Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in supporting the adjournment of the House, I would like to request the Ministry of Economic Planning and Development, and the Ministry of Education, to do a bit of work for the country. The country has established a number of Harambee secondary schools on a self-help basis. The country would like these schools to be incorporated within the Development Plan of our country. Therefore, I would like to call on these Ministries to see that these schools are included within the Development Plan of 1966-70.

Another point which I have is with regard to land. Vihiga, in the Western Province, and also Ikolomani are densely populated and we would like Government to remove some people from this area, so that agricultural development plans can be finalized for the use of the land. Land should be found in Trans Nzoia and the Uasin Gishu for these people—The settlers are going back to Europe and this land in the Trans Nzoia and Uasin Gishu could be taken over, for our people to be settled there.

I would also like the Minister for Health and Housing to standardize the charges for treatment in hospitals run by voluntary agencies. Mr. Speaker, the fees in these hospitals differ greatly and I would like Government to bring about a certain standard so that all the fees charged in various hospitals could be standardized.

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, I would like the Ministry of Education to consider putting into practice before the Estimates for this year the Omindo Commission Report on Education. The country wants to see that the report is working by 1966. Therefore, to make it effective, it should be possible to publish this report before the Estimates, because if this is done, this country will be clear about the need for education which it has been looking for for many, many years. Mr. Speaker, I see that my time is up, so I beg to support.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, in view of the lateness of the hour, I move that the Mover be now called upon to reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will now put the question once again, that the Mover be called upon to reply.

(Question put and agreed to)

POINT OF ORDER

WHEN A DIVISION CAN BE CALLED

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since there is a doubt in my mind, could I call for a division?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): According to our Standing Orders, when an hon. Member calls for a division, it is only if I have any real doubt or a number of hon. Members demand a division that there is a division. On a question of procedure, though, it is only when there is doubt, and I do not think there is any doubt.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I will not waste the time of the House any longer. I would only like to emphasize what the hon. Member for Kirinyaga has said and that is, that Members should take the time and trouble to explain to all the people what is meant by African socialism as set out in our Sessional Paper No. 10 of 1965.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The House now stands adjourned until Tuesday, 1st June, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at seven o'clock.

WRITTEN REPLY TO QUESTION

Question No. 1099

OWNERSHIP OF FIREARMS BY MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT

Mr. Rurumban asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence in what circumstances were Members of Parliament allowed to own firearms.

REPLY

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Munga): An application for a firearms certificate from any person in Kenya is considered on its merits and hon. Members of Parliament are no exception to this. Anyone who wishes to possess a firearm should apply on the normal application form through his nearest police station, for onward transmission to the Central Firearms Bureau and, depending on the case made in support of the application, a certificate, is granted or refused. An applicant who is aggrieved by a negative reply from the Central Firearms Bureau is at liberty to appeal to the Minister whose decision under the law, is final. Hon. Members will appreciate the importance of maintaining a tight control on the sale and use of such weapons.

[Mr. Nyagah]

We should pledge a part in this Government so that we are liable and right to bring these to the Government. These parts, whether districts, or constituencies, or locations or sub-locations have a right to believe this. It seems that, as I said recently in this House, last time, we have powers and these powers are ones which seem to move in a tug-of-war. This tug-of-war should be one on that side, one that side, one that side and one that side. Why should we have two only? Why not this side? We should have four. North, South, East and West. Four of them. That is what we want. It is very ridiculous, to say "as he said", as he said, and as he knows, and as he thinks, Mr. Speaker.

Hon. Members: Let him speak.

Mr. Nyagah: Mr. Speaker, we have to remember to be sentimental. To be sentimental is a very strong word. To be sentimental means that, for example, here is the Vice-President. You go to—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are referring to me?

Mr. Nyagah: These are your two eyes. If you do not have two eyes, you buy a pair of goggles. They are very good. If—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, Mr. Nyagah, your time is up, I am afraid.

Mr. Nyagah: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I must just say—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. You must observe the time limit.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, I am wondering whether it is time now for the Mover to be called upon to reply, since, Sir, you gave a ruling that we are exhausting the Palantypists we have now. I think it is time that the Mover is called upon to reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am very grateful to Mr. Mwanjumba for respecting the point I made, but I think that we should have one more speaker. I have just called Mr. Kibuga. After that I do think the House ought to entertain the closure.

POINT OF ORDER

SPEAKERS IN ADJOURNMENT MOTIONS

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I hope you are not going to take up too much time.

Mr. Khalif: No, Sir, I am not trying to waste any time. I am only inquiring whether it is in order on such Motions, especially Motions on Adjournment, for the Mover to be called upon when quite a number of Members still have to speak? Myself, I have something to say which has not been raised by other hon. Members.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. I am quite sure there are other hon. Members who feel like Mr. Khalif about this. The position is that the closure can be moved in a debate whether or not it has a time limit fixed. This debate, by resolution of the House, is limited to allow the House a maximum of 1½ hours. We can still adjourn earlier by will of the House on the moving of the closure. It is the Speaker's responsibility not to allow the closure if he thinks it is an abuse of procedure or is unfair to a particular section of Members. For that reason, knowing the value hon. Members attach to adjournment debates and the fact that there is a time limit anyhow, I would not normally be in a hurry to allow the closure, but I have given the reason for having to allow it today.

Mr. Kibuga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, because the leader of the National Youth Service is here, and as he has said something about his service, I would like to point out something wrong in the and when it makes mistakes, they will be corrected immediately. I would like to point out that I have learned that some Members of this House are having about eighty members in the National Youth Service, whereas others are having only eighteen, the maximum. So, I hope, before we go further, while thanking the leader of the National Youth Service for the good job the youths are doing, he will be fair to everybody. If we are to be fair to one another, it is necessary that those who have a lot of youths in the service should be stopped from recruiting more, and the ones who do not have enough members in the service should send in more. If the hon. Member has any doubt, let us appoint a committee to go into the details and you will find that some have a great number. I would even point out there are rumours that the leader of the National Youth Service has eighty members.

Mr. Speaker, Sir—

Mr. J. M. Kariki: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, Sir. As that is a very serious allegation, Sir, I would like the hon. Member to substantiate that I have eighty members in the Service, more than any other Member in the House.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are quite entitled to require substantiation of a statement like that, even if it is said to be based on rumour. I have explained to hon. Members that they cannot escape their obligations and responsibility for a statement by saying that it is rumoured.

Either you must withdraw that altogether, Mr. Kibuga, or you must be prepared to prove it true, or at least produce evidence.

Mr. Kibuga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to keep that until next time, because—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry, either you must withdraw or produce the evidence now.

Mr. Kibuga: I will withdraw, Mr. Speaker, Sir, but at the same time I would like to point out to the leader of the National Youth Service that he should go into the details and find out whether these rumours are true or not.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. You cannot leave it like that. You must not evade your obligations, Mr. Kibuga. You must withdraw completely or you must undertake to produce reasonable evidence of what you said. No more.

Mr. Kibuga: I withdraw, Sir.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I— Now you are annoying me.

Mr. Nyagah: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, it is in order for me to ask the manager, or the head, or the leader of the National Youth Service, while referring to my friend on the opposite bench, why there was Kamau on my list and—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. That is not a point of order.

Mr. Kibuga: Mr. Speaker, as quite a lot of my time has been taken up, I will not go into details.

The other thing I want to point out is the question of the Paper we finished last week, the Paper on African socialism. Quite a lot of people in the country do not know what we have debated and what we have passed and I would like to request the Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism to make certain that the people in the country understand what we are passing in this House. Just as it happened during the time of Majimbo when the Ministry took a lot of time and trouble to explain to the people where the regions were, what the powers of the Regional Assemblies were and what the powers of the county councils were, in the same way I would like the Ministry to do this.

Mr. Speaker, my time was taken up with points of order but I will sit down since I see my time is up.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have yourself mainly to blame for the points of order.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Hon. Member, in view of what you said when this started, I commend the Members that these young ladies are working very hard, and, therefore, I submit that the Mover be now called upon to reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think it is time for the House to consider that question now; and I will go further, and take the very unusual course of asking hon. Members to accept this Motion.

(Question put and negatived)

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to speak on only three points.

First, I think the House should congratulate itself on passing the Paper on African socialism and I appeal that we all go out into the country during the recess to preach this in every province, and from every possible angle, in the country.

The second point, Mr. Speaker, is on the National Youth Service. The report on this has been very encouraging and I would ask the leader of the National Youth Service to look into the possibility of opening up some parts of this country which are, indeed, very remote. I have in mind, Mr. Speaker, some people in my constituency who are inaccessible due to the non-existence of modern forms of communication. We can never get to them because of the roads. If we can have a unit, or half a unit, or quarter of a unit, stationed in any part of the country and these people to come up to the country by having these people to catch where we can go and tell them what Kenya is like, and what is going on, I would be very grateful. This should be done in places like the Lumbo Valley where one needs to go right into the depths of that part of the country.

My third and final point, Mr. Speaker, is in agreement with the hon. Member for Ndia. No agreement with the hon. Member for African socialism, we should appeal to the Press to be very objective and to the Ministry of Information to try and explain to the people and tell them what the implications of the Paper contains, the implications of this country's finances in implementing everything that is contained in the booklet, and hope that all our people, from now onwards will march, all with the same step.

With these remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

[The Speaker] order. If it is heard at all by some other hon. Member who takes offence at it, it is out of order. We cannot have these casual remarks which give offence, any more than we can have speeches which give offence.

MOTION

ADJOURNMENT TO A DAY OTHER THAN THE NEXT NORMAL SITTING DAY

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will now call upon Mr. Odinga to move that this House do now adjourn.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that this House do now adjourn until Tuesday, 1st June 1965.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru) seconded.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): As I have said, it is too heavy a strain on the HANSARD staff to ask them to sit very much beyond the time for rising, so I will ask the House to allow the closure not later than 7 o'clock.

Mr. J. M. Karuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to take only a few minutes in explaining to this House something in connexion with the National Youth Service. Today, Sir, we have over 2,600 servicemen in the service, and most of these have been now promoted to salaried posts. I would like to mention to this House that we have already promoted some of the servicemen who were brought to us earning Sh. 20 a month, from Sh. 20 to Sh. 800 a month.

An hon. Member: Where do they come from?

Mr. J. M. Karuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am asked by the hon. Member where they come from. I would like to take this opportunity in saying that ours is a National Youth Service to cater for the whole country, and I would like to say that one of them is a Luo, the other a Masai, one a Kikuyu, and a fourth a Rendile. These have been promoted because of their capabilities. That is what is taken into consideration in our National Youth Service.

Sir, we have already opened about four units, and these units are in Nairobi, Mombasa and Gilgil, and we are planning to open other units in Nyanza and Western Province of Kenya. Now, Sir, I would also like to take this opportunity of saying that although these units are there to recruit the servicemen who are brought in, there are, of course, some projects which have already been taken by the National Youth Service. These, of course, are undertaken like Athi River, where we have fenced the road through the National Park so as to enable more tourists to travel. This is because the Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism has been speaking in this House urging the Government to do all that it can so as to attract more tourists to come to this country. So we are also going to help in clearing the bush from the roadside in the National Park; we are going to help in clearing the forests and also we are going ahead in developing farms in Gilgil. Also, Sir, I would like to mention that the project on Broderick Falls is going to be started some time in June.

Now, Sir, there must be some sort of questions asked by the hon. Members in this House as to why we have not reached the mark of about 3,000 men. This is merely because some of the calling-up notices which I gave the members, most of them have been mislaid. They are either mislaid in the Post Office or somewhere else. You will notice from now on that the notices which were sent by us in May do not bear any date for the service, this is so because if you bring your youth from the 1st May to the 30th May then they will be taken into the service. This will avoid the unnecessary delay which has been going on.

Now, Sir, I would like to say that arrangements are now in hand to open another field unit at Yala in Central Nyanza, even before the wind has blown for another two months. Another two will be opened in other areas. Now, Sir, we are hoping to move ahead and put some people to assist the control of tsetse fly at Nyanza, at a place called the Nyala River Basin. We hope that other schemes will be considered by the Government and that this House will approve, because what we need in our service are the projects which can be carried out by the National Youth Service as today we are under the pressure from other Ministries as to how we can take up such projects, but in the first instance we did not have these projects. We now hope and trust that this Government will give us more projects to do, because down at the Coast we are lacking such projects except one which we are going to start quite soon, which will be to build houses for the Mombasa residents in the near future. Now I hope that the good intention of our Government for the National Youth Service will continue, and that the intake will continue, even if I am out of this country.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I just want to speak about two items, and the first one is the [Mr. Ngala-Abok] question of consolidation instructors who should be sent to South Nyanza as a matter of urgency, because the people in the area have agreed to consolidate the land and our Paper on African socialism dealt with quite a bit of emphasis on the subject of land consolidation, so as to allow the people to get land title deeds and to be able to borrow money for land development. We do not want our Government to state a lot of these things in the Paper and then let their country know of their intentions, if on the other hand we find that the Government is very negative on the question of implementation of what they said, then I think in other parts of its own area, and I think in other parts of Kenya, people have agreed to land consolidation. There is no question of any members of the public and the representatives of the people not working enough to convince the people as to the usefulness of land consolidation.

So, Sir, I would like the Government to take this very much into account, particularly when proposing the Budget in June, in terms of increasing the number of officers to handle land consolidation. We realize that we cannot make very much profit, we cannot help this country very much with our Paper on African socialism if the policy of the President, "Go back to the land" is not followed. It is useless also, on the other hand, to follow that policy if the people go back to the land only to attend court cases, because people had here and there that they cannot agree or the demarcation of somebody's land. Therefore, I would like to appeal to the Government that while they talk so beautifully, they should seriously think in terms of implementing the most important project like land consolidation. It is vital that the Government should do something about it, and particularly my district of South Nyanza, where land consolidation is getting very neglected. There is a place called Kasipul-Kabondo, the hon. Mr. Ayodo's constituency, where they have about two or three land consolidation officers, but that is not enough.

South Nyanza is a very big district, the largest district in Nyanza, and should have as many people as possible capable of leading the people on the question of land consolidation. So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to make that very clear to the Government. We do not wish to play with words. We want to say little, because it is better to say little and implement what you say, but we do not say so much, then sit back, and wait for some of your political opponents to out you so that you have said so much and you do not know if that money is going to be available for implementing what you say. All these people ask, when we go back to consolidation is as to how we are going to deal with their problems practically. We find it very difficult. When we come here we ask where are the officers to help our people consolidate their land, and we are told that there is no money so in the end we do not know where we are going.

Another thing is, Mr. Speaker, Sir, free education. If we are going to implement that Paper on the question of education, although the Paper does not say that free education will be available, we must start reducing the fees standing and at the same time tapping other sources which have not been tapped, and try to help our people to get an education. Education is an investment; if a poor man's child can get free education then this will pay. But if he is taxed on the child, taxed on personal tax and other things, then he is probably going to ask his child to stay at home, which is a dead loss. It is nonsensical for a Minister to tell us that if we have free education we must put our money on income up. It does not matter, but allow the poor man's child to learn. It does not matter if the Government increases Income Tax or Personal Tax, it is up to the Government to suggest the best way of making sure that all children learn. I do not mind if the Government taxes me double, and I am sure some other people will be concerned far as implementation of the paper is concerned the people should be made aware of this.

Mr. Nyagah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say one or two words. It is a very difficult, Mr. Speaker, Sir, for instance if the construction of roads. I do not mean the roads made of dirt and the construction of everything, the doing of anything and everything, for example, in Kiambu, Nairobi, Nyanza or Mombasa or anywhere. We should be very sentimental. If we are at all the leaders of Kenya or Members of this Parliament, we should be sentimental on some grounds. What are these grounds? These are many people. I should say: The grounds are these: many people. A Minister from Embu, from any place, his brother has some children. He should be as sentimental as anything in terms of humanity so that he can really be a human being so as to serve the people that he represents. He is not interested in the people of one location, or one constituency, or one district, or one Province, but the people as a whole.

Now, Mr. Speaker, here I have an example. I should say something about this. We always refer to the Western Region or to Mombasa, or to Kiambu, or to Nairobi. But we have some other places which should be referred to and

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I do not want any more speeches now.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Chairman, I do not want to make a speech; I only want to raise a point of order.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Oduya, you must sit down immediately or leave the Chamber.

I will now put the question that the Mover be called upon to reply.

(Question put and agreed to)

Mr. Oduya: You are all thieves.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Chairman, Sir—

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odera-Jowi): On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, is it in order for an hon. Member of this House to refer to other Members as thieves?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I am sorry I did not hear any hon. Member say that. Who said that, Mr. Odera-Jowi?

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odera-Jowi): It was Mr. Oduya.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Oduya, did you call anybody thieves?

Mr. Oduya: I said that since I was not given a chance to speak my mind on the money that is being spent, then they are thieves.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Oduya, please answer my question. Did you call anybody thieves?

Mr. Oduya: I said they were becoming thieves, yes.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Now, Mr. Oduya, please withdraw your remarks.

Mr. Oduya: If I am refused an opportunity to speak in this House on the money that is to be spent—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Oduya, will you please withdraw your remarks that we have become thieves, or leave the Chamber.

Mr. Oduya: Yes, I think I will go.

(Mr. Oduya withdrew from the Chamber)

An hon. Member: Thief, thief.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order, order. I have sent one person out for shouting such remarks as "thieves" and I will not have another person starting the same because he will be asked to leave the Chamber as well.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Chairman, on a point of order, if the hon. Member has said in this House that we are becoming thieves, it means that he believes he is a thief? Is it not right then that we should call him a thief?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): It is not in order for anybody to call anybody else a thief, and any person who does that will be asked to leave the Chamber.

Mr. Gatugutu: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Are you on a point of order? All right, this will be the last point of order.

Mr. Gatugutu: Mr. Chairman, the hon. Member has just walked out of his own accord after uttering an offensive word in this House. I want to find out from you whether this House has any powers whatsoever to deal with such a Member in order that we maintain the dignity of the House? You could see, Mr. Chairman, that even when he was walking out he did so as if he was being rude to the Clerk, without respect to this House.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I will explain this to the Speaker and leave it to him to decide. As you know, the Speaker has powers to deal with this and I will therefore leave it to him to decide what to do.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Chairman, I want to say that it is most unusual in other countries to debate the emoluments of President in the manner that we have done today. It is good that they should be criticized but I think we ought not to be so emotional about it.

It is normal procedure for all Heads of State to be exempted from paying tax, and I am not in a position to produce any breakdown of the allowances or any of the other emoluments.

Mr. Chairman, Sir, without wasting any more time I would commend that this Motion be unanimously carried as it is important, and it is good that we should put these things in order. The reason why we have brought it is just to regularize the position.

Hon. Members: It was carried yesterday.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): It was? It was carried yesterday? In that case, Mr. Chairman, I beg to move.

Mr. Masinde: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, Sir, it is now the practice in this House that Members, when they are discussing various Bills, become very over-excited, and I do not know whether it would be in order for you to suggest the removal of the glasses and bottles, so that they will not be thrown if the Members become too excited?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Masinde, I do not think this is a point of order, and what is more it is in very bad taste to make such an order. I do not think hon. Members have been so over excited as to come anywhere near the position of trying to throw glasses, and I think it is a very bad reflection on hon. Members to make suggestions like that.

We will have no more points of order, because I want to put the question in the terms proposed.

(Question put and agreed to)

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I beg to move that the Committee do report to the House its consideration of this resolution and its approval thereof without amendment.

(Question proposed)

(Question put and agreed to)

(The House resumed)

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

Report

SALARY AND ALLOWANCES OF PRESIDENT

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am directed to report that the Committee of Supply has considered the following resolution and its approval thereof without amendment:—

THAT this House, having noted the requirements of Section 35 F (1) of the Constitution of Kenya Amendment Act 1964, resolves that the salary and allowances of the President of the Republic of Kenya shall be:—

Salary	£7,000 p.a.
Duty Allowance	£4,500 p.a.
Entertainment Allowance	£2,000 p.a.

and further does, in accordance with Section 12 (3) of the East African Income Tax (Management) Act, 1958, resolve that such salary and allowances as are payable to the said President shall be free of income tax.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do agree with the Committee in the said Resolution. Dr. De Souza seconded.

(Question proposed)

(Question put and agreed to)

POINT OF ORDER

CONDUCT IN THE CHAMBER

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, Mr. Odunga, if you were thinking of moving the adjournment of the House until a day other than the next sitting day, I think you will have to do so now, and leave this last Order until we sit again; and even so, I will have to ask the House to allow a very short debate this time on the adjournment, because of the extreme pressure on the HANSARD reporters. They cannot take very much more.

Mr. Gatugutu: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when we were debating the Motion that we have just passed, there was an occurrence by an hon. Member which was offensive, and he walked out without withdrawing it, and I think the Deputy Speaker said that he will put it to you for ruling.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I gather that the question is whether there should be any more disciplinary action taken than has already been taken by sending the hon. Member out of the Chamber. It rests on the Speaker, or the Deputy Speaker, as Chairman, to decide whether to name a Member and invite the House to suspend him from the House. I presume that the Chairman did not feel so disposed himself to go that far in this case, and I could not do it without knowing the full circumstances. It does rest with the Speaker to decide whether he invites the House to suspend the Member from the service, but it has to be a serious case. If on a full report to me on what happened in this case, I thought that the hon. Member should be named, I would do so, but we would have to wait until we sat again.

Mr. Ngila-Aboki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, there is a habit here for hon. Members to stand up on a point of order when another hon. Member, sitting like himself, whispers something, probably to the ear of another hon. Member, and ask whether it is in order for a Member to say this and that, and yet there was no reference to him whatsoever. So, under what Standing Order does this come, that an hon. Member stands and accuses other hon. Members sitting like himself on a point of order?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I dealt with this question before. Language that is an offence to other hon. Members is forbidden in this House; and if an hon. Member utters an offensive remark, either that the Speaker hears, or of which another hon. Member complains, and the Member concerned acknowledges that he has said it, it can be dealt with as a breach of

The Assistant Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Onamu): On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, I think it is time you told us when the Member is in order or not in order. The President of the country should be respected as such; are we going to go into details of his personal emoluments and so on?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): We have here a Motion asking for a certain salary for the President. It is being debated—

The Assistant Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Onamu): But he is touching on other things which are surely not relevant?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Please sit down, I am making a ruling. Order, order.

If these interruptions continue, I will have to ask the Speaker to suspend the sitting of the House; either hon. Members are going to obey the Chair and keep quiet or the House will be suspended.

Please sit down, Mr. Onamu.

Either hon. Members are going to remain silent and obey the rulings of the Chair or today's sitting will have to be suspended. I realize that this is a very sensitive Motion. I also realize that when hon. Members speak to this Motion and some persons oppose it, they may say things that other hon. Members think are very bad. I, myself, may think they are very bad; many other hon. Members may think they are very bad, but there has to be some chance of debate. If there is going to be no debate at all, and if we are going to say that there should be no debate at all, then there is no point in having a Motion. Persons are entitled to oppose, whether we like it or not. This is a free country and we are going to allow persons to oppose this Motion, which they are entitled to do by law, although we may think they are doing wrong; but if they want to do so, then we have to give them some chance of speaking. If every hon. Member is going to shout and interject and try to shout them down, then there is going to be no debate at all. So I only appeal to hon. Members to let Mr. Khalif finish and then to reply as strongly as they want. All hon. Members will be given an opportunity to reply to him.

Mr. Khalif, keep it short and do not make personal references to the President. You do understand, I do not want any personal references to be made to the President. You can make references to the particular Motion. Continue.

Mr. Malsori-Itumbi: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, how long is one allowed to speak on this particular Motion?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): There is no limit. The Standing Orders say that a person can speak as long as he wants, and I cannot ask him to sit down unless I feel that he is guilty of tedious repetition.

Carry on, Mr. Khalif.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Chairman, I would have finished a long time ago if there had not been so many interjections.

Now, Sir, in spite of all the interjections, may I conclude by asking several questions. Taking into consideration the entertainment allowance of £2,000 per annum, before the House approves this, could we have a breakdown of the number of parties the hon. President is supposed to hold per annum?

Sir, I have exhausted my points and I would like to support the amendment.

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I—

Mr. Mullro: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, are you not going to propose the amendment?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Yes, quite right; I beg your pardon, I forgot.

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I rise to oppose this amendment very strongly. It is stated that the President would get £7,000 and it is a pity that some Members have seen it fit to criticize this emolument which is very reasonable, and, knowing the burden that the President has to bear as Head of State, I think this figure quoted here of £7,000 per annum, plus this duty allowance of £4,500 and entertainment allowance of £2,000, is low and, in my opinion, should be enhanced. Mr. Chairman, the President of this country should not be subjected to being in an inferior position in comparison with that held by Presidents and Heads of State of other countries. If we expect to have a dignified country, we must have a dignified Head, too.

The Member who has just spoken says that it has been requested that these emoluments should be free of income tax, but what is wrong with that, Mr. Chairman? After all, the allowances of hon. Members here are free from income tax, so why have we not raised an outcry and said that we want these to be taxed also?

Secondly, Mr. Chairman, it is a pity to say that this is a waste of public funds, when we actually know that in the North-Eastern Region today we are wasting a lot of money.

Mr. Chairman, although this salary will apply to any other President in future, the President of Kenya at the moment, the hon. Jomo Kenyatta, deserves more than this allowance because he has done a lot for this country—

Mr. Makore: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, are we discussing the salary of the President or do we have a particular person in view?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): That is not a point of order. I see your point, but obviously say, hon. Member, when he is discussing this Motion, does he have a particular gentleman in view, so I think I can understand that. It is all right, I think your point is understood, but it is not a point of order.

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Chairman, although I did raise that this figure will apply to any other President in future, I take exception on the question of trying to refer that salary when it is paid to the President is a waste of money. On the other hand, Mr. Chairman, there is mention of where African socialism came from. Where did it come from? It never came from Africa. African socialism has been in this country and nobody has brought African socialism here.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, is the Assistant Minister in order to mislead? I did raise that this figure will apply to any other President in future, I take exception on the question of trying to refer that salary when it is paid to the President is a waste of money. On the other hand, Mr. Chairman, there is mention of where African socialism came from. Where did it come from? It never came from Africa. African socialism has been in this country and nobody has brought African socialism here.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I am sorry I did not hear what he was saying at this particular moment. If you are misrepresenting any hon. Member, Mr. Bomett, I would like you to apologize and withdraw.

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I have not misrepresented anybody in this House. I have only said that if there is any hon. Member who believes that there will come a day when an African in this country will own nothing then he is under a great disillusion.

Mr. Chairman, I feel that for anybody to think that someone has said that the President is already very rich is really a pity, because we know that if we read in history, we see that Presidents such as Nkrumah and others have done a lot for the public and will die without any wealth. Those who are in this House know that there is nobody here—probably the Members who have spoken are rich—who does not know that the emoluments of the Members are quite inadequate. This applies to the President. I do not want to elaborate.

We should all have tried to pass this unanimously. I beg to oppose.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Chairman, I stand to say that the Government rejects the amendment completely.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odings): Mr. Chairman, Sir, having heard all the statements and also the reasons put forward, I think that there is no more to be said on this matter and, therefore, I beg to move that the question be now put.

Hon. Members: No! No!

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order, order. I think in view of the fact that this debate is likely to arouse more passion than is necessary, I will put the question.

Mr. Odinyi: On a point of order—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): There is no point of order on this. I have ruled that I am going to put the question and there will be no further points of order now.

(Question that the question of the first part of the amendment be now put and agreed to)

The Vice-President (Mr. Odings): Mr. Chairman, I beg to move that the Mover be called upon to reply.

Mr. Odinyi: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, I think it is a crime to the nation—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order, order. Mr. Odinyi, I run this Committee and I now request you to sit down. I do not want any further remarks.

Mr. Odinyi: Mr. Chairman, I want to make a point of order.

[Mr. Shikuku]

With these few remarks, Mr. Chairman, I beg to move the amendment.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I have just consulted with the Speaker and I have discovered that you have to give the amendment in writing. It has to be in writing, but notice is not necessary.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I must second this amendment because, Sir, after very thorough calculations I come to see that the salary per annum, the duty allowances and the entertainment allowance altogether amounts to Sh. 22,500 per month for the President, Sh. 750 per day and Sh. 93 per hour. Sir, this is definitely a waste of public money.

Hon. Members: Question, question.

Mr. arap To'o: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, is it in order for the hon. Member who has just sat down to say that the salary which is being paid to the President is a waste of public money?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): He is giving his opinion. I think it is in order technically for him to do so, though I would rather he did not say so. Let him finish.

Mr. Gibeoya: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, is it in order for an Assistant Minister to tell the hon. Member to go back to Mogadishu?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): No, no, it is not in order for anybody to say that. If anybody said that, he must withdraw it. Did anybody say that?

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I only shouted "Voice of Mogadishu". I did not say anything.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Even that is offensive. If you did say that he has got to go back to Mogadishu or that he is the "Voice of Mogadishu" particularly in terms of the present relations with Mogadishu, I think it is offensive.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Chairman, I did not mention the hon. Member, I was not referring to the hon. Member.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): All right, we will accept that and continue.

Mr. J. M. Kariki: Mr. Chairman, I would like to have your guidance on this. When an hon. Member is speaking to this House and another Member is heckling a Member who may not be the right person speaking, is it in order for him to be told to withdraw an allegation which he did not make directly to the person and is that not a waste of time of this House?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I do not quite understand. Let me make this quite clear. A certain amount of heckling and interjection is always permissible, and, in fact, it makes debate lively, but if this heckling or interjections are offensive, and I have to rule whether they are offensive, it is not always easy to say that such a remark is offensive and another is not. If it is offensive, then naturally I ask the hon. Member to withdraw. If I find it is not offensive they continue. Now do continue.

Mr. Khalif: In any case, Sir, the duty allowance here shows that it is more than half of the salary. I do not know, Sir, what this is for. The President as a public servant claims all sorts of allowances, he undertakes duties, for example, touring provinces. Then, I do not know why duty allowances should be paid as much as £4,500. Another thing, Sir, which I would like to mention is that amongst other allowances the President is supposed to get per annum, not including these voted here, are travelling allowances, hospital allowances, disturbance allowances, entertainment allowances, honorary allowances—

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, can the hon. gentleman quote from the Estimates all these allowances that he is now referring to, because this is giving the whole country the wrong impression?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Khalif, can you substantiate your allegations?

Mr. Khalif: No, Sir, I did not say the President is getting this allowance, I am speaking to you; or are other hon. Members speaking?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Continue speaking.

Mr. Khalif: I said that the President is supposed, I did not say that the President gets these allowances. If that information is wrong, then I can be corrected.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): But you are not making an allegation are you?

Mr. Khalif: No, Sir.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, as more and more allegations or more interjections

[The Assistant Minister for Education] continue, I think, Sir, is it quite out of order for say hon. Member to refer particularly to the hon. Member who was speaking as a Shifja?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): It is perfectly out of order. I think the Speaker has said before that anybody who calls any other hon. Member a Shifja will be asked to leave the Chamber. If I hear any particular hon. Member say that I will ask him to leave the Chamber.

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, now that the hon. Minister for Finance has corrected the hon. Member's supposition, is it not now in order that the hon. Member speaking at the moment should withdraw the misleading statement which was given to the House, the nation and the world?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): He said that he was not making an allegation, he was merely saying that this is what he had heard and the Minister has corrected him and I think you have withdrawn, have you not, Mr. Khalif?

Mr. Khalif: Yes, Sir. I do not know what is so serious about this Motion, Sir.

We are supposed to agree to this Motion, and if there is any opposition it is logical; this is a democratic country and I do not know why people should shout when I say that the President should not get all this money. It is a waste of public funds, and I can say it is a waste of public funds.

Sir, I feel a duty allowance should not be paid merely because the amount of work the President is normally required to do has increased. I am saying this, Mr. Chairman, Sir, because the Minister has just indicated that the Governor-General used to get this and that; but we did not agree here, in this House, that Governor-General should get that. If that was colonial rule, then this is independent Kenya. It is our aim to decrease the range of income between a casual labourer and the President. Mr. Chairman, we cannot speak of African socialism or about allowances. I am always ready to have my allowances reduced by 20 per cent. We cannot speak of African socialism and at the same time increase the salary of the President to Sh. 22,500. Sir, the other day we had a strike in Nairobi and the workers did not want to get Sh. 22,000 salary per month but Sh. 120, and they were rebuked by the Minister for Labour, that these people are always told this and that. Now, Sir, if some of our workers could be rebuked for striking to get

Sh. 120 a month, why should we sit in this House to approve Sh. 22,500 for the President?

Mr. Chairman, there can be many interjections, but they do not make me lose my points.

An hon. Member: Keep them short.

Mr. Khalif: I will speak lengthily, very lengthily.

Sir, in supporting this amendment, moved by the hon. Mr. Shikuku, I would like to point out that—

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, is it in order for a Member to support an amendment which was invalidated by—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): No, no, it was not invalidated; he has to put it in writing, that is all.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Chairman, I quote, "... and further does, in accordance with section 12 (2) of the East African Income Tax (Management) Act, 1958, resolve that such salary and allowances as are payable to the said President shall be free of income tax." Sir, I really do not know how we could allow a salary of Sh. 22,500 to be free of income tax when a salary of Sh. 800 is subject to income tax.

An hon. Member: This is for the President.

Mr. Khalif: Sir, an hon. Member says this is for the President, but it must be understood that the President is to give the people an example. The President should be the first person to demonstrate in a practical manner the paying of income tax and graduated personal tax. Sir, it seems that we want to make the President immune from income tax, or at least it seems that we want to make Sh. 22,500 which the President is supposed to get immune from income tax. Then I do not know why income tax should ever exist, if a wealthy man like the President—because he is a very wealthy man—is allowed—

Mr. Maitiri-Inamba: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, is it in order for you, as Chairman, to give your ruling for the hon. Member to address the Chair when speaking and not to point at Members?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): It is not necessary for hon. Members to look at the Chair or, for that matter, to point at the Chair; they can look at anybody else and point at anybody else; as long as they address their remarks to the Chair, it is in order.

THE KENYA BROADCASTING CORPORATION (NATIONALIZATION) (AMENDMENT) BILL

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am directed by the Committee of the whole House to report its consideration of the Kenya Broadcasting Corporation (Nationalization) (Amendment) Bill and its approval thereof without amendment.

COMMITTEE OF SUPPLY

(Order for Committee read)

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

IN THE COMMITTEE

[The Chairman (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

MOTION

SALARY AND ALLOWANCES OF PRESIDENT

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Chairman, I beg to move:

THAT this House, having noted the requirements of Section 33 F (1) of the Constitution of Kenya Amendment Act 1964, resolves that the salary and allowances of the President of the Republic of Kenya shall be:

Salary	£7,000 p.a.
Duty Allowance	£4,500 p.a.
Entertainment Allowance	£2,000 p.a.

and further does, in accordance with Section 12 (2) of the East African Income Tax (Management) Act, 1958, resolves that such salary and allowances as are payable to the said President shall be free of income tax.

Mr. Chairman, Sir, this House is well aware that the scales of the salary and allowances which the Motion invites in this House to approve are no different from the payment made to the Governor-General we had before independence. All hon. Members will appreciate that the duties of the President are more onerous financially than in the case of the Governor-General. This Kenya has to deal directly with her own international duties, let alone the numerous duties that the President has to undertake over and above the duties borne by his predecessor throughout the country. It would then follow that the President should be accordingly remunerated. The Government, however, considers—and I am sure this House will agree—that our first President will be satisfied with the remunerations sought by this Motion.

One other point is that the approval of the Personal Emoluments outlined in the Motion will necessitate no additional expenditure over and above what we incur on the Governor-General. I therefore sincerely trust and believe that this House will accept the Motion without a debate.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, is it in order for some people sitting on the Front Bench to move and lie on the Table making it impossible for you to see anybody standing up? Is it in order for hon. Member to obstruct other hon. Members in this House?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I see your point of view, Mr. Shikuku. I will bear that in mind and I can assure you that you will not be overlooked.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odero-Jowi): Mr. Chairman, seconding this Motion, I would like to point out that truly speaking the President has Governor responsibility, much more than the Governor-General had. These days, Sir, our President receives a lot of diplomats from all those countries with which we have established diplomatic relations, and surely this means a lot more expenditure than the Governor-General had to incur. As a matter of fact, I would like to agree with the hon. Member that the President deserves a little bit more.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Chairman, some of us happen to be short.

[Mr. Shikuku]

I would like to make it known to the hon. Member and to the House that personally I do not have any grudge against the President's salary and emoluments, but I would like to point out quite clearly that it was just a few days ago when we decided in this House that we should have African socialism. Taking this into account, we must also take into account the effects of African socialism and he must make the ordinary man and woman in the country know that we are for socialism and are not going any higher, but actually coming down to try and get everybody a piece of bread. The argument—

Mr. Oduya: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, since we are very interested in listening to the hon. Member for Butere giving his views, is there anything that the Chairman can do to help us to discipline, particularly, the two Ministers, the Minister for—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): No, no. It is quite improper. It is my duty to observe that a reasonable amount of silence is maintained and I can assure you, Mr. Oduya, you do your part of beklung as much as anyone else.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Chairman, I will take as short a time as possible if the hon. Members will give me a chance. What I am trying to say is that I am not against the President. I am only talking of the salary which has been put before us here to discuss, and as the Member for Butere I think I am entitled to have different views from the rest of the House, but please, for Heaven's sake, let me speak.

One thing I know, the argument so far aired by the hon. Member, is that the former Colonial and Governor earned the same salary as this, and in view of the fact that the President has so many duties to do, he has to have something quite reasonable, like that which the Governor-General had. I wish to refute this most emphatically. The Governor, it must be understood was a person who was here to exploit the people of this country, but here we are now faced with the building of the nation, which requires money. As such, there must be some sacrifice from all of us, not only the President. Therefore it is illogical to talk in terms of the Governor-General had this, and then the President must have the same. We are now talking about building the country, not exploiting the country as the Governor-General did, if it is a question of expenditure and duties, this much I know. We are a republic, and we have so many people coming into this country from other countries to visit us. This is accepted, but let us now go to African socialism. When they come here, the question of expenditure arises because they have to eat big cakes. We according to African socialism, must give them the big cake of Kenya which is real and which is not expensive.

The expenditure is not going to be the criteria of the increment of the salary at all, because whether we like it or not, we have problems on our hands; the problems of the people who are unemployed. We must reduce the salaries of the President, the Vice-President, the Members of Parliament and everybody so that we can save some money to employ a lot of the hungry men in the street. Mr. Chairman, I suggest that even our own salaries be deducted by 20 per cent. This will be a sign of African socialism. We must make the ordinary man and woman in Kenya feel that we are really bringing in a new thing, and they can only feel that when we reduce all the salaries of everybody in the country by 20 per cent in order to employ more people, so that the people will always remember when African socialism came, the President's salary was deducted, as well as everybody's salaries, and as a result, our people got employment. We must remember that we cannot go on preaching, holding papers in our hands, shouting about African socialism, or this and that. People will never listen, Mr. Chairman; you are a Christian and you know very well about Jesus the Son of God, and who, according to and from that day, the people food at a meeting, he had called Jesus a good man. We want the President of this country, or any future President to be called good by everybody of this country, and for Government to be called a good Government, it must give as much as possible to our people to eat so that it can be called good. We cannot be called good when we give such large sums of money to a person or future person to be President.

As such, Mr. Chairman, I beg to move an amendment: I feel that an amendment must be made here: Instead of the salary of £7,000 per annum; I make it £5,000 per annum. Duty Allowance, which is £4,500 per annum, I make £3,000. Entertainment Allowance of £2,000 I leave as it is because there are so many people to see it because there are so many people to visit the President. The total will be brought down to £10,000 per annum, which will give the President Sh. 16,666/67 etc. per month, which is sufficient. I feel that this is a reasonable thing and we can also, when the time comes for deduction 20 per cent of every salary, this will also deduct 20 per cent of every salary, this will also be done so that we can get something for the people of Kenya who are hungry and unemployed at this. Will promote the Uthmaniyah Tumbiko policy.

An hon. Member: And uneducated.

Mr. Gichoya: He was backward, educationally backward.

So, the same situation might arise here, where we are giving these people too much power under the law, whereby a man is entitled, in a Republic of Kenya, to be arrested under a warrant. If he is to be arrested, it is clearly stated that no person will be arrested without a warrant of arrest. That is why we are trying to avoid it, or to amend it, so that the man cannot be arrested by mere suspicion—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Gichoya, I think you are beginning to repeat yourself. I think you have made your point.

Mr. Gichoya: I am coming to a conclusion, Sir. I want us to have specified persons, an officer to operate these particular laws, an officer in the rank of sub-inspector upwards to a Commissioner of Police, and not anybody else. This is a special case, it is running away from the normal operation of the law, whereby you are supposed to be given a warrant. Here you are being arrested by mere suspicion, as used to happen during the emergency. For that matter, Mr. Chairman, special arrangements must be made as opposed to the normal arrangements which are prevailing in the previous Acts.

With these few words, Mr. Chairman, Sir, I beg to move that the clause be amended in that clause 4 of the Bill be amended by inserting in subclause (2) immediately after the word "officer" appearing therein, the following words "from the rank of sub-inspector".

(Question of the amendment that the words proposed to be inserted be inserted proposed)

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I have only two points to make on this amendment. In the first place I would like to register my support for this amendment, and secondly, I would like to point out that in view of the fact that—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I want to make it quite clear that Mr. Gichoya, I think, has gone far beyond the limits of this debate. The amendment suggested is only for arrest without warrant of a supervisee, so any debate about any other arrests is quite out of order in this particular debate. You must restrict yourself to this particular amendment.

Mr. Khalif: That is what I was trying to do, Sir. In fact, Sir, my first point was to say that if a number of foreign armed forces were to be—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): That is nothing to do with this, I explained to you just now that this amendment merely says that a supervisee who is suspected of having committed an offence, can be arrested by a police officer without warrant. So, you have to restrict yourself to a supervisee. A police officer from another country, has nothing to do with this section.

Mr. Khalif: That is what I was coming to, Sir, if you would not interrupt me.

Sir, whether he is a supervisee or not, it does not really make any difference.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): It does, Mr. Khalif. I have ruled that you have to restrict yourself to a supervisee, not anything else.

Mr. Khalif: That is why I am saying, Sir.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): That is not what you are saying.

Mr. Khalif: It is what I am saying, because although a supervisee, in so far as the person who is on the field is expected to arrest this person without warrant, could be a constable or a lance-corporal, or a corporal in the police force, it has been proved through experience that most of our other ranks in the police, lower than sub-inspectors, are ignorant.

Mr. Chairman, Sir, I would like only to base my arguments on the fact that we should not allow any police officers to arrest without warrant, because when we give a police officer the right to arrest without warrant, then we must ensure that that police officer knows what it means to arrest without warrant. Therefore, Sir, it is quite logical to suggest that a police officer, lower than the rank of sub-inspector, should not be given these powers which could, if interpreted according to the Bill, be very damaging to this nation of Kenya.

I beg to support, Sir.

Mr. Odunya: I am only standing up to request that the Attorney-General takes the Floor, and request him to accept the amendment moved by the hon. Member for Gichoya, because I see that we have some more business on the Order Paper today.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I reject this amendment entirely, because I want to submit to this House that the amendment makes nonsense of the whole Criminal Procedure Code. If you look at the preliminary Part I of the Criminal Procedure Code, the Act itself, which we are amending, there is a definition of a police officer, which is, "Police officer means a police officer or a Tribal Police officer." Now, I am going to refer to the section which we are amending, and as you pointed out, this amendment only refers to police supervisees, and these are incorrigible criminals, who have to be subjected to certain restrictions when they come out of prison, and these are the conditions: "To reside within the limits of a specified area, and not to transfer his residence to any other area without the written consent of the police officer in charge of that area." I do not see why you want to put the rank of the police to a sub-inspector. In fact, the person who should know and be able to identify these people are the Tribal Police, because they are restricted to those areas where they are known and where they come from. If only hon. Members will refer to the same which we are referring to and which we are amending, we would not have all these unnecessary interruptions.

Mr. Chairman, I oppose the amendment.

Clause 49

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Chairman I beg to move that clause 49 (2) of the Bill be amended by deleting the words "Arbitration Tribunals and".

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Chairman, this clause says that any person who..... (Inaudible) thereof, and he is not registered with the Registrar as an officer of such tribunal or branch shall be an offence. Now, Sir—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I think you are wrong.

Mr. Khalif: Is that not clause 39, Sir?

(Clause 49 as amended agreed to)
(Clauses 50 and 51 agreed to)

Clause 52

Mr. Omar: Mr. Chairman, here again it seems that something is wrong with clause 52 (2). It is stated here: "Every association of trade unions which on 6th April 1965 was registered as a society under the Societies Act shall, on the date of publication of this Act, be deemed to have ceased to be a society registered under that Act and to have been registered as a trade union under the Trade Unions Act (as amended by this Act)". If I understood this subclause clearly it means that all the registered trade unions will have to reapply for registration.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): If you do not understand you might as well as the Minister to explain.

Mr. Omar: Let me say the reason why I want an explanation. It is because I found under the Essential Services the Petroleum and Oil Workers' Union and the Dockworkers' Union which are highly organized, and very strong unions, which can lead a strike at any time and convince the Government that the employers of these industries are not paying sufficient wages to their employees, have been put under the Essential Services which, in my opinion, I feel are not necessary at all.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Are you speaking to this section?

Mr. Omar: I am giving my reasons why I want an explanation under this clause.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Unless you say that the dockworkers and petroleum workers are registered societies I do not know how you are speaking to this section.

Mr. Omar: I will speak to it later on.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, I want to commend this section to those hon. Members who have so fervently spoken on behalf of the workers, and in particular the Member for Teso, who has been very enthusiastic about this in the interest of the workers.

What this section means is, as hon. Members will know, that the trade unions in the past have been registered under the Societies Act. Now they will be registered under this Act, but we will save the workers the expense and the trouble of having to re-register again and as soon as this Act is passed they shall be free to be registered under this Act automatically.

(First and Second Schedules agreed to)

Third Schedule

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I beg to move that the Third Schedule be amended by inserting in relation to section 38 (shown in the first column thereof a paragraph (c) as follows:—

(c) Insert immediately after subsection (5) thereof of the following subsection—

(5A) Any person who acts or purports to act as an officer of a trade union or of any branch thereof and who is not registered with the Registrar as an officer of such trade union or branch shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five thousand shillings or to a term of imprisonment not exceeding six months or to both such fine and such imprisonment.

(Question of the amendment proposed)

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Chairman, Sir, supposing that these conflicts are within the union, just as we had last time, and the Minister will remember, in Nakuru somebody went to Moscow and when he came back then there was a very big conflict. Now, Sir, what instruments shall be used to detect the right officer for the union and the wrong officer, otherwise the right officer could be put [Mr. Khalif] the and the wrong officer is in office. Now what instruments are going to be used by the Ministry to detect that the right person is not put in a cell?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Chairman, Sir, if I may go on. These officers, as the hon. Member will know, all details are with the Registrar of Societies at the moment and we know who they are but if any other person masquerades as an officer of any given trade union then he will be liable under this section.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Chairman, Sir, as far as this is concerned, I know that people tend to go and register themselves as officers of the union by filling in some forms. Now how can we judge whether it is the right person or the wrong person?

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Chairman, Sir, my problem is that I would like to have a further explanation from the Attorney-General. There could be a situation whereby Njonjo, secretary-general for a particular union goes out and when he comes back he finds that Gichoya has already ousted him. Now Njonjo was originally the legal officer of that trade union and Gichoya who was just an ordinary man has put himself into his position. It happens sometimes. Also at the same time Gichoya has put his name clearly of the society that he is the legal secretary. Now the two countries do claim that they are officers of the same organization, are they not going to be punished by this law, because both their names are in the Registrar's Office? Now which one is the legal secretary of the organization. So, Mr. Chairman in this respect there ought to be a way out in case of any dispute in a trade union movement so that this dispute is ended as to who is who in that particular organization of the two who legally are in the positions as officers of the trade union and this clause should not operate in that respect. If this can be legally intended, the Attorney-General I shall be very happy indeed.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I think there is some misunderstanding because the problem that the hon. Member for Gichoya is worried about cannot have two officials operating at the same time. This section merely refers to people who in fact have nothing to do with the trade union and they must carry, as I have indicated, as officials of the trade union. This, in fact, if I had had my way would have been to have put them inside for three years and possibly the sentence would have been stiffer than it is at the moment.

Long Title

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odoro-Jowi): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I would like to move that the Long Title of the Bill be amended by deleting there from "Arbitration Tribunal".

THE CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE (AMENDMENT) BILL

(Clauses 2 and 3 put and agreed to)

Clause 4

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Gichoya would you like to move your amendment, then do so?

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Chairman, Sir, my amendment to this was necessitated by a single thing, and I think it would take a long time for us to discuss it, but in order to leave no doubt over this procedure to the Criminal Procedure Code (Amendment) Bill, we must express quite clearly that the officers involved are from some—I say this Mr. Chairman, from some experience, say this Mr. Chairman, when the officers one, during the emergency when the officers operating by them, either a constable or a home guard was an officer, and he had the powers under the laws of the Bill to deal with him as if he was a Commissioner of Police. Just a few days ago, Mr. Chairman, Sir, a police constable dressed in plain clothes, a simple plain young man arrested a vegetable seller, he was asked to show his licence; this licence was produced by the licence holder and he did not even look at it. What he did was to take it and ask if this was a licence issued by the County Council of Kirinyaga? It is valid, and I am trying to explain my point.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I think the Minister must be reasonable enough to listen patiently, and know how the law is being flouted by our people who do not understand the procedure.

I tried to find out from another policeman whether these people are really trained to understand what business they are trying to do, because a man who is backwards—

this country had a loss of so much, because of the other strike this country had a loss of so much, it will be completely impossible for us to accept that these workers should come under Essential Services, particularly the oil companies. Tell us what strike, which year, how much this country lost, because if the workers go on strike—

Mr. Malinda: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, now that we are concerned with additions or deletions to the Essential Services' list, is the Member strictly in order in talking generally of the list which is already there?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I think it would be, because I do not think one can discuss the question of Essential Services without discussing the list that is there, and may be increased or reduced. What I think he is trying to say is the danger of the list being increased.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Chairman, if you will permit me, the hon. Member is hoping that his employees will not be going on strike because he is engaged in transport employment.

I have just put this to the hon. Minister because we want to know. These are some of the important issues which are affecting us. We accept this, as far as medical services are concerned, because if you get a person dying because somebody is on strike, that is a straightforward case, but if Masinde fails to go to Mombasa because the Railways are on strike, it does not matter. If Masinde fails to get petrol because there is an oil strike, it does not matter, because that is personal, it is more personal than national. We have to be fair to ourselves. As we look at ourselves, let us also look at the people we are trying to protect in this Bill. Sir, I doubt whether the Minister is going to give us this breakdown as far as every department or industry is concerned.

Mr. Mwendwa: Mr. Chairman, I thank the hon. Member because he has asked me the reasons why we have thought that the oil industry is essential. A service does not qualify to be essential or not essential by the fact that it is in private hands or Government hands; that is not a qualification. The qualification is entirely the service which it gives to the people in Kenya.

I just want to give one example. Supposing there is a strike today in the oil industry and you are summoned by the National Assembly to attend a meeting here which is very important, and you cannot get petrol anywhere, would you walk to Nairobi? You cannot walk to Nairobi, and you will come here and say that this is an Essential Service because that has affected you.

I will give another instance. All the Government is thinking of actually is the public good and the public service. These people are the ones who are serving people in the Medical Department, Health Department, Agriculture Department, Education Department. If there is an oil strike, an inspector of schools cannot go out, a doctor cannot go out to see patients, all aeroplane cannot leave Nairobi because there is nobody there to keep petrol. This service is essential.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Chairman, Sir, the explanation given by the Minister, that these are Essential Services, although they are privately owned, leads us to believe that our Government is reluctant to nationalize the Essential Services.

Electricity is a very Essential Service, but what guarantee have the workers, so as to work in an industry which is privately owned and where, I do not think, the Government of Kenya has stipulated the salaries of each officer, of each labourer in the particular service.

I know the Minister for Labour in Kenya and every other Minister has his salary agreed upon and he knows the class he is going to be put in. The Permanent Secretary knows that he is to be put in such and such a class. Somebody holding such a position knows he will be put in a particular category. In these private firms you have a man who is a director, an African director—

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, in view of the fact that we have had a lot of discussion on this clause for the last, say, half an hour, can the question now be put so that we can proceed?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I think we will let Mr. Gichoya finish what he is saying.

Mr. Gichoya: What I am saying is that we should not tie up the workers and show them that we are condemning them to death in the sense that they will never have— It is only in the last resort that an opportunity is given to the workers to strike because they come under the category of Essential Services. These particular services may not be very essential. I say they are not essential because if we need electricity in the villages here, in Sophia Town, Majengo, you will find that this Essential Service is not provided to the people. So, it is no longer essential. It is a monopoly of a few privileged who can afford electricity. Take Bahali and Shauri Moyo. Is there any electricity there? Yet it is stated here that it is one of the Essential Services. I say, Mr. Chairman, the Minister and those concerned with services in particular categories did make a blunder in putting electricity under the Essential Services cover.

Mr. Chairman, the Member for Wajir North belongs to a very primitive area.

The other point I want to put forward is this. It deals with transport.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, is the hon. Member really in order in describing that the other Member comes from a primitive area?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): We must not be too sensitive but, on the other hand, we must avoid using such words as "primitive" in this House. You must withdraw, Mr. Gichoya.

Mr. Gichoya: I do withdraw, Mr. Chairman, but I happen to know that this area is a backward area since I have seen it.

The other point I was saying is this. When we take the air services it will be wrong to put all the special planes which are owned by individuals in the same category as ours. We must separate them, we must separate the East African Airways as owned by the East African Authority from the others. These should be safeguarded and I agree with that. The Police Air Wing also comes under Government control and these are covered. But when we take air transport as a whole I think there is a mistake because here we are trying to say that those people who are employed by private air owners will have to suffer the consequences of being placed in the same category as the East African Authority. So, here I say that since the conditions of these two people differ, even though they work in the same industry, their category must also be different. One is Government while the other is a private employer who takes the whole profits. So, in this respect air transport should be made clear and here it should be stated that it is only the East African Common Services Airways, the Police Wing or, for that matter, anything owned by the Government.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Gichoya, do try and be brief.

Mr. Gichoya: Although the Minister tried to explain that petrol, fuel, oil, power and light which are also to be safeguarded, if we— I would like to give an example of electricity where we have a 33 per cent share as a Government, in the oil companies we have practically nothing. As a matter of fact we do not own anything here, and if the Minister says, "All right, we must take so many shares in order that the Government may have a share in it and determine the factor that there will never be any strike" then once again the Government does not determine what the worker should receive.

Mr. Chairman, the Government must ensure this House that these services which are at present isolated one from the other and are now being covered under the words "Essential Services" the workers will go and have their salaries or wages stipulated by the Kenya Government according to the standard which prevails in the country today. This should not be left in private hands. The workers in those places must be assured by the Government that their salary scales will be determined by the Kenya Government. If this cannot be so it means definitely that we are trying to tell an employer, well, you are at liberty to determine how much you should pay this person, the labourer and by the same token we assure you that the labourer will have no chance whatsoever of revolting against your provisions.

With these few words, Mr. Chairman, I would like to support.

Mr. Odaga: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, am I wrong to demand from you that I did ask the Minister for Labour to explain to me and also to the House whether the Dockworkers' Union and the Petroleum Workers Union were represented. He has not stood up to say anything. Before you put the question I think I am right in asking the Minister to explain.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order, order. I have your point of order. I have, however, already decided that I am going to put the question on clause 34.

(Clause 35 agreed to)

Clause 36

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Chairman I beg to move that clause 36 (1) of the Bill be amended by deleting the word "ten" and by inserting in place thereof the word "five".

(Question that the words proposed to be inserted in place thereof be inserted put and agreed to)

[Mr. Gichoya] unionists working in hospitals. The hospital is and Essential Service and it must be maintained throughout, whether there is an emergency or not. But instead of the Minister knowing that that particular industry or that particular trade falls under the category of Essential Services, here he comes with a very confused mind, Sir, it is the trade union, when it behaves nicely, will be told that you are not falling under the Essential Services column.

I think, Mr. Chairman, Sir, the Minister should not be given powers to determine itself, we should make a list of all those Essential Services, present them to the House, so that we can approve that they be entirely under the Essential Services conditions so that the Minister works without any fear that Parliament might later say that he has acted wrongly. The notice that the whole thing will be done will be brought to the National Assembly. I would be embarrassing to tell the Minister that he had made a mistake, he ought to have done it this way—let him first of all bring it and get the authority of this House without any fear. That is all we are trying to find out from the Minister, as to whether he is willing to accept, not to be a dictator but come to the Parliament and beg for the authority and then use that authority for the good of the workers.

Mr. Mwendwa: Mr. Chairman, I am surprised to see that the hon. Member has not even taken the trouble to go through the Bill. In the First Schedule, Sir, I have given the list of services which we have considered to be Essential Services, and for the interest of the hon. Members sitting in the House, they should understand that these have been checked by the leaders of the unions and they have agreed, together with the employers, that these are services which at the moment they consider are essential. In fact, Mr. Chairman, the arrangements, which I have already tabled in this House, were reached as a result of the agreement between the trade union leaders and our Ministry, and it is no good anybody standing in this House and trying to talk as if he is a union leader when he is not a union leader. I do not have a magic wand to waive over the services which are essential or not essential. We know a service is essential by the service which is rendered and given to the people. There are services, Mr. Chairman, which I have left out, which I think the hon. Members in this House will agree with me are Essential Services. For example, if I may give an example, the teaching service is a very essential service, but it is left out. That is the reason why we have put a list here so that the Members can read it for themselves.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Chairman, I do not agree with the explanation of the Minister.

The point here is that the Minister must clarify the position. As one of the workers, as I know that I am also under contract in this House, I would like the Minister—

Mr. Chairman, the position is that we learn that the unions, like the oil and like the dockworkers unions, like the Railways and many others, are declared Essential Services. The Minister has told us that the union representatives agreed, but if they did agree, could we know who represented the dockworkers, who represented the oil workers' union and some other unions because it is always the tendency of the Ministry to deal with only one side—that is the Kenya Federation of Labour—which, in fact, does not represent all the workers in the country. Mr. Chairman, what I am talking about is that the Ministry only contacts those unions affiliated to the Kenya Federation of Labour and leaves out the other labour federation composed of other unions. So, in fact, what we want is to give assurance to this House and to the Members that the oil union, the dockworkers union, were represented and, if so, by whom. . . . (Inaudible) pick up these street fellows who have not taken official . . . (Inaudible) and use them to fight against the legal secretary under the Trade Union Ordinance. That is one . . .

Two, this Bill here empowers the Minister at any time he considers fit to declare any union essential and, like that of teachers, my fear is that at the moment I know they left the teachers' union out because they feared—They know that teachers are intellectuals and that at any moment that the Government or the Ministry mess about . . . (Inaudible) in this country. I know that the teachers union could make a lot of noise, they could even . . . (Inaudible) to declare the teachers union as an Essential Service. Over the money there are cases, of course, which come to a deadlock . . . (Inaudible) The alternative is that the Government will . . . (Inaudible) like police, and this is where I say that if this kind of thing is to be allowed, the situation will be terrible, Mr. Chairman . . . (Inaudible) . . . (Inaudible) are going to be denied the right of . . . (Inaudible) their cases, of course, if it comes to . . . (Inaudible)

[Mr. Oduya] I know that you do not refuse them the opportunity of going on strike, but the line that is being taken, in fact the machinery itself if I examine it properly . . . (Inaudible) tion to be Essential Services.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): You must address the Chair.

Mr. Oduya: . . . (Inaudible) It is a serious thing. When they go on strike what is the alternative, if they go on strike by force. The alternative is that the Government will summon all the other groups, like police . . . (Inaudible) do not understand the consequences.

Mr. Masinde: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, is it in order for the hon. Member to say that his colleagues in this House do not understand?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): One cannot substantiate this. It is a reflection, it is rather bad for him to do so, but I do not know whether, in fact, it would be out of order. So I would very much prefer that hon. Members did not say things like this. It is not insulting, I think, in the true sense, but I would like the hon. Member to withdraw it.

Mr. Oduya: When I said some Members do not understand, I meant to say that all of us have not been trade unionists.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I think we can accept that explanation.

Mr. Odero-Jowi: Mr. Chairman, I would like to make two points clear.

Firstly, we are not declaring the Railway African Union an Essential Service, we are declaring the Railway Administration an Essential Service.

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, the Assistant Minister is trying to change the meaning given by the hon. Member when he was speaking.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): No, no. I think the Assistant Minister is quite right. In fact, I did hear, I think it was Mr. Oduya, who said the Railway African Union, and the Union had been declared an Essential Service. It might have been a slip of the tongue, but he did say it.

Mr. Odero-Jowi: Mr. Chairman, I know it was a slip of the tongue, because the hon. Member for Teso knows his trade unionism very well.

Secondly, Sir, I would like to make it clear that the fact that a service or, say, the Railway Administration has been declared an Essential Service does not mean that the workers in that Administration will not go through the normal processes of having their disputes listened to and processed just as in any other industry. As a matter of fact, Mr. Chairman, all the machinery for negotiation has been left entirely to the unions to work out with the employers, and they will work out the normal procedures for settling disputes. But it only comes to this point, that instead of going on strike, it is stipulated that they will give twenty-eight days' notice and that if a solution to a dispute is not reached, the Minister has the power to refer it either to the Industrial Court or a court of inquiry, whose findings will be binding on the parties to the dispute.

So, Mr. Chairman, the question of this section of the Bill being dictatorial does not really arise, because there are laws in this world which are more stern than this one. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I would like to urge the Members to get that clarified.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Chairman, Sir, as the Assistant Minister has explained, it appears that he has not quite convinced some of us. We understand we are here to help the Government pass this Bill, but we must do so after getting a proper explanation as to why oil workers come under Essential Services; there is no reason at all for that. These people are not employed by Government. For that matter, there is nowhere where their salaries are guaranteed, so that a person working in Eldoret in a petrol station will receive a certain salary. Any petrol dealer employs him at a salary, and since such people do not come under the Government machinery of employment, like the Railways, and until such time that the Government has guaranteed the salaries of the workers in the oil industry, it will be completely out of place to say that this type of service should come under Essential Services. That is one point.

The other point, Mr. Chairman, is on the Railways. The Railways is also a commercial concern, although it is semi-Government, because it competes with some firms like Express Transport companies with some firms like Express Transport and Overseas Touring Company, as far as passengers are concerned, and these are not declared Essential Services. How are you going to have the two, just because you want Government to have a monopoly, and yet you say you want to have a licence to some people to compete here given a licence? Because of that, Sir, until with the Railways? Because of that, Sir, until the Government convinces us that for one, two, three, four reasons and because of that strike

[Mr. Gieboya] of the workers. I say so, Mr. Chairman, because just a few days back there was a strike of the local government workers, and that strike opposed some county councils who had paid or agreed to pay on the scales in the Pratt Report. Some county councils were not in a position to pay on those scales which were to be compelled by the failure of the whole local government authority from functioning when they went on sympathy strike, which is the only weapon given to the workers, that if one employer proves to be completely indifferent to the demands which are being made, then all they can do is to go on strike, as long as they believe that the problem of the one worker is the problem of the other workers.

Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, what I am trying to explain is that if we give the Minister the powers that are demanded here by the Act, it means exactly that sympathy strikes which have necessitated that employer to have common sense, will no longer take place, and if they do not take place the employers will be the victims of the actual Parliament. I believe in the former conditions we were a little better off than under this particular Act, which gives the Minister power to dictate. We have rejected dictatorship in Kenya, and we have to dictate ourselves, and not allow the Minister, in this connexion, to be the dictator over the workers who are fighting for their own livelihood.

Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, I would urge the Minister to amend this.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odera-Jowi): Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, if the hon. Member was aware at all, he could have objected to two previous clauses. Now, the fact of the matter is that under this section, the Minister is given powers to declare a strike illegal if it is a sympathy strike from without the industry. Sympathy strikes are allowed within an industry; and for his information industry is defined here. So the question of sympathy strikes from outside should not arise.

[The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

I think he should do his homework.

Mr. Gieboya: Mr. Chairman, Sir, it surprises me to hear that when we are dealing with particular industries, and they say that in these industries dictatorship shall not exist, workers must be given the latitude to get sympathy from their fellow workers in terms of the same industry. I am trying to find out why it is allowed that a sympathy strike should operate in the same industry or, for that matter, same place. So, that being completely needed, Mr. Chairman, Sir, why cannot he sympathize with the workers and ask the Minister to pin-point the place where he allows the sympathy strikes?

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odera-Jowi): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I will quote: "For the purpose of this section, a trade dispute shall not be deemed to be within a trade or industry unless it is a dispute between employers and employees, or between employees and employees, in that trade or industry, which is connected with the employment or non-employment or the terms of employment, or with the conditions of labour, of persons in that trade or industry."

Mr. Chairman, Sir, in this section we are trying to accommodate two things. Strictly speaking, taking the present trade union strikes in the country, it is not easy to draw a clear line that this industry is organized by a certain union, so we are using two definitions. "Industry" in the ordinary sense and "industry" in the sense of a group of employment units which have been organized by one union, and the two definitions are accommodated.

Clause 22

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odera-Jowi): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I beg to move that clause 22 (3) be amended by inserting immediately after the words "signed by the words "or under the authority of"

(Question of the amendment proposed)

(Question that the words to be inserted be inserted put and agreed to)

(Clause 22 as amended agreed to)

Mr. Omar: Mr. Chairman, Sir, under this clause (1), it says "Any person who in connexion with any strike or lock-out declared by or under this Act to be unlawful: (a) declares, instigates, or incites others to take part in, any such strike or lock-out." Here, Mr. Chairman, personally I do not believe that there is a person who can instigate or incite others to take part in strikes. I would like these Ministers to keep quiet, Mr. Chairman, so that I can explain to them what makes workers go on strike. They are not incited or instigated by anybody. It is a social problem which makes the workers go on strike, and therefore there is nobody at all who will go to a [Mr. Omar] specified therein." Now, I find that under the list of Essential Services where the workers will not be allowed to take strike action, it seems that the Minister is given powers to add any service to it, and he can take up one morning and say that the workers of local government are also to be included in the list of Essential Services.

Now, this is an authority of this country and if the Minister is given such powers alone to decide at any time that it be put in the Official Gazette, that a certain industry is to come under the Essential Services, I feel it means that too many powers are given to the Minister. Of course, it is further stated here that they will probably bring it to the National Assembly, but he shall have already assessed those powers. What I would like is that, before the Minister takes steps to put an industry in the list of Essential Services in the Official Gazette, he brings the matter to the House for full discussion and then get the consent of the National Assembly. The Minister alone should not have such powers; he should not become a dictator here.

Mr. Mwendwa: Mr. Chairman, Sir, since the hon. Member has been a trade union leader, I think he will try to show the Government that his union is a business union. If that is so, I am given powers to do two things: to delete or to add. It is up to the unions to prove to the Government that they are loyal and it is not essential to be in the list of Essential Services. It will automatically, Mr. Chairman, without any delay, delete that union, because they have behaved well. Therefore it is the duty of the hon. Member to go and tell his union to prove to the Government and the Minister that they are well behaved, they follow the machinery, and I will definitely delete it from the Essential Services.

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I sympathize with the hon. Member's remarks, but he says he does not agree that there is anybody who will instigate or incite others to go on strike. If that is so, he has no reason to fear, because the clause will only deal with those who instigate or those who incite. Since he says he does not think that anybody will incite, there is no reason to fear. The clause is put here in case there is a mad man roaming about who will incite others.

Mr. Gieboya: Mr. Chairman, Sir, there must be a system of ascertaining the contention that there is somebody instigating. What is the basis for the Minister determining that X and Y and Z are instigating?

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Chairman, Sir, the normal procedure which is taken in a court of law takes place. A man is not a thief until he is proved by the court that he is a thief.

(Clause 25 agreed to)

(Clauses 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32 and 33 agreed to)

Clause 34

Mr. Omar: Mr. Chairman, Sir, again, here I find that the Minister is given rather dictatorial powers. This covers the whole of the workers in the country, not only local workers' unions. "The Minister may, by notice in the Gazette, add any service to, or delete any service from, the First Schedule to this Act, and without prejudice to the generality of the description of any service specified therein." Now, I find that under the list of Essential Services where the workers will not be allowed to take strike action, it seems that the Minister is given powers to add any service to it, and he can take up one morning and say that the workers of local government are also to be included in the list of Essential Services.

Now, this is an authority of this country and if the Minister is given such powers alone to decide at any time that it be put in the Official Gazette, that a certain industry is to come under the Essential Services, I feel it means that too many powers are given to the Minister. Of course, it is further stated here that they will probably bring it to the National Assembly, but he shall have already assessed those powers. What I would like is that, before the Minister takes steps to put an industry in the list of Essential Services in the Official Gazette, he brings the matter to the House for full discussion and then get the consent of the National Assembly. The Minister alone should not have such powers; he should not become a dictator here.

Mr. Mwendwa: Mr. Chairman, Sir, since the hon. Member has been a trade union leader, I think he will try to show the Government that his union is a business union. If that is so, I am given powers to do two things: to delete or to add. It is up to the unions to prove to the Government that they are loyal and it is not essential to be in the list of Essential Services. It will automatically, Mr. Chairman, without any delay, delete that union, because they have behaved well. Therefore it is the duty of the hon. Member to go and tell his union to prove to the Government and the Minister that they are well behaved, they follow the machinery, and I will definitely delete it from the Essential Services.

Mr. Gieboya: Mr. Chairman, Sir, here is an explanation which shows exactly that the Minister himself is doubtful as to whether a particular service is an Essential Service or not. Mr. Chairman: what is more important—we expect that our Minister along with his own technicians would take time to first of all go deeper and would take time to stipulate them completely and bring country, to stipulate them completely and bring that document to this House to get the authority for adding them up into a form of law that these are Essential Services where a strike is not allowed. This is what happens normally in modern society and, more so, in democratic institutions.

Mr. Chairman, the Minister says that a trade union has to behave so that it is exempted from being within the Essential Services; I wonder being within the Essential Services, I wonder what behaviour is expected, Sir, to include trade in a context which I would like to seek your opinion on, because some of these words used properly are not offensive but, depending on the context and the gusto with which the words are used, they can be very offensive.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think the phrase to which you are referring was a remark by Mr. Khalif that the Assistant Minister had shown his ignorance of the subject. It is mildly offensive, but I think there is a limit to where we take offence. I should not worry too much about that particular point.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE

THE TRADE DISPUTES BILL

Clause 2

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I would like to move an amendment to clause 2: That clause 2 of the Bill be amended—

(i) by deleting therefrom the definition of "Arbitration Tribunal"; and

(ii) by inserting therein, in its correct alphabetical sequence, the following new definition—"Tripartite Committee" means a committee consisting of a representative of the Minister, who shall be the chairman, and two other members appointed by the Minister, one from a panel of persons nominated by or on behalf of organizations of employers, and the other from a panel of persons nominated by or on behalf of organizations of employees.

(Question that the words to be left out be left out and agreed to)

(Question that the words to be inserted be inserted and agreed to)

Clause 3

Mr. Omar: Mr. Deputy Chairman, clause 3 (d) says, "in a military, naval or air force, or in any reserve force thereto"; and this Bill provides machinery whereby employers and employees are to sit together and discuss their industrial differences and disputes and try to settle them. Now, it seems that under this clause, this is not applicable to the military, naval or air forces, nor the police force. Since these are also employees of the Central Government, Mr. Deputy Chairman, I would like the Minister to tell us whether there is existing machinery whereby the police force and the naval, military and air forces can sit with the Government and settle their grievances?

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Deputy Chairman, it is very strange to have to learn that a Member of the House does not know the machinery which is used for settling all the disputes of naval, military and air forces, as also police forces. This Bill is for those people who are employed in the organizations which are specified and that has nothing to do with the army, police and the rest.

Clause 5

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Chairman, I beg to move another amendment to clause 5 of the Bill. That clause 5 (i) of the Bill be amended—

(i) by inserting immediately after the words "reported to him and" the words "shall consult a Tripartite Committee and, after such consultation,";

(ii) by deleting the word "or" in paragraph (b);

(iii) by deleting the word "Act," in paragraph (c) and by inserting in place thereof the words "Act; or"; and

(iv) by inserting a new paragraph as follows—

(f) recommend to the parties that the trade dispute be referred to the Industrial Court.

(Question of the amendment proposed)

(Question that the words to be inserted be inserted and agreed to)

(Clause 5 as amended agreed to)

Clause 7

Mr. Omar: Mr. Chairman, I have a question to ask the Minister on clause 7 (3) where it says: "Any investigator or committee to whom any matter is so referred by the Minister under this section shall investigate the matter without delay and report thereon to the Minister." My question here, Mr. Chairman, is, how long can the Minister delay this matter because there is no number of days limited as to how long this matter can be delayed. I am asking this question because sometimes the Minister may be very busy with other affairs and he might overlook a matter which has been referred to him and he may take a very long time which might result in a strike which is likely to call an illegal strike because notice has not been given. Therefore, I would like the Minister to tell us how long he can delay this matter.

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Chairman, I think the hon. Member knows that if I choose somebody as an investigator then the time he takes to investigate and report to me is guided by many circumstances; it may be that some of the facts he wants are in the hands of some person who is on leave, or he may be sick in hospital, and so on. That is why it is very difficult to set a time limit here as to the number of days.

However, subsection (3) says clearly that the Minister will require a report on this matter without any delay.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Chairman, the problem which arises on this is that there could be a deliberate action by the Ministry concerned to delay the whole thing, but if it is stipulated in the Act that within so many days, as soon as the Minister receives the report then he takes action.

This is the problem, that the Minister is given latitude to decide what is convenient to him to fit in with "as soon as possible" so that he can delay. There may be many reasons to show that the delay is not deliberate, but I think the best thing is that we should leave no ambiguity here. Let us state the number of days after the Minister has received the necessary information.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odoro-Jowi): Mr. Chairman, I think, fixing a definite time here is likely to inconvenience the parties to a dispute because if the time is fixed and one of the parties to the dispute is not prepared to go through the machinery with the Minister, there can be a lot of inconvenience. I think the subsection as laid down here is enough. "Any investigator or committee to whom any matter is so referred by the Minister under this section shall investigate the matter without delay and report thereon to the Minister." There is no suggestion here, Mr. Chairman, that the Minister is going to fit on the report. As soon as the reports are processed and read through by us we release them and we get action going on them.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Chairman, my problem still stands that the Minister should assure the House that after, say, five days, when the matter has been referred to the investigator, the parties involved will know that the case is in the hands of the investigating committee or the Minister himself. However, when the matter is referred to without delay—the delay can be caused deliberately and there is a possibility of it being so. I remember when I was dealing with the Railway problem I had to meet the Minister for Labour in order to do something in this matter. I tried to find out if I could find a reason in order to avoid any clash between the workers and the Railway Administration. This never happened. So, I think, Mr. Chairman, that unless we commit the Minister to a definite time, that as soon as the investigator has the report submitted to him—ten days, fifteen days, or even a month after the Minister knows about the matter it should be sent to the investigator.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odoro-Jowi): Mr. Chairman, we cannot accept this because one investigation might take only two days whereas another which needs assembling of facts might take one month, and if we commit ourselves to five days as the hon. Member is suggesting, we will only be increasing trouble for ourselves.

Clause 8

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Chairman, I beg to move another amendment to clause 8. That the whole of clause 8 be deleted and a new clause 8 be inserted in place thereof as follows:—

Agreements to be lodged with Minister.

8. It shall be the duty of every party to any agreement or arrangement made between any employer or organization of employers and any organization of employees, to secure that a copy of the terms of such agreement or arrangement is lodged with the Minister as soon as practicable after it is made.

The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade): I think there are two separate questions here because the new clause is quite different from the original clause 8.

(Question that clause 8 be left out of the Bill put and agreed to)

Mr. Aremian: Mr. Speaker, Sir, with your guidance, I think about ten years ago when we had this Mau Mau, all the Kikuyu and all the people who consisted of Embu, Meru, and so on, had something to identify themselves with, as being persons resident in a particular place?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Are you asking a question, Mr. Aremian?

Mr. Aremian: The question is this, Sir. Is the Assistant Minister aware that Somalis in Samburu District were putting the others where they are, and then the others in Samburu District would come and attack the other Samburu at night?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, Sir, nobody knows who a Shifita is, but I might add this further. As I have repeatedly said in this House, the Government is untrusting in its efforts of the hunting down the Shifita wherever they may be found, and bringing them to account. The security forces do not just sit down and wait for what is likely to happen. We actually go out to look for them. Such operations are taking place all the time, and in this particular area, the Police Force has been strengthened and a new post, in accordance with what the Senator and the Member for that area came to ask me about, is to be reopened at a place called Serolevi. In addition, Mr. Speaker, a platoon of the General Service Unit is operating continuously in this particular area.

It must be appreciated, Sir, that it is not easy to determine who a Shifita is, and it is quite impossible to foretell Shifita intentions, and to provide every manyata with a security guard.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that the Somalis in Samburu District are loyal and devoted to this country and not Shifita? Sir, there has been serious allegations. Some Members are asking me whether I am loyal myself.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is quiet out of order. It is not really an allegation, but it is not the sort of question we encourage in this House.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to ask this question. Would the Assistant Minister for Defence agree with me that the Somalis living in Samburu are loyal and that they do not either assist or help the notorious elements of the Shifita?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while we cannot provide every manyata with a security guard, I cannot be a judge of who a Shifita is, and I cannot say at the outset that all Somalis in the Samburu area are loyal.

Mr. Khalif: They are.

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: I would like some more evidence of that, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that this question is really centred around loyal and disloyal Shifita, would the Assistant Minister tell the House what—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There has been no question of loyal Shifita.

Mr. Lorema: —efforts Government is making to point out who is a Shifita and who is not a Shifita?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in part two of the answer I said that our boys are not just sitting around. They are hunting the Shifita down everywhere. They are going all out to find out where the Shifita are. They are hunting them down, they are keeping the Shifita on the run; the General Service Unit is in the area continuously patrolling; the Police Force in the area has been strengthened; a new post at Serolevi is to be reopened. But the Members from the particular area, the Eastern and the North-Eastern Regions are the people best placed to assist the security forces in pointing out who is a Shifita.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to seek your guidance. This question of Shifita, you have given ruling on so many times. Even now, when the Assistant Minister has completed his reply, he pointed an accusing finger at me.

Sir, I have encountered difficulties in this House whenever the question of Shifita comes up. Now, Sir, could I know whether it is right when discussing the question of Shifita, to point an accusing finger at the hon. Member of Wajir North?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, it is most certainly wrong—and I am sure all hon. Members know it—to suggest, in any way that any hon. Member of this House is engaged or has been engaged in any subversive activities. If I hear any Member or any Member acknowledge saying anything of that kind, any suggestion that any Member is a Shifita, he will be required to leave the Chamber immediately.

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, Sir, perhaps the hon. Member for Wajir North that I pointed a finger at him, I suggested—and that I pointed a finger at him, I suggested—and the HANSARD will bear me out—that it is up to the Members from the Eastern and North-Eastern Regions to assist our security forces in pointing out who is a Shifita. If he decides that he is the person so, well—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think we need follow that up any more.

Mr. ole Ttipis: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the distance from Maralal to the district which the Somalis inhabit in the North-Eastern Region, can the Assistant Minister tell us what measures, if any, the Government has taken to deter any Somalis residing in Samburu who harbour these Shifita?

The second point, Sir, is this. Could we know, among from what the Assistant Minister has just said that it is difficult to tell who the Shifita are, whether it is difficult for the security forces to track the 400 head of cattle stolen and know that they belong to the Samburu?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, the second part of that question can be dealt with later.

In the first part of my answer, Sir, I stated very definitely that in the first report there were about 2,000 head, but further investigations revealed that only 400 head were taken and these 400 head are still being tracked down. The incident took place only very recently, as the hon. Member, Mr. Aremian, said.

The distance between Samburu and Moyale is known or should be known to every Member of this House. We have our security forces on the border of Kenya and Somalia and there are certain emergency zones which were demarcated after approval of an emergency area by Members of this House, and the hon. Member, my friend, Mr. ole Ttipis, should know.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We must go on now.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE: SHIFITA ATTACK AT MARALAL

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that the Assistant Minister has demonstrated his ignorance with regard to this question and in view of the very, very unsatisfactory way he has replied, I would like to raise this matter on an adjournment.

POINT OF ORDER

WRITTEN ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Mr. Tanui: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your ruling and guidance.

I submitted some questions some time back—but then—and I was given replies in writing. But I chased up the questions again, and again

I can see that the same questions are being placed to be answered for me in writing, and yet I did not get satisfactory answer the other time—in writing. I am seeking your guidance, Sir, whether it is possible that these questions, even if it was because of lack of time that you are putting them down for written reply now, that they be delayed so that I can get oral replies, so that I can pursue them properly in this Chamber?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think, if I understand your question aright, Mr. Tanui, the answer is no. By a recent amendment of Standing Orders, it is provided that when a question becomes due for answer, and it is a question for oral reply, and there is not room for it on the Order Paper, then it will receive a written reply. As hon. Members know, Standing Orders provide that questions will become due for reply within quite a short period. We may not always be able to get them all on to the Order Paper for reply because of the limited time; so we adopted this amendment to Standing Orders which said that certain questions, if we have more than twelve certain questions, shall receive written replies and those to receive a written reply will be selected from amongst questions to some of which the questioner is already receiving an oral reply.

Mr. Tanui: On a point of order, Sir, may I know how many times you refer an hon. Member's questions for written reply, before they become oral, and yet he is pursuing all the time?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid I do not quite understand you.

Mr. Tanui: I want to know how many times you judge and place a Member's questions to be answered in writing, and he repeats the same questions to go back again for written reply, and he pursues them how many times will they continue like that before they can come for oral reply?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry, Mr. Tanui, I cannot quite understand what you are talking about. I think you had better come and ask me about this outside the House.

POINT OF ORDER OFFENSIVE LANGUAGE

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odoro-Jowi): Mr. Speaker, I would like to seek your guidance on this. On various occasions you have ruled that there are certain offensive and unparliamentary words which must not be used in this House. Today the hon. Mr. Khalif used the word "ignorant"

[Mr. Nyagah] and Members here, the formalities include such things as the following. When a person has completed an application form for naturalization, first he advertises his intention in the newspaper twice. If he wants to take a year over it, it is up to him. After that has been done, the relevant cutting from the newspaper is sent to the Office of the Principal Immigration Officer, together with the application form. The application form is scrutinized to ensure that it is supported by the right sponsors. If the applicant does not do what is said, and the application form contains names of people who are not the right sponsors, then the delay is the applicants own responsibility. After that, Mr. Speaker, the application is forwarded to the Director of Intelligence and Criminal Investigation Department for his views. To find out the accuracy of the details given, if an applicant originally came from some far distant country, we cannot control the other Governments as to how long they should take to give us the relevant correct information, and that could cause the delay and the responsibility should not be placed on our department.

Mr. Ngala: Arising from one of the replies by the Assistant Minister, Mr. Speaker, Sir, would he assure us that Government would reserve rights to refuse some of these naturalization citizenships to Arabs that have run away from Zanzibar to come to Mombasa?

Mr. Nyagah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is a very different question, but I would like to go a little further on a point that I did not finish. The papers that have been scrutinized by our department are then returned to the Principal Immigration Officer for his recommendations to the Minister. Then the Minister makes, on behalf of the Government, the final decisions, whether to accept the application or to reject it.

MARKETING BOARDS TO BE REPLACED BY CO-OPERATIVE UNIONS

Mr. Ngala asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing to state whether it was his intention to replace some of the statutory marketing boards or some middle-man boards, e.g. the United-Africa Company, with effective co-operative unions where they existed.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngel): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply, it is not the intention of the Government to replace statutory boards with co-operative unions. However, I have decided that wherever possible, the union, and where applicable, societies will be considered for appointment as produce agents of the statutory boards.

The United Africa Company is not a "middle-man board" and I do not understand what the questioner means by this definition, but as an agent, properly appointed following public tender, of the Kenya Agricultural Produce Marketing Board.

In my recent tour of the West Kenya, I told co-operators that my Ministry has every intention of appointing co-operative bodies as produce agents, provided they were properly and efficiently run.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply by the Minister, would he not agree with me that when an effective co-operative society is available in Mombasa, that co-operative society, according to his own promises given in Nyanza, should replace the United-Africa Company, which is an independent and unproductive company?

Mr. Ngel: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not the intention of the Government nor the Ministry to kill private initiative. It is the intention of the Ministry of Co-operatives and Marketing to establish well-run, properly-run, effective co-operative unions, which will take over the produce agencies, but it is not my intention to kill any private enterprise.

Mr. Ngala: Arising from that reply, is the Minister aware that he is contradicting himself when he suggests, on one hand, that effective co-operative societies would be given agencies by Government, and at the same time, refusing to give agencies to a co-operative union in Mombasa, in relation to produce such as cashew nuts or copra which is the produce of the people themselves?

Mr. Ngel: Mr. Speaker, if I may enlighten the hon. Member on this matter, I have said that as soon as the union is established, and in my opinion, is run properly, the agency of these either copra or maize, will be given. I would like to state, Mr. Speaker, for the information of the Member, that the Kirinyaga Co-operative Union, which is a district union, and is appropriated through its societies, is responsible for buying and transporting produce throughout the districts as the agent for the Kenya Agricultural Produce Marketing Board. For your further information, the Taita District Union will be taking over soon the agency and stores at Voi to run the affairs of the Kenya Agricultural Produce Marketing Board and Maize Marketing Board.

[Mr. Ngel] and so on. Therefore, I made it very clear to the Western Kenya Marketing Board during my Western Kenya tour, that as soon as I have it in writing from the Commissioner of Co-operative Development that a union in Kakamega or Bungoma, like the Elgon Farmers' Union, is running its affairs effectively, licences will be issued for them to act as the board's agent.

Mr. Mbugoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the policy of co-operatives is not the same policy as that of individual businessmen, would the Minister then tell this House whether his Ministry as a co-operative ministry favours individual businessmen and big companies against the co-operatives so that he can say that some of these companies cannot be taken over by the co-operatives?

Mr. Ngel: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not my intention to create ill-will between the people of Kenya, but to carry on my responsibility in the right way.

Mr. Mwanuzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that if the farmers who form the co-operative societies could sell their products to the Kenya Agricultural Produce Marketing Board, they would get a better price, rather than when there is a middle man immediately after the co-operative society?

Mr. Ngel: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may cite for the information of the hon. Member, I would say that the Kisii District Farmers' Union is carrying on the business of getting direct produce of maize or whatever it is from the farmers, because the farmers form the farmers' union in the district, and therefore, it is my intention that as soon as the farmers form themselves into a farmers' co-operative union in that district, they shall have direct dealings with the statutory boards.

BIRTH CERTIFICATES REGISTRATION FEES

Mr. Balala asked the Attorney-General whether, in view of the fact that the majority of Africans did not possess birth certificates and to obtain one constituted a lengthy procedure and a fee of Sh. 15, the Government could "open the door" to Africans to register their births in the normal way at the existing normal fees of Sh. 5 "within a specified period".

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I hope soon to introduce compulsory registration of births to those persons—and in this case it is only Africans—who are exempt from compulsory registration. Government is anxious to encourage the registration of births of those Africans whose births were not required to be registered at the time of the occurrence.

Consideration is accordingly being given to the possibility of reducing the fee payable and facilitating the procedure and as soon as a decision has been reached, details will be announced.

Mr. Gikoya: Mr. Speaker, arising from the Attorney-General's reply that some steps are being taken to see to it that the fee is reduced, could he tell us what will happen to those who have already paid the fee? Do they get any refund?

Mr. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, once a fee is paid, unfortunately it cannot be repaid.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE

CASUALTIES SUFFERED FROM SHITTA ATTACK AT MARALAL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We must go on now. Mr. Aram, you have a question by private notice?

Mr. Aram: Yes, Sir. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Minister for Internal Security and Defence:

(1) What exactly happened, and what were the casualties and loss of livestock suffered, when the Shitfa attacked people near Maralal on or about 9th May?

(2) What steps is Government taking to protect the people of the Samburu District against further attacks of this kind?

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Arwingi-Nodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. First of all I must congratulate the Member for Turkana for being so interested in the Samburu area which is well represented in this House. Today is the 12th, and an incident really did take place on 7th May 1965 when a gang of about ten Shitfa attacked a Samburu mayetta killing, unfortunately, one girl and a woman and wounding three other people. The initial report stated that approximately 2,000 head of cattle were stolen. However, subsequently investigations showed that only 400 head of cattle were actually stolen by the gang of Shitfa.

The District Officer, Wamba, together with a phalanx of Kenya and Tribal Police, immediately went after the gang and has been searching for it. Investigations are therefore still continuing and further details will be released when received.

DISMISSALS OF LABOURERS IN CENTRAL RIFT

Mr. Tannu asked the Minister for Labour and Social Services if the Minister would tell the House what steps he had taken against the County Council of the Central Rift which had dismissed the labourers who had been engaged by the Tripartite Agreement, and also whether the Minister would take steps to make sure that the dismissed labourers would be re-employed.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Njiriri): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply on behalf of the Minister for Labour and Social Services. The Central Rift Council Finance Committee recently held an extraordinary meeting to consider its rapidly deteriorating financial position and it decided that the Tripartite Agreement which finished on 8th April 1965, should not be renewed. Some people, however, were expelled from working. I understand from the Treasury that a grant will be made for those people who were dismissed and they will be able to continue working until the end of their contracts, in accordance with the Tripartite Agreement.

Mr. Tannu: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister tell us whether these people are being returned to work or whether they are still out?

Mr. Njiriri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, some of them have been returned already.

Mr. Tannu: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister assure this House that all of them will be returned?

Mr. Njiriri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, according to the Tripartite Agreement which the Government is planning to follow.

Mr. Kerichi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister tell the House the number of those who have returned to work and those who are still to be returned?

Mr. Njiriri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have no figures but he can come to my office and I will give them to him.

Mr. Choge: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to ask the same question which was not answered by the Assistant Minister. Will the Assistant Minister therefore make further assurance of all those working in Nakuru will they too be taken back again?

Mr. Njiriri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said—and I am going to repeat—the Government is going to follow the Tripartite Agreement.

Mr. Ely: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, may I seek your guidance, whether I would be in order to ask the Assistant Minister to answer this question, which affects all the civil land authorities, not only affecting the particular authority but also affecting all the local authorities in the country. This question of dismissal of employees?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): When you get a question that relates to something that has happened in a particular area, supplementary questions have to be limited to what is going on in that area. Actually, subject to that, you can go on asking supplementary questions until we move on to the next question; which we have now done, any how.

SETTLEMENT OF PEOPLE FROM LEMBUS

Mr. Tannu asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement whether he could tell the House when he was going to settle the 600 men from Lembus who had been left landless after the Lembus right-holders' list was completed.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The settlement of these people will be considered in the normal way when (a) the Report of the Stamp Commission has been made to the Government; and (b) the Government can raise money to expand the Perkerra Irrigation Scheme.

Mr. Tannu: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware these people were given promises as far back as 1960 that they were going to be settled and nothing has been done up to now, and that plans are going on for them to be evicted in that area?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister is not aware of that. What he is aware of is that, in 1961, the Government decided to protect Perkerra River which runs through a dry, overpopulated area. A commission, namely Lembus Forest Commission—when the colonialist government ruled over you—were set up to find out how many right-holders there were and so to see who should be settled there. The list of the right-holders was made and all of them were settled in the Lembus Forest. Those who were not right-holders were treated like any other squatters and they were not given land in the Lembus Forest.

Mr. Tannu: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that these people who are considered to be non-right-holders are the sons of the right-holders in that forest, and that by virtue of their being sons of these people, they are right-holders?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know what the hon. Member would think about the squatters, but even though the squatters are the sons of the right land holders, the land cannot be extended, because the land is not made of rubber, and this land was distributed among the people who were the right-holders at that time. If the hon. Member feels that there is a case for the settlement of the sons of the right land holders, then the hon. Member should put forward that case, and not the case of that particular land and the Government will consider settling them.

Mr. Choge: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could we know from the Assistant Minister what the Ministry is doing to resettle the 600 landless people and find them some development somewhere else?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I refer the hon. Member to the HANSARD if he was not listening to what I said, I have already said what the Government is considering doing.

AFRICANIZATION: PATRON AND PRESIDENT OF KENYA NATIONAL PARKS

Mr. Ngala asked the Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife to tell the House whether he intended to Africanize the positions of Patron, Honorary President, and Honorary Vice-Presidents of the Kenya National Parks.

The Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife (Mr. Ayodo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. My Ministry has decided that eminent Kenya people should hold these positions of honour as soon as possible, and urgent steps are already being taken towards this end.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, would the Minister agree with me that a simple issue such as this should not have taken so long?

Mr. Ayodo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not agree.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the hon. Minister tell us whether he envisages allowing Kenya people of non-African origin, because when he says "Kenyan people", we do not know whether it is Africans, Europeans or Indians, as far as the question is concerned, could he tell us whether by Kenya people, he means it is the Africans who are to take over these posts?

Mr. Ayodo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is a little surprising that this should not be clear to anybody. Kenya people means people like yourself, hon. Member.

Mr. Shikha: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, in which he said that the Government is taking urgent steps to see that these posts are more or less Africanized, could he tell the House in view of the fact that this is not a very serious or very hard thing to be done, how long can we expect this to be done, one month, seven months, seven years or eight thousand years?

Mr. Ayodo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think it is enough to tell the House that we have decided on this and that we are taking urgent steps to see that it is done. I think that is as much as I can say.

LENGTH OF TIME IT TAKES TO BECOME A CITIZEN

Mr. Bahah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from Home Affairs if he could tell the House how long it was taking a person to obtain his naturalization/citizenship.

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It takes as short a time as possible for all the formalities that are asked for to be fulfilled by the applicants.

Mr. Bahah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply that it takes as short a time as possible, could the Assistant Minister tell this House how long how many months does it take for a man to obtain his citizenship?

Mr. Nyagah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in terms of months. In the past, an application for naturalization used to take anything up to six months. This period could be considerably reduced, depending on whether the applicant fulfils all the formalities as quickly as possible.

When a person has completed an application and has fulfilled all that is required of him, and the onus is on him, then the Ministry does its best to see that he gets his application replied to in a positive or negative manner depending upon the findings.

Mr. Bahah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that at the moment such applications have been submitted and it is almost seven or eight months and they have not been approved?

Mr. Nyagah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I spoke of the formalities. For the interest of the hon. Member

Question No. 2097

RELIGIOUS BUILDINGS IN NAIROBI CITY

Mr. Theuri asked the Minister for Local Government if—

- (a) he could tell the House whether the Government had any plan in the near future for stopping any religious bodies from building buildings in connexion with their religious activities within the City of Nairobi without permission from Government; and
- (b) the Government was prepared to issue instructions to all those bodies within the realm of the Nairobi City that any bell in their clock tower put there for the congregation would not be rung within the City of Nairobi.

(The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Sagini): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to reply to the first part of the hon. Member's question by explaining that no religious body can put up buildings in connexion with its religious activities on leasehold land in the City without the permission of the Government. The policy of the Government is to avoid allocation of plots for religious buildings in central Nairobi as they have no economic value for the rents charged. Mr. Speaker, Sir, no private person can erect a building in Nairobi without the Nairobi City Council's permission.

The answer to the second part of the question is as follows: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in respect of this part I beg to advise the hon. Member that the ringing of bells with regard to disturbance is controlled by the Nairobi City Council under its nuisance by-law. I wonder why the hon. Member has chosen to single out church bells as a form of nuisance rather than automobiles and aeroplanes which one would consider more hazardous to human life and nerves. Church bells are only rung at certain times of the day and I think most Members would agree that their sound, if anything, is very melodious and soothing.

Hon. Member must know that freedom of worship is guaranteed in the Constitution and one wonders why this question has been asked in the House particularly, as no Member of the public has objected to the Nairobi City Council to the ringing of church bells.

Mr. Theuri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply to the second part of my question, what would happen if all the bells within the City of Nairobi were to be rung while the House was sitting, about six o'clock?

Mr. Sagini: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is an abstraction, and very often religious persons and Ministers are well trained philosophically, theologically. They are very reasonable men and would not ring bells in such a manner as to cause a disturbance.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister assure this House that he will instruct all those churches who have bells in Nairobi to ring their bells on Sundays only, and not to ring them all together during the time when people are in offices, so as not to disturb them?

Mr. Sagini: Mr. Speaker, the ringing of bells has been going on from time immemorial and it has never hurt the human race.

EMPLOYMENT OF COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT OFFICER: WEST POKOT

Mr. Lorens asked the Minister for Labour and Social Services to tell the House why William Sindano from Pokot, who had attended a community development course at the Kenya Institute of Administration, had not been employed in community development in West Pokot.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Kubai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Mr. William Sindano was accepted for training as a community development assistant by the Kenya Institute of Administration and attended a course at Kabete from 2nd May to 18th December 1964. He did not reach the standard required of a community development assistant and, therefore, was not given a certificate. It was recommended, however, that he would make a suitable locational leader.

Employment of community development assistants is a responsibility of local authorities. I understand that Sirikwa County Council has delegated this responsibility to Pokot Area Council, and that unfortunately the area council is financially unable to employ any community development staff. It is, therefore, useless for the Community Development Department to post an officer to Pokot since such an officer would be ineffective without suitable junior supporting staff.

I should like to add that there are a number of local authorities in the country whose inability to employ community development assistants is making it difficult to initiate the National Community Development Plan which seeks to involve the people in the task of nation-building.

Mr. Ngala-Aboke: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell this House how this man was chosen to join the training and how he failed to prove suitable for employment and did not get a certificate?

Mr. Kubai: Mr. Speaker, this was done by the local authority.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell the House whether this gentleman will have a chance to repeat the course, and perhaps he will succeed?

Mr. Kubai: Mr. Speaker, if he can make an improvement in his standard he would be given another chance.

Mr. Mafu: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that in the task of nation-building, Meru has provided many people, some of the best men and women, so that Meru, too, should be considered?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is nothing to do with the question.

Question No. 2112

EXPANSION OF ISRAEL INSTITUTE, MACHAKOS

Mr. Ndile asked the Minister for Labour and Social Services if he would tell the House whether he intended to expand the present Israel Institute at Machakos to accommodate more men and women for social training?

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Kubai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am happy to be able to inform the hon. Member for Machakos South that plans have been formulated and approved for the expansion of the School of Social Work, which is situated at Machakos.

In January this year the Kenya Government formally accepted responsibility for the School of Social Work and, with the aid from the Israeli Social Work and, with the aid from the Israeli Government and anticipated assistance from the United Nations Technical Assistance Board, is planned to double the existing accommodation. In addition to the two-year course for social workers, it is the intention to organize inter-service training courses for social welfare workers who are already in employment.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister assure this House that, although the Ministry intends to extend the Israeli school at Machakos, it would, at the same time, control the Israeli Institute at Machakos?

Mr. Kubai: I think the hon. Member did not follow my reply. I said that the Government has taken over this institute.

Mr. Ngala-Aboke: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell the House whether his Ministry is considering changing the name altogether, or changing the name, particularly with reference to Israel?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is another question.

Mr. Ely: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that instead of extending the Machakos Institute he should consider opening another one to be run by the same people from Israel?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is also another question.

Mr. Matlode: Mr. Speaker, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply when he said that plans have been formulated and accepted, can he tell us how soon he expects these plans are to be put into practice?

Mr. Kubai: Mr. Speaker, as soon as possible. I would say that in the first year of take-over, the Kenya Government is providing some £5,000 for recurrent expenditure and increasing the amount to approximately £8,000 in the second year. In addition, £10,000 has been budgeted for capital expansion. Increased accommodation and recurrent expenditure will mean that approximately fifty students will be in training in any given year for the two-year training course. In addition to this service, training will be provided for welfare workers in employment in accordance with the demand.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that this Institute is the first of its kind in Kenya, would the Minister consider making this one as the basis for expansion of similar institutes in Kenya to cater for the whole country, not only for Machakos?

Mr. Kubai: That has been noted, Mr. Speaker, and it is catering for the whole of Kenya, not Machakos alone.

Mr. Gaturu: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may we know the basis of admission to this Institute, for men and women?

Mr. Kubai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, students are sent by the local authorities.

[Mr. J. M. Karikali]

for its use, this House urges the Government to consider building its own office blocks and thereby save money for other development projects in the country.

POINT OF ORDER

NOTICE OF MOTION

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, this is with regard to the notice of motion which was given by the hon. Member, Mr. Maisori-Itumbo. His Excellency the President made a very lengthy and exhaustive statement regarding these firearms. Further, it has been ventilated elsewhere, and still further, these particular countries who offer gifts are still—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is it a point of order, or are you debating the Motion?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: —friendly countries. Are we in order to look a gift horse in the mouth even on the Floor of this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. It is perfectly clear in our Standing Orders that there can be no hostile reference to a friendly country, except by way of substantive Motion, but there is nothing to prohibit, under our Orders, an hon. Member making a direct attack on a friendly country by substantive Motion, if he sees fit to do so. I think what you have to say can be said when the Motion is debated.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

POKOT RECRUITMENT TO KENYA ARMY

Mr. Lorema asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence why the recruitment to the Kenya Army which was meant to give chances to the Pokot was done in Kitale on 6th March 1965, instead of in Kapenguria.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. In the first place, I do not know what the hon. Member really means by saying the recruitment to the Kenya Army was meant to give a chance to the Pokot in particular. The army required at this time about 300 recruits, and it wanted the best men it could get. Instead of attempting to visit every tribal area and recruit on a tribal basis, main towns and centres were visited, and opportunities to enlist were given to men of all tribes. In the North-west of Kenya, recruitment centres were set up at Kisumu, Kakamega, Kisii, Homa Bay and Kitale. The Kitale centre attracted more than 4,000 people, would-be recruits and so on, coming from as far afield as Lodwar. Mr. Speaker, A number of Pokot were recruited in these places, but I would point out that this tribe has not, in the past, displayed much interest in joining the Kenya Army and, as a matter of fact, they constitute just about 0.9 per cent of the population of Kenya, apart from anything else.

The outlying districts, in the past, were visited and will continue to be so visited in the future, but not on every occasion, that recruits will be required.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is he aware that out of 300 Pokot who attended the interview at Kitale, practically none of them was taken during these interviews?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, I do not know what "practically" really means in this context. If he admits that Pokot were taken, I quite agree with him.

Mr. Masinde: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is it not true that since the Pokot are not medically fit, they cannot expect to be recruited?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Well, Mr. Speaker, Sir, our recruiting team has very efficient officers and they take only the best men, fit in every way, and any unfit Pokot or any unfit member of any other tribe would not be allowed to join the Kenya Army.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, would he not agree with me that the Kitale recruitment covered such a large area, and as such, the Pokot would not have had enough chance to get their way through, and that in future the recruitment of people into the army should be made from the National Youth Service which is composed of all the constituencies?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I can assure the hon. Member from Butere that on this particular occasion when only 300 men were wanted the recruiting team started on their itinerary on 27th February, and this went on to 23rd March. Further, they embraced all the tribes. But there is a plan for every member of the National Youth Service. We are at the moment organizing things to find out the background of every member of the National Youth Service, to see if he has the basic qualifications.

we will, if possible, recruit members to the police, the army, and other security services from the National Youth Service, if they have the basic qualifications.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's supplementary reply, when he said that the Pokot youths were not taken owing to their medical unfitness, would he agree with me when I say that this unfair state of affairs was caused in order to coincide with the usual tribalistic tendencies of the majority tribes in power?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the answer is no.

Question No. 2080

REMOVAL OF CLASS FROM KABIANGA SCHOOL

Mr. Kerich asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House the reason why one class in Kabianga Secondary School had been removed, thereby leaving only one class; whether the Provincial Council had recommended that Kabianga was to have double streams in 1965.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The number of classes to be admitted at Kabianga was reduced from two to one, firstly, because the number of new streams proposed by the Provincial Council was greater than the number which could be allocated to the province; and, secondly, because the competing claims of other appropriate secondary school sites in the province, prevented the allocation of more than one stream to Kabianga, as a matter of priorities within the province.

Mr. Kerich: Mr. Speaker, Sir, does the Assistant Minister agree with me that it was a direct plea by the Ministry to grab one class from Kabianga and take it away to an unknown destination?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I quite agree with the hon. Member that a double stream at Kabianga was one of the projects included among the eleven classes recommended by the Provincial Council. At first, after the Provincial allocation Council had been raised to eight classes, Kabianga was accepted by the Ministry as taking up two of the available classes. Subsequently, the needs of other tribes and particularly the need for a new day secondary school at Nakuru were reconsidered. It was decided that a new stream at Nakuru had a higher priority than a second stream at Kabianga, and one class was therefore allocated to Nakuru.

Mr. Kerich: Mr. Speaker, Sir, because there are twenty empty classrooms in Kabianga, and about eight empty dormitories in Kabianga, could the Assistant Minister assure the House that in 1966 Kabianga will have double stream?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would not assure the hon. Member that Kabianga will have a second stream, but as I said, at present, we are not ready to increase new secondary schools, but double streams are going to be recommended. So, if the province gives priority to having a second stream at Kabianga, we will consider it.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Assistant Minister tell this House what his Ministry has done to find places for those students who would have otherwise gone into this second stream at Kabianga?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question of finding places for students who were supposed to go to the second stream at the Kabianga school is a problem which has been affecting other areas in Kenya as well.

Mr. Bly: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that a large number of Kericho students who are qualified for Form I would have gone to Kabianga Secondary School and were ignored and left without being considered at all, would the Assistant Minister tell us where those students will be placed?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would say that the students who did K.P.E. in Kericho District have been given fair consideration when they were sent to proper secondary schools. For instance, in Narok Secondary School, seventeen boys from Kericho were allocated seats and they would not even have gone to the second stream in Kabianga. There are a number also from the same district in Kalindo and by so doing I think we have deprived boys from that area from going to this secondary school.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, to the best of my knowledge, this question—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, I was just going to tell the House that this question, Question No. 2016, has already been answered. Therefore, Question No. 2016 should not have been on the Order Paper today.

We will now move on to Mr. Theuri's question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Achieng-Onoko, would you like to take the Committee stage today?

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onoko): Yes, Sir, with the leave of the House.

Mr. Khalif: I beg to object, Sir, to the Committee stage taken today.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in this case where one particular Member objects on all Bills which we have to take through Committee stage, and he does not give reasons, there may be suspicion that the hon. Member has something which we are entitled to know.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members must understand that where the leave of the House is required it means that there is some quite unusual procedure which can be stopped by a single Member objecting; and he cannot then be required to give a reason. If the House does not unanimously give leave, then there is no leave. The hon. Member can give reasons for objecting, but he is not required to do so.

(The Bill was committed to a Committee of the Whole House tomorrow)

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no further business on the Order Paper today and the House now stands adjourned until tomorrow, Wednesday, 12th May, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at Six o'clock.

WRITTEN REPLIES TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 1097

DEMAND FOR REMOVAL OF CHIEF

Mr. Rurumban asked the President if he was aware that the people of Korossi Location had demanded the removal of Chief Lukodo from his chieftainship.

REPLY

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): No, Sir, the Government is not aware that the people of Korossi Location demanded the removal of Chief Lukodo.

Question No. 2089

MONEY ALLOCATED TO WEST POKOT FOR CELEBRATIONS

Mr. Lorema asked the President to tell the House the amount of money that had been allocated to West Pokot for the following functions—

- Kenya Day Celebrations; and
- Jamhuri Celebrations.

REPLY

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): West Pokot was not, in common with most of the districts in the country, allocated any money for the Kenya Day Celebrations, but it was allocated Sh. 2,000 for the Jamhuri Celebrations.

Wednesday, 12th May 1965

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair.]

PRAYERS

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIR

ASSENT TO BILLS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have to inform hon. Members that His Excellency, the President, has assented to the following Bills, at the dates specified:—

No.	Title	Passed Third Reading		Date of Assent
		House of Representatives	Senate
1.	The Supplementary Appropriation Act, 1965	3-3-65	9-3-65	16-3-65
2.	The Motor Vehicles Components and Accessories Act, 1965	10-11-64	3-12-64	30-3-65

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, what happens when a Bill is passed by the Lower House and the Senate, but it is not assented to by the President?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It cannot become law.

PAPERS LAID

The following Papers were laid on the Table:—

United Nations Mission to Kenya on Housing.
(By the Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Ottende))

Sessional Paper No. 7 of 1963/65—Internal Labour Conference: Proposed action by the Republic of Kenya on certain conventions and Recommendations adopted by the Internal Labour Conference.

(By the Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odera-Jowi) on behalf of the Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwo))

NOTICES OF MOTIONS

PROTEST TO THE GOVERNMENT OF THE U.S.S.R.

Mr. Mutsoi-Thumbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

"THAT this House notes with serious concern and disappointment, and is therefore most indignant at the two incidents whereby:—

(1) Twenty-nine Kenya students were for sometime greatly mistreated and humiliated in the U.S.S.R. and ultimately expelled from the Russian territory with indignation in the eyes of the world.

(2) Rusty, outdated and useless arms were intentionally delivered to Kenya as a gift by the U.S.S.R. Government, which according to their conditions were an insult to the Government and the people of Kenya.

Calls upon the Kenya Government to deliver a solemn note of protest to the Government of the U.S.S.R. expressing the indignant feelings of the Republic of Kenya and her entire people.

LEGISLATION FOR TRADING LOANS

Mr. Mbugohi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

"THAT this House notes with dissatisfaction the methods used by the Government in granting trading loans and therefore urges the Government to rectify the defects by passing an effective legislation to enable traders to borrow money for—

- building shops and business houses,
- buying buses, and
- for other purposes not allowed by the present legislation.

CANCELLATION OF PUBLIC MEETINGS: MURANG'A

Mr. Kagga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

"THAT this House notes with great concern and disapproval the Government's decision to cancel without notice under Official Orders public meetings recently arranged to be held in Murang'a District.

GOVERNMENT TO BUILD OFFICE PREMISES

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

"THAT in view of the fact that a colossal amount of money is being spent by the Government in renting private-owned premises member that when this comes in and it has been passed, all the foreign countries which have their money will be interested in this money which is to be given to this company, which has been taken over by the Government, and every foreign country with its satellites will like to come and value and pretend they have experts who will always like to commit the taxpayers' money in this case and get the company profits.

When this Bill was passed, it was intended that these broadcasting media should be used properly to save the money of the people of this country, instead of the companies making a lot of profit which was not shared by the people of this country. So, when the Minister goes to get these valuers, I quite agree with the hon. Members who said that he should be very careful, but also I would add that he should be careful not to make this issue a cold war issue, in view of the fact that I have seen that every foreign country wants to help the 'Voice of Kenya' today to develop its services to the extent that these countries will be having an interest either in the machinery of the Voice of Kenya or in the Voice itself. That will commit the Minister so much that the country will not receive what they expect.

Mr. Speaker, as the Minister said himself, when he was moving this amendment, the aim of the taking over of this broadcasting station was to give the people of this country exactly what they expect, and he stated that he has been trying all the time to select material which is suitable and to the benefit of the country—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mbogoh, I explained to the Minister and to Mr. Gichoya that we cannot go into that on this Bill, I am afraid.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, I was just finishing with that point, which was his own, not mine.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Debate on this Bill is restricted to the question of compensation.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, what I was going to say there is that as soon as the Voice of Kenya is made national and all the material there is national, everybody in this country will be very happy and we hope that the Minister will not commit us in the cost of taking over this broadcasting station and we will be quite happy about everything he does.

So, Mr. Speaker, I support the Bill unreservedly and hope that the Minister will not commit us.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I join the other hon. Members in supporting the Minister, I have a small point to ask the Minister to clarify, and since this is a short Bill, I do not think I will waste time in talking much about it.

This looks a technical point, where it says in clause 2 "the Kenya Broadcasting Corporation Act (hereby repealed)". I am quite at a loss, Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether, this Corporation Act having been repealed by that, it is appropriate that the title should read "The Kenya Broadcasting Corporation (Nationalization) (Amendment) Bill, whether it could not be a different title altogether, since that clause repeats it. I would like the Minister to clarify how we should refer to it, whether as the Broadcasting Corporation or the Voice of Kenya, a new Act to give proper reference and clear meaning to the Members and to the country.

The other point I have to raise is on the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons. The first paragraph says that this is a Bill "to provide for the assessment and payment of compensation..." When the original Bill was brought to this House, Mr. Speaker, there were explanations as to where money came from and how that money had been spent, and I thought this was done after the assessment and after everything had been taken into account, how much they were valued at, and then the money was used. I would also like the Minister to clarify that position, and then we will know exactly whether we are being asked, in future, to give more money again to add on, if there is any increment on the assessment of the property the contractors might have invested in this Corporation.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if those points are made clear to me, then I will support the Bill.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not really want to speak on this Bill, except that I want to say in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, paragraph 2, it says, "The enactment of this Bill will involve expenditure of public funds but it is considered inopportune to refer to a specific figure in relation to the compensation." Now, in view of the fact that we do not know the public expenditure which will be undertaken on the enactment of this Bill, I would request the Minister concerned to let all hon. Members know, after the assessment and after completing all the work involved, how much public expenditure will be involved as a result of the enactment of this Bill.

I would like to support, Sir.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achungi-Onoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must express my thanks to the hon. Members for having spoken in favour and support of this very short Bill.

First of all, Mr. Speaker, I would like to appeal to hon. Members on one point: that is details about expenditure and how much will be needed to pay during the discussions and negotiations, or if eventually we go to arbitration. Mr. Speaker, this is one of my secrets, or the second string to my bow, because if it is discussed, then I will be involved in saying how much we have earned since we took over, and whether we are running at a loss. I hope the hon. Members know why I am trying to avoid this issue at this time, and that is why also it was omitted on page 170, clause 2. I think the hon. Members do understand that it is premature at this stage to go into these details.

I would like to reply to the point raised by the hon. Mr. Omweri when he inquired whether we provided for negotiations and payment. Yes, it is true that this is provided for. It was done in this House. We had to negotiate with the former television company known as Television Network (Kenya) Limited. Now, my reason for bringing this Bill at this moment is, should these negotiations fail then we shall have to go to arbitration, that is, we shall have to go to court, in order to assess the proper amount to be given to Television Network (Kenya) Limited. In fact it will be known to the House how much we have agreed to. We have not paid anything so far. Negotiations are still going on and as soon as we arrive at any decision or finality of the position then the whole country and the House will know exactly how much we are going to pay to the contractors.

About the title of the Bill, I think this is merely technical. It is to amend the Kenya Broadcasting Corporation (Nationalization) (Amendment) Bill of 1964 and, therefore, we could not call it anything else except if I were bringing in a new Bill on the Voice of Kenya.

Mr. Speaker, it is not the intention of my Ministry or the Government to drag the whole country into a sort of cold war. I do not know why the hon. Member chose to point this out. Here, we are more or less concerned with how much should be paid to the contractors who initiated the Kenya Broadcasting Corporation. I do not think there is any question of cold war; I think this issue could be discussed elsewhere and not when we are discussing what assessment we should give to the contractors.

Mr. Speaker, I am very grateful to the House for issuing quite a number of warnings. I would not really call them warnings but advice. I am grateful to the House for asking me to be careful not to misuse or spend carelessly public money. If I were to do so, Mr. Speaker, I would have, by now, reached some conclusions with the contractors. The Government is very careful to see that public funds are used in the best interests of the country.

The hon. Member for Gichoya, who is not here at present, said that probably there may be some special people who may be on the board. There are only two parties in this particular negotiations, the contractors and the Kenya Government, and those who are going to sit on the side of the Kenya Government are experts, they are loyal to Kenya, they work for Kenya and I trust they will do their best for Kenya and for this hon. House. In fact, I will be receiving progress reports from time to time from them. So, here there is no question of abruptly discussion or giving one cent more. It is just a question of the right thing to be done and to see that the public funds are not misused.

It is true that outstanding men will be involved in this. The same will apply to the side of the contractors. We will have to show them our sense of judgment and I am sure some conclusion will be arrived at. We may not even have to go to arbitration.

Mr. Speaker, reference has been made to this particular Bill as setting a standard for future nationalization. I would not like to go into this because we have discussed this at length last year and the only thing I hope is that this will be of great use to other Ministries as well. I hope that any Bill that may be formulated in future will be based exactly on this one. After a year we will know exactly what to do and we shall not be swayed by the arguments of the contractor as one hon. Member, the hon. Jahazi, mentioned. We intend to do the right thing for the country.

Mr. Speaker we are going to try and be careful and any decision arrived at will be reported for the information of the hon. House and the whole nation.

As I have said, I would not like to go into how details as to how much we have earned, how much is nationalization going to cost us, how much we have lost. I think this House should wait until a report on the work of the Voice of Kenya is tabled here for information of hon. Members.

With those few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

(The Bill was accordingly read a Second Time)

[Mr. Gichoya] to the Government, my brother definitely, as it is known, would try to put down the figures to the best interest of our own family rather than the Kenya Government. That is why I say that we must get independent people, preferably people with records of judicial life, who are recruited and people who can give judgment on the basis of the facts, and no more. If it is a question of the companies that were involved having the expert advice, I believe, Mr. Speaker, this country would run backward, paying for nothing, but the value would be stated, and figures shown, and specifications made in a legal juggle or commercial juggle, and our Minister would accept in good faith that these are facts as they are. In actual fact, they will no longer be the facts. This, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is my fear, that the people to determine what should be paid to the former contractors should not be people who have vested interests in that particular contract.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that I would like to state, is that it is somehow unfortunate that the civil servants have used the Voice of Kenya—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Does this come into this Bill?

Mr. Gichoya: It is by the way, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Very much by the way, is it not?

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I was trying to say is in connection with the payment we are making we are being asked to pay for something which is supposed to be ours, which in actual fact, Sir, is—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can only deal with the assessment of compensation for the outgoing contractors; not the value that we are getting from the Voice of Kenya for that payment. You cannot do it that way?

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I will be very brief on this, but we are ready to pay the compensation and the value must be determined properly, but it will not be the value based on the assessment of the Voice of Kenya or by the Ministers and Permanent Secretaries.

It is very unfortunate—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No more, Mr. Gichoya.

Mr. Gichoya: So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Sit down. I will not have hon. Members disregarding my rulings in this way.

Mr. Kahari: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support the Minister. In his plea, to approve his Bill, since the Government fell into difficulties as to the question of assessment, as to how much we should pay for this corporation.

Mr. Speaker, I take it as a very important beginning, as we are going to nationalize many industries, this will take us over the hurdles we may encounter when it comes to nationalizing such industries. It has been almost a year now since the Kenya Broadcasting Corporation was nationalized, and I am surprised that up to now, no settlement has been reached, because I thought that the day this corporation was nationalized was the day every payment and all this was done. But, since it is very important that we should settle this, I give all the support to the Minister, and I hope the Members will help him to approve his Bill.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to warn the Government that when we come to nationalize, we should think beforehand of the cost involved, and the difficulties we have, because the taxpayers' money is involved here, and we should not be swayed very much by these people's arguments as to how much we should pay, because if they ask for so much per year, they would like, when the Government nationalizes this, that they should get at least ten years' profit in one settlement. Although these people do not agree now, Mr. Speaker, I want the Minister to be very firm and see that with all the expense we have they should assess and see how much the Government is prepared to pay for this, and not be swayed by all these bogey experts who come here with the only intention of benefiting the people whom we are trying to compensate. The Government must calculate and see what is reasonable and stick to that figure. We are not going to be bullied around by assessors who will come and say this and that, as they have done on the farms, because if the Government fall on the first nationalization of this industry, it will mean that they have found our weakness and every industry will try to nationalize, they will bring their experts, and try to bully us so that the Government finds it impossible to nationalize any other thing.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, with all the support I have for the Minister, I urge him to be very tough and assess how much we should pay for the corporation and that should be the figure whether they go to heaven or anywhere, we all them to take, whether they like it or not. After all, the Voice of Kenya is already nationalized, and it is only a question of settlement. Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Kamani: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will say very little on this Bill. I very much support the Bill, and I would point out to the Minister to bear in mind that his Ministry was the first to nationalize one of the industries in the country since our independence, and probably most of the other Ministries will follow suit. I would support the hon. Member, Mr. Kahari, that the Minister should be very careful in assessing the compensation he is going to pay to this company, because we do not want it to be the example on which other industries will say that they demand the compensation because they have learnt from the experience of the Minister for Information and Broadcasting, that they cannot value or assess the compensation that will be given.

I would request our Minister to be as tough as the Government should be to set an example that wherever, and at any time, the Government decides to nationalize any industry, it shall stand firm to see that the taxpayers' money is not wasted and it would be a very great warning to the other industries.

Furthermore, we have given him the example of the Land Settlement Board where most of the Members here, including himself, have been complaining that the assessment of valuation of the land has been made by the former settlers and they were just measuring. I think, money in pounds, in skills, until one Minister, having the African feelings in mind, will assess reasonable compensation which will not even hurt the owners of the former Broadcasting Corporation, but at the same time, he will do something which will make other people know that Government is just, but not careless.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I support the Bill.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this Bill is one of those Bills which really have very little quarrel with this House because I think, Sir, that there has been quite a lot of talk in this House of nationalization and similar things. I think the Ministry of Information, Broadcasting and Tourism is the first Ministry to nationalize one of its industries and I think that this particular industry is to follow, since there is—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have had this point made three or four times, Mr. Mutiso. Can you keep it short?

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Yes, Mr. Speaker.

I think, Mr. Speaker, since many, many industries are being urged to nationalize their industries, we shall follow the good example of the Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism. However, Sir, I want to sound one word of warning to the Minister. That is, recently we had a mission from the United Kingdom which was sent here to try and investigate the possibility of the European settlers who own land here, supposing if they leave the country, whether we shall be in a position to run those farms efficiently. Mr. Speaker, I personally felt that this was an abuse of our own integrity and sovereignty as a state and I would not like to see the Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism trying to borrow or to ask for some experts from overseas to come and advise him or try to assess how much compensation we should pay to this corporation. As he has indicated, since the nationalization took place, these negotiations have gone on for quite a number of months and it does seem to me as if there has perhaps been some confusion or they have come to logarithmic and that is why the Minister perhaps wants the authority of this House to go to arbitration if need be.

I should think, Mr. Speaker, the Minister should be very tough and give the credit where it is due and also try to assess how much the corporation has earned in the past and also try to find the assessors—the local people—from Kenya who have the interests of the nation at heart and also the people who, I should imagine that is possible, Mr. Speaker—the Africans who really have gone through many technical experiences who are able to assess and give a value of whatever machinery and equipment is this corporation had. I think, Mr. Speaker, we should also give us prestige and make us feel that we are really independent and do not very much rely on overseas technical experience.

So, Mr. Speaker, I think this is one of the Bills which will receive very little opposition from this House, if there is any, and I would also join my friends who have spoken in supporting the Bill, and I hope the Minister will take the advice that he has received from the Members.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I support the Bill.

Mr. Mbugoe: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in supporting this Bill, I would first of all warn the Minister that I will give credit where I am not satisfied that I will withdraw it where I am not satisfied that everything is being done properly.

Mr. Speaker, when the Minister is taking into consideration this Bill, he must first of all re-

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Gichoya, are you in fact giving notice of a proposed amendment?

Mr. Gichoya: This is exactly the one I am quoting. Mr. Deputy Speaker, that in clause 4, subsection (2), to make it clear, after any police officer there should be a bracket and the words "from sub-inspector of police upwards" inserted, so that it reads, "Any police officer (from sub-inspector of police upwards) may arrest without warrant...."

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Gichoya, I do not know whether you are aware that the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons is not part of the Bill.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I—

Mr. Gichoya: I have not finished.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): He has not finished; he probably sat down because I was interrupting. Continue, Mr. Gichoya.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, was the Member in order when he said, "With these few words I beg to continue"? Was he in order?

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is very unfortunate that the Assistant Minister in the Ministry dealing with Education, which also deals with the English language, is unable to make out the difference between the words continue and sit down.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, my amendment is on section 4 (2). Now, so far as the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons is concerned, I wonder whether—

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): It is already amended.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Deputy Speaker, the Attorney-General says it is already amended. You say we do not have powers to amend—In that case I am subject to correction.

If this Memorandum of Objects and Reasons cannot be amended, do we have, as Members of Parliament, any way out whereby we are in a position to put forward what the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons should be, because this one as a part of the law which explains the implication of the law shows that we have no power whatsoever over the foreign nationals who are here seconded by their own country, or borrowed as expatriates, in one form or the other. I would like an explanation.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): For the information of hon. Members I should like to say this. The Memorandum of Objects and Reasons is merely to explain and guide hon. Members on the purpose of the Bill. It does not form part of the Bill at all and, therefore, cannot be amended. Any amendment must be directed to the subject of the Bill. I think Mr. Gichoya does know that he will have to give notice in writing before the sitting day if he wants to move an amendment. You can do so on the day of the Committee stage of the Bill.

Mr. Ngala-Ahoko: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, if you say that the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons cannot be amended, they are there merely to explain the purpose of the Bill, does that mean that even when it appears that the explanatory note does not explain what Members would like to see, the House still has to take it as it is, however wrong it may be? Is there no way whatsoever in which we can handle this situation? Is there no way in which we can obtain the explanation conforming with what the Members would like to see?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I must explain here that if hon. Members are not satisfied with the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons they have to propose an amendment to the substantive portion of the Bill, namely, that part of the Bill which will finally become law. The Memorandum does not become law and therefore it cannot be employed in a court. It is only for the guidance and information of hon. Members. It has nothing to do with the law as such. It never becomes law and is not part of the Bill.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is terms of clause 4 I beg to—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You cannot propose it now.

Mr. Gichoya: I know, Sir, I am putting it before the Minister now. So far as the Objects and Reasons are concerned it is well and good that they are mere explanatory notes, but they give us an impression that we are making a note—

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Speak for yourself.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I speak on behalf of my Gichugu people and also on behalf of the nation, as a representative who must act in this House for the national good.

[Mr. Gichoya]

With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to put my amendment at the Committee stage.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, when at school we were given an English essay to do and the title was, "Where Ignorance is Bliss it is Folly to be Wise." I obtained the first prize for the essay because I wrote at the beginning of my essay that ignorance is never bliss. I must be very sympathetic with the people of Gichugu and elsewhere—

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is it in order for the Assistant Minister to impute by his comment, according to his own way of reasoning, that I am an ignorant person? He did that.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I do not think he did actually do so yet but I think he was going to. That would not be permissible. I do not think it would be in order for him to say that any hon. Member was ignorant. He could say that an hon. Member was ignorant of a particular point; that would be permissible.

I think, Mr. Kodhek, I realize what you were trying to do.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): I think the hon. Member was jumping the step before he got to it. He called himself, at the beginning, one of the law makers of the country. Well, being one of the law makers he should know the law he makes, particularly the elementary one.

In this House, people here are mature hon. Members and they know—if they say they do not know they are not acting in good faith at all. They should know what the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons is and to ask that we should amend the Memorandum I think is—

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is it in order for a Member to repeat what the Speaker has already ruled?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Oh, yes, it is perfectly in order. He is merely commenting on what I said. It was not a ruling on my part.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): The hon. Member for Gichugu and elsewhere should also know that we get our directions from the Speaker in this House.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, these books which are here are for the guidance of Members and it is a pity that Members do not exploit them. The Member for Gichugu spoke about a definition of "officer". "Officer", if he only opened one of the books here in this particular Criminal Procedure Code, at Chapter 75, at the place which says, "Interpretation", he will find out what an officer is meant to be. Mr. Deputy Speaker, we go according to the books and they are clear. In the interpretation the word "officer" is clearly defined.

I come to the other section which deals with Armed Forces. These Armed Forces will not be here unlawfully. We are not borrowing them as it were, they are here lawfully because we have asked for them. They are here as part of an arrangement whereby our boys go to have exercises in those particular countries and their boys may come to have exercises here. The offences which this particular amendment meant to leave over to the military police of those particular forces are very minor offences. These are just the offences of a person being found drunk and lying on the street. When the person drunk lying on the street, is found by the military police they will take him away and deal with him in the normal, Orderly Room proceedings according to the rules and regulations of that particular force. The Member said here about American and other forces coming down to Mombasa. Yes, indeed, and sometimes they do a number of things, interesting things, we hope! One of them, mentioned here, was rape. Rape is not a minor offence, I do not think it is. All those offences which are not minor will be dealt with by the courts here. Further, if he commits even an ordinary civil offence he will be dealt with by proceedings under the local courts. If he commits rape, as my friend said a few moments ago, he will be taken to the local courts.

The other amendment which we have to section 306—If anybody takes the trouble to have a look at section 306—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Kodhek I am sorry if I must interrupt you. Did you speak on this Bill earlier on?

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): In only seconded formally.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You may continue.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Hon. Members should take further time and use these [Mr. Gichoya] and I told him that I was reading it as a Member for Gichoya to find out whether it is a finance or not a finance. After reading it and telling him that it was a finance issued to him by the County Council of Kiambu that person was completely ignorant—the policeman still insisted on a finance. I said to him "Gentleman, where do you come from?" He said "I come from Kiambu" and yet he does not come from Kiambu. He thought I was a small kid to tell me so.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am disputing the fact that a policeman is an officer, anybody on official duty, is a police officer. This is one clear-cut thing, that any person who is an employee of the Kenya Government in the Police Force is an officer so long as he has been told to go and operate in that particular place. He goes there with the officialdom of a policeman or as a police representative and he has the power to get hold of a person. There is no classification of an officer here, that a man up to the stage of an inspector of police or a man below the inspector, that is sub-inspector, or sub-sub-inspector, if they are graded that way, has the power to do it. Here we are given a police officer. A constable is a police officer. Indeed, a chief, a headman, in my location is a Government officer, and he says "I am doing it in the name of the Kenya Government"—finished.

Here, to allow the emergency regulations to operate in a far from obvious one thing, that our Government has no confidence in the people. This is a clear-cut statement which is here, that the Government of today—the police Government, the popular Government—has no confidence in the people and with me, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would say we would rather not live in a police state, but go back and go back again—

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I wonder whether the hon. Member is in order in trying to mislead this House because if he reads the section which he has been talking about for the last ten minutes it has no relation whatsoever to the section which is being amended.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think that you may say that the hon. Member is trying to mislead the House, you may say that he has misunderstood the section of the Bill. Perhaps a further explanation would help the hon. Member to understand the limited effect of the clause. You might like, Mr. Gichoya, if Mr. Njonjo explained exactly that point.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): My big quarrel with this is this, Mr. Speaker, the hon.

Member was not here when I introduced the Bill, he was suddenly briefed by another hon. Member and he is not aware that, in fact, this section that he is referring to relates to supervising people who have already committed an offence and they are under supervision by the police. What is wrong with that amendment?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Now you understand the effect of this clause, Mr. Gichoya?

Mr. Gichoya: Yes, Mr. Speaker, that much I get, but the hon. Attorney-General fails to specify—

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): You were not here.

Mr. Gichoya: That does not matter. I am not speaking to the Attorney-General, I am speaking to the Speaker, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to the Attorney-General through the Speaker, to make it more definite.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, these officers who are referred to ought to be specified. I put a very good example of a police constable with the merit of the authority of the law, acting foolishly. Is it A.S.P. is it Commissioner of Police or what police officer? These things must be known. Who are the police officers, from which rank, do we call them as police officers? They ought to be stipulated in this particular Bill, so that we allow the Attorney-General, as a matter of fact it is not the Attorney-General, I do not know why he is so emboldened, the Minister for Internal Security and Defence should be able to tell us.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is my objection, that the status of a "police officer" must be specified. That is one thing.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, and I believe the Attorney-General is the man representing the Minister for Defence, so he should be able to make it clear—Is that we are told in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons a man borrowed from the Soviet Union, a man borrowed from the United States of America, a man borrowed from another country, coming here as a technician to assist us, will follow exactly what President Johnson stated, that where our nationals go hand in hand, they walk with the United States flag, or their own national flag, that if by any means they feel that the security of their lives is jeopardized, the United States of America will come straight into Kenya and capture Kenya on the spot, in the name of safeguarding the nationals of their own country.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Hon. Members: Question, question.

Mr. Gichoya: Now, those people who are talking in terms of questions are mere fools brought into this House.

The Assistant Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Onanui): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is the hon. Member in order calling us fools?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, no, he is not. You will withdraw that, Mr. Gichoya.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, they are not fools.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, you must withdraw that remark.

Mr. Gichoya: Yes, they are not fools, but they are misguided hon. Members. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, they are misguided people with no proper understanding of international relations.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I was mentioning one simple thing, that just a few days back when one of the Southern American states was in chaos—and, of course, up to this moment it is a chaotic state—the United States of America, so as to have a cover, sought the authority of the Organization of American States, and the President of the United States said that by all means he would invade that country in order to safeguard their own nationals. What is provided in this particular clause is that when we borrow nationals of other countries, they come here masquerading in their own national dress, not respecting our own constitution, not respecting our own national flag, not even respecting our own National Anthem, because they say they cannot be tried in the courts of Kenya, which means, obviously, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, they are ambassadors in disguise. I do not believe that we have police officers in Kenya—What could have police officers in Kenya?—What is wrong with that? Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would repeat that people who cannot understand the international implications should not question what is right or wrong.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is a very big danger to the sovereignty of our country, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it also reflects the inferiority of Kenya towards other people, that we accept somebody to come here and work for us, maybe on a contract, but he will dictate to Kenya because his country maybe economically better off than our own country, and an officer over and above him, an African, black like myself, who is supposed to be dictating to the foreigner, by virtue of his post, will never do it. What I believe, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is that the officers of any rank, other than an ambassador and his own staff members who are guaranteed immunity by international understanding, must be under the Laws of Kenya when they come to this country, including a tourist if he comes here. But I am told that these foreigners—Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I wish to inform the Member for Nyirai that I am better versed in political science than himself.

What I want to emphasize is this: that those people will be governed by our own laws and the disciplinary regulations of our own forces; they should not come here as bosses. The only people I would allow, because I am entitled also to send one as Kenya—I am talking in terms of Kenya—are an ambassador and his own group. But the other lot must come here and respect the Laws of Kenya. If they play the fool, they should be put in and tried by the courts of Kenya, unless the Attorney-General tells us that we do not have competent judges in this country.

With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would rather like this one to be amended. The phrase "according to their own laws" should read "according to our own laws." That is one.

The other thing, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is that I would like to have any police officer, followed by a bracket, the rank to be stipulated, so that we know who is actually a man with the ability to do it.

With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir—

An hon. Member I beg to support.

Mr. Gichoya: With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to continue.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, my—

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. G. Godana): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think the hon. Member now speaking is repeating himself and Member now speaking is repeating himself and I feel it is time for the Mover to reply.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, I think we will give him a chance to speak.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am now putting forward two amendments. One is on now putting forward two amendments. One is on the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, to amend it that it is according to Kenya Law, "according to our own laws". The other amendment, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, will be "any member" (from sub-inspector of police up to police officer) may arrest without warrant any person whom he suspects upon reasonable grounds...

[Mr. Khalif]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons of this Bill says that where the Armed Forces or Police Forces of any other countries are lawfully in Kenya by virtue of an agreement with Kenya, then such other countries should be expected—and I do not know who these are—in such agreement to provide in certain circumstances for offences committed by members of such Forces to be dealt with according to their own laws or disciplinary regulations and not Kenya's.

Now, Sir, the big question is why not deal with any person who commits an offence, be he a member of the Armed Forces or a governor of any country, or a Prime Minister, according to our own laws? If this is to be allowed, it will seem as if, in so far as the laws of other countries are perhaps lenient, the people who commit offences be they from the Armed Forces or not could go without punishment in accordance with our own laws. If members of the foreign Armed Forces commit any offence in Kenya, however serious it is, this Bill assumes that they will be dealt with according to their own laws. Now, Mr. Speaker, supposing—and this is only a supposition, we allowed the Russians to come and teach our army here the way to handle the new arms—that is if they were accepted by the Kenya Government—and following the rumours that there has been a lot of conspiracy from the communist countries to overthrow this Government, and supposing—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. You cannot associate Russia in debate like this. You did not mean to I am sure.

Mr. Khalif: No, Sir. Not Russia specifically. I mean, any foreign country. I was just giving an example, Sir. Supposing we allow or accepted—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The point I would remind hon. Members of is that it is basically out of order to make any hostile reference to a friendly country, except on a special Motion for that purpose.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was wondering if, in view of the fact that the majority of the Members are of the opinion that the Attorney-General should give us an explanation as to what he calls minor offences, it would be in order for the Attorney-General to explain to the House the meaning of the Bill so that we do not wander from place to place?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No Member can speak more than once in any debate, except the Mover who is to reply; but it would be in order for the Attorney-General or any other hon. Member to intervene during the course of another Member's speech on a point of information, if the hon. Member would like to give way for that purpose.

Mr. Khalif: Sir, following your ruling, it was not my intention at all to infer that the Russian Government would undertake or help to overthrow our Government. In any case, Sir, if any foreign country, be it America, Britain or Russia, with which we made agreements for personnel from Armed Forces to come into Kenya, came into Kenya and undertook to overthrow or help to overthrow our Government, would it be logical that these people would be dealt with according to the laws of their own countries? I am asking this, Sir, because there could be a country whereby if somebody undertakes to overthrow its Government, the punishment is death, and there are other countries where the punishment would be just seven years in jail. Now, Sir, it would be wrong, I think, to leave the responsibility for dealing with those who commit offences in our country with their foreign Governments.

Sir, the Bill is very short, and there is very little discussion, but I would like to refer to the Attorney-General to section 4, subsection 2, where it says that any police officer may arrest, without warrant, any person whom he suspects, upon reasonable grounds, of having committed an offence under the section. Now, Sir, I would like the Attorney-General to explain what he really means by a police officer being warranted to arrest anybody who commits an offence, because, Sir, in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, the Attorney-General says that anybody who commits an offence under this Bill will be dealt with accordingly by his own country. How, then, Sir, could a police officer in Kenya, in so far as that the Bill says that such a person cannot be dealt with in Kenya, arrest a person who has committed an offence under this Bill? This, Sir, is a point of clarification which I would like the Attorney-General to enlighten me on.

With those few words, Sir, I beg to oppose the Bill.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odoro-Jowi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, those who are opposing the Bill are behaving like a horse in blinkers. They are only seeing one issue in this problem, and not the other side.

Sir, I think that this Bill applies to a situation like this. We have a defence pact with Ethiopia, and it is possible that one of these days it might be possible to bring Ethiopian Forces here for military practices or something like that, or alternatively, one of these days we will send our forces to Ethiopia for practices or some emergency exercises. Now, Sir, it only means that by passing this Bill we will also be prompting the other people to pass a Bill that would deal with the Armed Forces by similar treatment. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is what it all means, and the Member for Wajir North— I do not think that this will affect our plans in Somalia, because there is no possibility of serving a defence pact with them.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is all that it means, and we hope that one of these days it will be possible for us to extend our defence agreements to cover Tanzania, Uganda and so on, and the practice will be that when our Armed Forces are in the other land, they will be accorded the same considerations, under the same law, as we are now discussing here.

Mr. Speaker, this is why I think that this Bill is important, and I support it.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I reserve my support until the Attorney-General makes it very clear what he means. I was very disappointed, and I still am, that instead of bringing this Bill to the Parliamentary Group, he has just brought it into the Chamber, and he has failed to expound the Bill. Some of us are not lawyers, as he is, and we do not understand the Bill in terms of law, and therefore, I would say that I reserve my support until such a time as he has made it very clear to me what he means by minor offences and big offences to be committed.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if an officer comes to Kenya, or a Kenyan officer goes to Tanzania or elsewhere, an offence, be it a big offence or a minor offence, is an offence. Mr. Speaker, what seems to me to be a big offence in Britain or Tanzania or Malawi may not seem to be a very big offence in Kenya, depending on the circumstances and in conditions in which this offence, be it big or small, was committed.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said, I will reserve my support to this Bill until the Attorney-General expounds more on what he means by minor offences or big offences, as he terms it in this Bill. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reserve my support.

QUORUM

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, I think there are no Members who want to speak because we do not have a quorum.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are pointing out to me that we have no quorum, are you?

Mr. Khalif: Yes, Sir.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think what he wanted to say is that as it appears that there is no Member wishing to speak, the Mover should be asked to reply.

Mr. Khalif: Definitely, Sir, that is not what I wanted to say.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member has also pointed out to me the fact that we do not have a quorum. Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have a quorum now.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this might look as if it is repetition, but I should emphasize this point. We should not accept that the emergency regulations should operate during the peaceful period.

During the Emergency, Mr. Speaker, Sir, anybody could be arrested by any Tom, Dick and Harry in authority, because they were picked up from the streets, given the uniforms of the police and they could just arrest anybody and claim they were doing it lawfully. Now, on what I see here, clause 4, subsection (2) which is:

"Any police officer may arrest without warrant any person whom he suspects upon reasonable grounds of having committed an offence under this section."

Who is the judge of these reasonable grounds? The same policeman thinks "I have enough grounds to arrest this man", but the normal procedure of court, the normal procedure of the law court of law, allows that somebody suspected is of this kind, allows that arrest. But here a policeman, Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I saw yesterday in my own area, in Kerugoya, in Kirinyaga District, a policeman dressed in plain clothes asked a man dealing with vegetables to produce his licence, and he comes in a very queer way, because the man who told him that that man did not have a licence himself was a man who did not have a licence placed, and wanted to operate in that particular place. Was consequently, that man was disturbed. It was consequently, that man was yesterday in not the day before yesterday, it was yesterday in my own presence, and the licence was produced, and he could not read a word in that licence, and he had to get that particular document and ask Gichoya, Member for Gichoya, to read

[The Minister for Labour and Social Services] we had the Labour Advisory Board which, after considering the Bill, suggested to me what they thought should be done to the Bill. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I will be moving amendments during the Committee Stage where they will be required. This is actually the advice I have received from the workers and employers.

Mr. Speaker, my friend the hon. Member for Nyirindura did actually say—and I want to correct this—that this Bill should have been a bit tougher, because it is too lenient. I would like to assure him that this is not so. Sometimes leniency achieves more than toughness. I have learnt this as Minister for Labour. I have achieved more by trying to be co-operative to the workers. By merely being tough and locking up one or two people one would not achieve anything. For this reason the Bill has to be lenient. It is not meant to be tough or to punish the workers. It is a Bill which is agreed upon by both the employers and employees.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

(The Bill was read a Second Time)

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Committee stage of the Trade Disputes Bill be taken today with the leave of the House.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odoro-Jowi) seconded.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): When it says "with the leave of the House" it means that no hon. Member must object. So, if any single hon. Member objects we cannot take the Committee stage today but will have to take it tomorrow.

Mr. Khalif: I object, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Since the Committee stage can only be taken if no hon. Member objects I am afraid we shall have to leave it over until tomorrow.

(The Bill was committed to a committee of the whole House tomorrow)

BILL

Second Reading

THE CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have to inform hon. Members that rightly or wrongly, the Attorney-General has been taken by surprise in view of the fact that the Trade Disputes Bill has not been taken in Committee. I understand that the Minister for Information is not here as well. It is a pity to waste the whole afternoon, and in view of this I think it will be best if I suspend the business of the House for eight minutes, that is until four o'clock, this afternoon.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odoro-Jowi): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it possible, Sir, under Standing Orders to appeal to the Member who objects to withdraw his objection?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, it is in order. Mr. Khalif do you still maintain your objection?

Mr. Khalif: I maintain my objection. I object very strongly, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Very well then. The business of the House is now suspended until 4 p.m. today.

(The House was consequently suspended from eight minutes to Four o'clock until Four o'clock)

(The House resumed)

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

BILL

Second Reading

THE CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I apologize for not being here, but I had made arrangements with the Assistant Minister who was in the library, but events overtook us.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as the Bill itself says it is quite simple, but firstly we would like to amend the Criminal Procedure Code to enable the Armed Forces, or the forces of any other country who are in this country, by virtue of an agreement between Kenya and such other country, to be exempt from certain crisis and under certain circumstances. For instance, we have an agreement with Great Britain who are training some of our army personnel here. They are only here for a short period and then go away, but during the time when they are in this country, they will not be subjected to the ordinary criminal procedure. In fact, they will be subjected to the Army Law of their own countries.

Clause 2 of the Bill is intended to give effect to such agreement.

Opportunity has also been taken in clause 3 of the Bill to rectify an omission which was made to section 306 of subsection 1 of the Criminal

[The Attorney-General] the Procedure Code, and in clause 4 to insert in the Code a provision which was previously in the Criminal Procedure Code, namely for this separation rule. The enactment of this Bill, as it is usual to state, will not involve public money.

I do not think I need to say any more. It is a very minor amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code.

With those few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I second this Bill. I wish only to add that while, very important, and necessary, they are very, very important, and necessary, particularly to deal with the armed forces who are here on an agreement with us, and also the commissions which were inadequate in connection with section 306 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a formal seconding, and I wish to support.

Mr. Omari: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while rising to support this Bill, I have a few points I would like to make and to draw the Minister's attention to them.

Here we are asked to pass a Bill which will exempt certain members of forces from crimes they might have committed. Since the Minister has stated that agreements between Kenya and such other countries, it is to be expected that such agreements will provide, in certain circumstances, for offences committed by members of such forces to be dealt with according to their own laws or disciplinary regulations.

We would like to know, Mr. Speaker, here the name of offences which such members of the forces have committed and which can be dealt with according to their own laws. I have seen, for instance, in Mombasa there are sometimes forces down there. They go to the bars and cause minor offences, like assaulting other people who go to the bar, and sometimes raping women. If such things happen, and he has said that they should be dealt with according to their own laws, this clause then does not give a proper explanation to this. We would like to know the nature of the offences which such members can be dealt with according to their own laws, and we would like to know what kind of laws there are in their own respective countries. In some cases we find, Mr. Speaker, in some countries, offences are taken to be very serious, while in others they are not taken to be serious. Assaulting in our country, or raping is a serious offence. So, we would like the Minister to tell us the nature of the offences which such soldiers will be dealt with according to their own laws.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Jabari: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not opposing the Bill, but I am also worried about what the Minister terms as a minor amendment, because we have experienced from other countries where such laws exist and which have done a lot of damage, whereby these people do anything, expecting that they will get only a minor hearing in their courts—or whatever type of courts they have in military cases—and they mostly get away with their friends. If I may quote an instance, Mr. Speaker, in Manila they have such a law between an American and the Manila Government and an American soldier just deliberately killed a citizen of Manila and this man was just returned to his family and it was because of the misunderstanding that they had this soldier, when he should have been punished, had nothing done to him. He was only transferred to America, and nothing happened.

Now, we would like to know whether, before our Government gives this freedom to do anything, the military courts are good enough to deal with these people, and if they are not, they can do nothing about it. We would like to know whether the Attorney-General has made sure that in a case where a man has committed a crime he will be dealt with. If we feel that the disciplinary court has not dealt with the case fairly and has not punished the person sufficiently, our Government should take action to see that justice is done to our citizens. If the Attorney-General has made sure that there is also a clause which can force these people to be tried in our courts, we shall find that these people will be bullied in town. The citizens will go on all justifying expecting that their brothers in the army will give them a minor hearing in the army or they may be transferred to England and nothing will happen. They come from, and nothing will happen. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, while I do not actually oppose this Bill, we want the Attorney-General to explain to us whether that clause could be inserted where our Government could protect the rights of their citizens from these army people who are here.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to speak.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that the Bill is very short, perhaps, it would seem that Members would repeat what other Members have said.

[Mr. J. M. Karituki] support wholeheartedly the trade unions, because, mainly, we are concerned also with the workers and also the affairs of this country. Therefore, we have to clear up a few things in this Bill. This Bill will attract investment first of all, because the employers will no longer be subjected to unfair discrimination, and irresponsible strikes by some of the trade unions. There we support very strongly, but I would rather be assured that fair treatment is accorded to the workers themselves, and at the same time, give the Government power to intervene very strongly where necessary, which is a move that would ensure stable industrial relations in this country. But, Sir, there are some points that I would like to raise in this Bill.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting seems to be quite interested in my house, he can have it if he likes. If you look at clause 13, you will see that here in a questionable why the bodies appointed under the Act should be free to regulate their own procedure, while the Act is supposed to give all the necessary directives as to how disputes may be settled. This is something that I would like to know from the Minister, because it is suggested that such bodies should resort to their own procedure, only after consultation with the Minister, otherwise there might be considerable confusion and frustration. So, that is one point that I want to query on clause 13.

Sir, I think there is another clause here, clause 15. I have learned that there shall not be included in any publication relating to any awards, determination, or statement made or authorized by the Industrial Court, or by any arbitration tribunal board of inquiry, but since it is very likely that the loser in any dispute would not like publication to that effect, it would appear that the Act itself should specify which kind of information may not be published, because otherwise the Press itself would be faced with an unnecessary dilemma, and it would be very important for the Act to say that this is what we feel should not be taken to the Press, or the direction should come from the Ministry, and this should be covered by the Press alone. Otherwise, the Press can be in a very difficult position in future if we leave it just like that.

