LIVE PLAGUE FLEAS.

Flgs, Lice, Mosquitoes and Blood Sucking Night Flies.

The Medical Department in Kenya has the most remarkable collection of live insects in the Colony. This is the first time that such a complete and interesting collection of insects has been assembled at the Nairobi Show and is now ready for exhibition.

They were live plague fleas, lice born in 1926 and still active although they have never been fed, happy locusts and grasshoppers in a good contained, but not maggot flies which live in floors and come out like gnats at midnight to feast on warm human blood.

Speaking about them is told in the following article:

NATURE'S MAKEUP IN KENYA.

It is a generally difficult to make an accurate estimate of the population of the various animals and birds of the Kenya Territory, especially in the case of the smaller mammals and birds. The Government is fortunate in having a Medical Department which has not only a complete staff of medical officers, but also a staff of entomologists and zoologists who are well equipped to undertake the study of the fauna of the country. It is the result of their work that the Medical Department has been able to assemble this remarkable collection of insects.

A NEW RED TERROR IN RUSSIA.

People Living in Dread of Secret Agents.

A revelation of Russia under the new Red terror is provided by the "Daily Express" special correspondent H. J. Grant, who was the first British journalist to enter Russia after the rupture of relations with Great Britain, and recently returned to London.

His dispatch shows a picture of a land which everyone lives in dread of secret agents, of the K. O. P., organization that replaced the ill-omened Cheka.

About 500 people were executed during the wave of "Red" terror which followed the Arrow raid in London. Between two and three thousand others were arrested and in many cases nothing is known of their fate.

Cases of Uneven Engine Running.

There have been a number of reports of uneven running on the starting spring plug.

Having done all this, they find the plug very uneven. If the engine starts as badly as before, or if the work does not improve, the contact-breaker cover—under the work done in the previous case still there. Having ascertained that the spark and level, as in their work, the contact-breaker gives it up as a damaged and long suffering, and so there are several such cases and may be mentioned to head in view of the possibility of a spring or service stop.

HOW TO PUT THEM RIGHT.

An extraordinarily large number of motorists will continue to run a car which is in dire need of attention day in and day out for weeks on end, without trying to put matters right—in fact, for years as it will continue to stagger up the local hills and reach 25 m.p.h. on the level.

Such mechanically light adjustments as an over-riding valve on a poor cylinder is a matter of little importance, an attempt to pass unnoted; after all, as there will still run or they will not, pushing manually. Consequently, if a man with a little more mechanical sense than the average is given a job by a motorist friend, it is an even chance that he will be supplied by the rough running of the engine and assumed that it should mean the owner is little wiser.

A Case of High Point Compression.

To arrive with a real feeling for a piece of mechanism it is un-pleasant, to find it in the engine knocking away on three out of four, or on two out of six, at all beautiful times, and in a beautiful rhythm, and wonderful low-level load, to advance another element of a somewhat better level of character, an engine which is not well fresh, on all the cylinders is unable to prevent the car as well as it should and re-sume a great deal more petrol than would be needed were it running properly.

Many people are under the im-pression that the one component set of the road two, are always run-ning on a common cylinder, so that should they be troubled with uneven running, the work and re-serve the starting plug, clean it and read the points, replace it and hope for the best, if the re-serve petrols they assume that they will make no difference to the speed of which the engine runs. Another point worth remembering is the case of the engine which is liable periodically to slip up to the limit of the speed, and then, some times be induced to lower some-thing of the speed. This is usually the high-tension lead temporarily and holding it in the alternative, as in an external plug. This method is quicker than removing and cleaning the starting plug.

On a common cause of start- ing-trouble, and if more pos- sible and more often a lot of labor to work up towards the cylin- der heads if it is well worth re- moving the engine at a small, haphazard opening for long periods, because in such circumstances a considerable vacuum is created above the piston which tends to draw the mixture down.

As regards the magnets, any serious fault is usually fixed by raising a complete set of the spark-ignition system than to make only one cylinder non-combustion. However, it is found that a dirty distributor will cause a high point on two cylinders only.

Another point to note when two cylinders out of four or three out of six are not satisfactorily, the owner should suspect the contact-breaker, which should first be cleaned, and if the work is not done in a satisfactory manner, the contact-breaker should be replaced. The results of inspecting the points on both sides of the contact-breaker, if in persistent trouble, the fact that the middle may be out of the high-tension lead, which connect the magnets to the starting plug.

Causes of Missing Other Than Electrical.

Having covered the electrical side we will turn our attention to other causes of missing, one of the commonest of which is lack of compression. In these days of efficient motor vehicles, the owner should not have to crack the engine cover frequently, so that lack of compression is one to be investigated or corrected. In fact, it is a considerable time if it can be in- dicated by an excessive spark character, burnt valve symptoms, sticking up with a broken piston, or even a broken valve, and a broken piston.

"Palm Tree" KEROSINE.

On the other hand, a cylinder receiving a mixture lacking a suffi- cient quantity of petrol, the most common cause of this fault being an oil leak in the induction system. Such a leak is particularly liable to occur when an external manifold is employed to distribute the mixture, and it is worth re- minding that external manifolds are rarely used on the increasingly popular over-riding type of engine- drive.

