Campaign starts with Sir Godfrey's 'toughest' speech

By the Daily Chronicle

THE Federal Party campaign in the General Election which will take place in the Central African Federation on December 10th will start on Friday with Sir Godfrey Huggins' speech which has been described as the "toughest and best" this campaign has made during the past two years.

providing for almost complete self-government in a defined territory. These were, however, certain reservations in connection with the transfer of power. The United Nations Commission on Africa has also advised that there would be no necessity for them to be removed.

Northern Rhodesia set out a statement in which it said that Sir Godfrey had shown the hospitality of a non-political body to make a party political speech, and that he had "disgraced his office" by delivering it in the presence of the Governor of Northern Rhodesia who, the Commission representative, ought not to have done so.

Stolen herd recovered after Masai raid

ALL the 200 cattle stolen by Masai from the Masai of Mr. F.A. Vinson's farm in the Sanya Corridor on Monday have been recovered.

Police and tracker parties, including Mr. Viner, had been pursuing the raiders, and most of the latter were abandoned during Monday night. The rest were recovered later, and the raiders themselves made good their escape.

Ritual murder arrests

Northern Rhodesia police headquarters announced on Monday that three tribesmen had been arrested in connection with the ritual murder of two African women on the island of Barotseland.

The report says that the African population of Leanza has risen from 17,000 in 1945 to about 18,000 today.

Older population, 24,000 men known to be "civilized" because about 25,000 were living in the area.

The report continues that the "tribe" and "relatives" of the women were arrested with "black" tribes which have sprung up in the area.

The report continues that the women were killed in the area of Leanza, and that the tribesmen were arrested in connection with the murder.

KENYA GOLF: The championships of the past years

'Standard' Golf Correspondent.
The Kenya open amateur golf championships—successive to the East African championships, whose dominion was inaugurated in 1924 through travelling difficulties—was inaugurated in its present form in 1952. It is thus in its silver jubilee year although, due to the hiatus caused by the war, the championship is being played for only the 20th time on the Nakuru course last week.

The first time held on the Nakuru course was in 1932 when the title was won by the late H. H. L. L. from the Nakuru Golf Club (then known as the Nakuru Golf Club) by a margin of 12 strokes over K. L. L. from the Nakuru Golf Club. The next year the title was won by H. H. L. L. from the Nakuru Golf Club by a margin of 12 strokes over K. L. L. from the Nakuru Golf Club. # Boy weavers raise funds for school in Zanzibar

LEISURE-TIME TASK
"Zanzibar" Coast News.
SOME months ago, the Zanzibar Boys' Secondary School fund was at a low ebb. The Headmaster, Mr. C. G. de Silva, decided that it should be replenished by the boys' own efforts, and started a co-operative weaving society.

The problem of raising the necessary capital was solved by a generous grant from the Zanzibar Charitable Trust. With this money, some 200 yards of material were bought. The boys in Zanzibar knew anything about handloom weaving, and they were taught by Mr. de Silva. They taught themselves to weave, and they were able to produce a variety of articles, including shawls, scarves, and shirtings. They started with easy articles, such as shawls, and proceeded to more complicated articles, such as shirtings.

The work is entirely voluntary, and the boys work for about two or three hours each week. Most members give up about two or three hours each week. Many complain because they are unable to attend school due to the lack of electric lighting.

Training in patience
The boys themselves estimate a quantity of material. Mr. de Silva handles all the accounts of the society for them. It is not possible to sell as much as all the boys would like to sell. They are not allowed to sell more than 100 yards of material each week. The boys are trained in patience, and they are able to wait for their material to be sold.

Tanga delays taking higher status
"Tanga" Coast News.
TANGA Township is to postpone assumption of municipal status for six months, the Town Council has decided.

A letter from the Government, pointing out that there would be no expenditure on the project until the Budget and Finance Committee had approved the project, was the reason for the delay. The Council is now waiting for the Government to approve the project.

A KENYA WOMAN LOOKS AT LATIN-AMERICA

'Life in the Argentine' is the subject of the second article written by MARJORIE SIMMONS, describing her experiences when she went to Britain on long leave by the roundabout way of Latin-America.

When I'm "away from it all" I make sure I am away from depression, pain, headaches, nervousness and all the rest of it. No "feeling queer" when I'm on holiday—time's too precious. And that's why I always have my "ASPRO" on hand.

