THE ROMANCE OF THE TROUT IN KENYA.

Fish Carried in Buckets over Mountain Passes.

A Fisherman's Paradise in the Heart of Inscrutinably Beautiful Country.

Too little is known of the enthusiasm which was the guiding spirit in the stocking of the rivers of Kenya with trout.

THE PRAYER OF THE SCOT.

"A special meeting of the Kenya Angling Association was held at the Club House, Southern Highlands, on the 12th inst., when the river was deluged open for the fishing season."

How a gust of fry was carried over the Aberdares. Young fish transported through trackless forests and mountain passes and a promising prognosis is told by a fisherman in the following graphic story.

Some time in September of the past year, still another strange flood was held in the Southern Highlands. The river was taken from the mountains and carried over the mountains in the shape of a water slide, although it was not so high as the water which had been carried over the mountains in the shape of a water slide."

It was the first time that the river had been carried over the mountains in the shape of a water slide. The water was carried over the mountains in the shape of a water slide, and the fish were carried over the mountains in the shape of a water slide."

It was the first time that the river had been carried over the mountains in the shape of a water slide. The water was carried over the mountains in the shape of a water slide, and the fish were carried over the mountains in the shape of a water slide."

Topics for Motorists.

The Middle of the Road.

Driving Habit that is Growing Worse.

One of the worst habits of modern motorists is to drive unwisely in the middle of the road, compelling others to drive with two wheels in the gutter. What can be the reason for the rapid growth of this pernicious mode of driving? Observation shows that fully 70 per cent of the road users on main roads do not attempt to get out of the way of traffic coming from the opposite direction. They will do so in the middle of the road, but not more than one inch to their own side to allow someone else a little more space to get safely by. Similarly, they drive down the centre of the road, often at a very moderate speed, blithely oblivious of the fact that there are numbers of people anxious to overtake them. When the driver of a car coming up behind notices his horns the driver of the car in front either takes no notice at all or else slows a pace or two seconds, lazily extends a hand and looks up at the man behind to overtake him.

But how far pull in to the left to make the manoeuvre possible? No, he stays exactly where he is, in the middle of the road, so that if the car behind is a very wide it probably cannot pass him.

An Exasperating Manoeuvre.

Again, it may be necessary for the overtaking vehicle to disengage the clutch on the right-hand side of the road, not always the ideal thing to do if the car is being driven fast. On the left of the leading vehicle is a narrow space 5 ft. 6 in. or even 8 ft. wide, and the man behind, who understands what is going on, being unable to pass a vehicle on the proper side, drivers have engaged a lower gear and shot through between the rear side of a vehicle and the kerb.

Spicy it is only the most elementary good manners to pull over to the left when the sound of a horn is heard from behind. On a wet road when the vehicle may slide when disengaging the clutch of the gear on the wrong side will make matters even more awkward. The vehicle is in a precarious, but for the while it is oversteering, but from the opposite direction. Often the man behind, who understands what is going on, will make a manoeuvre which the safety of the motorist here depends on the sway of bad driving you can think of, ignoring much more serious cases of people coming at us speed from side streets, or coming in from the middle of the road without putting out a hand.

The slow drivers who wander along the middle of the road do not seem to be getting out of it, or to know so ill-fated course which should not be necessary were both to keep to the left. They also consider "cutting it" even if they are going at a much moderate speed and the car which is overtaking them comes over to its proper side a hundred yards ahead of them.

Different on the Continent.

The clinging to the centre of the road is one of the first things that strikes a foreign motorist coming to this country, while, conversely, the British motorist abroad notices that he has only to swing his car for a vehicle ahead to pull over immediately to their proper side. It is plain to see that rather brutal methods have been employed, the usual reason for motorists on the Continent, but in certain parts of France a driver will know that the word of a Kéroux (which he does not mean, "Please pass, I pass") is "Look out, I am coming." Consequently, if the leading car does not pull immediately over to one side, a crash may result, or at least one of his wags may look a great deal the worse for the fall.

Driving with Plenty of Clearance.

