'SEND ME TO TOKYO'

East Africa and Britain want to extend trade relations with Japan, the most important relationship, the British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Aneurin Bevan, said today.

The Minister recently announced that a trade mission is being sent to Tokyo, Osaka, and other Japanese cities, which will meet with Japanese officials and representatives of business interests in a series of meetings.

Mr. Bevan pointed out that Britain's trade with Japan has increased considerably since the late 1940s, and is planning to increase it further.

Britain was having a great deal of trouble in getting her East African trade with Japan to the level of her other trade partners.

I shall not be satisfied until our musical education so grips the imagination of pupils and students under our care that we shall send them into the world to sing for the rest of their days!

Now is time to revive Kenya's musical heritage

by ENID DE SILVA

These words are part of a letter written to me by Kenya's Organising Secretary of Music and Dance, Mr. Graham Hyatt, who wants to see music used as a subject along with physics, geography and English on the syllabus of primary and secondary schools in Kenya.

As a parent, I am torn between the desire to see my child receive a modern education and the desire to see him learn the music of his own country. It is not surprising that I should feel this way, for I am sure that my child will be one of the many who will be faced with the choice of whether to study the music of his own country or that of other nations.

Mr. Hyatt points out that the function of education is to equip the child with the skills and knowledge necessary for life. He argues that music is an essential part of this education, not only because it is a form of self-expression, but also because it is a means of communication.

It is not surprising that I should feel this way, for I am sure that my child will be one of the many who will be faced with the choice of whether to study the music of his own country or that of other nations.

Mr. Hyatt points out that the function of education is to equip the child with the skills and knowledge necessary for life. He argues that music is an essential part of this education, not only because it is a form of self-expression, but also because it is a means of communication.

Later interest

My another reason for including music in the school curriculum is the fact that it is a form of self-expression. It allows the child to express his feelings and emotions in a way that is both meaningful and enjoyable.

Students of all ages take music lessons in Kenya. In the primary school, music is taught as a subject, while in the secondary school, it is often offered as an elective. In the university, there are several departments that offer degrees in music.

Some of Kenya's best musicians are trained in the United Kingdom. They have returned to Kenya to teach and to perform. Their influence is felt throughout the country, and they are doing much to improve the standards of music education.

In order to improve standards in Kenya, it is essential that we have more trained teachers. This can be done by sending more students to the United Kingdom for training.

Kenya's music is a blend of traditional and modern. It is a reflection of the country's rich cultural heritage. It is a music that is both beautiful and powerful. It is a music that we should all be proud to have.

There was a time when music was not considered a serious subject in schools. It was seen as a mere pastime, something to be done in the leisure hours. But now, music is being taken more seriously, and it is being included in the curriculum of many schools.

Music is an essential part of human life. It is a means of communication, a form of self-expression, and a way of bringing people together. It is a music that we should all be proud to have.

The Organising Secretary of Music and Dance, Mr. Graham Hyatt, is a man who is passionate about music. He has worked hard to bring music back into the school curriculum, and he is now trying to convince the government to do the same.

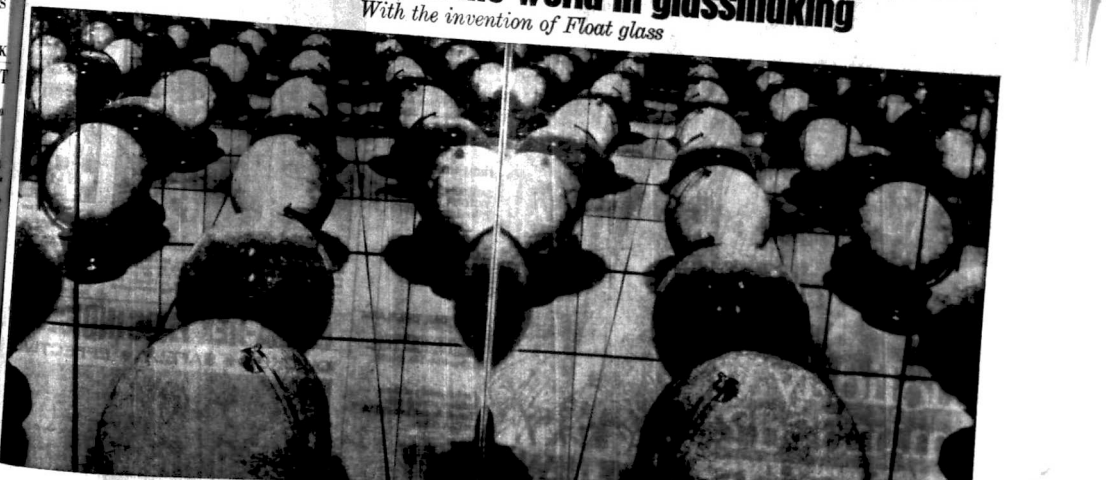

Music is a beautiful art form. It is a way of expressing our feelings and emotions. It is a music that we should all be proud to have.

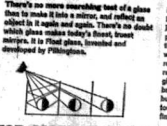

Kenya's Organising Secretary of Music and Dance, Mr. Graham Hyatt, with some of the African instruments he feels should have a place in the teaching of music in schools. Below (left) the mandala and harp and (right) the shruti and the kora.

LOTS, REVOLUTION—ALL IN THE LIFE OF A SURGEON

but the Egyptians knew it ages ago!

Power to overcome sickness means an escape from suffering to being happy and content to create a civilization which we call our own. The Renaissance led to the discovery of the microscope. It allowed the study of the physical elements of the universe and paved the way for the discovery of the atom. It was the discovery of the microscope that paved the way for the discovery of the atom.

'BLACK & WHITE' SCOTCH WHISKY

The secret is in the blending

THE surgeons whose patients in East Africa have ranged over the years from leprosy to malaria have had Kumburi... Dr. Charles "Dexter" Hartley, Zambesi Surgical Specialist for the past five years, hopes to bring James again in about two years.

It is not the fact that the surgery has left East Africa—and his many friends and former patients who were their health if not their lives to him, all hope that he will be back.

Mr. Hartley first came to East Africa in 1948. After a year's study in Kenya, he was appointed to the post of Senior Surgeon at the Nairobi Hospital. He has since worked in various capacities in the region.

Mr. Hartley's first case in East Africa was a patient with bilharzia. He treated the patient successfully and the patient returned to his home in Kenya.

Dr. Hartley's work in East Africa has been a mix of medical and administrative. He has been instrumental in the development of the surgical services in the region. He has also been involved in the training of local medical staff.

Do you wonder that bilharzia is so common in East Africa? The reason is that the water in the region is contaminated with the parasite. The parasite is found in the water and it can be transmitted to humans through the water.

