BEAUTY in overflowing measure; walnut steering wheel; instruments indirectly lighted; adjustable steering column; trunk rack; dipping head lights; four-wheel brakes; and larger heavy-duty low pressure tyres.

And that is barely more than a beginning.

Engine and mechanical refinements are comparable to the highest priced cars. Oil filter; dual air filter; crankcase ventilation (only 1 to 2 oil changes a year) harmonic crankshaft balancer; two way cooling; honed cylinders; double valve springs and a newly developed type of high compression cylinder head.

A new carburettor and induction system conceived and developed by the famous General Motors Research Laboratories in conjunction with Oldsmobile, utilizes all unburned gases and petrol elements which may escape past the piston rings. This results in astonishing economy and engine efficiency. Power as smooth as electricity; pick-up and speed that leave all fours and ordinary sixes far behind; the kind of snap and get-away you want a six to have;

it would be a brilliant achievement for any manufacturer merely to design such a splendid car to sell at such a reasonable price. But to sell it at the amazing price of £298 is a feat only the vast resources and facilities of General Motors plus Oldsmobile could accomplish.

And that is barely more than a beginning.

Engine and mechanical refinements are comparable to the highest priced cars. Oil filter; dual air filter; crankcase ventilation (only 1 to 2 oil changes a year) harmonic crankshaft balancer; two way cooling; honed cylinders; double valve springs and a newly developed type of high compression cylinder head.

A new carburettor and induction system conceived and developed by the famous General Motors Research Laboratories in conjunction with Oldsmobile, utilizes all unburned gases and petrol elements which may escape past the piston rings. This results in astonishing economy and engine efficiency. Power as smooth as electricity; pick-up and speed that leave all fours and ordinary sixes far behind; the kind of snap and get-away you want a six to have;

it would be a brilliant achievement for any manufacturer merely to design such a splendid car to sell at such a reasonable price. But to sell it at the amazing price of £298 is a feat only the vast resources and facilities of General Motors plus Oldsmobile could accomplish.

THE MORRIS TRUCK
Description of Six Wheeled Vehicle.

CROSS-COUNTRY WORK

The Morris Commercial Van, like a prolonged and careful study of the requirements of cross-country transport, has introduced the Morris Six-Wheeled Chassis as being representative of the most advanced design of the class of vehicles. It is a recognized fact that almost, particularly in the tropics, there are large centres of great industrial productivity. The need to transport them is of great value because of the lack of suitable transport lines that reach other districts to be reached. Such motor vehicles made here have their limitations, a handicap caused by smallness of their chassis and require the investment of a large sum of money. The character of a motor vehicle is a permanent feature. The character of the use of industrial transport is the one of continuous growth and development of new and better types of motor vehicles. The Morris Six-Wheeled Chassis is an excellent solution of the problem. It is a motor transport, not to be found from any other source. It is a motor vehicle of the class of motor vehicles which has the characteristics of a motor vehicle that the proper maintenance of such motor vehicles is a matter of great importance. KENNEL NOTES Margaret Collyer

Miss Seliger might be wrong all correspondence in connection with Kennel Notes should be addressed, does not hold herself responsible for accuracy of statements made by her which are, as the usual, based on information supplied by her correspondents.

I have a letter from Mrs. V. Bell, P.O. Box 297, Nainina, asking me to try and find a buyer for her Alsatian dog, who is 14 months old and who was bred by Mr. Penche of Nyeri. Her sister brother to the bitch who was the Alsatian puppy sent to the Nairobi Kennel Club Show last year. The only reason this dog is being offered for sale is that the owners are in the immediate business and they are staying at an hotel where dogs are not appreciated. He can be seen any time by arrangement. The price for this dog is not mentioned.

