Confidence returning says Minister

Minister of Finance, Mr. Gikoro, said the Central Government's confidence in the territories, the chairman of the Finance Committee, Mr. Gikoro, told the Central Assembly in Nairobi last night.

He was speaking on the 1953/54 Estimates of Expenditure for the general fund services of the Common Services Organisation, which provides for a spending of £7,400,000. This is £238,000 more than the estimate for the current year's expenditure.

Telling the Assembly that there was every reason to hope for progress in the future, Mr. Gikoro said the confidence of the monetary economy - virtually stationary since early 1953, had increased by nearly five per cent last year.

Trade credit balance

Although certain export values had fallen heavily, this had been more than offset by increases of ten, 20 and 30 per cent respectively in the value of coffee, coffee beans and the overall trade balance of 1953 showed a credit of over £1,000,000 compared with a deficit of £1,200,000 the previous year.

Other encouraging features were that goods carried by the railways rose by three per cent, of which 10 per cent respectively in the value of coffee and tea and the overall trade balance of 1953 showed a credit of over £1,000,000 compared with a deficit of £1,200,000 the previous year.

ELECTION MANE

Introduction by the president

WHEN invited to write this introduction for the book of news for the year, I am reminded of the fact that this book has been published for the first time in the history of the Commonwealth. It is a book which will be read by all the people of the Commonwealth and it is a book which will be read by all the people of the world.

I have the pleasure to introduce the book of news for the year to the people of the Commonwealth. It is a book which will be read by all the people of the Commonwealth and it is a book which will be read by all the people of the world.

PAUL NEEL

It is equally true that the book of news for the year is a book which will be read by all the people of the Commonwealth and it is a book which will be read by all the people of the world.

Large sections should be based on a common theme. It is a book which will be read by all the people of the Commonwealth and it is a book which will be read by all the people of the world.

Children are the nation's most valuable asset. It is a book which will be read by all the people of the Commonwealth and it is a book which will be read by all the people of the world.

The improvement of our living standards and our services is a book which will be read by all the people of the Commonwealth and it is a book which will be read by all the people of the world.

The presence of a foreign military base in an independent country is a book which will be read by all the people of the Commonwealth and it is a book which will be read by all the people of the world.

While we realize the economic role it is at present playing in the Commonwealth, it is a book which will be read by all the people of the Commonwealth and it is a book which will be read by all the people of the world.

RUGBY TO Fast and open game the aim of Richmond

At the start of the growth period, the Richmond R.U. Club team will try to play fast and open rugby in their nine matches in Kenya, the first of which is against the Kenya national team on Saturday at Nairobi Airport stadium.

The 19 players and two officials, based at the airport by their clubmate, Steve Smith, who had travelled from East Africa, will be met at the airport at a reception of the East India Club in London before leaving Mr. Hopwood's plane.

Among those present to bid them good-bye were the former Chairman of Kenya, Francis Hopwood, and Mr. Newton-Lewis, a prominent and regular of Nairobi's "Rugby" Hotel, who has been a friend of Richmond for a long time.

The club's departure to Kenya was a triumph for the club, which has been a member of the Kenya Rugby Union since 1962.

CIVILISATION BETTER THAN THE 'LIFE OF OUR ANCESTORS'

WHILE I can agree with some of the views expressed in the two letters about the British colonial record I cannot but feeling that some of the statements made are considerable safety.

Perhaps the African people will show themselves wiser than the part of the world which is independent, when they are given a chance to show their strength and judgment to the world.

Uganda 'heavies' lack challengers

SEVERAL good bouts, dramatic finishes and a bumper crowd made the Uganda open boxing championships, held at the I.R.C. grounds, Jinja, a great success. The event confirmed the strength of Uganda boxing in the lower weights, but little came to light in the heavier divisions to suggest that the national boxing team expect any serious challenges for some time.

Three Commonwealth Games boxers - the Flyweight John Wanyama, the Welterweight Charles Ochieng and the Middleweight Peter Ochieng - were the only Ugandans to win a gold medal.

Only Wanyama had any difficulty in his bout. He was defeated by the Kenyan, who recently won the British Commonwealth title in the flyweight division. Wanyama's performance was good, but he was not able to gain narrow victory, but eventually he will not be considered a contender for the title.

