AT THE BEGINNING OF THE CENTURY THE WORLD POPULATION WAS... OF FOOD... PER PERSON...

FREEDOM FROM HUNGER

WHEN ALL THE POLITICALISTS have had their say, what matters most is feeding the people. Every country in the world lives with this problem...

The older nations have their granaries of reserve... while their established economic systems spread out purchasing power so that food supplies are available...

One of the most startling statistics in the contemporary world is in population, increases faster in the under developed than in the developed countries...

This is the cardinal point of an article published in this paper, the first of a series to bring home the continuing problems of famine...

Prevention better than cure

Several cases among agencies on the East African scene. In Kenya, there are, besides the Freedom from Hunger Committee, the National Famine Relief Committee...

The Kenya Government has directly associated itself with the movement and is also making a fundamental contribution to the eradication of hunger...

The Minister for Agriculture told Parliament there is only one enduring solution, which is expressed as "to make the whole world war short of food..."

We don't allow our customers to cash cheques at this counter!

THIS IS for the very good reason that this point has always been the first of the National and Grindlays Bank Training School...

A CHALLENGE TO THE NATION AND THE WORLD

IN a world preoccupied with political and economic struggles, it is difficult to draw the attention of the powers that be to the most pressing and alarming problems that beset humanity...

IN a society where most of the food is produced with the aid of modern machinery, it is not surprising that the people are not aware of the problems of food production...

THEY are the people who are not aware of the problems of food production, and who are not aware of the problems of food production...

Ministry's attitude to speedboats on Lake Naivasha

A SPATE of letters, pro and con, have followed the announcement of the Ministry's attitude to speedboats on Lake Naivasha...

It is pointed that, under the Act, the Government intends to prohibit the use of motor boats on the lake...

R.H.S. the new shapes in steel from Stewarts and Lloyds

ARE EFFICIENT

R.H.S. means Rectangular Hollow Sections. These new shapes in steel outdate traditional joists and girders. Their lightness and strength-to-weight ratio makes construction easier, gives greater scope in design.

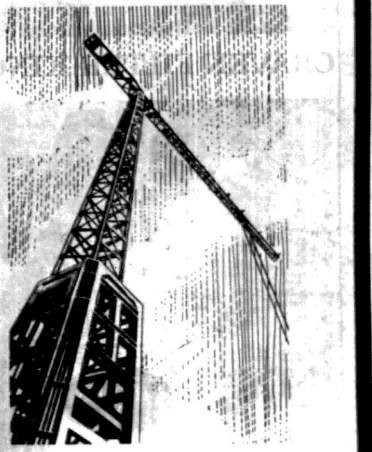

R.H.S. are practical, unclad they blend perfectly with their surroundings. And they can be clad in a variety of materials, simply and effectively.

The efficiency and versatility of R.H.S. are already in evidence in RI countries. Footbridges, cranes, conveyors, air terminals, schools and all kinds of public buildings incorporate these new shapes in steel.

R.H.S. have uses and advantages that all architects, engineers and equipment fabricators should investigate.

The R.H.S. Range. Section sizes: 4in. to 10in. squares and 2in. x 1in. to 12in. x 8in. rectangles. R.H.S. are available in mild steel or high yield steel and can be supplied to the following national specifications: B.S. 15, B.S. 968, DIN 17480, ST42/3 and ST32/3, SISI14111, ASTM A36.

Full details are available from the address below.

This Tower Crane was made by Pearson Tower Cranes Ltd. using R.H.S. for both the mast and jib. R.H.S. have been used in this structure because of their greater efficiency in compression and excellent torsional resistance. The crane, though lighter than a conventional one, is able to carry heavier loads.

3 MILES

The 100,000 mile beetle is no rarity. A large number achieve this mileage without so much as a scratch or a scratch. (This is East Africa.) Many are spending a happy holiday 200,000 miles. The latest beetle is now 1200. It's the fastest beetle of the line and 50 M.M.P.H. makes it the most lively too.

Consolidation gives 23 improvements over the heavy 1200 - more earth-shaking of making sense, making life easier on driver and passenger. Steering comes up only every 2000 miles now (not redoubled the last time). The rubber mounting is a pleasure to hop with. The independent suspension is the same (but still well ahead).

The price is 1242 in London.

If you own a Volkswagen already, and you're thinking of buying it on a new one, please yourself for the moment of truth that comes to every Volkswagener: Volkswagen keeps her value very steady.

On the other hand, you might want to try the 1200 on a test.

