The Coryndon Memorial Museum

Kenya has set its stall out in the new National History Museum in Nairobi. The building, which has long stood empty, was used for the exhibition of the understanding in East Africa and to the wider world.

Italian ambition

It is undoubtedly the Italian effort in reconstruction in North Africa that has been the most significant factor in the recent development of the continent. Italy has been able to establish a strong position in the continent, and this has been the result of its policy of reconstruction.

Wafd policy

It is not unlikely that the Wafd Party will be the dominant force in the Egyptian government. The party has a long history of leadership in the country, and its policy of reconstruction and development is widely supported.

New negotiations

The Government has already begun negotiations with the British Government regarding the future of the Sudan. The negotiations are expected to be completed in the near future.

The Kenya Budget: Production Increase

The Government has announced a budget for the year 1958-59. The budget is expected to result in a significant increase in production and a reduction in the deficit.

Overseas Touring Co. (EA) Ltd.

The company has announced a tour to the United States and Canada. The tour is expected to be a successful one, and it is hoped that it will result in increased trade between the two countries.

Bible thought

The Bible is a source of inspiration and guidance for many people. It contains the teachings of Jesus Christ and the words of the prophets. It is a book that has stood the test of time and continues to be relevant today.

Motor-cycles hits lion

A motor-cyclist has been killed in an accident with a lion. The accident occurred in a zoo, and the lion was the cause of the tragedy. The incident has raised concerns about the safety of motor-cyclists in such areas.

WHY EGYPT WANTS TO STAND ALONE

King Farouk has demanded the total and immediate evacuation of British troops and the end of the condominium of the Sudan. Here a correspondent, who has spent many years in Egypt, analyses the motives underlying this demand for complete independence.

Party clamour

In most instances, however, this demand for independence is the result of a desire for national unity and a desire to stand alone. The Egyptian people have a long history of independence, and they are determined to maintain it.

WHY EGYPT WANTS TO STAND ALONE

King Farouk has demanded the total and immediate evacuation of British troops and the end of the condominium of the Sudan. Here a correspondent, who has spent many years in Egypt, analyzes the motives underlying this demand for complete independence.

The Egyptian people have long been desirous of the complete evacuation of British troops and the end of the condominium of the Sudan. Here a correspondent, who has spent many years in Egypt, analyzes the motives underlying this demand for complete independence.

It is not unlikely, however, that Egypt will be able to secure the complete evacuation of British troops and the end of the condominium of the Sudan. Here a correspondent, who has spent many years in Egypt, analyzes the motives underlying this demand for complete independence.

AUSTIN
You can depend on it

Five up with luggage or two up with 100 lb of goods; whichever is needed, the versatile Austin A40 'Countryman' provides in every detail. This vehicle will appeal especially to country drivers and rural tradesmen. Two close-mounted horizontal front seats, and a single-point rear seat give accommodation for five if required while still allowing a generous rear load space. Horizontal panels open up the rear of the vehicle and for maximum load-carrying the rear seat folds down with the floor. For performance and lasting service the 'Countryman' has a robust frame, independent front suspension and a powerful four-cylinder 45 h.p. engine. Price in Nairobi £785. Smooth riding, with plenty of power to spare for safe overtaking and rapid hill climbing are two of the many reasons why the Austin A40 Devon Saloon has won world-wide popularity. Modern design, with independent front suspension and a 49 h.p. overhead valve engine to ensure sparkling performance. The A40 can travel nearly 50 miles per gallon of fuel at a speed of 30 m.p.h. and has a maximum speed of over 70 m.p.h. Thus, this car is equally at home navigating quietly and quietly through city traffic, or shortening the long country journey. Price in Nairobi £850.

AFRICA'S WATER PROBLEMS

Urgent need for co-operative action

The water problem in Africa is a complex one, involving not only the physical availability of water but also the economic and social factors that affect its distribution and use. The continent's vast and varied geographical features, from the arid deserts of the north to the lush rainforests of the south, present a wide range of water challenges. In many areas, the population is concentrated in river valleys and coastal strips, leaving large tracts of land with little or no access to water. This situation is exacerbated by the fact that much of the land is under cultivation, which requires significant irrigation. The need for co-operative action is therefore urgent, as individual efforts are often insufficient to address the continent-wide water crisis.

This situation is exacerbated by the fact that much of the land is under cultivation, which requires significant irrigation. The need for co-operative action is therefore urgent, as individual efforts are often insufficient to address the continent-wide water crisis.

Pooling information

It has been recommended that the various African governments should pool their information on water resources. This would allow for a more comprehensive understanding of the continent's water situation and facilitate the development of co-ordinated policies. The sharing of data on water availability, usage, and infrastructure would be particularly beneficial. This approach would also help to identify areas where water is scarce and where investment in infrastructure is most needed. The pooling of information is seen as a key step towards solving Africa's water problems.

RECORD YEAR FOR P.W.D.

Water resources cause for worry

The Public Works Department spent a little over £6 million last year, a record. Sir Godfrey Rhodes, Special Commissioner for Water, has reported that the work was a success. However, the report also highlights the need for continued investment in water infrastructure. The increasing demand for water, particularly in the agricultural sector, is a cause for concern. The report calls for a sustained effort to improve water supply and distribution across the continent.