It is essential that the flange attaching such manifolds to the cylinder head should be a close fit all round to prevent the in- gress of air. Where one least of a manifold leads the inlet valve of two adjacent cylinders are in common contact, and an oil leak at the flange will be liable to cause both these cylinders to cut out intermittently.

The first thing to suspect is slackness of the nuts holding the flange, or if a gasket washer is used, a piece of it may have become detached at the junction point. The tightness of the joint can be tested by means of a thin rubber gong, which should be run round it and should not, of course, be able to attain an entry at any point.

An leak of a particularly bad kind before one also sees part a severe fault, that this fault also being likely to lack of compression, and hot, but not least, and the work done of a family and other T.A.C. Motor.

HOLIDAY TRAVELLING IN INDIA.

Publics incidents on the Road.

"STANDARD" ARRIVES... London, July 20

Unfortunately the holidays are bringing down the usual crop of accidents on the roads and elsewhere never larger.

There have been many rather pathetic accidents this week. In one case a young girl scorching her blind brother across the road was killed by a motor omnibus.

In another, a man was crossing the line with his children. When two trains approached. The boy ran across, but the train halted and in trying to save her both the nurse and the girl lost their lives.

Married on Wednesday, a Scottish couple were returning to Old Meldrum on Saturday night, when their motor-cycle collided with a motor-car. The husband was killed, and the wife in hospital with a broken arm.

In the normal number of road tragedies there has been a slight increase. This fact, perhaps, is partially explained by the fine weather which starts on the first of the August holidays, since there was great excess from long holidays, but it is possible that though the former is more popular and very often the cheaper.

BIRTH

THE EAST AFRICAN STANDARD

Commercial Statistics.

The Editors' Chamber of Commerce, despite the two repeated personal explanations of the Statisticians to the East African Government, Mr. Walter has expressed opposition to the collection of commercial statistics required by the Statisticians. The Chamber believes that the Trade Reports, Bank Returns and Budget figures are sufficient for the purposes of the country and that the information required by the Statisticians is of little value to the community. The Members of Commerce were also advised of the proposals and requested further information. So far, only the Nairobi Chamber has fully understood the importance of the proposal and declared its intention of assisting in the collection of information. We fear that the Editors' opposition is based on an incomplete appreciation of the situation. The every denials in public life in this country is suffering today from the absence of accurate statistics, and to a great extent is prevented with an accurate knowledge. The fact that the British, the most enterprising of nations, have been persuaded by the Statisticians to provide for the use of their country fully compiled information in statistical form regarding their operations as a guide to the financial transactions of the Colony, should be sufficient guarantee to a comparatively small Chamber of Commerce that the movement is a sound one. Taxes and other administrative information is provided by all sections of commercial life in a simple manner by the Colony to obtain the benefits of expert analysis to represent the true position of the country's resources, supply and demand, distribution and the scope of production in which success or failure can be seen to every man's hand. The Editors' position is a paradoxical one which will be modified as soon as the more thoughtful members of the community have had an opportunity of studying the situation. Unless the Statisticians as a whole support the Government in its intention to provide information, not only in Kenya but in the greatest variety of adjacent territories and to the overseas territories, the Statisticians' intention to be applied in its widest and best aspects. If the merchants of Kenya are afraid that their relatively unimportant trade "secret" may suffer through disclosure to the Statisticians Department they can rest assured every possible precaution has been taken in that regard and by the law of the country to provide full protection. There is no intention of making any attempt to use the knowledge voluntarily supplied and it cannot be extracted and used by Government for any purpose, such as taxation, for which it was supplied in the first instance. If there is any real doubt as to the minds of the Editors that their interest may suffer or that it is any kind of loss, they should refer to the information available to Government in regard to all practical purposes. We know it is quite insufficient in its present form to help them, the Members of the Statisticians will take an early opportunity of obtaining a full explanation from Government for public information. If Mr. O'Shea desires to be a part of his duty to deny the Statisticians the information of the Chamber of Commerce in his district, we have no doubt whatever that the light which will be thrown on the difficulties under which the Colony is suffering by the present system of inadequate statistical information, will remove the last shroud of doubt from the minds of the most important merchants.

A Letter from Paris

BY MARRA DART

Just before bedtime they are with boxes of stockings, trousers, and undergarments all over them, and with some little lavender sachets tucked with demure, here, with the lace, they sniff, they look—well—! Ah! Ah! Ah! Very unusual!

But the "little frocks" that everybody wears when she wants thoroughly to enjoy herself without, however, about a "spotted collar" or any trace of the new "flounced" lawn? It is delicious fabric, sponsored by a house famous for its effective and satisfactory materials. It is beautifully soft and adaptable, the lawn, and as a distance might even be suitable for printed effects, so softly blended are the colours of the blue-bells, forget-me-nots, wild roses and dainty foliage with which it is printed. It washes like a duster, wears like gingham, and looks delightful.

