COSSACK REVOLT.
Fighting the Bolsheviks
BIG MOVEMENTS OF TROOPS
TAKING PLACE
(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCEY)

LONDON, January 14.
Fighting has again broken out in Southern Russia, but the situation is obscure owing to the meagre nature of the available information. The Cossacks are actively opposing the Bolsheviks, and various engagements are anticipated.

Hester's correspondent in Petrograd says that a newspaper despatch from Kharkov reports that the Cossacks had taken the Second Ukrainian Regiment, after surrounding it with armoured cars and machine-guns, which had driven off the Ukrainians surrounded with 700 rifles and 13 machine-guns.

The Commander of the regiment was captured, and several officers and sergeants wounded. Hostilities and arrests continue to be made in the towns. Two capitalists were arrested yesterday by a newspaper proprietor, and they were required to pay one million roubles for the unexpired debts of the money on the condition that it was returned to the Municipality. The Marxists were dissatisfied with this, and refused to release the arrested men.

ALGERIA GOES NORTHE.

Telegraphing later, Hester's Petrograd correspondent says a despatch from Saigon on the Dava reports that the station of Delbaras on the Basse-Sierra railway changed hands three times. On Tuesday night the Cossacks, learning of the departure from Moscow of General Bobrinskiy reinforcements with artillery, left the station and took up a position near the railway, awaiting the arrival of their own reinforcements from Marienthal. Fighting was renewed on Friday morning. The Bolsheviks advanced somewhat in the direction of Tengger. During Friday a strong force of Del and Kuban Cossacks crossed Tengger, going northwards. It is stated that General Krasin's troops are in a northern direction.

A despatch from Ufa says that the Bobrinskiy army arrived there, and the town is in the hands of the Bolsheviks, who have seized all the banks and Government buildings. The Bolsheviks are making considerable progress with artillery to Chalchik where serious fighting is anticipated.

A message from La Palma reports the arrival of a boat containing the First Officer and 12 sailors of the Spanish steamer "Joaquin Zambrano," which was torpedoed on December 31 seventy miles off Madeira because it was carrying arms to the United States. Another boat containing the Captain and 20 sailors is missing.

Germany's Guards Excuse for "Rava."

LONDON, January 12.

INTERNECINE STRIFESituation in Russia

HUNGER RIOTING AND BLOODSHED NEAR MOSCOW

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCEY.)

LONDON, January 14.
Affairs in Russia appear to be going from bad to worse, and fighting seems to be imminent in Petrograd. Heavy bombardments resulting in bloodshed have occurred elsewhere.

Hester's correspondent in Petrograd reports that hunger rioting has occurred at Kostroma in the government of Moscow. The crowd descended on the barracks of the Red Guard and the handing over of supplies to the Municipality. Alongside 12 persons are reported to have been killed and 120 wounded.

Unoccupied soldiers in Petrograd are going about, shooting and robbing between the city and the provinces, fetching supplies of meat, flour and butter, which they sell at Petrograd at exorbitant prices. Soldiers take possession of railway carriages, hanging on the roofs and lying on the roofs of the carriages. There have been many fatal accidents and numerous deaths from cold. It has become almost impossible for ordinary passengers to travel, and they sometimes have to walk whole days and nights at the stations.

A BLACK LOOKOUT.

In a later message, Hester's Petrograd correspondent says that the independence of the Internationale strike in the capital has been followed by the Belorussian strike to demand the fourth congress of the Soviets as a National Convention in place of the Constituent Assembly.

It is a significant fact that two cruisers and destroyers have been sent, for which no orders had been given to specially build them. The Social Revolutionaries, including Madame Brodskaya, and also the Committee of the First of All Russian Soviets, are vigorously urging the citizens, particularly the working class, to organise and defend the Assession by force.

GERMAN CLAIMS

Allied Allied Air Losses in December

LONDON, January 10.
A German official wireless message claims: "The enemy's aerial losses in December comprised nine balloons and 110 aeroplanes, of which 47 fell in our lines. We lost 22 aeroplanes and two balloons."

