DANGER TO THE ENGLISH TURF

Stewards must take strict action

JOY ROGER MORTIMER

It would have been remarkable if the general decline in moral standards had not left its mark on racing. The Turf has always had its lively side and in the days of financial stress the temptation towards sharp practice is stronger than ever before. It would be untrue to suggest that the general standards of Turf morals today was deplored only but for one who gives racing regularly could have failed to observe the deterioration in recent years.

FLOOD-LIT SPECTACLE

A PACKED stadium of 66,000 people cannot be written. That was the number lucky enough to gain admission to Highbury Stadium, London, for the first of the floodlit matches between Arsenal and Glasgow Rangers. At least 20,000 more people sat on the grass and on the roofs of their newspapers that Arsenal won by three goals to two.

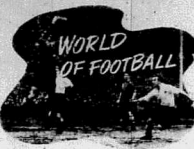

Make no mistake about it. The floodlit football match is a new thing. It has been tried in the past but it has never been taken to the public eye and then faded into obscurity. Football, now floodlighting will be almost certainly a regular feature in English football, and the first Northern League match was held at Newcastle on the 22nd of the season.

—and reviews their visit to Kenya

THE visit of the South African polo team is over and we have time to reflect on a happy interlude in Kenya polo.

The team of youngsters did not represent the Union officials, but they have not failed to maintain the high sporting reputation of Kenyan polo. They were down South.

Though they did not win one of the three first matches, they were well met in this of the game. More trophies of the Union's object were won than in any other year. There are also several trophies which have been won by the team.

Naivasha criticisms of Meat Commission

Naivasha Subscribers of the Electors' Union passed many resolutions at their last Management Committee meeting held under the chairmanship of Capt. C. T. Todd

Among them was one, which was passed unanimously condemning the Meat Commission's action in the matter of an abattoir at the Athi River.

The Committee took the view that where the working of the abattoir has been criticised by the public, the Commission should be asked to explain its action. A number of queries will be placed on the Commission's mind, some of which are as follows:—

1. The fact that all abattoirs open to the public are under the supervision of the Veterinary Department, and that the Meat Commission's abattoir is not so supervised, is a matter which will be brought to the attention of the Government.

2. The fact that the Meat Commission's abattoir is not open to the public, and that the public is not allowed to see the carcasses of the animals which are being slaughtered, is a matter which will be brought to the attention of the Government.

EXPERTS AND AMATEURS MINGLE AT SHOW

A steady stream of overseas visitors thronged the showground; they came from all over East Africa too.

It was doubtless due to the heavy rain that fell at intervals on most days of the Show that the vast numbers of overseas visitors who thronged the showground were rather than decorative nuttiness, but even so one rather expected that here and there some really smart women, hats that appeared to have been made for the occasion.

However these women were few and far between, and the majority of the overseas visitors were of the type that one would expect to find at a domestic show. The rain, however, did not seem to have done much to dampen the spirits of the people who came from all over East Africa to see the Show.

THE MOUNTBATTEN LEGEND—4

LOOKING back across the lives of men and women who have been destined to great achievement in their own spheres, one cannot but think by the way that moments which stand out in their memory, small as they may be, assume importance in the final analysis.

It is in the case of the Mountbattens that the moment of their meeting in the East stands out as a landmark in the lives of both.

It is the meeting which took place in the East, at a time when the world was in a state of confusion, and when the future of the world was uncertain.

It was a meeting which was destined to change the course of history.

their next meeting ground just over the immediate horizon, dotted by stars of Australia and New Zealand that was to turn into a vast progress.

It was a meeting which was destined to change the course of history. It was a meeting which was destined to change the course of history.

Testing time in India—How they won over its surging millions.

will be regarded in years to come as the Mountbattens' greatest achievement. And that is the way that they succeeded in breaking down at last the barriers of non-cooperation and misunderstanding between the people of the British Empire and the people of the Indian subcontinent. It was a meeting which was destined to change the course of history.

CHANGING HABITS OF AFRICA'S WILD ANIMALS

THE habits of wild animals are undergoing many radical changes and although such changes are inevitable they are nevertheless taking place in a manner that may easily be overlooked. Underlying these changes is human interference, and strangely enough this interference is often intended to benefit the animals by providing them with a sanctuary of sorts.

