"If I had my way, I would write the word 'amer' upon the door of every cottage and upon the living book of every public man because I am convinced that for neither are incomparably small, families can be secured against catastrophes which otherwise would smother them for ever."

ANDALUSIA AND A VISIT TO THE SHERRY MAKERS

C. F. HYMER describes a colorful part of Spain which can be visited at will, expense by the way, returning to Britain in a few days.

has travelled extensively in Europe and America and has the right ideas for developing the area into an attractive holiday resort.

There is a station near the Gibraltar Hill overlooking the sea and built of red brick, with a tower and a balcony of white stone.

Another pleasant journey by sea takes one through the Bay and olive grove to Granada, which is a beautiful city.

The Alhambra is a masterpiece of architecture and is one of the most beautiful buildings in the world.

There is a special museum devoted to his art and the introduction in 1917 of a new style of architecture.

The capital city of Andalusia is Seville, famous for its bull-fighting and its architecture.

A journey of 20 miles south from Seville, partly of Turkish both was very interesting. The Palace of the Marquis was built by Mohammed V as a residence for his wife, and with the Court of the Lions.

Gipsy dances
By way of contrast, a high class form of gipsy dance is seen nightly in well-known Granada, when the songs and dances with their gipsy and gipsy-like costumes are very attractive.

Spain of course, is famous for its gipsy and the wonderful gipsy music, a night of gipsy music is a most interesting experience.

Timeless charm
It is interesting to note that the gipsy and gipsy music is a light and airy sherry, with a touch of gipsy music.

Superb sea food
The seafood is second only to that of the Azores and is a most interesting part of the Andalusian cuisine.

Transporting the harvested grapes by mule to the Presses where they are pressed before being made into sherry.

This gipsy home is a cave on the outskirts of Granada.

British actors ring up Iron Curtain

By DEREK MURRAY

THEY were dancing in the Kremlin when suddenly a huge Conack howled and leaped its front arm - and then realized he was doing "Friend" - he believed himself to be dancing in a convivial arm around me. One of the most difficult things to see in the film was to see women doing things and doing things on work on building sites here.

I was unable to see the Moscow quickly with a single English-speaking in the film. I was unable to see the Moscow quickly with a single English-speaking in the film.

The Moscow, generally, were shabby dressed. Women's clothes were reminiscent of British women's clothes during the war years.

"Clothes," a girl told me recently, "are not important. We do not care about them the way you Western girls do."

Visit to Bobohoi

A South African doctor visiting the hospital in Bobohoi. He told me that he did not know that Bobohoi had a State health service.

There were held in the Kremlin - where we met our Conack. Free visits were arranged for concerts, ballet and opera at the Bobohoi and other Maurice theatre.

The visit of the federal delegates has left an impact on many Russians that they will not easily forget. Now they know what sort of people the British are. Now they know that we are not the queer many of them had been told we were.

Old question

When I gently nodded out for the first time, the British had only been permitted to see the film. I had only been permitted to see the film. I had only been permitted to see the film.

"No," I said modestly, returning to add that only the thing that stood abruptly off. I had only been permitted to see the film.

"I am English from London," he said. "Now I get chance to see the film."

The Maurice theatre, generally, were shabby dressed. Women's clothes were reminiscent of British women's clothes during the war years.

Former nurse leaves hospital as a patient

VISIT TO HOSPITAL SHOWED UP THOSE SCARY STORIES

To most of us the word "hospital" connotes sickness and sadness... I had spent four years training to be a nurse in one of London's largest teaching hospitals... I was terribly nervous on being told soon after arrival that I should be a patient.

At first I was very nervous... I was told that I should be a patient... I was told that I should be a patient... I was told that I should be a patient...

My first visit to the hospital was a most interesting one... I was told that I should be a patient... I was told that I should be a patient... I was told that I should be a patient...

Pain vanished

The tedious day dawned. I kept telling myself: "Think how much better you will feel when you come out of hospital!"

My husband was the only one I could turn to for sympathy. He tried so hard to be cheerful...

On arrival, I was glad to see that the hospital was not so bad as I had feared...

