large blocks of land, and from that aspect has a definite duty to the farmers who are in difficulty, but where the size and nature of coffee, rubber and plantations differ, we think it would be a wise step on the part of the owners to make immediate provision for the future by setting aside as much land as they can spare for the purpose of equating because a small acreage well developed will be of much greater value to the farmer and to be easier to deal with by arrangement, indifferently situated. In the second place there seems no reason to doubt the wisdom of the recently repeated suggestion that the system of private recruitment and the private recruiting system must either be abolished or definitely and strictly controlled as soon as it can be replaced by an institution in which the farmer, the native, and the advocate have personal participation. Thirdly, we have more than one instance of the fact that a fixed district rate of wages is not only a cause of friction among the farmer, but it gives rise, as we know from actual cases, to juggling with tipicals, which may harm the district, although they do not indicate the actual wage which the native is receiving or the minor inducements in the form of kips, kips or food that are being furnished to retain his labour. From the point of view of the native the fixed rate is discouraging, because a labourer who receives a good service is unable, when he gets fresh employment, to obtain a progressive advance to which his labour is entitled. His length of service entitles him, so far as possible, every farmer ought to be allowed to make his own arrangements for labour so that the law of supply and demand may be allowed to assert itself. During his recent speech on the subject of labour in Uganda, His Excellency Sir Evelyn Baring laid very great stress on the need for the best conditions of living for the labourer with free food supplies on the farms, although it is not necessary or desirable that each individual farmer in Kenya should examine his labour conditions in this way. It is a general principle and ideal. We do not exclude the Government from any solution of the labour difficulty because we are not quite sure that Government action is proper appreciation of its duties. We are told very frequently that the influence of a number of districts is to be taken into account in the interests of the farmer in that the native is informed that payment of his tax to the State is the result of the receipt of his labour. His Excellency the Governor has given frequent assurances that native production would not be allowed to suffer by the Government's action in the rubber and tin industries and that the farmer need not fear the outcome of the Government policy. But we think that His Excellency has either omitted to inform his constituents of coming to work, have been misinterpreted. It is not possible in considering the present policy of Government to overlook the fact that Sir Robert Coryndon's policy is to increase the production of native production, and we can only hope that he has now decided that Kenya is to be a self-sufficiently a native for which the Government to what we believe to be an illegal act on the part of officials, and we quote the intention because we think it is likely to be on the official policy in the future. A well-known settler has suggested for the recruitment of native labour in Kenya that the official in charge of the district should allow the natives to leave for their employment, he cannot because we think it is likely to be only after the contracts if the farmer would accept the tax and the native would be allowed to leave the country in the same situation as he is to be secured by the native, but we think Government would not employ, and we suggest that in the light of the market, the policy requires more...

Rayney Swamp the "Red". EIGHT-NIL VICTORY.

The concluding football match of the 1924 season was played on the Railway ground on Saturday when the Railway F.C. winners of the Dobbin League, met a team of the Dublin League Club.

A description of the game is unnecessary as it simply consisted of the victorious team running the ball round the losers with goals occurring in fairly rapid succession. Hartline scored a brace and Bennett 1. The whole team played well and with perfect combination.

The teams were— "Railway"—Jolley, Walker and Metcalfe; O. Mallin, Clowes, The Ross-Hughes, Montague and Patterson; Ballantine, Roberts and West; Elliot, O'Neil, Trueman, Noble and Biddell. Referee—Mr. Campbell.

KENNEL NOTES
 Margaret O'Connell
 Miss O'Connell, dog, to whom all correspondence in connection with Kennel Notes should be addressed, should hold herself responsible for the accuracy of statements made by her as they are, in the main, based on information supplied by her correspondents.
 Those who know her more than I do enjoy dogs and their diseases, I must please forgive me writing these notes at the following one which circumstances caused to be left in my charge.
 On Oct. 2, Mr. Clark arrived here with his imported English Bull Terrier, having had his last here some two hours which is a long time for a dog.
 I had a dinner, I saw her, but Mr. Clark said she was only a dog of quarantine and poorly educated. I gave her a quarter of some light food which she ate. Mr. Clark stayed the night, and during the evening we noticed that she was making a deal, and that she was coming from her kennel. Her dog had been in the dog house, but that morning she had been in the kennel. I suggested taking her to the kennel, but she was not there. I was told she was in the kennel. On examination, I found she was a quarter of some light food which she ate. Mr. Clark stayed the night, and during the evening we noticed that she was making a deal, and that she was coming from her kennel. Her dog had been in the dog house, but that morning she had been in the kennel. I suggested taking her to the kennel, but she was not there. I was told she was in the kennel.