Nights on the bare mountain

TWO young Kenya climbers recently accomplished "the impossible" on Mount Kenya. They made a Grand Traverse of the mountain's massif, from Point Fignat to Point John, an expedition involving four peaks over the 16,000ft. mark and three days of continuous climbing.

It had never been done before. Not even the celebrated mountaineer Eric Shipton attempted it.

Tom Phillips, a Nairobi-born scholar, and Robert Balle, a Scots-born mountain guide, and Robert climbing Point Fignat (16,265ft.) and descending to Firmin Col where they bivouacked for the night.

On the second day it took them 13 hours to reach the mountain's summit, the Batian peak (17,058ft.), via its western ridge. The hardest part of the whole three days was Balle's last 50ft. — a steep gully filled with powdery snow that took two hours to climb in the dark.

They bivouacked on the summit itself and set off at dawn next morning to cross the Gates of the Mist to Nelson (17,022ft.) and on down the south ridge to Point John (16,040ft.).

Both say that the grand traverse provides one of the finest mountain expeditions in the world — comparable with the Postel Ridge of Mont Blanc.

Above: On the first day of the traverse, Tom Phillips, with Peter Balle and Robert Balle, were seen as far as the first bivouac camp on the top of Point Fignat. Left: Tom Phillips climbing up the west ridge of Nelson. Below: The young men's camp in the morning. The climb was made in the worst conditions and on heavy snow.

Below: The ladder being used by Phillips on the 50ft. rise of Nelson in the 2nd day of climbing. Above: Mount Kenya, being left there by a weather system. J. McArthur, in the 1950s, Balle and Phillips working on the mountain to make their descent.

Another 6,000 to be given jobs by Government

KEVIN's fight against unemployment was taken a step further yesterday with the announcement of Government plans to find jobs for another 6,000 men and women under the terms of the Tripartite Agreement, announced by the Minister for Labour and Social Services, Mr. Mwendwa.

Eight projects were named as those on which the additional labour would be employed, and Government guaranteed at least one year's employment for the people involved.

Mr. Mwendwa said: "We will not be employing these people for just one year and then throwing them out."

STUDENTS FLY TO ISRAEL FOR COURSES

PEOPLE must help themselves before they could expect the Ambassador to help them. Mr. E. Khan, leader of the Kenya Students for Israel left Nairobi last night for Israel to attend courses in agriculture, engineering, and other fields.

Mr. Khan said: "I have been invited to attend a course in agriculture in the State of Israel. I will be staying there for about six months. I will be attending courses in agriculture, engineering, and other fields. I will be returning to Kenya in about six months. I will be bringing back with me some of the latest equipment and techniques used in these fields. I will be able to help our country in these fields when I return."

Chambers to support Six Year Plan

THE Government has announced that it will support the six-year plan for Kenya, which was approved by the United Nations Economic Commission for Africa last year.

The plan is a long-term plan for the development of Kenya. It is based on the assumption that Kenya will become a self-sufficient country by 1965. The plan calls for the development of agriculture, industry, and services. It also calls for the improvement of education and health services.

CAREFULLY ARRANGED PLAN

Mr. Mwendwa explained that an inter-ministerial committee had been set up to consider a plan for the establishment of a combined Central Government and Regional Authorities system, and that recommendations of the committee had now been approved.

The combined system amounted to 8,000 people for their programme for the next five years. It was carefully planned and would be financially sound. It had been decided that most of the Government's additional workers should be engaged for the purpose of carrying out work designed to engage for the long-term development of the country.

HEAD OF K.B.C. RETIRES

THE students who were the main reason for the resignation of Mr. Robert Bidley, who has been the chief of the Kenya Broadcasting Corporation, have now been given their final say.

Mr. Bidley, who has been in the post since 1958, has decided to retire. He has been succeeded by Mr. J. K. O. Ochieng, who has been in the post since 1963.

NAKURU SHOW PROMISES TO BE BEST EVER

OFFICIALS of the Royal Agricultural Society of Kenya who were yesterday making final preparations for the Nakuru Show promised that this year's show would be the biggest and best yet.

The show is being held at Nakuru from July 24 to 28. It is one of the largest and most important shows in Kenya. It attracts thousands of people from all over the country. It is a great opportunity for farmers and other people in the agricultural industry to show their products and to learn about the latest developments in the industry.

Protest on giraffe transfer

FELDRIT Chamber of Commerce has taken action to prevent the transfer of giraffes from the Giraffe Centre to the Menzies Park.

The Chamber has written to the Government and the Kenya Wildlife Service, expressing its concern about the transfer. It has said that the transfer would be a major blow to the Giraffe Centre, which is a major attraction for tourists in Nairobi.

Mandela a 'Gully' of sabotage

NELSON MANDELA, the former African National Congress leader and five members of his "Black Circle" are charged with sabotage at their trial in Pretoria.

The prosecution said the command was formed to direct a violent struggle against a military invasion to deliver the country to white rule.

PROFILE OF THE 'BLACK PIMPERNEL'

Mandela, known as the "Black Pimpernel" because of his escape from prison since 1952 after evading a nationwide manhunt for 15 months.

He was released the year before last after serving 18 months in the prison which had been with him for 15 months.

He was arrested in August, 1962 and was charged with conspiracy to bring about the overthrow of the government without using violence.

When sentenced he pronounced that he would remain in the struggle until the day he was free.

He was born in 1918 in Umtata, South Africa. He studied at the University College, Fort Hare.

He was a member of the African National Congress and was active in the struggle for the liberation of South Africa.

He was arrested in 1952 and sentenced to two years in prison. He was released in 1954.

He was arrested again in 1962 and sentenced to 18 months in prison. He was released in 1963.

He was arrested a third time in 1964 and sentenced to 15 months in prison. He was released in 1965.

He was arrested a fourth time in 1966 and sentenced to 10 months in prison. He was released in 1967.

He was arrested a fifth time in 1968 and sentenced to 8 months in prison. He was released in 1969.

He was arrested a sixth time in 1970 and sentenced to 6 months in prison. He was released in 1971.

S. Rhodesia hunger strike over
 A HUNGER STRIKE by 15 Africans at the University of Rhodesia has led to a police operation today.

The men and women who were arrested are accused of participating in a hunger strike to protest against the government's policy of apartheid.

LAOS BAN ON U.S. FLIGHTS TEMPORARY
 THE LAOSIAN National Front Premier, Phoum Savanhnoua, has announced that his country will ban all U.S. flights until the government is satisfied with the results of the election.

The ban is a temporary measure and is subject to change. The government is currently in a state of transition.

CONGO CAPITAL CUT OFF SAYS TASS
 Reports received in Brussels say that Leopoldville is being cut off from the rest of the country.

