ALLIES AND MORE TROOPS IN NORWAY

Need For Greater Air Strength

Further Allied reinforcements have landed in Norway and some of them are moving up to the two important railway junctions which are held by the British.

Latest reports indicate that in these areas the German advance has been held.

Need for greatly increased air strength for the Allies in Norway is stressed in many of the leading British newspapers.

April 30.

It is unofficially reported that the Allied forces have been given orders on the Norwegian coast. The Swedish reports mention the landing points of which is in the north, Norway, 60 miles south-west of Narvik.

From the first landing place there is a good line to Dronning Maud, the positions held by the Allies in that area. From this area the line runs to the important railway junction at Glom, which is also in the hands of the Allies.

It is known that well equipped air forces are operating in the Swedish section.

The Norwegian military attaché at Stockholm is day after day of the reinforcements reaching Oslo.

It is reported that the British are to be ordered up to the front line, which has been greatly strengthened. These reinforcements.

British Submarines Missing

London, April 30. The Admiralty announced this afternoon that two British submarines were considered lost.

They were valued at 1,000 tons and were on a reconnaissance mission of 53 and 40 respectively.

Of the 57 British submarines in the home waters of the British Empire have been lost by the Germans.

NAZIS ATTACK 2 HOSPITAL SHIPS

Five Killed On Board One

German air attacks on two Norwegian hospital ships north of Bergen are reported and five people on board, including one doctor, were killed.

There could be no doubt as to the identity of the ships. One was painted with large red crosses and the other with large red crosses and the word 'HOSPITAL'.

One of the doctors on board the first hospital ship attacked said there were no casualties aboard that vessel.

Five doctors on board the second hospital ship attacked said there were 30 people on board and the ship had been on its course about an hour when five German bombers came towards it and dropped bombs, fortunately without any success.

The German aircraft, said, could not help seeing the large red crosses all over the ship, but they returned and dropped more bombs. The vessel kept her course. The planes came back a third time and, on this occasion, scored a hit. Every bit of glass about was smashed by the explosion.

Two men on either side of the ship were killed outright and six were wounded. The ship halted course and ran aground. After she had been on shore we all had to take cover behind rocks as the planes returned to the attack with machine guns, but no one on board was killed.

A wounded German officer on board the hospital ship had himself certified to the British Legation by telegram that the ship was only being used for Red Cross purposes. The doctor added: "It is no doubt that there is no difference between the German and wounded Norwegian."

Underlined by his experience, the doctor is determined to go to the city in the form of a Red Cross agent.

SPAIN AND THE WAR

Official German Bias

Spain is following the European line with closest interest. All the newspapers which give a fair account of the news from both belligerents are eagerly read.

All commentators in the Press are at one in favouring Germany. The Madrid correspondent writes the German newspapers and that Germany stepped in to help.

Spain, conscious of her position as an important link in the chain of communications in Europe. The Arriba Falangist newspaper published on the 27th a photograph of a British aircraft carrier which a German communication plane has sunk north-west of the Azores.

Less Information For Germany

London, April 29. The policy of publicising the details of the losses caused by the enemy to the British is being confined to a statement every day in German newspapers.

Germany is reported to be making a study of the information which it has received from the enemy. It is thought that the German High Command is making a study of the information which it has received from the enemy.

GERMANY SHORT OF EVERYTHING!

The fact that the Allied blockade is causing shortage of most commodities in Germany is reported in a report published today by the United States Department of Commerce.

Germany is reported to be making a study of the information which it has received from the enemy. It is thought that the German High Command is making a study of the information which it has received from the enemy.

German Advances in Norway Stemmed

FIERCE RESISTANCE BY ALLIES

The most surprising feature of the Norwegian campaign this week has been the steady mounting German claims.

For instance, on Tuesday afternoon the Germans claimed that their troops operating from Oslo had joined hands with the Trondheim garrison south of Stora. A few hours later the announcement was made that German troops had occupied the important junction at Dombas.

