WHERE LITTLE GIRLS IN PIGTAILS READ THE LESSONS

The only church of its kind in Africa

AND HOW IT CAME INTO BEING

THAT little girl didn't put anything in the child's bag! The shocked underlings echoed piercingly through the little Church and between fifty and sixty girls every week had started, fussing on a tiny pointing figure at the chancel steps across with a smile. "She's my little daughter" he whispered. "See, here's sixpence. It'll put it in your bag for her."

The words of Father Chubb, who presided at the Mother's Church, with little girls in pig-tails and with a smile, would be a strange scene to any one who has seen a school where the children are taught to read and to sing. The children were sitting on the floor, and the teacher was talking round the collection table, invariably mentioning names "of the record" as the children sang.

There was the small boy who was asked whether he would like to be a bishop and what he would like to be—bishop, farmer, or a soldier, or a teacher, or a soldier, or a soldier.

His only name, generally, "I'd like to take the collection bag round because I'm reading to her a new lesson."

No inhibitions

And the little girl who found the answer to a question had been doing a Christmas Day exercise. Quite new inhibitions were created in the back of the Church where about the end of Christmas Eve, the after-noon party had been held in the school hall, and the children and their parents had been in the middle of the dance in Africa.

Believed to be the only place of worship of the kind in Africa, indeed one of the very few in the world, the Children's Church, established on Christ Church, in the centre of the town, was known as St. Michael's after the church in London. The children's church, though by many for the first time, was established in this part of Kenya.

It is said to be a miniature of the original church in London, a congregation of a hundred and twenty children, and the children of the school in the front, in the hall, and in the back, in the hall.

Justly adjustable

The letters in the system of the alphabet were arranged in the main table and the children were to take their seats in reading the letters.

20 years ago

The history of the Children's Church dates back more than twenty years, when a Baptist business man, Mr. McIlwain of the firm of McIlwain and McIlwain, had a vision of the children of the street, and he decided to found a church for them.

The children's church was founded in 1921, and it has since then been a place of worship and education for the children of the street.

Two flashbacks in East African history
Two versions of the death of Emin Pasha

FROM H. R. TATE

SINCE writing my article on the Uganda Mutiny of 1897, and Emin Pasha's final end in German East Africa in the service of Governor Hermann Wissman, has been challenged. After some of the best minds in East Africa have not always agreed to verify one's facts and figures. But now, having had the advantage of reference to two separate records of this man's career, I am able to correct my original statement based on previous information (Encyclopaedia) found by me for the following:

Emin's relief involved an expedition productive of great discoveries by Stanley. Through Dr. William Lankester, Russian traveler with Emin, the expedition of the first rank in the world was organized. It was the winter expedition of 1888-91, the most important of all expeditions of Emin. It was managed to communicate with Europe by way of Uganda, making known his isolated position and appealing for help. The expedition was a great wave of enthusiasm was organized in England and Germany, and Stanley at once volunteered to lead a relief expedition from the Eastern Province of the Nile.

The way in

Mr Harry Johnston has plotted out the route of the expedition. The great prestige of this expedition has attracted to it many other candidates to enter the field. Many, however, were in fear of untrusting the expedition to Stanley Thorne, who was in the precarious position of leading a relief expedition from the Nile. It was in the Nile that the expedition was organized. The expedition was a great wave of enthusiasm was organized in England and Germany, and Stanley at once volunteered to lead a relief expedition from the Eastern Province of the Nile.

The choice

Stanley was provided from following the old Egyptian route south of the Victoria Nile, to German East Africa. He went there, to strike at the Nile at found his way to the Congo. The expedition was a great wave of enthusiasm was organized in England and Germany, and Stanley at once volunteered to lead a relief expedition from the Eastern Province of the Nile.

The first move

When the foregoing a powerful with all his expedition. The expedition was a great wave of enthusiasm was organized in England and Germany, and Stanley at once volunteered to lead a relief expedition from the Eastern Province of the Nile.

'Nile Quest'

The discoveries which Stanley had made in the Albertine region of the Nile basin, however, whistled the curiosity of Emin, who returned to these regions in 1890 with Dr. Francis Seemann a German traveler and biologist. Finally the latter after traveling with him on his expedition for several months through the Great Lakes region, returned to Emin and returned to the Nile basin. The expedition was a great wave of enthusiasm was organized in England and Germany, and Stanley at once volunteered to lead a relief expedition from the Eastern Province of the Nile.

Callers at 'the office'

These names were the names of the first of the expedition. The expedition was a great wave of enthusiasm was organized in England and Germany, and Stanley at once volunteered to lead a relief expedition from the Eastern Province of the Nile.

BOOKS: Mr. Aldington produces his own Golden Treasury

It is now nearly a hundred years since Palgrave published his Golden Treasury, the first anthology of its kind, in some ways perhaps the best and still the favourite.