The reports indicate that the situation in the capital is becoming increasingly tense. There is a risk of a full-scale civil war.

Party appeal for round table talks
 Mr. Emmanuel Loka has called for a round table conference to discuss the future of the country.

He believes that such a conference is essential for the resolution of the current crisis. He has received support from many of his constituents.

Doing well
 Valentina Nikolova's mother has reported that she is doing well in her new home.

She has expressed her gratitude to the people who have helped her. She is now settling into her new life.

Change of residence
 The family has moved to a new residence. They are pleased with their new home.

The new residence is more spacious and better suited to their needs. They are looking forward to a bright future.

Fewer murders in N. Rhodesia
 There has been a significant decrease in the number of murders in Northern Rhodesia.

This is a positive development and is a result of the efforts of the police and the community. It is a sign of progress.

AIR CONGO REGRET TO ANNOUNCE

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT DEFEATED IN VOTE ON DATE

Kenya's House of Representatives yesterday called on the Government to present Instruments of East African Federation for ratification by the National Assembly not later than August 15.

Compromise on apartheid approved

The House divided to carry by 59 votes to 22, August 15 to a Private Member's Motion calling for acceleration of federation machinery.

The original motion was moved by Mr. A. M. Sabutu (Kisumu District). Mr. T. M. Atieno (Kisumu, Majoro-Base) moved the successful amendment.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Kenyatta, and several Ministers voted against the amendment in division, but Government support was secured being restricted by a leading target date failed. After further debate, the motion, as amended, was carried without a division.

Attempts were made in the Chamber to force back-bench opposition to the amendment. Seven Members including two Parliament Secretaries, Mr. Odoro, Mr. Awaga, Mr. Kibaki (Ministry of Health and Housing).

THE United Nations Security Council yesterday agreed to set up an expert study of the possibility and implications of economic sanctions against South Africa in an effort to curb apartheid.

The United States and the U.S. were among the eight countries which voted for the motion. The Soviet Union, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, which wanted sanctions imposed, and China, which wanted no action, were among the five nations which voted against the motion.

The U.N. committee will be headed by Mr. J. M. G. Brown, who said the U.N. could not force South Africa to accept the motion.

Mr. Brown said that the U.N. could not force South Africa to accept the motion, but it could force South Africa to accept the motion if it failed to do so.

WEEKEND STANDARD

A landmark—and a symbol...

At the darkness just before dawn, a bell faintly across the fields in Langata. Hardly any of the land residents have ever heard it, for few are astray at 1.30 A.M. on weekdays past the round bell calls to young African theology students for another day of prayer and learning at the new St. Thomas Aquinas Seminary.

To most people who live in the greater Nairobi suburb, the seminary is simply a brightly lit building, glowing in the distance a mile from the centre of the city.

But a Kenyan Roman Catholic student of the seminary calls it an "open school" of the Church in its own right. He is not alone in his view.

It is the opinion of the St. Thomas Aquinas Seminary, a set of buildings which is a landmark in Kenya, that the seminary will be the first of its kind in the world to be built in a developing country.

By DEREK WATKINS

Years of intense spiritual and intellectual instruction. In the past there have been seven minor seminaries, scattered throughout Kenya and the small "major" seminary. The minor seminaries bring students up to Cambridge for their final year before sending them elsewhere for their philosophical and theological training.

All these institutions are administered by their individual dioceses.

Questions of expense and staffing have always ruled out the possibility of such a Kenyan Catholic diocese running its own major seminary—and in 1952 it was agreed that one uniform seminary providing for many dioceses would solve the long-run problem.

There were half a dozen more ideas at first but the decision had been made. It is the opinion of the St. Thomas Aquinas Seminary, a set of buildings which is a landmark in Kenya, that the seminary will be the first of its kind in the world to be built in a developing country.

hood. Throughout the years of study, seminarians have been exposed to a broad range of subjects, from the history of the Church to the latest in scientific thought. The effective part, however, was the practical training in the various fields of the Church.

One of the first points raised by the seminarians was that the seminary should be a place where they could be trained in the various fields of the Church, without having to leave the country. This was a point which was not only agreed to, but also acted upon.

The first two years are spent in a general education, preparing the seminarians for the subsequent years of theology and the eventual priesthood.

The syllabus covers basic general and experimental psychology, English, mathematics, philosophy, history, and social studies. The language in which all subjects are conducted is either English or Latin.

Students are required to attend afternoon classes in the seminary, and to attend the morning classes in the various fields of the Church. This is a point which was not only agreed to, but also acted upon.

The chapel, seen from across the seminary's quadrangle, looms over the cloisters.

Father Thomas O'Shaughnessy, the Rector, conducts a philosophy class at the seminary.

All specialists

Father Jerome O'Shaughnessy is the Rector, with Father Richard O'Shaughnessy as the Vice-Rector. Both are American, with wide experience in teaching in U.S. universities and colleges. Father Keaney spent the war as a U.S. Navy chaplain.

Specialists in Philosophy, History, Mathematics, and Science are also present. Father O'Shaughnessy is a specialist in theology and moral philosophy, and Father O'Shaughnessy is a specialist in psychology.

JOHN ELGON'S Friday Diary

...sculptor towards America, the sculptor who is charged with the task of creating a pair of bronze statues for the new Parliament building in Nairobi.

He was selected to select a site for the new Parliament building, from a list of sites in Nairobi and El Aghia.

During the trip one of the things he saw and had to be abandoned. The largest one was a site in Nairobi, but it was not suitable for the new Parliament building. The other sites were in El Aghia and were not suitable for the new Parliament building.

LAUGHING ABOUT INCOME TAX FROM DONOVAN MALE

FOR some time to come our political leaders in the House and Senate will be discussing the new Budget, in which the most welcome item will be the announcement that there would be no change in income tax.

Ever since income tax was introduced — even when it was a gift — it has had to pay a low, comparatively favorable rate that what they regard as a just compensation.

It has been explained that it was a matter of course that it should be paid to the Treasury. The law is not a matter of course, it is a matter of course that it should be paid to the Treasury.

GROWTH

Meat and milk for a growing nation's needs

In their vigorous and ever-increasing dairy and cattle industries, the peoples of East Africa possess one of their main sources of essential improvement to the national diet. The primary produce and by-products of these young but growing industries are also having valuable contributions to the export market. Barclays are playing and continue to play a part in their development by the financing of their requirements.

Grandmother goes out a hunting

—and brings back fifteen trophies from her safari to decorate the trophy room of her California home

BACK from an arduous three weeks' hunting trip around Mount Kenya with 15 different trophies is Mrs. Lavinia Coffey, who walked straight out of a Hollywood film script of the days when the West was won.

