President. I am not able to say at present how much money altogether will be needed in order to complete this very big scheme which we have. I am sure hon. Members should be very keen to see that Kenya is going ahead in the industrial programme. Mr. Speaker, we are quite sure that when this scheme is completed Kenya will lead other countries in this respect in this part of Africa.

I have been asked why we did not borrow money from other countries, why we did not borrow money from China, Russia, the United States and so on. I would like to say that it was not possible to borrow money from other countries and I would like to assure hon. Members that every step was taken to see what sort of loan would be suitable to this country, and the only way in which we found we could borrow money easily with terms agreeable to our Government was to get it from the companies in the United Kingdom which are assisted by the Commonwealth Development Corporation. We are satisfied that the conditions given in the loan are acceptable to the Government and are even better than conditions would have been had we borrowed this money from outside the United Kingdom. After all, Mr. Speaker, it is so much money that the negotiations and other details would have taken very long again if we were to begin afresh looking for this amount of money. It is more than ten years since these negotiations were begun and we are grateful that now it is coming to fruition.

Sir, this Bill actually deals with land and not so much with what type of company is going to run this project. How can we develop this country if we do not have land for such public purposes? How can we, as my friends advocate, lead towards African socialism if the State can not own even a piece of land for public purposes? How can Government ever introduce such a Bill whereas if land will not be available for such schemes as an individual person or some families, purposes; if a group of people for some selfish reasons will not part with that piece of land and it is needed for public purposes? It is imperative that Government should be given power to be able to acquire such land if it is needed for public purposes and in this particular case, Mr. Speaker, there will be a large area of land needed at Tana River for this scheme. I have said earlier that part of the land will be needed for building power stations, substations, part of the land will also be flooded by water, and it is necessary to tell this House what exactly will happen when we begin the scheme. If I am told, therefore, that we should not acquire land for this purpose how are we going to have that ample and cheap electricity which we all want.

Mr. Gichoya: Acquire land but compensate the people.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Mr. Speaker, many people have asked how we are going to compensate for the acquisition of this land.

QUORUM

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, Sir, is there a quorum in the House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have a quorum now. You may continue. Mr. Mwanjumba.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is now the third time that the House has been called to order because of lack of quorum. I do not know what hon. Members feel about it but to me it is a pity because hon. Members do not appear to be interested in what is going on in the House.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, even in our Constitution we have said there must be fair compensation if property is taken. This is so with land. Any piece of land which is taken over by Government for this purpose will be fairly compensated for. The machinery for compensation is contained in the Ministry of Agriculture which assesses the fertility of the soil, whatever is in the soil, whatever is sown, the crops and other things. There are rules already set out in the Ministry of Agriculture and there should be no worry at all as to the mode of compensating the people in these areas.

I have said that there are two or three types of land to be compensated. There is land which is owned by individual title, land which may be owned by Africans and which may not belong to one person. All these types of land are being taken care of by this Bill. Land which is owned, say, by county councils will also be taken care of and be compensated when it is found necessary to do so. Therefore, there is no fear at all, Mr. Speaker, with regard to the mode of compensation. All this is set out very carefully not only in the Constitution, but also in some of the regulations within the Government.

I have been asked to say whether electricity will be supplied to different areas of Kenya. I would like to take this opportunity to assure hon. Members that this is the very purpose why we want this electricity started, because we have very many programmes to implement in the country, we have factories already agreed by Government to be built here and there, particularly in Western Kenya. All these industries can run not unless we have sufficient electricity to run them. It is, therefore, Government's policy that when finally this electricity project is completed, electricity will be supplied to all areas of Kenya. We have already surveyed these areas in detail, but I am unable to give such details right now. However, just to assure hon. Members who have spoken, particularly the Members for Luambili, Gichugu, Kilifi South, I would say that electricity will go to Western Kenya when this project is finally completed. It will also go as far as Mombasa. All areas of the country will be taken care of. Electricity supply will also go to rural areas in all the provinces of Kenya if the need arises that we should have a supply to such areas. Certainly, the entire Central, Western, Nyanza and Coast Provinces will be supplied with such electricity.

Mr. Speaker, I do not need to emphasize that electricity is the key factor of all industrial development in this country. Unless we have sufficient electricity, Mr. Speaker, it is no good coming here and saying we want industry in this country; if we are not able to have electricity that will be able to turn the big wheels of such factories. It is vitally important, Mr. Speaker, that this Bill goes through because we are all very anxious to have electricity in our constituencies here and there in the country.

Mr. Speaker, I would now like to turn to individual remarks put forward by Members. Somebody referred to why we are using that section of the law which was quoted from India in 1894.

[The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

even in the existing set up in this particular industry the State does in fact have a measure of control of the whole policy of electricity and the charge and everything else. When this project is completed and in our own hands, we shall have a fuller measure of regulation and control.

I would have thought that these are the lines on which we should develop it, but sitting here listening to the Member for Gichugu supported by his friend from Athya-South Teu and by another Member who spoke before them, you cannot think that they are taking this matter seriously enough. It has been suggested that there is something wrong in the section which authorizes the Minister to acquire land for immediate use. My very friends who would be socialists contradict themselves because they do not want the State to have central powers of control and direction, and yet they want socialism without planning. How in the name of Heaven, Mr. Deputy Speaker, can we get it? What we are doing here is to authorize the Minister, who through plans, where we need to construct the power extensions quickly, and he will get authority to take action and not be blocked by some local interests such as expressed just now by the Member for Kilifi South. He told us that he is worried that his own piece of land is going to be part of the project and he wants to protect it. He would block it if he could.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is exactly what we want that the Minister should have powers to stop these kind of people, who only consider local, personal or family interest and would so block a national project. Again, for the would-be socialists, I would have thought this was the kind of measure which they would accept wholeheartedly; indeed congratulate the Government for once, for moving in the direction in which they have been lecturing us to move. It appears that they do not quite appreciate the meaning of all these socialist and specific things which we have preached. Mr. Deputy Speaker, it has been proposed and suggested that the existing companies should have been taken over by the State, and all that.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, perhaps this is the occasion to propose once more to the hon. Members that they should consider and say what they mean, if in favour of this new project where the State is to make a capital investment. Will any Member in this House today stand up and say to the Ministry of Works, Communications and Power that what they should have done, instead of investing the new—

The Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. McKenzie): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like your ruling. Every now and again it seems to me as if the hon. Member is reading his speech, because he does this.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Deputy Speaker, there is no speech to be read, it is the Order Paper. My hon. friend usually has a way of reading speeches which are unwritten. Not all of us have this particular habit or ability.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, what I was challenging the hon. Members with, those who stood up here and said that the existing assets ought to be taken over, is to stand up here and to tell the public, Kenya, the people they now represent, that the capital which was available to the Minister for Works, Communications and Power, should have been used to compensate the owners of the existing assets, instead of using it to invest in the new assets. This is the practical choice which faces this Ministry when we are planning. This is the practical choice which is facing all parts of Kenya today and obviously if the hon. Member are going to speak about assets being taken over, let them also acknowledge—it is in the Constitution of the Republic of Kenya—that nationalization will be with compensation. You have amazed that Constitution. I am reminded by my hon. learned lawyer friend here, that the Constitution today says "fair compensation", not just compensation.

We do not want the hon. Members to stand up and say glibly "Take over", take over somebody's assets without compensation. If you have to compensate, then it is the choice before you; whether the assets, the finance, now available to Government should be spent in compensating the owners of the existing capital assets instead of investing in an expansion.

It so happens, Mr. Deputy Speaker, as we have said in the development plan, this Government takes the view that it will be acting in the interest of this nation to invest in a new asset. This that is an addition of power, an addition of whatever other project is in progress. Therefore, I am saying that those people who stand up here and speak about socialism must recognize that this measure is more socialistic than anything they have been speaking about. When they speak of socialism and nationalization, they should be bold enough not to hide behind words, but to speak out whether or not they wish us to spend what little finance we have today in compensating owners of existing assets instead of building new ones. This we shall know that they are truly socialists and that they speak after having thought of the practical implications and meanings of their words. Otherwise, we shall very soon come to this stage where they will just enjoy themselves saying words, the meanings of which or the consequences of which they have not thought about.

[The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support this Bill.

Mr. Oelwada: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I tend to agree with all my friends who have spoken so far, including the Member for Gichugu as well as the Assistant Minister for Economic Planning. However, there is one point about which I would like to remind the Minister. That is, we already have electricity in the central part of Kenya and the proposed project is also perhaps centred in the central part of Kenya. I hope, as the Assistant Minister said, that the Minister for Communications and Power has plans to extend the consumption of electricity to other parts of Kenya. I would like to ask him, when he replies, to tell us what plans he has for extending the consumption of electricity, especially to the Western part of Kenya, where we have about two-thirds of the population of the country. This area, Mr. Deputy Speaker, was an area which was forgotten by the former Colonial Government. There was no economic development at all. We were reserved as a labour pool for supplying the settled areas. As a result of this, it is now up to our present Government to ensure that economic development is spread to those areas. I believe, as the Assistant Minister said, there can be very little economic development without electric power.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, when he was introduced the Bill, the Minister complained that he had difficulty in acquiring bits and pieces of land to extend electricity supplies from Kisumu to Kitanga. This was for obvious reasons. The people living in the area concerned would also like to enjoy the privilege of having electricity. They do not want it to be given free of charge. In reply to a question yesterday, we were given frivolous excuses by the Minister that in such a densely populated area like Margoli, and others, the extension of the electricity supply would not be economic. We were not given good reasons why the Minister thought that it would not be economic to extend the power to these areas, and I hope that when he stands up to reply, he will give us very good reasons for this.

My hon. colleagues who spoke before dwell very much on whether it is in the best interests of the nation to have 75 per cent of the capital from outside and only 25 per cent from within Kenya. Perhaps this is a very good argument from a socialistic point of view, but we must remember that in order to establish such a big project as that, we must have a foundation. We just cannot expect to get money by cutting down the trees on Mount Kenya. We must get it from somewhere and from people who have got it. My colleagues will probably agree with me that we should ask the Minister to, instead of putting local contributions at 25 per cent, to put it at 50 per cent and ask the people of this country to contribute as much as they can from their own pockets to make up the other 25 per cent to bring it to 50 per cent local capital. If the Minister gave this thought at all, I am sure he will tell us. I ask him, therefore, to tell us when he replies. I believe that although we do not have so much money in our pockets, at least one million will be able to produce £1 each. If this appeal was made to the local people, I am quite sure that with so much coffee and miraa in Meru, the people there would be able to raise a substantial amount of money to add to the 25 per cent which will be produced by Government.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, with regard to the argument on socialism and what have you, I think we all know where we are heading for. The only problem is that each one of us wants to take a different route to get to where we are heading. Probably arguments may be different, but the objective is one. We should have confidence in our own Government that whatever they are doing is in the best interests of our own country and therefore we should give it the strongest support that we can to ensure that this project will succeed.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not have much to contribute to this, except to remind the Minister that two-thirds of the people of this country need electricity and they want it immediately and it should not be confined to areas where we have already established electricity. If possible, this Seven-Forks Hydro-Electric Project should be confined to the Eastern part, the Northern part, the Central and parts of the Rift Valley and the electricity which we are getting from Uganda should be diverted to serve West Kenya.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to support the Bill.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osoyo): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I see that the debate on this Bill has almost been exhausted,

[Mr. Ngala] electricity and is taking more land in the same area and there are some people who have been given five acres and they have a line of road taking away one bit of the corner of their land and another big line which appears to be taking another bit and the person remains with nothing.