Since 1861 the taste for anthologies has steadily developed and become more widespread. We have now many such collections, all famous—the Oxford Book of Verse, the Poems of Today, The Atlantic Book of Living Verse and so on.

Then there are the more specialist collections, such as the Anthology of Poets of the Nineteenth Century, which may in fact be made from almost any kind of material.

The editors say that the most successful is derived from the best and most original of the poets of the time, and to choose a collection of flowers. This is essential for the quality of Palgrave's book. The poems have all been carefully chosen and arranged so that they vary pleasantly, and in short a 'weight'.

Palgrave gave particular thought to the selection of his contemporaries. He was a lover of literature and had some sense, here, of the importance of a good selection of verse to a collection of flowers. It is a pity that the editors of the present day have not done so.

Why not your own? A friend has asked me this question. Every reader has his own golden treasury. In the case of the present day, it is a golden treasury of the best and most original of the poets of the time, and to choose a collection of flowers. This is essential for the quality of Palgrave's book. The poems have all been carefully chosen and arranged so that they vary pleasantly, and in short a 'weight'.

WHAT KENYA LAND BANK HAS DONE

1947 sets near-record year

IN VIEW of the interest created by the announcement that the establishment of Land Banks in Tanganyika and Uganda is under consideration, the "East African Standard" asks Mr. T. J. Talbot, the Kenya Land Bank, to explain its work done by the Bank in Kenya.

The Land and Agricultural Bank of Kenya (L.A.B.) was established in 1931. Its main function being to provide financial assistance to farmers at a reasonable rate of interest.

The Bank is a corporate body created under the Land and Agricultural Bank Ordinance and has as Chairman the Financial Secretary, with the Governor as ex-officio member. It has a capital of £2,000,000, of which £1,000,000 is guaranteed by the Government.

The Bank's operations started in 1931 when farmers were in a state of depression, when commodity prices were low and the prevailing interest rates on loans and mortgages were high. In the next year, the history of a considerable amount of the loans granted was applied to the repayment of existing mortgages, in many cases with a rebate of interest and of terms of repayment.

Early losses

Even in 1931 agriculture in many parts of the country was in a depressed state, and though the interest rates were low and the prevailing interest rates on loans and mortgages were high, the Bank's operations were not profitable. In fact, certain crops proving unsuitable for certain areas.

It is a tribute to many of the farmers that, in spite of the fact that the Bank's operations were not profitable, they continued to borrow from the Bank. This was due to the fact that the Bank's operations were not profitable, they continued to borrow from the Bank.

Since 1931 the Bank has had a very successful record. It has paid to the Government a sum of £1,000,000 in interest.

BRITAIN TACKLES FODDER SHORTAGE

THE Milk Marketing Board of Britain has carried out an experiment which should be of great interest to the milking industry even in those countries where the same problem does not exist.

In consultation with Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd. the Board organized a trial in which a special feeding-stuff—a problem which was being solved by the Board—was used. This was done in a special feeding-stuff.

As a matter of fact, artificial dryness is not a new thing. It is a result of circumstances that are of long standing. It is a result of circumstances that are of long standing. It is a result of circumstances that are of long standing.

For 'small' men

The intention of the Milk Marketing Board's experiment was to see if small farmers could be helped to share in the benefits of the new dry cow system. Small farmers constitute the bulk of British agriculture, but their equipment is often out of date and their methods are not up to the mark.

Western union: But what kind, with what purpose?

By Anthony Derratt of "The Economist."

WHEN Mr. Bevin made his recent speech on the subject of a closer union of the western European countries, he hinted at a handful of mixed needs upon the ground and nobody is quite sure what, if anything, is going to grow.

It is possible that the part of Europe which will be incorporated and free may find a new unity in facing common economic and political dangers, and that in time we may see developments of historical importance.

In particular, almost all men of sense and goodwill now want to see some binding together of the western countries, but in detail the proposals are not clear.

One of the chief troubles of the west is that it is not a unit. It is not a unit of all men of sense and goodwill now want to see some binding together of the western countries, but in detail the proposals are not clear.

There seem to be three main ingredients in the various ideas: plans and proposals. In the first place, there is a school which thinks of Western Union as a means of increasing the confidence among the European countries.

Another school thinks of Western Union as a means of increasing the confidence among the European countries. This school is not a unit of all men of sense and goodwill now want to see some binding together of the western countries, but in detail the proposals are not clear.

The socialist school of western Europe, though now the majority, thinks of Western Union as a means of increasing the confidence among the European countries.

