1929 Group sales total 65 million... STRONGLY COMPETITIVE MARKETING CONDITIONS

CONDITIONS in the London Stock Markets were quiet and unsettled yesterday because of an international solution.

Generally there was very little movement in prices and no definite trend was indicated.

The total capital expenditure of the Group in 1933 amounted to £12 million, an increase of £3 million on 1932.

Turning to the general position of the industry, it is stated that the petroleum trade is likely to have to face the difficulties of a severe winter.

It is to be hoped that the increasing reserves from new discoveries will come into the supply pattern in a steady and increasing manner.

The report then gives a list of the principal petroleum enterprises in production and exploration.

TWO NAIROBI HOUSEWIVES

RUN A 'PRIVATE POLICE FORCE'

NIGHT was falling and with it the green shutters of a dukka in Nairobi's bazaar area. As the owner carefully packed his day's takings into a brief-case three men, pangas beneath their coats, stirred in the shadows. A Neither the owner nor his taking reached the home. He was treated in hospital for brutal punches about the head. The money was being lardishly spent by his assailants in the

This is the sort of crime that aims to combat. The National Security Bureau is planning to operate a fleet of armoured vehicles with a crew of armed men — to pull out of shops prior to closing, collect their takings and transport them to the nearest police lock of a bank. They will also guard premises.

When "Nairobi's private police force" gets its plan into effect it will have become the second unusual force in East Africa's private security organisations.

At present it is the only

AIDED PARENTS

The only lack of khaki is to organisations for women. It was January last year that Mrs. Stella Fennell and Mrs. Alida Trafford, both of Nairobi, set on the lines of forming the bureau.

At first they specialised in the security of private property and the maintenance of order in these two women would see to it that no unbecome part, but a Now, the organisation has grown and recently signed a contract to guard one of the city's largest building sites —

More than a company's strength of ex-servicemen are employed by the organisation. "We prefer that they are former Army types as they are used to discipline," Mrs. Hume said.

Each evening we carry out lighting checks on all our men, many of whom are again serving with their former F.C.D.s. To make sure that they do not even attempt to sleep on the job. Dogs are kept under it, barked to

FINE RECORD

The organisation is run on such thorough lines that records, including fingerprints, are kept of all employees.

Although the objective of the organisation is the prevention of crime there have been instances when they have apprehended a thief.

At a V.I.P. road security a dog handler surprised two men who were in the process of gaining entry through the roof of the building. He arrested them both and handed them over to the police.

While the guards are on duty, the women have had no occasion to adjust property and raised the alarm. Their men, too, are a great help to the police because once it is known that they are guarding property in a certain area, the police can send their patrols accordingly.

Every individual and organisation is judged of its record. The record of the bureau speaks for itself — not one theft, not one assault and not one case of damaged property occurred while watch while you sleep.

Looking to the Land—4 . . . . . LAIKIPIA

RANCHER'S LOT IN KENYA NOT AN EASY ONE...

By JEAN VAUGHAN

RANCHING to the townsmen—if it does not conjure up memories of Wild West films, cowboys and round-ups—probably sounds an easy, idle way of farming. Just leave the cattle to wander and graze the wide plains and wait for the money. Life on the big ranches of Laikipia today is much more complicated, and much harder work, than that.

It involves finding and piping new water supplies, paddocking and improving grazing, improving stock, inoculations and constant vigilance and anxiety. Admittedly, improving stock, inoculations and constant vigilance and anxiety. Admittedly, improving stock, inoculations and constant vigilance and anxiety.

'At the age of 85 Mr. C. A. Forester still rides about his farm every day.

MAIZE UNSUITABLE
Mr. Forester has seen how Laikipia ranching began and developed. For he started his farm in 1926 under the modern settlement scheme which was then known as the First World War Settlement.

LOW PRICES
Over the inter-war years of trial and error and low prices for cattle, Mr. Forester made many improvements. In the Second World War he had built one dip and carried out a number of other improvements.

But those were hard times when few ranchers had money to put considerable money back into the land and carry out the improvements.

FIVE DAMS
This has involved five dams, a borehole, which pumps it through a 2,000-gallon concrete reservoir on an hill, from which troughs and paddocks are supplied and irrigated.

Today these hard times have changed. For Mr. Forester has had a flock of 4,000 sheep, but his wife and partner have had a flock of 4,000.

SHEEP DISEASE
In the early 30s, Nairobi sheep disease, which the flocking sheep brought with them, had a devastating effect on the flock.

Mr. Forester's first cattle were bought from the Somali trader. Today he has nearly 2,000 head and needs a flock of 100 steers at a time for the Kenia Meat Commission. It became apparent after ten years that the area had also deteriorated.

CAREFUL CONTROL
There are many rocky patches where some grass grows, but the soil is very hard and the water is difficult to get to the surface. There are about 100 acres of this water, two and a half feet high, and four feet high, all built by hand.