Then, Sir, we come to another clause here: clause 17. Subsection (1) of this clause says, "In any proceedings before the Industrial Court or under section 8 or section 12 of this Act, the president of the court, chairman or other person conducting the proceedings may in his discretion admit or exclude the public or any representative of the Press to or from the proceedings of any part thereof." Since every dispute is of public concern, it does not seem fair that the public and the Press should at times be excluded from the proceedings on such disputes. I am saying this, Sir, because the workers would always, naturally, be keen to know the steps which have been reached in the process. It is in the general public interest that they should know what is going on during the dispute in this open space. Other employers, Sir, or employees would take note and learn from the proceedings, in one they are similarly involved, because in future they might also be involved in such circumstances, and it would be advisable for them to know what type of disputes have been going on, instead of excluding them completely from knowing what sort of disputes have been going on between the employers and employees. That, Sir, does not mean that I am opposing the Bill at all, no, but I would like to point out the danger which might be caused by some of the clauses.

Then from here we come to another very interesting clause; clause 25. This clause says, "Any person who in connection with any strike or lock-out declared by or under this Act to be unlawful—", and then it goes as far as explaining what sort of punishment there can be. I feel that the penalties under this section are lenient, very lenient indeed and should be made more harsh, because we must ensure stability. An employer who is likely to lose Sh. 10,000 as the result of a decision on an unlawful dispute may not care if he loses Sh. 500, if only to enable him to feel time to reorganize himself, and that is the reason why I am saying that this clause is a little lenient. It appears to me that whoever was responsible in drafting this clause ought to have realized that some of them may not even fear to lose Sh. 500 if they can reorganize themselves. So I think, although it is lenient, something more harsh ought to have been put in there.

I think the Bill itself, Sir, is good. In Part V, section 27 it goes so far as mentioning more of the essential services. This is very important, Sir. The essential services should include education. The First Schedule is to be applauded very highly. At this stage of development, Sir, Kenya cannot afford—and I repeat afford—luxurious strikes which tend to ruin the people, and as such, Sir, since most of all services in this country are controlled by the Government, then the Government, I consider, should ensure that no unnecessary employment difficulties are experienced by employees in such services. The Government should set the best example as the best employer in the country, because there have been real and genuine cases of grievances among the employees

[Mr. J. M. Karituki] themselves. As such, I feel that even now Government itself should become the best employer and ensure that there is a lot of contentment among the servants of our Government. It is only through such contentment that the country will be able to have a stable Government.

Sir, I think our Ministers in this Government do know very well that the French Government, in spite of the fact that there have been so many changes in the political field, is always stable; it does not matter whether the politicians change today or tomorrow, but because there are always the very strong and incorruptible civil servants, the Government is still strong. However, the civil servants cannot merely become loyal to the Government if they are always left in a state of discontent. Therefore, it should be the real work of our Government to see to it that also our civil servants in the field are satisfied, so that they cannot look to another place for help, that is an irrefutable fact that if a civil servant is not satisfied with whatever he is earning, there is always a likelihood of him going back to someone else who can finance him, and he might owe his allegiance to whoever can become the best financier. In that case, Sir, I think—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that is outside the scope of the Bill rather.

Mr. J. M. Karituki: Yes, Sir, I was finishing on that. I hope our Government will also set that example, so that we have a stable and good Government.

I would like to end, Sir, by supporting this Bill very strongly and saying that whoever will put this into action in the field will be able to add here to what is put in this Bill, but not to create any other what is put in this Bill, but not to create some subsidiary Acts within the already-passed Act. I therefore support this Bill very strongly, Sir.

Mr. Malu: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I suggest that the Mover be now called upon to reply since there is no more argument from hon. Members?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time for the House to consider the closure, so I will put the question that the Mover be now called upon to reply.

(The question was put and agreed to)

QUORUM

Mr. Omari: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am rising to seek your guidance, because I have found that there is no quorum in the House and since the question of the Mover being called upon to reply was put when there was no quorum, I wonder whether it was in order.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): All proceedings of the House are in order, even if there is no quorum, until the Speaker's attention is drawn to the lack of quorum. Thereupon he calls for the Division Bell to be rung and no further proceedings can take place until there is a quorum. Now that, after the Motion for the closure has been carried, Mr. Omari has drawn my attention to the lack of a quorum, we shall ring the Division Bell and shall not proceed with the Mover to reply until we have a quorum.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have a quorum now, Mr. Mwendwa.

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to take much time with this Bill because most of the Members of this House have actually read the Bill. I will only make two points of general observation. I would like the hon. Members to realize that there are two agreements contained in this Bill: one, is the Industrial Relations Charter which was agreed upon by both the employer and the employers of Kenya. The other agreement which is contained, is the agreement which came to an end on the 8th April 1963, that is the Tripartite Agreement.

On the Tripartite Agreement the only thing which is included in this Bill is the check-off system which was requested by the workers themselves. The Government agreed to put that in the Bill.

Now, on the side of the Industrial Relations Charter, Mr. Speaker, every single step or agreement which is in that Charter is included in this Bill. We have put in nothing new except the points which have been agreed by both the employers and employees.

All that I have done, Mr. Speaker, by this Bill is to give the agreement a legal provision to enforce it so that where an employer or employee goes outside the agreement I have the power to request the employer or employee to follow the agreement. This is exactly what the Bill asks for. I do not think there is any argument whatsoever which supports the suggestion that this Bill is there to benefit the employers only, because that is not true. I hope hon. Members will understand this.

Mr. Speaker, the other very important fact which the hon. Members might perhaps like to know is that this Bill has been studied and read by the workers and it was only last week when my original reply that we are trying to rejuvenate, to make younger, Eldoret industrially speaking.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, could he tell the House what sort of incentives his Ministry intends to use in order to attract investors to this area so as to create more industries in Eldoret?

Mr. Kizao: Mr. Speaker, Sir, a very beautiful pamphlet was recently published by the Eldoret Local Government Authority after consultation with us—when I say us, I include all my colleagues in the House who are interested in Eldoret—and some of the points brought forward were the climate, the availability of various types of raw materials, and also the availability of a good water supply, and the fact that negotiations were going on with the East African Power and Lighting Company to make sure that the electricity rates charged in Eldoret would be competitive vis-à-vis other industrially attractive areas.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, arising from one of the replies by the Minister, will he not agree with me that Eldoret is the wrong place to boost industries, because Eldoret is surrounded by good soil where people could go back to the land and cultivate it, whereas a place like Voi is completely barren, with no good land around, and so wants industries?

Dr. Kizao: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I strongly contribute and subscribe to the call for "return to the land", that does not mean neglecting possible industrial areas, and I am not the Member for Eldoret, but I consider it to be one of the most ideal places for industry.

Question No. 2068TELEPHONE FOR ELDORET AIRFIELD

Mr. ole Tipis, on behalf of Mr. Tuwei, asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power when he would connect the Eldoret Airfield with the telephone.

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bonnett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The telephone which was formerly installed at the airfield was a private one for the use of the meteorological department who had this collected when they moved into the town. I am glad, however, to inform the hon. Member for Usain Gishu that I propose to have a telephone installed at Eldoret Airfield as soon as possible.

Mr. ole Tipis: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the hon. Assistant Minister's reply, could he tell us that "as soon as possible" will mean that he is going to install it possibly next week, rather than this loose phrase "as soon as possible", which might mean months or years?

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, I mean as soon as possible according to the phraseology of the word.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply would he tell the House whether his Ministry is also going to advise the pilots not to land on this airfield until this telephone is installed?

Mr. Bonnett: No, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Anybody authorized to ask Mr. Neki's question?

Next Order.

BILLSecond Reading*THE TRADE DISPUTES BILL

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odera-Jowi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, when the House adjourned the other day, I was making the point that our Government believes—and believes very firmly—that no amount of restrictive legislation can cause strikes or labor unrest if there are causes of this. I was making the point, Sir, that rather than pass a restrictive legislation, we should allow the workers the freedom to consult and discuss with their employers their grievances in their places of employment, and that this should be resolved on the basis of agreed procedures and that this Bill only strengthens the working of the procedure for processing and settling disputes which have operated in this country for a long time. There is the suggestion, Sir, that sections 19 and 20 of this Bill give the Minister too much power, but on the contrary, Sir, these two sections only confirm what has already been agreed to under the Industrial Charter which was signed in October 1962.

Section 19, Sir, gives the Minister the power to declare a strike illegal when the strike is being called before the machinery for settling the dispute has been exhausted. Mr. Speaker, the Industrial Charter had this to say on this matter, "that unions and employers agree that the existing machinery for settlement of disputes should be utilized as quickly as possible". Further, that

"both sides undertake to settle any or all industrial disputes at the appropriate level and according to procedure laid down". Also, it is agreed in the Industrial Charter that no resolve to strike will be allowed before the existing machinery for processing and settlement of disputes has been exhausted. So, Sir, here in this section we are only confirming and giving legal effect to what has already been agreed to and maintained as one of the holy practices in the system of industrial relations.

Similarly, Sir, section 20 is also only confirming another agreed procedure and practice in the Industrial Charter, and so, Sir, rather than allege that this is a Minister who has power, the Minister here is only given the power to confirm things which have already been mutually and freely agreed between the Union and the employers.

Another allegation has been made that section 21 gives the Minister another dictatorial power. Sir, quite to the contrary. That section only deals with sympathy strikes, and sympathy strikes can run a country like Kenya. Now, imagine the Kenya Distributors' and Commercial Workers' Union calling a strike, and then the Railway Union going on sympathy strike, and this is 'Union going on sympathy strike, and all the other Unions including the Dock Workers' Union. Sir, even if such a strike started off because of a very genuine dispute, the fact that so many other workers will also strike does not justify the action. So, here the Bill only seeks to give the Minister power to confine sympathy strikes, if any, within an industry.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it has also been mentioned that this Bill does not give the workers freedom, that it interferes with freedom of association. Sir, freedom of association is one of the fundamental rights given by our Constitution, and when we were drafting this Bill we made sure that it would not interfere with freedom of association. For the benefit of those who do not understand the full context of freedom of association, I would like to say that it consists of the following: First, the freedom of the Union, and the employers, and this organize freely without any interference, and this Bill does not interfere with that freedom. Secondly, it consists of the right of the Union to organize themselves in order to carry out collective bargaining with the employers. Again, Sir, this Bill does not interfere with that. Also, Sir, freedom of association consists in allowing the workers the freedom to join the union of their choice. Sir, again this Bill does not interfere with that, and I would like to get rid of that allegation that this Bill is dictatorial. It is not, and to the extent that it allows freedom of association in its full figure, this Bill is one of the most liberal and one of the most consistent Bills. At least, it is consistent with all the provisions in the international Labour Organization Convention on this matter.

Mr. Speaker: Sir, this Bill gives legal powers to the unions to be given this check-off. Now, this question of the check-off is something the unions have been asking for for a long time, and I can say that all the union officials who have discussed this matter with me are really pleased that this time, because of the effect of this Bill, they will enjoy financial independence, and we hope that with this the unions will stop the habits of going abroad to look for money from habits of going which are only interested in disrupting our labour movement.

Mr. Speaker: Sir, one previous speaker mentioned that we hurried with this Bill, and that we short-circuited the normal procedure, and that we hurried with this Bill to the Parliament without consulting the union. Now, there was a lapse in this matter, but I am glad to inform the House that when we realized this we called a meeting of the Labour Advisory Board, and we had two full-scale meetings, at which the Kenya Federation of Labour tabled a number of amendments which appeared on the Order Paper, and after that the unions have told us that they are satisfied, and to quote one of them, "We have carefully examined the much spoken of Bill, which we prefer to name, 'Mr. Mwenda's Bill, No. 1', and consequently, we can say that it is all that much better to deserve a wide association. So, we support it." So, there is no problem. The unions support this Bill and, I would like to get rid of all those allegations that we did not consult with the unions before bringing this Bill to the House.

Mr. Speaker: somebody who is an official representative of the Dock Workers' Union is interfering behind me. Now, if I did not consult the Dock Workers' Union, it is only because the Dock Workers' Union, for some mysterious reason, does not contribute, and does not support the workers on the Advisory Board. It is not our mistake.

Mr. Speaker: Sir, I think that that is all I have to say on this Bill, and rather than waste the time of the House, I beg to support.

Mr. J. M. Kararia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that this is also a very important Bill. But we cannot sit all the time of the trade unions or

In all, 17,601 people were members of 627 self-help groups and there were 78 village development committees.

Locations 1, 2 and 9, which comprise Belgut constituency, have 117 self-help groups with a membership of 1,695 people.

This year, Government has contributed £700 to assist in encouraging self-help activities in Kericho District.

Mr. Bly: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that a number of our development staff who are employed by the district county council have been already discharged? I do not know whether he is aware of that.

Mr. Kubali: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware of that.

Mr. Kericho: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister prepared to come to the District and encourage all these schemes he has mentioned?

Mr. Kubali: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my reply is, yes, Sir.

Question No. 2072

SALARIES FOR NEW CHIEFS

Mr. Nyalick asked the President if he could tell the House what steps were being taken to pay newly-employed chiefs salaries commensurate their titles and duties.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odunga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The newly-appointed chiefs are in a salary scale commensurate with their titles and duties.

Mr. Nyalick: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Vice-President's reply, is he aware that the newly-employed chiefs are entering into employment at the rate of £173 per annum, whereas during the colonial days the chiefs were entering employment at the rate of £312 per annum. Could he tell the House why such a drastic reduction was arrived at?

Mr. Odunga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I understand that the rate of pay which is given to the chiefs is the one applied, even during those early days, as my hon. gentleman has mentioned, but if there is—

Mr. Makooe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Vice-President speak louder because he is talking on a very important question which we are all concerned with.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not often hon. Members cannot hear you, Mr. Odunga, but they cannot hear you today.

Mr. Odunga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I just said that as I understand it, I received the news that the scale of pay which is applicable to the chiefs has been applied but if there is any abnormal condition which happened, the best thing, normally, is to lodge or to put the complaint through the normal channels and the Government will consider it.

Mr. ole Tips: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the hon. Vice-President's reply, to the effect that the salary is commensurate to the titles and duties of the chiefs, is he aware that although they are all titled chiefs, the Government still carries on the old tendency of the Colonial Government of paying different rates of pay to chiefs in various districts? For instance, in Masai, Turkana and Central Nyanza, in the Coast, the salary scales are different?

Mr. Odunga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I quite agree with the hon. Member that the salaries may be different, but they are not different as far as personalities are concerned. They may only be different according to the size of duties which are carried by those chiefs concerned.

Mr. Makooe: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Vice-President said that if there were any complaints of any chiefs they should complain through the normal channels. Will he elaborate on what the normal channels are: do we apply through the Members or the chiefs or through the district commissioners? What are the normal channels?

Mr. Odunga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hope the hon. gentleman will understand that we have the machinery of the Government which works or functions in his area, and those are the normal channels I have referred to.

Mr. Ngala-Aboke: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Vice-President aware that those teachers who are G2 already at the time when they became chiefs are now at a great disadvantage because they find themselves, due to size of duties as the Vice-President says, that they cannot get the same salaries as their counterparts of the other teachers they left in the service, and as such, they are all complaining. Will the Government pay attention to this particular one which is a degradation of a person's educational responsibilities and rights, to get proper pay according to his brains and his knowledge?

Mr. Odunga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not in any way try to underrate the importance of the duties of the chiefs and I should only let the hon. gentleman know that chiefs are paid according to titles which are laid down by the Government and if there has been, as I have already mentioned, anything which somebody suspects has been an injustice, the best course to take is actually to push it through the normal channels and the Government will consider it. I should say that normally when somebody takes over even the work of a chief we do not actually force him to do so or force him to leave before employment in order to be a chief.

Mr. Maitori-Imumbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Vice-President agree with me that the salary paid to chiefs is insufficient in accordance with their work?

Mr. Odunga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if it was brought to our notice that it is true, then we will consider it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think Mr. Odunga heard the question aright.

Mr. Maitori-Imumbo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the Vice-President did not answer my question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He did not quite hear it.

I do not think it is necessary for you to repeat it, because you are agreeing with what he has said already.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's previous reply to the effect that chiefs are paid according to the work or responsibilities they have in various parts of Kenya, would he agree with me that it should be the responsibility of the Government to pay, whosever calls for chieftainship—even if, for example, a district commissioner decides to become a chief—he should be paid the same amount, the little amount, and there should be no complaints entertained, be a teacher or otherwise?

Mr. Odunga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that is what we do, even if it is somebody in a very high post. If he has decided to become a chief, then he will have to conform with the provisions.

ELDORLET AS AN INDUSTRIAL CENTRE

Mr. ole Tips, on behalf of Mr. Tuwei, asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would tell the House the conditions that had led to the Ministry not considering Eldoret as one of the industrial towns and what industries were now being considered for the town?

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kioko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am not aware of such co-ordination and creation of Eldoret as an industrial town as the hon. Member alleges. In fact, our Ministry has worked closely with the local government authorities of Eldoret to make Eldoret most attractive investment-wise. Thus, Eldoret, contrary to the hon. Member's question, has not been forgotten. No doubt he will have heard of the recent opening by the Vice-President of an important industry at Eldoret, the Cow and Gate Baby Food Factory. Smaller industries have also come up recently; for instance, a dry-cleaning factory, and there are also quite a number of establishments in the area, such as the timber industry, the K.C.C., the cheese factory at Dooyo Lessos, the Watle Bark Industry, the Gailey and Roberts work, the reconditioning and assembling of farm machinery and so on. My Ministry is therefore trying to interest investors to go to Eldoret and we are hopeful that we shall succeed in rejuvenating Eldoret industrially.

Mr. ole Tips: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the hon. Minister's reply, is he aware that Eldoret has been overlooked for quite a long time, until recently? Could he assure the House that he will interest any new industries or factories in this area of which has reasonable terms provided by the Municipal Board of Eldoret?

Dr. Kioko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is a slightly different question because the original question said it was my Ministry which had forgotten Eldoret, and I proved that was not correct. Secondly, accepting the observation that some industrialists had overlooked Eldoret, I stated in [Mr. Ekittella] whether he is talking about qualified doctors or hospital assistants?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Ekittella, you and other hon. Members know what is and what is not a point of order. I have warned you and other hon. Members that those who rise on false points of order, after one or two warnings, will have to be asked to leave the Chamber. I have given you many warnings, and I hope that you will now understand the position. Now, this is the last warning. The next time you rise on a false point of order—and hon. Members should know what are false points of order—you will be required to leave the Chamber.

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, I was telling the House that we have doctors who have just completed their pre-registration training at the Kenyatta National Hospital. As soon as these doctors have the necessary experience, they will be posted to these hospitals which do not have qualified doctors at the moment. However, this will take some time before these hospitals are given doctors to take charge of the patients.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the hon. Assistant Minister appreciates the need of a doctor in the Kapenguria Hospital, would he assure the House that a doctor will be posted to Kapenguria Hospital immediately?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not going to be forced because I do not manufacture doctors. I wish I had the power, Sir, to put brains into people's minds so that they could become doctors. That would enable me to send one just now to Kapenguria.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 2083: DOCTOR FOR KAPENGURIA HOSPITAL

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the unsatisfactory reply to this question, I wish to raise this matter on an adjournment.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

ASSEMBLY OF MOTOR VEHICLES IN KENYA

Mr. Balala asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry whether Government would consider banning the direct import of motor vehicles into Kenya for sale and whether, instead, willing motor companies could be asked to assemble motor vehicles in Kenya for sale.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply, it is the Government policy and intention to encourage the assembling of motor vehicles in Kenya. Already, some trucks, farm machinery, buses, etc., undergo varied stages of assembly here. Negotiations are under way for a more extensive assembly of such vehicles, as well as tax vehicles, and the conclusions of these negotiations will indicate how much control we need to exercise on importing vehicles.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that other countries which have started assembling motor vehicles in their countries have found that the quality produced does not actually match the quality which is manufactured overseas, would the Minister ensure that the equipment will be of high quality in order to guarantee that our cars here will be of the same quality as those manufactured overseas?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, the fact that other countries are making mistakes does not mean that we shall make the same mistakes.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply, would the Minister assure this House that due to the bad conditions of our roads our cars will be made in a much better condition than the ones referred to by the hon. Member?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I shall bring to the notice of those who assemble cars the fact that our roads are rugged and that they should therefore assemble cars to suit our roads.

NYERI-KIANDONGORO ROAD: TARMAC

Mr. Theuri asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power whether, as the area was economically sound, particularly for cash crops, as well as grade cattle, the Government intended to tarmac the Nyeri to Kiandogoro road, even if it amounted to more taxation for the people in that area.

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bonetti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Government has at present no plan for the tarmac-ing of the Nyeri to Kiandogoro road before 1970, and it is extremely unlikely that this work will be included in the Development Plan for this period as it did not appear in the priority list for road development submitted by the Central Province authorities.

I should like to point out to the Member that development of the Kiandogoro area should not be prevented by the lack of this road which is only about eight miles long.

[The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power]

On the question of the people of the area paying for the bituminization of this road by a special tax, I am extremely doubtful whether this would be feasible, particularly in view of the difficulties experienced in the collection of graduated personal tax.

Question No. 2073

ROAD CONSTRUCTION: TAKAUNGU-MALINDI-LAMU

Mr. Ngala asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power:—

- Whether money for the construction of the main road from Takaungu Junction to Malindi was now available.
- If the money was available, when would the actual construction start.
- Whether he intended to construct the main road from Malindi to Lamu before 1970, i.e. within the Government Six-Year Development Plan period.

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bonetti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) Yes, Sir, I am glad to say that funds have been made available under a World Bank scheme for the construction of:—

- Single-way bitumen from Takaungu Junction (Kibaoni) to Kilifi.
- The section of road between Kilifi Ferry and the start of the previously realigned section through Roka Forest to a gravel standard.
- The section of road between the northern end of the previously realigned section to Malindi Township to a gravel standard.

(b) It is hoped that actual construction work will start in or before the last quarter of 1965 as part of a phased programme for the letting of the large contracts involved and making the most effective use of the limited planning resources available to my Ministry.

(c) I am almost certain that it will not be possible to find the funds to construct the main road from Malindi to Lamu before 1970, in view of the limited financial resources available and the many pressing calls upon them. Subject to the availability of funds, however, I hope to proceed with a policy of small-scale local improvements on the Garsen-Mlango-ya-Simba section of this road from time to time during the planning period.

Mr. Semo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister tell this House, as he has already said that from Garsen-Mlango-ya-Simba—when he is going to start the work there?—

Mr. Bonetti: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have answered that question.

Mr. Semo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister has said that he has already answered. Could he tell this House when the work is to start from Garisa to Mlango-ya-Simba, in as far as that is the worst part of the road?

Mr. Bonetti: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said in my previous reply that this part will be improved when the funds are available.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the original reply, would the Assistant Minister tell this House whether he intends to by-pass the Kilifi ferry when he constructs the road from Takaungu to Kilifi, because of the delay that we experience these days?

Mr. Bonetti: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it was only a fortnight ago that I answered a question about these ferries and I said that we intended to improve the services of the ferry by the acquisition of new machinery. But, if the hon. Member is now interested in diversions and trying to by-pass this ferry, I have seen a plan, which is being examined in the Ministry, and we hope that if the cost of diverting the road would be equal to that of retaining the ferry, then we would definitely do it.

SELF-HELP SCHEMES IN BELGUT CONSTITUENCY

Mr. Kerich asked the Minister for Labour and Social Services whether he would tell the House the steps taken by the Ministry to encourage self-help schemes in Kericho District, especially in Belgut Constituency.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Kubai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Department of Community Development has posted one community development officer and two assistant community development officers to Kericho District and the local authority employs a total of 134 community development and welfare staff, which includes twenty community development assistants. Many of these have been given training at the Kenya Institute of Administration.

[The Minister for Internal Security and Defence] the time. If the police consider that in the circumstances the demonstration will lead to a breach of the peace, they will not permit it to be held. The police are empowered to take such action as is necessary to maintain law and order and to prevent a breach of the peace. If, therefore, the police consider that a demonstration within half a mile of Parliament Buildings will be a danger to the security, they shall refuse it.

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I rise to seek your guidance. This matter is related to this question. When Members wish to demonstrate within the premises of Parliament, where do they get permission?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you are raising a different point, Mr. Ngala. This refers to public demonstrations. Any abnormal activities of Members within the precincts of the building is the concern of the Speaker and not of the police. You have a supplementary question?

Mr. Ngala: Yes, Sir. Arising from the reply by the Minister, Sir, will he give us a definite assurance that since demonstrations are genuine expressions of our voters, such demonstrations will be as close to Parliament Buildings as possible?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this depends on the security at the particular time when this demonstration is going to be held. If the police consider that there is no danger to peace, then it can be, but I am not going to give that assurance.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I hope that the police also take into account the dignity of Parliament and the convenience of its Members.

Question No. 2084

ASSISTANT EDUCATION OFFICER FOR WEST POKOT

Mr. Lorema asked the Minister for Education whether he would consider creating a post for an assistant education officer in West Pokot, in view of the increasing number of schools in a vast area interspersed by many hills and valleys.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply, My Ministry is at present considering increasing administrative, supervisory and inspectorial staff to meet the ever expanding education services and, no doubt, the needs of West Pokot will be considered alongside those of other districts.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply would he tell the House when this expansion is going to reach Pokot area?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I have already stated, the Ministry is reviewing the possibility of expanding each inspectorate and other officers in the field and it is considered that this will be before the end of the year.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Member has raised this matter, regarding the backwardness of his area and lack of educational facilities, would the Assistant Minister say that West Pokot will be on the priority list now for an assistant education officer?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question of backwardness of this area does not arise, since the officer in question, which the Member is asking of, will be required to supervise or inspect a number of schools. I might also add, Mr. Speaker, that an inspector of a school is normally required to inspect at least fifty schools, and in the case of West Pokot, there are only thirty-one schools. Therefore, it might be impossible to allocate one particular officer for West Pokot unless we combine his work with Turkana.

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, and bearing in mind that an assistant education officer would stimulate the progress of education in West Pokot, will the Assistant Minister not consider this as a priority and a necessity for the development of Kenya?

Mr. Mutiso: No, Sir. Mr. Speaker, as I said earlier, an inspector will be required under our present arrangements to inspect at least fifty schools in every district and since we have only thirty-one schools in West Pokot, he would not have adequate work.

Mr. Lorema: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the Assistant Minister to answer this question, that what I am seeking is an inspector instead of an assistant education officer?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is in order.

Mr. Aramain: Mr. Speaker, Sir, how long can this arrangement that the Assistant Minister is telling us about, that there is an arrangement being made in West Pokot, take? Is it three months, or one month, a week or two days, or what?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Member was listening when I replied to that question, I said this might take us up to the end of this year and that may be how soon we will be able to do it.

COAST GENERAL HOSPITAL: IMPROVEMENT OF

Mr. Balala asked the Minister for Health and Housing what he was doing to improve and increase the existing shortage of medical facilities at the Coast General Hospital at Mombasa, in order to cope with the increasing daily demand of patients at the hospital.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply, This Ministry is well aware of the need for improving medical facilities in all our hospitals. As far as the Coast Province General Hospital, Mombasa is concerned it is considered that this hospital is more fortunate than the other provincial general hospitals in Kenya as regards both buildings and medical facilities available as well as medical staff.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply by the Assistant Minister, would he not agree with me that the congestion in the out-patients department at this hospital needs immediate attention, and what is he doing to relieve that?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is a very genuine question and I accept it. I want to assure the hon. Member that, on the 19th of this month, my Minister will be touring the Coast in order to assess and witness what is happening there, so that we can be in a better position to see what needs to be done for the out-patients.

Mr. Balala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that when his Minister visited the Coast Province General Hospital, he found that the daily number of out-patients ranged from 500 to 600 every day?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I should give a bit of light to the hon. Members in order to avoid unnecessary questions.

Mr. Speaker, the Coast General Hospital, Mombasa, has recently been moved to a new site and the buildings are, therefore, of more modern design than are those of the other provincial general hospitals. The medical facilities available at Mombasa are second only to those at the Kenyatta National Hospital. As far as medical staff is concerned, the Coast General Hospital is staffed, apart from the provincial physician and the provincial surgeon, by six medical officers, including a radiologist, and at the same time it also employs at least four other consultants. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, from this, it is quite clear that the number of staff alone, although we shall consider some improvement at the Coast

Hospital is necessary, is already enough to combat the problem down there considering the shortage of staff we have in the whole country.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister not aware that the number of patients in the Coast Provincial Hospital is so big that all the beds and stretchers are occupied that patients are forced to carry beds from their homes to the hospital in order to get something to sleep on, and as such, the Government is required to take immediate steps?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, I have not denied anything about the Coast General Hospital, but I think I have made it clear in my reply that I have indicated that the Coast Provincial Hospital is the only one available, as far as the other hospitals are concerned in Kenya, which is highly staffed and we have done this because we knew the position. Otherwise this hospital would not have all these other privileges which the other hospital do not have.

DOCTOR FOR KAPENGURIA HOSPITAL

Mr. Lorema asked the Minister for Health and Housing when a qualified doctor was going to be posted to Kapenguria Hospital.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply, This Ministry is well aware of the need for posting a qualified doctor to Kapenguria District Hospital in West Pokot, and it is anticipated that one will be posted there when available.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, would he tell the House when this qualified doctor will be available for Kapenguria Hospital?

Mr. Moss: As soon as we get one, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Aramain: Mr. Speaker, Sir, does he mean that there are no qualified doctors available to be sent to West Pokot at present?

Mr. Moss: We have doctors. However, the doctors who have recently completed their pre-registration training at the Kenyatta National Hospital, Nairobi, are too inexperienced to be posted on their own at the moment.

Mr. Eldred: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I can about—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You need not shout. What is your point of order?

Mr. Eldred: My point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that, could the Assistant Minister tell us

WRITTEN REPLIES TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 2081

EMPLOYMENT OF MAGISTRATE AND HIS WIFE

Mr. Ndile asked the Attorney-General whether he was aware that a certain senior resident magistrate and his wife were both employed under the same roof in Nairobi. If so, did he approve.

REPLY

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I am aware that the wife of a senior resident magistrate was appointed a juvenile magistrate in Nairobi by the Judicial Service Commission. The views of the Director of Personnel were obtained before this appointment was made.

MONEY GIFTS FOR SELF-HELP SCHEMES

Mr. Lorema asked the Minister for Labour and Social Services how much money had generously been given by individuals who were not citizens of this country through Ministers, to meet our present campaign of self-help projects.

REPLY

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): I suggest that the hon. Member should address his question to the Ministers individually, since I have no knowledge of such contributions, whether made to Ministers or Private Members.

I would like to take this opportunity of describing the machinery which has been set up to plan and assist self-help schemes. In all provinces except North-Eastern Province, there are now committees organized at project or village level. These send representatives to sublocations and locational committees, which in turn are represented on area and county committees. Each county committee is then represented on the provincial committee and these each send a representative to the national committee, on which Ministers of Ministries concerned with rural development also sit. The national committee distributes Government funds to provinces and will also distribute the unallocated portion of the National Fund. In some cases additional funds are provided by county councils.

The committees, advised by technical officers from various departments, consider applications for assistance from the project committee.

The purpose of this system is to avoid having self-help schools built without hope of teachers, dispensaries without staff and drugs, etc.

I have answered this question at some length as I would like all Members to appreciate the need to channel any aid which they may receive, either through the National Fund or the county community development committee, or if they wish, the area committee.

Any other course can only lead to confusion and chaos.

SENATE MESSAGE ON BILL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have to inform hon. Members that we have received a message from the Senate that they have agreed to the Landlord and Tenant (Shops, Hotels and Catering Establishments) Bill, without amendment, on Friday, 7th May 1965.

PAPERS LAID

The following Papers were laid on the Table:— Agreement on Technical Co-operation between the Government of the Republic of Kenya and the Government of the Kingdom of Norway.

(By the Vice-President (Mr. Odinga) on behalf of the Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya))

Sessional Paper No. 13 of 1964/65: Proposals by the Commonwealth Governments for the Establishment of a Commonwealth Secretariat for the Promotion of Commonwealth Development Projects.

(By the Vice-President (Mr. Odinga))

NOTICES OF MOTIONS

SESSIONAL PAPER NO. 13 OF 1964/65:
PROPOSALS FOR A COMMONWEALTH SECRETARIAT

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT this House notes Sessional Paper No. 13 of 1964/65 on the proposals by the Commonwealth Governments for the establishment of a Commonwealth Secretariat and a scheme for the promotion of Commonwealth Development Projects and approves the Government's intention to continue discussions and consultations to find the basis for implementing these proposals.

SALARY AND ALLOWANCES OF THE PRESIDENT

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT this House, having noted the requirements of section 35F (1) of the Constitution of Kenya (Amendment) Act, 1964, resolves that the salary and allowances of the President of the Republic of Kenya shall be—

Salary	£7,000 p.a.
Duty Allowance ..	£4,500 p.a.
Entertainment Allowance	£2,000 p.a.

and further does, in accordance with section 12 (2) of the East African Income Tax (Management) Act, 1958, resolve that such salary and allowances as are payable to the said President shall be free of income tax.

NO CONFIDENCE IN MINISTER FOR INTERNAL SECURITY AND DEFENCE

Mr. Nyalick: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT in view of the way in which the Ministry of Defence and Internal Security is being run and appointments of officers in key positions in the said Ministry, and the current activities of the General Service Unit in the country, this House resolves that it has no confidence in the Minister for Internal Security and Defence.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 2072

SALARIES FOR NEW CHIEFS

Mr. Nyalick asked the President if he could tell the House what steps were being taken to pay newly employed chiefs salaries commensurate with their titles and duties.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is there anyone here to answer for the President? We will have to go on to your question, Mr. Theuri.

Question No. 2093

DEMONSTRATION OUTSIDE PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS

Mr. Theuri asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence if he would tell the House whether he was going to issue a warning to the public that no demonstration of any sort should be staged within a half mile from the Parliament Buildings.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. No, Sir, each application made to the police for a licence to hold a demonstration or procession is treated on its merits and is allowed or refused depending on the security situation obtaining at

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is he explaining paragraph 21?

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, when the hon. gentleman moved this particular amendment, at certain points he was at pains to tell us that Kenya was not living in isolation. If that approach is accepted, then surely it must be agreed that in explaining the system which Kenya adopts, it is necessary to show where it differs with other systems? Why, therefore, shall we delete paragraph 21? Is it in order to keep the people in ignorance, so that later on they can be taken advantage of? The Government rejects this proposal.

Mr. Speaker, we are also asked, on page 9, paragraph 25, to delete the first sentence, and here I believe the hon. gentleman was labouring under a misunderstanding or misapprehension. He suggests that we should delete the sentence, "Similarly, the fact that other countries are more advanced is not a matter of jealousy, but of opportunity." But, when he spoke to this amendment he was saying that this amendment seeks to compare Kenya with Uganda and Tanzania. Nobody has ever suggested that Uganda and Tanzania are among the developed countries of the world, nor are they more developed than Kenya is. When we talk of development countries of the world, in comparison with underdeveloped or developed nations of the world, we clearly understand the meaning of these two phrases, and I would have thought that the hon. gentleman would have understood this quite easily. All we are saying here is that there are countries which are developed, and instead of wasting our time in jealousy of them we should seek to work hard to come to the same level. We seek, also, to exploit those chances, experiences, and opportunities, which co-operation with them would give us in order that we, too, may move forward. That is all we are saying in a nutshell. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government insists that the sentence should be retained.

Now, the other one is on page 13, paragraph 38, and here we are asked, in subparagraph (ii), to delete all the words after the words, "managerial levels", excluding the word "and". Mr. Speaker, the hon. gentleman quarrelled with the additional words, that is "as soon as qualified people can be found". Mr. Speaker, I have some sympathy with what he says, mainly that it should be made explicitly clear to business enterprises and firms that we want Africans to be taken into managerial jobs, but to leave (ii) out of context is highly dangerous, because (ii) is not the full explanation of Government policy. To pretend that manpower problems do not exist is merely to adopt ostrich tactics, but it does not eliminate the problem. What is more, in this Paper, one finds that, in fact, not only do we say there is a manpower problem, but we also say that there must be training opportunities and apprenticeship schemes by these firms to bring the Africans to the point where they can take up these opportunities. Mr. Speaker, I do not see that we should quarrel very much about this. Government does not accept the amendment.

Lastly, one page 19, paragraph 57, we are asked to add (iii), "control the outflow of foreign capital". Mr. Speaker, again I have sympathy with the hon. gentleman in what he seeks to achieve by this amendment, but I would like to suggest that he has not read the Paper so extensively as he should, because if he did, he would realize that we have discussed these problems, and that we have not only suggested the setting up of the Central Bank, but we have also suggested the taking of certain measures and steps, both through such measures and other measures, to ensure that the extensive or in fact, put at an end. We have discussed foreign exchange quite fully, and therefore, Sir, Government does not believe that there is a case made for the addition of this new subparagraph.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, Government rejects all the amendments.

(Question of the amendment put and rejected)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I now have to propose again the original question, the debate on which Mr. Mboya will now be replying to.

(Resumption of debate on original Motion)

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in connection with one word which was used to me by hon. Mr. Gachago and was echoed on this side by hon. Mr. Malu, "chakula", I want to know what is "chakula". It was directed to me.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You say there was something offensive in that word?

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I had been made it clear. These people are using the word "chakula" in connection with the speech of the Vice-President in Western Province when he spoke of communism, and the people here are attributing that thing to me.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. I would leave that alone. It is a very remote implication of offence that people should say "chakula" when they see you. It might even be complimentary. If you connect it in your mind with a speech

[The Speaker] which the Vice-President recently made and which received some publicity, even that is a matter of argument as to whether you agree with it or did not agree with it. You cannot take offence merely from being referred to as "chakula".

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, in replying to this debate I would like in the first place to take this opportunity to thank all those Members and those of my colleagues who have taken part in the debate in helping to clarify the issues raised in the Sessional Paper. I think it is right that we should have given the House a full view in which to debate this very important policy Paper. I regret that not every Member was able to speak and that not all the ministerial statements were made, but I think it is most important that this debate should be brought to a close, so that the country knows that this document has the full authority of Parliament as well as the Government.

The first thing, therefore, that I want to say is that I am struck by the identity of views expressed by most of the Members who have spoken during the debate; in fact, when I consider most of the speeches made, I find that not a single Member has produced any arguments that would dispute the thesis or the principles and ideas that have been put forward in the Paper. When the Sessional Paper of the Government, as presented in the Sessional Paper, is approved by this House today, Mr. Speaker, a major step will have been taken towards achieving political unity and economic progress for our country. The Government, the Party, Members of Parliament and the people of Kenya can then, I hope, concentrate their energies on creating African socialism in Kenya, on implementing the policies outlined, and on striving in full co-operation for the higher standard of living the people want. The Constitution, the Kauti Manifesto and this Paper on African socialism show us the way to a better life. It remains for us—that is, the Government, the party and Members of Parliament—to lead the way along that path as quickly as possible.

However, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say this at this point. Some Members have suggested in this House—such as my hon. friend who has just left the Chamber, the Member for Kandara, and left the Chamber, the Member for Trans Nzoia—that other Members who spoke yesterday—that this Paper on African socialism rests on a new philosophy of Government, that embodies ideas, that they have been fighting for a long time. But, Mr. Speaker, this assertion, or this allegation, cannot stand any serious examination because it is wrong. It is noted already in the Paper itself, and emphasized in the remarks I made during my speech, that this Paper is built on the Party Manifesto and on the Constitution. It is absurd for any Member, therefore, to get up in this House and try to suggest that at last the Government has come to think as they have been thinking. It is absurd because those Members do not seem to appreciate that this Paper is an explanation of the Kauti Manifesto itself, point by point. The principles embodied in those earlier documents—the Manifesto and the Constitution—are faithfully followed in this Sessional Paper and we have simply spelled out in the Sessional Paper those important party principles that have guided the Government ever since it has been in power since 1963. Mr. Speaker, if some hon. Members now find that they can agree readily with the Sessional Paper, I suggest that it simply means that they have been good party members all along, but perhaps without knowing it. I think, however, that there are some who have forgotten party principles laid down in the Kauti Manifesto, and that old principles expounded in the Manifesto now look new to them. Mr. Speaker, Sir, without labouring the point any further, perhaps I should merely say that I welcome these wayward individuals back to the fold.

During the course of this debate, this House has heard many Members of the Government—that is, Ministers and others—indicate how African socialism is being put to work in the different Ministries. Other Members of this House have spoken in support of the Paper and have made as well several very valuable points. I can assure the House that these suggestions, I shall return to these suggestions in the Government's reply, but first I want to take up directly, and without dodging issue, the three questions which I feel need further clarification. It is here that disagreement has been voiced or implied. I am referring, Sir, to the differences implied in the definition of African socialism, in Kenya as against scientific socialism and, secondly, to the differences implied as to the nature of classes in our society and, thirdly, the whole question of nationalization in development. I welcome back my friend, the hon. Member for Kandara.

It has been suggested in this House that the Sessional Paper No. 10 should have been entitled "An Economic Appraisal." This was suggested by the hon. Member for Trans Nzoia. Mr. Speaker, Sir, my Ministry will be publishing very soon—in a few weeks' time—an annual economic survey—I hope Members will read that factual document carefully because it sets out in detail the economic progress we have achieved during some people should own big shambas when others have none, and in that way they are building the country. I think that this is wrong. It is wrong because we, as hon. Members of Parliament, or Ministers who earn salaries, should not buy big stretches of land, because by doing so they are depriving the people who cannot earn a salary. I think this is wrong, Mr. Speaker, Sir. We should be happy with the salary we get and let the Government utilize the land for those people who cannot earn a salary. To buy big shambas when others are starving is not building the country. In fact, it is demolishing the country.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that the other thing I would like to correct is this. Some people are going around saying that I advocate free things. We have promised our people free education, free medical services and also we promised our people land. I think it is wrong for the Government to try and ridicule me saying it is Kagia's policy. It is not Kagia's policy. It should be our policy. Instead of fulfilling our promise you go and buy land for yourself and say, "Kagia is promising free land." The Government must use this Paper to see that our people get land, free education and free medical service. When one asks, Sir, as to who is going to pay for these services one seems to think that we are so very ignorant. When we were promising free education, we were only trying to help the people who could not pay fees, and we are trying to see that their children get education. Unless you abolish fees, you cannot guarantee a poor man's child education where there is no such provision. If you cannot make education free, the poor will not be able to send their children to school. You can tax me and others who have money to enable the man who cannot afford to send his child to school, to do so. There is no reason why people should try to ridicule us; what we are saying is that the society must try to provide free education for all to ensure that those who were not able to pay school fees would be able to send their children to school.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker, Sir. I beg to second the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time to call upon the Mover to reply, but first of all I have to propose the question of the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Now we should dispose of the amendment before the Mover replies to the debate as a whole, and I have suggested to Mr. Mboya that the best way to deal with it would be for him to reply to the amendment first of all; then we will put the question of the amendment, and then, whichever way it goes, he will be able to reply to the debate as a whole.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, under Standing Order No. 15, I would like to move that the discussion of this debate be now adjourned.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I am afraid that an hon. Member cannot move an adjournment of a debate unless he is on his feet speaking in the ordinary course of the debate. It may seem odd, but it is not actually a matter which can be raised as a point of order. Adjournment of the House is a point of order, but adjournment of debate is something which an hon. Member can only move in the ordinary course of speaking to the debate. I will now call upon Mr. Mboya.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, since I will be replying to the main debate, I will not take much time in replying to the amendments proposed, except to say this, that I have listened very carefully to both the Mover and the Second of the amendments and I find it difficult to understand the motive and purpose of the amendment. The Second of the amendment has not been spoken about the amendments but also spoken about the Paper. Those matters which he has raised which concern the Paper I will deal with in my main reply. As far as the amendments are concerned, nothing has been advanced in support of the suggestions made.

The first amendment which we are asked to accept, with the greatest respect to the Mover, I have read and re-read, and the more I read it, the less I understand it.

Mr. Speaker, I am sure the House will agree that the most important thing in producing a Paper such as this is so that it can be understood, and if the amendment is merely to make it less understood, then, Sir, we are not serving the purpose of the Government or the House. It will need a lot of interpreters for the general public, if we were to accept this amendment. Apart from that, the Second of the Motion has rightly pointed out that, in fact, the Paper, as now drafted, is quite all right, and that the amendment proposed is perhaps merely putting on some words. Now, Sir, I do not think it is necessary for any embroidery on this Paper.

As far as the other amendments are concerned, the second one deals with provisions, there is a subparagraph making provisions for East Africa for federation and for union government. With respect, Sir, these are matters which are fully covered in the Kanu Manifesto. The purpose of this Paper is to interpret the Kanu Manifesto in so far as the economic policies of the Government for Kenya are concerned. It does not neglect those provisions of the Kanu Manifesto which already stipulate that we might move forward to federation, and we will support the Pan-African movement, and in this case, the Organization of African Unity. Consequently, the purpose of the amendment appears to me rather vague, to say the least. It is an unnecessary exercise, and, in fact, it would be redundant and completely out of keeping with the full effect of the Paper as an economic policy paper. Consequently, Sir, the Government cannot accept this amendment.

The other one is an amendment by which it is suggested we should add certain words, merely to affirm that there will be respect under African socialism for freedom of worship.

Mr. Speaker, these are fully covered in the Paper as it now exists. The words may be different, but when you look at the Constitution, especially the relevant clause which we have quoted, you will find that these words are already very clearly defined and stated. Now, I do not see what would add to the Paper to include these words as now suggested.

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Sir, I see the Minister is not even pointing at the deletion, but is only talking in terms of addition, which is altogether quite a different context.

Mr. Speaker, I am sure the hon. Member understands what I am doing. I am rejecting the deletion and I am rejecting the addition.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member is quite right, because, Mr. Mboya has not yet referred to the fact that he also proposed a deletion.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Member had been patient enough to let me finish what I was saying on this particular part of the amendment, he would have been able to follow what I was doing. I started off by saying that the addition is unnecessary, and I would like to end by saying that the deletion is unnecessary. The deletion would merely help to confuse the issue, and as now drafted, the words that are provided—make the issue quite clear and a change does not see to be merited at all.

What is important here is that the amendment does not reject any part of the actual principles and ideas contained in the Paper. It is merely an attempt to state them in a different form. Mr. Speaker, if we were in this House to engage in discussing, word by word, sentence by sentence, phrase by phrase, how we should have worded various documents that come before the House, we would have—each of us—constituted ourselves into one-man drafting committees. I do not think, Sir, that that is particularly necessary.

The other amendment suggested is that in the fourth line, on page 7, paragraph 20, we should delete all the sentences that follow, and I try to understand why these deletions should be made, and all I can find is that the hon. gentleman feels that it is wrong for us to have stated in this particular paragraph our own conclusions regarding the state of things in the country and those that we have especially inherited from colonialism. Now, Sir, it is a debatable point, if I understand his intentions—

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Sir, is it not out of order for the Minister to try to give a different interpretation from what I put forward?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not in order for hon. Members to misrepresent what other hon. Members have said, although it can, of course, happen that they misunderstand what other Members have said, or that they put their own interpretations on what other Members have said. I do not think that there has been any actual misrepresentation here.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, the question here really is this. These are the sentences which he wants us to delete. Even so, African traditions, have no parallel to the European feudal society, its class distinctions, its unrestricted property rights, and its acceptance of exploitation. The historical setting that inspired Marx has no counterpart in independent Kenya. Mr. Speaker, this constitutes our conclusion. Now, if the hon. gentleman does not accept the conclusion, we reserve the right to disagree with him. Consequently, the Government does not accept the amendment.

One page 8, paragraph 21, the hon. gentleman suggests that we should delete the whole paragraph. The reason, as I understand it, is that the hon. gentleman feels that it is unnecessary for us, in explaining our system to the people of this country, to explain the difference between us and capitalism. Now, Mr. Marxist socialism and us, explain why anyone, Mr. Speaker, I do not know exactly, why anyone should 'take offence, when we try to explain to our people the difference between these two systems and their relationship—those which existed in nineteenth-century Europe. We have in this country settlers who came and grabbed the whole of the land that was available in this country and made the owners of the land as squatters or servants on their own land. These people were made propertyless, and they were servants of the settlers. This is the same today. The coming of independence has not changed anything. The Africans, the owners of this soil, the majority of the people of this country are still slaves of Europeans in their big estates and settlement. This shows exactly that we can borrow something from Marx because we have this particular condition that is very, very much the same.

When we come to industries, here, Mr. Speaker, I think the conditions are even worse than those which existed in Europe during the time of Karl Marx, because in those days—

Hon. Members: Question, question.

Mr. Kaggia: You may question me, but I will teach you.

In Europe, Mr. Speaker, the industries or the property were owned by the Europeans, and they exploited the servants, who were Europeans, so a master could have at least a little mercy for his servant because he belonged to the same colour, but here it is worse, Mr. Speaker; we have property and industries owned by foreigners, by our exploiters by our former masters, exploiting Africans. The conditions are worse. We have all these workers who are working under very difficult conditions, who have to fight every day for an increase in wages, who have to fight and negotiate with the employers who have no mercy for working Africans. Therefore, I only wanted to correct this misunderstanding and say that the conditions are almost the same and they must be corrected. Just to say that because we are independent, we are free Kenya, these conditions does not exist, it is just wishful thinking. The conditions exist and they must be corrected, and I hope that this is the intention of this Paper, to correct these anomalies.

Mr. Speaker, in section 101, the Paper says that something should be done to see that people own moderate-size plots. This is what we have been urging in this House many times. We have been complaining that some people—those with money—are allowed to own big stretches of land while many ordinary people cannot get a piece. I am glad that the Government have accepted this and I am sure that they are going to do something to see that a sort of ceiling is made to ensure that the few people with money are not going to take over whole of the land and leave the poor African without anything, because, as I have said many times in this House, if we have 20,000 rich Africans taking over all the land that was formerly owned by Europeans, then we shall have achieved nothing, we shall have only exchanged white settler exploiters for African settler exploiters and I think this Mr. Speaker, is contrary to what we have promised in our Manifesto.

In sections 101 and 102, Mr. Speaker, the Minister for Economic Planning has tried to tell us that we should concentrate on development of land but not on the transfer. Here, Mr. Speaker, he argues that transferring does not increase wealth or assets, but I must point out that transfer, as far as the land in this country is concerned, is more than transfer; it is a transfer from a foreigner to an indigenous citizen of this country, because all the wealth that is being drained out of these big farms, as they are owned by foreigners, is going out from the country. If this land were transferred into the hands of Africans, it would not be only transfer but it would mean that it has transferred the land, and also the money that has been going out to England is going to stay and be invested in Kenya. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I stress very much that the Government must go further and see that this transfer comes very quickly and, on the proper lines.

Mr. Speaker, I am very glad about section 101, and I congratulate the Government on this because they have accepted one very important thing that I have been saying in this House: I have been scolded by Ministers in this House because of this. They agree and admit in this section, that the settlement scheme has been wrong. The scheme was designed by the British colonialists and for the benefit of the European settlers. I congratulate the Government for accepting this fact, and I am glad that I was able to continue pressing on this matter until the Government agreed. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the Paper should have gone further and suggest what to do to correct this. If I remember it was only the other day when I suggested that the Government needed a bold Land Policy, and the Assistant Minister for Settlement told me in this House, that there was no need for such a policy, because we have the settlement scheme. It is the wrong settlement scheme and the Paper should have told us what plan there was to get a proper scheme. In the same section, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government says that the benefit which the public is going to get from the settlement scheme is not anywhere near the amount of the debt incurred which the Government is going to pay.

This is true and this we are saying very openly and I would like to see the Government planning and getting a better plan which is not going to cripple our Government with debt and so on. I hope that the Government will continue on this Paper and make specific plans to bring about the change.

I would also like to congratulate the Government on section 108, where they talk about idle land. I would like to add on this, that here we have many shambler which are not being developed. Some of them are just too big for the owners to develop, and so I think the Government should do something about this. Just because a European settler owns some land then it should not be left to him just to say, or do whatever he wants to do with it, and the Government must see that the owner is using it, and the Government should say that if he is not using it then it should be taken away. Mr. Speaker, Sir, some of these farms are farmed by absentee landlords, who are just waiting to be bought out by the Government, who have no interest in the farm, and are just sitting in England until the Government gets a loan from England to buy their land. I think the Government must be very positive here to say that this land must be used for the benefit of the people of this country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sorry that I have such a little time left, but I would like to say something about that most controversial thing: nationalization. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am glad because the Government has accepted this as one means of distributing wealth and distributing it to the people. I would like to say that those people, I think they should be ashamed now who have been always waiting for Kaggia to mention nationalization, and then say, "That is Communism?", I think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that this Paper is going to help us to understand that even the Government, which they claim to support the Government, which they claim to support this always and sometimes blindly, has accepted this fact. I am glad that the Paper says wherever a service is vital to the people the industry should be nationalized. I think this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is all right. Mr. Speaker, Sir, where I differ with the Government is in the timing, and what I was going to say, was that if we only say that nationalization is needed so badly but that whenever the time comes this and that industry will be nationalized, it will not be much. I think the Government should have a goal, so that we can work towards that goal. It should be laid down that the Government should do everything that is possible to see that in two or three years such and such industries will be nationalized. There are two main difficulties which have been brought out in the Sessional Paper regarding nationalization and I would like everybody to note this, Mr. Speaker, Sir. The Government accepts nationalization, as the means to bring money into the Government coffers but qualifies it with two difficulties. One is the finance to buy out industry. The second one is the lack of manpower. I think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the Government is capable of solving these two difficulties.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, firstly, I think the Government is becoming too timid to change its own Constitution, because one clause in the Constitution imposed on us at the Lancaster House Conference when Kudu and the Colonial Government insisted that before anything could be nationalized, prompt payment must be made, must be amended. But, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that there are very few countries who can give prompt payment whenever they want to nationalize. I think this clause should be changed. The Government should be in a position to pay compensation on their own terms, because if we retain this clause, then tomorrow the Government may decide that this commodity is vital to the people of Kenya, but Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is so difficult to make prompt payment and therefore you cannot nationalize. It means that we are going to allow ourselves to be tied by our own Constitution. I think this is wrong and I also think that the Government is failing in its duty, if it does not change that clause which is tying us up unnecessarily, so that whenever the Government feels that one industry is due for nationalization it can go ahead without delay. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that it is very important for the Government to amend this.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would now like to speak on this lack of manpower. This is a threat which is made by so many capitalists and whenever you try to nationalize this or that you are told you have not got the manpower to run the industry. The Government can do anything to accelerate its programme of training, and recruitment, and we should not be afraid of nationalizing anything. If you decide to nationalize today, and we agree that we pay the compensation on our own terms, then the Government can do anything to recruit people from overseas and at the same time training our people to run the industry.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that now my time is running out, but the other thing I would like to say, is that the hon. Member for Kilifi told us that the one way of building a nation is that could be true. But let us try to avoid it, let us be modest; that is more important. Let us be more modest, in order to help others as well, to make them our friends rather than our enemies. That is why I say that that sentence must be deleted.

I come to another point, Mr. Speaker, which is on page 13, paragraph 38. Here, again, our Government accepts going forward, committing itself and rejects completely Africanization. Here it says talks about foreign investors. We are told, "Foreign investors should therefore be prepared to accept the spirit of mutual social responsibility, for example—(i) by making shares in the company available to Africans who wish to buy them; (ii) by employing Africans at managerial levels as soon as qualified people can be found." When you say, "as soon as qualified people can be found", it means you are giving these people an opportunity to say "Well, we can always convince the Government we do not yet have the manpower." Why can it not be left to them to determine whether the manpower they have is capable, whether the people are qualified or not. If they are not qualified, it is up to the company to make them qualified, but there should not be the situation where Africanization in these places of managerial positions should be conditional on "as soon as people are qualified". If somebody is in the service for a number of years or in a private company, for that matter, he knows the ins and outs of the company's affairs, but because of virtue of the existing conditions, whereby we say, "All right, we do not care where the skill comes from," the company says, "We don't care, these Africans are not educated, they have no long service in the company and, consequently, they cannot be put into managerial positions."

This House, through this Paper, should deliberately make it clear that, whatever happens, these managerial positions must be held by Africans, immediately, and each company should try to find out how best it could take Africans on in managerial positions. The question of saying, "as soon as qualified people are available", is all the same, it is a colonial slogan. What is the reason for that? The whole thing must be Africanized. Put it after ten years for the whole thing to be Africanized, put it after five years, but do not keep us in suspense when the facilities are available. When are they expected to be available?

Mr. Speaker, I thought the best thing would be to put that these foreign investors should employ Africans at the managerial level, full stop, and no more. Then we could add something about providing training facilities for Africans. That is all. Why should we commit ourselves, that the condition for getting these people into managerial positions must be that we get the qualified people? The Kenya Government claims that it does not have qualified people for every position. When the same disease spreads to the companies, what is going to happen? All the time people will be saying, "Well, our Government is not doing anything for us, we are being neglected," and that is wrong. So I propose the following amendment to page 13 paragraph 38 subparagraph (ii): that all the words after the word "managerial levels" be deleted, ending the word "and".

Mr. Speaker, there is something I want to add on page 19, paragraph 57. Here, I say let us also try, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to augment the income of this country by preventing, as far as possible, the outflow of foreign exchange. It is only in this country where I see that decisions are never made to prevent the outflow of money from this country. I was shocked to understand, Mr. Speaker, that even today we are dealing with South Africa. Through where? Southern Rhodesia. A very good example of this one is the Kenya Theatres. I challenge the Minister—my Minister, for that matter—who says that there is no money which goes out of Kenya to South Africa through Salisbury.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Substantiate.

Mr. Gichoya: Yes.

So, these things being as they are, I suggest that the Government must put controls over the outflow of foreign exchange. There is no question of saying that we have a free market, a free market for everything. Here we have been confounded with so many foreigners coming in here. They come here to put a plant in the country. If they can do so, all the better. But it is not a question of ours being the only place for the marketing of their goods, and whatever we get by investment from other places, it goes straight back by the other door. Today, in the settlement schemes we have settlement officers who are expatriates and had no further training before to make them qualified settlement officers because we never used to have settlement schemes in Kenya. They are the people who used to be in this country, but now they are called expert expatriates.

The money coming from England to buy out the European settlers goes back in the pocket of the brother settlement officer, back to the same bank, straight to London; from London it goes back to London. Unless something is done to prevent this outflow of money from our country, we are bound to find ourselves living in a fool's paradise. Here you will find big mansions owned by Kari Manji, the other person, and yet his money does not stay in the country. The building is there and the rent from it goes straight to Bombay. The other money goes straight to London because the owners of those buildings, those mansions, are staying in London or in Bombay or New Delhi. I therefore propose the following amendment to page 19, paragraph 57, that a new subparagraph (iii) be added as follows: "Control the outflow of foreign exchange."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few words and in order to allow others to speak, I congratulate the Government for taking us away from a vacuum where we have always been told African socialism is coming. I believe the amendments will be acceptable to the Government. Thank you.

Mr. Kagia: Mr. Speaker, I very much welcome this Paper because, although it has not gone far enough, as I would have liked it to go, I think it has opened a door for us to create or to enter on to our road to socialism.

I think it has provided a very good ground for debate in this House, which has enabled the Government to have views and suggestions which will enable us to build our socialism on the right foundations. Mr. Speaker, I believe it is also going to be the foundation of our Kenya socialism.

Mr. Speaker, in supporting these amendments, I think that the proposed amendment to the introduction is only trying to make the definition more clear than it was. Principally, I have no quarrel with the definition which is provided by the Minister for Economic Planning and his Assistant Minister. I think it is a very sound and beautiful reading, and I believe that the definition does not matter very much, but what is very important is the application of what we put in this Paper.

I do not mind, Mr. Speaker, calling our socialism African socialism, Kenya socialism, Kikuyu socialism, or even Luo socialism, but I believe that whatever prefixes we use, must be socialism and not capitalism, and I believe that the Government is really intending to implement socialism as applied to our own conditions and environment, but not to bring capitalism under the cover of socialism.

With this, therefore, I think, if the Government accepts this amendment, it will make it more clear and more understandable, because when we say that the word "African" in African socialism means African traditions, and so on, one wonders whether this is going to be Kikuyu traditions, Luo traditions, or any other tribal traditions because they are so much different and no two different tribes have the same traditions.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that any kind of socialism, any form of socialism, must have three important objectives. One is that it must eliminate exploitation, and that is laid down in the Kanu Manifesto very clearly. Secondly, it must provide a fair and equal distribution of the wealth of this country to all people of Kenya. Thirdly, Mr. Speaker, it must make it possible for every person in this country to have food, to have education, and medicine. I believe that the Paper before this House, if it is applied properly, will meet these three objectives.

For this reason, Mr. Speaker, I do not have much quarrel with the definition and I think the proposed amendment here is only going to make it more clear because we must be very clear when we talk of African socialism, whether we are suggesting that we go back to the old society before the advent of the British in this country, or we go from where we are today, because it appears as if the definition given is trying to suggest that the old African society which was here before the British came into this country is still in existence. But we must agree that most of this has been completely destroyed and there is very little that is left, unless we suggest here that we are going to demolish everything that we have here, that we go back to our old traditions and here, that is not the socialism on that. I believe we start building our socialism on that, and that is not the suggestion, and if it is not, Mr. Speaker, then we must be very clear that we are only going to conserve that which is left and that which is good and build on what we have here today.

Mr. Speaker, it is not enough for one to say that the conditions that existed in Europe, and which made Marx write his theories on socialism, which made Marx write his theories on socialism, do not exist in this country, unless one is going to say that Kenya is still in the 1900's, because the conditions prevailing in Europe in the nineteenth century are the conditions that were imposed into the colonial countries by the imperialists when they came and colonized these countries. The conditions of masters and servants or slaves that existed in Europe were imported here, and I would like to give a few examples, here, and I would like to give a few examples. If we are talking of a time before the British came here, I could quite agree that our conditions were very much different, but I will not agree were very much tries to tell us that the conditions in Kenya today are so much different from economic and political thinking guided by planned production for use and to the greatest extent the property basis being the public social ownership of the means of production, as opposed to commodity production for private profit the property basis being private ownership of means of production. Kenya people term this new philosophy "The African Socialism".

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, we would like to follow the amendment that the hon. gentleman, I suppose, wants to read to us, and I do not know whether the words he has uttered so far are a quotation from the amendment, or just his own words. I would like to follow the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Of course, the hon. Member is entitled to speak to the question as a whole, as well as putting forward his amendment, but we have got very limited time. We have many Members to consider. Mr. Gichoya led me to hope that he would only take twenty minutes altogether, so I hope it will not be more than that.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think even after reading the amendment, and people have seen them—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no need for you to read formally the whole amendment, but you could go through them one by one.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, I see that the introduction, as it is, is made to give us a definite definition to our African socialism. What is given here is an explanation of what is supposed to be African socialism, but I thought it wise to have a definition, and it is here given. That is the first amendment.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have accepted that the Africans are poor, and the Africans constitute in this country, the bulk of the population. If there are any benefits which could be calculated as democratic benefits, or benefits directed to benefit the majority of the people, then it is the African people who should really be taken into consideration. Today, very few Africans are in a position to afford to buy big acres of land, but the State can buy an estate and resettle the Africans who cannot afford to buy such an estate.

Of course, the Government has plans for settlement, but the method of settlement must be changed, changed to make it possible for the poor person to have a place under the sun. But the Sessional Paper does not tell us that a settler or somebody who can be settled in a particular land should pay Sh. 102 in advance. It is here that I say the method of settlement must be changed to accommodate the poor people who otherwise cannot afford it. That is the guard I have with the settlement schemes.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in our document, which is a historical document, on page 2, paragraph 7, I propose that the first sentence be left out, and the word "it" in the second sentence be replaced with the words, "African socialism". If this definition is accepted, obviously we are contributing to the African people and continent, and again we are always ready to accommodate other states in joining us. So I say that we should leave room in this document to incorporate one element showing specifically that we are prepared for the Federation of East Africa, as we cannot live in isolation, and at the same time we must have one Government for the African continent, for which the Organization for African Unity has been trying to work and which should possibly be incorporated in this document. I believe the Minister responsible for planning, who has many times dealt with federation, and many times dealt with the Organization for African Unity, will definitely accept this one without even querying it, accepting that it was perhaps a kind of omission, but not deliberate, but a mistake, and that it should be added to make it subparagraph (ix): that is, we add as follows:—

It must leave the door open for the East African Federation and/or accommodation for union government of Africa in accordance with the spirit of Organization of African Unity.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, I wanted to say, is with regard to page 4, paragraph 10. Now, if we are not antagonistic and if we accept that one thing is certain, that we are going to move from one particular type of economy, under which we have been brought up, and try to aim at our own sort of set-up of economy, I do not think there is any need for wasting more time telling others that African socialism will keep us politically from communism. We already have our own political party, Kanu. Here I would say that I do not know political differences we are referring to, because we are a one-party State. If we believe that we have a party and we believe in our own party, why should we speak of other parties? So, I think the best thing is, unless we have a really conscientious, we do not mention these things. Perhaps that would be dictation from a particular circle, that, if you do not mention communism, you are going to get it in a different form or, if you do not mention capitalism, this could be the position. Let us have an independent Kenya, we have our own policies and we are not to be dictated either by the capitalists in America or Communist Russia, if those two states can really be called true representatives of the two theories. So I propose the following amendment to page 4, paragraph 10:—

After the words "unfettered democracy" appearing in the ninth line, delete all the sentences that follow and add the following: Freedom of worship shall be respected under African socialism.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, here, on page 7, paragraph 20, I think somebody tried to fight a battle for nothing. How many people in this country actually understand these matters? My friend who was here is an expert, but when we are told that the African traditions are different from European traditions—and I would like to point out here that we have a tradition of Africans being squatters in one area, and in Europe they used to call them serfs—the only difference is that here in Kenya we call them squatters. Now another example is Buganda, where you find that a person born of a royal family is a member of the royal family. Is Buganda not a part of Africa? Are the Buganda people not Africans? Do not they not follow the African traditions? We cannot isolate ourselves to just mere small Kenya. If we talk in terms of African socialism, let us look at it with a wider perspective, on a continental basis, and for our own sake on an East African basis, because we are more concerned with East Africa directly than the African continent in general. It is erroneous to say that the African traditions cannot be compared with the traditions of Europe. If a landlord is a landlord definitely, whether black or white, both are landlords. Land owners, individual owners, which we are trying to create now—and here it is written clearly that title deeds and so forth, and land consolidation, brings things into individual ownership as opposed to communal ownership—will put us definitely on the same path with conditions in other places where capitalism stands or feudalism stands. The basis of capitalism is a feudal society, so if we are aiming at crushing the capitalistic society that has been created here, moving towards socialism as proposed here, moving towards our Nation. Consequently, the question of saying that we do not distinguish this or the other, we do not have parallels, does not apply. We have already accepted the fact that capitalism does exist and it was on that simple basis that the Father of our Nation, that our people have the right to be free from economic exploitation and social inequality. Do those who really try to oppose my thinking on this want to tell me that as soon as we achieved independence a new society was created other than the society that existed before? However, going ahead, I believe that in the best way—Let us leave that part and proceed. I therefore propose the following amendment to page 7, paragraph 20:—

In the fourth line after the words "not always respected", delete all the sentences that follow.

On page 7, paragraph 21, I say the whole paragraph must be deleted, and that is why we should adhere to Marxist theories, and if they have no parallel here, who is arguing that they should have? Who is saying that these things must be here? Take them out, delete it, then we will have a wholesome document, without referring to this and that. If it was a question of debating for argument's sake, then I agree with references here and references there, but this one I believe is an unnecessary addition to the document, so that one, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I say it should be deleted completely.

Mr. Speaker, in paragraph 25 on page 9, the first sentence should be deleted. If we have accepted that in East Africa particularly we are all brothers, it must be accepted also that whatever language we use in our own dealings in Kenya, it should not be interpreted by the other parts of East Africa as something underrating their development. What is said is, "Similarly, the fact that other countries are more advanced is not a matter of jealousy but of opportunity." This would be interpreted in Uganda will go back to Tanzania; the people in Uganda will go back to Tanzania; the people in Uganda will go back to Tanzania; where it was said that the Federation could not be because not all parts of East Africa are equal in terms of economic development. Some are highly developed by certain conditions. People are not complaining that Nairobi has had the concentration of industries, and there should be now a dispersion of industrialization, instead of just looking at the big cities, we should aim at the developing the villages, the small towns in the rural areas.

So if that is accepted, why on earth should we have this sentence? Conditions, of course, are better from place to place, but let us not emphasize this much because we are better off than Uganda, better off economically than Tanzania. We should just leave it out. They know exactly that we are better off than they are but they do not feel jealous over it. I know the implications will be that the other part will feel that Kenya has become a stumbling block, feel that Kenya has become a small people that we Kenya feels that we are so small people that we are much more underdeveloped, although that would consider how it would be best applied to meet our people's needs.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not want to take up the time of our people, but I would appeal to everybody here. I know that at the present moment I am in charge of Africanization, and it has already been laid down here very well indeed. You will find that if this Paper is adopted, I am sure it will effect the changes in the Africanization as quickly as possible, and that Africanization will not only be confined to one sector. The economic sector is where we want many of our people to be in positions of responsibility, in the economic field. We will need more Africanization in the economic field, and we will also need the changes of what it means all over the country. There are so many names in the Najrobi streets which are not yet Africanized. We must do something about it. Everything must be black, our own feelings, our own way of life. At the present moment, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I must warn many of our Members that now it is time that we should try to tell them what we want to them to know, to get what is called mental independence. Many of our people are slaves in their own minds. They do not have the necessary exercise which makes them decide what is right and what is not right, and they try to use their memory of what their minds have told them.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, as I said, I will not waste much time of our people who want to speak who want to contribute very valuable points, and therefore, I beg to support.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I will not take up much time of the other Members, but I would like to introduce these amendments to the Sessional Paper as long as the rule is left open for any additional amendments, and any deletions can be made, and I am very happy that the Government accommodated that.

One thing I would like to say at the outset—unfortunately the Minister left—is that it is basically wrong that some people think that others will not think. This misconception of things is one which brings confusion in our own contribution. One thing which is very clear, no doubt, is that our Father of the Nation made a speech on the Kanu Manifesto before we attained internal self-government and in one place he said that Kenya will be a socialist state. He said this in no uncertain terms, social-wise, because political freedom and equality before the law are not enough. Our people have the right to be free from economic exploitation and social inequality. These are the words of our Father of the Nation.

Now, if we look at the document as it is, there is so much trying to avoid commitment. The Government must commit itself in this document as based on this statement of the Father of our Nation, who is apparently the President of our country.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Not apparently.

Mr. Gichoya: He is the President of Kenya, and it so happens that the party which is now functioning in the headquarters is still the President, and the Secretary-General is here, and is the main responsible for its functions. However, Kanu exists, as long as the people who made Kanu are existing and leading Kanu as a party.

This document says that we are trying to create something of African origin. I agree. We must be creating, but the question is whether there are any changes in the African culture. It is the party as a matter of fact, we never had education. Now, an educated girl and uneducated girl, even if both from the same family, from the same parents, are different. One goes to a high school, and then on to university level, and the other does not even go to a primary school, so they are not at the same standard in human values, although they are human beings. They may be of the same age, perhaps the same family but when you analyse the quality of each you find that the one who is educated has something more to add to our development than the other one. So, that is a change in our cultural life.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair.]

Now, in those days everything was on a communal basis. Communal ownership of property, the communal way of life, has already been changed. There has been a radical change, there is already individualism in this country, and these things must be accepted that they are in existence. There is no question of saying that because my father used to have ten wives, the modern community allow Gichoya to have also ten or twenty wives. Morally, in terms of the Africa way of life it is not wrong, but I have said that way of life it has changed. A Christian the African way of life has changed. A true Christian would never have more than one wife. A true Christian would never have more than one wife.

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Sagin): You are right.

Mr. Gichoya: I am happy that the Minister for Local Government has said that I am right. We have already seen a change in this African society, that life has changed.

Now, with all these changes which have taken place in the minds of the people—in the past it was very difficult for somebody to move from one place to another because communications were so slow and it used to take years and years. Now, this is being taken into consideration. We have to modify our African socialism. It is true that in actual fact socialism started in Africa, and today you can see socialism in its true perspective in Masailand, where there is communal ownership of property, living in manyattas which are sort of villages. This shows exactly the communal ownership of responsibility in Masailand where it does exist, but it is not so all over the country. Following the customs of a clan daughter of Mr. X was a daughter of a clan daughter of Mr. Y, and the conditions were taking place when marriage considerations were being taken. She was then the communal responsibility, but who came today who goes to get a wife from Mr. X's family? There is now individualism, and also no question of one trying to avoid the company of others. A rich man wants to remain separate, but a poor man would like to have company. That is the difference. But, if these things are in existence, why then do we rule out the modification of the African society to match up with the modern society. We cannot completely close our eyes and say that we must go back to the Stone Age where customs were taken in a communal way. We have to accept the changes, but these changes must be modern, in such a way that the greater role in our activities is directed to the common good. Consequently, the man who is a custodian of the people's welfare has great responsibility. In the past, we never had such a thing. It was just a few years back that Africans came into the Parliament, used to have tribes and circles of communities, and lived under one authority, that was the British authority. But, now we have created Kenya into a nation with economic conditions, because what is in my own district definitely cannot be equated with what is in the Turkana District. So, these things are being taken into consideration.

We feel that the first thing is that the African socialism, which is the Kenya socialism, as a matter of fact—in Africa, the Arabs are part and parcel of the African continent, and we accept that Africans are not of the same clan and same tribe. They differ from one place to another. An African in East Africa is quite different from an African in South Africa, as an African in Kenya is apparently different to one in Uganda.

In Uganda there is feudal society, and a good example is the Uganda Kingdom, and also Ethiopia, where there is a naked form of feudal society in a modern age. So, of course, we are very friendly with Ethiopia.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achiong-Onoko): On a point of order, Sir, I think that remark made is very unfortunate when the hon. Member refers to Ethiopia as a friendly country.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid I did not hear the remark.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, I was just stating that feudalism exists in Ethiopia as well.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): As long as it is not considered offensive, it is all right.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in order to allow other people to speak on this, I have decided that instead of waiting in opposition, we should commit our Government in trying to explain what we understand by African socialism. There is no socialism for the Africans, and there is no socialism for the Arabs. There can never be socialism of the Europeans or Asians for that matter. The difference between socialism in one country and another is based on the circumstances, and how it comes about. In Tanzania, we have Zanzibar, which now calls itself a socialist state. Zanzibar has achieved its own socialism through revolution, and we could even quote other socialisms wherever they exist. But, here in Kenya we have decided, through democratic process of— Of course, Zanzibar achieved their independence democratically, because the majority of the people revolted against the minority authority that existed. So, Zanzibar achieved independence through democratic means.

Now, Mr. Speaker, when we talk of socialism, our socialism is African socialism. Our Father of the Nation did define it, but what is given in this Sessional Paper is the quotation of other parts of the Kenyan Manifesto, but not the real things expressed by the Father of the Nation. Consequently, I am compelled to feel that in order to make this Paper complete, the Sessional Paper No. 10, a new definition must be given. Let us change the introduction, and the new amendment that is here, on the African socialism, and its that application to planning in Kenya, should be that

WHEREAS the African people of Kenya in the spirit of Harambee wish to conserve what is good in the African culture, political and economic institutions, recognize the radical changes within and outside Kenya and accept that the sum total of changed cultural approach,

[The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

question of any conflict with the Government or the industry should be eliminated. But we are not deceiving the workers. Mr. Deputy Speaker, we realize as a Government that it is the purpose or the duty of the Government to take action to protect the rights of workers with regard to rents, wages, these various things they have to face and all the others. This Government has started to take that action. We have just passed the Rent Bill in this House, many more will be passed very soon and this is the way I see our co-operation growing. Mr. Deputy Speaker I want to say only few words on why we call our socialism "African socialism". Many people try to read very many peculiar meanings into it. I do not know why. Mr. Speaker, any hon. Member here thinks that Africa has to import socialism or democracy from other countries. We do not have to import. Mr. Deputy Speaker, and we know that the Masai here could teach socialism to anybody in the world. They do not have to import it. Mr. Speaker we know—

Mr. Kamureni: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Assistant Minister to call me Masai when I am not a Masai.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not know why the hon. Member is scared to be identified with gallant people such as Masai, handsome, beautiful, well-built people. There should be nothing but pride in being associated with the Masai.

Mr. Speaker, let me explain why we have called our socialism African socialism. It is because socialism is indigenous to the African socialist system.

The word does not matter, we did not speak English so we did not call it socialism. But there are African words for it. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, which are indigenous, it does not have to be fought. We call it African secondly. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, because we here in Africa today have to assert the identity and personality of Africa. There is no reason why we should not do so, that is indeed why we are independent, that is why we fought for it. We have, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, achieved that for which we fought and we hope for progress in that kind of socialism that applies to our own conditions in Africa. We are not trying to export it to other people. There are three good fundamental reasons. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not know why anybody should not accept the term African.

I would like to emphasize, in finishing, Mr. Deputy Speaker, one point. Some people have spoken here, as when this Paper is passed, it will then be left to the Government to execute, which will then be left to the Government to do X, Y and Z. Let us face it, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that there can be no socialism unless we are prepared to sacrifice for it. I think we should be clear. We should not try to deceive our people that socialism will bring them things from Heaven easily. Every single person in this country if we are to have socialism, must be prepared to sacrifice. I mean sacrifice in the sense that we must be prepared to work hard and to save and to invest. If we are not prepared to do it voluntarily, this Paper has declared that this State is entitled to enforce people to work, to enforce savings, to enforce people and even the Members of Parliament to pull their weight.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have been told that there will be no socialism until all the means of production are owned by the State. Mr. Speaker, Sir, what we have, and it is the recommendation No. 3, which the Members must read. We have made it quite clear that we recognize that there can be no socialist system unless a very large sector of this economy is publicly owned or owned by co-operatives and therefore directed for the public good. This, we must accept. We cannot just pass a document like this and deceive our people. This development can take place without a large sector of our economy being owned by the State. That would be a lie. We would have to find another term for it. It would not be socialism. Socialism requires that a large sector of the economy is owned by the State, for the State to be able to direct the whole. What we reject, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is the Marxist contention that you can only have socialism when the whole and complete means of production of the whole country are owned by the State. We think that that way lies dictatorship and also tyranny.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, with these few words I commend very much that the Members should begin now to think of the implications and to be hard sacrifice, the hard things which they will be called upon to do by this Government in order to implement this Paper. Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odunga): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir: I will not actually take much time of the hon. Members, but I would just like to make, I think, a more or less general statement on this particular Paper, because I am sure that the House would like to hear what I say on this African socialism. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I call myself a very happy man indeed and I think that all the documents which have been produced ever since Kenya attained independence, this particular White Paper is a very important and a very historical Paper indeed. I am sure that this Paper is going to help us in our struggle towards the achievement of the economic goals. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not want to labour too much on many of the aspects of the Paper, but only to give our people one thing, that we must know that when we achieved the physical independence, when we actually had the physical power to get our independence, we did it with all our force, but you must know that when we achieved independence we had still to struggle for economic independence. We have inherited a system of economics set up in this country which is not of our own making. As such I want everybody to understand the way we were brought up in our education was not actually our own creation. It was created by somebody who was on top and who wanted to give us the necessary education which would go to make up for the economic system which we have in this country, and also the atmosphere in all fields was also directed and channelled in that way. Many of us, during the British colonial system in this country, and as such you must know that in our own minds it is never appreciated in our minds were channelled in such a way as our outlook in life was channelled in such a way that it only suited the Government which was in existence. Therefore, if you find that we are groping for the truth at the present moment, I do not think that anybody would blame anybody.

This document is one of those results of that groping. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, now that we have laid the foundation, the foundation of what we know as African socialism. We have only laid the foundation, and as the last speaker put it very well, he put it that, if anybody challenges the Government that it is the duty of only the Government that it implements what we call African socialism in this Paper, then I think that it is doing a great disservice to this country. It is therefore needs the joint effort of everybody to see that what we have put down in this Paper is implemented, and in spite of everything that it is understood by all of the people everywhere. They must understand what has been put down here. When they have understood it, then we must actually try to channel also their minds to follow it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, at the present moment many people talk of what we call non-alignment. We have declared that we are non-aligned. That our Government is non-aligned. But, it is not because we state that we are non-aligned, and our policy is non-alignment, it does not make him non-aligned. You must try to achieve that non-alignment. We have actually to work for it. It is a policy which we have laid down. At the present moment, we have found ourselves economically in the capitalist camp.

We rise to this challenge. We are certain that we are right while we are changing the capitalist structure. I must make it very clear, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that I am one of the most unlucky people who has actually struggled in the difficulties raised in this land, because first of all I was a teacher at a mission school, then later on a teacher in a Government school, then I was kicked out and had suddenly to go and make my way in business and then after business I have also struggled in politics, and I understand all our problems from the very roots where they begin, and I will tell the people that the system we have pursued in the economic field for some time has been capitalist, and that is what we have here. I may say that we are non-aligned, but we are not non-aligned yet. We are still swimming in the capitalist world, and that is why you find some Africans who understand it, and when you say that you come from the same part then you think that they are going communist.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, for the last 30 years or so, our minds our bodies and all our actions have been bent to one side and now we want to try to move to the centre and to do so it would appear to the hon. Members that if we are pulled to the West then in order that we may pull to the centre then it actually appears as though we are going to the East. By the time we have altered our economic structure, to a socialist one, then we can call ourselves non-aligned, but not before that. This is what should be understood and this is what is wanted here, that we should not misinform our people. We must try to get that way, which is called our own independent way. I am not, Mr. Deputy Speaker, even a student, I cannot claim to be a student of Marx, like my friend the Assistant Minister for Economic Planning. I am not a student of Karl Marx, I do not know him, but one thing which I do know is that I can judge what the Africans need. I will always know what they require, and then I try to apply my own judgment, and when I have applied it, I stand by it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I did not go very far in my school days, as many hon. Members did, but also at the same time, I did not lose my head over anything which was told to me by some of the people who have helped us to go to school, and when they explained their ideas to me, I

[The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

Mr. Speaker, we have been arguing in the past, before this Paper was written, as if socialism by itself was an end in itself, as if it was a system we could pluck from some tree and apply to our own country. Mr. Speaker, we need to be quite clear that socialism or any other ism, any economic system, any social system, is a means to the good life, a means to happiness, to prosperity, to abundance for the people. So, Mr. Speaker, in reading this Paper, Members should know that we who, in Government, dealt with the drafting of it, are interested in the living people of Kenya, not with dogma, not whether or not somebody who wrote a doctrine was right or wrong. Socialism, Mr. Speaker, is, in fact, a method. It was, indeed, called so by Karl Marx, by Engels, by the founders of socialism, and here, of course, I would like to make it quite clear that in writing this Paper, the Government was not arguing or trying to justify whether or not Marx or Engels or Lenin or Mao-Tse-Tsung or anyone else was right or wrong. The purpose of the Paper, Mr. Speaker, is to state what we want in Kenya and to state it positively, not in the form of an argument with other people who may have other ideas. We have, in fact, conceded—and this is an important point, Mr. Speaker—that socialism was founded in the nineteenth century and one of the greatest founders—and we must pay tribute to him—was Karl Marx. What we have said in this Paper, Mr. Speaker, is that Marx was the founder of proper socialism, as distinct from the utopian nonsense that was being written before him, and we must give this scholar credit where it is due; there is no question of our evading history.

What we are doing in this Paper, Mr. Speaker, much as anyone may want today to follow the method of Marx, is to accept that the recommendations Marx gave for the transformation of society into a socialist system were suited to the society for which he wrote. When he wrote his Communist Manifesto in 1848—or was it at the end of 1847—he wrote it for the Communist Party at that time, to be the framework for a programme. What we have done now, Mr. Speaker, is to try and write a manifesto to deal with the problems which face us now.

Mr. Speaker, let us be quite clear. Some Members have stood up here and suggested that we are doing a very dangerous thing. I do not know why some Members are alarmed. Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the technological field, in the scientific field, we borrow from those who have advanced before us, but we have to experiment in the conditions of Africa. This farmer here, Mr.

Speaker, will know that he experiments with foreign seeds to see if they will grow in his own soil. Mr. Speaker, if in the field of science we are prepared to experiment, we are prepared to devise a seed that will grow properly and have a high yield in the soil of Kenya, why then are we quarrelling about Karl Marx' dogma? If there is any truth that still endures in what Marx wrote, for heaven's sake let us accept it. If what he wrote has become outmoded, let us say so. This, Mr. Speaker, is where I want to stress very seriously that some Members stood up and said that certain paragraphs in this pamphlet, which referred to Marx, were correct but should not be said, because we are going to embarrass some people. Now, Mr. Speaker, if we in this House are going to speak only so as to avoid embarrassing other people, we should not be in this House. Mr. Speaker, we must be prepared to tell the truth, to speak it out, now, even if Mount Kenya is to melt into water.

Mr. Speaker, we have been accused here of deviationism—these, of course, are Marxist or Leninist terms that we have derived from what Marx called "scientific socialism". Mr. Speaker, why did Marx call his socialism scientific? Because, Mr. Speaker, he wanted to distinguish it from the wishful daydreaming that was going on at that time. He wanted to base it on observation, observable facts and on historical facts. He wanted to analyse the situation as it was then and arrive at conclusions based on facts, as distinct from the socialism which he described as utopianism. Now we have some people here who want to go on with utopianism, but to cover up all they want to call themselves scientific. I think, Mr. Speaker, if we really believed in ghosts, we would have to visit these people from his grave, in Highgate, because they really are, to say the least, doing the greatest disservice—in fact, it is a dishonour—to that scholarly person who did not believe in wishful thinking, who, Mr. Speaker, spent hours and hours analysing, studying every concept before he could put it forward as a fact. I hope the hon. Members have read the proposed amendments on the Order Paper. Mr. Speaker, I am not saying I am the defender of Marx, but as a great scholar who believed in truth, we should be careful of people who have borrowed his own term and are now using them as a slogan, peddling them around to cover their own other motives, which they are too scared to speak out.

Mr. Speaker, the time has come for us to recognize here the meaning of self-determination, the meaning of self-government. I think, Mr. Speaker, the meaning of self-government to us now is that we should be prepared to evolve as which suits our country. We should be prepared to do so. If, Mr. Speaker, we cannot, if we must continue to borrow from other cultures, if we must continue to look for copies, for models from other countries, it will prove one thing: that we are incapable of self-government.

Now, Mr. Speaker, we have the greatest faith in the people of Kenya and in the Government of Kenya and we are not going to be misled over that kind of question. Mr. Speaker, we have been told here that some people still stick to scientific socialism, but let us examine whether or not they have rejected it. Those same people who speak about scientific socialism today, Mr. Speaker, will tell you that we should have the mass party organization in Kenya, that means they have rejected one of the cardinal principles of Marx, because Marx did not believe in a mass party organization. He insisted, Mr. Speaker, that it required a small élite revolutionary party which would, on behalf of the proletariat, organize a revolution. Now, Mr. Speaker, we have not heard one single Member here say that he does not believe in Kattu as a mass party, that he wants to reduce it to a small revolutionary group of a handful of people and leave the other people outside, so that he may act on their behalf. Why do they not speak up, Mr. Speaker? Why do they not say so if they objectively believe in Marxism and scientific socialism, why do they avoid that one?

Mr. Speaker, the other central teaching and recommendation of Karl Marx was that we should have a revolution, that you could not have the transformation in the society which was required without a violent revolutionary élite party, and led by this little revolutionary élite party. Mr. Speaker, why has nobody stood up here and said that he does not believe that we can have a social transformation through peaceful means? Why have they not said that if they really do believe in Marx? Why have they not said that Marx on two of the most essential issues, élite and revolution, they have borrowed the slogans terms? Because they have borrowed these from great nations which have appropriated these slogans for the purposes of politics in the world.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, what we have said here is that the instrument that shall guide us and shall be our vade-mecum and the means to the social revolution will be the mass political party. We have insisted, Mr. Deputy Speaker that in this country the social revolution we want can be carried out by democratic means; which means, Mr. Speaker, we have faith that this House, elected by the workers and peasants of the country, will, in fact, through legislation, transform this society to a socialist system. I believe therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is the real meaning of the word "Democratic" in our definition of African socialism, that we believe in democratic means in legislation action by the representatives of workers. Some people here speak as if they were elected by some capitalist groups. They should be ashamed, Mr. Deputy Speaker. All these Members here were elected by the peasants and farmers or by workers. This is a point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I want to emphasize, if my hon. friends near me will permit, that in this country the new story which is being peddled around, that there is daily conflict between the Government and workers, is really a red herring. It is an attempt to disorganize the country, because how, Mr. Deputy Speaker, can there be a difference between us? Kattu is a mass party and these people were elected through Kattu. The workers' organizations, Mr. Deputy Speaker, represent exactly the same people as we represent and let us face it, if this nation is to go forward, there is no question of conflict between the workers' and farmers' organization on one hand, and the other Government on the other hand. I view these two organizations, Mr. Deputy Speaker, as the two legs which are the carriers of this nation to prosperity. There is no question of whether or not they will co-operate, of whether or not they should co-operate. These questions are irrelevant because if the body politic is to move to prosperity, the two legs must certainly co-operate. If they do not co-operate, there will be no progress and therefore these questions that I have been put to us are entirely irrelevant. I think we ought to be doing to the workers organization and it is stated in the new manifesto, that Mr. Deputy Speaker, that in a socialist system the workers' interest cannot be limited merely to fighting for a wage. Their interest must be broader, much broader, and we must get the trade union organizations to participate in the planning and development and implementation of the development in the country. We must get them into the co-operatives, we must get them into advisory committees, we must get them into joint industrial committees, so that they participate at all stages of development so that the

[The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs] solutions will not do, long-term solutions must be the answer. How do we get to this? I welcome that part of the Paper which talks about making the growth of the productive assets in this country first and foremost a priority. After producing, then we plough back as quickly as possible all that we get in order to combat the three remaining enemies.

Mr. Speaker, we know that a lot has been said, both in this House and outside this House. Some people advocate nationalization. I understand that Government has not turned a deaf ear to nationalization. This little booklet, Sir, talks about the pros and cons of nationalization. It explains how to nationalize, and section 119 is an example of the beginning of nationalization, of an effective form of nationalization, and help the country. Section 15 talks about flexibility of the application of this Paper. It is not an end in itself. It is the beginning of the end; and we hope that applied in this spirit, we will be able to get along successfully.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what seems to be the difference between us here is the method of achieving our goal: the goal of getting maximum prosperity and contentment to our people, and the road to this goal has been marred by illusions. There are those people who think that socialism, as applied in the West, is the most ideal form of socialism, and there are those who think that socialism as applied in the East is the most ideal. But, surely the answer, Mr. Speaker, must be first and foremost to put Kenya first, and then we look for the contentment in this country, and the societies that will be served by us as elected Members.

Therefore, Sir, all of us have something to contribute towards this. We must adopt the policy of give and take. Social obligations and social responsibilities rest on us. There is no use standing here and accusing somebody as a communist. It is my contention, Sir, that there is no communist in this country, but there is a danger of some people being used as tools of communism. I also believe, Sir, that there is no African capitalist in this country, but there is danger of some people being used as agents of capitalism. The more we talk about capitalism and communism in this country, the more we set our people's minds wondering which way we are going. I would say that this Paper on African socialism should be passed today so that we can go and practice it and preach it to our people.

Here, Mr. Speaker, every one of us must accept that we must give what we have to others who do not have it.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Can we do that?

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): I am asked by the Assistant Minister for Education whether we can do that. I am sure we can. He is an educated man and he can give his education to the uneducated, and to the less educated. We must give health opportunities to those who do not have them. We must give food, clothes and shelter to those who do not have them: the hungry and the needy; by producing, more, and encouraging growth of productive assets in this country. Priorities must be placed so as to encourage this. This is an indication of what we can do now, tomorrow or the following day, because if we rely on foreigners all the time to give us money to build our schools, our hospitals, our roads, and what have you, we will never get anywhere as fast as we would like.

Mr. Speaker, I notice that in the Paper there is an analogy of the working mechanism of the body would be relevant and appropriate here. In this country we have sections of people who are very poor, and others who are relatively rich. There are people in our country who are educated and some who are not educated. There are people in our country of varying degrees of wealth, but if all these people were to work in the spirit of Harambe towards building Kenya; just as the eyes, ears and nose serve the body, we shall have a prosperous Kenya: not a prosperous East or West.

Again, Mr. Speaker, another analogy which is of an African origin, is that of a hyena. A hungry hyena once came across blood tracks on two diverging paths, but the hyena did not know which path to follow, so he decided to follow the path that led to the East, and at the same time to follow the path that went to the West. Then he decided to follow both at the same time. What we are told, by this analogy, is that the little hyena split into two. If we are going to follow both the East and the West here at the same time we will have to split into two. What a disastrous thing that would be, Mr. Speaker! The example of the parallelogram, of two equal lines is relevant: take the middle, (the diagonal line) and you will get to the point that you want with good results.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the booklet does three things. First, it gives the analysis and points out the magnitude of the situation of the problem before us. Secondly, it gives the critical exposition of the problem, and thirdly it suggests solutions in the last chapter.

Pages 50 to 56 give the policy considerations. Somebody asks me, Mr. Speaker, why do I repeat

[The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs] the word "suggest"? It is because some Members here have been afraid that the Government is steam-rolling this Paper. These are suggestions, they are not absolute truths in themselves. I do not know what you call it in English, but it is a kind of framework, it is a plan on which to build. The Paper points out the pitfalls through-out, the advantages and disadvantages of nationalization, advantages and disadvantages of the present land tenure system.

I am particularly interested, Mr. Speaker, where the Paper talks about the political reasons for settling people in the formerly European-owned land. That was mere political expediency. Some of that land we think is first class in the Highlands is actually poorer than the land which that occupied in Embu, Meru or Kisii; for Mr. Matter, or Masai, how useful it would be, Mr. Speaker, if we had proper national land tenure in this country which would make sure that every piece of land in this country capable of producing is used to the benefit of this nation.

Mr. Speaker, this Paper again points out the advantages and disadvantages of social services being given on a large scale today. The limitation being given on a large scale today, and we hear that there are about 800 doctors in this country and only fifty of them are Africans. We hear of teachers in secondary schools and only a small number of them are Africans. We hear of African teachers in the teacher-training colleges, and only a few are of indigenous origin.

Planning is also mentioned. If we keep on establishing a Harambe school there, a Harambe hospital here, a Harambe something there, without co-ordinated planning, there is a danger of a lopsided growth in this country, and therefore the Paper points out the advantages and disadvantages. We hear, therefore, should we condemn the Paper, Mr. Speaker, if it is only a signpost and a landmark along the path towards Kenya's African socialism?

I commend, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that publicity and action on this Paper must be our paramount priority, in meetings, through the radio, through the Press, through the television, and every medium that we can use to give publicity on this to our people. The divergence of opinion must end, let the two roads converge, East and West, to form Kenya's African socialism. Mr. Speaker, we know that Kenya is in Africa, it is not in the "East", it is not in the "West". We know that climate is most ideal. Mr. Speaker, even when the foreigners came here, the first thing they did was to label Kenya as "the land of sunshine". A special characteristic of our country is going to be Kenya, the originator and founder of the proper African socialism. Let us put ourselves last and Kenya first. If we apply ourselves wholly, sincerely and with a common purpose, we shall succeed. We joined ourselves together, Mr. Speaker, in those days when it was impossible to have black faces in this House, regardless of tribe, regardless of differences of opinion, and we achieved independence. I see no reason why we should not get our independence from disease, from poverty, from lack and limitation of educational opportunities, if we are united in the same kind of faith and purpose as we had in those days. If we apply this Paper's suggestions with sincerity and vigour, I am sure, Mr. Speaker, we shall succeed.

I do not want to spend very long talking about this Paper, but before I stop, Mr. Speaker, I would like to recommend very, very strongly to the Members that they read section 142. This section has about three-score suggestions, an inexhaustible list of what we can do. Pages 50 to 56 outline the whole book and to me it is a directory that no one should miss in achieving the goal towards which we are heading.

Mr. Speaker, I think the Paper has covered nearly every point that has been expressed here. All the fears that have been expressed, all the speculation on land, the Government accepts, it is all here, it is only a question of timing, European-owned land, African-owned land, the form of tenure, the welfare service and Africanization, all of them that have been causing anxiety to people here have been covered in this Paper.

I will end, Mr. Speaker, by saying, let us stop, from now on, in our public meetings and in the Press, describing ourselves as the people who know better than the masses want, and those others do not know, that is a lie. We all know, Mr. Speaker, that it is how we came to this House. Let us stop, Mr. Speaker, saying that so-and-so is a communist, so-and-so is a capitalist. Let us talk of ourselves as Kenyan first and others with their agencies last.

With these remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Paper.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibiki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, will be very brief because most of the arguments that needed to be put forward have in fact, been put forward. However, I think there is a need for us, in the closing stages of this debate, to make sure we do not lose our sense of perspective.

[The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services] society should contribute his best to the common good of the society and alternatively that the society should also help the members of the society to realize their best selves.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is what we had in the African society and, therefore, the basic tenets of socialism are applicable to our society, Sir, there is also what we call African socialism because believing in these basic tenets of socialism we Africans want to apply them under our own special African circumstances and the circumstance I am talking about are these: Mr. Speaker, Sir, Africa is different from Europe or America, because Africa has undergone and is still undergoing colonial rule, and so when we accept the basic tenets of socialism we want to apply them under circumstances which exist in Africa and nowhere else. Sir, because we have been under colonial rule and some parts of Africa still are under colonial rule, we have a perspective of life which you do not find in Europe and in America or in the Soviet Union. Mr. Speaker, Sir, because we have been under colonial rule we Africans need to have the same feeling that we are like birds which have just suffered from a flash of lightning. We want to get rid of that situation which we have just been under. This is one of the distinguishing marks between African socialism and other kinds of socialism.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like also to mention that communism is different from socialism. Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is such a marked difference between communism and socialism that we must not confuse ourselves any more on this matter. Whereas the basic tenets of socialism are that we are an organic whole and we must help each other, we must work in a complementary way. The basic tenets of communism are these. These basic tenets of communism were passed and enunciated by Karl Marx and his men. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I personally think that Karl Marx was a crank, a people may disagree, but I think he was a psychological case. Mr. Speaker, Sir, Karl Marx announced that the basic truth of every society is that there is an incipient conflict between slaves and their masters, conflict between the workers and their employers and so on, and that every state resolves itself. Through conflict and violence there will only be an end when workers unite to overthrow their oppressors. Mr. Speaker, Sir, there must be some truth in this, and I think that history bears a lot of evidence to this effect, but in Africa, among ourselves, before the Europeans came, I do not think we had all this conflict that Karl Marx talked about.

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we want to go back to our own tradition and to build on our own tradition we must reject the basic tenets of communism. They do not apply here.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is why I agree that there is such a thing as African socialism. This is why I disagree with those people who say and advocate that we should call this scientific African socialism, because scientific socialism means the same thing as communism. Mr. Speaker, Sir, some people say that the type of African socialism which we are advocating here will not facilitate African unity. I disagree with this, because all over Africa we feel the same. We want to arise from the old stage of colonial domination to a new state. All over Africa we realize that we are technically backward. We are behind Europe. We are behind America, and we are behind a lot of other countries, and these are the things which unite us into a strong Pan-African force, and it is these feelings which we want to build into African socialism to help us to build a new Africa. So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, what is contained in this Paper, contrary to what some speakers have said, is going to unite us.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the implications of socialism as I have just outlined it, is that because we are complementary we must work together. The implications of this Paper, if I may say so, are that we are going to cultivate unity, and we are going to cultivate unity in Kenya deliberately. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other implication is that we are going to work so that we create opportunities for ourselves, because we believe in socialism which means that we believe in equality which also means that we are going to co-operate as members of one society to build a new society.

Another implication, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that we are going to plan the economy of this country. We have to plan because it is only through planning that we can create opportunities for our people. It is only through planning that we can help the less fortunate members of our society, and I think that all is contained in this Paper.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to point out one or two things which I think have not been given proper attention in the Paper. In the Paper all the techniques of the fiscal and monetary policy have been outlined, and I agree that the tax structure in this country must be changed under the new policy of this country, it must be changed to help us to raise the necessary revenue to effect speedier development. But, Sir, all these fiscal policies and monetary policies outlined here will not be so effective without a Central Bank. Now, Sir, this is one thing which we must think seriously about, because without a Central Bank and without the Government acquiring authority to control the inflow and outflow of money we are likely to suffer. I think some serious thought must be given to that.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is also the question of employment. At the moment one of the greatest problems which we are facing in this country is unemployment. Mr. Speaker, Sir, unemployment is serious because when so many people are unemployed it means that they go without food. It means that their families are suffering and they, themselves, are suffering morally and otherwise. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that in this Paper unemployment should have been given a lot of priority, and I would like employment to be given that priority.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, on the question of nationalization, I think that nationalization just for the sake of nationalization without plans will not do us any good. There has to be some kind of nationalization, because there are certain important public utilities, and industries which we cannot ignore if we want to develop this country. Now, Sir, power has been mentioned, and I know for certain that if I ask the Minister for Communications today to run electricity into South Nyanza then he will ask me why, and tell me that we cannot do it and anyway we do not want electricity there because there are no industries there. But, Sir, on the other hand, no industries will grow there. We have to find a happy compromise for this. There will be certain cases where the Government will have to create certain things deliberately in order to encourage development in some parts of the country. If it is necessary to nationalize some of these industries in order to enable the Government to acquire the flexibility and the power to plan where it is needed, to take industries where they are needed, then I see nothing wrong with that.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hear a lot of Members complaining that I should stop but I would like to repeat only a few things.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We do not want anything repeated.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odoro-Jow): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to mention that one of the political elements in our system of socialism is Pan-Africanism. I think you imagine that we as Africans want to unite, then this question of a unity of Africa must affect our economic planning. It must affect the way in which we are going to run these things in our country. I should have liked to see in this Paper a mention of the effect of our relationships with Uganda and Tanzania, because, Sir, right now Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda are so economically linked that the moment we start planning entirely on our own without Tanzania or Uganda then our plans will run into difficulty. I should like to see this problem properly set out in this Paper.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Though we have not imposed on ourselves very definitely any definite limit of the time for individual speeches, I would like to remind you, Members, that we have less than two hours now before the Mover replies. I know there are many Members who have something to say in this debate, and so I would ask hon. Members to impose on themselves a voluntary limit, and make their speeches as short as they can; then I think they will be more appreciated by the House.

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, while welcoming the Paper, "African Socialism and its Application to Planning in Kenya," I would like to make a few observations. First, I think it is a golden opportunity for this country to show the world that we in Kenya can at least initiate something that the world will learn from us. After all, Mr. Speaker, those people who discovered and invented things a long time ago were at one time regarded as crazy, or people who were not socially minded. Even a person who started using a modern Hebrew, the language that is spoken today in Israel, was almost an outcast, although the Paper, "African Socialism" should be accepted. So, language was later on reclaimed and accepted. So, the Paper, "African Socialism" should be accepted in Kenya, and we should hope to sell it to the rest of Africa and eventually to the rest of the world.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I believe that this Paper is a beacon along the path of a prosperous, socialist Kenya. It is a Paper full of good landmarks along the road to socialism; and the road to socialism is not to the East, or to the West, but the road to African socialism, its application and planning in Kenya. Sir, all of us were not born with silver spoons in our mouths. We come from the ordinary working people who elected from the ordinary working things in the Kananu. We promised them certain things in our election Manifesto. We know very well that our people live in poverty, ill-health, and they have limited opportunities for education. We all know this, otherwise we would not be sitting here. We are elected on this policy, by our people. Having known this Mr. Speaker, it is our duty in this House to try and find a solution. Short-term

[The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services] I am sure every Member who must be passed. I am sure every Member who was in this House yesterday understood the appeals made by various speakers, that after this we do not want any more confusion, and in order to avoid this let us pass this Paper and let all of us go home knowing exactly what to say.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to support.

Mr. Kagga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to oppose this very strongly and my reasons are this. It has been said by many Members—and it is a fact—that this document is a very important one and as the hon. Member has just said, the intention of this Paper is to remove confusion, but to steamroll the Paper without amendment, that is not removing any confusion at all, but, in fact, it is adding confusion. We thought that if we had enough time to discuss this Paper and propose some amendments on it, then this would be the only way of removing this confusion.

Yesterday, when the other Motion was passed, it was passed on the understanding that Members shall have enough time today to discuss this for the whole day until we adjourn, and by the time we passed the Paper, almost every Member would have given his views and amendments, if any.

Now, Mr. Speaker, this Motion shows that only one or two Members may have the chance to speak, while there are so many Members who have been waiting to speak, and this shows that the intention is to get this Paper passed before we have given our views and before we have any time to amend it. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I should like to point out very clearly that the Cabinet or the Minister should know that the hon. Members here have views to give, and if this Paper was given in good faith they ought to be prepared to accept our amendments and views, but not try and steamroll such an important document before we have time to discuss it and make amendments.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order.

Mr. Kagga: I do not think these interruptions are helping us at all, Mr. Speaker, and no amount of shouting can stop me from giving my views. I will continue speaking.

Instead of wasting time, Mr. Speaker, I oppose this very strongly, and I appeal to the Government to allow the hon. Members of this House to give their views for the whole day and we can stop this Paper by the time we adjourn.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyanweya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that this is purely a procedural Motion, could the question be put?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): In this case I think that the Mover has the right to reply. There is no objection to putting the question of the closure now. The question is that the Mover be now called upon to reply.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, while accepting some of the strong views expressed by some Members from the opposite benches, I consider that this is the condition we are beginning to (Inaudible) and as such if we can allow ourselves a time limit, I am sure that as many Members as possible will have to express the few points they have said therefore, without wasting the time of the House. I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to.)

MOTION

SESSIONAL PAPER NO. 10 OF 1963/65—
AFRICAN SOCIALISM

THAT this House, having studied carefully the Sessional Paper No. 10 of 1963/65 entitled "African Socialism and its Application to Planning in Kenya", notes and adopts the said Paper as the basis and guide for future development planning and policy in Kenya.

(The Minister for Economic Planning and Development on 4th May 1965).

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odero-Jowi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, when the House adjourned yesterday, I was telling the House that this Motion will help us to clear the confusion that has reigned in the country. Mr. Speaker, Sir, while we have been confused practically every week by contradictory speeches, and by conflicting announcements on policy, a lot of things have been happening. While a lot of people have been paying lip service to socialism, quite a number of us have been acquiring a lot of wealth by all capitalistic means. I think there must be a stop to this.

Sir, while we have been confusing ourselves over issues which really do not affect this country, a lot of people have really been telling us things which really have no meaning at all. For example, communism has been equated with food! There could be no better example of confusion.

[The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, that would bring no more confusion to this (Inaudible) Sir, when we have been talking a lot, people have been promising the citizens of this country things which God, the Creator, would not promise them. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that this Paper is going to help us to overcome this confusion, so we accept it and we accept that African socialism is valid for Kenya. We also reject that capitalism is not valid for Kenya and communism is definitely not valid for Kenya. Mr. Speaker, Sir, capitalism is not valid for Kenya because it is based on our theories which we have never accepted in our traditions and in the life of this country. For example, Sir, as I understand it, capitalism is based on that old outmoded, outdated theory of individualism. According to this theory, that society can realize its best self if the individuals in the society do everything or do anything they can in order to improve themselves. According to this, capitalism is that system which believes in free enterprise, that every individual should do his best in order to acquire wealth, as best as he can. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not believe this because I believe that people in a society are complementary. If one is rich he is only rich because the society has given him that opportunity to be rich. If one is poor, he is poor partly because of his own mistakes and also partly because the society has not given him a chance to survive and this is what I think is the basis of socialism and this is the socialism we are talking about.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, socialism, as I understand it, is based on the theory that in the society, men and women, workers and employers, those who are rich and those who are poor, are complementary, and all of them go to make the society, and if one is rich, he is rich only because the society has protected him from—

FURTHER LIMITATION OF DEBATE

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, having considered that it would not be fair to conclude the business of this House or to adjourn the House this morning, we should continue until next week for another two days, but it would not be that that will be a debate on the White Paper today. It will only be that there are some important Bills which need consideration next week for two days and so the Motion I beg to move an amendment to the Motion which I have just concluded, that instead of stopping the debate at 10.30 a.m. and calling upon the Mover to reply, we should actually extend it by another hour and call the Mover to reply at 11.30 a.m. and then end the debate today at the normal time of the interruption of the business of the House. I beg to move.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya) seconded.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The position, as outlined by the Vice-President, is that there will be no Motion for the Adjournment of the House today; and what he now moves is that, instead of the resolution that has just been passed—that resolution for limitation of debate be rescinded and the House now resolves that the duration of the current debate be limited so as to end not later than 12.30 p.m. today, and that the Mover be called upon to reply not later than 11.30 a.m. today.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wonder if I was elected to this Parliament by—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Do not waste any time, please.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I think I have the right to speak in this Parliament whether some Members like it or not. Therefore, I will go ahead and say that I support this Motion very strongly, as amended, because there are so many people here who have so many views to express and I was very much hurt when I found that time was being squandered by the first resolution. As such, I support it strongly because some of us would like to give more than some of the people have already given.

With those few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

MOTION

SESSIONAL PAPER NO. 10 OF 1963/65: AFRICAN SOCIALISM

(Resumption of debate interrupted for Motion on limitation of debate)

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odero-Jowi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was saying that socialism was valid for Kenya because in the basic tenets of socialism we have a lot of practices and beliefs which tally with that of our African traditions. I was saying, Sir, that our own African traditions of socialism is that the society is the basic tenet of socialism and that members of the society are organic whole and that members of the society are complementary and that every member of the

WRITTEN REPLIES TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 1084

HOUSING FOR URBAN AFRICANS

Mr. Godla asked the Minister for Health and Housing if the Minister would tell the House:—

- The number of Africans who had been given assistance by the Ministry to put up their own houses in various towns and municipalities in Kenya, including Nairobi.
- What the percentage the number of houses built by Africans in towns was in comparison to those built by non-Africans.

REPLY

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otiende):

(a) The Ministry does not normally lend money direct to individuals to build houses but in the following special cases the Ministry has sold houses direct to Africans on twenty-year tenant-purchase agreements: Fifty-two houses at Kibera and seventeen in the Sceptre Trust Housing Scheme for civil servants. The Ministry will shortly conclude similar agreements with the thirty families who are building self-help houses at Langata.

The Central Housing Board makes loans to local authorities to construct tenant-purchase housing estates and site and service schemes and the total of such loans for the last five years has been £310,000 for a total of 889 houses or serviced plots. Most of these houses and plots have been taken up by Africans. Precise statistics are not available but I am making inquiries of local authorities and I will pass the results to the honourable questioner if he is interested.

(b) We have no statistics of the numbers of houses built by Africans in urban areas, but from the 1962 Census figures it has been estimated that in all urban areas only 11 per cent of African households own their own homes. In Nairobi the figure was 3 per cent, in Mombasa 30 per cent, and in all other towns 6 per cent.

EYE DISEASE AMONGST THE MASAI

Mr. Ndile asked the Minister for Health and Housing if he would tell the House what steps his Ministry had taken in recent years to reduce eye diseases in Masailand.

REPLY

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otiende): During the last twenty to thirty years the Ministry of Health has been very much concerned in the eradication of eye diseases not only in Masai land but in the whole of Kenya. Drugs to prevent trachoma, the main public health problem as far as eye diseases is concerned, are available in all health centres throughout the country and from the Medical Officers of Health of the districts concerned.

There is a mobile eye clinic run by the Africa Medical and Research Foundation and the medical officer of this unit is an eye specialist. Whenever the mobile unit visits a district a report is forwarded to my Ministry which is given careful consideration by my staff. Hospital returns and statistics show that Masai land is in no worse position than any other district and that the measures for the control of eye diseases in Kajjado and Narok are exactly the same as in other districts.

ACREAGE OF COFFEE IN MACHAKOS

Mr. Ndile asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing if he would tell the House whether or not, Machakos District offered more acreage for coffee co-operative societies.

REPLY

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): The coffee acreage in Machakos District, both potential and actual, are as follows

	Acre
1. Potential coffee acreage	20,000
2. Acreage under coffee	5,590
3. Acreage under co-operatives	5,590
4. Additional acreage in 1965	1,500

Question No. 2055

MACHAKOS COFFEE SOCIETIES

Mr. Ndile asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing if the present coffee societies in Machakos District were running at a loss.

REPLY

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Figures are available in respect of 1964 for six of the nine coffee societies in Machakos. Of the six, five had surplus ranging from £240 to £3,280, and the sixth having a deficit of £396. Each had an accumulated surplus for 1964, ranging from £507 to £3,020. The 1964 accounts of the other three societies are presently being prepared for 1963, two had surplus and one had a deficit.

Question No. 2077

GOVERNMENT UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF SCHEMES

Mr. Ngala asked the Minister for Labour and Social Services if he would—

- tell the House the number of unemployment relief schemes started by Government since the 12th December 1964; and state the names of the places where such Schemes were going on; and
- give a breakdown of the numbers of job-seekers in Mombasa, Nairobi, Nakuru and Kisumu for the months of January, February and March 1965, respectively.

REPLY

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa):

(a) No special unemployment relief schemes have been undertaken by Government apart from the Tripartite Agreement. A statement of Government projects under the Agreement as they stood in December 1964 is attached. Those projects not fully manned or not started by December 1964 are being proceeded with and, in common with other employers, Government has undertaken to provide at least fourteen months work for each of its 8,956 quota workers and to absorb as many as possible into its permanent establishment.

Government is conscious of the wisdom of the advice given by the International Bank for reconstruction and development with regard to the danger of engaging in too many special short-term unemployment relief schemes. Government does however place some reservations on its acceptance of the advice and intends to act in accordance with its declaration (made at a time when the hon. Member was a member of Government) in Sessional Paper No. 1 of 1963, viz:

"Unemployment is one of the most serious problems facing the Government. The Mission's arguments that short-term unemployment relief measures are unlikely to achieve the desirable results and will detract seriously from the financial resources for development, are compelling. Nevertheless, the Government also realizes that short-term considerations can have an important effect on long-range plans, and that relief of the unemployed may well be one of the factors necessary to maintain law and order, which the Mission considers so important for the promotion of economic development. In order to satisfy both the long-term and short-term needs in so far as is possible, the Government will deal with unemployment within the context of its Development Programme. A sound development project can frequently make a significant contribution to the relief of unemployment in the short term."

Government action to combat unemployment cannot be assessed accurately in terms of specific schemes. The solution of the unemployment problem lies in the general growth of the economy and Government's achievements in this regard cannot be measured over such short a period as four or five months. The hon. Member will be aware of the rise in economic activity that has taken place since Kenya became a Republic. Government has demonstrated its appreciation of the need to plan actively and continuously for the continuance of this rise by setting up of the Ministry of Economic Planning and Development which keeps the measures outlined in the Development Plan continuously adjusted and under review.

(b) In order to carry out the placing of work-seekers in employment under the Tripartite Agreement the normal operation of employment exchanges had to be modified and during the period of the Agreement, ending 8th April 1965, attendance at the Exchanges was not recorded. Normal registration of work-seekers was resumed at the beginning of May 1965, but prior to this the exchanges have been placing the work-seekers who were specially registered in March 1964. It should be mentioned here that even when the employment exchanges operate normally, they only record the number of work-seekers who voluntarily register with the exchanges—there is no method of recording the actual number of job-seekers, a large number of whom do not register themselves.

[Mr. Ngala] over, because we should return to be an academic exercise. There must be a definite guidance that during the development period, 1964/1970, this will happen. I suggest that during the development period 1964/1970, the Government should negotiate to take over electric power, to take over the tobacco companies, to take over the transport system, and to take over the breweries.

Now, this will help, and I will show you how it will help. I do not know how many bags of tobacco I have smoked since I started smoking, but I am sure I have smoked many bags of tobacco, and I am sure, Mr. Speaker, you must also have smoked quite a lot, but the point is that these people have a profit, and if they have a profit, the whole profit is not taken away by the measure of taxation. But, the taxation method takes away only a small proportion, and I am sure everybody here smokes—

An hon. Member: No, I do not.

Mr. Ngala: Well, you must have other vices!

In the public interest, during such a development plan, these major industries are going to be taken with willing negotiations of the mutual responsibility of the society. Now, this will not threaten anybody, but it would be a very sensible start. I am not suggesting wholesale nationalization, as my friend is trying to tell me. I am suggesting specific things, which are apart from nationalization. Even some capitalistic countries have helped to do this in the interest of the public, and in the interest of social development. This is what we are trying to do. Wholesale nationalization is completely uncalled for, unnecessary, unwise, and it is very uneconomic to a nation. A nation must decide what is necessary and what could be done appropriately to benefit the country. Some of the Members here have shops, which if we nationalized, would be a great burden to us, because they are running in such an embarrassing manner.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to make it quite clear that although many Members talk of capitalism, and other Members talk of communism, we would like to stop and think, and we would like to bear in mind what the policy of our own party states. Our own party states that we should stop talking about America, China, and get down to the business of non-alignment, and Kenya policy. That is what our party states. Therefore, if you tell me that I should stop calling you So-and-so, you should also stop calling me So-and-so. If you called me a capitalist, I would call you a communist in return. Therefore, both sides have to stop, and if both sides stop, then we shall be in the Kenya path, and there would be no more quarrels and rumours to stop talks in the streets of the town.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to make it quite clear that this Paper is a good start. I support it, and I hope the suggestion that have been made will be borne in mind by the Government, and I would like to support the Motion. If I have time, I would like to continue tomorrow.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Ngala, you could continue a little longer today, because the clocks are five minutes fast.

Mr. Ngala: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that in African socialism there is nothing to be ashamed of, and there is no reason why our people should feel inferior for preaching African socialism. Even if we go to other countries, we find them preaching their own economic ideologies.

Therefore, there is nothing bad in our Members, all of us, going out to the country and preaching African socialism. Now, Kenya is a part of Africa, therefore, it is African socialism, but what the Members should not do is just go back to their constituencies, and say that although this Paper is passed by a majority I personally do not believe in it. If they do that, they will confuse the masses, they will confuse the population. Once something is passed here by the majority, it should become a Bible for every Member, whether we go to Kandara Constituency, Kilifi South Constituency, or Homa Bay or Teso. We do not want our Members to go out and say that this Paper was passed by the American imperialists. They think they are ruining the country, because it is passed by the people who have the mandate of the voters in Kenya by their majority, and by this Majority we pledge that the majority is the voice of the President, and voice of the requirements of the people.

With these few words, Sir, I would like to support the Government.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now close on time for the interruption of business, so I think you might as well start Mr. Odero-Jowi and continue tomorrow.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odero-Jowi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thank you for giving me this opportunity to express my views on this Sessional Paper No. 10.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say right from the start, that I accept the Paper, and I support it. I support the Paper, Sir, because I think the approach in it is pragmatic enough, practical enough, and I think it is really realistic.

Mr. Speaker, I also support the Paper because in this Paper the aspirations of our people have been stated very clearly, and there is a very determined effort in this Paper to find solutions to these aspirations of our people. Sir, also inherent in this Paper is that we are going to succeed, come what may, the people of Kenya are determined to face the challenge of development, and they are so determined to do so in peace and freedom and in unity. I am sure, Mr. Speaker, this Paper is going to act as a unifying factor in this country, and I welcome it very much.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the first place, I think this Paper is going to help us to put and end to the confusion that is now rampant in the country.

Sir, there is so much confusion as to what African socialism is, there is confusion as to what capitalism is, and there is confusion as to what constitutes communism.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to try to define in a very humble, simple way, what I understand by capitalism, socialism and communism.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you had better do that tomorrow, as the time is up.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time for the interruption of business. The House is adjourned until tomorrow, Friday, 7th May 1965, at 9 a.m.

The House rose at thirty minutes past Six o'clock.

[Mr. Ngala]

Paper. Now we think that all the support should not go to the high potential areas. The high potential areas should get a proportion of the investment so that they can also carry it out to the same extent. I cannot see how the poor people, how the people from the North-Eastern Region, the Turkana people will benefit, and every time they ask what is being done for them, they are told about West Secondary School. They should be given more attention and facilities, because if the Minister appreciates the need for spreading the resources and using them equally or distributing them fairly, then I think this policy should be looked into first.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that the other thing which has been completely left out of this Paper, or I may have overlooked it whilst I was doing my homework, is the question of clear determination of providing water for the country. Now I am sure that the Minister himself has visited Israel several times, and he has seen the clear determination which Israel has made to provide water in dry places. Today I asked a question on water, and the Assistant Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife stood up and said that it was not economical to provide water for irrigation. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that it is a pity. Who will make it economic? It is the Government. They should make it economic. They should put the water there and once you have put the water there then people will grow the sugar-cane, and they will grow bananas and all the other basic foodstuffs which they want, and eventually you will get the economy out of the place which is dry. This is happening in Israel, and this question of suppressing the backward, less fortunate areas in Kenya is a very unfortunate policy of the Government, and I think it should be looked into very, very strongly.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, apart from that I would like to congratulate the Minister for Agriculture for definitely taking away some of the abandoned farms and also mismanaged farms, because these abandoned farms are farms which belong to lazy farmers, farmers who are lazy and absent, and do not do anything on the land, because they have no interest. Therefore, surely their land should be taken away. We have no sympathy for such farmers, and it is not even necessary to compensate them, otherwise what will you be compensating them for? If you go to those places all you see there is grass and nothing else but this grass and bushes, and they have farmed nothing. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am particularly glad that he is going to take away 25,000 acres in the Coastal band. It is not sufficient but I think it is one of the good starts which are indicated in this Paper, and I hope it will continue and even if it means that my firm is taken away then I do not mind, providing that the criteria is whether you are developing it or not. If the rains do not fall, then it is not my fault, because I had the intention to do the development. Mr. Speaker, Sir, some Members are asking me to do something about the rain. What do they think do they believe that the rain is in my hat? Therefore I would like to emphasize, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the aspects of water and leaving out water in this Paper is a very big weakness in the Paper, because the agricultural industry here is a big one and as short of filling the bulk of the population because certain areas in Kenya have not been provided with water. Therefore I hope that the Minister will think of the seriousness of leaving out definite plans for providing water in different parts of the country. I am sure that such places as Kilifi and the Kwale hinterland, and the other places will benefit very much.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other sad omission in the Paper is that I should think the Minister should have considered bringing down the whole country to a low wages policy. This is very important. It shows that under the section on trade unions the Minister says that the Government is understating the reviewing of the wage policy, but it is not just a question of wage. I would like the Minister to consider the reviewing of all the salaries, from the top to the bottom bearing in mind that this country cannot go on chasing the high price of goods and high salaries. What we need to do is to adopt a policy of a basic low wage and reduce the price definitely by determination to reduce the price of the basic foodstuffs or basic requirements. I admit that this can be done, because some other African countries have done it. Some European countries too have done it. Some of the deficit policy that this should be aligned to serve the country and the needs, this business of going on chasing higher salaries is a source of all the strikes which are around our pockets all the time, but, I believe that should also be considered.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I can see the Minister concerned, with his Assistant Minister leaving the Chamber, and I was wondering who was taking this down for him?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not suggesting that salaries are unfairly deducted or reduced. I am not suggesting that it is right that salaries should be reduced, either. Some salaries should go up, but the main thing is that a line should be drawn in which the nation would feel relieved in certain matters.

Now, I do not know whether the Assistant Ministers and Ministers are going out because they thought I was going to propose a reduction on Ministers' salaries; but I do not intend to do that. But, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if some people get big salaries and all they eat is posho, and they do not even employ houseboys, house staff, why do we pay them so much?

An hon. Member: Are you including yourself?

Mr. Ngala: Of course I am including myself in this. What do you think I am doing?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question is that we should adopt a low wage policy, so that the people who are in hardship can benefit. We should reduce the prices of the foodstuffs, as well. When I was a schoolboy, some twenty-five years ago, I used to buy a pound of posho with about five cents. Now, there was nothing wrong with the posho, it was the same posho that I am eating today. Now, why has it gone up? Because you have the Chairman of the Maize Marketing Board getting a high salary, and there are many boards. This country is ruined by boards. Why do we not have only one Marketing Board and 21 its departments, so that we have only one Chairman of a Marketing Board, which means only one salary? At the moment we have twelve marketing boards, which means twelve salaries. This is where the producer and the consumer are hit hard. I was not satisfied by the defence that was made by some Ministers yesterday, when they said that some of the boards are international. Who made them international? Is it not our law? If we want to change the law, we can do so. That is what we are here for. We can change it, and instead of burdening the consumer and the producer with all these boards, I feel it is completely unnecessary, and the Government of Kenya should review the policy on marketing boards and civil boards.

Now, the Minister is not here at the moment, and this Government is well known for avoiding what perhaps is the truth, and we would like this truth to be read by the Ministers in the House, as well as their Assistant Ministers. We do not want a multiplicity of boards. We want to have one central board with departments to reduce the salaries, and we want a low wage policy to be adopted in the interests of the country, just as you can take away land in the interests of the public. In the same manner, you should be able to agree, as a Member of Parliament, to agree that 21 out of your salary should go away in the interest of the nation.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, my next point is this question of how we should deal with the trade unions. The Government, in this Paper, has said that it intends to have one central organization of trade unions, which is a very good idea, but the Paper does not say who is going to order that this one body be in existence. If we do not, the bickering will continue. Already last week in Mombasa we had two May Days, two Labour Days. One organization had it on the 1st May, and the second one had it on the 2nd May. Therefore, the Paper should specifically say that either the Minister or the President is going to have the final say, and no more, and stop it so that there is certain power in the Paper to allow somebody to stop the nonsense of having a multiplicity of labour federation. If that is perpetuated, the economic aspect of this Paper will also be ruined by a misunderstanding.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say very clearly that when we are thinking of what African socialism is, I think it starts with capitalism, because in African society, you begin with somebody who has something, and then it is somebody who has something who has good shared. You begin with somebody who has good, and who will come and share it with others. Now, what we must do is modify that tradition and modernize it. When we modernize it, we say it is not a question of sharing the bottles of beer that are made by the company, or produced by the company, or even the cigarettes that are made by the tobacco company, but we use some laws to enable the Government to acquire some of the production of the tobacco company, this is what this Paper is doing when it talks of controlling the productive resources. It is the same as African socialism starting with a capitalist somewhere, but in a more modern manner. This is why the Paper is called "African socialism".

Now, we must go further than that in our modern State. I believe that negotiations should be started very firmly, and very appreciative of the social responsibility. Negotiations should be started so that the Paper definitely lays down what we think we could take over under public sectors between now and 1970, to follow it with the Development Plan. If we think we should negotiate to take over the power, electric power, or the breweries for the tobacco or transport, then this Paper should definitely say that during the development period, 1964/1970, we are going to negotiate with a view to taking the aspects

[Mr. Ngala] introduced among Kenya politicians. The cold war is there because people, instead of borrowing what is feasible for their country, wish that their country adopted an American or a Chinese pattern. This is the cold war. What we want is a pattern, a hat like mine which can be worn by Kenya people. It is an indigenous hat from Kisumu, it is made of material which is local, and it is fitted to the circumstances and environment of our country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Paper is our own and I am very glad that the hon. Mr. Anyieni is accepting it, although we have said very definitely that we hope to add to it sometimes. This is exactly what was said by the Minister who introduced it. He said Government has made a beginning and we shall carefully listen to the ideas that Members will give, and if these ideas are good enough, we shall take them and try to adopt them.

I think we should stop all the rumours. There are so many rumours going on. People are saying this person would like to take over the position of the other person. People are saying "Even Mr. Ngala would like to take over the Vice-Presidency from Jaramogi." These rumours must stop. We have a Paper here which does not direct us to any personality. This Paper directs us to the target of Kenya and what we should do to give the ordinary person something to fill his stomach, and also to give the ordinary child sufficient opportunity of learning well, properly in school. Therefore, rumours of this person wanting to take over the Vice-Presidency, and so on, are just useless, completely groundless talk and we must stop some people who keep on saying, "But he is a stooge of America." This also must stop. The fact that I am thinking differently from you does not qualify me—

An-hon. Member: Who are you?

Mr. Ngala: The Member for Kilifi South—because we are made differently. When I was a teacher, I used to teach different children and they were so different as Members of Parliament are. But the fact that one child is different from the other, does not mean that you call that particular child many names. He is a human being, made in that nature, and you have to tackle that human being that way. Therefore, the question of people being American stooges, Russian stooges, Chinese stooges, should also stop. As we go around our country, we should talk about this Paper, if we accept it, and we should become stooges of Kenya. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we must not be called agencies of foreign countries, as many people are in the habit even of shouting that in this House. I can see that if they continue doing this, Mr. Speaker, you may have to deal with a very serious situation in the House, because we feel that we have fought for the country and we have every right to use our brains to direct the policy of this country, we have fought for the country, and everybody has fought for the country. Therefore, if you think differently from another person, from Kiki or from Kilifi, that is not a crime. So if you believe that you are right, you have to stick to your guns.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, even when I dissolved Kadu, I gave a pledge that I would be faithful to Kenya, I would be faithful to Mrs. Kenyatta and his Government and Knau. Now, at this stage, why I support the Government, people come and say, "You are a stooge of the Government." Such comments must stop, because I am using my brain and if I think that the Government is right, I should say so; even when I was Leader of the Opposition, I used to congratulate the Government when it was right. There was no question at all of becoming a Government stooge in any way. It is mature thought given to some other Members as complete, useful advice to them.

Of course, I know that the Manifesto cannot be perfect, there must be some weakness; I know that a Government cannot be perfect, there must be some weaknesses in policies, such as land or economic policies. But I am very glad that now the Government has brought out this Sessional Paper No. 10. In this Paper the Government is making an effort to give its opportunity to Members of this House, so that we can give our recommendations to the Government, and I hope that this Paper will not be regarded as a final document by the Minister concerned, but he will incorporate useful ideas and suggestions that Members do give here, so that the Paper becomes a real bible, as the hon. Member called it. However, if useful ideas are left out and brushed aside, I am sorry to say that you may find very strong reactions afterwards in the country. The Paper is a good practical start and can cause dynamic and revolutionary economic changes if the Government takes it some of the suggestions and also if Members of Parliament go back to their constituencies and urge their people to put it into practice.

This Paper must not be another academic exercise. It must bear some ideas that can be put into practice, in our financial year. Some Members have said that this Paper is not in any way related to the financial Budget debate. It is very strange to hear some Members saying this [Mr. Ngala] Do they want this Paper to be an exercise of debate only and not to be implemented? If it is to be implemented, are some aspects of this Paper not going to be included in the Budget, so that they can be carried out? These Members do not seem to understand what is going on at all, because this Paper has ideas which must not be used only as an academic exercise. These ideas must be put into practice. They are not put into practice without the use of money, and because we want these ideas to be put into practice as quickly as possible, we must therefore end the debate tomorrow and allow it to go into the Budget as useful ideas to be put into practice. Any person who delays it should not tell us here some people at Mijango who have no food are some people who are trying to get ways of obtaining their food and he delays it. Any people who delay this should not tell us that there are some people who are going hungry.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not intend to illustrate this but I just wanted to say that gross ignorance was reflected in the relationship between the financial Budget talk and this Paper. I think the Members who made this remark should now have understood exactly what the position is in the relationship.

Now, we must keep it up in order to release the hardship which our people are suffering from.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would not like to say that this Paper has a lot of ideas, but the key ideas in this Paper are reflected on page 25. Mr. Speaker, Sir, on page 25, the Minister concerned has talked of critical issues and choices. Now, this is the core of the Paper, the critical issues, and this means that we have to make a choice in this Parliament as to what person we have to follow in our African socialism. I need not define it because I think the Biblical quotations by Mr. Anyieni have done that and I do not want to go into the definition because the Paper itself, on page 16, has made the definition very, very clear apart from the Biblical quotations which were very disturbing. But the Paper must provide answers to critical issues and choices.

Firstly, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that it is a very good idea to include in the Paper that there should be control of productive resources. Productive resources should be colonial controlled. Now I know that during the colonial days perhaps people doing business in this country did not get—I see that the Minister for Commerce and Industry is worried. I think the Ministers have had a lot of time to speak and therefore they should now give the Back-benchers a chance to speak. Mr. Speaker, Sir, therefore, it is a very good idea that there should be control of the productive resources. This is about of making them completely perfect. I fully realize that it is a step which could enable more revenue to become available to the Government for the social needs of this country, and therefore I think it is a step which should be appreciated. In this Paper, I would like to advise the Minister concerned that the land policy chapter is not satisfactory. It is not satisfactory because I believe that because of the very strong feeling that the country has on the land policy, then I believe that a land commission should be set up in order that it may look into all the aspects and put forward to us a report which will be an Appendix to this Sessional Paper, so that Members can have a further opportunity, because I hear that Members in the countryside, when I buy a farm, they go out, when hon. Dr. Kiavo buys a farm, they go out, when hon. Mr. Too buys a farm, then they go out and they say, "Look at him, he has bought a farm. He is a capitalist." I think it is gross ignorance. They do not know what a capitalist is. A farmer, an ordinary peasant like myself, gets a permit to plough this, which I get from here but then I am left without rain and have that is nothing. Is this capitalism? I think that is not capitalism. It is nation building. When we are building the nation, Mr. Speaker, Sir, then other building the nation, Mr. Speaker, Sir, then other Members should not blame us for building the nation. What else could we do? These Members have not provided an alternative. They want us to stay in Nairobi, go on ruling in Nairobi. Do they not want us to go out to tell our constituents what is the best way to build a nation? Mr. Speaker, Sir, now, I think that some of these, very childish comments that the country is Members should now give answers to that the country is not confused. We say that this Paper will be not confused. We say that if the Members successful if people work hard. Now if the Members do not start by working hard then where are the people going to get their example from? Therefore we would like the Members to start, those Members who can own a piece of land, those Members who can own a piece of land, those Members who can own poultry or keep pigs should go out and keep pigs, provided that nobody in my constituency does not keep pigs.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like the Minister to consider the question of land which he mentioned when he was moving this, and hope that it is a question which will not be overlooked at all, the question of having a land commission.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, now the agricultural policy on this Paper is very disappointing. It is disappointing in the sense that again, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is a policy only supporting and helping the highly political areas that have been adopted by this car. I am referring now to any President, not necessarily Mzee Kenyatta. Tomorrow, it may be Odera-Jowi who is President, and if he went to the bank and asked for money, he should not be subjected to any humiliation.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I understand that in this country we have some Members who have now pledged themselves to fighting international communism. I can see that some Members are applauding me, Mr. Speaker, because they are against fighting international communism.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I thought that what we are here to fight is the normally declared enemy of our own people. My mother does not know anything about communism, and as a matter of fact, the majority of the people in our constituencies are not interested in these evils. It is not important to them. What is important to them, Sir, is that they want to have some food, they want to go to school, and they want to dress well. That is what is important. If we go and tell the people that what will give them food, education and clothes, is communism, they will go for it.

Mr. Speaker, we are not going to allow our Parliament to direct our parents from fighting for our people's interest, and to fight for the interests of any other person. It is the determination of the United States to fight international communism. We know this because it is written, and they are doing their best, and they are doing something to stop it, where they think it is coming like the Congo, where they think it is coming like Vietnam, where they think it is coming like the Dominican Republic, and they are doing everything to see that it does not go to South Africa, or even to Kenya. But, Mr. Speaker, is our problem really communism. Why do we not say that the Russians are going to fight international communism, and the Americans are going to fight international capitalism. That is their war. It is not ours. As a matter of fact, I would agree with the hon. Member who said that these embassies should close. Then everybody would be on the same track. We would be able to go to the masses. People are talking cheap propaganda.

Mr. Speaker, why are people accused of communism after they have addressed meetings? I am referring now to the hon. Vice-President who comes to a meeting, and people say that they hear he is a communist, and then he says that he has been accused of being a communist for so long, but if communism was poison he would have died. Communism is the same as giving me food. It does not harm me at all. This is very interesting, Mr. Speaker, and I hope that from today we are not going to fight American capitalism because American capitalism is not yet in our country. The only capitalism which is here is British capitalism. We have a bit of that, because they were ruling this country, and some of them were very well entrenched and the others are probably the Indians who controlled the economy. But, Mr. Speaker, for an hon. Member to stand up in this House and say that he is fighting international communism is saying that he can fight against the interests of the people of Kenya.

Mr. Speaker, if some Members have decided that from today onwards, they are not going to represent their constituencies, that they are going to join the Americans and others to fight international communism in Homa Bay—

Mr. Speaker, this document is going to make it very difficult for anybody to effect the unity of Africa, and I hope that as we move day by day we shall make it flexible enough to be accepted by our people in other parts of the world. I have learned that Tanzania has now started to try and effect scientific socialism, and up to about ten years ago—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We cannot have half a dozen hon. Members all speaking at once. Interjections are all right, but we cannot have running commentaries from about ten people at a time.

Mr. Anyien: Mr. Speaker, some of these interruptions are good for me because when I sit down I start thinking about them.

Now, Mr. Speaker, some Members are asking me what is this scientific socialism. I am not a lecturer here, I have not come here to lecture the Members. All the Members here can read, and if they can read it is their responsibility, not to go around the places saying things they do not know. They must read like the hon. Mr. Muliro. The hon. Muliro is not a communist, and he made that very clear, because he believes in Christianity. If the Members keep asking about these things, I think I shall call a meeting of the Back-benches next week, and I will call the hon. Muliro to come and lecture the Members on some of these things.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that even in Christianity we must never think that the Bible is a small book. I think you will find that the Bible has gone further than this document has gone.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I say that I have not read any Marxism, because I do not believe it really need to. Of course, we are today talking about African democratic socialism, and I have the pleasure to say it without the unnecessary interjections from the hon. Member.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when even in the Bible it is said, in the Old Testament—they do not want me to quote from the Bible what is wrong—why can I not quote from it? Mr. Speaker, I am not speaking, but I want to use one quotation from the Bible. In the Old Testament, Mr. Speaker, because God was a God of those who obeyed him and he blessed them, he allowed them to have slaves, but from New Testament, may I quote one thing, he says that "I bring you a new law, that you love your God with all your heart." That is everybody's business, but love thy neighbour as thyself. Can we then say we are loving our neighbours as ourselves when you have money rotting in the bank while other people are dying because they do not have any medicine? Is that loving your brother? So let somebody, Mr. Speaker, come here and say—I have not read Marxism, but I can quote even from the Bible and for those who say that they are Christians and as such they must fight, it is that—

Mr. Kamau: On a point of order. May we know from the hon. Member whether he has any money in the bank?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order. I think I must warn all hon. Members again, not that every hon. Member or almost every hon. Member knows what is and what is not a point of order, that I am not going to tolerate fraudulent points of order: I am not going to.

Mr. Anyien: I hope that hon. Members are not trying to get me off my point because I have a point I want to make. And, Mr. Speaker, it must be realized, and here we have got to be honest, it must be realized that even when the Holy Spirit came and when the Holy Spirit came to his disciples and when they must go and bring everything so that it could be divided. When Aamias refused Peter said "in the name of God you will die" and they did die. Mr. Speaker, which means that God of today is the loving God of all times and as such when a man is gifted that makes him richer than anybody, I am not gifted so that I can exploit people, I do find so I can serve them. Mr. Speaker, I do find so I can serve them. Mr. Speaker, I do find so I can serve them, but I would like to say that, that is what I call "scientific socialism."

Mr. Speaker, now, I come to "communism." I want to warn my hon. Members that communism will only come to our country if our people are exploited. If our people are not exploited, you may bring millions and millions of pounds to try to turn our people into communists, they will turn you away. Mr. Speaker, you may keep away all the Chinese, you may keep away all the Russians, but if the people feel that this Anyien who we elected is exploiting us and then come to a position whereby they come to believe that the group has now banded together to exploit us, Mr. Speaker, the masses will rise against this group and it will not be the duty of any Member to go around and tell them, because nobody wants to die. When the people see, when it comes to the point that the people can no longer accept the exploitation the people may turn up against the Government, so, Mr. Speaker, to guard against that, not that we want to buy the bullets, it is not that we want to threaten anybody, what we need to do is to supply the basic needs of our people and Mr. Speaker, communism will never come to Africa, communism will never come within Kenya.

The people must know that the conditions which lead to places like China becoming communist was because for millions and millions of years the majority of the people in China were exploited. When they got fed up with the exploitation they said we shall fight with our teeth, you may have the tanks, but we shall bite with our teeth and we shall fight and Mr. Speaker, the masses fought for twenty-eight years to overthrow the ex-government that was exploiting them. So, Mr. Speaker, the best way of stopping communism from coming to Kenya is not to go to public meetings and shout "Oh, communism is coming, you know what communism will give you, it will give you this or that," because the people will say "Oh, communism, that is what we want." We want to say, Mr. Speaker, I want to know now so that other hon. Members may have a chance to speak. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that some people think that when we say that we want socialism, it means that we are going to tell the people in the constituencies to sleep and tell the people in Kenya to come and feed them. This is not the case, you will find that those hon. Members who have been in socialist countries will which if they are honest, but if they are dishonest they can say what they like, but in the honest they can say what they like, but in the socialist country everybody must work to earn his own living. It is only in the capitalist states where you find people sitting on the corners waiting and asking you to give them something begging and asking you to give them something free, but not the people of socialist countries. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say this before I sit down, if our people in the country-side, Mr. Speaker think that because we have adopted this

[Mr. Anyienh] and Asians are better off economically than the Africans. This is not the fault of the present Government, and let nobody blame the present Government for that. But, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we say, we are going to revert, this is the basis of the alignment. If we are going to say that Mr. Smith must return what he had yesterday and Mr. Kaimu or Dr. Kiiano, yesterday, and then we are merely confirming and you cannot say that that is no independence from anybody. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, for that reason it will be, and I am sure that the Government will not be able to provide all the things which have been promised in the Kanu Manifesto and which have also been promised in this thing. If the Government will not be brave enough, not less brave than the British Government, to be brave enough and take over some of the main means of production. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is very difficult sometimes, when you find in Britain the electricity is in the hands of the Government. You also find that Premier Wilson has also nationalized the steel industry. Mr. Speaker, Sir, Britain is a capitalist country, but then you will find that if you say that you will be called a communist and be accused of bringing foreign ideologies. Mr. Speaker, Sir, when we were fighting for independence the strong nationalists were described by the colonialists as communist and may I tell my own brothers that if they are going to take over the position of those colonialists by referring to their brothers as communist. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that I said in my public meeting at the hon. Mr. Muliro's kingdom. I said that we should be able to nationalize for example, power, breweries, the East African Tobacco, the taxis you see here and the Overseas Touring Company. You know then that some people say, "Oh, his ideas are communist." If those who are saying this are joining mixed forces, using their positions then they must come out and say that they want to represent the views or the interest of the people for whose cause they are here. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we demand and we say that nobody should blame Mzee Kenyatta for not providing free education. How is the Mzee Kenyatta going to provide free education when the Kenya Government has not got the money? Then the people turn round and say that it is becoming communist. Where is he going to get money to give the people in order that they might get free education? When we elected him President, we did not give him a mandate to make money. He is not going to work that. The Mzee Kenyatta is not going to go all over the place kneeling down and asking all the Governments to give him money to give to the people of Kenya. This he cannot do, and to expect him to do that is expecting too much, from the Government and the President. But what we want, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I understand that the profit, for example from the East African Tobacco, from the beer that we drink, from the cigarettes that we smoke from what my mother writes when she is telling me that she is coming to see me in Nairobi, from the taxis that are used by the tourists, and so many such companies, that those profits could give Kenya tomorrow morning free education from Standard I to Standard VIII, free medical treatment for the people of Kenya for one year again.

Now, Mr. Speaker, what is interesting is that some people—Some people are shaking their heads. Mr. Speaker, but I know it because when I was working in the East African Tobacco Company we went on strike for about a week or two, and they said that because of the strike they had lost about £5 million, as was announced in the papers.

Now, I ask the hon. Ministers to find out exactly what we mean, Mr. Speaker, we are not robbers, so we are not going to take over people's properties. For example, if you were to take over the Tea Estates you would not be robbing. My father worked for the Tea Estates and was getting Sh. 1 as salary. Then my brother was there to work and was getting about Sh. 20. Now, if we were to find out the right amount that my father and brother, and your brother and cousin should have got, we would find that these people would not know.

So, Mr. Speaker, when we talk of nationalization, we do not mean that we just want to take it over, and then form a relation with the owner, or with the British, or whoever owns the industry. Nationalization means that Government will take it over. Government will tell the owners that they have no money and they have to take it, and they will be able to pay in the next ten years. In other words, they will start paying after a year or two, and will carry on paying gradually until they have finished paying. This is what is being done in so many places. This has nothing to do with scaring away capital. The hon. Muliro did make this very clear, that even the people from the United States are now investing money in socialist countries, when they know that there is nationalization. So, the question of scaring away capital does not come into this. As a matter of fact, Mr. Speaker, it should be known that no Government will be able to be economically independent if we continue as we are doing today in Kenya. That is why I strongly support the steps the Government has taken. I do not [Mr. Anyienh] agree that everything is written here, but who can write everything and satisfy everybody. Nobody can do that. Even Karl Marx has to reduce some things. So, there is nothing that can be written and be perfectly all right.

Mr. Speaker, I am not Marxist, I am an African, and I am socialist. If I may show my ignorance, Mr. Speaker, I have never read Marx, and I do not really think it is necessary for me to read Marx. What I think I should do is go down to my constituency and find out the problems of my constituents. The problems of the constituents are at home. They are not in New York, or anywhere else. The hon. Minister for Economic Planning and Development does not have to go anywhere to see the problems of his constituency. All he needs to do is walk down to Majengo and see the ladies there who have had to turn to very bad means of getting money because we have not organized a better way for them to get a living. It is not the fault of those women, but it is our fault, and we have to help them.

So, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say the Kenya Government—the President of our Government is below nobody, and as such, he does not have to ask anybody for permission to do anything. Of course, he must maintain the good relationship with all other people, but then, I do not think it will be a bad thing for him to nationalize the Breweries, Tobacco, Hotels, Overseas Touring Company, and so on. Mr. Speaker, Sir, why do I want to harp on this? The reason is this: these companies have been making money in Kenya, and the profits that they make go to Britain. Then we send our Minister for Finance, Mr. Gichuru, to bring back loans and then we give them interest. Meanwhile this money stays here, but then after a few days the money goes back to Britain. Then when another Minister comes, we will send him to bring back the same money as a loan. Why do we allow this to continue? We want to be able to borrow from Britain for five years. But, I can tell the Kenya Government today that if they continue in the way they are doing now, we shall continue to borrow for the next fifty years from Britain and from many other places, and that will mean that we cannot be truly independent people.

Mr. Speaker, in this document they say that shares should be bought. Who is going to buy the shares? I do not really need to buy them. I could do without buying them. At least I can take my children to school, because I am a Member of Parliament; I get a salary paid by the tax-payors, and I can take my children to school. I can get medical attention paid for by the taxpayers.

An hon. Member: Exploiter!

Mr. Anyienh: Mr. Speaker, somebody is saying "Exploiter". I agree with you. The only man who can buy shares is an exploiter. He is actually trying to change the colour of the owner of these shares.

So, Mr. Speaker, I say that the question of shares, if it is going to be the question of shares, then for Kenya to be truly socialist, we have to borrow some little thing. I know that some Members will not agree with me, but we have to borrow. For example, Dr. Nkrumah has refused his Ministers holding more than a certain amount of money anywhere. We cannot have this sort of thing. We do not want to have Ministers who have so much money that they can bank some in Geneva, bank some in New York, and even in Moscow. This is not right, and this is not fair. What we should do, Mr. Speaker, —

An hon. Member: Take it from them!

Mr. Anyienh: I wish the hon. Member would let me speak. I was not referring to him as a matter of fact. The President calls everybody Anyienh, but it is not his fault, because he does not see me very often.

Mr. Speaker, for these reasons if we are going to have a socialist state, we must say that we cannot earn more than a certain amount so that the money can be distributed evenly. Mr. Speaker, the other thing I would like to ask is why our banks are foreign banks? This is very dangerous. In the Congo when Lumumba took over, one morning he went to the bank and asked for some money and they told him they had no money for him. How can the Prime Minister of an independent nation go to the bank and be told that there is not even one cent for him? This could happen even in our country. One day the Minister for Economic Planning could go to the bank and just want a small amount of money, but there will not be any. Then the Members of Parliament will not be paid, so they will start quarrelling, the civil servants will not be paid, and they will start quarrelling, and everybody will not be paid, and will start quarrelling. So, for that reason, Mr. Speaker, this bank that we have got is to be completely independent, and our President must have power over the bank, and when he says that he wants money, there will be some. Mr. Speaker, I would not say that the President goes there to get money to go and marry another wife, or to go and buy another

[Mr. Anyieni] by their own behalf but on behalf of the people who voted them here. What the people of Kenya will have to expect is what I understand the Minister for Economic Planning has said: "that is, a minimum income for every person in Kenya. This everybody must be able to have. When we say we are going to have a socialist state, we do not really mean that all people—Kisumu and Anyieni—are all going to be cut to the same size. I think that would be very unfair, but the hon. Dr. Kiambu must be tall enough to be seen and not be trodden upon by the taller people or by another man, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that being the case, I actually mean to say that in a socialist state everybody is going to have the basic necessities of life. I hear one Member telling me, Mr. Deputy Speaker, "equal opportunities". The hon. Member must know that he was a very, very popular man when the British were here because he fought to maintain the status of his people, so the hon. Member ought to know that under the colonial rule we were not even given equal opportunities with other races, and when some people say there is no class problem in Kenya, there is no class war in Kenya, I would say there is a class struggle in Kenya, Mr. Deputy Speaker; there is a class problem. Let us not say it is racial, but if there is an Asian in the street who is not a rich man and who cannot afford to wear a coat like the one most of the hon. Members here are wearing, that man does not say, "Well, I'm an Asian, so it does not matter whether I am poor or I am rich." And in socialism, Mr. Deputy Speaker, there is no question of colour. As a matter of fact, if there were socialism in Kenya, I would encourage people to come from many other places, such as from London, if they have some experience to help us, because they are not coming to exploit, they are coming to serve the masses.

