TO CLUB KEVVA.

First Known Attempt by a Lady.

INTERESTING TRIP

(By J. O. Hamilton Ross.)

As far as I have been able to discover no record exists of any previous attempt by a lady-climber to scale Mount Kenya. The credit of being the first to do so must, therefore, be attributed to Mrs. Collette Ross, a veteran climber of South African mountains who made the attempt to reach the end of January 1911. On this occasion the party was composed of Mrs. Ross, Messrs. B. and H. Thompson, son of the Assistant Conservator of Forests, West Kenya, and the writer. A start was made from the West Kenya Forest Station on 30th January with our raft of 28 porters as guides, a forest guard, a cook, and an interpreter. We started that night at 10 miles per hour.

By this time we were beginning to notice the effect of an increasing altitude, as such things as early morning mists and rain were common. After leaving the bamboo we traversed the zone of giant heaths and bushes and tumbled off our camp and pitched our tents beneath some high rocks populated by rock rabbits of lysax. It is curious to note that this small beast is a natural relation in the animal world to the rhino and the elephant! The following morning brought us to the Heuberg Valley; at the head of which we made our base camp for porters. We ourselves went on higher and camping with them at 11,000 ft. above the sea level. The altitude of our next camp was marked by a heavy snow-drift, and a snow-capped mountain looking some 5,000 ft. as we went. We were permitted our first glimpse of the true peaks—a magnificent sight—when the rays of an afternoon sun gleamed on the snow-capped peaks of the mountain.

In spite of the snow and the intense cold which followed, the lake showed no signs of freezing. On the 1st February we made our first effort to achieve the summit. An early start was made, our horses participating in our camp from the Tyndall Glacier to the N.W. of Peak Balm. Our objective was the snow-capped peak at the head of the Tyndall Glacier and connecting the same with the snow-capped peak of the main mountain. Once over the ridge we started to the edge of the glacier as far as we could and then took to the snow. We soon found cutting steps in the ice, and our mountaineering hands, both slow and strong work and glacially-observed. When convenient work in the rocky wall on our left hand gave us the opportunity.

Progress now became easier for a while, until we found ourselves checked by the heavy snowfall of the previous day, which had left all available hand and footholds filled with ice. By now clouds were fast gathering round the Peak so if it well as our own impudent gear, and, after consultation, we descended again down through ice without seeing the summit.

By now clouds were fast gathering round the Peak so if it well as our own impudent gear, and, after consultation, we descended again down through ice without seeing the summit.

The descent, easy as first, soon became hazardous, owing to the quantity of loose snow on the ice. The nature of the rock at the side of the crater, as after reaching a point approximately at height of 10,000 ft. higher than this, the present. Before retracing our steps we found our way blocked by our own snow, the ice, etc. etc. etc. We found the rock formation all completely perpendicular, and it was our duty to ascend it with care. Note our new address-Khanbata Buildings Government Road, Nairobi.
