ENGLAND GET BAD SHOCK FROM EIRE

Surprise defeat breaks a home record

Nearly 22,000 spectators saw a new record score in the final of the 1949 International Soccer cup at Goodison Park, Liverpool on Wednesday, when Eire's first representative game...

It was England's first defeat on their own soil by any side save one from the other home countries... The surprise came as a bad shock to spectators and selectors alike... The match did not count in the World Soccer Cup competition...

Airmen's easy Cup victory

R.A.F. (M.C.) v. R.C. Legion won the BEATING British Legion easily by 10 goals on Wednesday, in a friendly match at the RAF Club...

Pye a failure

Nor was 27-year-old Jesse Pye (Weston-super-Mare, Westmorland) a success in his first attempt to beat the world record for the mile...

The following combination of the 1949-50 season: (Manchester United) was impressive... The manager, Sir Matt Busby, was impressed...

England were on top in the early stages but could never find a steady way to beat the home side... The match was a complete failure...

It was established and a three shot by D. Walsh (West) secured victory... The match was a complete failure...

In the 34th minute Eire scored... The match was a complete failure...

England lost their earlier competitiveness... The match was a complete failure...

England went out in the first half... The match was a complete failure...

THE THIRD MAN' QUOTED AS FILM OF THE YEAR

The American comedian, Joe E. Brown, who has taken over Sir Field's mantle as the star of the new film 'The Third Man' is being accepted by English audiences as a superior comedian. He is usually regarded only for the grossly raucous humour of his earlier films, but his performance in 'The Third Man' has won him a new reputation as a serious actor. In the words of one critic, 'He has shown himself to be a most versatile actor, capable of playing a wide range of roles with equal ease. He has shown himself to be a most versatile actor, capable of playing a wide range of roles with equal ease.'

THE ATTACK AND DEFENCE OF THE NIMZOINDIAN

The following interesting game was played recently in an international contest between Czechoslovakia and Switzerland. It represents a good example of the play in the attack and defence of the Nimzo-Indian. It is probable that in both main cases which open with 1-P4 are met with the Nimzo-Indian Defence. This highly elastic line of play was originated and developed by the gifted Russian master, A. Nimzovitch, and with it he obtained many outstanding successes.

The point that the average player is not aware of is that the Nimzo-Indian is not a purely defensive system. It is a highly complex system which requires a high standard of play and which requires the highest technique in the defence of one which is rich in possibilities. It is for this reason that it is not recommended to players who are not at least an intermediate player.

In actual practice this exchange is proved to present certain strategic weaknesses in the game which are not so obvious as they first appear. It is for this reason that it is not recommended to players who are not at least an intermediate player.

The following game Black has been taken from the Nimzo-Indian. It is a highly complex system which requires a high standard of play and which requires the highest technique in the defence of one which is rich in possibilities.

Glasgow stages largest trade fair ever seen in Scotland

Visitors to the Edinburgh Festival were treated to a remarkable display of the industrial products of Scotland which are not appreciated on the official programme. The exhibition, which was the official Glasgow opening in the week-end, presented a wonderful display of the products of the Scottish industry. The exhibition was held in the Glasgow Exhibition Centre, which was built for the Festival. It was the largest trade fair ever seen in Scotland. CENTRAL TIME ACCOUNT
 The Central Time Account is a new and important feature of the new time-keeping system introduced by the Government of Kenya. It is designed to provide a more accurate and reliable method of recording time, and to facilitate the payment of wages and salaries. The system is based on the principle of 'time worked', and is intended to be used by all employers and employees in the public sector. It is expected that the introduction of this system will result in a more efficient and equitable time-keeping system, and will help to reduce the incidence of time-keeping disputes.

MAY MATCH
RAILWAY
 The railway match between Kenya and the British Isles, which was held in Nairobi on May 1st, has ended in a decisive victory for the Kenyan team. The Kenyan players, who were coached by a former international player, displayed exceptional skill and teamwork throughout the match. The final score was 10-0 in favour of Kenya. This victory marks a significant milestone in the history of Kenyan football, and is a testament to the hard work and dedication of the players and their coaches. The match was held at the Railway Grounds, Nairobi, and was attended by a large number of spectators. The Kenyan team's performance was widely praised, and they are now being hailed as national heroes.

THE GOLD
 The gold market has shown a steady upward trend in recent months, with prices reaching new highs. This is due to a combination of factors, including increased demand for gold in the jewellery and electronics industries, and a general decline in the value of the dollar. As a result, investors are flocking to gold as a safe haven, and this has led to a significant increase in gold prices. Analysts predict that this upward trend will continue in the near future, as the global economy remains uncertain and volatile.

Final replay
 A final replay of the match between Kenya and the British Isles will be held in Nairobi on May 15th. This replay is necessary because the original match was abandoned due to a heavy rainstorm. The replay will be held at the same venue as the original match, and will be broadcast live on television. It is expected that the replay will be a highly competitive and exciting match, and will attract a large number of spectators.

Ground Cup
 The Ground Cup, which is a prestigious football trophy, will be awarded to the winner of the match between Kenya and the British Isles. This cup is named after the ground where the match is held, and is a symbol of excellence in football. The winner of the cup will receive a large sum of money, and will also be eligible to represent their country in international competitions. The match is expected to be a highly competitive and exciting one, and will be a highlight of the football season.

French racing
 French racing has been a success story in recent years, with several horses winning major international races. This is due to a combination of factors, including improved training methods, better nutrition, and a strong support system. The French racing industry has invested heavily in research and development, and this has led to significant improvements in the performance of their horses. As a result, French horses are now competing at the highest level, and are winning some of the most prestigious races in the world.