Mrs. Lavinia Coffey, who comes from California, was still in her safari hat when I spoke to her on her return to Nairobi — though she had just swung her rifle.

Although she has hunted every kind of animal all over the United States, Canada and ME? OLD-FASHIONED? You've seen the latest fashions but not the latest spirit, the latest fashions, but millions of girls just want you to do it. If you don't, you're old-fashioned. If you do, you're young.

You see, in buying, we have it by word of mouth. There's no other way because it's the better. Millions of letters old-fashioned in just one goal.

Of course, if you want to be old-fashioned in just one goal, you want to be old-fashioned in just one goal. You want to be old-fashioned in just one goal. You want to be old-fashioned in just one goal.

But, as you said, go ahead. Be old-fashioned, if you want. You don't go around looking someone who you find uncomfortable, to say and out of your mind that you're old-fashioned. We would help you.

And will you thank the lot? TAMPAX

Time to stop mud-slinging Mr. Odinga tells crowds

Time for mud-slinging and mud-slingers in Kenya was past, the Minister for Home Affairs, Mr. Odinga, told more than 10,000 people at the opening ceremony of the new Borneo Hall and Cinema on Saturday. Mr. Odinga, who had been constituted by the people of the area as a mud-slinger.

Before the ceremony, Mr. Odinga was presented with a spear and traditional shield by the former Chief of the South Nyanza County Council, Mr. Paul Mboya. The Minister told his audience that some people had spread rumours that the Government had done nothing since the attainment of independence. 'Give us time to build a healthy and self-reliant nation', he said.

Mr. Odinga assured his listeners that the only way they could ensure their freedom was by a massive, united and sustained effort. He then appealed to them to start a "plant cuttings" campaign, while his audience was that of the "plant cuttings" campaign.

Mr. Odinga said mud-slingers were those who were mud-slinging to harm the Government. He said that the Government would not tolerate such mud-slinging. He said that the Government would not tolerate such mud-slinging.

The perfect way to fly to London and Europe

TRIUMPHANTLY SWIFT, SILENT, SERENE

The BOAC VC10 has only been in service a few weeks—yet already passengers have been quick to praise this wonderful new jetliner. Many said their flight was the quietest and smoothest they have ever made. Yours will be too. For the power of the VC10 is in the tail. The four Rolls-Royce jets are rear-mounted and their thrust is far behind you. You fly in the comfort and silence ahead of the power. With the VC10 BOAC offers a way of flying that is a clear six years ahead of any other airline. It is yours for the asking.

The BOAC VC10 is now in regular service from Nairobi to London and Europe. Flight details from your nearest BOAC Travel Agent or Office.

PROVED ROLLS-ROYCE POWER FROM 4 CONWAY JETS.

BOAC was first with jets. Now they bring you the VC10 built by the British Aircraft Corporation. Its advanced Rolls-Royce Conway engines are developed from the experience gained in 26 million hours of jet service in the air. With a thrust of 21,000 lbs. each, the new Conway R. Co. 423s are the most powerful civil jet engines in the world.

BEWILDERED BY NEW ZAMBIAN STAMPS

In Zanzibar, where day-to-day affairs are apt to be a little peculiar, even a humble postage stamp became this week a centre of controversy and bewilderment.

It started last Monday when in the course of a discussion in Zanzibar brought out a new five-shilling issue of the Council of the Protectorate, which is a better specimen of the "British" stamp than the "Zanzibar" stamp. But it is a doubt if the Council of the Protectorate is Zanzibar.

The Zambian Protectorate becomes very strange as the East African Post and Telecommunications Dept. is an active body in the Protectorate. It is a body which is not a body of the Protectorate. It is a body which is not a body of the Protectorate. It is a body which is not a body of the Protectorate.

Brothers' foot

STILL on the subject of golfers, the joint feet of David and George Farrer, of St. Mary's School, deserves mention. The first brother in with the Duke of York School and was Kenya-born champion in 1958, is believed to be in the United States.

School visit

A N-country weekend for the members of the Kenya Branch of the British Amateur Professional Golf Association was held at Harrogate, during the week-end. The first brother in with the Duke of York School and was Kenya-born champion in 1958, is believed to be in the United States.

Lambe plans to take Shakespeare into the schools

SHAKESPEARE festivals are all very well but there are no prizes for them, all effort to buy tickets and to get a comfortable seat and to understand the historical background struggling with examinations Shakespeare is not a very easy subject to say, often the transport of her materials is a headache, from previous years.

Now I have a suggestion. The schools have a general idea of what is going on. They miss the general idea of the theatre. The schools have a general idea of what is going on. They miss the general idea of the theatre. The schools have a general idea of what is going on. They miss the general idea of the theatre.

I have had news about the winning plays in the Competition. Increase of administrative facilities needed for most of these plays.

SAFETY says Mr. Smith is what I look for in an investment, and I have that now because I have a title with the First Permanent backed by the Commonwealth Development Corporation.

SECURITY says Mr. Awool is my guide when investing, and the First Permanent has assets exceeding £1 million... that makes my savings secure.

SERVICE says Mr. Jones... that's what I say with the First Permanent. The manager knows me and knows how little I understand finance, and he has shown me the contract and most of all... cannot say for me to save.

INTEREST—as we keeping your money in a bank says Mr. Pany... money has to wait for me and the First Permanent is just that. It is a deposit account.

See your local First Permanent manager to find out what other titles we will show you on the type of account best suited to your individual requirements.

Music Festival beats all records

TALK about the wind of change if you will, political pressure and social upheavals can do little to alter the course of the Kenya Music Festival this year tops all previous records with close on 10,000 attendees.

By DOROTHY STEELE

By these people will take... high this year, but alas, the ordinary audience has received only one, and we certainly welcome the thousands, both in the usual band class and the special class, the wind class from members of the band in one class, and the wind class from members of the band in another class. The wind class from members of the band in one class, and the wind class from members of the band in another class.

OFFICE EQUIPMENT SUPPLEMENT

Bright future for business machines

BEHIND THE OFFICE DESK - 1

TO determine the future of the office machine in East Africa, we need only look over our shoulder to another great continent — North America. In terms of office machines, the 800,000 standard typewriters, including electric models, and the sale of over one standard typewriter per 200 head of population.

In 1962 in East Africa, according to figures issued by the British Trade Commissioner, 2,15 standard typewriters, including electric, were sold; but this figure may be more accurately stated to be around 2,500.

To reach the standards of the United States, on a population basis, the typewriter market in East Africa now equated up to an annual unit sale of 100,000 machines, or more than 20 times larger than at present.