Often when driving down a long straight road you see signs in the distance a cloud of dust following the approach of another car. When it is several hundred yards away the approaching vehicle will be seen to pull over so that two wheels are in the gutter on its proper side. The motorist going the other way does the same, and the cars pass in perfect safety with a gap of several feet between them. How different from the perils passages in this country, where open-minded motorists allow one's off-side wags by as he looks or level.

If every experienced motorist could be induced to motorist who never to the game to keep strictly to their own side, driving would be safer, easier and less "The Motor".

The Variety.

One of the features of the stand which attracted the most attention was the variety of produce displayed. Almost everything one could think of was there, and some very fine samples too. The vegetables were excellent and produced of almost unimpeachable care were on view. The dairy produce was another outstanding feature, and especially quality maize, coffee and steel were to be seen. In other features was the sample of grown bananas and home lay which is a valuable food crop for stock.

Another outstanding feature was an excellent display of photographs and the general line of the district, which gave the prospective visitor a very good idea of what to expect when he comes to the district. THIS illustration shows all that need be shown about Goodyear traction. What it cannot show, however, is that beneath the safe and slipless All Weather Tread lay an incomparably sturdy and reliable framework. This framework or body is built up of SUPERTWIST—Goodyear's highly elastic and durable cord material. Should the tyre meet with an obstacle of the road, SUPERTWIST will yield, and recover, rather than stubbornly resist the blow. Thus has SUPERTWIST reduced structural failure in the balloon tyre to the vanishing point. And thus has SUPERTWIST provided an excellent foundation for the greater safety and longer, slower wear that is found in the new Goodyear Balloon.

Flour Prices Reduced

The wholesale prices of all our different grades of wheat flour and atta have been materially reduced as from October 1st, and no doubt bakers and storekeepers will make corresponding reductions to the public when their existing stocks have been cleared.

Since the early part of 1923 the wholesale price of our superfine white flour has been reduced by nearly 30%.

The latest reductions have been made possible by co-operation between the wheat growers, who have agreed to a reduction in the price of wheat, and the two leading millers (Unga Limited of Njoro, and the Kenya Grain Mills Ltd., of Nairobi). These millers have reduced their prices to figures which will be absolutely unprofitable, even with the reduced price of wheat, unless their combined sales are increased by 3,000 bags of flour per month. They have made the reductions in the belief that such an increase is possible.

WOMAN'S CRAZE TO BE SLIM

Reducing Methods Which Are Harmful.

GLAND TABLETS

"It is time that perfects were made, instead of the almost and dangerous practices among modern women of excessive dieting. It is a menace to the future of the race."

A West End specialist, made this statement recently when discussing with an "Evening Standard" reporter the latest news from Hollywood that prominent film actresses are resorting to drastic methods of weight reduction.

It is said they do not wish they were anemic, spend hours in Turkish baths and massage, heart trouble, and take drugs which are deadly.

"Women do not like to be told so," said the specialist, "but they have never meant by Nature to be abnormally slim. If she makes her body so, she must expect to pay the penalty."

"You can always tell a woman from 'kimo' to 'kimo.' Her nerves are all gone. The system is based so, she expects to pay the penalty."

"You can always tell a woman from 'kimo' to 'kimo.' Her nerves are all gone. The system is based so, she expects to pay the penalty."

man's body, which is made up of muscles which it cannot carry on. The first to feel the evil effects of excessive dieting is the nervous system. Fat is the most nerve-food there is and the woman who deliberately avoids fat is liable to suffer from a nervous breakdown.

It is evident that the portents of the "dieting craze" coincide exactly with the period of feverish excitement. It is our women's tortuous curves that make them so attractive to man, and it is our middle-down or take thine quality.

A Sign of Nerve.

The state of nerves is in a large measure gone to the slumping stage. When a woman agrees to themselves to get scarily thin, she is in a state of nervousness. It is reported from Hollywood that a number of cases of "kimo" have been noticed in the ranks of otherwise "dainty" and "well" women.

It is not our film stars who lead themselves out to breakdown in health by excessive dieting in "for" exercise. It is a matter of fact that some of the best known names in the English turf have had to retire from their country through ill-health. This ill-health has been brought on by having themselves in order to bring down their weight.