STILL DEBATED
 The issue of whether or not to introduce a new law is still being debated in parliament. The law in question is a controversial one, and has sparked a heated debate among members of parliament. Some members believe that the law is necessary, while others believe that it is unnecessary and would be a waste of resources. The debate is expected to continue for some time, and it is unclear when a final decision will be reached.

MASSACRE ALLEGED
 A mass killing of several people is alleged to have taken place in a remote area of the country. The alleged victims were members of a local community, and the killing is believed to have been carried out by a group of armed men. The incident has caused widespread concern and fear among the local population, and has led to a state of emergency being declared in the area. The government is currently investigating the incident, and is working to identify the perpetrators and bring them to justice.

Seed production in East Africa and its prospects

A DVICED to potential seed-growers in the Colonies, with special reference to East Africa, is contained in a memorandum on "Seed Production in the Colonies" prepared by the Ministry of Agriculture in the United Kingdom. Surveying the economic aspects of the seed trade which have to be considered as a condition of a successful seed industry, the memorandum also reviews the seed production with which the Colonies have to contend.

It is contended, for instance, that the increased production of seed is not only a matter of increased acreage but also of increased yield per acre. This is particularly true in the case of cereals, where the yield per acre is dependent on the soil conditions and the climate. The memorandum also points out that the seed industry is a highly specialized one, and that the seed-grower must have access to the best seed material available.

There is no doubt that the seed industry in East Africa has a bright future. The demand for seed is increasing rapidly, and the Government is doing its utmost to encourage the seed-grower. It is hoped that the memorandum will be of great help to the seed-grower in East Africa.

Prospects

There is no doubt that the seed industry in East Africa has a bright future. The demand for seed is increasing rapidly, and the Government is doing its utmost to encourage the seed-grower. It is hoped that the memorandum will be of great help to the seed-grower in East Africa.

Reliability factor

Given a favourable climate, it is only a few years ago that the seed industry in East Africa was a very small one. However, in the last few years, there has been a rapid increase in the production of seed. This is due to the fact that the seed-grower has been able to produce seed in larger quantities and of a higher quality than in the past.

Competition

There is no doubt that the seed industry in East Africa has a bright future. The demand for seed is increasing rapidly, and the Government is doing its utmost to encourage the seed-grower. It is hoped that the memorandum will be of great help to the seed-grower in East Africa.

Sowing 'blind'

It is a common mistake to sow seed without knowing what is in it. This is particularly true in the case of cereals, where the seed-grower may be sowing seed that is infested with insects or other pests. This can result in a poor yield and a loss of money.

Good advice

The memorandum on "Seed Production in the Colonies" contains a great deal of good advice for the seed-grower. It covers all aspects of the seed industry, from the selection of seed material to the marketing of seed. It is a valuable guide for anyone who is interested in the seed industry.

Proposal which may end the crop surplus danger

If the proposal made by Mr. N. E. Smith, Director-General of the F.A.O., is accepted by the Government, it would mean the job of marketing the surplus production areas in countries where the food is required is being undertaken by the East African Standard Agricultural Corporation.

The Director suggests the setting up of an International Co-ordinating Committee (I.C.C.) which would be composed of five member countries, including the United Kingdom, India, and the United States.

The I.C.C. is to be a permanent body, which would be empowered to issue a certificate of origin for surplus food, which would be accepted by the Government of the country of origin.

The I.C.C. would also be empowered to issue a certificate of origin for surplus food, which would be accepted by the Government of the country of origin.

The Members Stand, which looked big on Thursday morning, was always completely packed and many members sat on the ground at the stands. Keen interest was shown in the variety of displays put on each afternoon.

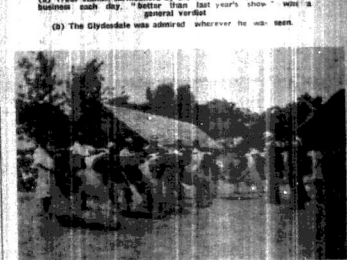

Lockyer Pelissier's Barre 3rd and 4th year's champion.

(1) Trade stands, surrounded by the Winton's, reported excellent business each day. "Better than last year's show" was a general verdict.

Mr. R. R. Mather's "Karlina Look" - Boston Cup winner in the best country-bred Friesian cow of Kenya.

The judging ring was the centre of all the show's business and the fair to the full at the various ring sides. Several judges of international fame were in charge.

Barre getting out on a base of the show. It is necessary for the show to be held with the A.S.S.

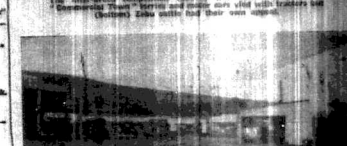

Mother, son, and daughter in the Veterinary Department's stand of Native breeds. This was one of the popular exhibits. The cow had her 12th calf at the show.

The inter-branch competition (above) was keen this year. In "Commercial Show" (below) and major ones filled with traders and customers. Extra stalls had their own appeal.

The 200-ponies, heavy, dark, were presented from the show. They were the centre of attraction. Here the stalls of the show.

This old boy is the Native which 12th calf produced the show.

(Below) The Harford was much admired.

Johnson's

protects your baby from skin irritation

The sweetest fragrance in baby care is Johnson's Baby Lotion. An emulsion of oil it is naturally soothing to the skin and keeps the baby's skin in good condition from cradle to cradle, and during childhood. The white Baby Lotion coats, soothes and guards the skin, it allows perspiration to escape and the skin to breathe. Use it daily for cleansing, baby's skin, and for the protection against all skin irritations and eruptions, and as a relief from redness and itching.
