KISMAVU INCLUDED IN THE ROYAL SAFARI

The 'East African Standard' is able to present today a complete story of the trip which was made by His Majesty the King of Italy to Italian Somaliland. The King is over 60.

The programme included a long, rapid and arduous tour of the colony, from North to South, entailing visits to many lovely frontier garrison centres, Italian agricultural settlements, and Native tribes and was relieved by several brief shooting expeditions from special camps.

A visit to the port of Kisimayu, a few years ago a part of Kenya, was the concluding feature of the tour.

His Majesty leaves on his return journey to Europe tomorrow and will visit British Somaliland en route.

Empire Theatre.

We all know what anore— "The Midshipmaid" before we realize quite what fun there can be in a battleship. Jessie Matthews, as the daughter of a naval engineer expert, visits H.M.S. "Dreadnought" in Malta with her parents. The chief laughter-maker is A. W. Rastomb as a duffered A.B. who has to "sing with his eyes shut" on the stage, but Edwyn Lawrence as the bandmaster who conducts the orchestra, and has one section playing "Spring Song" and the other "1812 Overture" runs him very close. Claude Allister has a small part as the inevitable "ally nce" and the neglected fiance, but the picture is worn round Jessie Matthews and it is she who makes it what it is. She dances a little, sings a little, and breaks many hearts with her charm and personality. "The Midshipmaid" is a jolly, hearty picture of life on the ocean wave, with laughter in every scene.

Capitol Theatre.

"George Arliss in his masterpiece, "The House of Husbands" is appearing at the Capitol Theatre until the end of the week. This picture is one of the greatest ever seen on the screen.

Princes Theatre.

"Othello Blood" is the film at Princes Theatre. It is a good historical comedy of the times of Charles II. There will be a change of programme on Saturday evening.

Mr. T. F. Finiger, a brewer of Dunroon, Essex, who was blown up on an ammunition dump in France 16 years ago has just been told that he is suffering from cancer. Mr. Finiger, who is 56, is well known locally as a tournament tennis player, and although the fact that his neck is broken has only just been revealed by an x-ray photograph, the specialist has advised him to continue playing tennis.

BOTH HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT HAVE A BUSY DAY

It is expected that the Royal Assent will be given to-day to the Betting and Lotteries Bill which passed its third reading in the House of Commons on Wednesday.

It will mean the end of the Irish Sweepstake as far as tickets will be prohibited as well as the publication by newspaper of sweepstake results. Newspaper competitors, unless depending substantially upon skill, are also to be prohibited.

Members of Parliament had a busy day yesterday and in the House of Lords the Minister for War, Viscount Balfour, made an interesting statement on Imperial Defence, with special reference to the Navy and Air Force.

Mr. Hailsham said that the replacement of capital ships must soon be considered and the question of the number of cruisers required was a matter for the most serious consideration. He also notified the steps already taken to effect increases in the Royal Air Force.

Reidy, Nov. 14.

The control of traffic in armaments was the subject of significant statements in the House of Commons on Wednesday. The Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, speaking on a question, declared that the British Government stood firmly in favour of control of licence and the international extension of that system, and added "we are going to try to get that done at Geneva as quickly as Mr. Coudert will allow."

In Washington, the Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull, said it was the desire of the American Government to "sound" out the countries on the subject of the conclusion of an international agreement on the restriction and control of traffic in armaments and munitions of war.

The Prime Minister's speech was delivered in the constituency where he is a Member of Parliament. He said that he would accept any decision on the restriction and control of traffic in armaments and munitions of war.

There were only two ways. One was to nationalise armament production, involving the building of State factories and keeping them in work. That meant sinking State capital which should be spent on social services in those factories.

The alternative was that which was being done in certain countries since an agreement was being made.

Mr. Hailsham said that the replacement of capital ships must soon be considered and the question of the number of cruisers required was a matter for the most serious consideration. He also notified the steps already taken to effect increases in the Royal Air Force.

It is expected that the Royal Assent will be given to-day to the Betting and Lotteries Bill which passed its third reading in the House of Commons on Wednesday.

It will mean the end of the Irish Sweepstake as far as tickets will be prohibited as well as the publication by newspaper of sweepstake results. Newspaper competitors, unless depending substantially upon skill, are also to be prohibited.

THIKA CROPS

(BY WIRELESS.)
"STANDARD" CORRESPONDENT,
London, Nov. 13.

The returns of the maize in coming harvest are better than those of the Thika District. A volume of 100,000 bushels, last week, brought a drop in price, varying in intensity from 14 inches to 20 inches in many estates, and the landscape has at last become green. But rain is urgently needed to save the quality of the crops now being sown, and to set the fine blossoming which was general throughout the District a fortnight ago.