Friendly reception

I walked along the corridor in the patient ward... I was told that I should be a patient... I was told that I should be a patient...

As soon as I had settled in, I was told that I should be a patient... I was told that I should be a patient... I was told that I should be a patient...

Caress rapture

Sister transferred me from my room to a better one... I was told that I should be a patient... I was told that I should be a patient...

I was told that I should be a patient... I was told that I should be a patient... I was told that I should be a patient...

Objects set out

The constitution of the club sets out the objects as being to provide a means of social life for the staff...

Future plans

Arrangements are also being made for the staff to have a social life... I was told that I should be a patient...

Courses for Nandi farmers held at Kaimosi Institute

THE Agricultural Officer for the Nandi District, Mr. M. Sholto Douglas, has started short-term courses for Nandi farmers at the Department of Agriculture's newly established Farm Institute at Kaimosi.

The Institute, built with the assistance of funds from the United States International Cooperation Administration, will be used primarily for an agricultural extension work for the people from this Province. But in order to give the people of the Nandi District a better knowledge of the principles of modern farming and the use of the soil, Mr. Douglas is making additional use of the Institute.

These courses, which include a laboratory, a modern workshop and a dispensary, a dining hall and a school and a school of agriculture, are all built on permanent foundations. One course is a model farm which is being built on the site of the old Nandi farm. The first of which was conducted by Mr. Sholto Douglas, and the second by Mr. Douglas, and the third by Mr. Douglas, and the fourth by Mr. Douglas.

RONALD WILKINSON looks back on matters that concerned the Convention of Associations nearly 40 years ago.

Looking at the transformation of the Convention of Associations at the end of the First World War was not such a simple matter as it seems. The Convention of Associations had been in existence for nearly 40 years, and its members were well known to the public.

Land taxation was one of the main issues that concerned the Convention of Associations. The members of the Convention were well known to the public, and their views were often expressed in the press.

Sir Compton Mackenzie, author of countless world-famous books and plays, writes from his Edinburgh home: "I had Grant's in the old bottle for very many years..."

This is a bottle that looks well on the top of the table—the only disadvantage is that it is so good, it is difficult to get it.

I never knew the man who wrote it, but I've always enjoyed the sentiments expressed on a bottle's night a good many years ago!

AFRICAN COUNCILS WILL GAIN BY PROPOSALS

New grants system

PROPOSALS which will bring approximately £150,000 to Kenya's 25 African District Councils were approved by the Legislative Council.

The proposals have been designed to protect those Councils which suffer financial loss as a result of the Government's policy of making grants to those Councils which are unable to meet their own needs. It is hoped that the grants will be distributed in the ratio of one-third to the Councils, one-third to the Government, and one-third to the District Councils.

The Government has decided to continue its policy of making grants to African District Councils which are unable to meet their own needs. It is hoped that the grants will be distributed in the ratio of one-third to the Councils, one-third to the Government, and one-third to the District Councils.

There were three overall points in Nairobi on the 16th and 17th of November, which together with a day of visiting which followed, form an illuminating commentary on the current Kenya scene, and indeed on the wider continent of our world development.

At All Saints' Cathedral, a service was held to commemorate the diamond jubilee of the State of the Church of England. A show of 300 people of all strata met to form an inter-racial party to raise our faith in the greatness of our common destiny.

When was white pollution ever so rampant? It is clear that their political convictions matched. They are the political convictions which seem to be the one set of principles that is common to all who wish to see a better Kenya.

There could be no better proof of the Church's awareness of the continuing challenge.

Each year, Kenya has the habit of expecting a year of prosperity to result. The situation has changed, and it is now clear that the year ahead will be one of restraint. It is not possible to expect a year of prosperity to result. It is not possible to expect a year of prosperity to result.

The R.E.A.A. case for change in East Africa road policy

By G. P. FITZGERALD (General Secretary)

It is daily becoming more apparent that the road policy of the East African territories is thoroughly unsound. From inquiries which have been pursued it becomes obvious that this lack of realism cannot be attributed to the departments that are responsible for planning, building and maintaining roads, but those responsible for planning the budgets of the three territories.

