Conscription of Women:

The PROS AND CONS ★

A REMARK was recently made in the Press—not without some truth in it—concerning the effect of publicity being hopelessly neglected with regard to the conscription of women in Kenya and that the case for the conscription as it were, had not been properly presented, written a correspondent, who amplifies the case in this article. The suggestion has been made that Kenya's young girls, who up to date have been the only ones affected, have not shown the proper patriotic eagerness to serve their King. There has even been a hint that some have deserted of the offering of that handsome symbol, the white feather.

There is little doubt in the last opinion some to have been given in the columns of this paper in the opinion of the conscription of women in Kenya. Land For Closer White Settlement

SEVERAL important resolutions were passed at the second meeting of the Settlement Section of the Agricultural Production and Settlement Board held in Nairobi on July 26th, when in the absence of Major Cavendish-Bresford, the Commissioner of Land and Settlement, who is a Deputy Chairman, took the chair.

Land for white settlement for as far as possible to voluntary agreement, it is of the opinion that Government should take power to acquire farming land by expropriation, where such a course is considered desirable, and if therefore were to expropriate the necessary land, the fact that a compulsory Land Acquisition Act is at the earliest possible time.

The general feeling of the meeting was against the notion of expropriating land, mostly on the grounds that it would be so difficult to give a fair definition of such land, and that it would be very difficult to be carried out. It was, however, suggested that some form of compulsory Land Acquisition Act should be passed.

The attention of the Board was drawn to the fact that the Government had been the most active of the Government in the matter of land acquisition, and that it had been the most active of the Government in the matter of land acquisition.

The Settlement Officer's records in the Department of Land and Settlement, Nairobi, are being reviewed and the results of the review will be reported to the Board.

It is suggested that the Government should consider the possibility of expropriating land for white settlement, where such a course is considered desirable.