The latest British official account, however, asserts that Dombas is still in the hands of the Allies and that the German attempts to advance up the two main valleys have been repulsed.

The attempt of the Germans to advance up the Oslo valley by the two main valleys towards Trondheim has made no progress during the last two days. For the moment fighting appears to be concentrated in the Gudbrands Valley, which is being advanced by the German forces.

"We" says the British official communique issued at midnight last night. "Our troops, fighting in a place of the valley strongly held by the Allies, which the German claimants insist is in the hands of two parties of their troops, have met and have occupied a place on the railway, which was being used by the Germans to transport their troops from Dombas. The British troops, who had been covering the town and have since then Sunday. This was learned yesterday from the War Office communique which told how German attacking in the Gudbrands Valley had been repulsed with losses and the destruction of their tanks.

Sunday's fighting, it is believed, took place near Ota where the British forces of Dombas and when they were British troops made slight withdrawal to the positions they now hold.

According to a Paris message last night the main British positions are about 15 miles south of Dombas.

German claims
The German claim to have taken Dombas was made by the Swedish German news agency, which said yesterday that detachments of Ger-

More Fine Work by R.A.F. in Norway

The Air Ministry announced yesterday that extensive attacks were launched last night by strong forces of Royal Air Force bombers on the German air bases at Stavanger, Fornebu and other air bases in the area of the front.

Reconnaissance reports show that heavy damage was done to the air bases and large quantities of bombs were scattered there.

Further attacks were carried out this morning. (Reuter).

British Press Communique
The British newspapers today devote their main leading articles to the situation in Norway. Most of them are in agreement that the difficulties the Allies are up against, and that the German claims that fact that much of the report news is based on German sources and that the position so far as the Allies are concerned is better than German makes out.

The Times emphasizes that the Germans are no better placed for the present than they were when the misadventure of their troops in the Gudbrands valley was reported. It says that the Allies are in a position to put forward one of their plans to the Germans.

The Daily Telegraph says that the Allies have achieved a victory of decisive importance in the Gudbrands valley. It says that the German troops are in a position to put forward one of their plans to the Germans.

The New York Times says that the Allies have achieved a victory of decisive importance in the Gudbrands valley. It says that the German troops are in a position to put forward one of their plans to the Germans.

Precarious Measures by British Government

EFFECT OF ITALY'S HOSTILE ATTITUDE

AS A PRECAUTIONARY MEASURE, IN VIEW OF ITALY'S HOSTILE ATTITUDE, ALL BRITISH SHIPPING HAS BEEN DIVERTED FROM THE MEDITERRANEAN.

This announcement was made by the British Government yesterday and British ships normally using the Mediterranean route to East Africa, India and the Far East will now proceed via the Cape.

The British Government has ordered that all British ships normally passing through the Mediterranean should be diverted to the Cape route.

It is stated that this step has been taken in order to meet anti-British speeches by Italians in high positions and to the effect that the Italian Press.

Writing in the Giornale d'Italia today, Signor Gayda (Minister of Foreign Affairs) has said that the British Government has been slow to recognize the rights of Italy and the Italian press generally today accuses the Allies of trying to extend the war.

Meanwhile, reports from Yugoslavia say that there have been no Italian ships in the Adriatic since the Italian fleet was ordered to leave the Adriatic.

The Prime Minister of Yugoslavia said that he had received a message from the Italian Government that it was prepared to accept the terms of the Geneva Convention.

GERMAN PLANE FALLS IN AN ENGLISH TOWN

People Killed And Houses Destroyed

A German mine-laying plane crashed in flames on a town in Essex on Tuesday night, destroyed houses and caused death and injuries to a number of people.

All five occupants of the enemy machine lost their lives.

The German aircraft approached the Essex coast from the south and plunged its way through a street of houses, completely destroying two and damaging 50 others.