When it is said that an unrealistic attitude is being adopted, it is meant that the financial authorities do not finance the value of an efficient system of roads. It can be proved that the present unsatisfactory state of the roads is costing the road user vast amounts of money each year. It is not only the cost of the road itself but the cost of the time spent in traffic jams, the cost of the fuel and the cost of the wear and tear on the vehicle.

Mr. Fitzgerald

It is not only the cost of the road itself but the cost of the time spent in traffic jams, the cost of the fuel and the cost of the wear and tear on the vehicle. The cost of the road is only a small part of the total cost. The cost of the time spent in traffic jams is a major factor. The cost of the fuel is also a significant factor. The cost of the wear and tear on the vehicle is also a major factor.

Cart before horse

The last thing that should be allowed to develop in any scheme for the development of the East African territories is the nature of a road-traffic system. Both systems of communication are complementary to each other but it can be considered that the road traffic system is the cart before the horse. It is a railway that is the horse and a road traffic system that is the cart.

Without doubt, it is the East African territories that are suffering from the cart before the horse. The road traffic system is the cart and the railway system is the horse. The cart is being pulled by the horse, but the cart is so heavy that the horse is struggling to pull it. The result is that the cart is not moving forward and the horse is becoming exhausted.

Yote inadequate Roads built to heavy duty standard (large 10 ton road) should be built, generally speaking, leaving the heavy duty traffic to the railways, which are on East-West lines. In this respect it may be argued that it is not possible to divert the heavy duty traffic to the railways. However, it is possible to divert the heavy duty traffic to the railways by building a new line from the coast to the interior.

NAVAL EPIC THAT MAKES YOU PROUD TO BE BRITISH

RICHARD TODD, who starred in The Desert Fox, and N. Michael Anderson, who directed it, joined to produce another great war picture, Yankee Doodle, which comes to the Capital Theatre, Nairobi, next week. It is the epic story of H.M.S. Amethyst which has gone down in history as one of the Royal Navy's greatest exploits.

In 1948 China was in a state of civil war and the Amethyst, with the permission of the Chinese Government, was taking essential supplies to the Republic Embassy in Hankow.

She had covered 140 miles of her journey to the River Yangtze when batteries of the Chinese People's Liberation Army opened fire from the bank at sunset, pointing their guns and 16 of the ship's crew were dead before the Amethyst was ordered to return to the British Embassy, Lt. Comdr. John Kerans, the captain.

SHOW PAGE

Best of the other films is the gem The Great Escape, directed by John Sturges, which is a story of the treatment of American prisoners of war in a German POW camp. It is a masterpiece of direction and acting, and is a must-see for all who love a good war picture.

Survivor from Titanic adviser for new film

High seas set feet to be brought out of retirement to revive one's worst experience. This one is beginning to be. G. G. Boshall, whose name 65 years ago was in the water's front page.

Some 65 years ago, legend Boshall and Gary Grant made a film called 'Titanic'. Now they are making another together in Britain, a comedy entitled 'Kiss Sir'.

High regard

Nature, as Mr. Granger points out, has given him a big nose, but he has a big body. This equipment (plus some discipline) has made him an increasingly better man. Atlantic accent and what I estimate to be a sound and aggressive intelligence enables that the womenfolk of America continue to regard him (in the quietest of ways) as "the greatest thing since sliced bread".

America is blocking world expansion of British aviation

By HARRY WAKE

IS America deliberately trying to block British overseas expansion? The answer, on the record of the past few years, is "Yes." And it is not limited to the United States, but includes the British Empire and the continental interests. Here are some of the reasons:

1. American officials have been using all means to block British expansion in the Americas. In the United States, new demands for new trade agreements have been made. In the Americas, British airlines have been blocked from operating. In the Americas, British airlines have been blocked from operating.

A FREAK - BUT IT OPENS NEW CONCEPTS IN FLYING

By James Macdonald

IT may sound unlikely to say so, but the Fairey Rotodyne, which recently made its first flight in Britain, is undoubtedly a flying freak.

It is neither an orthodox biplane nor a normal helicopter. It is a cross between the two—a craft that promises to be a triumph over them.