I would like to say, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that the question of equal opportunities must be recognized, if it was the question of equal opportunities. Why did the Governmental departments demand Africanization? If it were equal opportunity then why did we not say that the expatriate Civil Service could continue to remain here and Mzee Kenyatta would also give equal opportunities to everybody? We demanded that for the recognition of that opportunity we must have an African as a President and we must recognize both of them. That must go right down to the economic development of our country. I know that the Minister for Commerce and Industry knows very well, that you can get on your marks, get set, and go, when one man is behind the other, which means the Government through this African Democratic Socialism then Government is going to take steps so that the African will also be in some state where you will find, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that we do not have an African Government. If someone came from Siberia or from Alabama, they would say, "these Africans, what are they doing here? This must not continue, and the fact of this Mr. Speaker, Sir, the road is called Kenyatta Avenue or whatever you call it. It is a mockery to our independence and individuality of our African people to see all these things, and we hope that African democratic socialism will be able to get rid of some of these things. When we say this, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we say that the African should be given a chance. We do not really mean, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that we are going to have one of two, or even one of ten Africans to take over from the ten Asians. We are not saying that one Asian will be here, and one African will take his place. This would not be in the interest of Kenya. Now this African democratic socialism, because what it means is that the only difference between Mr. Kamau and Mr. Patai is that Mr. Kamau is a black man, and Mr. Patai was a brown man, and an exploiter does not have to be white, does not have to be black. An exploiter is an exploiter, whatever colour they are.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other thing is that through African democratic socialism our people are going to be guaranteed some food. Now, I do not want to create, but for the information of the House when the Europeans were ruling the country, we in Kenya, unless there was an international shortage of food, we never had any food from Tanzania, never any from Uganda, and maize for example from Uganda, but Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, because of this policy, that today the Africans who buy a piece of land, the policy of things that a person must have a piece of land before he can see that there is independence. This is the wrong policy. Because of that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the land which was being farmed well by the settlers has been divided up into such small bits, and on subsistence level up into such small bits, and as a result, Mr. Speaker, Sir—I hope the hon. Members will wait for me to say, because I am quite capable of speaking for myself, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have had to buy all the maize that we can buy from Tanzania, and all the maize that we can from Uganda, and today we have to buy more than 4 million bags of yellow maize from the United States of America. We know that in the United States it is used to feed pigs. This is the maize

[Mr. Anyieni] which we are going to use in Kenya. This is not right, Mr. Speaker, Sir, and I hope that the only reason why we did not have enough is because we did not have that document in action.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with that I would like to say that I do not, and the hon. Members here know, that I do not support the idea of splitting up farms, which have been farmed economically, into such small pieces. This is not right, this is why, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I brought a Motion to the House saying that Government should put a limit, so that if my hon. Mr. Bomett has 500 acres or 1,000 acres and it is within the Government's control, then he should be left with that land so that he can produce for the people of the land. This is the fact of the matter Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not capitalism, but then how is Mr. Bomett going to own this land? How is he going to sell it? The European there was employing about 50 Africans, is the hon. Mr. Bomett going to employ only 10 people, pay them about Sh. 30 each, they work for him all their life, working for him when they were poor people and they die poor people. That is not what we mean. So, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the only reason why any hon. Member wants to have a big piece of land is because he wants to make a profit for himself.

Under socialism, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we are guided by the wish to serve and not by the great urge to own as much as you can. Now, if this principle would control us then I do not think we would have a lot of quarrels here calling each other exploiters, communists and other things. These would disappear and we would have African democratic socialism trying to help the people. So, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, here is where the African democratic socialism is going to be affected by Government. We demand from the Government, that they should take over some of the big pieces of land, maintain the site, let enough people to work on the land and the machinery and let these people farm the land on a co-operative basis. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, so that the production will be maintained, and Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, if a person has bought land and any person has some land irrespective of whether he is an Indian, European or an African, if he has land and he is not farming it then he is not producing anything out of the land, then this piece of land should be bought more readily than the piece of land which is being developed.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would also like to say that if Government takes over such a farm, then there should be no question of compensation. There is no question at all of compensation if the land has not been developed. The land belongs to the people of Kenya and if it is neglected and undeveloped, in order to produce some meat for the people who live in the cities, then that land will be taken over and be given to people who could do some good. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I believe that if it were to be taken away from Masailand—

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to make this clear, that if that land belonged to a clan of the Masai and it was taken away, then it should be given to another Masai not any other tribe. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I understand some people are protesting and I hope that they are right because you will never have a situation whereby the Masai have to be favoured and the others have nothing.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the other thing which I would like to say—

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry, (Mr. Oluothip): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, is it not in order for the hon. Member to refer to the Masai tribes that they have to be forced.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think the hon. Member was saying that the Masai do not have to be favoured.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would say that one hon. Masai Member here, all right, I will leave that.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the other point which I would like to make is the basis of any socialism, African, Asian or European socialism is that Government should go to some expense to all the main means of production in that particular country.

[The Speaker (Mr. Stale) resumed the Chair]

Now, here, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is when we say that the main means of production should be in the hands of the Government. Some people then say, "Oh, communist, communist, communist." Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in this country today we demand that Government takes over the main means of production. These people who say that that is communism, we can see whose interests they are here to protect or to defend. Mr. Speaker, Sir, out of colonialism which ruled in this country for seventy years, some of the reasons why Kenya was colonized was because it could be developed as part of England for the interest of the motherland. As a result, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not the fault of the President of Kenya, but as a result today the Europeans

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, in seconding this Motion, I want to dwell on two points which are particularly my responsibility: that is, taxation and overseas aid. I have no intention of trying to anticipate what I shall say at Budget time.

I want to emphasize the fact that has been laid in the Paper, that our objective is to try and secure as much money as possible, to enable the Government to run, whereas, at the same time, we do our very best to spread the burden of taxation, particularly to get as much money from where it is available, from those who can afford it, and make the burden less for those who are not able to pay.

The other point is in relation to overseas aid. I think the Paper does make it very clear that if we want to develop as rapidly as possible, we cannot get money from within the country to enable us to do so, and therefore we have to resort to other countries who have to come to our aid. Sometimes, Sir, it is not so easy to get this aid because some countries who are willing to help us have their own problems of balance of payments. I think you will remember reading in the Press that Britain, for instance, which has been the main source of our finances, was in difficulties with balance of payments to the tune of £745 million.

It is almost impossible to get aid without some form of strings. When we get very generous aid usually this aid is attached to the goods. For instance, with Britain now, because she has her own problems of balance of payments, she insists that with a certain percentage of her aid we must buy goods from her. The easiest place to get money, of course, is from the American Industrial Development and the World Bank, and if we have projects well prepared, we always do get money. May I add that in trying to get this aid, we—

QUORUM

Mr. Odoyo: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is there a quorum in the House?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, there is no quorum. Ring the Division Bell.

[The Division Bell was rung]

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We now have a quorum. You may continue, Mr. Gichuru.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I was going to say that whenever I try to get money, I do endeavour to ensure that I get it from any part of the world, and we have had money from both sides—the West and the East—for which we are very grateful.

In seconding this Motion, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think it is important that this Paper goes through because it will enable us to leave the country with no doubt as to what African socialism is, because what we want is something that is our own that is both our tradition and our inheritance. It is, therefore, very important that this should be made very clear and that it is the duty of all of us as representatives of the people to go out in these next three weeks and explain to our constituents exactly what the Government is doing and the meaning of African socialism.

I feel Mr. Deputy Speaker, that it is important that we hurry up and I would like to correct one remark that was made earlier on: that this Paper will not have a bearing on the Budget. It will. If the sentiments expressed in the Paper are accepted by this House, then we must follow this up also in our Budget, to ensure that we reach that maximum development that we are all very anxious to see, because I feel that socialism is based on the assumption that each individual must work hard, because if he does not, then he will be living on the sweat of others. I feel that we should be proud of owning property, that we have worked hard for.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, as I promised that I would not be long, with these few words, I would like to support the Motion.

Mr. Anyienji: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I must thank the Minister and the Cabinet for working out this Paper.

If I may be allowed, I would like to pay something to help hon. Members come to know why the Government now has come to accept socialism in whatever form they want.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, it was in 1959, when Kanu was not a very strong party and the President was in gaol, when two Ministers from Kenya went to West Germany and started committing Kenya to becoming a completely capitalist state. At that time, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Kanu was formed, and the group demanded the release of Mzee, demanded that the land must be given to the Africans, demanded that the British Government should pay settlers, whose land was going to be taken over by the Kanu Government. Later on, the original Manifesto

[Mr. Anyienji] Kanu, which had been drafted by these Ministers, was shown and you, Mr. Deputy Speaker, know that the word "socialism" was included, but somebody clever made sure that it was African democratic socialism.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: I first of all should like to say that the word "African" here is not properly used. Kenya has no right to claim to speak for the whole continent of Africa, for the socialism that we are going to effect in Kenya is not the same socialism which the people of Tanzania, of Uganda, of the Congo, of any other country in Africa are going to effect. Every other country, Mr. Deputy Speaker, will have its own socialism. I think it would be proper, if we refuse to call it scientific socialism, to call it Kenya socialism.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki): You define scientific socialism.

Mr. Anyienji: Mr. Deputy Speaker, if I tried to define scientific socialism, I would say it is the socialism which the hon. Member was not taught by the British, because the British cannot teach you scientific socialism.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to say I hope that from today there will be no question of anybody calling any other person a capitalist or a communist or anything else, for that matter, because we have now this document. Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is because in the country today some of the bankrupt politicians have tried to grab fear among our people, fear that there is communism coming to this country. Now that this House—and I think the House will accept this Paper—is going to accept this Paper, I believe that it will be the responsibility of every Member to explain to the masses the word "socialism" as it will be applied in the White Paper. I must say that when we came to this House and some of us were saying something about socialism, some Members here thought it was abandonment to mention the word "socialism", but I think it is a great achievement for this country that now, even the very same Members are now shouting it, irrespective of the objectives which they have tried to qualify.

Dr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to say that from today on Kenya will be a socialist state, Kenya will be a welfare state. I do not think it will be proper to expect the Kenya Government tomorrow morning to start becoming like any other very well advanced socialist state, but we believe that the Kenya Government from now on will start taking definite steps to make Kenya a welfare state. From time to time this Paper will be reviewed according to the needs of the country; so much so that after some ten or twenty years, Kenya will truly be a socialist country.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, there are things we are going to tell the masses, which they must expect under a socialist state, and we do not want anybody to go around and start saying that these people are opposing the Government, because these are the essentials of a socialist state. The essential factor of a socialist state is that children, irrespective of what their parents own, will be guaranteed education. It will be the responsibility of Government to make sure that the children not only of the rich, not only of Members of Parliament will go to the best schools, but the Government will work in such a way that not immediately but after some time, every child will have the chance to have an education. To do that the Government has to start now, so that we can go and say, "Now, look at this thing we have approved. Before we approved it, you saw what was happening." We can now start telling our people that they must, if they want to help Mzee Kenyatta to fulfil what has been said in this Paper, all follow behind Mzee Kenyatta and refuse to accept those elements who are trying to bring confusion in the countryside and thereby indirectly discredit Mzee Kenyatta for being unable to get the people of Kenya together.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, medicine is another thing that the people of Kenya from this document should be guaranteed. The people of Kenya are not interested in this Paper; it is more useless than a leaf, than anything, but what is more important is the words in it, which will be fulfilled by our Government within a reasonable time for our people not to be too impatient waiting for the Government to do so, as our people were almost becoming impatient for our Government to start doing something concerning the Kanu Manifesto.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, sometimes when you are out in the countryside you find a child who is very sick and then you ask why the child has not been taken to hospital, and the mother, in tears, tells you that she has no money to take the child to hospital. This child is the child of the State, this child is the child who could have been taken to the President of our Republic, and this because the child cannot have medicine because the Members of Parliament have failed to work out a way of making sure she will have this treatment and have instead come here and quarrelled among themselves, forgetting that they are not here on

[The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, those Members who say that we should prolong or delay this Motion are not doing anything, but only creating confusion in the country.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Minister in order to insinuate or to impute that some Members are trying to confuse the people in the country by delaying this Paper?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is out of order even to suggest it.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitipitip): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said that if we are going to delay this Bill, it means, perhaps, the bringing of confusion in the country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Kenya people—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would like to make it quite clear that it is quite all right to say that something a Member says or does has a bad effect, but what is out of order is to suggest that he intends that bad effect.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitipitip): I did not say that, Mr. Speaker.

Sir, I feel very strongly that Kenya a few weeks ago was very confused. Some of our friends here bring the policies to such meetings, and relate themselves to the Eastern countries, and some of the Western countries. Therefore, I feel very strongly that this is a spear-head. This Sessional Paper is a spear-head for Kenya, and I feel that if we want to lead the country properly, we must have a spear-head, and after that we can come back and debate the Budget and debate anything else which might come to the House. But, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Sessional Paper is the spear-head to our country, to design African socialism in Kenya, and we make this clear before coming to the Budget.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I very strongly oppose those people who say that we delay this, and I support the Motion, and I think anybody sensible should get this clear, and then we can come to other things.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, as it seems that we have aired our views very clearly on this, I would like to call upon the Mover to reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): This is for the House to decide, but it is quite in order that the House should now decide.

(Question put and agreed to.)

The Vice-President (Mr. Odongo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not wish to waste the time of the House as all the time wasted in this argument is also counted and is very valuable indeed. May I just point out one thing, all those Members who wanted time had, a member at one time, insisted that we should have an even longer time in which to debate this, and as a result we did. We gave this White Paper all this time we have given it. We gave it at the request of the Members and at the same time we had considered also the period between the actual publication and also the debate, and at this time the Members themselves considered and said that the time would be sufficient for them to read the Paper through and understand it. In fact, so far, the Paper is written in simpler English than most of our Members speak. Many of our Members speak very complicated English. So, I thought because this was the beginning, this actually being not the completion, but of moving forward and as you go forward this Paper will not just be a complete thing which can never be added to. You will always go on. You must find where you begin and then build from there. Now, with these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I still appeal to my hon. Members who are actually reluctant to please give way and let us move ahead.

POINT OF ORDERWRITTEN SPEECHES TO BE PIGEON-HOLES

Mr. Anyeni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, we understand from the beginning when the hon. Minister for Economic Planning was moving, he said that this Paper was discussed fully in the Cabinet, it was given time and everything was said and I understand that the reason why the Ministers want to take time to speak is because they wanted to give the House details of what they are planning in their own departments. I am wondering, Mr. Speaker, whether it would be in order for the Ministers to give opinions and writing and place them in our pigeon-holes so that these speeches will not be given orally in view of the shortage of time, and that this time can be devoted, in view of the shortage of time to speeches from Members and Back-benchers rather than from Government Ministers?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I remember one occasion some time ago in Legislative Council when a Minister was called upon to move a Bill and he said, "I have written a very long speech of many pages to move this Bill and I think it might bore hon. Members and so I have put a copy in their pigeon-holes, they can read it instead." That is a very unusual practice and I do not recommend it; that hon. Members, instead of speaking in this House should put papers in pigeon-holes. It is better that they should speak on the Floor of this House according to usual practice.

POINT OF ORDERSELECTION OF SPEAKERS AND READING OF SPEECHES

Mr. Ngala-Aboko: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that Members in this House are so many and they are so concerned with the Paper as allocated by the Government as a most important Paper, could you please rule that Ministers are not to speak—The Minister for Economic Planning is enough to answer on behalf of other Ministers so that the Back-benchers here are given time to give their views with the accommodation, as the Minister for Economic Planning said, this is already planned because the Government has fully discussed this and now there is no need for them to be monotonous on speaking on the same item which we want to give our views on?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I cannot possibly rule, when there is no limit to the length of speeches or the time of debate, that any particular Member section of the House shall be limited.

As regards hearings or joints of views, it is my job to the best of my ability to select the speakers and that is what I am trying to do in this debate. There is one valid point, I think, emerging in Mr. Ngala-Aboko's remarks, that yesterday we had a series of speeches from Ministers which were read, word for word, when there did not appear any real necessity for being read word for word and an objection was raised by Members with regard to that, and quite rightly raised by reference to Standing Orders. I do hope that the Ministers speaking in this debate will be as spontaneous as they can be in accordance with Standing Orders.

POINT OF ORDERCONTINUATION OF DEBATE AND CLOSURE

Mr. Oduya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I intend not to waste time, but what I want to know, Mr. Speaker, and I seek your guidance on this. In view of the fact that the Minister for Economic Planning and Development is co-ordinating Minister for all the Ministers, I thought at the time he moved the adoption of this Paper here he had already decided who was to speak for Government. Most of us would like to comment on this Paper and we are a House of 130 people, and since we have only a very few hours tonight and also a very few hours tomorrow morning, is there any way that we can change the Motion that has been approved here so that we can extend this period of debate until we come back for the next Session, and we can discuss it then more fully?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It rests entirely with the House, as any other major decision does. There has been no time limit set by the decision of this House for this debate. Therefore, this debate continues until the House resolves on the closure or no Member wishes to speak any more. The fact that the House may be adjourned tomorrow does not necessarily mean that the debate will be concluded tomorrow; in fact it does not mean that the debate will be concluded tomorrow, unless the House resolves on the closure tomorrow. That is the way with an unlimited debate.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Aboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think with due respect, Sir, that the Motion that has been approved by the House this afternoon stipulates that the debate on the White Paper will come to an end at the interruption of business tomorrow. I feel the House should not be left in any darkness as far as that is concerned.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not the effect of the Motion. There may be some ambiguity in it, but the effect of the Motion is simply to exempt this business from Standing Order 23. The purpose of that exemption is indeed stated to arrive at a completion of the debate, but it was certainly not a resolution of the House that the debate should be completed tomorrow.

MOTIONSESSIONAL PAPER No. 10 OF 1963/65:
AFRICAN SOCIALISM

That this House, having studied carefully the Sessional Paper No. 10 of 1963/65 entitled "African Socialism and its Application to Planning in Kenya" notes and adopts the said Paper as the basis and guide for future development planning and policy in Kenya.

(The Minister for Economic Planning and Development, Mr. Aboya, on 4th May 1965)

who are rejected in the same way we are elected, to have the Provincial Councils examine the Bill, so that when this House passes any document such as this Sessional Paper No. 10, it must carry the full support of our people throughout Kenya. There is no point in hurrying us up on this Paper, saying that we must pass it quickly, because the Budget is coming. This will not stop the Budget. Last year, Mr. Speaker, when we had a Budget, it went through, and this document was not there then. Even now we are faced with the Budget in a few weeks time, but this will not stop the work of the Budget.

Now, I think there is something wrong, that some people are trying to spoil everything that we are trying to do for the benefit of our country, who are here to support the Government in this House. Therefore debate on the document is not really concerned with whether Oduya is there, or Mboya is there, or Masinde is there, the senior people and the individual families will remain. As Mboya found it, it will continue.

Therefore, the Teso people are not Mboya, and that is why I say that we must be given ample time on the document to examine it, and I do not agree and I reject very strongly the views expressed by the Vice-President, that this Paper should be given priority to allow Members tomorrow to complete the Business of the Sessional Paper. I think if we are really to define African socialism, socialism itself is going to bring out the culture and traditions of the African way of life in the country, and how we want it to continue, so it is a White Paper, and the way it has been put is very roughly so that the Members of this House can interpret it to their people but as far as I am concerned, Teso would like to maintain this. Their cultural and traditional way of life.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, is the hon. Member—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think so.

Mr. Oduya: Therefore, we will take the views of the public, the Government Ministers and the Members of the party in question, that is Kanu, to give consideration, and then we will see how much socialism we are going to produce here.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have the greatest respect for the hon. gentleman who has just spoken, but I humbly disagree with him in one thing. Whereas he intends to leave Kenya as he found it, I intend to leave it better than I found it.

Having said that, I think it is quite understandable that we should want to finish the debate before we embark on the Budget debate. After all, the Budget debate is, in effect, another full debate on policies, and to have another debate on policy before we finished this debate on policy would be, as it were, to cross wires, and the result would be confusion. I hear an hon. Member suggest that we have three weeks of rest. We do not have three weeks of rest. Perhaps the hon. Member has three weeks of rest, but I doubt whether the other Members have three weeks of rest. All of us have three weeks of rest work in our constituencies.

Mr. Speaker, apart from that, it is clearly understood by hon. Members that one of the reasons why we are adjourning this week, and have done three weeks this time instead of a fortnight, and one of the reasons why we are adjourning for three weeks, is that immediately next week we have the Central Legislative Assembly meetings, and it is the established convention that we do not hold our Parliament in session while the Central Legislative Assembly is in session here in Nairobi. This is another point which, perhaps, has not been quite appreciated. In any case, Mr. Speaker, if the country would like this debate to come to a conclusion.

We have had a lot said, and the conclusion must be reached so that the country is immediately aware of the decision of this Parliament as regards this White Paper. There is no reason at all why we should extend the sittings in order to consult anyone. If we were not going to adjourn this week, we would have gone on with meetings. There would have been no question of going back to the country again. This debate has started and this debate has to be concluded. The other issues mentioned by the hon. Member are entirely irrelevant.

Mr. Masinde: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I do not have much to say on this except to reject the Motion as it stands, because what is required here is that we hurry, but after passing this Sessional Paper No. 10, in future we might regret it, although we agree that African socialism is right for Kenya, but we might want to have time to amend its definition. But, I think hon. Members of this House must be given full opportunity to give their suggestions and with these suggestions, the Minister for Economic Planning should incorporate them in this White Paper before we pass it.

Sir, whether the Central Legislative Assembly is going to meet or not, Kenya is going to be

[Mr. Masinde]

Kenya, and in this Paper, it is a direct underpinning of the East African Federation, and even the East African Common Services, because what is defined as African socialism in Uganda is different; and what is defined as African socialism in Tanzania is different, and here we are not going to be stopped by the fact that the Central Legislative Assembly is going to meet, and then we decide on what is going to happen in Kenya.

Now, the question that we have to pass this because we are facing the Budget time is completely out of place, because this Government has had the chance since 1963 to study this House for a matter of three days and is asked to be passed already. Now, we are elected by the people of this country, and we must—Hon. Ministers here have started reading documents prepared by very intelligent people, but a poor man like Masinde goes out and consults his own people, so how can I understand this document?

On the other side is the question of the African traditions and culture. A Baluhya is completely different from a Luo, and yet they are trying to make one nation of Kenya, but we must realize what are the customs of the Luo and Baluhya. Because of this, Sir, I think it is necessary for the Government to forget all their ambitions of passing this Paper quickly so that we continue next week.

With this, Sir, I beg to oppose.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Acheng-Onoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to be very short on this, in support of the Motion.

This is a procedural Motion, Mr. Speaker, and I do not see any reason whatsoever for somebody objecting to or opposing this particular Motion, who only on the question, consultation. Now, who only to be consulted? All of us here in this House were elected on an understanding that we stood for African socialism, and this House has been confused all the time because the definition, clarification on this particular question was not available. It was the duty of every Member, when this Paper was published, to read it, to study it, to consult the Ministers so that everybody should understand it. We, in the Ministry of Information, have already printed pamphlets which would help all hon. Members to explain to their constituencies that if it is a question of consultation, do they not know that they were elected on the basis of African socialism, which we are now trying to define, and to expand, so that it could be understood. The Kanu Manifesto is just the basis, and the present Paper is a definite effort to expand our policy.

Now, I am referring to the book Tea & Yourself Citizenship, which is referring to African socialism and its application—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, is the Minister in order in assuming that everybody was elected on the socialism ticket when there are people here who were not elected on the socialism ticket, but on Mujibism?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Acheng-Onoko): Mr. Speaker, when the other party, the Kadu Party crossed the Floor, they identified themselves with the policy on which every Member was elected.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think we are getting off the subject.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Acheng-Onoko): Mr. Speaker, what I was trying to explain is that the Sessional Paper No. 10 is based on the Manifesto, and it is the duty of the hon. Members to read the Paper and explain it to their own people, and I think if it is possible, we should conclude the debate this week.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloinpiipi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the Motion. I do not agree with the hon. Member, Mr. Masinde, who said that they needed to go back to their own constituency, and consult their constituents.

Mr. Speaker, every Member who has been elected to this House is given the mandate from his people to say whatever he feels is better for his constituency. Therefore, there is no reason why a Member should say that he should go back to consult his people. If he feels that he must do so, it means that he is not working for them in this House.

Mr. Speaker, I think that if any Member wants to refer such a Motion to his people, it means that he is not working as he was elected to this House.

The other question I want to put, Sir, is that I am a Masai, and I know all the Masai customs. Therefore, if anything differed from this Paper, I am at liberty to tell them in this House, Sir. Therefore, there is no question that a Baluhya or a Luo custom does not come together. If it does not come together, it is up to us here, the elected Members, to try and put things together, because we have the mandate of our own people.

[The Speaker]

have sent him out of the Chamber. I do not want to pursue this one any more.

You have another one, Mr. Anyienl.

POINT OF ORDERSTANDING ORDERS ON ADMISSIBLE MOTIONS

Mr. Anyienl: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I see here that when we come to this House every time we start, I see that there is some paper there from which you read, "for the welfare of society and just government of men." Mr. Speaker, Sir, yesterday a Motion was given in this House, by one hon. Member expressing no confidence in one particular Minister. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to know as to whether—according to Standing Orders—you do not have the power to stop Members from bringing any political differences, which they might have had outside, for discussion here on personality basis. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am saying this—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! I think you had better be quite general in what you are asking and not refer to particular cases, Mr. Anyienl.

Mr. Anyienl: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is there no Standing Order or any discretion on your part to stop this House becoming a channel or a platform, through which Members come to quarrel over their personal differences instead of fighting for the nation?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! This is also a point which I think Mr. Anyienl has done well to raise, because it is a question I have been asked by Members from time to time—and I would like to get the position clear. Standing Order 30 provides that:—"Before giving Notice of Motion the Member shall deliver to the Clerk a copy of the proposed Motion and the Clerk shall submit the same to Mr. Speaker.

If Mr. Speaker is of opinion that any proposed Motion is one which infringes, or of the debate on which is likely to infringe, any of the provisions of these Standing Orders he may direct—

- (a) that notice of it cannot be given save with such alteration as he may direct; or
- (b) that the Member concerned be informed that the Motion is inadmissible."

Now that defines my power, and the whole of my power. You will see that it only empowers me to reject the Notice of Motion if it actually infringes Standing Orders, or is likely to give rise to a debate which infringes Standing Orders. Very few Notices of Motion will actually infringe Standing Orders. In the few cases that there are, then indeed I reject them. There are quite a number of other Notices of Motion sent into me which I think are rather premature, or may involve personalities beyond any justification, or may, in some other way, do more harm than good, if they are brought into this House. In those cases, I do try to exercise what influence I have, to persuade the Member concerned to think carefully before he gives the Notice, or to consider modification of his language, or to discuss the matter with some other authority before he eventually ventilates his dissatisfaction, or whatever else seems to me to be in the best interest of himself and the House; but that is only advice or persuasion and I must make a very clear to hon. Members that it is only advice and persuasion, and that my actual authority stops where the Order says it stops, because I do not want hon. Members to be stifled by some misunderstanding of the actual power which I have. Indeed, I think all hon. Members would agree, it would be very wrong if I or any other single individual be given the final say as to what is or what is not to come forward in the House, so long as it is according to Standing Orders. I may well believe that a particular Motion will do a lot of harm, but why should I be the final judge? How can I be the final judge of that? In the end, it must be the House which decides. In the end, the question of what notices hon. Members give in the House, what motions they bring here, what questions they ask, and everything they do in this House, is their responsibility. It has been said that the dignity of a House is in the hands of the Members, and hon. Members must never forget that. The Speaker is there to give effect to the will of the Members and to their Standing Orders, but he cannot make Members have dignity if they do not want it. He cannot make them feel respect if they do not. It is with the Member's ability if they do not. It is with the Member and their own individual responsibility is the only ultimate safeguard.

Mr. Anyienl: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in this House several times you have ruled as out of order any direct or personal attack on another Member, and consistent with that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, would it not be in order that, if you could stop any such motions which are a direct attack on another Member? For it would, Mr. Speaker, Sir, mean the tomorrow another Member may give notice of having no confidence in another popular Minister, and this would make our country a laughing stock in the eyes of the world.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do try, as hon. Members know, if they heard my ruling two days ago, to discourage hon. Members from indulging in personal recriminations in this House, when our duty is to consider matters objectively; but it is not under any power in Standing Order, that I do so. Therefore a Motion which may produce such conflict between Members is not scotally out of order, unless and until the Speaker is empowered under Standing Orders to make it so. As regards the Motion involving no confidence in a Minister, well hon. Members do understand that having regard to collective responsibility, it implies no confidence in the Government. However that may be, it is not the first time in this or any other Parliament that there has been a direct attack on a particular Minister. It does sometimes happen, but there again it is for the hon. Members to judge whether or not they are justified in doing this.

Mr. Warilth: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the House felt that it was necessary for the keeping of the good name and dignity of the House to set up a small committee to assist you, the Speaker, in collecting some of these Motions or questions which raise the kind of matters which have been referred to by Mr. Anyienl, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this could be done if the House felt that—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think we can debate that kind of proposition now; but if Mr. Warilth thinks that that is a good idea, which frankly I doubt, it should be brought before the Sessional Committee first, as a proposition for amendment of Standing Orders, and if such an amendment is then approved it can be brought forward to the House. It would be a matter of amendment to Standing Orders. I think we must go on with the business now.

MOTIONEXEMPTION FROM STANDING ORDERS: GOVERNMENT BUSINESS IN PRIVATE MEMBERS' TIME

The Vice-President (Mr. Odings): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the following, with your permission and leave of the House:

THAT the business of the Sessional Paper No. 10 of 1963/65 be exempted from the traditions of Standing Order 23 and in so far as it would be necessary for it in Private Members' day to complete the debate thereof before the time for the Interruption of Business under Standing Order 15 (a).

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this I think the hon. Members will understand that we were in the middle of a very important debate on this White Paper, and as tomorrow will be the last day before we adjourn for about three weeks it is felt necessary that we give the Members time tomorrow to go and debate this very important Paper and conclude it tomorrow. I must also warn Members that immediately after this, in our next session, we will begin our Budget debate, and as far we may not have enough time to go on with another important paper as the one we have.

Simply because of that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Sessional Committee has decided that as tomorrow is a special day we should ask the leave of the House to make it for the debate on this Paper.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya) seconded.

Mr. Ngika: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to support the Vice-President in this move. My reason for supporting him is that the Sessional Paper in question I hope will be the basis of the Budget, and as the basis of the Budget it is very important that it should be cleared first, so that the Budget can be much more smooth and based on complete ideas which are approved of by this House. I think, although it is a pity that Private Members' Motions will not be there if this House allows this, but I think that whatever we may discuss privately tomorrow is not, with due respect, of as much urgency as this Motion, Paper, and therefore I would like to support the Vice-President in moving that we continue with this business tomorrow.

Mr. Odings: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I rise to object to this. There is no point, Mr. Speaker, Sir, of suggesting what my hon. friend has just said here, that the Paper in question, so-called African socialism, is in some greater connexion with the Budget which is due very soon.

What I know is that the Budget is already drafted and we are going to deal with it. There is no necessity to confuse the public. The question of this Paper, Sessional Paper No. 10 is not as simple as many people think. The Members in this House must know that the Paper that it is in question, Mr. Speaker, is purely ideological. Therefore, we must have ample time to debate this Paper, and we must also be given ample time to get the intellectual forces of this country in Government offices. Also, the party, that is Kikuyu, determined the Paper, and the welfare of the different people in the country, and also tried to get the county councils, and representatives

Mr. Kaggia: Mr. Speaker, will the Minister accept the fact that to stop me from addressing a meeting while I can attend a meeting is not protection at all?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, after an hon. Member has complained to me and asked me to use all means at my disposal, as I think fit, to protect him, and I believe this is one of the ways of protecting him, I am going to protect him as he requested.

Mr. Kaggia: Mr. Speaker, as this only happened in the last two weeks and this appeal was with the Minister about a month ago, what other measures of protection has he given me before this?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I ordered all my Ministry and the police to watch over him so that nothing befall him, and I do not have to report all the methods I used because he is very well protected and nothing can happen to him.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, reading from the Press, Mr. Speaker, sometime at the beginning of this week, we understand that some people said that they did not want the hon. Member in the area and as such if he was allowed to continue with more meetings that there was the possibility that there could be bloodshed. What steps has the Ministry taken to make sure that people will not be threatened in front of the President and in front of the Government that there is going to be bloodshed?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you have rather come away from the point.

Mr. Anyieni: Because this was in connexion with the protection of Mr. Kaggia, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Well, let us keep to that.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may ask that type of question, I think it was on Monday that we read that some people in the area were saying that they would not like hon. Mr. Kaggia to hold a public meeting and as such if he had one, and the Minister is now talking about the safety of the Member, there was a possibility of bloodshed. I am asking now, what steps is the Minister taking to make sure that people will not go to the President to threaten Mr. Kaggia with bloodshed?

Dr. Mungai: All methods at my means.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the previous reply by the Minister to the effect that he is protecting the hon. Member, Mr. Kaggia, by cancelling the meetings, is he aware, or does he not agree with

Mr. Kaggia when he said that he was present at the meeting, and he was prohibited from speaking. Being present at the meeting and being prohibited from speaking, is that a protection in itself, when one is exposed to the public?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have to determine the best method on the spot of protecting the individual who is involved and we determined that this was one of the best ways at that particular place rather than to have him stand up and address a crowd where everybody is, when we are not sure what they will do and that is what we did, and as you can see, the results were perfect!

Mr. Kaggia: Mr. Speaker, will the Minister agree with me that he is so scared of my term and that is why he is trying to close my mouth?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my arm is not that long that I can touch his mouth when he is sitting on this side.

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, the thing which is under reference is whether my constituency and I—the two meetings which were in my constituency and I can prove these were not Mr. Kaggia's meetings—is it in order for him to say or to ask the Government why the Government prohibited his meetings, when they were not actually his?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, of course, it is in order. It may be inaccurate, which is quite a different matter.

Mr. Kaggia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like before I bring my point of order, I would like to correct that, that this was my meeting as the Chairman of Kamu, whether it was his constituency or anybody's constituency—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That cannot be done as a point of order.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE: CANCELLATION OF MEMBER'S MEETING

Mr. Kaggia: Now, Mr. Speaker, in view of the very unsatisfactory answer, I would like to take this matter up on an adjournment.

POINT OF ORDER

CONDUCT IN THE CHAMBER AND SPEAKER'S AUTHORITY

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, I have two points of order, to raise. I have already informed you

[Mr. Anyieni]

The first point of order, Mr. Speaker, is that in the history of this House since we were elected, sometimes hon. Members have made statements and you have suggested or you have requested them to withdraw in the interests of the smooth running of this House. For the first time in the history of this House, since some of us came to this House, yesterday the hon. Minister for Economic Planning did say something that was rather offensive to the hon. Member, Mr. Khalif. Mr. Speaker, you suggested to the hon. Mr. Mboya that you thought it best that he withdraw it. Then, the hon. Mr. Mboya did refuse to withdraw. I remember a second time you asked him and he refused. Later on, Mr. Speaker you said it was all right and we could continue. Mr. Speaker, I would like to find out and as a result, Mr. Speaker, before I say what I want to say, as a result of the hon. Member's offence and there was injustice from the Chair, he protested for the first time in this House and he walked out of this House of his own accord. Now, Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the conditions whereby after you have suggested that a Member's remark was not proper and that he must withdraw it, then you stand down and say that the hon. Member's refusal stands, because Mr. Speaker, this is setting a very dangerous precedent for the future.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think it is a good thing that Mr. Anyieni has raised this point of order, if there is any question of injustice or discrimination in the way I conduct proceedings of this House; and it is important that the hon. Members should understand by what rules I am guided in these matters.

The methods available to the Speaker for maintaining the order and dignity of the House vary very considerably. They vary from advice or appeal to Members, through mild rebuke, right on to the final sanction of naming a Member and inviting the House to suspend him from the service of the House. Now, the particular incident to which Mr. Anyieni has referred, was a case where Mr. Mboya spoke to Mr. Khalif in a way that I thought was rather rude, and I said so. Mr. Khalif, not I. Mr. Khalif asked that Mr. Mboya should withdraw what he said. As Mr. Anyieni says, I suggested to Mr. Mboya, not twice but once, that he should withdraw. Mr. Mboya refused to do so. Now I had two alternatives there, I had the alternative of insisting that Mr. Mboya withdraw and sending him out of the Chamber if he refused to, or of considering that it was not serious enough to justify insistence on withdrawal, even though I regretted his refusal to withdraw. That is the line I took, because though I recorded my disapproval of the remark and of Mr. Mboya's refusal to withdraw, it was not a case in which I felt justified to insist on withdrawal. That will happen again, it will happen to any Member where I rebuke him or possibly advise him, but he does not totally accept my rebuke or my advice.

A direction is another thing. If I give a direction and the Member disregards it, that is misconduct and he has to be sent from the Chamber. It was not so in this case. I would say another thing. The authority of the Speaker is not the only sanction for the conduct of Members in this House. There is a far more important sanction than anything the Speaker can say or do, and that is the opinion of the House and the standing of a Member with his colleagues. It may well be that the Member is not subjected to any punishment by the Speaker, but lowers himself in the eyes not only of the Speaker but of the House by his conduct. That sometimes, I say is a stronger sanction. I think always that hon. Members must leave it to the Speaker to decide how far to go on any particular occasion, and trust him as far as they can to be impartial and do what he thinks is in the best interest of the House as a whole.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamwaya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the hon. Member who walked out yesterday in protest had used offensive remarks when I was dealing with his question, I quote from the HANSARD—"I am very glad to simplify the question for my ignorant Assistant Minister"—and be repeated, and I quote again from the HANSARD—"when the hon. Minister for Economic Planning and his Development was dealing with another of his questions, he said, 'Sir, it seems that the Minister has only indicated his ignorance regarding this question.' Does this not equally apply that the Member was very impolite to people who had not been offensive to him at all?"

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would point out to two wrongs do not make a right, and we that cannot now go over all the other mistakes that hon. Members have made in their language; but hon. Members have made in their language; but it is not a bad example of the same thing might have given of where exactly the same thing might have happened. If, when Mr. Khalif called Mr. Nyamwaya ignorant and I commented that the Member was rude, Mr. Nyamwaya had asked Mr. Khalif to withdraw and I had said to Mr. Khalif "I think you ought to withdraw that," and Mr. Khalif refused, then I do not think I would

[The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence]

Member would advise me of any specific instance where the sentence passed indicated such an attitude.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, regardless of my advising the hon. Assistant Minister, would the Assistant Minister confirm here and now that in future the fines in Mombasa will not be Sh. 5, for the illegal sale of milk, and yet the fine in Nairobi is Sh. 900 and in Nakuru is Sh. 200 and in Kisumu is Sh. 70? Will he confirm that he will give instructions that there should be no difference in fines because it is one offence and the fines in the towns of this country are so different?

Mr. Argywings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, I am glad that we have mirth expressed by certain hon. Members.

It appears to me that the hon. Member is thinking of an entirely different Act. If he were thinking of the Dairy Industry Act, it would be a different matter. It appears now that he is talking about the Public Health Act, and under section 18 of this Act, what really happens is that the fines are very small, sometimes only Sh. 30, but under the Dairy Industry Act, which the Kenya Government supports, fines are between Sh. 2,000 and Sh. 10,000 with corresponding heavy sentences of imprisonment.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, with due respect, we are not all lawyers! Would the Assistant Minister tell me, just from the point of view of the question on the Order Paper—he knows what I am referring to—the illegal sales of milk—and he should also know the Act to which I am referring, under which the illegal sale of milk can be penalized by fines levied on the people who sell the milk illegally. Would the Assistant Minister tell me why there is a difference in fines which make me feel that certain magistrates treat them as minor offences, in which case the fines are too low?

Mr. Argywings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, the question really refers to the dairy industry. Section 18 of the Public Health Act deals with the unlicensed sale of milk and, under the general penalties the maximum fine for the offence is Sh. 500 or imprisonment not exceeding two months.

Offences under the Public Health Act have a lower fine and usually they come from Mombasa, but these are not fines in the question which was put by the hon. Member. Might I add here, for the sake of the hon. Member and those who think like he does, that there are provisions under the Public Health Act regulations for imposing heavier fines, for instance, on a person who sells contaminated milk. But the Public Health Act (Cap. 242, Laws of Kenya) deals with people who sell milk illegally and have a licence.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my ex-lawyer friend just said that there are two Acts—

Mr. ole Tiji: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it true to say "my ex-lawyer"?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not know. I think we had better carry on.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Assistant Minister has just said that there are two laws, one by Government and one recognized by Government, under which people who sell milk illegally could be penalized. How is it that this law is not applicable to Kisii where the illegal selling of milk is destroying the dairy industry in Kisii District?

Mr. Argywings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, that is an important and interesting question. The people who sell milk illegally—and I can tell the House that the Government is quite aware of them because some of them, as a matter of fact, are very big and fat people who carry illegal milk for sale in the boots of their cars—have been known and they will be prosecuted under Cap. 242 of the Public Health Act.

As regards the matter of Kisii District which is also part of Kenya, there, too, if anybody is caught or if anyone is reported to be selling milk illegally, he will be dealt with under the appropriate Act.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will go on now.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, supposing I substantiate my figures, will the Assistant Minister apologise for his very appalling answer, or what will he do, because he has treated me as if I am ignorant of the question which I asked? I am willing to substantiate in forty-eight hours.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The further the Minister went was to suggest you were confused two laws and the fines imposed under those two separate laws, in which there is no offence if you can prove him to be wrong in anything he has said, as I have said before, then he will be expected to come and acknowledge that fact to the House, but I do not quite see where you are going to prove him wrong. I do not think you should be offended by the form of his answer.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICECANCELLATION OF MEMBER'S MEETING WITHOUT NOTICE

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kaggia, I think you have a question by private notice? This is to the President's Office?

Mr. Kaggia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know if it is to the President's Office or the Ministry of Internal Security.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Which Minister will be answering?

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): To whom was the question directed, Mr. Speaker, Sir?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I understand he directed it to your Ministry, Dr. Mungai, but, at your request, it was passed on to the President's Office.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have not been informed of any question by private notice. However, I would like the hon. Member to ask it and then we will see about answering it.

Mr. Anyieni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact the hon. questioner would like an answer prepared by the Minister, would it be in order if the Minister could get the question and it could be raised tomorrow instead of today?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think we had better see. The Ministry was definitely notified of this question, though it may well transpire that the Minister himself has not received that notice and is not in a position to answer the question immediately. He can, if he likes, say that he would rather have a little time and answer it tomorrow.

Mr. Kaggia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to explain that I directed this question to the Minister for Internal Security and Defence, and I told him about it, but he told me that this does not concern his Ministry, it concerns the Office of the President. Then I gave notice to the Assistant Minister in the President's Office and here, before this question came up, I approached the Assistant Minister in the President's Office and he told me definitely that it is the Minister for Internal Security and Defence who was going to answer my question.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are not disagreeing about the question, we are quite willing to answer it either on behalf of the President's Office or Internal Security; I just wanted to make it very clear that when this question was mentioned yesterday—I do not even know what question is being put forward, whether it is the one he mentioned when we were walking towards my car yesterday. It was only casually mentioned, not even in writing and no notice was even given to me that it was going to come up.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think we will worry about these points of order. Let us have the question, Mr. Kaggia.

Mr. Kaggia: My question, Mr. Speaker, is: Will the Minister tell this House why my meeting, scheduled to be held at Kahuro, Murang'a, on 18th April 1965 was cancelled by the police without notice, and why I was not allowed to address my meeting held at the same place on 2nd May 1965?

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, in that case, on behalf of either the President's Office or the Ministry of Internal Security, I beg to reply.

Previous to that, the hon. Member himself had come to me to tell me that he has, maybe, too many people in Fort Hall who have a dislike of him and he needed protection. This is one of the ways in which we decided to protect him, not to have him making a speech at a public meeting in Fort Hall where he would just be exposed. He said that I should use all means at my disposal to protect him because of this, and, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did the best I could and now we have proven that the hon. Member from Kandara is in no danger at all and he can hold a meeting, if he pleases, just as the President told the petitioners who went to Gatundu the other day, asking him for his resignation.

Mr. Kaggia: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that the only protection I ask of the Government was for the issue of a firearm, and the Minister refused this protection, does he agree with me that the answer he has given is not correct?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not agree. There is a method of issuing firearms and you do not apply directly to the Ministry; you apply directly to the Firearms Bureau or the local police and then the application is transmitted upwards. When the hon. Member did ask me, I actually said he should make an appointment himself to see the right people, so that this could be fulfilled, and now we have proven there is no danger at all and the hon. Member can continue holding his meetings; and my answer was quite correct.

[Mr. Ngala] relation to the work of providing water starting immediately this month, could he say exactly which place he is starting this construction for water in Kilifi District?

Mr. Mohamed: Mr. Speaker, I do not have these details at the moment, but a technician from the Water Department is at the moment in that area, working on the definite plan and on his return I will be able to supply the information to the hon. Member.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister not agree with me that the water survey in the hinterland of Kilifi and Kwale has been going on for the last five years without anything practical being done while people are starving for water in this area?

Mr. Mohamed: Mr. Speaker, although it may be so, that a survey has been carried out, there are other factors relating to the water supply such as finance, and here the county councils also have a responsibility. Where the county councils are able to provide their share of finance, work is speeded up for that area.

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, would the Assistant Minister tell the House, as the plan has been carried out over the last five years, how many more years there are to come before the plan will be implemented?

Mr. Mohamed: Mr. Speaker, I have been very specific about this. I have said that it is planned to start dam construction in the Kilifi area later this month or at the beginning of next month, and, therefore, the question of waiting for any more years does not arise. It is now only a matter of weeks.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION No. 2043: WATER DEVELOPMENT PROJECTS, KILIFI AND KWALE

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, in view of the very unsatisfactory reply by the Assistant Minister, I would like to move this matter on adjournment.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 2051.

WATER SUPPLIES FOR AKAMBA PEOPLE

Mr. Ndile asked the Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife if he would instruct the Water Apportionment Board in his Ministry to supply Kilulini and Kathyaka inhabitants with five cusecs of water from Kibwezi River since the board had repeatedly refused water requests made by Kikumbugu people in the past.

The Assistant Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife (Mr. Mohamed): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I would like to explain to hon. Members, first of all, what is meant by cusec. One cusec of water is the amount of water passing a given point, including feet per second. It is equivalent to about 500,000 gallons per day. Except in times of exceptional rainfall the entire normal flow of the Kibwezi River is below five cusecs. My Ministry cannot, therefore, allocate the entire flow of this river to the people of Kikumbugu to the detriment of other people further downstream. An amount of five cusecs of water is equivalent to approximately 2½ million gallons per day, and would be excessive for the number of people residing in the area. In fact, Mr. Speaker, the Kikumbugu people are not using the full amount of cusecs per day allocated to them for the irrigation purpose.

Mr. Ndile: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that due to 1961 rain, the cusecs of water from the Kibwezi River were ten and not five as he has said?

Mr. Mohamed: Mr. Speaker, I have explained that it may have risen during the rainy period and may have risen during the early rainfall, but the normal flow is five cusecs in total. If there was a rise of water in particular areas, the Water Apportionment Board cannot allocate that the flow will continue for ever, because these rivers are based on rainfall.

ASSISTANCE FOR MOMBASA AFRICANS TO FORM CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES

Mr. Ngala asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing if he would explain whether he intended to help the Mombasa Africans to put into operation their suggestions of running a co-operative society to sell matingsi and other forms of pombe in the municipal area.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achiong-Onoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of my colleague the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing, I beg to reply.

Shortage of suitably qualified staff has had the effect of restricting expansion of co-operative development in the Coast Province.

This position will be rectified as quickly as possible from personnel at present undergoing comprehensive training.

[The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism] Priority will subsequently be given to co-operative development projects which will promote economic development of an area.

If the hon. Member is of the opinion that sales promotion of pombe will promote such development, the Ministry would consider the proposal and, if feasible, assist as necessary.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, arising from the Minister's reply, would he not agree with me that the question of matingsi and pombe, as an economic industry in Mombasa, is mainly around Mombasa District where three co-operative society officers are stationed by the Government, and this could be started immediately?

Mr. Mohamed: On a point of order, some of us do not have a Swahili dictionary and we do not know what matingsi is.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think that was strictly a point of order. It is quite true that English is the official language of this House but vernacular words in common use are often allowed. Perhaps Mr. Ngala or the Minister will tell the House what matingsi is.

Mr. Achiong-Onoko: Mr. Speaker, I presumed that the hon. Members knew of the word "matingsi". It is a kind of drink.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have already replied and I said that personnel training is being undergone and we hope that as soon as these staff are ready, they will be able to start doing something for this particular co-operative society.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, for those who do not know matingsi, it is the ordinary drink that I will give you if you visit me in Mombasa.

Mr. Speaker, arising from the reply of the Minister, could he tell me why there is this discrimination as between a matingsi or pombe co-operative society, and other forms of co-operative societies which are already in operation in the same area where his officers are supervising in the work?

Mr. Achiong-Onoko: Mr. Speaker, I am being asked to explain if we intend to help Mombasa Africans to effect their idea of running co-operative societies to sell matingsi and other forms of pombe in the municipal area, and I have already explained that.

FARM MACHINERY ASSEMBLY PLANT IN ELDORET

Mr. Twisel asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing whether, in view of the fact that the farmers in Usain Gijubu found it difficult to get farm machinery, the Minister would establish a big assembly plant in Eldoret?

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kioko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I find it difficult to believe that the difficulty experienced by the farmers is due to shortage of machinery in this area. The Member will be glad to know that at Eldoret there is a big assembly plant for some farm machinery. I would like also to point out that there are workshops also in Eldoret which recondition second-hand machinery and the Ministry, therefore, feels that Eldoret has adequate facilities to cater for the farmers in the area, although the idea of assembling itself is appreciated.

Mr. Twisel: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister tell the House, in view of the fact that when the white settlers and Afrikaners left the country they took most of their necessary machinery with them such as combine harvesters and tractors, to South Africa and left the old ones, and that place he is referring to now does not accept the machinery that was left behind, what is he going to do about it?

Dr. Kioko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, individual farmers may have taken away their own belongings, including machinery, but the facts are that the shops selling farm machinery in Eldoret were not closed, and if the hon. Member has money to buy a piece of good farm machinery, he can be provided with it in Eldoret.

Mr. Chege: Mr. Speaker, may I know from the Minister whether any officer from his Ministry has ever visited this area, Eldoret?

Dr. Kioko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have been in Eldoret three times during the last four months.

Question No. 2067

ILLEGAL MILK SALES AS MINOR OFFENCES

Mr. Ngala-Abok asked the Attorney-General to state that, since it was the Government's policy to support an organized dairy industry in Kenya, why were convictions of illegal milk sales being treated by some magistrates as minor offences.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply on behalf of my friend and colleague, the Attorney-General. I am not aware that any serious offences relating to the sale of milk have been treated by magistrates as sale of milk offences, and I should be glad if the hon.

Mr. Anyleni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since caning is used as a disciplinary measure, could the Assistant Minister tell this House why these students were caned first before they were expelled as the caning was not in this case used to discipline them?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, every school has different methods of punishing students, it might be that caning is one of the punishments, it might be that the second punishment is to expel the boy or a child from school, so if they were caned it means they were caned and brought back to school and again they went against the school rules and that is the reason why they were asked to go away.

Mr. Tanni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Assistant Minister tell us the length of time between the time they were caned and the time they were sent away?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, at the moment I am not ready to give the dates of when the boys were caned, as I think that it was a very minor case as to when the child was caned and also I cannot give the date when they were expelled.

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 2071:
EXPULSION OF LUO STUDENTS FROM MASENO.

Mr. Nyralicki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. Arising from the unsatisfactory reply of the Assistant Minister, I would like to raise this matter on an adjournment.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 2082

RECOGNITION OF INDIAN GRADUATES

Mr. Nülle: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. On Question 2082, it should be slightly different from the question as printed on the Order Paper.

Mr. Nülle asked the Minister for Education:—

- If the Minister would tell the House why his Ministry did not recognize graduates from Bombay, Madras, Calcutta and Delhi Universities as being from an approved university?
- Why was a licensed teacher graduate from Delhi University not placed on the £804-1,710 scale?

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Foreign degrees obtained by Kenya citizens are evaluated against degrees conferred by the University of East Africa and the Ministry of Education must be satisfied that such foreign degrees are equivalent to similar degrees of the University of East Africa.

It should also be noted that Kenya is setting up her own standards as a sovereign country and she cannot, therefore, accept any degree indiscriminately. This is more so, when graduates of foreign institutions seek employment in the teaching profession, where the Ministry has to apply its own standard in selecting teachers for various grades.

Government policy, on the whole, is not to discriminate against any qualifications on the basis of the country of origin, especially if such qualifications are recognized in that country, but it does, as a sovereign state, reserve the right to examine all foreign qualifications in the light of its own manpower requirements, in comparison and against the standard and quality of degrees awarded by the University of East Africa.

However, practical difficulties in determining the quality of foreign degrees has led Government to consider the setting up of Public Examinations to assess and evaluate degrees obtained from countries outside East Africa wherever they may be.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply by the Assistant Minister, and in view of the fact that the question as it stands is to find out as to whether degrees from Bombay University, Madras, Calcutta and other Indian universities are actually recognized by the Kenyan Government, could the Assistant Minister consider these rather than run away from the question?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I have already explained to the hon. Members that we have our own standards whereby any Kenyan citizen who has acquired a degree which is recognized by a particular country where he studied is examined. We do not discriminate but we have to organize some public examinations to verify that degree.

Mr. Mibogohi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that quite a number of Members of this House hold degrees which are not recognized by the Kenyan Government, will the Assistant Minister assure this House that no degrees will be recognized until they conform with East African standards?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I cannot give that assurance but when a person who holds any specific degree wants to take up the teaching profession, then I think that that is where I can give the assurance, but on general administration then I cannot.

Mr. Gatiguta: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies, I do agree that any foreign degrees should conform with the standard laid down by the East African Universities, but we want to know whether the Kenya Government recognizes, or not, the degrees from Bombay, Madras, Calcutta and Delhi Universities? We want a direct answer. Could the Assistant Minister say either yes or no?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I have answered that question.

Question No. 2026

BIRTH CONTROL FOR ASIANS

Mr. Khalif asked the Minister for Health and Housing whether, in view of the fact that the Asian population in Kenya was growing beyond expectation, the Government would consider introducing legislation to control Asian births.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The fact is that the number of Asian births in this country is now on the decrease. The Asian population is not therefore, growing beyond expectation.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply of the hon. Assistant Minister, would the Assistant Minister tell us what he meant by "decrease"?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think if it is lack of vocabulary, I should expound a little so that the hon. Member can understand what I meant by "decrease". From the figures available in the records in this department, it appears from the Statistical Abstract for 1964 to be as follows. The total population of Kenya as at 30th June 1964 was 9,104,000 people. The total Asian population on 30th June 1964 was 183,000 people. The percentage increase of Asians for the last three years averages two. The percentage increase of the total population average is 3 per cent. The term Asian as used by a person whose ancestors come from the sub-continent of India, that is Indians, Pakistanis or Goans. It does not include Arabs, who are shown separately in the statistical record, similarly Chinese, Japanese or persons from some other far Eastern countries who have been classed by us as "others". The latter category also includes persons of mixed race and those whose race was not stated in the census returns. I would add that the total of Asian births registered throughout the country during the last three years is as follows: 1962, 4,962; 1963, 5,292; and 1964, 4,870. Therefore, the question does not arise Mr. Speaker, Sir, as to whether these people are on the increase.

Mr. ole Tiji: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can we have a specific answer from the Assistant Minister as to the reasons for the decrease of the Asian population? Is it due to the Asians leaving the country, or is it due to the drop in their birth rate?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is due to nature.

WATER DEVELOPMENT PROJECTS: KILIFI AND KWALE

Mr. Ngala asked the Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife if he would state, firstly, what water development projects were envisaged for the hinterland of Kilifi and Kwale Districts during the Six-year Development Plan; and, secondly, whether he was considering installing a second water pipe from Mizima Springs, through Manungu and Mackinnon Road, to provide water for irrigation and livestock in Kwale.

The Assistant Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife (Mr. Mohamed): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Depending on the availability of finance, my Ministry is planning the expenditure of £30,000 in providing water supplies at Kilifi, Gedi, Roka and Sakoli. It is planned to start a dam construction in the Kilifi hinterland later this month or at the beginning of June. A dam construction programme in the Kwale hinterland is also under consideration, but, at present, this is held up by the refusal of the people of Kwale to accept the advice of technical officers in matters of stock control.

In answer to the second part of the question, there are no proposals for installing a second pipe line from the Mizima Springs at present. The installation of such a pipe-line would cost over £1 million and would necessitate the charge of very high water rates to all people using the water. There would be no economic return from such a supply, in view of the fact that there are no suitable areas for economic irrigation in the hinterland of the Kwale District.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply of the Assistant Minister, particularly in

[The Minister for Internal Security and Defence] returned and was caught, he definitely would go directly to prison. The rumours are, therefore, unfounded and I would ask the hon. Member if he has any information of the whereabouts of this man, to let us know so that we can fulfil what we have just said.

Also, it seems as if the same hon. Member, from the same area, is coming out with many rumours about people who have been banished and are coming back to Kenya.

Mr. Balala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Minister tell this House whether he has received any reports from the Special Branch in Mombasa to that effect?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would not disclose the Special Branch report to this House because it is not the thing to do, and besides, I have just said that Mr. Henderson has not returned, and if he did return, I have told the hon. Member what we would do with him.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the previous reply by the Minister, to the effect that if Mr. Henderson was found in Kenya he would be sent straight to gaol, would he not agree with me that the proper procedure would be that he will be taken to court, to be proved that he is Mr. Henderson before he is sent to gaol?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, how could you take anybody to gaol before you know who he is? Therefore, if the hon. Member is so sure that this man has returned to Kenya and he can be identified as Mr. Ian Henderson, I assure you that this will be done. It does not matter what methods are used to prove that he is Mr. Henderson.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think we are getting a bit beyond the point of the question now.

Mr. Balala: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that senior European police officers have high regard towards Ian Henderson, and since the top posts in the police are still being held by European officers, does the Minister agree with me that these senior police officers, including the Special Branch, who used to hold these posts at the time when these rumours were rife, there is a possibility of such officers giving coverage to such an officer if he came back illegally?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, that is entirely wrong. We have non-European officers as intelligence officers in the Coast.

Mr. Mollro: Mr. Speaker, arising from the original reply, would the Minister find out from the hon. questioner why he bases his question on rumours rather than facts?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, I will be most happy for the hon. Member to tell us why he bases his question on rumours, which I have said is not the first one, because there was one before. Rather than ask me, I would be pleased to hear from the hon. Member and also advise him best time to base his questions on facts.

Mr. Gatwaga: On a point of Order, Sir, is it in order for an hon. Member to help another hon. Member who is not feeling well out of the House?

An hon. Member: Somebody is dying here!

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If the hon. Member is unable to stand, perhaps hon. Members will help him out.

An hon. Member cannot be compelled to go if he does not want to.

Mr. Khalif, were you rising on a point of order?

Mr. Khalif: Yes, Sir.

The point of order was on what you had just given a ruling, Sir. I was just trying to say whether it is in order to move an hon. Member of Parliament who does not wish to go out.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Not unless he is misbehaving or too ill to go out by himself.

Question No. 2057

EUROPEAN POLICE OFFICERS IN COAST PROVINCE

Mr. Balala asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence how many European police officers were engaged in different sections of the Police Force in the Coast Province, and what their respective ranks were.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The answer is nineteen, Sir. The Assistant Commissioner of Police, Senior Superintendent of Police, Superintendent of Police, Assistant Superintendent of Police, Chief Inspector of Police, Inspector of Police are amongst them.

Mr. Balala: Mr. Speaker, can the Minister tell this House when the terms of service of these officers will be terminated, and are the positions to be Africanized after such terms of service have expired?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this has been very well discussed in the Africanization Committee, of which the Vice-President is chairman and has been determined and the information will be released in due course and at the right time.

Mr. Kamuren: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the Minister's replies, that the information will be released in due course, will he tell us how soon it will be released?

Dr. Mungai: At the pleasure of the chairman of the committee and I am not the one to release it and he will do so when he feels it is the right and proper time to release it.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister give an assurance in this House that the missing posts will not be Africanized by the Arabs, but by Africans?

Dr. Mungai: I think the hon. Member should know the definition of African as it is different from Arab and I just said Africanized not Arabized.

Question No. 2064

POLICE HOUSING IN ELDORET

Mr. Turwei asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence if the Minister could tell the House why the police houses in Eldoret were still small mud-built huts situated on the Great North Road visible to distinguished tourists passing through the capital of Uasin Gishu District?

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. A sum of £164,000 has been included in the 1964/70 Development Plan for the construction of a new Divisional Police Headquarters, Police Station and Lines at Eldoret. A contract worth £2,635 has been let for completion of the first two phases, which include living accommodation for inspectors, N.C.O.s and subordinate officers. It is hoped that the first £20,000 will have been spent by the end of June and a balance of £3,000 has been included in the 1965/66 estimate. Once this contract has been completed it will be possible to demolish the "small mud-huts" in which the police are now living, and the hon. Member should know about this.

EXPULSION OF LEO STUDENTS FROM MASENO

Mr. Nyaliek asked the Minister for Education to tell the House what his Ministry had done to find out the causes that led to the expulsion of eight Luo students from Maseno Secondary School this year.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Koochellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Ministry has taken normal steps to keep itself informed of the circumstances, which led to the expulsion of eight pupils from Maseno Secondary School. Where a major breach of discipline is involved, as was the case at Maseno, these steps include—

- obtaining telephonic reports from the principal and provincial education officer;
- obtaining written reports from the same sources;
- obtaining records of the proceedings of the school management (i.e. Minutes of Boards of Governors' meetings);
- receiving explanations and comments, concurrently with reports and minutes, from the principal, provincial education officer and manager;
- considering representations from pupils, parents and interested parties, and
- reviewing, confirming, or where advisable revising, the management's decisions (in accordance with section 16 of Legal Notice No. 40 of 1965, amending section 86 of the Education Act);
- dealing with appeals against expulsion and requests for readmission to other schools.

In the case of the outbreak of indiscipline at Maseno School, the first four stages of this procedure have been completed, the fifth and sixth are now being dealt with, and the last has not yet arisen.

Mr. Nyaliek: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, could he tell the House the reasons why the number of boys which went on strike was large and eventually only eight Luo boys were expelled?

Mr. Koochellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my Ministry had no information as to whether the strike at Maseno School was based on a tribal basis but on the other hand, out of the students who went on strike, a number came back and we do not know whether a particular group belonging to a certain tribe did not come back, but those who came back and were willing to follow the usual school routine, were allowed to come back and a number came back and some did not.

Mr. Nyaliek: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that among the eight boys who were sent away originally, some came back and were given stripes by the headmaster? Eventually, they were sent away. What was the reason, I would like to know, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. Koochellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the reason is that these students refused to follow the usual school routine.

[The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement] we mainly look upon the British Government because the British Government has been so generous and it is common knowledge of this House and of this country that the British Government has done a lot in helping the development of this country. If the hon. Member for Teso contends that the British are still ruling this country, I say here and now that they are not ruling this country, and if they are ruling Teso, then they should get rid of them. I believe this House consists of people who represent free constituencies in free Kenya.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, to conclude my speech, I was wanting to mention the survey services. Most of our operations in land consolidation, land settlement and the general land development are on an efficient survey operation. For a long time—an efficient survey operation. For a long time—and this is one reason why we have not been able to complete some operations, especially in land consolidation—our machinery for surveying has not been as efficient as possible. The aeroplanes which we have been using for mapping we have been borrowing from the East African Common Services Organization, but now the Ministry and the Government is planning to equip one of the aircraft with the most modern equipment so that mapping could be done more efficiently and more quickly, so that land titles could be issued to farmers as quickly as possible, and so that these farmers could carry on with the development of their holdings.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like wholeheartedly to support the Paper on African socialism, because I do believe it is this Paper, and it is the remaining elements of colonialism in some people, who have been thinking that the only leadership is to be able to borrow from another country; that we must go to China and borrow communism, or we must go to America and borrow the head of capitalism. We can develop our own socialism which is founded on our own traditions.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is 10 near the time for interruption of business that the House is now adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, 6th May 1965, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at thirty minutes past Six o'clock.

WRITTEN REPLY TO QUESTION

Question No. 1032

DISTRICT COMMISSIONERS AS CHAIRMEN OF COUNTY COUNCILS

Mr. Amin asked the Minister for Local Government if the Minister could tell the House why the district commissioners in the North-Eastern Province were still chairmen of the county councils.

REPLY

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Sagini): Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the Orders made in 1964 that established the County Councils of Mandera, Wajir and Garissa, provision was made for the Minister for Local Government to nominate a public officer in each district to represent the interests of the public service on the county council and to be the chairman of the county council concerned. The district commissioners were nominated members of the county council and, therefore, automatically, became the chairmen of the respective county councils. The district commissioners remain chairmen of these three county councils, because no amendments or revocations have been made to the Orders that established the county councils. Furthermore, the security situation in the North-Eastern Province, where a state of emergency has been declared, may not warrant a change now.

Thursday, 6th May 1965

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

PRAYERS

PAPER LAID

The following Paper was laid on the Table:— Report to National Assembly as required by Article 5 of External Loans (General) Ordinance No. 43 of 1963: International Development Association Credit No. 70 KE (Highway Project).

(By the Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru))

NOTICES OF MOTIONS

MOVEMENT RESTRICTIONS: AMERICANS IN KENYA

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT this House views with alarm the activities of the American Central Intelligence Agency (C.I.A.) agents in Kenya and their apparent attempts to undermine the authority of our President and calls upon the Government to restrict the movement of American nationals in Kenya and to take all other possible precautions against such activities.

INVESTIGATION INTO SECRET MEETINGS

Mr. Gacaita: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT in view of the gross disrespect publicly shown by some Members of this House to the Vice-President of the Republic in a manner that tends to undermine the security of the State and in view of the evidence that this unpatriotic attitude originates from nightly secret meetings organized by certain people, this House urges the Government to investigate these meetings so as to establish the nature of what is discussed and who meets the expenditure of the lavish parties which are reported to follow these meetings.

DETENTION WITHOUT TRIAL OF SOMALIS

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT this House notes with great disapproval the act of the sovereign Government of Kenya of detaining innocent Somali politicians without trial and urges the Government immediately and unconditionally to release all Somali detainees now in detention.

AMENDMENT TO THE BOOKS AND NEWSPAPERS ORDINANCE

Mr. Kagga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT in view of the fact that the majority of the country's newspapers are owned by foreigners and to enable Africans to establish indigenous newspapers, this House urges the Government to amend the Books and Newspapers Ordinance Cap. 111 of Laws of Kenya so as to remove the necessity of the Sh. 10,000 deposit before a newspaper can be established.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

ABOLITION OF POST OF POLICE PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICER

Mr. Obok asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence if he would tell the House why the post of public relations officer in the Police Department was abolished after it had been Africanized.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Arwings-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The post of public relations officer in the Police Department was abolished in the last year's Financial Estimates for reasons of economy, and its African holder was transferred to the Department of Information. My Ministry is satisfied as to the significance of this post and a fresh case for its reinstatement is being prepared.

My Ministry is, however, seeking for this post not merely to cover the Police, but all the armed forces.

MR. IAN HENDERSON'S REMOVED RETURN TO KENYA

Mr. Balala asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence if the Government was aware of the rumours rife in Mombasa that Mr. Ian Henderson, the deported Kenya senior police officer returned to Kenya under the disguise of a priest.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Mr. Ian Henderson left Kenya on 6th August 1964, and has not subsequently returned. If he

[The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement] public that one can accurately and directly describe them as the salesmen of slogans; because the record can show what the Government has done. But the record cannot show what such people have said, and the records can indicate nothing that has been achieved as the result of the use and skill of such slogans.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, therefore I would like to take this opportunity to appeal to hon. Members of this House to support this Government and support their country, and they will soon see that the result of their support will begin to bear some fruit both for themselves and for the country and for the people they represent.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would now like to turn to what is generally known as land consolidation although in large part of the country the process of consolidation of fragmented holdings is not required; all that is needed is the enclosure of individual holdings and the issue of registered titles. The benefits of land consolidation are too well known and farmers have gained pieces of land with clear titles to the holdings, and a farmer can develop the whole of his holding with confidence, so that he will reap the whole reward of this labour and he can utilize his title to land and as a security for loans to carry out what development may be on his land. Land consolidation, Mr. Speaker, has been virtually completed in the Central Province, 3 million acres have been demarcated throughout the whole of Kenya, but there is still about 27 million acres to be dealt with, and if we are to get this enormous task completed in the next ten years or so, we must find some means of greatly increasing the amount of money provided annually for this work. In round figures, we have been spending, in recent years about £4 million a year on land consolidation, and registration, but we shall now need to spend something like £3 million a year if we are to complete the job in a reasonable time.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, part of this entire expenditure is found by raising the fees charged to those whose land holdings are being consolidated and registered, possibly by half the cost per acre, and the bulk of the finance will have to be raised from overseas service. A request has been submitted to the British Government for financial aid on this problem and in addition, this Government's technical assistance has been sought by aid of a team of experts in agriculture economy, land tenure and so on to study our land consolidation organization, its method of working and its problems, and to advise them on any progress that can be made, particularly with a view of speeding up the process and reducing the cost per acre. On this point, Sir, as I have just been referring to our great need to complete land consolidation progress as far as possible, I should like to say a word of warning. While we all look forward to the day when every landowner in Kenya has a registered title deed to his compact and clearly demarcated holding, this process of land consolidation is one that must not be rushed. Anything in the nature of a crash programme would be fatal for the simple reason that registered titles issued as a result of this process cannot be interfered with by the Government by force, once they have been issued, otherwise the whole point of such titles, namely their security, disappears.

If only one such title were to be interfered with, then the confidence of all would be undermined. So it is essential that our land consolidation should take time in individual cases, to be sure of obtaining available evidence as to the validity of the claimant's claim to the holding in question to make sure that as few errors as possible are experienced and actually made. Amongst the most difficult decisions that my Ministry has had to face, are those concerned with the allocation of land consolidation staff to the various districts asking for the service, including Karachuonyo.

Whilst understandably everyone wants his own location to be dealt with right away, the Government cannot do this, for two very good reasons. If we had the money—I think the hon. Member for Shauri Moyo should thank God that he has no problems in his constituency.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, even if we had all the money—about £13 million a year which is the money we require—we do not have the vast array of trained staff which we need, 120,000 strong and so my Ministry has to decide which districts shall be given priority. This has been decided jointly on the demand expressed by the people for this service and on the nature of the agricultural potential of the area. However, Sir, not that practically every farmer who is clamouring for land consolidation, the criteria to be used are the agricultural potential, the degree of land enclosure already achieved themselves on a self-help basis and the amount of co-operation shown by people and their willingness to carry out competently their share of their work in collaboration with the Land Consolidation Department staff on the ground.

Some of the most difficult areas to deal with are mainly those pastoral areas, like the one the hon. Member is mentioning, where practically no private land ownership has existed. Such areas cannot be given a high priority since any

[The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement] improvement to the national economy resulting from any money invested in land consolidation would be considered as lower if materialized, and money was invested in high potential areas. But, Mr. Speaker, I would like to make it clear that even then the important factor that cannot be forgotten is the welfare of the people who live in this area, and so a method conforming to the economy of those areas will have to be encouraged to ensure the distribution of development as evenly as possible.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the policy of the Minister for Lands and Settlement on this question of priority for land consolidation is to clear up the Central Province, to continue the existing programme in other parts of the country, and then to give first priority in respect of additional funds that may be made available for this work. The areas of high potential which are likely to have the best chance of preference are those areas where land survey has already been carried out. In connexion with our application to the British Government for financial assistance, my Ministry has prepared for submission to that Government a programme of work in areas of high potential, the management of 54 million acres, to be completed at a total cost of about £5 million over a period of only six years, and I hope that this has been heard by the Member for Yatta. Some of these areas in question, and I do not propose at this stage to clarify them, are scattered all over Kenya, the only exceptions being the densely arid pastoral areas, like some places in Yatta, where heavy capital investment will be needed before any appreciable benefit can be obtained from the issue of registered titles.

I must make myself clear, Mr. Speaker, on this point. It is only in respect of additional funds that the high potential areas will be given priority. Elsewhere, the existing programme will be continued, and even expanded, and when sufficient additional funds become available in accordance with the order of priority, I realize that the hon. Members from the pastoral areas, like the hon. J. K. Tipia, which are, in the time being, excluded from the order of priority, and from the priority programme, would probably feel that their people are not being treated fairly in that other districts are to have more money for their land consolidation in the next few years than other old districts like Kajjado.

Mr. Speaker, I sympathize with such feelings, but I would like to ask them to try and think of it, and consider this matter mainly and truly on national lines. If we can increase agricultural production of one populated district by spending an extra sum of money on land consolidation in that district, that is much better for the country's economy, and this will benefit everyone, including the Member for Teso, in the country, indirectly or directly, than spending the same amount of money in a sparsely populated semi-arid, undeveloped area.

Mr. Speaker, I have not said that no land will be developed. What I have said is that certain areas will be treated as priority, because of economic benefits they can bring to all the people of this country, even in areas which will not be given priority. The benefits will be distributed to the whole of the country and not only to those areas, and the food produced in those areas will be enjoyed by the population of this country, and not by the people of the areas where such food is produced. I give an instance, Mr. Speaker, of the production of maize in this country. Maize is only produced in certain areas, and the maize produced in those areas benefits the entire country in those areas where maize is not produced.

Land consolidation, and registration by itself is of considerable value in that it encourages the farmers to exploit the whole of his land-holding and to do so with all the energy at his command. But, to get the full benefit from the process of land, it is necessary to have extension services. It is necessary to provide each farmer with what may be called follow-up services, mainly development loan funds and agricultural extension services. The development loans will enable him to upgrade his cattle and other livestock, to put in water supplies, and so on. The agricultural extension services will provide him with modern farming techniques, and advise on the most suitable crops to grow.

These extension services have been in operation for many years but not anything like a sufficiently large scale to give the very close supervision and training that is required for the transition from hand to mouth subsistence farming to a system of a prosperous cash economy agriculture. The very large sums of money needed to provide the consolidated farmers with these two facilities of development loans and agricultural extension services will have to be found from overseas sources, and it is hoped that the British Government will be able to help us financially for the provision of these services. This does not mean that in everything that we want to develop we always look upon the British Government, we always look upon every possible friend who can help us, but I would like to emphasize here that quality of our products and we must keep this up, especially, as the hon. Assistant Minister for Finance says, now that we have coming on in the world synthetics to take over from agricultural products. We are told that sisal, in five years, will virtually not be used for binder twine or for string. At the present moment, 75 per cent of the sisal production in the world is used for binder twine. The synthetic binder twines which are now being sold in America and Europe this year for the first time are made of the surplus gas which comes out of a refinery and is burnt, such as that gas in Mombasa. This is going to be far cheaper than sisal; it is as strong as sisal; it does not rot in rain; and it does not hurt the intestines of the bovine when it eats it. However, not only is sisal in difficulty; we are told that one of the largest companies in the world has made a synthetic cocoa which is impossible to tell from ordinary cocoa. When Mr. Gichuru and I were in the United States, we were given a synthetic lunch. There were many items in this synthetic lunch, at one of the biggest producers in the world, which were impossible to tell and, in fact, some were even better than the proper product. For instance, there was whipped cream which was synthetic; there was meat which was synthetic; all the soups were synthetic; and the fruit was synthetic. This is the great danger which we under-developed countries face and that is why, as far as Kenya is concerned, Sir, we must—and it is written into our document under African socialism—continue in such a way as to produce some of the finest agricultural products in the world, especially from the quantum point of view.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think it is too much repetition to congratulate the Minister and the Government in general for introducing this Paper which, at this stage of our economy, is long overdue, and it will save a lot of time and trouble and will clear up a number of misunderstandings.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, while speaking on this, I would like particularly to emphasize all the applications of African socialism on land and land tenure. Land is the ultimate foundation of every aspect of our nation's economic growth. The classified economists define land, labour and capital as being the three fundamental agents of production, without which economic progress would not be made, and of the three, land has the prior place. The farmer must have land on which to plant his crops and graze his herds, but, equally, those who are engaged in commerce and industry must have land upon which to build their shops, warehouses and factories. There must be land in Kenya's towns and cities for the housing of our growing population and for the essential public services provided by such organizations as the Railways and the Post Office, and so on.

Beneath the land, too, lies a proportion of the national wealth and it is necessary to ensure that land is available for the purpose of excavation of minerals where the geologists have determined that mining can profitably be carried on. In short, Mr. Speaker, land is our country's greatest single asset, and it is the policy of the Government that it must be used and developed in the best interests of the nation and of the people of Kenya. In carrying out this policy, arrangements will be made to facilitate a more efficient system of farming and a more equitable distribution of the resultant output. There will have to be a programme of measures designed to eliminate those obstacles to economic and social development which arise from defects in the agrarian structure. The programme must, therefore, include amongst all other things the following: the provision of opportunities for ownership of land, including the establishment of settlement schemes for those at present landless; the granting of secure title to land, so as to encourage the full development of it and to provide security for loans and facilities such as development; the improvement of techniques and of tenant conditions by reduction of excessive rents and by increasing security of tenure and of rights in improvements made by them on their holdings; the improvement of employment conditions and opportunities for agricultural labour; the protection of cultivators living under tribal, communal and other traditional forms of tenure by means of consolidation of scattered holdings into farms of economic size and the issue of secure titles; the extension of long- and medium-term agricultural credits at low rates of interest; the organization of farm machinery services, fiscal and financial policy in relation to land reform, including tax measures to promote improved land utilization and distribution; measures designed to ensure effective soil and water conservation through forestry development and the economic use of the limited water supplies we have; and other related measures such as the establishment of research centres for agricultural research or educational services that are required in improving our technicalities.

Now, Mr. Speaker, let us first briefly examine the Government's efforts so as to relate to our future development. Since the Government took office, we have given a fresh impetus to the land settlement programme. It was a fitting prelude to Uhuru that in November, 1963, we established over 3,000 families in ownership of former European farms on the Kinangop and elsewhere in Kenya.

This settlement only took us five weeks and I would like the hon. Onolo Agar to hear that. It took the Government only five weeks to settle all these families. Now approximately 1,000 families are being settled each month. The settlement scheme programme accelerated, as I have just said, and it is now on the way to reaching its goal of establishing African farmers on the 1,000,000 acres of land that were formerly owned by Europeans.

I should now like to give some figures of our establishment and future intentions. I am giving figures of part of what is known as our 1,000,000 acre scheme which is now over 800,000 acres. Of this, 600,000 acres have been settled with some 2,000 families. Most of these families were destitute and landless and some unemployed. They have now been given a good opportunity for making a decent living for themselves, even after paying the instalments on the loans they have received from the parties of the land and its development. We plan to purchase a further 20,000 acres in this financial year. As you know, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have now secured finance to purchase the OI' Kalou acreage. This makes the total land to be purchased during the financial year 1965/66, 375,000 acres. Therefore by the 30th June 1965, the Kenya Government will purchase for land settlement 1,200,000 acres and a further 101,000 acres is due to be purchased in the financial year 1965/66. The total cost of purchasing all this land will be just over £12 million. I would like to repeat, £12 million, Mr. Speaker, while we shall by the end of the programme have given loans to the settlers of all that £74 million for the development of their holdings. I do believe the hon. Member for Karachuonyo is listening.

In addition to all this land purchase by the Government for settlement schemes, Africans will also purchase in the first year or so approximately £550 amounting to 294,000 acres. All these lands were formerly owned by Europeans and have now been re-sold to Africans by Government, either as individuals or in family groups, or companies, or co-operatives. In nearly all these cases the farmer has been given financial assistance provided by the Government through the Land Bank. The Agricultural Finance Corporation has also made facilities available to the farmers as well. The Government is constantly exploring ways and means to make these terms available to Africans to enable them to buy land. That means they are people, as it is known in this country, who cannot provide the required deposit required by the Land Bank or such other financial institutions. The Government at the moment is engaged in an exercise to explore the possibilities of making these far easier so that both Africans or those Kenyans who cannot afford these deposits will be able to purchase land, because these will have been facilitated. But the funds available are limited and are part of the policy to facilitate the transfer of land ownership from Europeans to Africans. The Government has decided that at least for the time being the Land Bank and the Agricultural Finance Corporation will only lend money to Kenya citizens, and not to any other people.

Mr. Speaker, there have been questions as to how many people have been granted Government loans and given other Government facilities but now the Government has firmly decided that because of the limited funds we have, facilities will only be given to Kenya citizens. We regard this as a necessary measure designed to introduce more and more Africans into productive agriculture by encouraging ownership of land by African in settlement schemes and by encouraging the formation of African groups, companies and co-operative societies. The Government hopes that people will play a more effective part in controlling the agriculture industry in Kenya, and ultimately, perhaps take over the absolute control of agriculture in this country. But, Mr. Speaker, Sir, here let me say that all this the Government has achieved and is planning to continue to do, but this sometimes leads to unfair criticism by politicians who either purposely or by some political miscalculations do not take the time to tell the country and the world what the Government is planning to do and even what the Government has achieved.

Indeed, such politicians exploit the natural and economic problems of the country by indulging in cheap politics, or suggesting that what the Government problem or responsibility is, is also Government problem or responsibility is, is also Government problem. Mr. Speaker, I say this because some of our politicians say that the Government has failed to do this. They once appointed themselves and aligned themselves, and said that they want to do this, they want to make their books good and this books of the Government, which is doing all this, Some of them go to such an extent, Mr. Speaker, in sowing the seed of discontent in saying what the Government has failed to do, and using such language to discredit the Government to the

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like the Minister to state those rebels in my own constituency, Gichugu—in which Mwca is situated—so that they could be dealt with properly.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order. You are asking for elaboration. You may ask him to substantiate that there are any rebels, and that is a point of order.

Mr. Gichoya: That is exactly what I mean, Mr. Speaker.

The Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. McKenzie): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the easiest way for me to substantiate this is to ask the hon. Member to come to Mwca with me some time, when I have time, and I could introduce him, so that he can talk to his people. Whether they come from his constituency or not, I would not like to say; I never said they came from his constituency, I said there were people who were involved, and I promise I will protect the hon. Member when we go to Mwca!

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have what I may call a point of order—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Do not call it a point of order, unless it is one.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, do I understand that the Minister alleged that a group of Members from Nyanza refused or rejected irrigations schemes? Would the Minister elaborate on or repeat what he was talking about regarding Nyanza?

The Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. McKenzie): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very sorry that the hon. Member has shown other hon. Members in this House that he does not read all his correspondence, because a letter which was sent to me was copied to him.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government intends—

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, to which particular letter is the Minister referring because a number of letters are sent to Ministers and copied to Members? If it is a question of—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is quite clear, Mr. Ngala-Aboki, that the Minister's substantiation is that he has had a letter from people in Nyanza saying that they do not like this and you have had a copy of it. That is quite enough substantiation.

The Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. McKenzie): Mr. Speaker, Sir, to help the hon. Member, I will bring the letter, which I have, to show him within the next forty-eight hours.

The Government will strictly control the utilization of land. Underdeveloped, mismanaged and abandoned land will not be tolerated, irrespective of the nationality of the present owner, be he Kenyan or otherwise, be it a small farm or a large farm. Hon. Members may like to know that on next Tuesday, 25,600 acres of land will be declared mismanaged and abandoned in what was the Coastal strip. This will bring a total of the number of farms which have been declared mismanaged, and abandoned to over nearly 100 and the acreage to over 150,000 acres. Mr. Speaker, we hear of this being done in neighbouring countries and there is always an outcry. I would like here to give the credit to the District Agricultural Committees and the Provincial Agricultural Committees for the work which they do in taking care to see that farms are truly mismanaged and abandoned before they ask me to take action, because we have had virtually no outcry with nearly 100 farms and over 150,000 acres of land. But here again, I must warn that there are a great number of well-known people in this country whose farms are now looking, and also I want to give a warning here that, irrespective of whom they get involved with their land to try and protect themselves by taking on new directors or new shareholders, it is going to have no effect on me whatsoever.

We now have plans, Mr. Speaker, for the newly-established Agricultural Development Corporation to look after these abandoned farms amongst its many other duties, to restore them to full productivity, to instal African managers, and then to sell them through the Land Bank to well-organized co-operative societies. Where we find that abandoned and mismanaged farms fit in well with the settlement schemes, we intend handing them over to my colleague, the Minister for Lands and Settlement. This action will enable productivity to be raised and will spread income from this productivity over a large group of people.

We are reviewing our present establishment of statutory boards, particularly the marketing boards, and we have set into Motion—This point was raised by the Member for Trans Nzoia earlier on today; it is a very old point and this which he raises every time he gets up and tells me about agriculture, but at long last we have listened to him and we have now made the first move of bringing the Agricultural Finance Corporation and the Land Bank under the Central Agricultural Board which will eventually kind, I hope, in the near future, to an amalgamation.

I hear the hon. Member from the Coast saying, "What about marketing boards?" and I want to explain to him, as he ought to know as chairman of one of these marketing boards, that we have international obligations which can only be given to a board operating that produce. One of them is coffee, another is pyrethrum, and also wheat. We have international commitments with overseas countries on these boards, and a commitment that they will remain, as it were, sovereign under Government direction, so we have to take care of these boards.

Mr. Ngala: What about cereals?

The Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. McKenzie): Wheat is one which has international obligations, pyrethrum and coffee.

Then, Sir, there is also the point that other countries which have operated the other way around, like Tanzania, are now moving to our system where they are breaking into more and more boards because they think that it is more efficient running where one competent man—like the hon. Member I am looking at—can run that industry competently.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the Minister to talk about the Member he is looking at when we on this side of the House do not know which Member he means?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is out of order, as I think you might have seen which Member was smiling most!

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Minister in telling this House that statutory boards make international agreements; is it not the Ministry that makes such agreements, I mean any agreements outside the country?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order, Mr. Ngala, it is a point of argument.

The Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. McKenzie): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member must have misunderstood me because I said that we had international obligations and part of these international obligations is that we should set up statutory boards with the sole object of looking after that industry under the international organization. He full well knows as chairman of a statutory board that we have full powers as a Government to direct him to do whatever we like, even if it is against his own wishes as chairman of that statutory board. I am sorry that hon. Members sitting on my right have come to the conclusion that I squint and cannot make out exactly who I am looking at!

Mr. Speaker, hitherto the growth of boards has been somewhat haphazard and, in some instances, these boards have tended to safeguard the interests of particular groups and individuals. We are determined to ensure that in the future all Government statutory boards, where possible, are streamlined and efficient in their operation, and that they must pursue the policy of African socialism. Mr. Speaker, I look to all Members of these boards, including the hon. Members in this House who sit on these boards, to fulfil the obligations of full discussion and operation and interest within these boards.

We also feel that a powerful national marketing board, properly controlled and advised, responsible for the pricing and marketing of those of our crops which are used internally, could serve to regulate the relative production of the different crops in accordance with national needs.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to take too long. Therefore, I am only going to mention one or two other points. I have only discussed arable agriculture up to now and must mention the application of the principles of African socialism to the livestock sector of the industry.

Already we have obtained considerable success with our co-operative ranching schemes, particularly in Meru and Kitui, and, as a result, our range management division is planning and securing finance to expand this programme of co-operative ranching throughout the arid areas.

The Agricultural Development Corporation, amongst its many other activities, will operate an expanded calf-rearing scheme to supply female dairy breeding stock to co-operators and small-scale farms.

Sir, the last point I want to touch on is that in the agricultural industry we must be very careful in watching the wages policy. This, I know, will be dealt with by the colleague of mine responsible for Labour. I also feel that under African socialism we must make it easier and less expensive for our people to be able to form agricultural companies and partnerships.

I want to end, Mr. Speaker, by saying that the whole of our agricultural industry depends entirely upon the quality of our products. We are well known throughout the world for the need to set-up such farms as strategic sources of hybrid seed and high-quality breeding stock as a stand-by in the event of a major exodus by the present producers or of any other breakdown in production of these essential agricultural requirements. In fact, National Farms are not new to Kenya at all. In my Ministry we already have the National Sahiwal Stud operating on a farm and the National Wheat Breeding and Bulking Station at Njoro.

At the other end of the political scale, some of the biggest and most technically advanced food processing firms in the world are negotiating with the Government and propose over the next decade to spend many millions of pounds on the establishment of their industries in Kenya in conjunction with the Government and the people. These firms will not only provide factories, but will assist African outgrowers and will guarantee overseas outlets for their products. This is a very important factor in any agricultural development plan, is that our markets are assured. The firms will work with and co-operate with Government, according to the agreements drawn-up between the two parties and in accordance with present legislation passed by this House.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, at this stage I do want to quickly touch on various types of aid we are having and which we wish to get from various world agencies, either under bilateral agreement or multilateral agreement. The United Nations Special Fund are operating a series of feasibility projects and are also financing projects in the country at the moment, these are: the East African Livestock Survey, the Tana River Survey, the Bunyala Irrigation Scheme, the Animal Industry Training Centre, which is being built at Kabete, range development projects in arid areas, (this is the large plan which absorbs a great deal of Masai land). This application is in front of the United Nations Special Fund at this moment and we hope that it will be activated around about November or December of this year.

The I.B.R.D. (the World Bank), and its sister I.D.A. are involved in our large tea schemes in this country, the roads for agricultural produce, smallholder credit, (this is the follow-up to land consolidation) and also the range development.

I think I ought to take this opportunity in saying that at this very present moment here in Kenya, is the No. 2 of the World Bank and I.D.A. and he has just spent four days going round Kenya and his congratulated us as Government not only on the agriculture in a peasant holding areas, but has congratulated us after nineteen years in the bank and visiting fifty-six countries of the world, he has not anywhere seen anything better than the development of tea industry by small peasant growers and he has agreed to support our application for a further application of between three and four million pounds and the bringing forward of the 1970 tea programme to 1967. Then, Mr. Speaker, we have other agencies C.D.C. who are helping in the development of the Kenya Meat Commission and who have put up numerous tea factories, F.A.O. and UNICEF who have helped in the Coast Dairy at Mariakani, the spray dryer at Nakuru and the Nalivasha Dairy Training School, where a third of the pupils are from Tanzania, a third from Uganda, and a third from Kenya. The Rockefeller Foundation, for instance, with the plant breeding stations in Kitale and Njoro and high-bred maize and international rust testing. All these help and aid agriculture without strings.

Various countries are helping us with free technical aid and I emphasize the word "free". Sweden has helped us with vets, the Germans have twenty-two technical experts here. France and Holland are sending us some, now, Italy, eight, Yugoslavia has sent us some, Denmark has sent us some, Austria has sent us some, Switzerland has sent us an Entomologist, Canada are sending us some people and are financing projects. We are having active discussions at the moment with the Soviet Union on the development of certain agricultural projects and I sincerely hope that at long last we may have been able to re-start discussions on the East Plains. I must at this stage say that the difficulty has not been on our side of the House. I am mentioning these at this stage, Mr. Speaker, because I want to spend two or three minutes in explaining the difficulty which we have in conjunction with the Ministry of Finance and the Ministry of Economic Planning and Development in developing certain of our agricultural projects. Whenever one speaks on agriculture in this House, one gets interjections and saying "why are you not doing this and that". I want one again, just to explain the difficulty which we are in.

If we have an agricultural project which involves capital goods, local cost and an agricultural development and you let this be known to the ambassadors here who come and talk to you, you have every single ambassador lined up outside your door. You discuss the first item which is the availability of capital goods, he is a vegetable processing factory or a sugar factory, or whatever it is and you have various countries, in fact nearly all of them that produce these items are prepared to let you have them on long and very, very, good terms indeed, there is no difficulty in this; landed at Mombasa. The moment you start talking about local cost to move that item from Mombasa to wherever you are going to put it up, let us say, in Nyanza, and the cost of the cement, the cost of the sand, the cost of the labour to build it, transport, etc., you then find it ever so much easier, because the thirty-two ambassadors have disappeared and there are only three or four left. You then discuss with these three or four and one of them comes from one part of the world and they say we can help you on this, on condition you use our shirts, our boots, our watches, our sugar, whatever, we will then lend you that money. On the other hand, you get some countries who say, "well, now look, we appreciate that you turn out cement, you turn out timber, but if you use ours, we will send it to you for nothing and you can utilize it and then pay us over twelve years and we will help you with local products by using ours". Our answer is that although this has nothing to do with us in agriculture we do not think it would be right to put people out of work in our own factory. You are now down to about four or five ambassadors. When you come to the third item, Mr. Speaker, which nearly every Member in this House is most interested in, the agricultural development in these areas. The money to develop the crops, plant breeding, fertilizer, loaned to farmers, money so that we can loan it to the farmers, then you are left with no ambassadors at all and at this stage, you then have to start going to the ambassadors' offices to talk to them because they are not interested in this type of aid. That is where the greatness comes in in some of the international agencies like the World Bank, and the United Nations Special Fund. But, Mr. Speaker,

I want to say this, that perhaps more than any other country in Africa and I do not know anything about Asia and South America, Kenya is teaching foreign countries more and more how to help us with aid, this is happening in all the sectors of all the Ministries in Kenya and more and more countries are now beginning to help us, slowly, slowly, with money for local crops and this is happening here before it is happening anywhere else. We are now told when we discuss agricultural projects, one of the main reasons is that we are not going for huge monuments which do not mean anything. We are really going for projects which will help the African people and this is what a lot of the countries are after, irrespective of whether they come from the East or the West and I think that in this plan which is being put forward now, underwrites the Kenya Government's attitude that the type of projects we want are those which are going to help the people and not great big dams and hydro projects and all kinds of things which do not mean much to the man out in the backwoods.

Now, Mr. Speaker, if I may carry on. We feel individual farmers, be they large or small scale will continue to be controlled by the State through the provisions of the Agriculture Act and its by-laws. We shall insure that development loans are used properly and repaid on time, and here again I want to be very clear indeed, by punishing defaulters. We in my Ministry do not have to wait for this House to pass any legislation before we can take action on defaulters. We already have this legislation and I think that the people must now take this as the last warning and I see a certain friend of mine unfortunately is not in here, but the people must take this as a last warning that as a Ministry, we intend to foreclose on these defaulters so that we can get that money back to help other farmers. We shall increase the severity of the penalty for crop and stock theft and the damage of crops by arson. Also, Mr. Speaker, we appreciate that there are a few rebels who refuse to co-operate on the irrigation scheme and consolidations projects and are the enemies of our society. These people are opponents of the Sessional Paper which has been put forward and they, too, are within the powers of our Ministry as far as agriculture is concerned, we have now decided to utilize the powers which we have to punish these people.

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to interrupt the Minister but he alleges that people are refusing to co-operate with the Government on certain projects. I would like very much for him to elaborate on this.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not exactly a point of order, but the Minister may care to elaborate.

The Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. McKenzie): Mr. Speaker, Sir, we in my Ministry, and this is well known to Members from Nyanza in the Kano Plains area, have had letters from certain groups in that area saying that they do not want to go ahead with irrigation schemes and that the land is theirs, and I have plenty of Members who can substantiate this, over and above that we do also have, one or two in the Mwea-Tebere area who are of the same opinion.

[The Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry]

The application of the principles of African socialism to agriculture can, and must, result in the maximum economic growth and the optimum utilization of resources, and give the greatest possible benefits to all our people, whether they be engaged directly in agriculture or not.

In a country such as ours where domestic development capital is extremely limited, it would be clearly illogical to deplete our small capital resources by nationalizing the agricultural industry, especially when a large proportion of the capital expended on such an operation would undoubtedly leave the country together with a significant amount of technical and managerial skill. It would be far more advantageous for us to utilize our appropriate resources for new agricultural development, rather than on a mere transfer of ownership. This is particularly important in areas of traditional small holding, where the scope for agricultural growth and economic expansion, through land consolidation and the use of capital and technical skill is considerable. It is for this vital economic reason that our emphasis, at this juncture, must swing from settlement without any significant economic growth to an intensification of effort in underdeveloped areas, and in particular, where strong co-operative societies form a sound basis for investment and development. We will stimulate agricultural development on all underdeveloped land, particularly the present areas of African smallholding, and also the vast undeveloped areas of state/land and county council land, and in the former European areas.

It is appreciated, Mr. Speaker, that for several reasons it is desirable for aliens who own farms in this country to be bought out, but we must not allow emotionalism to cloud our judgement on this issue. At all times, economic viability must be our prime consideration if we are to secure the maximum financial and social benefit for the greatest number of our people. This is not to say that non-Kenyans have any permanent place as individual land owners in Kenya. They have not, but their displacement must be in accordance with our avowed policy of compensation for loss of property and as our resources for a compensation are so limited, this process must, of necessity, be relatively slow; unless the parent governments of these aliens can make available, on favourable terms, the necessary capital for purchase, settlement and development of the land in question. This finance would enable these non-Kenyans to be displaced without economic detriment to Kenya and her people.

provided of course, that we have the local manpower to replace their managerial skills. This does not mean, however, Mr. Speaker, that those people who are prepared, and in fact, are now participating in joint ventures with the Government, will not be able to continue to do so. We do not, however, wish to retard the rate of acquisition of land by our people, and for this reason we will continue to give generous financial support to the Land Bank in order to facilitate this process. But, we have decided to take steps to ensure that such action does not lead to a situation where land is held in vast amounts by a few individuals. We would prefer to see the larger farms passing into the hands of compact, well-organized, properly-run and self-disciplined producer co-operative societies. In fact, we intend actively to encourage this form of ownership, particularly by the workers already employed on the farms.

Let me here, Mr. Speaker, give a stern warning to large-scale farmers. Some of the new large-scale farmers are not repaying their loans, unfortunately, including certain Members of this Parliament, and some of them are buying second farms. I want to be very clear indeed on this point, and that is that this money which we lend to the purchasers of new large-scale farms, when it is repaid revolves to go and help more people in buying properties and developing them. We propose to implement the system of workers buying out the farms by making agricultural credit available to these groups, in preference to individuals, and by giving special managerial training to present-day farm managers, farm foremen, and farm headmen. We have just opened our first large-scale farmers' training centre at Thomson's Falls, and a second centre is now being planned specifically for this purpose which I have mentioned; that is to train managers for co-operatives.

Further, we are proposing to set up a working party to examine the possibility of fixing ceilings on the acreage of land that might be held by individuals. We cannot predict the findings of such a working party at this stage, but we are naturally hopeful that it will enable us to spread land ownership and income more evenly without any detrimental effect to our overall agricultural development. The fixing of such ceilings is not something we can do on an ad hoc basis, and thing that we can do in a very thorough and critical study should be undertaken before any decisions are reached. While the State need not own land and agricultural resources, it must be able to control these factors, if it is going to reap the greatest rewards for our people. It is the intention of this Government to use this power to

Much of our future agricultural development will be derived from an harmonious marriage of private capital and expertise; and Government control, encouragement and assistance; and the skills and industry of our people through private ownership, co-operatives and individual ownership. We are not following these principles in practice on a large number of agricultural projects. We have completed plans for the 25 million Chemeli Sugar Scheme whose success depends on the injection of capital, equipment, and know-how from overseas; the planning, control and direction of the Government; and the skill, enthusiasm and vigour of our own people.

All these forces harnessed together in this and similar agricultural projects, will enable Kenya to reduce her overseas expenditure in favour of her exports. They will generate more income for development, and will raise the standards of living not only of the direct participants, but indirectly of a great number of people in Kenya.

Over and above this project which I have mentioned, we are now actively engaged in large development projects in passion fruit, a large one with pineapples, the immediate development in the Masai area, and in vegetable processing all along these lines.

An hon. Member: We hope we mean it.

The Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. McKenzie): It is no good, Mr. Speaker, the Member for the Masailand saying that we hope we mean it. One of the great difficulties we have had arising out of numerous meetings with the Masai people is getting full agreement from their side. We get agreement from the Member of the House here, but when we talk to the people in the area we have difficulties, but I am please to say that in one area of Masailand we have now been given 100 per cent support, and I hope that in this coming season we will see a very large acreage of wheat being grown in conjunction between the Government and the Masai people of that area. Perhaps the hon. Member is jealous of that area. In other projects, Mr. Speaker, we are negotiating with overseas investors to develop their businesses in Kenya in association with the Government and the people. Wherever possible, we shall insist on a tripartite stock holding with equity held by investors, the State and by African shareholders, either as individuals, or preferably as co-operative societies. In most schemes of this type some land will be owned by the State and this will represent part of Government's equity in the enterprise.

Co-operatives are no longer the direct responsibility of my Ministry and I do not wish to intrude upon the domain of my hon. colleague who is responsible for these matters. However, co-operatives, particularly producer co-operatives, as opposed to marketing co-operatives, are going to play such an important role in our agriculture, and in furtherance of the ideals of African socialism, I must make some mention of them. It is clear that co-operatives in order to succeed must be well advised, well managed and, above all self-disciplined. The myth that the co-operative movement is the road to an easy life with easy credit must be dispelled and co-operatives must become a real living example of the outcry which our President has always used, the word "Harambee."

With reference to co-operatives, Mr. Speaker, we intend writing into the agreement on co-operatives development in agriculture, ways and means of seeing that the managerial side is operated properly and that the finances of the people in the co-operative societies are not misused. We have had some very poor examples in the last year or two, including one very bad one where members of the co-operative had decided to lend all the committee members of that co-operative, the money belonging to that co-operative. That is something which self-discipline must stop. We do not believe that either outright capitalism, or on the other hand absolute Marxist socialism has any place in our agricultural future, and this has been proved, Mr. Speaker, in many many parts of the world. But, in accord with our policy and the principles of African Socialism we will follow flexible policy whereby we can adopt any desirable facets of agreement from their side. We get agreement from these two concepts which may happen to be compatible with our national spirit. The agricultural control vested in the State will be utilized in deciding the day-to-day policy in the planning, execution and administration of our agricultural projects and the principles of African socialism will ensure that the Government has the necessary flexibility to be able to choose the best course in any particular situation in order to secure maximum national benefit.

It is the intention of the Government to establish a number of National Farms, not because some communist countries practice state farming, with I might say, varying degrees of success, but because we have a specific and vital

[The Assistant Minister for Finance] should go and join the West in fighting communism in the world. If we did not stop them, then, very soon, they would be asking us to send our African soldiers to go and fight in Vietnam, to go and fight the communists there. We are not going to do this. We have our own war here, and that war is that we would like to get education for our people. We would like to get education for our people, and we would like to get social facilities for our people, and more wealth for our people so that their standard of living is improved. This is our battle. Our battle is not with international communism, as some people like to say, therefore we are not going to join one side and fight the communists because that is not our battle, and also it is not non-alignment. So it would be breaking our own rule.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to come to page 9, and here there is a little something which I think should go out. In paragraph 25 it says, "Similarly, the fact that other countries are more advanced is not a matter of jealousy but of opportunity, Kenya's ability to borrow funds—". That passage is not necessary, because the words "Similarly, the fact that other countries are more advanced is not a matter of jealousy—". This thing is suggesting that we are jealous of other countries. That is what it does, Mr. Deputy Speaker. This is what America, Britain and France, but not France so much, but America and Britain and West Germany were telling us in Geneva, "But why are you so jealous of our development?" This is what they were telling us, the developing countries when the African countries, Asian countries and the Latin American countries get together. They asked us why we were jealous of their development, and we told them then that their development had been obtained through some very unfair relationships. Our country was only forced to produce raw materials for their factories, and when we have sent our raw materials there then they lowered the price, but when they sent us the manufactured goods, the prices were high.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): What did we send?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Obongo): I thought we sent tea and coffee. I thought the Government did. Anyway we sent some last year. Therefore this should be out similarly the fact that the other countries are more advanced is not a matter of jealousy but an opportunity. It is not true that we are jealous of anybody but we just want to develop ourselves and we want fair economic relations between developing and advanced countries. We are not jealous so that thing should go.

Now we come to page 13, where is something to go out under foreign investors. Under foreign investors, you have paragraph 38, subsection (b). This is the way foreign investors can participate in African socialism, and (f) is correct, by making shares in the company available to African who wish to buy them; then we come down to (g) by employing Africans at managerial levels as soon as qualified people can be found. Now, that should only read: by employing Africans at managerial levels. There is no use saying: as soon as qualified people can be found. After all this Paper is supposed to last for a long time, and by that time we hope there will be a number of Africans with qualifications here, and will apply for that. So, that clause is not necessary, and should be left out as well.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think that I am mentioned a few of the points that I intended to mention as far as the definition of African socialism is concerned, and what I think about it. I think I said at the beginning that I do welcome this Bill, and that the ideas expressed are very much like my own ideas which I have expressed on various occasions. We have heard some careful discussions with the Minister that we responsible for this.

Now, I think the other things that have been mentioned are more or less with regard to our immediate problems, and I see that our immediate problems, have been put in internationalization is mentioned here, the dangers of it, and the advantages of it, which have been mentioned here and are all very good. I think that another thing that we can put here is that whatever the economic system we are going to have, we must look into certain problems that must be solved immediately, and some of these are the difficulties that we have inherited from the past.

Now, this Paper here, by calling it African socialism, is to give us some philosophical guide so that we know what our system should be like and what it should do for us. Now, this will of course, end the confusion we had in our economy where we have the African economy consisting of African socialism, and then we have the European and Asian economy based purely on capitalistic systems. Now, we hope that this is going to combine us so that we are guided by one philosophical thought, and I am quite happy that this Paper has gone a long way to tell the investors and foreign investors and others, just what our Government and our people will expect of them, and I think this is good.

[The Assistant Minister for Finance]

Another aspect of the ideas that this Paper has and should solve is the subsistence economy and monetary economy. This is more or less related to that, so we hope that this will also be solved, and methods for solving it will be encouraged, and things to be done in order to introduce monetary economy in the African rural areas, so that they catch up with the areas in the township so that they develop together. Now, we have to watch very carefully because after all you can have this industrial economy developing around cities and around mines, and then you can have utter poverty in the rural areas. This is what they have in the Union of South Africa. South Africa is one of the richest countries in the world, and yet the Africans living there are sharing a standard of living as low as ours and in many cases worse. So, this shows how an economy can grow only one side while the other side is left behind. So, what we have to look out for and positions are made adequately here, and these are matters that are being discussed also by the planning group, is that we must develop the rural economy to catch up with the town economy so that we have one integrated economy in the country, and all the sections of the population in a subsidiary economy, and the other is a monetary economy.

Another aspect which is satisfied is the exploitation element (that we have in our economy. There were a lot of dangerous elements in our economy which we must try to stop.

In other words, we would like our economy to be self-sufficient, so that it is capable of standing on its own feet; it is capable of fighting any attack, any offences from any quarter, because one day Uganda may be at war with the Congo, and somebody gets angry, and attacks us through our economy. They will tell us that we must stop doing such and such, or else this will happen, or the oil is cut off, or the money is cut off or something else is cut off. Now, this we have to prevent. We have to make measures to make our economy as efficient as possible and as self-sustaining as possible, and we must stop foreign exploitation. This means that we must have strategy for development, as has been mentioned here, so that we stop the outflow of funds from our country to outside. Now, this is happening through the big salaries of our expatriates that we might employ, because they bank all their money outside, and also the money, the profits and other things that might be coming out of the external companies by banking at a bank at home. They also participate in things like insurance businesses, like the one we have now which is a good start, so that we can keep our money here, foreign exchange here, and also sometime in the future we must develop means of having our own fleet for transporting our own goods to other parts of the world, and I am glad that in East Africa—I think there was some suggestion of an East African line. It should be encouraged and should be strong. Planning has been put as one of the most important things here, and this is good, and we hope that planning will be done in such a way that all the resources are protected and are utilized to the best benefits of the country as a whole.

I believe that what we must do with our development is to industrialize, as soon as possible. Because unless we are industrialized, we will remain behind for a long time, and we must industrialize so that we can export some of our materials, some of our manufactured goods to other parts, because the evidence or the historical evidence indicates that by relying on agricultural raw materials, the country generally lags behind economically, and therefore, we must as a strategy, move towards industrialization.

Now, I think, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, these were some of the ideas that I wanted to put forward to my colleague, the Minister for Economic Planning and Development, and I put these ideas in very good faith, and there should be no worry over being interested in blocking anything. I would like to see that this document which is very useful to us, should really be made valuable so that when we read it later there should not be anything that we would not be proud of.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

The Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. McKenzie): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I want to say a few words which affect my Ministry, and at the same time say a few words about that aspect of our Ministry which is affected by settlement and by the Ministry of Co-operatives.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, our Government and the Sessional Paper acknowledges the need today to change from an economy dependent on agriculture to a more balanced pattern of production, but for the present and for some considerable time to come unless we discover something like oil, agriculture must remain the cornerstone of our economy. In consequence, the practice and effect of African socialism will, therefore, be clearly demonstrated in this sector of our national life.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair.]

[The Assistant Minister for Finance] whether he belongs to one of the African independent churches or not. So I would ask that the definition of the relationship between African socialism and scientific socialism should be made more positive than it is here.

To go further, it has been explained on another page, in the part about relationship, how African socialism must be independent. Here, too, we have a point which we have to be careful about. What we are defining is African socialism and not Kenya socialism, I hope, because if it is Kenya socialism, then one would expect that there is a Uganda socialism, and also a Tanzania socialism. I hope that hon. Members still remember that one day a Motion was passed in this House with regard to the East African Federation, and this is one of the most important things, I think, in our political and economic life in this part of Africa? It seems that this idea of federation is left out completely in the Paper, and I feel it is important that we keep this in mind, because if we are going to define a kind of socialism that is foreign to Tanzania and also foreign to Uganda, and ours is just independent, related to nobody, then we have to be very careful how we are going to have this East African Federation. What are the things that are going to happen? I think that the door has to be kept open for the East African Federation and not only that, we have to keep the door open also for the Union Government of Africa, which is one of the goals of the Organization for African Unity to which we are very much attached. It seems as if we have forgotten this. After all, in Ghana they also have a socialistic state; in Guinea they also have a socialistic state; in Tanzania they also have a socialistic state; and in the United Arab Republic they also have one. Now we should know what our socialism is, amongst all these, other socialisms.

I think it is therefore important that we should define our socialistic idea and relate it to scientific socialism, and I would like to admit, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that whatever we do then I do believe that the principles of African socialism, by that I mean, and I understand, and it has been said here also, that these are principles that guide the economic, political and social life of the African. These principles have guided the Africans in the past, they are guiding the Africans now, and we suppose that they will guide African life in the future, and this is why we hold them so much and hold them so dearly. Now if that is so then we also have to admit that these principles bear very close similarity to scientific socialism and in fact, African socialists are socialists. They are not something else. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this is a point which we need to make and therefore I would like to say that if you can look on page 2, paragraph 7, then I would do away with the first sentence completely, and simply begin by "African socialism" by the term of African socialism; it goes on to say, "It is meant to convey the African roots of system that is itself African in its characteristics," it carries on to say, "African socialism is a term describing an African political and economic system that is positively African and being imported from any country—" That is all very good. I think that when we try to say negatively and give an impression, that this is a new doctrine, we could start this in Kenya, but has nothing to do with scientific socialism yet we cannot say whether it is capitalism then this might be misleading and might make us the laughing-stock of the world. We have to give something that we can defend anywhere and talk about. Therefore I would suggest that. Now, if that is done, then when we come down to page 3—, if we mention there that we had defined African socialism, that is the idea guiding the African life, and then admit that it bears close relationship with scientific socialism then it will be necessary for us again to say that the difference between African socialism and communism is because you allow political freedom. Because at the moment this is a debatable point. If you talk to a man coming from a socialistic country, even if you are a political scientist and you are trying to analyse the political rights of an individual in a socialistic state, and in a capitalist state, then you will find that the difference between them is not that the man in the communist state is not enjoying his life, it is not so. As a matter of fact, in capitalist countries you find that people do not really enjoy political freedom. In the United States, for instance, if our Minister here went to the United States he will not be allowed to vote let alone be a member of the congress.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): And if I find it Siberia?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Odongo): I do not know about that. I am not familiar with that. I have been to the United States and I know that if my dear friend, the Minister for Economic Planning and Development lived in Alabama then he would not have a vote, let alone go to the congress. The question of African socialism differing from communism merely on the question of political equality is a debatable point which we do not want to be a national document that we would like to keep a long time, and which we would like to be readable. So, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that being the information on page 4 of this little book here, at the bottom instead of the first paragraph, paragraph 10, and where it says, "Thus African socialism differs politically from communism because it ensures every mature citizen equal political right and from capitalism because it prevents the exercise of disproportionate political influence by economic power groups." I think we should leave that out and admit the other thing, simply defining what African socialism is and relate it to the scientific socialism. Scientific socialism is socialism as expounded by Karl Marx. It goes on to say, "Another fundamental force in African tradition life was religion which provided a strict moral code to the community. This will be a prominent feature of African socialism." I do not know how this is going to be, but this is rather vague, and if people say that there will be freedom of worship in African socialism then that is enough. Just say that there will be freedom of worship in African socialism. We do not want to be made religious by force. If somebody does not want to then he should not be forced. If it is like this then it means that it is calling for it to be done. So, I would like to point that out to our Minister. Now, I do not oppose this little line here just because of that but because I think it is unnecessary to compare African socialism, capitalism and communism when we have already compared it with scientific socialism, that is enough.

Now Mr. Speaker, Sir, another aspect is the propaganda aspect. Because it is in the West and it is among those people who do not follow socialism that always say that there is no political freedom under communism. But when we talk to a communist then they do not say so. Now the thing is—, Now our provision is that we are supposed to be non-aligned. As soon as we are non-aligned then one of the principles of non-alignment is that you do not pick a quarrel with the other party unless he attacks you and your principles. In other words when you go out and attack these people then it is quite unnecessary. After all, you may need their help. The thing is that this has a propaganda touch and we do not want to be arguing with our communist friends when we go to Moscow or when they come here all the time. How come that you put this in this political document that we have no political equality while we have and all that kind of thing? We do not want to be bothered with that, and so I would like to suggest that that thing should be out, this is on page 4.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we come to page 7 of this document, where it talks of Karl Marx's time. It is stated here that the conditions during the time when Marx wrote his book are very different in relation or similarity to the conditions in Kenya today. I think that this is also another debatable point. When the colonialists were here we had distinct class system. There were places where no Africans could go. Now, if you take that away then the conditions under which Karl Marx wrote are the conditions we inherited from the Colonial Government. As far as the Kenya economy is concerned, the whole Kenya economy, I am not talking of the African sector, there were a great many laws which were discriminatory. I think that the argument is not valid, because first we are discussing the overall Kenya economy, and then all of a sudden it jumps down to consider the African sector—how the Africans live. Well that is not fair. When we consider the Kenya economy as a whole we have to admit the fact that we inherited a colonial economy which was very much like what Karl Marx lived under. This we have to accept, now of course what we are trying to do is to integrate the economy and make it one economy instead of a subsistence economy and a monetary one, which is separate and make it one. So, I would be careful there also. This is a point that could cause people reading this document to think that we are not thinking straight or that we are not quite correct. My suggestion is that that paragraph, paragraph 20, could be a little modified, and I am putting these very humbly to the Minister for Economic Planning and Development who has been given the charge of this. Are you listening carefully?

The thing is that there is another place here on page 8, relationships to other countries. Here I agree with this entirely, because these are the principles of non-alignment, although the hon. Minister here misunderstood me on this question of non-alignment. I suggested that in order that we can be really non-aligned in Kenya we should bend a little to the East and I think that I was right, because this is what it is saying here. This is what we should do, because if you are walking on the road and find yourselves on the right, then in order to go to the centre you must turn a little to the left. Right? All you have to concentrate on is the degree of turning. This is the thing. I believe that the idea of relationship in other countries, that we should be non-interested, non-aligned and we should be like judges looking on everything without any leaning towards any party, or attacking one party without any reason. Some people say that we

While I am on commerce, Sir, I want to sound a note of warning to the Minister for Commerce and Industry. My predecessor and successor to-day is engaged in the erection of a number of synthetic fibre factories—rayon factories, and so on—from Japan and India. This same Government is telling me as the Chairman of the Cotton Board, "Develop cotton, develop cotton." I go around saying, "Cotton, cotton, cotton." In fact, I am now half mad with cotton—

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): When do you get fully mad?

Mr. Muliro: Before long I will be. In fact, Mr. Speaker, I will be fully mad soon because as long as we get the cotton in this country, we cannot establish factories in Kenya to make cotton textile shirts, blankets, and so on. We are playing with fire for our own destruction. Even Nakuru Blankets get all the jerseys and pullovers from all over the world to come and make blankets at Nakuru; they do not use any cotton.

An hon. Member: They use wool.

Mr. Muliro: Not very much of our wool, and I have visited the factory also. I would say, Sir, there must be a stop to these synthetic fibre factories being created in Kenya. We want Africans to be fully engaged in the production of cotton on the ground. There they will make some money and then in the ginneries here Africans will be engaged, and then eventually in the production of cotton textile goods from our factories in Kenya. We do not want to move forward blindfolded by some Ministers who might be short-sighted.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these very few and moderate submissions, I endorse, as I said before, this Paper and welcome it, and I hope the hon. Members will accept it as the basis of eliminating confusion which has been reigning in this country. I beg to support.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Obongo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I, like the other hon. Members who have spoken, also very much welcome this Sessional Paper that we are discussing here today. This is a Paper that we have waited for quite a long time and, as my colleague and friend, the hon. Minister for Economic Planning and Development explained in the beginning, there has been a lot of confusion with regard to this subject.

I am glad to see that the Sessional Paper, as it is, is very much welcomed by all Members.

Although I am part of the Government, I did not particularly participate in the Committee for Development—since I am not in that committee—but I did read the draft of the Paper as a Government Member and I thought it was a good Paper.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

I understand that since then some parts have been added and, of course, also I have been looking over it and reading it more and more. So I get new impressions and ideas and some suggestions that one could make. I would just like to say that the suggestions I am making are only suggestions which I put forward to the Minister who has been charged with this responsibility by our Government.

I am glad to see that in this Paper there is a great deal of material which I myself have expressed at various times in some of the papers that I have written myself, to the extent that I feel that a lot of it is an extension of some of the work I did myself. I welcome it for that, and I see that we have here things about African socialism. We have fundamental things such as control, forms of ownership, limitation of property and ownership of land, and also immediate problems and methods of dealing with them. So it covers more or less what we need in this country today. In a way, one could call it a pragmatic approach to our problems; in other words, just looking around and seeing what problems we need to solve. This Paper has touched on them.

The Paper has tended to define what is called African socialism and then, at the same time, has gone a little further to point out in certain aspects where this policy could be applied in our present situation. Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think I will address myself first to the definition because I think this is an interesting one and something that has interested us for some time in this country.

The Paper starts off by defining African socialism and traditions are mentioned, and also the application of what African traditions there are in our present situation. I would suggest that while we start off by defining it, then we go on to talk about African traditions, especially in the field of political equality or political democracy and also in the field of mutual responsibility, social responsibility, this is a good thing, but I would have suggested that in mentioning the through some of the actual examples ought to have been mentioned so that whoever reads this Paper does not go away with the idea that it is all theoretical things based on nothing. In other words, there should be some concrete examples of African socialism or socialistic practices put down in this Paper. I see here land has been mentioned as one of them the ownership of land. This ought to have been pointed out rather clearly, more than it is pointed out here, the system of land ownership and land tenure among the African peoples. Also, this applies to the question of work and reward. We have labour put in here and it would be interesting to point out how in the African tradition people used to go to work. Words like "sage" in Luo have been used here and these and it would be good to point out how people worked together.

Then it might also be good to point out how people were rewarded for their work: in other words, the distribution of the wealth that was available and how people obtained the benefit of these things. I do believe that we have some of our very prominent tribal defenders here; I can only speak for the Luo and I know that there are certain interesting aspects of distribution which could be mentioned in this Paper to show that it is not just something in the air. For instance, the distribution of meat. If, say, a cow or a bull has been slaughtered in a village, the way in which the flesh is distributed among the members of the community is a very interesting thing which would be of interest to anybody who is studying such things. You find that in a community, whenever there is such a thing, there is always a piece of flesh from a certain part of the carcass of the animal which goes to a definite member of the clan, and so on, so that each woman is taken care of and each child has something, and each grandfather or grandmother has something. This is something which could be mentioned, to show that when we talk about African socialism we are not just talking about something out of our hat or we are just saying something from the air, but something definite that has existed.

In this case, Sir, this is one of the things which I thought should be mentioned here.

The next one which is very important is the definition of African socialism. As I see here, on page 2, paragraph 7, it says, "In the phrase 'African socialism', the word 'African' is not introduced to describe a continent to which a foreign ideology is to be transplanted." I do not know what that foreign ideology is, but it seems clear that what is meant is that we should not think that the Continent of Africa is taken to be the continent and that you take an ideology like, say, Socialism and then it is applied in Africa so that it is called African socialism. I do believe that I do not know whether I am correct—that this is what it meant here, that we should not mistake this as merely scientific socialism being practised in Africa by Africans. I think that this is what it means. If this is what it means, I think that we have to be a little careful here. I agree with the following sentence which says, "African socialism is a term describing an African political and economic system that is positively African not being imported from any country or being a blueprint of any foreign ideology but capable of incorporating useful and compatible techniques from whatever source." This is very good and I do agree with it, and what I understand here is that African socialism means that it is a set of economic, social and political principles that guide the life of the Africans. In other words, you are looking for certain principles within the economic, social and political life of the African, and you are calling this African socialism. Then, after that, what you are doing is that you are making it flexible so that it can be applied to incorporate some of the new problems. If this is the case, I would say, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that when these principles are examined, which are African or which one might call Africanism, especially in terms of economic and political relations, they bear a very close relationship to those principles upheld by scientific socialism. I think that there is a similarity between them and that being so, I feel it is very necessary that we should define the relationship of our African socialism with scientific socialism as such.

It has been compared with communism, but apart from here where it is made very clear that African socialism does not mean scientific socialism practised in Africa, nothing positive is said with regard to just what is the difference between African socialism and scientific socialism. I would like to admit, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that those principles which guide the economic, social and political life of the Africans bear a very close relationship to those principles which are expounded in scientific socialism. It would be, therefore, important that we must make the relationship clear. I feel in a way that to say that African socialism has nothing to do with scientific socialism would be really excluding ourselves. There must be a relationship between African socialism and scientific socialism because, after all, an African socialist, if we use that term, is an African inasmuch as an African Christian is a Christian,

[Mr. Muliro]

Sir, we are human beings. Being Africans, we are no less human beings than any other species which is of the same type, whether Europeans, Asians, or Americans or Eskimos of the North. Human beings are human beings and human beings as human beings are capable of learning and drawing from the experiences which has been gained by other human beings elsewhere. We cannot say we have everything else which has been done every where else except that we hold to be true.

Sir, the basic principle in socialism is, as I see it, and as many other people have seen it before in Kenya, is an effort, an exercise to bridge the gap between the very rich and the very poor. Sir, that is a part which is basically a trend of socialism, and the efforts which have been referred to are undertaken, then the aim at reaching this by Government to bridge the gap between the haves and the have-nots then we are achieving nothing. Sir, we see that those who are referred to in the document, have written good English, but technically unless these people make the Kenya we want to have, and ultimately bring into the Government between the have and the have-nots. We can never cope with conversion of a revolution by the have-nots.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another point, which has been characterizing that position of the Government. I would tabulate when I come to talk about nationalization. Therefore, Sir, with this in mind I would like to say, that the Minister for Economic Planning and Development would have very rightly called this document "an economic appraisal of Kenya's economic development" rather than African socialism. This talk on African socialism is just additional and means nothing. Sir, today in Kenya, is our Government in which Kenya is pledged today, is this that during the problems, during the struggle of political independence the Kenya politicians, some looked to the East and some looked to the West, for their political support, for financial support in order to come into financial positions. This, Sir, is today basically the struggle of Kenya. Some hon. Members in this House might not know that it is obvious fact. Sir, these problems, as I see it, require determination by the hon. Members, the representatives elected by the masses in this country as leaders to lead the country irrespective of what Russian would think of Kenya, irrespective of what America or Britain would think of Kenya. We should aim at what is right for Kenya and what determined steps can we take to put Kenya on the map as Kenya. In the interest of their children. In the interest of our nation. In the interest of anybody who has the interest of the Kenya people.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it has been said in this Government that the conditions which pointed Karl Marx in 1848 to draw the communist manifesto based on capital are non-existent in Kenya.

An hon. Member: You are misleading us.

Mr. Muliro: If I am misleading anyone in the right direction then we shall continue straight on and mislead until someone else comes to correct it.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when Karl Marx drew up this document in 1848 where he claimed and stated his ideas, which were that a worker owns no property. The worker in all respects be free to move and to own the machinery of production which directs him. That, Sir, was the argument which he was fighting, that in order to do that we must have a communist society, must create a dictatorship of the proletariat. Those were the ideas at that time. But there have been improvements when it came to practical working on the philosophy, improvements have been made, and from those improvements we have to make more improvements for Kenya, Sir, what today—Hon. Members are making jokes over the word "communism". A number of them know nothing about it. The people who talk about communism have not even seen a copy of the communist manifesto. The people are being confused deliberately. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if any of the hon. Members want to give up in the cause of Karl Marx, wanting to read a few chapters on the communist manifesto then come to my library. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I realize that the hon. Members are narrow and never seen a copy. Next week I will bring one and then the hon. Member for Narok can read for the week and then I will take it back the following week.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, these ideas of communism is a camouflage by individuals in order to create further confusion. This is not the time, Sir, for confusion, and when I say it like that I mean it as I am a Roman Catholic, I would be the last person to accept communist ideology, as a capitalist I withdraw, reject the doctrine of communism, which is, according to the teaching I learned from the Roman Catholic faith which is a Godly society. Sir, when one talks on the Summary, Sir, on page 16. It says, "that the main features of African socialism—", without having to define it, is political democracy, mutual social responsibility, various forms of ownership, a range of controls and diffusion of ownership to avoid concentration of economic power. Now, Sir, when we in this House, are going to act

[Mr. Muliro] this document. We are going to pass it in this House but it is here it is going to become a dead letter even more than that which was in the Kanu Manifesto. Sir, it is said that African society during colonial days were poor. Mr. Speaker, Sir, who denies this? But this House knows that if those hon. Members today here did not have money for their election campaign, they could not have got elected.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, all these hon. Members who are sitting near me are talking as if they do not want me to bear.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I was just on the point of suggesting Mr. Anyieni that you yourself should talk less. I think that all hon. Members in that part of the House are making too much noise for Mr. Muliro to be heard.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, let me move away from this. I was only protesting.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Some of your protests were directed across the Floor.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was stressing the point that if some of the hon. Members in this House had not had some money, then they would never have got into this House, including myself of course. I say this: that money is necessary for the political fight, and in determining who is to represent us. We heard the speaker saying that those have-nots enjoy universal suffrage; one man one vote, and one man buying 100 votes.

Now, Sir, I cannot deny this, though some Members may. I was returned as the Member for Trans Nzoia, so what?

If there was no money we would never have come, because we were paid with money. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is what I say, that whatever we say about money and the control, the techniques which are embodied in this document as political democracy or the political equity which we were talking of, is a mere daydream.

Mr. Speaker, another point which was raised here is on education, I accept that this is long-term project. It is an investment and which only yield results after a long time. I hope, when the Minister for Education will be talking on this Paper, he will tell us some of the crash programmes, the techniques of how we can manufacture more teachers. I would give him this harmful suggestion, that all teachers, all high school students in Form V and Form VI should at least be given one or two lessons per week in the methods of teaching, so that when they leave the school they are ready to go to high schools and universities and become teachers, instead of wasting further time in a diploma's course. We need this in order to develop this country. This is what I think must be done, and all the students who go to university, particularly the arts and science students, should do likewise so that they do not waste an extra year at the University of East Africa getting a diploma. When they have finished they go out and start teaching. This is what I think the Ministry of Education must do in the interests of economic development, because we need educated material, and educated local manpower for whatever development we want to carry it out in this country. A borrowed jembe is a mere borrowed jembe. When you want it most the owner will take it away from you, and the borrowed steel technicians which come from abroad with these people find these conditions in Kenya which are very normal in developing countries. They find conditions in Kenya politically unpalatable to them, and they might withdraw at any moment. Therefore, Sir, we would like to tackle this as quickly as possible.

Another point is the Form V and Form VI students. We would like technical colleges for them, at least one or two per province, so that we can send our technicians to these colleges on a short-term basis, and they would come out to do the work. This is what I think must be done if we have to get anywhere in this country, because as it was said yesterday, skilled manpower in every technique in our development is of vital importance.

Now, another point, Sir, which I would like to dwell on under education is this: in areas which are backwards, like Masai, Turkana, and part of the Coast Province, definitely we have to find advice on giving compulsory education to these people, because all that manpower is a waste to Kenya. Some areas have no schools even. Today in the Central Province, one will not force the parent to take the child to school. The parents queue at the school to get their children admitted in Form I. But, when one goes to Masai, Sir, one will find the chiefs have to go to collect the children to go to school. In Turkana, it is impossible to get five children per classroom. I think the Government must spend a bit of money in those areas to force those people to develop, because the lopsided development which we have because the lopsided development, should had under the colonial administration, should not be allowed to linger on because backward people are a threat to the economy and the security of this country.

[The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing] This is the essence of African socialism, as I see it, Mr. Speaker. It is the mutual dependence of the individual and society, for mutual social, political and economic security. This definition of African socialism that the individual is not a passenger passively carried in a ship of state, but is a member of the crew who participates in the important business of the sailing ship of the state. Again, here, I underline that, Mr. Speaker. The individual, therefore, while utilizing his intellectual talents, physical ability and other mental resources, Mr. Speaker, and while enjoying acquiring the good life for himself, benefits the society at the same time.

African socialism, Mr. Speaker, also provides for those frailties that are so human, such as differences in mental and physical ability of different members of the society. It provides for those who have ability to acquire wealth quickly to distribute part of it for the benefit of their less fortunate brothers, because I think it is human that some people are more capable of doing a thing than others. Therefore, this Paper, as I have said, can benefit those who are less fortunate by the way of taxes. Thus, broadly speaking, African socialism, Mr. Speaker, provides for equitable distribution of national wealth to society members in a manner which assures that it is not concentrated in the hands of the unscrupulous few while the less well-endowed millions starve.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, African socialism, as I see it, is truly African in origin and seeks to solve economic, social and political problems not only in this country but in Africa as a whole.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the economy of this country to a very large extent depends on agriculture. I would like to hammer this very much, Mr. Speaker. Our plans in agriculture provide us with perhaps the best example of African socialism at work. In the development of our future economy, my Ministry has been assigned a very important role. In most developing countries, economic progress depends upon a co-operative economy and a co-operative economy depends upon education. Progress depends on the quality of voluntary workers who participate in it with a sense of national dedication. Progress also depends on the quality of those who are prepared to volunteer to work and who participate in it with a sense of national dedication. Although good merchandise speaks for itself, as we have been told many times, Mr. Speaker, it also speaks with even greater effect with the help of experienced and well-trained people.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the co-operative movement in this country has its direct roots in African traditions. Therefore, if the movement is to play its proper role in the future development of this country, as laid down in the Paper, there can be no doubt that it must be made strong, efficient and self-supporting. This will involve greater discipline and training for those who participate in it. We must develop our talents and abilities by planning and operating training programmes for manpower in co-operative organizations. The object of this is to raise the standard of performance.

POINT OF ORDER

READING OF SPEECHES

Mr. Oduya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to know whether, when we Members stand up, we will also be allowed to have a written speech and read it, because I can see that the Minister is reading what has been written down. We do not know whether it has been written by his experts, whether foreign or local.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Oduya is quite correctly reminding the House of a Standing Order which says that speeches shall not be read. In the application of that Standing Order, it has always been recognized that the Mover of a Motion, particularly a Minister, if he has to deal with matters of detail, technicalities or a very large and intricate picture, as was the case in moving this Motion, is allowed some exemption from that rule. However, in other respects, hon. Members are expected to observe that rule; they can refer to notes, of course, but not read every word, and I would hope that the hon. Member will try to be spontaneous.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyok): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that we take this document as a very important one and we would like to give detailed information and to define our position in this House with that whatever speech is made in this House will be compiled for detailed information to the country as a whole. I think, Mr. Speaker, in this case when a Minister speaks, it is like an introduction, because here we are dealing with details concerning the Ministries.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Where hon. Members particularly Ministers, are dealing with details and technicalities, this position is, indeed, as Mr. Onyok says, and they must be allowed to read that does not apply to hon. Members who are dealing with generalities, when I think Mr. Njeri was doing up to this point in his speech. There are very good reasons for this rule. One is the

[The Speaker] reason Mr. Oduya mentioned, although I do not say it applies in this case, that it is too easy for hon. Members to read speeches written for them by others. The other is that it makes quite a difference, because a spontaneous speech is much more interesting and easy to listen to than a speech that is merely read. So I would again ask for spontaneity to the best of hon. Members' ability.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Njeri): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to make it clear that I was only reading my notes. As you know, I have done extensive research on this paper and also as a member of the Cabinet Committee which prepared this paper, I wanted to be able to quote details fully in amplification of the policy speech made by the Minister for Economic Planning, and I was viewing my speech in relation to this amplification and to its application to my Ministry of Co-operatives and Marketing which I think is going to play a greater role in the application of the African socialist state. Can I continue?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can continue, but try to give us a spontaneous speech.

(Resumption of debate on Motion)

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Njeri): Mr. Speaker, when I looked at this Paper I found, Mr. Speaker that it was right and proper that the basis of African socialism must be very fundamental, must be very original and therefore, co-operative and marketing. Mr. Speaker, was one of those factors which will be the foundation stone of the Sessional Paper which has been tabled in this House on African socialism.

Mr. Speaker, I may perhaps go a little further than that. In relation to this Paper, Mr. Speaker, as I see it, to enable the fair distribution of wealth we must have big co-operatives, we must have organized marketing, we must have an established co-operative bank to see that these co-operative societies in every district can play a role in the fair distribution of wealth among the citizens of every society. I see, Mr. Speaker, the introduction of a co-operative bank, whereby societies of various regions or various districts will be afforded the opportunity of using the financial opportunities that will be provided under these things by the co-operative ministry which will pass through to the members, money to deal with things which I consider having reached only a few which, of course, are therefore only benefiting a few people, which, as I have quoted previously, I call the capitalist class. Because this bank will be able to lend money to the co-operative societies in order that the co-operative societies may be able to organize the marketing of the produce from the various districts. This, apart from the taxes, which of course is not in my portfolio and which I do not want to talk about has been excluded in the Sessional Paper, will play a greater role, Mr. Speaker, to have a fair distribution of work. When this is expressed, Mr. Speaker, then we shall not, and I repeat, Sir, go back to the camp of confusion to say which "ism" we support and what "ism" we do not support because everyone will go a long way to having his demands and problems removed by the system of a co-operative bank. And, Mr. Speaker, as I would like to say I do not want to continue by speech because my emphasis was that the Paper caters for what is good for this country, not what we have been told is good for this country by others, but what is good for this country and Mr. Speaker, with those few words I would like to support the Paper with this little contribution that I have made.

Mr. Mafiro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to speak on this Paper and before I say anything on the Paper, Sir, I would like to place on record my gratitude and that of many of the people whom we represent in this country, that the Government at last has come out with a document which some might call African socialism, but which I personally would rather call an economic document for Kenya. Sir, Kenya has been very confused and it has been confused by our Government for a long time, the Kenya Government, including the Junior Ministers or Assistant Ministers, Mr. Speaker, Sir, one person says this in Nakuru, another says this in Nyeri, another one says something else in Mombasa and one in Kisumu and in Nairobi someone says something else. There are more Ministers making speeches elsewhere. There are more Ministers making speeches in the Western Region, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I say this because of the confusion which has been created. This document at least gives us a way, at least modus operandi, a way in which we can operate, Sir, it has that much and I congratulate the Government upon the production of this document.

Sir, in the document it has been clearly stated as a free play here and there that is derived from and what was contained in it is derived from African tradition which is the thought of African socialism. Sir, in my humble submission, if we look into African tradition, tribal, various tribal cultures, various tribal traditions in Kenya, today, we will not find our answer to the document which is before us today.

[Mr. Osofo] because they are adults and have their own families.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister not aware that in the plots that are partly coral, the settlers earn money by selling the rock, and as such those settlers do not necessarily qualify to own more than one plot?

Mr. Osofo: Mr. Speaker, the interest of the Ministry is in economic farming, and not in the economic selling of rock.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We must go on now.

Is there any hon. Member authorized by Mr. Rurumban to ask his Question 1099, or by Mr. Amin to ask his Question 1082?

Then we will go on to the next Order.

MOTION

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 10 of 1963/65:
AFRICAN SOCIALISM

THAT this House, having studied carefully the Sessional Paper No. 10 of 1963/65 entitled "African Socialism and its Application to Planning in Kenya" notes and adopts the said paper as the basis and guide for future development planning and policy in Kenya.

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 4th May 1965)

(The Minister for Economic Planning and Development, on 4th May 1965)

POINT OF ORDER

LIMITATION OF DEBATE

Mr. Kibuga: On a point of order, Sir, may I know from you the time that will be allowed. Is it the usual five minutes or more?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no time limit either for the duration of this debate or for the length of speeches each Member can make, as long as he remains relevant, and not repetitive. It is open to the House to resolve on a Motion that there shall be limitation of time but it can only be moved by a Member of the Sessional Committee and by direction of that committee. There have been no such Motion as yet, and if an hon. Member is lucky enough to catch my eye, he will be able to speak as long as he likes.

Mr. Anylen: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, under what Standing Order do we limit the speeches, in view of the fact that I understand Government intends to adjourn the House at the end of this week? Under which Standing Order could we propose that this be limited to only twenty minutes, so that we can allow more Members to speak?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is Standing Order 71, which provides that no such Motion shall be made except by a Member of the Sessional Committee, and under the direction of that committee. It can be moved then without notice.

(Resumption of debate on Motion)

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngeli): Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak on the Paper, about African socialism, and I would like to make some observations before I continue with what I term the application of African socialism to co-operatives and marketing in Kenya.

Much has been said by my colleague the Minister for Economic Planning, about the confusion which has been going around the country, and of course, one which cannot escape without any comment. We have heard much about communism, much about capitalism, much about socialism, but this House has no record of any lacking-isms as opportunist-ism, and also the one which caters for thousands of millions of people in Kenya. As an elected Member, and also a Cabinet Minister, I would like to say something about this. It is clearly stated in Kana's Manifesto, and the President of this Republic, together with the hon. Members, have read it in black and white, that this country can only go on the non-alignment policy. It is true that it has been introduced into this country. It is true that one favours or one may think in the way of socialism, communism, Kenya-ism, as I think, and capitalism, but I think the best-ism is the one which is suited for the advancement of the people of Kenya, but not the one which was centuries ago, profounded by the people who have already left this world, people like Engels, Karl Marx, and also some of the people from the Western countries, like Great Britain, America and so on. In fact, Sir, of late we have been studying these -isms, and I have been left in the same conclusion that millions of people in Kenya are in confusion today, because if the -ism has been made to suit your own interest, then you are going the wrong way. The -ism must be such to cater for the advancement of the people of the particular country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Members could be reasonable and listen to me, then they would also have ample time to comment, but please give me freedom.

[The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing]

As far as -ism is concerned, I would like to say this, Mr. Speaker: I am not an enemy of westernism, capitalism or communism or socialism, as long as it fits, as long as I can get some experience from that country which will suit our country. Today, we are creating enemies all over the world because we are saying things about the Chinese, about the British, about the Americans, and so on, but there are some British, some Chinese, some Russians and some Arabs who are well-wishers of this country; not all in America, not all in Russia, not all in China, not all in Africa have an ill-will towards us. Therefore, to those I am saying, welcome to Kenya. But as regards a few from many countries who can only be happy so long as Kenya has confusion, as far as political ideologies are concerned, I say that they are the greatest enemies not of Kenya but of the whole of the Continent of Africa.

I believe in Kenyanism, I believe that I should be given freedom to decide what suit of mine I am going to wear, I believe I must determine, not alone but in conjunction with the majority of the people of Kenya, which way we list. We are not going to follow this because we are being spoon-fed, nor are we going to follow what because one particular person thinks that we should follow that. I think the people outside, being given guidance by this House, being given guidance by the Government, will have to decide which way we have to go, Mr. Speaker.

The hon. Minister said a lot of things, which I shall not repeat, he recited many things from great political thinkers of the world to the present statesmen like President Nyerere. My concern, Mr. Speaker, today is to see how this policy here, as laid down by the Sessional Paper No. 10, can be applicable to the daily life of the ordinary citizen of this country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may start, as I see it, in co-operatives and marketing, I hope I will not be accused of playing my own tune, but I think this is one of the avenues of salvation for the trouble that we have in this country, Mr. Speaker, Sir, African socialism and its application to planning has now been defined in this White Paper which has been tabled by my friend, the hon. Minister for Economic Planning and Development. It truly reflects a statement of intention rather than fact. The document is a reflection of Government's overall assessment of the viewpoint of the people and it is entirely based on the Kana's Manifesto, which is the mandate this Government has. The definition of African socialism as described in this Paper applies with particular force to this country and deals specifically with the conditions and changing circumstances of our people. Our concept of this idea differs from communism in that it ensures for every citizen equal political rights, and from capitalism in that it seeks to prevent the exercise of disproportionate political influence by economic power groups.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I understand from this Paper, the main features of African socialism are political democracy, mutual social responsibility and various forms of ownership; a range of controls to ensure that property is used in the mutual interest of the society and its members, diffusion of ownership to avoid concentration of economic power in the hands of a few, and progressive taxes to ensure an equitable distribution of wealth and income. Although the White Paper makes no reference to minorities, it does acknowledge that the foreigner has a role to play in our new republic, either as investor and developer or as an individual. Mr. Speaker, Sir, as this country develops into a welfare state, it is only right that preference must be given to the citizens, so that they may be able to enjoy the fruits of the freedom which we have won with our blood and toil. At the same time, those who are better endowed must make sacrifices in the interests of the people and the country as a whole.

I congratulate the hon. Minister for Economic Planning on producing this comprehensive Paper, together with his colleagues, in clearing the minds of many people as to the true nature of our concept of African socialism. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the concept of African socialism as used in this country's policy does not cover the social aspect only. It covers a broad field and includes social, political and economic features, all wrapped up together. In order to define it, therefore, one must take into account all three components. African socialism is not just a concept, it is more than that, it is a way of life which penetrates deep and finds its nourishment in the traditional customs—and I repeat traditional customs—and practices passed down from generation to generation. This is the basis, this is the foundation, this is the corner-stone of the whole political ideology in any country. Mr. Speaker, in any corner of the world, African socialism, Mr. Speaker, as I see it, is a way of life which penetrates deep, as I have said. Therefore, it is a living organism in which an individual can find social, political and economic security; and this is why this Paper must be studied so well as to see whether these fundamental concepts are laid down. This is mainly what it is the mandate this Government has. The individual's thinking and behaviour can enable him to benefit the community in which he lives.

not know whether he wants us to export girls for recreational purposes!

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that some of these students who returned did so because some of them were Standard VIII chaps who had been selected to go to university, and thus finding it difficult to continue with a university education, they decided to come back?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it might be that this point is one of the points which we are trying to find out and, therefore, I am not yet ready to give an answer to that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think we must go on, as the Assistant Minister is obviously not prepared to give more information.

Question No. 2049

AFRICANIZATION OF PRESS ATTACHE IN LONDON

Mr. Obok asked the Minister for External Affairs if he would tell the House when his Ministry intended to Africanize the post of Press Attaché at the Kenya High Commission in London.

The Assistant Minister for External Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The post of Press Attaché at the Kenya High Commission in London has not yet been filled. An expatriate officer, at present on a short contract, is acting in that post. An African officer is now under training and he will take over this post in the near future.

Mr. Oboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, would he tell the House what benefit the Kenya Government is getting by keeping an expatriate officer in that position, when we have African already in the country, with great experience, who could do the job?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the work involved needs experience and it is a special type of work. That is why we cannot just use anybody to go and take over the job. We are training somebody to take over immediately.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister explain what he means by "near future", does he mean two months time, or when is this student going to have his training and when will he take over, roughly speaking?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the near future means as soon as this Kenyan is ready to take over.

Mr. arap Toor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the reply of the Assistant Minister, will he give the House the name of the person who is going to take over this post?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not in a position to give the name now, but if the hon. Member is interested, then he can get the name in my office any time he comes to it.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, is the Assistant Minister in a position to let the House know whether it is only in London that we have this shortage, and if not, how many people are in training to act as Press Attachés in various countries?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this is another question, but for the information of the Member we are short of staff all round and we are trying our best to train them and get them to the places where they are most needed.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Question 2002 must be left off because it has already been answered.

DIFFERENT KINDS OF TRADERS' LOANS

Mr. Odero-Sar asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry whether the Minister would tell the House the reasons for giving loans to traders in different forms, i.e. some receiving loans in cash and others assistance in goods.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiako): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The actual policy of the Traders Loans Board is to issue loans in the forms of goods, and it is only in very exceptional cases that cheques are issued to Africans. The reasons behind this policy is to avoid the mistakes of the past where loan recipients were tempted to use business loans for personal conveniences rather than for business. To quote a few examples, Mr. Speaker, Sir, for the interest of the hon. Members: we have known cases where business loans were used for coffee planting or for buying private cars and, in some very extreme cases, for payment of bride price.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, such practices have resulted in a very high percentage of defaulters, because the investment was not a very paying investment. We shall, therefore, continue to stick as strictly as possible to the practice of issuing loans in the form of goods rather than cash or cash cheques.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, in view of the past experience that loans in cash have resulted in so many defaulters, would the Minister assure this House that in future, for the good name of the country and also in the interests of the traders in this country, that loans in the form of goods will continue and not cash?

Dr. Kiako: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thought that that was exactly what I said, and as soon as the National Trading Corporation has depots in various districts, the same instructions will be given so that people can get the goods from the National Trading Corporation.

Mr. Oniar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the original reply by the Minister, is he aware that the loan in form of goods is very expensive to the African traders because in many cases the authority which is responsible for giving loans in the form of goods choose the shops of the Asians who are their friends and, therefore, they charge a very large interest to the African traders?

Dr. Kiako: Mr. Speaker, I do not accept the allegation that the Traders Loans Board do anything of that sort, but I indicated as I was replying to the hon. Member for Butere that as soon as the National Trading Corporation has its depots or shops in the various districts, the goods will come from the National Trading Corporation's authorized shops, but in any case the goods are given of equal value to the amount of money agreed by the board.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, would the Minister tell us of the special conditions when he said that there are certain special cases where cash is given instead to the traders?

Dr. Kiako: Mr. Speaker, I said that was the past experience which proved to us that it was a mistake.

Question No. 2040

NUMBER OF APPLICANTS FOR SETTLEMENT

Mr. Ngala asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement if—

(a) the Minister would state the number of applicants on waiting lists in the Shimba Hills, Mtwapa and Roka Settlements respectively.

(b) the number of settlers who held two or more plots in Shimba Hills, Mtwapa and Roka Settlements respectively.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. No applicants are on the waiting list for plots in the Shimba Hills. Approximately, 2,000 applicants are on the waiting list for Roka, and approximately 2,400 applicants are on the waiting list for Mtwapa.

With regard to the second part of the question, at Shimba Hills there are none, although adult sons of all the settlers have been allocated plots and in Roka there are thirty-six and at Mtwapa there are none.

Mr. Ngala: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, where the Minister has allowed some settlers to hold more than two plots at Roka, where there are 2,000 settlers on the waiting list, could he explain why he is doing that favour to particular settlers?

Mr. Osogo: This has been done because where land is predominantly coral, we have to add to such land more acres to make it economic for anybody to farm it.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, arising from that reply, does the Assistant Minister not agree with me that at Roka, before the settlement scheme was set up, his own Ministry determined that twelve or eighteen acres would be an economic unit and, therefore, people applied on that basis? Why is it only a few people who have three plots when the majority of the settlers who are already on the plots have single plots? There must be something else.