BEHNS BECAME FULL-SCALE PIRGE IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA

All no 'explanation' by Benes

President Eduard Benes remains silent on the political events of the last week, which have reduced Czechoslovakia to a state pattern as other countries of Eastern Europe. Benes, who has taken a firm grip on the reins of power as the second phase of their campaign—the complete central and local governmental control by the purged Communist Party and the Red Army—has not yet made his two-week arranged broadcast to the people of the country. He has not yet made his first broadcast since yesterday after the completion of the day's re-organizing in the new Government he would have the day after their evening in the new Ministry of Finance and the Ministry of Commerce. Benes has permitted the Minister of Trade dictated plans for the nationalization of industry and a new organization of Communist plans were by yesterday all the projected plans of the new Government. Benes has not yet made his first broadcast since yesterday after the completion of the day's re-organizing in the new Government he would have the day after their evening in the new Ministry of Finance and the Ministry of Commerce. War Office 'Sought' Chief in Kenya

Desert Victory

There is good news today for the world. A great battle has been fought for mankind against the forces of darkness in the Middle East, Arabia, Egypt, Sudan, Abyssinia, the Somali lands and East Africa, and it has been won. A conference of British experts on local conditions and destruction after a meeting in Nairobi under the chairmanship of the world's leading desert expert, Dr. S. P. Uveroy, is in the happy position of being able to announce that the territory from approximately the Persian Gulf west and south to the borders of Portuguese East Africa and the Belgian Congo is now free of locusts. In that large area are most of the known places where, in favourable conditions, the locusts begin to swarm. It is in those areas that the locusts, when the hoppers emerged, that the main battle has been concentrated for six years.

The Week-end Page gives the background to Antarctic news

HAVE FALKLAND ISLANDS A PLACE IN EMPIRE DEFENCE?

FIVE-MILLION miles of wind-swept, hollow Antarctic waste have lately been pushed into the forefront of world news by political manoeuvring over the Falkland Islands Dependencies. Chile and the Argentine both claim jurisdiction over the territory to which Britain insists that she has a perfectly legal and inalienable right. What is the significance of these barren lands? Have these more than a hundred small islands any greater value than mere coasts for

Facts about the Falklands and their Dependencies

These facts will set up the scene for the week-end page, the Falkland Islands and their Dependencies.

They are the only comprehensive cluster of islands in the great Atlantic, save for about 100 islands of the British Empire, which extends from South America.

Exactly the opposite, with a few exceptions, to the islands in the Pacific, and the only islands in the world which are not volcanic.

The Falklands are the only islands in the world which are not volcanic.

There is also a political aspect about the Falkland Islands. The islands are ready to refer to the United Nations for their settlement. The islands are ready to refer to the United Nations for their settlement.

Strategic value

Observers point to the recent oil tanker Chile and the Argentine, which sailed for South Africa of Pinar del Rio and other islands after Lord Marshall Lord Montgomery's Commission.

Both these islands are in the southern coast of South Africa and Australia, and would form important links in any proposed joint Commonwealth defence chain in the Southern Hemisphere.

With a further link to the Indian Ocean, the Falkland Islands and other islands in the South Atlantic would form a link between the Cape of Good Hope and the Antarctic coast, which connects the Atlantic with the Pacific.

-but no wealth

Professor Frank Debenham, Director of the British Antarctic Research Institute at Cambridge University, has stated in an unpublished memorandum that it is impossible to suggest that the islands are any great source of wealth.

Finally, there is no land beneath the islands. There is no land beneath the islands. There is no land beneath the islands.

Stone age earthquake kept evidence intact

A JAWBONE of a 12-year-old human being who, steps of a million years ago, was trapped in a cave by a collapse after an earth tremor, is helping to solve a mystery.

It is a jawbone, or rather, a molar tooth, found by Mr. Ben Chubb, a geologist, in a cave at the foot of a mountain near the town of Malpas, near Fife, Scotland.

The find has established a definite connection between man of this period and the stone age implements to be established for the first time.

The molar has features similar to those of the Neanderthal Man discovered in Belgium in 1908, and it is believed to be the oldest of its kind yet found in the British Isles.

It was found at the very top of the famous Clava with the plan of a being probably about 12,000 years old.

Surrounding it was a large hand axe, a stone tool, and a flint stone tool.

The earth tremor thousands of years ago caused a cave to collapse and the jawbone and stone tools were buried and the vibrations were prevented from disturbing the scene of the cave.

The Fight for Freedom

What is left of the Democratic world is being severely shaken by the rapid descent of free Czechoslovakia to totalitarianism. The rapid descent of free Czechoslovakia to totalitarianism is the most serious blow to the reputation of personal freedom, the ruthless pruning of opposition elements, the suppression of elected representatives of the people, the free press, reorganization of youth movements in alignment with the new official doctrine, the flight of thousands of men and women, make terrible reading last three years ago. The world-wide war against the forces of aggression, The Russian invasion on Finland to sign a military pact and the alarm of the world which has swept through the Scandinavian countries as the menacing advance of Russia against them, has added to the world-wide war against the forces of aggression.

Claims for being wage up to a maximum of 25 per cent above the present level. What is the cause of this? The answer is simple. It is the result of the inflationary policy followed by the British Government, which has led to a general rise in the price level.
