Beginning back in the days of the very earliest pneumatic cover, Goodyear has focused its manufacturing skill and facility for development on the motor car tyre, culminating in its most recent and perhaps greatest accomplishment—the new safe, tractive and slow wearing Goodyear Balloon with the new type All Weather Tread.

MOTORING TOPICS

HOLDING THE ROAD.

Improvement in Cars During Recent Years.

THE VARIOUS FACTORS

An essential quality of the sports car and the standard vehicle for that matter, is good road holding. It must give wide safety margins, without too much of a jolting and without any tendency for the back or front of the chassis to jump from side to side. It must corner as though it were on the rails, it must be practically proof against skidding and must be practically proof against rolling over on the straight or on a bend. Unless it does all these things in full, it is not worth buying.

How many makes of car, however, can be said to hold the road well? It is gratifying to note that a very marked improvement in road holding has taken place during the last two or three years. This has naturally been brought about by the fact that engines of a great size are giving more power. Consequently, cars are being driven faster and any defects in road holding are more likely to be noticed. As a result, the latest chassis are being built with more attention to grip, to stability, to control, and to steering.

Governing Factors.

Road holding, in whatever degree, depends upon such a number of factors that it is well to consider them from almost any angle. The fact that engines of a great size are giving more power, has naturally led to a much greater use of the front wheel, and this, in turn, has led to a much greater use of the rear wheel. This, in turn, has led to a much greater use of the front wheel, and this, in turn, has led to a much greater use of the rear wheel. This, in turn, has led to a much greater use of the front wheel, and this, in turn, has led to a much greater use of the rear wheel.

high car that corners extremely well. This is probably due to the fact that the weight is distributed approximately equally between the front and the rear, although in a surprising point there are some instances in which the front wheel's high centre of gravity is not a disadvantage, as in the case of low cars would be.

A very low-built vehicle will tend to add rather than to subtract to a corner, but when the centre of gravity is higher, the weight is shown more on to the outside wheels when taking a curve, with the result that the outside wheels are better able to grip the road. This is a great advantage, and in a cornering car, it is a very desirable feature. It is a very desirable feature, and in a cornering car, it is a very desirable feature.

The aim of the designer should be not only to arrange that the weight distribution is substantially equal, but also to arrange that the weight distribution can be very easily altered by a slight car's weight. This is a very desirable feature, and in a cornering car, it is a very desirable feature.

Experiments in Road holding

We have known a number of cars which simply would not do for straight or cornering work. It is a very desirable feature, and in a cornering car, it is a very desirable feature.

normally seated at his side the driver would be able to make a clear about.

Positive Control Wanted.

It is a manifestly better if the sports vehicle and engine can be carried on one side of the car near the front, rather than being placed at the extreme end of the car as in the case of a standard car. This is a very desirable feature, and in a cornering car, it is a very desirable feature.

What would be also due to the fact that the front wheel is being driven, and this, in turn, has led to a much greater use of the rear wheel. This, in turn, has led to a much greater use of the front wheel, and this, in turn, has led to a much greater use of the rear wheel.

Ideal Suspension System

When a car is properly suspended, it is a very desirable feature, and in a cornering car, it is a very desirable feature.

follow every irregularity in the road without affecting the angle or the position of the chassis.

A Little goes a long way

While this ideal can sometimes be reached when travelling at moderate speeds, it is generally impossible at high rates of travel, owing to the fact that instead of dropping into potholes and rolling over bumps the wheels tend to jump all over the place, and as a result from one to the other. The result is, then, that when the suspension system is not perfect, the wheels would tend to bounce off protrusions that hit and the car would follow to be shown from side to side. If the tyre pressure is too high, this bouncing off obstacles is intensified, but when the pressure is reduced, the tyre itself absorbs the more of the shock and the springs are left free to deal with more important irregularities in the road surface.

For fast driving the suspension must be stiff, and this is generally brought about by using shock absorbers in conjunction with spiral springs. For sports on the "inter-city" road "shock absorbers" which damp the action of the springs in both directions, are generally to be preferred. In this way excessive bouncing is prevented, and the car will be controlled quite fast.

Adjust Shock Absorbers

As a car fitted with adjustable shock absorbers is an excellent thing, it can be found in many of the latest cars. It is a very desirable feature, and in a cornering car, it is a very desirable feature.

A KING'S WILL DISPUTED.

Rumanian Royal Estates Tangle.

A QUEEN'S CLAIM

Swiss judicial law, as stated in the article in the Standard in connection with the late King Ferdinand's will, is a peculiar one. The majority of royal estates in the kingdom were left to the Queen Marie only enjoying the use of the portion pending the majority.

King Ferdinand left little to his widow and children as it comes ex-Omnibus Prince Carol received the smallest share of the father's estate.