Mr. Osogo: I do not agree with the hon. gentleman, Mr. Speaker, because when surveying an area, the survey of the soil structure is not taken into account at that early stage, but when an area has been settled, difficulties are found in the soil structure and difficulties have been found in this particular area, where a lot of coral has been found on the land, and it is not economic to give twelve acres to a settler, so we doubled the acreage to allow some of the settlers to have an economic farming unit.

Mr. Gichoya: Arising from one of the replies by the Assistant Minister, that a person with a child is given land and the child is also given land, and the— I think I had better put it better. A person possess land and his own child is given land elsewhere or in the same area, yet there are people with no land. Is it the policy of the Government to encourage one family and discourage another?

Mr. Osogo: It is interesting to see how the hon. Member for Gichugu listens to questions given in this House, and it looks as if some Members have been replying to him as he was speaking, Mr. Speaker.

In my reply, I did not say that children get land, but adult sons of settlers get an acreage,

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it seems that the Minister has only indicated his ignorance regarding this question. I was not asking of initial sums set aside for the North-Eastern Province in January 1964. I am asking about the sum of £50,000 which was set aside by the Government in November 1963. Now, Mr. Speaker, would the Minister give his answer regarding the latter question?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very willing to answer questions, but if the hon. Member thinks I am ignorant of the question he asks, then he can answer it himself.

Mr. Masada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply of the hon. Minister, could the Minister tell us what are the projects now which have already begun in the North-Eastern Province?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as the House well knows, continued Shifita attacks have prevented a start on several important projects in the province. Nevertheless, quite a number have been undertaken, the biggest being the Wajir Secondary School, which took in its first pupils this year. It will be completed in stages over the next three years at a total cost of between £30,000 and £40,000. Other projects include a special administration training course for Somalis, from which successful students have been recruited into the public service. Improvements to Wajir Hospital have been completed and so have extensions to the Mandera and Wajir water supplies. Information services have also been stepped up as planned.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, do I have then to understand that the Government is bankrupt of funds for the North-Eastern Province development purposes?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government is not bankrupt, the Government is doing what it can, but the hon. Member is bankrupt.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am wondering, Mr. Speaker, whether the sort of allegations which the hon. Minister has made could be substantiated?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, it is not the sort of thing one substantiates, but it was unnecessarily offensive, I think.

Mr. Khalif: Then, Mr. Speaker, could I now ask that the Minister do now withdraw and apologise to the hon. Member of Wajir North?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you should withdraw, you know, Mr. Mboya.

Mr. Mboya: I do not intend to withdraw, but I intend to say that in my view the hon. Member was bankrupt in his ideas.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry you want to persist in that sort of statement, Mr. Mboya, it is not the best line to take in this House.

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not intend to be offensive, Mr. Speaker, but when an hon. Member in asking questions, deliberately and twice goes out of his way merely to infer and to do the sort of thing, he deserves what he gets.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, following your ruling of telling Mr. Mboya to withdraw this, I would like, as a Member of this Chamber, to insist that Mr. Mboya either withdraws that allegation or substantiates.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not a question of substantiation at all. It is a comment on an hon. Member's performance. I think it an offensive and undesirable comment. That is all.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that you have ruled that it is an offensive allegation and indeed many Members feel it is an offensive allegation, and in view of the fact that the Minister in question is not withdrawing, is there any way whereby we could ask the Minister to leave the Chamber?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, as I explained only quite recently, that it is only when the Speaker comes to the point that he considers as offence so serious that he must name the Member and invite the House to take action. This is not a case as serious as that. I am sorry Mr. Mboya is not prepared to withdraw, but I do not regard it as serious enough to require him to leave the Chamber, and it is true that Mr. Khalif himself used an offensive expression only a few minutes ago. I am not allowing any more points of order on this one.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, this is a very special case, Sir, in view of the fact that your ruling has not been adhered to, and you are not prepared to take any action. I would like to leave the Chamber to indicate my disapproval.

(Mr. Khalif withdrew from the Chamber)

Question No. 2030

ASSISTANCE FOR ALLINDINA VISRAM GOOL

Mr. Nalle: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the assurances I have had from the Minister, I wish to withdraw this question.

Question No. 2038

RETURN OF KENYA STUDENTS FROM BAKU: REASONS

Mr. Ngala asked the Minister for Education—

- If the Minister could state the basis of insecurity which made twenty-nine Kenya students return from Baku (Russia).
- The forms of discrimination that the students had suffered from?
- Why the Kenya Government had not subsidized the allowances made by Russia to enable the students to continue their studies?

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Koechellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) Government is currently sifting information given by students with the Kenya Embassy in Moscow and other sources available to us, to ascertain the basis of insecurity which led the twenty-nine students to leave Baku.

(b) It is hoped that the information thus received will indicate the presence of the type and degree of discrimination to which the students said they were subjected. Statements and memoranda are still continuing. It is not possible to make a statement on the matter at this stage.

(c) On the question of subsidizing students, it is important to note that the Kenya Government accepts these scholarships from any foreign country on the grounds that they are fully maintained and this has always been the case. The Ministry of Education, owing to inadequacy of funds, does not, therefore subsidize students who are receiving fully maintained scholarships under another government, according to the Government agreement signed between this Government and the foreign government.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister therefore tell the House how many students there were, in fact, in Baku, and, out of the total, find out from the Russian Government in Baku if there are any students who are still there and what facilities they are being offered in their studies?

Mr. Koechellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know whether I will be accurate in giving a number, because I have not the total number of students who have been left in Baku, but it is quite true that there is a good number of Kenya students still in Baku. There was a group of about ninety and therefore twenty-nine left for Kenya and four went to West Germany and therefore a good number are still remaining in Baku.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies, would the Assistant Minister not agree with me that it is unwise for his Ministry to allow Kenya students to go to Baku, because that is a notorious place where students are not allowed social mixing, dancing with the women there. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is very important that the students have proper recreation.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odugo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, the hon. Member in order to refer to a place in a friendly country as notorious?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): (Inaudible) but I do not think he was doing it very seriously. If he was, then it is out of order.

Mr. Ngala: According to the impression I had in the paper.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, but there must not be criticism of a friendly country except by way of a substantive motion. I thought the "notorious" was rather with "tongue in cheek".

Mr. Ngala: You thought right, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think you finished your question, Mr. Ngala.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my question was that in view of the current reputation of this place called Baku, Russia, and the students apparently not having proper means of recreation and being regarded as on an unequal footing with other people in that area, would the Assistant Minister not give assurance that our students will not go to that area, to a place where they will be regarded as inferior human beings in that part of the country?

Mr. Koechellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I have said before, the Ministry of Education is still investigating the matter, and since then we have received a number of memorandums and reports from the students, so, at the moment, we do not know what is true in the stuff we have, but our Embassy in Moscow is also trying to forward us some information, so at the moment, we are not in the proper position to give assurances whether the students were right or these students were discriminated against in Baku or not, but we have taken up their explanations for further investigation.

Secondly, the hon. Mr. Ngala mentioned about recreation. I do not know what he means. I do

[Mr. Nyanweya] that is to say they work for twelve days in a year, which entitles them to the salaries in the scales I have already mentioned. However, if any member of the Provincial Council desires to become a civil servant, he will of course present his case before the Public Service Commission and I am quite sure that he, having been a member of the Provincial Council, this will be taken into consideration in the way of experience in public life.

Mr. Kerich: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Assistant Minister agree with me that it is the wish of this House that salaries paid to individual members of the Provincial Councils are not enough and should be increased immediately?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is a different question.

Question No. 2015 /

CIVIL SERVANTS' CONTRIBUTIONS TO KANU

Mr. Godia asked the President if he would assure the House that any civil servants who were Kanu sympathizers and who wished to contribute or donate to assist the Kanu Party organization at local, district, provincial or country level, would not be victimized by the head of their department.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyanweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. No, Sir. The Government could not give such an assurance. In accordance with the present regulations governing the Civil Service, all civil servants are prohibited from active participation in politics, and it would be inconsistent with the spirit in which these regulations were formulated, if civil servants were allowed, actively, to support the party.

I would, however, like to tell the House that the Code of Regulations is currently being reviewed and, unless the relevant section is amended or completely removed, participation in politics by civil servants will not be permissible. This does not necessarily mean that a civil servant who is public spirited and who wished to make a donation to the party, could not do so.

Mr. Godia: Arising out of the Assistant Minister's reply, will he consider the possibility of amending the present Code of Regulations so that the civil servants can also take part in politics?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, I think it is the hon. Members of this House who have already complained of certain civil servants, particularly the chiefs and the district officers, taking part in politics, and it is a contradiction in attitude when we find that we are being pressed to the contrary.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, does the Assistant Minister know that the civil servants who went during the elections were bound to side with one party or the other?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, the civil servants have their right to vote for the person they think should represent their interests in the National Assembly. They have the right too, to decide to contribute to any political organization.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, does the Assistant Minister agree with me that they are bound to sympathize with the cause of the nationalists after voting for a certain party?

Mr. Nyanweya: I do not wish to agree with the hon. Member for an unknown constituency.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, arising from one of the replies by the Assistant Minister, in connection with the review of the Code of Regulations for civil servants, would he not agree with me that instead of having the present situation where civil servants are secretly active in party politics, the reviewed Code should allow them definitely to be members of the party, and active members of the party?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I deal with the next question, which wants the civil servants to take part in politics, I would like to say here to this question that at present the Government does not wish to allow any civil servants to take an active part in politics.

Question No. 2024

CIVIL SERVANTS RESPONSIBLE TO M.P.s

Mr. Khalif asked the President what the Government had done to implement the Motion passed by this House which urged the Government to make civil servants responsible to M.P.s and Senators.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyanweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Government is at present studying the Motion which was passed in this House. The Member who wide implications on the organization of Government and services in this country. I would, therefore, like to assure the House that the Motion is being considered and the House will be informed in due course of the Government's decision.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, would the Assistant Minister assure this House that after consideration being given to the Motion it would be eventually implemented as passed by this House?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, the assurance is reluctantly denied.

Mr. Kerich: Mr. Speaker, would the Assistant Minister assure this House that the Motion will be implemented as it was passed in this House without any reconsideration or alteration?

Mr. Nyanweya: I repeat my previous answer.

Mr. Komara: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that this Motion was passed in the House, will the Assistant Minister inform the House what the need is for the Government to study the Motion as it was passed?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, this is because the Motion, as passed, would mean that it would create 117 civil services in Kenya.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, could the Assistant Minister tell us what he means by reluctantly denying implementation of this Motion?

Mr. Nyanweya: I do not wish to teach English for the meaning of English words in this House.

Mr. Wamuthenya: Mr. Speaker, may I know from the Assistant Minister whether, when a Motion is passed here, it is of no use and does not serve its purpose?

Mr. Nyanweya: Any Motion which is passed in this House is of a very great use to the Government.

Mr. Gachaita: Mr. Speaker, if any Motion passed in this House is of great importance, could the Minister tell us the reason why he is denying giving us the assurance on this Motion?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, I think I have already dealt with that sort of question before.

POINT OF ORDER

GOVERNMENT RESPONSIBILITY ON MOTIONS PASSED IN THE HOUSE

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Sir, I rise for your guidance. It is a Parliamentary custom which is very highly respected by all Parliaments in the world that any Motion which is accepted and passed in the Parliament, which is the seat of authority, should be carried out, but apparently the Government has a habit of regarding Motions passed here by a majority as being of an advisory nature only. I would like your ruling, Sir, if the Government is at liberty to take matters passed here by a majority of the House as being of an advisory nature only with no intention of implementing them, because if Government continues like this a vote of no confidence may be moved one day.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think the point that Mr. Ngala has raised is a question of the Constitution, rather than of order in this House, and I am not the final authority on matters of the Constitution; but the position, as I see it, is that the Government is entitled to treat the House as advisory on matters of executive responsibility which are with the Government, though the House has final authority on making laws and voting money.

I think really Mr. Ngala has put his finger on the point himself, when he says the remedy of the House, if they are sufficiently disappointed in Government's failure to regard their views, is eventually to dispose of the Government by a Motion of no confidence.

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, following this particular point which is not, as you have said, strictly speaking, a point of order but a point of the Constitution, would it not be true also to say that there is also a question of time allowed if the Motion is passed in this House and the extent and the labour involved in implementing that particular Motion.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Of course, that must be so. In fact, the position, as I see it, is that the final decision whether or not to act on a Motion of this House rests with Government; and if that is so, then, a priori, Government decides how long it can take before it arrives at that decision, and must be allowed reasonable time.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

WITREABOOTS OF DEVELOPMENT FUNDS: NORTH-EASTERN PROVINCE

Mr. Khalif asked the Minister for Economic Planning and Development if he could tell the House what became of the £50,000 which was announced by the Government had been set aside as a fund for development purposes of the North-Eastern Province.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I imagine the hon. Member is referring to the initial allocation of funds for the first ring to the initial allocation of funds for the first ring Development Plan for the North-Eastern Province. As hon. Members will recall, that plan, announced in January 1964, was to cover the five years 1963/64 to 1967/68 at a cost of about £300,000. At that time, the Government was unable to guarantee more than £50,000 towards it and most of that sum has now either been spent or is committed to the completion of projects already begun.

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development]
that the subject is of enough importance to justify these remarks that I have made. I would like to hope, Sir, that in the debate that is going to follow we will confine ourselves to the issues in the Paper, that we will try to be realistic and positive in whatever proposals that are put forward. I have heard some Members suggest that it may be their wish to amend certain sections of the Paper, and I would like to state here and now that the Government has never ignored useful suggestions when they have been given positively and in a constructive way. If, in the course of the debate, useful points are made, positively and in a constructive way, they will be received in the same spirit and together we shall be able to define the road for the future.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.
Mr. Ochwada: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since this is a very important policy statement from Government, could we have a copy of the speech before we start the debate on the Sessional Paper?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): First I must have a seconder and propose the question. After that, if I see no hon. Member is inclined to open the debate straightway, I shall suggest that the House rises and continues tomorrow.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to second the Motion, but I would like to reserve the right to speak later in the debate.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If no hon. Member wishes to speak now, then I will suggest that we rise early.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the present statement by the Minister is more comprehensive and probably more specific than the document that we have just studied, could the Government make it possible for us to have it in pamphlet form just like the pamphlet form we had for its original explanation of African socialism?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Normally, hon. Members are expected to study HANDED for what has been said, and it would be quite unusual procedure for a particular speech in a debate to be specially printed for the information of Members, for purposes of debate. The Government might, of course, be interested in doing so for other reasons, but I do not think as a matter of order we can suggest that today.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think no hon. Member wishes to speak today, so I will exercise my limited power in adjourning the House early, for the convenience of Members. The House is accordingly adjourned until tomorrow, Wednesday, 5th May, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at fifty-five minutes past five o'clock.

Wednesday, 5th May 1965

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERS

PAPER LAID

The following Paper was laid on the Table:—
The Report of the Nairobi Standing Committee 1964.

(By the Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyanweya) on behalf of the Minister for Local Government (Mr. Segini))

NOTICES OF MOTIONS

ONE EMPLOYER FOR TEACHERS

Mr. Kibuga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT this House while appreciating and recognizing the great contribution made and being made by voluntary bodies in education in this country, calls upon the Government to establish one employer for all the teachers in the country according to their wishes.

NO CONFIDENCE IN MINISTER FOR INFORMATION, BROADCASTING AND TOURISM

Mr. Main: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg, to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT in view of the generally unsatisfactory and unfair manner in which the Ministry of Information, Broadcasting and Tourism has discharged its responsibility to this nation since the achievement of Independence, and noting that with the launching of various national policies based on African socialism, it will be imperative that this nation be accurately informed and properly educated about these policies and the work of the Government of the Republic of Kenya, this House resolves that it has no confidence in the Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 2014

JOBS FOR PROVINCIAL COUNCIL MEMBERS

Mr. Godia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, Question 2014 has been amended in consultation with the President's Office, so may I tell you?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, if the President's Office is prepared to answer the amended question. Would you read it out as amended?

Mr. Godia asked the President whether, in view of the fact that members of the present Provincial Councils were entitled to payment of allowances only for meetings attended and to reduced annual emoluments, the Government would advise the Public Service Commission to give them preferential consideration for suitable appointments within the Kenya Public Service.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyanweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. With due respect to the questioner, the question does not arise, as the Government has already decided that members of Provincial Advisory Councils should continue to be paid salaries and allowances. Any member of a Provincial Advisory Council who considers himself suitably qualified for appointment to the Civil Service in the terms of the Commission's advertisements, may answer such advertisements, when his application will be considered along with others.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that the fact that the allowance due to the present Provincial Advisory Council members does not cater for their daily needs, which does render them preferential consideration?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must confess my ignorance and I would like the hon. Member to simplify the question for me.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very glad to simplify the question for my ignorant Assistant Minister.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no need to be offensive about it.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question is, would the Assistant Minister agree that the fact that the allowances at present which the Provincial Council members are entitled to does not cater for their daily needs, entitles them to preferential consideration?

Mr. Nyanweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I say I do not really understand the question, but I will try to reply.

The members of the Provincial Advisory Council get a consolidated salary of £420, if they are chairman, per annum, vice-chairman gets £360 per annum, all other members £240 per annum and, apart from that, they get sitting allowance of £1 per day. There are four sessions in a year and each session has three days and some people are talking about is merely the Highlands, the former European areas, and no more.

The Government does not only reject the squatter system but steps are being taken to deal with arbitrary cases of eviction of employees and the misuse of trespass laws. But let us not try to play politics with these sensitive and human problems. Let us instead try to co-operate together to get over them.

I should not leave this discussion of development of agriculture without saying a word or two on co-operatives. Co-operatives have strong roots in our tradition, and they will be a prominent feature and instrument in building a truly democratic, socialist and advanced economy. In the field of agriculture, priority should be given first, to producer co-operatives formed by people such as workers and squatters already employed on land. Such priority could be enforced by having credit facilities made available to such groups, as against individuals wishing to buy land. In fact, Mr. Speaker, as I am sure we will be shown later, this is precisely the line which the Government is pursuing.

The Paper goes on to deal with education, public utilities; commerce, industry and tourism; trade unions and consumers. All of these fields are important to our development. I have already discussed critical issues affecting some of these matters and other Ministers will elaborate on programmes in these areas during the course of the debate. Perhaps hon. Members will forgive me if I now move directly to the problems involved in achieving more balanced growth among the provinces.

The Kanu Manifesto promised vigorous action in developing areas of the country neglected during colonial days. The Government has noted with approval the concern of the Members of Parliament with development of these areas. The problem is not at all easy, given our limited resources and when we consider that these areas do not often have the basic natural resources including water or good land. They cannot compete for development money with other parts of Kenya. In purely economic terms, £1,000,000 invested in one area may raise the net output by £20,000, while its use in another area may yield an increase of £100,000. Investment in the second area is the wise decision, because the country is £80,000 per annum better off by so doing and is, therefore, in a position to aid the first area by making grants or subsidized loans.

However, this problem becomes less difficult to deal with when we remember that the purpose of development is not to develop an area, but to develop and make better off the people of the area. If an area is deficient in resources, the development of the people can best be done by a number of measures: firstly, investing in the education and training of the people; secondly, investing in the health of the people; thirdly, encouraging some of the people to move to areas richer in resources; and, of course, fourthly, developing those limited resources that are economic.

With education and training and some capital, the people of these provinces can make the best of limited resources. If the potential for expansion is small, medical services, education and training will qualify the people to find employment elsewhere. But we must press ahead with plans for these areas. The people there cannot be expected to wait very much longer.

Today, some of the provinces and districts that have genuine economic potential remain underdeveloped simply because the people will not accept new ways and the necessary discipline of planned and co-ordinated development. In these areas a concerted and prolonged effort to overcome prejudice and suspicion is needed before development can take place. Such efforts must be very carefully organized and planned and implemented through the Government and Party machinery.

The policies that have been outlined throughout the Sessional Paper pervade the plans constructed and now being revised for every sector of the economy. These sectoral plans and policies must however be co-ordinated so that they fit into an overall pattern that represents Kenya's strategy for development. The main lines of this strategy have been summarized in the Sessional Paper. The construction of plans for the several sectors have been drawn up with this overall pattern in mind. As time passes, of course, the order of priorities will change. In particular as the agricultural and infrastructure base grows, increasing emphasis and capital will be directed toward industrial development.

The foregoing discussion shows that we are committed to planning. Indeed, acceptance of effective planning and control of the use of resources are central features of African socialism. In planning and controlling the use of resources we aim at achieving two objectives: firstly, to find the best ways of using our limited resources—that is, land, skilled manpower, capital and foreign exchange—so that we can attain higher growth rates of our national income and therefore, achieve higher living standards for all people; and, secondly, we also plan in order to ensure that the resulting pattern of our economy as growth takes place conforms to our ideas of democracy, social justice and social values. This latter objective is as important as the former, for higher growth rates of the national income could be attained at the expense of the majority, as happened in the 19th Century in European countries.

The success of planning depends on its coverage, determination of the people and the willingness of the people to observe the discipline of planned development. Above all, it is imperative to realize that any activity that uses resources is a proper subject of planning. This is the reason why I said earlier that self-help efforts must also be planned and controlled. Important aspects of planning have all been discussed in the Paper. But emphasis must be laid on the need for discipline. Without this there is no hope for success. As the Sessional Paper says, if discipline is rejected, so is planning and with it African socialism.

I have taken much of your time—and I appreciate the attention, patience and interest of the House—to go into the matters covered in this Sessional Paper in great detail. In fact, I had not to assume that perhaps some Members have not yet quite read the Paper thoroughly and fully. I have taken this time because the whole design for development in Kenya is at stake. We must either move ahead into the hard, practical work of promoting growth and progress or slip back into the morass of confusion and petty wrangling that is already restraining our economic and social advancement. Our people are confused by being told one day that they must work for a living, only to be told the next day by some irresponsible person that if they wait long enough everything will be theirs for nothing. Freedom means the opportunity to enjoy the fruits of our labour, not the chance to enjoy in idleness the benefits of someone else's work.

This Paper assembles in one document a philosophy by which we can live in pride, social justice, human dignity and political equality and a set of practical policies and measures designed to promote economic development, social progress and cultural growth. It is the unanimous hope of the Government that this document will be endorsed by this House, after which it should serve as reference material so that our various politicians can address the people with a unity of basic principles that has not been possible before now.

The Government has adopted policies intended to protect and guarantee political equality, social justice and human dignity at all times, while progressing as quickly as possible toward the freedom from want and disease that higher incomes and rapid economic growth will make possible.

African socialism is the means adopted for achieving these ends. In this concept the universal elements of socialism have been modified to suit the needs and aspirations of our people and the inherited resources on which growth in Kenya must be based. Much emphasis has been placed on the African traditions of political democracy and mutual social responsibility. Under African socialism the Government has a duty to plan and the power to control by a variety of measures the uses of all productive resources and the sharing of the incomes generated. The people have an obligation to utilize fully and well their land, their capital, their labour and their income.

The Government is fully aware of the nation's limited domestic resources, particularly of domestic capital and skilled manpower, and has designed policies to alleviate these shortages as quickly as possible. In the meanwhile, these resources must be carefully conserved and used to promote the maximum development they can possibly generate, both by augmenting them with resources borrowed from abroad and by using them primarily for new growth.

The Government in this Paper has not dodged a single issue, important or not important. It has posed fourteen critical issues and choices and has analysed and explained its stand on each one of these issues. All have not been fully worked out and in these cases the Government proposes to establish working parties to complete the task. This is a comprehensive statement of Government policy that we are giving in this House today.

The principal guide line followed in formulating the policies contained in this Paper is that Kenya must direct and focus its energies on achieving a rapid rate of growth. Without growth the provision of adequate medical services, primary and secondary education and social security for a growing population would be impossible, and Africanization would be a meaningless exercise. This harsh fact is not a discouraging one, however, because growth can be achieved provided only that we all accept the importance of growth and direct our will and energies to making the devoted efforts needed to achieve it.

Mr. Speaker, I come to the end of my speech to the House on this important Paper, and I make no apology for the length of it. I believe, Sir, anticipated. We would have to sell sufficient goods to the donor country to raise enough of the required currency to repay the loan or draw down our limited supply of convertible currencies. This situation has led in some countries to the mortgaging of the output of certain agricultural products for years in advance irrespective of price movements, superior market alternatives—abroad or changes in production alternatives at home.

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

It will be seen from what I have said that as a developing country we must scrutinize all aid offers in relation to our foreign exchange policies.

We now come to perhaps the most important and critical point in our efforts to apply African socialism to planning in Kenya. We already know its definition and I hope we agree on it. We have examined the multiple transitions through which our country is passing. And we have considered the severe shortages of resources at our disposal. We have now to consider the practical steps and measures that we must take to implement African socialism in Kenya.

The choices that we must make stem from the fact that we want to accomplish a wide range of things while the resources we have at our disposal are limited. We want to grow rapidly; to transform the economy from a subsistence to a market economy; to develop our land and introduce modern agricultural methods; to industrialize; to Africanize the economy; to provide more employment opportunities; to have universal primary education; to expand secondary school enrolments; to build hospitals and health centres; and to relieve the housing shortage. To do all of these things quickly and simultaneously would require many more resources than we have or can quickly acquire. I do sincerely hope that members will study this part of the Paper very carefully. It is not enough to dismiss these points casually and to mislead the people as to how fast we can move. Our limited resources dictate that we must choose carefully as to our priorities. It is not enough, Mr. Speaker, to mislead the people into thinking that all you need to do is to nationalize the East African Breweries and the Tobacco Company, and give every child in this school free education the next morning. That is a very unfortunate and ignorant analysis of the economic situation of this country. It may prove to be a very convenient, political debating point of speech, at a particular political meeting, but when hard facts are examined, you may nationalize the breweries, nationalize the tobacco company, nationalize the hotels, but you will still have not got free compulsory primary education for every child in this country the next morning. Instead, what you will really be faced with is to pay compensation to all these companies and to remove from the limited resources we have, the very money we need to begin to get social facilities for our people.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hope some Members in this House will treat this as a very important and critical issue. Today, at the Coast, one of the things that has happened which affects us greatly is the closure of the Kamisi Sugar Factory. All these lead to serious problems of unemployment, and this matter should not be taken casually. They are not the things with which we should play.

The Government cannot avoid the choices to which I have referred, nor can we as a Parliament remain vague as to the policies that must be pursued. If we are afraid of making the decisions required of us we abdicate our responsibility and reduce development planning to a mere academic exercise, one that will have no impact at all. Other Ministers will discuss these issues in some detail during the course of the debate. I shall, therefore, confine my remark to principal issues and related matters.

In the Sessional Paper we have considered all aspects relating to the issue of nationalization. I sincerely hope that Members have studied this section of the Paper carefully. It remains for me to make only a few supplementary comments on this subject.

It has been suggested by a few people that if our Constitution stands in the way of massive nationalization because of citizenship guarantees and by stipulating prompt, fair and full compensation when nationalization takes place, it should be amended. But is this the real wish of our people? I believe that in fact those who call for nationalization are thinking primarily of non-Africans who own shops or other means of production. If we amend the Constitution the amendments would clearly change the rights not only of non-African citizens, but of all citizens, Africans, Asians and Europeans alike.

Many people who speak glibly of nationalization are really referring to Africanization. They want the ownership of resources to be transferred from non-Africans to Africans, and feel that nationalization a convenient label under which to justify their desires. Should such transfer take place I have a strong feeling that many of these apparent supporters of nationalization would be apparent supporters of different views. Many among them are not asking for nationalization as a socialist measure, but as a racialist measure. It fact, I have heard the same people protest vigorously against any suggestion of nationalization of assets owned by fellow Africans or land in the former African reserves. It is obvious therefore that the term is being wrongly used in this case. It must also be noted that our own Party Manifesto specifically excludes any idea of wholesale and indiscriminate nationalization.

But another reason why we should not tamper with the Constitution is that such action would undermine our standing both in the eyes of our own people and abroad. It would, for instance, affect the attitudes of investors as well as the very valuable aid we get from donors. It would also affect the initiative among local people to save for investment. It would tend to reduce the attraction which may now hold for local as well as foreign investment and this slow down growth itself.

I feel I must emphasize again that if nationalization were applied to a given economic activity, such as bus transport, it would affect everyone, African and otherwise, owning productive resources in that industry.

In the Sessional Paper as well as the Party Manifesto we envisage circumstances which would necessitate nationalization. These include—

- (i) when the assets in private hands threaten the security or undermine the integrity of the nation; or
- (ii) when productive resources are being seriously and clearly misused or wasted; or
- (iii) when the operation of an industry by private concerns has a serious detrimental effect on the public interest; and
- (iv) when other less costly means of control are not available or not effective.

It must be realized also that a nationalized industry must in most cases be self-supporting. It must be run efficiently and at a profit. It must not become a burden to the taxpayers or just a source of inferior service or goods. Otherwise nothing is gained by nationalization.

Mr. Speaker, at this point, I might as well say, here and now, that those who tend to think that we should learn a lesson from Britain on this subject have not understood the problems of British nationalized industry or even attempted to study them. Nor are we going to do something merely because Britain did it. We retain the right to decide for Kenya what is good in Kenya, and what should be done in Kenya.

There is, of course, the time when a Government must nationalize a service as part of its responsibility to the nation. In such case cost would not be the deciding factor. In some countries nationalization has been resorted to as a weapon against dangerous foreign influence. This kind of decision is political and not economic. It has nothing to do with socialism as such and the need has not arisen in our country at the moment. Nationalization will be used in Kenya when circumstances require such an action but it would be an error of great magnitude to regard it as a panacea for all our problems. It would be an error of great magnitude for someone to deceive the public. The answer to their problems of poverty, disease, and lack of education is the indiscriminate massive nationalization of every means of production. This is ignorance in its highest form.

In the case of the Africanization of the economy the problem is to reconcile the urgency of the matter with citizenship guarantees and the desire for rapid economic growth.

The Sessional Paper refers to the constitutional guarantees as well as the declarations in our Manifesto regarding the rights of all citizens. This is an important consideration. At the same time we must consider the serious imbalances inherited at the time of Independence. These cannot and will not be permitted to continue. Government's approach to this problem is fully explained in the Paper and will be further amplified by my colleagues during this debate. The bulk of these efforts are directed toward establishing Africans in a firm position in the monetary sector by ensuring that a large share of the planned new expansion is African owned and managed.

Our people also have legitimate desires for welfare services. Unlike the capitalist countries of the 19th Century, where the individual was left to fend for himself, our Government recognizes that it must provide our people with basic welfare services which are a necessary part of individual dignity and social justice. It is the firm intention of the Government to provide financial and hospital services, old age and disability benefits, free universal primary education, unemployment relief, and financial assistance to all those who need and merit it for university studies. These are our objectives and they are well known, they have been stated time and again, but to provide them fully and freely now is not only in many cases impossible, but would also bankrupt the nation and mortgage economic growth for generations.

Mr. Speaker, at this point, it might be useful to refer to that part of the Paper which clearly

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

Those who continue with university work will receive degrees in 1975; that is, in ten years' time. Those who go on for advanced work cannot be counted as part of our manpower supply until 1976 or beyond. In the case of doctors, for which the need is so great, none of the students now in Form I this year will be available to us as part of the manpower of this country before 1978—that is, in thirteen years' time—and the numbers emerging will still leave us far short of the number we must have.

I hear someone saying, "Accelerate". Mr. Deputy Speaker, unless there is an instrument we are going to put into their brains, to accelerate and bring the school curricula into one year instead of four, there is no acceleration in this progress; unless, of course, it is suggested that we might as well employ witchdoctors in the hospitals.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, at this point I might draw the attention to a point which has been made outside this House by some of the critics of the Government. We have been told, for example, that in Tanzania secondary school education is now given free, and that Kenya should follow suit, but I would like to give the House the following facts instead of rumours.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, there are three States in East Africa, today, Tanzania, Uganda and Kenya. Did I hear anyone differing with me on that? The following are the figures as between Kenya and Tanzania in secondary schools, projection of enrolment in secondary schools in these two States.

Between 1964 and 1969 Tanzania plans to increase enrolment in Form I from 5,250 to 6,755. That is an increase of less than thirty per cent. Over that same period, 1964 to 1970, our revised plans call for a new system Form I, that is in Kenya, enrolment from 8,956 to 17,106. That is an increase of over ninety per cent. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, Tanzania expects enrolment in Form 5 to increase from 680 to 1,220 over five years, an increase of eighty per cent. While we expect our Form 5 enrolment to grow over six years from 792 to 1,992, an increase in excess of one hundred and fifty per cent. At the primary level Tanzania is aiming to maintain school places for approximately fifty-five per cent of the illegible population as compared with our intention to raise the enrolment from sixty per cent to sixty-six per cent. In fact, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the exact figure will come to about seventy per cent, making—Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not think

I need continue, but I will invite those who are trying to make a comparison between Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda to cease doing so, and to be concerned with Kenya's problems. We are not in the limelight, we are a reflection.

But our problem, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, if I may continue now, is not only to train and educate more people. We must also train and educate them in the right things and in the right numbers. The manpower survey now being completed, and which we hope to publish in the 1st of this month, will show what the position is, and indicates that our additional minimum needs for university graduates by 1970 will nearly be met from our students now studying at foreign universities and here in East Africa, but the early balanced aggregate picture is marred by bad composition. Surpluses may exist in some fields, such as non-professional B.A. studies, biology, agriculture, chemistry and mathematics and statistics, while severe shortages in others go unmentioned. The major shortages indicated will be doctors, mechanical and electrical engineers, surveyors, pharmacists, physical planners and veterinarians. Additionally, the manpower survey shows that we are in great shortage of office workers, typists, stenographers and book-keepers, and so on. Under these circumstances the Government must now ensure that any funds available be used to assist those who choose the fields that we need most. We must use—

An hon. Member: And fire masters.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Thank you very much. We need a fire master in this House.

We must use available skilled personnel to full advantage and urge everyone to contribute to the maximum in the effort of nation building.

So far I have spoken of education as a means of solving our manpower problem.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair.]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair.]

However, the Government recognizes that it is primarily through education that we can create the opportunities among all our citizens. Moreover, we have already declared our intention to eliminate lack of education among all our people.

The third and last shortage with which I will deal is that of foreign exchange. I think it will be necessary to explain what foreign exchange means. Foreign exchange means other countries' currencies. The importance of foreign exchange arises from the fact that since we do not produce domestically such things as locomotives, tractors and so on, we must buy these things from foreign countries, and to do this we need these countries' currencies. We do not go abroad with our East African pound, we get pound sterling, dollars, marks, francs, roubles, yen and so on. Some people think that you just carry a lot of East African notes. Somebody even said that if you do not have money then go and print some more. It does not work that way. We can acquire these currencies by selling our goods and services abroad—

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

An hon. Member: Send ourselves.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): You may in fact do that if you wish.

—promoting tourism, borrowing, and reducing our holdings of foreign assets. A foreign exchange problem arises when we cannot pay our bills abroad except by emergency borrowing or reducing our holdings of foreign assets to dangerously low levels. This is dangerous because many of these assets support our currency. Kenya does not now have a foreign exchange problem but great care must be exercised to ensure that the steps we take to promote development, including our foreign policy, do not create this problem. More rapid growth means buying more capital goods from abroad to generate growth and importing more consumer goods to satisfy the growing demands of people with higher incomes. As capital goods do not create immediately enough additional production to pay for themselves, the foreign exchange required to buy them must usually be obtained through borrowing or a surplus of current exports over imports. At the present time, Kenya is succeeding in borrowing from abroad to pay for its excess of imports over exports.

These borrowings are often long-term such as ten, fifteen or even twenty years or more. This creates the danger that we may tend to forget or take lightly our liability and the need to use such funds efficiently. We must be able to repay the loans when the time comes in the currency of existing assets or inefficiently in new development efforts, their use will not generate the foreign exchange needed for repayment.

I feel I should now say something about bilateral trade and aid agreements. Too often one hears people say "Oh well, our friends will help us." Whatever friends? Bilateral trade and aid agreements can lead to specific trade and aid currency problems. If we sell goods to a country whose currency is not convertible, for example, that is a country whose money cannot be readily accepted for the currencies of other countries, that foreign currency is valuable to us only if we can find useful goods to buy in that country at reasonable prices. If this is not so then we will simply be advancing credit to the more developed country. Furthermore, as the currencies of these countries are not convertible, a serious difficulty arises in financing the local costs associated with the capital equipment these countries can supply in foreign aid.

This is a subject which may not be easily understood by some people in our country. I would like to explain it in simple terms. If we get money from a country as aid, we must be able to use the money to buy the things we need. For example, when recently we received a gift of £1,000,000 from China it was given in dollars through a Swiss bank. This way we are able to use the money to buy goods anywhere in the world. If on the other hand we got the gift in Yen we could only use it to buy goods from China or some third country which needs Yen, because of the difficulties of conversion. At the same time when we get aid of say tractors or locomotives or assistance to build a factory we must be able to find local costs from our resources or from the donor country or other friends. Local costs include the running of the tractor or locomotive, buying of spare parts and general maintenance or paying for labour and any local materials needed to complete the building of the factory and some of the maintenance cost. Where we cannot use the currency of the donor country for local cost the only alternative is to use the goods of the donor country. In this case such goods would be offered for sale in our country to raise the necessary funds or the goods themselves must be used directly in the project. In such case we have to watch whether such goods would be competing with our own products and thereby damaging our own industries and affecting employment of our people. There is also the question of prices at which such goods may be offered to us. If they are offered at prices above those for which we could buy similar goods on the world market or elsewhere, it would be a form of exploitation which no country would wish to accept. Moreover, there is the problem when aid is offered but the donor country is unable or unwilling to meet local costs. This means that we may not always be able to accept or utilize such aid unless we can ourselves finance local costs. Finally when aid is in the form of a loan there are repayment problems which must be

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

We have also made a significant move from a basically unplanned economy to one in which planning plays a central role. We have also today a growing and sensitive awareness on the part of our people to their needs and requirements in the new and modern Kenya. These transitions are the evidence that we are building a modern economy out of our colonial and African traditional heritage.

Our part as Leaders is to ensure that while these changes take place political democracy and social justice are maintained and that the lot of our people is rapidly improving. We have inherited a state of affairs in which non-Africans in this country are richer than Africans. It is non-Africans who own business in the main streets and industrial areas of our main towns. This characteristic of our economy must be eliminated. Equally important is the fact that we must avoid creating antagonistic classes among the Africans themselves. All these things we realize. We all agree that certain changes must take place; it is only in the interpretation of the time factor involved and the most effective way of solving our short-run problems that there might be differences. Some people, for instance, think that we can undertake these changes overnight and that we can cure the existing poverty and underdevelopment of our people by giving things, such as land and Asian shops, free to the Africans. There are no such short-cuts to eliminating poverty and promoting development. Development takes time. Development must not only be concerned with solutions to short-term problems; it must also look much further ahead to avoid precipitating crises in the future.

Apart from these transitions, it must also be realized that we face a severe shortage of certain key resources needed for our development. These shortages have been outlined in the Sessional Paper and they are in three fields. The first field is that of domestic capital required for the level of investment needed for our development. The second field is that of trained, educated and experienced manpower; and the last field is that of foreign exchange.

The shortage of domestic capital stems from the low rate of domestic saving which, in turn, is due to the low level of per capita incomes. What we want is to have people produce more than just what they need for subsistence. With the surplus they can buy bicycles, improve their farms, and so on. It is also necessary that such surplus should not just be a saving buried in the ground in a hut or under mattresses. It must be made available for investment.

In order to increase the level of our saving for the purpose of investment we have to do two things: ensure that our incomes are growing as fast as possible, and have a tax structure which will ensure that these incomes are not just used for personal consumption. The problem here is this: to grow faster we must save more, but to save more we must grow faster. We thus find ourselves in a vicious circle. This circle must be broken. In the absence of local saving we are forced to look for capital from abroad. This brings us to the role of foreign capital in our development.

The incomes of the people of Kenya are very low. If we tried to depend solely on domestic capital and tax surpluses, our growth rate might not even keep pace with our rapidly increasing population. Consequently, we have to depend on other countries' co-operation and assistance in order to stimulate our own development. Although our aim is to be able to rely on our own resources eventually and to reduce the role of foreign capital and investments, in the initial period, such as this stage in our development, we need this co-operation. To give up use of foreign capital, as some people have suggested, at this stage is almost tantamount to giving up development itself.

However, it is necessary also, Mr. Deputy Speaker, to realize that in order to attract and use foreign capital we must be able to finance most of the local costs of development from our own resources. We must also be able to invest on an increasing scale in joint ventures with private capital and to improve more rapidly our infrastructure. The truth is that the more we can contribute to development, the more aid and foreign capital we can attract. We would also be in a position to bargain for better terms. Therefore, the role of foreign capital in the development of this country must be seen in its proper perspective; that is, as an initial necessity and a temporary measure. The experience, Sir, of a number of European countries after World War II supports this strategy. After the war these countries mounted vigorous campaigns to attract American capital for their reconstruction, and succeeded thereby in accelerating their economic growth. Today, we find that these countries can finance their own development and, in some cases, have introduced measures to curb investments from outside. But it has taken these countries nearly twenty years to reach this stage. It will take us a long time before we can become self-sufficient in the field. This is a hard blow, but which we must face, and which it does not help any of us to try to avoid. It would serve no useful purpose, therefore, to continue debating whether or not we need foreign capital. Such debates are sterile and misleading. We must instead decide on policies designed to increase our local savings and strengthen our hands by increasing our ability to meet more of the local costs of development projects. In this regard we should look at the points made about the tax structure and its functions. These functions are defined as follows: firstly, supplying funds for recurrent costs and development; secondly, providing incentives and disincentives to influence the pattern and methods of production and consumption; and lastly, modifying the distribution of income and wealth.

Other sources of Government revenue must also be more intensively used than in the past. Government assets held abroad should be invested in Kenya to the extent that this is legal; statutory income should be more fully utilized; and more devices should be sought for channelling more domestic savings into Government hands.

All these matters are continuously under discussion in the Government with careful consideration given to the timing and administrative problems involved.

Apart from the use of taxation in raising revenue, I should mention briefly the role of taxes in modifying the distribution of income among our citizens. The tax structure must be a major weapon for bringing about a more equitable distribution of income and wealth. We are convinced that every citizen of this country must be guaranteed a certain minimum of living standards, and we are also determined to see that we do not have a society in which there are extremes of wealth and poverty. Therefore, those with high incomes and wealth must accept a greater responsibility to pay the taxes needed for development and provision of social services. To achieve these aims, the following policies will be considered. Firstly, exempting from direct taxes people making extremely low incomes. In particular, the objective should be to begin at once to eliminate from this group the graduated personal tax, substituting property tax in its place. Secondly, retaining the progressive income tax, lowering allowances, as we, indeed, have already begun to do. Some of these allowances were designed during colonial times to serve expatriate civil servants and settlers who looked overseas for security, vacations, and education for their children. They cannot apply today. Thirdly, adopting progressive inheritance taxes. In other words, people should not be born and expect to get something for nothing just because their parents worked harder than somebody else. Fourthly, making any capital gains tax progressive. Fifthly, exempting basic necessities from sales and excise taxes. Lastly, taxing luxury items heavily, for these are usually consumed by those with high incomes.

It is important, however, to ensure that the tax structure will not be made prohibitive or confiscatory. Reasonable levels of profits, property accumulation and standards of living are necessary if we are to achieve and maintain a high rate of growth of our economy. In other words, while we intend to use the tax measures for the purpose of ensuring equitable revenues we do not intend that it should be a weapon to punish or deter those of our people who have initiative and drive. Such people need to be encouraged and assured that they too will enjoy the fruits of their labour. It is also necessary that we ensure that no section of our people will assume that because we intend to use the tax measure there is room for the lazy and idle. Such people must be made to know that our society is only for those who strive for self-improvement.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the second severe shortage is that of local skilled, trained and experienced manpower. In the process of economic growth we need qualified people to teach in our rapidly expanding secondary school system, teachers' colleges and the university; to consolidate, survey and register land at a more rapid rate; to do agricultural research, provide extension services, train farm managers and operate national farms; to manage private industrial and commercial establishments; to plan and implement forestry development; to expand water supply; to man more hospitals and health centres; to engineer and construct roads and irrigation schemes; and to administer the affairs of the Government. As with capital, we can grow rapidly now only by supplementing our meagre supply of domestic, trained manpower with skilled people borrowed from abroad.

Here, Sir, I would like to draw the attention of the House to another important factor to consider in this regard, that is, the very long time it takes to train professional people. This means that shortages of high-level manpower will be with us for several planning periods, and those who are constantly used merely to "uttering words" are constantly used merely to "uttering words" slogans might care to listen to this. The students now enrolled in Form I will be prepared to take now enrolled in a secondary level education only in 1969. We have 10,000 students in Form I this year and not all the 10,000 students in Form I will go through to university degrees. Maybe 50 per cent will get Cambridge School Certificates.

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

excessive control is as inefficient as too little control; there is no sense in using an atomic bomb to kill a louse fly when a little spray will do a better job, and no sense in using a bulldozer for the flower garden. Each control must be tailored to its need, and as economic activities range from barber shops and small shambas to tobacco, canning and power complexes and large plantations, the range of controls must be great indeed and each must be carefully selected for the task it must perform.

The use of a range of sensitive controls implies as well varying degrees of private participation and initiative, so that each economic activity can be performed in the way best suited to it. This approach also enables us to attract private as well as public capital and privately employed as well as publicly employed management talent. Variety is an important means of attraction whether it is customers, savings, capital or management that is wanted.

The purpose of a range of controls and of planning is to ensure that productive assets are used for the benefit of society. If an individual, a co-operative, a company or the State owns productive assets, society expects these assets to be used and used well. The holding of land for speculative purposes, the charging of exorbitant or discriminatory prices, the abandonment of land and the production or sale of shoddy merchandise are all examples of violations of the principle of mutual social responsibility.

Finally, African socialism must be designed to prevent the emergence of antagonistic classes among Africans and must eliminate through its Africanization programme the sharp economic differentials that now exist among the races in our country. It must be noted, however, that the sharp class divisions that once existed in Europe have no parallel in African society. The Kanu Manifesto pointed this out clearly when it stated: "The Marxist theory of class warfare has no relevance to Kenya's situation." The class divisions that Marx deplored in Europe a century ago were supported and strengthened by three factors—

- (i) a concentration of economic power;
- (ii) the treatment of private ownership as an absolute, unrestricted right; and
- (iii) the close relationship between economic power and political influence.

The concept of political equality in Africa rules out in principle the use of economic power as a political base. The vigorous implementation of traditional political democracy in the modern setting will eliminate, therefore, one of the critical factors promoting class divisions. The policy of African socialism to control by various means how productive resources are used eliminates the second of the factors supporting a class system. Without its two supporting allies, the concentration of economic power cannot be the threat it once was, but we propose to restrict and guard against this factor as well with regard to both foreign and domestic concentrations.

The desirability of attracting private capital from abroad is, I believe, accepted and such incentives as the investment allowance, the guarantees against nationalization without compensation in our Constitution and the recently enacted Investment Protection Act are some evidence of the sincerity of the Government in this regard. But the spirit of mutual social responsibility applies to foreign as well as domestic investors. Kenya will not become a playground for unscrupulous monopolists or those who employ unfair market practices whether in dealing with consumers or dealing with workers. Rather, foreign investors will be expected to accept fully the spirit of mutual social responsibility as already defined in the Sessional Paper.

The concentration of economic power in domestic hands carries with it the possible exercise of undue influence in political affairs and must be watched closely. The problem is a complex one because while it is desirable to ensure that the wealth of the country is distributed as widely as possible, it is also necessary for the development of the country to ensure that the steps taken do not: first, inhibit the rapid accumulation of domestic savings; secondly, prohibit methods of large-scale production when they are necessary for efficiency; or thirdly discourage the inflow of private capital.

The principal long-term technique for controlling the rate of individual accumulation while at the same time stimulating the rate of national accumulation will be through progressive income, inheritance and capital gains taxes, as well as progressive death duties. These will make it progressively more difficult for the wealthy to become more wealthy and to pass on their wealth to members of succeeding generations. At the same time, the collection of taxes will tend to translate private savings into public savings concerning them for development of the nation.

While various methods of ownership will be permitted and indeed encouraged in Kenya, the role of co-operatives in both production and marketing will be given every assistance. Co-operatives have direct roots in African traditions but their extensive use in the monetary sector of the economy will involve greater discipline and training. Those who share in the tasks of the co-operative or who use its services share also in its benefits as the co-operative belongs to them.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this brings me to the end of my review of Part I of the Sessional Paper. The main features, therefore, as we have seen emerge from this discussion of African socialism include: firstly, political democracy, any system which denies that political democracy in the way that we have defined it cannot qualify to be called African socialism; mutual social responsibility, and any system which does not conform to this cannot qualify to be called African socialism; various forms of ownership; and Mr. Speaker, this means that we are not religiously committed to public ownership as the best and the only kind of ownership for our society; a range of controls to ensure that property is used in the mutual interests of society and its members; division of ownership to avoid concentration of economic power; and lastly, progressive taxes to assure an equitable distribution of wealth and income.

I hope we can agree on these definitions before the time we spend arguing about definitions is time stolen from the essential tasks of development. We are a country in urgent need of development and cannot afford to wrangle quarrel and dispute for long periods while the people will in misery for active, practical policies to guide them out of the swamp of despair. Let us join hands on the definitional aspects of African socialism and turn our attention then to the important policies presented in Part II of the Sessional Paper. It is these that will move our country forward and will enable Kenya to take its proper place in the society of nations. It is obvious that before now some people have been misled into believing everything dished out by foreign thinkers. Here we have an answer to all of them.

Who can deny, Sir, that we are Africans and that from the immemorial times we have had our own traditions? Who can challenge the need for us in Kenya to evolve our own system based on our traditions, experience and the need to eliminate our own local problems? Who can deny the fact that we too, in Kenya, live in the 20th Century and that we must modernize and compete with other nations? Sir, those who still come to us with borrowed slogans—those who tell us that the road for Kenya is "scientific socialism" or those who believe that we need to be taught socialism from outside Kenya, these people have turned their backs to our traditions and our national heritage.

Those who want to conform to the old rule we are leaving behind because we must move. Everything contained in Part I, Sir, of the Paper is in fact an explanation, clarification an amplification of our Party Manifesto. Those who accept the Manifesto cannot possibly oppose the Paper. Instead the paper should be useful to those who wish to understand the Manifesto more fully.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, let us consider then the application of African socialism to planning and development in Kenya. I want to emphasize at the outset that the desperate need in Kenya today is to get our economy really growing—without, however, ignoring that in our economy there must be political equality, social justice and human dignity. Rapid economic growth, in all countries, is a prerequisite to the extension and intensification of welfare services and to the provision of greater employment opportunities. Therefore, in our policies designed to reorganize and Africanize the economy, provide education and welfare services, control the use of resources, etc., we must keep in mind the overwhelming need for economy to grow.

In applying African socialism in development planning we have first to recognize that we are in a stage of multiple transition. Some of the important transitions already underway are: firstly, the transition from a subsistence economy to a monetary economy. Secondly, the economy is becoming more industrialized, and thus progressively reducing our dependence on agriculture. Thirdly, education and welfare services are being provided more fully. This is in strong contrast to the situation during the colonial era when the development of natural resources was given more emphasis than the development of the African people. Fourthly, our economic and social institutions are being transformed. Schools are being integrated; co-operatives are being organized in nearly every sector of the economy; new Government-sponsored corporations are springing to life and existing organizations are taking on new functions. Another transition is taking on noticeably is that the population is noticeably shifting toward urban areas. This movement, typical of developing countries, places a significant additional burden on planning and co-ordinating development. The sixth transition is that since independence economic power was traditional; and the general welfare was identified with the welfare of the few. The Industrial Revolution brought out the worst elements of the situation—hours of work were drawn to dusk; few safety precautions existed; there was no job security or protection against injuries, illness and old age; children started work as early as the age of four; and no established avenues of political appeal existed. The situation was one of government by the few, sharp class distinctions, unfettered property rights, subsistence living standards for the masses, and exploitation of a large and growing proletariat.

Valid as Marx's description was, it bears little similarity to Kenya today. Under colonialism Kenyans did not have political equality or equal opportunities, and their property rights were not always respected. Even so, African traditions have no parallel to the European feudal society, its class distinctions, its unrestricted property rights, and its acceptance of exploitation. The historical setting that inspired Marx has no counterpart in independent Kenya.

As predictive models of what would happen to factory system societies, both Marxian socialism and laissez-faire capitalism have been failures. The economic systems in actual use throughout the world today bear little resemblance to either model. The Industrial Revolution quickly led to the social protest of which Marx was a part, and this in turn resulted in sweeping political and economic changes as the systems of the world adapted to the new state of technological change. Political democracy was achieved; private property rights were diluted; the State accepted increasing responsibilities for social services, planning, guidance and control; taxes were made progressive to distribute benefits more widely. Capitalism, therefore, did not evolve into Marxian socialism, as Marx predicted, but was indeed modified in directions that Marx may very well have approved.

The adaptability of these systems has a parallel in those countries that have attempted to follow Marx. To become effective, these systems, too, have had to demonstrate an ability to adapt to changing circumstances. These have adopted wage differentials and management incentives, permitted various forms of ownership and utilized interest rates or the equivalent in their planning procedures. All practical economic systems, regardless of their origin, have demonstrated adaptability. The problems of today are not the problems of a century ago. African socialism is designed to be a working system in a modern setting, fully prepared to adapt itself to changing circumstances and new problems.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, the system we adopt in Kenya must not depend for its success on a satellite relationship with any country or group of countries. On the other hand, economic non-alignment does not mean economic isolationism. On the contrary, it means a willingness and a desire—

- (i) to borrow technological knowledge and proved economic methods from any country, without commitment;
- (ii) to seek and accept technical and financial assistance from any source, without strings; and
- (iii) to participate fully in world trade, without political domination.

The ability of Africa to borrow advanced technological knowledge, modern methods of industrial organization and economic techniques of control and guidance from more advanced countries provides the opportunity for us to leap over many of the hurdles that have retarded development in these modern societies in the past. It means also that African socialism as a system can profit from the mistakes made by others. Unlike many countries that have eliminated many successful economic mechanisms on narrow ideological grounds, Kenya is free to pick and choose those methods that have been proved in practice and are adaptable to Kenya conditions regardless of the ideologies that others may attach to them. Kenya, therefore, is free to choose among other things—

- (i) a wages and incomes policy that recognizes the need for differential incentives as well as an equitable distribution of incomes;
- (ii) techniques of production that combine efficiencies of scale with diffused ownership;
- (iii) various forms of ownership—State, co-operative, corporate and individual—but an efficient for different sectors or that compete with each other in the same sector—provided only that the form promotes the objectives of the Government; and
- (iv) techniques of control that vary with the needs of society and its members.

These then, are the conditions our system must satisfy, to draw on the African traditions of political equality and mutual social responsibility, to be adaptable and flexible in the face of changing circumstances, and to be politically and economically non-aligned and yet free to borrow more advanced in these material resources than ourselves. African socialism, as we view it in Kenya, will meet these conditions and in addition will ensure that three fundamental characteristics are achieved in practice—

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

- (i) that resources are used, and used properly, for the benefit of society as a whole; this is what we call planning.
- (ii) that a variety of sensitive controls are utilized each adapted to the need it must serve. This is control and implementation; and
- (iii) that antagonistic classes do not emerge in Kenya as development progresses. This is the concept of equitable distribution of wealth and income and the separation of economic and political power.

It is a fundamental characteristic of African socialism that society has a duty to plan, guide and control the uses of productive resources. This principle, too, has its basis in the Kauti Manifesto, where it is stated that "we believe in a wide measure of Governmental control of the economy in the national interest (and) there are many ways of participation without acquiring public ownership." That, Sir, is what the Kauti Manifesto says. The Manifesto also provides that while encouraging private investment, the Government will ensure that "the undertaking is being directed according to our national policy and needs . . . while we intend following a liberal policy with regard to foreign capital, investments must be made in accordance with Kenya's interests." The Manifesto continues "Special consideration will be given to local investors, but we shall have no time for those who make large profits and then fail to invest them in the country". And with respect to land, "the Kauti Government will not tolerate holding of large underdeveloped tracts of land by anyone".

This is in keeping with African socialism or traditions in which the concept of ownership and property rights was never the inalienable and absolute bundle of rights that it once was in Europe. The single unifying African principle has been that no matter who owned or managed land or other productive resources, they were expected to be used, and used for the general welfare. No individual family or clan could treat productive assets as private property unless the uses to which those assets were put were regarded as consonant with the general welfare. Unlike the traditional European approach to ownership, no person could treat a piece of land as his own with the freedom to use it or not to use it as he chose. But it is worth noting that over the past century, the European tradition of absolute ownership has gradually been eroded so that today the right of the State to guide, plan, and even order the uses to which property will be put is universally recognized and unquestioned.

These African traditions cannot be carried over indiscriminately to a modern, monetary economy. The need to develop and invest requires credit and a credit economy rests heavily on a system of land titles and their registration. The ownership of land must, therefore, be made more definite and explicit if land consolidation and development are to be fully successful. Many forms of ownership will be permitted because each may serve particularly well different purposes. This approach is in keeping with the Constitution and the Kauti Manifesto. The Constitution provides that "no property of any description shall be compulsorily taken possession of, and no interest in or right over property of any description shall be compulsorily acquired," except in strictly defined cases where such action would be necessary "to promote the public benefit", and in that event "promote payment of full compensation" is guaranteed. The Manifesto states, "Citizens will have the right to follow the profession and trade of their choosing and to own property according to the law." It goes on, "We shall welcome both governmental and private investment in Kenya . . . (and) shall encourage investors to participate fully in projects with our own Government." Finally, the Manifesto states "Every farmer must be sure of his land rights." Thus the Manifesto and the Constitution are clear on these matters. But there is no question of society giving up its rights to determine how resources are to be used.

Under African socialism the duty of the State to plan must be accompanied by the power to guide and control resource use. To imagine, however, that the use of resources can only be controlled through their ownership or that the appropriate ownership will guarantee the proper use of productive assets are errors of great magnitude. Ownership can be abused whether in private or public hands and ways must be found to control resource use in either case. African socialism must rely on planning to determine the appropriate uses of productive resources and on a range of controls to ensure that plans are carried out.

The controls available to us range from the use of taxes, interest rates, duty drawbacks and tariffs as a means of influencing and guiding activities in the private sector through price, wage, rent and output controls; to outright Government ownership and operation. We feel, however, that of becoming permanent and, more to the point, this suspension seldom has achieved the announced objectives. During our struggle for Uhuru, we always asserted that only through freedom and human rights could the people cooperate fully with the Government. If I may quote from another African statesman, who has written very much on this subject, Leopold Senghor, he has noted these dangers when he wrote in his African Roll to Socialism, "What good is our independence if it is only to imitate European totalitarianism, to replace external colonialism by domestic colonialism?"

It must be clearly understood and recognized that our approach to political democracy and political equality differs considerably from that taken in many countries. In some Western democracies on the one hand, literacy tests are imposed before a citizen can vote and, in many cases, these are administered arbitrarily to prevent many mature citizens from participating in political affairs. It is also noted that in some instances only those who own property are permitted to vote. Such discrimination has been rejected in Kenya and will not be permitted.

Sir, in eastern communist countries on the other hand, stern tests are applied to party membership so that, out of large populations, only a few people qualify for membership in the party. Rule by a party of the élite is regarded there as a temporary phenomenon that will eventually give way to broader political participation, but the facts are that this "temporary" situation has been going on for generations. Such a sacrifice of full political rights would be in conflict with our Party Manifesto. Members may be interested, at this point, to note the contents of the recent report of the Presidential Commission on the Establishment of a Democratic One Party State in Tanzania. I quote—"The Commission stated—"We do not see T.A.N.U. as an élite but as a mass party through which any citizen", and I quote "any citizen can participate in the process of Government."

Nyerere, himself, the President of the Republic, has supported this view when he said, "No party which limits its membership to a clique can ever free itself from the fear of overthrow by those it has excluded."

Thus, in our system of socialism in Kenya every citizen is guaranteed full and equal political rights. Wealth must not be permitted to confer special political concessions on anyone. The distinction, therefore, that has frequently been granted, openly or otherwise, to economic power groups in capitalist societies must not be permitted to gain a foothold in Kenya. Similarly, the fundamental force of religion, which has been defined in many communist countries will be a definite feature of our society. This is consistent with our society in that traditional religion provided a strict moral code. But political rights, Sir, will not be contingent on religious beliefs.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I now turn to the subject of mutual social responsibility. Mutual social responsibility is the extension of the African Ujamaa spirit to the nation as a whole. The State, in this case, assumes obligations to ensure equal opportunities to all its citizens to eliminate exploitation and discrimination and to provide needed social services such as education, medical care and social security. But the obligations of the State imply reciprocal obligations for the members of society. All citizens must contribute to the degree they are able to the rapid development of the economy and society. As the Kani Manifesto clearly states "We aim to build a country where men and women are motivated by a sense of service and not by a greedy desire for personal gain." The Manifesto says further that the Kani Government and the party are "confident that the dynamic spirit of hard work and self-reliance which will motivate the Government will inspire the people throughout the land to great and still greater efforts for the betterment of their own communities." Further, Sir, the Manifesto goes on to say, "every individual has a duty to play his part in building national unity, (and this duty) is not limited to the political sphere (everyone) must endeavour to support social advance." The Kani Manifesto also recognizes the part of Government as far as mutual social responsibility is concerned. It says, for instance, that "The traditional respect and care for the aged among our people must continue," and in the field of education "The first aim of (seven years free education) will be to produce good citizens inspired with a desire to serve their fellow men." The President himself, in his personal message introducing the Kani Manifesto stated, "The future prosperity upon which our plans, hopes, our aspirations, depend, need (everyone's) effort."

These quotations from the Kani Manifesto indicate quite clearly what we mean by mutual social responsibility. We are not alone in recognizing this as a key requirement in development. Ghana Nkrumah, for instance, has said that "Ghana must secure for every citizen, at the earliest possible date, an adequate level of education and nutrition and a satisfactory standard of education, shelter, housing and leisure." This is the duty of the Government. On the part of the people Nkrumah writes that Ghana "shall expect from each citizen a maximum contribution to the national economy according to his ability and training. It is only in proportion to the contribution which (everyone) makes to the work of the nation that we can expect to share in material gains which... development of the economy will make possible."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with respect to the responsibility of the individual and family I should perhaps here explain that there is no society or country where social services are completely free. So far as the nation, and I hope, Sir, that hon. Members will pay great attention to this point, because too often we have been asked when this free education will come in. So far as the nation as a whole is concerned, every service must be fully paid for. Thus, services can be given free to some members of society only if other members pay for it. If school fees are abolished, teachers' salaries must be paid. If school fees are reduced, therefore, tax rates must be raised, and higher taxes must be paid. If medical services are to be free then the salaries of doctors and nurses must be paid out of increased taxation. If roads are to be used free of charge, then taxes must be raised to cover maintenance and loan repayments. If land is to be given free to some people, then others must pay for it through higher taxation.

The total amount of goods and services available to the people of Kenya depends on the amount the people of Kenya produce through hard work and efficient use of resources. If the people of Kenya do not grow wheat, maize, cotton, pineapples, coffee and tea, there can be no maize to eat, no wheat for flour, no coffee and tea to sell, and the Government can collect no taxes to provide roads, education and medical services. If everyone waits around for things to be handed out free, there will be nothing to give because nothing will be produced.

Another related fallacy must also be destroyed. Making things free does not mean that everyone can have all he wants. If school fees were abolished, we still could not teach more children than we have teachers for. And as teachers cost money we might be able to employ fewer teachers than before so that fewer children could go to school.

It is the policy of the Government to move progressively toward the elimination of school and social fees. But to shout about these things without considering their full implications is merely to play politics and to try to exploit the ignorance of the people. Sometimes some people speak on these—

An hon. Member (Inaudible.)

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): I was quite sure and that is why I stood as a Kani Member. I am not in Kani as an opponent.

Sometimes some people speak on these issues as though Government was opposed to them while others, knowing it cannot be done overnight are eager for cheap publicity by posing as champions of the poor. Let us all today move away from any propaganda stands and be truthful to our people and especially to our country. As we increase our revenues from taxes so shall we move quickly to creating the foundations for a welfare state which we all desire.

In addition to drawing on African traditions, Mr. Speaker, Sir, African socialism in Kenya must be adaptable to rapidly changing conditions and circumstances without compromising the basic principles of political equality, social justice and human dignity. Some of our presently pressing problems, such as Africanization, unemployment, idleness and untutilized land, will be solved or considerably alleviated with persistent efforts in the not too distant future, but others will rise to take their place. The system we adopt must be adaptable to these new problems and circumstances. Indeed, it is the need to be adaptable that distinguishes most practical and viable economic systems from the rigid, doctrinaire, theoretical systems that make good trading but bad practice. Mr. Speaker, Sir, Marxian socialism and laissez-faire capitalism are both theoretical economic organizations. Both settled on ownership of property as the critical factor in economic organization and advocated rigid systems based in the State ownership in the one case, and in the other private ownership. But ownership is not absolute, indivisible right, subject only to complete control or none. Practical systems have demonstrated that the resources of society are best guided into proper uses by a range of sensitive controls each specifically designed for the task to be performed.

Marx' criticism of the society of his time and place was a valid one. Political equality and democracy did not exist in Europe and Great Britain before the middle of the nineteenth century when Marx was writing. The enclosure movement and the industrial revolution had created a landless proletariat that was ruthlessly exploited by those with economic power who had much the same absolute rights as those of the feudal lords. Sharp class distinctions had become commonplace for centuries; the close association of political and

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

Government to clarify the situation. Many Members of Parliament have rightly demanded a detailed statement of African socialism and have even tabled Motions on this Matter before the House. The Planning and Development Advisory Council has also urged the Government to make its policies on African socialism explicit. The Government has responded to the evident need quickly, as it should and must in a democratic system, and has laboured hard to produce the Paper which now requires the united support of this House to demonstrate to the world and our own people that non-alignment is a positive policy in economic as well as political affairs.

But, Mr. Speaker, before I say anything on the Paper I want to say a few words about the actual drafting of this Paper. I am doing this, Sir, so as to put an end to malicious gossip and whispers by some people who seek to undermine the effect of the Paper by suggesting it is not the product of the Kenya Cabinet. As the House well knows, the responsibility for drafting this Paper lies with my Ministry. Having drafted the Paper, on the instructions of the President and the Cabinet, I submitted it to the Cabinet Development Committee for their consideration. My Assistant Minister and myself spent many, many hours going over several drafts, sentence by sentence, before a version was approved for discussion in the Development Committee of the Cabinet. The Development Committee, with all the Ministers—and I repeat all the Ministers—taking part, devoted lengthy sessions to the Paper, discussing every issue in detail. The version that emerged from this searching scrutiny was then presented to the full Cabinet when it was again thoroughly discussed and after minor modifications unanimously—and I repeat unanimously—agreed in the form in which it is now presented to Parliament. I can assure you that except for the Constitution itself, no paper has been so thoroughly analysed at ministerial level as this one. I have made these opening remarks, Sir, to assure this House of the fact that this Paper is the result of our joint efforts in the Government and one which cannot be blamed on the civil servants or our advisers. We accept full responsibility for it.

It was suggested recently in one of our Sunday newspapers that such a paper as this should be constructed as a consensus of the views of provincial, district and local political and party leaders and Members of Parliament, and that we might even sponsor an essay contest to obtain ideas on its substance. Government by essay is in many ways a novel and intriguing idea, but I can assure you that it is not an experiment we can afford in Kenya today. This kind of proposal is based on four false assumptions: firstly, that the Government is out of touch with the people and their representatives; secondly, that the Government has no responsibility to lead but only to follow; thirdly, that we can afford the time involved in soliciting and collecting suggestions from every conceivable source; and, lastly, that socialism is basically a new idea that has not been thoroughly explored before.

These assumptions are all false. Cabinet Ministers are themselves representatives of the people and they and our President have already earned the reputation of spending more time in personal contact with the people than the Ministers of any other Government in the world today. Kenya's Ministers have an intimate knowledge of the views and needs of the people and, Sir, if that is not enough, we also have our vigilant Members of Parliament who do not hesitate to tell us when we are wrong.

— A Government that fails to lead, fails entirely. The Government is in possession of facts, information and knowledge and has access to expert advice which is not available to people in general. Leading means nothing more than bringing this body of knowledge to bear on the problems of the country in such a way as to make rapid progress toward the achievement of the aspirations of the people. This Government, Sir, will not abdicate its responsibility to lead.

I have already pointed out how costly to development continued confusion over African socialism could be. To allow this confusion to continue, to grow and perhaps to sow the seeds of serious discontent, while we explore, investigate and co-ordinate the many views on African socialism which might be expressed throughout the country would be to substitute a haphazard, academic approach for the hard, practical one that is so necessary.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, such an investigation is in fact, unnecessary. The writings on socialism are extensive and even those on African socialism would run to many, many volumes. Political leaders throughout Africa such as Nyerere, Senghor, Nkrumah and our own President have expressed themselves often and at great length on the subject. Finally, Sir, and which is most important in this House and in this country, the Kanu Manifesto and our own Constitution already contain the principles on which any paper on African socialism in Kenya must be based. We have followed those principles religiously in preparing the more detailed Paper now before this House: I should like to emphasize here that the mandate given to this Government based on the Kanu Manifesto, does not end until 1968 when our people will judge us by our record. Meantime, the Kanu Manifesto constitutes the guide for all our decisions and actions, and I hope that in the course of this speech I will show how the Manifesto is related to this Paper or vice versa.

Socialism has taken several forms in the writings of those political and economic philosophers who have followed Marx. Even wider variations are found when practical socialist systems are examined. This is not surprising because a practical system must modify the universal elements of socialism to fit the needs, conditions and attitudes peculiar to the country and the people concerned.

The elements of socialism that serve to characterize the universal system are well known and this includes: First, ownership and operation by the State of the fundamental means of production. Secondly, control of those means of production left in private hands. Thirdly, planning the use of resources to ensure that social needs are fully recognized in the allocation of resources and, in particular, that the volume of saving and investment is large enough to promote rapid growth and rising standards of living for all. Fourthly, control of the distribution of income to avoid excessive concentrations in the hands of a few and to share the benefits of society equitably among all its members. Fifthly, encouragement of the co-operative form of business organization to establish an identity between those involved in production and distribution and those reaping the fruits of that labour. And, lastly, Sir, the guarantee of equal opportunities to all without discrimination or exploitation.

But, Mr. Speaker, as will be seen, these elements of an economic system can be regarded as universal because they are stated in such general terms that they permit interpretation and modification to suit the needs of particular countries and peoples. Each country has its own history, its own culture, its own traditions and attitudes, its own inheritance of economic institutions and resources, and its own problems. To impose on a people a rigid system that takes no account of their needs, desires, aspirations and customs, is to court disaster and failure. The Government wishes, understandably I hope, to avoid these consequences and therefore has laboured long and hard on this Paper to ensure that full account has been taken of our legacies, attitudes and problems in formulating those policies that will guide our future development. It has been our concern—and I hope, Sir, Members will particularly note this point—to define a system and to identify policies that will meet our needs, solve our problems and further our ambitions, and the operative word is "our" not "their". We reject, therefore, Mr. Speaker, those who come to us and say there is no such thing as "African socialism". Such people that say this are prisoners of foreign propaganda. Such people, Sir, betray our traditions and betray our very society. They forget that even in the countries about which they speak so much there are many brands of socialism—there are Leninist, Marxist, Stalinist, Trotskyite, Maoist, Christian socialist, Democratic socialist, and an endless list of "isms".

There is no reason therefore, Sir, why there should be no African socialist. Our fundamental objectives will not, I am sure, require much argument. These are listed in the Paper. They are points we have not only emphasized many times in the course of our struggle against colonialism but which we have pledged to the country and in the Kanu Manifesto. They consist of hopes, the aspirations of the humblest man in our community.

To make progress toward these fundamental objectives, we have decided to employ the system of African socialism. The objectives, Sir, are defined very fully in the Paper itself. In applying African socialism in Kenya, we must draw particularly on those African roots that are especially among all tribes in Kenya. These are: political democracy, and mutual social responsibility.

In the traditional African society in Kenya, only one requirement was imposed on an individual before he could participate fully and equally in political affairs. He had to be a mature, responsible member of that society and nothing else. Indeed, the Constitution already guarantees that and I quote, "every person in Kenya is entitled to the fundamental rights and freedoms of the individual whatever his race, tribe, place of origin or residence or other local connections, and the political opinion, colour, creed or sex"; and I quote Kanu Manifesto also states that, and I quote again, "The Kanu Government will steadfastly uphold the rule of law and guarantee the position of every citizen according to the Bill of Rights". Any mature citizen has the right to vote in elections, to join the party and to participate fully in political matters. It is sometimes argued that faster progress could be made if political rights were suspended temporarily. History demonstrates that suspension of this kind has a habit of order, Mr. Speaker, this is something which may be irritating people quite a bit in this House. The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing recited a litany of names of co-operative societies from a constituency of a very senior Member of this House. Would it not be a good thing if you could advise first, in this House, that we must make more use of the officers of Ministers instead of wasting the time of this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If hon. Members have read a small booklet called Notes on Membership, they will find that advice there, but it is given as advice, and not as a ruling on a point of order.

Question No. 2037

TRAINING OF OFFICIALS FOR CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES

Mr. Muliro, on behalf of Mr. Ngala, asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing if he would state his plans for the training of officials of co-operative societies.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Training facilities for senior officials of co-operative societies exist in the Kenya Institute of Administration. Opportunities are also provided for some of these officials to proceed overseas for training in co-operative management. For example, my Ministry has sent twenty-four co-operative officials for studies to the U.S.A., Israel and Denmark. In addition, co-operative courses of a lower level are held at farmers' training centres specifically for training of committee members. These courses are normally supplemented by local courses of a couple of days' duration, held by my co-operative officers. As a part of my programme of reorganization, I plan to make available to every district co-operative officer whose duty will be the education of members of the co-operative movement and co-operative procedures and management techniques.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have two questions.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): One at a time. You might get to the other one.

Mr. Oduya: Could the Minister give us the breakdown of the twenty-four officers who he has already sent overseas?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will be very pleased to give this. I have in Israel Benson Ongosi from Kisumu District; Daniel Ngaga Johana from

I am prepared to go on to the other places. In the U.S.A. I have Nteoro Mbojori from Meru District, John Kingoo Mbuji from Machakos District, Ben Mbugua Mune from Kiambu District, Daniel Mulandi Mutavi from Kitui District, George Malerna from Kakamega District, Silvester Owang from Central Nyanza District, Samweli Ouma from Busia District, Harrison Walome Jod from Nyeri District, Barack Okubi Nyang'ah from South Nyanza District, Stephen Mlami from Kisumu District, Peter Muia from Machakos District, and Julius Kiptoo arap Kapitch from Kericho District.

In Denmark I have the following: Peter Nduthu from Nyeri District, William Sai Otieno from Uasin Gishu District, Robert Mukwana from Uasin Gishu District, and B. Kathanga from Kirinyaga District.

Mr. Komora: Arising from the long reply by the Minister, Mr. Speaker, Sir—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, you cannot blame the Minister for a long reply when he has been asked for a list of names.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, is the Minister aware that amongst the names he has mentioned, there has not been a name from the Coast Province, and if he is aware is he making any effort to post or to send any Coast boys to these countries for training?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, I thought the hon. Member and other hon. Members from the Coast had told them of my intention of sending some students from the Coast and I asked them if they could submit names from their constituency for my consideration.

Mr. Komora: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Minister in order to tell the House some false statements, whereby he cannot himself substantiate in any day or time that he has approached me for a student's name for his consideration?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Again, this is a very familiar point of order. When an hon. Member thinks that he has had an untrue answer from the Minister, it is up to him to prove either in this House or outside that it is untrue, and be can then require the Minister to come and acknowledge the fact to this House.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I want from the Minister now is why it is that the Minister has not found it necessary to get from Teso some of the officers to be sent abroad because in this central area he knows that there are very effective people?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, this is one of the disadvantages of staying in Nairobi. The hon. Member knows very well when I was doing my one-month tour, I made it my duty to go to his constituency and offered scholarships during his absence in Nairobi.

Mr. Oduya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for a Minister, when I am asking a specific question, to try and make up a story in his House, to say that I am not going to my constituency and can be produce in his record that I stayed in Nairobi and do not do my work in my constituency?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. Hon. Members must be prepared sometimes to take what they get in a reply.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to challenge your ruling, Sir,—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I hope not.

Mr. Shikuku:—but is it in order for a Minister, in replying to any question to imply or to impute that an hon. Member is not going to his constituency? Is that not, in itself, provocative and as such should not be allowed?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, not if it is true. The Minister said that he was in the hon. Member's constituency, in his absence, and offered the opportunity for scholarships there. If that is true, it is true, and it means that the hon. Member at that time was way somewhere else.

Mr. Oduya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, this is very serious—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry, no, we are going on to the next order.

Mr. Oduya: But I cannot allow this provocation—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order.

Mr. Oduya: When you come—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Oduya. Order.

Mr. Oduya: My constituents—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Oduya, if you cannot exercise better control, I shall have to ask you to leave.

Mr. Oduya: But I cannot when a Member is—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is your last warning.

MOTION

SESSIONAL PAPER NO. 10 OF 1963/65: AFRICAN SOCIALISM

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move:—

THAT this House, having studied carefully the Sessional Paper No. 10 of 1963/65 entitled "African Socialism and its Application to Planning in Kenya" notes and adopts the said paper as the basis and guide for future development planning and policy in Kenya.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Okongo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that this is being moved in the form of a Motion, would it be in order during the course of the debate to make any amendments on the Sessional Paper, or how do Members go about it?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Of course, any Motion, except a Motion for a Bill for amendment of the Constitution, can be amended at any time by the will of the House in the course of a debate. When it is a Motion proposing approval or adoption of a paper, then the Motion can still be amended by adding words to the effect that: "with the exception of such-and-such a paragraph" or "with such-and-such an amendment of the said paper".

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sessional Paper No. 10 deals with a subject of vital significance to the development of Kenya: namely, "African Socialism and its Application to Planning in Kenya". This issue has been shrouded in confusion, embellished with slogans and pat phrases, and nearly drowned in a sea of contradictory statements and allegations. There are those in the East and the West who have tried to tell us what we mean by African socialism, and there are those at home who twist the phrase to their own petty uses. This state of confusion could be costly to the development of our country. It could slow down the drive towards unity, hamper the inflow of capital and discourage our people from devoting their full share of hard work to the cause of economic growth.

This bickering, unrest and uncertainty have rightly led many of our citizens to request, the

Dr. Kiango: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that brings in a different issue, the geographic situation, but I would consider the point raised.

Mr. Jamali: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister give an indication to the House how soon it is before he proposes to bring the Bill to the House?

Dr. Kiango: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Government demands very large number of Bills to be passed and our drafting committee are finding it very difficult, therefore it is difficult for me to say at this juncture when the drafting committee will be asked to come to this Bill, but it will be given as much attention as possible.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's original reply and bearing in mind that some non-African registered citizens, register in order to carry on these businesses, would the Minister consider taking these non-African citizens through some form of pipe line to know how sincere they are to Kenya and how loyal?

Dr. Kiango: Mr. Speaker, Sir, despite the very warm welcome given to this question by the House, we do not believe in first and second class citizens in this country.

Question No. 2016

SETTLEMENT OF LANDLESS MERU IN NYAMBENE

Mr. Ithral asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement whether he had any scheme for settling the landless Ameru in Nyambene North.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. My Ministry does not establish any settlement schemes for any particular tribe, district, division, constituency or clan; nor does it participate in the selection of settlers to settlement schemes. If the hon. Member for Nyambene North considers that there is a case for settling the landless people in his constituency, he should take the matter up with the chairman of the Eastern Provincial Advisory Council.

I believe, however, that the hon. Member is aware that there is a settlement scheme at Timau and already a number of people from Nyambene North who sent in applications, have been allocated with plots on the scheme.

Mr. Ithral: Mr. Speaker, Sir, referring to the answer given by the Assistant Minister, would he give me a breakdown for every division of Meru and of Timau?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think it is unfair to ask me to give a breakdown. I have already stated that applications for settlement are not considered on the basis of divisions or constituencies.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that a Member has a right to ask how much settlement is going on in his division, is the Assistant Minister in order in trying to evade this answer by saying that land is not provided on a division basis? The Member concerned knows the truth of his evasion.

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think it is unfair for anyone to suggest that there is an evasion of the question. What I have said is true. I stated a true fact, and this is what is happening. Settlement schemes are not organized on the basis of tribes, and I am sure the House will agree with me that there would be very serious confusion if tribal, constituency or any other small group considerations were to be given.

Mr. Choge: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, if a Member feels that the people in his constituency or division are being forgotten in a settlement scheme and if he comes here to ask a question and then the Minister does not answer it, to which place should the Member go for his answer?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I cannot go on and on answering this point of order. It has been raised so many times. If hon. Members are dissatisfied with the answer they get in this House, they have various remedies. They can record their dissatisfaction immediately by saying they wish to raise this matter on an adjournment. Then, if they are lucky enough to get it on an adjournment, they pursue it there. Or they can go and discuss it with the Minister afterwards. Or they can move a substantive Motion to record their dissatisfaction. I hope this is the last time I am going to be asked this point of order.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that in the past similar questions have been asked by Members from other areas and the Government has been willing to give the breakdown of people settled in new settlement schemes, would the Assistant Minister consider giving the hon. Member who has asked this question, a complete reply so that the hon. Member will be able to go back to his constituency and inform his constituency what the Government is doing for them?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government is not engaged in a campaign to campaign for Members, and the Government considers

(Mr. Gachago) applications for settlement on the basis of province, and it is the chairman of the Provincial Councils, and his committee who allocate plots, in accordance with the needs of their areas. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Member wishes to know how many people from his area have been settled, he can easily go and find this out from the chairman of the Eastern Provincial Advisory Council.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, you have ruled in this House before that when a question is asked of a Ministry the Minister or Assistant Minister, should reply to it instead of referring the question to some outside authority for the information?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have answered that point too, a good many times. It is quite true that Ministers are expected to accept some responsibility to answer in this House for everything that goes on in the country, even if the primary responsibility rests elsewhere; but if a Minister, not as a matter of order, rule that a Minister may not, when required to give certain details, refer his questioner to the authority who has to control those details, the House may not like it, but it is not out of order.

Mr. Lorenza: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is he aware that the Eastern Region Provincial Advisory Council is now powerless and that the matter should be handled by the Central Government?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware, because as far as the Department of Settlement is concerned, the chairman of the advisory council and his committee are still in full power in respect of selection of settlers.

Question No. 2036

REGISTERED CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES IN KILIFI DISTRICT

Mr. Muliro, on behalf of Mr. Ngala, asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing if he would—

- (a) give the names of registered co-operative societies in Kilifi District;
- (b) state what plans he had to procure at least one officer for each administrative division in Kilifi to assist the co-operatives to become more effective.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngeli): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The names of registered co-operatives, say in Kilifi

The Rabai Farmers' Co-operative Society Ltd. is a subject of an inquiry which may lead to its liquidation.

In my reorganization plan, I am making arrangements to have an officer for each district, which includes Kilifi. It is my wish to post a junior officer to every district having eight or more co-operative societies.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the reply by the Minister to the effect that he intends to send co-operative officers to every district, is he aware that the co-operative work is being hampered by the fact that there are so few people to guide the people in the areas, and when is he intending to do this?

Mr. Ngeli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said in this House about a month ago that I intended bringing into being or into full activity: official co-operative officers who will be in charge of legislation and grants and so on. At the moment, I am giving extensive facilities both in the Kenya Institute of Administration, and overseas, to train more staff for co-operative work.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister be kind enough to tell the House how long this will take so that we could ask our people to prepare?

Mr. Ngeli: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is very aware that I am expecting some officers to arrive very shortly, and about a fortnight ago some officers came back from overseas, having taken adequate courses in regard to co-operative work. At the moment, I have several students who are studying in Israel, the U.S.A. and Denmark on a co-operative basis, and in about a week's time more than forty officers will be completing courses in the Kenya Institute of Administration. If the hon. Member remarks how I select them, he should not bring to me the question of time or the question of tribalism. I am prepared to give him the names of various people, for example, the students who are in Israel, who include—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Ngeli, I think you have been brought on to the next question.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): On a point

Dr. Kiiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that brings in a different issue, the geographic situation, but I would consider the point raised.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister give an indication to the House how soon it is before he proposes to bring the Bill to the House?

Dr. Kiiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Government demands very large number of Bills to be passed and our drafting committee are finding it very difficult, therefore it is difficult for me to say at this juncture when the drafting committee will be able to come to this Bill, but it will be given as much attention as possible.

SETTLEMENT OF LANDLESS MERU IN NYAMBENE

It is quite true that Ministers are expected to accept some responsibility to answer in this House for everything that goes on in the country, even if the primary responsibility rests elsewhere; but I cannot, as a matter of order, rule that a Minister may not, when required to give certain details, refer his questioner to the authority who has to control those details. The House may not like it, but it is not out of order.

Mr. Lorema: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is he aware that the Eastern Region Provincial Advisory Council is now powerless and that the matter should be handled by the Central Government?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware, because as far as the Department of Settlement is concerned, the chairman of the advisory council and his committee are still in full power in respect of selection of settlers.

Question No. 2036

REGISTERED CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES IN KILIFI DISTRICT

Mr. Muliro, on behalf of Mr. Ngala, asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing if he would—

- give the names of registered co-operative societies in Kilifi District;
- state what plans he had to procure at least one officer for each administrative division in Kilifi to assist the co-operatives to become more effective.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The names of registered co-operatives, say in Kilifi

The Rabai Farmers' Co-operative Society Ltd. is a subject of an inquiry which may lead to its liquidation.

In my reorganization plan, I am making arrangements to have an officer for each district, which includes Kilifi. It is my wish to post a junior officer to every district having eight or more co-operative societies.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the reply by the Minister to the effect that he intends to send co-operative officers to every district, is he aware that the co-operative work is being hampered by the fact that there are so few people to guide the people in the areas, and when is he intending to do this?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said in this House about a month ago that I intended bringing into being or into full activity official co-operative officers who will be in charge of legislation and grants and so on. At the moment, I am giving extensive facilities both in the Kenya Institute of Administration, and overseas, to train more staff for co-operative work.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister be kind enough to tell the House how long this will take so that we could ask our people to prepare?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is very aware that I am expecting some officers to arrive very shortly, and about a fortnight ago some officers came back from overseas, having taken adequate courses in regard to co-operative work. At the moment, I have several students who are studying in Israel, the U.S.A. and Denmark on a co-operative basis, and in about a week's time more than forty officers will be completing courses in the Kenya Institute of Administration. If the hon. Member remarks how I select them, he should not bring to me the question of -ism or the question of tribalism. I am prepared to give him the names of various people, for example, the students who are in Israel, who include—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Ngei, I think you have been brought on to the next question.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Aringwings-Kodhek): On a point

[Dr. Mungali] to teach the Tanzania Government with regard to the equality of mankind, particularly of Africans.

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, Kenya is a friendly country with Tanzania, have we created any law in Kenya preventing any particular tribe from Tanzania from coming to Kenya?

Dr. Mungali: I did not understand the question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Will you repeat your question, Mr. Somo?

Mr. Somo: My question is this, Mr. Speaker. In as far as Kenya is a friendly country with Tanzania, have we passed any law in Kenya preventing a certain tribe from Tanzania from coming into Kenya to correspond with what they have done with our tribes in Kenya?

Dr. Mungali: No, Sir, we have not and we have no intention of basing our laws on the laws of Tanzania.

Question No. 207

UNUSED LAND ON SISAL PLANTATIONS

Mr. Ndile asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry if he is aware that at Dwa Sisal Plantation, and Masongoleni Sisal Plantation large pieces of land were lying idle? If so, was he prepared to declare such land abandoned and pass it over to the people for cultivation?

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am not satisfied with the ruling of Masongoleni, and have already called for a special report from the Machakos Development Committee.

Hon. Members will recall that the owner of this estate was killed in an air crash and subsequent litigations has made the estate run unsatisfactorily.

Mr. Ndile: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister answer this point about Dwa Plantation and not Masongoleni alone.

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, Dwa, on the other hand, is a comparatively tidy estate producing a satisfactory grade of sisal. It is important to know that in my big sisal plantation, where there is no alternative cash crop, some parts of estate will be idle at certain periods.

Mr. Choge: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also like to know in view of the fact that large portions of this sisal estate are lying idle, whether the African squatters in this area are victimised by the Government or not?

Mr. Murgor: No, Sir.

Question No. 199

REMOVAL OF HEADMISTRESS AT KAIMOSI

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Education if the Minister had considered recommending to the Friends Africa Mission the removal from office of the headmistress of the Kaimosi Girls High School who had not allowed her students to be taught English by suitably qualified men graduates as against women graduates who could not be found in the country?

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. No Sir, it is not the case that the headmistress will not allow her pupils to be taught English by suitably qualified male graduates. Unless there are other grounds which the hon. Member has not revealed, there appears to be no grounds for recommending the headmistress's removal.

Mr. Godia: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is the Assistant Minister aware that the headmistress had objected to a recommendation by the provincial educational officer instructing her to employ male graduates to teach in the Kaimosi Girls High School because there were no women available, and the headmistress objected? Why?

Mr. Mutiso: No, Sir. The Ministry is not aware of this fact, Mr. Speaker and I would like to enlighten the House of the fact that this school has four graduates and three non-graduates out of this, Mr. Speaker, there are two men graduates and all of them are expatriates.

Question No. 208

CONVERSION OF DETENTION CAMPS INTO TRADE/HAND WORK SCHOOLS

Mr. Ndile asked the Minister for Education if the Minister was prepared to convert some of the colonial detention camps at Manyani, into trade/hand work schools for training Kenya fundis?

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I have contacted my colleagues at the Ministry of Home Affairs and I am told that there are no colonial detention camps to be converted into trade/hand work schools for training Kenya fundis.

[The Assistant Minister for Education]

I might also, Mr. Speaker, mention here that the question of expansion of technical education, which includes the training of Kenya fundis, is under very active consideration by my Ministry, in consultation with the Ministry of Labour and Social Services.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that Government is not prepared to convert the detention camps into trade/hand work schools because of the detention of innocent Somali politicians?

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that in some of these camps like the one named Manyani, the background and the association in the minds of the Africans in this country is that people were tortured in them, would the Assistant Minister consider converting them into established and social working institutions so that people forget what happened in them?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, the Ministry is not prepared to do what the Member suggests. In fact, Mr. Speaker, the detention camps are still run by this Government.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, could the Assistant Minister explain briefly why the detention camps are still necessary since we have prisons all over the country?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the reason why detention camps are still needed is because there are different cases which need detention before a person can be sent to prison and therefore these are necessary.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister be specific and mention one example of a case which would still need a detention camp?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 203

LICENCES AND PERMITS FOR KENYA CITIZENS

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he had, in consultation with the Ministry of Co-operatives and Marketing, considered introducing a Bill to empower him to issue business licences and permits only to African and registered Kenya citizens after December, 1966, and to provide non-citizens with temporary permits to enable them to wind up their business and leave the country meanwhile?

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kioko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is the wish and the policy of the Government to see more African businessmen playing a major role in the economy of this country.

In consultation with the Ministry of Co-operatives, and, in addition to the Government's efforts to this end, a Bill is being drafted at present which will stipulate that anybody wishing to have a business in Kenya will be required to have a trading licence. The intention of this Bill is to ensure that for some businesses, which will be specifically defined, licences will be issued to Kenya citizens and Africans in particular. It is hoped that this move will encourage Africans to widen their spheres of interest, for example, from retail trading to wholesale trading—and so on, in all for of commercial enterprises. The policy of the Government is to see that certain types of businesses will be earmarked for citizens only, and particularly Africans. The Government however, will continue to welcome foreign investments by non-citizens particularly in those businesses in which the citizens have neither the capital nor the technical know-how.

Thus, it is not the intention of the Government to kick out non-citizens from the country as they also have their role to play in our economic development.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, if the non-citizens of Kenya are not kept out of business, is the Minister not aware that they are bound to interfere with the profits which should come to the Africans entirely?

Dr. Kioko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said in my original reply, there will be some businesses which will be specifically defined for which licences will be issued to citizens only.

Mr. Anyleni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister give an assurance that the permits given to the overseas people, who are non-citizens of Kenya, will be permits which cannot be applied for by Kenya citizens only?

Dr. Kioko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I keep on repeating myself, what I said was that the Kenya Government will continue to welcome foreign investment by non-citizens in those businesses in which citizens have neither the capital nor the technical know-how.

Mr. Odoyo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister therefore assure this House that the non-citizens, particularly the shop-keepers, will not be allowed to run businesses in the areas where African citizens predominate?

[Mr. Choge] similar question and he did not find time to raise another supplementary question, could you allow him to ask another supplementary question instead of asking the same question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I do not understand your point, Mr. Choge. We will go on.

Question No. 2045

BOUNDARY DISPUTE: NYANZA/WESTERN PROVINCE

Mr. Odero-Sar asked the President what results had been reached by the Nyanza and Western Provinces regarding the boundary disputed areas between the two provinces.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Nyanza and Western Provinces have not reached any decisions regarding the boundary disputed areas. A committee selected by both provinces is taking evidence from people in the disputed areas, and the House will be informed of this.

Question No. 2046

COST OF ECONOMIC COMMISSION CONFERENCE

Mr. Gadatta asked the Minister for Economic Planning and Development what it cost the Kenya Government to be hosts to the (Economic Commission for Africa) Conference.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The estimated cost is about £41,000. The actual total might be slightly more or might be less, depending on the settlement of outstanding liabilities.

Mr. Gadatta: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, could the Minister tell this House what did Africa in general, and Kenya in particular, gain from that conference?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the answer is so elementary that I will not bother the House with it.

Mr. Gatlatat: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as a representative of the taxpayers, I would like to know, after having spent a lot of money on this conference, what gain there will be for the country?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as a taxpayers' representative, the people represented by the hon. Member expect him to know how to do his homework.

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the reply of the Minister to Mr. Gadatta's question was almost as if the Minister thought that the question was not in order or was not a question which should be asked. Now, is it only you who can tell us whether a question needs an answer or whether it does not need an answer?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I think you are back on old ground, Mr. Anyien. As I have said so many times, Ministers decide themselves whether they answer a question and to what extent they answer a question. Mr. Mboya decided in his wisdom or otherwise, that the question did not call for an answer.

Question No. 2010

REQUIREMENTS FOR PROMOTION IN THE FORCES

Mr. Malsori-Imbobo asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence what the requirements were for promotion to the ranks of—

- Senior Superintendent in the Police;
- Brigadier in the Kenya Army;
- Fleet Commander in the Kenya Navy;
- Wing Commander in the Kenya Air Force.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The requirements are: professional ability, merit, experience, intelligence, and leadership qualities for the appropriate ranks.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the hon. Minister agree with me, in spite of his reply, that normally, in Kenya at present, the requirements for any promotion is either to belong to the Kikuyu or Luo tribe?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not reply to that type of question, which is meaningless.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while accepting the Minister's criteria for these posts, would he agree with me that this House, as constituted, is not really the competent authority to judge ability at the present time?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not sure whether the hon. Member meant to say what he said, but I do agree with him.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, where he has given the criteria for a person already in the posts mentioned in the question, is he aware that this House is not satisfied with the constituted body which judges the criteria?

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that one of the factors which contribute to this is that of the less-developed areas, which he has not mentioned?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have not mentioned any developed or underdeveloped areas.

Mr. Gatiguta: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies from the Minister to another question, may we know the composition of the constituted authority who decide promotions?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the authority for promotions in the Police Force now is the Public Service Commission; and Commanders of the Army, Air Force and Navy are appointed by the President, on the recommendations of the Military Council.

Mr. Odoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister, in replying to this question, mentioned one thing was experience. Now will he tell us why some of the senior African members of the Police Force, who have worked for more than ten or fifteen years, have not been appointed to the posts of Director of Intelligence or Commissioner of Police, instead of the person appointed, who has only about five years' Government service?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did not say that only experience was necessary; this is not the only criteria. I said professional ability, merit, experience, intelligence, and qualities of leadership all put together.

An hon. Member: You are lying.

Mr. Malsori-Imbobo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies—

Dr. Mungai: On a point of order, Sir, I do not know whether the hon. Member has any reason for saying that I am lying when I am telling the truth in this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade):—He is completely out of order. If I could identify the hon. Member who said it, I would send him out.

Mr. Malsori-Imbobo: Arising from one of the Minister's replies, would he agree with me that, in the Police Force, what he told the House was done in regard to promotions, is not really what is done?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is done by the Public Service Commission, who are responsible for promotions in the Civil Service. In the same way, this now applies to the Police Force.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 2010: REQUIREMENTS FOR PROMOTION IN THE FORCES

Mr. Agar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that I personally am not satisfied with this reply, can I be allowed to raise this matter on an adjournment?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): When we can find time for it.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 2044

PROHIBITION OF ENTRY TO TANZANIA FOR KENYA TRIBES

Mr. Malsori-Imbobo asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence if he would tell the House the reasons why the following Kenya tribes were not allowed to go to Tanzania unless they possessed permits:—

- Kikuyu.
- Luo.
- Kamba and Taita.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. This law is made by a friendly country which is Tanzania and it is not the responsibility of the Government of Kenya. However, the Government of Tanzania has indicated that they may relax this law. It came into being on 1st August 1961, when the new immigration regulations known as the "Immigration Control of African Immigration Regulations, 1961", came into force in what was then Tanganyika. This being legislation affecting another foreign state, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Kenya Government can say very little on it, but I believe it was there so that they could control the influx of these various tribal groups entering the areas that people of Tanganyika wanted for the settlement of Tanganyikans at that time. However, it was proved later that the Government of Tanganyika was very friendly to Kenya and asked for some settlers from Kenya to come to other areas of Tanganyika.

Mr. Mboya: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, would the Minister assure this House that the Kenya Government will make representations to the Tanzania Government and convince them that all citizens of Kenya are equal, whether they are Kikuyu, Luo or Nandi?

Dr. Mungai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government of Tanzania knows that very well and I do not believe it is the Kenya Government's business

Mr. ole Tipsis: Mr. Speaker, I see my time is running short, but I would like to, make it clear that this country and its leaders, all of us included, are fed up with this sort of insincerity and double talk. Either we mean what we utter from our mouths, or not, because we might mean something different from the bottom of our hearts.

Now, some of the big-mouthed people will shout the loudest. They insist on trying to say anything American, British or Western, is evil, but when their employers from the East—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order, Mr. ole Tipsis, you are supposed to be replying to the debate. I have not heard, throughout this debate, any discussion of the Americans being evil, nor of anybody being employed by the East. You are meant to be discussing what has been said.

Mr. ole Tipsis: M. Speaker, referring to what the hon. Member from Majogo-Bassi said, that the students at Lumumba Institute are capable, I do not think we needed that sort of lecture. We are grown up, and we are capable, and we are not going to go to the countryside and contest in any election with them. Now, we know what happened, for your information—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): For mine?

Mr. ole Tipsis: Yes, for your information, in the Rift Valley. I am referring to one of the students in the Lumumba Institute who was forced to leave the institute before he had completed his course, simply because a certain Member of this House, and a prominent one too—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, we will not have that.

I think you had better use your last minute better.

Mr. ole Tipsis: Now, Sir, the last point which was mentioned by the hon. Member from Majogo-Bassi, is who are these infiltrators? They are communist agents who are out to destroy the smooth running of this Government, by bringing in foreigners. If they could only give us a helping hand, then we should be glad.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

Resolved accordingly:—

THAT this House being grateful to the donors of the Lumumba Institute, urges the Government to put the Lumumba Institute under general management and control of the Ministry of Education.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time for interruption of business. The House is adjourned until Tuesday, 4th May 1965, at 2.30 pm.

The House rose at thirty minutes past Twelve o'clock.

WRITTEN REPLY TO QUESTION

Question No. 2000

KENYA GOVERNMENT LOANS DEBT

Mr. Rurumban asked the Minister for Finance what the overall debt of the Kenya Government, in respect of loans to foreign countries was.

REPLY

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichimu): I have assumed that what the hon. Member wants to know is the overall debt of this Government to foreign governments and overseas institutions including money owed to overseas holders of Kenya loans; the figure is £71,473,911.

Tuesday, 4th May 1965

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERS

UNPARLIAMENTARY WORDS AND PHRASES

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, during a debate last Friday morning, I had occasion to remind the House that it is out of order for any hon. Member ever to refer to another as a "stooge". Two Members then raised another as to what words may or may not be used in this House. It was not necessary that I should give any elaborate ruling on those points at that time, and I was disinclined to interrupt the debate for that purpose; but I think that I should answer them more comprehensively today.

As I said, it is obviously impossible to give a complete list of words which are objectionable; but I do not think that hon. Members will experience much difficulty in their choice of words, if only they understand and observe the principle.

The principle is very simple. It is that we are here to discuss matters of national importance objectively, and not to be offensive to each other! Any hon. Member who sets out to give personal offence discredits both himself and the House as a whole, and it is out of order.

Some words, such as "liar" or "traitor", are clearly offensive in all circumstances, and should never be used.

Other words, such as "communist" or "capitalist", though not necessarily offensive, may become so in certain circumstances. Some people may be proud of being communists, whereas no one can be proud of being a stooge; but if an hon. Member calls another a "communist" with the intention and effect of giving personal offence, as may happen when Members claim to be non-aligned, then he is out of order.

Please, then, bear this simple principle in mind; that personal insults are out of place in this House, and that you must choose your words accordingly.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 2021

REINSTATEMENT OF FORMER DISTRICT OFFICERS

Mr. Khalif asked the President whether the Government would reinstate Mr. Hashim Abdi

Omar, former district officer, who was discharged after being sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment for an assault charge but was subsequently acquitted by the Supreme Court on appealing.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamwaya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. First of all I would like to correct two false impressions in the question. According to the records, Mr. Hashim Abdi Omar has never been a district officer. He was a district assistant according to the records. The second false impression I would like to correct Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that the gentleman referred to in the question was acquitted by the Supreme Court. What, as a matter of fact happened, is that after the officer in question was convicted by a subordinate Court, his appeal was partially allowed by the Supreme Court, that is to say the sentence of eighteen months was reduced to six weeks. Having said that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that it is the practice in the Government service that a Government officer who has been convicted by a court of law cannot be reinstated. Accordingly, the Government does not wish to reinstate Mr. Hashim Abdi Omar, because that would be in conflict with the Code of Regulations.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that in view of the fact that Somali administrative officers are very few, this person could have been exceptionally accepted for reinstatement. I mean taking into consideration the fact that Somali administrative officers are very few, and in particular district assistants because they are only three?

Mr. Nyamwaya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government intends to preserve the Rule of Law, and that is to say that nobody is over or above the law. Anybody who has committed a criminal offence will not be retained in the Public Service, because he comes from a tribe where the ability is sparse. But what the Government intends to do, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is to consider finding a replacement preferably a person from the same tribe who has the requisite ability.

Mr. Ekiella: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order. My point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is this. When the hon. Member, the Assistant Minister is speaking on that, could he assure the House now whether these Somalis who have been killed—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Mr. Ekiella, if you still do not know the meaning of a point of order, I must advise you not to raise points of order at all.

Mr. Choge: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, suppose some other Member had put a [Mr. Atiyeh] professional infiltrators are. If any Member knows them, I think it is proper and right that he should inform the Government; usually the Government, should be informed, but the President is a Trustee and so the President should be informed by these Members, so that he will take immediate steps to see that this is not done.

The Seconder said that he is committed to fighting international communism. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know this communism, and I would like to know where it is so that I can join my hon. Member in fighting it. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it has been said again and again that the enemy of Kenya is not capitalism, it is communism. The enemy of Kenya is communism. Is he ignorant? Mr. Speaker, Sir, if some of our people who have now changed their process to fight these things, and are now fighting another thing, then I think they are taking sides which could be dangerous Mr. Speaker. It is the policy of the American Government, for example, to fight in international communism, and then the Russians fight international capitalism. However, we do not want to be drawn into any of these things. What our people want, and this is what the students are being taught in the Lumumba Institute, is to find ways and means of helping the masses to be able to improve their economic position. If some Members here do not believe that the party officials have anything to do with the running of the country, then we will ask all those Members, who were elected by the masses to resign.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will finish my time, but it is not fair that any Member who has a chance to speak in this House should try and say that those students of the Lumumba Institute are going to be led into wrong things. This is incorrect and wrong of these people and I would like them to see the studies the students have taken, so that after they have finished this course they should go out and work for the people. If any Member here thinks that because he is in this House he will determine Kenya's destiny, the Leader of the Party and the important people will find that they are wrong.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to express my full confidence in the Trustees, one of them who is the President of the Government and the other who is the President of the Party and of the Government. I would also like to congratulate my hon. friend, Mr. Kaggia, who is a popular man in the countryside. It is not true to say that the hon. Mr. Kaggia is not a popular man. All the time my constituents are asking that they do not ask the Government to go there as they—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order! I just want to point out that the popularity of Mr. Kaggia does not come into this debate.

Mr. Atiyeh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my time is running out, and what I would like to say is that the Government would not do something, and I am very sorry if any person thought that they were going to embarrass anybody by bringing this Motion to the House, and hope that they have not been disappointed.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am saying very bravely, and I think the hon. Members will benefit from the practical man rather than the theoretical man.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, but keep to the subject of the Motion.

Mr. Kamau: All right, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am a former student of the Lumumba Institute and when the parties were asked to send their representatives then I had a chance to go. I would like to speak of what I know and not what I do not know. What I should say, Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said formally, is that I did dissociate myself with the statement the students made. I thought it was quite right that the statement should have been made by the students, instead of by the principal of the Lumumba Institute and not to come to the state of shadowing their own Government. But, I must take it that somebody has published this statement, and I like any student in this House to do it. If anyone is to state in this House that this statement is theirs then I will refute it, that the students asked the Government and nobody can try to deny them.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must thank the Government for introducing this African Bible on African socialism which has now come out at the correct time, because, Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I would say, very frankly, that had it not been that the Government had taken this total expense to suggest or to take over this institute, I give an assurance in this House, that it would have taken a long time before you see fire anywhere in the country. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we did have a revolution here during the imperialist government when Mau Mau tried to overthrow them, but they could not agree with the Government to help in this country. What we want to say, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is a social revolution.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want the Members to know what I am going to say, and I think that many will be a witness. It is very convenient that the Government have taken this course because there is no organization in the institute.

[Mr. Kamau] When in the House we have a Speaker, a Clerk, a Sergeant-at-Arms, and everyone knows his job, but at the Lumumba Institute we have no management, no registrar. There is no principal. Even the students are trying, being one myself, why? Because they do not know where to go and where the difficulty arises. Even my friend, Mr. Oduya, I can call you by name, I know the place better than yourself (Inaudible).
Lumumba Institute, so as to send us back to go there and find information (Inaudible).
who can use the name of my President as a break to cover the things which have been done. I am speaking of this technically that the name of the President is even used under cover and to make use of unfortunate people, and taken by a long standing—

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the hon. Member substantiate that the name of the President is being misused for certain things?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not a proper case of substantiation, and I am afraid Mr. Kamau that it is time now to call upon the Mover to reply. We must dispose of the amendment, and I must then call upon the Mover to reply.

You may finish one sentence.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is high time for the President and the Government to take over the institute, and everybody who are educated in the Lumumba Institute (Inaudible). of the Government.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I very strongly support the Motion.

(Question of the first part of the amendment, that the words to be left out be left out, and agreed to)

(Question of the second part of the amendment, that the words to be inserted in place thereof be inserted, proposed)

(Question of the second part of the amendment, that the words to be inserted in place thereof be inserted, put and agreed to)

(Question of the Motion as amended proposed)

Mr. Ole Tjips: Mr. Speaker, Sir, first of all, I must congratulate the Minister for accepting the Motion, even though with a different wording. Let us be very clear, and I made it very clear at the beginning, that what is wanted is the Government to intervene to prevent a situation arising at the Lumumba Institute whereby some politicians would misuse this institution for their own personal, political glorification. As far as this goes, Sir, the amended Motion has definitely, even according to this letter, a circular letter by the students themselves, shown that they are independent, and their autonomous status which these students control, those who claim to be on the Board of Government. They used the independence which was vested in them—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. The amended Motion does not justify criticism of the Board of Management.

Mr. Ole Tjips: Mr. Speaker, what I was saying is that the Government has seen it right and fit to manage and control the Lumumba Institute. This is all that it asked for, to manage and control the Lumumba Institute.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I have heard a number of speakers trying to say or boast that since His Excellency, the President of our Republic is one of the Trustees of this institute, he knows exactly what is going on. The same people are speaking with double tongues, and we know this. The same people are trying to contradict the policies of the President.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Odongo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I do appreciate the notice that the hon. Member is making, but is it in order? He is saying that there are some people who say that they support the President, but when they go outside they do not support him. My point of order is that despite the noise that is being made by the hon. Member, has this anything to do with the debate?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Not very much I do not think.

Mr. Ole Tjips: Now, Sir, what I was going to say is that we are—

Mr. G. Godana: On a point of order, Sir, I would like your guidance, as to whether references like this about the President are relevant to a debate on the Lumumba Institute?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not quite understand what your point of order is.

Mr. G. Godana: Mr. Speaker, somebody raised a point of order, the hon. Mr. Okelo-Odongo, as to whether reference to the President was relevant.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, he wanted to know whether it was relevant to the debate.

Mr. Kagga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I was saying was that we have nothing to hide in Lumumba Institute and I would like to answer one point. As I said, we welcome any control from the Ministry of Education, but there have been a lot of rumours and lies that have been spread about the Lumumba Institute and this, Mr. Speaker, must be corrected. Some people have been saying that it has locked doors, it is a communist institution, and so on; and I say that those who have been spreading such rumours must be against the Vice-President and the President, who are the owners of this institute.

The other thing they have said, Mr. Speaker, is that this institution has been used for subversion and other funny things which they could not substantiate, and therefore I think this was only meant to confuse the issue.

So, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that we would welcome the amendment of the Government, but the Mover of this Motion had no reason whatsoever for moving this Motion. If this was suggested from the Government, we would have nothing against it, but all the funny talk that covered the whole Motion was not true and was malicious propaganda. In fact, I would call it real Western propaganda—and I am saying this repeatedly—which is bringing this House and the people of this country into the cold war, which we have always been fighting against. This country has been receiving aid from America, from Britain, from West Germany but we hear nothing of the aid which comes from the East. This shows, Mr. Speaker, that all this is intended as Western propaganda.

The Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, I shall speak for two minutes in order to allow other Members to speak.

The Member who has just sat down said that His Excellency the President of Kenya is responsible for everything that happens in the Lumumba Institute.

Mr. Kagga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think that is a misrepresentation of what I said. I said the President is a Trustee of the institute.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You said a bit more than that, but not so much as Mr. arap Moi says.

The Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): What I am trying to say, Mr. Speaker, is that I do not believe that the name of the President of Kenya, as well as the President of Kenya, should be used in trying to undermine what he does. Here, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the principal of the school allowed this document which is slanderous document to be published and my name is referred to in it. I have consulted my lawyers to see those persons who were responsible for writing and publishing this document issuing it to the public and the students who have been coming from those areas and purporting to speak for the people. Among the students who come from the region is one who is not a Kalenjin, speaking for the Kipsiga people and other people from other areas.

Mr. Kijipfefe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am asking your guidance about the students from Kericho. I am very sorry to say in this House that I did not send anybody from Kericho and I do not know who it is.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order.

The Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, what I would like to tell the hon. Members here is that we should be genuine to ourselves. This document is actually one of the worst statements which has ever come from any institution, it refers to the state—which is the Government—as “the colonial remnants in this machinery” and of diplomatic pressure from America and Britain. I have made my position clear all the time. As anyone can read in the papers, I go against the Americans, I go against the Russians, the Chinese, the whole lot, I am not interested. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, when something is referred to another person, one should jump up and defends it. Why should we defend foreign powers when they try to interfere with our country? If non-alignment means bowing to any foreign power, then I do not understand what the logical thinking of those Members is.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I should like to say that some Members here have said no reasons have been advanced for getting the Government to control the Lumumba Institute. A good reason is this document.

Yesterday the Israel Institute was taken over or came under the control of the Government and also there are other similar institutions. So we would like to see the Lumumba Institute come under the control of the Ministry of Education, so that it becomes useful to our society.

Mr. Speaker, I support the amendment.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that I will not try to be extreme in this Motion, because I do not think it would be in the interest of the House for me to be so.

There is a very dangerous feeling going around amongst Members and some of the Members who I would like to speak are going away, and

(Mr. Anyieni) is a little disappointing. But, then, Mr. Speaker, you will see that there is a feeling here that there is some animosity amongst Members and there is some animosity which is brought, it is intended when a Motion like this is brought, it is intended to go against a Member, and then it seems as if there is another clique which is supposed to defend a Motion like this. Mr. Speaker, this is very unfortunate.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Anyieni, you must not impute intentions; that is where the trouble starts.

Mr. Anyieni: The point I am trying to make, Mr. Speaker, is this: that the Lumumba Institute is an organization, as has been said by the gentleman who has a little part in controlling it, which is under the President and the Vice-President. Mr. Speaker, I have been informed by one of the members of the Board that originally they asked that the Government should take it over, but the President said that it would not be proper for the Government to take over an institution like that. These two are trustees until the party is fully reorganized, and then the whole thing will be handed over to the party under the supervision of the Government. What is wrong with this?

I want to support the amendment, Mr. Speaker, because if the Kenya Government will allow any institution to be set up in any part of Kenya, without Government finding out what they are doing, that will be a stupid Government, and that is why I support the amendment of the Government. Mr. Speaker, the Government should be able to see what is going on. For example, Mr. Speaker, supposing that school today teaches things such as, you must overthrow the Government, and so on, the Government must know this. I am sure that up to this moment the Government has some people there to see that everything goes well. If it were not so, Mr. Speaker, the President and the Vice-President of the Republic, who are the two people in the Government, would have done something to stop something wrong going on there, which shows that they do control what is going on. Somebody is trying to say, Mr. Speaker, they are doing nothing; if they are doing nothing, it is not the fault of the students or of the teachers.

Mr. Speaker, as to qualification, there has been propaganda for some time since the institute was set up from the Western papers. Some of these Western papers went as far as to say that this Western party says that he is a neutralist, but now Kenya says that these foreign teachers to whom does he allow that he is a neutralist, but how does he allow that they are even trying to impute that the President is a communist. Mr. Speaker, we would like to make one point clear: that the President of the Republic of Kenya is a straightforward man who does not want to make enemies with the British, with—

Mr. Khasakha: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Member has referred to a paper in his speech and I think for the information of the House he should tell us the name of the paper.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, not in a case like this.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, one Member said that the President can speak for himself, but he should know that he is not only the President of himself, he is my President, and I have the right to say something good about him.

Mr. Speaker, the other thing I would like to say as to qualifications of teachers is this. It has been said in some circles that the teachers who are there are mostly Russian. I would like to point out that the principal is an African: Mr. Gideon Mutiso, and he was trained in India, not in Moscow or Peking.

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member to say that the principal is a man by the name of Gideon Mutiso?

Mr. Anyieni: It is understandable, but I was referring to Mr. Matthew Mutiso, not the hon. Gideon Mutiso.

If getting an education means that a person becomes a communist, Mr. Speaker, then I start to wonder as whether we do not have too many communists, because my hon. friend Mr. Odoro-Jowi was also educated in India and the hon. Mr. Omolo Agar was also, and even the hon. Mr. Gatigwa was educated in India. So, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that what I believe is that the Lumumba Institute is doing a good job and it is proper that the Government should be able to see what is going on.

The other thing I would like to say, Mr. Speaker, is this. Let us not underestimate the integrity and intentions of the students of the Lumumba Institute. These are not people who have been picked from the streets to come and be misled, they are people who many—many of them—see this place some of the Members now sitting in this House. I see somebody in trying to refer me to a document, but the thing I would like to say before my time is over is this. It is said that professional infiltrators are infiltrating into the school. We would really like to know who these

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development] were before. We want to remove that impression around the Lumumba Institute that it is an ideological institute, because it is not. The only way we can remove this is by bringing in the official stamp of the Government, so that everywhere, at home and abroad, it is recognized as a full institution of this country.

Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, I want to say that I have nothing against the fact that we have two Russians teaching at the institute, as some people have tried to make propaganda outside this Chamber, and elsewhere. This kind of propaganda is cheap, to say the least. I am quite happy to see the Russian teachers teach, provided they are the people with the right qualifications, and providing they do not each their own ideology and have someone to their every evening to teach them English. I want to say that when we employ American teachers here we always screen them, insist on knowing their qualifications, and insist on knowing that they are capable of teaching the subjects for which they are employed, nothing more and nothing less.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will propose the question of amendment by Mr. Koinange, that paragraphs (a) and (b) be left out of the question, and that there by substituted the words, "put the Lumumba Institute under the general management and control of the Ministry of Education".

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): As regards time, we have reached the point where the Mover is due to reply, but we have had a lot of interruptions in this debate, so probably the House would like to continue with the leave of the House. I will call on the Mover to reply at 12.30 p.m.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to know whether we are in order now to discuss the question of the Lumumba Institute when the amendment has been made by the Minister for Education, and indicate that this is going to be the policy of the Government to control all other institutes in the country?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We are concerned with the Lumumba Institute.

Mr. Kagga: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, as Chairman of the Board of Management of the Lumumba Institute, I will confine myself to educating the hon. Members on a number of points which have been very misrepresented in this House.

Mr. Speaker, when I was listening to the Mover of this Motion, I was expecting him to give reasons for his moving the Motion, but I was surprised that he gave us nothing. He confined himself to vague statements which showed he knew nothing of the subject he was talking about. Therefore, I thought that the basis of moving this Motion might have originated from the paper which was read here by the hon. Mr. Nyagah, or from—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry, Mr. Kagga, but you cannot impute the motive underlying a Motion.

Mr. Kagga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will leave that, but what I was saying is that the Mover did not give us a single reason as to why the institute should be taken over by the Government. Therefore, I am going to explain most of the things about the institute.

Before I come to the institute, Mr. Speaker, I would like to clear a point about the students in the Lumumba Institute which has been referred to by the Minister for Economic Planning. I would like to make it very clear that the students in the Lumumba Institute are not ordinary students like in other colleges or schools. These are partly leaders, chairmen, secretaries and treasurers, and they are politicians, and as a result should say that whatever they say is as a result of their teachings at the institute. Many of them are older politicians than some of the Members here.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say from the outset that the Mover spoke as if he did not know the managers of this Lumumba Institute, because I think if he knew he would not have spoken in the way he spoke. Many accusations have been raised in this House and outside the House that Lumumbasa Institute is led by foreigners. Some have said that it is controlled by the Russians. I would like this House to know and the public to know that the Trustees of this institute, are His Excellency the President of this country, who is also the President of Kanu, and the Vice-President of the Republic who is also the Vice-President of Kanu. Therefore, I would like to know whether the Mover of this Motion intends to tell us that he knows the policy of this Government, the constitution of Kanu and every thing else, better than the President and the Vice-President.

If this is not the case, Mr. Speaker, then it will show that the Mover of this Motion was [Mr. Kagga] completely ignorant of the Lumumba Institute, its management and what goes on there.

Mr. Speaker, this institute is managed by a Board of Management which is appointed by the two Trustees. On this Board, Mr. Speaker, there are three Ministers of the Government. We have the hon. Mr. Murumbi, the Minister for Foreign Affairs; the hon. Mr. Achieng-Onyeko, the Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism; and the hon. Mr. Paul Ngei, the Minister for Marketing and Co-operatives.

Mr. Speaker, that shows that the board has some leading members of the Government who are the custodians of the Constitution and the policy of the Government. More than that, Mr. Speaker, on the board there are other politicians who have been in politics for a long time, who do not need the Lumumba Institute to teach them, who do not need any Member of this House to teach them because they have been in politics a long time. Among those, Mr. Speaker, are the hon. Fred Kubai and Mr. K. Karumba, who is an old politician although he is not a member of this House, and myself, Mr. Speaker. Therefore, I would like to submit very strongly, Mr. Speaker, that this group has been in politics for a long time, before the hon. former Leader of the Opposition and the hon. Member for Namb.

Mr. Masford-Imburo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to seek your ruling whether we have in the House the Leader of the Opposition.

Hon. Members: The former Leader.

Mr. Kagga: Mr. Speaker, another point I would like to make is that the hon. Mr. Nyagah laboured very much on one point in our programme, which says that the teachers will teach what we want them to teach. Yes, I will interpret that Mr. Speaker, and say very strongly that this is to show just the contrary of what the hon. Mover was trying to show; this was to show that even if we have Russian or American teachers or British teachers, they are not going to teach what they want or what they teach in their country, but what they are told by the Board of Management. Here, Mr. Speaker, I must inform the hon. Member for Embu South that the programme which he was reading was carefully prepared by the Board of Management and approved by the Trustees. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, when we say that they are going to teach what we told them is that has been approved by the President of the Republic of Kenya. Therefore, as I said, this does not mean that this is only the view of the board, it is the view and the policy of the country, the whole party, which are both embodied in the persons of the President and the Vice-President.

Mr. Speaker, on the question of teachers, I must say that the staff is under the Board of Management and they teach under our instruction. More than that, we have a very capable principal who is an African, who is at the top; and the Russian teachers who are there and even the English who may come tomorrow will have to work under him.

Mr. Gatuguta: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we do not understand whether the hon. Member is speaking on the amendment, whether he is supporting or opposing the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would remind hon. Members they can speak on either the amendment or the whole issue of the debate. It may not be very important whether or not they speak in support of the amendment itself.

Mr. Kagga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I am losing time.

What I was saying was that whatever sort of teachers we have in the Lumumba Institute, they do not teach on their own, they follow our programme and they are under a very capable African, so for anyone to say that there are Russian teachers and that therefore the institute is Russian led, shows that he is ignorant of what is taking place.

Now, Mr. Speaker, what I was going to say is that I am not against the amendment and, in fact, I would appreciate the Government assisting the institute, because we are in financial difficulties and definitely I would appreciate a grant from the Minister for Education. Therefore—

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member in order in shouting "teach the stooges"?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Who?

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Oduya.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my friend is just interfering here with me for nothing. I did not say this.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. I did not hear Mr. Oduya say anything offensive; there was too much noise for me to do so. He does not acknowledge having said anything offensive.

Mr. Kagga, you must carry on.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If the hon. Member wants to refer to this document, he will of course tell the House its origin and contents.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will leave the document on the Table. The title of the document is, "A Press Statement which we the students of Lumumba Institute", it has an attachment of all the names, so that if Members want to refer to it, it is there. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not attacking the members of the Lumumba Institute, and I do not wish to do so. I have worked with many of these people who are there as students and I know them. They are my friends. I know them to be some people who have worked very hard for the party. But it is clear to see what is beginning to happen. That someone should begin to transform the Lumumba Institute into a place where party officials or party workers, or party organizers, the moment they get in there, begin to feel that they are a class apart, away from the main part, away from the leaders of the party, away from the manifestoes of the party, away from the policies of the party. This is wrong and this is what some people want to do—

Mr. Kamau: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to seek your guidance as to the fact that when I say this paper, perhaps the hon. Members will be interested to know that I am a Lumumba Institute student, and to that effect, Mr. Speaker, Sir—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What is your point of order?

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my point of order, is that I would like to disassociate myself with this paper, which the hon. Member for Nairobi, Mr. Mboya, speaks of, and I do not want the House to have the impression that I am associating to this paper.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not really a point of order, but I do not think that hon. Members would grudge Mr. Kamau this opportunity of explaining his own position.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say this, and this is all I will say about the students. What I would like to say is this, that as far as I am concerned, and I know as far as our President is concerned, and even as far as this House is concerned, we are happy to send our Kanu branch officials and organizers to the Lumumba Institute. We want them to stay there because we expect and hope that what they come from there they will be stronger, more efficient and better organizers of the party, and they will help us to bring unity within the party. They will also help us to have a stronger basis for the party in this district and in other areas. But, Sir, this cannot be achieved if we create an antagonistic atmosphere which will poison the relations between those who happen to have gone to the Lumumba Institute and those who have stayed outside, and create an impression that the two groups are at war, because they are not at war. When these people come back to the Lumumba Institute and come back to the districts and to the branches, they will work with all of us. There will be no party which will be a Lumumba Institute Party, it will still be the Kanu Party. That is why, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel very strongly, that even the Governors of the Lumumba Institute, who are themselves responsible members, will themselves wish to see that the atmosphere in the institute, that the influence in the institute is one which leads to closer unity and not a place in which conflicts and fights will begin. We do not wish to see an institution in our country like those we see and hear of in other countries, where students are protesting as demonstrators in the streets, rushing about and frightening everybody. That is not the purpose of this institute, and that is not the kind of institution we want to see in Kenya. This belongs to other countries, but not to this country. This country has had a tradition. We have a university. We have other institutions. We have schools; but we have never had this tradition of students being made use of as a political tool or weapons to fight a battle outside the institution. The institute is for teaching certain things, and people go there to learn those things, but it cannot be a place for a full occupation with extra-curricula activities outside and above what is to be taught in the institute. We want these people, when they come out, to be able to teach us also. To be able to teach other people, but they are not going to be able to teach other people, if they have trained themselves to look upon everyone else as an inferior and ignorant person who does not know where the country is going. All this because of three weeks residence in this place.

Mr. Speaker, Sir: I would now like to say why it is necessary, in the opinion of the Government, for this institute to be under the management and control of the Government. Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are the following pertinent questions: First, if the institute is going to teach matters relating to policy and to help our people understand the Government's policy and party policy, then it is only right and fair that Government should have a say in how the institute is run.

You cannot touch on Government policy. You cannot help to interpret Government policy if the Government does not have a say in the institute and in the machinery that is used in doing this job.

Secondly, I think this House and the whole country will be interested. At the moment we have only one course, a course for party organizers, but the prospectus says that there will be other courses for members of co-operatives and trade unions, and so on. Now, Sir, it is necessary that we know how the students are going to be selected for these courses. It is a different question when we are inviting a branch chairman, or a branch secretary, because he is known to have been elected by his branch, but when you are going to select students from the co-operatives or from external affairs, political trade unions, or economics, we want to know what is going to be the criteria of selecting students. It must be laid down, it must be impartial and it must be understood. It cannot be on the basis of brotherhood or friendship or party political support. The institute must be a public institution with equal opportunities for all Kenyans. Therefore, we want to have access to that management and control of the institution so that we can supervise the selection of the students. Is it going to be a co-operative course for those with primary education or for those with secondary education, or for people with just experience? We want to know all these things, and that is why, Government must have a say.

The other thing, Sir, we want to know what the conditions of the students are. We have students in the medical training schools, or in the teaching training schools, and we know that they are going to get uniforms, and when they sick they are going to receive medicines, and be treated by someone. We know that they will receive an allowance of so much, and we know that their families are left at home—as some have wives and children—and we want to know what their welfare is going to be like. Is it going to be left only to some amateurish organization? We have a lot of professional knowledge in this matter. We want to know where the money is going to come from to meet the recurrent and expenditure. It is easy to build something, but is different to run it. This House has discussed more than once the problem of money coming from outside, and how this is to be managed. If money is going to come from outside, we want to know the terms on which it is coming, and what conditions we are required to fulfil in order to continue getting the money. We want to know when the institute runs short of money whether the Government has to subsidize it, because it is quite obvious that sooner or later the institute is going to run out of money, and we will have to subsidize it from public funds. We want to know how we come into that, at what point and under what conditions. This is why the Government wishes to exercise control and management.

Mr. Speaker, there is also the question of what certificate the students get after their training. Now, Sir, when students go overseas or to any institute, they want to come away feeling that they have been educated, and the only way to make them feel that they have been educated, is for them to come from there with a specific understanding of what they have attained. Now, Sir, what is the certificate they get? We want to know also how that certificate of the Lumumba Institute on co-operatives is going to be related to another certificate on co-operatives from other institutions in this country and outside this country. We want to know whether these certificates will be useable for the students to get a job. Does this enable them to go to the Ministry of Co-operatives and get a job? What is more important, we want to know, Sir, what the qualification and experience of the teachers are.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the teachers need to be qualified so that the students get the right certificate. In this institute the students are being taught in both English and Swahili. There are certain documents who are now employed to translate the documents from English to Swahili. We want to know the qualifications of these people who translate the documents, and whether they may have translated properly or not, otherwise we may have a case where a lecturer is given in English, and someone who translates it into Swahili gives a completely different lecture. The Swahili gives a completely different lecture. The students have the right to be given the best education, the right treatment, and see that their welfare is being taken care of. The students have the right to get out of the Lumumba Institute with confidence that they have been given the best education in the circumstances, for the period that they are there. The Board of Governors should be answerable to the Ministry of Education. The Government has no quarrel with the Board of Governors who are acceptable and those who can stay there. I am only interested that the standard of those who are acceptable and those who will help the students will come and be more useful to themselves and our society, than they

[The Minister for Education] carry on the objectives that the Government and the party are actually interested in for the benefit of the nation.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Are you seconding, Mr. Mboya?

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Yes, Sir, and I will speak for twenty minutes.

Mr. Anyieni: The American ambassador.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I take the greatest exception to the insinuations and innuendoes by the hon. Member for Majengo-Bassi when he refers to me as the American ambassador.

POINT OF ORDER

CONDUCT IN THE CHAMBER

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Anyieni, I did hear it this time. As the hon. Member rose to his feet and said he was seconding and claimed twenty minutes, you said, "The American ambassador". There is no doubt as to the meaning of that interjection, and you must apologize.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, I did not refer to the hon. Member who was standing, but if the words I said are taken to mean that I was referring to any hon. Member, I withdraw them.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): And apologize.

Mr. Anyieni: I withdraw the statement and if an hon. Member felt that I was referring to him, and he was hurt, I apologize to him.

Mr. Gatuguta: Following that point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the hon. Member has a habit of calling other people stooges and other names, is it in order for this House to decide on a line of action to be taken against such Members, in order to keep the dignity of this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I gave a decision about this the other day. The first step, if I think that any Member has misbehaved so badly that he requires disciplinary action, beyond being required to sit down, is to require him to leave the Chamber for the rest of the day and the precincts of the House. If the case is worse than that—if I think it is worse than that—then I name the Member, and the House resolves whether or not he should be suspended from the service of the House; but the initiation of a Motion of that kind has to come from me. I have warned hon.

Members several times about interjections, particularly the use of the word "stooge". I repeated that warning yesterday, and the next time I hear the word "stooge" used with reference to any hon. Member, the Member who uses it will be sent out. However, I have not yet reached the point with any Member, as regards his interjections, where I think it proper to name the Member and leave it to the House to decide whether or not to suspend him; but the case may arise.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, does your ruling stand throughout, whether you are in the Chair or otherwise, because it so happens that at times when you are out of the Chair the word "stooge" is used and Members get on with it without any reprimand of the Member?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Oh, Yes. My rulings hold good whether I am in the Chair or not, and my powers rest with the Member who is in the Chair. If this word "stooge" is used when some other Member is in the Chair, I rule the hon. Members will remind him of my ruling.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, what would happen when an hon. Member draws the attention of the person in the Chair when you are absent to the fact that the word "stooge" has been used and should be withdrawn and he does not rule or comply with that, because I do remember yesterday the word "stooge" was used against me and when I rose on a point of order, the ruling was that it was not all that bad, and it continued?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I said, remind the hon. Member in the Chair of what I have said or tell him if he was not there when I said it.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okoko Odongo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, you have just ruled that the word "stooge" should not be used and anyone using it should go out, but the understanding is that there have been two words going together—stooge and communist—and would it be in order to rule also that the counterpart of this word is also out of order?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I cannot give a ruling about every word that might be used. When words are used, I am going to tell hon. Members whether or not they are offensive, if they do not know already.

Mr. Odoyo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, do we assume, therefore, that apart from the word "stooge" other words like puppet and [Mr. Odoyo] and what not, are allowed to be used?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, You do not assume anything, except that you are meant to behave.

(Resumption of Debate on Motion)

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): I hope that my time is taken from now and not from the first time I stood.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, all I would like to say in opening my remarks is that I think it would be a very unfortunate day for Kenya if Members here or people outside were to become so intimidated that they could not speak their minds on any issue that faces this House or this country. I certainly am not going to be intimidated by attacks or by any slogans that anyone might try to hang on me. I have had this for many years and it has never broken any bones. I will continue to hold to whatever policy or principles I believe in and it does not matter to me what anybody calls me. I will stand by what I believe is right for this country, and say that at any place at any time, and I do not care what anybody says about me. Mr. Speaker, Sir, too often people get too scared and that is why many countries have failed in the past, because men become slaves of fear and there is nothing worse than fear itself.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would now like to come to the subject of the debate, the Institute. I want first to say, as my colleague the Minister for Education has done, that we in the Government are very deeply appreciative of those who donate funds and material to make it possible for the Lumumba Institute to be built. We believe that the President and the Vice-President, when they agreed to become the Trustees had in their minds the service of the nation and the needs of the nation and the party. We believe that the spirit should be upheld and that no one should seek to undermine this initial intention, by turning the Institute into any other but an institute to serve Kenya and serve the party and serve the nation. So long as this is met then no one quarrels with the Institute. But, when it is not met then we have a duty to say where and when it is not met, and to do something about it as the Government of this country. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are grateful that we can have an institute and that the name of that illustrious champion of Africa, Lumumba, and in that small way we are pleased and happy to pay tribute to such a great nationalist of this century in Africa. There are things he stood and fought for and which he died for and we wish to see those upheld. But, we do not wish to see that name and those things defiled, or distorted or undermined by anyone at the Institute or by anyone who has donated to this Institute. That, Sir, is what we intend to uphold.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is unfortunate in the last few months that the Lumumba Institute has been made the object of cold war and ideological wrangling, brought here and overseas and in this House, and when one reads some of the Press reports you have two functions of the Lumumba Institute according to what Press you read. There are those who wish this Institute to be regarded as nothing but a den where revolution is cooked, where subversion is discussed and where communism is promoted and dished out. There are those who wish to give the image that the Institute is the only place where true nationalists reside, where true socialism resides and where true Africanism resides.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, both these images are false and wrong. The Institute is a simple institution where something good can be done and should be done, that is what we would like to do. It is not to be regarded as a show piece for one group or of one ideology, because it is not. What is going to happen is that from the kind of people who get out of the Institute, then and now they shall we be able to judge what is the product of the Institute. But we begin to see things which have completely distorted the original intentions of the President of this Republic when he felt that there was a need for that Institute. We begin to see coming out of the Institute leaflets like this written by people who are students at the Institute. What Government? With are they at war? Or with whom? One would like to know. Is this the kind of influence which we are being told is in the best interest of the country? These people, the students of the Institute, are not from Mars. They are just ordinary human beings who just come from ordinary villages. What makes them so special after going to the Institute which they were not three weeks ago? Mr. Speaker, Sir, are we being told sincerely that in three weeks people will become specialists in political science? That all of us in the Government are useless, ninetails, who cannot do anything for this country—

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I demand of the Speaker, whether it is correct for the hon. Member to wave a document in front of us?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Obongo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is accusing the Lumumba Institute which cannot answer here, saying that some Members were not allowed to talk to the Lumumba Institute. Can the hon. Member substantiate that?

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, I said, have not been allowed. Whether they will not be allowed to speak tomorrow or tonight is a different matter.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Obongo): When you say somebody has not been allowed, does that mean that he has been refused?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Actually, the words Mr. Nyagah used were "have not been given a chance". Mr. Nyagah, do you mean "have not been invited"?

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): Have not been invited.

Mr. Speaker, the other thing which has been talked about so much here is a little booklet known as the manifesto. We hear the manifesto has not been followed to the end, and it is true; Rome was not built in a day. The authors of the manifesto, which everybody here believes is correct, if properly and practically interpreted as far as I know, to the best of my knowledge have not had a chance to expound what was in their minds when the manifesto was drawn up. I hear an hon. Member saying that have not been denied, I have not alleged that they have been denied; all I am saying is that, to the best of my knowledge, they have not been allowed in this first course to have an early opportunity to expound on this.

Mr. Speaker, I go to the second part—personnel. The personnel part in the document says, "We intend to recruit" with your permission, Mr. Speaker, I will read this—"teachers of the highest calibre with thorough knowledge of the subjects to be taught at the institute. They must have the ability to teach and turn out students with initiative, independent judgement, capable of making correct and practical decisions themselves on the problems facing Kenya." That is most ideal. I accept that. What I do not accept, or shall I say accept with some reservations, is this: "Of course, such teachers must be sympathizers with our course and programme policy; our course, the word is 'our'." Mr. Speaker, perhaps I forgot to tell the House that the document has two patrons—His Excellency Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, His Excellency the Vice-President, Mr. Oginga Odinga—and a Board of Management. I do not know whether the Board of Management which has six Members of Parliament and three non-Members of Parliament, plus the co-patrons, are the ones to whom the word "our" refers, and in supporting this Motion all that I am trying to say is that. This word "our", if it is from these people, should be translated to mean Government. Further on, Mr. Speaker—

Mr. Nyagah: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it right for an hon. Member to have a brief case in the House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Only if it is a very small one. The principle with regard to brief cases is that hon. Members are not entitled to bring into this House what I refer to as a portable secretarial, but they may carry a certain large enough for the papers which they require in the House.

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, among other things that are said—quite a number of which I agree with under this paragraph on personnel—it is a final paragraph which is most perturbing. "In sort, the institute personnel, whether foreign or Kenyan, will be at our service—our staff—and we have to teach and work in accordance with the declared spirit of our programme and policy." The final point, Mr. Speaker, is this: "The teachers will teach what we want them to teach." Who are these "we"?

Is my time over, Mr. Speaker?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes.

Mr. Anylen: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that the hon. Mr. Nyagah has been interrupted by some unfortunate points of order and he has something to tell this House, would it not be in order for you, Mr. Speaker, to increase his time so that he can speak?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have already allowed some extra four minutes for the interruptions Mr. Nyagah has suffered. With the leave of the House I can allow him to go on.

Hon. Members: No.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Some hon. Members say "No", and that means I do not have the leave of the House.

I understand the question has not yet been proposed.

(Question proposed)

The Minister for Education (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am quite sympathetic with what has been said, but I would like to change the form of this Motion. Therefore, I beg to move that the Motion be amended by replacing (a) and (b) of the original Motion by the following: "put the Lumumba Institute under the general management and control of the Ministry of Education."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this institute was established—

Mr. Gatuguta: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would it be in order for the hon. Minister to repeat the amendment because we did not hear it?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, I think the House has not heard it.

The Minister for Education (Mr. Koinange): Instead of paras. (a) and (b) of the original Motion, we would like to have the following: "put the Lumumba Institute under the general management and control of the Ministry of Education."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this institute was established under the Trust Deed made on 5th November 1964 by the hon. Mzee Jomo Kenyatta and the hon. Oginga Odinga—

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Obongo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether it would be in order for the hon. Minister to make just one more clarification, so that it might benefit hon. Members with regard to the meaning of the terms. There is the word "management" and the word "control". Now, management, as—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): This is not a proper point of order. Asking for clarification of a Motion or a speech is not a point of order.

The Minister for Education (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, in making that amendment we are not interested in the word "take-over". Secondly, we are grateful to the peoples and the countries which contributed funds to establish and run the institute. The Government notes that this institute has been established with the following objects: to carry out external relations, general principles of socialism, party organization, African socialism, biography of Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, the socialist state and constitution. Having found that, we have come to this conclusion. Assuming that the Trust was established in accordance with the Trustees Act of the Laws of Kenya, Cap. 167, the legality of the Lumumba Institute ended with the establishment of the Board of Governors, as all other leading organizations do in establishing their educational institutions. They did so following the Education Act, Cap. 210 of the Laws of Kenya. The trustees should register themselves as managers of the school under section 16 of the Education Act, at which point the purpose of the syllabus to be followed would have been determined, accepted and approved. In accordance with section 55 of the same Act, the teaching staff would have been authorized to teach in Kenya by the Chief Education Officer under section 63 of the Education Act, failing which, the teachers of the institute would have incurred the penalties prescribed by section 67 of the Education Act.

Sections 60 and 61 empower the Minister of Education to take over institutions under various conditions, and the Lumumba Institute could have been taken over by the Minister under the same law, but we were not interested in the question of taking over. What we are interested in is to exercise a general management and control, so that that institute would come in line with all schools in this country.

I want to answer one of the points in the objectives, that is, number three: namely, to define, teach and popularize African socialism. I cannot agree that the institute can be relied upon to define African socialism and to accept upon it would imply that the teachers themselves have authority on to develop this subject.

Therefore, the work of the institute would be to study the African societies, how they functioned in the past and how they function at present, and with the published material they can study that and see what can be done. We are interested in management and control, so that the centre can be converted to be a centre of learning to be determined by the Ministry of Education in consultation with the party.

Mr. Speaker, I want to say in conclusion that in making this amendment I am saying that this does not concern only the Lumumba Institute, including it concerns all schools in Kenya, including Heremba schools. I must also say that when it comes to the schools and institutes which are teaching leaders of the party, the Government and the party should actually be scrutinizing what is going on in that institute so jealously that what they know the kind of leaders that are taught they to lead our people. We are not saying anything about the individuals who are there, that is not the point. The real point is that this being an institute where the objective is to train the leaders of the party, the Government and the party should be so concerned that they will the hon. Member is making an alleging saying that Ministers are implicated, and he knows who the Ministers are, he must say so. If he does not know he may say so and give them later.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Obongo): On a point of order, Sir, is it not so that the ruling of the Speaker in this House is generally final, and is it in order for the hon. Members to say that they want another Speaker instead of the one who is in the Chair?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, it is not. Either Mr. Tipis must say that he does not know the names now, and may give them later, or if he does know the names now, then he has to give them. We will now proceed with the debate.

Mr. oje Tipis: I did indicate earlier when you ruled that I give the names later.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You do not know the names?

Mr. oje Tipis: Not at the moment.

Now, Sir, if my information is correct, the reasons why some officers or Ministers from this Government were barred from visiting the institution, which is supposed to serve their own ruling party, is a question which we want to be told about.

Secondly, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is this Lumumba Institute a prohibited area, and if so, what type of prohibited area is this institute?

Now, Sir, in conclusion, we want to know whether the Lumumba Institute is a sort of extra-territorial area governed by international diplomacy procedures, and if not then the Government should take it over.

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to declare my interest in this Motion, right from the outset, so that I can proceed with seconding the Motion.

It is alleged, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that in a certain meeting in the Corner Bar Restaurant of this city of ours, under the chairmanship of Mr. Ngala, and I presume under the secretaryship of a Government official in the form of a Minister in this House, the following people attended. The document is with all the Members to read for themselves. Among the people named as having spoken at this meeting, I find my name. With your permission, Sir, I would like to mention what the paper says on my contribution to that meeting. I quote: "J. Nyagah addressed the Lumumba Institute and said that it was an incredible institution since there were two African teachers." This was according to the record of the secretary. These teachers will teach our African policies on communism. He said that there will be no progress if the Lumumba Institute continues to produce communism. We will be working behind the Members backed in the party. After a lengthy discussion it was unanimously agreed that the Motion be tabled before the Parliament, demanding the Government taking over of the Lumumba Institute and at the same time dissolving the Board of Management. The Motion was drawn up by Mr. Gachago, and will be tabled by Mr. Mbogoh, and the same Motion will be tabled by Senator Koinange in the Senate. I declare my interest in this Motion.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Deputy Speaker, since the hon. Member has said that his name is mentioned in that document, and he says that his name is J. J. M. Nyagah, then do we accept that it is the right Nyagah or another one?

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I apologize for coming back at a rather bad moment. You were raising a point of order on something I did not hear, would you explain it again.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): My point of order is that, before you came in, Mr. Speaker, there was a document which was read by the hon. Assistant Minister, Mr. Nyagah, in which he alleges that he attended a meeting. Now, in the course of his speech he said his name was J. J. Nyagah but the document quotes "J. Nyagah", and I was wondering whether the hon. Member was in order to accept whether it is the same person mentioned in that document, or whether we should believe that he is not that person so that the document does not touch him as he says he has got some interest in that area.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I cannot see that that is a point of order. If the hon. Member refers to a document and draws some conclusion from it, or allows other hon. Members to draw some conclusion from it, it is all a matter of the impression the document makes upon the House. I cannot see where a point of order comes in.

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Member for Embu South has already stated that he has declared an interest in

[Mr. Gichoya]

At the same time, he produces a document and he is not accepting or denying whether he is "J. Nyagah", so we want the House to be directed, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The most you are asking for is some sort of clarification from Mr. Nyagah, which is not a point of order.

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I say that about four minutes of my time has already been taken on this one point.

For the information of the hon. Members I do have a copy of the paper I am referring to. The name "J. Nyagah" is bracketed as Home Affairs. I do not think there is any other hon. Member who is in Home Affairs in this House.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, in this document it is that the so-called meeting made a declaration. The declaration pledges allegiance to Mzee Jomo Kenyatta; I do not think there is anything wrong with that. At the same time it declared its undivided determination to fight to the bitter end, international communism—I do not think that anyone in this House is against that Mr. Speaker or any other foreign ideology.

Mr. Anyieni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is using a document which I understand is not a signed document. He is using it in the course of his speech. Mr. Speaker, I want to know whether Members later on will be allowed to use the document as a basis for discussion?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, of course; if it is relevant.

Mr. Oduya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I remember at one time I saw you, after my hon. friend here, Mr. Masokha had seen you about his document, that we intended to move a Motion relating to exactly what is the document talks about, as being referred to by my friend, Mr. Nyagah. You said that this document, since it is very controversial may be taken up by the President. Now, has it been allowed that we can now use the document as a basis for discussion in this House today? If that is so, make it clear so that we will know what to do.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If this is that document which was shown to me on that occasion, I am still waiting to see whether it is relevant to this discussion; but since you have referred to the occasion upon which it was shown to me, I would remind the hon. Member that I recommended that it should not be ventilated in this House until the Members who were worried by it had discussed it with the President. I had not ruled it out of order at all. Now, any document that is properly produced in a debate is before the House, and all hon. Members can refer to it. Perhaps Mr. Nyagah has already explained how it is relevant in this debate; if not, perhaps he would now.

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I take this opportunity to give this lecture to the hon. Members of this House and all the students of the Lumumba Institute and its masters present.

Mr. Speaker, there is a document which is very appropriate, which outlines the academic programmes and policy of the Lumumba Institute. It is document number 665, of the meeting of the Lumumba Trust Board, which was held on the 22nd, January 1965, at the Lumumba Institute. The document itself lays the course, the scope, the programme, the duration of the course, the personnel and all the other things that are going to be used in the institute.

The first part of the scope is going to be an introductory course on the history of socialism with particular reference to Africa. I would have liked to see, Sir, the Board of Trustees define what socialism they had in mind.

Part two, Mr. Speaker, has got A, B, C, and D. I have no quarrel with "Development for Socialism", but I still have a very big question mark. What are these things known as the "Elements of Political Economy", "Elements of Philosophy", "Elements of State and Law"?

Mr. Speaker, part three talks about a planned course consisting of: (a) Biography on Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, applied course I do not know how this course is going to be applied on the old man; (b) History of political organization in Kenya, climaxing with the victorious Mau Mau under the leadership of Mzee Jomo.

An hon. Member: What is wrong with that?

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): That is absolutely correct but what is wrong with what is left undone is this, Mr. Speaker. If the hon. Members who were returned by Mau Mau which has a constitution which is very much respected, maybe quite a number do not know how the constitution was framed. May I say that those people who framed the constitution under which we were all elected have not been even given a chance, with all their knowledge, to give lectures in the Lumumba Institute. The document, Mr. Speaker, under which we won—

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Obongo); Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, in view of the fact that the hon. Member speaking was opposing this Government for a very long time, and we are now under the understanding that this opposition was dissolved, would the hon. Member state what this view opposes?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): If he is referring to the Members in the House, then I do not think he is under any obligation to state who the people are at the moment.

Mr. ole Tips: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said, and as the hon. gentleman who interjected knows very well that there has been some talk of revolution, and the main question which—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think I must make this quite clear that we must not enlarge the scope of this debate too much, otherwise we are going to find ourselves debating a wide range of subjects. We are debating the Lumumba Institute and we want to debate the institute only. We do not want to debate the so-called revolution or anything else. We are opening the door too wide. Just keep yourself to the defects of the Lumumba Institute.

Mr. ole Tips: Well, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the defects of this Lumumba Institute, as I say, is that the sort of training which is undertaken there is very questionable. Of course, the innocent people of this country are bound to ask themselves, why any institute should be allowed to teach subversion in any institution in this country, why this should go on—

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, there has been a very strong allegation made by the Mover that the institute teaches subversion. I wonder whether he could tell us what those subversive teachings are which are taught there?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think that is quite right. You have said the subversion is taught there and you must substantiate what it is that you consider that has been subversive.

Mr. ole Tips: Mr. Speaker, what I was going to say was this, and I hope the gentleman will listen very carefully. We must watch against the teaching of subversion.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): What you are saying is that they should make sure that they do not teach subversion.