Mr. Forester has had a flock of 4,000 sheep, but his wife and partner have had a flock of 4,000.

COVER AND CAMOUFLAGE HELP
This dip was dug out of solid granite and the displaced stone was used to build the walls, seen on the right.

water about the farm, and another two miles are to be put in this year.
Mr. Forester has had a manager to help him for 20 years and in 1953 advised to separate, stone-built, man-made reservoirs.

WEDDINGS OF THE WEEK

gives into making of bouquets

Floralist is like fine needlework. It takes patience and skill.

Every florist has her book of wedding bouquets. A glance shows the same lines and bouquet, in fact each leaf and flower, in fact every thing a florist has to remember, when weight, the style of the bouquet, the material, the height of the bride and whether she is slim or of the plump type are among the many points to be remembered.

The bride-to-be usually has good ideas on what flower the bouquet and for her hair and for her dress. She will keep with the idea in the background. The florist has listened her ideas and asked her advice.

AT the reception after their wedding at St. Matthew's Church, Eldoret, Mr. and Mrs. Colin Dawson pose for their picture. The bridegroom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Iver Dawson, of Stratford-upon-Avon, England.

His bride, Miss Diana Jane Alison Hingston, is the only daughter of the late Mr. G. L. A. Hingston and Mrs. R. W. Hall, of Eldoret. She wore a white and silver lace dress over net and white taffeta, full length and with a train, a short white veil and carried a bouquet of red roses. Two bridesmaids attended her. (Photo: Firmin.)

MADE LIGHTER

The flowers and the leaves can be tied to match the dress, though most florists do not care to do this as it gives an artificial look.

The more "natural" a bouquet looks, the more valuable it generally goes to. It should be in weight so that they will not sag and hang like a leaden factor. Heavy flowers have to be kept in the case of a little help in the case of a little help in the case of a little help.

FEELING STALE AT SUNDAY?

Get morning freshness with Radox. Add a little Radox to your morning bath, and you will find your skin and hair more fresh and clean. Radox is a natural soap, made from the best of nature's gifts. It is gentle on the skin and does not irritate. It is the only soap that is good for the skin and hair. It is the only soap that is good for the skin and hair.

WHITE BRIDE CAN MISS THE RED

By GWEN ROBYNS

Do you have a question about it? "We think it is right to insist on a white wedding."

Well, that is a problem that affects many Kenya brides. Frankly, I am all for white weddings. Men are so apt to forget that whether a woman is a dabbler or a shoggy she is a girl. Talking a good realistic view of a white wedding need not find you much more than civil ceremony. And you can step out in white and still not feel the pinch in your purse.

Right after service you and the bride-to-be will find the best time of the day to choose for the wedding or about 11 a.m. or 3 p.m. In either case all you need is a few marks at home and a good punch.

I had my after-the-wedding reception in our new living room. The girls had their own party. The girls had their own party. The girls had their own party.

WORD FOR IT

By BOB FARRIER

IN December, 1873, an English soldier, Maj. Walter Wingfield, "invented" lawn tennis. He called it "Sphairistike", after the Greek word for "playing at balls" And without knowing it, Maj. Wingfield made possible Wimbledon as we know it today, the English citadel of the international tennis.

"Sphairistike" was made commercially packed into the type of box that used to house the game of croquet then fashionable, and was to be played by both sexes with the utmost decorum on garden lawns. Hence the name of lawn tennis which soon took the place of "Sphairistike", classical but clumsy.

PROPER CLUB

It was based on the very ancient game of court tennis and had a net five feet high at the posts, meeting the feet in the centre. The rackets were heavy and pear-shaped, the ball was cork and the ball unoversized and the ball unoversized.

Club-court balls came along in 1877. The court was shaped like a horseshoe, playing lines were from the back, which was started at a point in the middle of the court, and the Duke of Beaufort.

It was a very exclusive tennis, although some of the best players in the world were to be seen at it. It was a very exclusive tennis, although some of the best players in the world were to be seen at it.

The only event was the Gentlemen's singles value 12 guineas, with a silver challenge cup valued at 25 guineas. There were 22 entrants, six were amateurs and five were professionals.

INCENTIVES MUST BE OFFERED TO RETAIN STAFF

EXPATRIATE staff servants should be given a free choice to leave the New Kenya as the time of transition approaches, but positive incentives should be provided to induce them to continue to serve, the Kenya Parliamentary Group has said.

It deplores the fact that individuals who do not want to leave are being offered no financial incentives. The Government must be encouraged to offer incentives to those who are willing to stay.

The group makes these points on the future of the Civil Service in Kenya:

- 1-The present high standard must be maintained.
- 2-The position Kenya must create of all possible officers of all races and grades, including retired officers, must be safeguarded.
- 3-Kenya cannot afford the whole cost of a compulsory retraining of all possible officers of all races and grades. The Government must be encouraged to offer incentives to those who are willing to stay.