It is high time that we watch this Ministry carefully in regard to the powers they wish to have for acquiring land. For this reason, Sir, I think without very much interfering with the interest of the country as a whole, I would like to see that there are terms that defend the rights of the people who own land. With these few words Mr. Speaker, I would like to reserve my feeling on this Bill.

Mr. Ekiella: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I just want to give a bit of news that when you see such places like Turkana you know he is really telling the truth and such places like Turkana have been neglected. I am sure that my best friend on my left hand or my right hand could not say that the roads in Turkana are good and could not say they are being prepared in order that I may get round my district easily. Now, Sir, I do not want to bother myself or boast myself but if it is really a bad thing that we cannot get a good piece of road, it is a very serious thing and I have seen before that you only take money to a place where the road has already been prepared during colonial days, but you never improve the roads in the districts where improvements are necessary.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We are not discussing the matter of roads, we are discussing electricity.

Mr. Ekiella: Sorry, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

QUORUM

Mr. Dlamira: On a point of order, Sir, is there a quorum in House?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, there is no quorum.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We have a quorum now.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, I am wondering whether this is not the time to call on the hon. Mover to reply.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): If you like to propose that, you can do so when Mr. Ekiella has finished.

Mr. Ekiella: I have not finished. Do not rule me out!

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not think the Members of Parliament would agree to have such rough roads when they go to Turkana District. They are sure that that their own areas have reasonable roads. This Paper is concerned with the powers that the Minister will have after this Bill is passed. I am definitely sure and I want to ask the Minister for Works, Communications and Power to do something about it. I am not asking when he is going to get sufficient money to get us this power and lighting, but I would be glad to know about this.

Thank you very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to know whether it is in order at this time for the Mover to be called upon to reply.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I will put that Motion to the House.

(Question put and negatived)

Mr. Warlithi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this Bill as we have been told by the hon. Minister, aims at fulfilling the requirements of acquiring land for the purposes of developing the electrical power industry in the country. I would request the Minister to consider expanding electricity in rural areas which would provide usage for industrializing our country. We are following a planned economy and in the very near future we will require people in the rural areas to start small, skilled industries, which will require power. I hope that when the Minister gets the authority which he needs here for acquiring land he will spread power throughout the rural areas which will enable us to develop more rapidly.

I will go further, Sir, and ask the Minister this. There are some areas of Kenya where we have already got electricity. Take my own constituency, Ohaya-South Tetu. We have electricity which is supplied to the Simba tea factory. I would like to know from the Minister whether in this project he will use that electricity already, which is being used to run the tea factory, to electrify all the rural areas near and around the tea factory.

Now, I think, for the sake of some hon. Members, what I mean is that power should be sent and supplied and installed in all these areas so that they can be developed.

Now, to go further, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to raise another point. Under this section 113 and then section 134, the Minister is given power to acquire land giving notice of three years and paying compensation to the landowner. Now, I would like to know on what basis this compensation is going to be calculated; most [Mr. Warlithi] of the Africans, particularly in the Central Province, and also in the other regions, are very uneasy about land matters. These things are very delicate and we would like to know the basis on which the compensation is going to be calculated and who will be the final authority to decide whether the compensation is fair or arbitrary.

Another point which I would like the Minister really to explain when he replies is about licensees under this amendment. We would like to know who they are going to be or whether the Government will make an effort to see that the licensees of the land acquired—attempts are going to be made to see to it that the people of this country enter this great industry and participate fully in its development and exploitation.

With these few words, Sir, I beg to support.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have only a few words really in supporting this Bill. I think we all have a lot of respect for the hon. Members here who like to stand and theorize and lecture to us about socialism, but, Sir, they are very close to not only—

Mr. Agar: Mr. Deputy Speaker, on a point of order, would the hon. Assistant Minister substitute that the Members are 'theorizing'?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Agar, this is not an unparliamentary word. There is nothing wrong with theorizing.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Deputy Speaker, there is nothing wrong with theorizing but it appears that some Members are afraid of being accused of it.

What we have heard here from some Members is absolutely frustrating in the sense that it reveals, Sir, an unwillingness on their part to face these matters in a practical, sensible, rational way, because the hon. Member, when he introduced this Bill, did explain very clearly that Kenya, as it now is, is quite unable to finance a scheme of this magnitude from its own resources. Therefore, Sir, this can only be financed by borrowing. The hon. Minister has already explained to this House that when the loan has been repaid, the whole project will be owned by the State.

I would have thought, Sir, that my friends, who profess socialism, scientific, social or otherwise, would have agreed with me that nothing could be more socialist than a project which will become State-owned in a short time, when we have repaid the loan. It so happens, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that with very many of our projects we are not always in a position to do this kind of thing. I would therefore have thought that this was the occasion for our very many friends who profess socialism (whether or not they quite understand what it means is another question), to congratulate my friend here, who is very hard worked in his Ministry of Works, Communications and Power.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the sole point I have to make in supporting this Bill is that we ought really from now on, because it will benefit the Government, if the Members in this House will be a little bit more practical. It has been suggested, for instance, that something else could have been done in this case, in operating this project, to make it more socialist. I do not know what is meant by more socialism. But it has been said that there could have been more socialism than there is now going to be. But one cannot say that any single Member who has spoken on this debate, Mr. Speaker, has made one practical suggestion as to how the hon. Minister could have acted better than he has done. It is frustrating and it is very difficult for anyone to acknowledge that the hon. Members who have posed these questions have themselves thought out all the practical implications of the ideas they are putting forward and how they could be operated.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the question of electrification has been accepted. Everybody wants electricity. We cannot have any development until we have electricity throughout the rural villages. To my socialist friends, I will say that it was Lenin himself who said that socialism without electricity was not practical. We know it. We have accepted it and we have worked out a practical programme of supplying Kenya's need for African socialism. Now it is for all of Kenya, irrespective of what part of Kenya it is, all of Kenya, including everybody. Having done all this, I am frustrated to have had to sit here for three days and listen to suggestions that there was nothing socialist about this; whether this thing should have been tabled or not. But nobody could see a political alternative to what has been done.