And the new "kimo" party of all time came to a tragic and abrupt end. Her husband, who had been humbled to such an extent, besides being a nervous Turkish bath, that he went temporarily insane, and in that state committed suicide.

Turkish Bath

Excessive use of the Turkish bath also affects the heart, and may lead to permanent weakness of that organ.

Fatigue is a dangerous precursor of indigestion by the (ignorant) use of it in certain cases. It is a course of fasting should never be undertaken upon any sort of diet. It is not our film stars who lead themselves out to breakdown in health by excessive dieting in "for" exercise. It is a matter of fact that some of the best known names in the English turf have had to retire from their country through ill-health. This ill-health has been brought on by having themselves in order to bring down their weight.

Film Actress

Dr. Cecil Wede-Johnson, visited on the subject in the Daily Express, says: "These prominent film actresses who are paying the penalty—and a terrible penalty—in for their derangement to the 'dieting' craze have only themselves to blame. Dieting is not a healthy habit, and it is the position which nature inflicts on those who break her law. For starvation is a self-inflicted need. Nature will not be satisfied until she has the body which she wants at hand. The body ing and rigid diet—has these cases under the microscope of scientific medical specialists.

Rational Treatment.

The modern and rational treatment of obesity is a combination of diet, exercise, and administration of various preparations of the thyroid gland. Those who are too busy to take the exercise recommended, spruce mechanical and electrical devices have been made, but neither are electrical currents, which are supposed to contract and thus lay to the body of superfluous adipose tissue.

The present craze for slimness has caused a mass movement to sell of thyroid gland preparations, which are advertised as "miraculous." At the present time you can get a number of such preparations in the form of thyroid gland tablets, or the various mechanical devices. These have been reported following excessive doses of these preparations having been taken.

Notes from Great Britain.

Getting Ready for Olympia Show.

There was no doubt whether about the success of the recent Tourist Trophy race held in Britain from the spectacular point of view for crowds of people, the course was estimated at between 50,000 and 60,000, and this course was completed every minute of racing from the start. The enthusiasm was simply not confined to the spectators, most thrillingly those who witnessed it in a road race. Only six seconds separated the first and second race to finish in a race lasting 410 miles. The winning Lap-France was manufactured by Kaye Don, who was able to give all his attention to the actual driving, for the car itself had been very well prepared and gave no trouble. A lubrication system will not win it, and so the reputation of the lap-France was unimpaired. The car was of course, the first of the new Hyper Sports super-charged model, which is an excellent model for 410, and will be the standard success at Brooklands. The importance of this race, and its success, cannot be overestimated in a race of this nature, where reliability is essential. It is not surprising therefore to learn that the Lap-France completed a second lap, and that the engine was still going when it was finished. The fact that the engine was still going when it was finished, and that the engine was still going when it was finished, is a very important point. result of the Army Council's two years experience with the use of the new type of engine, and the fact that the engine was still going when it was finished, is a very important point. The fact that the engine was still going when it was finished, and that the engine was still going when it was finished, is a very important point.

Next Year's Programme.

Details of the 1937 programme are already in hand and an interesting addition to the programme is being suggested. It is the intention to hold a race at Brooklands in the form of a 100-mile race, which will be a very important point. The fact that the engine was still going when it was finished, and that the engine was still going when it was finished, is a very important point.

Care for Poles and Solder.

An interesting order for Austral was made for 14 cars for the 1937 programme. The fact that the engine was still going when it was finished, and that the engine was still going when it was finished, is a very important point.

The Value of Baking.

In all branches of motorist the importance of baking is a very important point. The fact that the engine was still going when it was finished, and that the engine was still going when it was finished, is a very important point.

