LIVINGSTONE'S LETTERS.

EXPLOSER'S EXPERIENCES IN AFRICA.

THE NATIVES.

When David Livingstone was in Africa in 1851, he wrote to his brother Charles, then in the United States. Some of these letters are published in the July "Atlantic Monthly," and the originals have been given to the American Board of Foreign Missions by Livingstone's nephew, now living at Denver. Here are some extracts from these letters:

"On the fourth day we came to the trail of a rhinoceros; and the being one of the animals which cannot live without water, we put the cattle on the track, and in the afternoon the perishing animals reached the river Mahaki."

After having dragged you through marshes, reeds, and rivers, I come back to the topic on which I feel most interested—the poor degraded fragments of humanity. Who will pity them if the Christian does not? They are quite black, their muscular system is largely developed, deep chested, their upper extremities are so powerful, they make their light canoe out through the water as our regular people do at home. They are not warlike, but trust to the defences their deep rivers afford.

They are much more ingenious as smiths, basket makers, potters, and canoe makers than any of the Southern tribes. The Banyasi or Baisi smelt large quantities of iron ore, and make very neat spears, needles, etc. I have the vanity to believe myself, for an untaught Jack of all trades, a pretty fair smith; but I could not hold a candle to them in spear-making, sheeps and ox bells, etc.

The country is densely populated, and the people, having generally enough food, may attend if they will to instruction. The Supreme Being is called Nyampi, or Bona. In referring to a person having died, they say 'he was lifted by Nyampi,' or 'by the Lord.' They make use of certain kinds of divination, and prayers, too.

I have visited a great many tribes which never have enjoyed any intercourse with missionaries either directly or indirectly, and never met a single individual unware of the existence of the Creator and Governor of all things. All understand the nature of sin—and the expressions made use of by all imply the belief in the existence of a future state of being. If any ever existed who had no knowledge of the existence of God, sin and futurity, it is remarkable that no instance should now remain. Intelligent old men with whom I have conversed ridicule the idea of their ever having been destitute of the knowledge of God, and quote their proverbs and fables handed down from time immemorial in proof.

My better half has enjoyed pretty good health in this long and wearisome trip. Thomas had the fever three times. We had another son born to us on the banks of the Zouga, and his mother in his calling him Charles. If it had been left to me I should have him called Zouga, so you need not thank me very fervently for the honour thrust upon you. Only be decently grateful that's all.

My poor wife and family excited by the "Trufalgar" on April 23, and I am now like the worthy sparrows on the housetop of whom we used to sing as companions. My heart is very sore. I shall never see my children again—they will grow out of my knowledge, and will all forget me. But I grudge Him nothing who died for me. My tears flow, but He knows that my heart grudges Him nothing of all that I have.

I feel for my children. The people in England spoil children by fawning and flattering. If their fathers happen to be popular, my name having been brought before our friends at home rather more prominently than it ought, I fear silly people will send my youngsters, make them take that stand on the top of my popularity, small though it be instead of resolving to work out a place and a name for themselves—by their own industry. Nearly all our popular ministers in England begot races of wild asses."

NATIVE EDUCATION

FROM THE COLONIST'S POINT OF VIEW.

WHAT IS BEING DONE.

(By "H.")

In this interesting article on Native Policy, Archdeacon Owen points out among other things the duty of the Colonist as regards the education of the native.

He also says three times that "there is no defence or security except in the highest intelligence and development of all."

Now, that sounds very splendid, but for the plain man it is a little difficult to tell exactly what it means! And one is inclined to set permission to add another line — "The highest intelligence and development can be based only on a reasonable discipline, and an upright character."

That addition would perhaps put us on all fours with the Archdeacon. One must not forget that an educated Bohemian may have the very highest development, and intelligence, and yet be as mad as a hatter!

The point is self-evident: one would think that Archdeacon Owen never once refers to discipline as a help to the formation of character. Education without discipline is useless and may be dangerous. The strict schoolmaster is looked up to by his boys as "a Head, but a just Head," while the sympathetic and spinless master is despised and taken advantage of by his class.

The same principle holds good in the Government of native tribes. Government is to govern, to lay down rules of life and conduct, and to see that those rules are obeyed. In these days of new-fangled doctrines of freedom, and self-determination we are too prone to forget old and tested truths which our forefathers and ourselves have experienced, and benefited by.

"Beware the evil, and avoid it."

child" is as true to-day as when it was first written thousands of years ago.

It is possible that the Archdeacon has this not "up his sleeve," but he will not blame a Colonist for pointing out that he has hidden it well!

No London Brains.

The suggestion that an Imperial Board of Education should sit in London to attend to matters of African Education will not, one is afraid, be largely backed in Kenya.