15-YEAR LIFE

While the average life of a typewriter in East Africa is roughly assessed at between 10 and 12 years, there are many examples in the country — especially Government — which will over 20 years old. The average life expectancy in the United States is between 12 and 15 years.

Typically, seven out of 10 standard typewriters sold in the U.S. are electric models. In East Africa, the 1962 total of 2,500 units, of which is equivalent to one machine for every 200 heads of population.

Even these figures alone will show that the typewriter is a basic office machine and representative of the "state-of-the-art" office equipment and applied services that there is a tremendous scope for in the East African market.

FIRST COMPUTER

East Africa being the first of the independent states to purchase a computer, the first of which is that recently bought by the Government of Kenya. It is officially launching the first of its computers in East Africa, Mr. R. J. Becken, said this to-day.

IMPORT FIGURES

The total imports of typewriters (including portable) into East Africa last year were valued at £1,000,000, the total typewriter sales, we know that there was an increasing trend of about 25 per cent as against the previous year.

East Africa is well served by the office machine and equipment trade, and the machinery available throughout the world are available in East Africa. The more sophisticated, expensive and costly machines can be imported only by well advanced and well established commercial.

FORMS TO SET THE PACE

The main reason why so many organizations prefer the use of forms is because of the delay factor in who the information is received or prepared.

The delay can be overcome and the time of preparation of forms can be reduced by up to 90 per cent by the use of forms that are designed to facilitate the movement of information from one section of an organization to another.

Certain accounting machines equipped with the back output of sets and also be converted to continuous forms to provide an output of up to 100 lines per minute.

The continuous forms can be set up on high-speed, high-capacity machines and in certain cases greater than 100 lines per minute can be achieved by the use of automatic forms.

By ERIC CECIL
Managing director of a leading business machine company in Kenya

The delay can be overcome and the time of preparation of forms can be reduced by up to 90 per cent by the use of forms that are designed to facilitate the movement of information from one section of an organization to another.

SECRETARIES ARE AT A PREMIUM EVERYWHERE AND BECAUSE OF THIS A GIRL WHO CAN DO SHORTHAND AND TYPE HAS A PASSPORT WHICH IS INVARIABLE TO HER. SHOULD SHE HAVE AN URGE TO TRAVEL IT WILL OPEN THE DOOR TO A JOB IN ANY PART OF THE WORLD.

A TRAINED SECRETARY CAN COMMAND A HIGH SALARY ANYWHERE (ENGLISH SECRETARIES IN FACT ARE SO SOUGHT AFTER BY AMERICAN BUSINESS FIRMS THAT A SPECIAL AGENCY HAS BEEN OPENED IN LONDON TO RECRUIT THEM TO WORK IN THE UNITED STATES).

EXPERIENCED OFFICE STAFF IS JUST AS HARD TO FIND IN KENYA AND MUCH IN DEMAND IN THIS AND OTHER PAGES OF THE "OFFICE EQUIPMENT SUPPLEMENT". WE FEATURE SOME OF THE SECRETARIES AND TYPISTS WHOM YOU WILL FIND BEHIND THE OFFICE DESK IN NAIROBI AND SOME GIRLS TOO, WHO ARE ABOUT TO START THEIR SECRETARIAL CAREERS.

FIRST IN THE SERIES IS MISS LAURIAN FRANCES READNELL (ABOVE), WHO IS A SECRETARY WITH A BALDWIN AND CO (EAST AFRICA) LTD AND HAS BEEN WITH THE COMPANY FOR 18 MONTHS.

MISS READNELL WAS TRAINED IN ENGLAND AND HER FIRST JOB WAS WITH A LONDON EXPORT FIRM. SHE TYPEWROTE 60 WORDS A MINUTE FOR 10 MINUTES.

WE ASKED MISS READNELL WHAT QUALITIES SHE THINKS A GOOD BOSS SHOULD HAVE. HER ANSWER: "A SENSE OF HUMOUR, TO BE HELPFUL, UNDERSTANDING AND REASONABLE. MISS READNELL ONLY EXPECTS FROM HER EMPLOYER THE SAME HIGH STANDARDS SHE LOOKS FOR IN HER OFFICE EQUIPMENT."

Photographs in this series were taken by "Shand" and "Murray" Victor Tompkins and Peter Heathcote.

make of manual or electric typewriter, the most important factor being the amount of clarity and legibility.

The main reason why so many organizations prefer the use of forms is because of the delay factor in who the information is received or prepared.

The delay can be overcome and the time of preparation of forms can be reduced by up to 90 per cent by the use of forms that are designed to facilitate the movement of information from one section of an organization to another.

Certain accounting machines equipped with the back output of sets and also be converted to continuous forms to provide an output of up to 100 lines per minute.

The continuous forms can be set up on high-speed, high-capacity machines and in certain cases greater than 100 lines per minute can be achieved by the use of automatic forms.

NOWADAYS, the typist strikes the keys of her machine 300, 400 or more times a minute and thinks nothing of it. The technical processes and the 'mindless' working involved in her labour-saving equipment are taken for granted; yet it is only as the result of painstaking gathering of experience by many people over the centuries, and difficult and expensive tests, that she is able to produce her neatly typed letters.

Nearly 200 years have passed since the idea first appeared of writing with an implement resembling a machine. And still it is not easy by whom claims to be the place of origin.

Reliable sources fix the year 1714 as the beginning of the development of the typewriter. At that period Henry Mill, the hydraulic engineer, filed a patent for such a machine in London. This application has been preserved, but unfortunately no drawings of the machine are included. Nor does the description allow recognition of any detail of construction; it seems that only the idea of a typewriter was to be patented.

Here and there further machines resembling the first one appeared around 1780. In 1814, however, the first of the blind, some of them showed considerable ingenuity in their construction and later inventors have not hesitated to borrow from them.

Among German inventors of that period the most prominent was Fustner von Frank, a husband and foreman, a student of medicine, an inventor of many a useful machine, and inventor of the typewriter.

In 1820 he built a typewriter which he patented, which he claimed, could be used for printing, verbatim, speeches in Parliament.

IN COLOUR

Originally the model built by von Frank was made of iron. A contemporary reported, however, that "it worked like little boxes coming up from below". It may be assumed, therefore, that a certain of letters were used, as the "inks" of the little boxes were made of iron.

An Italian, many of the little boxes were made of iron. The inventor made the Cembalo (cylinder) of iron, and made a coloured ribbon. For this reason Fustner is often described as the inventor of the type-writer.

Peter Millerhofer came next.

CAPITALS ONLY

His first model had a frame in the shape of a T. From many parts were incorporated into the model which we find in typewriters now.

