BRITISH MOTOR TRADE.

Increase of Overseas Sales.

THE REASON.

It is really only after some time in the market has elapsed that it is possible to judge the position of the British motor industry as it is affected and affected by the various legislative hold at Gt. Britain.

At times, however, such indications are misleading. Apparent fluctuations in sales and foreign business, inasmuch as agents, being for some reason naturally optimistic, may enter in large quantities, which in the event they prove unable to carry out.

At present the motor industry in Great Britain is in a position to be able to carry out the business which it is doing.

The increase in the export of British cars is due principally to the development of two broad types of cars, the light and the heavy.

That the efficiency of its management and the general increase in production must have been enormous.

Many years ago British cycle makers for the first time began to export their goods to other countries.

These four years ago America exported about three times as many motor cycles as did Great Britain.

An Exclusive Advantage SUPER GOODYEAR tires

Public opinion and preference emphatically endorse Goodyear Ballons as the foremost example of combined durability and comfort yet offered in the low-pressure type.

The fact that Goodyear Ballon Tyres are distinctly more serviceable is based on the fact that they are a truly splendid performance.

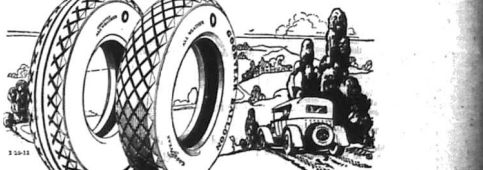

Important in such performance is the exclusive advantage Goodyear Ballons enjoy

in the new cord material, SUPERTWIST

This remarkable material, developed and perfected by Goodyear, does things for the ballon which are virtually indispensable to superlative service.

All Goodyear Good Tyres, and Goodyear Tyres only, are made with SUPERTWIST. More so, perhaps, why more than ever, more people the world over ride on Goodyear Tyres than on any other kind.

THE GARDEN I

The garden is first and foremost a source of pleasure and interest. It is not only a place where we can grow our own food, but also a place where we can relax and enjoy the beauty of nature. In the garden, we can find a sense of peace and tranquility that is hard to find elsewhere. The garden is also a place where we can spend time with our family and friends, and enjoy the fruits of our labor. It is a place where we can learn about the different plants and flowers that grow in our climate, and how to care for them. The garden is a wonderful place to live, and it is one that we should all strive to have.

ROOT VEGETABLES.

Root vegetables are an important part of a healthy diet. They are rich in vitamins and minerals, and they are also high in fiber. Root vegetables are also easy to store and use. Some of the most common root vegetables are carrots, turnips, and beets. These vegetables can be eaten raw or cooked, and they are a versatile part of any meal. Root vegetables are also a good source of antioxidants, which can help to protect our cells from damage and reduce the risk of chronic diseases. So, make sure to include root vegetables in your diet.

CHALLENGE CUPS.

Challenge cups are a way for gardeners to test their skills and compete against others. These cups are often held by local horticultural societies, and they provide a great opportunity for gardeners to show off their plants and flowers. Challenge cups are also a great way for gardeners to learn from one another and to share their knowledge. If you are interested in challenge cups, you should contact your local horticultural society for more information. Challenge cups are a fun and rewarding way to spend time in the garden.

FERTILISE WITH PHOS

The following testimonial speaks for itself: "You asked me how the experiment with 'Phos' turned out; I hardly hardly like to tell you, you might fancy I was pulling you up." The Potatoes just simply wonderful, you never saw new seeds grow from this dough. I have grown potatoes all my life and in many kinds, but never have I seen anything like this but further it is not a question of fancy seed because I purchased the seed at the door from a Kikuyu man. The original of the above testimonial can be seen on application to J. G. ARONSON, P.O. Box 681, Nairobi.

CARE OF THE CAR.

Maintenance Hints to New Owners.

NOT NEGLECT PROOF.

The majority of those who own motor-cars in the tropical climate are not persons of moderate means, and most therefore, unfortunately, the maintenance of their cars, says the Times. In respect of care, maintenance, parts, etc. so much to simplify design that intricate-looking, may deep knowledge of mechanics may be necessary to maintain them. In fact, the efficient care of a motor-car to maintain them in the best condition and to get out of them the maximum of life and service, because the popular types of motor-cars are made of thin metal plates of sheet metal that they are not so strong as they used to be. A good car of this type will run for months and years, but will not stand up to the wear and tear that a motor-car of the old type could stand up to. The engine, and will depend on the quality of the petrol and the oil used. The petrol should be of the best quality and the oil should be of the best quality. The engine should be kept clean and the oil should be changed at regular intervals. The engine should be kept clean and the oil should be changed at regular intervals. The engine should be kept clean and the oil should be changed at regular intervals.

