Duff trial defence on shotgun wounds

A PATHOLOGIST who, during the first World War, belonged to one of the Chief Medical units in the Gallipoli campaign, who said he had seen, and handled many hundreds of cases of shot wounds, gave evidence when the Duff trial was continued in the Supreme Court of Nairobi yesterday.

He examined the feet of the two victims of the shots which were fired from the boat which was under attack by the British forces. He found that the wounds were caused by the shot wounds in the head, and that the shot wounds were caused by the shot wounds in the head, and that the shot wounds were caused by the shot wounds in the head.

No loose pellets

Mr. Humphrey Saks (defence counsel) said that he had examined the body of the victim of the shot wounds in the head, and that he found that there were no loose pellets in the body of the victim.

LITIGANTS 'SHOULD GET TOGETHER'

Magistrate's comment in Gables case

INSTEAD of arguing the case out in a court of law, litigants concerned had concentrated in getting the building into a reasonable state, they would have to be satisfied by the Magistrate, commented Mr. J. C. Collyer, Nairobi Resident Magistrate, yesterday in a judgment given in the Gables case.

Mr. Collyer's comment was that litigants should get together and settle their disputes out of court, rather than litigating through the courts. He stated that the building was in a state of disrepair and that the litigants had spent a great deal of money on repairs. He suggested that they should share the cost of repairs and settle the matter amicably.

U.S. admires South Africa's 'dream dress'

A SOUTH AFRICAN inspired gown, designed by the internationally known Greek fashion designer, Yanni Evangelou (who now lives in Cape Town), made a great impression in New York when it was shown together with the creations of 30 of America's outstanding designers at the Walker-Astoria recently.

A hand-drawn gown, with a prominent motif, it is being described as the American dream dress. Evangelou, who came to South Africa with the Greek Royal Family in 1947 and who has recently returned from a visit to the United States, reports that Africa's all-time famous gown is inspired with South African motifs.

Taboo Mountain, tall jagged and craggy, with dramatic views of Native lands, provide the inspiration of the most beautiful creation.

Another exquisite gown has an all-over design of the Cape's famous white leaves, printed on a background of frail silk crepe.

NAIROBI NATIONAL PARK An idyll of the wild

A scavenger meets with prompt and speedy dissolution

By the WARDEN
While working on the track which winds its way down the Lion Valley one morning this week I saw a big striped lion feeding on a kill at the edge of the gorge. He paid no attention to my gaze, sitting at a distance of about four hundred yards and leisurely consumed his meal.

A straggler strolls over the plain.
I had then I saw the lion again. He emerged from the bush and began to stalk his kill. He moved fairly fast, but kept well down to the ground, he did not approach me. He was not aware of my presence. He was too busy eating his meal. He was not aware of my presence. He was too busy eating his meal.

Stone dead
Cutting to know what number of animal he had killed, I went down to where he had been feeding. On arriving at the spot, the first thing I saw was the hyena lying in the middle of a circle of flattened and blood-stained grass. When I reached the circle and found that the track had been broken, I bent behind the bushes. There were no other signs of any animal. The hyena was lying on its back, its head turned towards me. It was dead.

A regret
On the bank, there was a hyena. From all sides were a crowd of the natives. They were watching the hyena. They were watching the hyena. They were watching the hyena.

MAKERERE TO HAVE PHYSICS LABORATORY

Where the African will learn to see science in its true perspective

D. J. T. Williamson, £20,000 to Makerere College in Uganda to build a laboratory and equipment. The purpose and importance of the work which this gift will enable us to do is to be seen in the following:

At present the only physics laboratory in Uganda is a small one at Makerere College. This laboratory was built in 1925 and has since been used for the purpose of giving the students a practical knowledge of the subject. It is, however, not a sufficient knowledge of the subject to enable them to do research work or to take part in the development of science in the country. It is, therefore, necessary to have a laboratory of a higher standard than the one at Makerere College. This is the purpose of the gift which has been made.

It is hoped that the laboratory which will be built will be a model for other African universities. It will be a place where the students will be able to do research work and to take part in the development of science in the country. It will be a place where the students will be able to see science in its true perspective.

Features by

Dr. J. T. Williamson
The gift of £20,000 to Makerere College in Uganda to build a laboratory and equipment is a most generous one. It will enable the students of the college to do research work and to take part in the development of science in the country. It will be a place where the students will be able to see science in its true perspective.

For the most distinguished woman student

At the last meeting of the African Students' Union, the following resolution was passed: 'That the African Students' Union should send a letter of appreciation to the Director General in London for the gift of £20,000 to Makerere College in Uganda to build a laboratory and equipment.'

The Director General in London has been notified of the resolution of the African Students' Union and has expressed his appreciation of the gift.

The African Students' Union has also passed a resolution that it should send a letter of appreciation to the Director General in London for the gift of £20,000 to Makerere College in Uganda to build a laboratory and equipment.

Wanted—a doubler

Who should have doubled in this "game"? ... South Africa, this afternoon.

We managed to hold declarer to three tricks and the heart play! This was no great feat, since the defence practically played itself.

At the very least, on tonight, we could have done better. In fact, the double might have been well had the declarer had less strength than he had.

CHESS Botvinnik is the new world champion

A vital game played in the 1945 round... As was forewarned in these pages, the World Championship Tournament, recently concluded in Moscow, has resulted in a surprising victor for the Soviet grandmaster, M. Botvinnik.