Animals are reluctant to retreat and their continued presence has become a serious problem for many of our game reserves. In certain instances, the animals are not able to find adequate food and therefore take refuge in the open fields, orchards and gardens. Some of these animals are dangerous to the people who live in the vicinity of the game reserves.

It appears likely that in some instances animals will take refuge in the open fields and orchards and that other animals will follow for one reason or another. It is not clear how long this will continue to last. It becomes evident that the animals are being driven to the open fields and orchards by human interference.

Now let us consider animals in captivity. Many mistakes are being made in the keeping of animals in modern times. Take for example the cheetah. It is a very beautiful animal and it is very popular with the public. However, it is a very delicate animal and it is very difficult to keep in captivity. In this article Earl L. Drennan, Editor of "African Wild Life", declares: "If we once tamper with nature it becomes entirely impossible, despite every griffin of service, to recreate a natural balance."

The cheetah is a sensible animal; it does not breed in captivity.

LAMU SAYS FAREWELL TO A POPULAR D.C.

Island's new industry doing well

WITH 41 years' experience of this part of the Kenya Coast, it is not surprising that Lamu, a town of 10,000 people, should have become a popular destination for tourists and businessmen alike during the past few years. The small rains start about the middle of November and may go on until the end of December.

The year's big rains started in the first week of April and lasted in Lamu for about 10 weeks. The weather and the small rains have been very good. The small rains have started unusually early.

AN APPRECIATION: Dr. Alan McK. Fleming, M.C.

As briefly noted earlier, Dr. Fleming, Senior Medical Officer, Nairobi, died suddenly at his home on October 1, 1951.

Dr. Fleming was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1881 and served in the Royal West African Medical Corps in East Africa. He was appointed Surgeon-Major in 1914 and was awarded the Military Cross for his services during the war.

FUTURE DEVELOPMENTS IN CENTRAL AFRICA

White Paper 'a mouse from a mountain'

It was the recent official conference on the subject of future development in Central Africa as well as the White Paper 'a mouse from a mountain' which has attracted a responsible and penetrating survey of Commonwealth affairs.

The White Paper is a group of papers which have been prepared by the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. Harold Macmillan, and the Secretary of State for Africa, Mr. Alan Wilson.

They will try to increase membership

HOLDING their first meeting in Nairobi, the Nairobi Chamber of Commerce and Industry has decided to increase its membership.

The Chamber was founded in 1907 and has since that time been one of the leading organizations in the city. It has a long and distinguished record of service to the community.

EIGHT STEPS ALREADY TAKEN

MEMBERS of Kenya Legislative Council heard in question time this week of the Government's plan to step up sugar production in the Colony. In reply to a question by the Member for Central Area, Mr. J. E. Nalho, right steps to increase sugar production were listed by Mr. J. H. Ingram, the Secretary for Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Trials of cane

The Government's plan to increase sugar production in the Colony is being carried out in eight steps. The first step is to increase the area under cultivation. This is being done by encouraging farmers to plant more cane. The second step is to improve the quality of the cane. This is being done by providing technical assistance to farmers.

Saturday's racing at Nakuru

CONDITIONS were overcast and Saturday's racing at Nakuru was marred by a threat of rain. The attendance was very small for Nakuru. The race track was very dry and the going was very fast. The results of the races were as follows: 1. 1000 Yards Handicap: Winner, N. N. N. 2. 1000 Yards Handicap: Winner, N. N. N.

Springboks should have scored more

ALTHOUGH the South African Springboks have been successful in their tour of the British Isles, they should have scored more points. The Springboks were very strong in the forward pack and they were very accurate in their kicking. However, they were a bit out of sync in their play and they were a bit slow in their attack.

SIR JOHN HATHORN HALL

An appreciation by The Hon. A. N. Maimi, O.B.E., Member of Uganda Legislative Council, Member of the East African Central Assembly and Mayor of Kampala

History alone will assess the moral and material progress made by Uganda during the administration of Sir John Hathorn Hall. It might however be given to a very casual member of His Majesty's staff to record a few of his impressions of this very important period.

The two years (1948-50) which Sir John spent in Uganda were the most important in the history of the country. It was during this period that the Uganda Legislative Council was established and the Uganda Protectorate was transformed into a Dominion.