RECRUITING GROUND

The group says it will use its influence to ensure that obligations of honours which were several years ago made by the Government to the United Service from which all requirements of the Civil Service will be met. It is recommending that the Government should be encouraged to offer incentives to those who are willing to stay.

JUBILEE FOR SOUTH AFRICANS

By Basil Deskin

Afrikaans folk dancers of the Ekefert Volkspaleis perform before Ekefert-Town Hall.

It is a tragedy that the Golden Jubilee of the foundation of the Union of South Africa, which is celebrated today, occurs at a time when the Afrikaans of the Union, and with it many other states, is in the shadow of a dark future which shows no signs of early dissolution.

The history of South Africa since the early of 1900 is a story of the growth of the Afrikaner community. In the early days of the settlement of the Orange Free State and the Transvaal, the Afrikaner people were united in their struggle against the British.

Other Afrikaans families followed in the path of those men and women from the South who were not afraid to brave the dangers of the sea to be free. They were to be the first to establish a community which established its own school and its own church.

Most 'hung' woman at academy...

NO woman has been so 'hung' so often in the Royal Academy as Lady Kelly. Arvidson, an ex-Kelley, a past-president of the Academy, says that Kelly is a 'hung' woman who has been 'hung' so often that she is a 'hung' woman.

AT ELDOROT
 Today, people of South Africa begin to feel the arrival of the first Vortrekker of the 10th anniversary of the Union itself.

CRUCIAL RUGBY FLAG GAME TOMORROW

Scots again beaten by odd goal

FIRST holders of the new National District Rugby Championship permit may possibly be beaten tomorrow afternoon at Parklands between the Wanderers and Hartwigs. Both sides have won all tomorrow and put them in a strong position to become the first holders of the new flag.

This is not to detract the Wanderers who cannot be discounted and, at that they could retain the flag and even, only one N.D.C. match and a National District (where matches played since are worth half a dozen more points) before Monday becomes clearer after Nonescripts in an N.D.C. fixture.

Hit by injuries

INJURIES has arisen, while by no means crucial, have been less serious than in recent past seasons. But neither Nonescript nor Hartwigs

As good a game as possible between two sides, as evenly matched as possible, the objective has what can be foreseen as they have been beaten at goal by being a side exclusively from (Division 1) players. The whole idea of the new flag is to give a game to players who have been beaten at goal by a 1 grade. And Division II has introduced many new teams this season. To prevent a similar double players is a regular of the entire season of Division II. It was the consistent and persistent violation of the rule permitting only one "guest" player in a team that came close to wrecking the National Commercial Soccer League. The new ruling could do much the same to the Max League.

Here and there

NAIROBI could well do with another strong beating and even matters out a bit and after Hartwigs 2-0 defeat of Wanderers on Saturday E.P.C. on Saturday 1-0. It was the consistent and persistent violation of the rule permitting only one "guest" player in a team that came close to wrecking the National Commercial Soccer League. The new ruling could do much the same to the Max League.

LES JACKSON BRECKES GLAMORGAN

Dexter ahead of calendar in race for 1,000 runs

JIM LAKER BANNED AT THE OVAL

JIM LAKER, the famous Surrey and England bowler, has been banned from the scene of some of his greatest Test matches—the Oval in London—by the Surrey County Cricket Club for interfering with the progress of a match by being on the field when he was not supposed to be.

HIGHLIGHT of the English county cricket calendar is the English bowler's season for 1957. Les Jackson, who topped the English bowling averages for 1956, has now taken 101 wickets in 15 matches, an average of just under 18 runs per wicket. The Surrey captain, Ted Dexter, kept the calendar in his race to be the first man since 1928 to score 1,000 runs in May with a fine 106 against Surrey in a devastating four-over spell after tea.

South Africans all out 145

The South Africans lost their last innings in the first Test against Cambridge University at Cambridge yesterday, were demolished by a 100-run margin in the second Test at Cambridge yesterday, and were again defeated by Cambridge yesterday.

Close of play

Close of play yesterday was as follows: Cambridge 145 (100 runs, 100 minutes, 100 wickets); South Africa 145 (100 runs, 100 minutes, 100 wickets).

ENGLAND UNDER-23 WORTHY WINNERS

ENGLAND, though let down by weak finishing in front of goal, were worthy winners in an Under-23 football international at Wembley.

The long periods the English played for more solid support than their opponents had to hold the ball too long in their attacks.

POINTER FOR DERBY TODAY

THE Derby Trial Stakes run at Lingfield today brings out just a small field but usually prove a pointer for the derby and I expect to see Marrugo enhance his Derby prospects by an easy victory, writes 'Horsepower'.

