QUESTION.

THE ANGLO-INDIAN

CORRESPONDENCE

TO THE EDITOR O' ART AFRICAN STANDARD.

Sir.—There are one of two points in your article ou tile "Anglo and Portuguese Indian" of May 15th, which are not correct.

The first is, the Portuguese Indians as you ten them are not the descendants of a Portuguese father and Indian mother, and the language they speak is not Portuguese. They are a people by themselves, and speak a language of their own. They are not British subjects. I will not dwell much on this point, but will, leave it to one of their own point, but will leave it to one of their own to write more fully about.

My second objection is this:

The second objection is this:

You say that we high foliates are content to bear the name "Eurastian". We hate it to bear the name "Eurastian". We hate it to bear the name that cannot be endicated, though the conditions since its coinage have quite changed and the reasons for its attachment non-existent. While it implies mused descent it is synonymous with haff-easte, descent it is synonymous with half-caste, half-breed, and coaveys a reproach. It is sometimes said, "After all what is in a name?" "What does it matter what you are called?" We have tried to show that there is a great deal in this fool name. A name should have in it truth and inspiration, but this colous appellation is inaccurate, and misleading and abanefully and wrongfully determine. The community is now users aisleading and tegrading. The community is now pro-tegrading. The community is now pro-ferrish and grows from marriages among themselves or between Anglo-Indians at themselves or between Anglo-Indians at itishers. An accretion, much to be re

Thirdity:—Do the Angio-Indians fill ho-nourable positions of trust in the Govern-ment service? What would you call an honourable position, a Clerkship? Though the Angio-Indian may have the ability he cannot aspire to fill a position higher than gineering, etc, etc., but out here an Anglo-lodian cannot aspire to anything above a clerkabip, or perhaps a loco-Foremanship. Under the circumstances how can you expect elerkship, or perhaps a loop-roremanning. Under the circumstances how can you expect him to show his grit. If you were to go to India, where merit and ability are taken into consideration, you would be able to satisfy yourself as to what the Anglo-Indian oot enjoy the same privileges as the Euro-peans? Are we not used to good houses, notels, etc., etc., where no distinction as a colour is made? This distinction I am thankful to say is not made by the Govthanstru to so, estimate the control of being Anglo-Indians for we carry in our veins the blood that painted the heights of Alma, Inkermann and Balaclava red, and soddened with crimon gore Maiwand; broke down the walls of Delbh; and planted the Flag over the keep at Lucknow—where it still waves.

is the car was thrown out. It took two days to make the necessary repairs.

Then we started on our way once more, amid great difficulties. The rivers were in flood, and we also had to plough our way through the sand and the stones of a seventyfive-mile wide desert, where no veg whatever was to be found.

whatever was to be found.

And then at last we topped a hill and saw the longed for sea. It is gilltering beneath the setting sun. Not Xenophou's Greeks greeted it more heartily. We raised our arim, we abouted in our joy.

The Somali Campaign.

OPERATIONS TO BEGIN.

Organised action by the British forces against the Mullah will, according to present strangements, commence in June scooting; to the Aden correspondent of the "Standard." Colonel Gough will be in command, and it is understood that the operations will take the form of thing columns composed of mounted infastry and irregulars, which will endeavour to round un the nainty enemy.

try and irregulars, which will endeavour und up the einsive enemy, actically everything is now ready, ample e troops are on the spot and are being ied with white officers. e chief difficulty is, at it has always transport. British agents have been ug animals all along the Red Ses, but have ruled high rearisations.

es have ruled high, particularly for camels Emperor Menelik has, moreover, for the export of these animals from his stritory.
It is thought that Sir Reginald Wingate

It is thought that Sir Reginald Wingate, the Sirdar, who has arrived in the country from Cairo, will, from his experience of Sudan "drives," be able to give Colonel Gough some useful advice, while the latter has the invaluable training of the South African War behind him. Berbors is the base of the new operations, Derivera is the base of the new operations, which must, however, cover a very wide area. The British Government has, however, for some time been collecting information as to the situation, particularly along the north-western Somalitand border, and the authorities are very hopeful.