People may not have with the substance of these policies but few will deny that their introduction has given a definite character to the new development of Uganda. The rationalisation of the House by these proposals has been marked by the development in the field of local government. There has been a great improvement of the local general education of the country on democratic lines.

The portrait of Sir John Hathorn Hall which was painted by Mr. John A. A. Berrie, R.C.A. A.R.C.A. for presentation to him on his retirement.

HAILSTORMS IN NORTH NYANZA

Cassava root now a favoured crop

ALTHOUGH the rainfall for the past month has been average the short rains are proving adequate for the legumes crop.

Several legumes have however yielded a small amount of storage. A much better crop is to be expected in the next few weeks. The first of the year's increased area of root crops has been planted in parts of which it will be difficult to obtain the requisite amount of labour during the period of the "rainy season".

It is estimated that the total area of root crops in the North Nyanza area is about 10,000 acres. This is a considerable increase on the area planted in the previous year.

The increase in the area of root crops is due to the fact that the soil in the North Nyanza area is very fertile and the crops are well adapted to the climate.

The increase in the area of root crops is also due to the fact that the Government has provided a subsidy for the purchase of root crops.

A woman at the Show

By L. A. Cooke

I THINK that there must be a woman in Kent who has been told just how the things come out. For a woman coming to London to see the Exhibition will have to take a train to the station, and then a bus to the Exhibition. It will be a long and tiring journey, and she will have to be ready to go at a moment's notice. The woman who has been told just how the things come out will have to be ready to go at a moment's notice. of Paris was the title of the lecture given by Monsieur Jean-François Picard, President of the Alliance Française, at Ture's Hotel on October 23. The speech, in which, among other things, he dealt with the history of the League of Nations, was so well received that the speaker was invited to expand from an Alliance event, accordingly carried out and headed by a background of famous names and names in Paris, the French city. One could imagine the Maitland, New House, the Art, the Temple, the 'Lump' House and of course the 'Lump' House.

THE DUKE OF WINDSOR'S BOOK AND— The Other Side Of The Abdication Story

By
Viscount Templewood
TODAY, for the first time, a member of the BRITISH CABINET during the ABDICATION reveals the other side of the Windsor story. VISCOUNT TEMPLEWOOD writes not only as the former King's friend but as a member of BALDWIN'S Government. He was then
Sir Samuel Hoare

UNTIL I read King's story I had not realised that the abdication was not a simple matter. There were certain definite feelings and definite considerations that had to be taken into account. I was not only a member of the King's staff but I was also a member of the Government. I was in a position to see the other side of the story.

History does not differ from the story in its account of the abdication and its consequences. It is the same story told from a different angle. It is the story of a man who was a member of the King's staff and who was also a member of the Government. It is the story of a man who was a member of the King's staff and who was also a member of the Government.

THE DUKE TODAY

Their contest
The contest between the King and the Duke was a long and hard one. It was a contest of wills and of power. The King was determined to remain on the throne, while the Duke was determined to abdicate. The contest was a bitter one, and it was only after a long and hard struggle that the Duke was able to secure his position.

Young Prince
The young Prince was a central figure in the abdication story. He was the son of the King and the Duke, and his future was a matter of great concern to both of them. The King wanted to see the young Prince grow up as a member of the royal family, while the Duke wanted to see him grow up as a member of the commonwealth.

King annoyed
The King was annoyed by the Duke's actions. He felt that the Duke was acting against his interests and against the interests of the country. He was angry and he was determined to do whatever it took to keep the throne.

Delightful host
The Duke was a delightful host. He was a man of great charm and of great wit. He was a man who was loved by all who knew him. He was a man who was a true gentleman, and he was a man who was a true friend.

New outlook
The Duke had a new outlook on life. He was a man who was a true gentleman, and he was a man who was a true friend. He was a man who was a true gentleman, and he was a man who was a true friend.

AFRICAN SKILL BEAUTIFIES THE CATHEDRAL

COMPARABLE with that seen in cathedrals in Britain was the judgment of a local expert who says work directed by African artisans in the new extensions to the Cathedral of the Highlands, Nairobi.

The idea, referring in particular to the expansion of the choir, is to let the new work—as an outstanding feature of the future East End of the Cathedral.

Patience needed
 It will take some time for a high degree of skill to be developed in the new work.
