British inflation is almost dead but still may not lie down

It is too soon to say that British inflation is dead. It may be almost dead, but it is still a dangerous disease. Figures just published show that inflation has been almost stopped. But at present it is certainly safe to say that it may not lie down.

The inflation has been almost stopped. It is now only 10 per cent in the 12 months ending June, 1944. This is a very low rate for a country with a large population and a high standard of living.

Little achieved

The official statistics issued by the Government show that little has been achieved in the way of reducing inflation. The rate has fallen, but it is still high.

RUSSIA SHUTS HER CONSULAR OFFICES IN AMERICA

Africans demand elections

RUSSIA is closing down her consular offices in the United States. This is her reply to the United States note which recalled the recall of the Soviet Consul-General in New York. Mr. Joseph L. Bess, director of the consular office of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, who three months ago had been recalled, is being taken, says the Soviet Government, "to the atmosphere created by the American office in making the normal accomplishment of consular duties impossible."

Criticism of New York consul rejected

Her decision does not affect the Washington Embassy. It may be recalled that in 1940, both Germany and Italy asked the United States to close down her consular offices in their respective countries. The United States maintained her Ambassador in Germany until the last moment before entering the war on the Allied side. This Soviet reply rejects the American criticism of the New York Consul-General, Mr. Lomakin, whose recall had been requested because of his conduct in the "admirable incident" involving Mrs. Kamenetzka, a Soviet attaché.

A working mother asks— Why should I stay at home?

By MARY PEARS I AM a working mother, that is to say in an office all day every day though I have a young daughter of two at home. When she was three the old lady said to the tender mercies of a "nurse" and resumed her career which she advent had interrupted. Other mothers with little children often "lock" their girls to an "nurse" when they are a year or they say, "It's the grand old nurse."

It is impossible for me to settle down to a round of bridge parties and to have the promise of a fat salary. My baby is in the capable hands of a thoroughly trained nurse and I am sure my little girl will be as well taken care of as I could wish. The result is a healthy, happy, contented child.

Why? Why should I stay in the house and the maximum of training for my child? I am sure my little girl will be as well taken care of as I could wish. The result is a healthy, happy, contented child.

Dr. F. Lacker says that Germany today is 'Poorhouse, lodging a nation of beggars'

WHEN the war came in at an end in Spring 1918 the German people were only too ready to cooperate with the Western Allies in the successful reconstruction of Europe, for they had realized long before that National Socialism had been a tragic mistake, and that in a high degree the people were responsible for it themselves.

It may seem strange and inconceivable, but the truth that the man in the street knows very little of the manifold happenings which have taken place since the breakdown.

I personally, who have in contact have seen "life in public life," and I am convinced that the people know very little of the manifold happenings which have taken place since the breakdown.