The death of three civilians are reported so far, besides the five Germans who lost their lives when the machine crashed.

It now appears that nearly 100 people were injured and half of them have been taken to hospital. It is possible that other bodies will be found when the wreckage has been cleared.

Mr. Chamberlain To Speak Today

Mr. Chamberlain today told the House of Commons this afternoon that he hoped to make a statement on the position in Norway tomorrow.

Several houses were completely destroyed.

All the five occupants of the German plane were killed.

The German plane circled over the town for at least half an hour, apparently trying to find a place to land. It dropped flares as it lost height and finally crashed on a mine field.

Days of Doubt

The British Government's action in diverting British shipping from the Mediterranean to the Cape Route is the measure of the serious situation in Italy, created deliberately by the controlled Press in Italy and fomented by responsible Italian spokesmen. It means that the opinion of London the situation is one of potential danger which warrants precautionary measures necessary only when a crisis is impending. The news of the next few days will be awaited not so much with the anxiety of fear as with a dejected interest. The Italian Government has been warned that if it desires to be treated as a neutral it must act as one and abstain from any step which might draw a distinction between "neutrality" and "non-belligerence," and seeks to imply that the distinction warrants a partisan departure from the strict responsibilities of a neutral, such as reading of the situation in an uncompromisingly acceptable to the Allies.

There is always the possibility that Mussolini has made all these moves to persuade the Germans that he will give up with them in their struggle. His own characteristic telegram to Herr Hitler on the occasion of the Father's birthday could be interpreted. But such a reading of the position would be to blind ourselves to the fact that all point-in at least one direction.

An Unexpected Appearance

These Stories Made News

While marine experts were discussing the drift of wreckage from the liner Merker, which ran aground on a coral reef, the liner Albatross mysteriously disappeared near Darwin Harbour.

It was stated that the damage to the ship was slight, and that the hull was not leaking.

The Merker, a Burns Phillip steamer, grounded in Charles Strait, near Darwin. Her arrival was totally unexpected.

In spite of the opinion expressed in authoritative marine circles that it would be dangerous to try to refloat the vessel without a tug station, it is believed that she got off the reef under her own power. The tug summoned to the scene was delayed at Townsville, and it is unlikely that any other tug reached the grounded ship.

It is thought that the early release was due to the expert advice of the Darwin-Wellington representative (Captain John W. Smith), who is believed to be underwritten west out to the Merker.

FAMOUS AEROPLANE LIES NEGLECTED

The late Sir Charles Kingsford Smith's famous aeroplane, the Southern Cross, which has been piloted many noteworthy ocean air journeys, is being neglected in a hangar at Mascot, Sydney.

Although the historic machine was purchased by the Commonwealth Government 2 1/2 years ago, and is now the property of the nation, it is stored in a small hut, neglected and in need of repair. It is thought that the early release was due to the expert advice of the Darwin-Wellington representative (Captain John W. Smith), who is believed to be underwritten west out to the Merker.

Australian Constitution Criticised

Mr. Justice Ewart, of the High Court, has been criticised in the Australian Constitution. He said that, unlike America, the constitution, drafted 46 years ago, contained no provision of civil rights. It was true that it attempted to safeguard trial by jury, but the guarantee was so drafted that the Commonwealth Parliament could readily evade it by making it possible for a legislature to try serious criminal offences. Freedom of interstate trade was also guaranteed, but the Commonwealth avoided this guarantee as a result of an erroneous legal decision, which took 16 years to correct.

Under the constitution of America, said Mr. Justice Ewart, there were guarantees of freedom of the press, freedom of speech, peaceful assembly, security against unreasonable searches and seizures, as well as other fundamental common law or civil rights. But the framers in Australia would have the wisdom of including these things in the Australian constitution.

INCOME TAX IN ZANZIBAR

A nearer approximation to the truth.

