The Square container

for tea was the best form of package for India till the round vacuumised tin came along. Then, we scrapped the former.

Reason—we wanted consumers to get "Red Label" tea in the most perfect condition possible.

Our reputation as packers of fine tea mattered more to us than anything else. Sales at once responded to the change.

P.S.—Our second quality packed in the "Green Label" round vacuumised tin is Ordinary good tea. It is not like the "Red Label" but cheaper.

Ask for Brooke Bond Tea

Be on your guard—off the tin of tea you get—don't let our "Red Label" tea be mistaken for the "Green Label" tea.

WE GUARANTEE CONTENTS OF EVERY TIN WE PACK.

INDIANS IN KENYA.

Race and Political Capabilities.

AN ENTRIATE PROBLEM.

The following letter appeared in the Times of May 9:

Sir,—In your issue of April 29 you published an important letter from the Bishop of Uganda, in which he discussed the effect of Indian immigration on the African inhabitants of East Africa. The sympathetic spirit towards all races which is characteristic of your paper will be recognised by every one who reads the considerations which he put forward so ably, so bravely, and so honestly; but he has only one aspect of the problem.

The argument of the Bishop directed to show that it is a mistake to think that the political control of the Indian inhabitants of East Africa should pass directly or indirectly into Indian hands. We have good reasons to believe that the responsibility of the Indian population as at once in discharging any duty which may be imposed upon them, and in rendering it possible for the Government to exercise its authority over the Indian population in the best interests of the African inhabitants of East Africa. An assurance to this effect is given by Mr. Anderson's letter to-day's issue. It may be presumed, therefore, that the representatives of India would be willing to assist in any safeguards which should be shown to be necessary to secure that there should be no loss directly or indirectly of political responsibility to Kenya from British to Indian hands.

But at the same time we feel strongly that the main principle on which the Bishop of Uganda rightly insists, that the interests of the native African population must be the paramount consideration (a principle which the Indian Delegation, in the statement from which you published extracts on April 26, also frankly recognised), renders it equally undesirable that the political control of Kenya in Uganda should be transferred directly or indirectly to the British authorities.

The Crucial Issue.

It seems to us that the crucial issue in the whole controversy is not brought out in the Bishop of Uganda's letter. It is whether democratic institutions or representative government in any form are really applicable to the conditions which now prevail in Kenya. To apply the franchise to Europeans and to the Indian population is to set a serious breach between India and the rest of the Empire, and to set the franchise to Europeans and Indians and not to the Indian population, would be a serious breach of the principle of equality of the races of the Empire. The Bishop of Uganda is probably right in maintaining that an immediate enfranchisement of the African population would be a dangerous experiment. The right of all races in Kenya is not ripe now, and will not be for a long time to come, for democracy or representative government is not a thing which can be introduced at once, and that the political control and responsibility must be retained for a definite period longer in the hands of the Imperial Government.

The present controversy is itself the strongest evidence for this, that three modestly distinct communities at different stages of civilization and with very different political ideas and traditions live side by side.

There is need of some impartial outside body to hold the scales, even when that body is not perfect.

If this principle—the fact that the interests of the native population are paramount and that the responsibility for the administration of the territory must remain in the hands of the Imperial Government—being accepted for these people—then the Government should be allowed to do as they please, and to do so in a way which is not only satisfactory to India, though still limited with great diffidence, would be in our judgment, be much to be desired.

The Native Question.

But together with a regard for the interests of the Imperial Government and for dealing with any anomalies in the way of the native inhabitants, whose interests are paramount, it is equally necessary to do what is possible to do to the Indians and will not wound their self-respect. We realize the difficulties involved. Before in the history of our Empire has there occurred a problem more baffling or fraught with more far-reaching issues. It will demand for its solution all the statesmanship, imagination, and good-will, and the breadth of sympathy which we possess.

Here the principle of justice and fair consideration for all classes of His Majesty's subjects are to be applied to the Indians and the problems of Kenya can be determined only by those on whom the immediate responsibility for decisions rests. We are convinced, however, that only a solution that is clearly unimpaired and dictated primarily by considerations of justice and humanity can prevent disastrous consequences to India and Great Britain.