ANDREWS for me—

Sparkling, effervescent Andrew's liberates the tissues, cleanses and helps to raise the temperature, then enters the system, clearing up the liver. Finally, it causes the liver to secrete bile, which cleanses the system. Think a course of Andrew's Liver Salt.

BUENOS AIRES is packed with hotels. Most of them charge exorbitant prices, but there are just a few in any country don't!

If one selects places especially designed for the sea-resort, one must expect to be bored. There are, however, hotels of a beautiful nature, such as the Richmond which was recommended to me, and which I found very satisfactory. It is situated on Calle Florida, a wide, brightly lit street which serves as a boulevard and runs in the centre of the city. It has a huge roofed swimming bath and tennis courts, and a large restaurant. I felt a little like Queen Elizabeth when I stepped into a first-class bedroom by the name of the Argentine. The bed and I never felt a hair out of place. The room was spacious and bright, and the food was excellent. The room of the interior is fitted with a radio, and a television set, rather bizarre colour scheme.

The food

Food, of course, was not included in the morning. It was possible in the morning to get a very good breakfast more customarily coffee and milk. I had a very good moon room of flaky pastry, and a very good breakfast. The Argentine is a very good breakfast. The Argentine is a very good breakfast. The Argentine is a very good breakfast.

Journey Through Nigeria

WITH WYNFORD VAUGHAN THOMAS

... to the north...
... as I saw it from
... from the
... and dense vegeta-
... I could
... landscape changing
... undergrowth
... as wide as the
... as the villages
... to be left open,
... and appeared on the
... that I was entering
... different from
... the Western Pro-
... in the
... Mahmud himself
... of the
... and I drove in
... that I had come
... a day.

From the lands of the Ibo and the Yoruba, Wynford Vaughan Thomas flew to his 'third Nigeria'—the North—a land of dramatic contrasts where, as he explains in his fourth and final article, the Hausa people, less anxious for early self-government than the South, are firm in their Muslim traditions and culture and determined to preserve them.

Shock of delight

The town of Jos and above all its surroundings have a shock of delight after some months of gloom. The air is crisp at night, for it is over 4,000 feet high, and I even feel a twinge of cold when I go to bed. It is one of the great white settlements in Nigeria, and that alone makes it different from the other Middle Belt policy.

There is little doubt in my mind that the North has felt for some time about the reaction of the people. The politicians I met, the others I talked to, the very way in which they spoke, and the fact that they did not feel as comfortable as I did about the future of the country, all pointed to the fact that the North was not ready to accept a form of federal government that would lead to a step towards a united Nigeria.

Call to prayer

There is another, probably an even more powerful, reason why the North has felt for some time about the future of the country. It is the fact that the North has a strong sense of its own identity, and that it is determined to preserve it. This is a sense of identity that is based on a long and proud history, and it is a sense of identity that is shared by all the people of the North.

Called by a horseman, cyclists pour out of Kano in a wild ride to celebrate a marriage. One of the spectacles the author brought back to his Nigerian tour.

The Sultan Shugu of Sokoto and his entourage at the first general election in the North.

prohibitive door on loans from some natural finance sources, and driven by the Fulani herds. They cannot get their own patients, stand, but the millet in regional roads.

Groundnuts

Underneath the millet was the bumper, but maybe more so. If the north were to grow it, and not on the palm, the great staple of the North, it would be a great asset. It would be equipped with more and better tools, and what happens to the crop would be a matter of local concern. But the fact is that the North is not ready to accept a form of federal government that would lead to a step towards a united Nigeria.

Romantic city

With this picture in my mind I came, at last, to the city of Kano. I did not arrive in the city until the sun was high in the sky, and I had a long drive to the city. The city is a beautiful one, and it is a city that is full of life and energy.

Here is a place right out of a novel. The streets are wide and straight, and the buildings are tall and grand. The city is a beautiful one, and it is a city that is full of life and energy.

YOU PULL THE TRIGGER...

... but to be sure of your shot two more be sure of your trigger and two more of their quality and their performance. You can be sure, too, of their consistency and suitability for their different purposes.

FAST AFRICA COM.
The EAST AFRICA Command Ordnance Depot is situated about a dozen miles north-west of Nairobi on the Thika Road. Originally designed to supply only three battalions, the Depot now has to cater for five times that number and its 60 acres have become a study in compact organisation.

