BRITISH LEAD IN 'OPEN' AT TROON

British leads by 140 for two rounds

The British Open golf championship is being played at Troon, Scotland, and the British team is leading by 140 strokes for two rounds. The American team is in second place with 136 strokes, followed by the Canadian team with 134 strokes. The British team consists of J. H. Taylor, G. W. Green, and G. S. Brown. The American team consists of H. C. Wynn, J. R. Smith, and J. D. Jones. The Canadian team consists of M. P. Clark, R. L. White, and S. K. Black.

The British team's lead is due to a combination of factors, including superior play on the green and better ball-stopping power. The American team is also playing well, but has not been able to keep up with the British. The Canadian team is also showing some promise, but is still a long way behind.

Putts wasted

Many putts were wasted because of the dryness of the green. The British team was able to capitalize on these putts, while the American and Canadian teams were not. The British team's superior ball-stopping power was also a factor in their success.

Police bring about

Police brought about a change in the order of play. The British team was able to take advantage of this change, while the American and Canadian teams were not. The British team's superior play on the green was also a factor in their success.

Golf's worst horror is the socket, or shank

by W. J. Cox

THE socket, or shank—that is, a club striking the ball about away from the neck of the club at an angle of anything from 45 to 90 degrees to your intended line—is the worst horror in golf.

I think of the ordinary faults of golf much as my doctor thinks of the ordinary ailments of everyday life. I think of the shank as a poisoning headache, the slice as a burst of biliousness, the hook as a violent attack of rheumatism. The socket is in a different class. It is a different ailment entirely. It is a different ailment altogether. It is a different ailment entirely. It is a different ailment altogether.

From the fact that the club is so far off the line, it is not surprising that the ball is struck so far from the intended line. NYANZA MUSICAL SOCIETY'S KIMA MISSION FESTIVAL

Kaimosi Boys school undefeated
Amongst the thronging foot-stream hills of Kaimosi, commanding magnificent views of Lake Victoria and the grim, rocky valleys, some-choke and weather-beaten, the Kima Mission Church is setting for the Annual Festival of Music which attracts an ever-widening circle of entrants from African schools.

The music Mr. Michael Popkin, Kaimosi Schoolmaster, has arranged for the festival is better and better each year. Last year's festival was the best since the Church of God Mission closed with what has become one of the Africans only.

Entries are accepted only from the schools of the district and qualification for entry is that the school must be a member of the Christian Church of God Mission, or a member of the Church of God Mission, or a member of the Church of God Mission, or a member of the Church of God Mission.

At the opening, the President, Captain M. C. S. Mwanuzi, gave his opening address, followed by the musical programme, which began with the Kaimosi Girls School, last year's winners.

How the paper pattern was born

Source: The paper pattern, the body of fashion has ruled the social scene. One of the most striking examples of this is the number of women who could only be seen in the streets of London through the glass windows of the shops.

WOMEN OF THE FORCE

MANY women imagine that "dress sense" is something that can be learned, but it is not. It is a natural instinct that is developed through experience.

ELSA M. SANDERS' London letter is mainly concerned with policemen, what to wear in wet weather, and the Englishman's dress sense.

★ THE FRIDAY MISCELLANY ★

ONE of Kenya's oldest residents, Mrs. Margaret Mahler, who publishes the "African Standard" every week, is celebrating her seventieth birthday on Saturday.

Mrs. Mahler is one of the few women who, in addition to their own careers, have managed to find time to do a large amount of good work in their communities. She has been a member of the "African Standard" since its inception in 1901 and has been its most faithful supporter ever since.

The large number of visits to the Government House by the various members of the Government, including the Governor, the Minister of Education and the Minister of Health, who were present at the opening of the new building, was a most interesting and successful one.

The new building is a fine example of modern architecture and is well suited to the needs of the Government. It is situated on the site of the old Government House and is a most impressive structure.

For some time this splendid building has been the scene of many interesting and successful meetings and conferences.

It is a pity that the Government has not yet decided to build a new building for the various departments.

The existing buildings are not only old but also in a state of decay. It is necessary to build new buildings to accommodate the various departments and to provide for the needs of the Government.

BRITISH ENGINEERS ARE BUSY BUILDING LASTING MEMORIALS TO THEIR SKILL.

In Australia British engineers have built a new bridge across the Macintyre River only 1500 yds from the old bridge. New spans from Sydney span across the Macintyre and Macintyre from the bridge of 23 miles on heavy steel were raised to travel over the old bridge—taken on record at four miles off river.

British engineers do not confine their activities to the home or to the British Empire. In the construction of the Suez Canal the British engineers' industry at Suez has been a great industry in British work in construction.

Another large-scale operation in which the skill of British engineers is being put to the test is the reconstruction of the Indian State railways.

On the right engineers already position one of the sections of a new railway bridge across the gully of the river in the valley of the Nile, the bridge being by the operating bridge of 1921. Construction work was maintained by train ferries improved in the winter of 1928.

All over the world British civil engineers are building lasting monuments to their skill. Since the 19th century, when the early work of engineering and bringing up the efficiency of Asia was started, it has been to Britain that the world has turned when the ideas of a superior area have had to be turned into engineering fact.

The early bridge structures which freed Egypt from the constant threat of flood or starvation, the building of new and modern harbours in Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, all are tributes to the British engineers who went far from home to work their miracles. And that is the construction which older countries must always make to the new.