The Archdeacon is evidently mistrustful of the quality of the brains of the people on the spot. But Colonists in Africa are somewhat distrustful of the capacity of the people in London to gauge the true meaning of the kaleidoscopic movements which from time to time take place in Africa, or to see them in their proper perspective.

Neither have they forgotten that the plea of "better brains, and experts at Home" led to the Curragh fiasco. Nor that our stationery at Home, but for a handful of Colonists, would have handed over East Africa, with the future of the East African races, as a pawn to India.

Or, possibly, to put it frankly, they may think that Church dignitaries, in their anxiety to put the case of the native from their own point of view, might be inclined to overlook the claims of the Colonist to a hearing on the subject of native education.

And the Colonist at Home is hardly represented. Often indeed he is misrepresented. Yet in the education of the native he undoubtedly has his share, and should be allowed a hearing.

Many Teachers.

As in a good school, some masters teach Classics, and others higher Mathematics. But there is also the bungler, but not unexpected instructor, who fills a place of undoubted usefulness, and whose lessons carry on through all a man's after life, when possibly his Classical knowledge may have rusted with disuse.

The Colonist on his shamba fulfils some such function towards the native, and he should be commended both by Church and State for carrying out his duty in this respect well and truly.

Some such "knocking into shape" of the "accidental equal" must always precede the initiation into higher education of the untutored savage.

The Colonist, one is bold to believe, has no quarrel with the education of the native. But he does ask that such education may not be a purely literary education, with almost all discipline dispensed with by a too sympathetic Government, and the forming of the native African's character dependent on what he may well regard as a sloppiness of sentimentality.

Effect of Stakes.

In the Thuku case, which the Archdeacon refers to a little more firmly, a little earlier in the day, on the part of those in authority, and the regrettable incident would very likely never have occurred. One may be pardoned for thinking that the occurrence was entirely due to a slack discipline, and the usual reluctance of a literary authority to grasp the nettle to prevent its going. However, that may be, we must all agree with the Archdeacon's contention that we should "leave no stone unturned to set native education on a sound basis."

But there may be differences of opinion as to what constitutes a sound education.

Let him first mould the character of the native to a decent honesty, truthfulness, and obedience—as we must ourselves mould—and we shall all be gratified to him for setting the native to any height of education on such a sure foundation.

The Colonist—most vital—must smile as he reads the Archdeacon's last paragraph:

"Our task is to get as many natives as we can into the front rank of their fellow natives in agriculture, in craftsmanship, in commerce, and in culture, and especially in good sound characteristics such as honesty and trustworthiness."

And will he—may smile, for though he gets little credit for it, yet that is what he is doing, with all his might, every day of his life.

MOVING ON

THE CHANGING VIEW OF LIFE IN LONDON.

(From Our Own Correspondent) London, July 17.

One of the latest trends has been the great question of games in the public parks on Sunday. After violent opposition, the London County Council has now acceded to the proposal that games should be played between 2 and 7-30. While originally London only is affected, it is obvious that all the country districts will follow suit, and even such exclusive places as Eastbourne have now voted almost unanimously in favour of Sunday bands, Sunday bathing, and Sunday tennis. Of course, we have had plenty of demonstrations, though not quite so many as one might think from the ultra-Sabbatarian. The Scotch are, however, telling us, as they never lose any opportunity of doing so on a committee of the kind, that sections of this nature indicate that we are moving rapidly on the road to perdition. Perhaps these objections to which I have been alluding show the growing breadth of view after the war, and as any rate much of the legislation which is now being passed by Parliament bears very strong traces of the indulgence of the woman voter.

We are certainly very far removed from the time prior to the war when such abstract problems like the Welsh Disestablishment, were discussed ad nauseam. Nowadays, such a theme would be treated for mere novelty. Practically all the topics which interest people are those which directly affect their daily life, and it may be said that we do not quite realise the pace at which we are reconstituting the old order of things.

SOLUTIONS.

Problem No. 426.
(A. C. White).
The Thematic "Bisect." Int.
Key: Q-Q1.
H-B-Q7, R-Q8 mate.
This action resembles the closing up of a telegraph. The R captures the piece originally held by the Queen. A "Bisect" problem being one in which the Key consists in moving one piece so that another may take its place, or to make room for another piece to reach a desired square. The theme was the invention of F. Healey of Bristol, whence its name.
There are numerous variations which are not difficult to find when one has the key.

MID-GAME MATE FROM HASTY GAMES.

Position No. 6.
Blackburne v. Scott.
Black 27 pieces. White 10 pieces.
Write to play and mate in sixteen moves.

