MONDAY, MARCH 17, 1986 problem which refer to Railway Tanganyika Railways.

The problem of providing for the south western districts of Tanganyika a transport medium which will encourage their more rapid economic and political development, has been further complicated by the report made by Mr. Clement Gillman, Chief Engineer of the Tanganyika Railways, extracts from which were published in our columns on Saturday. Mr. Gillman, who lays emphasis on his long experience of Tangavika and his exceptional opportunities for study of the trend of possible development, rejects as neconomic and unsound the long therished hope that a Baliway ennexion should be provided from Dodoma to Fife via Iringa. As an alternative the Chief Engineer prefers an eastern route from Kilosa, along the Kilombero Valley to Manda on Lake Nyasa and be asserts that such a line would open the whole of the Dependencies the great fertile native areas, would be an economic proposition. would cost at least two millions less than the Dodoma-Fife line and would serve the whole of the East African Territories, including Nyasaland and Northern Rhodesia. Mr. Gillman takes into consideration the influence of the copper discoveries in Northern Rhodesia and urges the importance of immediate construction of the route o Manda if the Government of Tanganyika can obtain a guaraneed share of the Rhodesian copper traffic. But Mr. Gillman goes further He offers the suggestion that the future of Tanganyika must depend largely upon the development of production by the Native peasant and he dismisses lightly the great influence upon the lature of Eastern Africa latent in the existence of a strong and growing white settlement in the great spaces of the Southern Highlands. White settlement," he says, in sentence which nearly approaches to a contemptuous disparagement, "will always form a valuable asset to the Railways whenever and wherever it can be served without exorbitant capital outlay. But under the conditions prevailing in the widely scattered and small areas considered suitable so far for settlement in the southwest of this Territory, the obtainable results are not thought sufficiently important to dictate railway policy." He suggests that syndicate development will always prove a powerful factor in influencing Railway policy and having oupled with the syndicate system the dense native population along the Kilombero Valley, he has no sitation in dismissing white settlement as of little immediate onsequence and in favouring the eastern route as the line of develment best calculated to add to he economic development of the Perritory. But even Mr. Gillman annot escape the certainty that if now at least in the future a rough Imperial line from north south will be necessary and that his favoured selection from Kilosa to Manda is quite unlikely to offer the advantages to Africa which such an Imperial through, route ossess. While it is unquesonably true that from an econohe point of view the Kilosaanger to the whole future of East ican development in blind acptance of his view. The Chief Engineer of the Tappanyika Rail-Regener of the Tanganyia name ways has approached the subject to a policy of nalive production as a Railway expert. He is on and absente syndicates—with the economics but he is in our view imprediate interest must be taken in the problem facing the Mandefinitely unsound and even dated Territory. To agree to a dangerous when he carries his line which will end in a cul-de-sac assumptions into the realm of political development. The history highest degree inadvisable as a of progress in Kenya suggests that final decision. Nyasaland is lookbut for the presence of a strong white settlement and the en our arement of a settlement policy the provision of adequate transport facilities, the Kenya and and the South-eastern Congo. Uganda Railways would not have een able during the past twenty years to carry the heavy financial hurden imposed on them during the early years of growth. Practically the whole of the Railway system of Kenya has been dependent upon the progress of production in the white settlement areas and the provision of increased transport facilities has been mainly responsible for the great and grow ne export and import trade upon which the Railway finances and the increasing revenue and expenditurn of the Colony have had their basis. Branch lines are seine built to day through some of the main Native reserves, but the growth of the export surplus from native sources bears no relation in its bulk or rapidity of growth to the economic advantages which have approad and still access from the existence of Ballman provision in the white areas of the country. Had Mr. Gillman's policy been followed in Kenya, the whole history of the country would have been vastly different and we venture to suggest that the trade of Kenya the advanced condition of the country and its public services and the area under high value crops would have peen Tanganyika is faced with the It can either concerntrate on the development of a na tive even where production is primitive, where vast sums will b and where the crops produced will probably be of the low-value variety common to native producers and open to every influence of world markets and internal cltmatie uncertainties, or it can definitely set itself the task of providing in the first place through the opening of white settlement areas a backbone to the structure, a dependable economic foundation which will support and balance the programme of development while the laborious undertaking of stimulating native production is being discharged. The issue before Tanganyika is far too grave to be left in the hands of "experts." There is apparently every reason to expect that Colonel Hammond, who is reporting on Railway development, may also oppose the Dodorra-Fife line and with the weight of the experts behind it the Colonial Office may be encouraged to make a decision which alter the whole character of the Territory's future. The Kilombero Valley line is sufficiently im portant and sound to warrant close and early attention but its development should not be allowed to prejudice the vastly more important and urgent necessity connect the Central Railway direct with the copper mines of Rhodesia through the highland plateaux of Iringa and in doing so simul-taneously provide a vital through link between the great British Territories to the south and the

FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION TO CONSIDER QUESTION.