LAND SETTLEMENT.

Why Advisory Committee was Formed.

ITS WORK AND ACTIVITIES.

The Kenya Land Settlement Advisory Committee has now been in existence for some months. Its objective was to advise the Government on the best method of disposing of the reserved lands.

In the case of such a body as the Advisory Committee, though its main object is advisory, it is necessary to induce European settlement, and it is necessary to induce European settlement, and it is necessary to induce European settlement.

"NO OUTSIDE ISSUES!"

Warning to Colonial Office from Midlands.

The Birmingham Post in a leading article fully discussing the problem of Kenya comes to these conclusions:
 "The 'white soldier's' point of view is by no means wholly selfish. Indeed, it is possible to agree that an influx of Indian labour would rapidly devalue the colony and so to the wealth of the white settlers. But the disadvantages are in the Kenya view, overwhelming. All residents—officials, administrators, soldiers, planters—agree that the influence of the Indians on the native race thoroughly fits the positive sense.

"This opinion, one may be inclined to hold, is not at all borne out by history. It would be difficult to find an example of the Asiatic influence on African natives that has not been bad. Further, it is in fact the presence of Indians which would hamper and indeed prevent the industrial and agricultural development of the natives. It is to be feared!

"Any Englishman who goes out to develop a new colony knows to-day that when the colony's natives are ripe for a definite action will take over government. But it is one thing, after long years, to hand over Kenya to native rule; it is quite another thing to hand it over, in a very short period of time, not to natives but to another alien race."
 "No stated the problem is not easy. That is it is not only the Government but the Indian race has complicated the situation. It has been used as a lever by the Indian race in India and as a sop by politicians who desire to see the Indian race in India now regards Kenya as a debt of our honesty in admitting to the Empire, or perhaps of our strength or weakness in resisting her claims."

"The Colonial Office, however, has not lost sight of the fact to look on Kenya as an anomalous case, but as a factor for peace in the Empire."

MONKEY BANDIT.
 The Bombay Chronicle contains the following quaint item of local news:
 "At 10 o'clock on Thursday morning last the first, best, most and undoubtedly leader of a small but very select and exclusive colony of monkeys who had been introduced and transpired over all the blood districts of Girgaon Road from Thakurpore to the foot of the Church for the last six months, was found dead at the foot of the post or Banian tree opposite the Police Station."
 "He was the Patriarch of the monkey colony, over whom he watched, ferociously and selfishly, till death."

"Just half an hour before he met his end, he had charged and roared four grown-up men who were trying to drive away one of his subjects, and was himself the victim of the monkey war."
 "Apparently that most useful and most deadly handiwork of modern science—the microscope—was the cause of the monkey's death, for the microscope was found on the monkey's nose, and was clearly shown."

"A crowd collected round the corpse and watched the removal of the monkey with the interest of the Municipal Corporation, which some hours later was electrified by some death of the Municipal Engineer."

FILMING THE SAHARA.
Adventures of Expedition from Nigeria.

ERRING ON IT SIDE.

News has come back from Capt. Angus Buchanan, who left May from London, in North Nigeria, to explore the great unexplored areas of the Sahara and to cross the great desert from west to east.

The expedition has started at another view stage from Acc to the mountains of Abinger, under conditions which say the least, are arduous.

Capt. Buchanan writes, on the eve of his departure:

"Retrospectively events, provided our arrival here. Two months ago, sailing from England I received my most momentous message—orders of the expedition had—"

French Government. Federal journey African territory. Will accept as responsibility. From Nahrour Moore Expedition, at least. Advise through Kano or Sokoto.

Some days later with heavy losses the expedition set out, and set the way to Faidon and Bahré to make the best out of a really arduous situation.

We had travelled 200 miles when a small river from Abinger met the caravan with a message that conveyed the astounding news that permission to see some north into African territory had been accorded they all.

Living on the Country.

At once we turned, and on a north east route harnessed, with all speed toward Bahré, in the result that we got here.

The way we have followed a few weeks and dried the most in the sun for several of our men.

Some provisions are very low owing to the long time the expedition has been laid back in Acc.

We have now no heard much of what is going on in the north, and we do not know how far we are from the sea.