I agree, for instance, with the people who have suggested that we should have a way of getting cheaper electricity to the people, but the way of getting cheaper electricity is to have enough of it. So long as there is a limited supply of it and there is competition by the consumer who wants it, then it will be expensive. What we are trying to do here is to have enough of it and therefore we should be able to have control. But it should be emphasized, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that already [Mr. Ngala] about 25 per cent only and that the foreign contribution would be 75 per cent. Now, I think the Minister is making a very serious mistake in assuming that Kenya people are poor, therefore they cannot get something out of them to make up a high percentage.

Now, we have the knowledge that if the Minister had asked or floated a company, money would have been forthcoming to the extent of making it possible for us to have a very big share in this company. I also understand that the Minister has not made any provision for any future possibility of our country coming in with a bigger share to control this very valuable industry.

I happened, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, to visit one of the electricity stations in Mombasa the other day and I saw queues and queues of people who had come to pay their power bills and the majority of the people were people of this country and, as consumers, I think they should be given a chance of having a share in this industry.

I think the whole electricity industry of the past has been wrong. The first phase was just Kenya subsidizing Uganda in their own electric power and here we have a second phase when people thought that there would be a hope of Kenya enjoying the industry, in owning the greater part of the industry; this has been expected by the people and the people are sadly disappointed. What happens? The biggest share of the capital, the largest say, is a foreign say in this.

Now, I think that this particular Ministry is very dangerous in the economy of the country because I remember, about three months ago when we were discussing Nyali Bridge, Mtwaya Bridge and other privately entrenched companies, the Minister said that our agreement is so entrenched that you cannot undo it within twenty-five years, to free Nyali Bridge. Now, here is another thing which will be very difficult for us to untie for a, very long period to come.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): On a point of information, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir—

Mr. Ngala: I am not prepared to give way on a point of information. If the Minister wants to give information I will give him a chance.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I thought it would help hon. Members when discussing this matter to inform them that according to the agreement the Government will take over the entire project after paying back the loan and I have said this, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, after repaying the loan the entire electricity supply project will be owned by the Central Government one hundred per cent.

Mr. Anyient: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker. The other day the Minister said that there were three to four groups, the Kenya Government and some other three companies from overseas who would participate. I did not hear him say that the Kenya Government had received a loan from three separate financiers. We would like that to be made very clear so that we understand exactly what is going on.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Would you like to clarify, Mr. Mwanjumba?

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The loan is from the United Kingdom, which has been loaned to Kenya through the three organizations in the United Kingdom, that is the Commonwealth Development Corporation, Power Securities Limited and the East African Power and Lighting Company, but the money is from the United Kingdom. It is a loan.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think that is quite clear.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am very grateful to the Minister for making it quite clear that eventually it will be possible for the Kenya Government to take over the industry completely. This is very gratifying indeed, and it was not originally made clear.

Although this has been stated by the Minister, I am just wondering, Sir, whether it is not possible for the Minister to include that very useful aspect.

Mr. Anyient: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, this House is an important House, we do not want to be misled deliberately. The hon. Minister has been quoting something here and when I read from above, he said something different, now he does not want me to use that. We do not want to be misled, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): There is no question of this House being misled and if the hon. Minister has misled the House, he will no doubt correct this and apologize in due course. But I think it is wrong for you to take any private paper which belongs to the Minister.

Mr. Anyient: It is not just a private paper.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): If it is not a private paper, then you will have to get your own copy of it. The Minister will explain in due course, I do not think that you should use his copy.

Mr. Ngala: I am so confused Mr. Deputy Speaker, that I do not know where I am, because of the very, very wrong approach by the Minister. But I would like to know why it was necessary for a sovereign country like the United Kingdom to see fit to give this loan through another body and not give it direct to the sovereign state of Kenya. I would like the Minister to explain this; why is it necessary for the United Kingdom, when it gives us loans, to even have more confidence in the East African Power and Lighting Company, which is just a small body in the country and not have as much confidence in the Kenya Government and give the loans direct? The Commonwealth Development Company is also another body, which is a very small body in resources as compared to the resources and the potentiality of this state. Why is it necessary that the loans should be given through these bodies and I am sure that these bodies will place themselves in a position of wanting to perpetuate their entrenchment over the years to come. Did the Kenya Government try to get the loans direct from the United Kingdom or not? I would like to have clarification from the Minister on that point.

We have always said that we are a sovereign country just as any other country and I accept this fully. Why cannot the other sovereign countries recognize us on this footing, even in the matter of giving us loans so that we own the industry direct from the word "go".