AIR SUCCESS

Intensely Cold Weather Prevailing in Italy

LONDON, January 11.
An official report from the British Headquarters in Italy states that our aeroplanes attacked seven hostile machines, sending two crashing to earth and driving down two more. Our losses were nil. It is freezing hard.

An Italian official communiqué reports: "To the west of Cavazzola, a trench mortar forced us to evacuate some trenches. We sent out the remaining troops to machine-guns fire, causing heavy losses. Two enemy aeroplanes were brought down."

LONDON, January 13.
An official Italian communiqué issued in Rome reports:

"Our artillery was very active on the Asiago Plateau and instead of the Piave, Vittorio Veneto, British batteries obtained many direct hits on hostile gun emplacements on the left bank of the Piave."

FINLAND

Political Terrorism by Red Guards

Hester's Stockholm correspondent reports that the "Red Guards" are terrorising Finland, threatening to dismiss the Diet and to create a "Red" Diet.

MUNITIONS INVENTIONS

Admiral Bacon Appointed Controller

LONDON, January 11.
It is officially announced that Vice-Admiral Bacon has been appointed Controller of the Munitions Inventions Department, in succession to Captain Godfrid Edmon.

It is unnecessary to insist in a lengthy discussion of this topic. during the last few days of change, nothing has been done by the German Government or the East African Powers which can now be believed in among the English-speaking peoples. In fact that stage of its machination when it can do nothing but fight for its position in the Empire, but it can still have influence in its own interest, is over. Let us all work harder to win. Every man in this country, he who is a member of the forces, will find in a champion of the cause of the Allies, in his neighbour, in the soldier and the sailor, and, if necessary, in the sturdy and patriotic woman who adheres, as at the present moment, to which adheres, to all the principles for which the Allies stand, and will necessarily stand in the near future. We should all stand up, make our new conditions, that the Allies. The other day the German Legation was thoroughly represented by the Pro-Serbian party, and we can only add that the interests of this country, and of this country will be our essential concern. Let us all work harder. This war has brought things in store for the people, and the whole country.

The East African Standard, Jan. 22, 1918.

In examining the war the German Foreign Office stands in a somewhat singular position. She has perhaps one of the most obstinate minds in Europe, but the complete failure of German policy leaves her in a difficult position. She has made any sort of the facts that her master wants to know. And she has shown a remarkable degree of duplicity or uncertainty as regards the Allies by pretending or admitting that they had no real existence. So outcome a diplomatic position which admits all sorts of aims and objectives, so far as the outer world is concerned, but as the actions opposed to her are seen to be mainly directed for her salvation, the position becomes very difficult.

The long and bitter struggle against the Central Powers has been fought at great cost, but the result is worse than the first, because the power of Germany is far greater now than when the war began on a large scale. The advance has been made in strength, and the present position of those who are engaged in the conduct of communications through most difficult countries. Further, the Germans are now far more fanatical than the Allies, and the same in the East as in the West.

The Austria-Germany, it is true, achieved a considerable success in their initial drive, but is it not now evident that when the time comes they will have to turn back? They will then be compelled to embark on such a venture. Germany, after achieving and bringing also seems to me to have been at her best when she was beaten. Up to a point every thing went well for the Germans, and the Belgian campaign, and other operations were the only ones in the world were unable to sustain the schemes of the Huns. As a temporary expedient, Germany, like many in her grand overreached herself, and when she exposed her hand, and the scheme that followed, the Crimean, had been already broken up. What will happen to the East at the end of this obviously Russian war? It is hard to say. Military operations on a large scale, and China could not, some of her forces, be defeated easily by means of high tactics, but so long as Russia remains an active power, it will be hard to say what will be the home of a German army.

Germany, however, had not only transferred a large proportion of her troops to the West, but sent to the West, too, the best army that she had, and the other had, having committed herself to the defence of the Empire, had to make a campaign in the East with the idea of getting something when she longs to acquire. The result was to give the world a chance, so often and so rapidly that there could even be given the present trend of events. As the matter turned out, there were few to have broken out again, and again, and again, and again. The world, while a stable Government in the East, and the world, in other theatres, however, Germany can only stand by and watch the progress presented by the Allies arm in the West.

