Tin mine manager killed in dawn raid: Progress in Burma

CHINESE insurgents in a 150-strong dawn attack on Thibauld mine in Negri Sembilan, southern Malaya, yesterday shot dead the European manager, Mr. Hunter, and a Malay security guard. The manager was the clearest Burmese killer yet.

The insurgents got to work by a road block and cut the telephone wires before any attack. At a nearby police station situated by the same insurgent group another Malay security constable was killed and two wounded.

Chief Lee Fong, chairman of the 100,000-strong Communist-dominated Federal Federation of Trade Unions, issued a manifesto. The manifesto stated that the Federation has been dissolved and that all support should be given to the Federation, the manifesto said.

The Federation funds have been transferred, and all workers were to give their support to the Communist Party, contributing to the 'Malaya anti-British army' to which the Federation funds have been transferred, and all workers were to give their support to the Communist Party.

The transfer system is criticized again

ALTHOUGH the English football season has only just opened, and although P. A. O'Neill is congratulating themselves upon the report received that he is backing the League matches there is a strong undercurrent of concern among players and critics alike at the state of the P.A. O'Neill transfer system. These views are not complete unanimity of opinion among players and critics alike that the present system has not been devised in the interests of the players, but rather in the interests of the P.A. O'Neill chairman, H. H. Harcourt, as a means of increasing the number of players to find a satisfactory alternative.

Correcting Widen

It seems that even the players themselves are not satisfied with the present system. Speaking in the House of Commons, Mr. Widen stated that the transfer system was not devised in the interests of the players, but rather in the interests of the P.A. O'Neill chairman, H. H. Harcourt, as a means of increasing the number of players to find a satisfactory alternative.

HIGH COMMISSION ESTIMATES PUT HIGHER FOR NEXT YEAR

Central Assembly told best way to cut increased costs by expanding production

The High Commission estimates of revenue and expenditure for 1952 were yesterday referred to the Finance Committee in consideration, there being no objection on the motion, except from the Finance Member, Mr. J. C. Mundy, who expressed his dissent.

The estimates have been introduced within a period of about six months and that little new information had become available about the services of the High Commission. Estimates are therefore, he on somewhat broader lines than would otherwise be the case.

The Finance Committee, East African Governors had not yet closed their accounts for 1951 and it was possible to incorporate in the estimates particular of actual expenditure for 1947 for the purpose of the assets and liabilities of the High Commission.

No provision for higher salaries

It was mainly considered that there were no items likely to be of a controversial nature in the estimates. The 1952 estimates provided for a total expenditure of a little over £21 million, £600,000 more than the £20,400,000 provided for 1951. The Finance Department. The estimates of that Department were for 1952 £1,000,000 more than they would be presented as at the end of the 1951 financial year.

The Finance Committee had been approved by the East African Governors to the extent that it was estimated that £2,000,000 would be saved this year, mainly on account of the fact that no provision for higher salaries was made in the estimates. It was pointed out that the East African governments would be likely to meet the expenditure for 1952 with one important exception which might arise from any additional expenditure in the Salaries Department.

The spark was in the petrol

It was pointed out that the East African governments would be likely to meet the expenditure for 1952 with one important exception which might arise from any additional expenditure in the Salaries Department.

The increases

The 1952 income is expected to be £12,000,000, an increase of £1,000,000 on the 1951 estimate. The increase is expected to be due to an increase in the tax on profits of £1,000,000, an increase in the tax on income of £1,000,000, and an increase in the tax on capital gains of £1,000,000. The increase in the tax on profits is expected to be due to an increase in the tax rate from 10% to 12%. The increase in the tax on income is expected to be due to an increase in the tax rate from 10% to 12%. The increase in the tax on capital gains is expected to be due to an increase in the tax rate from 10% to 12%.

ELIMINATE SCAB IN A SINGLE DIPPING WITH GAMATOX DIP

Mr. David Bege, the well known Sheep and Wool Expert, late Manager of St John's Farmstead, Orange, Natal, writes to us as follows—

I have been using Gamatox for 22 years and during this period I have never entirely done without it. I have a single dipping in Camatox 200 and I can say with confidence that Gamatox has been the only dip to give me such excellent results in eradicating any other dip to me.

I have also used a regular dipping of Cooper's Healing Oil since I started farming and consider it a necessity on the farm.

Yours faithfully,

Reduce dog population and rabies will be easier to control

Large scale immunisation will reduce dog population and rabies will be easier to control. Kenya many rabies control has attracted much attention as it is very many dogs have come to Kenya from India and importers have naturally diluted quantitative detection in a country where the disease occurs and they contend that the difficulty of introducing the disease by dogs previously or subsequently immunised is insufficient to justify this exciting treatment.

There has been criticism of the lack of supplies of vaccine and an attempt has been made to draw a parallel between this country and India. Personal cases have been cited to indicate the efficacy of selective immunisation in India. The background of this is that in India, the 'depopulated rabies' in India in 1928 was a dog near Bombay in 1928 and a dog near Madras in 1930. In 1930 there was an outbreak in the Kolaba district. The next recorded case was in 1931 in an African woman in Kati, three years later a case was recorded in a dog at Waiba.

In 1931 a case occurred in St. Kevin's road in 1932. In 1932, immunisation through dogs, led to the complete eradication of the disease in the western part of the United Kingdom. From these figures, it is clear that the disease was known to the Indians in 1928 and it is not surprising that it should have been introduced to Kenya by the spread of imported dogs and by immunisation after exposure to the virus.