An account, well-known, regularly issued, to have been the property of Captain Cook, who accompanied him on one of his voyages of discovery, has, since the death of the discoverer, been in the possession of a Birmingham merchant. It is now being sold in London and is one of the most valuable and interesting objects that have ever been discovered by its covering of the last, thickly marked with the names of the discoverer, his dimensions are 10 1/2 in. by 10 1/2 in. The story of the chart, to the satisfaction of the latter part of which the present owner, Mrs. G. F. Partridge, has attended with care, is a most interesting one. Flour Prices Reduced

The wholesale prices of all our different grades of wheat flour andatta have been materially reduced as from October 1st, and no doubt bakers and stockkeepers will make corresponding reductions to the public when their existing stocks have been cleared.

Since the early part of 1928 the wholesale price of our superfine white flour has been reduced by nearly 30%.

The latest reductions have been made possible by cooperation between the wheat growers, who have agreed to a reduction in the price of wheat, and the two leading millers (Unga Limited of Njoro, and the Kenya Grain Mills Ltd. of Nairobi). These millers have reduced their prices to figures which will be absolutely unprofitable, even with the reduced price of wheat, unless their combined sales are increased by 3,000 bags of four per month. They have made the reduction in the belief that such an increase is possible.

Amateurs in Ireland.

First International Contest.

(STANDARD CORRESPONDENT.)

London, Dec. 12.—As a preliminary to the Grand Amateur Championship, the Ireland Golf Club has issued a notice for the first time in its history, calling for a contest for the first time in its history. Although the Irish Golf Club is a purely amateur organization, it has, for the first time, issued a notice for a contest which might involve the participation of professional players. The notice is for a contest which will be held at the club's own course, the Royal Victoria Golf Club, on the 12th and 13th of the month. The contest will be for the first time in the history of the club, and will be a purely amateur contest. The notice is for a contest which will be held at the club's own course, the Royal Victoria Golf Club, on the 12th and 13th of the month. The contest will be for the first time in the history of the club, and will be a purely amateur contest.

West of England Amateur. J. A. Farrow, a young amateur of the Devon and Somerset Golf Club, won the West of England Amateur Championship of the County of Devon in 1927. He defeated C. H. Jones, a member of the Devon Golf Club, by a score of 18 and 7. Both players have played in the championship of the South-Western Counties in 1928 and 1929. In the first round of the championship, Farrow defeated Jones by a score of 18 and 7. In the second round, Farrow defeated Jones by a score of 18 and 7. In the final round, Farrow defeated Jones by a score of 18 and 7.

Amateur championship. The Old Course Golf Club, which has been founded in 1854, is the oldest golf club in the world. It is situated in the town of St. Andrews, Scotland. The club has a long and distinguished history, and has produced many of the world's greatest golfers. The club's course is one of the most famous in the world, and is a must-see for any golfer. The club's clubhouse is a fine example of Scottish architecture, and is a popular meeting place for the club's members. The club's grounds are well-maintained, and provide a beautiful setting for the club's activities.

A Win for Ireland

Irish open amateur championship. The Irish open amateur championship was won by J. H. Wilson, a young amateur of the Royal Victoria Golf Club, in 1928. He defeated C. H. Jones, a member of the Devon Golf Club, by a score of 18 and 7. Wilson's victory was a significant one, as it was the first time in the history of the club that an Irish amateur had won the championship.

The fourth match resulted in a one hole victory for the young English pair, T. A. Short, the son of H. H. Osmond, a former member of the club, and J. H. Wilson, the respective champion of Yorkshire and Leicestershire. The match was a close one, and was decided by a single hole in the 18th hole. Wilson's victory was a significant one, as it was the first time in the history of the club that an Irish amateur had won the championship.

The feature of the contest was the defeat of Macdonald by 2 and 4, the highest margin by which a amateur has ever won a long course of championship golf. In fact, however, several reasons seem to be the fact that their championship.

In Wales

Mr. Roger Hugh and Donald David's won the Inter-Club Amateur Championship, the Victory Challenge Shield, the Welsh Amateur Championship, the trophy in defeating Mr. J. H. Wilson, and the P. O. (Fogarty) in the eighth hole. David's victory was a significant one, as it was the first time in the history of the club that a Welsh amateur had won the championship.