FIRST FEW WEEKS

In the first few weeks of ownership of a new and relatively expensive car a higher proportion of time must be spent in maintenance than that will be given in later days. There have now reached so low a level that few cars the most expensive cars in each class are given extended road tests by the manufacturers, and the purchaser is expected to carry out the heavy work of running in himself. It is, however, all parts of the car are stiff and in a degree worn down to a certain extent. Before the speed should be kept down to a moderate level, and in a proportional, least, on a road that is not a level road. It is a good idea to have a professional test of a motor-car before it is entered the road with it. At the end of this period the hose chamber should be emptied, washed out with paraffin, and filled with fresh petrol.

... in the petrol and differential casing, which will be replaced after a cleaning with paraffin. The lubrication which the motor-cars receive is not good, and the regular maintenance should be kept up on a daily and a weekly basis.

ROUTINE REPAIRS

Each day on which the car is taken out the driver should be certain that the radiator is filled with water and that the oil level in the hose chamber has not fallen to the bottom. The oil level in the road should be checked at intervals of 200 miles on the road. The oil level in the road should be checked at intervals of 200 miles on the road.

The sparking plugs should be cleaned and the gaps adjusted if it is possible they are too wide. A regular period can only be laid down for the removal of scale from the piston heads and for the grinding of valves. The engine will need some indication that cleaning is necessary. There will be a tendency to knock when climbing hills or when accelerating.

The carburettor should need little attention beyond periodic cleaning, and in general, the carburettor should be cleaned. It should be altered unless the consumption of fuel has become excessive.

DAILY RECORDS It is presumed that the driver will keep a record of the daily mileage and of the number of gallons of petrol and oil used. This, done a simple tabulation of the cost of each month will show the driver the value of his car. The driver should also keep a record of the number of gallons of petrol and oil used. ### Poultry Notes.

PURE BRED V. FIRST CROSS.

I have been reading an article in the "Poultry" of the first cross by Bruce Wilson in the "Poultry" of the 17th.

I quote the following from the article: "Some folk still believe that there are one or two species hidden away in some corner of the world with proper management, will lay the maximum of eggs possible. Just as foolish we have a multitude of the same specimens around the globe of poultry possibilities who are inclined to believe that the progeny from a mating of two pure breeds will without exception easily equal the average raised by the most excellent variety of purebred high second level or their progeny."

"Many of those who have given considerable thought and time to the positions which cross-bred birds are situated at in the mass attitude of those who are the wanderers of the first cross. The first cross is nothing new, established or otherwise, its advantages and disadvantages were known long before the advent of the daily newspaper, and it was weighed in the balance and found wanting. Its defeat against pure-bred poultry (for egg production) where all conditions were as equal as possible, the first cross has never proved itself superior to the purebred bird as a producer of high grade eggs, its first quality is lost by crossing two breeds of good stock and the resulting progeny are layers of smaller eggs."

"Through this falling aside a number of well known varieties which may have been open to them through the present cross for the first cross bird."

"A most important feature that is often lost sight of is that cross-bred does not improve hereditary. This can only be transmitted by the present stock, and where in discernible manner is indicated in various one result is obtained than are other than unsatisfactory. The best feature with the farmer's idea of improving all things with the present stock, the first cross at all, the fact that the production of such a creature is a backward step in breeding the ideal. It is advised to his whole stock and understanding what all means restorative that the kind of first with produce no more economically than the high level of parent stock. It is not to be done as a means of raising and after considerable experience of first cross breeding. While I do not believe that without exception, the progeny of two pure breeds in egg production is superior to the progeny of pure bred in egg production, I do consider that careful cross breeding will, in the main, produce superior poultry, and most certainly higher birds for the climate."

Even in pure breeds the progeny will not always reach the same standard of excellence as their parents. In practical poultry farming in this country I have found "breeding of descendants being the birds properly selected and properly handled, to without doubt the most paying form of a poultry business for table birds. The run from the point of view of obtaining good egg production and pure-bred stock for table birds. The run from the point of view of laying only, and no consideration being given to the quality of the eggs, almost as fast as is possible is marketed as early as possible."

With reference to egg laying tests where first cross birds are compared against pure breeds, I only remember seeing one report on such a competition, (and cannot remember when or where) but in that case a White Leghorn pen won and a first class between White Leghorns and White D'Orleans came second only beaten by two points.

Every poultry farmer should have two or two pens of pure-bred birds to breed his own stock from and also to supply the market for selling and table, but when he comes to selling eggs and birds for table he will do better to keep a first-cross. The average poultry farmer in this country cannot afford not to run fowls with his own-bred pens that would keep him in the market for table eggs and birds for table. The average poultry farmer in this country cannot afford not to run fowls with his own-bred pens that would keep him in the market for table eggs and birds for table. The average poultry farmer in this country cannot afford not to run fowls with his own-bred pens that would keep him in the market for table eggs and birds for table.

Why SELLER appeals to the BUYER

Built in one factory with but one profit in numbers second only to Ford

With a fixed durable top in a country where hoods are seldom lowered

Built harmoniously, without restriction, to one design —with £20,000,000 behind it