Both Ochiengs and Wanyama showed their skills in the second round. Ochiengs probably the most dramatic encounter in Uganda, quickly by the middle of the second round was decided. Ochiengs proved far too good all round for Ochieng and established his win in the second round.

A great performance was put up by the veteran light-weight, Grace Sorogwa, who was the assistant manager of the boxing team in Perth. His bout with the Kenyan was a real one on Saturday and was both in the first round.

He is obviously far from finished as a boxer and looks much better than his younger rivals in his division.

The heavyweight final brought two old rivals, Sanyika and Wanyika, together and the winner will be the better body puncher of the two. Ochiengs and Wanyama were the two very promising youngsters who fought in the final. Both were the featherweight and light-weight divisions. Both could have a great future.

From the crowd's point of view, the most exciting bout was at light-middleweight, where Sanyika and Wanyika were a stirring contest with Sanyika winning by a narrow margin in the first round. In these rounds they fought for 10 minutes.

Bulldozer out of action

The Deputy Mayor, Ald. James Kinyari, is to visit the site today. By last night conditions had become so bad that the larger of the two bulldozers had been put out of the mud. The other machine was only just able to move in the mud.
 The City Water Engineer, Mr. Peter Bealton, and his assistants, Mr. Tereos Powell, last night went down to see that the larger of the two bulldozers had been put out of the mud. The other machine was only just able to move in the mud.
 They planned the work of the men of the Royal Engineers, who were to be used to dig out the site. The work was very arduous and the men were in good luck, although the shafts became somewhat flooded and had to be taken in and when it was possible.

Aviation safety paramount

Cuts should be made in other services to make sure that there were adequate safety measures for civil aviation, Shairi M. A. Alomdy told the Central Legislative Assembly's Committee on Transport, speaking at the withdrawal of a £250,000 grant by the British Government. Partially moving the railway for the East African line, he said that he would support the Government's proposal to make cuts in other services to make sure that there were adequate safety measures for civil aviation.

New French plan for £211,000,000 Channel Tunnel

A French group has proposed a new plan for a combined rail-road sub-tunnel under the English Channel to the British and French authorities. The concrete tunnel would be oval in shape and would be prefabricated on land. It would accommodate two railway lines, constructed by new cuttings. The total cost, including terminal stations, would be about £211,000,000. It would take five years to build, would be about 25 miles long and allow for 2,500 cars per hour in each direction.

Ngala defines regions' powers B.A.C.S.O. SEEKS STAFF FOR TAX OFFICE

NOT MERELY BIGGER LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Standard Staff Reporter

THE Kani president, Mr. Ngala, yesterday said he wished to correct the wrong impression which had recently been created by Mr. Taha Mbeza as to the powers of the regions under the proposed Constitution of Kenya.

Kani districts had used to deny the acceptance by regionalists at the Lancaster House Conference, but now that the truth was known to the people of Kenya, and the publication of the proposed Constitution, attempts are being made to exaggerate the powers of the Central Government and to belittle and minimize the powers and functions of the regions to those of the present local government.

'OWN REGIONAL POLICE'

"However, I must make it clear that under the Constitution, the government of a region will not merely be an expansion of the present local government as it is at present."

"A region will have its own regional assembly with power to make laws and impose taxes, its own regional police to enforce its laws, its own regional public service and its own regional judicial system, its own regional public works, its own regional public health and its own regional public works."

Concern at defective vehicles

CONCERN at the incidence of court cases arising from the use of vehicles in a dangerous condition was expressed by a Traffic Magistrate, Mr. O. N. Karanja, yesterday.

Mr. Karanja said on Monday that a serious case of a motorist who had been fined for driving a defective vehicle in a dangerous condition was a warning to all motorists to take care of their vehicles.

He said that the incidence of such cases was increasing and that it was a matter of concern to the public.

LAW AND ORDER

AGAIN the Constitution, which provides for the establishment of a regional police force, has been a subject of concern to the public.

It is felt that the establishment of such a force will be a step towards the improvement of law and order in the regions.

The Government has been urged to take prompt action to implement this provision of the Constitution.

