Mr. Steel - Matland

We have never assumed that the civil employment of these East Africa Protectorate officers, who were implicated in the East Africa Maxims mutiny, was ipso facto terminated by their discharge with ignominy from military service. The Governor allowed them to resume civil duties pending reference home. Our telegram of the 21st of November on page below requested him to terminate their employment forthwith. I think, therefore, that the proposal suggested in this telegram is the fairest and most convenient, that is, that the Governor should now tell the officers concerned that it is His Majesty's pleasure that they should no longer hold appointments in the Protectorate service, and that salary should cease as from the date of this notification. I would let them have <sup>free</sup> their passages to England at any time within two months of the notification, but not thereafter. The decision should be published in the East Africa Protectorate Gazette.

One of the officers concerned, Mr R. Elliott has in the meantime come home on leave. In his case we have not used the formula about His Majesty's pleasure, but have told him in a letter dated the 23rd of November that it has not been possible to agree to his reinstatement in the Protectorate service and that he therefore ceased to be entitled to pay for any period after the date of our letter. I do not think we need say anything more to him.

(Since I dictated this a protest has arrived from Mr Elliott raising questions about his claims under his agreement. We shall have to go into his case, or possibly eventually, into that of some of the others. But whatever the result cannot be allowed to interfere with the decision not to retain their services, sooner that decision is announced than by the letter.)
