ABYSSINIAN RAID NEAR MARSABIT

The report by Mr Kittermaster. Although the raiders suffered a severe reverse in this case the report following on the one previously submitted discloses the existence of a widely spread movement of aggression on the part of Abyssinian natives and emphasises the necessity for vigorous action.

Sir G. Fiddes

It wd appear from the one that a very small force is capable of dealing with ~~the~~ sporadic raids, provided the difficulty is to be on the spot at the right time. It looks as if more frequent patrolling of the frontier by a more mobile force wd be the remedy, but we have hitherto been hampered by the scarcity of water. If, as the result of the claim which is being made on the Abyssinian front, a commission with Capt. Ogilby's mandate, we obtain a well-ensured frontier, we ought to be able to keep it under better control. Copy to the F.O. say that the info contained in the report appears to Mr. Hume to be strengthening the claim which is being made.

THE IMMIGRATION RESTRICTION
AMENDMENT ORDINANCE, 1913.

1. This Ordinance repeals Section 10 of the Immigration Restriction Ordinance 1906 and substitutes a new section which confers upon a person arrested without a warrant the right in every case to demand to be taken before a Magistrate before he is put on board the ship from which he has landed in alleged breach of the provisions of the Principal Ordinance.

2. It may sometimes be to the interest of the person arrested to be returned to the ship from which he has landed, without an order from a Magistrate, since, if during the interval between the arrest and the obtaining of the Magistrate's order the ship has sailed, the person arrested would be detained in prison until other arrangement could be made for his removal from the Protectorate.

For this reason it is provided in the last part of the new section that the person arrested may immediately be placed on board the ship from which he has landed unless he shall demand to be taken before a Magistrate.

3. This amendment to the Principal Ordinance has been made on the instructions of the Secretary of State, and the Ordinance may be assented to and published forthwith.