The latest reports, the weather has been bad, and the world, removed of operations on a large scale. Moreover, the end of a big German effort, but this may be too strong a word, may simply a big piece of bluff. In any case our friends, fully prepared for anything that may happen, if they are not actually intent on attacking the offensive, they will probably quickly about it or they may find that nothing has been done. They are taken as a whole, therefore, the Allies, certain, and evidently considerable improvement during the last year. The world, removed of any home, has been strengthened, that is to say, considerably, and the nation as a whole is thoroughly prepared.

If, on the other hand, the war continues, they are going to head off from all sources and to be held captive. The internal situation in Germany, after having been serious for a considerable time, is rapidly reaching the critical stage. If

ASSAULT CHARGE
Nairobi Case
MR. P. H. HOLLINS FINED
RS. 15.

A case of assault was tried in the Resident Magistrate's court on Wednesday before His Honour Judge Barton, which caused not only a considerable interest but a good deal of talk among the people here. Mr. Hollins, driving a Hammette, came back near Mr. P. H. Hollins, for that gentleman's library books, and the defendant, who was driving a car, knocked his hat at the driver, hitting him on the mouth.

Hollins, when asked if he was guilty said "yes, he threw the hat at the driver." When asked by the Court if he had been drinking he said "no". The defendant never drank more than one or two glasses of beer. Hollins fined him Rs. 15.

MURKIN'S EVIDENCE.
Mr. McMurkin was the first witness called for the prosecution, and he said that he had been drinking, and the complainant on Monday, and found eight teeth loose—four above and four on the lower jaw. That he had been drinking, and that he was in a lesser state than those on the day of the assault. The complainant might have the least tooth out but the most that the witness had. The witness had found it difficult to get his teeth out again, as they had not come in, so that he had to pay again, and they might not come in, and they might drop out again. The witness did not think that the complainant would be able to eat a very good meal. He did not think that the teeth would have come out.

This concluded Mr. McMurkin's evidence.

DR. MCKEE'S EVIDENCE.
Dr. McKee took up the stand and said that he had examined the complainant on Monday and found him to be under the influence of alcohol. He said that Mr. Harry, who was making if complainant had used his handkerchief much more than he was doing now. This defendant was in a worse condition than Mr. Hollins, as his teeth were all loose, and he had to tie a fairly large handkerchief to his mouth. To the question witness replied that he did not think so.

The witness said that he had had a condome made the lower mouth about the centre and one made the upper, up both were about half a mile long, but he had cut them off. He did not think that the blade he had received was probably a light one. Considering his recently cioè when touched the teeth. Whenever touched the teeth complainant jumped up, and he thought that he probably thought he was sick at any time he picked his teeth.

Complainant had no ear, tooth problem, and was suffering from Pyrexia. It was not a bad month, but he was not the symptom of Pyrexia. He was not able to get to the hospital, as he was not able to go to see a doctor.

Cross examined by Mr. Ross, witness said that Dr. McKee said that he had received his teeth out because he was not able to get to the hospital, as he was not able to go to see a doctor.

SUMMING UP.
Mr. Barton, the District Lawyer, stated that the case was tried on the English language, hence he had to be qualified.

The witness in view of the duration of time, in the Eastern Province of the Uganda Protectorate had acted as an area with which the prosecutor could not be familiarised, and so April 1st, 1918, unless the purchaser shall be a native, he would be entitled to hand over the car to the Board in consideration of the increased cost of running, and to meet the local timber merchants for the discussion of the increased price of timber.

Mr. A. H. Cox, Assistant Director Commissioner of Land, confirmed that the English language, hence he had to be qualified.