Marrugo was not fully wound up when scoring easily at Radiation over four furlongs at Sandown and at his best.

Philips, after his duress with the Greenham Stakes, was disappointed in his race at Gatwick where he ran after six furlongs and is not interested to see how he runs here.

Any danger to Marrugo may come from an easy victory over the Chertsey and Foxton on the Chester Yearling in the Midday Star Handicap over two miles today. Tall but only a slight look, Tall Mince has limited success on both his recent outings.

He was beaten three lengths in the Midday Star Handicap at Sandown and the trial for the Derby is a very important one for him. He has a 100-1 chance of making all the running.

Bumped out—Angals, who had three races in the last year, was pulled out in the early stages of the Derby trial for the Derby on the 10th of May. He was a 100-1 chance of making all the running.

Boxing upsets—Frank Carey, an untried points writer at an upset in the Derby trial for the Derby on the 10th of May. He was a 100-1 chance of making all the running.

Communal poll for reserved seats urged

THE Convention of Associations, meeting in Nairobi, elected with no dissent a resolution stating that European candidates selected to reserved seats under the new Constitution should be chosen by their own people and should not appeal on the votes of any other race.

LAND PLAN NO AID TO RESTORING CONFIDENCE

THE pilot scheme to subdivide land in the White Highlands into 50-acre plots is inadequate to meet existing conditions and will have little or no effect in restoring confidence.

It was important that the sum of the larger estates should be used for the purchase of all types of land, not merely those areas of high potential to which the Minister's scheme appeared to be confined, they report adding.

A fair valuation The members were unanimous that in the event of expropriation, farmers should obtain the full value of the land and also any value lost.

They were also unanimous that the Government should make funds available for the valuation of land at a fair valuation, to restore confidence so that if and when a farmer wishes to sell he will be assured of a reasonable return.

The value of the farms should be based on the potential productivity of the land at the date of sale, and should be related to the price of the agricultural land sold and to the normal conditions.

Drive to aid African industry FIRMS SLOW TO LEAVE TOWNS SAYS MINISTER

Every effort is being made to develop African industry in Kenya, the Minister for African Affairs, Dr. Kioko, said today. He was replying to a question on the draft estimated expenditure of £23,853 voted by the Ministry for 1960-61 and subsequently approved by the House.

Dr. Kioko stressed Members that he would look into the possibility of increasing the part which the Industrial Development Corporation could play in providing information about the development of industries in other parts of the world. He said that he had hoped Kenya would benefit from this initiative and creditworthy, with the aid of the fund underwritten by the Government.

Replying, Dr. Kioko said that during the session in 1959, he had introduced a bill in private members' time to allow the State to be a partner in the development of industries in other parts of the world.

He said that he was a member of a committee which was appointed to study the possibilities of increasing the part which the Industrial Development Corporation could play in providing information about the development of industries in other parts of the world.

THREE DANGERS STILL STALK AFRICA'S GAME

By David Alexander

On the vast rolling plains of East Africa, where wild game roams in a profusion to be found nowhere else in Africa, three dangers are threatening its survival. These dangers are hunting, poaching and a plague.

Hunting of the legal type is the least of these dangers. Gone are the days when a "white hunter" took parties of foreign visitors into the great game areas and allowed them to slaughter indiscriminately elephants, rhinos and lions.

Now, the game protection laws are rigid—and strictly enforced. Licenses to hunt are severely restricted and, anyway, the most popular form of shooting has gone among Americans and other visitors for a "shooting" with a 16-millimetre cine camera.

Only the rich can afford the "white hunter" game safaris. In air-conditioned cars, the visitors are whisked around the great reserves of Serengeti, Tsavo and Amboseli with occasional treks on foot to well-appointed camping places. The rich, elderly visitors expect luxury even in camp—and they get it.

At the camping sites there are hot baths and dining rooms. The "white hunter" clientele on safari in Tanganyika and Kenya are said to take with 44 kippers, 500 miles from his wife in Nairobi.

CAKE IN CAMP

And the white hunter and his assistants solemnly sing "Happy Birthday" to the millionaire playboy who starts and among the mosquitoes of the African night. The millionaires are not to be envied on such a diet. It is carefully prepared for them on hand and laid where and how they can enjoy it. It can cost $2,000 for a 14-day salet with Kenya's more famous hunters.

The animals are in much greater danger from their traditional enemies, the African poachers. But today the poachers have abandoned their traditional methods.

Recently, the Kenya Legislative Council, the Director of the Kenya National Parks, Col. Mervyn Craw, complained that poaching had reached such proportions that 600 out of the 1000 business cars and motor vehicles are equipped with automatic rifles.