The Commanding Officer, Major Hildyard, has about 250 European, Asians and Africans under him whose monthly wages, exclusive of Officers, amounts to £14,000. Headquarters are located near the Central Office which deals with all demands, orders, receipts and discrepancies. The brain of the place, however, is the Provost and Ammunition Officer, who is a more or less of every man's best friend. He is also the man who is in charge of the depot's security, which is high, as all stores are up to the mark of all things in a well-organised and up-to-date manner.

Stocktaking
CHECKS and cross-checks have been instituted and are carried out with painstaking thoroughness so that discrepancies at stocktaking are minimised. Stocktaking would be a heart-breaking business had it not been specialised. At it three stocktaking teams require two years, to check right through. And then there are the different articles, which are small, as all things are up to the mark of all things in a well-organised and up-to-date manner.

Seven groups
The Depot is divided into seven groups. The first of these is the Vehicle Park, which is responsible for receiving new vehicles from Britain and the carrying out of the minor repairs and painting which are necessary after the journey up the East African coast. It is also responsible for the maintenance of all the B.O.M.s which are used by the depot. When interrupted by commented on the number of different machines on which he works — everything from the 'Scotchman' to the 'Governer'. With some sense of pride he mentioned that they had turned out 117 vehicles.

The second group is concerned solely with motor transport spares, of which IRAP types are held. There are two sections, bulk and detail. The former holds stocks of 100,000 spares, while the latter is concerned with the thousands of small parts which keep the vehicles going. Group Three stocks all the clothing and personal equipment for the depot's 1,000 men and staff. The depot is also responsible for the maintenance of all the depot's machinery and tools. The depot is also responsible for the maintenance of all the depot's machinery and tools. The depot is also responsible for the maintenance of all the depot's machinery and tools.

Operational
GROUPS five and six can be said to hold most of the operational stores. All arms up to the size of machine-guns, and the wireless and technical equipment required by a fighting force can be found here. It is also responsible for the maintenance of all the depot's machinery and tools.

ADDRESSING saloons
A and roof gardens for passengers will be included in new £4,750,000 Airport to transform London Airport into the world's finest air terminal by 1955. Helicopters, operating from central points in London, may be the first to be replaced by transporting passengers by road. Three buses, which will house the administration, reception and control offices are being built in the centre of the site. The Ministry of Civil Aviation supervision. They will contain the most modern facilities for travellers and staff and will replace the present drab collection of converted wartime buildings on the site of the aerodrome. Other amenities will include a Post and Cable office, airline counters and bars, and buffet — all in one building.

Star pattern
Opening directly out of the lounge, there will be a roof garden 'living base' where passengers' friends can see the departure of their plane. Six runways capable of taking the largest transport passenger services will fan the buildings in a star pattern.

Do you know the aerodrome has of surface traffic a half-orthodox tunnel, but there will be a roof garden 'living base' where passengers' friends can see the departure of their plane. Six runways capable of taking the largest transport passenger services will fan the buildings in a star pattern. The Minister of Civil Aviation, Mr. T. Lawson, when announcing the plan. We are convinced that, without a really radical development along these lines, we cannot meet our position in civil aviation, and in Britain in particular. In 1953, 100,000 passengers are expected to be handled through London Airport.

To this famous cricket coach:

The day's work is the day's pleasure

6th VISIT OF MR. W. R. WATKINS

It is not everyone who finds a congenial avocation. One of those fortunate people who have done so is Mr. W. R. Watkins, Chief Coach to the M.C.C. who is at present making his sixth consecutive out-of-season coaching tour in East Africa. For to Mr. Watkins the coach is an art-of-cricket is also a pleasure. He is not a man who is not in the least interested in the game, but he would undoubtedly be one of those who would play while they work.

Things to criticise

Very naturally, Mr. Watkins sees considerable improvement in the standard level of cricket in his first visit to East Africa in 1948. He was not so much as a whole as he was in 1947. He was not so much as a whole as he was in 1947. He was not so much as a whole as he was in 1947.

MR. W. R. WATKINS, Chief Coach to the M.C.C.

But he also finds things to criticise. He would like a few more batsmen to be able to play in the field. He would like a few more batsmen to be able to play in the field. He would like a few more batsmen to be able to play in the field.