CHINA IN RHODESIAN DILEMMA
 TOO MUCH INFORMATION should not be left too soon over the proposed settlement under British supervision. Rhodesia's stability and future depend upon the maintenance of economic collapse, and even military intervention, they appear to be a small number.

Mr. Smith and his cabinet members over British officials, far from agreeing to any way have become hardened, maintaining the right to discuss in British satisfaction of their future of Rhodesia. Mr. Smith himself, making his bluff has been called, wants to withdraw, he will have to deal with a much smaller number of people who called for Smith's" when he defied Britain, he will not admit a failure.

Consequently, the decision to get together, even fortuitously, perhaps through a link in the lowering storm clouds. The leader of the All-Africa Council Party, the Chief Chapman, who is also leader of the official Rhodesian Franchise Committee, has been the development — and so does Sir Roy Welensky.

It is a second conference, which will be held in London, most careful attention; not such harsh treatment as the British in Rhodesia question ideas upon in the Security Council, demanding mandatory sanctions and the use of force, appears turned down by the Council earlier this month.

This is a provocation of the type Mr. Wilson is seeking to avoid by keeping British of African Commonwealth, which is a step towards the independence of Rhodesia, at least, should be made from making difficulties. Surely, patience can be exercised in the U.K. while waiting to see what the infernal talks bring forth. There is another danger, they can resort to their abusive campaign.

No reports in connection
 — As Mr. Wilson was set pains to tell the British Parliament, the proposed talks will be held in Rhodesia. The British Government, he emphasized, is not negotiating with the illegal régime, but he has continued to talk to see whether there is a basis on which proper negotiations can be resumed. Contact has continued for some time through the Governor, and Sir Humphrey Gibbs's conduct in the U.K. while waiting to see what the infernal talks bring forth. There is another danger, they can resort to their abusive campaign.

Mr. Smith's obstinacy has been evidenced by the dawn of realization that economic sanctions will succeed. British action of force, with U.K. approval, demands a determination to make the oil embargo complete and aid is the British Government, he says, is willing to accept a settlement which condones the illegal régime of independence, or does not satisfy the conditions laid down under his Administration and the previous Prime Minister for the onset of majority rule.

Informal talks are his first stage. Success there would lead to the second, that of direct negotiations. It will be the time when all the important constitutional issues will have to be thrashed out all over again, with far reaching implications for Mr. Smith and his followers. Only this time the way to those difficulties will have to be cleared by a consensus between the British and the other obstacles previously proved insuperable, and may be prevented at some to terms by both the South African and Portuguese Governments, as a consequence of continued British diplomatic pressure.

What are the prospects of success in the informal talks? Mr. Wilson has said "there is quite a lot we are prepared to forget and forgive," though he had previously been accused of having an "unconditional surrender" mentality. Nobody in the British Government, he says, is willing to accept a settlement which condones the illegal régime of independence, or does not satisfy the conditions laid down under his Administration and the previous Prime Minister for the onset of majority rule.

All could be in harmony on Lake Naivasha

KINDLY allow me to express my appreciation to the writer of the article in the Standard of the 15th inst. against the letter written by Mr. Ashleigh in his capacity of Permanent Secretary of Natural Resources, Wildlife and Tourism on the subject of power boats on Lake Naivasha.

As a Permanent Secretary for that Ministry he has remained very calm and has been able to deal with the matter as an individual in any other circumstances. It is a pity that some one addressed to him in this manner should have the right to ignore the views of the public. Halting the slow erosion of the land

Two specimens of Kikuyu were found about 100 feet up the hill into the summit towards the solitary specimen tree. One of them had a small, bleaching branch around the top of the tree, the branch was placed reversely against the trunk and left there. The specimen was ceremonially placed at the foot of the hole as the foreman prayed for forgiveness for what they were about to do.

The next morning, at the rising sun flushed the horizon. The holes returned and carried the branch into which they had placed the specimen some distance away. There they left the branch to rot for which purpose they cut down the ground — they cut down the of indifference — that, water, sand and mud — was carried on the shoulders of the men. It is even less difficult to understand the fate of a land of short but heavy rainfall and long dry periods, a land depending for a constant supply of water on the high rainfall in its hilly areas. A forest strip planted over the past number of years of irrigation in the Mau Mau area, the forest has been cut down, the trees have been cut down and the soil is being washed away by the wind, and is being carried to the sea.

The soil acts like a sponge, retaining the water slowly into the stream, making the land all the year round, not in the rain. The soil is being washed away by the wind, and is being carried to the sea. The soil is being washed away by the wind, and is being carried to the sea. The soil is being washed away by the wind, and is being carried to the sea.