Mr. ole Tips: Yes, that is what I said.

Now, Sir, if I may continue, I very strongly submit that if the party and the Government which are the same, are part and parcel in this country, must work hand in hand, then of course, I do not see what my friends here are grumbling for, because we are asking the same Government to run 'this institution which is training our party officials and other party workers, unless they have some other ulterior motives.'

Now, Sir, if the Lumumba Institute is to help the Government in consolidating the freedom, it must be put in the hands of the Government, and not only of the Government, but the heads of people who are deeply rooted in the traditions, ideas and practices of this country, not in the hands of self-seekers and importers of foreign ideologies.

Now, Sir, several developments, for the information of my friend, the Member for Mbege-Bassi, have proved to us that the gentlemen running the Lumumba Institute do not satisfy the minimum standards required. For your information, Sir, I will mention only a few. Now, Sir, a few days ago, all the students of the Lumumba Institute were in the verge of going on strike. We are told that some high-up Government officials secretly, but promptly intervened to save the situation. Now, we are told that students wanted to go on strike because they were promised uniforms—

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Sir, the Member says that some top officials from the Government secretly went to the Lumumba Institute and promised students uniforms—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I do not think I heard the Member say that. As far as I know I heard that students—Order, please. HANSARD will correct me, but as far as I know I just heard him say that students were thinking of going on strike. I did not hear him say that officials of the Government went there.

Mr. Kaggia: On a point of order, in view of the fact that the Mover has said that top Government officials came to intervene, could the Mover substantiate that the Government officials took part?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I do not think that is the type of allegation that needs to be substantiated.

Mr. ole Tips: If I may continue, Mr. Deputy Speaker, surely my friend here ought to know better since he is the chairman. He ought to know the situation that we want him to tell us to.

Now, Sir, up to now uniforms have not been issued, and of course, we know that the meet-

[Mr. ole Tips] was specifically allocated for the purchase of uniforms. We want to know where that money has disappeared. Now, what we want to know is where this money has disappeared to. Sir, again we are told that two Luo instructors at the Lumumba Institute resigned from the institute because of maltreatment. We are told that there is, in the Lumumba Institute, a very big dictator, a man who is not the principal of the institute, who has been invested with so much power that even he maltreats the principal himself. Now, it is very clear that this dictator is an agent of the vice which is beginning to believe in the way that I mentioned earlier. I say that this clique but foreigners behind it trying to undermine the legally constituted Government of this country.

Now, Sir, the other day the instructors of the institute almost went on strike again in protest against a letter, and we have a copy of this letter if they want it, written to them to the effect that their salaries would be reduced by half. They were also told that they would continue earning these reduced salaries for an indefinite probation period. Now, we want to know, Sir, as well as you do, whether it is not the practice of every good employer to tell his employees, however humble the employee may be, that he should serve for an indefinite probationary period. This is something new, and I do not know where it came from. It is clear, Sir, that these instructors were having (their salaries reduced because certain individuals who exercised remote control on the institute decided to divert some of the funds for other uses not connected with the institute.

It is clear, Sir, from this fact that the administration and management of the Lumumba Institute is falling to pieces, not because we do not have in this country people with proved ability who can run the institute, but because the appointments are made on the basis of political ideologies. Because of this, the institute is run by some fellow travellers and so on, and even youth wingers of some political personalities. We cannot tolerate this state of affairs. We were told that the other day a group of Government Ministers and High Government officials intended to visit the institute. My information is that the principal of the institute was quite willing to open the gates to allow the Ministers to visit it—

Mr. Odhaya: On a point of order, Sir, can the speaker tell the House who this dictator is, because we do not just want the Member to carry on mentioning him if we do not know who he is.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think when you are making a serious allegation as the kind you are making, that the Government officials are implicated, you must mention who you are referring to.

Mr. ole Tips: Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the dictator, if the hon. Members are interested in his name, is the man they know best, the registrar of the institute.

Mr. Aiyem: Mr. Speaker, I think some time ago in this House, the words such as "stooge" and "dictator" were declared to be extreme words and not to be used in this House. How is it that the hon. Member is allowed to use the words freely without substantiating that the gentleman is a stooge?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We do want to avoid using such words, but I do think the hon. Member did, in fact, say that word.

The hon. Members themselves asked who he meant.

Mr. ole Tips: Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I want to continue on this, because I can see my light is shining.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You must substantiate who these people are first of all.

Mr. Gatunga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think this debate is being interrupted unnecessarily, because he said he understood the services that were there.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think it has been explained before to the House that hon. Members cannot make allegations against any person by using the word "stooge". If the hon. Member does not mean it he must withdraw it.

Mr. ole Tips: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not think I have anything to withdraw. The persons concerned are well known and I am prepared to give you the names later.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, now.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is not correct that the Speaker should insist on them now. It is the established practice in this House that a Member asked to substantiate may say that he will do so later.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): If a person is giving evidence on which he is going to base his allegation, that is different. But, if receive in various parts of the world, but if they go when they are young, they will just come back and give us hell, and the situation will be even worse than it is now among the Elected Members of this House, some of whom look to the East and some look to the West and this will not help the country. Mr. Speaker, I say this because I am conscious of the future of this country and I have a long way to go and I am trying to formulate a plan whereby the country can be safeguarded and can be stopped being used as a battle-ground of the cold war.

The other issue, Mr. Speaker, which the hon. Member for Trans Nzoia spoke on, was the question of capital money and recurrent expenditure, and he even went to the extent of asking me to withdraw my Motion. Mr. Speaker, when I talk of capital, when I talk of negotiating I am talking in terms of capital, I am talking in terms of recurrent expenditure. These things have got to be taken into account and one hon. Member standing up and talking in terms of recurrent expenditure, is actually trying to discourage the very intention of this country to try and have its own universities. All right, if we say there is no capital, if we say there is no money to meet the recurrent expenditure, then are we going to remain in this position for ever just because we cannot get these things yet? We must try and look for ways and means, whereby we can get some universities built here, but if you are going to sit here and expect Britain, Moscow and Peking to help you for ever, you are dreaming. You never helped them when they were building their universities. I mean, Mr. Speaker, as the hon. Mzee said, he told us that we are not-going to be beggars, but if we are going to sit here and say that because there is no capital, because there is no money for the recurrent expenditure, we have to continue having assistance every day, then you are going to be beggars and are going to be subjected to other devices by foreign countries because you are beggars. You should try and plan for the future. The aim of this Motion, Mr. Speaker is to try and plan ways and means whereby we can stand on our own feet and also provide university education to other countries under a system of cultural exchanges.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member even went to the extent of saying that the environment overseas also helps. I agree that people who come to this country will learn to know more than they would from reading books, but we can read books about Karl Marx. It is not necessary for us to go to Moscow in order that we should know about Karl Marx, as the hon. Mr. Okello-Odongo says. It is not necessary, that in order to know about Gandhi, you must go to India. You can read about Gandhi here. It does not mean that if you go to India, even if you are an Indian you will necessarily learn more than about Gandhi. You can read it all here and know about Gandhi even better. There are people, Mr. Speaker, Sir, who are in this country, or who have been to this country, who have written books, and sometimes I am surprised because they know more than I think they do. So in order to learn something does not mean that you have to go to that country. That was very shallow reasoning, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

The other issue, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may come to the question by the hon. Agar who was talking in terms of atomic and medical facilities, is that I know that we do not have these things, but we want to have under-graduates and have them graduating here locally and then they go on for post-graduate education; that is what I mean, because we know that we do not have the equipment in this country. Then they should go to those countries who have the full equipment. So that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, cancels the reasoning of the hon. Member for Karachuonyo.

The other issue Mr. Speaker, Sir, is on the point made by the Assistant Minister for Education, when he said that it was totally impossible to build our own university. This, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is something very discouraging. No Government, worthy of the name of Government, should come and confess to the public and in this very House, that it is totally impossible to build these universities in this country. It is very discouraging. Also the people must be very disappointed when they read this in the Press that the Government has confessed openly that it is totally impossible to build universities in this country. I challenge the Assistant Minister that we are here to help him to try and build these universities because we are getting so many students who want to go to university and if he carries on talking of it being totally impossible, when he knows very well, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that very few people go for these overseas scholarships. It is very disheartening to the enthusiasm of the young men who are trying to get higher education and all they hear is the Government confessing that they cannot do anything. I was talking about Uganda, Tanzania and Kenya, but I suppose the Assistant Minister for Education did not take into account what I was talking about. I was talking about East Africa, and not Kenya as a talking about East Africa, and not Kenya as a country. All these three countries, Uganda, Kenya and Tanzania actually, if they so decided, could build universities here by negotiating with all the countries of the world to try and help us to build our own universities, in order that we may be able to stand on our own feet. But, if we have the Government throwing up their hands and saying that they can do nothing, then this is very discouraging indeed; and I am ashamed of my Government. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am ashamed of my Government.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister embarked on a list of expending, reading us thousands of pounds and so forth. This is to confirm his own ignorance and the short-sightedness of what the Government is trying to do for the people of this country of East Africa as a whole.

With these remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move. I am ashamed of my Government.

(Question of the Motion as amended put and negatived)

MOTION

GOVERNMENT TAKE-OVER OF LUMUMBA INSTITUTE

Mr. ole Tiplis: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

THAT this House, while being grateful to the donors of the Lumumba Institute, urges the Government to—

- (a) take over the Lumumba Institute immediately and place it in the hands of the Minister for Education like any other education institution;
- (b) dissolve the Board of Governors of the Lumumba Institute, and give the Minister for Education and mandate to appoint a new board consisting of persons who have no political commitments.

Now, Sir, I would like to make it very clear from the start that the sole intention of bringing this Motion before the House is to repair any damage which has been done as far as the management and the running of this institute since it was established before the damage has gone beyond repair. Of course, I believe that hon. Members will have time to ventilate their views because we want to build on a concrete foundation and not on any sandy ground.

Now, Sir, I would like to say that the Lumumba Institute was established to help the ruling party, that ruling party being Kanu, to train its officials in matters like techniques of party organization and also generally to help the party to cultivate a proper and constructive functional relationship between the party and the Government and the people of this country in general.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this means that the Institute should work very closely and in close contact with the Government. It is my humble submission, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that this has not been so, so far. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the cause of this, if I may say so, is that the Lumumba Institute has been very heavily infiltrated by, if I may call them so, a clique of professional infiltrators to the extent that these people run the institute entirely on their own with no check, no supervision, and God knows what is taught there.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

Of course, they have the sole responsibility of who should be admitted to the institute, and of course, they do almost everything practically in a way, whatever they wish, to fulfil their aims and objects which are well known to all of us here in this House.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, if I may continue. These people that I call professional infiltrators are the same people who are now trying to ask me to tell them who, in this House and outside this House, have been the main opposers of our Government. They ought to know themselves. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in spite of speaking of peace—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Are you opposing the Government or are you speaking on the Motion? You have to state your reasons for demanding the taking over of the institute and not on the opposition of the Government.

Mr. ole Tiplis: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think I was leading up to a point. They tell me to tell I am, and this is what I was telling them. If I may now continue. In spite of speaking of peace and co-operation, we have heard them speak in most cases of anger and some kind of foreign ideology. This clique, Sir, is doing its best to capture all the instruments of power in this country for reasons well known to all of us here.

Now, Sir, I do not think for one moment that it is right to entrust them with the whole responsibility of training party officials and the whole responsibility of mass political education.

It is for these reasons that we are now debating the Motion before us. Since they talk of the revolutionaries all the time, they talk against the Government all the time. We want to know the main question now. We want—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If you want to propose such an extensive amendment, I shall have to have it in writing, I am afraid, before I can take it. But if you would just like to propose that the word "instead" be left out, I think you would get your meaning and I would not need to have it in writing.

Mr. Wamutheny: That is what I mean. So I am seeking an amendment which will mean that the scholarships should be continued while the donations are being made. So, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking for this Motion to be amended for the continuation of the bursaries while the donations are being asked to be given continuously; both scholarships and donations for the building of universities in East Africa should continue on the same level.

Mr. Speaker, I know there are some difficulties in our own country when we send some children, who are immature, to other countries. Some of them when they go there at sixteen or seventeen years of age, do not know what they are doing and what their country needs. If we can get children to study here in Kenya, as well as in other countries, probably when their friends come back they can help them, while they are working together, to show them what are suitable ways of African life; but some of the children go overseas very young and when they come back here they do not know the African way of life.

So I beg to propose an amendment to leave out the word "instead".

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think to make it quite clear you want to put in the word "also".

Mr. Wamutheny: I hope that my amendment will be accepted by the Mover.

So I think even if we say that we want our children to go to other countries to study their ideologies and cultures, we also would like to see many people from other countries coming here to study our culture and ideologies.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Motion as amended.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Now there is only a minute to go before the Mover has to reply, but we have to deal with this amendment; if anyone seconds it. If anyone does second it, it will be only formally; I am afraid. The actual proposal by Mr. Wamutheny is that the word "also" be substituted for the word "instead" in the last line of the Motion. Will anyone second that formally?

Dr. De Souza seconded.

(Question of the first part of the amendment; that the word to be left out, put and agreed to)

(Question of the second part of the amendment; that the word to be inserted in place thereof be inserted, proposed)

(Question of the second part of the amendment; that the word to be inserted in place thereof be inserted, put and agreed to)

(Question of the Motion as amended proposed)

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must thank the hon. Members for whatever contributions, be they destructive or otherwise, they have so far made. But I think there is a very serious misunderstanding and this has been because most of the hon. Members who have spoken so far were not in this House when I was speaking and they rush in this morning looking at the Motion and going on blowing hot air without having any background knowledge of the intentions of the Motion at all. Nevertheless, Mr. Speaker, I do not regret that because I am only putting forward ideas that are in front of the noses of the hon. Members. They see only the near future and I am thinking of long-term policy as far as education is concerned. The Assistant Minister for Education has no policy for educational progress in the country, even for the Harambee schools. He has no policy at all. But his Ministry and all other Ministries in the Government can encourage the building of the Harambee schools, but when it comes to the question of trying to find teachers they jump up and say it is the responsibility of the people concerned.

Mr. Speaker, the Motion as it stands is very clear and simple. I was not trying to imply that we should not send any more students overseas, but what I was trying to do was think in terms of turning out as many students with university education as possible in this very country. I remember, Mr. Speaker, when I was attending the Second Commonwealth Relations Conference in Delhi recently, it was even raised by the Pakistan delegation and seconded by the British delegation at that conference that the question of overseas scholarships within the Commonwealth countries should be encouraged, but at the same time we must be careful with students from those under-developed countries who, after completing their studies in a developed country, stick to that country, because they do not want to go back to their home countries because they are paid more in the developed countries than the under-developed countries they come from. As a matter of fact, Mr. Speaker, they suggested that there should be an understanding between the developing countries and the developed countries to the extent that, when we send our students overseas, we must agree that, after their studies, they must immediately be asked to come back to help the developing countries, but so far there is no registration and, as a result, there are a lot of students overseas who have even got married there and they do not wish to come back and these Governments who have offered them the scholarships have no power to make them return.

Mr. Speaker, I was trying to get into the heads of these hon. Members here was that we have the scholarships there, but now let us talk and negotiate. I was not talking in terms of refusing an offer and telling the countries who are offering these scholarships to take back their own students because we do not want them. This was the insinuation made by the hon. Assistant Minister for Education, when he said that we turn down the offer and ask for the money instead. This is not the intention at all. We are talking in terms of negotiations. We can negotiate with every country in the world to see how much money they want to offer us. If they give us this money to build schools, we can also negotiate to get the equipment for those universities; we can negotiate to get the teachers, so that when we send our children to be taught they will have the teachers down here; and some of our children can visit other countries in many other parts of the world. As he knows, I have travelled quite a lot. I have spoken to a lot of people and they say that they are prepared to give us the teachers here to teach our children in their own environment and raise them with the life inside this very country. I reckon, Mr. Speaker, one of the Members for Karachuonyo, said that the Education Department should be careful in selecting the students who go overseas because if they select the young and the juveniles, they will go there and soon become brain-washed and come back useless. I was thinking of this when I moved this Motion. He is supporting my ideas. We would like to have our students go for post-graduate education, after having graduated here, locally, they can go abroad for post-graduate studies. If you send a student of sixteen years of age of eighteen years of age, this man or that particular young lady has not seen anything. I do not mean to say that the young man should not see any country besides their own country, but they should go at the right age. That age is after graduation here, they can go for their post-graduate education.

Mr. Speaker, I am very surprised to find that some of the hon. Members could not face facts and support the Motion, but, nevertheless, they will find that the hon. Shikuku was right just as they have found now, and some of them are feeling that it was right in sticking to my guns by saying that the one-party system will never work in Kenya and they are feeling it now. Mr. Speaker, this short-sightedness of some hon. Members is surprising. I always think ahead of them. They will come to this very thing later on.

One of the hon. speakers said that if it meant asking every country to build universities, we will have an American university over here, a Russian university in another part of Kenya and a British university somewhere else. This shows how limited the reasoning of this poor hon. Member is, and to make it worse, Mr. Speaker, he is one of the people who has been out of this country and in various universities. I do hon. Member is the hon. Mr. Okelo-Okongo. This does not mean that the British should come and build a university in the Western Region, or that the Chinese should build a university in Kiambu, Bando or in Machakos and so on and so forth. All that I mean is that we should negotiate with these countries and see how much they are prepared to give us, and then try to use this money to build our own universities and get the teachers and equipment from them because we are young. But if we are not going to have these ideas in our minds and we depend on sending our students overseas and, at the same time, the Assistant Minister says we should have cultural exchanges, having people come here to learn what we are doing, how will they come here when we have no universities? Does this not show that the Assistant Minister's imagination is limited? We must build our own universities to get the students from Moscow, Peking, Russia and any part of the world to come and learn here so that they can learn about us, the way we live and so forth, and then have our students going to their countries, but we cannot do so unless we have our own plans here to build more universities in East Africa in order to get these people to come here.

Now the question of indoctrination. Mr. Speaker, I did not mean that it should be one of the things that should stop us from sending our students overseas at all. I said that if these students were mature, after graduating locally, they will then know what they are supposed to do. They can do there even if they are indoctrinated, and they will not be subjected or completely bogged down by the indoctrination they

[The Assistant Minister for Education] the opinion of this House that this Motion should be totally rejected.

Mr. Speaker, if I may proceed, I would like to inform the hon. Member, the Mover of this Motion, that when he was moving his Motion he did indicate that it was very important that the Kenya Government should embark on a scheme of negotiating with the foreign governments which have offered the Kenya Government scholarships, with a view to diverting those scholarships to establishing a university in East Africa.

An hon. Member: Universities.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): All right, universities.

Now, Mr. Speaker, this is totally impossible, because I cannot imagine how the hon. Member will think when we are offered generous scholarships by foreign and friendly governments and we go to these governments and tell them, "Now gentlemen, we think you must not use these scholarships in this way. We feel that instead of giving us scholarships, you should instead give us some money to build universities." Now, this, Mr. Speaker, is very wrong, because an generous offer is a generous offer, and it all depends on the person who is offering or giving that gift, and you cannot dictate, and tell him that he is going to give us something we want it used on these lines. I think this would result in us losing the offers and the scholarships as a whole.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I think the hon. Member was not aware of how much it would cost to establish a university. That is the first point. The second one is that the reasons why the students go overseas are not mainly for academic education, and there are other factors which are connected with the reasons why the students go overseas. One of them, Mr. Speaker, is that there are some human curiosities and I am sure the hon. Member has himself testified them, because here in this House and also in the Parliamentary Group, I have heard several hon. Members alleging or claiming that they have never been given opportunities to go overseas. Now, why should they want to go, Sir? These are grown up hon. Members and they have seen a lot of the world, and if they, as hon. Members, could even feel that they still need sometime to go overseas, and see for themselves the work of the Russians, see Russian communism, or see the American capitalists, or Britain and see the British way of life, how it would be to young pupils who have just finished their School Certificate, or have just completed their K.P.E.? Their curiosity is much higher than that of the hon. Members, and I think this is one of the points why the scholarships are offered.

There is also, Sir, another point, and that is that scholarships are also offered so that we could, as a Government, establish a good relationship between that very Government and our own Government, and this, Mr. Speaker, is a practice which not only the Kenya Government has, but several other governments have because the independence of any country, so that there is what we call the cultural exchanges where a government offers some scholarships purely for the purpose of letting those people from that particular country visit another foreign country and see the life, see the people, learn their day-to-day life, and know more about the particular country. This, Mr. Speaker, is a practice which we, as a Government, cannot afford to lose.

The other point, Mr. Speaker, is the question of the difficulties which this country cannot afford to have. Why we have such scholarships is because in Kenya or in East Africa, although we have one university, as one hon. Member just said, there are certain difficulties which this country will remain unable to deal with for a long time to come, and I think, Mr. Speaker, this is the point which perhaps the hon. Member was not aware of, and the Government is not prepared to accept his views that these scholarships should be diverted into building a university, or universities, in East Africa.

Now, Mr. Speaker, for the information of the hon. Member and the House, I want to tell the House how much, our own University of East Africa, costs the Kenya Government to run for about a period of three years.

For example, Mr. Speaker, the University College of Nairobi Development Plan for the years 1963 up to 1967 amounts to this. The capital expenditure, say, of putting up halls of residence for about 400 students is £140,000, and housing for senior members of staff, not more than forty tutors, will cost £40,000; housing for junior staff costs £60,000. One faculty alone of engineering costs the Government £275,000.

Mr. Speaker, if I enumerate all the expenditure which this Government incurs, from only this branch of the University of Nairobi, it will amount to £968,000. This must be compared with the money the students receive when they go overseas on these offers, which in one year is only £240,000. This, Mr. Speaker, shows very clearly that it is impossible to establish a university; building, let alone undertake the

[The Assistant Minister for Education] recurrent expenditure. But it is equally impossible to maintain it and staff the university and also put in all the equipment which is needed for a university.

Therefore, I think the hon. Member who moved this Motion was not quite aware of the difficulties, the impossibilities of establishing a university for a young Government like Kenya alone. Even if we take the three East African territories combined together and decided to build a second university, this would take something like ten years, it is not so easy to establish a university. So, Mr. Speaker, I think, as I said earlier, the question of diverting the scholarships which we are so generously offered by foreign governments to a university, will never be accepted by the Government.

Since most of the points that I could have made here have been made by other hon. Members, I do not want to take much time of the House, but I would state that the system of accepting scholarships from overseas, from foreign, friendly governments will continue, and we hope that when circumstances will be in a position to offer similar scholarships. Our Government, too, will act accordingly, so that those other governments who have in the past offered the Kenya Government these scholarships will have the opportunity of coming to Kenya and also learning something about the Kenya people, to see our life, our beautiful country and visit our national parks, because I am sure, as one of the people who have travelled quite widely in Europe, that many children of the present generation have not seen animals who live naturally in the forest, but they only see them in the zoos, so I am sure most of the young generation of European countries and Asian countries would be interested to come to Kenya and visit our national parks to see our lions, giraffes, crocodiles, and other animals.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, the Government feels it is quite unable to accept this Motion on the grounds I have stated and so, not wanting to take much of the time of the House, I beg to oppose the Motion.

Mr. Wamuthenya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to speak on this Motion, but I see that there is some misunderstanding between the Mover and the hon. Members. The Mover stated that he would like donations to be given for the building of universities, but he did not say that he would like scholarships to be stopped. What he meant was that we cannot always afford to send our children abroad, but we should start our own universities here, whether they will be on a minor scale or will advance rapidly. But he said that whilst the children are going abroad for further studies, we should also ask those people who have been very generous to us, to give us some assistance to start our own universities here.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Wamuthenya, we must keep to the terms of the Motion, and the Motion does say "to devote their funds instead to the building of universities".

Mr. Wamuthenya: Probably I was misled by my reading, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not want to interrupt you, but the debate has to be restricted to what the Motion says, unless you would like to propose an amendment.

Mr. Wamuthenya: Of course, he does not say that the children should be stopped from going abroad. He says that they have been generous in giving us scholarships and he seems, in my opinion, to say that the children should go for further studies to other countries, but at the same time we should be given donations to build our own universities.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The word "instead" does not mean "at the same time". If you would like to propose an amendment that the word "instead" be deleted, you can do that.

Mr. Wamuthenya: If my speech is not following the Motion, I think it should be amended to such, because there is a misunderstanding here. I am not disregarding your ruling, but he does not also say that the children should be stopped from going.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If you like to move that the word "instead" be left out, you can do that. I will not require it from you in writing.

Mr. Wamuthenya: I beg the Mover to say that the children should continue to go overseas and, at the same time, we should be given donations to build our own universities.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can move it yourself, you can move an amendment that the word "instead" be left out of the question.

Mr. Wamuthenya: Instead we should say, "That this House urges the Government to negotiate with those countries which have so generously assisted in educational programmes by making available scholarships and have provided youths at their universities and have provided transport for the purpose, to devote their funds instead to the building of universities in East Africa and also in the meantime to allow our children to continue to go to their universities."

[The Assistant Minister for Finance] within the political arena, because, after all, that is what the student went there for. You do not go there to read the Bible, that can be read anywhere here. This is not confined to students in that area only. Personally, when I spent some time in India as a Government of India scholar, we spent a lot of time and there are a lot of my colleagues here, studying about Gandhism. We did not call this indoctrination. There would be no point at all in going to India and returning to this country not knowing what Gandhism is and why he was so honoured by these people.

So, Mr. Speaker this is a point that we have to realize and accept, that this is one of the most important values of studying abroad and why students continue to study abroad. Another important thing to remember too, is that those who go abroad must be mature enough to be able to learn things and to be able to see things with the required amount of detachment and objectivity so that they can learn and compare it with their own country. To this extent, there is a time when one is always interested in religion. As a Christian I did not find it wrong, to read for instance, the Koran and I also read about Hinduism, the principles of Hinduism. I also have tried to read about Annimism, the religion that was practised in Africa before its contact with Europe and Asia and the religion that is still followed by some of our mothers and fathers even today. We have to read all this in order to know what we are doing so that we can have the correct perspective and this is a point that those people, who select students to go abroad should always see. These students who have come back have demonstrated that they are either incapable of learning with an adequate amount of detachment, so that they make use of the knowledge that they have gained abroad. They were probably able to do that they failed and some people wanted to feed them propaganda. If these people have not been mature enough to fulfil these purposes, then they ought not to have gone abroad in the first place.

My personal view is that people should be in a country for not less than two years with the hope that they will be more mature after that and be able to benefit from the foreign education, and those who are incapable should not be allowed to go anywhere. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that this is an important point and therefore I would like to conclude by saying that this question of our saying that the students should only learn in their own country and not go abroad would be a very narrow policy, and they would not benefit from this at all. We have to understand the world and see how they live. We have to learn and I would say that any Member here who has not read Dust of Earth and does not know anything about scientific socialism should not be here. After all, what is freedom in education? Education means that we should be able to learn and read about all other things, detachment in objectivity so that you can make up your own mind and decide what would be good for your country.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I try to oppose the Motion.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to speak on this Motion with a clear mind of opposing it. The very nature of university education is to learn and to study anywhere in the universe, not to be confined in one place and being indoctrinated in a given direction with blinkers on your eyes. I cannot see how the hon. Member for Butere would like to achieve this. In the first place, running a university is not only a question of capital money to pay the bill, but a question of recurrent expenditure. Recurrent expenditure is a very important aspect in education. Therefore, even if the Americans or the Russians or the Chinese or the Ethiopians, or the Indians, who give bursaries to Kenya would say, "all right we give you some money to build a university", but there are no countries in the world which act as a charitable institution to another country. They would not come to Kenya, Sir, to maintain their universities, but we can never deny Kenya citizens from acquiring knowledge wherever it can be offered. If we could get two students to Poland for education in technology, we cannot tell the Polish people to come and build a school here for its own technical students.

The other point, Sir, there is a saying by the English people, "Never look a gift horse in the mouth." Now, if some countries give us bursaries for our students to go where we do never criticize this country and say that we do not want our students to go to your country, we want to get the money to build an institution in our own country. It is impossible.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another point which I would urge the hon. Member for Butere in withdrawing his Motion to take note of is, Education does not necessarily mean classroom work. One can read a lot of books but one can get better education by environment, the conditions where he finds himself, the experience itself be gained by being abroad is by far much more valuable than a university degree in his own homeland. The hon. Member for Butere has been outside this country. He went in order to see the world to gain further experience other than local [Mr. Muliro] experience. So, Sir, I find that the experience which one gains by contacts, by intercourse, with other parts of the world, this in itself is better education than even the local products which are confined here. These, Sir, are the views to which I hold very strongly and anyone who says that the people going outside are going to be indoctrinated in certain attitudes, are being very narrow-minded.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was educated in Fort Hare University in South Africa. They taught the philosophy of apartheid there. I never became a part of this. I do not discriminate, simply because I was in South Africa, but if I believed in the philosophy of the South African, then I would never have taken the immediate step, on arrival to join Kenya politics in order to fight for the liberation of my own country. The philosophy there is the humiliation of a black man, but it never humiliated me. I say that human beings are human beings, and if someone goes to Russia or America and learns about their theories, he has to come back to Kenya here and see how he can adjust the knowledge which he has acquired to the best possible interest of our country.

Therefore, Sir, with these few remarks I categorically oppose this Motion.

Mr. Agari: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also vigorously oppose this Motion moved by the Member for Butere. As Members have exhausted the need for our students to go overseas, I only need to add that it is the establishment themselves in these universities, especially the technical universities, medical colleges, we may not be able to establish any kind of institution which will give all the facilities for a student to learn from. You will not be able easily to erect an atomic laboratory here. So, Sir, it is still necessary, and it will remain necessary for a long time for African students, from Kenya, to go overseas and learn in the old established universities.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, even by getting foreign money and establishing universities here, we shall still need their teachers and technicians and nobody can say that it is less expensive to keep them here than to send the students over there. So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we cannot interfere with the others that are being given to us. We cannot ask these people to change their mind. Today, the world is becoming closer and closer together and there is more need even to contact the people of the outside world. Mr. Speaker, Sir, a lot of harm was done in the minds of Africans during the colonial rule, in that many Africans have grown up in the environment which makes them believe that there is certain superiority in European or some other known foreign races, who were formerly the rulers here. It is good for African students to go and mix and learn together with European students and whenever possible beat them and lead them in class, so that a person can come back with full confidence, and become better liberated so that he can fit in well with the new Kenya.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would also like to emphasize the fact that there are a number of things in other countries, certain cultural values, certain customs and certain special environments, which a person only gains on the spot. We know there are rich cultures, full cultures in Asia, and there are a number of valuable cultural aspects of life in Europe, America and in as far as we want to enrich the minds of our people and the minds of our students, it is good that we shall continue to send our students to seek for further scholarships so that we get people who have opened their minds from various cultures from various parts of the world. The question of indoctrination does not come into this.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as the hon. Mr. Okello-Odongo expressed this, the only thing needed is that Education Department should be careful in selecting students to go overseas. I do not see the need for sending students for high school education. I do not see the need for sending juveniles, or young boys overseas for high school. We wish to see that the African boys or girls here get a good foundation of the background of African education and life, and personality, so that when they go out there properly rooted as an African. Then, from there he can learn and he can borrow from someone with a mature mind. It is harmful to send younger boys who go and become Europeanized, or Indianized, and then when they come back it is difficult for them to stay here. So, this is the only warning that we give to the Ministry of Education, that whenever they are selecting these students they should consider this very seriously.

So, Mr. Speaker, I oppose the Motion.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Muliro): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise on behalf of the Government to reject this Motion; because if there was a Motion which was brought to this House under which the House had decided to reject totally, I should imagine this is the Motion, the views about this Motion have, very ably, very clearly stated their points of view, and it is [Mr. Bonetti] one sixty-foot pontoon which has been undergoing repairs and which is already cutting down the traffic delays.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is there anyone here yet from the Ministry of Health or the Ministry of Commerce?

Mr. Nülle you can ask your question.

Question No. 2031

CAUSES OF TROPICAL ULCERS

Mr. Nülle asked the Minister for Health and Housing if he would tell the House the causes of tropical ulcers which were prevalent in the Machakos District and would he further tell the House what steps his Ministry was taking to stamp this out.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odero-Jowi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister for Health and Housing, I beg to reply. Tropical ulcers are caused by dietetic deficiencies and my Ministry, in conjunction with the Ministries of Education and Agriculture, are teaching the people, and in particular school children, to eat a well-balanced diet. Educated members of the public should help the Ministry in this campaign.

Mr. Mallada: Mr. Speaker, arising out of that answer, what ingredients in the diets of our people is lacking, which causes these ulcers?

Mr. Odero-Jowi: Mr. Speaker, I think it is mainly protein and vitamin ingredients.

Mr. Chage: Mr. Speaker, I would like to know from the Assistant Minister what the Ministry is doing, apart from teaching people, to give people assistance in order to get rid of disease?

Mr. Odero-Jowi: Mr. Speaker, the problem of eating a balanced diet is partly a problem of education. When people are well-educated they know what balanced diet is, they will naturally take to it, and so I have pointed out that the Ministry of Education is joining us in this campaign of education.

Furthermore, in conjunction with UNICEF, this Government is training dietetic experts to help schools and women's groups to improve their food.

Mr. Mallro: Mr. Speaker, would the Assistant Minister not agree with me that people with lower incomes could not afford a balanced diet? Therefore, it is a problem of income rather than education?

Mr. Odero-Jowi: Mr. Speaker, I think it is primarily a problem of education, but I also agree that where there are low incomes what might be the balanced diet that they can afford will not be the best available.

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, arising from that reply, and in view of the fact that these days science has discovered forms of balanced diets in the form of tablets, will the Ministry consider seeking assistance from an organization such as UNICEF to supply Ukambani with sufficient vitamin tablets to assist people from getting these ulcers?

Mr. Odero-Jowi: Mr. Speaker, there is enough vitamin and protein element in the food grown in this country.

Question No. 2032

TOMATO CANNING FACTORY FOR MACHAKOS

Mr. Nülle asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if in view of large quantities of tomatoes in Machakos District the Minister was prepared to establish a tomato canning factory at Machakos Township?

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister for Commerce and Industry, I beg to reply. There is already one canning factory in Machakos and in spite of what the hon. Member says, the factory is not operating at full capacity because of the inadequacy of the right kind of tomatoes in the area. Last year, Mr. Speaker, for example, the factory obtained only about 150 cases, or about four tons, of tomatoes suitable for canning. This therefore, Mr. Speaker, means that the present quantities are not even enough to keep the already existing factory running at full capacity and, in these circumstances, there is no need for the establishment of another one.

Mr. Mallro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, that there is an inadequate amount of tomatoes in Machakos to warrant a second factory, would the Minister consider discussing the problem of intensified tomato production with the Minister for Agriculture so that there are enough to engage this factory's production?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, although the Minister for Commerce and Industry as well as everybody else should be interested in encouraging people to plant tomatoes, I think this is entirely the duty of the hon. Member, as a Constituency Elected Member, to tell an adequate number of people to plant tomatoes.

Question No. 2000

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is anyone authorized by Mr. Rurumbira to ask his question? We will go on to the next Order then.

MOTION

FUNDS FOR BUILDING UNIVERSITIES IN EAST AFRICA

THAT this House urges the Government to negotiate with those countries which have so generously assisted in educational programmes by making available scholarships for Kenya Youths at their universities and have provided transport for the purpose, to devote their funds instead to the building of universities in East Africa.

(Mr. Shikuku, on 23rd April 1965)

(Resumption of Debate Interrupted on 23rd April 1965)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): On this Motion, I think I am right in saying that we have already had thirty-three minutes, which means there are fifty-seven minutes still to go.

Mr. Njijjo, was speaking but he is not here.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odongo): Thank you, Mr. Speaker, Sir. I would like to take a few minutes to speak a little on this Motion here, which was brought by the hon. Member, Mr. Shikuku.

Although the hon. Member is quite clear in what he wants, namely that the countries that are assisting us by offering scholarships should be asked to aid by building universities in East Africa, one thing however he did not make clear was what type of aid this was going to be. Whether the hon. Member meant that these foreign countries that are assisting us now should build the universities here and run them or whether he meant that these countries should give us the finance and we then would use this finance for building universities. This point was not made very clear by the Mover of the Motion; but in any case it seems that I am opposing it because the two ways that are suggested will not be practical. In the first place, if these universities were to be built here by foreign countries that would mean that they would run them also in this country, so that there would be a situation where a set of universities are being run by America in one part of the country, another set by the Soviet Union in another part, and another set by Western Germany in another part. This would be quite impossible. You could not have a country being run like this and this type of suggestion could not be possible here. Now, on the other hand if you ask the foreign countries to come and just give us the money so that we build the universities here, this again becomes impossible because we are only on the receiving end and we must know the reasons why scholarships for studies abroad are offered.

We have to realize that many countries offer scholarships not only for academic studies but so that the students that come from foreign countries can go to those countries and learn about those countries and the culture of those countries. As a matter of fact, you will find that the Government of India, when it first gave scholarships to East African countries—and these were the first scholarships that we ever got here as far as I can remember—called these scholarships "cultural scholarships" which really describes what they are: that students from this country should go to study in other countries in order not only to learn the academic subjects they want to learn, but also to learn about the people, their culture, their systems and so on. This kind of thing we could also do later on when we are sufficiently united, and when we have the facilities our Government will, and as a matter of fact has started. In future, our Government will give more scholarships to foreign students to come to Kenya to learn not only academic subjects, but, most of all, to learn about African socialism. This is what we are looking forward to. This being the case, this kind of thing has been approved and people take advantage of it because when an individual learns about another culture he becomes broad-minded. Also it is hoped, and even in the international world this is encouraged, that when we can learn about the Indians or about the Chinese or about the Americans or Russians, etcetera, we will be able to understand their culture and we will be able to make friends there and this will promote international peace and international co-operation, which is one of the aims of all the peoples today is to get an understanding between different people by knowing them and understanding them.

Mr. Speaker, in this connection, it would be quite relevant to mention, for instance, what happened to the students who returned to this country from the Soviet Union. These students complained that they were being indoctrinated with Marxism, but I cannot see how a student can go to the Soviet Union and come back here without learning about Karl Marx or without studying the socialist patterns of the economy or even how it functions within the society or Germany in another part. This would be quite

Question No. 2035

AMOUNT OF MONEY LOANED TO KENYA

Mr. Ngala asked the Minister for Finance— if the Minister would give the amount of money Kenya had borrowed from the United Kingdom, West Germany and United States of America respectively since 1st July 1963 to 31st March 1965, and what amount during the same period had been borrowed by Kenya from China, Russia and East Germany respectively?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Odongo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The British Government has loaned £14,834,000, West Germany £1,903,909 and the United States nil, China nil, Russia nil, East Germany nil.

Mr. Ngala: Arising from that reply, Sir, why has the Minister not made any contact or failed to get any assistance from Russia or China? Is it because the Ministry is one-sided, or is it because we are not getting any response?

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: As this House knows, China already gave us a grant of £1,000,000 at one time, and we have negotiations going on at the moment with the Soviet Union in terms of loans and aid in various aspects. Negotiations have been concluded which it is hoped will secure loans from Russia for certain projects. In addition, the Russian Government will be providing hospitals and equipment for a technical school as a gift.

Mr. Ngala: Arising from that reply, Sir, does the Assistant Minister not agree with me that some three or four months ago we were told by the same Ministry that negotiations had been finalized over hospitals, an irrigation scheme for Kano and a canning industry. Why have these not been put among the things that have arrived from Russia?

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, when I said that negotiations were taking place for Russian loans and aid with regard to certain projects, the Kano Irrigation Scheme is certainly included and these other industries that we are looking forward to, but as I said, the negotiations are more or less complete but experts are doing the feasibility studies and, as soon as these are completed, it is hoped that the Kano project will be started immediately. As far as the other things are concerned, as the gift is concerned, it is just a question of completing the last details.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We are not really concerned with gifts or other forms of assistance. This question relates to loans.

Mr. Ochwanda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, some time late last year or early this year, it appeared in the Press that the American Government had accepted to lend the Nairobi City Council some money for the development of Saana Dam and I understand from the Assistant Minister's reply that America has given us none. Do we understand that it was not a loan, or was it a grant that the American Government had given the Nairobi City Council?

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it was a grant.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as the United States is such a rich country, would the Assistant Minister tell us why the Kenya Government has not so far secured any financial help from the United States and is only seeking help from the United Kingdom?

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, when the Kenya Government is negotiating for loans, we have to consider the terms, the strings attached and terms of repayment. Most of the countries insist that when you take a loan from them that you have to buy from them and this is sometimes difficult, especially when there are no local arrangements for disposing of such equipment.

Mr. Mallinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from an earlier reply by the Assistant Minister when he said that Kenya has obtained £1,000,000 grant from China, is the Assistant Minister prepared to tell this House how much in the form of grant we have received from United States and East Germany?

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is another question which I would be happy to answer later.

Mr. Somoo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as the Assistant Minister has already told us that we are expecting some aid from the United Soviet Socialist Republic, could he tell this House whether it includes the rejected Soviet arms and old cars which have been rejected—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No.

Question No. 2048

AFRICANIZATION: PERMANENT SECRETARY, MINISTRY OF FINANCE

Mr. Olok asked the Minister for Finance if he would tell the House why the post of Permanent Secretary in his Ministry had not yet been Africanized?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Odongo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The post of Deputy Permanent Secretary has been Africanized. The post of Permanent Secretary has not yet been Africanized, as the Government believe it necessary to postpone Africanization until a suitable local officer had had time to acquire the necessary experience of an appointment which requires a wide knowledge of technical subjects.

Mr. Mallinda: Could the Assistant Minister assure this House that that post of Permanent Secretary in the Ministry of Finance will not be Africanized simply for the sake of Africanization, but will only be Africanized when a suitable local person has been found?

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: That is what I have already said, Sir.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it true that the Permanent Secretary to the Ministry of Finance has not been Africanized, because the British Government could not trust anybody with that job as long as they are giving Kenya so much money?

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, this country is being run by the Kenya Government not the British.

Mr. Mallin: Mr. Speaker, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, would he not agree with me that this post has not been Africanized because some of the senior-most Africans who are versed in finance have been transferred to different Ministries and have not been kept in that Ministry to know the technical know-how?

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: No, Sir.

Mr. Ndiye: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask Question No. 2031.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no one here from the Ministry of Health and Housing to answer it.

Mr. Ndiye: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask Question No. 2032.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no one here from the Ministry of Commerce and Industry to answer that one.

Question No. 2041

DELAYS ON THE KILIFI FERRY

Mr. Ngala asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power if he would state whether he was aware of the considerable delay and inconvenience caused to the users of the Kilifi Ferry due to the fact that the ferry engines were old and often broke down.

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bonetti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am aware that recently there have been some delays at the Kilifi Ferry but immediate steps have been taken to improve the service and in the next financial year, providing the estimates for my Ministry are approved, the Government proposes to construct two new sixty-foot pontoons, install two new motors and overhaul the existing motors. This should improve the ferry service immeasurably.

Mr. Ngala: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, could the Assistant Minister explain what immediate improvement has taken place apart from waiting for the financial provisions because this delay is going on right now?

Mr. Bonetti: Mr. Speaker, the immediate steps taken have been to bring back into service the sixty-foot pontoon which has been undergoing repairs, and to improve the supervision at the ferry. This has made a big improvement to the service.

Mr. Ngala: Arising from that reply, is the Assistant Minister aware that the problem is not the pontoon, but the engines. They are second-hand and completely useless. What has he done to remove them so that we can get quick passage across the ferry at Kilifi?

Mr. Bonetti: Mr. Speaker, I said that we are quite aware of this, and I said that we are taking steps to provide money in the 1965/66 Estimates, and for this we ought to provide two new pontoons at a cost of £8,000, two new motors at the cost of £2,700 and overhauling of existing motors at £600, making a total cost of £11,300 spent on Kilifi Ferry to help the hon. Member.

Mr. Somoo: Mr. Speaker, is the Assistant Minister aware that formerly there were two ferries, and at present there is only one ferry, and once one car gets on the ferry another car does not have the chance to get on?

Mr. Bonetti: I have answered that, Mr. Speaker. I told the House what immediate steps we have taken to improve this service, which is not like other ferries in the Coast. There is

[The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am glad that a lot of Members have raised a lot of valuable points regarding this Bill, and I am glad that a lot of the speakers who have spoken on this Bill have spoken very constructively.

Mr. Speaker, the problem of labour legislation in Africa is one that is receiving a lot of attention all over this continent, because with the achievement of independence in many African countries, there is a sense of expectation on the part of workers. A lot of workers have tended to think that with independence they are going to enjoy better terms of service, higher wages and so on. Now, in some of the African countries, this expectation has led to a lot of unrest, and the governments of these countries have not sat down to handle the situation in a very constructive way. For example, in a few African countries legislations have been passed to have no strikes altogether. In others, there have tended to be measures which tend to identify Government with the wishes of employers.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in Kenya, as in many of the African countries, we are facing the challenge of economic development. This challenge calls for stability. It calls for constant efforts without any unrest, like strikes, which tend to defeat the efforts of the Government and the people of these countries, to develop the economy.

Now, in those places where less wise councils have prevailed, Governments have tended to think that stronger measures would produce the stability needed in order to attract capital and in order to compensate economic development. But, here Sir, as some Members have said, we think that it is not easy to achieve that stability by suppressing the workers. Consequently, this Bill, very much contrary to what some Members have said here, does not prohibit strikes, and I am going to prove this.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Bill, to begin with, presents an effort to consolidate the law relating to the settlement of trade disputes. Now, I would like to try to explain in name and words what a trade dispute is. Trade disputes are those little conflicts which arise out of employment. They are disagreements between workers and employers. The employers, as employers, think of one thing. They want their business to be successful and they want to make profits. Therefore, all their effort is geared to profit-making. Now, workers as workers, want to make a living out of employment. They want higher wages, they want fewer hours of work, they want clean and acceptable conditions of work, and therefore, you can see that every time you have an employer and a worker, there is potential conflict. Now, these conflicts are as many as there are types of work to be done. Therefore, we have a law that regulates the settlement of the disputes which arise from these conflicts between employers and workers. This is primarily what this Bill is supposed to do.

Secondly, this Bill incorporates, brings together, the old Trade Disputes Bill, together with the Essential Services law. Now, we thought that it would be advantageous to put the two together, because, as a matter of fact, one leads to the other.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in this Bill we begin with, we have not changed very much some of the provisions we had in the Act we passed last year. As a matter of fact, Mr. Speaker, sections 1 to 17 of this Bill merely repeat the mere copies of an Act which was passed in this House last year. What is new in this Bill begins from section 19, but let me go back step by step, Mr. Speaker, because I would like to answer some of the queries raised by some of the Members who spoke earlier.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in this Bill we have also tried to do something new. In 1962, as was pointed out by the hon. Member for Teso, an Industrial Relations Charter was signed between the Government, the Federation of Kenya Employers, and the Kenya Federation of Labour. This Industrial Relations Charter contains agreed procedures and formulae and things which should regulate the industrial relations in this country.

Mr. Speaker, since October 1962, everybody in industry, both on the workers' side and on the employers' side, have agreed that the procedures and agreed responsibilities contained in the charter are good, and they should be observed. In some cases, some of these procedures have been observed, but in many cases, Mr. Speaker, they have been violated, both by employers and trade union leaders. They have been violating the charter while paying a lot of good service to it.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one of the things we have tried to do with this Bill is to bring in, to give legal effect, to some of these agreed procedures contained in the Industrial Relations Charter, and that is what we have in sections 18, 19 and 20 of the Bill. Therefore, I would like to try right from the start that anybody opposing section 18, which deals with adherence to agreements, or section 19 or 20 of the Bill, does not know what he is talking about. Either he does not know what he is talking about or he does not know that such a thing as the Industrial Relations Charter exists, that this charter has been accepted by both the employers' organizations and workers of the Government since October 1962.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is half past Six, so will you continue speaking when the debate is resumed.

ADJOURNMENT.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time for the interruption of business. The House is adjourned until tomorrow, Friday, 30th April, at 9 a.m.

The House rose at thirty minutes past Six o'clock.

WRITTEN REPLY TO QUESTION

Question No. 1098

EXPANSION OF HEALTH CENTRES IN SAMBURU

Mr. Rumbhan asked the Minister for Health and Housing if he had any plans for the expansion of health centres in Samburu District.

REPLY

The Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Otieno): Samburu District has always been considered along with other districts in our health centre expansion plan.

The construction and maintenance of health centres is the responsibility of local authorities. The Government makes a contribution towards the capital costs as and when funds are available.

It is up to the Samburu County Council to agree first whether they are in a position to approve the siting and construction of any new health centres in their district, and if so to apply to Government for assistance where necessary. But it must be understood that the financing and running of any health centre in their district will be their responsibility.

[Mr. Ochwada]

I am sure that the trade unions agree with it. They have already been dealing with this and I would like to see that when a dispute has been reported there will not be unnecessary worries caused for the trade unions concerned or the employers concerned. I would also like to see that any decision made at any stage is fully backed by law. I am glad too, that the Industrial Court has full backing, full legal backing, under this Bill, and I hope that, that will continue and more powers will be given to the Industrial Court to deal with any matters that might arise, not only within the definition of a trade dispute, but also any labour disputes.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would have liked to see also in the Bill non-adherence to either the agreed procedure or the agreed agreements or the agreement declared an offence under the Act, but this has been left loosely, that it will be determined at various stages. I hope that when the Minister comes to reply he will be able to satisfy me that these two clauses, particularly clauses 19 and 20, if left as they are. They will meet whatever may occur in future.

Regarding penalties, which are stipulated here, I think most of them have been very lenient. In most cases, you find, Mr. Speaker, that most of the strikes that have been taking place in this country have either been initiated by someone who is not even a member of a trade union, or someone who is not even a leader of that union, and I would have liked to see something much more severe than the penalties that have been proposed in the Bill.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, regarding the list of essential services, of course we would like to safeguard the interests of the people in this country, but the list is a little too long, and I would have liked it a bit shorter than that, with, of course, the penalties increased in cases where an illegal strike was held against either the orders by the Minister or the Industrial Court's direction. However, since the Bill, as a whole, goes to the extent of restricting strikes, I do not think that I would have much quarrel with the list of essential services, as it stands at the present moment. I heard, Mr. Speaker, one hon. Member complaining that the Minister has the right to add on the list of essential services, but I think clause 34 makes it quite clear that he will not do that until the matter has been referred to Parliament.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also have liked to see in this Bill stipulated some offences, whereby certain activities by an employer or a provocation by an employer which lead to a strike or a trade dispute could be an offence under the proposed Act. This would help not only the unions and the Government, but all parties concerned in trying to eliminate many disputes which might have occurred.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said, I did not have much to say on this Bill, only to support it and hope that it will help to cut down the labour disputes that have occurred in this country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Agari: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I support this Bill because, in Kenya at the present time, and under the circumstances, economic activities need supervision, close supervision, and it should be justified that Government should strictly and closely supervise the activities of trade unions, that is the workers, and the employer.

First of all, Kenya's economic structure is a rather racial structure. At the moment, the employers are non-Africans, and normally the Africans are the workers, and the leaders of trade unions, and members of the unions. There is also a tendency, Mr. Speaker, in human nature to develop, encourage, or find chances to create class distinctions: a class of poor people who are exploited on the one hand, and a class of rich people who exploit the poor ones, the worker ones on the other. That is why it is very essential that the Government should help with more strict ways of dealing with trade disputes.

Here, in this Bill, we have seen that there was a need to discipline both the employer and the employees, and it is very easy, and it is possible, that you can find a situation when leaders of unions, would for other motives other than those of promoting the welfare of the worker initiate action which incriminated the members of the public. Also, you would find arrogant employers who would, for their own particular motives or ignorance, or simply behave in such a way that the whole nation would be inconvenienced, and the whole nation would probably lose or be hindered in their progress by the behaviour of the employer. This is why this Bill which is seeking to regulate the extent to which unions can call a strike is welcome under this situation in this country. As Members have expressed that, in general there have been occurrences, which have shown some unnecessary strikes; there are occasions when sympathetic strikes have just gone on because a union leader wanted to have a name or publicity. These things have appeared here, and such experiences have forced the Government to bring in this Bill.

[Mr. Agari]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, speaking generally, we need, more than anything else, if we are to advance the nation, to cultivate more sense of discipline in our people, only in the trade unions or in the employed community, but even in this House. Mr. Speaker, discipline means that one has to consider very thoroughly and very responsibly whether an action or a behaviour, or an intention is prejudicial to the welfare of this country or not. If we thought that for personal reasons, or for the sake of trying to cause frictions or cause embarrassment to the Government, we incite certain things or certain strikes, then we are not disciplined.

Therefore, we would seek to support Government in this Bill, and we would seek to emphasize and urge the Government that it must strictly adhere to the terms of this Bill, so that both our working class and the employer class get disciplined. There is no possibility or chance of our economic plans succeeding for our development advancing, unless we have learnt to discipline ourselves.

Mr. Speaker, I am glad we are doing it through the law, we are trying to discipline our people through the law. If there is a dictator, he might align himself with the employers and suppress the workers. If there is an irresponsible or childish ruler, he may align himself with the responsible union leaders and confuse the country. Therefore, the procedure set down on this Bill is proper and it seems that it is the fairest that can be offered before the public so that there is a machinery which gives a chance to those who seek to do the right thing to succeed. We would not like here to frustrate the interests of the working class of people of Kenya. The working class is the majority of our people. They are the main machinery for the economic development in this country, and therefore, I feel that in this House we must make it clear that if Government does not use the machinery of this Bill properly, and there seems, or there occur any occasions when the workers are either suppressed, or not dealt with fairly through this machinery, we will not keep quiet. We would like to assist the workers and the trade union leaders that we will stand by them. I know many Members in this House claim to be the workers too, and some time back, they were those who were trying to organize unions. Many of them are not workers now, but are employers, and I would like to warn them that this Bill is coming, and they should not expect others to adhere to the terms of this Bill when they themselves do not obey them.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that whatever we may think or whatever economic ideologies somebody may have in his head, there is nothing better for Kenya other than that which seeks to enhance production and improvement of machinery of production in this country. There is no better way, practically for Kenya, other than that which seeks to bring harmony between employers and employees. There is no better method that can bring prosperity to Kenya other than leaving the trade union alone and the workers alone to concentrate on production, rather than being used by subversive forces in this country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with those observations, I support the Bill.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odero-Jowi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to intervene at this stage to answer some of the points—

Mr. Kibetich: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, if the Assistant Minister is giving the reply, we would like to know whether this is the end of the debate?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The Assistant Minister is not replying to the debate. He would only be doing that if the Mover had ceded to him the right to reply; but I have not heard that that is so. He is just taking part in the debate, and other hon. Members can speak after he has finished.

Mr. Mbugohi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I thought that when a Minister is present and he is a Mover of the debate, he does not have to speak, but can only reply when the Mover is called upon to reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you are confusing the Minister who moved the Motion and the Assistant Minister who wants to participate in the debate in the ordinary way. The Mover has no right to speak again, except in replying, but the Assistant Minister is not prevented from taking part in the debate because his Minister moved the debate.

Mr. Mbugohi: Mr. Speaker, I thought that as the Minister was not here, if anybody now calls for the Mover to reply, the Assistant Minister would reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There would be no reply to the debate if the Minister was not here.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odero-Jowi): Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

[Mr. Ochwada] absolutely nothing at all to do with the workers' standard of living. This Bill is not very good in as far as the workers' interests are concerned; let us admit it. But then what was the alternative left to Government if the leaders continued to fight among themselves, they continued even to provoke the employers? In fact, at the present moment it has gone beyond strikes, it has gone underground, and you will find that a number of employers are complaining of trade union leaders going to them and telling them, "Either you give me Sh. 500 or tomorrow you have a strike on your hands." If any Member disagrees with me, I am quite prepared to produce an employer who will tell him frankly that on such-and-such a day a trade union leader came to him and said, "Either I have Sh. 500 or 150 sheets of corrugated iron or you have a strike on your hands." This should not be allowed to continue at all. Mr. Speaker, Sir, although it is a shame on leaders like me I do not happen to be a trade unionist at the present moment, I am in the same boat as the Member for Majoge-Bassi. If he calls it a dishonest boat, then we are both sailing in the same boat; if it is an honest boat, then we are sailing in the same boat.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, recently we had labour unrest in Mombasa which led to the Ministry of Labour ordering a Board of Inquiry. The report is not yet out but when the report comes out I think some Members will learn that this Bill is, in fact, a little too late. It should have come much earlier, to try and prevent such occurrences.

We have also had a struggle among the trade unionists themselves under the pretext of international labour policy. Mr. Speaker, when this started—and it was as far back as 1959—when there were arguments about which way the trade union movement in Kenya should go, most of the people who have actually misled some of the workers who have served certain firms for over twenty-five years to lose their jobs were the strong opponents at that particular time, and were the very strongest opponents of change in the international trade union policy of this country.

What has changed their mind so soon, apart from just trying to use the workers to gain certain objectives which have not come to light, as yet? It would be quite wrong if the Government sat back and saw the workers being misled, being misused, and I must say that I thank the Minister very much for having brought up this Bill at the present moment and I am sure that when it comes to the end, most of the Members who think that this Bill is contrary to the interest of the workers will realize that, in fact, it is trying to work out a way to help the workers whom they are also trying to help.

Mr. Speaker, our trade union movement at the present moment should have a job to do for Government in its economic policy, and the way that the trade union leaders have been behaving recently is the exact opposite of what the Government would like them to do. The workers, of course, are very straightforward people and they will do anything they are told to do if they get proper conditions but at the present moment, Mr. Speaker, Sir, most of our trade union movement leaders are bent on either trying to do or to know whether I should call him the King or the master, or they are bent on destroying their own interests. That being the case, Mr. Speaker—

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, it is in order for an hon. Member of this House to accuse people outside this House for things which he, himself, has admitted he did, and then to accuse them of being wrong when he has admitted to these things?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think an admission of having done things oneself strengthens the testimony of a Member who says that the same things are being done by other persons outside; but the hon. Member is quite right to raise the point of order. Then hon. Members must not generalize about the misconduct of a whole group of people; whether it is a community, a class, or whatever it is. It is all right for the hon. Member to say that certain trade union leaders do these things but we must be careful not to say that they all do it, or even the majority of them do it.

Mr. Ochwada: In fact, if I remember correctly, Mr. Speaker, I have not specified anything at all. I have been so general that I did not refer to any particular section of trade union leaders.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): But you were getting a bit too general, too sweeping, in your condemnation of trade union leaders as a whole. I think you are not quite in order.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think it is fair the whole blame lies with the trade unionists; the employers also have a share in this. In that there have been times when employers have decided to bend towards a certain direction and ignore the other direction. This has resulted in a tug-of-war between either unions or a section of workers employed by that employer. What has happened, Mr. Speaker, Sir, has been that the Ministry has sat down and wanted to see who is stronger, and then, when the Ministry has realized

[Mr. Ochwada] that one side is weak, there has been a tendency for the Ministry to side with the stronger party, but I think I would have liked to see it go a little further than that and extend a trade dispute to include even disputes which cannot be reported to the Minister as trade disputes. In actual fact, I would have liked it to be in the form of a labour dispute whereby some other things like association or representation of persons negotiating and so on could also be included. Under this, if a dispute arose as a result of who should represent who, then either the Minister would step in immediately, even if the dispute is not reported, or the Industrial Court be given power to deal with such disputes when they arose, so that we avoid unnecessary clashes, and unnecessary labour unrest in Kenya.

I would like to give advice as an elder brother to my fellow trade unionists that I think this is only a temporary measure; the Bill is only a temporary measure to try and bring them back to the line. I am quite sure that this Bill will not be necessary, if, at a later stage, the trade union leaders and the trade union movement prove that they have forgotten all their self-interest and they are now out to help our Government to improve the standard of living and the cost of living of the people of this country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, many Members here have raised the issue of the check-off system. Of course, in the past one of the points which has brought about misunderstanding in the trade union movement has been finance. Many of our trade unions did not have sufficient powers or better organization methods to induce members to pay their dues regularly and as a result of that they have run out to try and get money to help run their organizations. As a result of that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, no one can give anyone money for nothing because there is nothing for nothing in this world because everything one gets has to be paid for. This goes for all trade unionists, not only one section of them.

I must congratulate the Government on introducing this measure because it will not only help the trade union movement to have sufficient funds to run their day-to-day administrative activities but will also help them to accumulate sufficient funds which, at a later stage, they will, I am sure, be able to invest in various projects. I have been in different countries where trade unions are financially strong enough and where you find that a trade union movement has built a housing estate as big as the present one at Karafokor Housing Estate, rented to workers in either their own industries or outside industries. I believe that as a result of our check-off system, our trade union leaders will not only use the money for day-to-day administrative purposes but they will also have saved sufficient money to help them invest the money in various projects and also contribute to the economic progress of our beloved Kenya.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Bill, as I said, has not gone far enough, and I wish it had gone further than it has gone, especially if you take the definition of a trade dispute. The definition of a trade dispute gives a very brief definition, but I think I would have liked to see it go a little further than that and extend a trade dispute to include even disputes which cannot be reported to the Minister as trade disputes. In actual fact, I would have liked it to be in the form of a labour dispute whereby some other things like association or representation of persons negotiating and so on could also be included. Under this, if a dispute arose as a result of who should represent who, then either the Minister would step in immediately, even if the dispute is not reported, or the Industrial Court be given power to deal with such disputes when they arose, so that we avoid unnecessary clashes, and unnecessary labour unrest in Kenya.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it looks as if Government is rather concerned about publicity in newspapers, but I believe that publicity of strikes and disputes and so on has been through the newspapers. I believe that this has been allowed to go on because perhaps the Government has been lenient enough to let anyone run to the newspapers to publicize whatever they want to issue threats due to the delay which has been caused when a dispute is reported to the Ministry when immediate action has not been taken.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, taking the Bill itself, I would like first of all to deal with the reporting of the disputes and what the Minister is supposed to do when a dispute has been reported to him. In the past, it has been the practice that when a dispute is reported to the Minister, in clause 6, para. (ii), subpara. (c), he may, with the consent of the parties, refer such matters to a conciliation and, at the same time, the composition of the conciliation, or the conciliation team, must be also agreed upon by both parties. I think this is a bit too loose, because if the parties disagree and they report a dispute to the Minister they expect the dispute to be settled by the Minister. He could probably agree on the composition of the conciliation, but once it has been agreed upon by both parties, but once the dispute is referred to him, why again seek the consent of both parties in order to appoint a conciliator, and in order to refer the matter to him? I think the words, "with the consent of the parties," should be declared redundant in that particular clause and that the only place where the parties should come in is when it comes to the selection of the conciliators.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, otherwise the machinery that has been set down in dealing and also the stages of the machinery are quite elaborate, and I think I am quite agreeable, and

House which they elected themselves, is trying to exterminate their freedom of exercising their powers to achieve proper industrial independence which has not been achieved, although we are independent.

I am sorry to find that some of my colleagues here who have not been very grieved on the issue are only trying to take this to be a personal document—that So-and-so likes the Minister and So-and-so does not—because that is not the reason at all. This document is going to govern the freedom of movement in this country, and it is going to govern the employers' organization, and that means that it is going to safeguard the industrial relations of our country, so there is no question of any member being biased and trying to accuse others of such things.

Now, Mr. Speaker, in this document I know that the Government is trying to implement the charter, but what is worrying me is that when we discuss the charter which, as the Government is emphasizing, it is going to implement it according to the agreements reached between the Federation of Kenya Employers and the old organization of the workers, that is one thing, but some of these changes that have been intimated here in the Bill were not brought into this document. I think it should not have been possible to try to declare some of these unions Essential Services. It is very wrong. For example, the trade union as a whole, is declared an Essential Service, dockworkers are declared as Essential Services, local government authorities are declared as Essential Services, the electricity power operators union are declared Essential Services, transport workers are Essential Services and other things are covered by this. But, I think it would have been better for the Ministry to call the leaders and sit together and discuss the reasons why and give reasons why the Ministry wants these unions to be declared as Essential Services, so that this row now between the workers outside and the Government would not have arisen. But, at the moment, the Government is only trying to use this House to force the Bill to go through without the consent of the workers outside.

Now, if we pass this Bill in this House, Mr. Speaker, we do not get the proper support of the workers outside, and I must warn the Ministry that some of us who live in the reserves will not be held responsible for whatever consequences are faced by passing this Bill. I know that the Government now is going to use—once the Bill is passed and becomes law, whatever machinery there is to suppress the workers. This is also, on the other hand, very wrong. We are not going under our own responsibility, to try to force people, to try to suppress them. We must harden them because they have their own representatives elected, and the Kenya Federation of Labour, which is the co-ordinating for all the unions, should have taken this into account. There are some unions like the Dockworkers' Union which are strong in the country today, and I hope that the Government does not guard about it, because the leaders are well trained, and there are many other unions who should have been consulted about this, particularly the congress which represent this union. A mutual agreement should have been reached.

Mr. Speaker, I do not see why some of the Members are shouting on this matter, because this will be no surprise to the workers. I know that the Assistant Minister for Economic Planning is elected by the workers, and I am talking about this document, not because of the Government, but just to find out from the Government and the Ministry concerned why it has not been possible to brief these people about the procedure so that they could discuss it, and when it comes to this House we would have to quarrel with it. Again, the leaders say that there will be a general strike if they are not consulted. The very Members who stood in places like Mombasa, Nairobi, Nakuru and so on, must be very careful, because, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the workers, when giving out their votes, knew that these people were going to guarantee their future. Therefore, they are not going to allow any Member to come to this House and start messing about.

Mr. Speaker, I must say this most plainly that the main problem, which I hope the Government should have examined, and I think my best friend the Minister who is trained in this Bill is listening, is the question of wages, and I think when speaking about this, to this House, the Ministry should have taken it into account that they should find out what is our basic minimum wage scale in the country.

An hon. Member: Which industry?

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, I hear one man who is very interested asking which industry.

Now, I would like the Minister to explain to this House what are the things that the Ministry is taking into account before producing this document, as regards the question of wages. There are certain industries, let us say the agricultural industry, with all the workers working on the sisal plantations, sugar plantations, tea plantations, maize plantations, in the Rift Valley area, which is an agricultural producing area, and all these workers in these industries are co-operative at the moment, and therefore, there should be a law imposed on them. They must abide with what the document is talking about.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will go further and say that if only the Government considers the minimum scale of the workers in these areas in these industries, I think this solution could be very successful, but I do not think that the Bill is going to help us a lot if these workers are still in the state of affairs that they are at the moment. They are really frustrated, and some of them work on a monthly basis, or not really a monthly basis but a monthly basis, but Sundays are not counted. They are not offered medical services, and other things. These people are not covered with all these conditions. These are the people who are really suffering.

Now, many of them will go on strike because of wages, and the Kenya Government must legislate first what is going to be the minimum wage in this country. It should have been the first thing they did.

I am not speaking for myself but for the African people and for myself also as a worker. Even here I have a contract.

Coming back to the terms, you will find that we have different types of employers, I hope the Assistant Minister for Labour is very much aware of this and I hope other Members will give him time to hear me so that he will be able to know exactly what I am talking about. There are some members of the employment organization and employers' organization who are not worth keeping, which I think the Minister should take into account to see that when a Bill like this is brought to the House, these people are also well informed of the procedure and they learn and improve the industrial relations in this country. For example, the employers who are mainly the Asians even defeated, during the colonial government, the procedures of the colonial government. They are so tricky that unless the Ministry of Labour now opens itself and takes very, very strict measures to discipline these employers there will be nothing; all that we talk about in this Bill here will be a waste of time. These employers really do humiliate the workers and they make them work for wages lower than those required by the Government and this I think the Ministry is aware of and if the Ministry is not aware of this, let the Ministry check and it will find that what I am saying here is true, because in fact, some of these workers have been under my union, the former union of mine workers, which is now, of course run by one of the men around and I knew that the intentions of some employers in this country are very difficult. Why? Because most of them, Mr. Speaker, do not belong to the Federation of Kenya Employers they are not members of that. So to deal with them is always very difficult and the only employers' union which is always forward, which is reasonable enough always to offer some negotiations to workers' organizations and the Government, is the Federation of Kenya Employers. Now, could the Minister come here and give us some assurance of the plans he has for us some assurance, particularly the ones I have mentioned, when it comes to the time of disputes and what not, because they are not even prepared to come and discuss things round a table. They are very stubborn chaps, so I would like to know what other measures the Government is intending to take and what is the Government is going to do with these employers? Is the Government going to give them licences to run businesses and just let them humiliate the masses, and instead of taking action against the particular employer the Government will always be interested to mistreat our own people.

Also, there are the wages system on top of that. It is very, very poor. They are working on what we call "tickets", these tickets do not promise a regular salary, you can even work for two months for one ticket, then you get money deducted, you get food deducted, you get house rent deducted and what not and finally you get about Sh. 10 a month. This is very, very serious, and the Ministry is introducing a Bill like that which is very important, that it is going to govern our industrial relations in this country. It must take these things into account first, not humiliate the workers. So when the trade unions in this country talk about other things, talk about the conditions of the workers in this country I am very, very sure that they are right and I hope the Ministry recognizes this and it must tell this House before we vote this Bill through, what action the Government is going to take about such things.

Now, coming to the question of some of the employers who are very arrogant, I think I have also put a case. I have mentioned briefly that the Minister should look into this and see that the arrogant ones are brought to their proper senses to follow exactly what the Bill says.

Coming to equal pay for equal work is where another complaint comes up. There are certain firms in this country which still discriminate

[Mr. Ngala-Abok]

This list is very confusing because if it was analysed then we would have to tell the country now exactly why there is such a thing as health services and also hospital services, and how they become essential. But here it is not clear about the Essential Services and which people dealing with the health services could go on strike without any harm. Moreover there is machinery for bringing about settlement quite within reasonable limits.

This means that the Government is not going to care about the settlement of disputes as they are more worried about claiming these services as Essential Services, so that all the other services that they leave out could go on strike for one year or six months and the Government could still carry on. If there is no proper explanation, then I do not see that the Government is going to get very far.

Moreover, Mr. Speaker, Sir, for the information of the Ministry concerned I would like them to amend this Bill, because if the trade union workers during the next elections came out to grasp this Bill then the workers will definitely vote for trade union leaders. This is why we find in Great Britain the Labour and the Conservative Party. This came about because of these such Bills. These Bills which certain parties thought that they were going to use to provide the workers vote but eventually the workers put forward their candidates and then you got the very well disciplined Labour Party which is now in power. So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we want the Government to reconsider the position, on the question of the Minister having the power to declare a strike illegal. How could an individual, who is also a politician with his own views, his own ideologies, and his own alignment come along and claim a strike illegal? This is very, very bad. You may even find that he will claim that the sitting of Parliament is illegal. If Members try to claim that they are not treated well in Parliament here, I think the Minister for Labour and Social Services—and this Bill may as well affect the Members here.

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would like the Ministry to be very careful. Personally I believe some of these Bills may not help the Government in the long run and you must sometimes be very careful when Members are speaking in this House and consider our positions because we have everything to gain. This country is ours and many Members of this Government are going to become Members of even future Governments, after the next elections. They should try to take it step by step. One should not make the Government go to extremes of bringing certain services under Essential Services, and to go to the extreme of asking the Minister to declare certain strikes illegal or to the extreme of even preventing the sympathy strikes because one merely thinks that if the trade unions are brought under the dictatorship of a Ministry, then they could govern the country this way, things would be better, things would be developed, and economic planning and development would take place. You could never make progress in this guise, one could only encourage development by coming forward step by step and helping to reach and understanding with trade union leaders or being able to reach an understanding with the people that are going to be affected by the law of the Government. We know very well that due to fear in the industrial world in this country, they are not staging demonstrations and they are not doing much in opposing the Bill. But we would like to ask the Ministry to discuss with them and agree with them on certain points. If the Ministry has done that then I am sure that the Assistant Minister who is an expert in industrial relations and in industrial matters and who was former lecturer in one of the most important colleges in East Africa will comment upon this, and tell the Government what agreements have been reached. As far as my knowledge goes, I am quite at liberty to say this, that there has not been a proper machinery to bring this Bill to the House, and to tell the country why this Ministry is embarking on these extremes. I am still elaborating and I have no time limit.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is where I would like to pin myself down to specific points. But I will not go very far as I have spoken quite a bit. Mr. Speaker, Sir, now about the control of the check-off system. We see here that the Minister is going to control the use of the check-off system. I just do not know what is wrong in this check-off system at the moment. It is most unnecessary. The union leaders should have the powers to do what they wish with the money, and only the workers could discipline their union leaders if there was misuse of money or if there was anything wrong at all with the check-off system, or if a certain department or a certain firm, was not complying with the check-off system, or was not sending cheques or Bills or any other things to the union leaders. This could be an entirely legal matter for the unions themselves to settle amongst themselves. I do not think the Government should enter into these financial matters. If the Government thinks that a certain trade union movement might grow too rich and one day take over other unions, because usually the source of a person's dignity and claim for power and other things, is based on so much money, and their position or property, which one day will enable him to popularize himself to go and offer beer to his friends, and so on.

If the Government feels that certain unions might abuse this as to when they reorganize the industry, this is the way suspicion which even Members in this House could have in discussing this Bill, because, in fact, it is up to the unions to organize their own funds. If the union is to be free it must have its own accounts. It must be responsible for looking after its money. It must know from where the organization will get its funds, and this is not a matter for the Government to go into. But, I must congratulate the Government if they do what the Tanganyika Government did. The trade union part of the Government appointed a Minister to become the Secretary-General, and allow him to dominate the whole union so that the trade union leaders in the country will look for some other jobs. There is no use putting them in restriction, and stopping the leaders from speaking if they cannot organize things, and have no proper system of authority. Why should we bring other restrictions such as the Government control of strikes and the prohibition of sympathy strikes in the Government. Government is doing all this. All these things just lead to one thing, that the Government is not prepared to bring the entire union organization, or industrial organization to its senses, and create one of the Ministers as a Secretary-General.

I am not speaking to the Minister personally, Mr. Speaker, but you can approach this in two ways, in which case you can be discovered very quickly. So, I would not like the Ministry to approach this in two ways. I would like the trade union organizations in this country to be brought completely under the Government's control, and tell the trade union leaders to look for other jobs. There is a question of somebody saying that we still have no headquarters for workers here, and that we have another one for workers in the plantations. This is not going to be of any use.

Mr. Speaker, as I said at the very beginning, it is good to make the workers understand that in view of the fact that certain development have only to develop under peaceful organizations of all our resources and under properly disciplined trade union movements, under properly disciplined political parties, and under properly organized industries in the country, with the aim of bringing all our resources together, and developing all our resources, the Ministry has gone too far, but we feel that if the Ministry could amend some of these clauses in line with what we were advocating or some of us were saying, it will help quite a lot to save this Ministry from getting a candidate from the trade union organization taking over from the Minister for Labour and Social Services, because I know that the trade unions are going to post one of their leaders to this constituency, to take over from his unit.

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

Mr. Odunya: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I do not think I have much to say because my friend has put up a case very effectively, and which I think my hon. friend, the former principal of a trade union college in Kampala, has appreciated. I know very well that it was a party to this document called the Industrial Relations Charter, which was adopted in 1962, when I was commanding the trade union movement, as the General Secretary of the Mine Workers' Union. The records are there, there is no question about it. Although the Ministry has found it necessary to introduce a document like this one, which I think in some ways is good and in some ways is bad, because the Ministry has gone a little too far before consulting the workers concerned, of the trade unions that represent the working class in this country. When we adopted the Industrial Charter, which I think the Ministry is now trying to legalize in this House, we find that the members of the Federation of Kenya Employers and the team from the trade union movement, and the chairman of each union of each union, were present and the chairman of the commission was the Minister for Economic Planning, and he was then the Minister for Labour, Mr. Tom Mboya. There was a mutual understanding, and we carried it on for about three or four days, and that is when we produced this paper, what we call the Industrial Relations Charter, there was no dispute at all. Now, I am surprised, Mr. Speaker, that a Bill has been drafted by the Ministry without first taking into account what the trade union movement or the workers' union in the country would be. I thought that the Ministry should have consulted the workers in the same way as the workers were consulted when the Industrial Relations Charter was discussed. I am sure that if the Ministry did so, there would be no question of us being superseded by the trade union movement discussing the Bill, because I know that most of the workers, or should I say all the workers' organizations in the country, think that this House, being an independent House, a free

[Mr. Omar] the workers went on strike. The employers were surprised and even the Government was surprised. They did not know the person who wrote that notice and they did not know how the strike was organized. So, Government is going to waste time by placing the port and docks under Essential Services. I was a worker in the docks for fifteen years and I know that no Government, nobody, can stop workers going on strike when they feel that they should go on strike. Therefore, the Government is going to waste its time, is going to waste paper by putting the docks industry under the Essential Services. As I say, I have been a dock worker for fifteen years and so I know what tricks have been used, especially during the colonial days. Those workers are highly organized and highly educated as regards the trade union movement. This is not a threat or intimidation of the Government; this is a fact. If we are to build this country, we must tell one another the facts in this House and outside, and that is why I am saying this. This industry should not be put under the Essential Services. If you try it, you are going to fail.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am declaring again my disapproval of this Bill and I am strongly opposed to it for the reason that it gives greater and dictatorial power to the Minister and does not provide sufficient protection for the workers. I feel that it is only here to give protection to the employers and the capitalists who have been exploiting our people, the workers, for a long time. Now, arrangements are made under this Bill to protect the capitalists. Mr. Deputy Speaker, there are now some Africans who have also become capitalists. They came together, planned and drafted this Bill so that the African capitalists who are also embarking on business, in firms, can exploit the African workers. The majority of the workers in this country, Mr. Deputy Speaker, are Africans and if we want our Government to be stable, there must be a good relationship between the working class and the capitalists. This Bill does not provide protection for the workers and, therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am strongly opposed to this Bill.

Mr. Ngala-Abok; Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would not claim that I know very much about the trade union movement or trade union organization, but I can say that I know a bit of it, as far as Government services are concerned. I would personally like to congratulate the Ministry for the attempt the Ministry is making to bring the workers to their senses and to ask the workers to become more reasonable in their demands for the payment of their salaries, for the improvement of their conditions. Also, at the moment we want development in the country by pulling together, not only as politicians, not only with the settlers, the European settlers in this country, not only to pull together with the Asian capitalists and the Asian businessmen, and the ordinary Asian men, not even to invite to people who are not employed to co-operate with the Government, but most important to ask the trade union leaders who are in key positions to lead the ordinary men, the lowly paid men in this country to understand the proper trade union organization which will not leave this country in difficulties.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this attempt is here in the Bill, and I also realize that there are certain things which are omitted from the Bill. Personally, if you look at my speeches made in the Parliament it will be found that I have appreciated certain places where I consider the Government to be taking proper action. But I have not appreciated things where I have thought that the Minister was not good enough. I do not think the Government of Kenya is going to go into the Tanzania system immediately. Our trade unionism—as far as our Members of Government have claimed in the past—is claiming now that they are more mature than those trade union movements in other African countries, and in fact they are better organized, and yet they are striking mostly quite unnecessarily. So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I am going to question certain clauses of this Bill, one should not misunderstand my position, because what is becoming a nuisance in this House, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that people's positions are misunderstood. I am here to air my views, but I am not here to oppose a particular Minister for example, the Minister of Labour and Social Services who introduced the Bill here.

I know that he has good motives and he wants to reorganize the trade unions. He wants to take the laws, and particularly the Industrial Charter, to be legalized, because so far it has just been a document which anybody could tear up at any time. But if the terms and the agreements in that document are legalized I think then that the workers would understand their position better and then the leaders of the workers could act within the laws of the country. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I agree that something should be done so workers cannot come out on strike unnecessarily, make the trade union leaders unnecessary, make the workers leave their duties just because the trade union leader would like to score more points and get a higher position. We also want the Government to realize its part. We

[Mr. Ngala-Abok] do not want to claim too much, but what is claimed here by the Ministry was ignored during the colonial days. The colonialists wanted even more development. They also claimed to be benefiting the Africans, to be progressing our people, educating the people of this country, but they did not go so far as to declare many, many services essential. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, how has this Government gone to the extreme? The colonialists which we were fighting, while they were doing this we were saying that they were oppressing our people, that they had come here to claim things, and that they wanted to oppress us. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we find that the services which the colonial government did not like or enlist or say were essential are now enlisted by our own African Independent Government as essential. Where are we going? I have already agreed that the intention is good, because personally I would not like my brother to go on strike unnecessarily because he is leading a trade union movement because when we know that when this strike is on he will lose his job, because we know very well that workers have gone on strike and they have lost their jobs and then they come back and worry us, as politicians, in the village, because they went on strike through the stupidity of their trade union leader. An hon. Member has stated that whereas we want the trade union leaders to be as careful as possible, and whereas we want our workers to understand the objects of our Government, we equally do not want to have such extremes as to declare the services which were ignored by the colonial government as essential under the present Government which means that there is a political or ideological move being made by the Government to try and oppress certain workers who they see at the moment are not going to help them very much to push forward in their policies. If one looks very clearly at the history of this country since independence, or just before independence, it is obvious that some workers in the Government, and some workers in the industries are trying to get the trade union organization in this country reorganized so that the country could have one union and not many unions here and there which are easily managed and which can go on strike at any time, so that there is no disruptive one union with headquarters, one in Machakos, one in Kiambu, and so that you find someone else claiming in Nairobi here is the headquarters. Now, this trade union leader cannot control the many trade union headquarters in the country, and this is why, recently, certain trade union leaders wanted a proper organization of the union so that the Government could have one overall head of this union in the entire country, or proper organization and understanding of the disputes and in many matters affecting the workers.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if as it is being claimed, and as far as this Bill is concerned it is very revealing, we have all these industries where union leaders are claiming that they want a better union organization which are now claimed as Essential Services. To make it worse, Mr. Speaker, Sir, they are not only placed under the list of Essential Services, but the Minister has been given the power to declare any other workers as Essential Services, even those that are not listed here. If you refer to a certain clause under these services which could be declared essential by the Minister for Social Services, there is nothing to stop the Minister from one day saying that the Agricultural plantation workers are essential services, because in my mind I think that there maybe something more essential than those working in the oil industry. If all the motor vehicles stopped moving then this shows that these workers stopped handling the petrol, where would we suffer most? Would we suffer because your car cannot move because there is no petrol? Or would you suffer because you have no transport to come and speak in the House? The people who suffer the most, if the plantation workers' union went on strike, but I would not suffer, I could stop in Nairobi for a few days, waiting for one day to come Nairobi. I could say that I was stranded; the workers are on strike. I would like to question the list of essential workers. The reason why I pose question it is that I am suspicious that those Essential Services, for example, these industries which have now been entitled like health for oil and like many others, have been like health for example. Now what the meaning of health services. Now is what is the meaning of health services and health if we find there are hospital services and health services it means that those services that you do not understand are being looked after by the Ministry of Health. You could not understand that that very easily. You could only understand that there is a dispensary which is falling under the health services, there is a health centre, there is a hospital or there is a place where you could go and get some treatment, and the health services are classified with such services as sweeping the latrines within the city council.

This list is confusing.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slide) resumed the Chair]

Mr. Kiprotich: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think the hon. Member speaking is just referring to some sections. Could he read section 9—

Mr. Oduya: Read the whole Bill!

Mr. Kiprotich: Do not be stupid.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Oduya, please do not do that again.

Mr. Kiprotich, please address yourself to the Chair.

Mr. Kiprotich: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, there are some people who cannot produce anything in this House and I am not going to listen to them.

My point of order is this, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon.—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Will you state your point of order or sit down.

Mr. Omasi: On clause 8, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the point I wanted to raise with the Assistant Minister for Labour is that of the matters to be referred by the parties. Supposing one party refuses to refer the matter to the tribunal, what would happen? Supposing the employers refused to agree that the matter should go to the tribunal; what would the trade union or the workers do? We would like the Assistant Minister to tell the House under this clause 8 what would happen when one party refuses to go to the tribunal.

Another point is on clause 19. It is in connection with lock-outs. There are direct lock-out and indirect lock-outs. There are some employers who are very clever. When they want to cause a lock-out, they do not call it a lock-out and what they actually do is to declare workers redundant. They say that they have excess workers and they want to decrease the number, and that itself is an indirect lock-out. Therefore, I do not think that here the workers are sufficiently protected under this clause 19. I would like the Minister to say categorically how the workers will be guarded when a clever employer or group of employers want to cause lock-outs under the pretext that there is redundancy.

An hon. Member: Read 21.

Mr. Omasi: I have read it, my friend, and I am not satisfied with the protection given to the workers under that clause. That is why I have raised this point.

Another point I would like to mention, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is about clause 25 of the Bill, paragraph (2). Here, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have found that the freedom of the workers is denied because it states here, "Any person who causes work or refuses to continue work, being work which is under his terms of employment he is bound to do, in circumstances which give rise to a reasonable suspension that he is taking part in or acting in furtherance of an unlawful strike and fails to satisfy the court that he ceased work, or refused to continue work. . . . Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, you find here that the worker is denied the freedom to strike—

An hon. Member: It is an illegal strike.

Mr. Omasi: No matter, there is no legal strike. I do not think that there is an illegal or unlawful strike. Every strike is legal because when a man believes that he cannot work under certain terms and conditions of service, that itself is illegal to him. It might be unlawful and illegal to the Government, but to him it is legal because he believes that it is not right; it is not justice for him to do that piece of work. It is a belief just in the same way as a Catholic believes in Jesus and a Muslim believes in Mohammed; it is the same thing with a worker. When he feels that he cannot work over eight hours, when he feels that he cannot work earning about Sh. 5 a day, his belief is very strong and it becomes like a religion to him. Therefore, it is wrong for a person or authority or Government to force him to work under such conditions. Therefore, there is no unlawful strike, every strike is lawful, every strike is legal, according to the belief of the workers. So the question of illegal strike does not arise here at all. Every strike is legal, every strike is lawful.

This clause, Mr. Deputy Speaker, denies the freedom of the worker to strike. This practice has failed in many countries, Mr. Deputy Speaker. I have already said that I have been a trade unionist. I have studied the history of the trade union movement in different countries, of the Eastern and the Western countries, and wherever there has been oppressive legislation against workers, they have always failed. Let us experiment with it here in this country; let us try to avoid those mistakes which were made by other Governments in the Eastern and Western countries. I know the history because I have read about it and I have been to some of the Eastern countries.

Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is my strong belief that workers should be left free and if they think that it is necessary to take strike action, they should be allowed to do so, and then the Government would take up the matter and settle it.

Another clause which I think the Minister should also clarify, is clause 36 where it says

[Mr. Omasi]

"The Minister may make an order in writing with respect to any trade union of employees requiring any employer who employs not less than ten members of that trade union—(a) to deduct every month a specified sum in respect of trade union dues from the wages of his employees who are members of that trade union". Here again, Mr. Deputy Speaker, although I support the check-off system, I think it should not be stated here that the number of employees should be over ten members to allow the employers to make a deduction for union dues. It should be left open that even an employer who employs one person could also make arrangements with the union for the deduction of union fees to be made.

Another clause I want to mention, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is clause 37, which I think is unfair. It reads that if the Bill is passed the registered trade unions will have to reapply for registration. Therefore, I do not think it is fair. This Bill might be passed—I do not know, but I doubt it very much—and if it does the trade unions already registered should be recognized by the Registrar of Trade Unions and we should continue with the arrangements already in hand, especially in the unions where arrangements have already been made between the employers and employees for deduction of union dues; it should just be left like that and there is no need for such trade unions to make an application to the Minister who would then probably make his order and allow the employers to continue deducting union dues.

A further point I want to raise, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is that of the Essential Services. Here we are given a list of the Essential Services and the first one is water services. I feel that this is really necessary because a human being cannot live a day or two without water, so I agree that water services should be under the list of Essential Services. The second is electricity services. I doubt very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that this one is really necessary and, therefore, I propose that it should be deleted from the list of Essential Services. The third one is health services and it should also be deleted; it is not necessary. The next, hospital services, is necessary and should be included in the list. Sanitary services is not essential; air traffic control is not essential, civil aviation telecommunication services is not essential and should be deleted; the meteorological services of the East African Meteorological Department is not essential; but the fire services of the Government is essential. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not think that air transport is essential and it should, therefore, be deleted. Supply and distribution of fuel, petrol, oil, power and light is not essential. I think this is only here to protect the petrol companies. If I understand it clearly, I think it refers to the workers in the petrol station which, I think, is not essential at all because sometimes they have been on strike and—

Mr. Kiprotich: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think the present speaker is confused. If one day there is an accident on the road and there is nothing—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Kiprotich, I am sorry, but you should know quite well by now what is a point of order. You cannot stand on a point of order to interrupt a speaker and tell him he is confused, that if there is an accident on the road something may happen. That is a speech and you have already made your speech; you have already had your chance to speak. You cannot interrupt the speaker on his feet now.

Mr. Omasi: Another item which I feel, Mr. Deputy Speaker, should be deleted is the public transport services, and the last one which I feel should be completely deleted is the port and docks services, including stevedoring and lighting, loading and unloading of cargo. This should be deleted, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is not Essential Services at all—

An hon. Member: On what grounds?

Mr. Omasi: I will tell you. There is no necessity for this because in the docks what is essential is there, if it is the work of loading and unloading. A ship may come there and sometimes stay out at sea for two or three weeks without getting a berth and there is not any danger of the cargo rotting. Therefore, there is no need at all to put the dock industry under the Essential Services.

I have already said at the outset, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that in the 1940s and 1950s there was certain legislation which required the dock workers to give notice of twenty-one days before they went on strike and that never worked at all. In fact, there were very frequent strikes because dock workers always work closely together and could therefore organize themselves very secretly and go on strike even without the knowledge of the employers or the Government, Mr. Deputy Speaker. I can explain how these illegal strikes were planned and were called. In the docks there are lavatories for the Europeans, the Asians and for the Africans. If the Africans wanted to go on strike, what they did was this. One person went to the African lavatory and wrote that tomorrow we go on strike, so everybody who went to the lavatory read that notice and the following day

Now, in this, Sir, it was quite inhuman to leave a man who is in need to suffer in their presence, when we have such services as the medical services, maternity services, and all the other services in the big towns. Just to endanger the health of our people, I think no country, no nation, which is worth the name of a nation, can really sit aside, idle, and see some of the trouble makers go on inciting others to go on strike, to go on intimidating those who are willing to help at the crucial moment, and not helping them.

Now, as far as this goes, I think this Bill has more or less enlarged the list of the Essential Services, and as such, we hope that it will not be necessary at all to resort to the Ministers' Intervention in any case. Whoever suffers, the workers are ours, and the sufferers will be our own people, until of course, we can arrive at a solution on an agreed basis without necessarily relying on those who are corrupted by foreign money, for their own personal benefit, to interrupt the workers or the trade unions of this country. Of course, when I say foreign money coming into this country, then those who suspect themselves are beginning to shout and interject, because I think they have been overfed somehow, and it is time their masters knew that they are supporting a looting horse.

Now, Sir, I can only hope that the check-off system—I see the hon. Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services is here and I would like to have an explanation as to how far this check-off system is going to apply, whether it is only confined to the sources of revenue, the internal sources of revenue within the trade union movement of this country, or it extends to the external sources of revenue directed to given individuals, to give foreign purposes, to further their own interests and destroy the smooth running of the smooth organization of the trade union movement of this country, because it is no good having a check-off system which is restricted to the internal trade union movement without having knowledge of what is coming from outside. I think that it is time we spoke a bit of our minds. I keep on hearing my hon. friend calling me ignorant, and I think I have never met an ignorant fellow like him.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Now, hon. Members, we cannot have this indulgence in personalities. I will ask Mr. Oduya to cease provoking the hon. Member.

Mr. Oduya: Mrs. Speaker, I was only directing him to understand exactly what the Bill was all about.

Mr. Kiprotich: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, can a Member speak directly to you when he is sitting?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. He is definitely out of order.

Mr. de Tiplé: Mr. Speaker, the check-off system which I was talking about is a system which I think I understand better than the hon. Member and what my worry is, and this is the worry of every—

QUORUM

Mr. Ekiella: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, do we have a quorum?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, we do not have a quorum. Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We now have a quorum.

Mr. de Tiplé: So, Mr. Speaker, I do not want to labour the House on this one. The only thing I was trying to stress was the absolute necessity of checking not only the in-coming money from external countries, or foreign countries into this country to build up given officials of a given trade union movement but also to disrupt the democratic trade unions established according to the need of our country as we understand it and this is provided for in this Bill, Sir, and I have no quarrel about it.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, because I feel our Members also deserve the right to make up their minds, we must make it very very clear not only to the Government, but to every worker in this country, that the backbone of any nation depends entirely on its manpower and the working class of the people.

(The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair)

(The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair)

Mr. de Tiplé: Of course we must guard against those evil prophets who go on preaching that the Government is doing nothing and if not interested in the workers of this country, and if we can make them feel that we are all part and parcel and we are interested and concerned with the welfare of everybody in this country, I think the welfare of everybody in this country, I think we shall have a good country to be proud of, and we shall have a big nation to be proud of, and it is time that this hickering and the reminiscences and the rest of the mud-slinging stops, and of course I can see my friend there trying to

to say I hope I have instilled something new in his mind and of course if we start in this spirit then we shall go somewhere. Let us hope that in this Bill which is accepted by trade union and the Government that the leaders of this country will feel themselves duty bound and part and parcel to contribute everything in order to win the whole thing efficiently for the good of all and not just try to make a lot of loose talk or unnecessary distracting criticisms which hold no water. With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Kiprotich: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I thought this Bill was not going to get a lot of support in this House because the Bill protects the workers and employers. The workers and employers already have the Industrial Relations Charter.

I should like to say few words on this Bill. In my own constituency I have tea workers and mixed farm workers. There are some people who are out of work and they come out and organize workers for a strike in order to get more money for the workers. I will say this. Anyone in this House or outside this House will say he is going to support the Bill of the Government. I am supporting it for certain reasons, because I am supporting it for some people here—Mr. Oduya will not be returned. Mr. Oduya did not elect me; I was elected by the workers. So, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this Bill is protecting the employers, and the workers I do not see any reason why this House should oppose such a Bill while we have the Industrial Relations Charter, which is in existence. If the leaders of the trade unions, if they will oppose the charter first, all right, we will also otherwise; I am not opposing this Bill myself and Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am in support of this Bill.

Mr. Omar: Thank you very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker, for giving me a chance to express my views on this Bill. Before I say anything, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to state that I am one of the founder members of the Dockworkers Union in this country, known as the Dockworkers Union and I have been a worker myself and therefore when I speak, I speak for the interest of the workers because I know today I am a Member of Parliament and tomorrow I may be a worker. Even if I were lucky enough to become an employer, I would still not support such a Bill because this Bill is oppressive, this Bill gives greater power, dictatorial power to the Minister, this Bill denies individual rights of the workers, this Bill does not at all look after the interests of workers, therefore I am strongly opposed to the Bill, Mr. Deputy Speaker. I am not opposing it because probably I have fallen in love with the education that is given in the Lumumba Institute. No, this is not so, I am opposing it because of the principle, because I believe that if this Bill passes through, the majority of the workers in this country are going to suffer and when they suffer they will become difficult to the Government. There was a time in this country, Mr. Deputy Speaker, when there was such legislation and at that time I was a dock worker. It was required that if workers wanted to go on strike they had to give a notice of twenty-one days, but that law never worked at all. The workers secretly organized the staff and some of them used to go to the lavatories and write a notice on the wall that we must go on strike on such and such a date. The strike used to take place even without the knowledge of the employers and even without the knowledge of the Government. The Government should not think that by having such a strict Bill it can protect the interests of the employers, it is not true at all according to my own experience. Such a Bill has failed during the colonial days and now, especially when we have educated the workers, I do not think that this Bill will really serve its purpose since the workers have been given an education on trade union movement.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, if you look at clause 5 of this Bill, you find that the Minister has been given very wide powers because he has the power under this clause to accept or reject the report under the trade dispute. The workers might have a justifiable dispute reported to the Minister, but the Minister has the power to accept it or reject it. Here you find that the Minister has dictatorial power because he has been given power to decide which is a justifiable trade dispute and which is not. It may be a justifiable dispute and still the Minister can reject it, because he does not want strikes to take place, because probably he does not want the matter to go to a tribunal or to the Industrial Court. Therefore, this is a very bad thing which the Government should try to avoid and not give the Minister of Labour such great powers.

Another clause, Mr. Deputy Speaker, which is also very bad is clause 8 of this Bill. Clause 8 (1) says, "Where there is failure to effect a settlement of a trade dispute under section 6 or section 7 of this Act, the Minister may, subject as hereinafter provided and if the parties to the dispute consent, refer the dispute to an Arbitration Tribunal appointed under this section."

Now, you find that—

can discuss this matter, and then immediately the workers say "right we are not going through this practice, we are not going to collect the money", and then the workers are called out on strike. This, Mr. Speaker, Sir, punishes many people in the city, many people who walk through heavy rains, because of just one little mistake which could have been avoided. I think that this Bill stops this sort of thing happening in the industries by allowing the Minister to enforce the existing machinery to be allowed first, and if that proves impossible then I do not think the workers' right of strike has been taken away from them.

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I personally support this Bill and I hope that many hon. Members will see the need of supporting it, and let it go through, so that we can have a peaceful industrial development in this country without many unnecessary strikes which we have had in the past.

Mr. ole Tipts: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the Bill before the House, and the only unfortunate part of it is that this Bill was not introduced earlier than this, because had it been introduced earlier then we would have benefited enormously from what the country has already wasted by those who are not out to build and reconstruct the economy of this country.

Now, Mr. Speaker, having said that I would just like to speak on general terms on the Bill before the House. Firstly, the point that concerns us is this, that we must make it absolutely clear that this Government is the Government of the people, by the people of this country.

I hear my old friend referring, Mr. Speaker, Sir, and shouting on my left, but I think the time has come for him to reconsider his mentality otherwise we will send him to Mathari. The Government of this country is by the people and for the people of this country. Anybody who doubts that, then of course, he has no place in the building of our nation.

Mr. Odoyo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is my friend here suggesting that one of these days I will be taken to Mathari? Can he substantiate that?

Mr. ole Tipts: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I never suggested anything of the sort. What I said was this: Anybody who thinks to the contrary of our nation building must really be taken to Mathari. That is all I said.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It was in order for the hon. Member to say it in that way, because he was not referring to anybody in particular.

QUORUM

Mr. Muti: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, do we have a quorum?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, we do not. Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have a quorum now.

Mr. ole Tipts: Mr. Speaker, if I may continue, what I was saying is this, that in the difficult task that lays before us in the reconstruction of the various aspects which are bound to make Kenya one of the biggest nations in Africa, we must not allow, at any cost, any destructive element to play its part in trying to destroy what we are trying to do. Now, having said this, Sir, it is a fact, and a fact which must be borne in mind by everybody, that the Government of this country is more concerned, than those big-mouthed persons who rise to shout on political platforms, to try and build themselves up. The Government is more concerned on the well-being of every person in this country, and if the trade unions, themselves, have welcomed this Bill, then I do not see the reason at all for any Member to try and stand and ask questions. We started the labour movement here before those who are trying to question were born.

An hon. Member: You are a stooge of the white settler.

Mr. ole Tipts: You can say a stooge of the white settler, but I am not a stooge of the red settler.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Odoyo, you must be careful. I have warned you many times about this word.

Mr. ole Tipts: Mr. Speaker, if I may come down a bit, despite the unnecessary, uncalculated interjections from my friends, the position is this: Is any Member elected by a popular vote in this people of this country here to shout his master's voice or is he here for the nation-building of the country? I for one have never been a stooge of anybody in Parliament, and you, Mr. Speaker, will bear me out that when there were only fourteen of us with black faces in this House, fighting the majority of the white fellows in this country who were dominating us, some of these guys were just planting potatoes somewhere in the bush.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I hope that you are not referring to hon. Members as "guy".

Mr. ole Tipts: I withdraw that, Mr. Speaker.

[Mr. ole Tipts]

Now, Sir, the position as I see it is very clear in my mind. Now, if we, who are supposed to be the leaders of this country, instilled into the minds of those who we are supposed to lead, suspicion and fears, what will the ordinary man in the street think of the present Government, in the African Government. If there are any mistakes, we shall seriously tell them that they are not working for the good of the workers, and let us stand here and point out those mistakes or those loopholes which might appear in the Bill here, rather than try to generalize things, and appoint ourselves as the mere advocates of the workers. Of course, some of us here have really worked hard in the matter for a very few years. This is a fact.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I think I will face you because, the hon. gentleman is trying to provoke me unnecessarily. May I tell him that what I have done he has never done in his life: He has never worked for Sh. 4 a month. He just left the bush and was elected to this Parliament—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, you must not make personal remarks about the Members. They are entirely irrelevant to the Bill.

Mr. ole Tipts: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is trying to detract me from the point I was trying to make. I will ignore him because he does not know what he is talking about, and if he says I have no material, he has not the heart either—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I should leave the hon. Member alone and carry on with the Bill.

Mr. ole Tipts: Now, Mr. Speaker, the thing is this, that there is one loophole as far as this Bill is concerned. Firstly, I am not personally satisfied with the protections provided in this Bill as far as our agricultural workers are concerned, and when I say this, we must bear in mind that the majority of agricultural workers are now employed by the Africans, and we cannot copy the previous exploitations by the white employers of agricultural workers to the black employers of agricultural workers. This must be gone into. I am not at all trying to say anything. I might be entirely wrong on this one, but I shall need to be corrected. If there is any minimum wage fixed for the agricultural workers' industry, then we must be told in what areas or in what provinces, or in what sectors of the agricultural industries these apply, because we know, Mr. Speaker, that in the rural areas the wages to these workers vary from one district to another. I might be told that, of course, the standard of living differs from one district to another. This might be correct, but the fact of the matter is this, that we cannot accept to vary from one employer to another in the same district.

Now, Mr. Speaker, as far as the powers vested with the Minister to declare some strikes as being illegal is concerned, I think he has acted rightly, and if my hon. friend wants to step in and become the Minister, I do not think there is any hope. He can keep on daydreaming.

Now, I would like to suggest to you, Sir, that we must have a code of declaring these strikes illegal.

An hon. Member: Shame on you.

Mr. ole Tipts: Whoever tries to shout shame on me should really be ashamed of himself.

Mr. Bonnet: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member right to call some people the stooges of the people?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I never heard him.

Mr. Kiprotich: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the person who is saying I was a Nairobi Ambassador.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry, but I did not hear him.

Hon. Members know very well that the word "stooge" is not to be used of any Member in this House, and if I hear it used by any Member in this House he will be asked to leave the Chamber, but, I did not hear it.

Mr. ole Tipts: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I mean by carrying a code whereby the strikes can be declared illegal by the Minister is that there must be some genuine cases where the workers in that particular trade union have a very strong case for calling a strike. Now, the machinery is already provided in this Bill to deal with that, but we should dismiss lightly that in this country we still have some hot-headed employers, officially some of them non-Africans, and the Government must deal with them very effectively. My hon. friend, the Specially Elected Member, Mr. Ochwada says that even some African friends. Yes, I agree. Any employer who is out to exploit the workers of this country must be treated by the Government ruthlessly.

Now, when we come to the Essential Services, I think the weakness in the past was that we narrowed down the list of the Essential Services, and even in the old days when the colonialists in this country ruled over us, we had a humane code of regulations, which the Masai have always had anyway.

THE TRADE DISPUTES BILL

(Minister for Labour and Social Service on 28th April 1965)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 28th April 1965)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mboya was speaking when we broke off yesterday, but I see he is not here. Does any hon. Member wish to speak?

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Bill is one of those Bill which this country has really been longing for for many years in that the Bill itself provides for the safeguard of all citizens of this country and that, Mr. Speaker, includes the workers, the employers and everybody in this country, against any irresponsible employers, trade union, or any group of persons.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as examples have already been given that previously there have been some strikes which even touched one of the Essential Services of this country which we very dearly need in this country. I for one, Mr. Speaker, Sir, feel that it is very important that Kenya as a developing country, and as a country which is having to work towards African socialism must have a Government which does not merely see the sight and watch its resources being rendered to a great confusion by mere irresponsible people who might be either the workers or the employers, because, Mr. Speaker, Sir, you realize that one of the things which hinder the progress of our country is poverty and so money and normally the strikes may start either from the worker's side or from the employer's side, because you find that in most industries, and if we could go into details and find out how many strikes there have been, you will find that most of the strikes which have taken place could have been avoided, if at all there was machinery whereby the Minister had the power to come in between and act impartially and force the existing machinery to be followed by the two sides. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this Bill gives the Minister such powers so that in any organized movements, in any industry where the workers are organized and in any enterprise where the employer has a large business, this particular employer should, by all means, be a member of the employers' organization whereby he will be answerable to the employers which deal directly with the trade union, and as a result, Mr. Speaker, Sir, you find that the strikes will be avoided, because if the Minister now comes in where there is a dispute before any action is taken he will try to find out who is at fault. Finally he will order that the existing machinery must be followed before a strike or action or lock-out is taken. I think Mr. Speaker, Sir, that this is a Bill which should be welcomed by any sensible person in this country because Kenya, as I said before, is developing country which should avoid as much as possible, some of these unnecessary strikes which I think are caused mainly by a misunderstanding, which could be avoided.

Secondly, Mr. Speaker, Sir, before this Bill was introduced in this House there was a wild rumour or claim by some people that it is intended to curb the activities of the unions. This, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is quite untrue, because the Bill in one way enables the Minister to come in as an independent arbitrator and this, from my own experience as a trade unionist in the past, where the trade unions were organized and the workers are members of the trade union and the employers as well are members of the employers' organization, it would be a very easy thing for the workers to express their views through the trade union leaders and also the employer will be compelled through the employers' organization to listen to whatever reasons the workers have. Therefore, I think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the unions of the workers in the country should not be misled by anybody in believing that the Bill is trying to curb the activities of a strike, to take away their right of a strike. This is not the way, Mr. Speaker, Sir. In fact the Bill has given workers more opportunities to organize themselves, it has even provided a check-off system, which in the past, Mr. Speaker, before the unions were well organized and could not very effectively run their organization because they were lacking funds although the members were willing to contribute. Not very many of them could, at the end of the month, really afford their union dues, and I think, according to what the Minister said yesterday, when he was moving this Bill, that he is quite willing to introduce a check-off system to any union which applies for it. I think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that this is a very good gesture on the part of the Ministry for the unions, for them to be allowed, at this particular moment, for the Government to make it a law, that whenever a union applies for a check-off system it will be the duty of the Ministry or the Minister for Labour and Social Services to tell the employer that this must be applied, and I think this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, will enrich our union organization in the country, and it will be open to them, now to challenge the employers' organization through the Industrial Court.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, which I think is very important is the question of the existence of the Industrial Court because this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the past, and also pioneers in the labour movement in this country were for many years demanding the introduction of the Industrial Court so that the workers' grievances could be heard fairly and the workers could explain their views through an independent and impartial chairman, and I think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have reached a pitch whereby now it is open to the unions themselves for the trade union leaders to show their sense of responsibility. To show that they represent the workers and that if they take the workers' case before the Industrial Court, it will be open to them and will be set free for them to express their views and to put their cases forward and if it is a genuine case, Mr. Speaker, Sir, then I am quite sure that the workers would every time be on the winning side. I also think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the position which gives the workers every chance, because the unions will be reached, because there will be a constant income through the check-off system and then they will be able to put their case through the Industrial Court, and as a result, Mr. Speaker, Sir, you will find that now we shall be in a position to minimize the external influence which has been coming into this country through the so-called financial aid. This has been coming, Mr. Speaker, Sir, because most of our unions are not financially independent and now that the Minister has seen it fit to agree that he is prepared to allow the check-off system to be introduced in certain unions, the ones which do apply for it, then I am quite confident that the unions will be financially sound and they will cut off their external influences which come through these financial aids. As a result of this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we shall reduce the ideological warfare which is taking place in our country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other point which I would like to point out is that for many years we have experienced a lot of unnecessary lock-outs or unnecessary strikes which normally are caused due to the fact that most of the employers in the country were very negative to ask for the organization or the reorganization of the workers, and I think now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that we have very responsible trade unions in the country, and these unions, at the moment, through the historical activities of the unions in Kenya, are quite capable of representing the workers at Court of Law, and therefore, I think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Bill gives the workers and the employers equal rights for them to challenge one another through the Industrial Court. I also think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that now there will be no question of the workers saying that or the unions saying that they are not able to put their case across to the Industrial Court because of lack of finance or lack of trust since now the Minister has agreed to allow the check-off system.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that this Bill should be given every support that is necessary so that we can start immediately acting on it by giving the workers their rights of bringing the case to the Industrial Courts and also by trying to stop the unnecessary strikes which normally are started as a result of a little misunderstanding on the part of the foreman or the shop steward, and as a result of this the workers come out on an immediate strike. This, Mr. Speaker, creates many difficulties to many people who are not involved in this case. For example, Mr. Speaker, Sir, you realize that at the moment there is a lot of grain in the country, and if the workers, say in the milling industry, say that they are going on strike because a foreman has beaten a shop steward, and when they brought the case to the management, they said that they could not listen to this case now there is machinery whereby we

[The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry]

That clause 17 of the Bill be amended by inserting immediately after the word "Government" the words "or the Organization".

(Question of the amendment that the words to be inserted be inserted proposed)

Mr. Omar: I am really wondering, Mr. Chairman, whether I ought to speak at this stage or later on.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): The debate is on clause 17 as a whole, it is not only on the amendment but the clause itself.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Chairman, I was going to ask the Assistant Minister to tell the House the arrangement under which is going to be adopted, because there are some local authorities who are landlords and they rent their premises for shops like butcheries, etc., to tenants, and it may be that the tenants will not be satisfied with the rent that they pay to the local authorities. We have these local authorities, Mr. Chairman, in Nairobi, in Mombasa, whereby the local authorities are the landlords and they rent shops to tenants, so we want to know what arrangements there are for those tenants of the local authorities; if they have complaints, to whom should they take those complaints?

Mr. Warilthi: Mr. Chairman, on clause 17, while I welcome the amendment proposed by the Assistant Minister, just to complete the list of the authorities which are exempted from this Act, but the point on which I would like to get an explanation from the Assistant Minister is this. It was maybe touched on yesterday by the Minister, but even now I would like it to be properly explained.

This Act provides the way of fixing rents, complaints, referring the matter to tribunals of tenants who are dissatisfied with the rents they are charged by the landlords, but here we have found that the Government and local authorities are exempt from the provisions of this Act. Just emphasizing the point raised by the hon. Mr. Omar, we would like to know what arrangements there are for Government premises. We know that they rent shops, beerhalls, establishments, restaurants. How are they going to fix their terms of tenancy, so that the tenants will not have any need to complain or go to tribunal? I think it is a bit unfair that the private landlords are subjected to this law, whereas the Government itself has decided to exempt itself from the provisions of this Act. Can we know from the Assistant Minister the reasons behind this?

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipit): Mr. Chairman, Sir, according to clause 17, the amendment was moved to remove the word "Government", Sir, and replacing it by "Organization", and I think, Mr. Chairman, Sir—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I am afraid that is not correct. It does not remove the word "Government", it merely adds the words "or the Organization".

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipit): Yes, clause 17 of the Bill is to be amended by inserting immediately after the word "Government" the words "or the Organization".

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I thought you said it removed the word "Government".

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipit): No, I did not say that. Therefore, I am not quite clear about the point Mr. Omar raised and I think that the tribunal or the organization, be it from private members of the public or from the Government, will deal with accordingly by these appointed persons of the tribunals.

Mr. Warilthi: Mr. Chairman, my point has not been answered by the Assistant Minister. I do not know whether I should repeat it again.

The point on which I would like clarification is this. How is the Government going to satisfy a tenant in giving a lease, to the extent that there will be no need for them to make use of the provisions of this Act, because section 17 of the Government, local authorities and the organization are exempt from the provision of this Act, so is the city council and all the rest? As I said, Mr. Chairman, we do know that they rent premises, not private premises but hotels, bars, shops, and butcheries. This Act will not be applicable to these authorities, so what are the tenants going to do if they are dissatisfied? Why is it that the Government has decided to exempt itself from the provisions of this Act?

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipit): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I think it is not discriminatory at all. We know that the Government of Kenya is the ruling Government and we expect the Government to rule its people well and treat its citizens well. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I do not think at all that the Government, although it will rent premises and the city council will rent premises, will give unfair treatment to the tenants who might rent their shops from the city council or from the local authorities or the Government.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Chairman, I think the Assistant Minister here is a little bit confused because he does not give a straight answer to the question put by hon. Warilthi and I. What we would like, Mr. Chairman, to be explained by the Assistant Minister, is that since the Government and the local authorities are excluded from this law, we would like to know the arrangements, under which the tenants of the local authorities in towns like Mombasa, Nairobi, and Kisumu rent their premises and what arrangements there are to protect the interests of these tenants who rent shops from the local authorities. Because, Mr. Chairman, what I can see here is that in some other towns there are better buildings which are owned by individual landlords and perhaps the tenants of these buildings would go to the tribunal and complain and the tribunal will hear their case and do something about it. You will find that the rents which are charged by the local authorities are very high in comparison to the rents charged by individual landlords and the tenants renting from the local authorities would like to take their complaint where it can be listened to and something done about it. I am much concerned about tenants of the local authorities. What arrangements are there for the tenants of the local authorities if there are complaints. Where will they take their complaints to?

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipit): Mr. Chairman, Sir, it is well known that when anybody has got a complaint and he is renting a shop from city council or local councils or county councils, if he is dissatisfied, Mr. Chairman, Sir, I think he has the right to complain directly to the local council concerned or to the city council, of which I think as I said previously, that the local government or the city council is part and parcel of the Government; of course the city council or the local authority will hear the complaints of the tenants in the same manner as if it were the tribunal.

Mr. Warilthi: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I do not know whether the Assistant Minister is trying to refuse to answer this point or maybe he is not aware of the provisions of this Bill. This Bill is aware of the provisions of this Bill, and when the Minister replied he stated that the inspectors to be appointed would be assessing the rents by the buildings. Now in this case the premises or buildings owned by this Government or local authorities are not to be reassessed there will be no authority on which the rent will be set under this Act, and what we want to know is if a tenant is dissatisfied by the rents charged by the local authority or by the Government and he cannot refer to the tribunal set-up under this Act, what is he going to do? Has the Government satisfied itself that these people will be satisfied and there will be no need for them to feel that they are being exploited by the Government or the local authorities like any other tenants of private premises?

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipit): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I think as I said earlier—I am not trying to escape replying to this and it is not that I do not know the provisions of this, but as I said, I hope that all those tenants who are renting shops or premises from the Government or local authorities will have a fair hearing from the city council or the local authority and I hope they will be treated fairly well on their rents.

Report

THE LANDLORD AND TENANT (SHOPS, HOTELS AND CATERING ESTABLISHMENTS) BILL.

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am directed by the Committee of the whole House to report that the Committee has considered the Landlord and Tenant (Shops, Hotels and Catering Establishments) Bill and approved thereof with amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Consideration of report tomorrow?

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiipit): Today, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is our practice when there have been amendments in Committee when there have been amendments in Committee not to consider the report the same day, but by leave of the House we will do so. If no hon. Member objects, we will move to the consideration.

[Mr. Somu]

- (b) How such a programme was going to be implemented in each province.
- (c) What efforts were being made immediately to get suitable teachers from overseas before our own programme produced the teachers.

The Assistant Minister for Education. (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) It is not intended to institute courses of training for teachers in the Harambee schools specifically. As is generally known, a crash programme to prepare P.I. teachers for service in secondary schools is now under way. They are all teaching in established schools, where they get the best in-service training, but it is expected that some of them will find their way to Harambee schools when they finish their course. It is obvious that only people who have themselves, at least, completed a secondary school course satisfactorily, are suitable for training as teachers in secondary schools. There is a place in a training course of this kind available for every qualified student who applies for training and this fact is known to every secondary school-leaver.

(b) The crash programme of training is being organized on a national, not a provincial basis. Similarly, all normal training of non-graduate secondary teachers, is concentrated at the new Kenyatta College, where places are available for all qualified students from all parts of the country. The training of graduate teachers takes place at Makerere, and all Kenya graduates offering themselves for training, receive full salary during their course.

(c) The recruitment of expatriate teachers is proceeding as fast as possible, and an officer of my Ministry has just returned from London, where he conducted our second special drive for teachers, which has yielded 100 British graduate teachers. These special drives are planned to satisfy future needs.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, Sir, he told the House that the training is going on of teachers who will take up teaching in the Harambee schools. What is going to happen in the meantime while these people are being trained? Would it not, therefore, Mr. Speaker, be sensible to try and institute a system similar to that one in countries overseas where graduates are supposed to serve in the army for three years before taking up a profession; could we not institute the same here so that Makerere graduates could be kept here for a time teaching our students?

Mr. Mutiso: No, Sir, this is not possible, because one of the conditions of establishing a Harambee secondary school is for the people themselves to think of their constituents first before they think of establishing a school.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, is he aware that if the Government itself is in difficulties in finding teachers, it is physically impossible for the people in the countryside to find teachers when the Government itself is in trouble with the teachers? Therefore, we should accept this suggestion as sensible.

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Member was listening when I replied to the question, I did state that we have already organized a crash programme whereby we intend to train more teachers, and some of these teachers are going to secondary schools.

Mr. Ndile: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister has just told us that his Minister has been able to get about 100 graduates from London, so will he tell the House when these graduates will be available to teach in our schools?

Mr. Mutiso: I said, Mr. Speaker, that an offer from our Ministry has just returned from London, and he succeeded in getting about 100 graduates from the British universities. These graduates will soon be in the country, and it is found that some of them can find positions in the Harambee schools, then this will be no problem.

Mr. Glehoyr: Arising from the previous reply from the Assistant Minister, that in a school, before it is started, the management ought to have the teachers, and these Harambee schools allowed to negotiate with other countries, so as to arrange for their own teachers if the Minister is not able to help them?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am quite sure that the hon. Member is quite aware that the Harambee secondary schools are not just Government schools, and the system which we have in the Ministry of getting teachers from overseas is that these people can only teach in the Government-aided schools, but not in independent schools. If the people who want to establish a Harambee school can find their way to getting teachers from anywhere, that is their own business.

BILL

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE

(Order for Committee read)

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

IN THE COMMITTEE

(The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade) took the Chair)

THE LANDLORD AND TENANT (SHOPS, HOTELS AND CATERING ESTABLISHMENTS) BILL

Clause 2

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiptip): Mr. Chairman, Sir, the House was promised yesterday by the Minister for Commerce and Industry that he would extend the meaning of the word "shop" to include all types and groups of trade. Therefore, I beg to move the following amendment:

THAT the definition of "shop" which appears in clause 2 of the Bill be amended by inserting immediately after the word "retail" the words "or wholesale" and by adding immediately after the word "business" the words "or for the purpose of rendering services for money or money's worth".

(Question of the amendment that the words to be inserted be inserted proposed put and agreed to)

(Clause 2 as amended agreed to)

(Clauses 3, 4 and 5 agreed to)

Clause 6

Mr. Omar: Mr. Chairman, I have a few points to make on clause 6 where it says, "A tenant who wishes to oppose a notice of termination or alteration served on him by the landlord under the provisions of section 4 of this Act..."

[The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Chairman (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

During the Second Reading of this Bill, Mr. Chairman, I expressed my views and asked the Minister about a tenant who cannot afford to pay the fees for the tribunal, and the Minister when he was replying, but I did not hear it, so I would like the Assistant Minister to tell the House what will happen if a tenant cannot afford to pay the tribunal fees; what will happen to him? Probably he would be willing to take the matter to the tribunal, but he has no money to pay the tribunal fees.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiptip): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I think the Minister for Commerce and Industry yesterday replied to the views expressed by the hon. Member, my friend Mr. Omar, that it is quite clear that when a person wants to rent any shop it means that he has money to pay the tenancy. It is quite clear that there is no use to a particular person intending to rent a shop if he does not have any money at all. It was made quite clear that anybody who wants to rent a shop must see that he has sufficient money to do so, otherwise he should not rent a shop if he has no money at all. I think that was made clear yesterday by the Minister for Commerce and Industry.

The question of borrowing, Sir, does not arise here. Money is given to people to borrow money who have businesses already and anybody who has a business, Mr. Chairman, Sir, must have money. Therefore, this was clearly answered yesterday by the Minister, Sir.

(Clause 6 agreed to)

(Clauses 7, 8, 9 and 10 agreed to)

Clause 11

Mr. Omar: Mr. Chairman, Sir, under this clause I would like the Minister to tell us something because it says here, "A tribunal shall consist of a person or persons appointed as such by the Minister..." We would like to know the number of persons in case the Minister feels that he would appoint more than one person; we would like to know the number of persons who will be appointed. I am asking this question, Mr. Chairman, because it is going to involve payment of money as it says in subsection (2), "Persons other than public officers appointed under the provisions of subsection (1) of this section shall be paid such emoluments or allowances as the Minister shall determine." So we would like to know the limited number of persons who can be appointed as a tribunal.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiptip): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I do not think there is any limited number, as mentioned in this Bill, Sir. In fact, when appointing persons, it might be a tribunal, you need know that whenever there is a tribunal, you need know a fair number to express views and to discuss how to deal with such an idea, but you cannot expect a tribunal to be composed of one person.

(Clause 11 agreed to)

(Clauses 12, 13, 14, 15 and 16 agreed to)

Clause 17

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Oloitiptip): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I beg to move the following amendment on this particular clause. The purpose of moving this amendment to clause 17 is to include the East African Common Services Organisation. The amendment reads as follows:

[The Assistant Minister for Local Government] welfare of the African public it would be failing in its duty if the funds were to be directed towards enriching the pockets of a few individuals. If the profits are made to accommodate few private individuals, there must result a short-fall of income to pay for either the social services and amenities, grants to public bodies, Lady Grigg, schools and last and not least the payment of salaries and wages of African Trust Fund and social services staff. Furthermore, if private sellers are allowed to sell at a price higher than at present, the general public would be laid open to exploitation and the liquor would no longer be cheap for the low earning group; at the same time, the liquor would be laid open to adulteration and control on illegal brews made difficult.

In conclusion I must make it quite clear that the municipal council has no power to issue licences to brew and sell African intoxicating liquor.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister then consider repealing that Act in order that the co-operative societies can take part in this sell of African liquor?

Mr. Njiriri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, No.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell the House the reason why he cannot repeal that particular Act, to enable poor Africans to participate in this business?

Mr. Njiriri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that section is under the municipal council and I would like to inform the hon. Member that..... (Inaudible)

Mr. Omas: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that the poor and unemployed Africans were waiting for this reply so that if it is negative they may boycott the drink?

Mr. Njiriri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the last time I was in Mombasa..... (Inaudible) and as far as I know there were some..... (Inaudible)

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as far as the council is connected with this Ministry, could the Assistant Minister find out why the poor people are not being permitted to be given licences to sell the liquor?

Mr. Njiriri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have done everything we could as far as Africans are concerned.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that there are more than 30,000 unemployed and poor Africans in Mombasa, would it be practical to give licences to all these people?

Mr. Njiriri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that would be impossible.

Question No. 1089

EQUAL PAY FOR EQUAL WORK: RAILWAY EMPLOYEES

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister for Works, Communications and Power whether the Minister would recommend to the Railway Administration immediate adoption of a policy of "Equal pay for equal work" in Kenya. Secondly, if he would consider the removal of inducement privileges offered to man-citizens of Kenya within the Railways and Harbours Administration.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The policy of the East African Railways and Harbours Administration is "Equal pay for equal work", but there are two exceptions, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to this policy.

One is that there are differences in low wages paid to employees working in rural areas and those working in the other areas, because of the differences in the cost of living.

Secondly, also, Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are those officers whose terms of service have not yet been adjusted to fit in with a report which is called the Harries Report which was implemented in 1962 and these are expatriate officers who have been seconded to the Railways from overseas.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister not agree with me that the recent strike by the Kenya African Railway Union during the past few days was due to the fact that seventy-seven officers were paid more than the Africans although they were doing the same job?

Mr. Mwanjumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not agree that that was the reason why there was any dispute with the railways trade unions, but the fact is that these expatriate officers are paid the same inducement benefits because of the agreement which Kenya has with, say, a country like Great Britain.

Mr. Kipruthi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, when is the Minister going to implement "Equal pay for equal work"?

Mr. Mwanjumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have said that this is being done already in the Administration, with the exception of the two categories of employees I have just mentioned. It is already being done, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the Minister's replies, is he prepared to tell the House that he is working for the removal of this class of personnel in the Administration who have to be induced to work so that the "Equal pay for equal work" policy is applicable to all?

Mr. Mwanjumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member knows that it is the policy of the Authority to Africanize posts which can be Africanized, but until they are able to get local officers to fill all these posts, it will be impossible for the Administration to remove the expatriate officers who are doing good work for the country.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister tell the House whether it is true that part of the inducement paid to some of the expatriate employees of the railways is actually not paid by the Railway's Administration but by the British Government?

Mr. Mwanjumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is the case. These expatriate officers are paid part of their salaries by the United Kingdom Government.

Question No. 1096

EVICTON OF AFRICANS FROM TAKAUNGU AND VIPINGO

Mr. Omas: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement if he would state the reasons why Africans who were living at Takaungu and Vipingo were being evicted by some Arabs and Vipingo Estate.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. My Ministry is not aware that any Africans have been evicted from Takaungu and Vipingo. However, if the hon. Member for Mombasa Island South has information to this effect and if he wishes to request my Ministry to consider the victims of such eviction for land settlement he is welcome to do so.

My Ministry is prepared to give such a request the most sympathetic consideration.

Mr. Omas: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, is the Assistant Minister not aware that when the Minister for Economic Planning and Development came to the Coast about three weeks ago, he was told by the persons from these areas, Takaungu and Vipingo Estates, that there were eviction orders served on some people?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister for Economic Planning and Development, although he is in the same Government, is a little different from the Minister for Lands and Settlement, and whereas there is a collective responsibility, I would like to hope that the Minister for Economic Planning and Development will soon inform my Ministry.

Mr. Omas: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, can the Minister for Economic Planning and Development give assurances in this House that he will go into the matter?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, he is not answering this question.

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell this House that since this has been reported to the Minister for Economic Planning and Development, and it is almost two months old, whether he has received a report or not from the Ministry?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I have said, this actually does not concern us. If the Minister for Economic Planning has already been informed, and in any case the Minister is not answerable to the Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement, as I have said, the only thing my Ministry can do is to assist people who might have suffered as a result of evictions and I do not feel that there is any necessity for pursuing this matter if such an assurance has been given, and if the necessary information has been communicated to the Minister for Economic Planning and Development.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is any hon. Member authorized to ask Mr. Rurumban's question.

Mr. Somo, you are authorized to ask Mr. Ngala's question?

Question No. 2039

TEACHER-TRAINING PROGRAMMES FOR HARARABEE SCHOOLS

Mr. Somo, on behalf of Mr. Ngala, asked the Minister for Education to state—

- (a) When the Ministry intended to start a crash teacher-training programme to cope with the needs of the many Hararabee secondary schools now starting.

[Mr. Gatuguta] there are no textbooks on African socialism; could he then tell this House how African socialism is being taught in the Lumumba Institute?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, the Lumumba Institute is an independent institute which does not necessarily come under the Ministry of Education.

Mr. Ochiwinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell the House whether the Ministry thinks that African socialism as a subject in schools is nationally desirable?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, the question whether African socialism is nationally desirable for our schools is a question for this House to decide.

Mr. Kamuren: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the Assistant Minister's replies, could he tell the House whether teachers in the Lumumba Institute are not recognized in this country?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, we are getting far away from the question now.

Mr. Gatuguta: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply that the Lumumba Institute is a private institute, could the Assistant Minister tell us whether they have no responsibility whatsoever to make sure that the education in this country, whether private or Government is in keeping with our policy and so on?

Mr. Malisori-Imbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, will he assure the House or tell the House what type of socialism is being taught in the Lumumba Institute?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask a question on behalf of the hon. Mr. Ngala.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That will come at the end.

Question No. 2033

MARKETING OF EXPORTS

Mr. Malinda asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry if the Minister was aware that all Kenya products (sisal, wattle bark and pyrethrum) were marketed on the international market through "sole agents" having headquarters outside Kenya.

If the answer was in the affirmative, when did the Minister envisage rectifying this anomaly to enable the handling of Kenya products either by a Government body or by Kenya agents in Kenya?

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Murgoti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have not received briefing on this question, and so I cannot answer it.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that Ministers and Members of Parliament must respect this House and at the same time act accordingly, is it in order for the Assistant Minister for Agriculture, who knows very well that this question was being brought up in this House today, to say that he was not briefed to answer this question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not entirely out of order for a Minister to say that he is not ready to answer a question, but it may arouse dissatisfaction in the House if he is not. The House can register its dissatisfaction.

Mr. Malinda: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I want to put a little amendment after the word "pyrethrum".

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think you can at this point.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, it appears there has been some confusion, could the question be called again?

The Assistant Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Otiobip): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the confusion is from the Minister for Economic Planning and Development referring to is the confusion with regard to the fact that one of the other Assistant Ministers is just sitting there and not paying any attention to the questions as they are called.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Malinda, would you ask your question again?

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, before I ask this question, I would like to add "eteetera" after the word "pyrethrum".

I wish to ask Question No. 2033.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would inform hon. Members that they cannot alter their questions at the point when they appear on the Order Paper, though they can correct them before.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to apologize to the House for my lateness, but if it could be remembered that this

[The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry] question was put sometime back in this House to the Minister for Marketing and Co-operatives and it was sent to our Ministry which needed a lot of time to answer it. With those remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to reply.

My reply is in three parts, Mr. Speaker. The first part concerns sisal. The marketing agencies are based here in Kenya, Mr. Speaker, and any agents, including the hon. Questioner of this question, could apply to the Sisal Board to become a selling agent overseas.

As far as pyrethrum is concerned it is very difficult for us to have agencies based here, because the agencies we have, have to advertise, and sell in the countries in which they are based, this is because of the competition they have with synthetic insecticides overseas, and for that reason we have to base the agencies there to advertise pyrethrum for us.

As far as wattle bark is concerned, Sir we are tied with international agreements which guarantee us from suffering from competition with the wild wattle trees which grow in Central and South America. If we had agencies here, we would be kicked out of the agreement and the wattle bark from the trees which grow wild in Central and South America would flood the market and the wattle bark which we grow would have no chance of selling on the world market. That is the reply.

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, does the Assistant Minister realize that by having these agents outside of Kenya, some countries which could deal direct with Kenya for these commodities do not do so?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sorry, I did not understand the question. I wonder if the hon. Member would be kind enough to repeat it.

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I meant to say is this, does the Minister realize that by the virtue of fact that these agencies are out of Kenya and there are some countries which would like to trade in these commodities, they cannot do so because these agencies are not in Kenya, can the Assistant Minister tell us what steps he is taking to have this extra trade with countries which will not trade with us while the agencies are outside of Kenya?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, no country has given us an indication that it is not willing to buy such commodities which has sole agents overseas, but if this was brought to our notice, obviously the Government will think of the steps to take.

Mr. Aoyleni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware of the fact that Kenya relies on overseas sole agents which encourages the export of the money that Kenya so much requires for its own development?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not agree with the hon. Member on this allegation.

Mr. Gatuguta: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister assure this House that the sole agency of all these goods will in the future be controlled by the Kenya National Trading Company?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to make that assurance, so long as we are not going to be drawn away from the international agreements to which we are tied with some of these commodities.

Mr. Anykeni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister has just replied that it is not a direct encouragement of the export of capital to overseas countries. I would like the Assistant Minister to tell us for example, how much it is going to cost the Kenya Government to employ overseas sole agents to import half a million bags of maize from the United States to Kenya?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member is asking something completely different, because he is referring me to the import of a commodity and we are, at this time, arguing on the export of certain Kenya grown products.

Question No. 1094

LICENSING OF LIQUOR-SELLERS: MOMBASA

Mr. Omar asked the Minister for Local Government if he could tell the House the reasons why the Mombasa Municipal Council refused to licence poor and unemployed Africans for the purchase of African liquor from the municipality for resale to consumers in the municipal canteens.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Njiru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Mombasa Municipal Council has been granted the exclusive rights under section 34 of the African Liquor Act to manufacture and sell African intoxicating liquor. The council cannot let out this right to liquor to or to contract. The request in the question was placed before the appropriate committee and the committee were of the unanimous opinion that the African Trust being a fund agreement that the African Trust being a fund devoted to the maintenance of amenities and

[Mr. Bly]

(b) Would the Government remove this sign and replace it with informative signs, showing the various Ministries housed in the building.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office (Dr. Waiyaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) It is sufficiently well known that the Central Government Building is the Office of the Vice-President and it is therefore entirely appropriate that it should bear the said sign. The Vice-President of the Republic of Kenya is second in command. It is therefore in order that the building in which his office is situated must clearly show that fact.

The motive behind the question can only be described as deplorable.

(b) No, Sir. The Government is not prepared to remove the sign. Neither is it prepared to display a stark and monumental example of futility by covering the whole building with a list of the Ministries housed in the building. A vast expanse of space would be required for this unnecessary exercise.

A machinery exists by which any Ministry's offices can be easily found and any intelligent person cannot get lost. At the entrance is a board clearly showing the location of each Ministry.

Mr. Bly: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as this question stands, some of the hon. Members, plus myself, usually get lost when they just want to get to the Ministry of Home Affairs, for example. Could the Government give us some information on where the Ministries which are housed in the Central Government Building are situated?

Dr. Waiyaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member said that he usually gets lost when he tries to get to the Ministry of Home Affairs. Might I suggest that he might follow the Minister for Home Affairs to his office?

Mr. Mhogobi: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that even the other Ministries are located in such places that it is difficult to find them, will the Assistant Minister consider publishing a paper to be distributed to every hon. Member stating exactly where the Ministry is so that nobody gets lost?

Dr. Waiyaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as a matter of fact, we were discussing Central Government Building, but if the Members would like a list of all the Ministries, then I suggest that he approaches the hon. Mr. Nyamwaya, who is in the Office of the President.

Mr. ole Tshipi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could we hear from the Assistant Minister, arising from one of his replies, that the Office of the Vice-President is exclusively for the Vice-President, and if not, why such other Ministries, such as Agriculture, Natural Resources, and so on, are not so-situated as the office of the Minister for So-and-so? We want to know.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The Assistant Minister has answered that.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since it looks as if the Vice-President's Office is confining Members of Parliament, by its being situated in the Central Government Building, would the Assistant Minister recommend to the Government that the Vice-President's Office should be removed from the Central Government Building, and be given a separate building of its own?

Dr. Waiyaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not accept that the Office of the Vice-President is confining anybody, let alone a Member of Parliament.

Question No. 1079

POOR SHOWING OF GOATS AT ROYAL SHOW

Mr. Amin asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry why the poorest goats from the North-Eastern Province were shown at the recent Royal Show which lowered the dignity of the North-Eastern Province and Kenya as a whole.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Assuming that by Royal Show, the hon. Member means the last year's show in Nairobi, no goats from the North-Eastern Province were shown at the Show.

Mr. Amin: Mr. Speaker, arising from that reply, there were two goats from the North-Eastern Region, and they changed the name from—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Will you repeat that question.

Mr. Amin: Mr. Speaker, I asked whether the Minister was aware that there were two goats from the North-Eastern Region shown at the last Royal Show and they changed the names from goats to shenzi type?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware of any goats being shown at the Nairobi Show last year from the North-Eastern Province. There were two goats entered in the 1964 Show, and these were from Kisima Farm Ltd., of Timau, and there were four goats from the Veterinary Faculty of the University College of Nairobi.

Mr. Kamau: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it in order for any hon. Member in the House to term other hon. Members as stooges of the imperialists when they just speak on a Motion. I ask that because the hon. Mr. Anyieni has said "stooges of imperialism" on the question of the Vice-President.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members know that when a point of order is raised they must remain silent. You allege, Mr. Kamau that Mr. Anyieni called somebody a stooge?

Mr. Kamau: Yes, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said that and he will not deny that when this point of the Vice-President was discussed, he did say "stooges of imperialism".

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Anyieni, did you say that?

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is saying that I shouted. If I shouted, you would have heard it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I want to know whether you said it all the same, whether I heard it or not.

Mr. Anyieni: The hon. Member said I shouted it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I want to know whether you said it.

Mr. Anyieni: I did not say it, Mr. Speaker.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, is it in order for an hon. Member of this House to tell a deliberate lie?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. I am no judge of what is a deliberate lie if I have not heard it.

Mr. Kihliff: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the replies of the Assistant Minister, would he indicate the goats which were named shenzi and from which area they came?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I say we never had any goats from anywhere which were referred to as shenzi. The judges reported all these goats to be of a very high standard.

Mr. Jahazi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, may I seek your guidance, as to whether the Minister may answer that there were not any, while, in fact, we can substantiate that there were goats, labelled as shenzi goats.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think three or four times in the course of the last three days, I have answered the same point of order, that Members cannot complain of inaccuracy in an answer given by a Minister as a point of order. It is not for me to rule, as a matter of order, whether the Minister's answers are accurate. It is for hon. Members to list them or follow them up by supplementary questions if they so desire; or if they prove immediately or subsequently that the Minister has spoken an untruth, he can be required to acknowledge this to the House. That is all. I am not going to answer this point of order again.

Question No. 2029

AFRICAN SOCIALISM TO BE TAUGHT IN SCHOOLS

Mr. Ndle asked the Minister for Education if he was prepared to introduce African socialism as a subject to be taught in schools in Kenya.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Minister for Education is always prepared to consider introducing the teaching of any subject in Kenya schools if a subject is educationally sound and nationally desirable and provided, of course, there are suitable textbooks.

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, that the Ministry of Education is prepared to introduce a subject to be taught in school, provided it is educationally sound, could the Assistant Minister tell us whether African socialism is not sound in view of the fact that our Government is adopting it as an ideology for Kenya Africans.

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, for the information of the hon. Member I said that the Ministry of Education is prepared to introduce a subject provided that there are suitable textbooks for it and the hon. Member is now aware that African socialism, Sessional Paper No. 10, has just been introduced into this House and has not been debated, therefore there is, as yet, no accepted definition of African socialism as such. The Ministry of Education could not even plan for its introduction into schools until the time when this subject has been defined by this House and accepted, then we shall plan for the introduction of textbooks for it.

Mr. Gataguta: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply in which he says

[The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing]

Assuming the "world market" refers to price and not demand, the answers to the hon. Member's question are:—

(a) Cashew nuts—price per ton.

	High	Average	Low
1964	£68	£60	£48
1965	£75.10.0.	£72	£67

(b) Copra—price per frassila.

	High	Average	Low
1964	Sh. 20	Sh. 19	Sh. 18
1965	Sh. 23	Sh. 22	Sh. 21

(c) Simsim—price per ton at Mombasa.

	High	Average	Low
1964	£62.10.0.	£55	£50
1965	£66	£63.10.0.	£62.10.0.

Question No. 2003DEVELOPMENT PLANS FOR SAMBURU

Mr. Rurumban asked the Minister for Economic Planning and Development what plans, if any, the Minister had included in the revised Development Plan for the Samburu District.

REPLY

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): The revision of the Six-Year Development Plan has not yet been completed and consequently it is not possible to give a detailed account of the proposed development of the Samburu District at this stage.

The Government is aware of the need to accelerate development in Samburu. Indeed, as the hon. Member will recall, the Government supported a Motion on this subject in the House on 24th September, 1964. Moreover, a meeting to discuss agricultural and livestock development in Samburu District was held in Nakuru only this month. Some of the recommendations agreed at the meeting will be incorporated in the Development Plan. This shows the Government's awareness of the need to have a planned programme of development for Samburu District, and indeed, for all districts of the Republic.

But as the Government has stated in this House the people themselves can and must do a lot for their own development. In Samburu it would appear that there is now a change from the former attitude of resistance to change to an attitude of co-operation and desire to develop. This is a welcome change. I would appeal to the hon. Member from this area to impress upon his constituency the importance of self-help and particularly what has been achieved in other parts of Kenya by the people themselves through this method.

PRAYERSCOMMUNICATIONS FROM THE CHAIR*SENATE MESSAGE ON BILL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have to inform hon. Members that I have received a message from the Senate that they have agreed to the Nurses, Midwives and Health Visitors Bill without amendment, on Tuesday, 27th April 1965.

SHORTAGE OF REPORTING STAFF

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have also to inform hon. Members that unfortunately, owing to an unexpected shortage of HANSARD staff, we shall not be able to take any matters on adjournment next week, while the Senate is also sitting.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONSQuestion No. 1080*SOMALIS IN GOVERNMENT SERVICE

Mr. Amin asked the President if he could tell the House how many Somali clerical staff there were in the Government services and how many were in senior posts?

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There are thirty-two Somali clerks in the Government services, of whom four are clerical officers and twenty-eight are junior clerical officers. Of the four clerical officers, two are acting as executive officers grade 3. I may add that of the thirty-two clerks, twenty-four are employed in the North-Eastern Province, seven in the Eastern Province and one in the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting.

Mr. Speaker, since the question specifically refers to the clerical staff I have given the answer to that effect, but if the Member wishes to know, I would like to inform him that there are over 484 other Somalis employed in various Government departments.

The breakdown of the 464 posts which are held by the Somalis are two administrative officers, four district assistants, three trainee district assistants, one information assistant, six P3 teachers, three P4 teachers, one untrained teacher, one graded dresser, one technical assistant in the Veterinary Department, two veterinary assistants grade 3, and I do not know whether the hon. Member really wants me to give all the breakdown, but if he wants then I am prepared to do that.

Mr. Amin: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, is the Assistant Minister aware that some of these clerks are still on the same salary scale of £90 per annum—as they were four years ago?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is a very different question. The question refers to how many Somali clerical staff. If he wants to ask a question on salaries, I will be able to deal with that separately.

Mr. Some: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Assistant Minister tell this House, among the Somalis who are being employed by the Kenya Government as clerical staff, is there any Somali who has been promoted to be a district commissioner?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thought the hon. Member was listening when I was reading the breakdown of 464 Somalis employed. I began with those who are employed at the highest level and we expect that those now holding the office of district officer and district assistants will prove that they are worthy to be promoted to district commissioners.

Mr. Kerich: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister tell the House among these clerks he has mentioned how many are pensionable?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Member is not aware of the conditions of service of civil servants, I am not going to do his work for him.

Question No. 2023STAFFAGE OF SALARIES: PROVINCIAL ADMINISTRATION

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to withdraw my question.

Question No. 2034OFFICES IN THE VICE-PRESIDENT'S OFFICE

Mr. Bly asked the Vice-President:

(a) In view of the fact that several different Ministries were housed in the Central Government Building, why did it bear the sign "Office of the Vice-President" at the front of the building, implying that the building was only used by the Vice-President.

[The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence]

Also there have been cases of looting and this derives from what used to happen in the old days, when we had the Johnnies. The Johnnies really, Mr. Speaker, Sir, were the Lancashire Fusiliers. They dressed up in queer uniforms sometimes and when the people saw them they would run away. Sometimes it was out of sheer panic, and nothing happened.

Now I have heard an allegation made here that it may be that the Government is working against the Luos, as a tribe. I am a senior member of that tribe. If I knew that the Government was working against the Luos, would I be working in that Government? An allegation has also been made here about Sarah Adongo. Sarah Adongo was the wife of a very senior person, and this man was a man who was loved and was dear to many people in Nyanza. It is alleged here that Sarah Adongo and Wilkista were raped. I would suggest to the Member for Winam, who has made these allegations, that he should give any facts to the proper authority. Allegations of this nature, particularly against the security forces, must be specific, Mr. Speaker. They should not be general, because they go to the very root of the security of this country.

If there are specific cases of this kind—I perhaps should not tell you because there are girls here!—the obvious thing is to take the girl to a doctor's surgery. There will be an examination, certain tests will be made, and the man will be brought to justice, be he a policeman or anyone else.

Mr. Nyallick: I have got a point of order, Mr. Speaker. I would like to produce a receipt, pertaining to Mrs. Adongo, which was written on that day, a hospital medical receipt.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is a point of information, but an important one. The Assistant Minister might like to hear it.

Mr. Nyallick: It reads: "Sarah Adongo, wife of John Kanyaku, having been hit on the right eye during a police operation on 8th April 1965," and then there are some medical terms I am unable to read.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argaga-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the usual police procedure is to deal with that particular case immediately. If Sarah Adongo was hit, the doctor is a responsible professional man, and he would say that she had been hit. But she might have been hit by her boyfriend.

Now certain allegations have been made that arms are being smuggled into Nyanza, and that was one reason why we had to give the House general information this afternoon. There is nothing beyond what the Minister for Internal Security stated here, about smuggling of arms and ammunition. In any part of Kenya, if there are any arms being smuggled anywhere, the Government knows about it, and if any particular Member of this House knows that Mr. X is keeping arms and ammunition at his home, it is the duty and responsibility of the Member, being an elected official, to go to the proper authorities and tell the person there that there are arms in such and such a place. The President, in fact, Mr. Speaker, has offered a reward to any Member of this House who will show us where the arms and ammunition are. We have never said that there are arms and ammunition in Nyanza.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, on the 8th, in fact, there was a duty patrol, and, on information received, it was the General Service Unit and the local police. This operation started from Kisumu police station. They went to a place called Ohounga and one called Njamwitak. When they went to these places, they arrested a number of people for being in possession of Nubian gin and for other offences. Twenty-four people were arrested, Sir. Out of the twenty-four people arrested and taken to Kisumu police station, after being charged for these offences, some complained that they had been knocked around. The police gave them the usual P3 form and told them to go to the doctor. There are a number of doctors and hospitals in Kisumu. Of the people who complained that they had been beaten up, not one of them complained of having been raped. I must say this for the benefit of the country—only two people—and the police had told them, "After you have been to the doctor, please come back here so we can charge a particular person—only two came back. And in the case of these two people, the doctors they had seen indicated that neither of them had any visible signs of injury. Nothing there."

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, let nobody think that this was an action by the General Service Unit alone. It was an operation from Police Headquarters, and carried out in conjunction with the regular police of the area, who know the area.

I must also say here that I have got it on good authority that these people were being obstructive to the police. According to these laws of Kenya on the Table here, obstructing a police officer in the due execution of his duty is an offence and these people know this. The General Service Unit members are just like ordinary police officers; they have got the usual police powers, and wherever they are, they work under a very senior officer.

I must say, finally, that from what I have heard lately, this kind of case, not only involving the General Service Units, is on the increase in every area of Nyanza, and the Attorney-General is likely to send a special judge to deal with these matters.

In conclusion, may I appeal to the Members concerned as I come from that particular area, to let the law take its course so that we can see to it that the law takes its course.

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is very little to add to what the Assistant Minister has said about this case. I just stand up because a piece of paper was handed to me, on which a proper interpretation must be put. It was proper evidence that Mrs. Sarah Adongo, wife of John, was beaten up. In this case, it does not show this; it just says that she was hit on the eye during police operations and she had some pain and conjunctivitis—the eye was red—but it does not say that the woman was hit by the police. It could have been anybody at all. That is the first thing.

Secondly, the part that the hon. Member at the back there could not read says that the woman was given codein, adrenalin and achrocyrin, which are just drugs to treat it. There is no evidence in this paper to show that the police were involved.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, yesterday, when this thing came up, I said that we were quite willing to throw all our forces into the work of investigating this and then to deal with anybody who was proved to be a criminal in connection with this offence, and this we still intend to do. I would ask the hon. Members from Central Nyanza, those who say they have facts, to report those facts to the right places; not only to speak in the House but to report them to where action can be taken. I therefore invite them to go to the police with the names of the men who were beaten up completely or not completely, by the General Service Unit, as was said yesterday, and also the women who were raped, because we consider that this is something which is very serious, and action will be taken if these things can be proven. But we do want this action to be taken and I do invite hon. Members who have mentioned these things to go to the police, and I assure them that proper action will be taken if we find any of the General Service Unit or police have been incriminated in this. I stand to assure the Members of that.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that the General Service Units are going to continue having exercises throughout Kenya because it is their work to guard Kenya. Not only the General Service Units, but the army also, will carry out exercises anywhere. Therefore if you find the General Service Units or the army carrying out exercises anywhere, it is because of their duty to guard Kenya and to protect it and all its citizens. Therefore, if you find them in Kiambu, in Central Nyanza, in Meru or in Taita, it should not be thought that this Government is working against a certain tribe, but that we are doing it for the interests of the whole community of Kenya.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is the end of our half-hour. The House is now adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, 29th April, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at Seven o'clock.

WRITTEN REPLIES TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 1025

WORLD MARKET PRICES FOR COASTAL PRODUCTS

Mr. Omar asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would tell the House:—

- What was the world market price for cashew nuts for the growers for the years 1964 and 1965.
- What was the world market price for copra for the growers for the year 1965.
- What was the world market price for simsim for the growers for the years 1964 and 1965.