WATER FLOWS AGAIN TO KANU

Economy measures still in force

The Sumner Dam was reaching flood stage last night after engineers had successfully closed one of the shut-off of the city's supply six days ago. A City Council meeting at 7 p.m. Kabete reported 120,000 gallons of water in the last bracket was added on the 41 feet of new water added and the rest depending conditions anyone. Mr. Peter Beaumont, the City Water Engineer, gave an Army radio-telephone, for the water to be turned on.

After 10 minutes the pipe shattered and water gushed like a heart beat. There is a pipe about 100 feet from the sound of running water. All the bridges and joints broke, and the end of Nairobi's outer shortage was in sight.

At least two weeks

But it will be at least another two weeks before the capacity of 14,000,000 gallons daily can be flowing from Sumner. Two pipes — a 36-in. and a 10-in. — were broken by the landslide last Friday.

Now after five days the 36-in. pipe has been mended temporarily. Today the engineers will start on the 10-in. pipe, and when that is finished the water will be on a permanent job of the smaller one.

DOCTORS IN DEMAND

Africa with its vast population, for the needs for medical services, according to a report given by the World Health Organization in its latest report.

The report states that in Africa, the number of doctors is very low and that the existing ones are often overworked. It is estimated that there are only about 100 doctors for the entire continent, which has a population of over 200 million.

The report also notes that the majority of these doctors are concentrated in the coastal areas, leaving the interior regions with very little medical attention. This situation is particularly concerning given the prevalence of various tropical diseases in these areas.

Training with sight impaired

Medical study of the East African continent has been a long and arduous task for politicians and administrators. The only medical school in East Africa, the Makerere Medical School in Kampala, is struggling to meet the demand for medical training.

The school's curriculum is heavily influenced by the needs of the region, with a focus on tropical diseases and public health. However, the lack of resources and qualified staff makes it difficult to provide a high-quality education.

In addition to the Makerere school, there are several smaller medical training centers across the continent. These centers often face similar challenges, including a shortage of textbooks and medical equipment.

WORLD'S MOST POPULOUS

The WHO estimates that the world's population is growing at an alarming rate, with an estimated 1.5 billion people in 1970 and a projected 2.5 billion by 1985.

This rapid increase in population is putting immense pressure on the world's resources, particularly in the areas of food, water, and housing. Developing countries are especially vulnerable to these pressures, as they often lack the infrastructure and technology to support such a large and growing population.

The WHO is calling for international cooperation to address these challenges, with a focus on improving agricultural production, water management, and urban planning.

BY ALAN F. MITCHELL

Germany has produced some of the best art and sculpture in the world, and the most of the present generation of German artists are working in the style of the 19th century. This is a reflection of the country's rich cultural heritage and its long tradition of artistic excellence.

The German art scene is characterized by a strong emphasis on technical skill and formal composition. Artists often draw inspiration from classical masters, seeking to achieve a sense of balance and harmony in their work.

Despite the influence of the 19th century, German artists have also been at the forefront of modernist movements. The Bauhaus school, for example, sought to bridge the gap between art and industry, creating a new aesthetic that combined functionality with artistic expression.

EXODUS HELPED

Many of the German artists who fled their country during the Nazi era found refuge in other parts of Europe. This exodus helped to spread German artistic influences and styles to other countries.

Artists like Paul Klee, Wassily Kandinsky, and Piet Mondrian, who were associated with the Bauhaus movement, found new homes in Switzerland, France, and the Netherlands. Their work continued to evolve and influence the art world in their new environments.

The exodus also led to a cross-pollination of ideas and styles. German artists brought with them a deep understanding of form and structure, which they combined with the more expressive and abstract tendencies of the modernist movement in their adopted countries.

ODD FINANCING

Some unusual financing arrangements have been made for the exhibition, including the use of government bonds and private donations. These arrangements have helped to ensure the success of the event.

The exhibition is being organized by the German Cultural Society, which has secured funding from both the German government and private patrons. This diverse financing has allowed the exhibition to attract a wide range of artists and artworks.

The use of government bonds is particularly notable, as it demonstrates the high regard in which the exhibition is held. It also highlights the commitment of the German government to promoting its cultural heritage on an international scale.