SOME UNTOUCHED

When passing a path of some of the Mau Mau, the Kikuyu would always have some of the Witu trees, or bushes, in them. As each tree had some of the Witu trees, or bushes, in them, as each tree had some of the Witu trees, or bushes, in them, as each tree had some of the Witu trees, or bushes, in them.

Another example is to be found in the Mau Mau area, where many of the Witu trees, or bushes, in them, as each tree had some of the Witu trees, or bushes, in them, as each tree had some of the Witu trees, or bushes, in them.

'ONE FOR ONE'

According to Kenya's Chief Conservator of Forests, Mr. J. P. de Looze, Kenya would be a treeless country in a few years if the Government's 'one for one' scheme was not in operation.

For example, sometimes a single tree of a certain species is planted in a certain area, and the Government's 'one for one' scheme is in operation.

The job of the Government's Chief Conservator of Forests, Mr. J. P. de Looze, is to ensure that the 'one for one' scheme is in operation.

Although the search for firewood is a secondary aim of tree planting, the amount that can be carried away in each sortie, on a large scale, could make good roads into vital trees in a water-saturated area. This photograph was taken near Tale Market.

A forest cut on a hill in the Mau Mau area. When the forest was either cut or burned off, the rain washed the soil from the hilltop. Now terraces have been cut round the hill to prevent further erosion.

This small but flourishing 'magnolia' tree last planted two years ago by President Kenyan to mark the inauguration of Tree Planting Day. It is some 100 feet tall and stands, protected by fencing, on the site of the Eltham Stadium on the Langata Road.

Just past Wilson Airport, a large tree, the last that the late President Kenyan planted to mark the inauguration of Tree Planting Day. It is some 100 feet tall and stands, protected by fencing, on the site of the Eltham Stadium on the Langata Road.

LIONS' CONVENT A ROARING SUCCESS

THIS week's convention in Nairobi of the Lions Clubs of Africa and Southern Africa will, it was told, have far-reaching effects on the continent's lions' clubs and the new continent. The Lions International Director, who said that the progress of the delegates from 25 countries, and of 400 delegates, was most encouraging.

The Lions club in Nairobi, meeting will give a great boost to the lions' club movement. Today some are saying that Africa will see a "massive growth" in their work.

The theme of the convention was "Power Through Co-operation and the Great Work," including the Kenya delegation, headed by Mr. M. M. Kibaki, secretary of the club, and Mr. N. S. Mwangi, the secretary of their work in East Africa.

Among the detailed talks of the conference were:

- 1. That the central Executive of South-West Africa, and Africa be held in line in every way.
- 2. That Lions be expanded to include the island of Madagascar.
- 3. That work during the year be a "Prize is Attainable."

Rhino's 'deus ex machina' tells how they were saved

By Peter Macdonald

THE GREAT RHINOCEROS, by Nick Carter (David Desack, 30c)

THREE men, I understand, a large number of people in Kenya do not believe in Nick Carter. They believe that he, the whole business of playing darts with rhinos, are some sort of myth concocted by the Kenya Department in an attempt to justify a pleading for an addition to its very small slice of the national budget.

No doubt the appearance of a book attributed to Mr. Carter will reinforce the beliefs of such people, who will promptly accuse the Chief Game Warden of writing it and putting it on the market at a time when next year's financial day is being eyed.

It is a little over two years ago that the Government of Kenya, through the Kenya Department, announced that the Government was taking over the machinery of operation of the rhino parks, but never enough to do. VOYAGE by Laureate Frey

A DEBUT in an interesting field, both for the debutant and the attraction of Laureate Frey's book is "The Voyage," which tells the story of a young man's first voyage across the Atlantic Ocean. The author, a young man, tells us that he was born in the United States and that he had never before sailed on a ship. He describes the excitement of the voyage, the beauty of the sea, and the experiences of the crew. The book is written in a simple, straightforward style and is an excellent introduction to the world of seafaring.

Doing what comes naturally?

EVER seen glancing in the Natural Bridge, in Kentucky, is more than a sight. It is more a spectacle. You have to see it. It is a natural wonder of the world. The bridge is a single natural rock formation that spans the gap between two cliffs. It is a true marvel of nature.

TOWARDS RACE HARMONY

In Kenya

By John Roberts

RACIAL AND COMMUNAL TENSIONS IN EAST AFRICA

THE fact that day-dramas for residents in Kenya are almost entirely without drama is a reflection of the racial and communal tensions that exist in the country. The author discusses the impact of these tensions on the lives of ordinary Kenyans and offers suggestions for how to achieve racial harmony.