His Highness had explained this point by saying that Zanzibar, being a small island, has a small population and would not be required to pay the lower Zanzibar rate taxation. It would be necessary to reduce the tax at the expense of Kenya. On the other hand, Kenya would not be deriving income from Zanzibar, and Zanzibar revenues would be lost.

There is a suggestion that this tax has been imposed by the Government of Zanzibar, and the Government of Kenya, and the Secretary of State, and is being applied by the Government of Kenya.

It is also true, I believe, that the Secretary of State is seeking the approval of His Majesty's Government and of Parliament for the recently announced policy of reduced financial assistance to Colonial development, which was made earlier by the knowledge that the Government of Kenya had since then accepted an increased burden of taxation.

BRITISH SHIPS DIVERTED FROM MEDITERRANEAN

In Turkey

In Istanbul the British and French Ambassadors to Turkey were notified by President Inönü that the British and French ships were to be diverted from the Mediterranean to the Black Sea.

It is believed that the German fleet had completely broken the attempt of the Western Powers to bring Germany to her knees by calling their mighty fleet.

This remarkable instance of countering children before they are hatched will be regarded as a serious possibility in the Italian press and it has been said to persuade the Italian people that they are not to be taken in by Germany. The Italian people are not to be taken in by Germany. The Italian people are not to be taken in by Germany.

Australia's Petrol Imports

A survey of the possibilities of obtaining Australia's petrol requirements from sterling countries which has been disappointed by the Federal authorities in recent weeks is understood.

The British Government, it is understood, has advised the Commonwealth Government to secure a great proportion of the Netherlands-Indies, its closest supplier, but the latter supply now available could be used on the shortest routes.

The survey was part of a study of the Federal Government to the Netherlands Indies and other oil-producing countries which has been transferred to the Netherlands Indies and other oil-producing countries which has been transferred to the Netherlands Indies and other oil-producing countries.

THE FIRST READING

In moving the first reading of the Income Tax Bill, the Chief Secretary explained that the rates of taxation would be reduced in the Bill were considerably more than those of the previous year.

GERMANS SUFFER REVERSE Balance Of Norway Advantage On Allied Side Retreat From A Railway Junction

Further Burdens For British Taxpayer

Effect Of Tension In Mediterranean

NORWEGIANS CAPTURE A TOWN

GERMAN LOSSES IN NORWAY ENORMOUS: HER FLEET CRIPPLED

DENMARK UNDER THE NAZIS

Officials in Rome are silent about the British Government's measures for the protection of shipping in the Mediterranean, but there have been two further indications of Mediterranean tension.

Two things emerge from the latest news from Norway—the German claims to starting victories have outrun the facts; and the British forces may be discovering that their rapid advances have seriously endangered more than one point communications with their base at Oslo.

GERMAN LOSSES IN NORWAY ENORMOUS: HER FLEET CRIPPLED Allied Battle Fleet Now In Mediterranean

The life of Denmark since the German invasion is described in a leading Amsterdam newspaper by the Copenhagen correspondent. The picture, by no means complete as part has been cut by the German censors.

The Egyptian Government has ordered extra defence precautions throughout the country and in London war risk insurance rates for shipping on Mediterranean and Black Sea voyages have advanced sharply.

This would explain reports, which seem to be well founded, of the withdrawal of the German tank from the important position of Boros in the Gudbrands Valley.

The Allies have given up the idea of taking Trondheim from the south and already their forces have been withdrawn from Alesund without loss—under the very noses of German planes.

Salts Tax The Chamberlain did not pay home Salts Tax would have been paid, but said that the tax would have to be assessed on the basis of the value of the goods.

A Cairo message says that the arrival of British shipping from the Mediterranean does not apply to shipping within the Mediterranean.

Latest reports from Norway say that the German forces left at Rovum, north of the Gudbrands Valley, have been driven to the east, they are actually retreating.

These were the main points in Mr. Chamberlain's review of the position which he gave to the House of Commons yesterday afternoon.