Crops in the adjacent Elgon Province are coming up well, and rain from some native food supplies should be plentiful. Cultivation and planting of wattle is slowly on the increase.

ACTION FOR DAMAGES

Mr. Kaplan: Remonstrating Mr. Carr's reputation for honesty and fairness, do you believe that when he made those statements you allege he made them deliberately to injure you or that he said what he honestly meant?—I cannot say what was in Mr. Carr's mind. I do not know whether he had any slightest intention to hurt you in any way do you think that would be the truth, bearing in mind his fairness to you both?—I think it might be the truth. I cannot be sure.

Did you feel that Mr. Carr had been as gentle as he could be to you under these very unhappy conditions? Do you think he acted decently in his behaviour towards you on the occasion?—Well, he acted decently.

Replying to further questions witness did not remember any question of the suspension of her husband's licence mentioned at the interview with Mr. Carr nor any reference to vouchers.

Witness said she knew some of her husband's debts in Nairobi were unpaid.

Now that she knew the true circumstances from her husband's letter to her had not she been told that he had left behind what Mr. Carr had said at the time because he seemed so convincing?—The real Mr. Carr at that time was not a man of great honour and she did not think he would have made such statements unless they were true.

Mr. Moore: You said in answer to my friend, I did not want to stay in Nairobi, with the character he had both given. Who had given that character to your husband—Mr. Carr?—She had not replied to her husband's cable asking why she was returning to England because Mr. Platt advised her to return if anything that her husband was aware of the reason.

Mr. Bailey: John Everett Christian Bailey entered the bar. He said he was at present employed with a firm of chartered accountants in Kenya to collect those cases having obtained leave of absence for the purpose. He entered Carr's Nairobi employment on June 1, 1931 as accountant. In April this following year his salary was raised to 400 a month. He had previously been appointed secretary and in December 1931 Mr. Carr asked him to take over the duties of general manager. In May 1932 he left on behalf of the company for Europe and America. He went as far as Philadelphia in a specially chartered aeroplane. The purpose of his visit was to formulate a plan in connection with a new agency which if it had been brought to fruition would probably have made Carr, Lawson the biggest company in America and Canada about a fortnight. Arrangements had been made for him to return by air to Nairobi leaving London on July 27. The first intention he had when he was in America and Canada about a fortnight. Cabled Exchanges

Witness called in reply to the fact that he was despatched by wireless drawn from the firm's cables and that he was instructed to clear any accounts which he believed his mail letter had not cleared his message from England by air. On July 23 witness wrote a letter by air mail to Mr. Ernest Carr in the course of which he said that the whole affair was being cleared by wireless and he would be in a most able position to inform him that the whole affair was being cleared by wireless and he would be in a most able position to inform him that the whole affair was being cleared by wireless.

It suggested that he should interpose on that point. It is reported that he was a director under the old Stock and Property Trust Ordinance where a native was charged with attempt to enter a loan in which there were demands of payment of work stock. The law provided for a time until he had taken the value of the stock. He had never heard whether the native had paid the fine.

Witness said the solicitor in England had given Mr. Carr the opportunity of paying 10,000. He thought: I think you did not know the economic situation. I did not, Sir.

Witness interposed with a remark to the effect that the lawyers had been instructed to claim 25,000 in respect of damage to Mr. Bailey's health.

Cross-examined: Before commencing his cross-examination, Mr. Kaplan stated that he had never been a member of the Kenya and Mombasa Trips. Up to the time of the incident which led to the case, he had had no personal knowledge of any of the wonderful undertakings which he had undertaken as a result of his trip.

Mr. Moore: You said in answer to my friend, I did not want to stay in Nairobi, with the character he had both given. Who had given that character to your husband—Mr. Carr?—She had not replied to her husband's cable asking why she was returning to England because Mr. Platt advised her to return if anything that her husband was aware of the reason.

It suggested that he should interpose on that point. It is reported that he was a director under the old Stock and Property Trust Ordinance where a native was charged with attempt to enter a loan in which there were demands of payment of work stock. The law provided for a time until he had taken the value of the stock. He had never heard whether the native had paid the fine.

Witness said the solicitor in England had given Mr. Carr the opportunity of paying 10,000. He thought: I think you did not know the economic situation. I did not, Sir.

Witness interposed with a remark to the effect that the lawyers had been instructed to claim 25,000 in respect of damage to Mr. Bailey's health.