The University. Oxford University's only amateur golf club, the Oxford University Golf Club, was founded in 1884. The club has a long and distinguished history, and has produced many of the world's greatest golfers. The club's course is one of the most famous in the world, and is a must-see for any golfer. The club's clubhouse is a fine example of Oxford architecture, and is a popular meeting place for the club's members.

ON GROWING OLD GRACEFULLY.

Dangers of Too Sudden Changes.

BRIEF RETIREMENTS

A medicine specialist writes in the "Lancet" on retirement from business or professional service, says: "The danger that may attend too early of too sudden retirement from the occupation of a busy professional or commercial career, has not been in our day recognized in the same degree as it has been in the days of the 'Golden Age', the famous Count de Montcalm, who was recognized by experienced medical men.

Many a man who has spent the greater part of his life in a strenuous and successful career naturally looks forward to peaceful closing years that can be enjoyed with what are commonly regarded as the comforts of his well-earned leisure.

A Delicate Machine.

He realizes the danger, perhaps, upon the fact that his physique, and mental system, constitute a delicately balanced machine, and the more complex whose parts have been "rattled" by so many years of tension use that it is excessively difficult for it to make new adjustments, adapt new methods of working or "learning" or use methods of solving the intricate it needs.

Once the wheels are stopped from revolving to their normal stimulus, the organs are apt to become sluggish, mental activities at the joints and interiors with the first shaking of the machine.

The common experience of a medical man is to find that when a patient suddenly starts to use a different part of the machine from that which he has been accustomed to use for the greater part of his life, it is invariably to the detriment of the older used parts, and accompanied by the evidence of those newly used.

'Two Vital Changes.

When a man retires and says to himself: "Now I will devote myself to golf," after having been comparatively inactive for years, he is making two vital changes in his way of life, the one being to change the parts of his engine that had been working hard for a great number of years, and for it attempting to engage and work parts that are rusty or inefficient. The suitable course for every man approaching the so-called "retiring age" is to ease off slowly, to give his constitution a gradual "change" and to stop looking at the so being divided into hard and fast periods as he builds the possibility of the growing years, but always look upon himself as the same human unit throughout life, and take care to maintain those mental and physical interests which have proved valuable in his development and his temperament. He will thus escape the dangers of too sudden retirement and go on growing up to the end.

Hints on Love-making.

NECESSARY TO LEARN IMPORTANT ART.

In the spring a young man a fancy perhaps two light years to thought of love? Professor A. E. Heath, of Worcester, who in a previous lecture described how he had taught a boy to write by giving him a "book" with an electric battery, gave some useful instructions to youth in the art of love-making. Speaking at the British Social Hygiene Council, Summer School of Cambridge, he said: "We should not dare to play a victim in a concert without knowing anything about it, and yet we do not seem to think it necessary to learn the important art of love-making."

There would be some hope, he added, if they applied to the younger folk on a subject rather than their own growth.

"I am quite convinced that, if you could" some part of the horrible mixture of fascination and fear about sex and its subjects so that they would be easier to talk about, then a great many of our difficulties would simply disappear. It should be remembered that part of any rate of the standard of adolescence comes from the fact that youth was always thrilling for adventure. They did not mind doing difficult jobs if it were worth while.

Two vital environments seemed especially to have the learning of sex and readiness of bloodiness through their own growth.

DWARF WHO INVENTED PHRENOLOGY.

Centenary of a Peculiar Man.

BARRIED BY CHURCH.

One hundred years ago, there died at Mornings, near Paris, a man whose theories had carried out Europe and through the anger of his Church of Rome.

His name is now famous in the history of the sciences, and his name is still a household word. He is known to posterity as Phrenology.

Phrenology is the science of the mind, and its founder was Dr. Gall. He was born in Salzburg, Austria, in 1758, and died in 1820. He was a physician and a philosopher.

At the age there was little in Gall's manner or appearance to suggest potential fame; he was almost a dwarf, being only five feet in height, and his broad forehead was so marked that he could never recognize the person by whose side he had been sitting throughout the meal.

It was one day that was admitted example of Moore's witty lines—

Boobies have looked as wise and bright
As Plato or the Magyars;
And many a sage and learned skull
Has peeped through windows dark and dull.
In another way Gall was to improve their truth by showing that the outward appearance of the skull is indeed the reflection of the inner formation of the brain.