Anxiety

Among the public, there is a growing anxiety about the future of water supply in Africa. The rapid population growth and the increasing demand for water for agriculture and industry are putting pressure on the existing infrastructure. Many areas are experiencing water shortages, particularly during the dry seasons. This has led to a widespread concern about the ability of the continent to meet its water needs in the future. The need for more effective water management and investment in infrastructure is therefore a top priority.

Position

The position of water resources in Africa is a complex one, involving a wide range of factors. The physical availability of water varies greatly across the continent, with some areas being water-rich and others being arid. The economic and social factors that affect water distribution and use are also highly variable. The need for co-operative action and investment in infrastructure is therefore a key challenge for the continent. The various African governments are working together to address these challenges, but more progress is needed to ensure a sustainable water supply for the future.

SCIENTISTS MEET TODAY IN NAIROBI

Chairman describes aims of conference

The inaugural meeting of the newly formed Scientific Committee for the study of the water resources of the East African region is held in Nairobi today. The Chairman, Dr. J. H. G. Smith, described the aims of the conference as being to bring together scientists from the various countries in the region to discuss the water problem and to co-ordinate their efforts in the study of the water resources of the region. The conference is expected to last for several days.

'Unique'

The water problem in Africa is a unique one, involving not only the physical availability of water but also the economic and social factors that affect its distribution and use. The continent's vast and varied geographical features, from the arid deserts of the north to the lush rainforests of the south, present a wide range of water challenges. In many areas, the population is concentrated in river valleys and coastal strips, leaving large tracts of land with little or no access to water. Research goes on in the icy stillnesses

THREE English scientists and their American colleagues have begun a four-thousand-mile journey across the icy deserts of the Swiss Alps, to probe the mystery of cosmic rays.

At an international conference held in London last month, the scientists agreed to conduct their investigations at the same time with the cosmists and the reacting traces of the rays will be recorded.

The party, which includes Professor R. V. Jones, of the University of Cambridge, and Dr. J. G. Wilson, of the University of Chicago, will be accompanied by a team of mountaineers and a team of scientists.

PRECEDENCE OF SUEZ CANAL ZONE

Foreign Secretary's statement

Britain HAS NO INTENTION OF PUTTING THE MIDDLE EAST

Statement in the House of Commons on Anglo-Egyptian relations by Foreign Secretary Mr. Ernest Bevin, said that the Government was in no way prepared to withdraw from the Canal Zone in time of peace. The British Government, he stressed, added, had no intention of taking any steps which would lead to the withdrawal of British troops from any measures which would leave the Middle East in a state of anarchy.

Foreign Minister said that the principle of common interests in the Middle East was accepted by all the Western powers. He said that the Middle East was a region of great strategic importance and that the Middle East was a region of great strategic importance.

RENTE CONTROL TO CONTINUE

Amendments will be introduced later

PLANS TO REDUCE CRIME IN KENYA

Corrective training likely SHORT-TERM SENTENCES ECONOMICALLY UNSOUND

Corrective training centres in Nairobi at which criminals could be instructed in a trade and in the principles of citizenship, is a definite possibility according to an announcement by Mr. E. O'Connor, Member for Law and Order in the Committee of Supply at the Legislative Council, when put into operation would replace the present system of short sentences which are economically unsound and not conducive to reduction of crime.

The estimate expenditure in the Police Department would be increased from K25,000 for 1961 to K30,000 for 1962. Much of this additional would be used to start and improve training. Especially was it pointed out by the C.I.D. from which officers would be transferred to the Police Department.

Police response
He would suggest that the Police Department should be reorganised to meet the needs of the country. Mr. O'Connor has dealt with this in his speech.

Mr. O'Connor has dealt with this in his speech. He has also mentioned the need for more police officers.

34 first round F.A. Cup matches today

APART from a London "Derby" in which Arsenal at Highbury should have the better of the interest today will centre upon the 34 first round of the F.A. Cup competition.

Atkinson at Brack, but after that it is a case of the "Derby" which Arsenal will win. The "Derby" is the only match in which the two teams are of the same class. Arsenal are the only team in the F.A. Cup who have won the Cup three times. They were beaten in the final of the 1947-48 season by Manchester City.

British golfers on way to S. Africa

THE British professional golfers who are to tour South Africa during the coming four months left Southampton for the S. S. Athina Clark yesterday. They are Joan Paton (Glenelg), Harry Bradshaw (Portsmouth), Ken Bostwick (Coventry Hill) and Fred Daly (Balmoral). Before leaving, the foursome for the party, Fred Daly said: "Tell my friend Bobby Locke we hope to return back some South African money, but he has taken plenty from us. Paton is Scottish champion, Bradshaw is Ryder Cup player and the Irishman, Daly and Bradshaw were respectively Open champion in 1948 and runner-up in 1949 (after a South Loch)."

The Importance of Durability

DURABILITY — or the power to resist deterioration — is the characteristic by which all finished work can be recognized and is ultimately judged. Maximum durability in paint-work depends on two essentials: suitable materials and correct application.

As material represents less than one-fourth of the total cost of paint-work production, any saving attempted from the use of qualities other than the best seldom justifies the risk of unsatisfactory results which cheaper materials involve, and is a false economy. Materials of established performance and reputation are indispensable to the production of reliable work-materials like