Study and cure

Before anything could be achieved, the reasons for the tensions must be studied and specific proposals made on the basis of such a study. A seminar was held in Nairobi in 1964 for just this purpose. The papers presented at that seminar and have been reprinted in the book "Racial and Communal Tensions in East Africa."

CANADA HAS A WORD FOR IT

FOR THE past few years, the word "Canada" has been used in a very different way from its original meaning. It is now used to describe a wide range of products, from clothing to furniture. This is a testament to the quality and variety of Canadian goods.

WILD RICE
The young crane seems quite at home on the grass on a desert of one of the club's outposts. He is described to have often people to approach, but his "keep off" expression still remains to touch.

Once the cubicle is obviously delighted with the attention he is receiving from the club's assistant manager, Mr. U. H. H. who comes from Switzerland. The bird is a gift from Mr. Ray Ryan to the club manager, Mr. John Paul Flory. It is already a great favorite with visitors, and particularly children. Those who gave a few moments to flick his head.

Mr. Ray Ryan seems to contemplate a new scheme as he looks of present being made on his latest project. In the background can be seen the island which he hopes will be a magnet for birds looking for a breeding ground.

PLAN AFRICA'S ECONOMIC FUTURE EQUAL OPPORTUNITIES

Friday, May 4, 1966. Nairobi, Telephone 24821-20

PHASED ECONOMIC PLANNING

WHEN CONSIDERING KENYA'S revised development plan, it would be as well to examine the basic factors. The Government's planning objectives, the principles associated in Kenya's manifesto and the African Socialism which form its fulfilment, have been the African Standard for several years. It is the country's plan to total K222,000 million from 1970.

On a broad basis, the plan is an achievement of a few years' growth of economic activity. The Government has set a target of 10 per cent annual growth in the economy as a whole, with a target of 12 per cent for the manufacturing sector. The Central Government's development plan is a broad-based plan, covering the entire country. It is expected to total 2,000 million shillings, or about 200 million dollars, over the next five years. The plan is to be financed through domestic resources, as well as through foreign aid.

Another departure from the economic mainstream is the Government's plan to set up a new department of Planning and Development. This is a new department, and its functions will be to coordinate the Government's planning efforts. It will be responsible for the preparation of the national development plan, and for the coordination of the various ministries' plans.

POLITICAL equality

It is not only a matter of the size of the country, but also a matter of the size of the population. Kenya is a large country, with a large population. This is a factor which must be taken into account in the planning process.

The Kenya Minister for Economic Planning and Development, MR. MBOYA, yesterday announced the revised Development Plan for 1966-7. He explained that it is based on the African Socialism, the Kenya Manifesto and the Sesiional Paper on African Socialism, and that it aims to increase per capita income while ensuring political equality, social justice, human dignity and equal opportunities. A condensed version of his speech is given here.

The number of targets in the plan is a reflection of the Government's commitment to economic growth and development. The plan is a broad-based plan, covering the entire country. It is expected to total 2,000 million shillings, or about 200 million dollars, over the next five years.

'Unseemly religious tribalism' in views on unity

BRILLIANT WHITE

An astounding new white paint is now being manufactured in East Africa...
Robbialac Brilliant White. Its claim: it's the whitest white paint you've ever seen!

Such brightness is revolutionary but hand-in-hand with it come other advanced features —

- Complete colour fastness. This is the one white paint that won't yellow with age.
- Greater strength. Robbialac white has twice the tensile strength of other white paints. That's economy.
- Long life. Robbialac white stays white, without fading.

KENYA SHOULD BE SWINGING AS JAZZ ENTERS THE SCENE

KENYA'S young people may soon be discovering something about jazz, as American composer, pianist and bandleader Duke Ellington and his band, the Ellington Big Band, are scheduled to arrive in Nairobi for an ordinary commercial performance. With them is an attractive, 20-piece orchestra of classical artists — Miss G. Brown — who has both the talent and the musical ability of a modern-day Duke Ellington.

In every corner of Kenya the Red Cross fights disease

There would seem little connection between M. Jam Hamid, a son of a Syrian butcher who immigrated through Italy in 1899, and a boy center caring for victims of malarial fever in the slums of Nairobi, the heart of Kenya's largest city. But he has lived in Kenya for 100 years, and Wambua, a woman who lives in the slums, says she would "never" be so healthy as she is now if she had somewhere to put the babies of a woman for the Red Cross, as we know it today, were operating in Nairobi, and ultimately stems from the ideas of a book which M. Hamid wrote a hundred years ago.

It has been the far from the best of the best of the best, the result of the daily application of the ideas of medical science, and the daily suffering of millions of people.

