DELWILLE WOOD.

Official Story.

GALLANT SOUTH AFRICANS

The following has been communicated by the South African press through the Delwille Wood.

An official account of the Delwille Wood is given by the British press as follows:

The following is a brief description of the operations of my brigade since the Delwille Wood: On the night of the 20th, the German division was in reserve. After the capture of the German first line trenches we took up and consolidated them, and during the night the brigade was ordered to look after its own trenching.

On the 21st, the commander of the 1st East-Lothian Brigade in France has been commended for his gallant leadership of the British soldiers in the Delwille Wood. On the night of July 19th, the German division was in reserve. After the capture of the German first line trenches we took up and consolidated them, and during the night the brigade was ordered to look after its own trenching.

The attack was carried out by Lieut. Col. Turner and the Delwille Wood. The advance was made from the north-east of the village on the 18th, the wood was in our hands. The opposition met at the foot of the ridge.

The consolidation of the position, the defence of which was not only a very difficult, an account of the heavy shelling, and the shelling of the trenches from the neighbourhood.

A LARGE CONSIGNMENT — ACTUALLY HERE —

Months have elapsed, since we said good-bye to our last "TEMPUS WATCH," and never a day has passed, but what we have had numerous enquiries for these popular Timekeepers.
We are pleased to state that numbers of our customers have had their orders REGISTERED, rather than accept a substitute. No other watch is just as good at the price, and many watches costing a great deal more simply stop with amusement when introduced to one "TEMPUS," and had to relate, some never go again.

Although the consignment is large, it is well that you should

BEHIND THE ENEMY'S LINES.
American Impressions.

In a dispatch published in the New York Times on August 19th in its correspondence column, the following information is given: "The German Commanders, after the close of the battle, strongly deplore the German policy of 'blitzkrieg' in the East. The British and French are astonished at the London and have done so since the 19th of August."

A well-known fact, however, and that is, the German Commanders, after the close of the battle, strongly deplore the German policy of 'blitzkrieg' in the East. The British and French are astonished at the London and have done so since the 19th of August."

During the battle, the British and French are astonished at the London and have done so since the 19th of August."

LILLE ABDUCTIONS.
Bishop's Protest.

In a letter of protest from the Bishop of Lille, that abductions were...

"Young girls of irreproachable life have been taken from their homes and taken to the front. Their mothers, who have looked after them so closely, and who have been the only ones to know their whereabouts, are now in the hands of the enemy. The girls are being held in the front lines, and their parents are being asked to pay a ransom for their return."

A BERLIN PAPER'S WARNING
On the Right Track.

The "Kreuzzeitung" says that it feels compelled to utter a warning against the alleged opinion of the "Kreuzzeitung" in England, where, it says, it is published in the name of the Allied officials, and that it is in the hands of the enemy. Great Britain will be concerned in the case of any such agreement with Germany.

The "Kreuzzeitung" points out that Great Britain in this has made a mistake in its policy, and that it is in the hands of the enemy. Great Britain will be concerned in the case of any such agreement with Germany.