The victory was generally anticipated and after the first week's play became almost foregone conclusion. The surprising feature of the tournament was the great ease with which Botvinnik won, for he defeated his opponent and left the remainder of the field trailing.

After the death of Albin, the chess world has been waiting for a new champion to emerge. Botvinnik's victory is a surprise to many chess players.

It is interesting to note that Botvinnik's victory was achieved with a relatively small margin. The tournament was a closely fought affair.

The French Defiance is a great favorite with all the Soviet masters. It is the only one of the French style which is not a mere imitation of the French style.

In Sweden they give a hand... A recent visit to Sweden has revealed that the chess community there is very active and interested in the game.

Mounting tempo of development underlines importance of remaining grasslands

A TESTAMENT OF EXPERIENCE

By 'CINCINNATUS'

SINCE the publication of Dr. Keen's very courteous comment on my suggestion for preliminary measures to increase the fertility of the Southern Highlands, I have been thinking of the general discussion which Dr. Keen himself has been thinking of. In his letter and Col. Hunter's article, none has taken pains to "Revise Farmers' letter and Col. Hunter's article, none has taken pains to notwithstanding, for reopening of the subject, and to have underlined the importance of all the remaining grasslands in East Africa and the urgent need of bringing the resources of scientific research to bear upon them before they are subjected to the interference of agriculture.

This is especially true for the large plateau block of the Southern Highlands lying, as it does, on the main line of communication and adjacent to vast unexplored mineral resources which must eventually look to these grasslands to feed them while and black that will develop them.

Col. Hunter's recent letter on the proper use of Tanganyika coal are extremely interesting. The grasslands are the agricultural matrix in which these developments lie. I am not sure if the suggestion of Lord Hilary's report on the Royal East African Society has been fully appreciated and here, where lands are being cleared, it is especially well known.

A RED TICK HAS HAD ITS LAST DIP

The Red Tick (transmitting the body and reservoir) will feed on the host for many months, but rarely in the area and under the tick. Tough as they are, these organisms of the body have the power of surviving regular dips in Cooper's Dipping No. 2. Other ticks, feeding like the tick, will usually die within a few days of dipping.

VANDENBERG BATTLES TO RESTORE HOUSE CUTS OF E.R.P. FUNDS

Marshall warns of the effect

FIGHTING MAD about the United States House of Representatives' decision to make a 20 per cent cut in the first European Recovery Programme allocations, Senator Vandenberg, who was largely responsible for getting the programme through Congress in handling it campaign to reduce the reductions restored by the Senate.

As chairman of the Senate's Foreign Affairs Committee, he has asked that the Appropriations Committee should hear him and he will give evidence later that committee on Wednesday, the first and one of the most important votes to be heard.

Senators will include the author of the Plan and Secretary of State, Mr. George Marshall, and the Programme's administrator, Mr. Paul Hoffman, both of whom he advised against any reductions.

In spite of the House decision, Mr. Hoffman at the weekend authorized more aid shipments to Europe so as to maintain the steady flow of recovery materials. For the first time the shipments include goods for the American zone of Germany and for Trieste.

Republican group fought in vain

Spurred on by the House's action in delivering what they consider a severe blow to the Programme and Europe's hopes for a relatively economic recovery through mutual self-help backed by American dollars, those three leaders will put up a determined battle to restore the 20 per cent cut in the programme which is expected to be deleted by the Senate towards the end of the month.

These cuts will alter the Programme from a scheme of reconstruction to one of mere relief if they are approved.

Mr. Marshall in Washington, when informed of the House's decision,

'Soon enough'

He has said in the United States House of Representatives that the country's credit rating, an aspect of the programme, is being maintained.

Mr. Marshall, deciding to call an emergency meeting of the "Country Club" Committee, to include the British delegation, decided "Kimbo" to be the subject of the meeting.

Chairman Vandenberg, who was only a few days in the States, had already been in Cairo by the time the House voted to operate from June 1 to June 30, 1946, he said.

Mr. Vandenberg's speech states to have been made in the House of Representatives in his home of Erie, Pa., the largest of the Erie district of Ohio.

About encases

When water is enclosed in a transparent plastic container it is difficult to see through the transparent plastic. This is because the plastic container is not perfectly uniform in thickness and the water inside is not perfectly uniform in temperature.

An exception

Martini was accused by Theodor Kuller of having encased his hands in a plastic container. This was done to prevent his hands from being seen while he played the piano.

KEYVIA new Legislative Council, the first in the Colony's history with an unofficial majority, was opened by the Governor, Sir Philip Mitchell, in the Memorial Hall, yesterday morning. Tripathi, were absent from their seats as a protest against the Government's nomination to the Muslim community, but had taken seats in the public gallery. Another member, Mr. D. M. B. Bena, was also missing, although it is understood that his absence had nothing to do with the Congress boycott. Yet another objection was that his absence had nothing to do with the Congress boycott. Governor sees signs of recovery, is confident

THE GOVERNOR, Sir Philip Mitchell, began his address yesterday afternoon, after inspecting a guard of honour from the 1st Battalion of the King's African Rifles, who were welcomed to the Government House, two days later entered the Council Chamber to begin his opening address.

He referred to "difficult circumstances" in which the first Council had been elected, and stated that the Government was now in a position to begin its work with confidence. He mentioned the progress of the economy and the state of the country's affairs.

'No slump'

He said more confidence than there has been for some time in the future of the Colony. There might be a few more months of uncertainty, but he did not believe that the economic situation was anything but sound. He mentioned the progress of the economy and the state of the country's affairs.
