STRACHEY SAYS BRITAIN IS ALREADY PAYING DOUBLE THE SCHEME'S BASIC PRICE

THERE is no place in this turbulent, difficult post-war world for a passive, complacent, over-cautious Britain. The only Britain that will survive is a Britain which has the courage and imagination to launch, and the vitality to carry through, major new, national enterprise both at home and overseas.

This East African groundnuts scheme is one of those enterprises. By it, and the others which will follow it, the course which has been traced, we shall prove that we are not a Britain that has found the right way forward.

In these words, Mr. John Strachey, British Food Minister, brought to an end his address at yesterday's meeting of the Nairobi British Club. Strachey, British Food Minister, brought to an end his address at yesterday's meeting of the Nairobi British Club. Strachey, British Food Minister, brought to an end his address at yesterday's meeting of the Nairobi British Club.

'African help is essential to success'

After having given a brief history of the start of the scheme, Mr. Strachey stated that three things had struck him most keenly. Firstly, he had been able to confirm with his own eyes the ability of Africans to carry out a large part of the work of the scheme. Naturally they needed and got careful and patient supervision.

WEATHER CANCELS 'TROOPING'

LONDON'S first projected Trooping of the Colour and nine years was cancelled. For the large crowds who were thronging to witness the Guards parade when the cancelled morning it was as big a disappointment as for the thousands of soldiers who were to have taken part in the parade.

'All needed'

MAIZE: The maize crop is expected to be a good one. The weather has been very favourable for the crop.

The top price

For the season's production of the top price of the Ayreshire breed. The price has reached a record high of 100 shillings per head.

The price has been maintained at this level since the beginning of the season. This is due to the high quality of the cattle and the limited supply.

Stockmen fear politics

Stockmen are concerned about the political situation in the country. They fear that the government's policies will be detrimental to the industry.

The stockmen are particularly concerned about the government's plans to nationalize the industry. They believe that this will lead to a loss of control over the industry and a decline in the standard of living for stockmen.

A mixed bag of new books

Popular authors write again and a first-book makes a hit

It is probable that book-lovers in the Colony enjoy one title which is denied to the booklover at home. I refer to the arrival of an English surface mail. "English books and periodicals have arrived today." It is true, but the number of books which arrive on the mails in the course of a year is only a comparatively small percentage of the whole; but with them that conventional link with the old country.

At any rate there is a mixed bag of recent arrivals, they may not be for "book-lovers" in the literary sense, but they are, at any rate, a readable collection.

In the new series of "Penguin Classics" Mr. George Bernard Shaw's "The Doctor in Spite of His Profession" is the latest of a number of new titles. It is a "historical" novel, though it is not a novel in the ordinary sense. It is a study of the life of a man, and many of the incidents are of a historical nature. The story is told in a simple, direct, and unadorned style. It is a study of the life of a man, and many of the incidents are of a historical nature.

The story runs true to type—the founding of the story is a young girl who breaks away from her parents to embark on a career of adventure. The story is told in a simple, direct, and unadorned style. It is a study of the life of a man, and many of the incidents are of a historical nature.

"The Book of the City of Dreadful Night" is a book of the same nature. It is a study of the life of a man, and many of the incidents are of a historical nature. It is a study of the life of a man, and many of the incidents are of a historical nature.

A LITTLE news item that is worth a mention in the news of celebrated events in other parts of the world.

It was in the effect that an Australian raid on Augsburg, Germany, was reported as breaking by making 11,000 tons of explosives to be used in the event of a war.

This, it is reported, is the largest amount of explosives ever stored in one place in the world.

The explosives were stored in a large cavern in the mountains of the Alps. The cavern was discovered by the Australians, who were told, already had been used for the storage of explosives.