REPLY

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngũgĩ): The responsibility for the marketing of cashew nuts, copra and simsim falls within my portfolio and I therefore have to reply to the hon. Member's question.

to us whether we are in a state of war in this country. It is here, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that we are surprised in our constituency that wherever we move about, the constituents are asking us to tell them whether we are within the Government, because this is not a colonial government, and even more so that the people are put in a state of panic that they cannot have the economic planning carried out, we have, Sir, a number of women who were beaten up and raped on that day, and the reasons for this we are unable to tell and the Government must get up and tell us very clearly why in Central Nyanza particularly we are being beaten up. We do not know, because as a Member of the area we must be in a position to tell our people what has gone wrong. We have put our grievances to this House several times that there are some areas in the country where things have been going on such as burning our sugar cane/ but so far the Government has taken no action to bring these people to justice.

Now, the innocent people who were in their own homes, after they had retired to bed with no knowledge at all of what was to come, find to their surprise that the G.S.U. come into their houses, beating the people and raping the women, Sir.

Hon. Members: Shame.

Mr. Nyalick: Is it the colonial government that you are fighting for or the African Government that we have? Are we to be told that the Luos are false and not connected with this Government? We are part and parcel of this Government and we have our place in this country? Why cannot we share our responsibility, and see that the House raises a protest and is here to protect the people?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very serious case. We have a woman in my constituency known as Sarah Adongo, the wife of John Odele, who is a staid woman, who carries a Bible in her hand; she does not drink, nor does she brew. Well, this woman was beaten, and now she cannot see and also she cannot bend her back. Another incident is another woman who has a bad wound which is healing, she was beaten and also she was raped. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are supposed to be the bridges for the Government. We are supposed to show our people the plan of the Government that our people should carry out the policy of the Government as representatives of the people. But when it comes to the problem of beating the people, and the people come to us and ask us what has happened that we are being beaten, then we are put in a position that we cannot explain to the people, the policy of the Government because people suspect that we, in the area, have been opposing the Government. These people are the victims of suspicion and because of that they are being beaten up in Central Nyanza. The Luos have been told that there is such a thing going on and the Government has come up, but they are not going to stay here and wait because we know the faults of the people with power and what they have done. Nobody can tolerate it.

So, Mr. Speaker, I am bringing this Motion on the Adjournment in order to find out the reasons pertaining to the beating of people in Winam Constituency. My constituency, Sir, is my right and if I am called upon to lay down my life for my constituents I am quite prepared to do so and I will not allow any interference from the Government, or any move whereby they can come and molest my people for no reason at all.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it would have been a disaster had I had knowledge that the General Service Unit was going to beat my people. I would advise my people to defend themselves because the Government has been the aggressor so they will have to defend themselves. The Luo as a community are very suspicious and they want to know what the Government has done. We can agree to protect our place, The Luo tribe is a force which cannot be excluded from plans of economic stability. Every tribe should get together to help bring about Kenya's economic stability, without anyone being excluded.

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to be told why these people were beaten. These people go about telling people to follow the Government policy and they told the people that the Government wanted them to do this and that. The Government as it stands is an African Government of all kinds of people, all tribes, Pokomo, Luo, Kikuyu and so on. The power is given to them by the people of this country to direct the people, but if they sit here and do nothing at all, we will have to ask them to clear the way for other people to lead the country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am demanding that the Government tells me why in Winam Constituency women and men were beaten at night. What about the chiefs, were they not able to cope with the trouble?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few words I bes to move.

Mr. Odera-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this question does not concern only Winam, it concerns the whole of Central Nyanza. Yesterday, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we heard of Mr. Okuto-Bala telling the House how the General Service Unit raped the women in Central Nyanza and this, Mr. Speaker, is very serious. If you go to Central Nyanza today, people start asking you where you are going.

For example, living in Ugenya today, recently, two days ago, these people went there and raided villages and one of the women even had her arm broken. And yet the Minister, Mr. Speaker, who is responsible for all these things, when he answers this question we want to know from him—and I am very pleased he is now looking at me! We want to know from him whether his Ministry is punishing the Nyanza people, particularly the Luo community. That is what is taking place today. We are very much worried, and I must say, Mr. Speaker, that the leader of this country, the President, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, has his position of leadership because of the Nyanza people. If you can answer this question, then answer it. If you cannot, then it is true.

Now, this leadership, which is now turning against the Central Nyanza people is worse than during the colonial times, Mr. Speaker. There is a conspiracy, Sir, to rule the Luo. We are very disappointed and it is very serious for such a popular figure Sir, we want the Minister to stand up and tell us whether there is a state of emergency in Central Nyanza, because, from what we have heard, there are arms hidden in Central Nyanza. If this is so, then we want the Minister to tell us, we want to know from him today.

In my own constituency, we want to know whether this rumour means anything, whether we have arms hidden in our houses. We cannot go on like this, Mr. Speaker, if the Government or the leaders of this country are out to destroy the Luo community.

Sir, we fought for a Government which would treat people equally. We thought the colonial government was ill-treating us.

Mr. Malinda: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member in order to speak the way he is speaking, when the subject matter of the Motion concerns General Service Unit raids in that area? Is he not generalising?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The matter raised concerns the activities of the General Service Unit in Winam Constituency. It is quite in order for an hon. Member to say that there have been similar activities in neighbouring districts; and it is in order for him to comment on the significance of those activities, whether in Winam or any other constituency.

Mr. Odera-Sar: Mr. Speaker, our women, our wives, and daughters, are being raped, by the General Service Unit. If he cannot answer today, then this must be investigated fully and a report made as to why these people are raiding homes where people are living loyally and peacefully, and why our people are being beaten up in the streets.

It is like someone who has trouble with his eyes being told that he can be cured; he gets cured and then turns against the friend who cured his eyes. This is what is happening to the people of Central Nyanza. Of course, Sir, I am very worried and very annoyed because of what is taking place in my constituency in Central Nyanza. I hope the Minister concerned will tell us what is taking place in Central Nyanza, whether this emergency in Central Nyanza has only been declared to punish or do something to the people which we do not know about.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, first of all, I must congratulate the Members who have spoken on having raised this particular Motion, because it will help to clear the air no end for certain Government exercises all over Kenya.

I am a Luo myself, people do refer to me as one. I have been and still am a member for Nyanza. The only problem here is that we are told that the date was fixed, the 8th April this year. But before I answer those specific allegations in the Motion itself, there are one or two things which I must correct.

I am in the Ministry of Internal Security. An allegation has been made here by the Member for Winam, and he referred to the culprits not being brought to justice. I know of no case, and the Ministry for Internal Security and Defence knows of no case, of any action or any criminal offence having been committed in that particular area or elsewhere, and the culprit not being brought to justice. There was an allegation that the regular police and the General Service Units are breaking into people's houses. That may be subject to a lot of interpretations, depending on the individual. The Government will not agree, and any Member of this House will not agree, that the police actually break into people's houses because if a policeman breaks into your house the policeman, just like anybody in this country, including Members of this House, is subject to the laws of Kenya. If anybody does not know this, I will repeat it.

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the workers are not fools, nor are the trade unions or the trade union leaders, and I hope that we in this House will take our responsibility more seriously.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I was going on to state, and to establish a proper and historical perspective of the measure which is now being taken. I do this because I believe that in the initial reaction to the Bill there was a misunderstanding as to the motives behind it. There was a feeling in certain quarters that this was a measure intended to crush the movement. There was a feeling that this was a measure intended to undermine and even remove the freedom and rights of the workers from their organizations, and in fact, in certain quarters, there was an attempt to create the impression that the Government was at war with the trade unions, and that the Ministers or the Cabinet was completely hostile and unsympathetic to the movement. I should like to state, for the record, that in this Government, as well as in this Parliament, there are people who are truly and genuinely concerned with the rights of the workers, and with the conditions of the workers, and who in a very dedicated way, are working consistently to ensure the improvement in the conditions of the workers. We may never shout about it, we may not hand slogans around it, but this job is being done every day and every night by this Government from the time we came to power.

Mr. Shkukun: Does unemployment not exist?

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon. Member for Butere might like to continue his interjections, but I do not think they will influence the course of the debate. They will only make his constituents wonder whether they were right in their choice.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, a contribution which the trade union has made, as I have said, is significant, and it is one which we would like to go on record as deeply appreciating. But, what is more important is the contribution which they can make in future. Their contribution does not end with the independence of this country, nor does it end with the struggle they put in to try and improve the wages and salaries and conditions of employment for their Members. Their contribution, as far as the Government is concerned, is much bigger, and it will become an integral part of the efforts that we are making in trying to improve the overall social and economic conditions of our people. It is this indication, in fact, that we are making to the trade union movement, to come along with us in the task of national reconstruction and to work with us as they have done in the past to secure a general improvement for all our people, to make their due contribution in the task of nation building.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, any Government in any country is bound to be concerned when every day you pick up a newspaper and on every page there is a dispute, either a strike, or a deadlock, or a threat of a strike. The question is not whether the trade unions are responsible for these conditions, or whether the employers are responsible for these conditions, but the point which all this must make to us is that something is wrong. Why should there be so many deadlocks? Why should there be so many threats? Why should the language in industry be only the language of threat, and counter-threat? Why should the negotiating machinery be only through strikes and threats of strikes? This is the point which any Government is bound to ask itself. We are, therefore, bound, purely in answering this question, to determine whether or not the machinery that exists has not failed, and if it has failed, whether or not we do not have the responsibility to help both sides of industry to produce a machinery that will work. It is precisely this that the Government is trying to do, to help both the trade unions and the employers, to find a workable formula that would minimize the extent of existing frictions and misunderstandings, deadlocks and threats, and strikes and breakdowns. This, Sir, is the responsibility which no Government can abdicate, and no trade union should resent it, nor should an employer resent it, because in the long run they are the beneficiaries. If we succeed in improving the machinery, would be the workers and the employers. If we can create the machinery through which they can negotiate and reach agreements, we may have succeeded in helping the trade unions and the employers, to move forward instead of the present situation, in which there seems to be a difficulty to find the language and the needs by which to move forward. When the two sides cannot agree then a search party is needed. The economy of this country and indeed the conditions of all the people of this country are such, that, when the two sides—in this case the trade unions and the employers—cannot reach agreements, then the only person qualified to act a referee is the Government, and the only person who can be expected to intervene in the interests of the economy is the Government. Hence, of the concept around the formula that is now being suggested.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair].

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair].

Mr. Speaker, this is not unique to the solution we are suggesting for the Trade Union movement. That is happening every day in the case of other relationships. When there is a dispute between a farmer and a marketing board, or between growers and marketing boards, or between lawyers, organizations and the judiciary, or between teachers and the school system. It is, in every case, for the Government to intervene and produce a formula that helps the system to move forward. That is the function which the Government is trying to perform in this case. I would like to emphasize, therefore, that whilst we are bound to intervene we are also bound to observe the certain standards and certain fundamental points.

Firstly, we are bound by our Constitution to respect and take into account its various provisions, and I submit, Sir, that this has been done.

Secondly, we are bound to observe, and at least to take seriously into consideration certain international conventions, and this again, we have done. I would like immediately to say that anyone who suggests that this Bill bans strikes, is in fact, not understanding the Bill and has not read the Bill properly. All it does is to delay any such action. All it does is to give status to negotiated agreements. All it does is to minimize the need for this extreme action. It does not, and I repeat not/ban, as some people say, strikes. It is true that certain strikes will be made unlawful. It is also true that the schedule of Essential Services, is increased to include services that have not been in this schedule until now. But, Sir, that is nothing unique, nor does it amount to banning strikes. This is an arrangement which is going on currently in practically every country that we can think of, and I do not mean in totalitarian regimes. I am referring to any of the countries that were popularly referred to as democratic regimes.

If you take first, the Essential Services, perhaps the House will remember that some of the services which are now brought back into the schedule, have in fact, been in the schedule before. It was only in the last three years that they have been removed from the schedule. It is unfortunate that this experiment on which we embarked some years ago, and in which I had the opportunity of playing some part, has not been particularly successful, and so we have moved back to the original position where these services used to be among the Essential Services in the country. I do not want to say that the Trade Unions are to blame for this condition, but all I want to say is that it is unfortunate that the system did not work, that the machinery we envisaged could have worked, did not particularly succeed. If it had succeeded, there would have been no necessity for second thoughts on this matter.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to break off now and continue tomorrow.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENTGENERAL SERVICE UNIT ACTIVITIES IN WINAM

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time for the interruption of business, so I will call on the Minister to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kioko) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Nyalicki (Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thank you very much for having given me the opportunity to air my views on the adjournment.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, you remember that on the 20th of this month, I tried all I could to get the House to debate the matter which is today on the adjournment.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is very surprising to learn that on 8th April 1965, at about 2.30 a.m. at night, the General Service Unit made a raid on part of my constituency, known as Migoi.

As a result of this raid, a number of people were beaten up and women were molested to the extent that we are very ashamed to mention it in this House since the Government is an African Government. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we must be told the reason. The Motion as it stands is to seek from the Government to know the reasons why these G.S.U. moved into our constituency with no warning at all, and as such stultify with no warning at all, and as such we people were beaten to the extent that now we have a number of cases to prove to the House that we have indeed been beaten up. We are very perturbed in a way that the Government must [Mr. Shikuku] such strike or lock-out," but I think Mr. Speaker, one thing should be added. There are those who are probably not even in a trade union, but they could get in touch with their friends in the particular firm—instigation can come from the workers themselves or from outside. This has happened. It is not a question of trade unions, but one can come from an outside company and organize a strike in a different firm altogether.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): So what do you want to add something?

Mr. Shikuku: I want to add "any person outside that particular firm". This, Mr. Speaker, would be one of the ways to try and help to curb these strikes and lock-outs.

On the question of lock-outs, Mr. Speaker, you find that some employers may decide to lock out some of the workers for the simple reason that he says that he is not earning much to warrant whatever they are claiming; he decides to lock them out and also threatens, if they do not listen to him, that he will just lock up the factory and go. But here, I feel, Mr. Speaker, this should also be looked into. When there is any lock-out the Minister should go into the question and find out the cause of the lock-out, because some of the employers just lock out because they are in a bad mood or they have had a quarrel with their wives; and they just lock out the people. I feel that at the same time as we are trying to guard against strikes, we should also guard against lock-outs, because you find the employers taking advantage of this clause by locking workers out. We should really give them hell when they do it.

On clause 26, which is on page 133, and which deals with the protection of persons refusing to take part in unlawful strikes, Mr. Speaker, I feel this is a very good move in view of the fact that there are some people who are working because they have so many to support. It so happens at times that you find they have been asked to go on strike and when they look at their financial position and their responsibilities they find it very difficult to accept going on strike, but they are being compelled to go on strike by the trade unions. I do not mean to say, Mr. Speaker, I wish to split the workers' unity by having some going on strike and some refusing to go on strike, but I am of the opinion that this situation should not arise if the machinery which has already been given here is followed and therefore the people will automatically not be subjected to this condition, but if that condition arose, I feel this clause would really protect those people who are sometimes beaten up by their fellow workers.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not think I intend to say on this because I stood up particularly to support the Motion with one view in mind and one view only, not because I want to speak here. The view is that strikes will curb other small industries close up and we shall have more unemployment, and I wanted to say part this in order to stop strikes, so that some of the unemployed people will be able to get jobs, and I hope the Government will make sure that these people will also get work. I am supporting it on that condition alone, because these people are suffering and there are only a few people who are working, and there are so many who are hungry, who have to be provided with food. There is no need for us to have a few people earning such high salaries when there are so many without food or a place to sleep. That is why I am supporting this Motion, not because I would like the Government to call me a good boy, not at all. I would like to make this very clear to the Minister. I support it only on that condition, and I hope the Government, as I have said, is going to look into the question of the cost of living and reduce the cost of living, and also look into the question of providing employment because what makes these workers go on strike is that there are so many hungry people. If that is fulfilled, then this Bill will be of use, but as long as this remains stationary, there will be more strikes in this country if the Government does not look into this.

Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support with that condition.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the hon. gentleman who has just sat down sounds so apologetic that I do not know what worries him. I do not believe that it is necessary for any hon. Member who speaks in the House on behalf of a Bill to tell us that he is not doing so because he is a Government stooge—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Minister for Economic Development—I am sorry, Economic Planning and Development—to impute that I was referring to myself as a stooge, and [Mr. Shikuku] the word "stooge", when I did not actually use that word?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I do not see why one should be all that sensitive about this. You did say that you were supporting the Bill, but you wanted to make it quite clear that you were not doing so because you wanted to be called a good boy. Mr. Mboya probably exaggerated a little but I do not think he went too far.

Mr. Bala: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, would the Member for Butere withdraw his statement that the Minister for Economic Planning should be referred to as the Minister for Economic Destruction?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think he did, in fact, withdraw it.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, all I wanted to say with regard to this lighter side of the matter is that I do hope sincerely that whenever any Member is speaking here, he is speaking with a free conscience, and when people begin to talk about not being regarded as good boys they merely reveal that perhaps they have certain inhibitions and fears, and they engage in certain activities which might be interpreted as such.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Minister to impute whatever motives I had, or imagine what motives I have?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I do not think he was truly imputing motive.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I will go on and discuss the Bill; I think the subject has been exhaustively ventilated.

I think one of the first things that must be made quite clear—and that is why I feel I should intervene early enough in this debate—is that the motive of the Government in bringing forward this Bill is not an indictment of the trade union movement, nor do we want it to be in any sense construed as a war against the trade union movement or as an encroachment upon their genuine liberties and rights.

It is also necessary to make it quite clear that this Bill does not in any way encroach upon those rights and guarantees that are to be found in our Constitution. The rights are freedom of association, and the Bill does not interfere with the freedom of association. The rights are freedom of expression, and the Bill does not in any way interfere with that freedom of expression. The question here is merely one of a degree of control, and direction to ensure, in fact, that the constitutional guarantees and liberties of all our people are not in any way harmed or undermined by a section of some of our people.

Let me also say from the outset that the Government— I feel we should take this opportunity when debating this Bill to put on record our appreciation for the contribution and the very definite contribution made by the trade union movement during the development of our nation and country. There is no doubt at all in my mind, and I say this, with very sincere knowledge of these activities in the past, that the trade union movements of this country have played their parts courageously and freely, in the struggle for our independence and freedom, and in the struggle that has enabled us to create a nation, and accordingly, we would like to feel that they, like every other group in this country, will enjoy fully the fruits of that struggle. This point should be stated very clearly.

Mr. Shikuku: Unemployment.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): The hon. Member for Butere shouts unemployment. This, Sir, is a cheap word sometimes used merely for the Gallery. But, when it is considered in true perspective, then I believe that those who shout the slogan will reconsider their position. It does not help the unemployed for someone to go around the country parading and shouting the slogan. What the unemployed are interested in is the creation of conditions in this country, and the constructive development of the nation which will remove unemployment. Mr. Deputy Speaker, if the unemployed were to hear the hon. Member from Butere speak, they would be led to believe that the hon. Member is so sympathetic, believe that the hon. Member is everybody's that he believes in the reduction of everybody's salary, but the truth of the matter is that he has received two increases in the last eighteen months.

Mr. Shikuku: I beg your pardon.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): I have not heard the hon. Member reject the increase in his salary in the House. I do not believe that it is so cheap for someone to talk to the Gallery. It is like the parrot-like repetition of a slogan so that one never believes it is true when he knows it is not.

that because this Bill has been passed and therefore they are going to fool around with the workers, then, Mr. Speaker, I am sorry to say that the Minister has said that he will have to resort to other strict legal measures which are not in this Bill, in order to deal with the employers.

Mr. Speaker, at the time we are passing this Bill we should also, and I think Mr. Speaker, I will try to comment on this when it comes to the Committee Stage, to try and define a definite strict legal measure to deal with employers who try to play about in this country. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am of the opinion that one of the solutions toward stopping the strikes would be that the policy of the Government must also change. It would be wrong, Mr. Speaker, for us to talk here very strongly condemning the trade unions, condemning those who are going to call wildcat strikes and those who are going to have lock-outs, unless we are going to have a definite policy which we should pursue. If I may say so, Mr. Speaker, we have been given a copy of the explanation of "African Socialism" which I have here with me although I have not read through—I only got it yesterday, but I am of the opinion that one of the solutions which would more or less try and prevent our people from striking, would be if the Ministry could consider very seriously this question of low wage economy which would help employ more people. For example the people in the Shell Company—the lowest salary there I am told is about Sh. 240 a month. I am of the opinion if we could pursue a policy—The hon. Member for Yatta is asking which moon. I thought that when he was born he was told by his mother there was only one moon and that was also repeated to him at school. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this would help a great deal in eliminating the unemployment. The people who are taken on this sort of system, instead of getting Sh. 240 for one person two people would be employed at the same time and these people will be able to feed themselves and stop depending on others, because as I have said—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku, you are beginning to go round in a circle. Order. Although you are giving us your proposals with regard to the prevention of trade disputes and also some other social improvements, which may be very constructive, I do not know that they are very relevant to this Bill, which deals with settlement of trade disputes.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Minister with this question of— But I thought Mr. Speaker, and I seek your ruling on this. Is it not in order for me, Mr. Speaker, to try, apart from what is in this Bill, to try and look into the causes of the strike and possible solution to the strike?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, when we have a Bill before us for a Second Reading we are concerned with the contents of the Bill. It is not relevant to say that lots of other things might achieve the object even better. You are entitled to say that you do not want the Bill, or you are entitled to propose amendment of the Bill, but you can not say that in addition to this Bill Government should be doing all kinds of other things. That is a matter for another debate at another time.

An hon. Member: Oppose it.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, for your ruling. I would not oppose this as some of the hon. Members are asking me to because I believe in what I say and I do not go by emotions. I am one of these realistic people. Mr. Speaker, I have supported the Bill and will continue to support the Bill.

Mr. Speaker, there is a question which was referred to by the Minister, himself, when he referred to this question of Essential Services. Mr. Speaker, we have Essential Services in this country and elsewhere in the world, but I am of the opinion, Mr. Speaker, that the strikes in the Essential Services could easily be avoided by passing a law that the Essential Services should not strike, this would in my opinion, Mr. Speaker, if the Minister is paying any attention be a bit unfair if we are not going to look into the question of their salaries. If we know that people in the Essential Services like those working in the Medical Department and those working in the—

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker: Is not the hon. Member repeating himself? We have heard this question quite a number of times.

Mr. Shikuku: I do not think I referred to the question of the Essential Services.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, but you said the same point with regard to the other services.

Mr. Shikuku: But, I have not even reached the position of the Essential Services when the hon. Member intervened.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is true, but what you said about other services is basically for Essential Services. Try not to repeat yourself.

Mr. Shikuku: I do not think, Mr. Speaker, I have repeated myself, because I do not remember having said that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Then let us say that you are in danger of repetition.

Mr. Shikuku: There is no danger yet, Sir. Mr. Speaker, if I may refer to the question of the trade union fund, this is one of the things I really welcome very much in this country have, and you the trade unions in this country have, and you have heard the questions in this Parliament to the effect of how much money is being received by the leaders of the trade unions in this country from each corner of the world, and I am of the opinion that the acceptance by the Minister that there will be what they call a check-up system. I am of the opinion that this is the right thing to be done and at the same time provide the power to the Ministry to try and check-up on the funds of the workers, which are in most cases being misused by these leaders using them to meet their own political ends.

I am of the opinion that if this is sincerely looked into, our trade unions would be financially fit. Today they are not, they are depending on the International Congress of Free Trade Unions, some are helped by the whatevers, you call it, the African Unity Socialists, or whatever it is, and this is one of the things which concern the country. You find some of the strikes are not really strikes in a sense, but they are intended to promote the popularity of a certain man to please his voters elsewhere. As such, if we can have this check-up system and the Government given the power to audit these trade unions, it would not only help the country as such but would also stop the outside interference and people using the trade unions in this country for their own political ends elsewhere.

Also, Mr. Speaker, if I may say so, most of the workers who have been paying their dues have not actually been able to profit from their funds at all because most of the trade unions are so poor and there is a lot of extravagance going on in these trade unions which must be stopped, to make trade unions very effective and also to have funds in their kitty.

The other issue I would like to touch on, Mr. Speaker, is the question of the Federation of Employers. As we have been told, the Federation of Employers is not under the Trade Union Act and I am glad that the Minister has said that this organization is also going to be included under the Trade Union Act and not to remain under the Societies Ordinance. I feel this will also help a great deal because today you have the employers who have come together and under that Society, the employers who are rich—and, of course, employers are always rich—decide on what pattern they are going to take, and they do so exclusively in the act of the Ordinance and we have no law to get at them. By bringing them here into this Trade Union Act, one day we shall stand in this Parliament and really beat the devil out of them, we have been so free. I think this is a very wise move and I must congratulate the Minister for including them in this Act.

If I may touch on one of the points here in the Bill, under clause 21 on page 129, the Minister has included prohibition of sympathetic strikes and lock-outs. This clause, Mr. Speaker, is a very ideal clause because I, personally, when I have a quarrel with my brother, do not think there is any need for another brother of mine— if there are five—to fight with another fellow at the other end in support of me here against my brother. I do not see much sense in this. Let us deal with an employer because by getting one employer who is affected by the strike and dealing with him is easier than dealing with thirteen or fourteen employers as this in itself reduces the economy of the country and not only that, as has been said, it also affects other people who have nothing to do with the strike. I am of the opinion that if there is any strike, as the Minister himself has said, it should only be for a short while, industry and that industry should be dealt with. The Minister will also deal with that particular employer to teach him a lesson rather than trying to deal with several employers, and this costs us a lot of money and wastes a lot of the Minister's time to try and deal with those who are on strike in various parts. I am in full support of this, although some of the trade unionists may not agree with me. I am of the opinion that the fewer strikes we have, the more work we shall have for our people who are unemployed, and it should be in this spirit that we should support this Motion, and the Government will also look into the question of trying to provide employment for other people so that those strikes will not occur again.

As regards clause 25 on page 132, subsection 1 (a) and (b), it says here, "Any person who in connexion with any strike or lock-out declared by or under this Act to be unlawful—(a) declares or instigates or incites others to take part in any

[The Minister for Labour and Social Services]

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to make it plain that these provisions are directed to secure responsible behaviour by both the employers and the workers. I repeat, employers and workers, because there may be a few Members who may be thinking that this Bill is here to protect the employer only. This is not correct. Every time I mention the word "strike", it is immediately followed by another word, "lock-out", which covers both sides because, as soon as we have a strike on the side of the workers, then we have a lock-out on the side of the employers. So, both sides are well looked after, my friends.

When an agreement or award is binding, each employer is legally bound to give each worker the full benefit of that agreement or award, and that is enforceable in a court of law. Clause 24 introduces this new and important provision to ensure that employers behave responsibly. It is no use a union of workers bargaining on terms with, say, nine employers in an industry, and the Minister using his powers to enforce those terms between the union and those nine employers, if a tenth employer in the same industry, refuses to offer equally favourable terms to his workers. Is the Minister to allow the whole industry to be dragged into a dispute, or anything leading to a strike over this? The workers only want the tenth employer to apply the terms which are recognized through the industry. Clause 24, therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, gives the worker the right to make a claim, and the Minister has the power to refer the matter to the Industrial Court if he cannot settle it; and then, the Industrial Court can compel this tenth employer to fall into line. I think now that hon. Members must surely see that the Government has tried hard to protect the workers. The Government's intention in this Bill is to protect the nation, and I repeat, nation—the responsible worker and employer against the irresponsible worker and employer. The Government therefore expects the employers to give their full support to the successful working of this Bill.

The Government is also aware that employers are not so prone to use the lock-out weapon to secure their end, as the workers' unions are to use the strike weapon, I am aware that, if I make an order under clause 19, ordering employers and workers to make use of the agreed machinery and the employers are unwilling to do so, then a declaration that a lock-out is unlawful will not, necessarily of itself, compel them to comply with my order. But I am satisfied that employers' organizations will not ignore my order, because if they do, then I shall not hesitate to seek such additional legal powers as may be necessary. If trouble arises with an employer outside any of the employers' organizations, clause 24 gives me adequate power to deal with the case, as I have explained.

But we are not solely dependent on the good behaviour of the organized employer. I have the power to make an order enforcing the agreed procedures, because of the refusal of any employer to employ them and the workers are not satisfied with my efforts to influence the employers, then the workers may appeal to the Industrial Court against my order prohibiting strike or lock-out action. If the Industrial Court is satisfied that the employers are at fault and not the workers, then the court can revoke my order. If the employers do refuse to obey my orders, so that the workers are driven to strike, then I accept that the court can make an order for beating strike action, if the employer are at fault. Actually, what that means is that, if I am satisfied that it is the employer who is at fault, and that he has refused completely to comply with my order, or the order of the Industrial Court, I simply sit down and watch and I do not make any order at all. It will now be up to him and the worker to decide their fate; and I hope that hon. Members will agree with me that no employer is going to allow his workers to stay out on strike for more than a month or so, without it resulting in the closing down of his business and his subsequent departure. So he has got to be very careful.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I would like to state here is that I do not anticipate that the organized employers are going to ignore my order or the views of the Industrial Court. The Government places great reliance on the Industrial Court and this is a confidence which is justified by its record.

Clause 23 empowers the court to confirm, revoke or vary the order of the Minister. This is a wide power. The appeals which will be made to the court from my orders will be of infinite variety. When the merits and faults of each party to the dispute have been laid before the court, it will then have complete discretion to decide the proper course. This court is an industrial court, not a court of law. I would call its jurisdiction, "industrial equity" and I feel, on my behalf, that the court varies or revokes my order in a proper case. That is what the court is there for. The Minister is to make orders which are effective, strike or lock-out action in defiance of those orders, must be effectively stopped and punished, and those who do not

[The Minister for Labour and Social Services] the award has been given. If the organizations of workers and employers in Essential Services behave responsibly, then there should be no need for the Minister to intervene to impose compulsory arbitration. But the attitude of the Government on this must be made quite clear. The workers and employers in the Essential Services all have a duty to the nation to conduct their bargaining in a responsible manner, so as to ensure that there is no damage to the economy of the country. If they cannot agree, they can go to voluntary arbitration. If they want to strike or lock-out in preference to going to voluntary arbitration, the Government must have the power to enforce arbitration and see that it is used to settle the dispute to prevent a general dislocation of industry.

Before I leave Part IV of the Bill, I wish to make one final observation. It is in the interests of the workers and employers alike that these provisions are set out here. The Government expects full support from both sides. All trade unionists, whether employers or workers, should reflect on the inevitable consequences of their failure to give that support.

Now, Part V of the Bill repeats the existing provisions regarding the Essential Services, and makes certain new provisions which the Government is satisfied are necessary to protect the economy from the dangers of irresponsible industrial action. We are all familiar with the existing law which requires that a period of notice should be given before labour is withdrawn from an essential service. This is all right so far as it goes, but the Government and the people are interested in uninterrupted economic progress, and certain industries are so essential that if they stop, other productive industries have to stop too. I think the gentlemen in this House have seen instances of this.

An hon. Member: Hon. gentlemen.

[The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): All right, hon. gentlemen then. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the hon. gentleman then this House will have noticed what happened last month when there was a bank strike. I intervened in this strike for three solid days, until the whole country, even those who were not connected with the bank, had to go without money. I, for one, had to borrow money, because I felt, so small having to go and line up at the bank, so I asked my clerk to lend me £1. As I said, this strike did not affect the bank workers alone; it affected many innocent people outside. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we must have somebody who can say that this must be stopped, because the ordinary people also count. You cannot have the whole country suffering as I suffered on that day, and I am not ashamed to tell you that I asked my personal secretary to lend me £1 because I had run out of money. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the provisions that have been made are that, in the Essential Services, a trade dispute must first be reported before any strike is threatened and the Minister may, if necessary, compel the parties to go to the Industrial Court for a settlement. In such cases, the court's award will be binding and the Minister must have power to prevent that award from being ignored by having the same trade dispute reported after

We must take a realistic view on what is an essential service. The list in the First Schedule is longer than the list in the present Essential Services Act, but it is not as long as the list which was in force a few years ago, when my hon. friend was the General Secretary of the Trade Unions in the country. At that time, the Labour Organization was in better hands and, therefore, there were better ways. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have said that the list that we have at the moment is longer than that which we had previously, but even so, it is not anywhere near the list which was in force but a few years ago. The Government is satisfied that the industries referred to must continue to function at all times, and that all reasonable means short of outright prohibition of strikes and lock-outs, must be adopted to avoid stoppage in those industries. It has not escaped the attention of the Government that some workers' leaders in the Essential Services, are inclined to talk more about striking than anyone else. This betrays, clearly the existing tendency to abuse the powers which our freedoms allow. The nation is entitled to expect from union leaders in the Essential Services a great, not a lesser, sense of responsibility than from other union leaders. Let me speak plainly. The Government will not be defeated in its purpose of achieving economic progress by anyone. The Government will only impose restrictions where it has to, and the responsibility for ensuring that it does not impose those restrictions lies on both sides of industry. The measures we now propose would not have been necessary had there been some cooler heads on some shoulders before.

I now come to Part VI of the Bill relating to the check-off system. Mr. Speaker, Sir, no workers' union has any fundamental right to require an employer to collect union dues on its behalf. Legally, they have no right to do so and the employer has the right to refuse to do so.

[The Minister for Labour and Social Services] development, but it is also pledged to preserve the freedoms enshrined in our Constitution. One of these freedoms is freedom of association. The Government is anxious to give effect to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, article 23 of which refers to the right of trade unionism. The Government is also anxious that Kenya should maintain its adherence to the standards set by the conventions of the International Labour Organization, in particular those relating to the right to organize and the encouragement of collective bargaining.

The main purpose of this Bill, Mr. Speaker, therefore, is to give real effect to the Industrial Relations Charter while enabling the Government to safeguard the national unity and to avoid unnecessary damage to our economic development. This Bill should be seen as an implementation of article 4 "The Right to Organize", from a collective bargaining Convention in 1949 held by the International Labour Organization. That article says, and I quote, with your permission, Mr. Speaker: "Measures appropriate to national conditions shall be taken where necessary to encourage and promote the full development and utilization of machinery for voluntary negotiation between employers or employers' organizations and workers' organizations with a view to the regulation of terms and conditions of employment by means of collective agreement."

Mr. Speaker, I hope the Members have studied this Bill properly and I would like to inform them that this Bill is divided into seven parts. It includes the provisions of the Trade Disputes Act, 1964, and of the Essential Services Act, which will be repealed. Thus, all the law on the settlement of trade disputes will be consolidated in one Act where it can be read and understood without difficulty by all who are concerned with industrial relations. Part I to Part III of the Bill repeat the provisions of the Trade Disputes Act, 1964, without any amendment, other than amendments of a consequential character. Thus the procedures for the reporting of trade disputes and for conciliation and for voluntary reference to arbitration or to the industrial court remain essentially as before. Part IV of the Bill, Mr. Speaker, has new provisions of the Bill, which are particularly directed to giving force to the Industrial Charter and are contained in this part which is entitled Adherence to Agreements and Awards.

One of the main principles of the charter is that the existing agreed machinery for settlement of disputes in an industry should be utilized fully before strike or local action is taken. It is expressly agreed in the charter, Mr. Speaker, that strike and lock-out weapons should only be used as a last resort which has not been the case in the previous months, and I think the hon. Members and the audience will agree with me that this has not been the case. On the whole, Mr. Speaker, as between organized labour and employers, there is ample existing machinery which the parties have agreed to use before resorting to strike or lock-outs.

It is essential, therefore, if the existing pattern of industrial relations is to survive that these industrial agreements are honoured by both the employers and the employees, and their agreed procedures adhered to.

The danger, Mr. Speaker, has been busy strike action, whether official or unofficial, in these circumstances, someone must act impartially, firmly and quickly. So clause 19 of this Bill empowers the Minister for Labour to require parties to adhere to agreed procedures and to declare a strike or a lock-out, whether actual or threatened, to be unlawful while that order is in force. This part is very important, and I want the hon. Members in this House to listen to this very carefully. If I, as the Minister, can persuade the parties, without an order, to follow their machinery and to make an agreement and honor that agreement, so official or unofficial, it is not necessary for me to make any order at all, but the order will be made by me where the two parties have refused completely to use the machinery which is there for them to use, and which they have agreed to.

Mr. Speaker, here I must say clearly that if the Government is to rule this country and to protect those people who are not actually in employment and who are doing little business here and there, employing a few fellows, it must have the power to make the order. Therefore, I am given here the order to make a strike illegal. The Minister may be called upon to act quickly and it may not always be that he is in full possession of the facts. The Minister's order, Mr. Speaker, should be regarded as being in the nature of a temporary and interim injunction or prohibition, and that makes it very clear any order which I make should not be regarded as permanent, it is just an interim injunction and as soon as these people agree to follow the machinery, my order is revoked.

Clause 23, Mr. Speaker, gives either party the right to appeal against the Minister's order to the industrial court where both sides can bring out the full facts and the court has full authority to confirm or to revoke the order made by the Minister. Therefore, the Minister can act

[The Minister for Labour and Social Services] quickly and effectively without doing any injustice. If the Minister must hesitate before making an order, the damage may be done before he can decide to act. If the Minister has to act on his own knowledge and the full ventilation of the facts before the court shows that the order should be revoked, no harm has been done. An important provision is that the Minister may revoke an order himself, and here, Mr. Speaker, it shows clearly that there are two people who can revoke the Minister's order. One is the industrial court and the second one is the Minister himself. I can revoke my order if I find out after making the order that the facts I had been given were not sufficient.

Another virtue, Mr. Speaker, of this provision is that neither the Minister nor the industrial court are enmeshed in legal technicalities. Industrial agreements and industrial relations are not matters to be argued over in a court of law, I, as the Minister for Labour—and I hope the industrial court—will have regard to the spirit and intention as well as the strict letter of industrial agreements.

In addition to clause 19, Mr. Speaker, there are two other provisions designed to enable the Minister for Labour to give support to the Charter and the industrial agreement. Clause 20 empowers the Minister to make a similar order where there appears to him to be a failure to adhere to agreements and awards. Binding agreements should be encouraged. One side or the other may make a concession, provided that it is binding for a period of time. It is no use enforcing agreement procedures for negotiation if the terms of the agreement reached by such negotiations are ignored.

The third provision: clause 21 empowers the Minister to make a similar order in the case of so-called sympathetic strike or lock-out. What is meant by this, Mr. Speaker, is a strike or lock-out action in one industry which is taken to put pressure on employers or workers in another industry. In an extreme form a sympathetic strike is a general strike where workers in every industry try to go on strike to support the workers in another industry. It must be clear to all that in our society there can be no justification for a general strike or lock-out. That is nothing less than declaring war on the Government or on the people. It is only in rare circumstances that any sympathetic strike or lock-out is justified. I think the Members agree with me. Generally speaking, Mr. Speaker, employers and organized labour have sufficient bargaining power within their own industry without outside assistance.

When a fire breaks out, you try to put it down, you do not let it sweep throughout the town or throughout the country before you take action.

In recent months, as I said, Mr. Speaker, there have been signs and wild talks of a general strike or strikes in one industry and the threat has been lodged by people working in another industry to help them. Mr. Speaker, when a strike is called in one industry or threatened, there is immediate wild and emotional talk of other industries joining in. What would happen if every time we had a difficult dispute to settle in one industry, and there was a danger of strike or lock-out action, employers or workers in other industries threatened to join in? It is obvious that someone must have the power and authority to prevent a threat of a strike or a lock-out from spreading like a bush fire to industries which are not involved or concerned with that strike. We may look forward to the day when we will depend upon the restraint and sense of natural responsibility of all leaders in industry. It is unhappily evident that that day has not yet come. In the meantime, the Government must have power to act.

This is the power I am speaking of in this House, and I hope hon. Members will support me to have that power. It may be objected by a few Members who may feel that the Minister's power, under clause 21, is very wide and that it might be abused. I have considered this and I have two important points to make.

Firstly, the pattern of industry is extremely intricate. It will be impossible to lay down beforehand when sympathetic strikes would be justified and when it would not be. Someone must have the right to draw the correct line in all the circumstances of each case. The Government has to hold the balance between public interest and the personal interest of those in industry. So this power of decision must, in the present circumstances, lie with the Minister, and not with the employer or with the worker.

My second point is that there is an appeal to the Industrial Court from the Minister's order, when a party can attempt to justify their action. Even if the court did not consider it should revoke the Minister's Order, the Minister himself would be bound to take note of any justification which might emerge from learning all the facts of the case.

An hon. Member: It is very serious.

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Yes, it is very serious.

[The Minister for Commerce and Industry]

Now, the hon. Member for Kiharu—The Specially Elected Member, Mr. Malinda, who missed his great opportunity of speaking when the hon. Members were speaking, wishes to make a speech now sitting down. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I refuse to listen to speeches made, but I will not go any further.

Now, Sir, the hon. Member for Kiharu, who is also the Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement, spoke as if he was the Member for Thika township. I would like to remind the hon. Member this is not in his constituency whatsoever. It is in the President's constituency, but nevertheless I shall consider Thika as well as Nairobi and all other cities and townships in the country.

The hon. Member for Doonholm Road drew our attention to the fact that in addition to this key money which I have said we must make illegal, there could be a situation whereby two rent books could be kept, the one to show to the inspectors when they come, and the one that actually does record the situation. I would like to warn the landlords that any person caught doing this kind of thing—It is rumoured, Mr. Speaker, that even in the question of income in this country, the people have several books, one for the accountant, one for the wife, and one for the tax collector. Now, if this kind of practice goes on, it must stop, because we check them, and the rents have to be the same way, one for the tribunal and one for the tenant, and one for the partner who is not here so he can be given different information. These people will be caught by the tribunal. We are not going to allow double dealing in this country in any respect whatsoever.

Now, it appears that in one way, hon. Members, like the Member for Nyandarua, would like this tribunal to be very effective, and on the other hand, they would like the tribunal not to be passed. Now, the two must go together, power and efficiency.

The hon. Member for Mombasa Island South spoke in such a way that nobody else in the House understood him, including myself. He seems to have been saying that Asians do not exploit, but Africans are likely to exploit. I think he was trying to show that the Bill is not racial, but in trying to prove his point he went too far to the other side. He must leave it to us to prove his point. This is always wrong, to say that you must live this way to prove that you live that way. You have to stand upright and stop leaning one way or the other, and in this particular case, with my friend from Mombasa South, he leans too much to one side. But with the definition of the word "shop" I agree with him that we shall look into that particular item.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon. Member for Mombasa Island South, also felt that the tribunal should not have both inspectors and valuers. Well, I will not argue too much, the Bill simply says that staff may be employed.

The hon. Member for Nairobi Central, that is the Minister for Economic Planning and Development who also spoke as a constituency Member said, he felt that the fees charged should be reasonable enough to enable tenants to receive the services of the tribunal.

The hon. Member for Mombasa Island South had said that situations will arise where a tenant will not be able to pay the fees and when I asked him, out of order, Sir, whether even fifty cents when charged would be prohibitive, the hon. Member said that could be prohibitive in which case, Sir, I say that such a person should not be in business if he cannot afford fifty cents. I shall bear in mind the fact that this tribunal should be accessible to all tenants who require its services and all landlords who require its services, and under those circumstances, Sir, I would not consider penalizing the tenants or the landlords by asking for very high fees. I think, Sir, a case was made, and I shall give it very sympathetic consideration, of graduated, if I may use the phrase, or different rates for different kinds of cases. I think this can also be considered.

Now, Sir, I would like to talk about those persons who are already paying rent and would like to vary it. I have to stand up one time and draw hon. Members' attention to clause 12 (b), which says that the tribunal shall have power to determine or vary the rent to be payable in respect of any tenancy having regard to all circumstances thereof. This is a pretty general power given the tribunal and following the new clause, section 4, which also says that the tribunal may investigate any complaint brought to it, this means that if someone is already paying a particular rent and would like to bring this complaint to the tribunal, that will also be looked into. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Landlord and Tenant (Shops, Hotels and Catering Establishments) Bill, be now read the Second Time.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was accordingly read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the Whole House tomorrow)

Second Reading

THE TRADE DISPUTES BILL

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to introduce this Bill with all the Members in the Chamber so that my introductory remarks may be understood.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we are proud to be free men in a free society. We are proud also that, as a free society, we have a well-established system of free trade unions representing employers and employees. With the active support of the Government, our trade unions, Mr. Deputy Speaker, have successfully built up a comprehensive voluntary machinery for collective bargaining of terms and conditions of employment and for the settlement of disputes. The Government is convinced that the protection and extension of these patterns of industrial relations is essential to economic progress and to the whole future, such as the prosperity of Kenya. The Government is also convinced that all responsible elements among the organized workers and among employers know this to be so. The Industrial Relations Charter of October 1962, was a solemn declaration of faith by Government, labour and employers in the efficient, co-operation and collective bargaining. The purpose of the Trade Disputes Bill, 1965, is to ensure that the charter does not merely become an ineffective declaration of pious faith. The purpose of the Bill is to secure that the principles of the charter stand for all times as guiding rules and the Bill of Rights of industrial relations in Kenya. Kenya has had industrial relations in Kenya. Kenya has had great success and has won international respect for its record in the field of industrial relations, but Kenya is not immune to the difficulties which beset newly independent African states which are only at the beginning of their industrial development.

There are two main difficulties for countries like ours: first, it is of paramount importance to maintain and to build up the national unity. If trade unions put their sectional interest before their responsibility to the nation and if they divide on political and ideological differences of foreign origin, they become a threat to national security. The Government is then put in an awkward position of having to choose between sacrificing the national unity or sacrificing freedom of association.

Secondly, the Government of Kenya, like other African states, is pledged to fostering a supreme national effort for economic development and maximum efficiency. Only a minority of the working population are wage earners in industry and only a proportion of wage-earners have the advantage of using their collective bargaining powers. Organized workers in those circumstances can seek, through industrial action, to make a privileged position for themselves and they ignore the harm they do for their lesser fortunate brothers and the nation. No African Government can afford to allow a privileged minority of any description to retard progress and even worse, to retard the day when there is a satisfactory employment for all. A nation which is seeking industrial growth and capital investment must offer political and industrial stability. Employers and employees alike must understand their wide responsibilities.

In recent months, Mr. Speaker, there has been a deterioration in labour relations in Kenya, which the Government cannot ignore. The Harabee spirit, which is the key to our national unity has not been sufficiently evident in the organization of labour. There have been needless strikes and wild talk of bigger strikes. There is competition among leaders of labour organizations, and they tend also to show militancy instead of patience and responsibility. Organized labour, employers and Government have solemnly agreed in the Charter that strikes and lock-outs are a last resort.

There is a false idea abroad that sections of labour can improve their position by adopting the policy of strike first and bargain later. My audience will be well aware that these problems facing Kenya as a new African state have, in some states, led to drastic measures. The Government of Kenya must also act firmly. The question for us, therefore, Mr. Speaker, has been an anxious one. It is the question which was posed for Africans at the second African regional conference of the International Labour Organization held at Addis Ababa last year. Does the imperative need for efficiency and development compel us to abolish the right of freedom of association? I believe, as does the Government association? I believe, as does the Government

I believe, as does the Government, that it is incompatible with the special needs of the developing countries, like ours, and that with Government guidance and encouragement from Government, the trade union movement will make a more effective contribution to economic development in conditions of freedom than otherwise. It is up, therefore, to the leaders of both sides in industry to justify our faith in their ability to behave responsibly towards the nation. Their failure to justify that faith will bring a sad day for the nation and an unhappy one for them.

It is important to realize what is at stake, Mr. Speaker, in this position. Not only is the Government pledged to a programme of rapid economic

[The Minister for Commerce and Industry] happy to know that the definition, as I said, will deal with all people who trade whether they deal in trade, whether they trade in services or whether they trade in actual goods.

Now, the other point is the one raised by the Member for Kilifi South, the hon. Mr. Ngala, he felt that key money was not wanted. I think he was only strengthening the position I had already taken that it is more than not being wanted it is illegal and it is corrupt, and will definitely be abolished. The hon. Mr. Ngala, Member for Kilifi South, felt strongly that the shortcomings in this Bill, I am being very honest with all the Member's points, that the short coming in this Bill is that the initiative should not rest with the tenant, but with the tribunal, because it is here that the tenants will not have the nerve to go in case they lose and then they are convicted, by the landlord. I have done a bit of thought about this. The hon. Member for Nairobi Central, the Minister for Economic Planning and Development sought to argue in reply to this point, because he said that the man who is wearing a shoe knows where it pinches. Therefore, the initiative should remain with the tenant.

Well, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to go a little further than that and draw the Members' attention to clause 12, section 4 which does give the tribunal very wide powers. A tribunal may investigate any complaint regarding to a tenancy made to it by the landlord or the tenant, and may make such orders thereon as it sees fit. I should like to remind the House that it is the Minister who may lay down the regulations which will then indicate the Minister receiving these kinds of complaints. The Minister is aware that there could be situations whereby a tenant may wish to complain to the tribunal but would rather that the rest of the work be done by the tribunal which I see actually will make it as easy as possible for the tenant to repeal these services of this tribunal without undue hardships.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member for Kilifi South also talked about these buildings which have already been depreciated to zero, and he felt that in fact these buildings should not be rented at all, and if I may say that this cannot be quite accepted because if that is the case then all these businesses whether they be building businesses or not who have already paid their initial capital should not be making any profit at all. This is not a anti-profit making Bill, it is for the fair treatment of the tenant. The complaint is of unfair treatment and that is why we are setting up the tribunal in order to reduce the Kenya economy that many landlords are not Africans but this Bill is not racial whatsoever, it is not aiming at punishing one racial community or protecting another. If you happen to be an exploiting landlord and you happen to be an Asian, it is just too bad, but if you happen to be a Masai, the same thing will happen. This is not a racial Bill.

Before I say whether we are going to put it, much of it will come from my good and my generous colleague, the Minister for Finance, and the remainder will come in terms of fact, and I should like to say that if the hon. Members feel as strongly as they have shown in this House this practice may even prove very hard indeed, because I should make it quite clear, Mr. Speaker, that I intend to make this law effective as soon as it is passed by this House in as many towns and townships as possible, including the premises of the Government. I do feel, however, that the Masai manyattas will not be affected.

Mr. ole TIPS: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, where does the Masai manyatta come in this Bill?

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiatio): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I just pointed out that the Masai manyattas do not come within this Bill, because the Masai do not pay the rent to the landlord owning the manyatta.

I think I can also exempt the villages in my constituency, and in the constituencies of the rural Members, that the Government intends to make this Bill effective in all those townships and towns and municipalities where the question of rent is an applicable question.

The hon. Member for Nyaribari, the Assistant Minister to the President's Office, was very difficult, because he is a lawyer and I am not. First of all, he complained, like all other people, that this Bill should have included criticism, premises, and I have accepted this criticism, and this will be brought to this House by the hon. Minister for Health and Housing next myself. Then he sought to argue that this Bill may not help Africans, and will only protect Asians because it so happens that in the Kisii township most of the tenants are Asians. I would like to notify the hon. Member that Kenya consists of more than Kisii township, that what happens in Kisii may not be the situation in Thika or Nairobi or Kisumu. This Bill will definitely help the African traders, and there is no question about that I believe that African traders in Murang'a will also be helped as much, as the hon. Member, Mr. Kariki, would like us to believe.

Now, Sir, there were a number of hon. Members, including the Member for Nyandarua, who sought to see it on racial differentiation in this Bill. I would like to say that it so happens in that paying in advance does not become a prohibitive affair.

However, I will not agree with another hon. Member whose name I do not remember, but I have a feeling it is my good friend, the hon. Kibwaga, the Member for Wanjare-South Murgirango, that rents should be paid after the end of the month and not before. We have this problem, and I now speak from experience, because I have a little house next to my own house that I rent out, a small one, but when you rent a house to a tenant, towards the end of the month, he is to pay at the end of the month, he disappears, and then he goes to do the same at another place. So, he gets free rent everywhere he goes. I think the hon. Members will agree with me that we should keep to the principle of payment of rent in advance, and I also agree that it is right in this respect.

Now, Sir, the hon. Mr. Kibwaga, the Member for Wanjare-South Murgirango, wondered why clause 17 was irrelevant. Clause 17 says that this Bill does not involve capital. Let me say here, and make it even stronger, that the East African Common Services Organization shall also be defined as Government, and we believe, Mr. Speaker, that it would be ridiculous indeed for the Kenya Government, which is against exploitation and is wishing to protect the people from exploitation, to pass a Bill against it. It would be questioning the very wisdom of the Government. The Government has also been exploiting its tenants. Now, I must defend the Government of this country and say that it does not exploit the people, and that the tenants using Government premises have not been exploited. I am glad to say, Mr. Speaker, that not one hon. Member, not even one, brought any case whatsoever on the Floor of this House to indicate that any local authority, or any Government branch, has exploited any tenant. I am glad for that clear record of the Kenya Government, and its affiliates.

Mr. J. M. Kariki: On a point of information—

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiatio): I will not give way.

Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member for Nyandarua spoke yesterday and he forgot that element. If he just remembers now, it is too late. But, I would greatly appreciate any information that the hon. Member would like to bring to the Minister, but as I said, I do not feel very sympathetic in the exercise of telling the Kenya Government to blame itself, and to call itself an exploiter.

that paying in advance does not become a prohibitive affair.

Now, I think—and if I am wrong I stand for correction—that the hon. Member for Nyandarua wished to simplify the situation, by saying we will not just fix the rent in particular areas in the township, instead of just leaving the matter open. The point, however, is this: That even if you take one street, like Kenyatta Avenue, Government Road, or River Road, and even Digo Road, you will find that who you contact say that all rents along this road must be equal, because some buildings are better than others and some are more suited to say that rents along Kenyatta Avenue must be fixed, rents along Duke Street must be fixed. Well, we would rather not do it that way.

Now, the hon. Member for Othaya-South Tetu is another lawyer, Mr. Speaker, and I have problems with these people because they are referred to as learned Members, and we who are not so learned never quite know whether we are on the right road or not. The hon. Member, Mr. Waritih, wanted to know about this question of payments in advance. I would like to draw his attention to the fact that the schedule appearing on page 163 is a schedule of the terms and conditions implied in the tenancy, whether or not it is verbal, so that even if it is verbal, these things must be lived up to. For example, the keeping of the building is by the landlord, but the cleaning of the inside is done by the tenant. To make sure also that the landlord does not put such an uncouth person next to the tenant that the tenant can no longer carry on his business, are such conditions, whether or not the tenancy is written. But, of these conditions, one was that the lessee shall pay rent for the premises in advance. The hon. Member for South Tetu felt that this could be abused, and I still think this could be abused, when the rent in advance required is for a year or two years, or even six months. It could then be a way of denying the prospective tenant the opportunity to take the building, and I think that is the powers kindly given to me, or by this Bill, we shall define the advancement that should be required. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we shall see to it

[The Minister for Commerce and Industry]

Another point that has been made in this House which I have agreed to listen to and comply with in accordance to the wishes of the Members of this House. The most important item in this respect, Sir, has to do with the definition of the word "shops". In the Bill as published, the word "shop" means premises occupied wholly or mainly for the purpose of retail trade or business. Hon. Members have pointed out that that definition is too restrictive and Mr. Speaker, Sir, I intend to move an amendment when it comes to the Committee stage to enlarge that definition in order to include those premises dealing not only with retail trade but also with wholesale trade and also all persons occupying premises for services for which they receive payment. I have in mind, Sir, such persons as African barbers, the African barbers which have rented premises in River Road, where I get my hair cut myself. These fellows are paying rent and in that respect they are traders, but the definition as it stands today would not have included them and, as I have said, when it comes to the Committee stage, we shall enlarge the definition of this word to include traders, even to the trade which entails cutting the hair of Members of this Parliament and of the public. That part will be taken care of.

Now, Sir, I wish to go over the points made by the various Members. The first speaker, Sir, was the hon. Member for Majogo-Bassi, Mr. Anyieni. I was very glad that he set the tone of the House by accepting the Bill. I want to thank him for that. I think that was a very good moment and all the people who spoke after him followed in his footsteps and accepted the Bill likewise. The hon. Member, however, was unhappy about the powers given to the tribunal. This point was even enlarged a little more by the Member for Nyandarua, Mr. J. M. Karubi, who felt that not only the tribunal but the Minister himself, has a lot of power. Now, Sir, I do have the feeling that Government requires power to govern, and if that one man is feeling unhappy that Government has power then we ought to reach the logical conclusion whereby we shall have to undertake so that nobody has any power in the country. I am sure my hon. friend, the Member for Nyandarua, and the Member for Majogo-Bassi, actually did not wish to criticize the Bill as such. What they wanted to say was that procedures that will be announced by the Minister in accordance to clause 16, will be such that these powers will be properly used. That they will be used to attain the goal for which this Bill has been published, rather than to punish unduly any particular club of people, or to protect any other class of people, but rather in keeping with the Bill of Rights. I will therefore accept these criticisms in that spirit.

Now, Sir, the hon. Member for Majogo-Bassi, I am not quite sure, when we were talking it was quite easy to know which Member represented what constituency, but now that we are a House of 130 Members, it is quite an exercise to remember who represents what and where. The hon. Member for Majogo-Bassi wanted to know whether there were some landlords who actually ignored the Government wishes and increased the rent or evicted tenants after the Government has sent a circular requiring that this should not be done until the Bill has been moved.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair.]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair.]

I must agree with the hon. Member, that in this respect, that I did send at least three circulars to various landlords telling them that the working party has recommended the reintroduction of rent control, that the Government was working on this Bill, and it would be considered, in the spirit of Harambbee, if they did not raise the rents until such times as the Bill was published and patented. But I am sorry to say, Sir, that an uncomfortably large number of landlords, and when I say "uncomfortably large", because more than three is large enough, we do have cases of people who did not care at all what the Government said. What they did was to rush to their lawyers and their lawyers told them that so long as there is no law then you cannot be taken to court, and when that took place they made it very clear to us that the property on talking through our lawyers, that the property was their own, and that they are going to do what they want to do, and I cited the number of cases, Sir, when I was introducing this Bill, how we were defied. I do hope that this kind of behaviour will not be repeated in this country. When the Government requires co-operation it will be good if it does retain that co-operation and we have been receiving very good co-operation in other aspects. But in this particular aspect, I am afraid to say, there were a number of landlords, particularly here in Nairobi, who confessed in our office, when asked to come and discuss this matter with my officers to say, "you do not have the law; we believe in a Government of law not a Government of men". But a Government of law and not a Government of men is a very good thing, but these laws are made by men, and I hope that we are all human beings in this House, who are now passing this law. Now, Sir, I hope this greed, because it was greed, it was an attempt to make a quick packet before the Government passes the law, I hope before the Government passes the law, I hope this kind of greed, which is very short-sighted, will not be repeated in our economy. That in the long run it is not the greedy person who becomes a rich person, that even good economies are greedy then against greed, because if you are greedy then you are easily found out and you are respectively punished, or you are boycotted, or you are ignored, or you receive no co-operation from the buyers and in the long run you spoil your name, and once you spoil your name in business then it is worse than losing your investments. The most important aspect in business is a good name and integrity. So, I would like to inform hon. Members that it is true that this is happening.

The hon. Member for Majogo-Bassi raised another point of absent landlords, or people who are building in this country, but live elsewhere, and feel that the Government should take those buildings. I think this is an entirely different issue, Mr. Speaker, Sir. It is not in any way referred to in the Bill, and I think that if the hon. Member wants us to clear a policy with regard to absent landlords, not only for building but for everything else, then he should bring that as a separate issue. I shall not deal with it at all in this House. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member also, like many other Members, raised the question of these buildings which were built, let us say ten years ago, fifteen years ago or even built before I was born, and they felt that there is an element of unfairness, even if they do not say exploitation, to the people charging rent when in actual fact this building has already been returned to the investor the original amount of money invested. This point was particularly played up by my very good friend the Member for Nyandarua, and I would like to remind the hon. Member for Nyandarua, that he as a businessman, ought to know that when he invests he invests to make money. Now, Sir, if we invested say Sh. 100 and within three months the business has already returned to you Sh. 100. It does that mean that you should close shop? It does not. The hon. Member for Nyandarua ought to know, I am saying this in the dark and trust that if I am wrong then I shall be corrected outside the House, that the first persons who invested in the building industry shall be considered in the same way as the other investors. When the amount of money which has been invested in a building and has been paid back in other businesses like running a taxi service, or other things, they do not close shop. I do not think you can punish a landlord just because his money has been paid back. What you have to consider is this, is the house required or not required for business? What is the market value of a building?

I think practically all the buildings in this country, the taxis being driven around Nairobi, and if I may say so, many other businesses here in Nairobi have already paid back to the investors the amount they initially invested. But, Mr. Speaker, Sir, for them to say that if a building has paid back this amount should to that extent be no longer charging rent as the hon. Member for Majogo-Bassi says would be a bit unfair to the investors.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Specially Elected Member, the hon. Mr. Jahazi, felt that this Bill should have included residential places. This point was also supported very strongly, not only by my friend from Nyandarua, but also by other Members. But the reason why Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am making so many references to the Member for Nyandarua is because he just kept on speaking on the points already made by other persons, only that he tried to improve on the points. Now if another Member has referred to the point my friend the Member for Nyandarua has also referred to the point, what I would like to say is that I have the authority to say that the Government is very concerned about trends as far as residential places are concerned, but this matter will be brought to this House by the appropriate Minister, the Minister for Health and Housing, that we shall not protect tenants and housing, that we shall be concerned as our Government will wish also to protect who occupy residential premises. This can be taken as a Government policy and that a statement will be brought to this House at the appropriate time by the appropriate Minister regarding rent for residential property.

The hon. Mr. Jahazi also referred to the definition of the word "shops" and wanted to make sure that doctors who have rented premises should also be protected and that the definition of the word "shop" should be enlarged to include this. As I said before, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the definition of the word "shop" was agreed with the feelings of the House will be widened to include such premises.

Dr. De Souza: Offices also?

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kioko): The hon. Dr. De Souza who is a lawyer, and who I believe, Sir, does rent premises to perform his services should also be

[Mr. Argwings-Kodhek] the task of making certain details available to this House is because it appears that rumours had started running around this building and we wanted to clear up these rumours. Usually, whenever they get hold of a matter like this, they raise certain rumours, and this case was started only on the 21st April. As the hon. Members know, or should know, nobody has been kept in police custody for more than a limited period even with regard to this matter, without having been taken to court. I cannot see every much point in this.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If you can tell us definitely, whether or not there is a charge?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: There is a charge.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): So we cannot take it any further.

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I do not know what the policy is of this House, but this man has been arrested and he has been charged; the question has been allowed to come to this House. I want you, Mr. Speaker, to make it clear to us what the position is, when a man has been arrested, his case can go to court, and you, Sir, as Speaker, can allow the question to be raised here and the Government can agree to reply to that question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not possible for the Speaker to know, in the case of every question, whether the matter is sub judice. But if it is actually sub judice, the Ministry should refuse to answer on that ground.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when dealing with a matter which is sub judice, surely the mere fact that a person has been charged does not preclude a statement of facts, confirming, one, that a man was arrested, and two, that he was arrested in the circumstances described, but not going beyond that, so as to prejudice the case one way or another? I think this is what the Assistant Minister was trying to outline, that although the arrest has been made and although a charge has been preferred, and although a discussion of the circumstances or the aspects of the case might be sub judice, yet to confirm that an arrest has been made and a charge has been made does not appear to me to preclude the right of Government to give the information where it is required. I would not have thought so.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is in order, as the Minister says, for the Government to say in advance that a man has been arrested on a particular charge. But that was not the question. The question was: what was the make of the firearms found in this house, how they had been transported to this house, by whom and why, all of which would be relevant to a charge. Even what has been found in this house, I would say, was relevant to the charge and should not actually be discussed, as being sub judice. It is out of our hands, we cannot go further now.

BILL

Second Reading

THE LANDLORD AND TENANT (SHOPS, HOTELS AND CATERING ESTABLISHMENTS) BILL

(The Minister for Commerce and Industry on 22nd April 1965)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 21th April 1965)

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, yesterday, when I was interrupted—

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when you ruled that we could not continue with the question, I looked at the question and I said that the Minister has not replied to the question as to who transported the arms there. Then Mr. Speaker, the hon. Mr. Ngala here has just said it could be me, it could be the hon. Mr. Anyien who transported them. I would like to know, Mr. Speaker, whether it is proper for one Member to say a thing like that about another Member.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Ngala, what have you to say to this?

Mr. Ngala: I never said that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You deny that you said it? If you did say it, of course, it would be very improper and I would have to ask you to leave.

Mr. Oduya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, it is not your duty to advise this House that when there are matters like this of urgent national importance before the House Members should avoid provoking other Members, as my friend was pointing his finger—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order! Of course, Members must refrain from improper provocation of each other. As I said, if Mr. Ngala had said that, I would require him to leave the Chamber. He denies that he said it.

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, there is a Member sitting very close and when the hon. Member was saying these things he said them to him. Would it not be proper to ask the hon. Member to confirm this?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I cannot possibly turn myself into a court of inquiry. Order! Would hon. Members please remain seated while I speak?

If I hear an hon. Member make an improper remark then, of course, I take action. If he acknowledges having made an improper remark, then I take action. If he denies it, I can do no more.

Mr. Omar, will you please continue?

Mr. Omar: Yes, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

Yesterday, when I was interrupted because the time was over, I was speaking on written or written agreements between landlord and tenant, and I stressed that what the Ministry should accept is that it should only be a written agreement and not an unwritten one between landlord and tenant.

Another point I would like to stress very much, Mr. Speaker, is about the impression given by some Members here that the majority of the landlords in the country are Asians and therefore they exploit the African tenants. I would like to say that there are also African landlords in this country who are also exploiting the African tenants and therefore this has become a sort of distaste war between the landlords and the tenants. They may be Asians or Europeans or Arab, these landlords, and even African landlords, who exploit their fellow-European tenants or Asian tenants or African tenants, and, therefore the impression given, that it is the Asians who are exploiting the African tenants should be dismissed from the minds of some of the hon. Members in this House. I am not the advocate of the Asian landlords, but what I feel I should say, Sir, here is that it is general exploitation.

Under the present economic division of this country we find that there are African capitalists who are exploiting their fellow-Africans, and this is a thing which we do not want. We want to put an end to it. A capitalist is a capitalist, no matter whether he is African, Asian or European. But as long as he is a capitalist he exploits Africans; and therefore when we are opposing exploitation, we should not think where it comes from, whether it is from Asians or Europeans. We should oppose exploitation from any source and not oppose exploitation from community of Asians or Europeans or Indians only. We are here to oppose exploitation and therefore we must oppose it openly, regardless of colour or creed. Therefore I must say that so long as this Bill is coming, it should not be thought that it is here only to protect African tenants but it is also here to protect even some of the European, Asian and Arab tenants. So in this case, Sir, I wish to make it quite clear that we do not want exploitation from any source at all.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, which I wanted to mention is about clause 4 (4), where it states:

"A notice to a tenant required to be given under this section, may be served by delivering to him personally, or to an adult member of his family..."

Now here, Mr. Speaker, I can find a trick, which I have experienced in my constituency. There are some landlords who are dishonest and they may pretend that they have delivered a notice of termination to a tenant two months back, whereas in actual fact that notice has not been given two months previously, as required by the law. So what I think here, Sir, is that the Government should see to it that all the notices of termination of tenancy should be given in writing and should be sent by notice of termination to the tenants to ensure that the notice of termination is received by the tenant. If it is left like this, Mr. Speaker, a dishonest landlord can claim to have given notice of termination to a tenant two months previously, as is required by the law, whereas in fact the tenant has not actually been given two months' notice.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, that I want to mention is about clause 6 (1), where it mentions "a tenant who wishes to oppose a notice of termination or alteration served on him by the landlord under section 4". In this clause, I would like to know if the tenant, when he wishes to make an appeal to the tribunal, has to pay any fees; and if he has to pay any fees, he should like to know the amount of the fees he should pay. If he has to pay any fees, and he is not in a position to do so, he cannot afford to pay the fees. We would like to know the arrangement under which such a tenant would be allowed to lodge an appeal to the tribunal without paying the fees which are due. I am sure, Sir, there would be some cases in which a tenant will be probably required to pay fees and he may not have sufficient money to pay them, and therefore he will not be able to take the matter to the tribunal. That will mean that it is denied justice under this Act. So we would like the [Mr. Malsori-Nambo] that these promises were clearly given to the people and they were informed by the Ministry of Agriculture that tractors were to come, and yet they did not, and they are now given to people farming cotton around Lake Victoria and some of the areas, especially Migori Division, are not allowed to have them for cultivation?

Mr. Osogo: The information which the hon. Member for Kuria is putting to the House is completely incorrect, Mr. Speaker. What happened was that no Government official promised Migori people any tractors at any time, but there were suggestions, Mr. Speaker, that it would be possible for the Government to hire tractors and loan them to cotton growers, which has happened. At this time, Mr. Speaker, there are several tractors in South Nyanza assisting cotton growers in that area.

Mr. Bala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I wish to seek your guidance. When the Assistant Minister says something contrary to what the Government said, because the Chairman of the Cotton Board, Mr. Muliro, was in Central Nyanza, and he was told point blank—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. Mr. Bala, I think you are doing what hon. Members so often do, rising on a point of order to say that the answer is not truthful. I have dealt with that so often. I am not going to deal with it again. You cannot rise on a point of order in that way.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply that no tractors were promised by any official of this Ministry, will the Assistant Minister agree with me that he has admitted privately to myself, when I raised this question with him, that the announcement was made by this officer in South Nyanza for the tractors to be given to the farmers in their district prematurely, when arrangements had not been made for the tractors to come to South Nyanza, and that the tractors which are in South Nyanza now are not those which were prematurely promised?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, if my language is correct, I have said no tractors were promised to the Migori people, and the word "promised" should be marked, but the hon. Member is right in telling me that I discussed this point with him and that a suggestion was put by an official of our Ministry to the people of Migori and not a promise.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is the Assistant Minister aware that during the course of last year, Mr. Mirie came to Nyanza and promised that he was going to send tractors to help the people of Central Nyanza and South Nyanza to cultivate their land?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if Mr. Mirie who is the Director of Agriculture said that he was going to send the tractors to Nyanza Province, then, Sir, he was right, for they are already there.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We must go on now.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE

FIREARMS FOUND IN A PRIVATE HOUSE IN MAJOGE, KISII

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Khasakhal, you have a question by private notice? Will you ask it now?

Mr. Khasakhal: Mr. Speaker, Sir, under Standing Order No. 26 (2), I beg to ask the Minister for Internal Security and Defence the following question.

Could the Minister tell the House the make and how the twenty-four firearms which were found at the home of Mr. Pio Nyandwara a Kanu leader of Majoge location in Kili, on 21st April 1965, were transported to his home and by who and why they were kept there?

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, as the hon. Member for Embuys has said, this matter arose on 21st April, and for reasons which I shall explain later, we may not go into the details as to how these so-called weapons went down to Majoge. I wish to say this—

Mr. map To: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to know from the Assistant Minister whether they were "so-called" weapons or they were real weapons?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order. Will you please sit down.

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, Sir, acting on information, the police went to this man's home in Majoge and found what I am going to tell you right now, and I must say so because this is likely to raise terrific alarm in the country and among the public, having due regard to certain things which have happened about a fortnight ago. The firearms and others that were found in Nyandwara's house in a sack and were as follows: three live rounds of .22 ammunition, one empty .303 cartridge case, one toy cap

[Mr. Argwings-Kodhek] a pistol, an old broken tin containing grenade fuses, three home-made pistols, seven wooden bodies for home-made guns, six small wooden bodies for home-made pistols, one bottle containing rifle oil, one bottle for grenades, six staining pipes, apparently for making gun barrels, wrapped in a paper and believed to be for explosives, one police notebook—suspected of having been stolen—one law book, Volume No. IV, 1930: three phials of procaine penicillin, two new sheets of sandpaper, apparently for smoothing arms, one wooden box containing springs, chisels, a small saw and other small items for manufacturing arms, a number of books, receipts and letters belonging to Kanu, a number of documents connected with the Land Freedom Army. Also found in the house were found two Barclays Bank books of Dominions, Colonial and Overseas, and one cheque book, three bottles containing oil or a similar substance, five new springs believed to be of a type which could be used in the manufacture of firearms, various iron bars and nails believed to be of use in manufacturing firearms.

Mr. Khasakhal: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister tell the House the make of the particular firearms he has referred to, whether they were identified as stolen from a police post or from somewhere?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, I have already spoken of .22s and an empty .303 cartridge case. The others are home-made articles. Mr. Speaker, Sir, and secondly— That is all.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies of the Assistant Minister, could he tell us whether the .22 or the .303 ammunition was locally purchased and where, according to his investigations, or whether it was smuggled from overseas and how did it get to Kisii?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, they are home-made. The .22 was apparently stolen. But this matter, as I have told the House, took place on the 21st April. The police are still investigating. The man concerned is one of those who claims to have gone into the forest, Mr. Speaker, Sir, when the President asked people to get out of the forest and Land Freedom Army groups. He joined the Land Freedom Army and he admits so far that he surrendered or his troops surrendered a number of firearms, but he thought it better to retain a few, but this matter is being investigated.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not actually sub judice, I hope?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: As a matter of fact, Mr. Speaker, I can go so far but not very much further.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the—

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Okongo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sorry for my colleague here that I have to admit that I find this question very unusual and the answers that are being given, because if it is a question of somebody having illegal arms, this is something which should be taken over by the police and the matter should be a matter for the court and not for this House.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is why I asked Mr. Argwings-Kodhek whether the matter was sub judice. If a man has been charged with an offence in relation to this matter, then it is out of order for questions to be asked or answered meanwhile. But unless and until we reach that point, it is certainly within the scope of questions in this House to raise a matter of this kind. The House may be most interested to know, when an incident of this kind, has been disclosed, whether it is being pursued and the way in which it is being pursued.

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, we would like to know this as a matter of policy for this House or Standing Orders. This man was arrested, I think, as the hon. Member says, and this man's case is in the court. I am wondering, Mr. Speaker, whether we will be allowed in the future to raise questions when the persons affected have been arrested by the Government and are in the courts. Otherwise, I would like to know, Mr. Speaker, whether these questions do pass through you first for you to accept them to come before this House, and whether the Government also gives consent to reply to such questions before they come to the House, so that we can raise such questions when matters of that type are in the court?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): A question by private notice only comes forward with the consent of the Speaker, and in circumstances which he thinks proper for a question by private notice, which has to be a matter that seems to be of some urgent and public importance. If, as be of some urgent and public importance, in Mr. Anyien now tells me, the man named in this question has been arrested and charged, this question has been arrested and it should not be discussed in this House, but I asked the Assistant Minister if it was so, I understood it was not so.

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I said was that I could only go to a certain point, and one reason why my Ministry accepted

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I understand, Mr. Barasa, that your question was corrected and sent in its corrected form to the Ministry.

Mr. Barasa: Yes, Sir.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The figures as requested are as follows:—

	Form I	Form V	Total
Central	65	27	92
Coast	10	5	15
Eastern	25	14	39
North-Eastern	0	0	0
Nyanza	39	8	47
Rift Valley	32	9	41
Western	35	15	50
Nairobi	4	12	16
Others	0	4	4
	210	94	304

Mr. Barasa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell the House what determined the selection. Was it age, merit or what?

Mr. Mutiso: The determination of selection of candidates, Mr. Speaker, depended on the number of pupils who sat for the Kenya Preliminary Examination from each province.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the Minister has given us a breakdown of the number of students admitted to Kenyatta National College, could we ask the Minister to give the House the names in writing of the provincial breakdowns?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not follow the question.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, in having given the House the breakdown of students per province, could he in the near future give this House also information in writing of the names of the students from each province and which schools they came from?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is another question. It will have to be the subject of another question.

Mr. Masinde: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that it relates very much to this question, I think it would be in order if we could get this in writing as Mr. Khasakhala has requested.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, if the question is put in properly for it, you will get the answer.

It is not the same question as this one. When the question is how many students from each province, it is not a question of whom from each province. It is another question. Hon. Members are entitled to ask another question about this, but not as supplementary to this one.

Mr. Khasakhala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I need your guidance on this. When the number was referred to, the counting comes from names, and if we want to know the number of these who bring about the figures, it is in order—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think, Mr. Khasakhala, you must get used to the idea that my rulings are not questioned.

Mr. Ochwaña: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, that the figures of the selected candidates were derived from the figures of the students who sat for the Kenya Preliminary Examination, is the Assistant Minister in a position to tell the House, or to give the House, a breakdown of the number of students who sat for the Kenya Preliminary Examination in each province?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in Central Province there were 35,307 in 1964; in the Coast Province, there were 7,294; in the Eastern Province, there were 15,630; in Nairobi there were 5,210; in Nyanza Province there were 11,231; in the Rift Valley Province there were 17,919; in the Western Province, 10,062. Mr. Speaker, we expect a bigger number this year.

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Assistant Minister has given us a breakdown of various places, could he also tell us how many sat an examination, and those who were considered as private candidates?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sorry, I need notice of that question, because I do not have the list of the private candidates here.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is there anyone authorized by Mr. Amin to ask his question?

Mr. Khalif: Yes, Sir, I am.

Question No. 1078

BURSARIES FOR SOMALI BOYS

Mr. Khalif, on behalf of Mr. Amin, asked the Minister for Education if, in view of the fact that the Government had already offered bursaries to twenty-five Somali boys from the North-Eastern Province, the Minister would tell the House when these students were going to be sent abroad.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am fully aware of the educational needs of the North-Eastern Province. At the beginning of this year, Wajir, Secondary School was opened at Wajir. This school absorbed all the twenty-seven North-Eastern Province pupils who sat for the Kenya Preliminary Examination in 1964. Because of my awareness of the need, I even allowed eight candidates who sat for the Kenya Preliminary Examination in 1963 to be admitted to the secondary school.

These admissions have taken up all the youths who were qualified for post primary education of any kind by virtue of completing a seven or eight years course. There are, apparently, no other persons in the province, with any comparable educational background, to whom opportunities for further education can be offered, whether in Kenya or abroad.

It should also be noted that three teachers from the same area had already been selected for training overseas; two in the United Kingdom and one in Australia.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that the promise made by the President to offer twenty-five bursaries to Somali students was one of the usual promises and pledges undertaken by this Government for the residents in the North-Eastern Region, which never have and never will materialize?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I cannot agree with the hon. Member because the President's offer is still outstanding, and the Government which offers these Government scholarships does insist on a certain educational standard and that is School Certificate, Cambridge School Certificate. In the North-Eastern Province, we do not have any people who have already qualified under the School Certificate standard, and if the Member can produce some who have School Certificate qualification, the Minister will be prepared to help those students.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Maisori-Itumbo, I understand you are authorized to ask Mr. Okwanyo's questions?

Question No. 1039

IMPROVEMENT IN QUALITY OF SUGAR-CANE

Mr. Maisori-Itumbo, on behalf of Mr. Okwanyo, asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry what plans the Ministry had to improve the sugar-cane quality and quantities in Migori.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The improvement of the quality and quantity of sugar-cane being produced in the country is being dealt with in the following ways. An East African sugar-cane station is to be established to breed varieties of East African sugar-cane. The varieties so produced will be tested in our own national research station which we are in the process of establishing at Kibos. This station will have substations.

Mr. Maisori-Itumbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is he aware that people in Migori Division were encouraged to plant more sugar-cane in that area and, when the cane was produced, they had no place to sell it and there is nothing now, it has just been wasted? Can the Assistant Minister assure the House that something is to be done at Migori and not Muhoroni or Central Nyanza, which is 150 miles away from Migori?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, the cane that grows in the Migori area is being processed at this time by the jaggery factories in the area and we expect, if there is any excess, to grant them more licences for jaggery factories to process the sugar-cane which grows there.

Mr. Sikakau: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, Sir, to the effect that the sugar at Migori is being processed into jaggery, is he aware that jaggery is one of the items that should be discouraged for it is that very jaggery which is being used for brewing Nubian gin?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is getting right away from the question.

Question No. 1040

TRACTORS FOR SOUTH NYANZA PEOPLE

Mr. Maisori-Itumbo, on behalf of Mr. Okwanyo, asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry, whether he was aware that some top agricultural civil servants in Nyanza had announced to the people that South Nyanza would be given ninety tractors and that this had not been implemented.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There were no promises or categorical statements made to this effect, although agricultural staff held meetings in South Nyanza to sound the people's feeling regarding the proposed Saga groups.

Mr. Maisori-Itumbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is he aware [Mr. Anyieni] Paper when the Government will reply next week or so?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have abandoned the practice of distinguishing between questions, such as those ordered or those to be answered extempore. All questions are put on the Order Paper for reply within the time prescribed by Standing Orders, whether or not we have received the reply from the Ministry; and then the Minister is expected to be here with his reply, or explanation as to why he will not reply or is not ready to reply. The procedure is perfectly normal in this case. If the Minister has given a reason for delay, then this question will accordingly be answered, when he is ready for it.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the same question was asked last year and the Assistant Minister of last year answered the question, and he knew very well the number of non-Africans who had purchased land and the Member now is finding out whether any additional non-Africans have purchased land. Does this mean that the answer given last year was a wrong one?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are saying, Mr. Makone, that this question has been answered already.

Mr. Makone: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am not aware that it has been answered, but if it has, within a reasonable length of time, already; then of course it is out of order. We will look into that.

Mr. Gichoya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, here is a matter for clarification. The impression given to the House is that the question which has been asked was related to one district and consequent to the answer from the Government could have given the answer to the national problem in the sense that the Government of the people must know the statistics of people who buy the land, whether in terms of owning or renting.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What is your point of order, Mr. Gichoya?

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said—Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to have clarification from the speaker and correction, of course, but I must complain that some of the Junior Ministers—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What is your point of order, Mr. Gichoya?

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my point of order is this. The question that the hon. Member said has already been asked in this House related to one district, but this question which is being asked today is in connection with the nation. Consequently, if it were possible to get the form for one district, then on the national basis the Minister ought to consult the list.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Unless you can tell me right now your point of order, you must sit down, Mr. Gichoya.

Will you sit down, Mr. Gichoya.

We have had quite enough of these points of order for a bit, we will go on to the next question.

Question No. 1037

OPENING OF SECONDARY SCHOOL IN NERKWO

Mr. arap Too asked the Minister for Education whether, in view of the promises made by both the Minister for Education and by the party top officials to the Marakwet people that they would get financial aid to open a secondary school at Nerkwō in 1965, would the Minister now tell the House when these promises were going to be fulfilled.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. While it is agreed that the Ministry of Education is committed to establishing a secondary school in the Marakwet area, it is not accepted that the Ministry is obliged to establish the school at a particular place or under any particular management. In fact, an aided secondary school in the Marakwet area has been opened at Chebara. As thereby fulfilling the Ministry's obligations as a matter of fact, Marakwet is better off than many other areas, because it has three secondary schools now: namely, Chebara, Tambach and Iten.

Mr. arap Too: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise on a point of order. The Assistant Minister says that the Marakwet people have three secondary schools, when they have only one. I would like to know whether the Assistant Minister is in order in informing the House that the Marakwet people have three secondary schools when they have only one.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I cannot rule that the answers given by Ministers are in order or out of order because they are correct or incorrect. As I have told hon. Members before, if you can prove that the Minister has given an untrue answer, either immediately or subsequently, then

[The Speaker] the Minister can be required to come here and the Minister can be required to come here and acknowledge that fact to the House. Otherwise, though, the usual form is to test his answer by way of supplementary questions. The question you can now ask 'him is where are these secondary schools.

Mr. arap Too: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I now know from the Assistant Minister whether these three secondary schools in Marakwet are?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will be very happy to reply to that. The three secondary schools are Chebara, Tambach and Iten, as I have already said.

Mr. arap Too: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister is telling the House that the three schools are in Chebara, Tambach and Iten. Is the Assistant Minister so ignorant that he does not know that Iten and Tambach are not in Marakwet?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is included in the Elgeyo/Marakwet District.

Mr. arap Too: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister therefore having accepted that he is ignorant of the geography of the area, will he now tell the House why the Minister for Education announced in a public meeting which was held at Kapsowar on October 26th 1964, that Nerkwō would become a secondary school in 1965?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, for the information of the House, and the hon. Member who is asking this question, my information is that the hon. Member had committed himself to promising the people and, especially with the Catholic mission, that a school—

Mr. arap Too: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, these are very serious allegations. I have never—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Let us hear what Mr. Mutiso has to say.

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, for the information of the House, the hon. Member did commit himself to the Roman Catholic missionaries that a school which was recently opened and that is the school which I have already stated earlier, Chebara, will be opened under the management of the Roman Catholic Mission, but this has been already given to the A.I.M. and this is why, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member is trying to suggest that the Government is—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is completely out of order to make up reasons for supplementary questions. All you are asked to do is to answer supplementary questions.

Mr. Anyieni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in this House, there are times when we have asked questions and the Minister deliberately gives a very different answer and, Mr. Speaker, Sir, you ruled yesterday that the Minister is free to answer the way he has done or to refuse answering the question, and I do not understand under which Standing Order you rule the Assistant Minister out of order before he had finished, by saying he is not replying to the question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not quite know what point you are dealing with Mr. Anyieni, but I take it you are dealing with the answer that has just been given by the Assistant Minister. I have said many times, and I say it again, that the extent to which a Minister chooses to answer a question is his affair, but sometimes I point out to him that he has not answered the question. But I do say, and I say again, that in answering a question a Minister is not entitled to impute reasons for the question. There is no need for it and it is improper for him to do so.

Mr. arap Too: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I realize that the Assistant Minister is reluctant to answer my question, but now I want to ask another supplementary question. Is the Assistant Minister aware that even the Minister for Economic Planning and Development was among the top officials of the party who promised Marakwet Sh. 20,000 to build and finance the proposed Nerkwō secondary school?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, although I am not aware that the Minister for Economic Planning and Development did make this promise to the hon. Member's constituency, all that I am aware of, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that the Government has already fulfilled its promise by opening the school at Tambach which is already aided by the Government and therefore it has fulfilled its promise.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think we must go on now.

Question No. 1039

SELECTION OF STUDENTS FOR KENYATTA NATIONAL COLLEGE

Mr. Barasa asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House how many children from each province were selected for Kenyatta National College this year.

Mr. Bala: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, could he tell this House what kind of negotiations the Government of Kenya has made with the Government of the Soviet Union so that we know exactly how things stand?

Mr. Osogo: As far as we are concerned as a Government, the Soviet Union Government volunteered to give us some assistance. One of the forms of assistance we asked them to give us was to undertake the Kano irrigation project as a whole, and develop it. They sent here some specialists to have a feasibility survey made, and we are awaiting their report, to know whether they are or are not coming to undertake the project. Unless and until these reports are handed to us, we would not know what the Soviet Government is thinking about.

Mr. Ghehoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, that the bill lies with the Soviet Union, does it mean that the Kenya Government has taken no steps to find out, up to this moment, what is the opinion of the Soviet Government, so far as the period for putting this project into operation is concerned?

Mr. Osogo: I am sorry, Sir, that this supplementary question is getting rather far away from the original question, but I do not mind answering it, Mr. Speaker, we now and then call on the Russian Embassy to find out what the Russian Government is doing, or what it is considering, in connection with this project. We have also written to our Embassy in Moscow, to find out from the Russian Government there. But unless we get replies from either the Russian Embassy or our own Embassy in Moscow, we, as a Government, can do nothing.

Mr. Nyallick: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, could he tell the House whether it is only the Russian Government which would be able to undertake the Kano irrigation scheme?

Mr. Osogo: Would the hon. Member please repeat his question, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. Nyallick: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, Sir, could he tell the House whether it is only the Russian Government which could tackle the Kano irrigation scheme?

Mr. Osogo: No, Sir.

Mr. Malsorn-Itumbi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that the hon. questioner is in a better position to know what is going on between his Constituency and the Soviet Union Government than the Government is?

Mr. Nyallick: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, this is very serious, because I am not expected to know better than the Government. Why should I know better than the Government?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I think we will disregard Mr. Malsorn's question. We will go on to the next question.

Question No. 1072

DEMOTION OF PROVINCIAL AGRICULTURAL OFFICER

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry if he would tell the House the circumstances which led to the demotion of Mr. Peter Vuyiya from the provincial agricultural officer to county agricultural officer.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Mr. Peter Vuyiya has not been demoted at all.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply, that Mr. Vuyiya was not demoted, could the Assistant Minister tell the House what really did happen, if he was not demoted?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member who has asked this supplementary question should know exactly what did happen, because he was at a meeting, Mr. Speaker, where the hon. Members of Parliament from the Western Province put a case to the Minister that the officer in question was not doing all that they expected him to do in that province and asked the Minister if he could be removed.

This, Mr. Speaker, is what the Minister did on his plate when he considered removing Mr. Peter Vuyiya. We considered posting Mr. Vuyiya to Egerton College as a tutor, since he could not be accepted in another province to hold that post. The officer in question refused to accept this, and then accepted to be posted to Lands and Settlement on the same emoluments and the same grade. This is where he is at present, Mr. Speaker.

Question No. 1058

TEA-GROWING: MARAKWET DIVISION

Mr. Sam Toi asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry when he intended to authorize tea growing at Sangurur and Sambirir areas in Marakwet Division where tea experimental plots have proved them to be potential areas for tea growing?

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Tea is to be extended to the Kapchoror area where the fertility of soil and climate has been proved and it is not too far from the Trans Nzoia where the leaves will be processed. Sambirir is about fifteen miles beyond Kapchoror and Sanguru is still further, for economic reasons therefore, these places cannot be considered for tea growing at present.

Mr. Sam Toi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell the House what was the purpose of the Government making the experiment in the Sangurur and Sambirir areas?

Mr. Osogo: I have not at any time denied that tea can be grown in these areas which the hon. Member is referring to, but it is because of the financial problems I mentioned that we cannot, for the moment, encourage development of tea there but when the third phase of planting tea comes up, these two places will be considered, but not at present.

Mr. Anyien: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell us what financial necessities are required before tea can be planted in such areas, in view of the fact that former coffee nurseries could be changed into tea nurseries to enable people to plant tea in different areas where they can grow it?

Mr. Osogo: I have several times, Mr. Speaker, answered similar questions to that which the hon. Member has just raised, but, to remind the House of the replies I have given on these questions, I will again answer the hon. Member's question.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are a number of factors which are involved in planting tea and developing tea in an area. Number one, is the finance for the factories which process the leaves. Number two, is the finance to develop roads. Hon. Members may be glad to hear that when I was in the United States last week, I negotiated with the World Bank for a sum of about $3,000,000 for developing some tea roads in tea areas in this country. Number three, Mr. Speaker, are the stamps to be grown. Now these three factors are the ones we must have in mind before we consider expanding tea development.

Question No. 1069

LAND PURCHASES BY NON-AFRICANS

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement:—

(a) Could the Minister tell the House the number of non-Africans who had purchased land in Kenya?

(b) How many of the non-Africans were Kenya citizens?

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angaine): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The reply to this question, Mr. Speaker cannot be given today, as it involves a great deal of research which the Commissioner of Lands and the Immigration Department have been doing during the last month and which they hope to complete probably towards the end of next week. I promise, Mr. Speaker, the House that as soon as I have received the necessary information from these two departments I shall submit the report to this House either orally or in writing.

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, now the intention of first submitting these questions to the Ministry and secondly putting them on the Order Paper is with the confidence that the Ministers are prepared to reply to these questions, I am seeking your guidance, Mr. Speaker. This question has been put on the Order Paper with that understanding. Is the Minister in order in saying that he cannot give a reply?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Oh, Yes, quite definitely. The purpose of the Standing Order which requires all questions to be put on the Order Paper within a certain time after they have reached the Ministry is that that Ministry should then answer the question or say why it will not answer the question. Now there are occasions, which were recognized, I know, when this Standing Order was adopted, when the amount of research required will delay a question beyond ten days. The House should be quite satisfied in that case, as long as the question is put on the Order Paper for the Minister to come and tell the House so, and tell the House why there will be a delay in answering the question. I would suggest on this occasion that the Minister has given a perfectly good reason, having regard to the nature of this question; and this question will accordingly come up on the Order Paper again when we sit again in June.

Mr. Anyien: Mr. Speaker, I sometimes see on the Order Paper questions given as they are given today and then I have seen another set of questions on another schedule "questions ordered" and then I have seen on the Order Paper sometimes "questions extempore" something like that. I sometimes thought that some of these "questions ordered" are the questions to which come whether the Ministry is prepared to answer them or not and if for this particular question the question was not ordered because of time, how is it that it appeared on the Order

[Mr. Ngala-Aboki] with proper qualifications are now roaming about the country, advertising their qualifications to the ordinary man, who does not know what are the proper qualifications.

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in connexion with that lengthy question which is full of contradictions, I would like to say that since the hon. Member has asked me this question basing it on security reasons, if I reply, the security reasons he mentions may disappear.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that the first attempt a student who has just returned from overseas makes is to try and join the Civil Service and it is only after he has been frustrated in this direction that he decides to join private enterprise?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to agree with the hon. Specially Elected Member, but I would like to inform the House that because this constant complaint which has been received from the hon. Members and other quarters, that many Kenya nationals who return from courses overseas having different qualifications have experienced some difficulties in getting into the Public Service, I agree it is not always easy to assess their abilities, and the Government is considering introducing public examinations for entering various cadres of the Civil Service. This would ensure, among other things, that no discrimination purely on where the qualifications were obtained and it would establish, I believe, a fair system among work-seekers.

Mr. Mullor: Would the Minister assure this House that in the case of pilots who come from overseas, in the interest of the safety of the armed forces who travel by air in this country, that their qualifications and experience will be thoroughly tested on the ground in Kenya before they can undertake travel by air?

Mr. Nyamweya: That assurance, Mr. Speaker, is generously given.

Question No. 1092

RETURN OF FIREARMS TO OWNERS

Mr. Barasa asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence if he would tell the House how many firearms and lethal weapons confiscated or retained in safe custody during the Emergency of 1952-1956 were eventually returned to their owners at the end of the Emergency and subsequently.

The Assistant Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Mr. Argwings-Kodhek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. No weapons were confiscated during the Emergency. They were merely retained in police custody until the owners' directions were obtained, regarding the disposal of these firearms. Where no such directions were received, the weapons were disposed of, after due notice, in accordance with the law.

In 1963 alone, some 3,600 persons aided Government to dispose of their firearms. The actual licensing of privately-owned firearms in this country was assumed by the police in early 1954, and since that time, some 20,000 firearms have been disposed of either on the direction of the owners or because the owners failed to give disposal instructions within the two months' time limit imposed by the Government.

Mr. Barasa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, would he tell the House how many of them have been returned to the owners and how many are still retained and why are they still retained in safe custody?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: As a matter of fact, no firearms are retained in safe custody longer than the two months' notice given to the owner.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, in connexion with this two months' period, is he aware that the two months' period sometimes elapsed before the people themselves received the notice, and if so, is he prepared to review the cases of those who did not receive their notice in time?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: As a matter of fact, the notices were sent to the addresses given by the owners of the weapons, and if they gave the wrong addresses, the fault is entirely theirs, but every case is considered on its own merits whenever it comes up.

Mr. ole Tiplis: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could we know from the Assistant Minister the number of firearms which were disposed of by the Government due to the fact that the owner did not reply to the two months' notice, and also what check the Government has to see that these notices are received?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will say that we have disposed of more than 20,000 and in 1963 I said that more than 3,600 people asked the Government to dispose of their firearms. Now, with the two months' notice, we can only rely on the good faith of the person who brings the arms and ammunition for safe custody. He gives us a certain address, and a [Mr. Argwings-Kodhek] Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, is the Assistant Minister aware that a gentleman called Mwandani Tokki in Ribe, in Kilifi District, and another gentleman called Mwanguna in Jibana Location, were actually pursued by the police to give up their firearms, because there was this danger of Mau Mau? Is that confiscation or a free, voluntary giving up of the arms?

Mr. Ngala: Arising from that reply by the Assistant Minister, is he aware that these arms were not sent to the Government voluntarily by the owners. They were compulsorily collected by his Ministry, and in the case of Kilifi District, for example, the owners have asked for the return of the arms. The Government has refused, and with no compensation to the owners. Is this not unfair?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: I might explain here. Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member for Kilifi is complaining about the Kilifi area, and the Government did not use the word confiscate. No confiscation took place at all. The owners brought the firearms to safe custody because they were afraid that some Mau Mau might go to their houses, Mr. Speaker. But, I must stress this. Before you are given the arms, you must show that you have a current firearms licence.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to seek your guidance. I would like the Assistant Minister to say definitely what he means by the owners bringing them, because we are aware of the owners being forced to give up their arms. The implication is that the owners voluntarily took their firearms to the police stations for safe keeping, because they were afraid of Mau Mau activities. In Kilifi, there were no Mau Mau activities at all, and yet the people were forced by the police.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): So you are asking the Assistant Minister to confirm that there was no compulsory surrender of firearms?

Mr. Ngala: Yes, Sir.

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I have said is that no firearms were confiscated from anyone at all as any time. People were advised. If someone had a number of firearms hanging around and he had not got the usual safe, he was advised that perhaps he might wish to have some of them in safe custody, although he could retain one for his own use. But there was no confiscation.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I must point out Mr. Argwings-Kodhek, that you have not answered Mr. Ngala's question.

I think I must allow Mr. Ngala another supplementary question.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, is the Assistant Minister aware that a gentleman called Mwandani Tokki in Ribe, in Kilifi District, and another gentleman called Mwanguna in Jibana Location, were actually pursued by the police to give up their firearms, because there was this danger of Mau Mau? Is that confiscation or a free, voluntary giving up of the arms?

Mr. Argwings-Kodhek: I now understand a little bit, Mr. Speaker, what the hon. Member for Kilifi wanted to say. He must have prepared the example of these men from Kilifi who were pursued by the police. But in the Firearms Act there are definite and specific regulations, and there is a provision regarding the owner of any firearms to install a safe, usually locked up, or fixed with chains or screws to the floor or the wall. Now if this man, Mwanguna, did not comply with these particular regulations, the police would require him to surrender the firearms.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 1092: RETURN OF FIREARMS TO OWNERS

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order. Mr. Speaker, in view of the most unrealistic and unsatisfactory reply of the Assistant Minister, I wish to raise this matter on adjournment.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 1000

INCREASED SWAMP AREA ROUND LAKE VICTORIA

Mr. Bala asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry what plans he had to encourage people living along the Lake Victoria shore to grow rice in swampy places.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Osoyo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Our long-term rice development schemes in the area are based on irrigation, but negotiations are currently being conducted between Kenya and the Soviet Union Government. My Ministry, however, does give the advice necessary to grow rice in this area and to make sure that the production does not fall below the present figure.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, when can the people of Kano expect this irrigation scheme?

Mr. Osoyo: Well, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the ball is not in our court, it is in the Soviet Union's court.

[The Assistant Minister, President's Office] determining a factor in appointing chiefs. These are many other points which the committee takes into account, not least of which was the candidate's suitability to perform the vital job of a chief, and equally there are a lot of other factors which the Government also takes into account before they appoint a chief.

Now, in the case of the four locations of Murang'a District about which the hon. Member for Kandara is concerned, some delay did occur in effecting the appointment of chiefs, but this is not only in Murang'a. As the House may know, last year the hon. Vice-President, when he was the Minister for Home Affairs, he effected the dismissal of a good number of chiefs throughout the country.

Mr. Omar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to seek your guidance on this statement of the Assistant Minister when he said that popularity alone does not qualify completely for the candidate to be appointed as a chief as there are some other factors to be taken into account. Now since this matter is of vital importance—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think that is a point of order. No, no. Mr. Omar, I think hon. Members should know by now that points of information or points of explanation are quite different from points of order. You can only rise on a point of information if the hon. Member gives way; and you may not force him to give way by a fraudulent point of order.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was saying that in pursuance of the Government's policy, last year the former Minister for Home Affairs, now Vice-President, requested a number of chiefs all over the country to relinquish their duties, and this they did. Now the former Minister for Home Affairs proceeded and made appointments in various locations under the procedure which I have already outlined to the House. Quite a number of chiefs of various locations all over the country, not only in Murang'a were not appointed, and as the hon. Member for Majoge-Bassi has mentioned in the House even in my location where my former chief had to relinquish his office in July last year, I was without a chief until a couple of weeks ago. Now, due to the administrative difficulties, brought about by the transfer from the Ministry of Home Affairs to the President's Office in the transfer of that administration then, the delay was really inevitable. Everyone knows that when such transfers occur, particularly when Ministerial functions are transferred from one Minister to another, some delay is inevitable. I can assure the House that the delay in this case was no longer than was necessary. First, now, for your information, there are some places in certain locations in the Coast Province, for example, where we have not appointed the chiefs, and know that. We have carried out the operation for all other provinces except the Coast which we hope to conclude very soon. The Government is satisfied, however, that the chiefs have been accepted by the people and are working hand in hand with all the people of their respective locations since their appointment.

As a matter of fact, the hon. Member for Kandara has not said a word about the chiefs appointed for Locations 7, 13 and 17, which means at least he must be giving the Government some credit for appointing chiefs in three locations where complaints has not been made. Now, the Government has heard no complaint against them from any section of the population, and is therefore satisfied that the correct persons were appointed to fill these posts. But, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say here, that the President himself has made it very clear that the chiefs, being the Government's representatives in the locations, must be very popular persons, and if any community anywhere, in any location, is not satisfied with the chief who has been appointed, then the complaint should be registered to the Government through the proper channels and I would like to assure this House that if such a complaint is properly channelled it will be given all the consideration it deserves.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was wondering if there is any way whereby we can pursue this question, is that if a motion has been moved on the adjournment and you are not satisfied, because I have learned that the Government has not denied the allegation that the chief in question was not among the last three candidates interviewed by the selection committee. Since he has not replied to that, can I again pursue that question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I think that is view of our rules of repetition of matters which have been debated, whether on a substantive Motion or on a Motion for the Adjournment, the answer is No.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time for the interruption of business. The House is now adjourned—until tomorrow, Wednesday, 28th April, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at Seven o'clock.

Wednesday, 28th April 1965

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

PRAYERS

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIR

NON-WORKING OF PARLIAMENT CLOCK

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before we start the Orders of the Day, I must point out to hon. Members, as they have probably observed already, that the clock is not working. Perhaps it has gone on strike, or rather off strike, on account of criticisms levelled at it during recent sittings of this House. We are trying to get it repaired as soon as possible. Meantime, I can only go by my own watch, which now says twenty-six minutes to three.

NOTICE OF MOTION

OUTSTANDING LAND CLAIMS: INVALIDATION OF

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the fact that in Kenya there are land claims by Arabs, Asians and Europeans, which are not yet adjudicated, this House urges the Government to invalidate such claims to enable the land to revert to Government for distribution to the poor Africans who have established themselves as squatters on this land.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

AFRICANIZATION: EDUCATION OFFICER, NORTH-EASTERN PROVINCE

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): With reference to the first question, I understand from Mr. Amin that he had actually given notice of withdrawal of this question, because the post referred to has already been Africanized. So, we will go on to the next question.

Question No. 1073

ABSORPTION OF STUDENTS FROM ABROAD

Mr. Ngala-Abok asked the Vice-President whether, in view of the large number of Kenya citizens who came from overseas countries with different qualifications and techniques, the Government could state how they were absorbed into the country's service and whether some of them had been ignored by the Government through lack of a re-orientation and employment programme.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. When students come from overseas countries with qualifications that fit them for various jobs in the Civil Service, they are appointed according to the scales at the level of salary commensurate with their qualifications. The Public Service Commission is the employing organ of Government, and the final decision as to what appointments are made, rests solely with that commission. As far as the Government is concerned, no African with proper qualifications has returned and sought employment in the Public Service without success, unless they expected to be appointed to posts, the requirements of which, were beyond their qualifications or experience. Some students return from studies overseas and seek employment in the private sector of the economy. It should be emphasized here, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that nobody has been ignored by the Government or denied employment because of lack of re-orientation—with all due respects to the questioner. I do not really know what he means by re-orientation. It can hardly be over-emphasized that appointment of officers to the Public Service rests with the Public Service Commission.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, would the Assistant Minister tell this House that any students, so far, who have studied to become pilots in various countries, have these people been employed and if not, are they not being ignored, have they not been ignored?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, regarding the people who have undergone military training including those who have been trained as pilots, there is already in existence Government machinery for the recruitment of new personnel into the various branches of the Kenya Armed Forces. Individuals who are keen to join the Kenya Armed Forces, including the Kenya Air Force, must be prepared to be considered on individual merit and through the proper Government recruitment channels.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, for the security of the country and for reasons of statistics, would the Assistant Minister in the President's Office tell the House how the Government prescribes what qualifications these people need know when they come from overseas, and would the Assistant Minister tell us how many Another point, Mr. Speaker, I would like to mention is about clause 3 (1), where it says, "A tenancy may be a written tenancy or an unwritten tenancy, and if it is a written tenancy it may be in such form as the Minister may, by regulations made under this Act, prescribe." Now here I understand there is an agreement to be made between landlord and tenant. If it is an unwritten agreement, it will be very difficult for the tribunal to decide the proper agreement which was made. I would very much like it to be that if there is going to be any agreement between landlord and tenant, it must be in writing, so that if there is any dispute between these two parties and the matter is taken to a tribunal, there will be no difficulties concerning the nature of the agreement. If it is left unwritten, Sir, there is a danger that the landlords who are well-to-do might brief a lawyer and the poor tenants who do not have enough money to brief a lawyer to appear before the tribunal will always lose the case. Therefore, it should be made clear that any agreement between landlord and tenant must be in writing.

[Mr. Omar]

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Would you like to break off at this point, Mr. Omar? You can continue with the debate on another day.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

APPOINTMENT OF CHIEFS IN MURANG'A

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time for the interruption of business, and I will now call on a Minister to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kioko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Acheng-Onoko) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Kagula: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the unsatisfactory reply which I received from the Assistant Minister in the President's Office, on Question No. 958, I decided to raise this question on an adjournment. The reason for raising this matter, Mr. Speaker, is that in my question I wanted to know from the Minister how this delay of about one year came about, and why these appointments were delayed, while the others were done about a year ago. In his answer, he took advantage of the fact that only a few days before my question came up—although this was after my question had been submitted to the Ministry—the appointments were made.

Now, Mr. Speaker, about a year ago, ten chiefs in Fort Hall were dismissed, and I would like to mention here the procedure which was followed and what happened afterwards. The procedure was that whoever was aspiring to the position of chief was to submit an application to the district officer in each division, and after the applications were received, an interview committee was formed, and this committee was composed of a Member of Parliament in each area, members of the Regional Assembly and members of the county councils. Now, in this particular division of mine, Mr. Speaker, I personally was a member of this interview committee, and in this committee, we decided that we look into all the applications, and we interview all the applicants, after which we shall shorten the list down to twelve, and then the twelve passing our interview would go to the public so that the public would choose three out of the twelve. Now, the question here is that the locations which I have complained of, are Locations three, seven, thirteen and seventeen. Now, all these were done the same month with other locations in the whole district, but when the time for appointment came, these four locations were not appointed. About a year has elapsed without a chief in any of these four locations.

Now, suspicion grew in the old district as to how this delay came about, and why these chiefs had not been appointed. Now, some were afraid about this, and some were even suggesting that it might be that the Government was not pleased at the choice of the people, and wondered whether something wrong was being contemplated. So, I decided to raise this question and find out from the Government why these appointments were not made, but after a long time, I think more than four weeks, I did not get the reply from the Ministry, but somebody telephoned me and told me, very cleverly, that the same week that question was coming to the House, the appointments were made. So, I thought that this was to try and anticipate this question and try to brush aside my inquiries as to why this delay took place.

Now, what I am concerned about, Mr. Speaker, is about the appointment of Location 3. Following this procedure which I have described, the man who has been appointed now was knocked out by the interviewing committee and another twelve people went to the public for appointment, or for selection. The twelve persons who were selected by the public were Daniel Njehia, Njuguna Kihara, and Wapahara Nguruku. Now, as we were promised by the Government that from these three the Government would appoint one of them, the public in this location were quite prepared to accept any of the three as their new chief, but they were not prepared to accept anyone who was not passed by the interview committee or who did not appear in the field for their selection. Now, the surprising thing, Mr. Speaker, in spite of all these procedures which we followed and the people followed in the location, the man who was appointed was a completely different man, who never appeared before the public at all. This means he is a person who has no following whatsoever in the location. This man is Peter Kinemia. I remember this name very well, Mr. Speaker, and according to our selection in the interview committee, he was the first to be knocked out. It is very surprising to see that he is the man that the Government has appointed.

[Mr. Kagula]

Mr. Speaker, I feel very strongly when raising this question, because this procedure was explained by the then Minister for Home Affairs, the hon. Mr. Odling, before the appointments or the selections took place. The same procedure has been reiterated lately by the President himself, but it is surprising that when this has been reiterated by the Head of State, that this has not been followed and a completely wrong person has been appointed to this position.

Mr. Speaker, to make matters worse, when this man was appointed, he started doing everything he could to entrench himself in his new position. When the appointment was announced, the location straight away opposed his appointment, and Kanu arranged a meeting in their office to pass a resolution to submit a memorandum to the President informing him that he had appointed the wrong person. When this man had appointed the wrong person, and had these Kanu leaders arrested in their office, alleging that they were holding an illegal meeting, and these people—about forty of them—are in gaol still.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you are a little outside the scope of the matter which you purposed to raise on this adjournment.

Mr. Kagula: I am only explaining that this man was wrongly appointed without the consent of the people, and he is now using his new position to maintain his illegally gained position.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, what I am demanding in this matter, is that the procedure that the Government laid down is followed, and that everything is done according to the regulations by the Government. But, somebody must have come in between and substituted the wrong name for the right name, and that is why I raised this question, because I was concerned as to why this delay was going on. I suspect that some civil servants must have gone to the office, and said that "this is the right person and this is the wrong person", because I cannot understand how a man who did not appear on the list could be appointed, and none of the three persons who were selected by the people themselves was appointed.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would urge the Assistant Minister to consider this very seriously, because the location in question is very serious about this and they are going to do everything they can to see that they have the right person, because if it was during the colonial times, when the appointments were made by the district commissioners or the provincial commissioners, then we could understand it, but this is a time when we are told to select them. We selected when we are told to select them, and we sent three names which were very clear. We asked them to the Ministry, but we had a completely different name altogether, and we do not know where the name came from.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would like the Assistant Minister to explain this very carefully, as to why this delay of one year took place, and why the wrong person, whom nobody selected, has been appointed.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Sūkuku: Mr. Speaker, I rise to support the views so far expressed by the hon. Member, because it is only a few days ago or some weeks ago that I stood in this Parliament and also pointed out to the Government the practice by some of the civil servants and their assumed powers, that go beyond the reasoning of the fact, when I heard of this question of the selection committee, I was surprised, if I may say so, that this did go on very well in other places, but unfortunately, in the Western Region it did not work very well. Those who were on the selection committee were actually civil servants. Their decisions were more or less final. I am of the opinion, Mr. Speaker, that if we are independent, and I think we are, then we are not going to—I am doubting this because of this imposition. How does this come about, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. Speaker, if I may go on, if we have to impose the chiefs on the people, then we are actually working for the downfall of the Harambee spirit. There would be a problem in this specimen form, the rent that is being charged was to be entered and to be initialled by the tenant and the landlord. This is most important. It may not be strictly a legal question, but this is the kind of loophole which, if not closed by the regulations the Minister is going to make, will be exploited. What happens is that the landlord, as we very well know happens in another case similar to this, that is, income tax, will keep one rent-book, which he wants to show the Government inspector. He will have another rent-book which is locked up in a cupboard and which is the true one, where he will enter the true figures.

Now, we must therefore make sure that in the regulations which are going to be issued, it is necessary for the rent-book to be entered in the presence of the tenant and for the tenant to countersign it, and then we really know that that is what the tenant is being charged.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the question is going to be a very important one because, as it is here, we have a serious shortage of this accommodation, and without any ruling of that court, then we will not be able to exercise control.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I notice that the Bill, as it now stands, is only going to be effective if a tenant complains. Sir, as has been said by a few Members here, we know that in Nairobi it is going to be very difficult to make this Bill effective, if we are going to wait until the tenant complains. Why? Because, Sir, there is such a serious shortage of accommodation and because the people who are now trading in Varma Road, Canal Road, Grogan Road, those places, or others, have sunk all their capital into that little business. Sometimes they have put themselves in debt so as to be able to set up that little business. If we leave it that the initiative is going to come from them, to complain to a tribunal, where the landlord will be represented by a qualified advocate, like my friend who has just gone out, if, Sir, we leave it like that, there will never be justice for the tenant.

We know, Mr. Deputy Speaker, from history, when it used to be necessary, for instance, for Africans to be represented by advocates in the Traffic Licensing Board. We could never, never get Africans to compete with the rich man who could employ the best advocate. The African went there; sometimes he was not able to speak in English. He would speak in Swahili and the tribunal would not follow the complaints. If the landlord, Sir, is represented by the most expensive lawyer in town, then you will not have justice.

What I am saying is that instead of leaving the initiative to the tenant, it should rest with us in the Government, with the Ministry, so that, Sir, we should be able to have a team of inspectors, rent inspectors, people who would be able, with the help of valuers, to estimate the fair rents for different streets in a town. This Bill does embrace the whole of Kenya, Sir, so there is no need for the hon. Member for Ndia to be very upset! It applies to all towns and all villages. But, as I have suggested, we need that the initiative for setting up the level of rents should rest with Government inspectors, helped by qualified bodies, so that in various streets in town we should be able to say that a shop or a certain area should have a certain rent attached to it.

Otherwise, you see, Sir, this would be one of those cases where justice is available in the law books but is not available to the lay citizen in the country.

Now, Sir, there is another point I want to raise here, again referring to tribunals. There is a question of fees to be prescribed, fees that are to be charged. I do honestly hope that when the Minister declares Nairobi to be the first place where this law will apply, then he will make the fee for consulting this tribunal something nominal, one shilling perhaps, or fifty cents, so that we shall be in a position where all those people who have complaints can come forward. Otherwise it is going to be very difficult. Perhaps I may also mention that it will be, as was stated by the hon. Member for Nyeri, that the case that we should not insist too much, in this tribunal, on legalistic procedures. A tenant who is aggrieved, Sir, ought to be able to come forward and put his case himself, personally. If he has to employ a lawyer, this is going to be too expensive. These lawyers here in town, Mr. Deputy Speaker, you will not get for less than £30 or so for a couple of hours. These African businessmen in the places we have mentioned, they do not profit for the whole year is not that much. How can they employ a lawyer?

So again I really hope that when the rules are made and when they are authorized to be made and published, we shall be able to cut out all these legalistic procedures. There is plenty of business here for lawyers, Sir; we are not trying to do them out of it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I want to mention one other thing, that perhaps the time has come— I am sorry, the hon. Member for Mombasa South or wherever it is he is from, who has been chosen as the President of the Indian Congress, is not here, because last week, he was full of statements for the Press which complained about discrimination or bad treatment of Asians by Africans. Now, Sir, it is a mission that this new President of the Congress could lead, to instil a sense of community into his own people, to instil a sense of belonging to Kenya. And anybody who belongs to Kenya and says that he is a citizen—it is not irrelevant—and is prepared, Mr. Deputy Speaker—

[The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

Mr. Omar: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon. Member is trying to comment on a statement made by my hon. friend and colleague for Mombasa Island. I am wondering whether this really has anything to do with this Bill.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think it's all right, provided he does not go too far. It is a fact that the majority of landlords in Kenya are Asians, and, as such, the Assistant Minister is entitled to comment on the Asian community.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I really do not know what can be eating my hon. friend because, you see, I was only developing my case. I know that certainly in the places I am speaking about in Nairobi 99.9 per cent, if not 100 per cent, of the landlords happen to be Asians and it is to use anyone coming here to quarrel through sophistry and sheer imagination. It is a physical fact, known by everybody who rents a place in Nairobi at this moment. Therefore, I was developing my case, that the time has come, in order to encourage the kind of community feeling which my hon. friend, the President of the Congress, is trying to instil, that we should really try to encourage these landlords not to take advantage of the present shortage of accommodation to exploit these people who are now being exploited.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am going to end on one other point. I did, Sir, suggest that the people who are to be appointed to the tribunal should be people who will not try too much legalistic procedure. Perhaps it is not too much to ask the Minister that when he does appoint these people we should have possibly one or two who are people who have, themselves, known the difficulties, the sufferings, of the people we are trying to protect. It is very important that on a tribunal like this, quite apart from opinions as to the legal interpretation of this Act, we should have people who appreciate the human problems that lie behind the application of this Bill. Therefore,

Sir, I very much hope that when people are appointed we may have someone who knows our sufferings and who may, we hope, be able to represent even my hon. friend from Mombasa!

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

Mr. Omar: Thank you, Sir, for giving me a chance to speak on this Bill.

First of all, I should like to congratulate the Minister on introducing this very important Bill, because even at this very moment so many people are waiting for it to be passed as soon as possible.

Now, Sir, some of the Members here have said something about the exploitation of African tenants by Asian landlords. Personally, I think that it is not only African tenants who are exploited by Asian landlords; it is equally true that some of the Asian tenants are exploited by their fellow Asian landlords. You find that a Patel landlord charges a Shah tenant a very high rent, just in the same way as he charges an African tenant, but you will also find sometimes that a Muslim Asian landlord charges a non-Muslim tenant a very high rent. Therefore, the question of African tenants being exploited by Asian landlords does not arise at all here. Mr. Speaker, therefore, when we speak of exploitation of tenants by landlords, we should know that this does not apply to the African tenants alone but to all sections of the community who become tenants.

Another point I would like to mention is about the regulations for shops. Here we would like the Minister to make the position clear because we have workshops, we have butcheries, fruit shops, tailors' shops and so on. Under this clause, it is tailors' shops and so on. Under this clause, it is not specifically stated that it will apply to foodstuffs Act will apply, whether it will apply to foodstuffs shops or butcheries or workshops or any other class of shop. So we would like the Minister to make it very clear which class of shop is meant in this Act.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, is about hotels. We have many classes or standards of hotels in all the towns, Mombasa, Nairobi, Nakuru, Kisumu. The African businessman is now embarking on the hotel industry. You find some African hotels have three or more small rooms; these hotels charge just four beds in one room. These hotels, whose standards are very high. So we would like the Minister to tell us how the rent of these low-standard hotels is going to be determined by the tribunal or any authority that will have the power to decide the rent.

[The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement] is fixed when a building is new, after it has depreciated and become old, the rent should be reduced. But, Mr. Speaker, I do not fully support this view—although this is a debatable suggestion—because when a landlord invests his money in a building, perhaps for many years he does not earn any profit and for a number of years he only returns what he invested in the building and probably after twenty years or when the building is old, that is when he begins to earn a little profit. I think the landlord, to give the devil his due, should be allowed to make this little profit after many, many years of having invested his money.

Another point I want to make, Mr. Speaker, is on the fact that the Bill does not cover residential premises. Residential premises are very important in a Bill like this, and although one may focus one's attention on purely residential areas or else the municipal or city council housing schemes, there are residential areas which are being used very extensively for commercial purposes. There are buildings in Grogan Road and other streets which belong to some Asians and they are using our African people to exploit others. What is happening, Mr. Speaker, is that a building with about three storeys is being let to an African to sublet to other Africans, and because the Asian landlord makes sure that he cannot go wrong, he—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Gachago, I think that is outside the scope of this Bill, because you are talking, I think, about the use of a building for residential purposes and the Bill here only purports to deal with shops, hotels and catering establishments. We do have to keep within the general scope of a Bill on the Second Reading; but, as I explained at the start of this debate last Thursday, if hon. Members feel that the scope of the Bill should be widened to cover residential premises or some other subject which is outside the present scope altogether, that could be the subject of a Motion, after the Second Reading has been carried, for Special Instruction to the Committee to consider enlarging the scope of the Bill in that way.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, I only mentioned that because there is a particular class of business premises which I feel the Minister should have included, and these are residential plots which are being used purely for subletting.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, but that is outside the scope of this Bill, and so must be excluded from any debate on the Second Reading.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): If I have to skip that, Mr. Speaker, I would like to speak for a while about the protection of those who give evidence to tribunals because this is the gist of the operation of the Act and the operation of the tribunals, that the Minister may appoint.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when a tribunal is appointed and when they require to be given evidence, naturally the tenants are prepared to give evidence and after the tenants have given evidence, the tribunal may reduce the rent paid in the various shops of a building. Naturally, the landlord after that may not be inclined to like the tenant and tenants who might have given evidence, as a result of which the landlord might have suffered some loss in the rent that he might have been charging before. So I think the Minister should be aware of this and he should ensure that whenever the tenants are called upon to give evidence, such tenants are protected from victimization later on by the landlord.

Mr. Speaker, I now come to the last clause, clause 17, which says that the operation of this Act does not include the local government. I would ask the Minister, Mr. Speaker, to view this with a little bit of care because this may, in the long run, embarrass the Minister or, in another way, embarrass the Government itself. The reason why I say this is that if a set of premises is equal to those owned by a local government and it within the same area there are premises which have rents which are lower than those being charged by a local authority, then the public cannot help but view this with a little dismay, because the local government is a section of the Government which is supposed to protect the people and if it should charge higher rentals than those which are being charged by individual landlords, then that may embarrass not only the Minister but also the Government.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

I would ask the Minister to have consultations with the Minister for Local Government so that cases will not arise whereby local governments may be found to be charging rents higher than those which are being charged by individual landlords, thereby tending to embarrass the Government and the Minister himself.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Deputy

[The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development] good will is there, Mr. Deputy Speaker, when you have a dingy place, along Grogan Road, or Varnia Road or Canal Road, which has only been redecorated a little? There can be no question of goodwill. But this is one of the things that we suffer.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we support this Bill wholeheartedly, but let me emphasize that what we want is that as soon as we have passed this and we are going to pass it—the hon. Minister should go ahead and apply it stringently. I say stringently because we have suffered for a long time, and I am going to explain to him the kind of troubles we have in town here which, strictly speaking, cannot come as legal issues under this Bill and yet they are the real sufferings of the people.

Let me mention one, Mr. Deputy Speaker: This Bill talks about rents. Rents will be controlled, the tenants will have power to complain, but, Mr. Deputy Speaker, one of the most serious troubles here in town is the question of key money. Before you move into the premises, the person who is in charge of it—in this case, in town here it happens that the bulk of the landlords, particularly in the case of shops, are Asians, and these Asian landlords go around, once they have some place to rent, and they take two or three offers from different aspiring African businessmen. Before they give the business to one of the three or four aspiring African businessmen, they ask for key money. It is nothing to do with rent, just money before you move in at all. If you do not pay, you lose the place. We are reduced to paying because there is a shortage of shop accommodation. There is a shortage because the bulk of our African business people can only afford to hire dingy places, down in Varnia Road or Grogan Road and such places; they are not able to rent more expensive places. They are, therefore, reduced to the position here, because of this shortage, they have to pay this key money. This is not covered by the Bill. Strictly speaking, it is not one of the legal issues on which a tenant could come forward and complain to the tribunal, but what I would hope, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is that the Minister, in making his regulations which he is authorized to make by this Bill, will mention that it will be one of the serious offences for a landlord to ask for key money.

An Hon. Member: What is key money?

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki): It is the money you have to pay before you move into the premises at all. I hear one of my friends here say that they call it "goodwill money". Now what goodwill is there, Mr. Deputy Speaker, when you have a dingy place, along Grogan Road, or Varnia Road or Canal Road, which has only been redecorated a little? There can be no question of goodwill. But this is one of the things that we suffer.

Again, Mr. Deputy Speaker, one of the things we suffer here in town, which, again, strictly speaking, is not a legal issue and cannot be covered by this Bill in terms of law, is this: You covered by this Bill a businessman, he rents an old-looking building to have a hotel. He redecorates it, paints it, moves in furniture and everything else. Then for some flimsy reason, he is requested to vacate, even though the building is in a condition in which it can be rented. He is asked to move. Mr. Deputy Speaker, he will have spent whatever little capital he had, in putting the building into good condition. It means he has a place where he can open a business or a restaurant or something. When it is in perfect condition, the landlord—in this case, they are all Asian landlords, let us face it—finds some excuse to move this man out.

I would ask the hon. Member for Ndia to stop talking to the Minister so that the Minister can hear the troubles of the Nairobi people!

Now, Sir, in this Bill I notice that one of the conditions on which a landlord may ask a tenant to move out is that landlord wants himself to occupy the place. Now you will know, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that in Nairobi this is the commonest excuse and we all know that it is never true. The landlord pretends that he wants to take over the place himself and that he does not want to rent it to another tenant, but you will find that within a week of your being pushed into the place has been rented again, the place which you yourself decorated and brought into good condition; this place has been rented for good money to another tenant. There can be no more serious form of exploitation, I hope, therefore, Sir, that when the Minister makes the regulations, he will see to it that this clause 7 (e) is applied strictly. I know they do mention this way here, but, as things are now, it is the commonest excuse for getting rid of Africans who have improved the building; then before they can make any money, they are kicked out with this excuse.

There is something else, Mr. Deputy Speaker. I notice in the Bill—and I welcome this proposition—that the landlord will be required to keep rent-books, that the landlord will be required to keep rent-books. Now, Sir, you will remember that in the report of the commission that looked into the whole of this question they gave a specimen form in which the rent-book is to be kept. In

[The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement] is fixed when a building is new, after it has depreciated and become old, the rent should be reduced. But, Mr. Speaker, I do not fully support this view—although this is a debatable suggestion—because when a landlord invests his money in a building, perhaps for many years he does not earn any profit and for a number of years he only returns what he invested in the building and probably after twenty years or when the building is old, that is when he begins to earn a little profit. I think the landlord, to give the devil his due, should be allowed to make this little profit after many, many years of having invested his money.

Another point I want to make, Mr. Speaker, is on the fact that the Bill does not cover residential premises. Residential premises are very important in a Bill like this, and although one may focus one's attention on purely residential areas or else the municipal or city council housing schemes, there are residential areas which are being used very extensively for commercial purposes. There are buildings in Grogan Road and other streets which belong to some Asians and they are using our African people to exploit them. What is happening, Mr. Speaker, is that a building with about three storeys is being let to an African to sublet to other Africans, and because the Asian landlord makes sure that he cannot go wrong, he—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Gachago, I think that is outside the scope of this Bill, because you are talking, I think, about the use of a building for residential purposes and the use of a building purports to deal with shops, hotels and catering establishments. We do have to keep within the general scope of a Bill on the Second Reading; but, as I explained at the start of this debate last Thursday, if hon. Members feel that the scope of the Bill should be widened to cover residential premises or some other subject which is outside the present scope altogether, that could be the subject of a Motion, after the Second Reading has been carried, for Special Instruction to the Committee to consider enlarging the scope of the Bill in that way.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, I only mentioned that because there is a particular class of business premises which I feel the Minister should have included, and these are residential plots which are being used purely for subletting.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, but that is outside the scope of this Bill, and so must be excluded from any debate on the Second Reading.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): If I have to skip that, Mr. Speaker, I would like to speak for a while about the protection of those who give evidence to tribunals because this is the gist of the operation of the Act and the operation of the tribunal, that the Minister may appoint.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when a tribunal is appointed and when they require to be given evidence, naturally the tenants are prepared to give evidence and after the tenants have given evidence, the tribunal may reduce the rent paid in the various shops of a building. Naturally, the landlord after that may not be inclined to like the tenant or tenants who might have given evidence, as a result of which the landlord might have suffered some loss in the rent that he might have been charging before. So I think the Minister should be aware of this and he should ensure that whenever the tenants are called upon to give evidence, such tenants are protected from victimization later on by the landlord.

Mr. Speaker, I now come to the last clause, clause 17, which says that the operation of this Act does not include the local government. I would ask the Minister, Mr. Speaker, to view this with a little bit of care because this may, in the long run, embarrass the Minister or, in another way, embarrass the Government itself. The reason why I say this is that if a set of premises is equal to those owned by a local government and it within the same area there are premises which have rents which are lower than those being charged by a local authority, then the public cannot help but view this with a little dismay, because the local government is a section of the Government which is supposed to protect the people and if it should charge higher rentals than those which are being charged by individual landlords, then that may embarrass not only the Minister but also the Government.

(The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair)

(The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair)

I would ask the Minister to have consultations with the Minister for Local Government so that cases will not arise whereby local governments may be found to be charging rents higher than those which are being charged by individual landlords, thereby tending to embarrass the Government and the Minister himself.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Deputy

[The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development] I only want to say a few words on this Bill, primarily because this Bill affects all of us here in town very much.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we support this Bill wholeheartedly, but let me emphasize that what we want is that as soon as we have passed this—and we are going to pass it—the hon. Minister should go ahead and apply it stringently. I say so because we have suffered for a long time, and I am going to explain to him the kind of troubles we have in town here which, strictly speaking, cannot come as legal issues under this Bill and yet they are the real sufferings of the people.

Let me mention one, Mr. Deputy Speaker. This Bill talks about rents. Rents will be controlled, the tenants will have power to complain, Mr. Deputy Speaker, one of the most serious troubles here in town is the question of key money. Before you move into the premises, the person who is in charge of it—in this case, in terms here it happens that the bulk of the landlords, particularly in the case of shops, are Asians, and these Asian landlords go around, once they have some place to rent, and they know there is a high demand for these places, and they take two or three offers from different aspiring African businessmen. Before they give the business to one of the three or four aspiring African businessmen, they ask for key money. It is nothing to do with rent, just money before you move in all if you do not pay, you lose the place. We are reduced to paying because there is a shortage of shop accommodation. There is a shortage because the bulk of our African business people can only afford to hire dingy places down in Varma Road or Grogan Road and such places; they are not able to rent more expensive places. They are, therefore, reduced to the position they were, because of this shortage, they have to pay this key money. This is not covered by the Bill. Strictly speaking, it is not one of the legal issues on which a tenant could come forward and complain to the tribunal, but what I would hope, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is that the Minister, in making his regulations which he is authorized to make by this Bill, will mention that it will be one of the serious offences for a landlord to ask for key money.

An Hon. Member: What is key money?

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibaki): It is the money you have to pay before you move into the premises at all. I hear one of my friends here say that they call it "goodwill money". Now what goodwill is there, Mr. Deputy Speaker, when you have a dingy place along Grogan Road, or Varma Road or Casual Road, which has only been redecored a little? There can be no question of goodwill. But this is one of the things that we suffer.

Again, Mr. Deputy Speaker, one of the things we suffer here in town, which again, strictly speaking, is not a legal issue and cannot be covered by this Bill in terms of law, is this. You have an African businessman, he rents an old-looking building to have a hotel. He redecorates it, paints it, moves in furniture and everything else. Then for some reason, he is requested to vacate, even though the building is in a position in which it can be rented. He is asked to move. Mr. Deputy Speaker, he will have spent whatever little capital he had, in putting this building into good condition. It means he has a place where he can open a butchery or a restaurant or something. When it is in perfect condition, the landlord—in this case, they are all Asian landlords, let us just face it—finds some excuse to move this man out.

I would ask the hon. Member for Ndia to stop talking to the Minister so that the Minister can hear the troubles of the Nairobi people!

Now, Sir, in this Bill I notice that one of the conditions on which a landlord may ask a tenant to move out is that landlord wants himself to occupy the place. Now you will know, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that in Nairobi this is the commonest excuse and we all know that it is never honest excuse and that he wants to take over the place himself and that he does not want to rent it to another tenant, but you will find that within a week of your being pushed out the place has been rented again, the place which you yourself decorated and brought into good condition; this place has been rented for higher money to another tenant. There can be no more serious form of exploitation. I hope, therefore, Sir, that when the Minister makes the regulations, he will see to it that this clause 7 (g) is applied strictly. I know they do mention this way here, but, as things are now, it is the commonest excuse for getting rid of Africans who have improved the building; then before they can make any money, they are kicked out with this excuse.

There is something else, Mr. Deputy Speaker. I notice in the Bill—and I welcome this proposition—that the landlords will be required to keep rent-books. Now, Sir, you will remember that in the report of this commission that looked into the whole of this question they gave a specimen form in which the rent-book is to be kept. In said I would suggest to the Minister that there should have been another clause to suggest how the rent should be controlled. There should be a clause to guide tenants at various stages, either on district levels or on a national level, that a rent in a particular area would be so much or would be of such percentage, or it could be worked out on a particular guide so that we do not have charges which are too much for the new people who want to rent premises.

On grounds to refuse to pay rent or on clause 7, part "B" where it says that the rent should not be in arrears for two months, in which case the tenant would be asked to vacate. It seems to me that it does not explain the reasons, because you might find that the tenant fails to pay his rent because he has been asking the landlord, to make certain repairs and, in this case, it would be better if the tenant was given some security of a kind whereby he is not just forced out, because it is not his failure, but because he has a case to explain to the landlord. Most of the landlords actually tend to exploit and they do not hasten to comply with the complaints raised by the tenants. So, in this case, it would be better if there is an explanation whereby a tenant is also safeguarded and he is not evicted even if he has got the reasons of holding his rent behind without paying it straight away.

To go to what my hon. friend has just said about paying in advance, it looks rather ridiculous to ask somebody to pay rent for the premises before he has earned anything in that particular premises. If it was a policy of payment in advance, it would involve many other sections of the Government whereby the law should require even salaries to be paid in advance or other things should be paid in advance before you actually get them, so in this case it looks to be rather exploiting those people we are trying to protect and it would be better if the payment by the occupant or tenant be after he has actually started his business and the business is going on well and he pays his dues at the end of the month. But, when he has to pay in advance and probably has just started a small business then you find that they are only reducing his capital before he has earned anything to promote his business.

The point I would like to mention about clause 17, in which the Minister says the Government and local authority premises may not be included in this particular Bill. Well, I think it would be proper to suggest to the Minister that if the Government wants to keep aloof from this Bill, then it would be better for the Government or the local authorities not to own these premises in towns or in urban areas, so that this particular matter does not arise to affect the Government, but it would be ridiculous to have these premises owned by local authorities in various towns or various areas and the Bill does not affect them, and in this case we shall not know exactly whether the tenants are exploited by the Government or whether it is the local authorities.

There is also a point in the memorandum which I would like the Minister to clarify, where it says that the Bill is imposed to control the rents of business premises and the Bill actually does not go very far as to how these controls are going to be conducted, so I suggest that if we add the suggestion of local or district boards to review these rents then we could know exactly that the rents are under control, but if we just agree that there will be a tribunal court where a magistrate will come and decide our cases, which are brought before the tribunal court, then it might be better that these boards go into the matter first, who should suggest and give views to control the fixture of the actual rent which should be imposed on particular premises. Members who have aired their views here have explained that the continuation of renting old premises on the old or original rent where the rent was comparatively high and the premises continue to be rented at that same rent even when it has covered the actual cost to put up the same building. If we continue to have that without any control, it will look like the landlord keeps on making money on the particular premises rather in an exploitive manner, so we would rather suggest that all premises should be reviewed so that their rent will also be depreciated according to the depreciation of the building in the subsequent years. If we just left it like that we feel it would be unjust to the tenants who come to rent these particular premises. If we do not have anything to safeguard these people the landlord will continue to charge the same rent at the day he started when the premises were very new.

I would also suggest that the Minister should have included a clause whereby if the tenant exceeds five years, what happens to a tenancy of five years. This Bill is actually considering a tenancy of five years. What about after five years? Sometimes the landlord and the tenant might agree to keep their tenancy for longer than five years. How do they do it? In this case the Minister should also give a way how these tenancies are reviewed after five years and in that case we would know that tenancies give security to the two people concerned, the landlord and the tenant, because if they have not any agreement then it does not end simply because the Bill does not allow it to exceed five years, so if the Minister gives an explanation we will know that there is a way through which these tenants can renew and then we could know that the Bill is meeting the continuation of these tenancies.

Mr. Speaker, I hope that the Minister has noted the points and he will explain. Thank you.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Sir, I cannot help but express gratitude sincerely that the Minister saw fit at this time to introduce this Bill and to bring it so that we may see the situation which has been harassing our people now for some time because rents have not been controlled for the last nine years and as a result many people, especially our own African people have suffered. But, Mr. Speaker, while congratulating the Minister, I would like to point out that it is not the introduction of this Bill that is important, or it is not the legislation what is more important than the actual legislation, than the actual passing of the Bill is the operation of it when it becomes law, because in a matter like this you will find a number of loopholes where the landlords could evade the application of this law and I would like to appeal to the Minister to take into very serious consideration the points that have been aired by the hon. Members of this House that may have not been possible to be included in great detail in this Bill.

Mr. Speaker, let me go straight to one of the clauses, because it is in this reference to various clauses that we would like to advise the Minister as to how the law should be operated, so that it can be useful to the country.

With reference to clause 16, Mr. Speaker, where the Minister has to prescribe fees, clause 16 (4) says, "the fees which shall be payable in respect of any matter or thing to be done under this Act", and I think the Minister should go into this with very great care because in respect of fees all the businesses are not equal. A person may appeal to the Minister for rent to be controlled in his shop and the rent of that shop may be only worth about Sh. 200. Another tenant, whose rent is about Sh. 2,000 may appeal to the Minister and if the Minister prescribes a fixed fee for every case that is handled by the tribunal, the person who has only a small shop will suffer because his margin of profit is also small. What I would appeal to the Minister to do is to prescribe a fee on the basis of percentage, so that those who pay higher rents—in other words, those who have larger businesses—may be in accordance with the proportion and size of their businesses.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, concerning clause 1, which gives the Minister the power to define by notice in the Gazette the place and the time of operation of this Act, I would like very strongly to refer this to the Minister because I know that members of the public, business men—especially African businessmen who are still in their infancy—are very anxious that the Minister should define the various places, and I would like to invite the Minister to pay particular attention to the town of Thika where I happen to know that a great deal of exploitation is going on and the people who are mainly suffering are our people, the African people. I have seen, Mr. Speaker, with my own eyes many, many Africans who have opened shops in the town of Thika and who are the tenants of some Asian landlords, and they have only been able to carry on for at the most one year and then they go through the back door. This is because of the high rents that they have to pay and, as a result of that, Mr. Speaker, the African businessmen in Thika have even started an organization known as the Tenants' Association which has now spread to the whole country and has become a national organization. This is because of the concentration of operation and exploitation by landlords in this particular town of Thika and whereas, in fact, the town is situated in a place where the African tenants are not very big businessmen, they are only people who are trying to grow. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would like to invite the Minister to pay particular attention to the town of Thika and, in fact, to appoint Thika as an area where this Act will operate immediately after we have sanctioned it in this Parliament.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other clause which is worrying me is clause 11, Establishment of Tribunals, where the Minister himself has to appoint a person or persons to act as tribunals. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the tribunals may be appointed in the best interest of the tenants or in the best interest of the landlord, and I would urge the Minister to exercise great care, so that the tribunal be appointed may be completely and fully impartial, not one-sided, so that when the tenants—especially the poor African tenants—are expecting to benefit from this law, they will not be disappointed by probably the Minister having appointed a landlord or landlords on these tribunals with the result that the poor African tenants will not benefit.

Mr. Speaker, on the question of value of the buildings, here I would like to give the devil his due. One speaker was saying that when the rent

[Mr. Warlthil]

We have tenancies subject to documents agreed upon voluntarily between the landlord and tenant, and these documents have been registered, maybe for a limited number of five years or not more than five years.

Now, if this lease is not to be terminated by an act of law, maybe from action by the other side. This is where I say, Mr. Speaker, that it is necessary for this Bill to go even further to provide for a general review of all tenancies which are existing before the coming operation of this Bill. It is only then that the injustices which have been meted to the tenant for a number of years, in my opinion, could be rectified.

Now, to go further, Mr. Speaker, I would like to comment generally on other aspects of the Bill. One thing I will say is that I am quite happy that the need for goodwill has been done away with, as this has been a factor prohibiting a number of African businessmen to occupy premises because they were not able to pay the required amount which was termed as goodwill.

The other point which is still prevalent, and it appears to be covered under the schedule, page 164, it is provided that the lessee shall pay rent for the premises in advance. Now, I assume this means one month's rent, but it does not specifically say for how many months. It is a practice which is still going on, that a landlord will require a tenant to pay up to six months or even one year's rent in advance, and in fact, it was only over the week-end, that a case in my constituency was brought to me, of a tenant who has paid rent for a year. It may be Sh. 50 a month, but even if you ask them to pay that for a year it is quite a substantial amount, and here, under the terms of "tenancy" I would have expected the Minister to be specific, that the rent payable in advance is only for one month, because as I have said, there are existing practices where tenants are asked to pay rent for a number of months, and if they are not able to do so, in many cases, the tenancy is given to another person who is able to pay. To enable ordinary people to occupy these premises for their business, one would expect that they should be only asked for one month's rent in advance.

The other point raised by the last Member who spoke, is the question of alteration of business premises. I can see on page 165, subsection 5, it provides that the renter shall be responsible for all repairs to roofs, main walls, main drains, electrical wiring and so on, and shall be responsible for all necessary renewals to the premises. I believe this covers a situation whereby a person or a tenant may want to rent some premises for an establishment. It is provided by the local authority or the main authority for that matter, that the premises must be of certain form, if necessary with the need for cementing or adding extra structures for carrying out the extra business. There have been, in the past, a lot of complaints of this kind of situation, whereby a tenant, because he wants to carry on his business, is told by a local authority that unless the premises conform to the standards authorized by the local authority, he cannot get a licence, and usually because you want to rent the premises, he undertakes to pay for the cost of repairs which are usually very expensive. The landlord, because he is not prepared to pay for the repairs, agrees with the tenant that whatever amount it costs to carry out the repairs, these costs will be refunded to the tenant by not paying rent for a couple of months.

So, here when the Minister replies, I would like to know whether the situation is covered under subsection 5 of the schedule, that is, if a local authority insists that premises must be in a certain form, and that certain structures must be added, these must be carried out by the landlord and not by the tenant, and this would help considerably to reduce the complaints and disputes which arise subsequently between the landlord and the tenant.

There is also a situation whereby a landlord, as the hon. Mr. Karuki said, does not enter into an agreement. He gives his premises to a relative and the relatives have let it to another sub-tenant, and the situation is that in such cases, usually, the tenant pays more than he should pay for the premises. I would request the Minister to make sure that he has a system whereby the inspectors who are to be appointed by the tribunal will be able to find out exactly whether the tenancy is created between the landlord and the tenant or it is between the tenant and a sub-tenant. There are many cases in Nairobi, of which some of us know, where you find a premises rented by about Sh. 1,000 and by the tenant who is carrying on a business, and this Sh. 1,000 does not all go to the landlord, the owner of the premises. The owner of the premises may get about Sh. 700, and the remaining Sh. 300 goes to the sub-tenant, and this is a case where the Minister could make use of his powers under section 16, to instruct these inspectors to make sure that the tenancy is created between the right persons, and not between an intermediary who keeps part of the rent for his own purpose.

Mr. Speaker, these are the only points I have, and in conclusion I would just like to point out that what has been said by some Members, that this Bill has taken a long time to come, should be made retrospective up to the date when the commission or the working committee was set up.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to make a few observations on this Bill, and before I do so I would like to congratulate the Minister for Commerce and Industry for bringing this Bill before this House. As a matter of fact, the need for such a Bill has been felt for a very long time.

Coming to the Bill, I am not very happy about the definition of the word "shop". I do not see any reason why shops, occupied mainly for the purpose of trade and business—

QUORUM

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): On a point of order, do we have a quorum?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, we do not. Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We now have a quorum. You may carry on, Mr. Jamal.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, as I said, the definition of "shop" is very inadequate. Why should this protection be given to those people who are carrying on retail businesses or business. We might come across cases where people are running advertising agencies, or travel agencies, or even the business of commission agencies, and these are the people to whom the location of the premises makes a lot of difference. As a matter of fact, when this Bill was being drafted the feeling in the country was that the Bill was going to protect all the people regardless of the type of business that they are running, and I would have, therefore, thought that the definition of the word "shop" should be made more broad.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is one omission also in the Bill. It is in cases where the landlord prefers not to rent his shop. He might like to discriminate against the type of tenant that he wants, and he may keep it vacant for six months or twelve months, until such time that he gets a tenant of his own choice. I thought that it might be a good idea if some sort of compulsion was brought on the landlord that if it is his intention to rent the shop then it must be rented within a certain period. A shop must not be allowed to stay vacant for more than a certain period of time.

Mr. Speaker, the question of a tribunal also raises some points.

Some years ago, we had the Rent Control Bill and certain measures were laid down, the basis on which the rent would be charged. For instance, a landlord was allowed about 10 to 12 per cent of his capital outlay. Now, no such provision has been made here. On the other hand, very wide powers have been given to the tribunal, and while I do not dispute these powers what I do not like is that if the parties are not satisfied they can go to the Court of Law, and then to the Appeal Court. Now, this becomes very expensive, and if certain measures are laid down that the rent is going to be charged on such and such a basis, then very few cases will go to the Court of Law, and to the Court of Appeal. I still feel that rather than cases going from the tribunal to the court, a committee should have powers to decide such cases.

Mr. Speaker, I also do not like the question of the payment of rent in advance. Why should a person pay anything without getting the services? If the buildings are built, the landlords have to take the calculated risk in any case. After all, we do not go and open a shop and start finding the money immediately until such time as we have sold our goods. It is an established practice in the trade that people have to pay the rent after a month, and therefore, I would like this clause to be altered.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, under clause 16, it states that a Minister may make regulations for the better running out of the provisions of this Act, and here some guidance may be given to the tribunal, but I thought that since the Bill had taken such a long time some sort of guidance should have been given to the tribunal from the very outset.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Omeri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, much has been said about this Bill, and I would like to make a few observations about the Bill. I may not go very far about the points that have been raised, but the quarrel with this particular Bill, as the previous speaker has just said, starts with that definition or interpretation of the word "shop". It goes further and says that "shop" would mean premises whereby a retail trade or business is conducted. It does not give provisions of where a wholesale business is carried out. It is included and is protected. To leave it as such, I would just support the previous speaker by saying that the definition should include other services which this Bill intends to give.

Previous speakers have also mentioned charges, and instead of repeating what they have people to rent their own premises, that they employ sub-landlords, Mr. Deputy Speaker, and they tell them to go and rent the premises to other people, and you find, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that if the landlord tells them to go and rent the premises at Sh. 500 they rent it for Sh. 750. However, this is because they would like to get the commission, and also get something else on top of that. This, I think, is something else which the Ministry should try to check, because we can put our people in a very, very bad situation, in allowing such situations to continue among our own people. Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this is another thing which we would like the Ministry to do.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the point of tribal rent, however much I may agree with the Minister himself, and I do not want to quit because I have read the Bill itself, but I feel that even some people will not be able to apply to the tribunal, and this is merely because I feel that most of the tenants would fear to take their landlords to the tribunal because there is always this fear that if I take this landlord to the tribunal he may have a word sent to the other landlords, and you are left without any place to go. This is the fear. This is the same with insurance. When you cause a lot of accidents on the road, Mr. Deputy Speaker, and you keep on claiming from the insurance, then the word gets round and therefore they will not do any work with you or insure your car. This in actual fact does happen, and I hope that most of the Members in this House have been faced with such problems. So, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I feel that this is the same case here. Most of the poor Africans will find it difficult to apply to the tribunal, because they fear that if they do so they would not be able to find somewhere to live.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachoga): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, is it in order for the hon. Member to impute that the Ministers and Assistant Ministers do support the landlords?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): He is not imputing it, I think.

Mr. J. M. Kaririki: No, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not think he understood, you understood me fully. He could not understand me, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, because he was laughing.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, what you would like to say and continue to say, is that we must try to find ways and means whereby we can at least try and assist our people and have the plans to encourage most of the businessmen.

The other important point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, which I would like to mention is that there are at the moment, and I have learned this in Nairobi, there are what are known as sub-landlords. Now these sub-landlords are more numerous and are even worse than the landlords themselves. If some Africans are being used by the landlord, who feels too tired, to go and ask people to rent their own premises, that they employ sub-landlords, Mr. Deputy Speaker, and they tell them to go and rent the premises to other people, and you find, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that if the landlord tells them to go and rent the premises at Sh. 500 they rent it for Sh. 750. However, this is because they would like to get the commission, and also get something else on top of that. This, I think, is something else which the Ministry should try to check, because we can put our people in a very, very bad situation, in allowing such situations to continue among our own people. Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this is another thing which we would like the Ministry to do.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the point of tribal rent, however much I may agree with the Minister himself, and I do not want to quit because I have read the Bill itself, but I feel that even some people will not be able to apply to the tribunal, and this is merely because I feel that most of the tenants would fear to take their landlords to the tribunal because there is always this fear that if I take this landlord to the tribunal he may have a word sent to the other landlords, and you are left without any place to go. This is the fear. This is the same with insurance. When you cause a lot of accidents on the road, Mr. Deputy Speaker, and you keep on claiming from the insurance, then the word gets round and therefore they will not do any work with you or insure your car. This in actual fact does happen, and I hope that most of the Members in this House have been faced with such problems. So, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I feel that this is the same case here. Most of the poor Africans will find it difficult to apply to the tribunal, because they fear that if they do so they would not be able to find somewhere to live.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

This is going to be more difficult, so there has to be a method whereby this can be done without injuring anyone. That is why I suggest that if the Ministry cared to put a specification in every area, then they will not be charged so much, and the area will have a reference from the Government, and that it can be checked from time to time, and that will remove any exploitation from our people, so now we will be able to know that when they go to any particular area then they will be able to rent such a place at such an amount of money. This is what I would like the Ministry to consider.

