A POPULAR ROYAL GIGGLE.

War Service and Social Work of the Duke.

THE BRIDE OF GLAMIS.

It must hardly be pointed out that in view of the fact that the Prince of Wales is a widower, the above title is somewhat of a misnomer. York is placed in a very important position, being, in fact, the most important, the greatest possible interest in everything that the Duke does, and, finally, he is very persistent and character.

The Duke of York—Prince Albert Frederick Arthur George—the second son of the King and Queen, was born on December 14, 1865.

He was intended for the navy and in January 1885 entered the Royal Naval Academy, leaving it unranked in H. M. S. Cambridge, which left for a six-month cruise in the West Indies.

In September 1894, he obtained his commission as a lieutenant. He also received orders to accept an appointment as a subaltern in the Indian Army, but the Duke took part in a campaign in the Indian Army, and was wounded in the action.

The Duke was transferred to the 1st Battalion of the Buffs, and was promoted to the rank of captain in October 1898. He was then transferred to the Independent Force of the Royal Air Force.

AT COLLEGE.

In October 1892 he was appointed to the post of subaltern in the Indian Army, and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in October 1898. He was then transferred to the Independent Force of the Royal Air Force.

On many occasions the Duke has visited the front lines, and has been wounded on several occasions. He has also been decorated with several orders and medals.

The Duke is a man of many talents, and is a very good officer. He has a great interest in the welfare of his subjects, and is always ready to help them in any way possible.

very much amused at the ordinary class of messages which passed to and from the Duke. On February 12 he continued his normal routine and visited the Grosvenor at Grosvenor Gardens.

On March 29, he was in London, and was seen at the Grosvenor at Grosvenor Gardens.

WORK AMONG BOYS.

In talking about the Duke's activities as President of the Institute of War Service, it is interesting to note that the Duke has been very active in the work of the Institute.

Crowded Public Life of Duke and Duchess.

KENYA HOLIDAY RELAXATION.

Directly after their honeymoon the royal pair started on public work. The following is a brief record of some of their joint activities.

July 19, 1923.—The Duke and Duchess paid a visit to Loughston and spent a couple of hours in the forest among a thousand poor children from the East end of London, most of whom were seeing the country for the first time through the good offices of the Fresh Air Fund. Their visit was quite informal and they caused a good deal of excitement by both trying their skill at a large coconut sly. The Duchess was awarded a coconut as a reward for her prowess, and this unusual relic was afterwards purchased for £2 and presented to the Museum of Shabshery House, the new year. This was the first royal visit to Tibury since the time of Queen Elizabeth. July 3, 1924. The Duke visited Warwick to open the Memorial Bazaar for the King Edward VII by Mr. Albert Telf. July 6, 1924. The Duke visited the Ancient Sports of the Homes for Working Boys in London, held in the grounds of the MacGrivage House, one of the homes—of Tulse Hill and acted as starter.

July 6, 1924. The Duke visited the Ancient Sports of the Homes for Working Boys in London, held in the grounds of the MacGrivage House, one of the homes—of Tulse Hill and acted as starter.

IN ULSTER.

In the third week of July the Duke and Duchess visited Ulster to to serve as sea-marks at the three principal meeting ports of the British Navy.

In design all three memorials are similar in character, being in the form of an obelisk rising some 100 ft. in height from a base which has four buttresses, each of which carried the figure of a lion couchant. The Southern memorial has been placed on the bank of the lake of Wight on the Swanage Bay channel, and it was fitting that the first vessel to lay her course by the memorial immediately after its dedication should have been a destroyer making her way into Portsmouth Harbour. The other two memorials have been erected at Chatham and Devonport.

This scheme and which is composed of elected representatives from all leading banks, Government offices, insurance and other offices, members and large shops. This Council has been presided to Her Royal Highness and they are working hard to make possible this building and for money personal advantage but in the cause of young womanhood. They have given and collected £2,000 towards the £20,000 which is their intended contribution towards the total sum of £200,000.

Their Royal Highnesses have both seen a great deal of London life, and it might be mentioned as East Africa has a sporting public that the Duke of York visited the Burroughs Hall to see the finish of the Newman v. Smith match.

Their Royal Highnesses, the Duke of York, K.G., and the Duchess of York, specially photographed for the "East African Standard" and the "African World," at White Lodge, Richmond Park, London, S.W., by Savana Studios, Oxford Street, London, W.

Loughston Headquarters of the Fresh Air Fund.

July 24 and 25, 1923.—The Duke and Duchess spent two days in Liverpool, and on every day were greeted with great enthusiasm. They and the foundation stone of the Nurses' Home at the Royal Infirmary, and the Duke inspected the Liverpool Boy Scouts and Scout Boys' Organizations. Accompanied by Lord and Lady Derby, the Duke and Duchess visited the various docks. They afterwards went to the Alnmore races.

September 17, 1923.—The Duke, together with Lord Strathmore, was presented with the Freedom of the Royal Burgh of Forfar, the neighboring town to Glamis Castle.

AT BELGRADE.

October 1923.—The Duke and Duchess visited Belgrade and were present at the christening of the infant son of the King and Queen of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, for the purpose of receiving and handing over cheques representing contributions to a fund of two million shillings which had been raised on behalf of the Hospitals of Manchester and Bedford.