The book evoked the interest which ultimately resulted in the formation of the Red Cross in Kenya and throughout the world, knowing no color of race, and which works continuously to relieve suffering, the improvement of health and the care of the sick and injured.

It has some evidence of the connection between the different branches of this worldwide organization, and the efforts of the Red Cross in Kenya, which were recently described by members of October 1954 in London through the London branch of the Red Cross.

For the health and battle of London is a detailed list of the work done in Kenya, which has been a part of the world for hundreds of years.

It has had a hand in the work of the Red Cross in Kenya, which has been a part of the world for hundreds of years.

are you a good fast driver?

No need to be pedantic. Some say it's impossible to be good and fast. We disagree. Good fast drivers certainly exist, but they are rare. Such people have a natural aptitude for driving, quick reactions and good judgement. Your good fast driver has good judgement too when it comes to insurance. That's why he chooses a Minet's 'A.A.' Policy. It shows our Claim Service is second to none, and that the policy has extra benefits under its A.A. Motor Policy—higher coverage, medical expenses and towing charges, for instance. What's more, it's the only policy in our low premium—widely cover at a lower rate. Yes, it's a man of good judgement all right—are you? Give us a call or a call. We'll be glad to tell you more.

'Land, sea and air blockade'

In an allusion to the exploratory talks between British and Rhodesian officials in London, the draft drew the British Government's attention to "the harmful consequences which the present negotiations might entail for the establishment of regions based on universal suffrage."

VISITS BY RIVAL LEADERS

RIVAL visits of Soviet and Chinese leaders to Soviet capitals probably mean a strengthening of the latter ideological struggle against the United States.

Chiang Kai-shek's visit to Moscow and the de-facto Soviet leader, Nikita Khrushchev's visit to Peking, are seen as a sign of a new Sino-Soviet alliance.

The new
speaks both

The new NCR 500 Series computer stores basic loan data on magnetic tape bonded to each loan record. This data, in computer language, provides direct input to the computer. The borrower's loan profile, data, current status — it's all on the tape.

Hard-copy printout — clearly printed in understandable human language on the face of the loan record — is your confidential history record of each borrower's account ... always accessible, accurate and up-to-date.

More important — this stored data is the source for preparation of those reports you want fast for accurate managerial decisions. The NCR 500 Series computer system gives you Past Dues, Dealer Reserve and Holdback status, Interest Received, Refundable Interest and many more.

NCR — and only NCR — makes the flexible, expandable computer system that speaks the EDP language you want. Input and output on punched card, punched paper tape, magnetic ledger — with combinations of all three — give you options in system configuration. NCR provides 30 peripheral units, available for your selection. Each is compatible for most efficient support of the 500 Series computer.

When you rent or buy an NCR 500 system, you get the packaged program software for the job, plus experienced NCR personnel, seasoned by hundreds of going operations, to install your system and get it running to your satisfaction.

All of the best in a small computer system — and rentals start for as little as $419 a month. Now are we talking your language?

Katamani main — leader in the battle against famine

A TWO-PARTISAN effort to bring relief and assistance to the famine-stricken high valley districts has been launched by the National Famine Relief Committee, headed by the administration and assisted by the Department of Agriculture.

The committee, while preparing soup kitchens in the famine-stricken areas, is being assisted from last year's surplus stocks, and is also carrying out a campaign aimed at procuring more food for the stricken areas and increasing the area's food production.

A virtual nucleus of the relief work is the International Famine Relief Committee, which is operating in the Combermere area, of which the Government has favourable conditions under which it grows in Harrow and which has been one of the most successful in the world in producing food for its own people.

Today many paints that once passed for white are feeling off-colour

A BRILLIANT NEW WHITE PAINT MAKES ITS ARRIVAL

ROBBIALAC

BRILLIANT WHITE

An astounding new white paint is now being manufactured in East Africa, setting a new standard for brightness. Its name, Robbialac Brilliant White. Its claim: it's the whitest white paint you've ever seen!

Scientific tests in fact prove that Robbialac White is significantly brighter than other white paints. Most other white paints look off-white in comparison!

Such brightness is revolutionary. But hand-in-hand with it come other advanced features—

- Complete colour-fastness. This is the new white paint that won't yellow with age.
- Greater economy. Robbialac White has great filling power. Use a half pint of Robbialac White to cover the same area as a pint of other white paint.
- Long life. Robbialac White stays white, protects longer.

