"Queen Anne" Whiskey

BY
Hill, Thompson & Co., Edinburgh.

A plain statement of facts is all that is required for those who have not yet sampled this very modest whiskey.

"QUEEN ANNE" is a perfect, healthy, yet still unwhisky, with noticeable character, the few Scotch whiskeys per case that it costs are very well worth the money.

These whiskeys are in a single really good whiskey, used only for medicinal purposes, and are the best of their kind.

A plain statement of fact is all that is required for those who have not so far sampled this very excellent whiskey.
"QUEEN ANNE" is a perfect, mature, post-will whiskey, with no competitor to equal it.
It does not pretend to compete in price; but as nothing good is obtained cheaply for few extra shillings per case that it costs very little more than the money.
Those who are very moderate drinkers of a perfect vintage Scotch of a second vintage, First of the House, Superior Quality of the House, "Queen Anne" Whiskey is the best of these all.

REFRESHMENT AND DRINKAGE

Engine, Car Box and Back Axle.

PERIODICAL ATTENTION REQUIRED.

Of all the little jobs which a motor driver is called upon to carry out probably that of cleaning and oiling the three important parts which are the most important in putting the best lead on the road is the most important. The design of the car is often to blame because the design of these components is sometimes by the designer, who may not be a mechanic. The job has to be done, and after all, it takes only a negligible time compared with the time which the car is on the road.

The job is not an attractive one, nor is it a pleasant one, but it is a necessary one. If a motor driver does not do it, he is taking a chance of his car. A motor driver who does it, however, is taking a chance of his car. The car is not a machine, it is a living thing. It has a life of its own, and it has a mind of its own. It is not a machine, it is a living thing. It has a life of its own, and it has a mind of its own.

WHEN TO OIL

Generally in the average light car it is advisable to drain the oil from the engine at intervals of about 2,000 miles, when the oil is still hot. This is the best time to do it, because the oil is still hot, and it will flow more readily. It is also the best time to do it, because the oil is still hot, and it will flow more readily.

SEE THAT THE PUMP WORKS

It is most important to make sure that the lubrication is circulating properly. After the oil has been added to the engine, it is most important to make sure that the lubrication is circulating properly. After the oil has been added to the engine, it is most important to make sure that the lubrication is circulating properly.

REPLENISHMENT AND DRAINAGE.

Engine, Car Box and Back Axle.

PERIODICAL ATTENTION REQUIRED.

"Of the little job which the driver does not do, there is none so important as that of draining and oiling." For these purposes "anti-ringer" oil and back axle grease are the best. The grease is the most frequently applied. The change of the oil is due to them because the draining of the engine is very important, but nevertheless, the job has to be done with the period which the oil is on the engine.

As the job is not an attractive one, it is the reason why it must be undertaken as part of the driver's job. It is not only a certain degree of engine oil, but also a certain degree of axle grease and oil to separate. Work on the front end which has been previously treated and oiled. In the event of the engine oil being too low, it must be topped up to the level indicated by the oil gauge. This is done by pouring oil into the oil can until the level is reached. The oil can is then refilled.

When filling in the average light car it is advisable to drain and oil the machine at intervals of about 2,000 miles, while the heavy car should be drained at intervals of 1,000 miles. It is well known, however, that these intervals are only approximate and should be increased or decreased according to the conditions of the road and the condition of the engine.

Simple although the task of draining and oiling may appear, there are several points which should be noted. The oil can should be filled with fresh oil. It is preferable to filter the oil before putting it into the can. The oil should be poured into the can in a steady stream, and the can should be kept in a position which will allow the oil to flow into the can without splashing. The oil should be poured into the can until the level is reached. The oil can is then refilled.