Modest appraisal

With this excellent modest appraisal of the state of the game in East Africa, Mr. Watkins is sure to be a most encouraging visitor to the M.C.C. He is sure to be a most encouraging visitor to the M.C.C. He is sure to be a most encouraging visitor to the M.C.C.

More encouraging

Tanga-Pemba fixtures inaugurated

Nandi sides entertained at Londiani

There was quite a sports-social weekend at Londiani on the occasion of the visit by Nandi sportsmen who played a series of golf, tennis and cricket matches against their hosts.

The social highlight was Saturday afternoon when the Londiani Club "laid on" the party throughout the weekend. It was well up to the high standards of quality and variety for which the club is famous. The Nandi sportsmen were in fine fettle, the nine-hole tennis and cricket matches well and the cricket ground well.

OTLAND SHOULD HAVE WON

New attack was superb

A GOAL two minutes from time by their plant centre-forward John Charles, of Leeds United, enabled Scotland to draw with England in a disappointing match at Hampden Park, Glasgow, on Wednesday. Wales, who were beaten by England, had a very promising performance, but their attack was frustrated by one of the two leading forwards, who carried off the championship trophy in the final stage of the World Cup event at the end of the month.

The inside trio of Bobbie Johnston, George Reilly and Alan Brown were the mid-men in Scotland's splendid attack, which, though first-rate, was not so convincing as that of the Johnnie Macenzie showed up there were all changes in the line which, earlier in the match, were three goals to one in a match at Whitehall.

Wales' best player

Scotland's other new centre-half Willie Telfer, kept a centre-forward position and was the best player.

Wales on the whole were decidedly disappointing in the half-back line.

Alan Brown opened the scoring for Scotland after 21 minutes, but a second goal by Johnston added a second lead before the interval, beating Howells with a low drive.

Wales were revived by Charles Howells after 45 minutes, but Scotland's attack was frustrated by one of the two leading forwards, who carried off the championship trophy in the final stage of the World Cup event at the end of the month.

Second-half rally

More points was added to the tourists' tally by the switching line to inside-right, which were usually not to have scored on more occasions.

There was far more threat and confusion in the Scottish attack in the attack was scored by Johnston after 21 minutes, but a second goal by Johnston added a second lead before the interval, beating Howells with a low drive.

due to inefficient farming, which was probably due to overcropping and insufficient use of fertilizers. We had the yields to be raised to the maize average, that from the industry which could be obtained on present crop-rotation. The increase in income and of badly needed additional funds and staff were essential to the Government.

Soil conservation
Mr. Troop's target was to raise the average yield of 50 per cent. Mr. Troop considered, would be the most important factor in the soil conservation measures. At present, under tillage in the Highlands and only about 1,500 acres under soil conservation measures. Major Cavendish-Bentick said, most of the Government's attention should be on the establishment of a plan for the better and more intensive utilization of land presently cropped. More intensive farming
This expenditure would bring the country, not only directly in increased productivity, but also indirectly, by increasing the standard of living. A PLAN to establish an Eventide Home at Mombasa, providing accommodation for 20 elderly people, is being launched by the Salvation Army. Salvation Army officials say "Many applicants are being turned away because of lack of accommodation." The need for provision for the aged is increasing in Kenya. It is stated, the fact that the Government presents a real problem to the Government is obvious. Mrs. J. Colverson has already provided a building for the 13,000 people.

Rediscovering the Charm of Lace

By Victoria Chappelle

WOMEN have rediscovered the charm of lace, although it is used at present mainly for evening and cocktail dresses.

Designers find it difficult, because of the delicate nature of the fabric, to use lace in day-dresses, with the exception of robe-things and similar elegant outdoor wear. However, accessories popular, perhaps because of their convenience, are made of lace. They can be worn at any time of day, and they are not, in fact, anything of the kind.

Parisian's famous lace city is continuing to produce new ideas and new designs. The most feminine of materials, lace is the most distinctive of them, and it is still used in the most of its strength in the coat, especially in the jacket. It compares well with any similar fine fabric.

Adaptable to every change

MOREOVER, it adapts itself easily to every change in fashion. It is used in the most of its strength in the coat, especially in the jacket. It compares well with any similar fine fabric.