[Mr. J. M. Kaririki]

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not want the Minister to think that I am trying to oppose this Bill, I am not, in fact, I would like to congratulate him very much on bringing this Bill to the House, but I am putting to him what our people have been subjected to in this Bill, the position of the landlord and sub-landlords, whom I have just mentioned.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, if we look at clause 17 of the Bill, I would like to say that personally, I feel that the legislation should also apply to Government and a local authority. The Assistant Minister is asking why not, well I think it is because the public would feel that the Government is imposing a law while realizing that that law might be unfair to the Government, in which case the law should be considered as a concern to the public at large, therefore I do not feel that that clause was necessary at all. You are putting a lot of suspicions on it. Why is it applicable to the other places and not to the Government or local authority premises. It should also be emphasized that this law applies to everyone, but the only thing is that if you want to you can always explain that this is Government residential premises but it should not have to be explained in the Bill that this does not apply to Government or to the local authority, because we are putting a lot of suspicion in the mind of the public that the Government is putting the law, while realizing that the law itself is quite unfair to the Government itself. That is why I feel that it was quite unnecessary to put that clause; let it remain as it was so as not to have any unnecessary questioning by the public.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Bill should state clearly that, where a certain suspicion is true and beyond doubt in past years that this has been going on, but it should not at least try to evade the point that the Government should not be put into this legislation or the local authorities. I also feel that all previous lease agreements should be considered as well, and should be considered null and void unless there is no dispute between the two parties concerned because I do not see the reason why it should be subject to revision where disputes do not exist, but if there have been some disputes then in most cases I think it would be quite fair for them to be referred to a tribunal.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think now that I have explained to the Minister what my objection has been in this Bill, but as a whole I think it is a very important Bill and I support it, but I hope that the Minister will take this very seriously, and try to rectify it.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Waribiki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to congratulate the Minister for having brought this Bill and I think it is very appropriate, for a Bill of this nature to be brought to the House, which is meant, as I understand it, to help the tenants, mostly Africans, who have been exploited for a long time.

Looking at the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, the second line reads that:—

"the desirability of reintroducing legislation to impose control over the rents of business premises and to recommend the form of such legislation".

This, in my understanding, Mr. Speaker, Sir, suggests that the Government believed and accepted the view that the rents were accepted, they were not controlled, and there was a need to introduce a legislation which would control the amount to be paid on business premises and this Bill, which is entitled "Landlord and Tenants (Shops, Hotels and Catering Establishments) Bill" has been prepared.

My main complaint about this Bill is that it has not gone far enough.

Looking at section 3 of the Bill, it defines a tenancy.

Now, I would have expected that the Government would go further in order to help the people who have been paying excessive rent, to rectify the situation from the beginning. I would have expected the Government to declare all tenancies or leases null and void so that new tenancies be created, or premises be covered by this Bill, which will take into account the points which have been raised in this Bill. If we accept that the rents have been too high in the past, why should it be up to the tenants themselves, to make an application to a tribunal so that the rent payable can be varied? What happens to those people where a tenant, although he may not be happy with the rent he is paying, may not be in a position to make this application. I would suggest, Sir, that the Minister still has some powers under section 16 of the Bill, where he is given the powers to make rules and regulations given the powers to make rules and regulations for carrying out the provisions of this Bill. But, it does not go far enough as to compel any existing parties, maybe a landlord or a tenant, to go to a tribunal. There are, of course, some difficulties, and I do not know exactly how the Minister is intending to avoid these difficulties.

[The Assistant Minister, President's Office]
town, I would rather like to see the Minister extending the Bill to cover residential houses.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I hope the hon. Minister will not feel bored if I say that, for instance, his definition of the tenancy, which is explained on page 153 of the Bill— He says, "tenancy" means a tenancy for a period not exceeding five years created by a lease or underlease, by an agreement for or assignment of a lease or underlease. . . . This, Mr. Deputy Speaker, means that anybody who occupies a shop or business premises over five years will not get the protection of the Bill. That is the definition the Bill has given to this; in any case, that is the way I look at it.

Another thing, Mr. Deputy Speaker, which requires some explanation from the Minister is the reference to the tenant to the tribunal. I would rather like to point out that it would be advantageous, if this Bill is to serve the purpose it is intended for, for the procedure in the tribunal, which is supposed to be created under this Bill, to be made an administrative tribunal rather than a judicial one. The reason why I suggest that it should be administrative rather than judicial is that if you have a judicial tribunal, a lot of these tenants who would apply to the court would be hampered by the technical, legal procedure if the court or the tribunal were judicial. But if it were administrative, then, of course, most of the tenants who, we hope, will be Africans will, in the first instance, not be burdened with heavy costs, which we normally know go along with applications in judicial tribunals, and the applications cannot be dismissed because of procedure or lack of form.

I can see that the Minister has wide powers under this Bill and if it becomes an Act he will be able to prescribe the rules under which the applicants would be able to petition the tribunal.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, clause 7, subsection (b) should be worded a little more generously. Clause 7 gives the grounds on which landlords may seek to terminate the tenancy and one of these is prescribed under clause 7, subclause (b), which reads, "that the tenant has defaulted in paying rent for a period of two months after such rent has become due or payable or has persistently delayed in paying rent which has become due or payable." Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am rather worried about that clause because some unscrupulous landlords or landladies will seize on this and for obvious reasons will evict their tenants. It may be a tenant has gone away on a business trip and he has been away for two months, he has not paid his rent, and consequently if the landlord wants to terminate the tenancy, he can easily do so. I would rather have liked to see a few words included in that particular clause, that the tenant has defaulted without cause or reason, or perhaps throw the burden on the tenant to show that he had actually defaulted because of some other reasons.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, clause 7 mentions about eight grounds on which the tenancy could be terminated, but the Minister would agree with me that in most of these cases, these reasons which they are justified, need to be properly drafted. If the Minister would like to amend some of these rather delicate clauses, I would offer my services.

Apart from that, Mr. Deputy Speaker, all I would like to ask the Minister to consider is, as I have said, to include residential premises, to make the tribunal an administrative tribunal, and the grounds on which the tenancy could be terminated to be worded more generously so that we do not have tenants being evicted without cause or reason.

Mr. J. M. Karuki: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not have any quarrel with this Bill, but although it may be that the Minister explained to the House during my absence, I do not see any reason why the Bill should not be entitled the Landlord and Tenant Bill, 1965, and should apply to all tenable premises, instead of explaining here that this includes only shops, hotels and catering establishments. This is because when we categorize, we definitely and automatically omit the residential areas and I fear that we should not categorize the premises to which it should apply. This move, Mr. Deputy Speaker, would eliminate the duplication of operation, as there is a different legislation dealing with dwelling premises, as far as I know, the Rent Restriction Ordinance revised in 1962, Cap. 296, should be revoked at the same time. In that chapter, Mr. Deputy Speaker, and I understand that this expired on 31st December 1962, means that the residential tenants are now subject to the worst kind of exploitation which the poor people have experienced.

This move would also mean less expenses, which would be doubled or tripled if there were to be established in this country two different types of legislation dealing with one subject: namely, rents.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, in this Bill, if one looks at clause 1, I do not think it should be left entirely to the discretion of the Minister to exempt any area from the operation of the Bill.

[Mr. J. M. Karuki]
This would encourage in future, in the case of a bad Minister, what is known as cordons. I do not want to say that our present Minister is in that class at all, but it is my feeling that this should not be left entirely at his own discretion. Moreover, this might mean that the Bill shall become ineffective since the Minister may do whatever he likes or exempt whoever he likes. Anyway, that is not my main quarrel.

The quarrel here, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is that in the past most of the people renting premises in an Indian or Asian shop have been subjected to quite a lot of expenses. You take, for example, a building set up in 1921 being rented today for more than ten times the amount that the owner of that house or shop spent to build the premises. That is more serious and that is why I feel that it is very important that there should be, apart from having only a tribunal, a committee set up by the Ministry to find out the old premises because there are some old premises which do not deserve the rent which is being imposed on the Africans by the landlords at the present time. Here, Mr. Deputy Speaker, what I intend to say is that you find that a certain organization or a society want to establish a hotel in Nairobi, and that in itself shows that they would like to have a reasonable rent on premises which are not modern, but because the area where they would like to establish their business is in the middle of the city and the other houses around that particular premises are of a modern type, the same Asian will at the same time rent his own premises, which are very old, at the same rent being charged by the other landlord in that particular vicinity. Here, Mr. Deputy Speaker, what I would like to ask the Minister to do is to set up a committee to go into the details and find out which areas should be charged what. Let the Ministry have checking cards to be able to tell a landlord "in this particular area you should not charge more than this; we feel that in this area, the rents should be so much". Now, this is up to the Minister concerned to check whether in that particular area there are landlords who are charging more than what is stated by the Government. Mr. Deputy Speaker, you must have heard of so many Africans who have rented premises in Nairobi, and establishing a hotel, do pay quite a lot of money to the landlord. This is because there has never been legislation in the past to take care of their own interests. If a shop or hotel is charged, by the landlord, about £300 per month then one will find that the Africans who are poor and even the poor Asians, are subjected to paying a very, very high rent, which may not be discovered until the end of the month, when they deduct the amount of money they have to pay to their own workers in the hotels, and then they deduct whatever income they have, and go, at the end of the month, to the landlord and give him the £300. This man has been living a very quiet life, staying in his own room, reading the newspaper, listening to the radio and he has not been working at all, and you find this situation throughout the month. He has been trying to raise £300 to give to the landlord.

It goes further, Mr. Deputy Speaker. Sir, where most of the Africans are shoemakers. They also rent premises at about Sh. 300 to Sh. 500 per month. They work that whole month, sometimes stitching in their fingers to try and raise this money to pay for their rent. What the most important thing is that he wants to get Sh. 500 so that he can pay the landlord, who will in the end allow him to continue after paying the money to remain on the premises. Most of them go as far as borrowing money if they cannot obtain enough money to pay their rent at the end of the month. They go around borrowing money from other people so that they can pay money from the landlord. This is what we would like the Ministry to consider, that a reasonable amount of money should be charged, so that most of the Africans would be able to understand that whenever they go to Government Road, for example, there they would know that the Government has agreed on Sh. 3,000, and then they can choose which area they can go to. These are most important and moreover, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, what should be taken into consideration is the length of time, the period, this man has been occupying those particular premises, because occupying those premises in Nairobi, and in particular are some people I know, and if I may be a little more specific, there is a shop, an hotel, bar and restaurant, and this African has been paying now for fifteen years, Sh. 5,000 per month. Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, if you multiply this Sh. 5,000 per month, then it amounts to Sh. 60,000 per year, and then multiply this amount by fifteen years, this is what you have, Sh. 900,000. This particular landlord did not have any of his money, and this is also what I mean by that. I do hope that should take into consideration. It is the Minister is listening to me, because this is very serious. Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am practically opposed to this attitude, because an practically opposed to this attitude, because if a building is in a bad or poor condition, and if a building is in a bad or poor condition, and if a building continues to carry on charging in the same way as he did, and increasing the rent year by year, instead of charging the same amount as he was five or ten years ago, that is

DIVISION

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it in order for hon. Members to come through the wrong way when the doors have been closed?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is entirely out of order, because at the time when the five minutes has expired, all doors should be locked, but as all doors were not locked, hon. Members have taken the opportunity to come in.

I understand that we have ninety-seven Members here now, and in future when we come to a division all doors will be locked and we will stop ringing the Division Bell.

I will now put the question again that the Constitution of Kenya (Amendment) Bill be now read a Third Time.

THE LANDLORD AND TENANT (SHOPS, HOTELS AND CATERING ESTABLISHMENTS) BILL
(Minister for Commerce and Industry on 22nd April 1965)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 22nd April 1965)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Ngala was speaking when we broke off this debate. He is not here.

Mr. Nyamwaya.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamwaya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to thank the Minister for Commerce and Industry for introducing this Bill to the House. As a matter of fact, this Bill is long overdue.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]
[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

However, I do welcome the fact that he has brought it to the House.

It is very regrettable, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that the Minister did not deem it fit to include the residential property or houses in the towns. The reason why he has only considered shops, hotels and catering establishments was explained in his speech when he was moving the Bill before the House, but I would rather like to point out to the Minister that this Bill was introduced for the purpose of protecting the people who have the victims of unscrupulous landlords. We been still have landlords who own residential houses and who can still be unscrupulous and exploit and just as those who own shops, hotels and other business premises. I wonder, Mr. Deputy Speaker, whether the Minister knows the percentage of the African population which occupies the shops, hotels and business premises. As a matter of fact, he will find that his Bill will not, in any event, help the African population, which the Bill is intended to protect, because the tenants in shops, hotels and some catering establishments are, in most cases, Asians. I know, for instance, in Kisumu all the tenants in Kisumu town—the town I represent—are Asian and what this Bill is going to do is to protect the Asian tenants. It will only protect one or two African traders in that place.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would ask the Minister to consider very seriously including residential houses in this Bill. Although we all know that there are some Africans as well who are now beginning to own houses or business premises in

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, you have ruled that the statement made by the Minister for Internal Security is not, in fact, a point of order. May I ask you whether, in view of the grave nature of the allegations made, and since these statements are privileged, this House has any power or authority to direct here and now that a full investigation be made and that a report be brought back to this House. Do we have that in our power?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): As regards the powers of this House, I think the hon. Member knows very well that the only power of this House is to decide on questions which are proposed to it, according to our ordinary rules of procedure. There could not be any direction given by this House; there could be a resolution of the House on a suitable Motion, which usually requires due notice, that such inquiries should be made. This is the way in which things are done. But since the Minister has said that there will be an inquiry, perhaps the House will be satisfied for the moment.

Mr. Bala: The Kikuyu are ruling you!

Mr. Gatuguta: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I seek your ruling in this matter. Is it in order for a Member of this House to shout that the Kikuyu are ruling? Is this not, in fact, contempt of the Members of this House are not Kikuyu?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, of course, it is not, but if I were to punish every breach of order each time it occurred, we would soon have a somewhat empty Chamber, I am afraid.

I have warned Mr. Okuto Bala to control himself, and he knows what will happen otherwise.

Mr. Bala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it right for the hon. Member who referred to me as saying that the Kikuyu were ruling us to ask, if that is in order, when he knows perfectly well that the Kikuyu are trying to rule us by force?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Okuto Bala, I do not think that is a proper point of order. I would advise you to keep very quiet for a little time now, or you will be sent out of the Chamber.

Mr. Ochwada: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker in view of the grave nature of the allegations made by the Member, which led to his being asked to substantiate them, perhaps it is not within the powers of this House to direct a Minister as to what he should do, but, Sir, I rise to seek your guidance as to what the Ministry did, in view of the fact that the Minister stood up and only told us that the substantiated allegations made by the Member were so grave that they merited an immediate investigation. Was it not up to the Ministry after the allegation had been made, to start an investigation?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! We cannot go into all this now. I have told hon. Members one way to raise this, if they wish to raise it in this House. There is another way. On a suitable occasion, hon. Members may care to use the procedure available under Standing Order 14.

But I would point out that this very same matter, as I understand it, is to come up on the adjournment of the House tomorrow evening.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odongo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thought that the point made by the Minister, the statement he made, to the effect that the matter would be investigated—Do I understand that this statement was not recorded by the House and that it was null and void or it does not work or what?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

APPOINTMENT OF CHIEF IN MURANG'A

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would remind hon. Members that on the adjournment of the House today, Mr. Kaggia is to raise the matter of Question No. 948—Appointments of Chiefs in Murang'a, to which he thought he had received unsatisfactory replies.

THE CONSTITUTION OF KENYA (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would remind hon. Members that when I put the question, that the Constitution of Kenya (Amendment) Bill be now read a Second Time, last Thursday, 22nd April, we had not, when we came to a division, ninety-seven Members in the House, although we rang seven Members in the House, I therefore ruled on the Division Bell twice over. I therefore ruled on that as on other occasions, that where a special majority is required, and we cannot find even the minimum to constitute that majority, it is abortive to have a division. I think one has to treat this as if there were no ordinary quorum for an ordinary division. For that reason, I appointed this time today to have the division on that question. In the event of our not having a quorum again, then the Bill must again follow our Standing Orders with regard to the lack of an ordinary quorum as an ordinary division and postpone any further attempt at a Division until the beginning of the next sitting of the House, which would be in June.

I will now put the question again.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in accordance with our Standing Orders for a division to be postponed when numbers are inadequate or insufficient?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I answered that last Thursday and I have just answered it this very moment, if hon. Members would only pay attention.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, could I have your guidance on this? I know that we are 130 Members, but the other day, the hon. Philip Nyaga was sent out of this House; are we still considering ourselves as 130 Members or 129 for the purpose of voting?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I cannot quite get your point, Mr. Mbogoh. Would you speak up?

Mr. Mbogoh: What happened is that the hon. Philip Nyaga was expelled or suspended from the House for three days—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, yes, I understand your point now. We still have, to get the same number; he is still a voting Member of the House, even though he is disqualified from the House today. We still require ninety-seven votes.

(The Bill was read a Second Time)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before proceeding to the next order, I would point out to hon. Members that on the Third Reading of this Bill we shall again require the same minimum number of voters. May I therefore suggest that we take the Committee stage as the very next order and then go straight on to the Third Reading. Now, if hon. Members agree to that, it does mean that they must all stay near, in order to pass the Third Reading. It will not take very long, because the Bill has to go through the Committee stage without amendment.

(The Bill was committed to a Committee of the whole House today by leave of the House) children being left in the streets is because of the women hanging about on the streets in the town here and when they get these children, they get rid of them?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mwendwa, did you hear the question?

Mr. Mwendwa: Mr. Speaker, I did not understand the question. Could the hon Member repeat it?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Will you repeat your question, Mr. Aremam.

Mr. Aremam: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that these women hanging about on the streets are the ones who are abandoning babies?

Mr. Mwendwa: Mr. Speaker, first of all, I do not know what the Member means by "hanging about on the streets", but there are also women who are not hanging about on the streets, if I may use his words, who give birth to just as many children.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, could the Minister take the trouble to see that all the pregnant women in the towns are registered, so as to know exactly that when they give birth, none of them throws the child out on the street?

Mr. Mwendwa: Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Member could show the Government a method we could actually use to find out how many pregnant women we have in the country, I would appreciate that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will continue now.

Mr. Okuto Bala, I think you have a personal statement to make?

PERSONAL STATEMENT

SUBSTANTIATION OF ALLEGATION ABOUT THE GENERAL SERVICE UNIT IN CENTRAL NYANZA

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on 23rd April 1965, I was asked to substantiate my allegation that the General Service Unit in Central Nyanza raped women in Central Nyanza. Today I would like to take this opportunity to substantiate my allegation.

First of all, Mr. Speaker, I would like to inform the House that on 24th April 1965, there was a meeting at a place called Kusa in North Nyakach, which was attended by about 5,000 people—5,000 people; you listen. On 25th April 1965, there was a public meeting at Oboch in South Nyakach which was attended by about 10,000 people. Also, yesterday, in Abern East Kano, there was a meeting attended by about 10,000 people. All these people passed a unanimous resolution that the General Service Unit have done a lot of harm in Nyanza Constituency. The resolution which was passed said that in Nyanza the General Service Unit have done a lot of damage in conformity with what I said in this Parliament. They beat so many people, so many old people, so many women and—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. I do not think you need elaborate in great detail, Mr. Bala. What you are required to do is to substantiate what you said before, and not to enlarge upon it. You are now quite rightly, substantiating, because you are saying that this is what you heard from a lot of your constituents; but you cannot add to the story you gave before.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, I do not want to go for stories, I want to substantiate what I said last time.

I said in the last session that the General Service Unit actually beat people in my constituency, raped the women in my constituency, and now I am going to say the sort of women they raped.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. Hon. Members must take Personal Statements seriously. They are always concerned with the conduct of a Member and they must be treated with respect. They are hardly ever laughing matters and certainly not this one.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, I quite agree with you and I will start with the people who were beaten up. Secondly, I will go through the women who were raped.

Firstly, the people who were beaten by the Johnnies or the General Service Unit are as follows. Number one, Awthoga Nyalik was beaten up in my constituency. Number two, Odindo Olang was beaten up by the General Service Unit. Number three, Ayieta's wife of Olang was beaten and raped. Number four, Edward Opiko was beaten up completely. Number five, Alo Okutu was completely beaten up, and he is an old man. Number six, Thomas Okero, was beaten up by the General Service Unit. Number seven, Onyisi Olang was completely beaten up. Number eight, Amolo Ocala was beaten up by the General Service Unit. Number nine, Nelsio Oyoo, was beaten up. Number ten, Okil wife of Ogilo was beaten up and raped. Number eleven, Anyani Ongondo was beaten up only. Number twelve, Modi wife of Oyoo was beaten up and raped. Number thirteen, Sweta wife of Ongere was beaten up, and number fourteen, Nganga Midinga, was beaten up. These people can come to you gentlemen. This is serious, not playing. Number fifteen, Ojako Ogola was beaten up. Number sixteen, Bibi wife of Sero was beaten up and raped, in our Government. Number seventeen, Ondeyo daughter of Adhoga was beaten up and raped. Number eighteen, Ayoo Aluoch was beaten up only. Number nineteen, Orowo Okente was only. Number twenty, Otiemo daughter of Dodo was beaten up only. Number twenty-one, Jeremiah Olang was beaten up completely.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Ongogo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir—

Mr. Bala: No, sit down!

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Mr. Bala, when another Member rises on a point of order, you know you have got to sit down.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Munio): Mr. Speaker, I rise to seek your guidance. Since this was a matter of substantiation, I was wondering whether it is proper for the hon. Member to quote each case.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): When the House has asked for substantiation, or it has been asked for by any hon. Member, then the Member who is asked for substantiation is entitled to give it in fullest detail. But he must exercise control in doing so.

Mr. Bala: I quite agree with you, Mr. Speaker; I have only six names more.

Now, number twenty-one Jeremiah Olang was beaten up completely, and, as far as his eyes are concerned, he cannot see anybody now, because he was beaten up by the General Service Unit. Number twenty-two, Onyango Okute was completely beaten up; he cannot even raise his arms now. Anyone can go to my constituency and see that he cannot raise his arm, he was beaten up so terribly. Now we come to Munga, son of Opiyo who was beaten up completely. Number twenty-five, Ongere son of Orowo was beaten up. Number twenty-six, Auma son of Amolo was beaten up. Number twenty-seven, Oger son of Nyamolo, was beaten up.

Mr. Speaker, what I would like to say is this: We have got a national Government in this country—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order! Mr. Bala, this is not an opportunity for you to do anything but substantiate. You give the substantiation asked for, and that is the end of it.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to finish my substantiation.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can finish your substantiation, yes.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, according to the last decade, our position is this. We people are Kenyans, and—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Hon. Members must understand that the making of a Personal Statement is a privilege and it is strictly limited to the subject matter on which it is allowed. In this case, when the hon. Member has been allowed to substantiate, he has not been given an opportunity to make a speech.

You have made your substantiation. Now we will move on.

MINISTERIAL STATEMENT

INVESTIGATION INTO GENERAL SERVICE UNIT ACTIONS IN CENTRAL NYANZA

The Minister for Internal Security and Defence (Dr. Mungai): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I have your guidance on this point? In view of the fact that the Government takes this substantiation very seriously, if such crimes have been committed by the General Service Units, when these men are supposed to serve this Government and behave towards the public with honour and dignity, then I would like that matter gone into; and if these people who have been beaten up or otherwise molested like to have a investigation made to the police, so that a full investigation can be made, then if anyone is found guilty he can be brought to justice. I would also like to have this brought before the House later, if possible.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will just deal with this— It was not actually a point of order; it was more like a Ministerial Statement. Of course, Government will have an opportunity to comment on this as early as tomorrow evening, when the same matter, I think, is going to be raised on an adjournment.

You had a point of order, Mr. Bala?

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, it is not in order that I express in this House the feelings of my constituents?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): At the right time and in the right manner. Not when you are being privileged to make a personal statement.

[Mr. Konchellah] means by "free education", because with free education, either you tax the child by charging school fees, or you charge the parents by charging higher taxes; so really free education does not actually exist. Either you tax the child or the taxpayer.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Odero-Sar—

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it right to call on another question when the Minister is still replying?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I thought he had finished. I am sorry, Mr. Konchellah, do go on.

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, it is not the question of free education which has made all these Harambee schools start, but it is the need for education which is actually being limited because of lack of funds.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that most of the Harambee secondary schools are started after the Government has told the people that they should begin the secondary schools by themselves and then the Government will help them?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, I did not say that the Government would not help these Harambee schools; but I did say that as time goes on, we will try to include the Harambee schools in our Development Plan.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 2009; TAKE-OVER OF HARAMBEE SELF-HELP SCHOOLS

Mr. Muliro: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, arising from the most short-sighted policy of the Government, in regard to this question, I would like to raise a Motion on adjournment.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before I have yours, Mr. Mboya, I think Mr. Muisori wanted to rise on the same point of order as Mr. Muliro, and he would really have the first claim on this.

Mr. Muisori-Itumbo: It is all right, Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the move of the hon. Mr. Muliro.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, my point of order is to seek your guidance. Did the hon. Member for Trans Nzoia give notice in view of the short-sighted policy or in view of the unsatisfactory reply? Is it the reply or the policy that we are talking about?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The usual cause for a matter to be raised on adjournment following a question is the unsatisfactory reply to questions which I think is what the hon. Member meant, but you can give any reason for wanting to raise a matter on adjournment.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 2025

TERMS OF SERVICE FOR LABORATORY ASSISTANTS

Mr. Khalif asked the Minister for Health and Housing whether, in view of the fact that very unfair terms of service and salaries were accorded to laboratory assistants, the Minister would consider appointing a board to inquire into this matter, with a view of finding better terms of employment and salaries.

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The terms of service and salaries of laboratory assistants are similar to those of others in this Ministry who are trained at the Medical Training Centre and who hold local qualifications of a similar nature, e.g. medical assistants, orthopaedic assistants and pharmaceutical assistants.

Strong representations have been made to Government to review the grading of all these posts.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that the laboratory assistants render the most important services in the medical departments, notwithstanding the fact that they are very underpaid?

Mr. Moss: That is quite correct, but I do not agree with what the Member says, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that short-sighted reply, is the Assistant Minister aware that laboratory assistants who work in private firms get better salaries than those who work in the Government?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the hon. Member does not understand that we, as a Government, do not make a profit, but the private firms, and those who work in private firms, make profits, and therefore, they can pay higher salaries.

Mr. Khalif: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, is the Assistant Minister aware that the

Mr. Khalif laboratory assistants find it impossible to further their qualifications for the purpose of promotion, in view of the fact that training and courses for such purpose do not exist in Kenya?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question of promotion is a consideration of many things. Qualification is one, and experience is another as well as efficiency, and I want to tell the hon. Member, right now, that, at present, the laboratory assistants have better prospects of promotional training and subsequent training to higher grades than do most other medical assistants.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister explain these better prospects for laboratory assistants for promotional purposes?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is in line with what they are supposed to do.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the time we take here to ask questions, will the Assistant Minister now answer what is in me with what they are supposed to do in terms of their prospects, as far as the policy of the Ministry is concerned?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, I am glad that the hon. Member asking the question was at one time a member of my Ministry, and I hope in view of this, Mr. Speaker, he understood the terms of service regarding my Ministry as to how promotions are made.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will now go back to Mr. Rurumban's question.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 2025; TERMS OF SERVICE FOR LABORATORY ASSISTANTS

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to raise this matter on adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is quite a long list now.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 2001

SAMBURU COUNTY COUNCIL ELECTIONS

Mr. Rurumban asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House why the elections for the Samburu County Council had not yet taken place.

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Sagini): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The election of the County Council of Samburu has not yet been held because the Rift Valley Regional Assembly extended the lives of the local authorities in the province by one year: that is to say, elections which had to be held on 30th June 1964, were extended to 30th June 1965, and those that had to be held on 30th June 1965, were extended to 31st December 1965.

Mr. Rurumban: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, will the Minister tell the House the reasons why the County Council of Samburu has been given a longer period, or why the Regional Assembly has agreed to extend the period of election of one-third of the members?

Mr. Sagini: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is rather an unfair question, because the Member knows very well that his people wanted to stay longer in office, for a year longer.

Question No. 2018

GOVERNMENT ACTION ON ABANDONED CHILDREN

Mr. Aramas asked the Minister for Labour and Social Services what the Government was doing about children being born and abandoned on the streets in various towns.

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Government is doing all it can, within the imposed financial limitations of the present state of the economy, to develop social services and, in particular, those services dealing with social casualties.

The Child Welfare Society of Kenya, which receives a Government grant, does attempt to take care of abandoned babies. The excellent work of this society needs supporting by a re-awakening of the traditional attitude towards babies abandoned by their parents. In the past, the extended family received such children and were sympathetic to the problems of the mother. More often than not, the babies are abandoned because the mother has broken the bonds of family relationships. A much more sympathetic attitude on the part of the families would encourage the mothers to recognize their responsibilities towards their babies.

I would ask every Member of this House to assist with the re-awakening of our traditional attitude towards this problem. In the meantime, Government will continue to do everything possible, within its financial limitations, to take good care of these unfortunate babies that have been abandoned by their parents.

Mr. Aramas: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister agree with me that the cause of these

Mr. Muti: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister care to answer my question, because although I said "assuming," I thought that the Minister would be sufficiently well informed to know that it is a requirement of the law that these people register births.

Mr. arap Moli: As I said before, Sir, we do not deal with assumptions; I would like the hon. Member to say which number.

Mr. Muti: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister, in reply to my hon. friend's question, said that a certain number of minors have had their applications presented to his Ministry. According to the requirements of the law here in Kenya today, births have to be registered and therefore we have a means of knowing how many persons or children exist and who might be affected by this.

I am only trying to find out what percentage these few applications represent, as far as the total number affected by this requirement is concerned.

Mr. arap Moli: Mr. Speaker, since the hon. Member is knowledgeable about all the procedures, he knows that my colleague, the Attorney-General, is responsible for the registration of births and deaths. So it is not my business to deal with that side of the question; and therefore the question is irrelevant.

Question No. 1062

TITLE DEEDS TO FARMERS IN NYAMBENE

Mr. Gacalatta asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement if he could inform the House how many farmers had been issued with title deeds in the Nyambene Settlement Scheme.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angaine): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am not aware of any settlement scheme at Nyambene, although it is possible that the hon. Member is referring to the tea development scheme there. In any case, title deeds to plots cannot be issued until the land consolidation process, as laid down by the Land Adjudication Act, has been applied to the area by the Land Consolidation Department. However, Sir, the hon. Member will be pleased to hear that Nyambene has already been included in that department's 1965-66 programme, so it should be possible to issue title deeds in about eighteen months' time.

Mr. Gacalatta: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the Nyambene Settlement Scheme started early in 1959, could the Minister tell this House why it has taken so long to issue title deeds?

Mr. Angaine: Mr. Speaker, I do not know what the hon. Member is talking about. What sort of "scheme" is he referring to? Is it the tea scheme, or is there another scheme which I don't know about?

Mr. Gacalatta: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am referring to the Nyambene Tea Scheme.

Mr. Angaine: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have said that as soon as the land has been consolidated—well within eighteen months' time—title deeds will be issued.

Mr. Mbogohi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that Kenya is heading towards being a socialist state where all land will belong to the state, would the Minister agree with me that no title deeds are needed at present?

Mr. Balala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, a stranger in the Speaker's Gallery, at least an officer, is recording something. I would like to know whether it is in order for anyone in the Speaker's Gallery to record anything?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, it is not. There is another matter of order: actually arising from Mr. Mbogohi's supplementary question. Although hon. Members are entitled, in presenting supplementary questions, to state essential facts on which the question is based or which explain the question, that does not allow hon. Members to introduce their own opinions or argument. Mr. Angaine, you need not answer Mr. Mbogohi's question unless you want to.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION No. 1062:

TITLE DEEDS FOR FARMERS IN NYAMBENE

Mr. Kargaria: Arising from the unsatisfactory reply from the Minister, I would like to raise this matter on an adjournment.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 1066

TEACHERS' TERMS OF SERVICE: IMPROVEMENT OF

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Education whether, in view of the fact that many teachers had been discouraged by the terms of service for African Teachers, the Minister was prepared to improve these terms of service, in order to attract teachers, who had joined commercial firms and other Government departments, back into the teaching profession.

The Minister for Education (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Within the financial limitations of the country, the Government will continue to do all it can to improve the terms of service for teachers and the last attempt to do just this was undertaken just over a year ago, on the basis of the Pratt Commission Report. These improved terms or service should enable the Ministry to attract more young people into the service and, perhaps, to attract a few more from companies, commercial firms and other Government departments than in the past. However, as the hon. Member will no doubt know, in the past, the teaching profession profited of our young people, and it was to be expected that when other openings became available, the teaching profession would act for some time as the recruiting ground for other occupations.

Mr. Godia: Arising from the Minister's reply, can the Minister tell the House how many of the teachers who left teaching due to poor terms of service, have been attracted back to the profession due to improved terms of service?

Mr. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the fact that there have been a number of teachers who have left other professions to join the teaching profession, is surely an indication that conditions in the teaching profession are getting better and better.

Mr. Umar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply that the teachers were satisfied with the Pratt Commission, is he aware that the teachers are still not satisfied and, therefore, the need for improvement in the terms and conditions of service of teachers still exists?

Mr. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Pratt Commission Report was to a certain extent, satisfactory but it was not completely so, and as I said, terms and conditions of service will continue to be reviewed.

Mr. Anyleni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that a person who has a General Certificate of Education is regarded as having School-leaving by other Government departments. In the Ministry of Education, he is regarded as being of Standard X and, as such, it removes a lot of teachers who have already taken a teaching course with only a General Certificate of Education, and they go to other departments instead of staying in his Ministry.

Mr. Koinange: I realize that.

Mr. Anyleni: Mr. Speaker, since the Minister realizes that, will he then give an assurance to this House that he is going to take steps to remedy the situation, so that a trained teacher with a General Certificate of Education is regarded as having School Certificate, in the same way as he is regarded by other Government departments?

Mr. Koinange: The question of teacher-training is in the scheme which we are anticipating will start in a very short time and, within two or three weeks, we are going to recruit teachers, and the answer to the hon. Member's question, depends on the number of teachers we will have after we have trained them.

Mr. Malsori-Itumbor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the seriousness of this question, is the Minister aware that teachers, all over the country, are running away from the teaching profession and are joining other departments? If so, will the Minister tell the House how soon he is going to complete the review on the terms of service of teachers?

Mr. Koinange: It is not quite true, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that all teachers are running away from teaching and going to other professions. That is not quite true. But, the fact remains, and I want to make this very clear, that, according to Professor Ominde's Report, over 6,318 are untrained teachers in this country and a little over 1,800 are those teachers from—

Mr. arap Soli: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for a Member to hang his legs like that?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If this House is willing to follow the practice of the House of Commons, it is quite in order. It is for hon. Members to decide how far they want to follow that particular practice.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from what the hon. Minister has said, he has referred this House to a report which has not been debated here. Is it in order that we should discuss anything here which has not yet been approved by this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Whenever a paper has been laid before the House, there can be reference to it by any hon. Member. Of course, any hon. Member, at any time, can move for a debate of a particular paper that has been laid also; but the Minister is in order. You were in the middle of answering, I think, Mr. Koinange.

Mr. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was saying that about 6,318 teachers are untrained teachers in this country. About 6,000 have passed the Kenya Preliminary Examination and have had

Mr. Sol: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell the House whether there is a full-time employee of the organization stationed at Bomet?

Mr. Bomett: Yes, Sir.

Mr. Sol: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if it is true that there is a full-time employee there, is it not true that the so-called post office is really a shop whereby a full-time shopkeeper is trying to do a part-time postal service?

Mr. Bomett: Mr. Speaker, Sir,—

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Sir, while the Assistant Minister is called Bomett, and the question applies to Bomet, would it not be appropriate for him to declare his interests?

Mr. Bomett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am arap Bomet, but this is Bomet.

Mr. Keitch: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister has not replied to the second part of the question, so could he reply to that part (b)?

Mr. Bomett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in answer to (b), I said that an official of the Post and Telecommunications will visit this area, and he will give us a report, but I would also be prepared to go to the area, if the Member is anxious.

Question No. 1038

RICE-HUSKING MACHINE FOR MIGORI

Mr. Okwanyo asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing, since Migori was the second rice-producing area in Kenya, whether the Minister would consider giving them a rice-shelling machine, as promised to Mwaa-Teabere?

The Minister for Co-operatives and Marketing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, as soon as the Minister of Co-operatives and Marketing is satisfied—

Hon. Members: Speak up.

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Members must know that I have been doing a lot of mileage and talking to the people in their Constituencies, so I should be excused.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as soon as the Ministry of Co-operatives and Marketing is satisfied that this area produces sufficient rice to warrant giving them a rice-shelling machine, that will be done.

Mr. Okwanyo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the number of bags that was produced last year from this area was in the nature of 60,000 bags, would the Minister, not consider this enough to give them a machine?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I am doing at the moment is setting up rice zones and considering each zone which should have a rice-shelling machine. If this area comes within the zone I am thinking of, I shall consider giving the people of that area a rice-shelling machine.

Mr. Mbogohi: Mr. Speaker, Sir would the Minister tell the House when he is giving out these shelling machine?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, Sir, actually I should correct that, I did not say giving, but I shall consider giving them a licence to have a rice-shelling machine.

Mr. Sono: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may we know from the Minister the zone in which he is planning to give a licence for such a machine?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the time is not opportune to say which zone as yet, because I am still trying to get facts from various experts including the Ministry of Agriculture.

Question No. 1054

TREASURERS' POSTS

Mr. Kall asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House—

(a) what had happened to eight African senior shadow posts for treasurer—who were sent to the Kenya Institute of Administration at Jengo School; and

(b) whether he was aware that only three remained with the Nairobi City Council and that even those three were planning to leave the council due to ill-treatment.

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Sagini): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply, I presume the hon. Member is referring to the eight trainee accountants who were sent by the Nairobi City Council to attend the first advanced level Government finance course at the Kenya Institute of Administration, with the object of sitting for the intermediate examination of the Institute of Municipal Treasurers and Accountants, in May 1964.

The position, Sir, with regards to these officers is as follows:

(a) After two terms at the Institute, three were withdrawn on the advice of the principal, that they were unsuitable for the course. All these officers subsequently resigned from service with the city council, and it is understood that one

[The Minister for Local Government] secured an appointment with the Kenya Co-operative Creameries.

(b) Of the remaining five, only two passed successfully the internal examination set by the Institute; and of these, one sat the intermediate examination of the Institute of Municipal Treasurers and was successful. The other officer will be sitting this examination in November 1965, by which time he will have acquired the necessary qualifying service.

(c) Apart from the three officers who resigned after being withdrawn from the course, all the remaining five officers are still employed by the Nairobi City Council, as follows: Accountant (Grade 2), two officers. Shadow cost accountant, one officer. Chief revenue officer, one officer. Accountant (Grade 4), one officer. Total: five.

It will be obvious from what I have just said that five, and not three, of these officers remain with the city council. I am not aware that any of them are planning to leave the council for any reason whatsoever. Two, in fact, are, at the moment, back at the Kenya Institute of Administration, undergoing further training sponsored by the City Council of Nairobi. It would therefore be inadvisable for these officers to leave the city council now, and to disrupt their full-time training.

Mr. Kall: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while agreeing with some of the points that the Minister mentioned in replying, I would still like to ask him if he is aware that these same jobs, which were to be occupied by these shadow officers have been advertised and expatriates are being asked to fill them?

Mr. Sagini: I am not aware of that, Sir. That sounds to be another question altogether.

Mr. Mallors: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from part (b) of the question, would the Minister not construe that, since the hon. Member is aware that three of the remaining officers are planning to leave, would the Minister not at least try to inquire and find out the truth about that part of the question?

Mr. Sagini: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I have replied to this very adequately. The City of Nairobi is not a forbidden place. If the officer wishes, he could consult the officers there, the Mayor and other people.

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Minister in order in referring the question to the Mayor of Nairobi, when the Mayor of Nairobi comes under his own Portfolio?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): This is a point which arises quite often. I have said before in this House: that we do expect a Minister to accept some responsibility to answer questions concerning any other authority in the country, even though it is, to some extent, autonomous. But it is always a question, in the end, of whether an answer is satisfactory, and better an answer like that from the Minister than none at all. The House is to judge whether they are satisfied or not; but I cannot say, ruling on a point of order, that the answer is out of order.

Question No. 1042

CITIZENSHIP APPLICATIONS FOR MINORS

Mr. Jamal asked the Minister for Home Affairs how many applications for citizenship had been submitted on behalf of minors since January 1964; and how many minors had been granted Kenya citizenship.

The Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Since January 1964, 270 applications have been submitted on behalf of minors. Out of the 270 applications, 174 have been registered, and ninety-six applications have been approved by me. As soon as the required fees have been paid, registration certificates will be issued.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, would the Minister tell us why there is so much delay in minors being registered as Kenya citizens?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there has been no delay except that there was an apparent delay due to the change of Ministers; therefore now the whole thing has been sorted out.

Mr. Jamal: Would the Minister agree with me that a period of twelve months can be referred to as a "delay," or not?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, I did point out that the number of application submitted was 270. All of them have been approved, except ninety-six who have been approved but not yet registered. As soon as they pay their fees, they will be registered. Therefore, there is no delay.

Mr. Mutit: Mr. Speaker, Sir, assuming that the people affected by this requirement are people who are supposed to register births, would the Minister tell us what percentage this number he has given us represents among those people who are affected by the registration of births in Kenya?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, we do not deal with assumptions, we deal with figures.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Attorney-General in order in replying— Could the hon. Member substantiate that the students who are locally educated are of less value than those who are educated overseas?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a matter for substantiation, it is matter of opinion.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I did say that we are encouraging students to be educated abroad as well as in this country. However, I did also say that they get a broader education overseas. For instance, if I were to ask you where Norfolk is you perhaps you would not know, but a person who has been educated in that part of the world would know exactly where Norfolk is.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Njonjo, unless you want to close very quickly, perhaps you would like to conclude your speech when we meet again.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Well, I will close now by saying one quick point.

The other point is the cost. Perhaps the hon. Member does not know that it costs more to educate a student in this country than it does to educate him overseas.

With those few words, I oppose.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade) It is time now for the interruption of business and the House is therefore adjourned until Tuesday, 27th April, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at thirty minutes past Twelve o'clock.

Tuesday, 27th April 1965

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair].

PRAYERS

PAPER LAID

The following Paper was laid on the Table:—
Sessional Paper No. 10 of 1963-65: African socialism and its Application to Planning in Kenya.

(By the Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya))

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, could I say that all Members will find a copy of this Sessional Paper in their pigeon-holes some time this afternoon, and they should start reading it right away.

NOTICE OF MOTION

SESSIONAL PAPER NO. 10 OF 1963-65: AFRICAN SOCIALISM

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT this House, having studied carefully the Sessional Paper No. 10 of 1963-65 entitled "African socialism and its Application to Planning in Kenya," notes and adopts the said Paper as the basis and guide for future development planning and policy in Kenya.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

MIGORI-MUHURU BAY: ALL-WEATHER ROAD

Mr. Okwango asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power if he was aware that the road from Migori to Muhuru Bay became impassable during the rainy season, despite the fact that all the gold, maize copper and rice from Migori was transported along this road.

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. G. Godana): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Yes, I am aware that this road like so many others is not fully an all-weather road and that traffic may suffer temporary dislocation for a few hours at a time during the period of the heavy rain. However, it should be appreciated that the Government cannot offer to make up all the roads in Kenya to all-weather roads, although of course, it is our ultimate aim that all roads should be improved progressively.

Mr. Okwango: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since this part of the country is now considered to be an area of mineral potential, will the Government consider making this road into an all-weather road?

Mr. G. Godana: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware at all whether this part of Kenya is recognized as an area of mineral potential or not.

Mr. Malsori-Iumbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is he aware that this particular road is a trunk road, connecting Kenya, Tanzania, Uganda and other places?

Mr. G. Godana: No, Sir, this is not a trunk road, it is only a secondary road.

Mr. Okwango: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Junior Minister aware that food, rice, copper, gold and many other minerals travel along this road?

Mr. G. Godana: Could the hon. Member repeat the question? I did not hear him.

Mr. Okwango: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Junior Minister aware that food, rice, copper and other minerals are carried on this road on their way to Lake Victoria?

Mr. G. Godana: Yes, Sir.

Question No. 2006

POSTAL AND TELEPHONE SERVICES: BOMET

Mr. Soi asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power:—

(a) Whether he was satisfied with the present postal and telephone communications in Bomet Constituency.

(b) If he was prepared to visit Bomet Division to learn of the problems on the spot.

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bomet): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The services provided by the East African Posts and Telecommunications Administration to the people of Bomet, are in keeping with the present demand for these services in the area, as indicated by the traffic being handled at the Bomet Post Office.

A survey of postal facilities in the Rift Valley Province is to be carried shortly by a postal official, who will decide on the spot whether it is necessary to up-grade any post office, and Bomet will be included in this survey.

[Mr. Ngala-Abok]

Motion really needs. The Motion is specific in that the countries that are now ready to offer scholarships for our boys to go and study in their countries should now divert their attention to the negotiation machinery with our Government to establish certain universities in East Africa. In this way, for example, we will not have an incident where a great number of students come from Russia back to this country, poor and needy as they are, to engage the attention of the Government, a Government that is receiving aid from overseas, and then claim they were being discriminated against, that they were indoctrinated and that the ladies of those countries where they were refused to dance with them. This is absolutely stupid. Personally, I have been studying in this country, Kenya, but I do not want to claim that I know everything about these countries abroad. I know a little about them in order to enable me to represent my people in this Parliament. The position is that even in the schools here, you find that you are studying with ladies just a few yards from you. The ladies are confined to their compound and if in any circumstance you ask a lady to have a dance with you she refuses. You, as boys, hold a dance in your own hall—it is happening in this country. The boys hold a dance in this hall and very near to that hall the ladies are holding another dance. Unless the principals of both these organizations accept that they can dance together you will never see it done. The position is that you can never do certain things when you like. You have to be a Member of Parliament in order to drive a car. That is why today we want to be very, very progressive.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is a bit irrelevant now.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, in this Parliament of ours much as we like it, there is a feeling that certain people would favour certain things while others think differently. This is not because they are not completely neutral and non-aligned and do not have a policy which our country can follow. That is why some people want to say that some claim they do not like this ideology and some do not like the other. This is what is actually destroying us and this is definitely true. If there is a university graduate from the United States and another from Russia this Parliament will never agree to them on the basis that these students will not agree on the economic policy. These people cannot agree because they were indoctrinated differently. A person studying in the University of East Africa at Nairobi will not have the same ideas as the person studying in Dar es Salaam because in each case there is a different way of life. If we go on in this way it will be difficult for me to teach so many principles because I believe in so many different things. It is just like doing mathematics. Mr. Speaker there is one approach to get an answer whereas some other person will get another answer. One person will say this is my method of getting it and the other will say that the other is the method and the better method at that.

So, we must have a syllabus laid down by our African educationists and this must be followed by the East African teachers so that the indoctrination will be East African. The socialism will be East African and it shall not, at any time, be said that because the student was in the United States the socialism he brings is different, it is a form of capitalism. We want to steer clear of these sort of things and excuses.

So, what the Member for Butere means is that the Government should find some means of avoiding any continuous trouble. Continuous trouble is coming but we must try to avoid it. Some people in this Parliament have toured the Eastern countries and so they know very little about the Western countries. They only know there is a difference between the Eastern and Western countries but they know more about the countries where they have been indoctrinated. There is the best in the East and in the West and we must choose what is best from each place, something that will do no harm to us. We must not think that the countries of the East only have the better things because the people of the United States also feel that they can reach the moon. So we must choose the best from each and adopt this in our system of education. We must have a policy of non-alignment and we must stick to that. We want African socialism and we must carry this out in practical terms.

I would like very strongly to support this Motion with the very superficial arguments that I have put forward because I do not wish to go into great details. These are African students, they practise our African socialism in the simple language in which we speak. I only wish to pin down the idea that instead of getting scholarships for which Members have campaigned during their campaigns, but I have no money and nothing to offer scholarships with and so no one will think of me along those lines. Nobody will say that I have sent him abroad because I have nothing to do with it. I can only help my people with the money I have in my pocket, the money which I get from working hard in Parliament.

[Mr. Ngala-Abok]

That being the case, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not wish the Government to bring an amendment to this Motion because an amendment has already been made in East Africa. Our Government should take the lead to adopt the policy of expending the money to establish universities. Universities also differ, but we do not want to be too general. If it is a question of lack of engineers, or lawyers, we want to establish universities to get these kind of people. We want to control the syllabus. We know that that is the most important thing because we will be supervising the teaching. I know some people will say that the teaching at the Lumumba Institute can be supervised; that is good because this is our country. So there is no reason why the supervision should be from outside. We would like every type of education to be taken into account for the good of our country and we must have all types of education right here.

Mr. Speaker, I wish to support this Motion and I hope the Government is not going to amend it.

(Question proposed)

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, I only wish to take a few minutes to comment on this Motion.

Mr. hon. Member: Are you replying on behalf of Government?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): No, Sir, I am not replying on behalf of Government since the Assistant-Minister for Education is here and he can do so.

In my own submission I think the Motion, Mr. Speaker, is misconceived. First of all the Mover—I am glad to say that, of course, the hon. Member who seconded the Motion said he was not serious, he did not have serious views to put, and I suppose that—

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, that was my diplomacy. Is it in order for the Attorney-General to misconstrue what I said?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that he was referring to your own admission that your arguments were superficial.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, if my reasons are superficial I wish them to be so. Does it mean that I am taking the matter lightly?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You cannot complain of his interpretation of what you said, Mr. Ngala-Abok.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): If my interpretation, of course, is wrong, Mr. Speaker, I do not want to press the point. But the hon. Member did use the word "superficial" and my understanding of the word "superficial" means exactly what he said and the Member did not put a serious case on the Motion.

Mr. Speaker, as I was saying, the Motion itself is misconceived because the Mover says that the countries which have been giving help to our country by helping our students to go overseas are now required by this Motion to devote their funds to the building of universities in East Africa. Of course, I again say here that when the scholarships started in this country—the hon. Mover who introduced the Motion might perhaps realize this was before his time—hon. Members might remember most of the scholarships which were given to students were given by private individuals. They offer these scholarships to the countries either to an individual student or to a group of individuals. You cannot, Sir, I submit, dictate to the person who is offering the scholarships how the money is going to be spent.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think I am being misrepresented, because it must be borne in mind that I am talking of Government, I am not talking of individuals. There are scholarships from various countries. I am a member of the Selection Board for various countries from which these scholarships come.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The Motion itself refers to help from other countries.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, I was merely developing my case and if the hon. Member for Butere—I am developing my own case and I hope I can put it as strong a case as I can against this Motion.

First of all, Mr. Speaker, the system we have today of offering scholarships—rather the system we have on education—is that we have a system in this country and some other students go overseas for education. I submit that the two systems are not mutually exclusive. We would like to encourage some of our students to go overseas and some others to be educated in this country. I feel that those who are educated overseas do perhaps broaden their outlook more, they reason better, and perhaps they tend to be more broad-minded and not local. Perhaps they do not understand us as the hon. Member said he was using Butere idioms which some of us do not understand.

[Mr. Shikuku] independent and that we could also provide education or give scholarships to other Europeans or other people, to come and study here.

Another reason, Mr. Speaker, why instead of having scholarships given to our students, we would prefer to have universities built here, instead of students going to Britain, for medicine or a degree after obtaining their school certificate is an economical one. It means that the student will have to be there for two years, plus three years to take his degree which will come to, roughly, five years. If you look into the matter you will see that the amount of money spent on one student in Britain, for example, taking into account his tuition, board and lodging, you will find that the amount spent in five years would, locally, educate at least two more students here. Therefore, I am of the opinion, Sir, that if we could approach these countries which have so generously given us scholarships and ask them to give us that amount for ten students, because sometimes they take twenty, thirty or forty, if we had that amount we could, in East Africa, build more universities which would be able to take more students and be able to produce more people as graduates. I think this is much better than having a few people going overseas and staying there and having foreign Governments paying so much on only a few students.

Also, Mr. Speaker, you find that when these students who go overseas, have completed their studies, after which they are easily attracted by the amount of salary which is offered to them in those places, and after qualifying you find that they prefer staying in those countries and working there rather than coming back, while some of us here are shouting that we would like to have Africanization, only to find that we do not have the people. We have been told in this Parliament time and again that we are waiting for personnel to come and take over or to Africanize certain high Governmental posts. I feel, Mr. Speaker, that it is not only that we prefer to have our students studying in this country, but I feel that we if we had this money we would be able to produce many more people with graduate education than we are doing at the moment by having a few people on whom those Governments who give us scholarship are spending so much. I would prefer instead to suggest, Mr. Speaker, that those countries which are willing and would like to go ahead in trying to provide us with university education, if they could be kind enough, should give us that money and also give us teachers, because we do not have teachers, to come and teach our children here in our own environment so that they obtain a university education, at the same time learning what we are. Today when we have these chaps going overseas and they come back, they think quite differently. Some of them come back and there is some trouble now which is not manifest, at yet, but we find someone who went to New York comes back with New York ideas; and someone who went to Moscow comes back with Moscow ideas. You find some of them think that the American way of living is the best way and some think that the Russian way of living is the best way.

We have confusion here and this is because when some of these students leave this country when they are very young, some may be seventeen and they come back as young men—of course, in my case I can never be brainwashed—and when they go to these countries they sometimes are young men who have accustomed themselves to that high life and when they come back they usually are a little disappointed to find that the life here is completely different from the one they have been used to. I think if we could educate these people in our own environment and have these teachers here, they would learn our own problems. I would prefer, Mr. Speaker, for them to go for post-graduate courses abroad. Let us say that someone has graduated as a medical student and he wants to go and specialize in, for example, eye troubles, like Dr. Waiyaki, who has had eyes, and we still have to get more people, and then we could have a specialist in eye problems who would come and help probably to change the doctor's spectacles if they are getting out of order. If they could go abroad for post-graduate courses to specialize in some profession and come back, at that age they will have learned the life in Kenya, they will have been educated in the environment of Kenya; if a person goes to Britain, to Moscow or to any other part of the world, he will go with the sole idea of specializing in that particular profession and come back to help his country.

Another issue, Mr. Speaker, is this. You will realize that most of the students who go out of the country are from families that are well-to-do or who are known to some of the big dignitaries in the country, and the result is that most of these chaps who have been going—and I am glad today that the Government has corrected the system—have been known to big men and they are not necessarily the brightest brains we have in the country but because they happen to be known to some of the big guns of the country or their parents are well-to-do and can send them overseas. I feel this is a little unfair because I know some of the bright brains usually come from poor families. These poor families are very

[Mr. Shikuku] good at producing bright brains and these poor families, if this system is pursued, do not have the chance of having their children going overseas and thereby coming back to help the country. I think the poor brains and the poor men—

The Assistant Minister for Health and Housing (Mr. Moss): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, can the hon. Member substantiate or prove that city children born in poor families are the brainy ones?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not know whether you can reasonably require substantiation of a statement of that kind.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I would not mind substantiating but it was just a general remark. It is true that some of the great men we have had in the country have come from poor families. I was at school with some of the rich men's children and they never beat me in the class. I am from a poor family, but they never beat me. If it is a question of substantiation, I think I have substantiated. I beat them in class.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that there are so many poor men and women in this country—and the fact that you are poor does not mean you cannot produce children—and there are more poor men than rich men, I am of the opinion that if we insisted on this and Members of Parliament took this into account and tried to persuade those countries which are offering us scholarships to build more universities in this country, this would help those poor men's children who are unable to get access to overseas education to be taken into the East African universities at less cost, so that we can produce more brains to help this country and who can later on go for post-graduate courses abroad.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not wish to labour this issue very much because I am of the opinion that the Motion as it is quite straightforward, and I do not think that the Government would have any problem in accepting this and taking the initiative in getting in touch with all the countries concerned, to try and help us to build our own universities here so that we can also have educational exchanges with those countries, because if we do not have enough vacancies in our own universities, we cannot actually expect to receive more students from overseas countries to come and learn, so as to promote this policy of educational exchange.

Mr. Speaker, I have travelled quite widely and have been almost round the world. I have come across some of the students who—An hon.

Member is asking me how widely I have travelled. I have been to various parts of Europe and the Scandinavian countries, and so forth, and I have come across students in those areas who come from Kenya and who are suffering hardship which sometimes arises from the fact that the students, just because they believed that by going overseas one would get a better education, left this country unaided and found themselves in trouble in those areas. This sort of inferiority complex, Mr. Speaker, must be eliminated and the only way of eliminating it is to try and get in touch again with all those countries and let them give us teachers, give us the money to build the universities here and the equipment so that we can produce more students with university education and also have the children from those various countries which would be willing to give us this money and teachers to come to our own country, so that they can learn the way we live, the way we behave and also go back with a good or bad impression of what Kenya does or intends to do. We also can send our children to their countries for post-graduate education because I know we do not have the facilities here for post-graduate work.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to take most of the time of the Members here and I beg to move.

Mr. Ngala-Abook: Mr. Speaker, Sir, before I go to the real substance of my reasons for seconding this Motion, I would like to congratulate all those countries that have tried to help us in the past in a small way or in a big way, according to what each country considers to be the most important help they have given to this country. I know very well that we have had aid from the United States for building certain schools in this country. We have had some help from Great Britain in different forms, and because this country was being administered by Great Britain it was only reasonable that we should be helped in this way. We also know that, at the moment we have had in our country here a school known as the Lumumba Institute where a greater contribution has come from the Eastern world, although certain African countries have also helped in bringing about this school. This must be appreciated before the Government is called upon to see sense in accepting this very specific, modern and forward-looking Motion moved by the hon. Member for Butere.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank these countries for the help they have given in different ways, and which we appreciate it very much. I also would like to dispel any confusion that is in the mind of the Government as to what this [Mr. Ngala] the time is even overdue. If it is a question of sending a few girls to be trained in Dar es Salaam so that they can see what is going on in Dar es Salaam, surely three or six months is enough for this? We have so many educated girls in the street with no work. They can be taken there for training immediately and I believe the time can come in six months' time if the Government is determined.

I very much appreciate what the present HANSARD staff is doing and they have done, and are still doing, a very valuable job of work, but even the same girls can be taken to Dar es Salaam for training, the same girls.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): They are not training them in Swahili.

Mr. Ngala: I am mentioning Dar es Salaam because Daf es Salaam has taken the initiative and we can ask them to train our girls. If there is any doubt of where they could be trained, we are prepared to accept your girls in Mombasa and train them in Swahili.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Where?

Mr. Ngala: In our Coast Province Secretariat School we can train them. Mr. Speaker, Sir, therefore I thought the Minister genuinely meant that when the time comes we shall not wait for somebody—as the hon. Mr. Kamau says—who will tell us that, the time comes. I hope the Minister will take it as his sole responsibility to say, "Now the time has come, because I have taken the initiative of training the staff," and that training should be started immediately. Immediately, so that we can go about and fix the time. We do not want this to be used as one of the diplomatic language "terms" just to delay this necessary thing.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the second point is this question of hastening the date. That is very different from fixing the date, obviously, but I can understand the Government's responsibility in "terms". I think the date can only be hastened if training starts. Some Members say they should first go to the University and get a degree in Swahili and then come here. Who told you that you must have a degree to be a Member of Parliament, or have to learn any language? Even in English, how many of us around here have a degree in English? How many? None in the House today. Nobody has a degree, no Member has a degree in English, specifically. There is no Member, Mr. Speaker, in the House with a degree in English as such.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I have

Mr. Ngala: He has a degree in law, not in English.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): In English.

Mr. Ngala: I am talking of elected Members. Mr. Speaker, not a nominated Member.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Othob Odongo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether it would be in order to correct the hon. Member. I do not know whether he is referring to my speech or somebody else's speech, because I did not say anything like that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not know either. If you do not know which one he was referring to, you had better leave him alone.

Mr. Ngala: I am happy, Mr. Speaker, in being left alone in this. Some Members have argued that there is no standard Swahili. This has been put right by the Assistant Minister for Education who is responsible for this language and many other subjects, and I hope his assurance will be taken. I have appreciated very much the speech given by the hon. Mr. Kibaki who has said that we must free ourselves from the clutches of a foreign language if we can do so. This Motion is intended to serve us in that, to make us free to express ourselves and our personalities as an African Parliament in our own language. This is the purpose of the Motion. If we say that the Members must first learn the language, the Members can start learning it today. The Member for Majoo-Basis is probably not serious when he says that there must be specific languages written in Swahili. Now we do not have to read these scientific books before we come here, even the ones written in English. We do not have to read them as Members before we come here. We come here to respect the needs of our voters. We do not come here to read what other people, Shakespeare, said in Great Britain. No. We come here to say what the needs are for Homa Bay, as regards dispensaries and so on. Can you read this in Swahili?

I think it is completely misleading the country when we say the Members have to learn it first and books have to be written. What books do you need to write first? Some people say, "Swahili is different, you have the word 'Na juu' and the word 'Na jahumu.'" Now this is a reduction of gross ignorance. "Na juu" is to know, "Na jahumu" is to understand.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, Swahili is rich in words and we must use the richness in this [Mr. Ngala] in expressing ourselves in this Parliament, not even the legal man will have any trouble, nor a scientist, nor a philosopher will have any trouble. Therefore the time has come now and Government must hasten the training. I am not convinced that it is not possible. In addition to this, Swahili must be used by all Members in this House.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

(Question of the Motion as amended put and agreed to)

Resolved accordingly:

THAT in view of the fact that Swahili is the indigenous common African language in Kenya, the Government to introduce a Bill for amendment of the Constitution, when the time comes, to adopt Swahili as one of the languages for this house and to hasten the date upon which the use of Swahili would commence in the National Assembly.

MOTION

FOREIGN AID: FUNDS TO BUILD UNIVERSITIES IN EAST AFRICA

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before calling upon Mr. Shikuku to move this Motion, I would like to point out that there is a slight variation between the Motion on the Order Paper and the Motion of which Mr. Shikuku gave notice: that is, the last words "in Kenya" have been altered now to read "in East Africa". That amendment was made with my consent.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to move the following Motion:—

THAT this House urges the Government to negotiate those countries which have so generously assisted in educational programmes by making available scholarships for Kenya youths at their universities and have provided transport for the purpose, to devote their funds instead to the building of universities in East Africa.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, having had a close study of the present standard of education in these three territories, and, if I may say so, in Kenya particularly, I have come to realize we are likely to stay in the same position as we are, for a long time; namely, having very few graduates in this country because of the present system. I do not at any rate, Mr. Speaker, wish to imply that I am against overseas scholarships, but what I am trying to do here is to try and find ways and means whereby we would be able to produce more graduates in our own country and, at the same time, keeping in mind that education outside the country is also necessary and sometimes very advantageous. But let us not be moved so much by emotions or by an inferiority complex. You find that in the past some of our students have gone overseas not because they felt they were going for higher education there and the educational facilities were much, much better than those in the country, but because they wanted to be able to say afterwards that they had studied overseas and they would be able to tell you, "I was in the United States of America, I was in Moscow, I was in Britain or I was in India." This has been the trend of thinking and you find that there are cases, Mr. Speaker, during the election that some of the hon. Members stood up and addressed the public saying that, "you must vote for me because I have a lot of knowledge because I have been overseas. I was in Moscow, I was in Britain, etc." This is more or less to play on the ignorance of the masses in the country and try to blackmail them into thinking that these people who have been overseas are more intelligent than the people in the country. This is one of the things we must remove from the minds of our young women and men in this country. The fact that we were not independent at that time and that we did not study overseas does not mean that we were all that ignorant, and the fact that the people who governed us happened to come from outside this country does not mean that they were wiser than us, because if they were they would not be out of the country now, we would not be in power today and this is the time, Mr. Speaker—

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): What sort of reasoning is that?

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I hear the Attorney-General asking "What sort of reasoning is that?" If he cannot see that reasoning, then it is just too bad. This is the Butere style of reasoning.

One of the points Mr. Speaker, I would like to raise here, is to try and clear up that inferiority complex which now still dominates our youth here. They must understand that we want education for them and that education is not only obtainable outside this country, we have as good education as those outside the country—we have our independence just as those countries are independent—and we could also do that, Mr. Speaker, by inviting some of the students from the United States, Britain, Moscow, or any part of the world to come and study here, so that our youth here could realize that we are been done is to say that we require time to prepare ourselves for the introduction of Swahili.

Let me also add, Mr. Speaker, that one of the reasons I am supporting the introduction of Swahili here is that it would enable us—and I am sure most Members here would agree—when we have new elections for this nation and we should be able to have some of the very wise old men of this country who cannot speak English through no fault of their own, but who have a tremendous amount of wisdom to contribute here and who we know are firmly committed to the integrity of this nation and will not be easily moved by new borrowed slogans from the external world. These old people, these elders of the nation, ought to have a chance, Mr. Speaker, to participate in the deliberations of the National Assembly.

An additional reason, Mr. Speaker, why I support this amendment is that in this country there has—as one hon. Member did say, my hon. friend from Karachuonyo—I think he has gone out—been a tendency in this country to have too much pride, too much arrogance to be associated with foreign ideas, foreign inventions, including foreign languages. Indeed, we shall continue to have this foreign orientation in our culture so long as we do not have a language, local indigenous, which ranks at least as high as any of the international languages which we would like to teach in our own schools. I would like to approach this problem in that manner, that we are not exclusive but at the same time we would like to re-establish the culture of this nation, we would like to re-establish the respect of the language. This is where the foreigners come in, because as it is now it is in the attitude of the immigrant communities of this country, particularly including those who today are very loud in their daily protestations that they are committed to this nation and want to identify themselves with Africans. But you will find, Mr. Speaker, they have the most derogatory approach or attitude towards Swahili. They in fact do not even attempt to learn it, yet I know that immigrants who move from one nation to another in the Western world or the Eastern world, as soon as they have settled in their new country, make every effort to speak those languages. You find, for instance, Italians migrate to America, or Italians migrate to Germany. Right now, in fact you have more than a million Italians in Germany, but within three months of their being there—because they recognize the dignity of Germany and the language of Germany as the language of the Germans, and because they want to live there and be accepted, they make every effort to learn that language—they speak it fluently, because they make a deliberate conscious effort. But in this country, because of our colonial history of domination, particularly cultural domination, it has been the attitude of mind of the immigrant communities that Swahili is an inferior language, and with it, of course, they include all the African cultural associations of indigenous languages as being inferior. So this is a most important reason why we must introduce Swahili, not just here, but throughout the nation.

This leads me to the final point I want to make, Mr. Speaker, that it is not enough for us to pass the Motion here. It is going to be a conscious effort on the part of everyone, including the Members of this House, to make Swahili the medium through which they themselves want to express themselves. We are not going to deceive ourselves because we know many Members who themselves may have accepted the cultural domination of foreign languages and who we know think that it is a matter of pride to speak in English even to a village audience. I have myself witnessed it.

Mr. Speaker, it must therefore start with the Members of this House—if they really want it that Swahili should become the proud language of this nation—and when they go to speak at any functions they themselves should begin to speak in Swahili. In this matter we have had effective leadership from the Father of the Nation who on so many formal occasions insists on speaking in Swahili, and if there is need to translate for a minority of people to understand it, then there is translation.

So, Mr. Speaker, let us not have the usual words from the Members here and then forget them as soon as they go home. Let them make a conscious effort to liberate themselves culturally from the domination of foreign languages.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I support the amendment very much.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is nearly time for the Mover to reply. Anyone who speaks now can speak generally on the whole question.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okedogodo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would have liked to have spoken on this amendment for a little while, but in this very little time, I guess I will have to go a little faster. I think that the points have been made very ably both by the Mover and also the Mover of the amendment to the Motion. This is a continuation of what we have heard recently, as the Mover of the amendment made clear, and what our President has said during the time of independence and also during the time of getting the Republic status. Recently our President did say something also to us again as Members of Parliament when we had a little problem some time back with regard to foreign ideologies. The President did say something on this. He said that the most important thing was to find out who you were and what you wanted and what kind of people were we. I think this is a point which was made very clear and ably explained by the Mover of the Motion. First of all, that the people of Kenya should identify themselves and know themselves and know who they are and their culture and what they want. When this is done then we can always look at foreign ideas with courage and with discrimination, taking what we want and leaving out what we do not want.

On these points, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think Swahili plays a very important part because, being a language, and language being very important to culture, this language is something which arises from the cultural environment of the people; how they live, what they value and the things they say are generally reflected in the language which the people speak. In this case, Swahili would play a very important role. It does play a very important part in helping us identify ourselves as people of Kenya and know our faults so that we will be prepared to face new ideas which come from different parts of the world.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will say that in this case we are very likely to have Swahili. As was pointed out by my colleague, Mr. Omolo Agar, Swahili is not spoken by one particular tribe. Therefore by introducing it, no one can complain that a certain tribe is being given an advantage.

This is very good and this is a problem which other parts of Africa have. As Mr. Omolo Agar said, they have it in India; in West Africa they have the problem of having no common language, except in some parts they have what they call "pidgin English" which did not develop in this part of Africa. They have big languages like Hausa, for instance, in Nigeria, but this is spoken by one people and therefore it is very difficult to make it general. We are at an advantage to have Swahili, which we have to develop.

Now, I support the amendment because, as has been ably pointed out, we need time to learn Swahili and to speak it well. People must know that in order to think clearly they must be able to speak a language well, because to express your thoughts, you have to express them in language, and if we are going to express our thoughts clearly in this Parliament and in this country, we must learn the language.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I would say that the East African University must create a chair or establish a faculty for Swahili so that a person can take B.A. honours in Swahili, up to the M.A. degree in Swahili, up to Ph.D. in Swahili, or other African languages. This is being done in America, is being done in England. There is no reason why it should not be done here, and this would encourage people to study the language and know it.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do support the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time for the Mover to reply so we must dispose of the amendment.

(Question of the first part of the amendment, that the words to be left out be left out put and agreed to)

(Question of the second part of the amendment, that the words to be inserted in place thereof be inserted, proposed put and agreed to)

(Question of the Motion as amended proposed)

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, Sir, I would like to seek your guidance to know, as the Motion has now been amended and accepted, whether, as the timing is now left, when the time comes who shall tell the House or the public that the time has come now to use the language.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, first I would like to express my gratitude for the interests that the Members of the House have taken in this Motion, and also, particularly, to thank the Assistant Minister responsible for this Motion who has expressed the amendment in a manner which I understood. I would like to say that I accept the amendment of the Government. In accepting the amendment of the Government, I would like to make two or three points very clear. First, the Government says, "when the time comes". Now I hope that the Government, because using tactic on the part of the Government, because I believe strongly that the time has already come,

[The Assistant Minister for Education] various localities in the standard of Swahili where people speak in their own mother dialects.

I do not know who is the Minister who is going to reply on this Motion but I believe it is very important that perhaps a date should be mentioned when we shall start Swahili here in this House so that the people around the country will know and understand what we say.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I support the Motion.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office (Dr. Waiyaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am speaking on behalf of Government in this Motion and I welcome very much the sentiments expressed by the various Members of the House. I have the feeling that the majority of the Members present favour the introduction of Swahili as a language of this House. As you will remember, the President of the Republic when he spoke from the Chair for the first Parliament of the Republic of Kenya, promised that Swahili would one day become the national language. He did also go further and for a time spoke in Swahili. So there is no question here now of the Government deciding whether or not Swahili will become a national language. The President of the Republic decided for us and we are committed to accept Swahili as the national language.

What is more, our people outside would prefer as a matter of national pride that we speak Swahili in this and the other Chamber. The Government recognizes that Swahili is the lingua franca for Kenya and, indeed, for East Africa. We recognize that it is a means of communication between the various tribes of the whole of East Africa, a part of Central Africa, the Eastern Congo and, for that matter, even Katanga. We notice that even when that notorious man called Tshombe came here we were able to communicate through the medium of Swahili, rather than in French because then, of course, we would not have known what he was talking about.

So, there is no question about the importance of this language. It stands as a unifying force here in Kenya. The real reason we feel a nation in this country is, basically, because we can communicate with one another quite easily outside; I am not speaking very much about those people who can speak English, I am talking about those people who cannot.

The hon. Member for Majengo-Bassi had to have an interpreter to translate from Kisii Swahili which I imagine would be a tricky situation for any man.

We do feel there is a form of Swahili which we could call more or less standard and in Tanzania they have done a lot of work to try and standardize the form of Swahili spoken.

We, here, in Kenya are engaged in a programme of teaching Swahili in schools and what is required is more time for the increasing of this programme throughout the schools and also for standardizing it. You will never see a day—I do not believe—when everybody in Kenya will speak the same vernaculars in the villages.

In England there is such a dialect as Cockney, there is such a language also in Scotland, and there is also that brogue which you have in Ireland, and everybody knows how they all speak. They all speak English, but everybody knows that there is a standardized form of England. I am not saying that the standardized form is the Cambridge or the Oxford form, but I am saying that there is something which you could call English as spoken by an Irishman, and down the British Isles. Now that is the kind of thing which we would like to see here. We would like to see Swahili accepted in a standard form, so that those who come from Kenya will continue to speak Swahili in their own areas, but I have never heard about this which the hon. Mr. Ngala spoke about, but I have heard of it in Britain. I welcome this new language, the Misihehenda language, but I do not welcome it in this House. Although the hon. Mr. Ngala, the Mover of this Motion, promises that he is going to speak standard Swahili here, he must allow us then to educate ourselves to the new form. We acknowledge the fact that Swahili is used even between the African people and the immigrant community. We have also heard of the Kijichen Swahili, you know that Swahili one speaks with an English accent, or with a dialect, now that type of Swahili we hope will remain in the kitchen. So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we cannot deny that we want this, but the Members here must recognize the practical difficulties involved.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, only the other day we had one problem where a certain palatynist went away to be married and we were completely bogged down, and the Senate had to adjourn. Now we might easily be bogged down again if we introduce Swahili in a hurry, because I do not think that any of the girls, with all due respects, up there can record in Swahili as it is needed, and it is only fair that we should give them sufficient time to become educated in Swahili. This does not mean that they are not educated as it is, but to learn Swahili in the manner that they can use it for their palatynist duties. Now that is one point which explains the

[The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office] difficulties. We also need time for the evaluation of the Swahili programme which the Ministry of Education has set up.

We understood from the Minister that he is finding it difficult to get Swahili teachers of the correct type and there was even a suggestion in this House, that people should be brought from Tanzania to teach in the Kenya schools. I do not have any objection to teachers coming from anywhere provided that they know and can teach the form of Swahili which the Minister for Education calls standard.

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, by and large I am sure the Members will recognize the practical implications of introducing Swahili as a medium of communication in this House. But I promise that we will introduce Swahili as soon it is technical to introduce it in a form that we like.

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to propose, with your permission, to amend this Motion so that it will now read:

"In view of the fact that Swahili is the indigenous common African language in Kenya, this House urges the Government to introduce, a Bill for the amendment of the Constitution when the time comes to adopt Swahili as one of the languages for this House and to hasten a date on which the use of Swahili would commence in the National Assembly."

In that form, Mr. Speaker Sir, the Government would be more than glad to accept the Motion. I beg to move.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Who is going to second?

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, is it in order for the hon. Members to stand up and each of them shout that he is going to second?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is common, on moving a Motion for the Mover to choose his second. In that case we respect his choice; but an amendment it is not so common to choose his second, and in that case I choose the first man who said that he was going to second, and it was Mr. Kibiki.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okelo-Otongo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is not with any criticism of you, but you are ruled, some time ago, that the Mover of the Motion generally arranges with the second and in this case I have asked my colleague here outside and I had the understanding that I was going to be second, and that is why I seconded.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I must say that I do not as a rule accept any formal arrangement for seconding an amendment, unless I am warned in advance.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kibiki): This has been very embarrassing indeed and for the first time I agree with the Member for Butere. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did not realize myself that there had been an arrangement for the seconding of the Motion, but it just sounded to me, as it was put forward, that it was a reasonable amendment and I thought that I would speak on the amendment so I apologize if I have inconvenienced anybody.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the reasons for the amendment have been amply put forward by the Assistant Minister in the Vice-President's Office. What I would like to add is only one note of warning because some Members here have tended to speak in the usual nationalist sentiment that they wanted Swahili introduced into the National Assembly trying to promote our own nationalism. This Mr. Speaker, Sir, is one good fundamental reason, but I am one of those people who insist that every nation, which wants to be progressive cannot afford to adopt reactionary nationalism. We want Swahili, as my hon. friend has said in moving the amendment, we want this because it has been the main unifying factor in this country, and therefore we want to promote it even further. We want therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that there should be a common language in which we can all communicate, a common language which will be used by every layman. A common language which every child in this country ought to speak from the time it starts to speak, and does not have to be taught in schools, and because that will be the moment when the people of this country will be as one from the moment they begin to speak. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is why we want Swahili. But, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if one has to use Swahili, other languages are absolutely necessary in todays age, no country, anywhere, can afford to promote merely one language; the tendency today in the old world is for the nations to teach their citizens more than four languages.

Therefore, I believe the Member who did move in good faith this Motion and who finds that he is supported by the Government, accepts that we would like to be properly prepared for the introduction of Swahili to the National Assembly. I do believe, Mr. Speaker, that he would not find much difficulty in accepting the amendment because his Motion is not rejected. What has Swahili and wants to speak to me in English. If Government wants to support this Motion it must be realistic. To be realistic Government must now say that in our schools, from Standard I onwards, our children must be taught Swahili as one of the compulsory languages. There is no point in Members coming to this House to support the English medium and at the same time demand that Swahili should be used in this House. After all, Mr. Speaker, Members who are elected to this House are people who have some education. So, if Government intends to support this Motion it must say that we must have about fifteen years, that it will start from about 1966 to teach Swahili in schools, from Standard I upwards. The potential members who will later be Members of this House will have about twelve years to attend secondary education. This will require about twelve years in secondary education but Sir, there is no point in anybody saying that in schools Swahili should be left aside and when we come to this House we insist on speaking Swahili.

[Mr. Anyieni]

Mr. Speaker, some of the hon. Members are of the opinion that we should use Swahili in this House, like my hon. friend, Mr. Agar who is in favour of it. How many Jaluo can speak Swahili? If you listen to a Jaluo speak Swahili you will find that he speaks it the Jaluo way. If you listen to a Kikuyu speak Swahili you will find that he speaks it the Kikuyu way. We do not want that here. In Tanzania, for example, Sir, the people use Swahili even in the Parliament but you will find there that the father and mother of a child come from the same tribe and at home they speak Swahili. You can go anywhere in Tanzania and you will find that even women who have no education understand Swahili. They teach their children Swahili.

Mr. Speaker, the Member who moved this Motion does not speak the Swahili of his people. The people of Mombasa, for example, speak very bad Swahili. They say nil, nita meaning nchi and nchia. That is not the kind of Swahili we want to hear in this Parliament. We must have a standard of Swahili before we can allow our Parliament to speak Swahili. We do not want some Members speaking Kikuyu Swahili, others speaking Jaluo Swahili, we must have a Swahili of a certain standard so that everybody will understand it.

I would have liked to support this Motion and I would have wished that the hon. Member who moved this Motion would have moved instead of us having the medium of English in schools we should have Swahili so that this language would be taught in all schools, so that all the Members who come to this House will be able to speak according to a proper standard of Swahili. I can hear a certain Member here saying "honnese" but there is one thing we should remember. We must be honest with ourselves. I attended a meeting near Kisumu in Swahili quite recently, but what was interesting was that I had to obtain the services of a Jaluo to translate my Swahili to Jaluo Swahili. There is no standard Swahili which we can use. So, if we say that we are going to have Swahili in this House, the hon. Agar must first of all say that Swahili must be taught at schools for a start. When we have a certain standard of Swahili then we can say that we will come here and speak Swahili. Otherwise, if I come here and speak in my own Swahili the people will think that I am saying one thing while I am saying quite another thing.

The other reason why Swahili should not be introduced in this House is this. The reason why we have a problem in our country today is because many people do not want to read. When we are told of American capitalism they do not understand that and that is because they do not want to read. When we are told of communism they do not understand even that because they receive this information from other people. Have we any books in Swahili with which to educate our people? Is this House going to have people who do not understand anything that goes on in the world, people who understand only what goes on in Nairobi? Is Kenya an island? How many books have we in Swahili on science, economy and so on? We must have these books written in Swahili so that the people will understand what they mean and the people will not be regarded as uneducated because they cannot speak Swahili.

The hon. Mr. Agar said that people regard a person who cannot speak English as an ignorant person. That is true, because the medium of knowledge is English. This is not Anyieni's choice, it is something we have attained from the colonial days. Most of the books we have today, the examinations we have to pass are all in English. If all the papers in schools are written in Swahili then we shall be able to support such a Motion. But there is no use in asking for it right now. Let me give you an example. My mother goes to sell maize to, maybe, Konchellah's mother. My mother speaks the Kisii Swahili and Konchellah's mother speaks Masai Swahili. They do not understand each other except by using their fingers in explanation. That is not the way we want to do things in Parliament. This will lead to confusion. If the hon. Member who moved this Motion thinks that we are going to use the Swahili which is refused he is wrong. He does not use the Swahili of Mombasa. In Mombasa they do not speak the Swahili any hon. Member speaks. The hon. Member speaks some form of perverted Swahili and I think that is the Zanzibar Swahili.

[Mr. Anyieni]

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I rise for your guidance. In my speech I made it very clear that what I was intending to put forward was in favour of a standard Swahili. Is the Member, therefore, in order to assume that I did not say that in my speech?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are quite right in saying that you were advocating a standard Swahili.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, is this House now going to decide the standard of Swahili, the standard of Swahili which is going to be taught in schools? Government has no standard of Swahili. My standard of Swahili will be Kisii Swahili. Is this the standard of Swahili that is to be adopted? I maintain, Mr. Speaker, that this should be something around the country and in schools before we come to this House otherwise we shall have people coming here and saying, for example, "ni na jua" while others say "ni na jakumu". If you go to Mombasa and say "ni na jua" they will think you are using bad language. We do not want this sort of thing here in Parliament.

I do not know who is going to reply on behalf of Government but I feel the Government should say it accepts the Motion and the date set should be 1967. Then, from now on the Kenya Government should start teaching the children Swahili so that when they come to this House they will be able to speak good Swahili.

With those few words, Sir, I beg to oppose the Motion.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, I am speaking as the Member for Yatta, an ordinary Member of Parliament; I am not speaking as the Assistant Minister for Education.

It is true we require Swahili to be spoken in this House and also around the country. It is also true, Mr. Speaker, that—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, looking at our clock and at our various watches I reckon that the clock is ahead of time. Could it be set right?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Anyieni mentioned this point yesterday. I do not think it is a point of order. The fact is that, when the House is sitting, we go by this clock; and whether it is two minutes fast or slow will not make any difference, because it still measures the time, and this guides us in the conduct of business here.

Mr. Anyieni: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when we say that this clock is all right it is only all right for business in the House. If we, Members of this House, do not mind about the East African time how will anybody else mind about the time? You will find, Sir, that some Members say, Parliament open at 9 o'clock, I still have plenty of time to get there, and they may be a few minutes late. So you may not have a quorum at the commencement of business. That is why this clock should be put back to East African time.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We try to keep the clock according to East African time, but we do not always succeed. It is just one of those things. If hon. Members chose to be here a few minutes before time they would then be able to see what our clock says. We cannot discuss this point all over again.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, I will not take up much time on this Motion as Members seem to be worried about the time.

All that I want to say is that I totally disagree with my hon. friend who has just sat down on the points he has made, because his arguments are that there is no standard Swahili in the country. I quite disagree with him because he has already indicated that he passed his school certificate in Swahili and I would, therefore, assume that he knows very well that that is the standard Swahili which is taught throughout the country. The teachers who are recruited in my Ministry and those who teach Swahili, as appears in the curriculums and syllabuses, do so according to the programme and subjects laid down to be taught in Swahili.

Therefore, it is true that just as much as we require to speak English here and also Swahili, a time must be given as to when this should start. I would assume that when we make a decision here and say that Swahili should be now spoken in this House then the people in the country will know that now the Kenya Parliament has made a decision on this and they will start learning Swahili. Every person will make the best effort possible to learn and speak Swahili. At the moment people cannot speak Swahili because they think it is not important and they are waiting for this Parliament to authorize and make it known that people should speak Swahili. This is why you find there are differences between languages. I am from Meru. Mr. Speaker, but I received my education in Kikuyu. I am proud to say that I passed with flying colours because Meru was not very favoured with schools at that particular time.

My second language at school was Swahili, my third language was English. I know four languages: the first one is Kimeru. Mr. Speaker, my point here is this: that any Member here from the remotest part of Kenya with diverse language differences, such as the Bantu and the Nilotic, can always learn two or three languages. It is not true to think that my hon. friend, the Member for Kilifi South, has advocated this policy because he comes from near Mombasa. His own language is not Swahili but he can learn Swahili like anyone else. So, Mr. Speaker, I would like the House to dissociate themselves from the idea that it is the language spoken by the people living in a particular part of Kenya.

Mr. Speaker, with all the literature that we have written in Swahili, the vocabulary, including important words like Uhuru, Katiba, Bunge, Sheria, Ambre, with all these popular words that have come up naturally as we neared our independence. I do not think that Swahili is any poorer than English as far as governmental and commercial deliberations are concerned. Also, the emotional appeal, the pride, the logic are so important to Kenya that it is high time our Government implemented one of the election pledges that Swahili would be made a national language as soon as possible.

Mr. Speaker, I feel that adopting Swahili as a national language is another very important stone in the national rebuilding of Kenya and I feel, Mr. Speaker, the only problem we have here is to remove prejudice in the minds of hon. Members or any other people of Kenya who still have it in their minds that Swahili is a second important language. I do feel that hon. Members here might be afraid that if Swahili became a condition for membership of this House, they might lose their seats. This is flying too far from the facts. No particular Member here conducts an election campaign in his constituency in English or Swahili, he does it in his own vernacular. Yet, in spite of the paper condition that you must have a certain standard in English, every election campaign is conducted in the vernacular. I can still appeal to the Meru people for a seat here in Kimeru any time, anywhere, and get my seat without all this trouble or fear. So, Mr. Speaker, if my friend, the Member for Kiharu, can convince me that he obtained his seat in the House through the English medium, I would be only too happy. My point is that Swahili should be the national language and it will not affect the possibility of a Member being returned to this House. All it will require will be for Members to brush up on their own vocabulary a little and for lawyers and Government officials, who have to do important documents, to employ further Swahili and get the experts we need.

So, Mr. Speaker, I feel that in supporting this Motion we are only moving ahead and the Government should be only too willing to give us a date when Swahili is going to become the national language of Kenya. Mr. Speaker, I beg to second.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also rise to support this Motion which I feel is very timely and, Sir, any Member who challenges me as to whether I do or do not know Swahili should wait for a time outside this House or in front of an audience and see what we can do with him.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one of the things which encouraged and compelled us to fight for independence was to return the African dignity in our culture, languages, customs, traditions and history, and after independence we must embark vigorously on recovering and reconstructing the African dignity and tradition. It is no good, Mr. Speaker, Government and the people of Kenya feeling complacent, continuing to subject themselves to the old psychology of respecting all that is foreign. It is very dangerous. Mr. Speaker, that even at this particular time the ability of an African is still measured as to whether he knows a European language. It is a shame that my intelligence when I want to get a job in the Government or in a company is weighed in accordance with my knowledge of English. The two things are not connected at all. Even if I dress well at a party and people discover I cannot speak English, they just ignore me. So even if you are elegant in the way you dress, unless you are competent in the English language, people look down upon you.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this thing goes too far. I have noticed outside among the Africans that a girl or boy will even refuse to fall in love with one another because he or she does not speak English.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Agar, we do not often have love affairs in this House.

Mr. Agar: I am bringing varied examples, Mr. Speaker, because our people must be helped to respect their own languages, their customs and their traditions, and this is why, as I have said, we fought for independence, because we were being cut off at the roots. Our languages, our customs, our history are our roots, Mr. Speaker, and it is obvious that unless the African race goes back to grow from its own roots, the African race will never get anywhere.

Mr. Speaker, the reason why I am supporting this Motion is that in Kenya we are lucky, there is no problem of grumbling or one tribe saying that a language is being introduced into the country which is spoken by only one tribe, and as a consequence that tribe may have advantages. A Member brought the example of India. If the people of South India are fighting against Hindi, one can appreciate that because you hardly find anybody speaking Hindi in South India they find an absolutely different language with a lot of difference in their background. But as far as Kenya is concerned, Swahili has become so popular, so widespread that no particular part of Kenya will say Swahili is strange to it. I can say that the Hamitic and Nilotic groups would find it a bit strange, but already Swahili is so popular that Kisumu itself has found its own dialect of Swahili and you can hear Nandis talking it in the Rift Valley.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we also want to bring the African personality on to the international scene as one of the ways to popularize the African tradition, the African way of life, the African personality is to promote certain popular and important languages. There is no reason why we should not, ourselves, become the beginning of Swahili ascending to a higher position as one of the world languages. If the Government adopts it officially here and in the offices and in the Parliament, we know that it will be taught in schools, in the universities, and, consequently, it will spread to overseas schools.

As an hon. Member mentioned, Mr. Speaker, Tanzania, promptly started to use Swahili in its National Assembly, and as some of us who have attended it have seen, the system is running very smoothly. Members who feel they cannot express themselves in Swahili are allowed to express themselves in English, and the system is introduced so that both languages can be recorded properly. But I think, as the Member suggested in his Motion, that the Government must indicate a date or a time when this thing should be done. We are not going to be satisfied with a mere promise, as the President promised that Swahili should come; we want the date so that we can prepare for that time. As the proposer said, Mr. Speaker, if an essential person in this House, like Mr. Speaker, may not have come up to the standard required to conduct the business of this House in Swahili, then he will have time to do so; he will know he is racing against time to come up to the standard. We want the date to be set when Swahili will commence to be used officially in this House.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is always the danger of the Government of Kenya feeling complacent about certain cultural and social matters. We have argued that there should have been a Ministry of Cultural Affairs in this country and one of the ways in which a nation can marshal its energy is for the Government to initiate certain activities which make the people feel proud of their achievement within the country. If a young man from the United States or from England finds that he excels or shines over other people who were educated in this country, simply because he speaks a foreign language, and consequently when they go to compete for a post or for something which you take by ability, intelligence or by knowledge, the boy who is educated locally finds that he falls in English and therefore he is left out, then we kill the spirit of Africa. That boy educated in English or in America may get to know much about England or America, but he does not know what is happening in Kenya. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, to enhance the growth of our nation and to encourage our boys and girls to learn local things and to acquaint themselves fully with what is needed for the African nation, we should encourage Swahili and, as this Motion says, the Government should make a start by introducing it into this House as the official language.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Anyeleh: Mr. Speaker, I should have liked to support this Motion but I have reasons why. I think this Motion cannot be accepted at this stage. The reason is not that I am unable to speak Swahili. Many of the Members sitting here have no certificate to show that they know Swahili but I am one of those who has passed Swahili in my school certificate. However, Mr. Speaker, this House is not supposed to start things which are not understood around the countryside.

Today, Sir, Government has introduced the medium of English in our schools and as a result you will find that even my son who is at present in Standard I, who was speaking Swahili when he was in nursery school, now looks down on [Mr. Ngala] home, I do not use English. I use my own language.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Which is that?

Mr. Ngala: I use my own language. It is not Swahili. I use a language called Mijikenda.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): It is a primitive language.

Mr. Ngala: A Member is saying that it is a primitive language. This Member is a victim of the colonial attitude. This is the mother language of the people so I choose to use it among my family members. I feel more at home with my wife and children and everybody when I use my own language. Of course, I have daughters and sons who are in high schools and colleges. They know English, but I do not want to be bothered with English. I talk to them in my own way and in my own language.

Mr. Speaker, this is a very important thing. We, in the Coast, although we have different tribes of our own and languages of our own, throughout the Coast Province, have adopted Swahili as the official language. In all our schools we use Swahili, we teach it and use it in all our schools, although there are different languages such as Kiteitā, Kipokomo, Giriama and other languages. We have therefore adopted Swahili as a lingua franca for our own province. The nation should do the same so that we can all use Swahili as our national language.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if by not using Swahili in this House we are debarring good people who could make useful contributions to this House, I think we will be making a big mistake, a very big mistake. Who told us that if a person cannot speak English he cannot be a good Member of Parliament? Where did this idea come from?

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): You did.

Mr. Ngala: Who told us? Now, if I did, if I am responsible for all that is included in the Constitution, as the Assistant Minister is implying, then I am now wanting a change. If you go by that, I am sure you will accept the need now for a change. I am sure that it was during the old colonial days when the people here—the white faces mostly—did not understand Swahili. But you cannot tell me that there is any person around here who cannot speak Swahili. Even the Speaker can understand and speak Swahili. I am sure, Mr. Speaker, Sir, you can do a little bit of homework over one week-end and master the language.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the President himself on the 14th December, when delivering a speech here, the President, Mzee Kenyatta, said we must as soon as possible use Swahili in the National Assembly so that we can enhance our integrity as a nation. This was the President himself on the 14th December last year. That is sufficient assurance to me, but look at the Motion, I was a date fixed to adopt Swahili. If you can stand up and tell me the date on which the President's own speech will be implemented as far as the introduction of Swahili in this House is concerned, I will be happy and satisfied. That is what I am trying to get across in the Motion.

What are the possible motives for refusing to object to this? It is an obvious thing, as African Member of Parliament asking an African Parliament to adopt an African language. Can you say no to it? What are the possible objectives? Some Members may say, "If Swahili is used, I will not have the chance of coming back to the House." Do not worry. If the constituency sees that there is a better man than you in the location, they had better bring that man forward to the House. Therefore let us not use selfish motives in thinking about this. We must express our feelings more naturally by using an African language. I am sure that if this was adopted in the House today, there would be many Members who would prefer using Swahili than English in the present House, because they would be in a position to express themselves better, and put across what they want to other fellow Members of Parliament more effectively.

I must make it quite clear that there may be some people who are giving us lip-service about Swahili but we must be sincere. We must remember that if we want to have our own nation, Swahili must be used widely, even in our own constituencies, in schools. It must be taught and used widely. I would urge Members, when they get back during the week-end, this time to start the campaign of asking their voters to use Swahili throughout their constituencies.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): They do not know it.

Mr. Ngala: I am not convinced that they do not know it. I am a person who has moved and held meetings in all parts of Kenya. I have been to Kisii several times—I do not know—we have used Swahili all the time and people have understood us. It is the language. Are you prepared against this language?

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): No.

Mr. Ngala: For what reasons should we be prejudiced against a language? I want to make it clear, Sir, that I am suggesting Swahili as an alternative language, as a second language, if you want to the National Assembly. I am not saying that it should be the only language, but we should be given a chance to use this language. We should encourage women too, to come to this Parliament, most of the elderly intelligent women who can effectively work in Parliament and who can speak Swahili fluently, do not know English. They should be allowed to come to this House.

I am quite prepared to resign in favour of any person who is better than myself who can speak Swahili. I do not have to stay in this House to earn my living, nor do I believe that Kenya will go to the dogs if I am not in this House. Therefore, do not think that I have any fears. No, I am introducing this sincerely as a language of Africa which should be used by African Parliamentarians as other countries are doing and we should stop using an imperialistic language which should be put to the side.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Who seconds?

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I—

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is not to second.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Who claims to be the official Seconder of this Motion?

Mr. Ngala: The hon. Bernard Mate.

Mr. Kamau: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is there any formality on any Member seconding, or can any Member second a Motion?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is customary for the Mover of a Motion to arrange with one particular Member to second a Motion with him; and that is the Member upon whom I like to call to second.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in supporting and seconding this Motion, I feel that the Mover made the point that we need a national language here in Kenya and that Swahili would only be a second language. Mr. Speaker, Swahili is the language of the people in Kenya. The people of Kenya are appealed to in Swahili and I know that there is no hon. Member here who has any doubt as to the importance of Swahili. I am going to try and show that any fears this Government might have in accepting the Motion would be very shallow and false.

Mr. Speaker, the majority of people who come to listen to the debates in this House do not know English. They are part of the Republic of Kenya and whether or not they come here to listen or to see, it is important that those who come understand. I feel, Sir, that this House is not an English testing house. I feel we are denying Kenya the opportunity of taking a very important step forward in insisting that anyone who comes here must be able to speak English in an independent country. English could very well be a classroom language, commercial language, and, in any case, any person can learn two, three or more languages.

Mr. Speaker, in Kenya we use Swahili in commerce, in the bazaars, in the day-to-day life, in the Administration. African provincial, are missionaries and district commissioners, today, are using Swahili and not English. When they go to bazaars and various places they speak Swahili; it may be a colonial habit, but I think there is something in it.

Mr. Speaker, on the Voice of Kenya most of the programmes and music announcements are now done in Swahili for the majority of the African people in Kenya.

With regard to the Press, Baraza is more popular than the East African Standard; Taifa Leo is much more popular and more important to the majority of the African people than the Daily Nation.

Mr. Speaker, in schools here in Kenya where the Ministry of Education has been doing what I call "Kugugungu" the language, the Government has seen fit to reintroduce Swahili as one of the subjects to be taught, rather belatedly, but I believe this is a colonial mistake and not the present Government's.

Now in the public meetings here in Kenya, Mr. Speaker, the lingua franca is Swahili. Any Member who comes from Kisumu to address a meeting in Meru speaks in Swahili and Members coming from Narok to address a meeting at Githunguri speaks in Swahili. So, Mr. Speaker, it is so obvious that I cannot see why we should spend so much time trying to convince this House that Swahili is important. For those who feel that Swahili is not a scholarly language, I believe one can take a degree in Swahili at London University today. I think that this is an African language that is so practical and so dear to Kenya, and any so-called scholars who feel that their knowledge of English gives them a better place as a citizen of Kenya, should realize their duty and give Swahili the credit it deserves. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will give an example here of the facility with which a person can learn several wants. Also if at all we do not have the experts who negotiate on this matter then it might make things difficult, because as my hon. Member said these people have paid their taxes right from 1931 up now and this money has not been returned to them in any form, socially, or in the way of health or anything. Where is this money? Nobody knows. A lot of cattle has been taken—confiscated—and where these went still nobody knows.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like also, when the negotiations are taking place, it to be on a fifty-fifty or zero-zero basis. Also, Mr. Speaker, Sir, what makes this Motion so urgent is the security. When I was formerly introducing this Motion, I said that these people were afraid about their position, in fact most of them come to Kapenguria and tried to take some sort of refuge. I think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that it is wrong. You find in our own homes. Mr. Speaker, Sir, that there are eight to ten people living there and when you ask them why they come here, they turn round and tell you that they are so insecure and that they have just come to live with their brothers here until the situation improves. So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like the Government, while they agree with the Motion entirely as it is amended, to look on this question of security. These two points—peace and security—are the things which are going to lay heavy weight upon it, because I would not like to hear again that so many people from Pokot have been killed, so many cattle have been killed, because this depopulation does not help our people. In fact in other countries the population is so overwhelming that even in Parliament today I am the only Pokot Member who represents the people because my people have been killed, when there should be some more Members to represent the Pokot people.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very glad indeed that Government has accepted this Motion and I would like to be able to assure my people that the Government is going to handle the matter not as soon as possible, but practically. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

(Question put and agreed to)

Resolved accordingly:

"That in view of the fact that the Karakokot (Uganda) is part of Kenya which is being administered by the Uganda Government on her behalf, this House urges the Government to enter the quickest possible negotiations with the Uganda Government for immediate resumption of administration by Kenya."

MOTION

SWAHILI FOR THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to notify the House that I have slightly amended my Motion—one word only—and therefore I would like to move the following Motion:—

"THAT in view of the fact that Swahili is the indigenous common African language in Kenya, this House urges the Government to introduce a Bill for amendment of the Constitution to adopt Swahili as the language for this House and to fix a date on which the use of Swahili would commence in the National Assembly."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, Kenya is fortunate in that Swahili is a language which is a great asset to the people of Kenya. It is an indigenous African language, which is understood by everybody in Kenya.

An hon. Member: Prove it.

Mr. Ngala: Swahili is also widely spoken in Africa and now Swahili is the seventh language of the main languages of the world.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it may look very absurd for me, as an African, to move a Motion which urges Africans and the African Government to use its own language. Having attained our independence, automatically we ought to use our language, our African language in our Parliament. Having achieved sovereignty, we ought to know that the language is one thing which can give integrity and identity to the nation, and therefore the Government will quickly jump on this Motion and accept it, because we are just reminding the Government of what we should have done long before.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what have other states done? We can see that other states have quickly realized that having moved out of imperialism they have said good-bye to the imperialistic languages as well, particularly when they have a chance of using their own indigenous language. It is true that there are some countries that do not have the chance or the asset of an indigenous language as we have, and these countries have, very embarrassingly, continued to use the imperialistic language, but our situation is very different. We have a language here which is our own, an African language and we therefore have the chance of saying goodbye to the imperialistic languages such as French, English and any other foreign language, because of this chance I think the Government and Members of Parliament here should realize the usefulness of having Swahili adopted as one of the languages in the National Assembly.

1861 Motion—

22nd APRIL 1963

—Swahili for the National Assembly 1462

[Mr. Ngala]

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we look at the efforts that have been made by other African states, we can start with our nearest neighbour here, Tanzania. They have quickly realized the need for consolidating their nation through the use of their own language. Members of Parliament there speak Swahili. A natural thing for the African Parliaments, because it is an African language. Also they are much more at home, they can express themselves more freely and more vividly in a language which is close to their own bough, and I think here in Kenya, this example given to us by Tanzania should be followed immediately.

Now, Kenya is not as unlucky as other countries where when you go to a public rally you hear the President or the Prime Minister of that country speaking in English or in French, and somebody else has to translate what the President or the Prime Minister of that country is saying into the indigenous language of the particular district where the Prime Minister is speaking, the language of the tribe. Here it is different. The President, for example, can go anywhere to any district, in any location or division in Kenya and deliver his speech, his message direct to the people in Swahili and the people would understand him and appreciate it and would get to know what the Government policy is as delivered by the Head of State or the Prime Minister. Therefore we should know that Swahili is spoken and understood by everybody in the country.

Mr. Speaker, even those people who say they do not know Swahili, I am sure are only pretending. They understand Swahili. I am not talking of a Swahili which is a dialect of a particular group such as the Lamu dialect or the Mijikani dialect or the Kisumu dialect. I am speaking of the Government being determined to use the East African interterritorial language, Swahili, up to a certain standard, so that it could be used in this House and it could be taught. Other countries have made an effort to wriggle out of this realistic language to adopt their own language when they have a chance of using their own language. As we have a chance of doing this in this country, I believe very strongly that the Government should make use of Swahili in this House as one of their languages.

By not adopting Swahili, Sir, I think we are suffering from various disadvantages. The first one is there are many men and women who are very clever, who are intelligent and who are very wise. They are stopped from coming to this House to share their wisdom with us and their cleverness with us just because they do not know a foreign language, I think this is very unfortunate. I think these women and men have worked in the organization of the parties, some of them have worked very hard for KANU in different locations, very, very hard indeed. Even the public would rather have those people than chaps that have passed the K.A.P.E. coming here. Therefore I think we are refusing the country the advantage of making use of the best brains, of the best intelligences, just because some people do not know English, which is a foreign language.

Indeed, I am not undermining English, because I think it is a great language. It is a very rich language. It is a language which is very systematic in its form. But we must use our own. Some people have always taught us that what belongs everything—to an African is bad, including a language.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Who said that?

Mr. Ngala: Some people have taught us, that in the past. They have even taught us that our own religions are bad and we have jumped to other people's religions. It is high time that we realized that this was just a political move to make us believe that our own things were bad and we should leave them alone. Now, having achieved independence, we ought to bring forward the good things of the past and put them together with the good things of the present time, to complete our nation. I believe that the adoption of Swahili as the language would very much help us in completing the unity and the sovereignty of Kenya. Therefore I would like, Mr. Speaker, to remind the House what some other countries far in the East or in the West have done about their languages. It is very clear, Sir, in India, for example, there are many languages. It is in that country where the bitterness and hostility and opposition about languages has at the highest point. The Government there decided to make use of its own language. There are very hostile attitudes. Some people were opposing that and even fighting and killing one another, but for the sake of the country and for the sake of the integrity of the country, the Government of India said, "We are determined to use our own language. We are determined to put aside English. We shall use English when we go to other countries on visits; when we visit Ghana, when we visit the United Kingdom or when we visit America we can use these when we visit America we can use these languages, they are very good assets and we should have them. But in our own motherland, we should use our own language." When I go

[The Assistant Minister, President's Office]

Kenya now wishes to return to the pre-1931 position, but the present problem is that the Uganda Government has demanded a large sum of money in compensation for permanent development which it has carried out in the area, particularly in Amudand, an administrative centre which has been built by the Uganda Government. On the other hand, Kenya has offered various suggestions to lease the centre in settling the problem. We have offered to lease the centre with an option to buy it at a later date when we can afford it. Negotiations are still going on between the two Governments and the House will be kept informed of development.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, as this Motion is going on, our Ministry of External Affairs, together with the President's Office, are carrying out negotiations with the Uganda Government and we hope we will be able to reach an acceptable solution as soon as possible. Sir, the Motion actually asks the Government to do what the Government is in fact doing, and that is why the Government is prepared to accept the Motion. Thus, Sir, as all hon. Members know, Uganda is in friendly terms with Kenya and we do not want to utter or speak words which may prejudice that relationship.

For that reason, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am hopeful that hon. Members will appreciate if I suggest the deletion of the words "and in view of the very low standard of living and constant fights among the inhabitants of this area" appearing in the third and fourth lines, and "in order to facilitate proper administration and development in the area" appearing in the last two lines. Why, Sir, I suggest that these words should be deleted is that, by leaving them in the Motion as they are that would create a wrong impression which cannot be laid to a friendly neighbouring country like Uganda. This would mean that the Uganda Government is merely sitting at this place doing nothing and has done nothing since 1931. So, the Motion as amended would read: "That in view of the fact that the Kara-Pokot (Uganda) is part of Kenya which is being administered by the Uganda Government on her behalf, this House urges the Government to enter the quickest possible negotiations with the Uganda Government for immediate resumption of administration by Kenya." This does not in any sense impair the validity of the Motion.

Hon. Members will recall that since September last year a considerable amount of progress has been made in our negotiations with the Uganda Government, and it would be proper that we should not prejudice these negotiations as they are going on. As the hon. Member has said, the question of Kara-Pokot is very much in the mind of the Government, just as much as it is in his own mind, and I would like to assure the House that everything possible is being done to resolve the question as soon as possible.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the Government accepts the Motion as amended.

Sir, I beg to move.

Mr. Gatugua: I am very glad to know that the Government has accepted this Motion and I would like also to support the amendment, because of the reasons given by the Assistant Minister that we do not wish to say words that would embarrass our neighbouring friends. However, this question of the Kara-Pokot is a very vital one and I think the Government should take immediate steps to see to it that this part of Kenya is returned to this country because it is accepted that Kara-Pokot is part of Kenya politically, socially and even constitutionally, and that it was only some kind of arrangement that was made between the former Kenya Colonial Government with the former Uganda Colonial Government to the effect that Kara-Pokot should be administered by Uganda.

There is no legal problem here; there is not even a political problem nor a social problem, because it is accepted that this country belongs to Kenya. What we would ask our Government in this respect is to speed up the matter because although we have removed some words in this case we know, and we agree fully with the Mover of this Motion, that this part of the country is being neglected. There is no proper administration, there are no so-called social amenities and there is not even economic development. There is nothing. Accordingly we would like the Government to speed up this matter and to bring our brothers back to this country to be administered under our law and within our Government. This is, Mr. Deputy Speaker, a vital issue, not only because we are sympathetic to our brothers there but also because it involves the integrity of our country. As a nation that is sovereign we must be able to make sure that no one plays about with an inch of our soil. Also we must be able to show the whole world that we are keen to declare our integrity and also to look after the proper development of our country.

I wish to congratulate the Assistant Minister very much for accepting this Motion readily and also for amending it in the way he has done.

[Mr. Gatugua] My only wish is that the same Assistant Minister, or another Minister of the Government, will come back to this House very shortly and tell us that they have reached negotiations with the Uganda Government and that Kara-Pokot is now a part of Kenya.

I do not understand this question of compensation which the Uganda Government is asking for because our people who are now being administered by the Uganda Government have been paying their taxes to the Uganda Government, and so, whatever development these people have carried out they have done that development with the money the Kara-Pokot people have been paying. So, I cannot understand why this question of compensation arises. I hope the Assistant Minister will take this question into consideration. As I understand there are no major developments in the area then one fails to understand why the Kenya Government is required to pay any compensation whatsoever. In any case, as I have said, whatever development there has been done by the taxpayers' money, the money of the Kara-Pokot people. This House will be very sorry if the Kenya Government accepts the question of compensation.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Deputy Speaker, this Motion is very clear and I would like to join my friend, the hon. Mr. Gatugua, in congratulating the Government for accepting the Motion by the hon. Mr. Lorema.

It is surprising to find that in Kenya today there is an area where the people do not have adequate education and we fully sympathize with our friend here for the Kara-Pokot people. If, as he has stated, they are so neglected that they are still living in the Stone Age, then we try much appeal to the Government to see that everything possible is done to bring this area back under the administration of the Kenya Government so that these people can enjoy the privileges, facilities and benefits of Kenya. It looks today as if that area is intentionally being allowed to lag behind attraction to the world to come and enjoy it, and it would be a shame to our Government to have such a place lagging behind when all other areas are progressing.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is also surprising to hear, from our own Government, that the condition now arises through the development which is being done in the place while the Member for the area is contending that there is no development there. If there is any development then this development has been done by the Kara-Pokot people who have been living there, and we have no doubt that the Government of our friend the hon. Mr. Obote, who is friendly towards Kenya, will not put any difficulties on the release of these people and will let them come back to their own brothers in Kenya. However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this point is very clear and therefore I will not waste any time in discussing it, because as long as it is accepted by the Government we would only request our Government to facilitate this education on agriculture and all other social amenities to these people, so as to come up to the standard of their brothers who are living in the country.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I support the Motion.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the Motion has been accepted, would it be in order to move that the Mover be now called upon to reply?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Before we do that I will put the question of the amendment.

(Question of the amendment, that the words to be left out be left out put and agreed to)

(Question of the Motion as amended proposed)

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): If there is no other speaker then I will call upon the Mover to reply.

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must again take this opportunity of thanking the Government for accepting this Motion, and also those of my hon. Members who have contributed so much towards this Motion.

While I agree with the amendment, I think that the main point here, which remain for the Government to solve, is the acceleration of these negotiations, because that being the common phrase of the Government; sometimes it uses such a word, such Governmental expression. I do not know whether it is economic or what; as soon as possible. Since this Motion, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is self-explanatory, and also helps our own dignity, I hope the Government will accelerate and bring these people back.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair.]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair.]

It is not just a matter of bringing back, it is a matter of planning a turn like this.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another point on which I would like to comment on this Motion is about the lease. Now, my hon. Member for Kikuyu, Mr. Gatugua, asked me about the contribution of this money which the Uganda Government

[Mr. Lorenz] away all your animals," which they do all the time. When they see anybody at any distance, their aim is to shoot; they are just being shot like animals. Mr. Speaker, any Member who goes there will be surprised to see how these people are treated. Now they do not have any security. Here, in Kenya, I must take the opportunity of praising our forces, especially the Kenya Police, who see the person who is wrong and they are not biased at all, because they see the wrong man and they attack that man. But those people, having been in a General Service Unit in Kara-Moja, just attack them like that. There are so many things of that nature which are taking place, Mr. Speaker, and that is why I would like these people to be brought to join their brothers in Kapenguria.

In 1962, 126 Kara-Pokot were killed simply because of these stolen animals, and they do not want to bother to find out who did this. It is just a general punishment. If one man was killed, they would say, "Let us kill one of the Pokot, unless they find us the guilty man," but that is not the case.

Another point I have to make, Mr. Speaker, is about schools. There are no schools at all in the area. Boys are learning in places under the trees, in all conditions: whether it is raining or dry, they are under these trees. There are no schools, no desks. They may claim that we have a place called Cheywoyet but this place was built by voluntary bodies like missionaries. These people are very much appreciated, for the work they did. So the Uganda Government cannot claim anything regarding the Kara-Pokot in that sense. Mr. Speaker, Sir, these people are very humiliated and the Kenya Government should take immediate steps about them. I have taken several times to come and inform the Kenya Government of what is taking place in the area. There was a time when Kenya officials were supposed to come to Kara-Moja on the 15th and 16th March, but they failed to come, but I do not know why they did not come. They sent a telegram to the Central Government in Uganda. People were waiting. Also, I have been trying to help. I have brought delegations and all this without achieving anything.

The only way that we could get these people living peacefully is to bring them back and then have this area properly planned for. I am sure that when these people come to Kapenguria they will feel it is paradise. Now, when they arrive in Nairobi, they say, "Which country is this?" The other time I brought them, I took them round Central Province and they thought that it was in north Kenya, they wondered very much. Mr. Speaker, so it is the desire that they should get all these social facilities and become Kenyans.

Mr. Speaker, I do not want to liberate this point because it is an understandable fact, but I wanted to mention here that the development in other parts of Kenya can be seen with the naked eye, but when you come to Pokot is general, unless you use a very powerful microscope, you cannot see the development; it is zero, Mr. Speaker. That is why we have to air the views of these people for the Government to hear and act on it.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the problem posed here by the hon. Member is a problem of human necessity. A people who are supposed to be enjoying democratic principles or at least feel they are within a democratic institution, as we have in Kenya, are denied that chance by virtue of being administratively placed in another area. It is true that we have a very good relationship with Uganda, but in terms of minor things like this one, the Government of Uganda might perhaps, unintentionally, overlook the necessities of these Kara-Pokot. If the Member who represents the Pokot people claims that these people are theirs by all standards, by language, by custom, by way of thinking, it should be the duty of the Government to see the Government of Uganda and find out whether there is any possibility of transferring the administrative machinery from Uganda to Kenya.

If, again, geography shows that this part belongs to Kenya I think it is wrong for part of Kenya to be administered elsewhere, when we have a very efficient administrative machinery, unless of course we suffer from the same conditions as the former rulers did, namely the colonial group which used to rule this country and found it fit to give administrative responsibility for the Kara-Pokot area to the Uganda Government. We are proud of our own Civil Service and we are proud of our own planning which is now taking place in this country, and we believe that these people give a chance to join their own kith and kin could benefit from our elaborate arrangements for economic development. They could also enjoy the basic democratic principles of having area councils or county councils of their own.

[Mr. Gichoya]

These are the things which everyone has fought for, so that we should have the right to decide for our own fate, and these people—the Kara-Pokot—have no choice whatsoever in deciding as to what should be for their own happiness or tomorrow, because administratively, they are being placed in a kind of hostile area, a hostile community which governs them: that is the Karakokot from Uganda.

What should be done, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is that the Government ought to take immediate steps to consult the Government of Uganda, to see how they can be reunited with their Kenya brothers. I believe the leaders of Kenya and Uganda being so friendly as the area—as a matter of fact, we ought to be even under the federal cover—the problem of these people could be easily solved. It is a pity that up to this moment, educationally, those people do not enjoy the facilities of the Kenya Government.

They are aided only by foreign missionaries. We thank them for what they have done, but this ought not to have continued for so long. It was there during the colonial period but now as a free people we must be prepared to assist our own underdeveloped people. The Kara-Pokot are indeed comparatively very backward educationally, as we understand. I would not take any pride at all to hear that one part of our own country is living in the Stone Age period.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): What about Kirinyaga?

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister for Education should understand that Kirinyaga is one of the more advanced districts with its own education, set aside according to measure. We would like also the same facilities to be extended to the Kara-Pokot people and it is the duty of the Government, the Minister for Education at least, to feel ashamed if these people do not have even one intermediate school built by the Government of Kenya. If it is because the administration of that area lies with the other side of Uganda it is up to our Government to request the Government of Uganda to put those people on a better footing educationally.

Taking the other side of the question, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is a pity that the Member who really knows his people properly could put before the House that if you want to see what development has taken place in that area you have to do so with magnifying glasses. This shows again that our Government either is not prepared to take over the responsibility of these people or the Government, for that matter, is prepared to see some of its citizens who were placed in the wrong area living in a state of slavery. If people are poor they are no better than slaves. Independence means that we have to improve our intellectual capacity, our economic position and our political situation. These people are not getting anything and it is the duty of our Government—at least the Government will have to accept this Motion without any amendment as has been the custom with many Motions—to bring these people under the administration of Kenya. Unless the Government is prepared to do so, then the Government of Kenya could be either accused of neglecting its own citizens or selling out its own citizens to another country. Indeed, Uganda is a foreign country in as much as Uganda is a sovereign state and Kenya is another sovereign state. We have no common sovereignty; we may be having a Common Services Organization for economic betterment. However, in terms of sovereignty we are two different states and, consequently, our state must look after its own citizens.

With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to support the Motion.

(Question proposed)

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I will not take very long on this Motion. I want to state right from the beginning that the Government is in full sympathy with the Motion.

The question of the Kara-Suk or the Kara-Pokot, whichever the hon. Member thinks is appropriate, came to this House on the 8th September 1964. Mr. Deputy Speaker, during that time I had the opportunity to deal with the question of Kara-Suk and it may be of interest to note what I said on that day. What I said on that day was, Sir, that the history of the Kara-Suk problem goes back a number of years. It arose as a result of the grazing problem of the Pokot people. An arrangement was made between the Uganda and Kenya giving grazing concession in that area to the Pokot people. The Pokot, however, did not abide by the agreement and penetrated far into Uganda. Consequently, in 1931, another agreement was made, giving the Uganda Government powers to control the ever westward thrust of the Pokot and by the terms of that agreement, Kara-Suk was placed under the administration of Uganda without any legal changes in the boundary of Kenya and Uganda being made.

[Mr. Lorenza]

Now, Mr. Speaker, I would like to take the trouble here to explain this problem of the Kara-Pokot. We in Pokot are divided into three sections; namely the West Pokot, of Kapenguria, the East Pokot, the other side of Raringo and the Kara-Pokot. These people, the Kara-Pokot, so happen to be in Uganda, administered in Uganda. Because of the consistent fights and of the very low standards, as the Motion indicates, I feel that as the only Member for the area, I must air the views of these people in their own interests. At the moment, their views and interests are being overlooked. In the first place, they do not have a Member to air their grievances for them in Uganda and my people's quarrel here is, what is the reason why the Kara-Pokot, while most of their brothers are in Kenya, are in Uganda. At the same time, these very people are within the map of Kenya. It is for the Government of Kenya to tell us if they are going to give these people to Uganda, and then they will have to adjust their map, which will look ridiculous indeed.

If we look at a place like Amundat, for instance, it is shown on the map of Kenya. I do not know how it happens that these people are administered in Uganda. Mr. Speaker, as far as I can understand this, I cannot blame my Government because this was a colonial arrangement, the one of divide and rule. Now the time has come when these people must be brought together and solve their social and economic problems.

Formerly, if I may follow the history, there was a place called Echiliba. It is at the moment on the boundary between the Kara-Pokot and the West Pokot, but it is also just some yards beyond the river Suam. In 1924, all these people in Kara-Pokot were paying their taxes to the Kenya Government. In 1931, they found that this town of Echiliba was not so salubrious. They found the area was infested with mosquitoes. So they transferred this area which was supposed to be the capital of the Pokot by then to Kapenguria, which had a rather colder climate. Knowing that this area was not so good for the administration at that time, these people were just neglected and they went to Uganda because the place was drier and they joined with the Kara-Moja. Now the fact that they joined with the Kara-Moja did not necessarily mean they would get along, because the Kara-Moja and the Kara-Pokot normally and naturally followed their own customs. There are very many things which happened in such an area. I also would like to put the blame on our representatives who went to Lancaster House for talks on these constitutional matters. They should have aired their point when they went there. We should have liked to bring in the Kara-Pokot, formerly known as Kara-Sch. This question of territorial matters, Mr. Speaker, is very serious indeed. For example, we hear of territorial quarrels, Sudan versus Ethiopia, Kashmir versus India. This is causing people to knock each other's heads. This is not the thing. The Uganda Government understands this very well. This area belongs to Kenya, but the Kenya Government has not taken the initiative to approach the Uganda Government for the immediate resumption of administration of this area to Kenya.

These people are just left in an island when they do not understand the position in which they stand. When the Kenya Government officials go there and the people question them, "What about this and that regarding schools," they are told, "My dear friends, you belong to Uganda." They say, "Gosh, we were in Kenya for a long time, how did we happen to be in Uganda?" They are not historians, they do not understand these things. Similarly, when the Uganda Government officials go there, they do precisely nothing.

I must mention here, Mr. Speaker, at random, that people have a very great knowledge of other countries, foreign countries; but it is rather difficult that on a thing like this, people cannot follow up my speech. People know America, people know Russia, India, and all these countries, and yet when I mention parts of Kenya, probably the Members and members of the public find it hard to understand. This is a fact. We are trying to protect something which is within us. Let us have our own rights and take away nobody's rights.

Things came to a head, Mr. Speaker, last year when these people, the Kara-Pokot, came to Kapenguria. Of course, having brought them a lot, a long-time ago, these people could defend themselves with spears. They are a very powerful tribe, but as a result of my teaching as a Member for the area, they knew this proverb I said, "My dear countrymen; it has been found out that a pair is mightier than a swarm." After a lot of teaching, they realized that they could use their spears, but this other tribe might be aggressive. So I told them to send their children to school, but up to now no one has given them any aid. No one has given them responsibility, not even a district officer or any officer for the area. This is why it is my intention that the Kenya Government should bring back these people in order to set up a proper administration. At the moment it is like a football match

[Mr. Lorenza]

I must tell the Government that there could be a tremendous type of development which must be encouraged in the area. I quite agree with that. If the Kenya Government fears development and the cash which they are going to put in the area, that would be an excuse, but it is realistic that you cannot just hand over to your property. If you have ten children, you cannot say, "I am unable to keep all these children, so I must surrender one to this man because of lack of food," but Kenya is entitled to protect its own territory. Otherwise, one day we will find ourselves at a similar disadvantage, and they will come to our capital, which will not be good at all. We shall reject this.

Mr. Speaker, this problem of the Kara-Pokot involves so many things. It involves external affairs, it involves administration. So far, I have not attempted to say anything connected with external affairs. Now may I just be allowed to go on to the side of administration, very briefly. There are practically no offices in the area; it is all bush. These people are living in a different century altogether—probably the Stone Age. It is beyond description, Mr. Speaker, and I cannot describe it. There is not one post office. People cannot take their letters there. Of course, there are other resources there although it is just bush. They have minerals and everything.

These people do not have post offices, also, while dealing with this question of administration, I must mention chiefs. It is very interesting to tell you, Mr. Speaker, and hon. Members that what is confronting these people here is that they have no chiefs. As I have said, the Kara-Pokot are just adjusting to the Kara-Moja. Now the Kara-Moja of Uganda want to expand their empire at the expense of the Kara-Pokot. They have exchanged their chiefs. They have brought the Kara-Moja chiefs there and they are ruling the Pokot, and they are taking those, who do not want to listen properly, to the other side of the Kara-Moja. Now the Pokot do not understand the Kara-Moja language properly. If, for example, a Luo went to my Pokot area, my people would not understand the language, and similarly, if a Pokot chief was taken to Kikuyu where he is supposed to explain the Government policy in a simple and clear language, how can he do it? How can he do that? The simple reason is this, that when these people come in, the chief first of all is consulted and he can give out any fabricated news regarding the Pokot, because they want them to be expelled from the area; we tell them that this area belongs to Kenya, it is not just Pokot, but Kenya land.

Also, they do not have Tribal Police, they do not have anything. When a boy reaches Standard I or Standard II, the people in authority tell him, "You are now a graduate, you will go far," but how can one really reach Standard I and then go back and lead his people? Such a person is not capable. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I challenge anyone who says that some of the backward tribes are so backward that they just laugh at them. It is just because of time and they were not given the proper time by the colonialists. You may find these people having their own customs and they dress themselves traditionally and I am proud that these people dress themselves the way they do. They are not committed to any side, they dress themselves like anybody else. One time I brought my people to Nairobi and all the tourists were running to try and photograph them because they looked so beautiful; they admired them. I am proud of them, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

They lack so many things, but they are taxed so highly that they are unable to pay their taxes, and the method applied in this situation is one of force. For example, when they go to auction their animals, there is a clerk there who is, of course, a Kara-Moja from Uganda and who stands by the auctioneer. When a person buys a cow or goat, the money is deducted before the man who has sold the animal gets the money. For example if he gets Sh. 20 for a goat and he owes some money to the Government, the money is just deducted. He is told to go away, there is nothing for him, because he has not paid his taxes. I think this is just a matter of force.

Mr. Speaker, I have said something about administration, and when the Government takes over, it should look into the posts. The main thing, therefore, which we advise for these people is this. We say that we are trying to clear out the three enemies, but I must add one common enemy existing in Kara-Pokot: namely, the security side of things. Mr. Speaker, without security in a country, no one can be at peace. These people—the Kara-Pokot—who are living in Uganda are very insecure, officially and otherwise, in that when people come from the General Service Unit, from the other side, and they say that their animals were lost, arriving at Karakok, they just begin attacking people anyhow, even those who were not responsible. They say, "You must give us the animals; or we drive to the local authorities to decide how they will use these funds. It is not for the Central Government to direct that these funds be used for housing alone.

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to follow-up the Assistant Minister. The question is definitely referring to improvement in teachers' housing within the school compounds, and the Assistant Minister has said that Government has a scheme whereby the grant finance for the improvement of teachers' houses in the school premises. We say there are no moneys that have flowed towards primary schools and now the Minister responsible for Finance has told us that there were no funds provided before but now the Government has realized the need for providing funds. Could the Assistant Minister not withdraw and see the coyness of the two statements.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): On a point of correction, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that this has been enough. It was not strictly in order for me to let you give your information, though I think the House was glad to have it. I think maybe this is enough now, and we must go on.

Next question: Is anyone authorized by Mr. Amin to ask Question 10677? If not, we will go on.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE CONSIGNMENT OF RUSSIAN ARMS AND RUSSIAN SHIP

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you have a Question by Private Notice, Mr. Khasakhala? Will you ask it now?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, under the Standing Orders I beg to ask the following question:

Mr. Khasakhala asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence—on Thursday, 15th April 1965, the Minister held a Press conference and stated that there is a "small consignment of arms" on a Russian ship expected soon in Mombasa, and that Kenya Army officials had gone to Mombasa to receive them.

On Wednesday, 21st April 1965 we learnt that the ship, although seen in Kenya waters, had disappeared. It is now stated the ship Fizik Lebedev of the U.S.S.R. is now unloading in Dar es Salaam as from 17th April 1965. Could the Minister tell the House why these arms were not unloaded in Mombasa?

This question should have come up yesterday but now the time has expired.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister for Internal Security and Defence, I beg to reply. It is correct that the Russian ship was expected to unload a certain amount of arms at Mombasa. As far as the Kenya Government is concerned, this ship is still expected to unload at Mombasa. However, as all hon. Members know, the Kenya Government has no control on any Russian ship or any other foreign ship and the Russian ship—for reasons known to themselves—may be having run into a turbulent storm, maybe a political storm—decided to unload at Dar es-Salaam to begin with. We still wait for the ship to unload at Mombasa.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the Kenya Army officials using the money of the Kenya Government went to Mombasa to receive these arms, could the Minister tell the House how this money is going to be accounted for?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Members of the Kenya Army who went down to help the unloading of the stuff from the Russian army, did not have that as their only duty, and therefore the question of accounting for this specific item of unloading does not arise.

Mr. Mwangandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell this House whether the arms were for the Kenya Government or for private enterprise?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. That is another question.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies by the Assistant Minister, could the Assistant Minister tell the House why Government did not deem it right to issue another statement to explain to the country all the mystery that has happened so far about the army gift which was expected, because I think the country is now wondering whether there is any secret dealing or any mystery or suspicion going on. Why was a statement not issued to clear the air?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we will expect this army gift, and it would be premature at this time to issue a statement, which might possibly prejudice the gift which is coming from our Russian friends.

Mr. Choge: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a responsible Government and we would like to know by the Assistant Minister the reasons as to why this ship bypassed Mombasa and went on to Dar es Salaam instead of unloading at Mombasa first?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said earlier, the Kenya Government has no control over foreign ships, including Russian ships, and we do not know all the goods which were consigned in this particular ship. It may be that they had some consignment for Dar es Salaam, Durban and other places, including Mombasa, and we cannot for that reason try to interfere in the course which the captain of the Russian ship has decided to follow.

Mr. Jahari: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister agree with me that a ship can alter the port of call any time, without giving notice and in all shipping line notices is it given out that the ship is subject to change any port of call without any notice?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that of course is the usual normal practice.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the question and the hon. Member Mr. Khasakhala, as to how the money used by the army men for receiving these arms would be accounted for, would the Assistant Minister assume the House that the money will be accounted for just in the same way as the money being used by the General Service Unit bearing people in Nyanza unnecessarily—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Mr. Ngala-Abok, too often you try to drag in things that you know are quite irrelevant and out of order.

I do not think Members are going to get any further on this.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE: UNLOADING OF CONSIGNMENT OF ARMS FROM RUSSIAN SHIP

Mr. Khasakhala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, could I be allowed to raise this on adjournment?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I do not think so. The only things that can be raised on adjournment are matters of administration for which the Government is responsible. The permissible subject matter of Questions is very much wider, and this matter was properly the subject of a question; but unless I can be satisfied that it is something over which Government has control, then it cannot be raised on adjournment.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, can we make an attempt to satisfy you now that it is a matter of administration of which the Government is responsible?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, there is no need to do that, because it could not be raised today anyhow; but if Mr. Khasakhala would care to give me notice of his desire to raise it on an adjournment, and can satisfy me that it is a matter of administration for which the Government is responsible, then it will be allowed on adjournment. We will go on now.

MOTION

ADMINISTRATION BY KENYA OF KARA-POKOT

Mr. Lorema: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the following Motion:—

THAT in view of the fact that the Kara-Pokot (Uganda) is part of Kenya which is being administered by the Uganda Government on her behalf and in view of the very low standard of living and constant fights among the inhabitants of this area, this House urges the Government to enter the quickest possible negotiations with the Uganda Government for immediate resumption of administration by Kenya in order to facilitate proper administration and development in the area.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Motion, as it stands, is simple and clear, and I think self-explanatory. I would like to say, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to begin with that I am honoured to move this gigantic Motion, as I might say, during this session, in that it is a national Motion and it has nothing to do with separate people but the country as a whole, also towards the sovereignty and the dignity of our country. It is, Mr. Speaker, Sir, a reminder to our Government that at the moment there is one part of our Kenya which is being administered by our neighbouring country, in which case we are not following administratively our own policy, we are not administering this country which is, unfortunately, being administered by the Uganda Government. In that case, if at all we were to follow the geography, the map of Kenya, we would find that the masters and the students in schools, primary schools, who use them, are not marked properly because part is in Uganda. That would look like a bird which wants to eat grain.

[The Assistant Minister for Education]

undergo post-graduate training in education are given full salary as a graduate teacher during their year of training.

Students completing courses overseas are recruited to the public service, including teaching, by the Directorate of Personnel. The needs of the teaching service are communicated by my Ministry to the Director of Personnel who ensures that the students are aware of the opportunities in this field.

All these activities go on throughout the year as the universities' calendar varies widely from country to country.

Mr. Godla: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell the House how many of the students from the universities, who passed last year, have decided to join the teaching profession as a result of whatever methods his Ministry has used to attract them to join the teaching profession?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I cannot give the exact figure of how many students joined the teaching profession from universities, but I am sure the hon. Member is quite aware that students who complete their post-graduate training very rarely are attracted to this profession. It is perhaps only the students who have completed their School Certificate who are very much interested in teaching.

Mr. Mallada: Arising out of that reply, Mr. Speaker, can the Assistant Minister tell us what his Ministry has done to find out the causes and reasons for these graduate students not joining the teaching profession?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, as I have already stated, we always visit the University of East Africa and we give lectures to students in order to show them the conditions that exist in our Ministry for students who want to take up teaching. However, it is open to them to decide whether to join the teaching profession or not.

Mr. Mallada: Mr. Speaker, my question was, what has the Ministry done to find out the causes which prevent these students from joining the teaching service, and the Assistant Minister has not replied to that. Can he give the reasons?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is a very difficult question because we cannot find out what are the causes. After we interview the students, they do not always indicate why they are not interested in teaching.

Mr. Makokha: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister not agree with me that what the Ministry should do is to improve terms of service, such as the question of one employee improved salaries, etc., because that will automatically attract young men and women to join the Ministry?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, the question of employing teachers does not necessarily rest with the Ministry of Education. This goes through the Public Service Commission and the terms that are set are Government terms and we cannot alter them as a Ministry.

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister has already said that before employing any teachers they go to the university and give lectures. Is the Assistant Minister aware that, after his lecture in the college, the students are being employed and then they do not last a year because they resign? Could he tell us the reasons for their resigning?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I cannot give a specific case where teachers have resigned, then I will be able to deal with that question.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION No. 1065: ENCOURAGING YOUNG PEOPLE TO BECOME TEACHERS

Mr. Godla: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the unsatisfactory reply to this question, may I raise it on adjournment?

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 1085

TEACHERS' HOUSING: IMPROVEMENT OF

Mr. Bly asked the Minister for Education what line the Government had taken as regards improvement of teachers' houses (school premises), especially in primary schools.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The responsibility for primary education lies with local authorities which receive some financial assistance from the Government. As the hon. Member will be aware, the Government is finding itself having to use most of the resources available to expand secondary education and cannot therefore, at this stage, spare any funds to improve classrooms and teachers' houses in primary schools, but the local people, through their local authorities, are no doubt doing what they can, however little, in this direction. In many places, however, parents and local communities could do more through self-help to improve teachers' houses.

[The Assistant Minister for Education]

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister says teachers' houses are the responsibility of the local authorities which receive aid from the Government. Would the Assistant Minister tell us how much aid he gave to various districts in the country for this purpose only?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, I need notice of that question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You cannot expect a complete breakdown throughout the country at this point.

Mr. Bly: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that primary education, particularly when we go to the question of classroom-building, is mainly done by citizens and the Ministry of Education does nothing with regard to this line, would the Assistant Minister assure this House that the Ministry of Education will try and help the local authorities in putting up teachers' houses so that teachers are attracted to join the teaching profession?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Member was listening when I first replied to this question, he would know that that I indicated that the question of improving teachers' houses rests with the local authorities and we, as the Central Government, do give aid to these authorities in that direction. Therefore, the hon. Member was not listening when I answered this question.

Mr. Mata: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Assistant Minister knows very well that the local authorities have plenty to do, could the Government consider having a broad plan to assist with grants and building schemes in a positive way so as to improve the conditions?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sorry I cannot add anything more on that point.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the inability of the Minister to give a definite reply, I would like the Assistant Minister to admit here and now that his Ministry does not give any type of financial grant towards teachers' housing and this is the source of teachers' disappointment in their profession.

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sorry I cannot admit to that allegation. I have already stated that there is a scheme, which the Central Government has contributed to, which gives grants to the local authorities to improve teachers' houses or other conditions in the areas.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister says that there is a grant which is given to assist in the building of teachers' houses. Since the introduction of Graduated Personal Tax, the Central Government has left the educational system and the responsibility, as far as primary schools are concerned to the local authorities and during the whole of last year there was no grant from the Central Government even for the teachers' salaries and that is why we are complaining—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What is your question?

Mr. Omweri: My question is, why is the Assistant Minister telling us lies, saying that there is a grant given to local authorities for building teachers' houses when there was not anything for the whole of last year?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not in order to describe an hon. Member's statements as lies, you may say they are inaccurate.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): On a point of information, Mr. Speaker, the situation is that last year education was entirely in the hands of local governments and they had to find money from within their resources and such funds— This was regionalism and this has now changed and the Government is working out a scheme, because the Government is fully aware that the local authorities will not be able to finance fully the schools and we are therefore trying to work out a scheme whereby we shall be in a position to give grants to schools.

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, accepting, Sir, the explanation given by the Minister for Finance that Government is now realizing the need for giving grants towards teachers' houses, apparently the Assistant Minister, earlier on told us something which is not true, because he said that the Government is already giving grants towards teachers' houses. Could I ask him to withdraw that statement in view of the explanation given by the Minister now?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It does appear to me, Mr. Mutiso, that what you said is not consistent with what the Minister for Finance has said. I must therefore ask you to acknowledge you were wrong or explain.

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, all that I said was that there is a scheme whereby the Government gives grants to the local authorities, but this is not necessarily for houses and it is open

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 981

NUMBER OF AFRICAN DOCTORS AT MACHAKOS

Mr. Ndile asked the Minister for Health and Housing if he could tell the House how many doctors were at Machakos Provincial Hospital at present.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is there no one to answer for the Minister of Health?

Mr. Ngala-Abok is not here for the next question. Mr. Godia. Mr. Amin. Mr. Bly your question.

Question No. 1085

TEACHERS' HOUSING: IMPROVEMENT OF

Mr. Bly asked the Minister for Education if he could tell the House the line which the Government was taking as regards improvement of teachers' houses (school premises) especially in primary schools.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is there anyone authorized by the Ministry of Education to answer this question?

Question No. 2007

RAILWAY: LUMBWA-KISUMU

Mr. Sol asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power if he was aware that the building of a railway line from Limba through Solik-Kisii to Kisumu was overdue.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. No, Sir, I do not agree that a loop line from Lumbwa through Solik and Kisii to Kisumu is overdue. The fact of the matter is that the cost of such a loop is estimated to be about £6½ million and, at the present state of development of those areas through which the line would pass, would be prohibitive and uneconomical and the idea cannot be entertained at the present time.

Mr. Sol: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that the development that has been carried out in Kisii, Solik and most of the rich areas warrant a railway being built there? Is he aware that tea, pyrethrum and milk production is very high there?

Mr. Mwanjumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am aware that development is taking place in Kisii which is referred to by the hon. Member, but the truth is that that development that is taking place does not warrant the expenditure by Government, of £6½ million. Therefore, the Government cannot, and I repeat, cannot, entertain this project.

Mr. Nyalick: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, is he aware that without proper means of communication, development cannot be increased to the standard that is required?

Mr. Mwanjumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am aware of that and the Government is doing everything it can to improve its communications system in the country. But, we have a limit and that is the availability of money.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister then consider tarmac-ing the road from Kericho to Kisii fully?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is another question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is there anyone here to ask or answer a question?

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of my colleague Mr. Ngala-Abok, I would like to ask question No. 1058.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would like to ask hon. Members to be punctual in attendance. It does not add the dignity of the House when Members are not here to ask questions or to answer them.

Question No. 1058

Mr. Ndile: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, this question appeared on a previous Order Paper.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Which question?

Mr. Ndile: 1058.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are quite right. It has evidently been repeated by mistake and should not have been on today's Order Paper.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I have something which I do not know if it is correct or not, and I would like to seek your guidance on it. When we were elected I found that one of the obligations which a Member had to carry out was that they must go to a doctor to satisfy the authorities that he was sane. Now I find that we have been in this House for nearly two years and I have never seen anyone going to a doctor to be checked to see if they are sane or not. Who will justify the insanity of any Member at any time if it is not known whether he is sane or not?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I need notice of that question.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyanjumba): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am in a position to deal with Question No. 981.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Ndile, will you ask your question?

Question No. 981

NUMBER OF AFRICAN DOCTORS AT MACHAKOS

Mr. Ndile asked the Minister for Health and Housing how many African doctors there were at present at Machakos Provincial Hospital.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyanjumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister for Health and Housing, I beg to reply. An African doctor has just been posted to Machakos General Hospital. He is Dr. E. Mwangi. As the hon. Member is aware, there is a shortage of qualified African medical officers in the country at present, but it is considered that with the postings just agreed by the Ministry on 30th March, Machakos General Hospital will be well staffed.

Mr. amp Sol: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister state that other doctors, who are not Africans, will not be discharged at any time because they are very useful to this country? That Africans should not be brought to replace others because we know these white doctors are very useful to us?

Mr. Nyanjumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government has no intention of replacing white doctors until such time we have enough doctors.

Mr. Sono: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the original reply from the Assistant Minister, the question here says, "How many African doctors are at Machakos Provincial Hospital at present," and not about posting an African there. Could the Minister tell us how many African doctors there are at Machakos Hospital?

Mr. Nyanjumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not going to do simple arithmetic for the hon. Member. An African doctors has just been posted there.

Mr. Sono: So you mean to say there is one?

Mr. G. G. Karuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the Assistant Minister's replies, he has just stated that there is a shortage of doctors in the country, is he aware that there are many African qualified doctors who are now resigning from Government due to the very low salaries given to them?

Mr. Nyanjumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, any person is free to join the Public Service of the Republic of Kenya, and any civil servant who has so joined or any public servant who has joined the service of the Republic of Kenya is at liberty to resign.

Question No. 1065

ENCOURAGING YOUNG PEOPLE TO BECOME TEACHERS

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Education whether he would tell the House what his Ministry had done this year to attract more young men and women from colleges to join the teaching profession.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Each year a Ministry of Education official gives a talk year to students approaching their final degree examinations in the University of East Africa telling them of the opportunities for training and employment in teaching. An official of my Ministry visited Makerere College for this purpose last month. Students who decide to

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kiuno): On a point of explanation, Mr. Speaker. I draw the Member's attention to section 12 (b) which says that the tribunal shall have power "to determine or vary the rent to be payable in respect of any tenancy, having regard to all the circumstances thereof". In other words, if you have entered into an agreement of tenancy and if you later, because of other circumstances, want the rent to be reconsidered by the tribunal, it can be reconsidered.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, I am very happy to hear that because now I can see that the tribunal will be kept very busy because no one is paying a rent that is reasonable at the moment, as far as I know.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also want to get a little information from the Minister on a certain category of people who are not covered in this Bill. These are private hospitals. These are not dwelling houses, nor are they restaurants or shops. There are so many small private hospitals which are doing a lot to relieve many patients who would have been forced to go to already congested Government hospitals and other very expensive private hospitals. These people are also being exploited by landlords. I know of a particular case and I even took the Minister for Health to see what this man was doing. In fact, the hospital was 90 per cent used by Africans and this gentleman was charging a very, very small amount to the Africans, but his biggest suffering is that every time the landlord comes and sees that he has many patients, he then increases the rent. In one year I think he has increased it three times: that is, when he sees the volume of patients rising, then he increases the rent. The Minister promised him that he would control the rent, but the Bill has come and I do not see any clause which will help such a man. I hope that when the Minister replies, he will include these people who are renting private hospitals, so that they are also covered because the Government encourages them to establish these small hospitals like private schools, in order to relieve the pressure on the Government hospitals, and if they are not protected by the Rent Bill, then I think they will be forced to close.

With those few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support this Bill and say a few words.

First, I am glad that the Minister is determined and intends to do away with the good-will money, because very many people have been harassed by landlords over this question of goodwill money, and it is a very progressive step that the Minister is taking in getting rid of this in the Bill. However, I think it is very unfortunate that the Minister has not considered the necessity for covering the initial agreement between a tenant and landlord, because the harassing attitude of the landlords is very persistent and I think many people will be exploited on the initial agreement. I take it that later on people could appeal, but if the people want to appeal later on, they will be very much inclined to keep quiet, rather than appealing and being evicted from the premises. Therefore, I would have liked the Minister to start with a classification of the trading premises, whether a bar, a restaurant or a shop, and have a flat average rate of trading, so that people have a rough idea—they may vary in small figures—to guide them, so that the initial figure is fixed and it is helpful to many people. The fact that the Minister has left out the initial figure, I think, has perpetuated exploitation between the tenants and the landlords. As I say, I take the point that the Minister has made, that later on people could appeal, but the Minister is a businessman himself or has been one, or is connected somehow, and he knows the fears that a businessman can have of being evicted from trading premises if he complains.

Therefore, I would like the Minister to be practical in feeling for the traders and for the people who run the restaurants, so that he can have a system or a scheme whereby the initial agreement can be done by classification depending very much on the size of the trading premises, the equipment which is affixed to the premises. I know it involves a bit of work on his officers by way of inspection and so on, but in the interests of the traders this is very important.

As the hon. Mr. Jahazi has indicated, there are many traders who are charged rents that are not at all related to the profits of the business. If there is an agreement, this will be helpful because then whatever the body that will be charged with the work of classifying the premises and fixing the average rates will consider the kind of business that would be carried out in the different places. Therefore, a fixed rate which is appropriate to the type of business that will be conducted in certain places must be charged. Mr. Speaker, Sir, as you know, the profits in such trading undertakings are very small and they have to be gauged very carefully so as to enable the people to gain something. Most of the traders are just people who are working day and night for the landlords. To avoid this, I think the Government should go further and not fear

(Mr. Ngala) making a decision in this important matter in order to get the first agreement clearly fixed in the interests of both sides.

The second point is that I would like to differ from the Member for Majoge-Bassi who has given me the impression that this Bill is a robber's Bill. This Bill is not a robber's Bill. The Minister does not intend to take away other people's buildings or other people's trading places. There are some Members, Sir, who go about giving the impression that Africans will get something for nothing. I think these Members are deceiving the public, and it is high time that we stopped giving this kind of impression. We must stop giving the idea that we shall get something for nothing; we must give the idea that we shall get nothing for nothing. We must work hard, sweat hard, for everything that we want to get. To tell the people that the Minister could have powers to take away other people's trading places is a very irresponsible attitude to be expressed in this House. We know, Sir, quite definitely, that the Minister has put forward a Bill which concerns private property mainly, and as such, it must be respected according to the Constitution and, therefore, there is no question of taking it away just because someone has gone to the United Kingdom for a holiday, or for studies, or someone has gone to Pakistan or to the United States. It remains his business to keep his property and make the appropriate negotiations according to the law. Therefore, those hon. Members who go about preaching the gifts and free trading premises are wrong as it is high time they stopped this. If they have anything to give free they should start in their own constituencies.

The third point is the question of depreciation of buildings. I would like to know whether the Minister would give powers to these tribunals to rerate the rates according to the depreciation of buildings. We have seen some traders who stay in buildings—from the time they first started there—for thirty years and they pay the same rent; sometimes it is increased as the years go on. Now, some of the buildings are old and have very little value. According to the length of time some buildings are only worth Sh. 1 or Sh. 2 but although the building itself, arithmetically, is worth Sh. 1 to the builder he is charging a lot of money every month. This, Sir, is contrary to commercial exercise. I am sure the Minister is aware of this because he is knowledgeable in the field of commerce and, therefore, I think he should consider some areas where the buildings have become so old and ragged that they have become out of date. These tribunal courts should be given powers to reduce the rents so that they can be adjusted according to the time and place. We have an example in Mombasa where landlords have a habit of ganging up in order to allow members of their own community to take up premises. This has stopped African butchers, for example, from making any headway in Mombasa because certain landlords have done that and they are determined to refuse Africans taking up premises for business. I think the Minister, in this Bill, should have given himself powers to specifically deal with a group of people who call themselves landlords—they were given the land during the colonial days, years ago—who are taking the advantage of ganging up and refusing the Africans participation in the business. The Minister should have taken up this point in this Bill and made specific provision to empower himself or his officers to look around, take stock of what is going on, and where applications are submitted, the people who have less opportunity in particular trades should be given first priority in admission into business premises. I have given butchers in Mombasa as one example but there are many other examples of which the Minister is in the know and these should be gone into.

My fourth point, Sir, is this question of £6,500—I think, I heard—of extra expenditure here. I would like to know exactly the items on which this expenditure is going to be incurred because I, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the Minister has already a department which can deal with this kind of Bill and if this is a question of paying sitting allowances to the tribunal court members, then we should be told how this figure of £6,500 was arrived at. I presume it is an annual figure.

The next point—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is going to be a long point, Mr. Ngala? If so, you might like to break off now and continue next time.

Mr. Ngala: Yes, Sir, I would like to break off now.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time now for the interruption of business and the House is therefore adjourned until tomorrow, Friday, 23rd April at 9 a.m.

The House rose at thirty minutes past six o'clock.

[Mr. Anyien]

well that some of our people are not very acquainted with such things—does not know how much he can pay and still get profit so as to continue with business. If a man like that is swindled through ignorance, that man later on, after he has discovered that what he is paying is too much, should be able to report to the Minister, and this tribunal should be able to fix the maximum rent which the landlord can demand. If this is included in the Bill—and I see the Minister is looking at it—because I did not see it when I was looking at the Bill, then I will thank the Minister very much for including it. If it is not included, then I would like my Minister to look into it.

Now, Mr. Speaker, to talk of landlords, I, at one time, went with the then Assistant Minister to the Ministry of Health to some houses, very close to Embakasi airport. These houses were in a terrible condition, but the people who are working at the airport are renting these houses and these houses were told belonged to the Ministry of Works. Now, honestly, if we are going to legislate for other landlords—

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Member in order in talking about houses when this Bill is on business premises?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. I was just on the point of saying so. You are quite right, Mr. Ngala, this Bill deals with shops, hotels and catering establishments.