Denmark Under the Nazis Throughout the country the whole stock in the country and throwing 8000 Danes in the motor saloon out of work.

Nazi Ways Of Making War

German methods of warfare were mentioned in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon when the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Butler, was asked if the Germans were bombing and machine-gunning villages in Norway where there were no military objectives.

There has evidently been more than one instance of this kind of thing. Mr. Butler said that the German forces were bombing and machine-gunning villages in Norway where there were no military objectives.

There would appear to be no question that the German forces in Norway are making rapid advances. The German forces in Norway are making rapid advances.

Refreshers Course For Greek Officers Today the Greek Government is reported to have written to the United States asking for 100 planes for refresher course.

BY ELECTIONS A TEST OF PUBLIC OPINION

Commenting on the fact that a candidate who advocated a vigorous and determined prosecution of the war in Italy would never have the support of the public, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Butler, said that the Government recognized the Danish Minister in London as a semi-official representative of the Danish Government.

There are Swedish reports that the German command in Norway and his staff have fled from the north and left only junior officers in command.

Mr. Chamberlain's review of the position which he gave to the House of Commons yesterday afternoon was reported to have been well received.

FIRST NORWEGIAN R.A.F. PICTURE

The above is the first picture of the Royal Air Force in action over Norway to reach Kenya. The photograph was taken by aircraft of the Coastal Command of the R.A.F. from 9,000 feet at Kristiansand on April 10th, showing clearly the fate of a 10,000 ton German Merchant vessel (which is seen in the left background with smoke streaming away to the right). Whilst unloading troops and stores off Bregda Island, this vessel was set on fire as a result of air bombardment. In the foreground is the town Kristiansand, and the Island of Qadero adjacent. Near the Island can be seen a large transport at anchor.

THE WAR and ITALY PART II. ITALY'S FINANCIAL AND ECONOMIC DILEMMA

WHEN the war came in spite of Mussolini's effort to maintain peace, the first feeling in Italy was one of relief—relief that the country had been able to stay out. Then the Italians began to look for business opportunities, hoping that as neutrals they could sell goods and services to the belligerents and also take away export markets which the country at war could no longer supply.

there is a very heavy burden on the shoulders of a small group of young women. They are called "bush girls," and they are now on their way to the front. They are the root of your trouble and your blood is the finest of all tonics for making your blood healthy and vigorous again. ITALY

THURSDAY, MAY 1, 1942.
The British Government's action in diverting British shipping from the Mediterranean to the Cape route is the measure of the seriousness of the situation created deliberately by the controlled Press in Italy and fomented by responsible Italian agencies. It means that in the opinion of London the situation is one of potential danger which warrants precautionary measures necessary only when a crisis is impending. The danger of the next few days will be awaited not so much with the anxiety of fear as with a deepening interest. The Italian Government has been warned that if it desires to be treated as a neutral it must abstain from drawing a distinction between "neutrality" and "non-belligerence," and needs to imply that the distinction warrants a partisan departure from the strict responsibilities of a neutral. Such a reading of the situation cannot much longer be acceptable to the Allies.

Unless the Italian propaganda machine is merely being played for laughs and more propaganda than usual in the hope of raising "nuisance value" so highly that the French effort to discuss outstanding questions will be forced upon the attention of the Allies, the only other complexion which can be placed on the campaign of belittling and irritating the Allies by the Italian press is about to make an irrevocable decision. There have been significant rumours in Italy of a new concentration of troops, both German and Italian, directed against Yugoslavia and the selection of an agent pro-Germany, Signor Alfieri, as the new Ambassador to Berlin does not point to peaceful intentions in Rome. Signor Alfieri, the Italian Press Department, did much to create in Italy an atmosphere of antagonism to the Democracy and thought Mussolini is at full liberty to make such diplomatic selections as he chooses, he could hardly have made a worse one than that of Alfieri, who is persuading the Allies of his continuing to stay on the fence. The Pope has been reported to the Vatican, where on the occasion of the entry of Italy into the war on the side of anti-Catholicism, he has been reported to have said that Mussolini may hope that the Berlin case will be strongly voiced by Signor Alfieri that the Pope will be more benevolent neutral, from the point of view of the Axis Powers than he is now.