It is now reported from Bulgaria that Queen Marie of Yugoslavia, the second daughter of the late King, is preparing to contest the Queen's claim as a possible heir and the other children will follow.

The Rumanian government is stated to desire to remove the cases coming out, but is considering a plan to bring up all the royal estates and to give the same to the crown, thus restoring them to the King.

It is said that a petition is being sent to the King and that the Queen is also petitioning.

They are wearing long, wavy, and soft curls, and are wearing the kind of hats that were worn in the 1920s.

It is said that the American women are very much interested in the fashion of the 1920s, and are very much interested in the fashion of the 1920s.

POULTRY NOTES

Egg-eating.

Several poultry farmers have recently had trouble with their birds eating eggs. It may be caused by a lack of natural food, and I think this is probably the case of the hen which had ground and broken grain mixed in a bag of ground wheat, but the birds which ate about a handful of this mixture will get no taste return for their labour. A mixed ration is a necessity at the present time, and would, I think, help prevent the egg-eating. The addition of a little of the concentrated foods for the ordinary ration would be beneficial. Egg-eating occurs in the pen, it is very difficult to eradicate.

First thing to do is to try and remove the offenders. Fill two or three eggs with some vegetable oil that will colour the bird's beak, such as a thick paste of indiarubber. Make sure all birds showing a white stain about their beaks should be removed to another pen, and an attempt made to cure them by giving a number of doses of a strong solution of iodine. I have tried this and it has been found to be very effective. If they have taken to eating the eggs from the nest, I have seen birds in a group waiting for a hen to lay. Place some eggs in the nest, prepared as follows. Make a small hole in the top of the egg, and empty its contents, fill with a little water, and a little of the iodine solution. Clean away some of the yolk from the surface of the shell and place the hole with a small patch of sticky paper. Every time one of these prepared eggs is broken, the iodine will be in contact with the egg and the bird will be cured. After two or three days the iodine solution will be gone, and the bird will be cured. These birds may be returned to the

THE POLITICAL OUTLOOK IN KENYA.

No. 2. CONSTITUTION OF THE LEGISLATURE. A Change Between the Kenya View and That of the Colonial Office.

The second of the series of articles on the present political outlook in Kenya sets out the cleavage in aim and intention between Kenya and London on the composition and powers of a Legislature with an elected majority.

The third article to-morrow will deal with some aspects of the constitution of the Council under representative government, having regard to the two views set out below.

TWO POINTS AT ISSUE.

Having referred to the two articles in the present volume of the 'African Standard', which have brought Kenya face to face with the question of representative government, it is necessary to consider the two points at issue between Kenya and London on the composition and powers of a Legislature with an elected majority. The first of these points is the question of the powers of a Legislature with an elected majority. The second is the question of the composition of a Legislature with an elected majority.

"WINGET"

Open Drum Concrete Mixer

The Guaranteed Mixer With the Guaranteed Mix

These are the only open drum type mixers on the market which mix instead of separating. This is due to the patent BURN-LANCASTER drum with the SEMI-HELICAL BASE. "WINGET" mixers have other overwhelming advantages over any others on the market. Come and see a S-4 in stock, or write for literature.

GRUP PROGRESS IN THE VALLEY.

STANDARD CORRESPONDENT, Sukhara, October 12.
 It was not used. I returned from Nairobi last week that I realized how well our valley deserves the name given to it by the Misses, the Green Valley. It is true that we have not had rain for the last few weeks, but then we do not expect it until the latter end of the month. We have already had 35 in.

The valley, however, and what we will receive, well, and in general, a crop of wheat has been sown off, and another is being sown. The crops are reported to be very hope to the new.

Uganda Farewell.

DEPARTURE OF THE CHIEF TRANSPORT OFFICER.

STANDARD CORRESPONDENT, Kampala, Oct. 11.
 A very old Uganda soldier and so this week to enjoy a well-earned retirement in Port Elizabeth. On Saturday evening a farewell dinner was given to Major Hill by about fifty hosts all of whom had to show two years' service in Uganda and the only exceptions were a few professional friends who had not lived in the country quite so long.

The chair was taken by Mr. P. W. Cooper, O.B.E., the Provincial Commissioner of Uganda. The menu was an excellent one, written in terms of hospitality and these parts, particularly special attention paid to hospitality.

Mr. Proctor, O.B.E. made a most excellent and witty speech, taking account of the history of the Province. He also made some remarks on the progress of the Province.

Major Hill, in reply, thanked the hosts for the excellent and so he had received and he was extremely moved by the cordial and friendly manner in which the Province had been received. He said that when he left the Province he would leave it with a very good impression of the people and the Province.

The Province, however, and what we will receive, well, and in general, a crop of wheat has been sown off, and another is being sown. The crops are reported to be very hope to the new.