Substitute

This department has been in contact with various countries in regard to the availability of a substitute for the vaccine which has been imported from India.

It should be emphasized that it has been the policy of this department to import the vaccine from India. It is not possible to substitute the vaccine from other sources.

The main sources of infection are the native stray, the Nyantapa, the imported dog and the dog which has been imported from India.

It will be noted why protection is not possible for strays and dogs of unknown origin.

most great deal of money, but... The number of persons treated in India, Algeria and Morocco in 1950 was 1,024 persons. The number of human deaths and the number of human infections in 1950 were 1,024 persons.

Stress virus

Stress virus is a disease which is caused by a virus which is transmitted by contact with the infected animal.

The disease was known to the Indians in 1928 and it is not surprising that it should have been introduced to Kenya by the spread of imported dogs.

Kata and Nyantapa

The kata and Nyantapa are two types of dogs which are common in the Indian sub-continent.

These dogs are known to be carriers of the rabies virus and are a source of infection to other dogs.

Enroachment upon traditional water sources leads to murder and vengeance

An eye for an eye is one of the drastic laws of the desert tribesmen

By MERRELL DALTON

LIKE all other nomads, the tribesmen of the Juba and Tullian (Somaliland) have few household possessions, and when on the march moving home is easy for their portable house, shaped like a yurt or dome, requires only a few stout sticks and a cover of skins to make a shelter.

Over the curved framework are carried two bundles of sheepskins woven from grass and thence which are used by day for the baggage camp, a fire-stone are collected to make a fireplace, and soon the cooking pot is hanging on the smouldering embers. No allowance is made for the smoke which escapes out of the low structure in the best way it can.

Somalia was a people who relied primarily on the generosity of kinsmen and friends, and they were entirely unaccustomed to making any money for their own use, and a little to help.

In the battle would be a little water from the Juba or from the lake, with which, with the addition of a little milk, and a little sugar and sweet contained them in the way of nourishment.

During the hottest heat of the day the nomads were obliged to make a temporary abode in the mountainside made from the green bushes and by cutting little holes in the sides of the mountain, through which the prevailing breeze to sweep down and refresh themselves with a little water. Sometimes the hills, the breezes of the day were kept higher and bolder in the mountain side of the mountain.

When night fell the wanderers descended to the valley to find a campsite, and they were obliged to make a fire to keep warm, and to cook their food, and to provide themselves with a little water. Sometimes the hills, the breezes of the day were kept higher and bolder in the mountain side of the mountain.

The skin very dry of these nomads is made from the incredible dexterity and skill of the tribesmen, and the knowledge of the nomads is the result of the knowledge of the nomads.

Needs are simple

These things are simple in the extreme, the main necessity of the family of home being grain, which they make and which they sell in the market. The nomads are very simple in their needs, and they are very simple in their needs.

TO LIVE IN THE WILDS IS TO TAKE A CHANCE

By THE WARDEN (G. de P. HEATON)

I WATCHED a secretary herd kill a snake this morning. My attention was first attracted by seeing it dashing about this way and that, with wings extended. The grass was about a foot high, and I could not see the snake, but it must have been gliding about among the grass tufts in an endeavour to escape.

The attack was carried out in a very quiet and unobtrusive way. The secretary herd, after a quick run, I would call it, descended upon the snake, then leaping back and forth, but in the end the snake was killed.

The snake was about a foot long, and I could not see the snake, but it must have been gliding about among the grass tufts in an endeavour to escape.

I looked very hard about the scene. And why was my secretary herd so busy with the snake? The snake was about a foot long, and I could not see the snake, but it must have been gliding about among the grass tufts in an endeavour to escape.

A bright specimen of Chess at its best

By G. BARTON-EGGITT

DURING the period of the late War when international chess was almost at a standstill, a small group of masters who had returned from tournaments continued to keep competitive chess alive.

One of the outstanding players of the time was the Englishman, Frank and Michael Neale. They were both born in England but spent much of their lives in the United States. They were both strong players and their games were highly instructive.

The following is a game played between them in 1942. It is a fine example of positional play and tactical understanding.

Contract bridge A NEAT RECOVERY

By JOSEPH GILBERTSON

THE doctors had very little to say about the contract bridge players who had returned from tournaments. They were not only good players but also good citizens.

Contract bridge is a game of skill and strategy. It requires a deep understanding of probability and logic. The players who returned from tournaments were among the best in the world.

The following is a game played between two of the top players. It is a fine example of tactical play and strategic thinking.

White: King, Queen, Rook, Knight, Bishop, Pawns. Black: King, Queen, Rook, Knight, Bishop, Pawns.

SPIRIT OF BRITISH THEATRE HAS COME TO KENYA

The tradition of the British Theatre was created and handed on not by the casual amateur going through the motions of playacting as a form of relaxation, but by those men and women to whom the theatre was his first and who with their lives have inspired the Theatre in the position it holds today.

Let us not write, waiting a rehearsal of a play that is to be presented shortly in Nairobi, I felt we had again in the steep familiar atmosphere of a repertory company in England. The spirit of the British theatre was breathing again in that Nairobi room.

It was all there, "the restoration" that brought the spirit of the theatre back to its former glory. The spirit of the British theatre was breathing again in that Nairobi room.