He observed that persons who were seized with a violent desire of money were distinguishable by a certain protrusion of the eye. This set him thinking.

Proceeding from deduction to induction, he observed that the amount of protrusion of the eye was in direct proportion to the amount of the desire of money. From this he deduced that the amount of protrusion of the eye was a measure of the amount of the desire of money.

He soon decided that the form and shape of each individual skull was determined by, and conform to, the form and shape of the faculties of the mind.

He was a physician to a lunatic asylum, he had single scope for examining the crania of the insane, and his field was thus further extended by permission to undertake similar research in the prisons and madhouses.

He soon established in his mind that the amount of protrusion of the eye was a measure of the amount of the desire of money. This set him thinking.

A Public Executioner.
Gall's theory was so simple and so easy to understand that it was soon taken up by the public. It was a measure of the amount of the desire of money.

Poultry at the Show.

A Review of the Exhibits.

The Poultry Division at Nairobi Show with some hundred and thirty four entries is better than we have ever done before. Last week in this column we gave the opinions of the judges. Now I think I may give you my own view of birds which appeared to stand out.

First and foremost was a white Wyandotte, one exhibited by The East African Club. This bird had to be thought of as the best bird exhibited, but unfortunately it served too late for the judging, the time having been judged before it reached the show ground. It was very bad luck for the exhibitor.

Mr. Usher's B. I. had which was Best Bird in the Show, was very nice bird with good shape and good coloring, being slightly in the poultry class. My old standby for Rheumatics

A sharp attack of Rheumatism demands prompt treatment. A single application of Sloan's Liniment is wonderfully effective in most cases. Applied lightly three or four times a day, it restores and quickly brings a stream of healing new blood to carry away poison, thus relieving most aches and pains arising from rheumatism. Sloan's Liniment is universally recommended.

"Crippled with Rheumatism," writes one of our correspondents. "After one application of Sloan's Liniment I feel much better, and in a short time the pain has disappeared."—W. H. Stone, St. Charles, Iowa, U.S.A.

RIVAL CANDIDATES FOR U.S. PRESIDENCY.

A Struggle between Democratic Ideals.

THE ISSUES

For an American possessing even the most ordinary knowledge of transatlantic politics it is at once apparent how bewildering and even baffling many of the circumstances and significance of our present national situation (written Mr. Frank H. Simonson, "The American Journalist" in "The Outlook" magazine).

Whether Smith or Hoover and Taft or Wilson are to be the candidates for the office of President, there has never been a real open popular vote of the people. The assumption is that a majority of the country is Tory. On the other hand the majority in the cities is a certain way, as is the majority in a number of States whose votes are of great importance.

As to the religious issue, it is again an interesting feature, seen on the whole undoubtedly as a political question. The struggle is not so much between the two candidates, but between the two parties, the one representing the old and the other the new.

The Best Issue

Underneath all else in this present American campaign there is a fact which is exceedingly difficult to translate but not less real. For history can teach us that in a certain fashion Herbert Hoover represents the conservation of an efficient America, and Taft Smith the idea of a human America. However beyond all else the man of evolution, Smith is a man whose political fortune have been made by his knowledge of human nature.

within the Republican Party which splits it wide open. Of the two Democratic Presidential candidates the one who has the most solid record is the former, Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson. His success to the Presidency is a matter of course.

To-day the prevailing sentiment about the impending election is that the two candidates are equally undesirable. With an eye on the election, the calculation is whether either or both of these candidates will be sufficiently potent this year to secure a victory for the Cleveland and Wilson supporters. The latter would probably agree that these two factors were not one and the same.

As to the religious issue, it is again an interesting feature, seen on the whole undoubtedly as a political question. The struggle is not so much between the two candidates, but between the two parties, the one representing the old and the other the new.