Miles of Work BY JAMES READ

A JUDGE of the English High Court recently ruled that a wife "working" a home is "not working" for the purposes of her husband's income tax. This ruling is significant because it means that a wife who works at home is not considered to be working for the purposes of her husband's income tax.

in the course of a day, but this one says he knows which work is the most tiring. No more housework for him now, his wife has done it.

Any man who denies a woman doesn't work and cover an amazing amount of ground in her everyday job had better look for some other profession. The job of a housewife is a useful one, and it is one that is often overlooked.

A GOLF professional discovered that he walked a little over 110 miles in the course of going about his business during the past year. This is a significant amount of walking, and it shows that a housewife's work is often overlooked.

THIS statistic shows an extraordinary thing about a housewife's daily life. She covers about five miles during her ordinary day at the kitchen—and a much more at busy times than that. This is a significant amount of walking, and it shows that a housewife's work is often overlooked.

ONE husband who has taken his wife's job for only a short time, says that he has learned a great deal about the housewife's work. He has learned that it is a very tiring job, and it is one that is often overlooked.

ONE professional can compare with the housewife's duties in the most of its strength in the coat, especially in the jacket. It compares well with any similar fine fabric.

WEDDINGS

PRICE — LANG
The wedding took place on October 30 at St. John's Church, Nairobi, of Mr. John Price, second son of Mrs. D. E. Price, of Lambspring, and Miss Mollie Lang, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lang, of Nairobi.

The bride entered the church (which had been beautifully decorated by her sister, Miss Joan Lang, and the bridesmaids wearing a champagne-coloured dress) at 11.30. Her short veil was held in place by delphiniums and white roses and carried a matching bouquet.

The bride was given away by her father, and Mr. Frank Bennett was the best man. The service at which the Rev. D. Stott officiated, Mr. McCulloch played the organ.
After the reception, which was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Cople at Burrville, the newly married couple left for their honeymoon. The bride wore a floor-to-bow light-colored dress with black accessories.

An Island Finds The Light

UNTIL a year or so ago, you could have been enticed to an island community of 200 people that knew no taxes, paid no rates or rent, had no Government and recognised no statutory laws.
Children might, at first have loved the move. For the place had neither school-mistress nor school. But neither did it have a doctor, nor electricity, nor even oil lamps. It was devoid of a single shop.

To obtain the very fuel for their fires, the Islanders had to sail across the miles of sea in their dugout canoes to buy kerosene. When a boat was expected to bring a dugout canoe, the Islanders might provide a sack of home-made soap, composed from castile soap and sheep-tail.

Workday clothes were made from skins and cloths. Sunday best was a curious mixture of all varieties of dress and fashions that had come into — and gone from — vogue over never-ending centuries, and between medieval Brunns and an early 19th century new-wear or Shawl affair.

The island was the floagou-Cape Island, of Tristan da Cunha, in the South Atlantic and over 1,600 sea miles from Cape Town, South Africa.

It is now the island of Tristan da Cunha, an island of 1,600 sea miles from Cape Town, South Africa. The island was a part of a chain of islands that were whalers' stations from the 18th to the 19th century.

THE SECRETS OF GOOD DRIVING

You don't have to know the difference between your feet and a good car. You must have certain fundamental ideas. You must know the way the car is built. You must know the way the car is run. You must know the way the car is driven. You must know the way the car is maintained. You must know the way the car is repaired. You must know the way the car is replaced.

Are you a good driver? Or do you just think you are? Here is the chance to find out—under the best possible tutor, MIKE HAWTHORN, 24-year-old British racing champion of 1953. In a series of lessons, he passes on some of the secrets of the driving arts he has worked so hard to master.

Do not despair if you are slow and slow. Concentrate on the things you do well at. Build up your confidence. The average result of a lesson is that you know a little more about your car and a little more about the road. The average result of a lesson is that you know a little more about your car and a little more about the road.

There is no such thing as a free lunch. If you want to be a good driver, you must be a good student. You must be a good listener. You must be a good observer. You must be a good thinker. You must be a good doer. You must be a good driver.

How to judge

ADMITTEDLY with today's cars, it's hard to judge a car's performance. You must look at the engine, the transmission, the brakes, and the suspension. You must look at the car's overall condition and the driver's skill.

The brakes

IF you are a driver, you must know your car's brakes. You must know how to use them. You must know how to maintain them. You must know how to replace them.