The other point, Sir, is that if it is the intention of the Minister that we should have this industry belonging to Kenya and that the Kenya people should own it, why should not a clause to this effect be embodied in the Bill? I would feel that we should feel more secure were we to have this in the Bill as a part of the law so that whoever comes after can see it as a part of the law, apart from just a casual statement by the Minister. As you have seen this afternoon, Sir, there was a quarrel regarding a statement. One hon. Member felt that the Minister said so-and-so, the Minister himself was dragging the piece of paper from the hon. Member. Therefore, a difference of opinion exists based on the statement. I think, therefore, this very much reinforces my requirement for this very useful point to be put in the Bill. The timing for taking over should also be specified in the Bill, so that we may have a feeling of satisfaction over the capital becoming the asset of the country itself.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the other point which I wanted to mention was this question of the participation of our people. I would like to know whether the Minister has inserted anywhere a paragraph to enable our people to become big shareholders in the industry, even in the event of the industry belonging to the Government. I do not think my hon. legal friend understands economics at all, so the hon. learned lawyer does not understand at all.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like also to make it quite clear that I think the Minister is given wrong powers about acquiring land for this purpose. Now, I would like to know under what circumstances and under what legal terms of compensation the land would be acquired under the powers which the Minister is given, because we do not want the usual excuse of "in the interests of the public we are acquiring land". Some of the land is going to be acquired in such areas as Turkana; it is not in the interests of the Turkana that a lot of land should be acquired for electricity when they do not use any of it. Therefore, I think that there should be agreement in the nation as to why and how, what conditions of compensation will be recognized. The Constitution does provide, very clearly, that Government or the Minister can take land, but when he takes it he must give the appropriate compensation and this must be observed throughout the country to give satisfaction to people. I am talking Mr. Speaker, with some experience of some people who have already been disappointed over this question of Government acquiring land. Between Kilifi and Malindi there is a new road, this very Minister is taking land for new roads there and is taking a lot of land a part of the land is mine. Now, the same Minister—

Mr. Mwanjumba: Will the hon. Member declare interest?

Mr. Ngala: I cannot declare interest on this Bill till that I have said is that I have land there.

Mr. Mwanjumba: Where.

Mr. Ngala: Between Kilifi and Malindi.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Since he says that let him declare interest.

Mr. Ngala: Therefore this Minister is using this power to acquire a huge piece of land between Kilifi and Malindi for a road. The road, wider than normal, has taken a lot of land. Some of the settlers around Roka area have almost had their land divided in two, including the hon. Speaker of the Senate. He is having quite a big piece cut away from his land. In the same area, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is having a line

[Mr. Gleghoy]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, either, we are told clearly that we accept building a capitalist state in this country, whereby the state will be controlled by the foreign entrepreneurs in this country, the foreign companies. Unless, and until the Government accepts 51 per cent shares, which should be owned locally by the Government on behalf of the people of Kenya, and 49 per cent shares to be owned by the money makers, the entrepreneurs, I still maintain that our Cabinet ought to reconsider its way of approaching the manifesto of our party. If it cannot reconsider the approach to the implementation of the Kanu manifesto, when it comes to the question of industrialization of this country, I believe it will not be very long before the people say our Cabinet has failed to deliver the goods.

The Minister for Works Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Consider?

Mr. Gleghoy: No, reconsider.

The other thing I wanted to say is this: Under this particular Bill, land could be acquired by the Government to facilitate the foreign entrepreneur, and it is stated that when the publication of notification that this land will be needed, the owner of that land will have to stop completely from owning it. In other words, this is not compensation for whatever the Government did not negotiate during the period when the publication of the notification was made, and the date of restarting the work by the foreign company. It means exactly that we are trying to facilitate the entrepreneur, and at the same time, suppress the power of the owner of that particular piece of land.

Now, here is a position whereby the Minister ought to reconsider the construction of this Bill. So, it is very clear to the Minister now that reconsidering this means going deeper into the document and making modifications according to the wishes of the House.

Now, the other thing I wanted to say is this: If a particular bit of land is taken, the owner of that land, before the actual work starts, should be allowed to continue disrupting the land for the national good, and the development that would be initiated during the period the notification has been given to him, and the actual starting of the work, should be considered when compensation is being given. There is an attitude, Sir, that African land is badly valued, and it is so because the valuers, as we have had many times in this House, are non-Africans.

Maybe they are not citizens of this country. Consequently, a foreigner would consider all the time in subverting an African because that foreigner was a master in this country. Now he is no longer a master. It is only human, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that when you deprive a person of his daily bread and butter then that man will not always be happy. If you look at the history of this country you come to a status of Republic, it was not just through mere sweat, but through land, bloodshed, loss of lives, loss of property, so that we could call ourselves free and independent people.

Now, consequently, these people who by virtue of their previous knowledge remain to be the valuers of this land for compensation are bound at any rate to deny the African who might be involved by the fact that this land would be needed for generating electricity, or for a power station. So these things ought to be taken care of by the Ministry of Works, Communications and Power so that we are sure that our people do get a fair share of whatever they own.

The other thing I would like to add is this. Land is not demarcated in all places. Land traditionally owned by the Africans on a basis of a communal ownership ought to be considered in that very light, that it is communally owned and therefore it should not be treated as no man's land. There has been a sort of feeling by the Government who consider parts which have not been demarcated as no man's land, and any Tom, Dick and Harry from any part of Kenya could be deposited in that particular area. I say this in the light of a very bitter experience on the Mwaa Irrigation Scheme which has been detailed by the Ministry of Agriculture as part of a refugee area whereby those who have been evicted by the settlers—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We are getting off the Bill now.

Mr. Gleghoy: I am sorry, Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I am trying to emphasize is this, that the Government has adopted an attitude of treating the area, which is communally owned, traditionally accepted, that it belongs to this community, either in the form of claniship or in the form of a tribe. This means African socialism, meaning not economic socialism, not actually socialism on the part of economy but socialism in the way of life, which is wrong—culturally. So claniship does exist and did exist in Kerinyaga and this particular power station which is in the Seven Forks Scheme will involve Kerinyaga Area to a certain degree, because traditionally and culturally the Kerinyaga people did own certain parts which are going to be affected by the Tana River Scheme and the Government should also take into [Mr. Gleghoy] consideration those old cases that exist when considering compensation.

The other thing I wanted to recommend to the Ministry is that he should aim in encouraging Africans, the indigenous people, to participate in the projects by associating them with shares. The co-operative societies in a particular locality where there is a scheme of this nature, that there is a scheme of union should be associated with whoever is going to be the entrepreneur or the business magnate who is going to undertake that project so that people feel that they are part and parcel of the development movement within the country, but not just mere looking on at things which are foreign to them being conducted again by foreign hands all the time. We must change from the past and accept the real changes. If some of our Cabinet Members have never been decolonized then they must accept decolonization, and for that matter, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Lambara Institute should be a very good place for a rehearsal.