HUNGER AID HAMPERED BY HARD-DYING HABITS

By PETER JOB, New Delhi

MILLIONS of Indians may go hungry this year despite big imports of grain because they cannot obtain the right food for their traditional diet. One aspect of the P.A.O. problem, as an example, is the fact that the Government is unable to supply the quantities of grain needed for the traditional diet of the people. SERVICE TO OTHERS TEACHES WORK CAMP VOLUNTEERS TO LIVE TOGETHER

BEHIND the Voluntary Work Camps Association lies the idea of fostering the spirit of co-operation and understanding, and a desire to give service in a practical way which accords with the President's wish for the self-help "backbone".

By CYNTHIA HUNTER

To visit the Service Club International movement was planned in Europe to re-construct the bombed and fire-ravaged areas, and still continues, in a non-political, non-creed, non-social arena. The camps were organized to build the devastated areas in Europe and were for relief. They were now spread throughout the world and are supported by them.

Patients' houses

Interest in work camps in Kenya began in 1952 when British and American Quakers organized a five-term camp at Kakumai Mission. They built houses for 750 patients and redecorated wards and kitchens at the hospital. But it was not until 1962 that the Kenya Voluntary Work Camps Association was formed.

It is difficult to describe a typical camp because work is so different and has to be adapted to local conditions and the type of work needed. Over the last few years, teachers' houses, have been constructed, school buildings erected, hospitals, buildings renovated and repaired and water supplies installed.

Up from down

Among the most recent camps was one held last month at Karuri Rural Aid Mission, North Kenia, in which 41 volunteers took part including three Europeans and two West Indians. The project was to build a new water supply and dig out the old one. At more than 8,000 feet, the majority were not used to high mountain climate.

The camp's different people each day were up at 5 a.m. to make breakfast. The workers then tackled a mile to the site through cold, wet grass, tarrying paths, mud and rocks. Tools were provided by the local people.

At about 16:30 an hour, boxes carried a "week's work" to the workers, who had had the day's labour was over and usually the afternoon was spent reading.

On one day, a visit to the nearby "Farmers' Training Centre" was arranged, and an account of the whole party taken over the Aberdare Mountains were given over to discussions with the local people.

The organizing secretary, Mr. Cyril M. Munn, who has been working for the association since its inception, credits all these to the country.

And it is bound to interest university students and other people in social movements. Opportunities for short-term service could just be organized for young people who have not school but have not found any means of paid employment.

Five-fold

At the annual meeting to be held this week, the Kenya Voluntary Work Camps Association is launching an ambitious "development plan." The committee hopes to attract 100 workers by increasing the projects from 100 in 1970 to 500 this year, to 300 in 1975. This will increase the number of volunteers that can be taken on from 100 to 500. A project, where there are more volunteers than can be accepted, but also a large number of projects, will be organized.

The majority of volunteers are from the United Kingdom, but other countries are also represented.

Another sight in any country is a man with a shikho. But this one is working to help others. An old sign at the Kakumai Mission must be they met before the water supply was understood.

TALE OF TEDDY AND THE TOYMAKER

By SUSAN CARROLL

There was a lovely new girl in the nursery. Her name was Violetta. With her dark hair and bright yellow eyes she was the most beautiful baby that had ever been born.

Her mother and father were very kind and they loved her very much. They had a big house with a garden and a car. They were very happy and they loved to play with their baby.

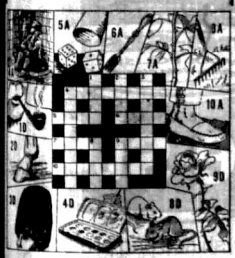

One day a wonderful thing happened. Violetta spoke for the first time. She said, "Teddy." Her mother and father were very surprised and they were very happy.

From that day on, they called her "Teddy" and she was very happy. She loved to play with her teddy bear and her dolls. She was a very good girl and she was very kind.

One day her mother and father were very busy and they had to go to work. They left her with her nurse and she was very happy. She played with her teddy bear and her dolls and she was very happy.

"What a wonderful idea," said Teddy, clasping his furry paws. "I will go and see him this very night."

And that night, as soon as the house was quiet, Teddy slipped out of the nursery and went to find the old Toy-maker. He had a long way to go before morning and had to hurry but he soon grew tired.

"I will sit on this box and rest a while," he decided. He was just about to go to sleep when he saw a shadow in the dark. It was the old Toy-maker. He was very old and he had a long white beard. He was very kind and he was very busy.

"Hello," said the Toy-maker. "What can I do for you?"

"Please may I have a new teddy bear?" said Teddy. "My old one is broken and I have no other one."

"Of course you can have a new one," said the Toy-maker. "I will make you a new one. It will be just like your old one. It will be just like your old one."

