CAMBRIDGE FLOG THE W.I. BOWLING

Record stand 343 by Deves and Sheppard

J. G. DEVES, who played in a Test match in 1947 against the Australians, and D. S. SHEPPARD, made the highest score against the West Indians to date when they opened the Cambridge innings at Ferris on Wednesday, and put on 343 runs before being separated by a wicket.

The pair had put on 123 by the time the first wicket fell to DEVES (135) and SHEPPARD (123) by the time they had together the 352. They were then caught off guard by DEVES (135) and SHEPPARD (123) by the time they had together the 352. They were then caught off guard by DEVES (135) and SHEPPARD (123) by the time they had together the 352.

Best bowling of day was Butler's

W. BUTLER bagged and bowled the best bowling of the day when he took 10 for 17 in the first innings of the Cambridge team at Ferris on Wednesday.

An easy wicket

It would be admitted that the West Indies were not in the best of form when they came to the East African Standard ground at Ferris on Wednesday.

KENYA A DEVELOPMENT PLANS ARE CRITICISED

At the annual general meeting of the Aberdeenshire Education Authority, held at Thorneycroft, there were considerable criticisms of the D.A.A. programme and of the lack of emphasis which it was stated, that programmes to be run by the productive services are concerned.

On behalf of the Thorneycroft Falls District Association Mr. P. J. McLaughlin expressed his criticism of the D.A.A. programme, generally speaking, as inadequate and outdated, and should be revised forthwith. He made special reference to greater provision for educational services.

He referred to a statement which had been made during the past five years by the D.A.A. that it was going to be bankrupt in 1959. According to the D.A.A. report, at the end of this five-year period, four and a half millions were due to be repaid and the cost of the "money" from the D.A.A. was estimated to be £1,000,000. He stated that the D.A.A. had not been able to raise the necessary funds to meet these obligations.

After committing on the fact that the very few people who were left in the country were starving, Mr. McLaughlin said that the D.A.A. had not been able to raise the necessary funds to meet these obligations.

MOUNTAIN ROAD TO A FANTASTIC FAIRYLAND

One of the wardens of Kenya's National Parks writes of the cold silence, unbelievable beauty and the animals in the Mount Kenya Park.

THERE has been little news recently from Mount Kenya National Park, but it is generally silent, less talking than the forests of Nairobi or the elephants of Amboseli. The immediate trade on this mountain is to be content to stand up the road there, where there are many more cars than there were a few years ago. It will not be usual for many years to come to see a car on the mountain, but the road is now open to the public, and the road is now open to the public, and the road is now open to the public.

Elusive bongo
The giant bongo and the mountain bongo are entirely different but both are elusive. The elusive bongo occasionally leaves his footprints across the road, but he is never seen. The elusive bongo occasionally leaves his footprints across the road, but he is never seen. The elusive bongo occasionally leaves his footprints across the road, but he is never seen.

No fear of humans
With the graminivorous plant life of the hillsides of the mountain, the wild life in these spots is not afraid of humans. Little hillbillies are common, and the mountain bongo is not afraid of humans. Little hillbillies are common, and the mountain bongo is not afraid of humans. Politics are important in the animal world

Reporting a recent Paris conference a UNESCO writer tells how some animals become social snobs.

IF a passer-by had wandered into an international conference held recently in Paris at the Sorbonne he might well have thought he was attending a meeting of diplomats and statesmen.

The speakers were discussing the behaviour of the white rat, showed the animal with an embarrassed hesitancy, usually reserved for the more important members of the group.

The speaker was one of the first international meetings of its kind, and the subject was the behaviour of the white rat, showed the animal with an embarrassed hesitancy, usually reserved for the more important members of the group.

KEEN EMPIRE DAY FOOTBALL IN BOTH CODES

Europeans beat Asians by odd goal in five

Football enthusiasts of both codes had plenty to praise from Empire Day. In addition to the annual seven-a-side Rugby tournament, Europeans and Asians produced some exciting Soccer as the Services ground, with the former winning by the odd goal in five.

Asians were somewhat unfortunate to be beaten for their preparation for the match. The referee's decision to allow a free kick was a fair one. The Europeans, however, had the bigger and more powerful players. The Asians were not so well equipped and it was their lack of skill in the half that cost them. The Europeans were well served by their forward line, which was well supported by the rest of the team. The Asians were not so well supported and their defence was not so strong. The Europeans were well served by their forward line, which was well supported by the rest of the team. The Asians were not so well supported and their defence was not so strong.

Stranahan, out at 11, took a three hole lead over the rest of the field.

THE RICH FISHERIES OF LAKE VICTORIA

Dr. E. B. Worthington, Scientific Secretary to the East Africa High Commission, lectured to the Royal Geographical Society in London this week. In this article, based on his lecture, he describes the rich resources of Lake Victoria.

NEAR the middle of Lake Victoria you'll find on the east shore a small island called Godhalla, or Mubonyonyo. It was the site of a naval station in the first world war. It is rather a comic affair I believe, because one British, one German, one Dutch, which each mounted a gun of sorts. This little island was not visited after that action until 1927, when I was one of a small party which landed there and examined the island.

We found it very cut off from the world. It was never visited by any of the natives, and the young people were brought there only for certain occasions, such as a fishing contest, however, quite a flourishing little community of fishermen and cottagers.

Now Godhalla was built to last for another twenty years or so, but it is now being abandoned by the British. The Commissioner from Mwanza and one of two of Lake Victoria Fisheries Officers have been to Godhalla and have found around it rather than a significant change has taken place.

Now Godhalla is about a 1/2 mile long and 1/4 mile wide. It is situated in a bay of the lake. It is a very fertile island, and it is very important for the fishery.

The changes which will be taking place in the fishery of Lake Victoria will be of a very important nature. It is a very important fishery, and it is very important for the fishery.

Whales make a landing on Scotland's coast

ANYONE (outside of Westminster) would have thought that Scotland had enough problems on her own, but she has now had already another added to the list which she is in one sense at least the "biggest" of all—namely, 14 whales, which landed on the beach near Dunbar.

Whether they have been seeking a better life, or whether they were blown off their feet by a storm, the 14 whales, which landed on the beach near Dunbar, were found by a fisherman named Mr. James Macdonald.