Another thing I wanted to say is this, when electricity has been generated it should really be given to the social services, one of these social services is the hospital, the other one is the health centre. These are the places where we need electricity very badly. The other thing, is schools in the small towns. There is a tendency on the part of the Government to encourage development only in places where there was development during the colonial régime, and this again makes people ask themselves, are we still in the colonial trap, whereby only the better facilitated persons get the benefits or are we moving towards a society which needs encouragement, which means decolonization.

Now it should be the duty of the Government to see to it, that the small towns are provided with electricity. These small towns need then be in a position to create not only employment but also skill. It would create skill among the Africans, who in the past were told that they were incapable of understanding anything. Apparently we are now in a position of even creating engineers, yes, creating them by putting students into colleges, they are trained and they become engineers. That is a human creation. They were not born engineers. They have been trained, whence they become a by-product of our creation.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we are to develop the rural area, the Government must consider giving us electricity in the rural places of course, as far as possible, 50 per cent of the thing in the capacity of the Minister for Electricity or Power, Works, Communications and Power, should be concentrated towards improving the village life, making it more modern than it is today. So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Minister accepts consideration of those points I do not need to waste the time of the other Members.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members are not allowed to say that.

Mr. Gleghoy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, some Members have said I am wasting time, but I am going to proceed.

An hon. Member: So that you can waste more time.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Mr. Gleghoy: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am not approaching this scheme on the basis of the needs for the area. The need for let us say, Machakos, which is very adjacent to it, Kitui, Kerinyaga and Embu District. These districts must be given top priority, whether they are incapable of meeting the costs of running or maintaining electricity, they must be given a push. Many times they have been helped by facilitating certain backward areas to develop, and unless the Government now considers giving us a push on this particular project then we shall say that our Government is partially parochial in its own approach, and these, Sir, are the very fundamental things which the Minister should consider. We shall be very happy if only he could just examine the needs and requirements of those districts, so far electricity is concerned.

We are happy that this one is coming up and perhaps more projects of a similar nature will be brought forward by the Ministry of Works, Communications and Power.

With these few words, Sir, I reserve my voting until things are clarified.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I intend to say only a few words on this Bill.

Firstly, this Bill is a retrogressive step because, while our neighbouring countries, such as Tanzania and Uganda, are considering the taking over of electric companies and making them assets of the country themselves, our Minister is struggling to boost the overseas capital as much as possible at this late stage. Therefore, I think, in principle, the Bill is wrong. It is wrong because it is aiming at boosting foreign capital and giving no chance to our people in the matter of the economic building of the country. I understood the Minister to say that our contribution would be [Mr. Mwangandi] to have the quorum instituted in this Sessional Committee.

Again, it is very important that in this Sessional Committee we have our representative who is the Chairman of the Back-benchers or the Secretary of the Back-benchers. I wonder if there is time, Sir, and if it is in order, I may be permitted, not to amend the Motion, but to add to this Motion, that the hon. Wariithi or the Secretary is added to this Sessional Committee to represent our views as our Chairman, failing that the Secretary of the Back-benchers.

With those few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support and add, that our Chairman of the Back-benchers, or his Secretary, be added to the Sessional Committee.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid Mr. Mwangandi, you must give me notice of that amendment in writing. If you care to put it in writing and get some other Member to move it it can be proposed at a later stage.

Mr. Anyien: Mr. Speaker, I do not think there is much to be said here because when the original Motion was discussed the Assistant Minister to the Office of the Vice-President did consult the Back-benchers in connexion with the Chairman and the Vice-Chairman. When we went there we tried to tell the Assistant Minister that some names of certain Ministers should be withdrawn. This proved to be difficult because after a person's name has appeared it could not be withdrawn because it would be unfair to remove it.

However, the point I would like to make here and which is very important is this: what is important is attending the meetings of the Sessional Committee. We are told by members of the Sessional Committee that sometimes you can hardly get four people to attend; sometimes there are only about three or four people present. The only thing I would like to say to the Back-benchers here is that they should see to it that the Back-benchers who have been nominated to sit on this Committee should attend because if the twelve Back-benchers do attend I am sure all the Ministers will not always be present and in this way the Back-benchers could be in the majority. This was stated by the Chairman at the meeting of the Back-benchers which was held last week. I can see that the two Back-benchers who are here—are the people who can bring back reports to us, as to the proper conduct of the Committee and the views of the Back-benchers. I see Mr. Kagin who is the Secretary, I am the Vice-Chairman of the Back-benchers and the hon. Mr. Ngala is the Treasurer of the Back-benchers.

If we try and attend all the meetings and we find difficulty in getting what the Back-benchers want done then we shall report back to the Back-benchers and tell them we do not have a voice and they can then bring another Motion to this Parliament so that we can increase our number of Back-benchers.

With those few remarks I wish to support the Motion.

Mr. Tuwei: Mr. Speaker Sir, I have only one point to make. In this list of nominated Members to the Sessional Committee, the Government Chief Whip is there but we do not see that an assistant is included. This means that sometimes Mr. Kali may not be there and I would like the assistant to be included to represent him when he may not be available.

That is the only point I would like to make on this Motion. Otherwise I do support it.

Mr. Godin: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since we have heard the views of both sides, I now propose that the Mover be called upon to reply.

(Question put and agreed to)

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office (Dr. Waiyaki): I am happy to see that only a few objections have been put forward to this new Motion by Members and I will try to deal with all of them.

According to Standing Orders the Chairman of this Committee is named in this House. That is what we are asking Members to do by agreeing to the Motion. I would like to mention to the hon. Member who raised the question of Chairmanship that I do not think he has a special desire to remove the Vice-President from the Chairmanship. The Chairman of the Sessional Committee has no casting vote but he has an original vote.