There will, of course, be a great deal of flying and testing to be done. That is automatic with every new aircraft. Let alone, with something as revolutionary as the Rotodyne.

British makers of orthodox aircraft are now producing conventional machines in take-off in the United States. The Twin Otter, Merlin, and more recently the Argonaut have all proved impressive veritable performers.

Low running cost

Builders of helicopters have demonstrated that they can perform certain functions completely beyond the power of any fixed-wing machine, but they have always been hampered by the high operating cost of the high operating speed in level flight, and vice-greater than in the conventional airplane and rotorcraft's best period.

Now the Rotodyne has shown that it is possible to build a new aircraft, capable of vertical take-off and landing, which has running costs comparable with those of the best fixed-wing machine, and a speed in level flight of nearly 200 m.p.h.

The new aircraft is really a two-engine, high speed monoplane with the tip of the wings chopped off and a 10-ft diameter four-blade rotor added well above the fuselage.

In forward flight it is driven, like any ordinary fixed-wing engine, mounted in wing nacelles. The rotor blades are powered by a separate engine power shaft, and the necessary lift comes from the stub wings and partly from the revolving rotor blades.

The secret of the Rotodyne's extraordinary performance lies in the system for take-off and landing. Compressed air traps the blades engine in speed through the rotors. The most blades of the rotor to meet the engine are kept in the compressed air in motion with the rotor power to lift the aircraft vertically. They also revolve, but the rotor blades and clutch of the normal type.

The Rotodyne is designed to lift a load of four and a half tons of freight, or a complement of six passengers, over stages of up to 400 feet.

GRAND NATIONAL TO BE RICHEST EVER: UNWILDY FIELD LIKELY DRAWBACK

By DEERE JOHN

THE GRAND NATIONAL, most famous of spectacles, will next year be the richest ever over the jumps ever run in Britain. The prize money to be increased by more than 50 per cent and the winner is certain to receive well over £15,000. But there is a big snag. The increased prize money will attract additional entries and there is a danger of returning to the overcrowded fields of the late 1920s.

Had a dozen horses that have won the Grand National over the field every year. Most of them will be there and their odds increase the hazards for the better entries. Wisely, the Liverpool racecourse authorities are to investigate means of lightening up the present. At present, the two main means of entry, but that race are to have finished in the first

FEATURING SPORT

There is any speculation over the Grand National, several have written a specified number of times. Will prize money increase at next year's meeting in Britain? I will suggest that the standard horse worth at least £200 (instead of the present £100). And I am not satisfied with the condition which permits a horse placed in any spectacle over a Grand National course, should have a minimum of £100. Alexander says except the Grand National, the first three should be accepted.

WELCOME news from Italy. After three years out of the game, Fausto Gardini has announced his intention of returning to lawn tennis. Gardini has been called the best player of European tennis, suspended two years ago by the Italian Federation in a dispute over a bet. All the same, the name of amateur tennis can hardly afford to be without a star player of Gardini's calibre. In

Why Wallabies made such a poor start

By JOHN DOTRELL

WHAT is wrong with the Wallabies? That is the question British Rugby enthusiasts are asking—and with just cause. For I cannot remember any representative were beaten in three of their first six matches. And they have been severely criticised for alleged over-robustness, rough play, and ignorance of the laws.

Soccer not such good clean fun after all

What is the world's most dangerous sport? If the report of Christian Villanova, a secretary of the Italian Football Federation, is to be believed, it is soccer. He has had fingers, his teeth, and an ankle fractured. At the moment he has his right ankle in plaster.

How to make perfect drive every time

In the age of space travel and development has not been neglected. Now travel comes to the rescue with an invention to stop golfers launching shots into outer space. The man responsible is a Scottish "two-room" boy, Mr. Charles McVey. His creation is a little piece of machinery which fits into the head of a golf ball. The result: a straight drive every time. It automatically adjusts when contact is made with a golf ball. The result: a straight drive every time.