Public opinion in Italy is not to meet exceptional conditions. There are also many problems presented by the civil population which have in eight months become less obvious and apparently less urgent. These problems are upon us again. This crisis, like so many before, may blow over. The bluff, if it is a bluff, may be called by the civil population. The Fascist Government in Italy to play the part of a follower. The neutral crisis will be followed by the entry of Italy into the war on the side of anti-Catholicism. We should be completely satisfied that we have done everything that we could and should in the fighting against the Axis. The Italian ships in the Mediterranean will react upon us as it is. It means a longer sea route, more delay in the vital field of shipping provision. It places us on the track and at a disadvantage. It is a military matter of great importance enough to warrant special and privileged attention. We may rely on our own resources, but we are not in a position to rely on our own resources. So let us be courageous and face the possibilities which may have to face it in reality.

THE ONLY THING WHICH MAY BE A CRIMINAL. Such a choice is not to be regarded with the respect of the Italian people but like the Germans they were so completely mesmerized by the propaganda of the Axis that they are now so excited by militaristic fanaticism that they scarcely know the truth, though they may think they are doing so.

We said the other day that East Africa, and particularly Kenya, should be organizing its support for man dominated by that we face an emergency. The facts of today give point to that contention. We should not be flinching for solutions of legal difficulties about man-power, or regarding as "insupportable" the demands of the Axis. We want to put their savings at the disposal of the Empire, or basting our war production.

The War for the North

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE FIGHTING

Both Sides Seeking For Strategic Positions

Latest British and Norwegian official reports disposed of rumours that heavy British losses have been suffered in action in Norway.

The position is that strong German forces are moving along the easiest lines of communication from Oslo north and west of Bergen and Trondheim at points where they are being increasingly threatened by British and Norwegian forces.

April 26. The Commander in Chief of the Norwegian Army, General Ottar Ruge, issued a striking order to his troops today. The last for his troops today. He said: "I have called upon the Norwegians to stand fast and fight on for victory. 'Allied troops are now in North Norway and Southern Norway and are coming here.'"

K. W. E. O.'S FIRST ANNUAL MEETING

May I make an appeal to the women of Kenya? It is not a question of co-operation only, and we want to be in a position to use, in co-operation with the Government, the talent and energy of Kenya women in the most effective manner possible. We want to be in a position to use, in co-operation with the Government and Military authorities, when they call on us.

These words were spoken by Lady Moore last Friday afternoon at the first annual general meeting of the Kenya Women's Organisation, K.W.E.O., and held at the Memorial Hall.

The meeting, which was well attended, was opened by the president, Mrs. Ernest Walker, who presided over the proceedings. The Constitution, which was passed at the meeting, was explained by Lady Moore.

It is proposed by the President, Lady Moore, that the work of the K.W.E.O. should be to help in the development of the country in offering help to those who are in need of it.

WORK OF THE AIR MISSION IN KEENYA

Sir R. Brooke Popham Reviews the Outlook

In the opinion of Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke Popham, Britain will retain the lead in technical matters for as long as war is concerned. Britain has got that lead now and, unlike the last war, though Germany may catch up from time to time she will not gain technical superiority.

Last week Sir Robert visited Nakuru where he studied the preparations for the creation of the Services Flying Training School. He explains in the following article how Kenya is linked with these schools not only in Africa but throughout the Empire.

"The Royal Air Force have been very busy in Kenya. They have been recruiting pilots from the country. In the past few weeks of the war, and now since the outbreak of the war, the Royal Air Force have been recruiting pilots from the country.