BIG BUSINESS

By the time the Game Scout, equipped with an obsolete British Army 303 rifle, and on foot, gets to the scene of the slaughter, all he finds are tyre tracks and the scattered remains of the animal.
The big-business poaching syndicate find that their trade has ample compensation for the slight risk involved. They and their associates, who are not of the East for its rugged, proper as an aphrodisiac, can be used for $25 per day. The custodians of the National Parks are unable to report any success in its campaign. But the biggest cloud which hangs over the parks is the poaching which has threatened the unique wildlife of the East. In the recent volcanic crater of Mount Kenya, in the East of Africa, more than 100 animals were killed in the

of this case will become severely depopulated. This is what some of the African politicians hope that this article will change when responsible African politicians take a part in responsible Government. But at the moment, this cloud of apprehension hangs over the plains of Kenya with no sign of dissipating.

These three dangers, two of them very real and indeed threaten to cloud the world's view of the East African continent. It is a sense of urgency, a feeling which has been expressed by the United Nations and the African continent. The Government is protecting the game of the African people. The land reserved for wild life is used in most other ways of the world.

DARING, THE STEPPING-STONE TO PROGRESS

From the earliest times, man has been compelled by the urge to conquer the unknown. Yet the true spirit of conquest does not always show itself in exploits of a spectacular kind. In the background, urged on by their bold and daring spirit, men of the world have done their best in all kinds of ways to make the world a better place to live in. It is the true spirit of conquest that has made possible the civilization of our day.

The LONGINES master watchmakers of Grenchen, Switzerland, have been able to give concrete expression to this spirit of progress and conquest. Theirs is a watch which is a source of inspiration in the realization of great and beautiful watches.

OLD SMOKEY RUNS PUFF PIPE

By ROBINA WRIGHT

Old Smokey was a giant as harmless and good-tempered one. He was famous for smoking pipes, hanging round his house—one for every day of month and extra ones for special days. The great fields of tobacco have been planted since he was a child. But sometimes Old Smokey would look after his fields personally. He did not have enough tobacco and he was a most particular man. That mixture made a most desirable smoke when he put it in his pipe. He would rub it in his pipe, puffing away, and the smoke would come out, ever-smoked across the plain. He liked to smoke from the strange and heretic smoke.

will about the angry chief. He called his servants and they all picked up smoking pipes and threw water on him! They screamed, "We've put out his pipe! Run after poor Old Smokey!"

The giant heard the shouting and he was shouting "Run away! Run away! Run away!" He strode across the plains and up the slopes of hills. "That will do!" he thought, "nearly all the people are gone now." But the people were trained and they were trained to run after their smoke. They ran after their smoke on the rim of a mountain, and they ran after their smoke on the rim of a mountain. When he saw that all the people were gone, he saw that all the people were gone. He saw that all the people were gone.

Christopher Cricket tells the Shadows of his zoo adventures

By MAX TRELL

I HAD quite an adventure yesterday afternoon, and Christopher Cricket and I went to the zoo. We had just come out from behind the large bridge in the fireplace when I saw a boy named King and a girl named Hand, the two shadow children with the Turned-About Names, sitting on the back steps of the house in the pleasant morning sunshine. "What are you doing here?" I asked them. "We are going to the zoo," said King. "We are going to see the animals," said Hand. "What are you doing here?" I asked them. "We are going to the zoo," said King. "We are going to see the animals," said Hand.

NEXT STOP ...

By this time, King and Hand were so worked up about Christopher's mysterious letter that they began talking about it. "What is it?" asked King. "It is a letter from Christopher," said Hand. "It is a letter from Christopher," said Hand. "It is a letter from Christopher," said Hand.

Kericho aims at KISUMU municipal status GROUP'S SUCCESS

"Standard" Correspondent
A MEETING of the Kericho Urban Council was held on Monday night to discuss the recommendation of its Constitution Review Committee that the district should be elevated to become a municipality within the Nyanza County.

The committee met 10 days after the three district councils (Kericho, Nyanza and Kisumu) had been asked to review their constitutions for incorporation in a county council constitution. The committee's decision was to recommend that the district should be elevated to municipal status.

The deputy clerk explained the implications of the proposal and pointed out that the area could be a completely self-contained township and body — it could either have its own municipal council or be part of a county council. The committee was told that the elevation of local government areas in Kenya was a gradual and piecemeal step by step process.

JEANES SCHOOL SHOWS THE WAY TO A TRADE AND CITIZENSHIP

By David Saxby

If ever Jeanes School, Kabete, is in the news it is because of footballers in training, Olympic trials, visiting American athletes or something of that sort. But there is very much more to it than that.

Last year 1,000 students went through the school in 40 courses lasting from five days to nine months and covering 30 different fields of activity.

Seventy-seven were farmers, 126 traders and shopkeepers, 51 potential foremen, 78 youth leaders, 32 members of workers' councils and men who are learning the elements of responsible trade unionism and 45 adult literacy teachers.