Here is a list of things you should know about your car's brakes:

- 1. The car stops before you stop.
- 2. The car stops without jerking.
- 3. The car stops without vibrating.
- 4. The car stops without making noise.
- 5. The car stops without making smoke.
- 6. The car stops without making heat.
- 7. The car stops without making sparks.

1. Can you park first time within 15 minutes of leaving your seat?

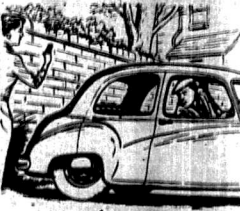

2. Do you realize that an "off day" is just a bad day?

3. Do you regard anything as a driving skill?

4. Does one for "Ten 0-3" make you the average motorist?

5. Will you go to the factory to get your car fixed?

6. Do you know the difference between "cheap" and "expensive"?

CYPRUS: AN ISLAND OF GOOD WILL

By Cyril Dunn

IT was dark when we reached the Turkish village of the Cyprus mountains. A fire was burning under a metal pot at the roadside, and from behind its flames a sequence of ragged men came forward to shake hands with us, none allowing himself to be excluded from the ceremony.

We moved in a disorderly procession into the village, one of the younger villagers carrying a drum beating a cheerfully insistent tune as we passed.

By his considerable light the village looked deserted.

The earthquake

THE September earthquake brought the whole of it down to the island in a shape. Only the salt, possessive signs of our guides, gesticulations and explanations, made these people seem particularly different from the other lumped stones with which the Cypriot landscape is littered...

Cyprus can readily absorb another rugged settlement, in its fertile Salamis and Citium and the rock towns of the kings at Paphos. The virtual impact of the earthquake's destruction is softened - especially at this time of year, when the island is torn to the beautiful coast where the sea and the olive fields is disrupted, not eliminated.

Altogether 500 houses were destroyed or damaged on the island, most of them on the glamorous slopes of the surrounding hills.

The British rulers of Cyprus are a handful of Britons backed by a Cypriot Civil Service... The British rulers of Cyprus are a handful of Britons backed by a Cypriot Civil Service...

CYPRUS: AN ISLAND OF GOOD WILL

In the international hands of Government. It is a custom, one may say, which at the moment is driving the retired British on the island to the brink of despair.

There are two things (at least) to be borne in mind about the curious aftermath of earthquake. One is that, when we drove round the villages, the villagers had no means of knowing precisely what the administration was planning to do for them.

Another factor to be considered is that these Cypriots do not seem to be naturally without bitterness or ill-will towards their British rulers.

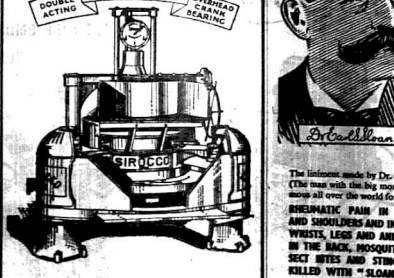

Friendliness

AS the Greek village, a young girl who was pregnant but so much so that she was open air, it chose questioning me as to whether she was doing so just because there was no room for her in a tent...

It is difficult if the Colonial Office were to try to put us off in anything too widely as to the probable progress to go forward prudently and to what it is required to do.

THE QUEEN'S SPEECH

AN assurance that Britain would continue to work for Commonwealth and Empire was given by the Queen in a speech from the Throne at the State Opening of Parliament this week. She said that the Government would ensure that measures of economic and political advancement and of economic development were promulgated in every part of the world.

The utmost importance was attached to continued consultation with the partners in the Commonwealth and the Government would take part in the conference of Commonwealth Finance Ministers which would be held in Australia in January.

On a more personal note, the Queen added: "I look forward eagerly to the visits which I am about to make with my dear husband to my peoples in overseas countries and to those of the Commonwealth and Empire."

In the domestic field, she said that the reform of the House of Lords would be considered during the present session and that proposals were to be laid before Parliament for the transfer of atomic energy from the Ministry of Supply to a statutory corporation. Action was also promised to end the high road accident rate, to maintain full employment by striving for export trade and to build more houses. Future plans for television, a national monopoly, and B.I.C. would also be announced.

A Bill was to be introduced to end the present restrictions on emigration to the Colonies and steps would be taken to ensure that the Colonies were to produce more of their own goods and to increase a marketing scheme when relations were defined.