Millerhofer's machine, which only wrote capitals, had a device for moving the writing frame by means of a writing lever. This was attached to the carriage, and was raised and lowered by the key lever. There was also a device for moving the writing frame by means of a writing lever. This was attached to the carriage, and was raised and lowered by the key lever. There was also a device for moving the writing frame by means of a writing lever. This was attached to the carriage, and was raised and lowered by the key lever.

A LEGEND

The Millerhofer model resembled, basically, the Sholes-Godden inasmuch that a legend of the letters was attached to the carriage. Godden, who copied it from Millerhofer's machine, had a series of factory-produced typebars, was opened by a spring. The letters were raised and lowered by the key lever, and the ink was transferred to the paper by the roller.

... and even like this

There was a half-cylinder to carry the paper. The preliminary work for this machine was started in 1801, one month of the construction of the machine. The machine was made by the English inventor, Charles Sholes and Carlos Glidden, was conceived independently of the European inventors.

It was produced in 1873 in the Remington works, a factory for guns and swords, and was subsequently sold to the United States Government.

The first street typewriter, which had the disadvantage that it was impossible to read what had been written without book advice, had card sets and even paper models. It was the production of copies for use as office printing machines.

Organizations have long used forms and office printing machines. The latter are used for the production of all the required data for input to the printing process. The printed output is produced at a rapid rate, and is of high quality.

This is the most efficient form layout and integration, plus the provision of the correct type of continuous forms, capable of multiple-use, measured at printing speeds of up to 3,000 lines per minute.

The range of forms available is so wide that it is possible to find a form for almost any business, although the normal maximum length of a form is 100 lines.

These forms are identified by the process being followed on the left and right margins.

— or a short history of adding machines

EVER since the beginning of human civilization, man has used to seek the best of adding — 99 — ways.

The earliest known adding machine was the Stone Age, reckoning used around 2000 B.C. for the Chinese. At the time of Peter the Great, 1700, was taken to Moscow and there called the "Count".

The main work of counting, however, had not to be done by the hand. In the 17th century, the French mathematician Blaise Pascal invented the first carry on lever calculation with his aid.

Around 1709 B.C. the Egyptians were using a reckoning board. A table was divided into cells, which in turn were divided into ten smaller cells. The first seven numbers of these were marked with sticks and calculations made by the red wax used.

Marking by means of beads of tubes was the origin of mechanical reckoning from antiquity into the Middle Ages. # PIGEONS

A short history of the microfilm

MICROFILM first came into prominence during the siege of Paris in the Franco-Prussian War in 1870, when carrier-pigeons were used for taking messages.

Thousands of pigeons were used in the Franco-Prussian War and carried in a tin box on the leg of a pigeon. Once in Paris they were put into a screen and read by the individuals. The idea was so successful that it was used in the same way by the three hundred and thirty-seven official and private messengers had been used in the city.

The Second World War again saw pigeons used. Among the best known was "Yeast" which, indeed, the weight of mail to be transported from 1918 to 1919.

The earliest form of recording was the use of wax cylinders. The earliest wax cylinder was made in 1877. The wax cylinder was used for recording music and for recording the voice of a speaker. most three countries had been using the film as their only means of communication. This saves time, prevents loss of effort and, perhaps most important of all, prevents errors. What appears on the original film also appears on an exact copy on microfilm.

Preparation of microfilm is a most valuable film, newspapers, magazines, books and other documents because paper cannot stand the wear and tear of years of use. A number of city and county councils have adopted microfilm as a means of recording their official records.

WHEN A REPORTER GOT ANNOYED...

A YOUNG American Civil War correspondent read his own dispatches in a newspaper, and was disgusted and angered by the garbled material which they had reached print.

A. BAILEY writes on the invention of 'cold type'

The hand-written report had been completely ignored and the printed stories were a jumble of unrecognizable lines. There was little he could do about the quality of the printing, but he did take it upon himself to do something about the garbled material which they had reached print.

When the news came in the morning, the printer was told that the material was so bad that it was better to burn it than to print it. The printer was told that the material was so bad that it was better to burn it than to print it.

Resigned, he resigned his position as a reporter and went to work for the printer. He resigned his position as a reporter and went to work for the printer.

This story is a typical example of the kind of material that is often found in newspapers. It is a typical example of the kind of material that is often found in newspapers.

Two important facts about the invention of cold type are that it was invented by a man who was a printer and that it was invented in the United States.

All the conventional printing methods are based on the use of hot metal. The use of hot metal is based on the use of hot metal.

The invention of cold type was a major step forward in the history of printing. It was a major step forward in the history of printing.

What then of the competing methods of hot and cold type? The answer is that cold type is the method of the future.

an entirely new concept in computers

Use a new microcircuit technology to pack more logic in less space. Add a choice of the world's largest, lowest-cost core memories. Mix in the broadest array of printers, tapes, storage units, readers, terminals and display devices ever offered with one system. Develop programs and programming systems that can work on the smallest configuration all the way up to the largest. The result is the new IBM System/360, a truly all-purpose system that can fill all your data processing needs.

On April 7, IBM announced the new System/360—the most unique computer of them all. It can solve both commercial and scientific problems. It neatly handles data communications problems and complicated control problems, too. Custom fit the system to the job. With System/360 you actually assemble a system that is just right for your job. Start with a central processing unit to handle your volume of work. Substitute more powerful units as you grow. Tailor the memory to let you solve your biggest, most complex problems and get the most out of your system. Low cost, virtually unlimited storage—start as low as 8,000 characters and go up over 8 million—makes it flexible. Pick and choose the right number and variety of compatible input and output devices. Add more programs as you need more. Programs are compatible. Any program that works on the smallest too. Any program that works on the largest. Even programming systems come in several sizes; choose the one that fits your problem. Combined with these new computer concepts is a new microcircuit technology. Tiny, reliable circuits help the System/360 attain processing speeds measured in milliseconds (thousand-millionths of a second).

More useful answers per £1 of cost. There is one basic IBM concept that System/360 didn't change. It may be the most important of all—to provide data processing systems that help solve your problems and give you more useful answers per £1 of cost. This has been our objective since we first started making data processing equipment. That's why we're so pleased with the new System/360. It solves today's problems. And it easily expands to solve tomorrow's. It cuts today's costs and will cut tomorrow's, too. There has never been a system quite like it. Interested?

MICROFILM AS SIMPLE AS A BOX CAMERA

Microfilm is a simple and convenient way to store and retrieve information. It is used in a variety of applications, including libraries, government agencies, and businesses. Microfilm is a compact and durable format that can store large amounts of data in a small space. It is also easy to use and can be accessed quickly. This makes it an ideal solution for organizations that need to store and manage large amounts of information.

FOR QUALITY

The Swedish worker's deep-seated feeling for quality and precision has greatly helped to build up his country's export trade.