The school has both men's and women's sections and houses about 150 men and women at any one time, in addition to the specialist subjects, the accent is on citizenship.

The idea is that anyone who attends a course at Jeanes School should leave knowing a great deal more about Kenya, its history, its economy, its government and its position in the world.

U.S. BENEFACTOR

When the school was founded in 1924 it took its name from an American philanthropist, Miss Jeanes, who had devoted her life to the improvement of rural education.

When she died she left her money to the Carnegie Trust and from the trust it has been set up to fund Jeanes School.

In those early days the students were teachers who were trained not only to improve their teaching but in every aspect of improved living.

During the war the school was used by the Royal Army Educational Corps and in the immediate post-war period, it being centre for soldiers returning to civilian life.

Then, in 1930 the school was re-organized on its present lines as the Community Development Department and is now managed by the Government.

The 250 acres on which it stands include a model farm of about 100 acres and a women's shamba for the use of the women's section.

On the men's side there are four European and five African staff and four European and five Africans teach the women students.

The women's school has its own headmistress, although the head of the men's school has overall responsibility.

The teaching strength of the school is supplemented by expert instructors who are borrowed from outside departments and organisations.

These range from veterinary research workers from the Agricultural Department to experienced Government officers who give lectures to Chiefs attending courses to help them in their work.

DISTRICT BASIS

The many farmers who attend courses at the school are selected by their District Agricultural Officers and are encouraged to improve their knowledge and keep up to date with their techniques.

These courses are arranged on a district basis so that all the farmers on the course come from the same district. The income funds out from the

It's a 'dream house'—yet economically built to a sound design with modern materials. One interesting feature of this cool and comfortable chalet at Limuru is its roof construction of Universal Canada Tile Asbestos Cement sheets.

These tiles happily match the style of the house with a result that's harmonious and pleasing. But of equal interest to the prospective house-owner are the other advantages that come with the use of Asbestos Cement:

- * Economy in cost of material
- * The minimum of heat absorption
- * Lightness and easy construction
- * Choice of five tile colours

World will eat much more sugar

THE world faces a sugary future according to reports of the National Food and Agricultural Organization which says heavy consumption will soon be largely confined to advanced countries, and that under-developed areas are the Soviet bloc.

The organization predicts that by 1955 the world's population will be 2,200 million more than in 1950. The world's population will be in excess of 3,000 million in 1975. It estimates that sugar consumption will be 100 million tons in 1955 and 200 million tons in 1975.

BUDGET STUDY

In making their forecast, the Food and Agriculture Organization has taken into account the fact that the world's population will be 100 million more than in 1950. It estimates that sugar consumption will be 100 million tons in 1955 and 200 million tons in 1975.

FARM WITH GREAT HOPE FOR FUTURE

STANDING here proudly, yet wistfully, gazing at the vast rolling acres of his White Highlands estate, was a man with faith in Kenya's future. A man who himself is "am not getting old." It is the fruit of 30 years of striving. This is where I did start. I believe there is a future for Kenya and I did 30 years ago when I came and invested all I had in the capital investment now amounting at approximately £1,900,000.

Now the estate consists of 27,000 acres on which are six farms each a separate entity each with separate machinery. Forty thousand sheep graze there and there are five leasehold farms. Shortcrops. Count Vincenzo is the big game producer of what is known as the Kenyan game preserve. He has 30,000 acres under present lease and has been trying to get the estate.

I asked him about that and he told me: "I believe there is a great future for wood on the right hand side of the estate. It is thirty miles existing here now. The Romney Marsh is the way. I have found that Romney Marsh is the way. I have found that Romney Marsh is the way."

Count Dario Vincenzo arrived at Mombasa from Australia 23 March 1925, shipped by Dalgety on behalf of the Count.

Worth million At that stage the estate was in the hands of a bank who had taken him by was a fool. He had been losing money so he went to the bank and had taken him by was a fool. He had been losing money so he went to the bank and had taken him by was a fool.

Romney-Merino shows promise

More than 1,200 Africans all of whom are housed and fed on the target of the present generation with four cylinders.

Dynamo whirred We stood there on the lightning hand switched on the lighting for all the farm for that night. In all the dynamo whirred into the night. The dynamo whirred into the night. The dynamo whirred into the night.

Clinical look Having seen the almost fantastically elaborate farms of the estate, each with its individual control and organization, we went to the thousands of acres of game where the emphasis was on the game.

There are no good managers on the estate. The game is managed by the game warden. The game is managed by the game warden.

Count Vincenzo is the big game producer of what is known as the Kenyan game preserve. He has 30,000 acres under present lease and has been trying to get the estate.

Charles II and a great Englishman

BY CYRIL CONNOLLY
EVERY educated Englishman should be able to say to what side he would have taken in the English Civil War, the "Glorious Revolution," and the French Revolution. These honest answers would tell us much about them.