Mr. Anyien: Mr. Speaker, I think my hon. former Leader of the Opposition wants to speak and so I do not want to go much further.

I would like to say that the Government should be able to make sure that if the Local Government has buildings, they must also be subjected to a thing like this. For example, Mr. Speaker, in the City Council there were houses which were built for people to live in. Later on, because whoever was planning did not make provision for shops and for bars and for places where people can get meat, these buildings which were originally intended to be houses for people to live in were converted into shops. You will find that, for example, any person who wants to sell fish and may not be able to sell enough fish in order to pay the rent, will be asked to pay so much money that it becomes difficult.

I hope that the Government will go further and will control even the local authorities whose premises will not be good enough. I would here like also to say that places like Mbagwu, where there are some very bad premises which are used as shops and some of these are under the City Council, the Government should take immediate steps to demolish these places so that when they approach the private landlords the landlords will not in turn point at the Government's places and say, "You are doing this to me, but look at your own premises. My premises in comparison with yours are much better." This will not give Government the power to remove people.

So, with these few words, Mr. Speaker, I would like strongly to support the Bill and I do hope that it will not take very many days of discussion here. It should be passed. All I would like to ask my Minister is that this Bill should work retrospectively for one year so that when next time the Minister gives a warning to any of these people, action can be taken if they do not comply.

With these few words, I beg to support the Bill.

Mr. Jahazi: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, Sir, and I would like to say that I welcome this Bill as the one that the whole country has been waiting for and as the Minister well knows he gave us his assurance the other day that the Bill is on the way, and we are very happy to welcome it to this House today.

One thing I would like to comment upon is that while I support the Bill very strongly I would have thought that the Bill would have covered every type of house, dining house, hotels and shops, because the present one only covers half way, and it is not only the businessman who suffers in this country now, it is only the people who are renting these private houses are also great sufferers and they are also being exploited day and night. So whether the Minister will bring out another Bill to cover—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The position is that, in a debate on a Second Reading, we are limited to the scope of the Bill as it stands, and the scope of this Bill as it stands does not include residential premises. If an hon. Member feels residential premises should be included, and could be the scope should be enlarged, and could be enlarged, then there is procedure, whereby he can move for a Special Instruction to the Committee to consider expanding the scope of the Bill to include residential premises.

Mr. Jahazi: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir, for your guidance, and I think the Minister has no objection to the inclusion of that and therefore I think that after the Second Reading we will follow the procedure you have just mentioned.

*Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to comment on the points raised by the Minister here—

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, you ruled that in this particular respect Members are restricted to speaking according to the scope of that Bill. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thought that when a Bill was being discussed in the Second Reading that that was when Members could bring in some suggestions, and if the Minister sees them as worth anything then he can include them himself to introduce this amendment when it comes to the Third Reading.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is so, as long as the amendment suggested by the hon Member or by the Minister is still within the scope of the Bill. You see, many amendments can be made which are within the broad scope of the Bill. In this Bill, dealing with shops and hotels, many amendments could be made in the Bill which are within the scope of the Bill. It is quite common, in a debate of a Second Reading, to suggest amendments within that scope to be made in Committee. But even the Minister himself could not move in Committee amendments which extended beyond the scope of the Bill, unless the House has passed a Special Instruction to the Committee to consider enlarging the Bill. That is done by Motion for a Special Instruction, after the Bill has been read a Second Time to extend the limited scope which has been approved in principle by the Second Reading.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to comment upon what the Minister has just told us in his speech introducing this Bill. I would have expected the Minister to give some reference to the tribunal, which will hear the appeals where only a certain basic condition should be followed when they come to consider the right in a case, because I do not know what type of people they will be, whether they will be very experienced people who know about ratings and how to charge for the rents, whether they will be laymen like me or whether they will be landlords. I really do not know. However, I see the danger whereby laymen will be put on a job of which they have no experience about. The Minister has not given any basic guidance on which conditions they will base their judgment. When the Minister replies, we would like to know what type these people will be and what guidance, if any, they will have from the Ministry in considering whether the rents are reasonable or not.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister said that when a businessman or somebody goes to rent a house he agrees on a certain rental to be paid monthly, then he cannot appeal afterwards because he had agreed originally to that rent. Mr. Speaker, I want to warn the Minister about the danger that there are so many tricks which have been formulated just to keep the African away from the very business areas, and if an African wants a shop in a certain area, of course when it comes to the agreement the landlord has the right to name any amount. If this man really wants that place, he will of course agree to that rent, although he may know that it is excessive, because if he does not he will not get it. If there is no chance for that man to appeal, after one month it is wrong, because if there were a chance for him to appeal, he would say, "All right, if you are charging the Sh. 1,000, I agree," and then after one month he would go to the tribunal and say that he agreed but that was forced to do so because if he agreed but that he would not have got the shop. But if the Minister says that if somebody agrees to a certain figure, then that figure cannot be taken to the tribunal, then, Mr. Speaker, I would ask the Minister to reconsider that point when he comes to reply.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when the Minister was giving warnings to the landlords not to increase rents, as far as one year back, he was doing it in a very tough manner and we expected him to be very tough on the landlords, but now, Mr. Speaker, there is no mention as to whether that standstill in rents would be affected, because I still remember, Mr. Speaker, when the Minister was giving warnings to landlords not to increase a single cent until this Bill comes out, but the landlords took that opportunity to increase rents, knowing very well that the Minister may bring something to cut down the rents. They knew that the Bill would perhaps take one year, and they realized that by the time the Bill comes the rents will be so high and the present amount people are paying will be regarded as standard. If people agreed to the rents they are paying now, they cannot take these cases to the tribunal because most tenants must sign an agreement for one year, two years or three. If these people are committed to their present high rents, then this Bill will not be effective at all because any this Bill will not be effective at all because any one, before he moves into a shop, must agree that he will pay a certain amount per month and if it is excessive, of course he has no way to if it is excessive, of course he has no way to take that landlord to the tribunal. So I do not take that the Minister will bring these blood-suckers to the tribunal which he has set up, because on one hand he has opened the door for people to take their grievances to these tribunals or courts and on the other hand he has closed the door because anyone who has already closed the door cannot take the case to the tribunal, unless I misunderstood him. I will be prepared to get a little explanation from the Minister because I see him rising to explain.

[The Minister for Commerce and Industry] in rent book. In this rent book, he will put down all the conditions involved, as well as the relationship between the tenant and the landlord. We also felt that some type of conditions should be considered in the verbal or written agreement between the tenant and the landlord. One of them, for example, is that the lessor shall not depart from his agreement by using adjoining land or premises in a way which would render the leased premises less valuable for the purpose for which they were let. In other words, somebody may rent you a shop and then when he wants you to go he can create such situations so that you will have no alternative but to leave. We feel that that kind of a situation should not be allowed, and we feel that this should be an implied condition of the tenants and landlord agreement. There was a clause that the premises should be in accordance with the health requirements of our country and that, if by accident, buildings were destroyed by fire or accident or such other situations, the lessee should not be expected to pay until such time as the premises have been repaired and made habitable and useable again. We have such implied conditions to make sure that whether the agreement is verbal or not, these conditions will be considered as binding.

Now, what we have felt is this. Generally speaking, a tenant wants a certain building and he is willing to pay a certain amount of money, and the landlord is willing to let him have that building for that amount of money. The agreement is made if the tenant is willing to pay and the landlord is willing to accept that amount of money. But, if tomorrow the landlord wants to increase the rent, then this is where we come in and we say no. If the tenant wants to object he can then appeal to a tribunal and say that they agreed on such and such a sum, and that he cannot pay a higher sum. Would the tribunal look into this matter?

The tribunal is given very wide powers even in determining the rent when such controversies do arise. Now, it has not been necessary to make this law applicable to every village in this country and every township in this country. Therefore the Minister in charge is empowered to define definite areas in which this law will apply and areas in which it will not apply if it is felt, for example, that nobody is raising any building in village X in Muranga or in Kisii, then you do not therefore have to set up a tribunal which will have no complaints at all. This is to enable the Government to set up tribunals in those areas where we think it is absolutely necessary to have a tribunal to look into this matter.

Now, one other point which I wanted to draw the Member's attention to is that it will cost the Government a small sum of money, about 16,500. It took us time to try and work out figures in our various budgets to be able to provide for this sum because the tribunals would have to be paid. Although there may be very small fees to be paid by those who take their cases to the tribunals, nevertheless Government must also be prepared to meet that additional expenditure.

I think, Mr. Speaker, that these are the main points which I would like to bring to the notice of the House and I beg to move that this Bill be read a Second Time.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Okello-Odongo) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Anyleni: Mr. Speaker, if there is a Bill which we have for a long time waited to discuss, this is the Bill. Though I do not very often congratulate this particular Minister for his Bills, I must congratulate him for this particular one because I think he has received some complaints from some of our African brothers who also would like to reap the fruits of independence by participating in business. But, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that the Minister should have made the Bill go further. The tribunal should not merely decide how much money an individual is going to have. We have situations, for example, in Tanzania where the Government is all the time giving warnings to people like this. These people have not done anything. What I would have liked the Bill to do is that if there is any notorious—and I hope the Minister is listening to this—landlord who has any discriminations—and these discriminations are there—for example, I know in Kisii District, some shops which Asians used to rent. They used to pay about Sh. 300 per month. When the Asians left and Africans wanted to rent this building, they were asked to pay Sh. 600. Of course, he also wanted to come to town and do business, so he had to pay Sh. 600 or he could not do business. We would like to know whether the decisions of the tribunal could demand a man like that should repay all the money which he has received for the last, say, one year. In other words, Mr. Speaker, I am indirectly asking the Minister to think of ways and means of making this Bill work retrospectively so that some of our people who have been exploited, from the time the Minister gave the warning, will be able to recover their money back. The Minister gave all these people a warning—I think he gave it during the warning quite early—at the time of independence and some of the landlords have been trying to [Mr. Anyleni] collect as much money from people who stay at their places as possible. The Minister should disappoint these people by allowing the Bill to work backwards about one year or two years so that some of that money which they have collected, ignoring the appeal of the Minister, will be taken back and repaid to the owners. If the owners are people who have already gone to some other countries, then that money can remain in the Government's hand to help the Government to provide some services.

Mr. Speaker, we would like also to know if there are some people who do not want to listen to what Government is saying. We would like Government to take the steps that the Tanzania Government have said they will take, that is, if there is a notorious man, a notorious landlord who does not want to listen, Government will take over his building and will rent it to somebody themselves. This, I think, would let some of these notorious characters who own buildings know that it is better for them to receive a little bit of money per month than to receive too much, so that the Minister for Commerce and Industry will come and take over the whole thing.

Another thing the Bill should have done was to make sure that we do not have one man owning all the buildings in Nairobi, and that very man staying say, in Bombay or London. I do not think there are very many of them from New York, I do not think there are. They have not done enough here, they came only recently. I think that some of these landlords stay in Bombay, in Karachi, and so on and in London, and even in South Africa. My hon. Member is reminding me, thank you very much. The Bill should be able to stipulate that if the owner of the building is not a citizen of the country, and he has already gone away from the country, then the tribunal should have the power to take over some of these buildings so that Government will rent them to the people, then the Government will have money to provide services. For example, Mr. Speaker, that money could be given to my Minister for Social Services so that he can help some of our followers who are sometimes very hard hit.

Mr. Speaker, when I say this some people may say, "Oh, well, he is probably jealous of these people and their buildings." But it is not fair for a landlord who was here, let us say, thirty years ago, who has gone to India and he may have died, and some relative of his has taken over, to ask money from Kenya every month. My Minister is staying in his house, he is paying

Sh. 1,000 and every month this money goes through Barclays Bank or through the Standard Bank back to India." This is not fair, not fair at all. We think that our Government should make sure that we do not have our money going out all the time. I hear one hon. Member saying that some of this money goes to China. I would like to know what part of China he is talking about. If he is talking about Taiwan, I do not know if it has anything here of that sort. If he is talking of the mainland of China, I do not think the Chinese have any buildings here. I do not think they are the landlords of any buildings here, and unless he wants to create a fear of the Chinese, or unless the Member has a particular hate for the Chinese, he must be able to say so. I do not think they have any property here. I do not think even anybody should blame the Americans because they do not have enough buildings here around Nairobi which we rent. These are buildings normally owned by people who have now gone, probably, to South Africa or to India or to London.

I saw that when I was speaking the Minister was nodding his head, and I hope that with the approval of this House, the Minister will be able to introduce some amendment which will make sure that if a person has a building and that person has decided that he is not going to become a Kenya citizen, he is given two or three or five years to get money out of his building. After that, that building must belong to the Kenya Government so that it can rent it or can give it to an Assistant Minister who does not have a house. I do not think anybody should say that this is expropriation.

Also some of the buildings Government can rent to the Members of this House who are staying in hotels and are paying bills which are far too high, and sometimes they cannot afford to pay them.

The Minister has said, Mr. Speaker, that if a tenant was accepted into a building and the agreement was that he should pay, say, Sh. 200, and then after three months without any notice, without negotiations, he is meant to pay Sh. 600. This matter could be brought to the tribunal. I think the Bill should go further because what the tenant and the landlord have agreed upon is here. The Minister should also be able to recognize that sometimes an African in the countryside works very hard and gets about Sh. 20,000. He is not very acquainted with what is going on in town, so when he goes to an Asian and tells him he would like to have a shop there, the Asian may tell him, "You pay Sh. 1,000." This African—and my Minister must also know very the Member on this particular amendment Motion which was moved by the hon. Member for Gichoya, I would request that we call upon the Mover to reply.

Mr. Anylenk: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think there is some misunderstanding. I have had a few Members asking what point we are discussing now. I think we are discussing the Bill which has to do with evicting people from the land who have failed to pay their debt. Is that all? Now what amendment are we discussing the original amendment as proposed by Government or are we discussing an amendment as proposed by another Member?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We are at present, as I explained discussing the amendment moved by Mr. Gichoya which would have the effect of killing the Bill. The actual question before the House is that the word "now" be left out of the question. I do not think I should allow the House to consider the closure immediately. I must hear if Members still want to speak on this.

Mr. Anylenk: Mr. Speaker, on the day we were discussing this, very many Members did support the hon. Gichoya for his move of killing the Bill and we accepted the suggestion from the Vice-President that this Bill should be put back for another date.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry, Mr. Anylenk, you have already spoken on this, have you not?

Mr. Anylenk: I am speaking on the adjournment of the Motion not on the Bill.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): For the third time, I have told the House that the question now before the House is that the word "now" be left out of the question the amendment, not the Motion. We have finished with the adjournment. The debate was adjourned, and it is now being continued. Mr. Anylenk seconded this amendment.

If no other Member wishes to speak I have first of all to put the question of the amendment.

(Question of the first part of the amendment that the word "now" proposed to be left out, be left out put and negatived)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I now have to propose the original question, that the Agriculture (Amendment) Bill be now read a Second Time. (Resumption of debate on original Motion)

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order,

Mr. Speaker, since we spent quite a lot of time debating this question, could I move that the Mover be called upon to reply?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If no other Member wished to speak on the amendment, I think that is quite reasonable for the House now to consider the closure.

Mr. Anylenk: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when we spoke last time we were speaking on the amendment, but did we speak on the Bill?

An hon. Member: Yes.

Mr. Anylenk: It is for the Speaker to reply, not for any hon. Member.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are quite right, as I have said many times, that when a point of order is raised, the House will remain silent until it is answered. There is no dignity in this House otherwise.

When an amendment is moved, it is for the Speaker to say whether or not it is to be treated as part of the debate on the main question, or that any Member can speak both on the amendment and the main question, but not speak more than once. Or, it can be treated as something separate, in which case the debate is confined strictly to the actual amendment, but Members may speak again on the main question. Now, in this case, where the amendment is actually a negative of the main question, that which means that Members speaking on the amendment can speak on the Bill, but they can not speak again after we have disposed of the amendment. So, those who have spoken on the amendment cannot speak again.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): I will put my question again, that the Mover be called upon to reply under Stopping Orders.

(Question put and agreed to)

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to thank the hon. Members for this amendment they have taken in the debate on this Bill, because the amendment subject of land, is leading to a very interesting thing, and it is regarded as a very important view that is appreciated by the Government the views that the hon. Members have aired in this House, and those points that have been aired have been noted and some of them will be considered. It is very important, Mr. Speaker, that since all the money with which we are operating the settlement has been borrowed from other

[The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement] countries, this money should be repaid. This money cannot be repaid if our people to whom this money is lent, and who this money is helping, do not repay it. It is very difficult for the Government to repay the money to the foreign Governments from which the money has been borrowed, and this is precisely what we want to do. This money is also intended for the operation of for the assistance of other settlement schemes, and the assistance of a Revolving Fund and that is why I ask the hon. Members to appreciate our position and the position of the Government so that this Bill may be passed, and so that the operations of the settlement may continue and we may help more people.

Once again, Mr. Speaker, I would like to repeat that I thank the hon. Member who brought into this House several points that probably the Government was not aware of, and my Ministry was not aware of, and I can assure the hon. Members that most probably the most important points that have been raised in this debate by hon. Members will be very seriously considered.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the whole House tomorrow)

BILL

Second Reading

THE LANDLORD AND TENANT (SHOPS, HOTELS AND CATERING ESTABLISHMENTS) BILL

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Dr. Kioko): Mr. Speaker Sir, I beg to move that the Landlord and Tenant (Shops, Hotels and Catering Establishments) Bill be read a Second Time.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I fully appreciate the feelings of many Members of the House for what will be charged later as lateness in introducing this Bill to the House. It was nearly a year ago when my Ministry appointed a working party to look into this question of rent, and to examine the complaints by many tenants that they were being exploited. This working party consisted mainly of some representatives from the business community as well as Government officers, and they did find that there was a need for re-introducing some form of rent control in our country. They recommended, therefore, that the rent control which was passed previously should be re-introduced with some amendments to it.

Mr. Speaker, it is important to know why it was felt that this rent control should be introduced. When the working party's report was received by my Ministry it was put to the Government and the Government accepted the recommendation. Some of the reasons why we felt that this should be done is that, that when people were looking for premises to let, they were often asked to pay what is known as goodwill money. In some cases, this goodwill money could be as much as Sh. 25,000. Now, I am informed by an hon. Member that they are still paying, and we hope that when this Bill is enacted this practice will come to an end. When we inquired why somebody should pay up to Sh. 25,000 cash, the purpose of this could not be explained except for goodwill or to enable them to get particular premises. This could be construed quite legally as a form of bribery or corruption. Furthermore, it was very difficult for the poor tenants to be able to produce such a large sum of money and then continue to pay rent which was not very low.

Then we come across a situation whereby in one month one tenant would be asked to pay Sh. 150, and the following month without any notice of it going up, the tenant was told to pay Sh. 200. In one case, in December last year somebody was asked to pay Sh. 1,500 and the following January he was asked to pay 2,000. Of course, when he failed to pay this sum it meant immediate eviction. We have felt, therefore, that if we do not intervene in these situations, the tenant will find himself in many difficulties.

Furthermore, Mr. Speaker, in some cases the agreement between the tenant and the landlord was verbal, and it was never quite agreed as to what they agreed upon. Therefore, at the end of the month when the landlord demanded some money, the tenant said that the landlord had not mentioned that much, and the landlord said that that was what he had asked for, and so there was an argument. Following the argument, there came the eviction and bad relationships between the tenant and the landlord. We do not think that the landlords are wrong, neither do we think that the tenants are right. But, a situation has existed in our country whereby generally speaking the tenant was the sufferer.

We have, therefore, decided on a number of points, which I hope that the Members on reading the Bill, and also the report made to my Ministry by the party working party, will fully understand. In one of them, to avoid this sort of thing, we have felt that each landlord should

[The Attorney-General]

The hon. Member asked whether the Electoral Commission's recommendation would be implemented before the next dissolution of Parliament. The answer is that clause 10 (6) requires the Commission to make a review this year. If Parliament is not dissolved sooner, it will stand dissolved on 7th June 1968. That will allow two and a half years for the recommendation to be implemented.

The independence Constitution was a large and complex document. Now that it is being amended for the third time, it is in some ways even more difficult to find out what it does say and what it does not say. Most of the anxieties of the hon. Members have now been cleared away by the explanation of exactly what the Constitution does now say. I trust that hon. Members are reassured that the safeguards of our liberties in the Constitution are intact and that the authority of Parliament under the Constitution is now higher than ever before.

I might, before I conclude, Mr. Deputy Speaker, perhaps refer to the question which was raised by the hon. Mr. Khalif on the question of the Senate and the rotation.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair.]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

If the hon. Mr. Khalif will remember, the position of the Senators and the way that they rotate was passed by this House last December; in fact, we had a very lively and heated debate in the Senate and the Senate passed that Bill. It is now an Act. The reason why you see it in this document is so that when we come to revise the whole Constitution that part of it will fall in line with the rest of the document. If it were not put here, you would probably find it at the end of the book. It is merely to codify and provide for sequence, so that you run from one to ten instead of jumping from one to six and then twenty, etc. That is why it is here. It is already law and what has taken place in the Senate is legal and constitutional.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I look forward to the day, not too far distant, I hope, when I can present the Constitution to Parliament for approval in one concise and readable document. This Bill is an important step in that direction and I trust that all Members will therefore give it their full support.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that some hon.

Members made reference to the method of election of the President I would like to enquire if the Attorney-General forgot to bring to questions raised by hon. Members?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You cannot really raise that as a point of order, Hon. Members cannot raise points of order on what they think the Minister should have answered, or the Mover should have commented on but has left unanswered.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, if I might say this to the hon. Members: the question of the President and the election is now law and was passed last December. I know there have been comments and views about the way that the President should be elected but that is already law and I am afraid it is not touched under this particular Bill.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I now have to put the question which is, that the Constitution of Kenya (Amendment) Bill be now read a Second Time.

DIVISION CALLED

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): This being a Bill which can only be passed with a majority of 75 per cent of all voting Members of this House, which is actually ninety-seven Members as we stand now, I cannot take the Ayes and Noes orally. I have to direct a Division.

Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung.)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before we go any further I would like to make sure that we have at least ninety-seven Members present otherwise the Division would be abortive. Can the Clerk tell me the number present? I will wait until a check has been made.

Mr. Kilunga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would it be in order for you Sir, to allow the Chief Government Whip, because he has been out calling people? He must be somewhere around, but does not seem to be here.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, that would not be in order unless we are short of the minimum required for the Division.

It appears that we do not have the minimum number to make the Division effective at all. I think we will open the doors and Bar again and ring the Division Bell for a few more minutes.

Ring the Division Bell for another five minutes.

(The Division Bell was rung again.)

The Speaker (Mr. Speaker): Order, order. Lock the doors and close the Bar. We will count again to see if we have the minimum number required to make the Division effective.

Mr. Gatuguta: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when some Member is summoned out of the House to remain outside for a stated period, can anything be done to bring him back at such a time?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I am afraid not. Hon. Members may sometimes be expelled from the Chamber but they can never be forced to come into the Chamber.

I understand that we have not yet got the minimum requirement of ninety-seven Members, and in that case we cannot proceed to a Division in this particular case. I think the only thing to do is to postpone the Division until a fixed time. I think the best time would be to have it on the Order Paper immediately after Questions on Tuesday next, the 27th April.

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I rise for your guidance. When the House fails to get the appropriate percentage on a major issue like this, at the appropriate time when you call for it, does it not die naturally and, therefore, the amendment is negatived?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have had to face this question before, and it is a good one. The Constitution provides that the Bill cannot be carried unless it is supported by a specific percentage of all Members. So, I feel we are not taking a proper vote at all until we have at least that percentage in the House. The moment you have that percentage in the House then, of course, the fact that one of two of that percentage may vote against the Bill would not be justification for delay. But it is so obviously abortive if at the start we do not have the requisite number of Members. I think I am right in giving the House an opportunity of obtaining the minimum to make a vote possible, constituting, as it were, a special quorum for this purpose.

(Taking of Division deferred.)

BILLSecond Reading

THE AGRICULTURE (AMENDMENT) BILL
(Minister for Lands and Settlement on 3rd March 1965)

(Resumption of debate on first part of the amendment that the word "now" be left out interrupted on 4th March 1965)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members will recall that in the previous stage of the debate on the Second Reading, Mr. Gichoya had proposed an amendment that the word "now" be left out of the question and that the words "upon this day six months hence" be added. The question proposed before the House was, the first part of that amendment, that the word proposed to be left out be left out of the question.

The debate was adjourned on the Motion of Mr. Odinga and, according to the rules of procedure, Mr. Odinga, as he successfully moved the adjournment, is entitled to speak now if he wants to speak at all.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): Mr. Speaker, we actually requested the adjournment in order to give the Members a chance to meet and discuss this particular amendment Bill which the Ministry concerned and by now I am sure that the discussions have reached a stage where we can continue with the Bill—

Mr. Rurumban: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker: In view of the fact that we failed to get a sufficient percentage to pass the Bill and some of us are to leave for Great Britain, probably on Friday, may I seek your guidance as to what will happen now with regard to the journey?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. I am afraid I cannot rule on what arrangements hon. Members have made for their movements outside this House. I am only concerned with what numbers we require to obtain for particular business. It is for the hon. Member to decide whether or not his presence on Division is more important than the journey he has in mind.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): May I comment on that also, Mr. Speaker?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think not, Mr. Odinga. Not now. Outside the House perhaps you will advise Mr. Rurumban.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): So, Mr. Speaker, as I only interrupted the debate which was going on on the question of actually putting off the Bill for six months. I think that there is very little that I can add, but I only thank the hon. Members for having considered it and having actually been able to see eye to eye with us on this particular very important amendment Bill and therefore without wasting the time of

[The Attorney-General]

I now turn to Chapter XII on the Judiciary, Parliament, and the Government are equally anxious to maintain the independence of Judges. This the Government has done and will continue to do inside and outside the Constitution. All we have done in this Bill is to abolish appeals to a Court in Britain called the Privy Council or the Judicial Committee. Everyone accepts that this must be done. By the same token we must cease to use the Judicial Committee as a tribunal to consider any allegation of misbehaviour by our own Judges. I wish to emphasize that this change is made in the Constitution by this Bill to weaken the independence of the Judges of Kenya. A Judge of the High Court, as it will in future be called if this Bill is passed, can only be removed from office on the recommendation of a tribunal of not less than three Judges or former Judges of equal or higher standing than the Judge in question. No other changes of any substance are made to the chapter in the Constitution on the Judiciary.

In the debate on this Bill, Parliament has been particularly sensitive, and not unreasonably so, about its own position. The Bill does affect the powers of Parliament in three respects. Firstly, in relation to the power of Parliament to ratify a declaration of emergency under section 29. Secondly, in relation to the power of Parliament to amend the Constitution under section 71, and thirdly, in relation to the power of Provincial Councils to make laws generally, and particularly in regard to Trust land. If these powers are carefully examined, it will be seen that in each case the real effect of the amendment is to increase the sovereignty of Parliament; and not to diminish it.

Firstly, in the matter of an emergency, the Constitution is limiting the sovereignty of Parliament to the extent that only 65 per cent of all the Members voting together can ratify an emergency. The purpose of this was not to protect the people against a dictatorial Government, it was to protect Majimbo against Parliament, so that an emergency would not lightly be used to curb the powers of the regions. Even now the votes of 51 per cent of all the Members will be required to maintain a state of emergency. It is most unusual for a Constitution, except where the rights of federal states or regions are being protected, to require emergency Government action to be ratified by more than a simple majority. Why should we not have as much faith in our Parliament as any other country has?

The other amendment to section 29 is that the Government should be allowed twenty-one days in which to convene Parliament, instead of seven days. I am sure that hon. Members will appreciate from their Parliamentary experience that seven days is too short a period. Some hon. Members may feel that fourteen days is sufficient but if fourteen days is justifiable, do hon. Members really feel that an extra seven days is going to enable any Government to delay Parliament? Because unless Parliament is put out of action, no state of emergency can lawfully continue for more than twenty-one days without the approval of this Parliament.

The second amendment affecting Parliament is the proposal that all amendments of the Constitution under section 71 should be capable of being made with the support of 65 per cent of all the Members of both Houses of the National Assembly. Here again the proposal is to increase the power or sovereignty of Parliament and to reduce the extent to which that sovereignty is limited by the written Constitution. The requirement of 75 per cent and 90 per cent majorities was intended primarily to protect Majimbo and, secondly, to protect those provisions which safeguard the fundamental rights and independence of the judiciary. In the case of an unpopular conception like Majimbo, one can see the point of trying to protect it by requiring 75 per cent and 90 per cent majorities, but in the case of fundamental rights and an independent judiciary, if those rights and principles are not popular with 65 per cent of all the hon. Members, how long will it be before they become unpopular with 75 per cent or even 90 per cent of the House? Why should we not trust 65 per cent of all the hon. Members as other countries do?

The third set of amendments affecting Parliament should not be anything but welcome to a Parliament which has pride in its sovereignty. The proposed new sections 102 and 102A provide that Parliament shall decide what powers the Provincial Councils shall have and that, where the Constitution confers power to make a law on the Provincial Councils, Parliament shall have a concurrent power to make laws. In the case of inconsistency, the law made by Parliament must prevail. This is nothing but the logical consequence of the decision already made by this House to abolish Majimbo as a rival power to this Parliament. Again, it is proposed that Parliament and not the Provincial Councils should have the power to make laws for supervising the county councils, in the administration of Trust land.

There has been some misunderstanding, Mr. Deputy Speaker, due to the proposed deletion of some provisions relating to Parliament. Those provisions—in particular sections 67-70—merely qualify the powers of the regions. Now that the regions have lost their exclusive powers, these sections are wholly unnecessary. Are we to leave them in the Constitution as a useless relic to remind us of Majimbo?

I invite hon. Members to examine the position of Parliament under this Constitution as amended by this Bill. Section 66 (1) states, "Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, Parliament shall have power to make laws for the peace, order and good government of Kenya or of any part thereof." "Subject to this Constitution" used to mean subject to all the extensive powers of Regional Assemblies to make laws regarding education, health, agriculture and all the matters in Schedule I of the Constitution. Now it means subject to the concurrent powers of the Provincial Councils to make laws for matters which, in the main, are their own domestic matters.

It is also proposed to simplify the provisions of Chapter VI of the Constitution on the subject of the Provincial Councils. These proposals have provoked a number of criticisms from the hon. Member for Kilifi and other hon. Members. I must reply, with all due respect, that such matters as the salaries and allowances of members of Provincial Councils and the relationship of Provincial Councils and public servants in the provinces are not constitutional matters. I appreciate the concern of hon. Members in all these matters, but I will appeal to them not to impede the task, difficult enough as it is, of simplifying the Constitution, by introducing questions which, however important, must be taken care of at another time and in another context.

I shall refer to some of the other points made in the debate by hon. Members. The hon. Member for Kilifi suggested that it was dangerous to empower the Minister for Natural Resources to designate central forests. The hon. Member should know that the Minister has always had this power under the Constitution. It used to be in item 2 of the Second Schedule to the Constitution. This power is very necessary.

The hon. Member suggested that the Government should not be allowed to set apart Trust land without in every case consulting the chairmen of the Provincial Councils as well as the county councils. I reply that it is nonsensical to preserve such an inflexible rule. The setting apart may be for a purpose which is not a responsibility of the Provincial Councils at all, such as road construction. The Government can decide in which cases there is need to consult the Provincial Council as well.

The hon. Member also suggested that the law relating to transactions in agricultural land—Part 3 of Chapter XII—should remain in the Constitution, but no other Constitution contains provisions of this kind. This is part of the ordinary law, it is not constitutional law. It cannot be changed without the approval of Parliament.

The hon. Member for Kandara alleged that the emergency in the North-Eastern Region was continued illegally because it had not been periodically ratified by Parliament. The hon. Member should know that section 19 of the Independence Order in Council has always authorized the Head of State to make special or emergency provision for the North-Eastern Region. Regulations under that section have been in force for one year already, and this power can only be exercised in the North-Eastern Region where this country, I think hon. Members will realize, is at war.

The hon. Member for Majog-Bassi criticized the proposed amendment to section 60 which will permit the Government to propose amendment in the Senate to financial provisions of Bills. This, he thought, was a waste of time. Of course, it would be ideal if every Bill proposed by the Government was perfect, but occasions have arisen and will arise where there is need for amendment after the Bill has left this House. This is a recognized virtue of the two-Chamber system that the second House can be used for Government amendments. There is no good reason why the Constitution should be so inflexible as to prohibit this.

The hon. Member was alarmed that clause 8 of the Bill covers the prerogative and privileges of the Crown, or rather which used to be exercised by the crown in Kenya, on the President. I can relieve the hon. Member's mind of his anxiety. These so-called prerogatives are not powers to override the law. True, in the old days the Crown made laws by Order in Council for Kenya. All that disappeared on independence. The powers of the President and of Parliament are fully regulated by this Constitution. As the executive authority, the President must inherit the remaining privileges which used to be exercised by the Crown. These are subject to the Constitution and the law. The hon. Member should ask himself what these powers are today. There is no prerogative power to make laws or to interfere with property or liberty. It is nothing more than the necessary attributes and dignities of the Head of State.

future President will be a President who does not only represent his place of birth and that is his tribe. So far, we have noticed certain things going on in Kenya which can give us certain suspicions, that our present President might probably have certain advisers who only give him advice that only people who are close to him can have top posts in Kenya. For instance, we have had appointments in consultation with the President: the appointment of the Chairman of the Central Road Authority, the appointment of the General Manager of East African Railways and Harbours, the appointment of the Leader of Youth, the appointment of the Chairman of the Transport Licensing Board and the appointment of somebody in charge of the whole of the Police Force.

Now all these people come from one district, and that is Kiambu. Is that the sort of Government which you are going to support? Is this the sort of President you are going to have in Kenya?

Now, that fact remains. When we have a President in Kenya—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order, order. Mr. Bala, we are discussing the amendment on the Constitution Bill and while I agree that a certain amount of reference to the Government, particularly in view of the extended powers given to the President, are justified, I would not accept this as a full speech in which you are going to tell us all about the defects of the Government. So confine yourself primarily to the Constitution Amendment Bill and any arguments you bring to this Bill or about the Government you must relate them to a particular section or provision which you are in fact referring to.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I quite agree with your ruling, but people must be honest in this country if we want to run this country effectively. Recently we had a lot of rumours between the Vice-President and the Government and between certain Ministers. Now when we give a lot of powers, say, to our President, surely we do not want these powers to be misused. These powers should really be treated properly because everybody fought for the independence of Kenya and nobody can deceive himself in a corner somewhere in Kenya that he is the only person who brought independence to this country. So many of our youth were arrested, so many were taken into prison, so many were beaten up and after getting this independence, we should not only have a section of people who feel that this Government is theirs. The Government is for the people of Kenya and we are entitled to it, but the moment anybody criticizes Government these days, he is termed as somebody who wants to cause a revolution. I can assure this House that nobody would ever think of bringing about a revolution in this country, but if the Government is careless and does not care for the people who put us into power, then a revolution will just come by itself.

My last point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is the question of Regional Assemblies. I do not see why the Government should retain certain people and pay them over Sh. 1,000 as chairmen of the Provincial Councils, when all their powers have been withdrawn. This is one way in which I think the Government will be wasting its money. Either the Government scrap completely the Regional Assemblies, or give them a few jobs to do. The chairmen are still getting salaries for the information of the Member for the Coast.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not have very much more to say on the Bill, but when the Minister is replying he should give us proper definitions and explain clearly, state the functions of the provincial commissioners and the provincial chairmen, who were actually known as chairmen of the Regional Assemblies before. I do not know who has more power, or who has less power. I have gone through this Bill, but I did not see any more definitions in the Bill given.

With these few remarks, Sir, I beg to reserve my support or opposition.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odiga): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to move that the Mover be now called upon to reply.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think this Motion mainly concerns the House, and it is for the House to decide whether in fact the time is right.

(Question put and agreed to)

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I first of all want to deal with the point which was raised by my friend for the North-Eastern Region, Mr. Khalif. If he had listened to the one o'clock news today, he would have heard the announcement by the Government regarding the position of the former members of the Regional Assemblies. It is not my duty here to say what the statement was about, but all I can say is that it was to the advantage of the members of the former Regional Assemblies. Mr. Deputy Speaker, this Bill has

[22nd APRIL 1965]

is one more controversy and debate than in fact it deserves. Most of it is concerned with cutting away the dead wood and transplanting it to the field of—

Mr. Anyieni: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I thank the Attorney-General very much for sitting down. The point I want clarified was that a lot of Members have asked that the members of Regional Assemblies should be paid and some Members are even scared of voting for the Bill because they fear that if they vote for the Bill, members of Regional Assemblies may cut their fees. So if the Attorney-General now is saying that the Government has made a statement, we should like this statement to be made very clear to us so that we do not have to fear now in voting for the Bill.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I think the Minister for Finance might be able to help.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): On a point of information, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it has been realized that many of these men resigned their jobs and some were teachers, or they had other businesses and therefore to throw them out and leave them in the cold would be very unfair. Therefore something is being worked so that they can be absorbed into various committees of the regions that advise various Ministers from which they will derive some benefits, financial benefits and there will also be meetings held at the minimum of four meetings a year for which they will also be paid their travelling expenses, mileage and attendance allowances. They are not being left in the cold as it has been assumed. The Government is taking care of them and may be before long I shall be able to come here and announce the exact position when it has been decided.

When these people get absorbed into various committees, they will be getting something which will be much more than what they ever had before.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I hope my friend Mr. Anyieni will listen to the news this evening and pay attention.

As I was saying, Mr. Deputy Speaker, most of the amendments which are proposed in this Bill are concerned with the cutting away of the dead wood and transplanting to the field of the ordinary law and overgrowth of provisions which have no place in the Constitution of a State which no longer has a federal or regional system of Government. Parliament has asked for a Constitution which is short and readable. This Bill is an essential step in that direction. But this Bill does make a few important changes to the Constitution. Those amendments do affect the chapters of the Constitution about which Parliament is most jealous, and rightfully so. These chapters are Chapter X on the Judiciary, Chapter IV on Parliament, and Chapter XII on land. I will, before replying to the particular points made by hon. Members, indicate just what changes are made and what changes are not made.

Mr. G. G. Karuki: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, since the reply from the Attorney-General is very important, it is not in order if we ring the Division Bell to enable Members to know that the Minister is replying?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Actually the Serjeant-at-Arms normally announces over the loud-speaker who is speaking and it would certainly be quite wrong and out of order to ring the Division Bell when any particular Minister is speaking, even though I do appreciate that this is very important. It would create a very bad precedent in future if everybody else would want to have it.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Deputy Speaker, again, as I was saying, I would like before I deal with the particular points raised by hon. Members, to indicate just what changes are made and what changes are not made to those important chapters of the Constitution. Only one change is made to the fundamental rights of individuals. Section 25 which guarantees freedom of movement in Kenya is to be changed so that it will in future apply only to citizens of Kenya and not as before to certain non-citizens. It is not usual in any Constitution to guarantee this freedom to persons who are not citizens. This unusual feature of our Constitution is due to the fact that certain resident non-citizens have a right to register as citizens before 12th December next. They have had fifteen months in which to do so already. We have no particular wish or need to restrict the movement of non-citizens, but sooner or later section 25 must be brought into line with the usual Constitutional practice, and now is a convenient and a reasonable time. I repeat this explanation because I wish to state most emphatically that after this Bill has been enacted, the protection of the freedom of individuals will be as extensive under our Constitution as under any other constitution in the world, and far more extensive than in most. The Government has given its pledge to preserve this Chapter of the Constitution, this Bill of Rights, and it has done so and will continue to do so.

[Mr. Mbohob]

Constitution, but I would have thought that 66 per cent would have been two-thirds, and that would be quite a fair figure, but if I was there while this was being prepared I would have said that a majority of one is enough and not only the figure 65 per cent majority of two-thirds, I would not have cared for a majority of two-thirds because if only one person is in favour and that is the majority then I would have liked that to be taken as an effective figure.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I even go as far as to suggest that human beings these days are arguing about boundaries. I have seen people stand here arguing about a boundary. Now, a boundary is something imaginary. Somebody just takes a pencil and draws a line on paper, and people start arguing and saying that they are not crossing it because it is a boundary, but it is their imagination. People start saying this without having any power for doing so. They say that they are superstitious, but this is being superstitious, and I submit that boundaries should be scrapped as soon as possible.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I feel that a Constitution which becomes very rigid cannot be tampered with by the Government, or by individuals, and everybody would expect that the changes would be very difficult, and that anything that is expected to be changed would be difficult, because if now the Government finds that people are hopeless and they do not want to abide by the laws of the country, the Constitution which was made by the same people, those people who are now becoming a nuisance are the same people who are coming to change it, and in that case, it would be very difficult for that Constitution to be changed. I will always advocate a good Constitution which can be changed, at any time, with the majority and without going very deeply into funny things.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I quite agree that the Regional Assemblies were there and they were performing a very good job, but to suggest that they should be paid their salaries even when their duties have ceased to function, is unfair to the taxpayer of this country, and if, at any rate, they have to be paid, the fairest thing would have been to give them three months' notice so that they can clear their debts before their duties cease, because at present some of them are in very great difficulties. They were expecting their pay at the end of the month, and then they are told that this month they are not going to get anything. They have already taken things on credit and they had to pay. So, the Asians are now following them very closely and telling them that they want their money, but they have no money, so we will find some of them in prison when their pay has been stopped. So, I would advocate a good amount of time for them to pay their debts, and then give them a good warning, and then it would be quite fair to them to get themselves cleared.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, many people may say that this Constitution is becoming soft, but I think it is still too tough for the Government, and I advocate that after this amendment, another one comes in to scrap most of the difficult parts which the Government has wanted to be scrapped, and if it meant scrapping the whole Constitution and ruling without the Constitution, that would not matter very much.

So, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I support the Government on this, and expect that they will hear my words and scrap it all.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I stand to make some of general observations on this Bill, but before I do so, I must express how much I am sorry to hear the speeches made by the hon. Member who has just sat down. If Kenya was to adopt the attitude which the hon. Member has, I think there would not be any unity in Kenya, and the hon. Member must realize that in this country we have more than forty-one different nationalities, and races speaking different languages who have been persuaded by our Father of the Nation to come together to become one nation. The way the Member is speaking does not actually bring about that spirit, or that sort of feeling which we have been persuaded to adopt.

Now, when we go to the question of this Bill, I have a few suggestions to make. It is quite true that in this country many people are still living in suspicion, and in order to remove this suspicion, we must actually prove by will and by our actions that we are not out for tribalism or brotherization. The moment we do that then we shall remove suspicions which the general people are now feeling, and that is why we, as Members representing the public, are also being brought to such suspicion. You find that we are trying to give the President certain powers and quite enormous powers, but when I say the President, I do not only mean the present President that we have, I do not only mean the President, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, who we have now, because he has been acceptable to the whole nation, but now when we make changes we must realize that these changes or these laws that we make can actually be used by good or bad people, because when somebody has powers at times he might misuse such powers, at times he might use them properly. Now, here we are being asked to amend the days of declaring an emergency without the Parliament authority, from seven days to twenty-one days, and again after twenty-one days, you receive the mandate, the President will have, instead of two months, another three months within which he can use these powers without the authority of the Parliament.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the recent development this country brings us a lot of suspicion. Recently, we had the General Service Unit in Central Nyanza, when in fact, there was nothing wrong in Central Nyanza. There was only a strife in the Kisumu Township, but we found General Service Units sent to Kisumu and then sent to the reserve only to do one thing, and that was to beat everybody, to beat the women, to beat the old men, to rape our wives, to rape our girls. Is that what we are giving such big powers to our leaders for?

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odero-Jowi): On a point of order, would the hon. Member substantiate some of his allegations?

Mr. Bala: Yes, Mr. Deputy Speaker, if I am given time I would give the names of the people who are connected with my allegations.

The Deputy Speaker (Mr. De Souza): That is a very serious allegation to substantiate, so within a week you must bring the evidence by which you made this allegation.

Mr. Malinda: On a point of order, is it not a serious allegation that some of the General Service Unit members went round raping the wives of the people in Central Nyanza and is that not a subject to be substantiated in this House?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I have said that he must substantiate, but substantiation does not mean to say that he must immediately bring forward the names. He can be given time and I have said that within one week he must bring the evidence, or otherwise he must withdraw.

Mr. Khalif: On a point of order, is there anything within our Standing Orders which suggests or indicates that a point of order can be used to brow-beat hon. Members of this Parliament?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I am afraid I do not quite understand what you are saying. Do you mean that some hon. Members are trying to stand up on a point of order to stop Mr. Bala's speech, because if so, nobody is stopping his speech. The only thing is that if he makes an allegation against any individual, or against a Government body like the General Service Unit, obviously he must substantiate and bring evidence for that allegation, or else he must withdraw it. This is the rule of the House, but he must be given time to bring the evidence, because he does not have it in his pocket just now. I have given him a week to do so, and if he cannot do so he must withdraw it.

Mr. arap Tooi: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think rapping is something that is very serious indeed, and I think we should not give time to this hon. Member because he must—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, I have already ruled on that. I have given him one week.

QUORUM

Mr. Malsori-Itumbo: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not think we form a quorum.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, we do not have one. Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We now have a quorum. You may carry on, Mr. Bala.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, some Members are worried about my speeches, but I can assure the hon. Members that I am saying what I know and what my constituents have reported to me, that recently we have the General Service Unit who came and beat our people, raped our wives, raped our girls, and this is very serious. Up to now the people of Central Nyanza are very suspicious of this Government. They think something is going on behind the scenes which they do not know about, because they do not think the General Service Unit would be coming to this area for nothing, and the Government is there which they fought for, so there must be something which the Government must tell us in no uncertain terms, that either we people in Central Nyanza are being suspected of something, or if not, the Government is not in the good books of the people of Central Nyanza.

Now, another point which I would like to make in this House is that when we are asked to give more powers to the President, I hope the House to decide that question, whether or not you want the closure at this stage. So I will put the question.

[The Speaker]

(Question put and negatived)

Mr. Warlithi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am speaking towards the end of the debate and therefore some of the points which I wanted to raise have already been raised by other Members.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to start by saying that a Constitution is fundamental of the land. All other Government department and sections draw their authority and machinery from the Constitution. That being the case, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is very important, and the Members of this House should be allowed to express themselves and to say what they feel is wrong with the Constitution. I will start by saying that our Government having noticed that the Constitution was unworkable, since the attainment of Internal Self-Government has brought forward many amendments to the Constitution. I think that it should be understood that in any nation a Constitution can only remain as long as the people of that nation want to be governed by that Constitution. When people begin to feel that the Constitution does not reflect the wishes and the ideals of the people of the nation, then it should be amended. Therefore it is only necessary to provide the machinery for the amendment.

Before I come to the section dealing with the various sections I would like to say that I was rather surprised the other day when one of the Ministers said that a Bill of this nature can either be accepted or rejected. Here Mr. Speaker, Sir, it seems that it may be difficult for us to understand the purpose for this debate. If a Bill has to be accepted as a whole or rejected as a whole, and we cannot amend it, then it appears that it might be rather difficult for us to agree to it. For instance, some Members have expressed the desire for the deletion of the first 30 sections.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is actually provided by the Constitution that this kind of Bill to amend the Constitution, has to be passed intact, without amendment, or not at all. That is correct, unless and until the Constitution is amended in this respect.

Mr. Warlithi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, then it was not expected that that particular section of the Constitution be amended, so that a Bill comes for debate, and if the Members are not satisfied with it, they can amend it. Alternatively, there should be a machinery whereby the wishes of the Members are brought to the House before the Bill is brought to the House, or maybe the people in general.

Now to come to specific parts of the Bill I would like to start by congratulating our Government. On page 38, part 4 of the Bill which deals with the Bills Members may know that it is to now the highest Court in East Africa is not the Court of Appeal, for some cases, even for the interpretation of our present Constitution a person could still appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, and here I think it is quite proper that our Government, having become a Republic, has found it fit to see that this is removed and that the highest Court of Appeal in our Republic will be the Eastern Court of Appeal. This I think is an amendment which is welcome and which has been long overdue.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other section which I would like to deal with, very briefly, is the one which has, I think, been passed by many hon. Members. But I would like to explain one thing which might have been misunderstood. This is on page 36, part 3, dealing with the functions of the Provincial Councils. Here some Members have argued that those who advocate that the members should be paid a salary are those who feel the Provincial Councils should be retained. But Mr. Speaker, Sir, in this Constitution it was part of a compromise, which has been said, between the parties then in the country and there are certain legacies which are going to be left after amending this Constitution, and these legacies, it is for the Government to put up with them, to the question of land there are such arrangements made about land which might have been for the best interests of this country, and because these arrangements were made, were agreed upon they are inevitably to be accepted.

Now, taking these Provincial Councils after these amendments one major thing to remember is the power that these regions had to pay tax so that they could pay themselves a salary. Well, now this power has been taken away from them, and we know that they could only clear themselves thoroughly by an enactment. Now, under this amendment, this power has been taken away from them, and so that is why some of us feel that as long as these Provincial Councils are retained, by the Government, it is also right that the Government should provide the means as to how these members are going to maintain themselves. So I think that what has been said by one of the Ministers that they may no longer raise in money for their salaries, etc., as their power in this direction have been taken away, the Government should now issue a statement to the effect as to what will be the position of the members of the Provincial Councils.

[Mr. Warlithi]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other two points, sections 29 and 71, much has been said on these two sections, and I have no intention of repeating what has already been said, but I would like to say that under section 71, this amending the Constitution, that the Constitution is the fundamental law of the land. It is a document which should be observed and not one that can be easily amended. The argument put forward by the Government so far is that we must have a reasonable and workable Constitution. But then one could also say that we have a reasonable and workable Constitution which could easily be changed now and then. What I was expecting the Government to indicate to the House is the difficulties which the Government has experienced with the period since the time when we have been attempting to amend the Constitution, and start maybe from the percentage of the Senate which was 65 per cent required in the present Constitution, then I do not think there was any difficulty at all, particularly at this stage, when we have a one-party system. On section 71 I agree with the hon. Members who have said that the amendments proposed are too low and that we should retain the amendments which are in the present Constitution. Similarly in section 21 I feel that there is no reason for extending this period. Here also I was expecting some difficulties experienced by the Government during the period of internal self-government, and so far I was not satisfied with the argument put forward by the Minister. His argument was that seven days is within fourteen days, and fourteen days is within twenty-one days as well, and this would mean that as such there is no difference between fourteen and twenty-one days, which means that the House can be called within the first seven days, or within the first fourteen days, but then it can also be called on the 20th day. So I think I have made my point there.

Now, furthermore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to emphasize the importance of having a Constitution which will be longlasting, which cannot be amended easily, which cannot be tampered with by a person who may be having some ulterior motives.

I think that with these few comments, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I reserve my position on this.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as usual I have to be very brief but I would like to make a few comments.

To start with I feel I should deny some charges which were levelled against me as living in an area which belongs to another Member administratively, that was the hon. Member for Gichugu who said that there is a piece of land somewhere in Embu which belongs to Gichugu. Contrary to that, I submit that, legally, Gichugu is a breakaway part of Embu and, by right, I have a claim to all of it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mbogoh, I know you were irritated by the hon. Member, but all that is so irrelevant, and has nothing to do with the matter of the Constitution, that I do not think I can let you pursue it.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will now continue. I have finished with that subject.

This Bill does not, Mr. Speaker, Sir, go as far as I expected it to go. To start with, it does not give the Government the dictatorial power required for a Government to rule a country effectively. When people say that the Government is being given the right for that, then I do not agree with that. I think nearly all those points which have been raised stating that the Government is wanting to take all the powers for itself are most invalid and what I think should be done is for the Government to take most of the powers and rule this country effectively. The reason for doing this is that in Kenya today you find there are so many people who are not mature enough to know what a Government of the Africans means to them. They have all the time tried to undermine the Government and they will continue to do that as long as the Government is not strong enough to deal with them strictly.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Government should be given a chance to develop this country until a time when people are civilized enough and have enough understandings of Constitutions so that the Government will be somewhat dictatorial in this country and everybody will stand up and show that the Government is run effectively without waiting time. Mr. Speaker, Sir, twenty-one days is quite fair but I expected three months, days in fact I would have liked three months, so that any Member or anybody in the country who wants to destroy the Government can be dealt with before Parliament is called, and then when Parliament is called that area where subversion has occurred will have been dealt with very severely before Parliament comes here to discuss it.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, now this Constitution is becoming too reasonable and I feel that to make a Constitution so reasonable is quite useless. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this 65 per cent, I do not know why the Government found that percentage to be appropriate, so as to put it in the

[The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry] have been teachers before, some of them were priests, and they all were in employment. Now they are worried because perhaps in June they will not be paid. They say that Mojimbo has been abolished and so they who were elected by the votes of the people will have no jobs and no money. Therefore, they are very worried. I would ask the Government to consider seriously where to put these people who had the mandate of the people to be in the Regional Assemblies. Government should consider where to put them. Those who were working before they were elected to be on the Regional Assemblies should go back to their jobs, work and earn money. Those who cannot get jobs should continue to receive some sort of salary until the next election when they can try to see if they get a place in this House. I feel that these elected Members should receive the sympathy of the Government and should get some sort of jobs in order to earn their living.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Olotiipitip, I am sorry to interrupt you but we have quite a number of repetitions on this point now. That particular point has been made by several Members and we must now move on.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Olotiipitip): Mr. Speaker, Sir, most of the time I was not in the House and so I am not aware which points have already been raised and by how many Members. I only wished to speak on these points in order to make my own observations. With your permission I would like to go quickly over some of these points.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): All right, but leave that one.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Olotiipitip): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I come now to section 12 of this Bill and I hope that I may be allowed to do so. This deals with the registration of voters. During the last election most of our people did not register themselves. Every year, from April to the end of May is the registration period. All I would like to ask the Minister concerned is to see that people receive adequate information so that they know that the time for registration of voters is on. Most of the districts do not know when the time is come for this and I think the Government should make it clear and make it publicly known by all people that it is time for the people to come and register themselves. Some places like Kajjado District which are big areas had people who came to register themselves but according to the present system the voters could only register themselves in two places. People have to travel great distances to get to one of these two places of registration. Some of them have no transport to reach these places where they can register themselves.

Formerly they had many stations. I think, Mr. Speaker, the previous stations where people have been registering themselves should be allowed to that people can reach them and register themselves. Mr. Speaker, that is the point I wanted to make on registration of voters.

Another point I would like to mention at this time is with regard to section nineteen of the Bill which is authorization of the Commissioner of Lands to hear evidence on the public.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have had a good deal about this one.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Olotiipitip): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to make a few brief comments on this subject. I feel very strongly that although the Commissioner of Lands knows much about lands and everything, I do not think he knows the land better than the people, the local people of the land. I can only submit Mr. Speaker, that if the Commissioner of Lands was asked to come only when the county council wanted advice from him, that would be all right, but for the whole administration to be vested in him I do not think it is right.

Mr. Speaker, I think that we, the local people who represent every corner of our land better than anybody who represents himself as knowing much about land and I think, Mr. Speaker, that the county councils should be left entirely free to administer their land. I also submit Mr. Speaker, that whenever it is necessary for the Commissioner of Lands to be called upon to give advice he should go, but the whole administration of the land to be vested to the Commissioner of Lands, Mr. Speaker I think it is not correct.

Mr. Speaker, with regard to the same question of land, some of our friends have said repeatedly that they want land to be nationalized. I know, Mr. Speaker, that the Members have touched upon this but in my view, Mr. Speaker I think it is very wrong.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think it comes into this Bill anyhow.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Olotiipitip): Yes, Mr. Speaker, but they have been talking about the cutting down of the size of Masai land often saying that the Masai have too much land.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Not in this debate, Mr. Olotiipitip.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Olotiipitip): Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I think I have made myself clear on the few observations I had because I see that the few observations I have spoken about it. I most of this Bill, Sir, but I think the land should really be the responsibility of the county council. With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Bill.

Mr. Khalif: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I have a very few observations to make here. For example, Mr. Speaker, I would like to draw your attention and the attention of the hon. Members to section 10 of the Bill, subsection (3), which says and I quote:

"As soon as possible after the Senate first meets after 12th December 1964, the Speaker of the Senate shall, by lot, divide the Senators representing the North-Eastern Region into three classes; and the term of office of the Senator in the first class shall expire on 7th June 1967 the term of office of the Senator in the second class shall expire on 7th June 1969."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thought this was a provision made in this Bill, and even though this Bill has not been passed in this House, it is surprising to see that the Senators in the North-Eastern Region have already been divided by lots in this Senate before this Bill has been passed in this House. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that unless this matter is reviewed the Government will be acting unconstitutionally. We have already seen, Mr. Speaker, the Government having acted unconstitutionally when it has effected regions to provinces, presidents of regions to chairmen already, now the regional government agents are already called district commissioners. Although this is a breach of constitution it may not be a serious as this particular subsection is. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have taken up this matter with the Attorney-General and with all due respects to my learned friend, I would like to say that he has tried to confuse me, trying to confuse me technically, constitutionally and so on and I think it is for him to tell us point blank and in no uncertain terms, in this Chamber whether the divisions of the Senators of the North-Eastern Region, which has already been held in the Senate is unconstitutional or not. Whether the Senators representing the North-Eastern Region which have been divided will be again divided by lot in the Senate when, and that is only when, this Bill is passed and not before that.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have reviewed the whole Constitution and I do not see anywhere, where a Senator who is elected after a General Election—The Constitution, Mr. Speaker, indicates that the Senators who were elected during the General Election would be divided by lots; but if that is the case, what will happen to the Senators like the North-Eastern Region Senators who were elected after a General Election. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a technical point and I would like the Attorney-General to make note of it, because it involves a matter of the Government acting unconstitutionally.

Another point I would like to bring up is that as a result of the constitutional amendment which is about to take place, members of the Regional Assembly have had a reduction in their salaries.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have had that one many times, I am afraid.

Mr. Khalif: Yes, but I would like to point out one specific thing, Mr. Speaker, that we have already noted that the Members of this House have increased their own salaries to Sh. 2,000. We also know, Mr. Speaker, that the salaries of Ministers, including the Attorney-General himself, are more than Sh. 7,000 per month, robbing the salaries of these helpless people who are also as much a representative of the people as we are because they were elected by the people. I view, Mr. Speaker, that this is not right. In view of the fact that this question has been discussed at length, I do not want to go over it because at length I have already said. I have completed saying what I would like to say, but I would like to say that the Attorney-General should consider very seriously the question of Senators of the North-Eastern Region, because as soon as this took place in the Senate I come to see the Attorney-General in his office and discussed this matter with him only to be fooled by legal technicalities by the Attorney-General, which do not exist.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odinga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do feel that Members have exhausted all that they want to say and therefore I beg to move that the Mover be now called upon to reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have been very reluctant to allow the closure to be moved in this debate, as I said yesterday; but we are now getting little bit repetition, and there does not seem to be a tremendous interest of Members in the debate judging by the attendance of the House, and I think I must now leave it to the

Mr. Jamah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the Assistant Minister's reply, will be, in the circumstances, consider stationing a fire-fighting unit in the area to combat cases of burning of cane?

Mr. Nyamwaya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is a very intelligent and sensible suggestion and I hope the Government will be prepared to consider it.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, and from the fact that the Kenya Government is getting a lot of money by way of excise duty from this industry, would he consider increasing the Police Force in this area so as to protect this industry?

Mr. Nyamwaya: Maybe the hon. Member for Nyando did not listen to my reply. This has already been done.

Mr. Jamah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell the House whether this increase in the Police Force is a permanent feature or is it only for a short period?

Mr. Nyamwaya: Mr. Speaker, I am unable to say that this will be a permanent feature in the way of deployment of the Police Force because the deployment of Police Force all over the country depends on a lot of factors.

Mr. Ngala-Aboke: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell us how his Ministry has stepped up the Police Force in his area? Does he mean that the police stations are increased or does he mean that special branch men and intelligence service men have been stationed in that area, because it is a large area as far as I know it? Will the Assistant Minister describe the nature of stepping up the Police Force in that particular area?

Mr. Nyamwaya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will simplify my reply for the benefit of the hon. Member for Homa Bay. All branches of the Police Force there have been increased.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Nyamwaya, are you prepared to answer Question No. 1023?

Mr. Nyamwaya: Yes, Sir.

Question No. 1023

TELEPHONE CALLS BY MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT FROM POLICE STATIONS

Mr. Mwanuzandi asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power whether he would tell the House why he had been refused permission to make a telephone call at Msambweni Police Station and whether there was any reason why M.P.s should not not be allowed to make telephone calls from police stations, particularly, in the remote areas.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamwaya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, again on behalf of the Minister for Internal Security and Defence, I beg to reply.

The hon. Member was not refused permission to make a telephone call at Msambweni Police Station; the policeman on duty explained to the hon. Member, who demanded to use the telephone, the orders he had received not to allow members of the public to use the telephone. He was later allowed to use it, although the subject matter of the call was connected with the new moon. Telephones and other communication aids are installed in police stations for the use of the police in their duties, and M.P.s may be allowed to use such telephones in remote areas only on matters of great urgency and the discretion lies with the officer in charge of the police station.

Mr. Mwanuzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that even if the police inspector himself is present, I am bound to give reasons why I am making the call before I am allowed to make it?

Mr. Nyamwaya: I did not understand the question, Sir.

Mr. Mwanuzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that particularly I was prohibited from making telephone calls in that area? When I forced my way through, is the Minister aware that I had to give my reasons for wanting to make the call?

Mr. Nyamwaya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hope the hon. Members do realize that police stations are places which have certain regulations and orders to carry out. In the first instance, they are security places and it is quite in order for the police officer in charge of the station to inquire as to the urgency and significance or importance of the telephone call to be made.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid we must go on now as we have had a lot of delay on points of order.

NOTICES OF MOTIONS FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

APPOINTMENT OF CHIEFS IN MURANG'A

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would inform hon. Members that I have received notice from Mr. Kaggia of his desire to pursue on an adjournment his Question No. 958, which concerned the appointment of Chiefs in Murang'a, and I have appointed the close of business next Tuesday, 27th April, for that matter to be raised.

CONDUCT OF THE GENERAL SERVICE UNIT IN WINAM

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have also had notice from Mr. Nyalick of his desire to raise on an adjournment the conduct of the General Service Unit at Winam on the 8th April, this year, and that matter is to be raised at the interruption of business on Wednesday, 28th April.

POINT OF ORDER

MEMBERS REQUESTED TO BE PRESENT FOR DIVISION

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is one other matter I would like to mention to hon. Members before we proceed. We are now coming to a continuation of the debate on the Second Reading of the Constitution of Kenya (Amendment) Bill, and we shall probably arrive at the point for the question to be put before we have the interruption of business today. Hon. Members will appreciate that this particular question can only be resolved if there is a minimum of twenty-seven hon. Members present at the time of the Division, so it is most important, even if hon. Members are not disposed to stay and listen to the whole debate, that they should remain on call against the possibility of the Division before the House rises this evening.

BILL

Second Reading

THE CONSTITUTION OF KENYA (AMENDMENT) BILL

(Attorney-General on 24th March 1963)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 21st April 1963)

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, when the House adjourned last night, I was just starting the beginning of the end of my remarks on the amendment to the Constitution, and I had touched on the question of land where the Member for Kisumu was very strongly opposed to the remarks I made, in that I suggested that land acquired by Central Government was done in the best interests of everybody in the country and that land so acquired would serve the nation and not only a particular, small area.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, for those of us who have been outside Kenya and have travelled in various countries, we will probably have seen with our own eyes areas where we have deserts and semi-deserts and the nation have made an effort to develop that land into cultivatable land. Particularly when I was in Israel towards the end of 1960 I was very much amazed, and had that land been left to the various sections within Israel, I am quite sure that Israel could not have developed to such an extent. So I think that it is only fair that where Government feels that land is available and could be put to useful purposes, the Government should acquire that land, and develop it, and if the residents of that area feel at a later stage that they want to buy the Government out, so well and good.

Now, Mr. Speaker, coming to the powers of Parliament, it is all very well for the Attorney-General to tell us that the ultimate power of making laws in this country will lie with Parliament, but then it is very difficult for us to believe that that might be so at a later stage. However, trusting, as we do, in our present Government and hope to do the same in our future Governments, I would not have any quarrel with that. But I would have liked to see somewhere included a clause that it may not be in the Constitution but at a later stage Members of this Parliament could get together and ask that Parliament should be convened. Last year we had a very long stretch of recess where the Members wondered what was going on in the country, and Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand for correction here—some Members even approached you about the possibility of reconvening Parliament, and what we were told was that it was up to the Cabinet to decide on when Parliament should reconvene. We feel with the powers conferred on the President as a person perhaps it would be convenient and much better for us also to be given some position whereby so many Members of Parliament could get together and ask the Government to reconvene the Parliament.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is the issue of existing laws. We have some existing laws which were made some years back in the best interests of our former colonial masters for the sake of protecting some areas and turning them into natural museums. For example, we had the restriction of Masai area, the restriction on the northern part of Kenya, and I believe some of these laws are still in existence. These laws should have actually been scrapped some years back and I would like to draw the attention of the Attorney-General to the fact that these laws are overdue and should be scrapped from the Statute Books immediately.

Mr. Ayodo: I am aware of this, Sir, and the attitude is changing very rapidly.

Mr. Mbogohi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that this country has a tree-planting programme, and I understand that the schools are given free trees to plant, does the Minister consider giving some free plants to the Members of this House who wanted to plant some trees, as examples to the people who they represent?

Mr. Ayodo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the House will let me know that they are so keen on planting trees and that they want me to show a gesture, I will consider it sympathetically.

Question No. 1035

CUTTING DOWN OF FOREST IN KURIA

Mr. Okwanyo asked the Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife if he would order that all the forests in Kuria area be cut down because they were being used as hiding places by thieves.

Mr. Malsori-Iumbo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to seek your ruling as to whether the hon. Member is in order to ask a question about my constituency, Forests in Kuria are in my constituency, and I was wondering whether it is in order for the hon. Member to enter my constituency without discussing this first with me as the Member for Kuria?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. Mr. Malsori-Iumbo has raised quite a good point. It is not out of order for hon. Members to ask questions about any parts of the country, including other Members' constituencies, but it is a tradition of courtesy for hon. Members not to interfere with other Members' constituencies without consulting them. The question is in order.

Mr. Okwanyo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think we had discussed this with the Member concerned and we had agreed that I should bring this matter here.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): As I have said, it is not out of order, and you have asked the question.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, I think there is a mistake somewhere because I do not think there is a place called Butinda. All I know of is a place called Bukuria.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, am I in order to reply to this question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Which question are we on? Yes.

Mr. Malsori-Iumbo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I still feel that if the question is to come to the House, the hon. Member should include his own area before mentioning any part of my constituency.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, Mr. Malsori. When an hon. Member raises a point of order and I have answered it, that is the end of it.

Mr. Nyamweya: This question, Mr. Speaker, has been referred to the Minister for Internal Security and Defence, and on his behalf I beg to reply.

The answer is, the Minister for Internal Security and Defence is not aware that these forests are used as hiding places for thieves. In these circumstances, the question of clearing the area does not arise. I may add, however, Mr. Speaker, that I am informed by the Ministry of Natural Resources and Wildlife that there are no gazetted forests in this area which are administered by the Ministry. The land in question belongs to the Kuria people, and any decision to clear it of vegetation would rest with them. If the hon. Member's requests were accepted, it would be logical to cut down not only the forest in the Kuria area, but all other forests and dense vegetation in which thieves could hide, and quite apart from the damage this could do to the country, it would be totally impracticable.

Mr. Okwanyo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister provide enough policemen to supervise these areas where all the cattle stolen from my constituency are usually hidden?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Ministry has increased police patrols, not only in this particular area, but in all areas where crime has become more prevalent.

Mr. Mbogohi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply, could the Assistant Minister make representations to the authorities concerned so that the forests in the Kuria area are increased to such an extent that everybody in Kuria plants a small forest?

Question No. 1070

FARMING CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement if he would tell the House the acreage of farm land he had earmarked for farming co-operative societies.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachoga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. My Ministry has earmarked, approximately, a total of 200,000 acres for co-operative farms.

[The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement] which will be allocated to various co-operative societies, when these farms are ready for occupation. The acreage includes 135,000 acres which my Ministry intends to hand over to fourteen co-operative societies in the Ol Kalou salient.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Assistant Minister tell the House the conditions under which he would allow the co-operative societies to own such lands?

Mr. Gachoga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the conditions applicable to the allocations of loans to individuals are also applicable to the various societies, but in addition, we give more assistance to co-operatives in the field of organization so as to make sure that the co-operative societies which operate such farms are efficient and well run.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell the House whether the land he has earmarked for co-operative societies is land in the former Scheduled Areas or even in the former Non-Scheduled Areas?

Mr. Gachoga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are no areas which are regarded as Scheduled Areas now and all the Government is doing is to buy up farms from the former European owners and hand them over either to individual African settlers or to African co-operative societies.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think we must go on, as we have not much time. We will go back to Mr. Gichoya's question.

Question No. 1047

REDUCTION OF INTEREST ON CAR LOANS

Mr. Gichoya asked the Minister for Finance whether, in view of the large amount of business which the Government gave to the United Dominions Corporation in respect of car loans, he would consider approaching the corporation with the view to reducing the 5½ per cent rate of interest paid on these loans.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The rate of interest which the Government has negotiated with the United Dominions Corporation is 5½ per cent, not, and I quote, not 5½ per cent. This rate is only a little more than half the rate charged for other business by hire-purchase organizations in Nairobi. I am satisfied that it is the most favourable rate that can be obtained.

Mr. Gichoya: Arising from the Minister's reply, and accepting the correction he has made, does he agree with me that we constitute a very reasonable number of customers to this corporation that we could be entitled to more favourable terms than ordinary customers?

Mr. Gichuru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the terms, as I have just said, are very favourable. If you go outside Government business, it will cost you about 11 per cent or it may be much more, and we only have to pay 5½ per cent. When you go to negotiate for these things, you do not lay down your terms. After all, it is money you want and these people also do not lend you money; they are not a charitable organization. They too want to make money and they have made an extremely good offer to the Kenya Government.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. Mr. Nyamweya, are you in a position to answer Question 1047?

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Yes, Sir.

Question No. 1041

ARSON ON SUGAR AND SIAL ESTATES

Mr. Jamal asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence whether he was aware of large-scale arson cases on sugar and sial plantations in parts of Central Nyanza. If so, what did he propose to do to remedy the situation.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister for Internal Security and Defence, I beg to reply. Yes, Sir. There have been five cases of sugarcane being burnt involving 600 acres of cane and two cases where sial has been burnt involving 200 acres, since the last rains in the Central Nyanza area.

Carelessness of labour and passengers is also responsible for some fires which spread to cane from rubbish dumps and the like and like grass fires, from cigarettes thrown carelessly away. Police patrols in the area have been stepped up.

I may add, Mr. Speaker, that the police are unable to say that any of these fires have been deliberate, but patrols in the area have been increased. It is extremely difficult to put this down to deliberately setting fire to crops. As this was a prolonged dry season, these crops have become extremely vulnerable to fire. It could be that the labour laid off temporarily because of the shortage of cane set fire to the crop because a percentage can be salvaged providing it is cut quickly and pulped. This means that labour are taken on for this work and therefore they receive short-term employment.

POINT OF ORDER
CONDUCT IN THE CHAMBER

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, in places like this where a Member of this House displays in public such deplorable behaviour, can we be allowed in this House to move that we deplore his behaviour, so that we dissociate ourselves completely from the kind of behaviour he displayed here, and especially for the time he took to be out of the door?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think anything is gained by hon. Members passing a Motion deploring the conduct of Members in this House, because there are disciplinary measures which are more effective. It starts with the power of the Speaker, himself, to order an hon. Member to leave the precincts of the House for the rest of the day. It continues, in a case where the Speaker thinks proper, for the Speaker to name an hon. Member and for the House then to consider whether that Member shall be suspended from the service of the House. I think, in view of Mr. Nyaga's conduct after I had ordered him to leave the Chamber, that I should now name Mr. Nyaga for gross misconduct. When I have done that, according to our Standing Orders, a Minister moves that the Member be suspended from the service of the House. If that Motion is carried, he is suspended for three days. I now name Mr. Nyaga for gross misconduct.

Will a Minister please move that Mr. Nyaga be suspended from the service of the House?

MOTION

SUSPENSION OF HON. MEMBER

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that Mr. Nyaga be suspended from the service of this House.

The Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Mwendwa): seconded.

(Question proposed)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I am right in saying that, according to Standing Orders, I put the question without debate.

So I put the question.

(Question put and agreed to)

POINT OF ORDER

MOVE OF MOTION FOR SUSPENSION OF MEMBER

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, I would like to seek your ruling on this. Why has it not been possible for us to discuss this, because a lot of us had evidence to show that Mr. Nyaga was quite entitled to make the comments he was making while he was sitting and it does not warrant a three-day suspension from his work, although we understand that for today he should be out of the precincts of the House. Why have you ruled that we should not discuss this matter?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that it is in accordance with Standing Orders. I will look it up and confirm.

The Standing Order seventy-nine provides "whenever a Member shall be named by Mr. Speaker, if an offence has been committed by a Member in the House, then a Motion shall be made by the Senior Minister present, that such Member be suspended from the service of the House, and Mr. Speaker, shall forthwith put the question thereon, no amendment or adjournment debate being allowed".

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, in order to make the whole position clear on the fact that we have two hon. Members known as Nyaga and also for the information to the Press, it should be made known that it is Mr. P. Nyaga, Mr. Speaker. The hon. Member Mr. J. J. M. Nyaph is an Assistant Minister and a Member for another constituency.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is quite right that Mr. Onyko should want to put it clearly on record that it was Mr. P. Nyaga, without the "h" at the end.

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, since this Motion has not been moved by the Senior Minister of the Government could you repeat your position on this? The Senior Minister being the Vice-President.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Ngala is technically correct. I think if he cares to raise the technical point then we should ask the Vice-President to move the Motion.

I do submit to hon. Members that this is not an awfully honourous matter.

The Vice-President (Mr. Odiga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very sorry that this has been necessary, but I am in complete agreement with the Minister for Finance who actually moved this Motion and I support him.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I know, Mr. Vice-President, but the difficulty is that Standing Orders provide, in this very important matter, that the Motion shall be moved by the senior Minister present. Therefore, technically, the Motion moved by any other Minister could be held to be invalid. So, I think we must, since Mr. Ngala insisted, ask you to move the Motion again to follow strictly the rules. If you would move the Motion again, we will get the same result.

[The Speaker]

MOTION

SUSPENSION OF MEMBER

The Vice-President (Mr. Odiga): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that Mr. P. Nyaga be suspended from the service of the House.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achieng-Onyko) seconded.

(Question proposed)

(Question put and agreed to)

(The hon. Mr. P. Nyaga was accordingly suspended pursuant to Standing Orders)

POINT OF ORDER

RULING ON SENIORITY OF MINISTERS

Mr. Gatuguta: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since some of us do not understand this question of the seniority of Ministers, would you be in a position to explain to us whether the seniority is based on the position of the Minister, the age of the Minister, or the period for which he has been a Minister?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is a very nice question, but I have never really given it thought, except that I assumed it meant seniority in order of precedence. I might be wrong, but that is how I interpret it, since it rests with me to interpret Standing Orders.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would be grateful for your ruling on this, because I would like to submit that seniority is based on the position of the Minister, as in my submission, there is no Minister who is senior to the others. They are all equal.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think we will gain anything by further discussion of this. Whatever views hon. Members have, our Standing Orders refer to a Senior Minister. I have to give some interpretation of that expression. I have given the interpretation that I believe to be right. One sees Ministers, particularly the Vice-President, given certain precedence in the order of precedence, and I go by that.

Now, we will go on with the business on the Order Paper.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 985

AFFORESTATION IN CENTRAL NYANZA

(Resumption of discussion on a question interrupted by Motion)

Mr. Ngala-Aboki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was going to raise a supplementary question but in view of what has happened, I think the value of my supplementary question has been reduced. However, I would ask, in view of the fact that the major parts of the country still need education, in terms of afforestation and many other Government projects, would the Minister tell the House what he has done in Central Nyanza to educate the people of Central Nyanza and tell them that the seedlings and the nurseries for seedlings at Maseno and other places in the district, are meant for them to be used for afforestation programmes?

Mr. Ayodo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have done everything possible to let everybody in Nyanza know, especially this month, that we have seedlings at Maseno and in the other nurseries—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Minister in order to refer to an hon. Member as "this man"?

Mr. Ayodo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said this month.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have not finished. Mr. Ayodo?

Mr. Ayodo: No, Sir, I have not, I am thankful for your assistance, and I think he will understand "moon" better than "man".

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have used every possible means and we have circulated all provincial commissioners, and therefore, all district commissioners, and all chiefs and all district officers, that we have a nursery there and that if they need more than we have there, arrangements will be made to supply them with seedlings from other nurseries.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that efforts were made three years ago for this particular plan in Nyanza when it was still called Nyanza, that at present is Central Nyanza and Kakamega District, for a forest station to set up in the Maragoli Hills, and these efforts failed? Could he tell the House whether the attitude has changed at present?

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Yes, I am aware that occasionally there have been delays in trunk calls between Kisumu and Nairobi.

The answer to the second part of the question is that the East African Posts and Telecommunications Administration has already ordered equipment to be installed in Kisumu in order to improve the telephone services in this area, and it is hoped that this equipment will arrive some time towards the end of this year.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that this telephone delay is not occasional, it is a daily occurrence and that it is quicker to travel to Nairobi by car than to make a telephone call.

Mr. Mwanjumba: I agree that there are frequent telephone delays and the reason for that, Mr. Speaker, has been that, since independence, there has been a lot more traffic in the telephone system. There have been more calls than ever before and this we interpret as being a healthy growth in the Administration and, having realized this difficulty, this is why the Administration is doing everything it can in order to improve the situation.

Mr. arap Tooi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister not aware that the main causes for these telephonic delays are due to the telephone operators discussing private matters with their girlfriends?

Mr. Mwanjumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have regulations to stop someone from talking to his girlfriend in the telephone exchange, but that is not the reason for the delays. The reason is that the traffic has grown to such an extent that the equipment that we have at present is so congested that it is sometimes difficult to get a reply within five minutes, but Mr. Speaker, as I have said, we are already getting this new equipment which will improve the situation a great deal.

Question No. 1086

POST OFFICE FOR LITEIN

Mr. Bly asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power whether, in view of the fact that Litein Township was in the heart of Buret Constituency with a population of over 80,000, the Minister had taken the appropriate steps to establish a post office there.

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bonnett): Mr. Speaker, Sir,

I beg to reply. There is a post office at Litein which provides adequate services for the needs of the people at a centre of this size.

Mr. Bly: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wonder whether the Assistant Minister is aware that at Litein, at present there is no post office, but rather an Indian shop which is used as an agency?

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am aware that the post office at the moment is small, but of a size large enough to serve the needs of the people of Buret. There is a subpost office which is making only Sh. 382 per month, whereas normally, a post office should be making Sh. 1,500 before it is considered for upgrading.

Mr. Agar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister inform the House whether there are also post office savings bank facilities at Litein?

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, Yes, there are post office finance facilities there.

Mr. Kericha: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister tell this House whether this is a post office which is erected by the Government or it is an Indian shop hired by the Government.

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, I have to say this to satisfy the Member who has just asked the question. Each year the East African Posts and Telecommunications Administration reviews the amount of business transacted at subpost offices such as Litein and if there is justification for upgrading them, the appropriate action is taken. In pursuance of the programme to extend postal services in rural areas, the Litein area is due to be visited during this year and if investigation reveals that the population density warrants additional subpost offices being opened, then a due course this will be done.

In answer to your question, there is a post office there which a private shop, which has been rented. It is doing the work of the post office and is satisfying the needs of the people of Buret.

Mr. Mbogho: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, does he expect the people to go with their post office savings bank passbooks in to a shop and give them their money?

Mr. Bonnett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is not

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, could we be told in this House whether whilst an hon. Member is on his feet other Members can continue speaking so loudly that we can hardly follow up the reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is very disturbing, particularly when the House is so full. I do ask hon. Members to realize that one or two or three very quiet conversations may be all right, but when you have a dozen of them it makes it very difficult to hear, and this House wants to hear.

NOTICE OF MOTION ON THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION No. 1086: POST OFFICE AT LITEIN

Mr. Sir: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move this Motion on an adjournment.

An hon. Member: Not yet.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): An hon. Member is quite entitled to state at any time that he wishes to pursue the matter on an adjournment, but if he does that, there are no further supplementary questions.

(Question No. 985 was called.)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is there no representative of the Ministry ready to reply? We will go on to the next question then.

POINT OF ORDER

ABSENCE OF MEMBERS TO ANSWER QUESTIONS

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when the Minister and the Assistant Minister are both absent for the question, can we be allowed to express our dissatisfaction of the deplorable attitude of the Government to questions?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, I am ready to answer this question.

(Interruption by the hon. Mr. P. Nyaga)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Nyaga, unless you can control yourself better, you will have to leave the Chamber.

Now we had just left Question No. 985, because the Minister was not here, moving on to the next one and Mr. Gichuru said he would answer it; but now the Minister has arrived, so we will come back to Question No. 985.

Mr. Bala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to have your guidance on this matter. Each time you allow one point of order at a time, but just now the hon. Member, Mr. Ngala raised a point of order and before you ruled on this point of order, the Minister stood and you gave him hearing. What is actually right? Are we to understand your previous ruling is right or this one.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid you did not hear my ruling. It was very short. I said "yes", to Mr. Ngala, before Mr. Gichuru intervened. I had ruled. Now we have Question 985.

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, can I express my dissatisfaction?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You did.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did not, I just objected.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you did two in one.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 985

AFFORESTATION PLANS IN CENTRAL NYANZA

Mr. Bala asked the Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife if he could tell the House what plans he had for encouraging afforestation in Central Nyanza.

The Minister for Natural Resources and Wildlife (Mr. Ayodo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It is intended to hold discussions shortly with the Provincial Commissioner and the Provincial Agricultural Board as to the availability of land in Nyanza, including Central Nyanza, for afforestation purposes. In addition, the Ministry maintains a tree nursery at Maseno where individual farmers can buy seedlings for planting on their land.

It is also intended Mr. Speaker, Sir, to reopen a forest office at Kisumu as soon as the necessary staff can be found.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir,—

(Interruption by the hon. Mr. Nyaga)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is that Mr. Nyaga again? Mr. Nyaga, you will leave the precincts for the rest of the day. That means the whole building, not merely the Chamber.

(The hon. Mr. Nyaga continued his interruptions)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Sergeant-at-Arms, will you remove Mr. Nyaga please?

(The hon. Mr. Nyaga was removed from the Chamber by the Sergeant-at-Arms under protest)

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware of this, but in the schools to which the volunteers are posted, these teachers are required to follow a curriculum and syllabuses approved by the Ministry, various curriculums and syllabuses designed to prepare candidates for the Cambridge School Certificate, and all London examinations. These books are selected from a list prescribed by the Inspectorate which also advises on equipment for specialized subjects; and teaching apparatus generally. So, these teachers are supposed to follow Kenya syllabuses and the textbooks which are being used in every school in Kenya.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since there are other methods of checking the efficiency of teachers, would the Assistant Minister tell us from the results of the students who are taught by these teachers that their methods are up to date or still need improvement?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as far as I know and since there was a query about this yesterday, there was no school which actually obtained a lower percentage than in previous years, even in the schools where the Peace Corps seem to be teaching.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that, for example a school like Maseno, the passes for 1964 were very much lower compared with previous years, because of the numbers of the Peace Corps in these areas, would the Minister—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Anyieni, I do not think you are in order to say that, you know. You are imputing that the Peace Corps teachers were responsible for lower results. You cannot do that.

Mr. Anyieni: I have not finished my question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That may be so, but you are making allegations which are not allowed.

Mr. Anyieni: Shall I put it in a different form?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you had better, yes.

Mr. Anyieni: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that we have had a strike, for example, at Maseno where students complained that these teachers, the Peace Corps teachers, were not teaching them satisfactorily, would the Government consider prolonging the orientation period which these gentlemen should undergo from three months to six months, so that they can have the proper training to teach Kenya students to pass the School Certificate?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, first of all, we are not aware of any complaints sent to us by students or by schools, and as far as the Ministry is concerned, we are always awaiting any bad results from the official education officers. If there is something wrong, we always follow it up and correct it from the Ministry.

Question No. 1075

FREE EDUCATION FOR CHILDREN OF KILLED SOMALIS

Mr. Amin asked the Minister for Education if the Government was prepared to give free education to the children of loyal Somalis who were killed by Shifita in the North-Eastern Province.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. No, Sir, the responsibility for primary education lies with local authorities to whom the problem of children who cannot pay fees should be directed in the first instance.

Machinery exists for the remitting of school fees, either in part or in full, for pupils who are destitute, through school committees, and this machinery should be used by the type of person referred to by the hon. Member.

Mr. Amin: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, I would like to know from the Assistant Minister whether it is the policy of this Government to regard every Somali man who is killed in the North-Eastern Region as a Shifita?

Mr. Konchellah: Could he repeat the question?

Mr. Amin: Mr. Speaker, this is what I am trying to say. I would like to know from the Assistant Minister whether it is the policy of this Government to regard every Somali man who is killed in the North-Eastern Region as a Shifita?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It does not arise.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, arising from one of the replies by the Assistant Minister, Sir, since the remissions regulations in the Ministry of Education are only related to 10 per cent of the total fees, if in any place in the North-Eastern Region the 10 per cent is exceeded by children of loyal Somalis that have died because of Shifita activities, will the Minister consider extending the remission percentage or doing it on his mere authority so that these children could get education?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the remission of fees is the responsibility of the local authorities who only authorize remission of the school fees on the recommendation of the school committee. Every school committee has the authority of recommending remission of a certain percentage of fees, varying from 5 per cent to 10 per cent for the particular school. That percentage is distributed by the committee among the poor people according to their needs. The Central Government cannot, therefore, be asked to introduce a separate system as a proper system already exists. So, perhaps the Somalis in the North-Eastern Region have not even submitted claims for the 5 per cent or 10 per cent of the children to be recommended.

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, education throughout the country is the subject of the Minister concerned and we do not take it to be the subject for county councils. Hence, is the Assistant Minister in order in referring to county councils because the county councils are acting on by-laws approved by him, as far as education is concerned, primary or secondary education or even college education?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, it is a point of order that Mr. Ngala has raised. However, the position is that we do expect in this House that for everything that goes on in the country, and will be prepared to answer even where the actual authority is delegated to some other local authority. But where, as in this case, the Minister in answer points out that the particular discretion is vested in the local authority, well that is the position and the House has to accept it. Whether the law should be altered is another matter.

Mr. Kamuren: Mr. Speaker, Sir, do we understand that all school committees in the schools in the North-Eastern Region have not submitted claims for the children who are supposed to have their school fees remitted in schools? If that is the case, Sir, could we be told by the Assistant Minister as to how many schools have submitted claims for the children who are supposed to get remission of school fees in those schools?

Mr. Konchellah: We have no information about this, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Amin: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, what is the use of a Government when it is unable to give free education to five or six children whose parents have been killed by the Shifita?

Mr. Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member has mentioned a number of about six children and perhaps he has not even gone to see what is going on in his own area. So he does not know whether the school committee has dealt with these six children or not.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 1075: FREE EDUCATION FOR CHILDREN OF KILLED SOMALIS

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, due to the very unsatisfactory replies on the education of the children of Somalis who were faithful to the Government, I would like to raise this matter on an adjournment.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 1023

TELEPHONE CALLS BY MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT FROM POLICE STATIONS:

Mr. Mwanuzi asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power whether the Minister would tell the House why he has refused permission to make a telephone call at Msambweni Police Station and whether there was any reason why M.P.s should not be allowed to make telephone calls from police stations, particularly, in the remote areas.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanuzi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, that question was referred to the Ministry of Defence.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will leave it over and see if the Minister will come in later to answer the question.

Question No. 1044

DELAY IN TELEPHONE CALLS KISUMU/NAIROBI

Mr. Jamal asked the Minister for Works, Communications and Power whether—

- the Minister was aware that long delays were experienced in obtaining trunk telephone calls between Kisumu and Nairobi;
- he would make appropriate representations to the E.A.P. and T. Administration to improve this service.

Thursday, 22nd April 1965

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

PRAYERS

POINT OF ORDER

RULING ON PETITIONS

Mr. Ngala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I rise for your guidance over this question of petitions. The item entitled "petitions" always appears on the Order Paper, could you explain, Sir, in what circumstances petitions could appear in the House because it looks as if this is an unnecessary item on the Order Paper?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is a very rare item, but it is provided for in Standing Orders. Any hon. Member can present a petition—or any member of the public through an hon. Member—and I can remember one certainly, and I think two occasions during my time in the former Legislative Council, when petitions were presented; and this is the time for them to be presented. They can be presented without any warning, so we have to allow for it on the Order Paper.

Mr. Anyien: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. Is it in order for the clock of the Parliament building to be a little bit ahead of time so that Members are on time think they are late?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is regrettable, but it is not exactly out of order. We try to discipline the clock, but we do not always succeed, anymore than we always succeed, in disciplining the House.

NOTICES OF MOTIONS

PAYMENT FOR MEDICAL TREATMENT

Mr. Kibaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

That this House notes with great concern that while the poor man in Kenya has to pay for all his medical treatment, the rich man in the Central Government and local authority employment is treated freely; and therefore calls upon the Government to either give free medical treatment to all the citizens of Kenya or introduce a system whereby a citizen pays for medical treatment according to his or her earning capacity.

REVIEW OF TEA PLANTING POLICY

Mr. Bly: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

In view of the fact that poverty is one of the three national enemies, this House urgently asks the Government to review the development plan on tea planting so as to allow smallholders to grow twice as much as the amount promised for the next three years.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 1028

SETTLEMENT OF SEMA—BUTENDE BOUNDARY

Mr. Okwanyo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, the Question No. 1028 has been discussed fully with the Ministry concerned and the Member for Kuria. Therefore, I would beg to withdraw it.

(Question No. 1028 withdrawn)

Question No. 1041

ARSON ON SUGAR AND SISAL ESTATES

Mr. Jamal asked the Minister for Internal Security and Defence whether the Minister was aware of the large-scale arson cases in sugarcane and sisal plantations in parts of Central Nyanza, and if so, what was he going to do to remedy the situation.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is the Minister here?

Question No. 983

DIFFICULTY IN OBTAINING FREE SEEDLINGS

Mr. Bala asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry if he was aware that many people found a lot of difficulty in obtaining seedlings of trees in Central Nyanza particularly in Nyando Division.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. As the hon. Member himself knows, he bought seedlings not so long ago from a fruit tree seedling nursery in Kisumu which caters for Nyanza, Nyando Division; indeed so far my Ministry has been able to satisfy the demands of Central Nyanza from these nurseries and elsewhere.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, would he tell this House what kind of seedlings there are in Kisumu which can serve Nyanza satisfactorily?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in Kisumu, we have seedlings of citrus fruits and paw paw and at Muragoi, we have many varieties of seedlings and at Closeburn Nursery here in Nairobi, and even if we run short we have a lot of seedlings in Tanzania which at any time, anybody who wants them can move them from one nursery to another.

Mr. Nyalick: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is he aware that the seedlings at Kisumu in the nursery are quite small and would only cater for the people of Kisumu?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the possibility of expanding these nurseries would be looked into if demand increased, but at the moment I say this because there are times when supplies so much exceeds demand that seedlings have matured in nurseries, especially in Homa Bay, for lack of people to buy.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies by the Assistant Minister, Sir, would he give us assurance that Kisumu is the wrong place for the fruits and that whatever nursery that existed in Kisumu should be transferred to the Coast?

Mr. Murgor: I cannot agree with the hon. Member, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

Question No. 1058

AMERICAN PEACE CORPS TEACHING METHODS

Mr. Ngala-Abok asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House what machinery there was for checking the teaching methods used by the American Peace Corps teachers in secondary schools.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Konchellab): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Peace Corps teachers, like all secondary school teachers in Kenya, are required to conform with our teaching methods while they are serving in Kenya, and like all other teachers are supervised by the Ministry of Education field officers and inspectors and by their head teachers, and at the larger schools, teachers in charge of subjects.

Mr. Nyalick: Mr. Speaker, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, could he tell the House how this Peace Corps comes to be taken in these secondary schools? Is there any school in this country in which they are being shown methods by which our schoolchildren are being taught before they are taken on?

Mr. Konchellab: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Kenya Government agreement with the Peace Corps stipulates that all teacher volunteers shall be graduates and shall undergo the three months' provisional training and orientation course. The course is conducted by the teachers' college of Columbia University which has been associated with the teachers from East African projects for three years.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's earlier reply, in view of the fact that at the moment we do not have the provincial inspectorate team that used to exist, would the Assistant Minister tell this House who does the actual inspection which he said these teachers are subjected to, because at the moment there are no provincial inspectorate teams?

Mr. Konchellab: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Inspectorate, for instance, is unable to visit every school, and to see every teacher at work in the classroom at frequent intervals, and much depends on the guidance given to inexperienced teachers within the schools' own organizations. Peace Corps teachers, of course, have served in Kenya in limited numbers, and for one term only as yet, and it is too early to make a comparative assessment of the work of this group against the standard either of perfection or of teachers from other sources.

Mr. Omweri: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I asked the Assistant Minister to tell us who did the inspections, when he said that inspections are made by the inspectors, and there are at the moment no Inspectorate teams in the provinces as they did exist?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members must understand that if they are not satisfied with the reply, or perhaps there is not a full reply, they should not rise on a point of order. Hon. Members can ask another supplementary question, but only when they are called on to do so.

Mr. Omweri: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, how do we put a grievance if the answer is irrelevant to the question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have told you, by another supplementary question if you are called on. That is all. If we had a point of order every time hon. Members were dissatisfied with an answer, we would be busy all afternoon.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell the House whether he is aware that some of these Peace Corps teachers, although I have great respect for them, are reluctant to follow the British books laid down for Cambridge and School Certificates, and also that they do not wish to give notes on blackboards, alleging that their teachings and lectures are enough.

[The Minister for Works, Communications and Power] area. If that potential can be raised to warrant the construction of a road, that has to be considered also. Another thing which is considered is the tourist potential. If the road is constructed, many tourists may perhaps be able to use this road. But the most important thing is the total cost of such a project. How much money will it cost to build such a road? In this particular case, I am advised that the two bridges that are referred to would cost more than £100,000. My friend, Mr. Ekitella, said that it would cost Sh. 500. Surely, Mr. Ekitella, through self-help—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He said it would only cost Sh. 500 for each journey, instead of Sh. 1,600.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Mr. Speaker, I think I listened quite clearly and what the hon. Member said was that it would cost him Sh. 1,600 to go to Lodwar.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I rise for your ruling. In view of the fact that the Provincial Councils were deprived of power, is the Minister in order now to refer these powers of making these bridges to the Provincial Council, when all the powers lie within his Ministry?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He may be quite wrong, but he is not out of order.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I can assure the House that I am not wrong—

Mr. Anyken: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I understand that the Minister is using the words "Provincial Advisory Councils". Is it in order for him to misuse the words when this House is spending a lot of money?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know what other people have in their heads, but some people cannot get themselves settled.

Now, to go back again, Mr. Speaker, to the cost of these bridges. As I have said the cost would be more than £100,000. Mr. Speaker, that is not a small sum. The Government has to see what priority is needed in a district. Is it the bridge that needs priority in that area, or for example, the construction of school hospitals for the area? All these questions have to be taken into consideration before Government can go ahead and construct these bridges. Therefore, in the opinion of Government, there is a greater need for more schools in this area. There is need for more hospitals in this area, than there is for a road only to maintain fifty vehicles a day. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I could give figures—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry, Mr. Mwanjumba, but I have already given you another two minutes because of the interjections you had, so I am afraid you will have to stop now.

The Assistant Minister for Labour and Social Services (Mr. Odero-Jowi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very serious Motion, because in this Motion the whole problem of development in this country is highlighted. The fact of the matter is that we have some parts of Kenya which have enjoyed quite a lot of development, and in Turkana it is a fact, and in Pokot, that development is still minimal and, as a matter of fact, this Government recognizes this area of Kenya as the area which must be given priority. It is not surprising, Sir, if any of the Members have read the Development Plan, they should have realized that this problem of development is well dealt with, and it is not a new thing.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I sympathize with this Motion entirely. I think that in our development and in our plans we should try to increase development where there has been no development previously, and in doing this, you cannot develop an area without communications, and I think there is a certain amount of contradiction when we say that we want to develop this and that, but neglect communications and I think roads are really essential. But, Mr. Speaker, Sir, development is not a matter of emotion. We have to plan, we have to know what the priorities are. We must know what we should do first because if we do the wrong thing, then a lot of money will be spent in putting these things right, and a lot of money will be spent unnecessarily. But, when we plan correctly, one type of expenditure will reinforce the other, and development will catch on, and this is why, Sir, I would like to support the Minister. For, as far as I see, schools and hospitals should have a higher priority in Turkana, at the moment, than these roads.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Bonetti): I have just one comment to make, and that is that we do realize, and I told the hon. Mr. Ekitella, that we

[The Assistant Minister for Works, Communications and Power] sympathize with what he raised, but I also come from a district which is less developed as far as roads are concerned. But, as we said, the Government has a big area to look after, and we have to try and put priorities in order, and the only way we can do this is to have the county council give us a list of the priorities that they think are important in the given area.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I should like to tell Mr. Ekitella that I am with him and the Government is with him.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have now had our half hour. The House will adjourn until tomorrow, Thursday, 22nd April 1965, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at Seven o'clock.

WRITTEN REPLY TO QUESTION

Question No. 1022

HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS LIVING OUTSIDE EMBU

Mr. Mbugoh asked the President if he would tell the House why the following provincial heads of departments in the Eastern Province were not living in the headquarters of the province—Embu:

- (1) Provincial Medical Officer.
- (2) Provincial Health Officer.
- (3) Provincial Engineer.
- (4) Provincial Agricultural Officer.
- (5) Provincial Veterinary Officer.
- (6) Provincial Police Officer.

The Assistant Minister, President's Office (Mr. Nyamwaya): As the hon. Member knows, the Government has been making every effort to build Embu from what was originally a district headquarters to provincial headquarters status. Before it was suggested that it became a provincial headquarters, Embu had sufficient living and office accommodation to cater for the district staff, but, as the hon. Members of this House will appreciate, when it was decided to make it a provincial headquarters, it became impossible to squeeze all the provincial heads and their staff into Embu.

However, the Government allocated some money for the expansion of Embu. In order to provide suitable accommodation for the provincial staff and, so far, nearly £42,000 has been spent in building additional living and office accommodation.

Of those departments listed by the hon. Member in his question, the hon. Member may be delighted to know that the Provincial Veterinary Officer and his staff are now living in Embu. It is expected that the Agricultural Department will be moving in the very near future. It is not possible, Mr. Speaker, to move the remaining departments and their staff into Embu immediately owing to the lack of accommodation and the large sums of money that new buildings would cost. The need for all the departments to be in one provincial headquarters is appreciated, but, in these matters, finance is the limiting factor. The situation is kept under constant review.

The House may also like to know that, as a sign of Government's concern over the lack of staff accommodation in Embu, the Embu County Council is being approached regarding proposals that it should apply for a loan from the Central Housing Board to enable it to build additional housing in Embu, which could be rented by civil servants. The Government hopes that these proposals will be agreeable to the council, as this venture would solve the present housing problem.

[Mr. Ekitella]

Turkana District should have better roads. Instead of going from Nairobi, through Lokitaung—This will cost you Sh. 1,600 only to travel 540 miles to Lodwar. Instead of going to Lokitaung, there should be a bridge which will cost only Sh. 500 to put up. When I say this most Members will say that I only say this because I want to talk.

Mr. Speaker, we are in trouble. I do not have even a penny in the bank. All the money I get I have to use to repair my car, to maintain my car.

I ask the Minister for Communications that this road should be built. Instead of making us give all our money to Uganda, we must bring the money to Kenya. To go to Lodwar, you have to pass Karapokot and this is where our money goes. We must solve this matter. So I would tell the Kenya Government to shorten this road so that instead of our money going to Uganda, we will now pass through Nakuru, through Baringo, and then to Lodwar. Then the road will only be 300 miles. A small bridge will cost very little money.

Instead of your using your money on Uganda which is ninety-six miles away, ninety-six miles to Uganda. This is very well known. Excuse me, please, it is the Republic of Uganda. Ninety-six miles. Government is paying that but the Uganda Government never pays a thing, and they are using the same road. Why is that? Why is Government giving this money to Uganda? I want to know why. Why? The Minister when he answers should tell us why this money is given to Uganda. This money is given to Uganda. They are using that road, why?

Mr. Lorena: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support this Motion. During this session, there have been so many Motions on the Adjournment. I have come to the conclusion that these questions, many times, have been answered by Ministers and Assistant Ministers in a very awkward way, to some extent rudely and also helplessly. Mr. Speaker, several times we ask questions here and we are told, "Members of Parliament, representatives" we are told, "you are wasting your time in Parliament, come and talk us in our own Ministries or have a chat outside here." One of these which were answered very irresponsibly was this question asked by the Member for Turkana South, the hon. Mr. Ekitella. In that answer, with your permission if I may quote, the Assistant Minister said "There is a priority list drawn up by the Rift Valley Provincial Council Authority and in this list which was sent by the Rift Valley Provincial Authority, there is no road from Turkana." Now, in that reply, the Assistant Minister also said that Turkana was represented in the Rift Valley Province Road Authority and if this Member was represented, why is it that there was no mention of Turkana in this case? This is a fact, Mr. Speaker: It is just plain negligence; the Government is trying to neglect Turkana and probably curtain them. This is not like nationalism at all, and they are now coming down to regionalism. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this bridge which is on the Kerio River is very important indeed. It is only unfortunate that the Ministers and Assistant Ministers have not dared to visit this area. If at all they went there, their cars would be swept over by water, by flood.

Mr. Speaker, this road has always been a danger to people's lives and also people's animals have been washed away during the rainy seasons and the Government has not dared to go there. The Assistant Minister said during that time, "We have not got advice from the Rift Valley Provincial Council." What is this Rift Valley Provincial Council? It is not that the Central Government is more powerful than these Provincial Councils? Why should we rely on this advice instead of taking action?

After getting this advice, the Central Government should check up and see whether this thing should be done or not. I think it is high time the Government relied on the Kanu Manifesto. We have always been neglected very much, the Turkana and the Suk for that matter. When we come to this bridge, I want the Government to reply with only one word; yes or no. Mr. Speaker, if it is yes, when is the work going to start? We are representatives of the people and, in this House, I think, in the interests of the nation. Tomorrow, the Minister will pass this very bridge if he goes there. There is no question about this.

Mr. Speaker, I do not have much to say on this because I am waiting for the Government's reply from the Assistant Minister, if at all it is going to be sensible.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to ask the hon. Members to be patient and I will give them the replies which they want. First, I would like to thank the hon. Member, Mr. Ekitella, who has spoken very well about the two bridges in question, that is the bridge at Fort Talbot and over the Kerio River. I think the hon. Member who first spoke has the interests of his constituency at heart and I do appreciate and sympathize with what he has said to this House. I would like to say also that the Secunder of the Motion who has said that

[The Minister for Works, Communications and Power]

Government has neglected some areas in Kenya is not right in saying so. There is no place at all which is being neglected in this country when national plans are being considered for development. Every province and every district is considered according to its merits and I am sure the hon. Members—

Hon. Members: No, No.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): If hon. Members would be patient, I will be able to give them exactly what Government is doing. The question of classifying roads for development and so on does not lie entirely with the Central Government alone. The procedure which is taken and which is accepted and which is in the Constitution is this: that we have the Central Road Authority which is established under the Constitution. This Authority gets its advice from the Provincial Advisory Council which, in turn, gets advice from the administrative officers and also from the county councils. Now, Sir, according to the Constitution, the Provincial Advisory Council have to provide a list of roads which in their mind they think ought to be considered for development and for construction and so on by Central Government. When this list is brought to the Central Road Authority, Mr. Speaker, it is discussed by the Road Authority and final approval of that list is normally given by the Minister in charge of Works, Communications and Power, which is myself.

Now, Sir, the Assistant Minister, when he replied to the question, that is question No. 972, rightly said that in the list of roads which was supplied by the Rift Valley Provincial Council to the Central Road Authority, there was no mention of any road in the Turkana District. I do sympathize with him on that issue.

Mr. Speaker, there was nothing we could do to bring any road or bridges into consideration by the Central Road Authority.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, order. There is far too much conversation everywhere.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): I hope hon. Members will be patient and listen to what I have to say, because if they do not want to listen, there is no point in my talking.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when this happened, the hon. Member, Mr. Ekitella, came to me and talked about this. I gave him my advice; that as he is interested in the construction of these bridges and roads in his area, he should, in the first instance, see his county council and talk to his works committee and make recommendations to the works committee of the Provincial Advisory Council so that some of the roads which they think should have priority could be considered by this council.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have already told the hon. Member this and I gave him this advice even before he asked the question. If he had taken that advice, Mr. Speaker, perhaps one of the roads would have been considered by the Central Road Authority which sat some five weeks ago. But having failed to do so, I still do advise the hon. Member that the only channel, as far as we are concerned and according to the Constitution, is to get advice from the Provincial Advisory Council.

Therefore, it is the responsibility of this Council in question to bring us these recommendations, which have to be considered along with other roads in the whole country. Kenya is a very big country and we cannot consider one bridge alone. We have to consider one bridge together with other bridges elsewhere in the country. There are other bridges which are—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The object of a Motion for the Adjournment is to hear what Government has to say, and you cannot hear if you make so much noise.

The Minister for Works, Communications and Power (Mr. Mwanjumba): If hon. Members want to listen to what the Government policy is, I think they should be patient. I have said that even though a Provincial Council may bring a list to be considered by the Central Road Authority, the Central Road Authority will not be able at once to accept those roads that have been brought by the Provincial Council, because they have still to be considered together with other roads in the country. Mr. Speaker, there are other roads which merit more attention by Government than any of the roads which the hon. Member or others may be trying to get.

Mr. Speaker, the information which is wanted if a road is to be included in the list of priorities by Government is, for example, the number of cars and the volume of traffic that passes along that road. On this particular road referred to by the hon. Member, I am advised that, as far back as 1956, there were only about five trucks a day, and that figure has now risen to about forty trucks a day. That is a very considerable improvement, considering the nature of the area.

Another thing which also has to be considered is the agricultural and industrial potential of the [Mr. Ochwada] know and I would like these two people split completely, and let us have one person known as Head of State whom we all respect as that, and let us have another one who we have as our political head with whom we can joke, we can do some mud-slinging and we can do anything else we like. If possible when it comes to that I can throw some books across the Floor, I can also throw some words across the Floor. I think this would be a fairer deal rather than what we have at the present moment whereby when we meet him we do not know what he is at what time and when he is what at what time, and what he should be at what time.

An hon. Member: He is always the President.

Mr. Ochwada: I know he is always the President but he has two sides to being the President. He has the left-hand side Presidentship and the right-hand side Presidentship, whereby he can be prosecuted as President and the other side where he cannot be prosecuted as President.

On one side you can talk to him politically and on the other side you cannot talk to him politically.

Another point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, about the President is the method of electing the President. The method of election of the President is so cumbersome that perhaps in the next election—if by chance we do not have the present President—we might have each Member nominating himself as President. Thus we would not elect a President, we would come to this House to try and elect a President and we cannot elect one. We go back to the country to seek fresh mandates of the country. We come back here without the President; we start all over again. This type of method, I think, is rather on the ambiguous side and I wish the Attorney-General would take this into consideration when he considers a next amendment. It may not necessarily be in this amendment but the next amendment.

Then, of course, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, there is the question of the President's powers and how far the Parliament can go with him. Here is the person whom he can elect in a very queer manner but this person cannot be removed, regardless what he does. This, I think, is what has contributed to the anxiety of most of the hon. Members in this House, about the powers of the President, the powers of emergency and all sorts of powers in the Constitution. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, even if we felt that the President has done something gravely wrong in the country we cannot remove him. We do not want to remove every President, but as the Members have suggested here. The President cannot remove himself. Here we have the anxiety of the Members expressed by the Back-benchers.

At the moment we have a President in whom everybody has full confidence. We may have the next one who will have cagey support from here and there and who may for the sake of maintaining power decide to become a stubborn President. And the majority of the Members of Parliament may think now, this gentleman has decided to become stubborn, what can we do with him? We do not do absolutely nothing. The Members may go to their constituencies but the President will still remain the President. You will go back to your constituencies until you are elected back here and a new President if you get him. Unless you can get a new one you will still come back to the same President.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this question of the power of the President has caused anxiety because of the power ultimately vested in the President where he cannot be removed even by Parliament when it feels that he has gravely wronged the country. So, I suggest to the Attorney-General that when he thinks about the amendment the next time he should take this matter into very serious consideration.

Now, Mr. Speaker, we come to the subject of the referendum. There has been strong views expressed about retaining the powers of the referendum and going out to the country when we feel there is something wrong. However, what is the use of having elected Members in this Parliament if every decision we make must go out to the country. Does this mean that the Parliament has no confidence in Members of this country or that they have no confidence in Members of Parliament when the time comes where a referendum must be taken? If it is not true that Members of this Parliament are representatives of the people of this country? Is it not true that, Mr. Speaker, when an issue arises in Parliament, or a controversial issue arises in Parliament, Members of this Parliament have the right or the responsibility of communicating with their constituencies to find out the views of their constituents before they come to make a decision? Then, that being the case what is the use of even having a referendum in the Constitution? Perhaps we need it for some very, very important and unique reasons. But to me I would have thought perhaps it should have been a referendum

[Mr. Ochwada] in the Constitution unless, of course, those who have expressed very strong views about it feel that since they were elected they have lost the following which they had before their electors elected them to this Parliament. Perhaps if there was an issue which needed the support of the country their own constituencies would not support them.

Mr. Speaker, to conclude this question of land I would say there has been issue of land mentioned here—forests, and some land being acquired by the Central Government. However, I do not quite understand whether we are here representing ourselves or are here representing the people that elected us. If land is taken over by the Central Government, Mr. Speaker, is it not in the interests of the people? Is it in the interests of the Central Government, and if it is in the interests of the Central Government who is the Central Government? If it is in the interests of the nation who is the nation? Mr. Speaker, whether it is a forest or land, as long as it is within the boundaries of Kenya it belongs to Kenya in the interests of the people of Kenya, whether it is in Gichugu, in Teso, or even in Muranga. If a Member from Muranga stands up in this House and says, "it is situated in Muranga and it cannot be acquired by Government because when it is acquired by Government it is not going to help my people". That is wrong. Is the Government bringing people from the moon to come and live on that land? Is it acquiring land because it wants to build a game park for some antelopes or giraffes? If that is so, then the Member for Kajjido would enjoy some rich grass and trees that grow in some other areas.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid I shall have to ask you to stop, Mr. Ochwada, because it is time to take the Motion for the adjournment. Would you like to continue next time?

Mr. Ochwada: Yes, Sir, I will continue next time.

NOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

BRIDGE LINKING NORTH AND SOUTH TURKANA

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time for the interruption of business, and I will now call on a Minister to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

Dr. De Souza seconded.

Mr. Ekitella: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if you recall, when I asked Question No. 972 I received replies which were very unsatisfactory. The Minister answered in a very vague way saying that provincial council could not put up a bridge because that was not on the list. Now, Sir, I would like to inform the Government that the—

Mr. Aremam: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, may we know whether on a Motion for adjournment, the Mover of the Motion is permitted to read his speech from his notes?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is a Standing Order which says that hon. Members should not read their speeches. They are allowed to have notes to read from, but that should not be every word.

Mr. Ekitella: There is procedure, Mr. Speaker, but I must read from my paper. I must read what I want.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must not carry on talking like that, Mr. Ekitella.

Mr. Ekitella: I will put my paper down, Mr. Speaker. I would like to say that the Member who put the point of order did not know what he was talking about.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Oh, Yes, he did know. He was quite correct in his point of order.

Mr. Ekitella: Mr. Speaker, I wish to raise this matter on the adjournment, and nobody can oppose me. Members must keep quiet.

Mr. Speaker, since the matter of roads has been forgotten for so many years—Mr. Speaker, I am sure that most hon. Members here have never gone on those roads; I am sure the Minister for Works and Communications knows this. He for Works and Communications knows this. He knows that we have to go through Uganda, and the Kenya Government has no support of this, the Kenya Government does not get even one small penny. We pay all the money to Uganda. I would like the Minister who is concerned with communication to build a bridge to shorten the way so that, instead of going through Uganda; we only go through Kenya. We can go through another way. I am sure that most of the Members here have never gone to Lodwar, because they will be stopped on the way and he is stabled in the back. Those Members who have gone there they know this well.

An hon. Member: On the contrary, I know it all too well!

Mr. Ekitella: Mr. Speaker, I have brought this Motion so that the Kenya Government will give this priority and and appreciate it, that the [Mr. Ochwada] see sitting on the Front Bench will sit there for ever and ever—some of them might be kicked tomorrow by Mzee and one of us here might be picked up and be placed on that Bench over there—and unless we are suggesting that we are not going to be human beings at that time—I was very much surprised when this was expressed by the hon. Member for Butere, that perhaps he would become the President tomorrow—and he hopes to become one—and he would be one of the most ruthless Presidents, one of the most uncouth Presidents and one of the most unreasonable Presidents who will not listen to the Parliament either. Where are we heading for, Mr. Speaker, Sir? Either we are speaking something we, ourselves, understand or we are speaking something that we do not know.

If the question of amendment is the only problem, an amendment can be made. An amendment can be brought up at any time, an amendment can be brought up even in the Parliamentary Group, an amendment can be presented to the Attorney-General through the Back-benchers Committee. This, to me, is a very simple thing, which I do not think should take much of our time at all.

The second one, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is about the power given or suggested in here in declaring a state of emergency. I was not here when the Minister for Economic Planning and Development was speaking, when he suggested that seven days is just as good as twenty-one days, but I think twenty-one days is a little on the high side. However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we feel that the Government has declared a state of emergency and probably wants to extend the state of emergency for over fourteen days or even twenty-one days, and then declare it again, who is this Government? I am given to understand the Government is not necessarily the Cabinet, that the Government includes even Members of Parliament, the Government includes the public at large, and if the Government does that once or twice, and the Members have not made any manero or have not even notified their own constituencies, who is to blame? I think the Members also have something to say about that. If they feel that the Government has declared a state of emergency and seven days have gone and Parliament has not been called, it is up to the Members to get to Nairobi as quickly as possible and probably see the Attorney-General, or find out from the Vice-President, who is in charge of Parliamentary affairs, why he has not yet summoned the Parliament, to give the okay to go ahead with that state of emergency. However, I would have liked to see the seven days remain, but I do not see any reason why we cannot accept twenty-one days if we feel that we are also part and parcel of the Government.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I come to the question of provincial councils, and this is where most of the Members, particularly the original Kani Members, surprised me a bit. On several occasions in our governing council meetings, in our Parliamentary Group meetings, in our Back-benchers meetings, it was these colleagues of mine with whom we started in Kani, who kept on boasting that this Majimbo must go. What Majimbo were we talking about, the name or the powers given to the Majimbo? If the powers given to the Majimbo are what we want to be eliminated, what is the use of retaining the human beings that were given those powers? All right, I do sympathize with these human beings because they are just as good human beings as I am, and I do agree that they are entitled to substance and existence just as much as I am entitled to substance and existence. But whose fault is it that Majimbo has been scrapped? Is it the fault of those people or is it one fault here, the people who advocated that Majimbo must go? We must accept some responsibility. We should not turn around when the Government has brought up a draft and say, "All right, hon. Charles Njorô, you have made a mistake," when in fact we are responsible for the passing of the Bill. We must share the responsibility. Let us face it. We must share the responsibility and we must be prepared to share it. We must not now turn around and say to the people in the Regional Assemblies, "Look, I'm fighting for you gentlemen, I am fighting for you to get a salary," when in fact we have been responsible for scrapping their position from the Constitution. Surely, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Government has scrapped completely the powers of Majimbo and the powers of the Regional Assemblies, then the best thing would have been perhaps for us to ask the Government, "What are you doing for these people?" I have been informed that the Government is doing everything possible to fit these people into various positions in various departments and in fact some of them have already obtained jobs. There may be some people in the Eastern Region who have not been fixed, but I do not think that someone has forgotten them. It is the responsibility of the Members of the Eastern Region to keep on reminding the Government that we have so-and-so in the Eastern Region who has not been fixed up with a job yet.

It must also draw the attention of Government to—It is not just a question of saying "Yes, [Mr. Ochwada] and tapping your feet against the seats, bear", and the Government also has a responsibility there. In the Civil Service Commission there is something known as qualifications, education and what have you. Some of these former Regional Assembly Members are people who struggled when some Ministers were perhaps still at school, getting the education that get them the Ministerial posts; some of these people were those who were struggling to get independence for this country. These people did not manage to have an opportunity to go to school; they do not have the required qualifications, educationally and otherwise. Because there is that clause in the Civil Service Commission, that these people are denied a livelihood. There are some of them who have better experience than some of us to sit on this Front Bench and can do a better job in any office of the Government. I mean any office, including Permanent Secretary or even President, because the President is a human being. I repeat any office. They can do a job in any office of the Government, but because they do not have that degree which is prescribed in the Civil Service Commission, they cannot get a job. This must also be reviewed, Mr. Speaker, and let these people get a job as quickly as possible, if we do not want to have a national problem on our hands. If we do not want to have a national problem on our hands, these people should be fixed in various jobs as quickly as possible, and we must not sit back and say as quickly as possible, which might mean as quickly as possible in so far as 1970 is concerned. We want them to get jobs this year and let us get rid of the Regional Assemblies completely.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the powers of the President—The hon. Mr. Khalif tells me that there is nothing wrong with the powers of the President, but there have been some Members who have raised a question about the powers of the President. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do agree with them in one respect—

Mr. Ekitella: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order that every Member speaking here is to mention the President?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What are you complaining of, Mr. Ekitella?

Mr. Ekitella: My point of order is this, Mr. Speaker, is it in order that all Members, when they speak, go on mentioning the President's name?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is nothing wrong with that.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as regards the powers of the President, I tend to agree with some Members who have expressed anxiety about the position of the President. His Excellency the President wears two caps, and it is very difficult for me in particular to know when his Excellency is Head of the State or his Excellency is Head of our Government.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Mr. De Souza) took the Chair]

This, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think, is a position which the Attorney-General should examine very carefully. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we are politicians and one of these days the President will come and sit on the Front Bench and perhaps on that day one of us will decide to have a go at the President, and talk to him as Head of Government, talk to him about affairs in the Government, and probably the old man might not like the way that the Member might present the views. Then suddenly, he may go out of that door and put on the other cap, truns around and says, "Now, honourable Member, I declare you A. B. C. D." Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is where I have a problem. I think it has come to a stage—

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): What is A, B, C, D?

Mr. Ochwada: That little ball which you used to play with when you were a little boy.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this is where the problem comes in. I think it is only fair that we should know whom we are talking to, when we are talking to him, and where we are talking to him. At the present time, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it is very difficult for me to tell, and especially when I fix an appointment to see the President and he invites me to State House, whether in State House I am speaking to the President as Head of State or as Head of Government. Similarly, even in Harambee House I cannot tell whether the President in Harambee House at ten past ten is Head of State or at eleven past twelve is Head of Government. This, Mr. Deputy Speaker, puts me in a very embarrassing position, I am quite confused, and at times scares me even from going near the President. The hon. Khalif wants to know why I am scared. The reason why I am scared is this. The President as Head of State has the right to do anything and you can do nothing about it, so that is a problem. I should know when I have the power to do anything and when I can do nothing about it. That is why I would like to

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are entitled to ask him to substantiate.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): That is precisely what I am asking.

Mr. Gichoya: I am not labouring on this very much, and I know that we have the hon. Mr. Kamau, Member for—

Mr. Kamau: On a point of order.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must sit down, Mr. Kamau, because at the moment we are dealing with another point of order, and Mr. Gichoya is substantiating.

Mr. Gichoya: I will answer this as it is. A meeting was called by the President of the Regional Assembly and if the Member cares I can give him a document which shows that he was a Member in attendance, and one of the topics which were discussed was the provision for members of the Regional Assemblies, and he was one of those who supported the view that these people must be given something to live on, and now he mentions that I am hearing things.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You say, Mr. Gichoya, that he was there?

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, how does the hon. Member know that I supported what he said, if I did not speak on this topic?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I hope that we are not going to waste another half an hour on this, but Mr. Gichoya, did you say that you heard Mr. Gachago speak?

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I maintain that he did speak on it. The minutes of the meeting can be easily had from the President of the Regional Assembly.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If you can be proved by Mr. Gachago to be wrong, you will, of course, acknowledge that fact to the House another day.

Mr. Gichoya: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will now carry on with the debate, and try to avoid, Mr. Gichoya, mentioning things that irritate other Members and raise constant points of order.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, one thing in this connexion with the production of the minutes—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will leave that alone now and move on to the next item.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other thing is the emergency powers, from seven days to twenty-one days. It is understood that we are responsible, and we are in a position to tell our Government that an abnormal situation has arisen in a particular area. Those who say that seven days are inadequate want to imply that our Government machinery is not actually capable of coping with a situation in this country, and our machinery is not as capable as the previous machinery which existed here and found that seven days was adequate for the operation.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, twenty-one days can be very dangerous. Something can be done and the Government of Kenya will not be answerable to anybody within twenty-one days, three weeks, and much harm can be done, and if that is the case, it amounts to the fact that we are empowering the destiny of this country to a few people. Suppose there is an emergency, Mr. Speaker, in a particular area as there is now in the North-Eastern Region, and the officers who are supposed to execute the emergency measures go to extremes as they have done on occasions. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was locked up under the emergency regulations in a detention camp without being presented before a court of law. The idea then was to suppress all nationalists. What the people's authority is going to do now is to get the period extended—

Mr. Omar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I wonder whether I am in order, because of the exhausted speeches to move that the Mover be now called upon to reply?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have already answered that to hon. Members here, but I do not think Mr. Omar was here; that in a debate of this kind, with so many amendments involved, I do not feel that I can allow the closure and I am quite satisfied that all hon. Members who have anything new to say have said it. This particular point, very important as it is, has been discussed by many hon. Members.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Constitution of Kenya was to be drafted by the Members of this House as a Constituency Assembly, it would have taken them a number of months to draft it, with experts surrounding them and approve it as a team and bring it to the Members of the House to approve what has already been drafted by as many people as possible. This has been drafted by a few Members, a team of experts, and we are responsible for whatever is wrong in the Constitution on for whatever is [Mr. Gichoya] and it would be wrong to hurry it up, good, and some of us are students of the Mr. Speaker, Sir, some of us are students of the Constitution and apparently that little knowledge we have begun to utilize.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, my proposal, which I think ought to be included in the amendment, was of course, Mr. Speaker in the original amendment, the first amendment of the Constitution; dissolution of the Parliament. I will say this, if this House cannot be listened to by the Cabinet Members it is high time we dissolved it. I hate to feel that the Member who is supposed to make the law is not allowed the latitude to make the law. I represent the people of Gichugu, Kirinyaga District.

As hon. Member: Will you come to your point, Sir.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I believe that if the Government is not willing to listen to the suggestions put forward, we are bound also as human beings to reject the amendment by putting our case forward in terms of voting and I suggest that in case the House is forced to accept the amendment without making amendments to these amendments, the Senators should be requested by this House, and I request them through you, Sir, that they must stand firmly and reject it and let us go for general elections on the Constitution. With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am ready for the elections.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that some of the remarks which were made by an hon. Member of this House are incorrect and therefore they should not be left uncorrected. I am referring particularly to some remarks made by the hon. Member, Mr. Gichoya, that the purpose for which we passed the last amendment to the Constitution was only to get rid of the Governor-General. I think this has given a very bad impression to the world with regard to the purpose and intentions of this House during last year's debate on the amendment to the Constitution. I believe at that time we were discussing the amendments in order to affect amendments to the Constitution to enable Kenya to become a Republic and not necessarily to get rid of the Governor-General.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): As a matter of fairness to Mr. Gichoya, he meant that, the Governor-General was the symbol of Dominionism and he was not being offensive to the holder of that office. I know.

Mr. Ochwada: Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the second point was that the demand by the Government of 65 per cent a figure to amend some parts of the Constitution was to indicate lack of confidence in this House. Perhaps this may be so, but to me it looks as if it is not true at all. I believe that the present state in which we are at the moment that we might have had no percentage at all and perhaps only a simple majority, however, that is just a correction and I will come to that later on.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that while we are discussing this amendment to the Constitution we should first of all bear in mind the fact that while the original Constitution was being discussed, either at the Lancaster House Conference or before the Lancaster House Conference, there was a certain amount of fear which had culminated in the minds of the people of this country or a certain percentage of the people of this country which led to the arguments that were presented to the British Government during the Lancaster House Conference and led us to have the Constitution that we had at that time.

This fear to the best of my knowledge, from a party known as the Kenya African Democratic Union, and I am very much surprised—and, Mr. Speaker, I must make it quite clear that I am not answering on behalf of Government, I am only expressing my own views—to know that in fact most of the Members who were very strongly opposed to Kadu policy at that time are the people who are now supporting the very policies that were advocated. Mr. Speaker, this was new to me and I do not quite understand whether we are moving forwards or backwards or doing anything at all.

Mr. Speaker, this question of a percentage of 75 per cent or even 95 was placed there because at that time Kadu was afraid that if Kenya came into power they would probably turn themselves into some form of wolves or hyenas and start eating up everyone else in the country except Kaniu. But then it has come to a stage whereby they themselves have realized that, in fact, they were making a slight mistake. To my greater surprise at the present moment, during this debate, I found that those who stood for these obstructive policies are, in fact, supporting very strongly the amendments that have been put forward and the people who were against them are opposing the amendments put forward.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the Constitution is a written document, it is a document made by human beings and anything made by human beings can always be changed by human beings. If, at a later stage we feel that what we are now amending is not conducive to the circumstances that will be prevailing at that time, I do not see why, unless we are suggesting that these people who

Mr. Gichoya: Yes, Mr. Speaker. Sir, that makes it clear that we have a forest and that is the one I am referring to. All this is one important thing. Unless and until the Minister has the consent in writing which ought to be notified to me too from the County Council of Kirinyaga, I will oppose the amendment. That is one thing. That means the Minister, or the Attorney-General, should have consultations direct with the county councils concerned, particularly Kirinyaga County Council, to get the consent. To this effect, I am referring to the fact that the Bill must be deferred for some time and amendment debated.

Moving ahead, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to the question of the Trust lands, Trust lands which are under the new amendments immediately reverted to—if this is passed—the Commissioner of Lands, and if the Commissioner of Lands has been told to have it—I think I had better make it clear, Mr. Speaker—clause nineteen. Mwea is a very good example of this particular operation in this clause where our President, using his position as a President of this country as well as the head of the Government, went to Mwea Tabere and said "Mwea does not belong to the people of Gichugu, Mwea does not belong to the people of Ndia, Mwea belongs to the black man." It is true that Mwea belongs to the Africans. In the history of our country, Mr. Speaker, Mwea has belonged from time immemorial to the people of Gichugu and Ndia. Today, Sir, the Regional Assemblies of East and Central had come to a deadlock because a portion of Mwea, which is guaranteed by the Constitution, and belonging to the people who by tradition own it, had not been resolved. A deadlock is still there and the case has been put before the Attorney-General according to the procedure laid down by the Constitution of Kenya.

The Members for Embu North and Embu South, the two Members, will have the liberty to contradict what I am stating in this House—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What amendment are we discussing now, Mr. Gichoya?

Mr. Gichoya: I am trying, Mr. Speaker, to establish the question of how the trust lands are taken without the consent of the people.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are still on clause nineteen, are you?

Mr. Gichoya: Yes, Sir. It is a very interesting clause, Mr. Speaker, Sir. What I am saying is this; if by any means an area has been proved potentially important, that area in one way or another, without the consent of the people, is going to be taken over by the Central Government. When an area is developed by the local people, it is both for the interests of the people of that locality and of the national population. So, consequently, it is for the national good. The connotation that it is only when it is vested in the Central Government it becomes of national importance defeats the very argument that even private property in this country must be respected, because those private properties do contribute to the national wealth. If these private properties contribute to the national wealth, I am of the very strong opinion that properties of the county councils do contribute to the national wealth, and for this matter, Mwea Tabere being the property of the people of Kirinyaga and—

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): on a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to seek your ruling on this issue of Mwea Tabere which has been referred to often and which is also a subject, I understand, of the memorandum to the Attorney-General. It is in order for this matter to be referred to time and time again here when people interested in this House have no chance of making a contribution towards the debate? Is it sub judice?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If it is relevant to the Bill under discussion and is not wholly sub judice that is to say the subject of judicial proceedings, the hon. Member can discuss this item. I have not yet seen the close relevance to this clause, but I will be patient yet with the hon. Member.

Mr. Mhogobu: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member while speaking said that there was a part which belonged to Gichugu and it is administratively under Embu. Could he substantiate that?

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there has been argument over this Karaba is a very good example and Karaba Location was in Mwea Division, so consequently Karaba used to be a part of it. But by sheer mistake on the part of the commission which did not understand the historical background of our own society, it was administratively put to Embu and the case is still going on about it. So I think the Member for Embu North ought to have consulted his colleague for Embu South who is today representing that part wrongly.

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, Sir, can the hon. Member for Gichugu substantiate that I am representing a part which is not yet constituency wrongly?

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am putting it very clearly, that by a sheer mistake of the commission, which did not understand the usages and customs of the people, that part was wrongly placed to a part which we call now a part of Embu South. So, it is not—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Are you talking about constituency boundaries or what?

Mr. Gichoya: Yes.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Well, constituency boundaries have nothing whatsoever to do with this amendment. Do keep on subjects that are relevant.

Mr. Gichoya: Yes, Sir. That is a problem which has been posed by the two Members who feel—

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when the boundaries were fixed by the commission and were included in the Constitution—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Which commission are you talking of now?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): The Boundaries Commission. The constituencies—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We do not want to talk about constituency boundaries at all.

(Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in ending that point I will say this; the intention of Trust lands ought to be to get the full approval of this House and the other House as well.)

Moving to the other point which is actually wrong, I am dealing with the question relating to Members of Regional Assemblies. Regional Assemblies, we agree, should be abolished; that is agreed upon, but the approach to the abolition of Regional Assemblies is what we have not agreed upon. Here, my suggestion which I put as a proposal forward for the Attorney-General, is as follows. If these Regional Assemblies are going to be reduced to the status of advisory councils, then it follows therefore that the regulations which bar these members of Regional Assemblies from participating or from getting employment in the Central Government should be completely taken away as far as they are concerned. In other words, members of Regional Assemblies should be allowed to be civil servants of the Kenya Government and at the same time maintain their positions as councillors who are to advise the Central Government. In certain places since they still hold positions of being elected members, if that one is not possible, Sir—and this is why we are complaining that we were not taken into consideration to agree on the nature of amending the Constitution, and this is why we are putting forward our views on the Constitution so that it can be amended in a way which people like—we would like the members of Regional Assemblies removed. I agree, let them be removed. Let them be given a notice of six months, say, with full salary to adjust themselves and things for themselves.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we say—even the Civil Service says—if somebody is going to be removed from this entirely, from his own employment—They are human beings in the Civil Service. They must also be compensated. If people say that there is no money to pay the salaries of the elected members of Regional Assemblies, we must think about where to get money to pay the people, the civil servants who are claiming to be expatriates.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, they, the members of the Regional Assemblies, must be given a six-month period with full pay if their powers to pay themselves are to be removed. It is no good kicking them out, and anyone who thinks that we are using them for political interests must understand one thing, that his brother may be a member of the Regional Assembly as far as the members of the Regional Assemblies are concerned.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think it is better if these people who say that they are removing them so as to avoid the clashes during the next elections should understand that these people have the same political rights like any other citizen, and if a member of the Regional Assembly wants to stand in my constituency, he is at liberty to do so. But, let us be human. Mr. Speaker, for the information of this House, I disclose that we had a meeting of the elected Members of the Central Province, and the first man who put a statement "that is not confusing" to reality was the member for Kiharu, the Assistant Minister, Mr. Gichoya. He assured the members of Regional Assemblies and the Members of Parliament that all Members of the Central Province would support their claim for better conditions if the Regional Assemblies were going to be abolished.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gichoya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member to represent me by saying something that I never said and by saying things that are not connected with me, although it happened in a constituency meeting?—

[Mr. Gichoya] may also stand in the way of our economic development.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, many people have been saying that our Constitution which we are now amending is an Imperialist Constitution. Granted, Sir, that it was so, but the Members of the Kenya Government who went to London to draw up the Constitution, if they had followed the Kanu decision after getting the Constitution which they were eager to obtain so that they could form a Government shows, Mr. Speaker, that this would have necessitated summoning the Kanu Governing Council to get a fresh mandate from the party. We are faced with the problem of a Constitution which is not ours. What I mean here is this. If by any means our leaders did realize that they were cheated by the British Government and the British Government was so clever, and we had sent a very poor team from this country, then since we are now more than what they were why should we not go forward and do away with those objections that were presented before the Lancaster House Conference. If a Bill would not be passed then bring the Bill again before a free people without any coercion from anywhere. These policies have been approved by the governing council of Kanu and have now become part and parcel of the Constitution. If the problems are a challenge then we can decide what is morally wrong, what is principally wrong and what is politically wrong. So long as it is not agreed by the people it can never have any standing in the future.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have made clear that our relationship is that of trying to build a nation and not destroying a nation. Now, let me take one part of the Constitution, the amendment which we are now dealing with, which refers to land. Here clause 19 (1) says: "The Commissioner of Lands shall be deemed for the purposes of section 53 of the Trust Land Act to have been authorized upon the commencement of this Act by every county council to administer the Trust Land for the time being vested in it."

On page 40, Mr. Speaker, Sir, clause 212, Forest on Trust land, and I would like to quote:—

"Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this Chapter—

(a) the Minister for the time being responsible for forests may, by order published in the Kenya Gazette, designate any area or areas of forest that are situated on Trust land as a Central Forest; and

(b) subject to the provisions of any law made in that behalf—

- (i) the executive authority to establish, manage and operate Central Forests on Trust land shall vest exclusively in the Government of Kenya; and
(ii) The revenues from such forests shall belong to the Government of Kenya."

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, these questions have been where I would rather have the ruling of my county council before I allow the Government of Kenya to take forests which are today the county council's responsibility and for that matter I take Njukiini as a very good example. The shortage of land today is due because of the uneconomic forests remaining up and therefore the county council can denounce their former ruling in the Chamber and make it a place for settling the landless people. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I strongly object to the question of Central Government taking certain parts of the country, that are the forests, which are within certain districts, especially in the Kirinyaga District, without the authority of the county council, and also for that matter the county council in the Kirinyaga District. As I said before, the reason is very simple.

Today we shall not be able to obtain the former settled areas, where we have, for example one of our Members, Bruce McKenzie, our capable Minister here, who, by rights he should have it, owns an estate, and other settlers, although—

The Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry (Mr. McKenzie): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, would the hon. Member please substantiate that I own any estate?

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Minister does not have a farm, then I will withdraw it, but if he has does have a farm then I cannot withdraw it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If you are not certain that he has a farm or an estate then you will have to withdraw that statement.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in case my definition of an estate, which is a farm, does not apply to the Minister then I will withdraw it, but if he does—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are wasting time on this, and time is very precious; but if you would like to say what you really mean, then you can substantiate that.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I understand that the Minister does have a farm and consequently my definition is correct. It is within—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What is your reason for saying that he has a farm?

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, he has not objected to having a farm, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): All right. All right.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, now we have for many years been subjected to teachings and so on this matter I would like to refer to our great teacher, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta. He was one of the greatest teachers in political science and the political bodies in this country, and in the Kenya African Union. We fought for his teachings and those of his colleagues who had to get independence we had it at all was, or we had to fight for independence and then the land which was owned by the settlers would come to us automatically. This has been a very good teaching, Sir, and I thought that those who went to the Lancaster House Conference could have stated that we have been teaching our people for a number of years that the land belonged to them, but by a wrong process of history that land was taken and given to a group of people by means of survival of the fittest. Survival of the fittest, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the sense that an arrow and a bullet were set equal. Consequently the man who had an arrow, or for that matter a spear, could not stand up to a man with a gun.

Now (Mr. Speaker, Sir, our leaders in the Lancaster House Conference were not in a position to convince the British authorities of the attitude of our people on land. When the Constitution was drawn, guaranteeing the existence of these estates whether properly managed or whether they are today being ridden with wild life or wild animals whereas so many people have no land and this remains so. Now, Sir, what my objection to this is that what my people managed to own during those days of colonialism, that part of the land must remain theirs, and there is no question of using a position of responsibility because you are a Minister or because you are holding this position to kill the people of Kirinyaga by depriving them of what they supposed to be by nature, and I mean, Mr. Speaker, Sir, by nature because there is no Government of Kenya which gave us the Mwaa. Since time immemorial the Mwaa plateau has belonged to the people of Kirinyaga.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you must move on Mr. Gichoya. It is this amendment of the Constitution that is relevant. It is the question of forests being taken out of Trust land.

Mr. Mbogob: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, would I be in order to ask that the Mover can now be called upon to reply?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): This is quite an important amendment to the Constitution, an amendment which involves so many different amendments. I must allow the House plenty of time to get hon. Members a hearing, but there must not be repetition, nor irrelevancy, and I do ask hon. Members to keep strictly to the point, as much as they can, and as shortly as they can.

The Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism (Mr. Achiong-Onek): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, when we are referring to forests here in the amendment, and the hon. Member is explaining that it is not all forest areas, is this in order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to allow our precious time to be taken up by this type of comment?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I cannot rule this as a matter of order that a man must stop talking because hon. Members think that he is not talking much sense, or perhaps I think he is not talking much sense, but so long as he is relevant to the subject matter and does not repeat what other hon. Members have said, I must let him go on; but I must suggest again, that hon. Members need not be quite so long-winded.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir,—

Mr. Kamurru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of that fact that some other Members would like to speak on this Bill, I would like to seek your ruling that whenever a Member has been speaking for such long time it is not in order for him to stop when we ask him to stop.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! I have given my ruling.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to explain one point which the Minister for Information, Broadcasting and Tourism brought to our notice, and it is very unfortunate that tourism in our area has not been properly promoted. One part belongs to Kirinyaga District and one part belongs to Embu District, and Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think that it is shame in defining the exact Constitution or aspect of the Njukiini Forest, but the forest I am referring to within the Trust land, up to this moment, is within the Minister can clear it so that he can send tourists to shoot the animals and photographing: the animals and for that matter—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think that that is relevant to the amendment. Please keep to the point.

[Mr. Shikuku] very intelligent, well able, if not twice as much as some of us in this Parliament. Therefore, to provide a chance for those brains outside this Parliament, to provide a chance for those who have different views from us to exercise their freedom which is also included in this document, we must agree that there must be a referendum. If we are going to assume that we are omnipotent, or that we are all that we imagine we are, then this country could as well be threatened by those who have different views and ideas from us. Therefore, I consider the question of referendum as one of the Bills of Rights enshrined in the Constitution, because if I remove the referendum we are actually removing the freedom of choice, the freedom of choice which in itself is unfair. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I completely disagree with this portion and I would like the Government to leave it as it is, that there should always be a referendum when the time comes for the public to decide what they want to do.

The other issue, Mr. Speaker, is this question of the powers of the President. Some of the Members have complained here, saying the President is given too much power and that there might be a possibility of having a dictator in the future. Of course, Mr. Speaker, this was said by us. If you check in the HANSARD you will find we said this. We saw that a long time ago and some Members who did not realize it then and are seeing it now when it is so late. Nevertheless, we are here to put things right. The President of this country can come from any corner. We do not know who will be the President of tomorrow. Of course, you may be surprised to find that the Member for Butere will one day be President of this country. We are only basing our reasoning, basing whatever we have in our minds on what we have before us, namely, the living President of today. Of course, he is such a magnificent man, he is a smart man, a man who is admired not only in this country but all over the world, but it is his going to live forever and a day? Mr. Speaker, I can assure the House that even if you organize a strong delegation to send to God to ask Him to allow the President to live for another sixty years I am sure God will turn down that delegation. Even if that delegation is headed by the Vice-President, God may refuse to listen, God will turn that delegation down because it is impossible to agree. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would like to warn the House again that we must not base our reasoning on the present President. Let us think of the future President. We might have a devil who may come into power and these amendments we are making here we will find very difficult to change at a later stage because the devil will be the President running this country of ours. Some person sat down and thought that by giving these powers to our beloved hon. Kenyatta things would be fine. All right, they are fine, but what happens after Kenyatta? That is the question.

An hon. Member: You take over.

Mr. Shikuku: All right, I take over. Will Shikuku be good?

Under section 33 (g) it says that this person cannot be sued and so forth and we may find Kenya too hard and difficult to live in. I tell you some of you will learn to behave.

Therefore, these powers of the President should be looked into. I am appealing very strongly to the Attorney-General to consider the powers of the President, to consider them with all the ourselves into trouble. In future we may get ourselves into trouble and there may be a person at the top who will not allow us to change things.

Some Members take this document as it comes in bits and never realize what is being done. It is like eating the ground-nuts in your pocket one by one. You never realize you are finishing the ground-nuts in your pocket one by one and then when your pocket is empty you wonder whether there is a hole in your pocket. So, this tactic of bringing this Bill in bits like this is bad. We are taking one piece after another and in the end we shall find that we are completely confused. We shall have slowly dealt with the whole document and then we will find it difficult to go back to the beginning and decide to deal with it as a whole. That is the time when we shall shed crocodile tears.

I feel, as a young man in this country, Mr. Speaker, I am more concerned with these amendments because I have a long way to go. If not I die because of old age I am very far from it. Some of the hon. Members here will have to go before me. However, I am more concerned with the future generations of this country. Therefore, I feel that since there are some hon. Members who are even younger than me we should all unite to consider the future of our people because we have a long way to go: Our future depends on this document. Some Members have told me—and I wish to repeat this—that the Attorney-General should reconsider this document carefully and not in a haphazard way because whatever is in this amendment is completely unacceptable to some of us.

I do not wish take up much time of the hon. Members but I would only appeal to those in [Mr. Shikuku] power to realize that we are here, we are young men, we have to build Kenya for ourselves. Those who are old and have to leave this country for Kingdom-come can do so but they must realize that they are leaving their children and grandchildren behind them. That is why we must consider the document very carefully.

For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I beg to oppose.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, I have really very many things to put forward but at the outset I beg the liberty to state one thing. That is this: the Parliament of Kenya should either be respected as a Parliament or it should be abolished. Personally, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that we come here with good intentions and in good faith, to make laws for the good of this country. But when a stage comes and we suggest to the Government that modifications should be made here or there and we are told that we are trying to destroy the Government, a simple thing, that the rule of the day, whereby you hear those who say there is something wrong somewhere and this wrong thing must be corrected. They say this has come by people who are revolutionists. Consequently, under the Constitution which we are amending, now we are bound to give our Government which is already suspicious of the Members of this House something not to the liking of the Ministers, but for the harmonious running of the country and, by so doing, we are liable to be put either in detention camps, or, where necessary, another weapon could be used.

An hon. Member: It is a shame to talk about detention camps.

Mr. Gichoya: Talking of detention camps and being in detention camps is not shame because even our President was in a detention camp for a number of years. So, for me even twenty years is nothing.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I am trying to say is this: the feeling that is in the minds of the Cabinet Members should be thrown away completely. They ought to completely forget that we are enemies of one another and consider that the Members in this House are as good as the Members of the Cabinet in terms of nation building.

The reason I say this is because what the people have objected to should be removed instead of coming here for a tug of war. It happened in the first amendment that what we objected to were told, here is a problem, either you pass it or it goes back for redrafting. As a consequence the Governor-General will still remain at State House. We said, for heaven's sake, let us make our independence complete. And, so we accepted with good faith the amendment so that our President could become the head of the Republic of Kenya. We did it in good faith but on the understanding that in future we are entitled as Members of the National Assembly to make amendments of the Constitution in a peaceful way. However, today we are told, well, either you reject it and we shall get it away so long as there is a majority in this House to get it through. A majority, Mr. Speaker, can be wrong and if the majority is wrong that majority is going to put us in the ditch. Tomorrow that majority will change and become a minority. Then we will realize that the sailing was not very smooth.

I am talking of the amendment which is allowed to amend the Constitution, the majority which is now being reduced to 65 per cent, 65 per cent, Mr. Speaker, connotes a simple thing, that the Government of this country has no faith in the Members of this National Assembly. I say it has, no faith, in as much as in one-party state even 100 per cent with very good principles we can have it. Of course, it is allowed but—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must not take too long on this point, Mr. Gichoya, because it has been made by many hon. Members. You can merely mention it and then move on.

Mr. Gichoya: Mr. Speaker, my intention was merely to make this point very clear so that we do not have any ill feeling over the rulers of today of whom we are part and parcel of the rulership.

When you say 65 per cent it is not accepted in this House. So the Minister concerned with the Constitution should consider setting the machinery back in order to readjust this number and place it according to the general feeling of this House.

One thing I ought to make clear here. We are not in a state of emergency, we are not in a hurry as we were before to get our sovereignty established and thus sever our relationship with the British Government. Now we are a sovereign state and we ought to consider everything that comes before this House very quietly. It does not matter even if it takes a year or for that matter six months, so long as the amendment is meant to bring harmony and good fellowship in this country for ages to come. If we make a mistake today this may cost a lot of human lives and it can rest assured that I, Shikuku, do not intend to oppose anything, to be an opposition leader or to organize any opposition, so there is no need to reduce the percentage.

When it comes to the question of land, Mr. Speaker, which I would like to touch on here, we were told no land was taken, but if you look at the first amendment Bill, Bill No. 138A, page 285, clause 21, subsection (1), it says, "Subject to the provisions of section 208 of the Constitution, all estates, interests and rights in or over land situated in a region that immediately before 22nd October 1964 were vested in the region shall be deemed to have vested on 22nd October 1964 in the Government of the Republic of Kenya." Mr. Speaker, if you refer to section 208, which also refers you to section 205, you will find that this affects the Trust Land. I can see the hon. Attorney-General shaking his head. If you look at these sections, you will find that they affect the Trust Land. This Trust Land meant forests in the regions, it meant settlement schemes in the regions, which are in special areas where people are now being settled, and so forth.

Mr. Speaker, if some of the hon. Members are not only trying to pull our legs here, because they think probably we do not read these Bills, how can one honestly tell the House that the land is not being acquired by the Government? The question of the land being under the county council is completely fictitious, because the county council is under the Central Government and, therefore, the Central Government controls the county council and controls the land. I hear one of the hon. Members saying, "So what?" May I tell him, Mr. Speaker, that the question of land is a very burning issue. Land in this country was not only acquired through paper but it was acquired through fighting. Those who fought hard had more and those who were poor at spear work had little, and you are not going to get away with it, Mr. Speaker, by just having something in the paper and you are going to get land from Butere. No, not from any part of Kenya will you get that. I objected to this amendment, Mr. Speaker, and I still register my objection to this amendment, twisting the public in a way through words here, telling them it is under the county council, which is under the Central Government and therefore it is controlled by the Central Government.

Mr. Speaker, may I point out at the same time that the land in, for example, the settlement scheme in Lugari was, of course, under the Majimbo Constitution, which is no more, almost exclusively for the people in the Western Region. Now it is not because it is under Central Government and it could be utilized by any person from any corner of Kenya.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are discussing the present amendment Bill and not other amendment Bills which have already become law, are you not?

Mr. Shikuku: I am discussing the amendment Bill, Sir, referring it to the question of land.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): But I think you have been referring back to previous amendment which have already become law. That it is not relevant unless they are connected with some amendment in this Bill which you want to discuss.

Mr. Shikuku: They are connected in the sense that the hon. Member for Nairobi Central, the hon. Mr. Mboya, said yesterday that the question of the acquiring of land does not arise at all. I was only trying to point out that it does.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Well, if it does not arise under this amending Bill, I do not think it is relevant. You cannot go back on what we have already debated and made law.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I think I had a point there, but if I am going too much backward, then I will stop there, but I thought the Member did raise that.

The other issue I want to mention is the question of emergency days being trebled to twenty-one days. This has already been touched on, but a reason has been given in this House to the effect that twenty-one days will enable the Government to assess the seriousness of a situation in a given part of Kenya where an emergency has been declared. Mr. Speaker, we are told an elephant is a very big animal—and, of course, it is—and has small eyes, but God was not all that stupid to give it small eyes and refuse to give it the power to scent or to smell its enemy. The eyes are small and it is huge, but it can smell its enemy. If our Government, which is huge and which I would rather call an elephant, cannot see this small country and trouble in any part of Kenya and has to take twenty-one days to assess that, it should at least have the sense of smell, and the sense of smelling trouble is to have the Parliament convened within seven days, because these are the people who can smell the trouble, but if the Government, being so huge with small eyes, has to wait for twenty-one days to know there is trouble, then it should be advised that seven days would be enough for it to smell when it calls us here, and we shall tell it when the trouble is, rather than wait for twenty-one days.

[Mr. Shikuku]