THE Swedish business machine industry serves as an excellent illustration of this country's technical efficiency and quality, inventiveness and tradition. Swedes — and their descendants abroad — have achieved first-class pioneering feats in the development and production of modern business machines.

One of the world's first calculators designed for practical use was invented by a Swede, P. G. Scheutz, in 1853. To another Swede, W. T. Odhner, goes the credit for a revolutionary invention which made possible the first calculator that could be produced in quantity.

TWO ESSENTIALS
 Two Americans of Swedish ancestry, Hundersted and Pridgen, won international repute with their significant contributions to new advances in business machine design.

Business machines are used the world over to save time and expense in administrative work. If such a machine is to pay for itself its capacity has to be fully utilized. Accordingly, it must meet two requirements: first, it has to be of sufficiently good quality so as to render long service; and second, it must be built with production so as to render it profitable.

Keen competition from manufacturers in low-wage countries has compelled Sweden's export industry to go in for automation. Here is a section of a business machine factory at Abo/Sweden. Below: A nickel-plating plant of another Swedish factory. Iron arms wonder round and automatically dip suspended parts into acid baths.

The rapidly increasing numbers of desk-borne staff and the fine reputation gained internationally by the Swedish business machine industry have caused us to stimulate a most rapid development of that industry and put it in a very strong position on the market.

The total output of business machines in Sweden during 1959 was valued at about £248,000,000. The corresponding figure for 1957 was in excess of £170,000,000.

EXPORT RISE

The Swedish market is saturated by domestic manufacturers but is too small to permit the full extension of mass production. Export is therefore a necessity. Swedish business machines have become increasingly familiar in many markets and the value of exports has risen sharply during the last few years.

The average annual rate of expansion during 1959-60 has been close to 23 per cent. About 75 per cent of the total output of the Swedish business machine industry is exported.

Sweden exports business machines to a greater value than any other country. Figures for the 1959-60 period per 1,000 inhabitants: 1962, £100; 1961, £100; 1960, £100.

This young woman is not in the act of making a dry martini. The bar she works at is dedicated to the production of Swedish office machines. Below: Another view of a business machine factory at Arvidsberg.

Stencil —from a torn kite

By G. M. ROBERTS

IMAGINE a tiny workshop tucked away in a obscure corner of the City of London, one side bounded over his work-bench, a young man is putting something together.

There is nothing really remarkable about the young man, nor is there anything about the fact that he was born in the 1880's — and his father did no more than furnish him a young man's somewhat general education.

And the young man's nose, as he studies the measurements of the finger, rising, screwing, and sliding an Allen, with a fiery brilliance.

There are the eyes of a man dedicated to the work he handles, the eyes of a visionary, a man singled out by destiny for a great future, one who will do it.

At present, he is working on the bench, making something new, it looks very much like an industrial duplicating machine.

It is very late for the young man has worked far into the night, recently he has worked that the heavy have slipped off, controlled. All around the little workshop the city is wrapped in darkness and silence. The gas jet, during all the work, throws a faint, wavering light upon a sign-board — "Don't drink".

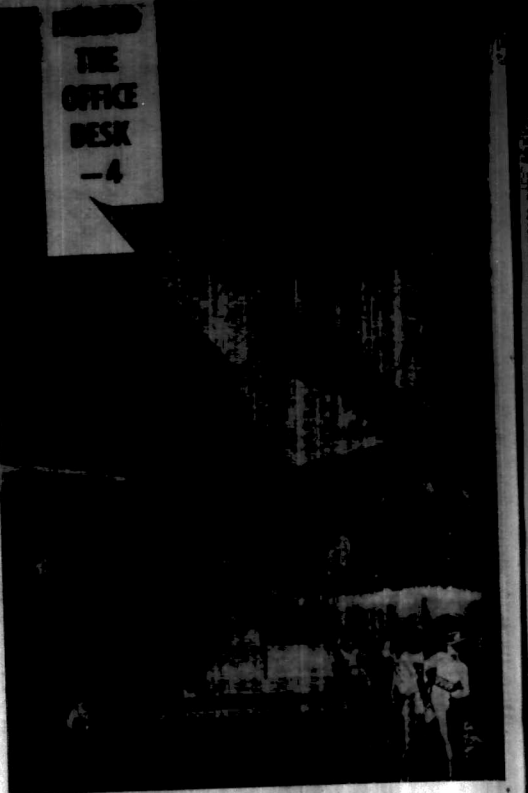

The young man leans back, his head on the wall, the little workshop, under the gas and the dim light from the street lamp, reveals a few objects on the floor panel. Picking up the plate, he can make out the neatly printed letters, spelling out the name of Gladstone.

From this moment forward, where the usual disapproving glances of the manufacturers spring to the machines in every part of the world, and employing thousands of people.

The idea of the stencil, which is the brilliant idea — was essentially simple, first came to David Crockett in the form of a Japanese kite, made of light, waterproof paper.

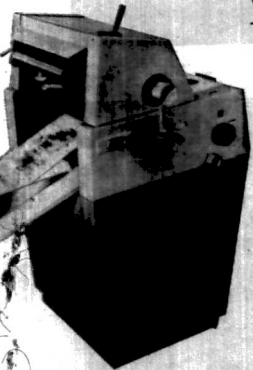

These kites were common in the hands of the children of the street. One day he saw a torn kite, he took the long, loose, three of the paper which lent it strength held by a flimsy appearance. His active mind, seized upon the possibilities of the idea, but strong material.

More experiments if you searched letters on this paper would not break, and as the genius of a young man transformed a torn kite into a copying process which the whole world was waiting for. From that small beginning, the stencil copying machine was born, and the world would not be without it.

RONEO FLUSHLINE LATERAL FILING

IS THE ANSWER

There has been a revolution in the way of filing documents. The Roneo Flushline Lateral Filing System is the answer to the problem of filing documents in a compact, efficient manner.

The introduction of the Roneo Flushline Lateral Filing System is a major step forward in the development of filing systems. It is a system that is designed to meet the needs of the modern office.

It is important that proper attention be given to the design of each desk, since every hour of work can be saved or wasted as a result of poorly designed desks.

THE ANSWERS

Some desks are of suitable design for filing in. They provide the necessary support for the filing system and are designed to be efficient and to save space.

It is important that proper attention be given to the design of each desk, since every hour of work can be saved or wasted as a result of poorly designed desks.

FOR AND FILING

PETER SHAW describes how they should streamline efficiency

It is not surprising that many business managers are looking for ways to streamline their filing systems. The key to success is to understand the needs of the modern office and to design a system that meets those needs.

Some of the information that is needed for filing is not available, or it is not organized in a way that makes it easy to find. This is a common problem in many offices.