WEAR YOUR CLOTHES BEGINNINGLY.

There is a right way as well as a wrong way of wearing your clothes.

Some men carry their clothes as if they were an albatross burden. Others wear their clothes as their clothes become them. It is the greatest compliment of the other.

But when the most costly and the most graceful of man may look splendid in an unbecoming figure, on the most expensively made fabric, it is a waste of money. J. Reid, an old-fashioned tailor, says:

"It is not the most costly and the most expensively made fabric, it is the way in which it is worn that counts. It is the way in which it is worn that counts. It is the way in which it is worn that counts. It is the way in which it is worn that counts."

What's it to do with us?

Why do we, at every opportunity, urge you to brew your tea in the right way? Because there is nothing to choose between good tea and poor tea when brewed in any other way. The marked superiority of Brooke Bond tea in the vacuum tins is only revealed, by comparison, to those who use freshly boiling water and allow...

not less than three minutes for infusion. They get the full benefit of the flavour, aroma and refreshing properties of this most delicious of all teas. We get the full benefit of their natural colour to buy Brooke Bond always.

LABOUR DIFFICULTIES IN TANGANYIKA. No Respect for the Contract System.

There is no doubt that the native problem is one of the outstanding Administrative difficulties, and requires careful handling. This arises chiefly from the very different methods adopted in the late German Administration from those now current.

It is true that the Masters and Native Servants Ordinance provides some form of punishment for defaulters, but it is more theoretical than practical, since the master is not bound to employ the native, and the native is not bound to work for the master.

CHANGED SYSTEMS. There is no doubt that the native problem is one of the outstanding Administrative difficulties.

It is true that the Masters and Native Servants Ordinance provides some form of punishment for defaulters, but it is more theoretical than practical, since the master is not bound to employ the native, and the native is not bound to work for the master.

THE NATIVE VIEW. We have personally questioned old and responsible natives on their views as to the reasons for native discontent.

POLKY NOTES.

Artificial Incubation.

There is a great probability the greatest number of the poultry raisers who possess artificial incubators.

These incubators are very simple and the trouble can be traced to the parent stock.

When the parent stock is well selected, well fed and healthy, they will give good shaped and well sized chicks, there should be but little trouble from food in that case.

The death of the young may take place at any time during the incubation.

Excessive heat causes still, white additional eggs after the incubation has been started, sometimes has been started, sometimes of handling when turning or setting, are all factors causing death in the shell.

Apparatus climatic conditions have a good deal to answer for as during some seasons, food in the shell becomes so very crumbly, not with a breaker only but through-out a district.

ARTIFICIAL REARING.

There are several methods of rearing chickens: (a) rearing by feeding brooder; (b) rearing by brooder house; (c) rearing by another hen, and (d) rearing by another hen, and (e) rearing by another hen.

FOSTER MOTHERS.

There are many types of foster mothers on the market, and they vary very much in efficiency. It is a machine which requires careful handling to ensure success. In my experience on Foster Farming (published by the E. A. Standard) there is an illustration and description of a homemade brooder reared by means of lamp. I had very good success with it but found the brooder rather the most satisfactory.

PERFECT BROODER.

The Perfect Brooder I used with marked success. It was made and used in my own house and I have found it very easy on Poultry Farming.

It consists of a fairly large strong packing case, the lid being placed

LONDON INTERESTS AND SHIPPING COMBINE.

A Joint Body to meet Companies.

CHAIRMAN MEET.

London Committee to Speak for Local Shippers.

[FROM OUR OVER SEAS CORRESPONDENT.]
London, Sept. 25.
The reconstituted of the South and East African Steamship Conference has so far taken in the Dublin and German Lines, has given rise to rumours of increased freight and caused considerable apprehension to shippers to and from these markets.

The London Chamber of Commerce met a few days ago to consider the increased freight rates representative of the East African Committee of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce was present. The London Chamber of Commerce was present.

SUBSTANTIAL ADVANCES.

It was suggested that the Steamship Lines could not reasonably be expected to run their vessels at a loss, the advance which were substantial, might be expected in gradual stages.

The suggestion of the shipping conference was to meet with the Conference Lines.

The suggestion of the shipping conference was to meet with the Conference Lines. It was suggested that a Shipping Conference be formed to confer with the Conference Lines.