This position is probably unique in the annals of Chess. Mr. Blackburne, playing himself, announced mate in 16 moves, and this is believed to be the longest mate ever brought off by a blindfold player. It may be stated, to make the solution easier, that every move of White is a check.

To Correspondents: "F. H. Nizam." Pleased to welcome you back among the solvers.
J. H. Knowles, Mombasa: Delighted to get your solutions which will be acknowledged in due course.

THE LONDON INTERNATIONAL CHESS CONGRESS.

A FORECAST OF A CRITIQUE IN THE DAILY MAIL.
(With an Introduction by Messrs. Lenin and Trotsky)
The inception of a chess tournament is one of the many grievances causing for misery, laid, as is proposed, during the eleventh hour before the much-needed purification of the nation's affairs; held, also, almost in the very precincts of Parliament so soon to be in our control. When we hold the reins of Government, such to vicissitudes will, of course, be forbidden by Statute. Usage comes to pass, however, we must submit to the exploitation of this ignominious game, when as hopelessy persecuted with the symbols of wealth and superficial class distinctions; the "king" and "queen," who shamelessly typify the pernicious monarchical system, and who are exalted (in sport) beyond endurance of any right-thinking Brother. The "castle," too long looked on as the "Englishman's Home," is another example of this pandering to luxury. There are also the "bishops," those highly-paid and redundant representatives of the Church, who are, by present law, compelled to pursue an oblique path, consisting of caution and chicane. Their prescribed course is unerringly bad in principle, for neither can tread the path of the other, thus aggravating the lack of wisdom and unity of purpose. Then come the swaggering "knights," who are surrounded by much artificial and costly heraldry. Upon them is conferred the outrageous power of springing upon defenceless commoners with aerial and unbridled swiftness.
But it is of the "pawns" that we would specially speak. Relegated to the lowest base of the social scale, these down-trodden and vilified dramatic personae are in reality the bulwark of the game's solidarity. Yet what do we find? They are condemned to obscurity, to discharging of menial functions, and to unjust risk. It is true that a writer on this game (who lived over a century ago) referred to the "pawns" as the "life and soul of chess." But as space is so measured and language, and the greatest talents are exposed to constant indignity and risk of extermination. At the very outset of this desecrating business, the "pawns" are arrayed, according to an ancient custom, in front of, and as a screen for, a number of aloof grandees, who may actually witness what transpires while they themselves have not stirred from their padded armchairs, whence, lazily and inert, they witness this wicked carnage endured for their own aggrandizement!

Thus, for instance:—
1. P-Q4
2. P-P
A brutal and almost immediate sacrifice of splendid stuff, looked upon by some analysts as a pre-ventive method of safeguarding the interests of the rich, enounced in the "Londoner."
Unlike the "king" and "queen," and the before-mentioned officers, these poor but still unpaid soldiers cannot retreat when danger threatens. They are the first to feel the enemy's breath; it is advance of death with them. They have to make the breach for the others to pass through and reap the reward; and despite this, all the other ranks can turn and run at the first sight of the enemy.

Accepting of the rules, these gallant men are only allowed to march in a single, narrow path; on encountering hostile forces, which by superhuman effort they may overcome, they merely enter yet another section of the Treadmill, as stillifying as that in which they were first set. They cannot change it without risk, combat and bloodshed. After a series of strenuous battles, and privation unparelleled, the "pawn" is occasionally rewarded with the "chance" of a rule—his last chance for a rule which has been denied him; but as the rule is a mere chance, which enhanced emotions and expanded anxiety should bring him, since the game is frequently, and on that account, abandoned—as a gross injustice!

That incidents such as these should be envisaged, even in a parable, and as part of a national sport, and on a stage within a stone's throw of the House of Commons, is an outrage. No time will be lost when the much-needed purgative reorganization has been accomplished, to eradicate this deplorable cult.
So let the participants in this congress enjoy their last chance of indulgence in this word-past of aristocracy but thinly-disguised effigy. Its lease of life, attenuated and so long abused, is rapidly nearing its close. The sharp sword of Justice will fall in the near hereafter, as it did upon the head of Sir Isaac Newton, whose idle enjoyment of roil and line was so soon to be determined, not, as he did, anything to strengthen the thread of suspension, except to interpose the Arple of Discord between himself and the implacable vengeance of Gessler, immortalised in Goethe's drama, PHILIP H. WILLIAMS in "The Chess News Sheet."

OUR MIGHTY HUNTERS
AMERICANS AND THE THRILL OF AFRICA.
BUFFALO BILL WOODS.