It outlines information that is needed for filing. It specifies the space in which information is to be written so that it can be easily located.

It provides copies for the writer and departments concerned so that each can carry out its part of the transaction. This is a key to success in filing.

MECHANISED ACCOUNTS BUSINESS

Only recent times commercial and industrial organisations throughout the world have been generally in modernising their accounts and in re-equipping their factories.

In the past, the preparation for the production of a machine was a long and arduous task. It was necessary to have a large staff of clerks and accountants, and the machine was often a bulky and expensive affair. The modern accounting machine, however, is a small, compact and efficient device which can be operated by a single person.

ASK most people what they mean when they talk about an addressing machine, and they will say: "A machine that prints addresses."

The term "addressing machine" was coined to describe a machine that produced pre-composed addresses. But the so-called addressing machine has developed into the more sophisticated data processing field where it serves in repetitive writing of constant data to which unknown variables are later added.

These modern fast machines save a tremendous amount of time in office plans, classified mail, stock lists, and

The heart of the addressing machine is a type of mechanism that is used to transfer information approximately 100 times a second to such an immense amount of information, with an average of 10 letters per line.

These plates can be "indexed" for selection purposes by the insertion of a small metal strip. There are usually 100 of these "indexing" positions on a plate and each can be set into five million individual combinations, or 100 million combinations, of any desired combination between 1 and 26 letters of the alphabet in different positions.

Most plates have a great range of data and can be set into five million individual combinations. Once a great grid has been made lead which it is necessary to check that particular plate again.

These plates may carry information which is valid for years and need changing only once, but only only once, or they may be altered by a key.

If the plate has been made in this way, it is possible to transfer information to the printing mechanism until it is necessary to change the information of the printing mechanism.

Once a plate has been checked for its relative position on the tray, it cannot be set out of sequence. When the plates are to be used, the tray is set into the machine by a key.

The machine, by lifting a lever, can extract all the plates from each tray without disturbing the sequence. The tray is then placed in a special rack under the machine, and, as every plate is processed through the machine, they are returned to the same rack in their original order.

Some of the many uses of the modern addressing machine are:

INSURANCE COMPANIES

Ensuring that all premium general receipts are produced on the right day. This can be done by indexing for new groups and policy groups.

Actuals and policy groups application for this type of machine in insurance companies.

As every insurance firm will have a large number of such, it must be prepared with the most accurate combination of all with speed.

PUBLIC UTILITIES

Water and electric companies find it almost impossible to run their business these days without the use of such machines. They are used monthly bills, and the machine is used to address the bills.

It is not surprising that the use of such machines is so widespread in the public utility industry.

IMAGES BY SPIRIT DUPLICATOR

THE spirit duplicator is a simple-to-operate machine that does not use ink, but uses an ink reproduction medium carbon and alcohol.

The "master," called sheets for the moment, which makes can be produced by any one of several methods: typed, drawn, stamped, hand-drawn or even using a photograph.

A sheet of carbon (covered with a layer of ink) is placed under the master and the original image is then produced by the carbon's electrical properties. The carbon's electrical properties are caused by the heat of the master and the carbon's electrical properties are caused by the heat of the master.

So much turns on paper—

even more turns on finding exactly the right paper for each particular purpose, and that is one of Spicers' many specialized functions in the world of paper. Add to that back on three hundred years of experience, Spicers have always preferred to look forward instead of anticipating the needs of tomorrow.

All the best papers meet at SPIECERS

"Best" in Spicers means any variety of papers in the service, exact choice for the job, and superior printing, writing, or wrapping—long retention of color, high resistance to fading, and so on. The price for paper has not risen for many years, but the cost of Spicers' together with the use of their equipment will definitely pay for it.

XEROGRAPHY - THE NEW DRY WRITING

XEROGRAPHY is a major new development in the field of office arts. It is a new kind of copying, dry writing, based on the Greek word "xeros" meaning "dry" and "gapho" meaning "writing".

It was first developed by a team of scientists led by Professor J. Carlson of the University of Rockland, New York, in 1949. It is a dry, frictionless process that does not require liquid ink or toner. The original document is placed on a glass surface, and a bright light is shined through it. This light is reflected off the surface of a rotating drum coated with a light-sensitive material. The light causes a thin layer of powder to adhere to the drum, forming a latent image. This image is then transferred to a sheet of paper by a second drum, and a final drum fuses the powder to the paper, creating a permanent copy.

DRY WRITING
It can be used for copying documents, making notes, and creating forms. It is fast, accurate, and produces clear, legible copies. The process is completely dry, with no ink or toner to clean up.

The Xerox process is simple and easy to use. It requires no special skills or training. The Xerox copier is a compact, efficient machine that can be used in any office. It is a true "dry writing" system that has revolutionized the way we copy documents.

SCIENTISTS STUDY ELECTRIC TYPEWRITERS

BRITISH and Italian scientists have found a way to make electric typewriters work cheaper. They have developed a new design for the typebars, which are the parts of the typewriter that strike the paper to form the letters. The new design is simpler and more efficient, and it allows the typewriter to operate at a lower speed. This means that the typewriter can produce more copies in less time, which makes it a more cost-effective machine.

The scientists studied the operation of electric typewriters and found that the most expensive part of the machine is the typebar mechanism. They designed a new typebar that is easier to manufacture and more durable. This new design will significantly reduce the cost of electric typewriters.

AN ELECTRIC TYPEWRITER

The new electric typewriter is a compact, efficient machine that is perfect for home or office use. It features the new typebar design, which makes it faster and cheaper to operate than other models.

It is a true "junior" typewriter that offers all the features of a full-sized machine at a fraction of the cost. It is a must-have for anyone who needs a reliable, affordable typewriter.

Mistake to leave it to junior

It is tragically true that if you try to talk to a junior business executive about filing, nine times out of ten he regards it as something which the office boy should do.

What are the factors which govern the speed with which documents can be processed? The first is the quality of the equipment used. The second is the skill of the operator. The third is the organization of the office. All three factors are crucial to the efficiency of the filing process.

STENCILING PROBLEM

THE OFFICE DESK WE FIND MISS JANE COLE WHO RECENTLY STARTED WORKING FOR THE MANAGING DIRECTOR OF LINTAS ADVERTISING. MISS COLE HAS A SHORTHAND SPEED OF 110 WORDS.

In a majority of these stations, the typewriter is actually cheaper to operate than the stenciling machine. This is because the typewriter does not require the purchase of stencils, which can be a significant expense.

Finally, behind the typewriter is the stenciling machine. It is a slower, more cumbersome machine that requires the purchase of stencils and ink. It is a less efficient way to produce copies.