In our long march, we have had plenty of rain, but we are down to the last few pounds. But we have things to eat, and we have no tobacco.

In Bags, But Well.

We are now a little back, much depleted in every way. The main speaker (Mr. T. A. Glover) is still with the expedition. We are now on the way in camp, but well off at the original objective, one Huanan by mistake, and four camels.

Like ourselves, the camp of the expedition has felt the wear and tear of prolonged travel under arduous conditions, and most of them have had to be discarded in the way of the long journey ahead, and replaced by more sturdy stock, secured in the region.

A brief review of our work in this region, a few of the three original objectives have been visited and explored, viz. Acc and the Oasis of Bahré. Abinger's Main base, which we saw some days ago, is still to be examined.

We have obtained 200 heads and 200 animals, many of them of great interest, and some, such as the lion, which are of great value.

With regard to geography, 50,000 feet of almost negative bias

To strengthen the Governor and Dr. Arthur.
The Editor of the E. A. Standard has received the following letter:
"We beg most respectfully to inform you that, we shall be glad if you will publish these few lines in your valuable weekly Standard. It is said that three Khaki Chiefs were able to England, but it is not true. It was only by agreement with the Khaki Chiefs that Sir R. T. Clayton and Dr. Arthur on our behalf had it necessary to do that, if a Native cable had been by the Secretary of State, I shall be better in our letter of date, May 1933 to H. E. the Acting Governor, Sir C. C. Hooley, through the D. C. Kymberly, requesting you to allow two of our delegation to England to strengthen the Governor and Dr. Arthur. Now we are anxious to hear from the Government."

CONFERENCE ON THE TAXES.
[Through Service's advice.]
London, June 6.
Reconsideration in London of the taxes which it is not unlikely will be found to give the Indians in trade, investment and legislation, as such of the difficulties on the part of the Indians is due to misapprehension. The whole matter will be thoroughly thrashed out at a conference between an Indian delegation from Tanganyika and the Home Government, and meanwhile it is believed the reply of the Secretary of State will be to the director's satisfaction.

London, June 6.
According to the correspondence of the Daily Telegraph, Curzon is using his influence in India to secure modified demands. Lord Curzon's influence, which does not rest on the minister of Tolstoy and Curzon, and which is an assurance that they will be withdrawn at the convenience of the Soviet. He also asks the Soviet to sign an undertaking to finance any bodies or institutions working for revolution in British Eastern possessions.

THE EAST AFRICAN STANDARD. SATURDAY, JUNE 9, 1923.

MISREPRESENTATION. Some papers, hand

to themselves, the African press of Kenya, they could have made light of the Indian position. It is admitted that the African press of Kenya policy very different from what they have applied hitherto, more especially in such matters as land tenure and the practice of native reserves - it will be seen from the foregoing that, so far as West Africa is concerned, the settlers are associated with all the area, and the Government of the United Kingdom, which, to say the least, is distinctly unfair. Have settlers not urged the Government during the last fifteen years, to train the African, industrially, and generally in place of employing the usual method of sending him to Europe to be trained? Have settlers not attached their Native to themselves? Who do the Natives go to when starving or sick, but to the settlers on their plantations? Do they know they are being abused? Do they know they can be helped by the settlers? He is, as a rule, afraid of being suspected of the benefactors' press, that he will do his best to hide his real intentions under the cloak, it may be, of some less worthy motive. Such an attitude of mind is not to be commended. It is to be commended to believe all over the world. Though, as we have said, most papers are willing enough to give the settlers credit for good work and otherwise and constantly give, yet there are some which take another point of view. The New Statesman is one of these. In a recent article, written by one of its contributors, the writer says: "We are far from saying that the Kenya Natives have to procure a name for the Whites; we have, indeed, called attention to them once in this column to the disadvantage of the European settlers." Now this is a very definite statement, which is apt to mislead the general public. Colonists must be here and there, and that the writer is not, and that they are probably little better than the unscrupulous, and shrewdly West Africa says, in a weekly newspaper. The British Government is in a very delicate position, which is apt to mislead the general public. Colonists must be here and there, and that the writer is not, and that they are probably little better than the unscrupulous, and shrewdly West Africa says, in a weekly newspaper.