Not so long ago I was passing through Nakuru and Mr. Deane of the Nakuru Hotel asked me if I could find him a good looking dog and I should think this one might be all that is just what you him—14 months in age and his coat was particularly dense and close with a good undercoat. He was with a lady and I meant to tell her about him but she evidently thought she was not to be disturbed. I was getting a bad opinion from her before she said, but this dog is a sensible, well bred and I can guarantee to me left nothing to be desired.

It is a pity that I have not had a chance to see the dog, but I am sure that it will be a very good one. I have seen a number of other dogs of this breed and I am sure that this one will be a very good one. I have seen a number of other dogs of this breed and I am sure that this one will be a very good one.

People have complained for Great Dane puppies and there are very few to be had. I would advise those who want them to buy from those who have been successful in breeding them. So much can I be bothered about trying to find Great Dane pups for people a while ago that I bought a Great Dane puppy from a lady who had a very good one. I have had a very good one and I have had a very good one.

I have had a very good one and I have had a very good one. I have had a very good one and I have had a very good one. I have had a very good one and I have had a very good one. I have had a very good one and I have had a very good one.

A new carburettor and induction system conceived and developed by the famous General Motors Research Laboratories in conjunction with Oldsmobile, utilizes all unburned gases and petrol elements which may escape past the piston rings. This results in astonishing economy and engine efficiency. Power as smooth as electricity; pick-up and speed that leave all fours and ordinary sixes far behind; the kind of snap and get-away you want a six to have;

it would be a brilliant achievement for any manufacturer merely to design such a splendid car to sell at such a reasonable price. But to sell it at the amazing price of £298 is a feat only the vast resources and facilities of General Motors plus Oldsmobile could accomplish.

ENGINE LUBRICATION.

Information for Motorists in the Tropics.

COMPARISON FIGURES

The following article on the lubrication of motor engines in tropical climates has been written by Mr. F. B. Kilham, Chief of the Engineering Division, Automobile Dept. of the Vauxhall Oil Coy. From time to time reports have been received which indicate that many operators of motor cars and other automotive units in the tropics feel that heavier grades of Gasolene Motor Oil should be used for these engines than would normally be recommended for the temperate zone. While this belief is generally correct, it applies particularly to those units, especially the so-called "high speed" models, which are used in the tropics.

As far as can be ascertained from an analysis of the reports which have reached us on this subject, the lighter grades in a motor which will fit into an engine and suit periods of excessive lubrication under the same conditions existing in the temperate zone are not so different as is generally supposed. The fact is that there are some differences in the requirements of the engine in the tropics, and these differences are not so great as is generally supposed. We do not believe, however, that the lighter grades of oil are so much more serviceable in the tropics as to warrant any change in recommendation of the oil to be used in the tropics. It is, in fact, a safe policy to use the same oil in the tropics as is used in the temperate zone.

Recently we requested the United States Government to furnish us with a study of the temperature conditions existing throughout the world. An analysis of the data which was sent to us which was compiled by the United States Weather Bureau, showed that the atmospheric temperature in the tropics does not ordinarily fluctuate to any great extent. In fact, the temperature in the tropics is generally higher than in the temperate zone. As a matter of fact, the average temperature in the tropics is higher than in the temperate zone. This is due to the fact that the tropics are closer to the equator than the temperate zone. The average temperature in the tropics is about 70 degrees Fahrenheit, while the average temperature in the temperate zone is about 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

It is shown from the comparison of these figures that the atmospheric temperature in the tropics is higher than in the temperate zone. This is due to the fact that the tropics are closer to the equator than the temperate zone. The average temperature in the tropics is about 70 degrees Fahrenheit, while the average temperature in the temperate zone is about 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

It is a fact often forgotten that the average temperature in the tropics is higher than in the temperate zone. This is due to the fact that the tropics are closer to the equator than the temperate zone. The average temperature in the tropics is about 70 degrees Fahrenheit, while the average temperature in the temperate zone is about 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

The motorist driving through the tropics and on the engine work will find that the temperature in the tropics is higher than in the temperate zone.