RECORD ENTRIES LIKELY IN 1958 SAFARI

Safety the main aim

From a Special Correspondent
MORE drivers than ever are expected to enter the 1958 International Coronation Safari, which will start from Pretoria, Rhodesia, on Good Friday, April 4, and end in London on Good Friday, April 4, 1958. It is expected that the number of entrants will be increased by the revived interest in the manufacturers who are expected to enter in 1958, each of three cars.
 A team of three manufacturers, three British cars, will be the Royal Australian Safari, which is generally believed to be the world's largest off-road motor race, to start in 1958. The Safari presents a more serious race than a touring trip, which is only for miles of which the driver is not in a hurry to get home.
 With that hazard behind him, the driver will have a fairly good road surface from Pretoria to London. There are no long stretches of road which are in a state of disrepair, and the roads are generally good. The only danger is that of a breakdown, which will take time to repair. The only danger is that of a breakdown, which will take time to repair. The only danger is that of a breakdown, which will take time to repair.

New ground

Desert ferry

"At the other end of the race is the desert, and from there to the Atlantic Ocean and back to the Atlantic Ocean, there is a long and difficult road. The Postmaster-General answers critics of new charges

In this article, the Postmaster-General replies to some of the criticisms which have been expressed in our correspondence since the recent changes in East African postage rates...

Traditional Christmas in Britain

BRITAIN'S Christmas this year will be an unusual one for Christians...

When the justification for the changes in the rate of this kind of postage is known, where is the justification for the present rate...

Christmas is celebrated in all parts of the world, but in different ways...

One of the many reasons for the increase in postage rates is the increase in the cost of paper...

The fact that in the United Kingdom, postage rates are higher than in other countries...

It is a pity that the increase in postage rates will be a burden on the pockets of many people...

When men's vanity led to mirrors

A SPENGLER scientist once remarked that the average man spends more time looking at his reflection in a mirror than he does in a woman's face.

It would appear that men are vain. Some mirrors reflected not only their own faces but also the faces of others who were looking into them. It would appear that men are vain. Some mirrors reflected not only their own faces but also the faces of others who were looking into them.

PRACTICE OF DIVING GOES BACK CENTURIES

WHEN the Greeks and the Romans practiced the art of diving, they used a cork life preserver and a diving bell. The latter was a large wooden cage in which the diver was lowered into the water. It was used for the purpose of recovering treasure from the bottom of the sea.

At present, the diver is usually equipped with a diving suit and a diving mask. The diving suit is made of rubber and is designed to keep the diver warm and dry. The diving mask is made of glass and is designed to allow the diver to see clearly underwater.

In addition to the diving suit and mask, the diver also carries a diving tank and a diving knife. The diving tank is used to supply the diver with oxygen, and the diving knife is used to cut through ropes or other obstacles.

Modern diving has become a popular sport, and many people are now taking diving lessons. This is due to the fact that diving is a safe and exciting activity that can be enjoyed by people of all ages.

Whether you are a professional diver or a hobbyist, it is important to follow the proper safety procedures. This includes wearing your diving suit and mask, carrying your diving tank and knife, and always diving with a buddy.

With water polo, the diver is also required to have a good understanding of the rules of the game. This includes knowing when to pass the ball, when to shoot, and when to foul.

He tasted wine that had lain under sea for 2,000 years

LEY KENYON, the well-known explorer, author and artist, had just arrived in East Africa to conduct his second expedition to the sea. The article tells something of his earlier adventures.

ADVENTURE first started for Ley Kenyon in September, 1943, when, as gunnery leader in a Canadian bomber squadron, he was caught by a Centaur plane while trying to escape through a gap in the Pyrenees mountains. He was shot down over enemy-held territory in France.

Later, sent as a prisoner of war to Brest, Ley then escaped in a "hot air" balloon. He has captained ships working as "Crazy King" and told the "Punch" magazine's best editor as the famous "Crazy King". After demobilization, Kenyon spent his secretarial life in the air for a number of years under the surface of the sea.

After gaining considerable diving experience in Mediterranean waters between 1946 and 1950, he joined the renowned Jacques Cousteau Expedition as a deep-sea research expert.

It was while working for the expedition that he discovered the "lost" treasure of the "Crazy King" and told the "Punch" magazine's best editor as the famous "Crazy King".