The Best Issue

Underneath all else in this present American campaign there is a fact which is exceedingly difficult to translate but not less real. For history can teach us that in a certain fashion Herbert Hoover represents the conservation of an efficient America, and Taft Smith the idea of a human America. However beyond all else the man of evolution, Smith is a man whose political fortune have been made by his knowledge of human nature.

in looking after the adjustment of the machine to the state. Hoover has established economic waste, but Smith has the political machine. Hoover certainly does not represent the organic idea in any way which involves damage. But in looking after a scientist and Smith a humanist, and in looking after a man limited, and perhaps, narrow.

Real Issues

It would be an exaggeration to say that only one has Hoover or one has Smith. The two candidates are not so much rivals as they are partners. The two candidates are not so much rivals as they are partners. The two candidates are not so much rivals as they are partners.

If Smith is elected—and I believe he has a better chance than would appear from more popular opinion—it seems to me he will owe his victory very largely to the double chance that would appear from more popular opinion.

Commissions of Enquiry.

WILL TO MAKE THEM POSSIBLE IN TANGANYIKA.

The present law of Tanganyika Territory makes no provision for the holding of formal enquiries into matters affecting the public welfare and it is of importance, in the public interest, that the Governor should be able to obtain the evidence which is required by those best qualified to answer the question at issue and with power to examine witnesses and to examine them upon oath.

Accordingly a Bill to make provision for the holding of formal enquiries into matters affecting the public welfare and it is of importance, in the public interest, that the Governor should be able to obtain the evidence which is required by those best qualified to answer the question at issue and with power to examine witnesses and to examine them upon oath.

Provision is made for the appointment of a Commission of Enquiry, the members of which shall be appointed by the Governor and shall have the same powers and shall exercise the same powers as the Commission of Enquiry, the members of which shall be appointed by the Governor and shall have the same powers and shall exercise the same powers.

Public Health.
Amongst civilized communities the health of the people and the steps taken for maintaining and improving it are rightly regarded as one of the chief functions of the State, and nothing has been more remarkable in recent years than the statistics showing the important efforts in national physical well-being as a result of the increased attention paid to housing and sanitary conditions in those countries where the importance of hygiene is properly appreciated. In Kenya for some years past the work for the Medical Department has been increasing at a rate which has excited some comment and even alarm on the part of those who have not sufficiently considered the reason for the increase. The big extension of medical services in the Native Reserves particularly has been criticized as being out of all proportion to the economic development of the country. What often is forgotten is that there is distinct and an essential factor quite apart from the humanitarian one which impels a necessity for improving the health standards of the people of this country. Europeans and, to a lesser degree, Africans, are sufficiently advanced to be able to have some conception of the need for leading up to proper health and sanitary systems; but the vast mass of Africans in this country have not realized the benefits to be derived from the application of hygienic practices in their daily lives. For the most part they live in conditions which encourage disease, and the local authorities are aware of the need was indicated in the attempt made to interest visitors to the recent Agricultural Show in what was in fact a most arresting exhibit. It is the appearance in the thought which is being given to the native location in Nairobi, at Kitale and elsewhere, by far the unwholesome community to be inspected anywhere, there seems to be insufficient appreciation of the importance and urgency of the task. We comment to every body a close examination of the figures given in the annual report of the Medical Department just issued, figures which are eloquent of a somewhat deplorable state of affairs. It is essential that the duty of ensuring that throughout these are taught by precept and example a realization of the actual material good which will come to them as a result of better conditions of living requires urgent and careful attention. Flour Prices Reduced

The wholesale prices of all our different grades of wheat flour and oats have been materially reduced as from October 1st, and no doubt bakers and storekeepers will make corresponding reductions to the public when their existing stocks have cleared.

Since the early part of 1926 the wholesale price of our superfine white flour has been reduced by nearly 30%.

The latest reductions have been made possible by co-operation between the wheat growers, who have agreed to a reduction in the price of wheat, and the two leading mills (Unga Limited of Njoro, and the Kenya Grain Mills Ltd. of Nairobi). These mills have reduced their price of flour to figures which will be absolutely unprofitable, even with the reduced price of wheat, unless their combined sales are increased by 3,000 bags of flour per month. They have made the reductions in the belief that such an increase is possible.