Under the following headlines a New York paper describes an interview with "Harry E. Eustace," the "Buffalo Bill of Africa," "Mighty Hunter" tells of his life, "Harry E. Eustace, the 'Buffalo Bill of Africa,' now trails game with a camera."
"Took Ivory for a living."
"Recounts his narrow escapes during 27 years in the Wilds—On World Tour."
"Don't look for adventure young men stay away from the wilds!" This is the advice of Harry E. Eustace the "Buffalo Bill of Africa," who after twenty-seven years of hunting wild game in the African jungles, is finally taking a peaceful trip around the world with his wife and daughter. In the days when there were no Government restrictions on hunting and when trading his wares with the Arabs was both picturesque and productive Mr. Eustace made a business of hunting elephants for ivory. But, as he explained last week at the Hotel Astor, where he is stopping, times have changed. Modern inventions have resulted in the manufacture of artificial ivory and the Government has taken such steps in the preservation of wild animals in British East Africa, that hunting is now done there solely for sport.

Mr. Eustace is a type rare in these days. In appearance he is not unlike our own Buffalo Bill, with his flowing mustache and imperial although for this special trip his hair is shorn, as he explained that he did not want to be conspicuous. His rugged life has given him a permanent brown skin which stamps him as a man who lives in the open.

Eustace was a guide and scout to the British Army in that treacherous country but none of his experiences during those turbulent times are where equalled some of his hair-breadth escapes in his quest for game.

At the age of 17 Mr. Eustace found himself in this, then desolate part of Africa. His craving for adventure was so great that he ran away from his home in London, took a boat on which he worked his way to the country which was to satisfy his venturesome spirit, and to furnish him a permanent home. He hunted, traded with the natives and the occasional slave that stopped there and soon became the "big boss" of the surrounding country.

A Single Shot Man.

The natives showered him with titles, among them "Catase Maja" (one shot) and others meaning the fearless, the tireless and the superman. For more than a dozen years he shot on the average of 50 elephants a year, and in all this experience he never fired on an elephant without bringing it down, he said. He spends months at a time away from civilisation, with only his natives with him—once over a period of three years he saw only two men—but, in spite of the fascination of his life, Mr. Eustace declared that he likes civilisation and is enjoying every moment of this trip.

He declared, however, that he would return to Africa, as his wife and daughter as well as himself prefer that country to live in. Mrs. Eustace, whom he met and married while she was on a hunting trip with a party from England, is also an experienced hunter, and their

MUNICIPAL NOTES.

The following Councillors were present at the usual weekly meeting of the Nairobi Municipal Council held on Friday: Councillors Jozwi (in the chair), Green, Hillingworth, Numbala, Giles, Kaplan, Montenegro, Biddell and Ashworth. The Town Clerk (Mr. J. A. Watson), the Town Engineer (Mr. Maxwell) and the M.O.H. (Dr. Guinness) were also present.

The Town Clerk reported that the Secretary has asked if the Council had any objection to the former handing to the Indian Association a copy of the letter forwarded by the Council on the Indian question. There was considerable discussion on the point, but as it was felt that the letter contained little that had not appeared in the Press, it was agreed that the Secretary might send a copy. Councillor Ashworth voting against.

The Town Engineer submitted a report, accompanied by estimates of cost, on the proposed double-bucket sanitary system. A very lengthy debate ensued on the question, a number of Councillors considering that a capital cost of £10,550, and annual recurrent expenditure of £5,975 was far too heavy and that a water borne system should be installed in the commercial area. After a heated speech by the M.O.H. on the sanitary conditions of Nairobi, and a statement by the Town Engineer that a sewerage system was possible in the commercial area, and that a rough scheme could be prepared, it was decided that the report be referred to the Town Planning Committee and that the Town Engineer supply a rough scheme for the water borne system, the committee to report on both schemes.

Following a letter from the Secretary stating that the Municipality could not obtain exemption from customs duty, it was decided that a committee composed of Councillors Ashworth, Green and Giles confer with the representatives of Nairobi on the Legislative Council, it being understood that all Municipal imports should be limited to large schemes only.

After a somewhat lengthy and heated debate, it was agreed that on the recommendation of a special committee on 120 applications, that Messrs. (Fisher & Co.) be appointed buying agents in London for the Municipality.

A report was furnished by the Town Engineer on the question of taking over the town roads, including an estimate of the cost of tools and plant required. It was agreed that the clauses in the report be referred to the committee concerned to report to Council.

Permission was granted to the Service Motor Coy. to erect a petrol tank and pump on the side walk opposite their premises for the supplying of cars with petrol, subject to the tank being placed under ground and its position subject to the Town Engineer's approval.

