UNION PREPARING FOR A GENERAL ELECTION INSIDE POLAND Faith & Bravery

Hopeful Outlook For The United Party

Speculation grows that the United Party will be led to South Africa next year by a group of members of the public. Actual discussions on whether the election will take place or not is still regarded as premature.

Many Voters in Army What would some United Party supporters say that so many of them would normally be expected to vote with them are in the Army?

South Africa has always been a most political-minded country. It is a nation which has a long history of striving to provide for a small but a very real and effective voice.

Another problem facing the Nationalists is the slow rate of development of their youth movement, which has suffered from the lack of Mr. Pore's leadership.

A Minor Note Speculating really means political squabbling over a matter of no importance.

A Polish doctor, taking death tolls of times exposed through the streets of Warsaw, said that he had interviewed a young man who had been arrested by the Gestapo in the prison yard.

It is not surprising that the United Party has been able to attract a large number of voters from the army.

POST-WAR WORLD

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard"—Sir—Your leading article in the issue of September 2, struck me as particularly timely. The "optimism" which is a truly British failing is in a great measure a result of the fact that the British people have seen almost all our heads. It has never yet dawned on them that we are going to live in a world which is not so optimistic as they are.

Your question "What are we going to do towards the making of this brave new world?" is an excellent one. It is a question which we must all face. It is a question which we must all face. It is a question which we must all face. It is a question which we must all face.

Local Materials For Military Buildings

In Kenya Legislative Council yesterday the Member for the Coast, Sir G. W. Colson, said—in view of the abundance of material available throughout the country from which to build an adequate number of military buildings—that the Government should consider the possibility of using local materials for the construction of military buildings. He said that this would be a measure of economy to the Government, and that it would also be a measure of economy to the public, as it would reduce the cost of the buildings. He said that the Government should consider the possibility of using local materials for the construction of military buildings, and that this would be a measure of economy to the Government, and that it would also be a measure of economy to the public, as it would reduce the cost of the buildings.

The Director of Public Works, Mr. J. C. Strohach, replied:—
Local materials such as used for the construction of all works for the Service and many buildings of the Government have already been considered. The present programme of military buildings is being carried out in accordance with the programme of military buildings for the Service. The Government is not at present in a position to consider the possibility of using local materials for the construction of military buildings.

COST OF LIVING.

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard"—
Sir—Mr. Taylor's letter is an excellent contribution to the service. If the Civil Service Association could do more to help the public, it would be a measure of economy to the Government, and that it would also be a measure of economy to the public, as it would reduce the cost of the buildings.