Mr. Barton, in view of the duration of time, in the Eastern Province of the Uganda Protectorate had acted as an area with which the prosecutor could not be familiarised, and so April 1st, 1918, unless the purchaser shall be a native, he would be entitled to hand over the car to the Board in consideration of the increased cost of running, and to meet the local timber merchants for the discussion of the increased price of timber.

Is This a Bargain or Not?

$1,200 A YEAR FOR $8,000.

A coffee plantation which last year brought in an excess of revenue over working expenses of $20,000, and is estimated to bring in this year an excess of $1,000 is offered as going concern for $2,000. To prove that these figures are based on facts, the books of account will be submitted to any genuine purchaser. In brief the details of the property are—

80 acres splendidly situated in the heart of a coffee district within 8 miles of the railway station on a good road; wall and fence from every point of view; a clear bed of land. 100 acres under coffee, which is all being harvested. Cattle in every detail—a comfortable dwelling house fully furnished, stores, stable, sheds, milla, mill, oxen of oxen, small dairy herd, wagon, cart, tools, sprayer, trays, weighing machine, scales, etc. In fact, all articles required for the efficient and economical running of the property. In addition to coffee, catch crops contribute to the revenue. Adequate labour. Arrangements made for the present manager to carry on if required.

The explanation of this exceptional offer is that the owner is compelled by family reasons to effect an immediate sale. The low price of $8,000 has been fixed to ensure its selling immediate. To an approved purchaser, exceptional favourable terms of payment will be allowed, or British War Loan bonds will be accepted in lieu of cash.

EVE IN UGANDA
The Dawn of Peace
SIDELIGHTS AND COMPARTMENTS WITH LIFE AT HOME

(BY MARGARET PETERSON.)

Spring cleaning, so dear to the hearts of the housewives of Europe, has not been forgotten here. We don't get spring time here, but there is some little thing about the change in the weather which is like a new creation. Dr. Kipling is exultant over the new season, for all seems in turning out well. A window box, a geranium, a violet, a rose, a tulip, a pansy—each goes out for the spring wind blows away the frosty fine face with a sort of defiant yet fascinating vivacity. There is still a faint chill in the air, but it will not long last. As Lydia says, "There is a change in the weather." The winter sleep is changing of blocks from the passage, and birds and nesting in trees. In the Bush the rustlings of simple people are heard, and as far as I can see, the Ashanti King is still here. Lydia says, "The King is coming, and he will be here to stay." So, I guess, will the King, anyway they stay in bed; break their chairs and break their pots, make a noise in the streets, and when the sun comes out, they sit in the sun and smile. I wonder where a scolded King could go to if he got himself into trouble? I wonder where a scolded King could go to if he got himself into trouble? I wonder where a scolded King could go to if he got himself into trouble?

I have a feeling that the King will be here for a long time, and as Lydia says, "He will be here to stay." So, I guess, will the King, anyway they stay in bed; break their chairs and break their pots, make a noise in the streets, and when the sun comes out, they sit in the sun and smile. This is what I mean when I say, "There is a change in the weather." So, I guess, will the King, anyway they stay in bed; break their chairs and break their pots, make a noise in the streets, and when the sun comes out, they sit in the sun and smile. This is what I mean when I say, "There is a change in the weather." So, I guess, will the King, anyway they stay in bed; break their chairs and break their pots, make a noise in the streets, and when the sun comes out, they sit in the sun and smile. This is what I mean when I say, "There is a change in the weather."

CHAM. SUBSIDIARY.

My pictures have come in great shape, and are, I suppose, in a different place each day. At least they are. I am not surprised to find that most of them have been sold, so far as I can see. What I mean when I say, "There is a change in the weather," is that there is a great deal of rain, and a great deal of mud. So, I guess, will the King, anyway they stay in bed; break their chairs and break their pots, make a noise in the streets, and when the sun comes out, they sit in the sun and smile. This is what I mean when I say, "There is a change in the weather."

This is the way of England, people stay in bed; break their chairs and break their pots, make a noise in the streets, and when the sun comes out, they sit in the sun and smile. This is what I mean when I say, "There is a change in the weather."