Another Member raised the problem of my Ministry not consulting our Ministerial Committee. Let me say here, Mr. Speaker, that our Ministry is more than happy to work with our Ministerial Committee. However, I would remind the hon. Mr. Oduya that in the debate which arose as a result of the last Motion, the one that the House rejected, nearly all the criticism was with reference to the Back-benchers and not to any Ministerial Committee. So, the Government naturally took care of the objections. I would assure the House, with regard to other business of our Ministry, that we will be happy to work closely with our Ministerial Committee. I am sure that hon. Members here would welcome such an assurance. Somebody mentioned the fact that [The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office] there were no additional Back-benchers, but as you see, of course, we have added two Back-benchers, namely, the hon. S. M. Amih, and the hon. J. P. Lorena.

Looking at the composition of the Sessional Committee, Mr. Speaker, I think, as the hon. Anyien said on this, all the places in the country are now taken care of, all opinions are taken care of, and I do not suppose that Members want the Government opinion not to be taken care of, because that would not be a proper Sessional Committee.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

BILL

Second Reading

THE ELECTRIC POWER (AMENDMENT) BILL.

(Minister for Works, Communications and Power on 17th February 1965).

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 17th February 1965)

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, I was speaking on 17th February, before we closed, and very briefly I wish to continue with my discussion on the Bill.

One thing I made clear the last time I was speaking here was that it is immorally wrong, and even politically wrong to tell the country that we are moving to socialism, and when it becomes a question of industrial undertakings within the country, foreign companies are given more or less the whole monopoly, which in actual fact, amounts to the same thing as it was during the colonial period.

Every single person, Mr. Speaker, did anticipate a change when Kanu came into power, when Kanu accepted to join Kanu, and that change was not just a mere political change or amalgamation by putting the two parties together, but it was meant that Kadu had accepted the Kanu manifesto, which says that we are going to adhere to socialism. Of course, it said African socialism, but there has never been a protest in this country, Sir, or elsewhere. Tom Mboya has written a book clearly showing the approach to the African socialism. What we know is that there is already accepted principles of socialism, and as a State Kanu should accept unreservedly the accepted international

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order, when the hon. Member is making such a good speech, to speak to an empty House, while all the Members have gone out? Is there a quorum?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have a quorum now. You may proceed, Mr. Gichoya.

Mr. Gichoya: So, Mr. Speaker, what I was trying to say was this. The Members of the Cabinet should translate, and for that matter, the Minister concerned with power and electricity in this country, the Minister for Works, Communications and Power, and the spiritual acceptance applied in this country, and put it into a practical form. We have accepted the spirit that Kenya will be a socialist state.

Mr. Speaker, it is under the signature of the Father of our Nation, that Kenya in terms of economy, would be on socialistic patterns of society. But socially, you can marry two wives, three wives, four wives, and culturally, you can maintain the Wakamba standard, the Kikuyu standard, which amounts to the African way of life. In other words, culturally, we have accepted the African way of life. But, economically, it is clearly stated unless somebody wants to prosecute what has already been stipulated in writing, by the Kanu secretary and accepted by the Voters, that we accept the African socialism, socialism in terms of economy, and Africans in terms of culture. These are two clear things which need no more argument.

Now, we are told by the Minister that Kenya Government, as a socialist state, is moving against buying 35 per cent shares in this particular project, which is the Tana River Hydro-Electric Project, whereas in the East Africa Power and Lighting Company, we had 25 per cent shares. Of course, that shows that the colonialist régime was more socialistic than the Republic of Kenya. The colonial régime was moving towards socialism, and the Republican Kenya is moving backwards to capitalism. In actual fact, Mr. Speaker, we have in ages past been a socialist people.

I will give a very good example, Sir, of the Masai. No member of the Masai community here can claim that ten years ago, he had so many acres of land as he has now. The whole lot used to be owned communally by the community. So, consequently, that is a socialistic approach.

[The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office]

The hon. Z. M. Anyieni.
The hon. B. Kaggia.
The hon. J. D. Kall.
The hon. M. Kibaki.
The hon. M. Muliro.
The hon. J. K. Ndile.
The hon. R. G. Ngala.
The hon. J. J. M. Nyagah.
The hon. T. Okelo-Okogho.
The hon. J. C. N. Otogo.
The hon. A. J. Pandya.
The hon. J. M. Shikuku.
The hon. J. K. ole Tipis.
The hon. S. M. Amin.
The hon. J. P. Lorema.

Mr. Speaker, in moving this new Motion, I do not have much to say except to explain to the Members that in fact we have attempted to take care of the criticisms levelled against the original Motion moved on the 27th February. Members of the House thought then that the Sessional Committee was heavily weighted on the side of the Government because they said there were too many Ministers and too many Assistant Ministers. They also raised the problem of the North-Eastern Region and the northern part of this country, and it was felt that the opinions of the representatives from those areas should be heard in the Sessional Committee. We have accordingly, Mr. Speaker, taken the trouble to add on to the Sessional Committee list, the hon. S. M. Amin and the hon. J. P. Lorema who were not originally proposed on the original list. We have also gone to the extent of having discussions between the Government and the Leaders of the Back-benchers, the Chairman and the Vice-Chairman. We have the impression that they were in general agreement with this new Motion. The Government has attempted to put equal numbers on both sides and in fact, when you come to think that on the Government side the Vice-President acts as Chairman, you could argue that the Back-benchers have one more Member than the Government. Normally, unless the matter is very controversial, I do not imagine that the Government would want to interfere.

So, Mr. Speaker, in this new Motion, we have attempted to accommodate the feelings of the Members of this House, and I now hope that the Members will be much more agreeable to approve this new Motion.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

Mr. Warlithi seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir—

Mr. Warlithi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I was seconding the Motion.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have seconded formally.