Cross-examined: Before commencing his cross-examination, Mr. Kaplan stated that he had never been a member of the Kenya and Mombasa Trips. Up to the time of the incident which led to the case, he had had no personal knowledge of any of the wonderful undertakings which he had undertaken as a result of his trip.

Mr. Moore: You said in answer to my friend, I did not want to stay in Nairobi, with the character he had both given. Who had given that character to your husband—Mr. Carr?—She had not replied to her husband's cable asking why she was returning to England because Mr. Platt advised her to return if anything that her husband was aware of the reason.

Mr. Bailey: John Everett Christian Bailey entered the bar. He said he was at present employed with a firm of chartered accountants in Kenya to collect those cases having obtained leave of absence for the purpose. He entered Carr's Nairobi employment on June 1, 1931 as accountant. In April this following year his salary was raised to 400 a month. He had previously been appointed secretary and in December 1931 Mr. Carr asked him to take over the duties of general manager. In May 1932 he left on behalf of the company for Europe and America. He went as far as Philadelphia in a specially chartered aeroplane. The purpose of his visit was to formulate a plan in connection with a new agency which if it had been brought to fruition would probably have made Carr, Lawson the biggest company in America and Canada about a fortnight. Arrangements had been made for him to return by air to Nairobi leaving London on July 27. The first intention he had when he was in America and Canada about a fortnight. CORRESPONDENCE

Dear Chess Editor—I am greatly pleased to read your decision with regard to the awarding of the special prize, and would be glad if you could convey my thanks to Captain Thayer for so cordially accepting my claim to this prize as being within the meaning of the rules.

My interpretation of Rule 1 was that he is entitled to be shown at third place in final list, but not to receive victor's prize, he being a veteran and an old man. Generally speaking such prize would encourage a beginner far more. I am now proceeding to India on leave and would be pleased to receive my medal at the address enclosed herewith. On my return should like to take part in a similar contest.

I thank you Sir, for the best employment you have given us during the past six months, and wish you health and Happy Xmas. Yours faithfully,
RAJ SINGH.

INDIAN CHAMPIONSHIP

BRITISH CHESS FEDERATION

Annual Meeting of the Council This was held at the City of London Chess Club on Saturday, 28th had requested, as an alternative that the Council would consider a proposal that another Unit should take over the arrangements for the 1935 Congress to be held in 1936 and that this it should be of an international character in addition to the usual lines. If this request were granted, very considerable funds would be available locally to make it a real success. The Council agreed to the change and the S.C.C.U. undertook to arrange for the Congress of 1935 to be held at some seaside resort in their area.

The question of adjudication of unfinished games was fully discussed, especially with regard to appeals against a first decision. It was decided that as the S.C.C.U. and the L.C.C. (London Chess League) had made internal rules which admitted with an appeal, a general decision be deferred until the working of these rules had been tested but in the matter of alleged clerical errors in adjudication decisions, the Council approved that it shall be competent for the adjudicator to refer the decision back to the adjudicator for his confirmation or otherwise.

The meeting closed with hearty votes of thanks to the President, and to the City of London Chess Club for their hospitality.

Mrs. Collier, Clg., to whom correspondence in connection with "Kennel Notes" should be addressed, does not hold herself responsible for accuracy of statements made in the same, based on information supplied by her correspondents.

The Scottish Kennel Club Show at Edinburgh was a very successful exhibition. Although the weather was considerably lower than in previous years, the collection of dogs was the finest ever seen in the previous market.

The non-parting team was won by Mrs. Wainwright's "Duchess". The sporting team by Mr. Badenoch-Nicholson's red cockers.

NJORO POLO TOURNAMENT

followed his lead but met a strong opposition. Both young players showed great progress and are showing well.

First chukker: After several long passes the Straglers pulled over against a much higher pole.

Second chukker: Started with a good run by Nimmo, who was again against Narva's full attack.

Third chukker: With Narva still entirely unable to find their way, steady polo ensued, with the ball continuously hit out on the banks and only Allen played up to the previous standard shown by his team.

Fifth chukker: Produced very few goals, but Narva were awarded a 60 yard penalty, which just failed to score.

Sixth chukker: An early free hit to Narva gave Nelson the opportunity for an excellent run through which Ferguson converted to goal with a good angle shot.

The junior cup showed some good galloping polo and the great advance made in the game by some of the Colony's younger players.

It is his impetuosity and baby course, however, that has been very sore. Yet he still had a tail and would have been successful.

At the end of the tournament, Mr. Arthur Paterson, who has only just made a welcome return to the Colony, presented, very generously, miniature sets of the Cups to the respective winners.