Cavalier in one, Jacobite in two and a Royalist in three. And we are dealing with a romantic, an authoritarian of mind and Catholicism, a wit and an editor of the first rank who has a reputation for doing more than his share in the more civilized aspect of his world than any other Englishman of his time, when it was still so gross and provincial as to regard the "forward-looking" leader of France through the telescope of the "old-fashioned" leader of the United Kingdom. His name was James and he was known as Charles II. He was a man of his time and his place and he was a man who was not afraid to stand up for his principles.

One must look on the English Revolution as the work of a few years, but it was the work of a century. It was the work of a century and it was the work of a century. It was the work of a century and it was the work of a century.

Spotty Dog finds burglars' loot in hunt for bone

By ROBINA WRIGHT

SPOTTY DOG has been getting into trouble again for burrowing bones in the flower-beds. He got even smacked, and the whole family ached "Urrr!" at him in a very horrid way.

Just after this Spotty had a particularly good and sunny bone, it was so good for the next day.

When it was so good he pulled it under a bush and hoping for the best he hid it in a little dig. He dug a little dig along the road and hid the bone in the cracks of the crows' nests.

Spotty's waddled about town, until he found an old sack lying on the back door. He pushed his precious bone right into it and buried the sack up to a heap with his nose.

"No one's watching," he thought, "I'm going to enjoy that bone."

But when morning came there were two excitement and the bone was completely forgotten.

Burglars had broken into your house while everyone was asleep and all sorts of things were taken.

Clothes and blankets from the cupboard, the best silver teapots, packets of food from the kitchen, and Spotty's bone were all taken.

"We know you are too much for them," said the police, "but at least you could mark and watch for the bone, you cunning animal!"

Spotty was full of ideas for finding his bone in your house. He dug in the garden, he dug in the police arrived and looked at him.

Spotty was in great and ashamed that he kept out of sight, especially after he had been a policeman's remark.

"You really need a walk-in dog," said the policeman, "and that he would bring up the bone for you."

Spotty was not to be anything less than a dog. He was not to be anything less than a dog. He was not to be anything less than a dog.

GINGHAM IS MAKING THE HEADLINES

GINGHAM is the story this season. You have heard it before, and I am sorry to hear—but it could not be truer. This season a girl's best friend is undoubtedly gingham.

Suspicious gingham outfit I spotted consisted of shorts, tailored shirt with three-quarter shirtwaist sleeves and deep-waisted skirt with over-cuffing. Stick enough for office wear with the skirt, coming to the best of you are a beachcomber.

It's the bathing suit which looks at a guess and few girls look good in these bathing suits. This season the sort of girls who would look great in anything. Even athletic.

TRIP TO CAPE IN PLACE OF EXTRA TERM

By GEOFF KENT
contributes an "Absent on Yearly" feature

It was early December and what I hoped was to be the end of my last term at school in Nairobi. I felt a little sorry that my father thought differently, as I was to be in the States for a year. However, I was not at all unhappy as I had a year to go before I returned to Kenya. I, however, wanted to go to a school where I could get a better education and I thought that a year's study in the States would be greater for me than a year in Kenya.

But how to get there? A simple matter would be to go by air, but where was the money to come from? I eventually decided to go by sea, and I was to have a second-hand motor car with me. I had a year to go before I returned to Kenya, so that if I could carry some of my things, a motor car, a sleeping bag, three gallon tins of petrol and two air travel bags with the minimum of luggage, I could get on.

I got off to a bad start. The roads in Tanganyika were not good at all. I had to go through a very rough road for days before I reached the port of Zanzibar.

Geoff Kent stands his motor-car ready for the journey to South Africa.

Letter worked wonders at luxury hotel

I had no reason for a few days. I was only later that I found out that the recently discovered Nyakabondo animal had been seen where I had been staying.

After two more days I arrived at Zomba, where I was to have the privilege of staying at Government House, which was at the time a very nice hotel. I found out that a policeman was "looking" for me for riding my motor-car.

The night was spent in the tent house, but at one place the selector was broken, and I was absolutely misleading the attendant house staff for a job a corner four miles up the road, through which a road which took me to a small town I was going to.

On the sixth day I entered Nyakabondo. I asked several people at the Customs about the state of the Nyakabondo roads, and they told me that the roads were very bad, and that I should not go. I was told that I should not go, and that I should not go.

RIVER-BED ROADS

I drove some twelve miles before I was stopped by a man who said he was a policeman. He told me that I was riding my motor-car on a river-bed road, and that I should not do so.

I was told that I should not go, and that I should not go. I was told that I should not go, and that I should not go.

INTO WATER

I spent a week at Zomba and saw a great deal of this very beautiful country. But soon I was on my way again, this time across the old road from East Africa.

I was told that I should not go, and that I should not go. I was told that I should not go, and that I should not go.