Dresses of any fairly hand-sewing fabric follow the vogue. Dr. frocks, pleated, hand-drawn, work, and embroidery; and they are neither longer nor shorter than they were six months ago. Certainly some of them slip at the back or at one side, the lines of the waist look lower than the front, or the hip looks lower than the other. But these are mere vagaries for the sake of variety.

Some of the larger patterned materials look as though they were made and then applied to the fabric. A particularly striking example was a light blue serge de chine printed in black, the design looking for all the world the faded-looking black lace, "some" shades of powder, lavender, coral, and pink.

Skirts, always popular in Paris, are being taken up with some enthusiasm in Mayfair. Fluid work or soft fabric materials are especially attractive, and especially so, if they are made in a light shade of grey and white and printed with a floral or leaf design.

And the printed fabrics are not being made in any other shade but grey and white. The new "flounced" lawn is being made in any shade but grey and white.

Some-colored children christen the new eye shade, possibly the "ball" just shows the right hip.

But perhaps the striking colour and design are more attractive for their own sake, and the party nature of being seen in these shades of color, in either, lace or plain in any of many colors. The shades were used alternately, as frocks on the lighter side of the "graceful" model, the bodies being in the lighter shade, and the skirt or the skirt, without which even dainty frocks seem incomplete. These days, in the darker. The color was new, and the dress was lovely!

JEWELS FOR THE KNEES

(By Miss Lovell)
Tana jewelry, as now adding lace, heralds to the glistering laces in their windows. They take the form of French chains, and are intended to be worn beneath the flimsiest of stockings at the heels of the knee. If you want to be very up-to-date you will order a knee-band set with some glittering stones, the rays of which will penetrate through the stocking here. And the stones will be similar to that which you wear in your earrings or necklets.

This new vogue is somewhat disappointing since it gives evidence of a continuation of easy, gracefully abbreviated skirts and a style of dress not completely new for its construction of taste. It also suggests that we shall be edged in the near future, to fall in the manifestations of the season to make our lives more beautiful! Already I hear from the best sources that there is a new undergarment, slender, and treatments for knees as well as ankles and feet, by means of massage, rubber bands and bandages, toe pumps and slippers. These things might also prove a source of comfort.

The best general stockings are very hard to come by, and the best are those that are made of fine, soft, and elastic material.

There are many different styles of shoes and slippers, and the best are those that are made of fine, soft, and elastic material.

This charming sketch for the afternoon is suitable for the morning, and the best dress is an interesting feature.

Remember, should your knees be too large for your liking.

STAIRS ON WHITE PANNEL

Contrary to common belief, either panel or turpentine in the highest tone for the great stairs on white pannel. The proper spot is a beautiful spot. The best way to remove the stains is to rub the white material in to make the white more white. The best way to remove the stains is to rub the white material in to make the white more white.

BEER AND SHIP BARBERS

There are many different styles of shoes and slippers, and the best are those that are made of fine, soft, and elastic material.

A particularly attractive, yet practical little dress in grey and white paid customer. The skirt is pleated in front and at the sides, while the simple short-sleeved bodice is finished with a white organza Peter Pan collar and a narrow and white spotted tuxard skirt bow.

"The New Length" the dress-makers call it. And their message is simple: that the particular length of skirt is something entirely new that has been created for their own particular clientele.

And the pattern designer would not be surprised to see some of the new styles that are being made in any other shade but grey and white.

POOLING THE WORLD'S WHEAT.

A Representative Conference.

A conference of delegates representing co-operative wheat pools in Australia, Canada, United States and Russia was held in Kansas City, U.S.A., recently over the Pooling Question. Through the assistance of the principle of international wheat pools, the normal rate of growth of wheat production in the world was affirmed. The following resolutions were adopted on the last day.

That it was to be particularly the wheat producers of the wheat exporting countries of the world should take towards the co-operation of their co-operative organisations. That similar co-operation should be encouraged by the wheat producers of the wheat importing countries. That such co-operation should be encouraged by the wheat importing countries. That such co-operation should be encouraged by the wheat importing countries.

Telling a Pig's Age from Increasing Milk Production in Its Teeth.

WATKINSON THE GOV.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS.—A cow that has a pig from her milk teeth are used and replaced by permanent ones at the age of six months old the corner permanent incisors (that is, the front or cutting teeth) begin to appear. At six months old the permanent teeth or pointed teeth at each side of the mouth, are rather more than halfway up. If you have a cow that is the actual length of three teeth when fully developed, the normal rate of growth of the teeth between six and nine months old is somewhat pretty accurate. The appearance of the teeth will also tell the age, up to milk teeth at six or more of the first three incisors, or grinding teeth at fifteen months old the side incisors are usually appearing.

Some legends are rather hard to believe. The belief that the teeth of a cow will also show slight effect on the growth of the teeth. All additional teeth on the pig from its milk teeth are not to be taken into account. It is a good idea to get a pig from its milk teeth, an excellent idea. The age of an old cow may also be guessed from the condition of her teeth. No teeth, an activity. Wish Stock Farm.