The Toy-maker worked very hard and he made a new teddy bear for Teddy. It was just like his old one. It was just like his old one.

When the Toy-maker finished, he said, "Here you are. It is just like your old one. It is just like your old one."

£250,000 FACTORY OPENED IN NAIROBI

CONSIDERABLE scope existed for the expansion of the electrical manufacturing industry in Kenya, the Minister for Commerce and Industry, Mr. Kibaki, said yesterday when he opened the new factory of East African Cables Ltd. in Nairobi.

Kenya's outlook
The general situation of the economy was vital if the under-developed countries were to enter the industrial age. The Government was hoping that those who had the "know-how" and capital would be willing to put their resources at the disposal of the country and, in the turn, Mr. Kibaki said Kenya could not allow the present situation in which most of its exports were expatriates employed at exorbitant salaries to continue. "We fully realize that if Kenya is to develop we must build our own base of highly qualified technical and administrative personnel," he said. Making an appeal to people to "Buy Local" he said Kenya's capital and the only way to raise money for development was for the people to help the local industries.

The £250,000 factory has been built in only five months and local materials have been used throughout its construction.

The Minister said the people of Kenya had great capacity. They realized that only through manufacturing could they become a nation. They must not rely only on exports of raw or semi-processed products.

The Minister pointed out that the amount of industrial production in Kenya was £10,000,000 for the whole of East Africa. He said that the Government was trying to encourage local industries to purchase as much of their raw material needs as possible within the country.

He declared: "Although we already have many factories, we still require a great deal more. The figures I have just quoted show that we are a tremendous country for expansion in this industry."

Drain on exchange
Mr. Kibaki complained that the drain on the exchange was £10,000,000 in the project and that the Government was fully committed to increasing economic development and encouraging further investments in both the public and private sectors.

Since there are not many cable factories in Africa at present, we hope East African Cables Ltd. will also succeed in establishing itself as an exporter of electric cables. An extensive programme of technical assistance, training and transport equipment, both in Kenya and in other countries, will be carried out by the Government.

Services that are often taken for granted

R. E. COOPER, Electrical Engineer, discusses electric cables and their application and installation.

THOSE people who are taking a holiday this year on one of the more remote parts of the East African Coast will no doubt enjoy the fishing, boating and swimming during the day.

But in the evenings when they return to the beach to relax and enjoying the breeze and watching the stars, they will realize how much they take for granted the services provided for them at the turn of a hand or automatically by electricity.

Most of the necessary to ensure electricity in a town or village is the distribution of energy generated at a central generating station. This is done by the way to the consumer by means of high voltage cables which are stepped down to the voltage used by the consumer.

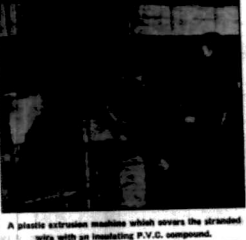

The cables have been grouped by the different voltages electrically, and the engineering with the accompanying distribution is being carried by electric, thermally insulated, under-ground or overhead lines. In line with these services...

FROM HUMBLE BEGINNINGS...

... a giant industrial complex

FROM a small manufacturing business founded on the strength of demands for field-telephone cables during the First World War, East Africa Cables has grown into one of the largest companies of its type in Europe and one of the largest in the manufacture and development of electric cables.

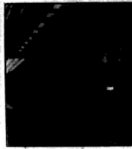

FROM ZAMBIA

It is in the United Kingdom that the "mother" copper mines of the company are situated. It is also a limited extension of the company within the group - Eastern Mining Mills - which works a site of more than 10 acres, 15 miles to the north of London.

An aerial view of the massive industrial development of East Africa Cables and Eastern Mining Mills near London.

They have, of course, been extensively used in carrying power to many parts of the world. East Africa Cables has been manufacturing cables for many years, and has many locally owned enterprises in many parts of the world, including the Kenya factory in the first world, which plant is the only one of its kind in the world. The company has a wholly owned subsidiary in the United Kingdom, through which it carries out its business in the United Kingdom.

CABLE CONTRASTS

might. There is, in addition, the subject difficulty of finding sufficient physical copper supplies to meet outstanding orders.

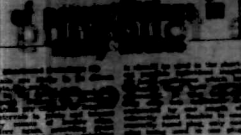

The copper-producing nations, which are raising their prices to such a high level, would have serious repercussions for them and lead to a shortage of copper for the world and have been making provision for their copper for several years to the aluminium in cable manufacture in increasing quantities. Recently the price of copper has increased by the major producing countries - America and Chile - have experienced a shortage of copper, and the price of their basic raw material has risen sharply.