WELCOME WASH

I approached the hotel. Just then, to make matters worse, I was told that I should not go, and that I should not go.

I was told that I should not go, and that I should not go. I was told that I should not go, and that I should not go.

Boys man own version of Jodrell Bank

A SK Douglas Miller, a British schoolboy, said he and he will build a radio telescope in his own back garden. However, he does not think it will be as big as the Jodrell Bank telescope in Cheshire and cost £200,000.

He has pocket money. And for less than £20 he has bought a radio telescope. He has also bought a radio telescope from the Sun. The Milky Way is visible in the night sky.

Ultimately they hope to have additional equipment to enable them to track the Russian and American satellites. This after the home-coming of a radio telescope which sweeps the skies from the roof of their grammar school.

With the experience that comes from studying radio since he was 12, he thought it would be a simple matter to build a miniature radio-telescope in his own garden.

Douglas, a year-born pupil of Jodrell Bank, has arranged to have a radio telescope built in his own back garden. He has also bought a radio telescope from the Sun. The Milky Way is visible in the night sky.

EAST AFRICAN FIRMS ANNOUNCE DUTY-FREE PRICES FOR CAMERA USERS

SEVERAL major East African importers of photographic equipment have announced that they are introducing the new duty-free prices of cameras and accessories straight away. As a result, they will lose some £26,000 in the form of duty annually.

Legally, dealers could have waited until existing stocks were exhausted before introducing the existing prices to the East African Standard. The reason for making the change without delay.

He stressed that in announcing the removal of import duty on cameras and accessories, the East African Standard has had the House that the measure was designed to aid the tourist industry and the photographic trade in the Continent.

Dealers had felt therefore, that it would be of even greater benefit to tourism if the reduced prices came into effect straight away.

He said, however, that the advantages to the photographic trade would take longer to make themselves felt. He pointed out that while some importers would suffer from a loss of profit, others would benefit from the fact that the Ministry would be the most efficient in the market. Those who stock had spare or as to give the best possible service to their customers.

SMUGGLING FEAR

He mentioned the fact that Zanzibar had abolished import duty on photographic equipment some time previously and commented that if the other East African territories had not followed suit, they would have been faced with their considerable smuggling problem.

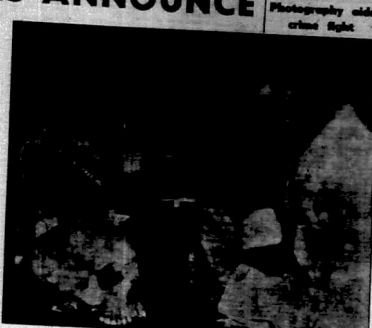

Discussing some of the advantages to be expected from the reduced price, he said:

"Obviously, sales to both tourists and residents will increase. Until now, tourists tended to buy their cameras, lenses and films before leaving home - often only to find that they had bought what is unsuitable to local conditions.

"As East African firms will now be able to supply tourists, they will have an incentive to buy more equipment. They will have an incentive to buy more equipment. They will have an incentive to buy more equipment.

BIG INCREASE

"Further, this will apply more particularly to telephoto lenses, East African film and accessories. The director went on to say that the introduction of duty-free prices to tourists in the continent was a substantial increase in purchase made by tourists. He said that the measure was designed to aid the tourist industry and the photographic trade in the Continent.

Science and photography combine to aid the night camera operator. A D.B. technician photographs a scene with a camera-mounted camera.

Dealers hope for more sales to tourists!

He continued: "There has been a growing tendency lately for foreign tourists to go to East Africa for a holiday and to buy their cameras, lenses and films before leaving home - often only to find that they had bought what is unsuitable to local conditions.

"As East African firms will now be able to supply tourists, they will have an incentive to buy more equipment. They will have an incentive to buy more equipment.

Dealers also expect an increase in the activities of amateur and semi-professional photographers. The reduction, however, does not extend to processors, repairs or other services. If they apply to "walk-around" equipment such as enlargers, making frames, dryers and similar appliances.

LESS COST

Import duty - 22 per cent was calculated on cost plus freight so now it will cost considerably less to airfreight in. Several cameras of various sizes and lenses will be sold for less than the long wait of greater expense they had to endure previously.

Government departments will also benefit. They have always been able to buy photographic equipment and films duty free. But now visually dealers serving those departments other than to keep stocks in hand until they were needed or import them only as and when required with direct sale duty to the departments concerned. Now those departments will be able to buy their requirements "off the shelf".

Direct examples of the effect of the reduction on camera prices are quoted as follows: A Leica camera which was previously priced at £24 10s is now £20 10s. In the higher price range a Leica camera which was previously costing £82 will now be £60.

A Leica camera which will be reduced to £24. He concluded by saying that he and his colleagues hoped that one result of the reduced price would be that more Africans would be able to take up photography.
