TWO ENVOYS FLY TO PAVE THE WAY IN MOSCOW

Western Powers agree on their line of approach

FACING the task of paving the way to direct negotiations between Britain and the western Powers on the settlement of the German crisis, Mr. Ernest Bevin's private secretary, Mr. Frank Roberts, and Mr. Harold Clegg, British Ambassador in Moscow, left London yesterday for Moscow.

Mr. Roberts was accompanied by the British Minister and four years' Charge d'Affaires in Moscow, Mr. A. H. Macdonald, who is to be the British Ambassador there. Mr. Maurice Peterson, who is not well enough to fly back.

Their departure follows the achievement of agreement between Britain, the United States and France on the approach to be made to the Soviet Foreign Minister, Mr. Vyacheslav Molotov, at an ambassadorial level. When he announced this in Washington, the U.S. Foreign Minister, Mr. George Marshall, intended to reveal the nature of the joint step, but in Paris, the French Foreign Minister, Mr. Georges Bidault, speaking after a meeting of the new Cabinet, indicated that it is designed to facilitate direct contact between governments and their envoys.

Talks with Stalin are still possible

Although there has still been no confirmation of the London talks, the three Powers are to meet in an interview with Marshall, who is expected to be in London by the end of the month. It is intended that Mr. Roberts shall remain in Moscow only long enough to participate in the exchange that is to be made on his arrival.

M.P.s HAVE SECOND DAY'S COLONIAL DEBATE
Will public or private enterprise produce the greater development?

MR. CHURCHILL WHEN YOUNG SAID...
 A speech by Mr. Winston Churchill in 1904, when he was only 27 years old, is being read in the House of Commons today. The speech was on the subject of the development of the colonies and the role of public and private enterprise.

'No great policy'
 Mr. Churchill's speech was described as 'no great policy' by some of his contemporaries. However, it is now regarded as a classic statement of his views on colonial development.

'Study Britain'
 The speech has been widely studied and has influenced many of the policies of the British Government in the colonies. It is a study in the art of public speaking and a model of clear and concise communication.

A PROVISION OF THE PROPOSED AGRARIAN ACT More capital at low interest for farmers

Standard Correspondent
GOVERNMENT are hoping to bring in an Agrarian Act which would not only ensure the general provisions of the increased production of Crops Ordinance with guarantees of prices, but would also "give up to land holders and had farmers methods even to the point of eviction if necessary," said Captain Wilson, Chairman of the Board of Agriculture, addressing a group of 2000 farmers at the Annual General Meeting of the Nairobi Agrarian Association held on the 10th July at the N.A.A. Club.
Whether the Agrarian Act be passed or not, he said, depended on the Agrarian Act, but it was Government's intention to get the Bill before the House by the end of the year. It would contain provision for helping farmers who were short of capital on really easy terms.
An added anxiety which he would mention was the fact that the Government of Kenya was a major power in the world, and as such, it was important to be prepared, and as far as possible, to be self-sufficient. "And it will be up to the local people to live up to the standard to see that the goal is reached on a proper basis," he said.
Advised exactly what he would expect of any farmer, Captain Wilson said that the Government was prepared to give a loan of up to 1000 shillings to any farmer who was in need of capital for the purpose of the year. The Government would also be prepared to give a loan of up to 1000 shillings to any farmer who was in need of capital for the purpose of the year. COFFEE CONFERENCE DISCUSSES HOW TO FINANCE THE K.N.F.U.

The Kenya National Farmers' Union proposed that the Coffee Conference in Nairobi last week should be the starting point for the formation of a K.N.F.U. The original resolution suggested that the Union should derive its funds from a levy on coffee exports. This was opposed by the Government, who suggested that the Union should be financed by a levy on coffee exports. The Government also suggested that the Union should be financed by a levy on coffee exports.

Toxity of grant powder

A NOETHER resolution requested the Government to investigate the toxicity of the average grant powder used for the control of insects in relation to the use of other insecticides. The Government has agreed to investigate the toxicity of the average grant powder used for the control of insects in relation to the use of other insecticides.

No blind liquoring

A MOTION proposed by Sir M. Barrett was designed to ensure that the Liquoring Report should be published in a form which would be accessible to all farmers. The Government has agreed to publish the Liquoring Report in a form which would be accessible to all farmers.

Expert views Kenya stock

That in South America it was found beneficial to feed red clover to grass cattle before allowing them to graze on lush pastures. The same quantities of milk used to rear a calf economically required less milk and more water than the practice of the University was to rear all calves on a "one cow" system, allowing each calf a gallon of milk a day.
This view giving three gallons of milk a day to a calf for a period of six weeks, then the calves could be put on a "one cow" system. The one would then have a fresh supply of milk every day. As the calves were always wet and comfortable while suckling the calves, the milk was always wet and comfortable while suckling the calves.

Like a pyramid

Like a pyramid, the South as a country, with the production of coffee, has been steadily increasing. The Government has agreed to investigate the toxicity of the average grant powder used for the control of insects in relation to the use of other insecticides.

There is always a steady stream of new historical novels. This recently published one is an excellent example of different aspects of the art of the historical novelist—Arabella, by Doris Leslie Byrd and Men of Forty-eight, by Jack London.

Men Leslie's historical novel follows the pattern of Clayton, but it is found a more serious and interesting reading experience. The author's style is clear and characteristic of an old.
