I suppose this is for you - of any faultless of the sort are given.
She writes the "London Letter" in the 'Leader' & I ~~sup~~ imagine it is not much worse or better than other contributions of the kind.

There is no arrangement for supplying information to Contributors to newspapers, though press communications are sent to the papers themselves - i.e. in ordinary circumstances. At present they go through the Press Bureau.

Last subsequent Paper

Do not entertain any entertainments or functions under the auspices of the Colonial Office to which journalists would be invited; & that at present communications from the Dept to the Press are made through the Press Bureau.

I have no particular objection. What I suppose she wants is chatty news about the doings of ministers, and with this we cannot undertake to provide her

I have no objection

Reply that communications to the Press are made through the Press Bureau or ~~indirectly~~ through directly to the various newspapers & news agencies on the list, but not to individual journalists or the Press, & that the D.C. do not wish to entertain the thought of any occasion at which we are obliged to consider her request with regard to entertainments.