The canal barrage now being built across the Nile to the order of the Egyptian Government, is typical of a school of engineers which is trained in working in difficult country and in making full use of local resources. Local stone is there being quarried in the same area where the Pharaohs found their stone, and in a temperature which rarely falls below 90 Fahr. and which rises to 120 degrees in the sun.

On the West coast of Africa engineers from Britain have created a unique sort of harbour at Freetown on the Gold Coast. Not only are the boats not long any longer from being damaged from the waves, but the harbour is a masterpiece of engineering.

In Egypt where the river Nile is built in a narrow channel, the engineers have built a barrage at Suez. This view shows the upstream side of the barrage which will help to solve the problems of the control of the waters of the great river. The barrage is a masterpiece of hydro-electric engineering at Suez in the great river Nile.

SISAL INDUSTRY COMPARED WITH GROUNDNUTS

The Royal Agricultural Show

M. E. F. FITCHCOCK, Chairman of the Tanganyika Sisal Growers' Association, told his fellow growers and trade visitors at the Association's annual dinner that today's sisal prices may not last. Supply and demand, he said, should easily reach equilibrium, the sisal growers have lost this week's production.

Emphasizing the importance of sisal to the economy of the Territory—a million pounds worth annually—Fitchcock said that the industry is open to all other opportunities for sisal growers. He pointed out that sisal is the only crop yielding today high to be lifted from the point of view of capital replacement at current price levels.

He also expressed views on mechanization in East African agriculture, with particular reference to the groundnuts scheme in Tanganyika.

During the 20 years between the wars on a 100-acre plantation in the United States, a man could produce a million dollars worth of goods and services. Today, the same man can produce only 100,000 dollars worth of goods and services.

Fifty per cent more
 In order to obtain by 1964 something like 100 per cent of our present production on the present basis, we must have a further investment of 100,000,000—50 per cent in excess of the total investment since the start of the sisal industry.

It is not an exaggeration to say that the sisal industry has not yet reached the stage where it is possible to make any real profit. It is still in a state of development and it is not yet possible to make any real profit. It is still in a state of development and it is not yet possible to make any real profit.

The expert says
 "What the expert has to say is that the sisal industry is still in a state of development and it is not yet possible to make any real profit. It is still in a state of development and it is not yet possible to make any real profit."

At the Royal Agricultural Show held on the 10th and 11th of July at the Royal Agricultural Show, the Royal Agricultural Show was held at the Royal Agricultural Show, the Royal Agricultural Show was held at the Royal Agricultural Show.

Hand-to-hand fight with iron
 A business deal, that of an iron and steel company, is being made in the sisal industry. The sisal industry is being made in the sisal industry.

Mechanical costs
 "Mechanization needs special engineering experience rarely possessed by Agricultural Department. This is serious view of a farmer, Director of Agriculture of Tanganyika gave some hopefully unqualified advice on the grounds above. He was not wrong."

Naga's 'Queen' to live in Kenya

BY ANNE BRIDGES

Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II has appointed a Naga princess to be the first Naga to live in Kenya. The princess, who is the daughter of the Naga ruler, will be accompanied by her husband and children. The Naga people are a primitive tribe living in the hills of North Borneo. They are known for their head-hunting customs and their intricate weaving. The queen's visit to Kenya is part of her tour of the British Empire. She will be staying in Nairobi for several weeks before traveling to other parts of the empire.

The White 'Queen of the Naga'. During the famous flight of the Naga ruler, the princess of the Naga State of Manipur was taken to the Naga hills. She was then married to the Naga ruler. The princess is now living in Kenya with her husband and children. She is the first Naga to live in Kenya.

ON THE BANKS OF THE JUBA RIVER

ONCE past Galla you were truly in the wild, for there were no settlements other than the Wa-Galla villages on the Berdiera river, and the road ran to and fro, first past these wilder areas, and then into apparently trackless scrub, a tangle of thicket, and a mass of mud and colour of tumbled prairie.

Very much of scrub, camel, sheep and goats range back to the river as the cooling pools dry out.

And again, a few ghostly figures drifted through the scrub, and a few more settlements other than the Wa-Galla villages on the Berdiera river, and the road ran to and fro, first past these wilder areas, and then into apparently trackless scrub, a tangle of thicket, and a mass of mud and colour of tumbled prairie.

MERRELL DALTON
gives a glimpse of life on the road to Berdiera and the customs of the Somalis.

Mad hyenas

By no means less unpleasant was the mad hyena, which was much of the Somali's prey. These mad hyenas, which were very common, were very fierce, and would attack man and beast alike. They were very noisy, and their howling was a constant reminder of their presence.

Strangely Biblical

The scene was always a colorful one, and seemed Biblical, with the people dressed in their traditional robes, and the men carrying spears and shields. The women were dressed in long, flowing robes, and the children were dressed in simple, practical clothing.

WAYS TO SOLVE THE SQUATTER PROBLEM

Good Scotch Whisky

JOHNNIE WALKER

By COLIN MAHER

THE price and cost of the squatter problem have been debated for long enough. They are not lacking spirited adherents on either side of the subject's fall for discussion at any future meeting.

The case of the supporters of the present method of dealing with the problem, if it remains in the hands of the Government, is a case of the Government being placed in a position where it is unable to do anything to help the squatters who are living on the land of the farmer who is unable to work.

In view of the opinion of the Government on the squatter problem, it is not surprising that the Government has decided to try a new method of dealing with the squatter problem.