Proceedings, concluded in the evening with a most successful dance, where a Lucky Dip Table, in aid of Poppy Day Funds, attracted the most generous support from all present.

Six, 4, in backward areas, with a view to paying out of the people to pay without hardship. It was not possible to make a detailed survey of the goods brought by native producers in the past few months, and that the money in the districts is being used for the purchase of goods before the native producers, particularly in the case of the Tanganyika Development Corporation, which is being established to develop the country.

Customs Revenue In regard to Customs Duties, he said there was no doubt that the spending power of the Territory was increasing, and particularly so in the rapidly increasing development of the gold mining and the cotton industry. It was also a gratifying increase in total revenue, although the Government had to be careful not to increase the rate of taxation, particularly in the case of the Tanganyika Development Corporation, which is being established to develop the country.

The East African Sterling

A REPLY TO MR. WIGLESWORTH

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard," Sir.—Your correspondence in this connection has been most interesting. I have written to you in the past, but I have not had time to do so since the publication of your article on the 10th inst. I am glad to hear that you are not alone in your opinion that the present position of the East African Sterling is not a desirable one.

It may be said that Great Britain derived benefits by the fall in the exchange value of the pound after the war, but in the case of the East African Sterling, the benefits were not so great. It is not true that the East African Sterling is worth only 2 per cent. of the value of the pound. It is worth only 2 per cent. of the value of the pound in the case of the East African Sterling, but it is worth 100 per cent. of the value of the pound in the case of the East African Sterling.

Mr. Wiglesworth continues: "In reality all that happened was that the Government decreed that it was no longer permissible for the Bank of England to sell port gold." It is common very often to read in the intelligence of your readers to the effect that the Bank of England has decided to sell port gold to its customers in England at the old rate of exchange. The Bank has not done this. When England was on the Gold Standard, the Bank was compelled to buy all standard gold (that is, gold 11/12 fine) offered to it at £37-10-0 per oz. (less the cost of minting).

It was compelled by law to do so, and it was not until 1915 that it was permitted to do so at a higher price than it could buy. It was rapidly being stripped of its gold. The Bank could not do so, and it was not until 1915 that it was permitted to do so at a higher price than it could buy. It was rapidly being stripped of its gold. The Bank could not do so, and it was not until 1915 that it was permitted to do so at a higher price than it could buy.

Has the whole fabric of national wealth in England been undermined by the devaluation of Sterling? It is not true that the whole fabric of national wealth in England has been undermined by the devaluation of Sterling. It is not true that the whole fabric of national wealth in England has been undermined by the devaluation of Sterling.

tion in England is by law prohibited. The gold is held by the Bank of England, the loss of which would mean the destruction of the currency in England. It is not true that the whole fabric of national wealth in England has been undermined by the devaluation of Sterling.

What gold is being bought by the Bank of England is being bought by the Bank of England. It is not true that the whole fabric of national wealth in England has been undermined by the devaluation of Sterling. It is not true that the whole fabric of national wealth in England has been undermined by the devaluation of Sterling.

We don't say Sterling is a good currency. It is a good currency, but it is not a good currency. It is a good currency, but it is not a good currency. It is a good currency, but it is not a good currency.

If the Currency Board offered 50/- for £1 of Sterling, currency would again start flowing into East Africa and sterling would be in the hands of the Board would again accumulate. Every East African farmer, maize farmer, coffee farmer, and every other exporter would have their returns increased by 50 per cent. in East Africa.

It is precisely the same with us. A certain amount of money in England is attracting our sterling, and giving us a return only half as good as that which we are getting in the East African market.

Has the whole fabric of national wealth in England been undermined by the devaluation of Sterling? It is not true that the whole fabric of national wealth in England has been undermined by the devaluation of Sterling. It is not true that the whole fabric of national wealth in England has been undermined by the devaluation of Sterling.

know of a single country that has done this. The only countries in the world that have not tried devaluation are Holland and Switzerland. It is not true that the whole fabric of national wealth in England has been undermined by the devaluation of Sterling.

The purpose of the sponsors of the proposal is to lower production costs. The purpose is to lower production costs. The purpose is to lower production costs. The purpose is to lower production costs.

We don't say Sterling is a good currency. It is a good currency, but it is not a good currency. It is a good currency, but it is not a good currency. It is a good currency, but it is not a good currency.

Mr. Wiglesworth is presumably a member of the Currency Board of Commerce. A Committee of that body has recently forwarded proposals for the establishment of Britain's Foreign and Colonial Trade.

start again in a new job line of all changes in the value of the pound. It is not true that the whole fabric of national wealth in England has been undermined by the devaluation of Sterling.