May Cup matches. Why, it is difficult to understand. If the standard of football falls short of when sport in the Colony will undergo, yet another change, and with that change a further step in a forward direction will be taken. I refer to the question of the appointment of a paid score-tary to energy out the executive work of the Pootball Association that seen in the Dobbie Cun games, nevertheless come smaller admittance fee might be made to differentiate between the stand-ards, and I say that without any desire of hurting the feelings of May Cup players. The Girouard of Kenya. During the past year or two the work devolving on the May Cup players. The Ground Cup gates are set aside for covering the travelling expenses of teams. The money taken in connexion with the Boyes Cup goes Honorary Secretary has so increased, both in amount and importance, that the move has become an essential one, rather than a mere change in the theme of wholly to charity, excepting for Hitherto the post has would suggest in the case of the Dobbie and May Cups that the been filled by one who has been in the somewhat fortunate posi-tion of having a certain amount of leisure time to accomplish the work. However, the growth of the 'gates' resulting from these should divided on a percentage basis. he divided on a percentage basis.
That is to say, so much would be set saide for the Association, and the remainder divided between the two contesting clubs, the home club taking a slightly larger position has found ever increasing demands being made on that free time, and has encroached even into time, and has encrosched even into business hours. It seems there-fore, absolutely essential that the work should be passed on to a paid basis, where the official can devote a regular part of the day to the work which is involved.

Most of the European women in Kenya take a great deal of trouble to prevent any communication between their daughters and natives and I, for one, should like an explanation as to why natives were allowed near the entertainment in question, an explanation which, I think, will be anxiously awaited by many other mothers.
I should like to draw attention I should like to draw attention to the fact that, at the two prin-cipal preparatory boys schools of the Colony, no pupil is allowed any contact whatsoever with natives; a rule which is strictly

Then, too, when land was in a condition to plant, a spell of dry weather would prevent planting, and yet not prevent the growth of weeds, thus necessi-tating another ploughing. When tating another ploughing. When one was prepared to take the risk and plant, cutworm took toll, Now during the last week we have been planting; once more to suffer losses caused by heavy wash. So months has been anything but

Coffee Prospects. The position of the coffee farmer on the other hand is very favour-able. All indications point to a bumper crop this year. Not only humper crop this year. Not only do we expect a very good crop put we also expect to have a better quality than unal. The highest price received so far for just year's coffee is 157/90. He coffee would realize this in a very com-lary year. We feel confident that our coffee might fetch even higher prices for this year's crop.

Rugby, March 13. Efforts have been made to-day to overcome the difficulty which had brought the Naval Conference to an apparent impasse. These efforts have been mainly in the course of private conversations which Mr. Macdonald has had at 10 Downing Street, with each of the other chief delegates in turn.

night, but particular interest attaches to the conversations he had this afternoon first with Signor Grandi and afterwards with Briand who remained nearly we hours.

The effects of these conversations is authoritatively described as encouraging. Difficulties still exist and are considerable, but the deadlock is by no means com-lete. In addition to the private conversations already mentioned, Mr. Stimson and M. Briand had a long talk this morning while M. Pietri, the French Colonial Minis-ter, called on Signor Grandi, Importance is attached to the impending arrival of the French Premier, M. Tardieu, who is expected in London to-morrow night Italy's Claim

It is generally felt in Confer-ence circles that the crux of the difficulties, which are placing the major issues of the Conference in doubt, lies in the Pranco-Italian relations. Italy claims parity with France, and France, arguing that she possesses three sea-boards, considers that the claim is un-justified. The high French figures are, in a measure, a reflection of this state of mind and in turn may affect the Naval requirements of Great Britain with whom the United States desires parity. Therefore it is assumed that the purpose of to-day's conversation of the Prime Minister with Signor Grandi and M. Briand was so to ease the situation, that a substantial scaling down of the French figures can be effected. Conversations are likely to be continued to-morrow after M. Tardieu's arrival for it is felt that