Mr. Warlithi: No, I meant to second by speaking on the Motion.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry, I thought you sat down again. Never mind, you have a chance of speaking still. As soon as Mr. Ngala has finished, you will be given your chance to speak.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, I would like to congratulate the Assistant Minister for bringing our attention to the criticisms which were given when this Motion first came to the House. We opposed and criticized it because we did not see a proper coverage of the opinions represented in this House. I see that this has been given much attention now and therefore we are very happy that the Assistant Minister has borne this in mind.

Another point I would like to mention is that I would like to ask whether it is normal procedure for the Chairman who is the Vice-President on the Committee to have a casting vote or not, because this would affect the balance between the Back-benchers and the Government. Therefore, it is a matter of some importance to us.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that we find we are satisfied with the present representation.

I support the Motion.

Mr. Warlithi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that the Sessional Committee is a very important body of this House and we, the Back-benchers, are very satisfied with the way in which the Government has acted in this matter. The thing is that this policy is the one that should be followed, so that no other important matter is affected. We feel strongly that the matters which concern us in this House will not be neglected.

Also, I would even go further and say that the Government should take a lesson from this incident. If the Government does certain things without consulting us something is sure to go wrong somewhere.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I wish to support.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, my hon. friend is worried that I am going to oppose the Motion.

Although I agree with the set-up, I would like to object to one thing: that we did all agree with the suggestions. All I know is that two were called to the meeting. However, previously I was approached by one of the Assistant Secretaries in the Vice-President's Office and I was told that they were going to call a Ministerial Committee which would help the Committee to select the best names for the Sessional Committee, names from the Ministers as well as the Back-benchers. Even though the set-up is more or less fifty-fifty I do not see how it is going to help. The names are still the same as those in the previous Motion.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to warn the Assistant Minister in this Ministry that in future when there is a matter like this the Ministerial Committee which has been selected to work with the Office of the Vice-President, the Assistant Minister in that particular Ministry, sitting as Chairman, must be well informed in order to enable him to deal with such matters adequately. This is not a matter for the Back-benchers, it is a matter that has been— A lot of things have been said in the past; if there is anything about agriculture they say the Ministerial Committee for Agriculture should deal with it, if there is anything that concerns the Attorney-General's office then that Committee should deal with the matter. There should be proper machinery to effect these matters.

I wonder why the Assistant Minister and his Minister have not found it necessary to conduct the Ministerial Committee properly and tell these people what to do. There are a lot of names from which the Members could be selected. I object to some of the names appearing here on the Sessional Committee. Some of them are only rubber stamps who will never bring out the Motions which are really of interest to this House, the Motions which are required to be dealt with.

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member in order to refer to the names of hon. Members as mere rubber stamps?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, you cannot do that. You must withdraw that statement, Mr. Oduya.

Mr. Oduya: I withdraw, but anyway I know— Normally, we know that very well but anyway I was just saying that—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Oh, no, you must withdraw.

Mr. Oduya: I was just ending—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What was that you said about "knowing that very well"?

Mr. Oduya: I was saying in ending my speech— I meant that I knew I was wrong and that is what I said.

Mr. Speaker, on the whole I accept the Motion but in future, perhaps when we come here next year, another Committee is appointed, I hope the Ministry will trust us and inform us before further arrangements are made.

Mr. Kerich: Mr. Speaker, I have only a few remarks to make. I think I am going to oppose this Motion. The last time we opposed this Motion we thought that the Minister was going to increase the number of Back-benchers. However, we see that there are twelve Back-benchers and twelve representatives from the Government. Since the Back-benchers are in the majority, Sir, I thought the Back-benchers should have more people on this Committee.

Also, I see here that the Vice-President has made himself the Chairman of the Committee. Democratically, Mr. Speaker, it is the Members who should elect their Chairman when they meet. In this case it is an utter fallacy.

Another thing is that I see that there is only a Chairman and not a Vice-Chairman. If the Chairman is not present who is going to preside over the meeting of the Sessional Committee?

So, Mr. Speaker, I think that with these few remarks I would remind the Vice-President to go back and do some homework and bring the same Motion in the proper manner.

Sir, I wish to oppose this Motion very strongly.

Mr. Mwanzandi: I am going to support this Motion in accordance with your ruling that it is in order, that it should appear within six months' time, but I have a few remarks which I would like to be observed.

It has been a custom of Members of the Sessional Committee that most of them do not attend these meetings, as a result of which there are only a few Members, even two sometimes, who have been attending. I would like to know, Mr. Speaker, if a Member does not attend for more than a stated number of meetings would the House be qualified to appoint another man to replace him? One thing which is important is the quorum of this Sessional Committee. The quorum is always very important because sometimes as we see the Ministers who may be in Nairobi at the time of the meetings have a majority of one. So, the quorum is very important because we may find that if the Ministers plus the Vice-President do attend the meetings then the Back-Benchers may not be well represented, and as a result of this it would be good

[The Assistant Minister for Finance] that the Supplementary Appropriation Bill be now read the Third Time.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya) seconded.
(Question proposed)

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, yesterday, when we were discussing the Supplementaries, we more or less were forced to adjourn and leave over certain Ministries requiring certain moneys. It has been a worry to more or less all our Members, particularly myself, to find that we have got a Ministry of Economic Planning, a Ministry which does not plan for other Ministries, a Ministry which does not have a machinery like a planning commission. Now it becomes a sort of indication of perhaps what happens in other countries that we should have a planning machinery, and a Minister specifically paid for that.

I personally feel, Sir, that unless something is done to make the Ministry of Economic Planning a sort of institution capable of planning for all the Ministries, it will be ridiculous to have a Minister, paid from the common man's contribution, so as to have a Minister for Economic Planning.