"SPIDERS WEB"

Rather, then talk about the spider web of cables that is being spun in the world. It is a spider web of cables that is being spun in the world. It is a spider web of cables that is being spun in the world. It is a spider web of cables that is being spun in the world.

Two pictures that show the progress in the transport of cables. Left, a specially designed transporter of East Africa Cables' parent company prepares to pass through the Dartford-Purfleet Tunnel under the Thames. Right, a flashback to 1922 when tyres were often used and steam was still widely used for heavy transport.

Warning

It should be noted in the above illustration that the spider web is being spun in the world. It is a spider web of cables that is being spun in the world. It is a spider web of cables that is being spun in the world.

WEIGHT FACTOR

Weight factor of cables is a very important factor in the selection of cables for use in power transmission. It is a weight factor of cables that is being spun in the world. It is a weight factor of cables that is being spun in the world.

THERE'S A WORLD OF EXPERIENCE IN EVERY GENERAL MOTORS PRODUCT

Is it fear that makes husbands talk of the 'little woman'?

It is a common-sense theory that men have been scared by the subject of women in Parliament. As far back as 1904, British women were asking for a voice in their country's affairs.

In 1910 they were no further back. What is there to be afraid of now? As far as they are concerned, they have no fear of being women.

Can it be that men are afraid of the change? Are they afraid of their own wives? Are they afraid of the change? Are they afraid of their own wives? Are they afraid of the change?

Ignoring the single woman who is a nobody in the eyes of the man who can run her life for her, there is a vast world of the married woman.

It is in my own view that the wife is jealous of their own husbands in any but the best sense.

Best from Kenya and overseas on show at homes exhibition

THE old and the new in Kenya via with what offer in a combined all-styles hand-work and modern handiwork at the third Homes Exhibition which opened at the City Hall on Wednesday and continues until tomorrow, with Kenyan and overseas handiwork hangings and Church linen add a cosmopolitan touch.

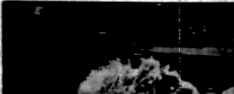

Making away from the west-work table and lamp which have been popular for a long time, the Kenyan handiwork is also very much in evidence. The Kenyan handiwork is also very much in evidence. The Kenyan handiwork is also very much in evidence.

Estimate of Nehru is also portrait of a giant nation

FELIX HAGGAR, of Nairobi, who was Chief of News in India for Agnes France Press from 1935 to 1938 and later Editor of News, writes: "Nehru: A Contemporary Estimate" by Walter Crane (Allen Lane, 25s.). See also Review in the Australian Home, Commentary in Kenya.

HERE is a book which will bring the reader much more than the title promises. It is not only an "estimate" of Jawahar Nehru, but an explanation of Hindustani, a picture of Hindu society, a gallery of sharp portraits of many Indian personalities, and a political history of India from independence (1947) to 1949 (1954).

It is a fair and honest study written by a man who has known both Nehru and his country. It has the dramatic quality of a novel, the history of a single man coping with the complex problems in a huge country of more than 400 million people, and the wit and wit of a man who has seen and heard many things in his country.

The book is better because the author writes in an understanding spirit, not like the man who writes about his own people with a certain amount of self-righteousness. He writes that "most people find it difficult to understand why Nehru has not done more for his country. He has done more than any other man in his country."

The title is flippant and clever, not a cheap one. It stands in political literature as a happy advertisement such as "Like many other countries, India has a great future." It is a book which will give the reader a clear and accurate picture of the man and his country.

WESTLAND AIRCRAFT LIMITED YEOWIL ENGLAND

The latest Westland turbine helicopters provide high speed, point-to-point transport, irrespective of terrain and climatic conditions. They can take off from and land on very small sites and are the ideal means of rapid, point-to-point travel. The Scout is the British Army's model of all work and has proved invaluable for reconnaissance, communications and light transport. It can carry up to 8 passengers or 5,000 lb. of freight to any point within 170 miles of its base at a speed of 150 knots. The larger Whirlwind can also take its load to a variety of sites. It can carry up to 10 passengers or 2,000 lb. of freight over distances up to 100 n. miles. The Scout's other possible roles include casualty evacuation, air/sea or mountain rescue, pilot training and anti-aircraft towing. Whirlwind will transport up to 18 passengers or 4,000 lb. of freight for 200 n. miles at 150 knots to two base stations. "Glimor" turbines, each giving 1,300 h.p., provide outstanding low height and engine-out performance with a high degree of safety for night and weather and over water operations. The Scout, Whirlwind and Whinex keep Westland lead on front in high speed, high capacity point to point transport.
