What is Scotch Whisky?

"Whisky" doesn't mean any whisky. It means whisky distilled in Scotland in the conventional traditional way. It is the only way to produce the character and distillatory of favour for which real "Scotch" is esteemed everywhere.

You have it at its best in "Johnnie Walker." Unhappily, there is less of it to be had nowadays, than you are likely to want, so if at first you don't succeed in getting this page.

BIG GAME OR LITTLE, THEY TASTE THE JOYS OF BACCHUS

By the WARREN C. G. P. BEATSON.

In a previous article about crocodiles, I mentioned a tracker who could kill these beasts. I now learn that one of these beasts is the crocodile's neighbor, the lion. He can kill all of his own, however.

There are five wild things that will respond to various calls. All five are found in the East African Colonies. They are the lion, the leopard, the cheetah, the jackal, and the hyena.

The lion is the most noble of the five. He is the king of the beasts. He is the most powerful and the most majestic. He is the most magnificent of all.

The leopard is the most cunning of the five. He is the most elusive and the most mysterious. He is the most stealthy of all.

The cheetah is the most swift of the five. He is the most agile and the most graceful. He is the most beautiful of all.

The jackal is the most cunning of the five. He is the most sly and the most treacherous. He is the most despicable of all.

The hyena is the most ferocious of the five. He is the most brutal and the most vicious. He is the most disgusting of all.

Curiosity

Man animals are inquisitive by nature. They are curious about everything. They are curious about their own kind and about other kinds. They are curious about the world around them.

One of the most curious animals is the monkey. He is the most inquisitive of all. He is the most playful and the most mischievous. He is the most intelligent of all.

The dog is also a curious animal. He is the most loyal and the most devoted. He is the most obedient and the most obedient. He is the most helpful of all.

The cat is also a curious animal. He is the most independent and the most self-reliant. He is the most dignified and the most elegant. He is the most graceful of all.

The rabbit is also a curious animal. He is the most timid and the most shy. He is the most gentle and the most docile. He is the most sensitive of all.

THE explanation usually given for the popularity of the historical novel is that it is a form of escapism. It is to say that we are weary of the present and we turn to the past for our enjoyment. This may or may not be true. One might be quoted in support of the latter view.

INTRA-EUROPEAN TRADE MUST REVIVE, OR ELSE—

A COMMUNIST turns aside from some aspects of the news as a book from the American administration of R.F.P. — whose job is to work, severely to limit the American exports — are making strenuous efforts to revive intra-European trade.

So, too, he will find some who are trying to do this. In the past, the American administration has been very successful in its efforts to limit the American exports. It has done this by imposing high tariffs on American goods.

Ten years of war and peace leave their mark on Paris

Notre Dame de Paris

by C. H. B. Cloydon

THE French was a large city on which had been lived in for centuries. Lately walls covered with soft red paper with a minute and intricate pattern of flowers and scrolls, and curtains and carpets to match, opened, yards of coats of rain and leaves which blizzards outside the room had a personality.

Just inside the public and private door the traffic did not pass. The room was full of people, some of whom were in the hall were the through the door. The people were in the hall, some of whom were in the hall, some of whom were in the hall.

There was a small change in the room. The room was full of people, some of whom were in the hall were the through the door. The people were in the hall, some of whom were in the hall, some of whom were in the hall.

Wonderful vista. A little further on, and I found myself in the room. The room was full of people, some of whom were in the hall were the through the door. The people were in the hall, some of whom were in the hall, some of whom were in the hall.

New salary rates in North raise anomalies

News from Rhodesia

LONDON—Rhodesia Government THE new salary rates recommended for the civil servants of Northern Rhodesia will meet the Territory an additional £16,000,000 a year. They will also, it is expected, cut the Territory officials.

Acting on the rates proposed by the Fitzgibbon Civil Service Salary Commission, the Northern Rhodesia Government is the first in the British Empire to raise salaries in Southern Africa to attempt the difficult task of incorporating cost-of-living allowances into the post-war salary scales. The Commission's recommendations have, however, raised a number of anomalies.

In some cases there will be actual increases of 50 per cent or more for those on low salaries, while for those on high salaries the increases will be 10 per cent or less. In some cases, such as that of the Secretary of State, the increase will be 10 per cent, but the rate will be increased by £100 a year. In other cases, such as that of the Director of the Police, the increase will be 10 per cent, but the rate will be increased by £200 a year.

The Commission has also recommended that the Director of the Police should be paid £1,000 a year more than the Director of the Revenue, and that the Director of the Revenue should be paid £500 a year more than the Director of the Education.

The Commission also recommended that the Director of the Public Works should be paid £1,000 a year more than the Director of the Public Health, and that the Director of the Public Health should be paid £500 a year more than the Director of the Public Works.

The Commission also recommended that the Director of the Public Works should be paid £1,000 a year more than the Director of the Public Health, and that the Director of the Public Health should be paid £500 a year more than the Director of the Public Works.

People you may know in Kenya

AN enquiry on letters from friends and all visitors, past and present, to the Kenyan Government, has been the result of the enquiry.

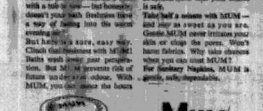

The names of the people mentioned in the letters are: Mr. M. D. Campbell, Government of Delagoa Bay; Mr. J. H. B. ...

Why the shackles?

ACTUALLY the world view of that the Fitzgibbon Civil Service Salary Commission should go ahead with its proposals for a 10 per cent increase in salaries for all civil servants in the British Empire.

The Commission has also recommended that the Director of the Police should be paid £1,000 a year more than the Director of the Revenue, and that the Director of the Revenue should be paid £500 a year more than the Director of the Education.

ALL ABOUT THE RAINS IN KENYA - AND YOUR TYRES

In a few weeks time short rains are due in East Africa. Now is the time, therefore, to look to your tyres to make sure that they are in good condition and ready for the rough and tough journeys ahead.

A tyre with little or no tread may be a good one and serviceable during the dry season, but during the rainy period such tyres are rendered useless.

They cause damage to your car by a skid, but also an injury to yourself or other person or persons who may or may not be passengers in your vehicle. It takes only a few hours to get a set of "TYRESOLE" which is neither a Retrowear Reopac. The public have often only been warned against the use of "SOLE" tires.

The process cannot damage the tyre sole rights in the territory held by P.O. Box 179, Delamere Avenue Nairobi & Branches

CHESS
PITFALLS IN A SEEMINGLY SAFE GAME

By R. BARTON-ECKETT

THE following is one of the last positional tournament games of the French which is of an interesting character. The game also illustrates how easily a seemingly safe looking game can deteriorate without any obvious blunder on the part of the losing player.

White's move is a variation of the French which is best played in a modern variation. It is a move which is generally considered to be inflexible to the second player. Black makes a few slight errors and the game is lost. The game is a study in positional play.