An application was submitted by the Roman Catholic Church for permission to fence off a portion of its land on Race Course Road with barbed wire. The Town Engineer suggested that an ordinary wire fence be erected with a barbed wire fence on the inside. Permission was granted on the lines of the Town Engineer's suggestion.

In reply to a tabled question by Councillor Green the Town Clerk stated: "The foundations of the gdown on Harding Street corner have not yet been removed and the opportunity for the making up of the ground in one operation with the surfacing of the sanitary lanes has been lost. Mr. Jozwi has been asked back within a month, when the larger scheme of driving a wide road through his property to join Harding Street with Government Road is to be placed before him. Meantime it is probably not worth while incurring expense in making the corner up, in view of the prospect of a larger scheme going through. There is however no reason why the foundations should not be removed now."

Permission was granted to the T.W.C.A. to excavate for murrum for a tennis court from Crown land below the Lady Northey Home.

provided that the excavation was afterwards filled in to the satisfaction of the Town Engineer.

In answer to a request by Councillor Green, the Town Accountant supplied a schedule of capital expenditures included in the estimate for this year and the amount spent up to June 30. Councillor Green gave notice that he would raise a discussion on the schedule at the next meeting.

The following note by Town Clerk in verandah traders was submitted. Nine verandah traders who propose giving up their business have applied for three months' grace in which to dispose of their stock. The M.O.H. considers that one week would be generous. Instructions are desired. It was decided to allow one month for the traders to quit.

On the suggestion of Councillor Giles it was agreed that partitioned photographs be taken on the site of the native location in order to demonstrate the progress made with construction. Councillor Montenegro registered his vote against the proposition.

INTERESTING AFTERNOON ON THE FOLD COURSE.

THE RESULTS.

A large crowd of spectators gathered at the Nairobi Polo Ground on Saturday afternoon on the occasion of the Motor Gymkhana organized by the R.E.A.A.A. in aid of the E.A.S.P.C.A.

The arrangements on the ground for the various events were a distinct credit to the organizing committee, particularly the indefatigable Hon. Secretary, Mr. Gellon-Fenn, and credit is also due to the numerous helpers who willingly gave their services in various capacities.

The band of the 3rd K.A.R., under Bandmaster Corby, enlivened the proceedings with a pleasing selection of music.

HOME ATHLETICS

FROM COUNTY MEETINGS TO OLYMPIADS.

RECENT RECORDS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

London July 19. Some athletic authorities in England believe that one effective way to develop talent for future Olympic Games, is to encourage young men in the agricultural districts.

This because it is generally recognized that the best type of manhood is to be found in the country rather than in the towns.

One means to an end, is the promotion of County Championships and this certainly does seem a likely method.

Naturally, a young athlete will be more confident about tackling a county championship than when going for national honours.

Hill's Triple Win.

Perhaps the most noteworthy happening at the sports, was the goal running of W. A. Hill. He won the 100 yards championship in 10 1/5 secs. and also the handicap at that distance, doing 10 1/5 secs. from the 3/4 yard mark.

Hill will be England's main hope in the 100 metres race against the French team, as Edward (the present champion) is not qualified, he having been born outside England.

Hill secured his third victory as a member of the Southend Harriers team, which won the relay race, so he had a busy afternoon.

A double was also secured by J. Hutton who won the mile championship, and also a three-mile relay race open to all representing his club.

The half mile championship was won by G. Griffiths, and it is strange that the three athletes named qualified to compete for the Essex Championships.

England's Sprint Champion, who competed at a big sports meeting at Leeds on Saturday, was Harry Edward, the winner of three short distance championships recently.

He turned out in a special short distance 100 yds handicap but was beaten in his heat by J. Lomas of Manchester, who had four yards start.

This runner proved successful in the final with T. Matthewman of

BOXING HONOURS

WORLD'S LIGHTWEIGHT TITLE CHANGES HANDS.

New York, August 16.

Johnny Dundee knocked out Danny Frush in the ninth round, in a 15 round boxing contest.

In winning this fight Johnny Dundee also wins the World's Lightweight Championship, as the New York Boxing Commission has decided that the previous holder, Johnny Kilbane has forfeited the title owing to his failure to fight.

(There appears to be an error in the above cable as Johnny Kilbane was the Featherweight Champion, Benny Leonard being the Lightweight holder.)

London 2 yards start and Edward the scratch man filling the places. The time was 10 secs. and as a matter of a foot covered the three runners the champion was going well.

Another champion sprinter in F. H. Luddell the title holder in Scotland, was showing form on Saturday. He turned out in a 150 yards race at Edinburgh and won easily in 15 secs. time which ties with the native record created by the late A. R. Downer in 1895.