April 2, 1924.—The Duke was the guest of the London Society of the East Angles at their 25th Anniversary held at the Great Central Hotel. He was born in East Anglia and spent most of his early childhood there.

April 8, 1924.—The Duke and Duchess visited the Kingston District Hospital where there were 450 patients. The Duchess opened a new electric lift.

April 9, 1924.—Their Royal Highnesses were both present at a concert held at the Victoria Warping Man's Club, New Gardens, in aid of the Club Fund. This was the third visit of the Duke.

June 27, 1924.—The Duke visited Tibury and at the St. James's Hospital opened the Ringhouse ward for Indian women. He also laid the foundation stone of the of Doctor of Laws at the University, lay the foundation stone of the new Arts Quarters, and to make a general tour of the continent. It was a wonderfully successful visit.

July 31, 1924.—The Duke was installed as Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex at a special Masonic Lodge held at the Central Hall, Westminster.

September 2, 1924.—The Duke and Duchess spent a very crowded 14 hours in Glasgow, where they took part in a number of ceremonies. It was the Duchess's first visit to Glasgow. They returned to London early in October. Their last engagement in Scotland was on October 9 when they visited Dundee, where the Duchess opened a three-days' bazaar in aid of the local Lord Robert's Memorial Workshop. The Duke is interested in all matters connected with ex-service men. He recently unveiled on the edge of Strathmore Common, the last of the three new war memorials erected by the Imperial War Graves Commission.

THE DUCHESS' INTERESTS.

Her Royal Highness, however, has her own special interests. She has identified herself very closely with a big scheme which is being organized in London just now in connection with the I.W.O.A. It is proposed to erect a large Central Club Building in the region of Oxford Circus which will offer a variety of services to girls and women, especially to the "cray" of business girls who are engaged in the City and the West End and to girls arriving from other countries.

A good Finance Committee of leading business men have decided that £200,000 will be needed for a similar building to those in the New Countries, if the building is to contain what is proposed. When it is realized that there are 800,000 girl workers in the Metropolitan such a building will not be considered unnecessary.

The Duchess is especially interested in the Girl's Council which has been formed in connection with only once before in the whole history of the game has one of the Royal houses attended a public billiards match.

This was in 1870, when King Edward as Prince of Wales was the very first championship ever played between the younger Edward and Cook at the St. James's Hall, Piccadilly. He never attended another match in public, but saw plenty of billiards in some of the country houses he stayed at, notably at Newmarket.

It is possibly correct that the tour of East Africa is largely being undertaken to test the ability of the Duchess to stand the effects of a tropical climate. In case it should be decided later to appoint the Duke to the post of Governor of some portion of the Empire lying within the Tropics. This is undoubtedly a position that will be offered to him later.

It seems to be anticipated that when the Duke and Duchess come back they will take up their residence in a section of Buckingham Palace.

The Women's Message to the Duchess

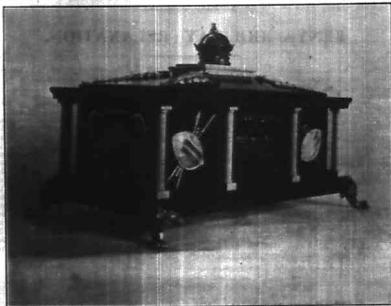

The Nairobi Municipal Casket.

To the Duchess of York.

(On Her Visit to Kenya and Uganda)

This is the women's greeting. Oh! Duchess young and fair!
Our thoughts throng out to meet you on the rich, exultant air.
Young and dainty and graceful
Gathering love as you go.
This is the woman's message. It is right that you should know.

For a little you'll pass among us,
dear and brilliant and far;
Will your eyes see beyond the homage due to a radiant star?
Behind the bust that we offer to grace your Royal way,
Will you sense the love that we send you out of our hearts to-day?

Casket in ebony, ivory, silver and gold, containing the Nairobi Municipal Address, presented to-day.

For yours is a gracious mission,
to gather the threads that bind,
By love, our hearts in exile to the Mother of our kind.

You fashion the roof of Empire
with strands that shall not fall;
We give our lives to the making—child-woman and Duchess, hail!

And when you have gone from among us; when the cheering
dies away;

When we've finished with fun and homage, when our wise men have had their say;

This shall be secret between us; so
woman we hold our trust;
On love is the Empire founded,
though all the rest be dust!

MARGARET PETERSON.

A REMORABLE CHRISTMAS. Kenya Colony will today be one of the most enjoyable Christmas festivals which has occurred in its history. Not only are we, at the moment, celebrating the Duke and Duchess of York but also the birthday of our King...

level is related to the underlying principle of goodwill and fellowship. As a people we are largely still clinging with affectionate regard to the influences and the traditions of the past. The time will come when the number of those who were born in Britain will be infinitesimal in comparison with the number of Kenya-born citizens. Even when the latest day arrives the loyalty and the unity will not be less emphatic although the quality of our festivals such as Christmas may be altered. Their Royal Highnesses, although not joining with us in Kenya, will find in Church this morning and throughout the day every evidence that Christmas is the glory of the strength of the patriotism and religion of a nation. Christmas is a day of thanksgiving and when we in Kenya are approaching the end of a year which has not been without its share of difficulties or its trials, we must regard the work of an important period in our history with due humility and gratitude.