HURTS MORE

Naturally, while it is true that the exhibition is a major cultural event, it also serves as a reminder of the political and social challenges facing the world. The exhibition's focus on German art is a reflection of the country's complex history and its role in the world.

The exhibition is a testament to the resilience of the German people and their commitment to the arts. It is a chance for the world to appreciate the beauty and craftsmanship of German art, and to learn more about the country's rich cultural heritage.

At the same time, the exhibition also serves as a platform for dialogue and reflection. It allows us to consider the impact of political and social forces on the arts, and to explore the ways in which artists have responded to these challenges.

Drought threatens crops from Japan

The drought in Japan is a major concern for the country's food supply. It is threatening the production of rice, wheat, and other crops, which are essential for the Japanese diet.

The drought is the result of a combination of factors, including a lack of rainfall and high temperatures. This has led to a significant reduction in crop yields, and it is expected that the situation will worsen if the drought continues.

The Japanese government is taking steps to address the drought, including providing financial assistance to farmers and implementing water conservation measures. However, the long-term impact of the drought remains uncertain.

FLOODS IN GREAT N.E. AFRICA Village of 4,000 to be evacuated

Standard Staff Reporter

On the shores of Lake Victoria, which has greatly increased in the recent heavy rains, is coming increasing to thousands of several areas. A village of 4,000 people is being completely isolated. The Kana and elsewhere in Central Nyanza about 16,000 are expected to be in need of urgent help.

In Tanganyika, the rapid increase in the level of the Lake is now nation — it rose by six in, last week alone. The Lake is now normal and expected to rise a further 12 before the peak of the rainy season. Heavy damage has been caused by flooding.

After an 18-month struggle during which they have watched the rising waters of Lake Victoria gradually flood their fields, shops and homes, the population of the Lake Allocation, West Endia, has agreed to be evacuated. The first five families, with 14 adults and 11 children, will leave on Tuesday by boat for a transit camp on a former farm at Kibogori, near Mwanza.

The others, who are estimated to number well over 4,000, will gradually be moved to the transit camp before going on to the Central Nyanza anti-flood schemes at Muboroni and Koru, due to start in July.

Subsistence rations

During the past 18 months the people of the Ugogo Sub-location, the worst-hit area in Central Nyanza and probably the most susceptible to flooding in Kenya, have been living on subsistence rations. The village is only being supplied with rice and weekly supplies of maize have been brought by barges.

Yesterday the district officer, Mr. E. C. Brooks, and his wife went to the village in an attempt to persuade the people to leave. After a two-hour journey from Kisumu in the motor launch Penda, the district officer's party transferred to a motor launch for the purpose of the journey. They travelled through swamps which they had recently cleared and cultivated to reach the village.

A signpost they saw at the leading crossroads, which only a month ago was a simple wooden post, was a signpost which had been erected by the Government. The signpost was a simple wooden post with a sign which read "Subsistence Rations".

KEY FOR CURRENCY CHANGES

Key to economic integration of E. Africa - Kadu

KADU considers that the key to the economic growth of the East African territories lies mainly in the reorganisation of the monetary systems.

This observation was made in a party Press statement issued yesterday. It continued: "The East African Currency Board shows signs of serious limitations and is incompatible with the new mood of independent countries."

ELECTION CAMPAIGN BRIEFS

KADU's candidate for the Nakuru East Lower House was Mr. Fred Kabia, said a rally in Kiakia that afternoon. The rally was held in Nakuru where Mr. Kabia would have to go.

If Kabia needed military support, he would not have to ask the British. There are enough East African soldiers ready to protect Africa's interests.

COMPLAINTS that the Government's announcement of a referendum in Kenya has been made by Mr. O. M. Njoroge, independent candidate for Margaret Bagnall's constituency.

Mr. Njoroge claimed that the Government's announcement was a betrayal of the trust placed in it by the people of Kenya. He said that the Government had no right to make such a decision without consulting the people.

Strong team beats C. Province

One of the reasons for this, apparently, is the regular fixtures on the Province's strength by the London Harlequins after their tour two seasons ago. Harlequins and Central Province drew three times each and the Quins played well in the Central Province matches. They are now playing with only Kennedy, Doreen, Lupton and Green in their playing line, and this must be one of the reasons why they are so strong.
