A TEST CASE

Official Report On Dar es Salaam Air Raid Alarm

STANDARD CORRESPONDENT

Dar es Salaam, October 29.—Practically all the alarm bells in the city were sounded on October 29, but just been tested by the A.R.P. Controller on Friday.

The practice air raid warning sounded in the Press on October 29, commencing at 3.15 p.m. and on Monday, October 30, with the warning at 5 p.m. and the alarm at 6.30 p.m. There is a complete surge and cutting into business as it did the first was in certain respects a new and useful one.

Sound Sounded for Storm

There is nothing new to report with regard to the alarm bells except to record that experiments are being made with sounding boards with a view to increasing the range of sound. To assist in this it may be necessary to mount the bells on higher erections than at present in order that the sound may not be blanketed by trees and tall buildings. This point is also under consideration.

New Gongs?

Comment has been made on the limited efficiency of the alarm gongs and whether their use should not be restricted to areas where the alarm may not be heard. It is admitted that these gongs have proved to be disappointing and it is proposed to replace them as when opportunities arise. Better types have already been erected in certain residential areas.

It is considered that the use of gongs for routine purposes is justified and should be continued for the time being until they may be replaced with the electric supply. One report remarks that the gongs should have been rung for longer. The instruction is that they should be sounded for five minutes.

Correspondence To H.M. Forces

An erroneous impression is prevalent that correspondence addressed to members of His Majesty's Forces can be sent by members of the public free of charge provided the cover is superimposed "On Active Service."

The Post Master-General, therefore, announces for public information that postage on such correspondence must be prepaid by the addressee. Otherwise the defunct postage will be surcharged with double the amount of the deficient postage on delivery to the addressee and may also be charged on the sender.

The free postage facility applies only to the mail free of charge provided only to members of His Majesty's Forces in certain countries.

Nyasaland's campaign to collect £2,000 or more for the purchase of Mobile Canteens in England has exceeded. At the same time contributions continue to come in for the "War War Fund. More than £20,000 has been contributed by all sections of the community in response to various appeals since the outbreak of war.

Fire Brigade Work

The Voluntary Fire Master reports that "On the alarm being received from the Controller, both engines were started out to the building at the junction of India, Bagdad and Hastings Streets where half a dozen incendiary bombs were found to be burning on the roof of the building. The cooperation of the wardens was invaluable in this case as well as in the case of the fire at the top of the building, having stated that the fire was there."

"On this information, the pump was at once started up and 500 ft of hose connected up and brought up the stairs. The opportunity was taken to show the Brigade how to start filling the hose for a high lift of this nature before coupling up had been completed and although they had not been practised in this it was found necessary to stop the water supply for a matter of seconds only while the had connection was made, so that water was available at 500 ft on the top of the building."

"As work was in hand here a police messenger arrived with an advertisement for a meeting in the market, but the task engine had already been sent there through a Native being sent work on the fire. The tank engine was sent with a driver and two men with the Native war dogs as a guide."

Fire Bomb Examination

One case of information was discovered during the practice when an unauthorised person was found to be parading about wearing an armband bearing the letters "A.R.P." He was handed over to the police who are instituting proceedings against him.

Play The Game, You Cads!

A correspondent sends the following cutting from an American newspaper which, without filtration or any expurgation, is a view of Hellmouth which all who run — outside Axis countries — may read.

This brief article — headed "Mr Hitler is Dugout" — states — "It is interesting to see that comes out of Berlin — how Mr. Hitler and the rest of the boys are what the Western appreciators would describe as 'spicily dugouted' with the way the British are carrying on this war."

If Mr. Hitler didn't see it with his own eyes and didn't hear it with his own ears you never could convince him that the British are winning the bid to take of dropping bombs in Berlin.

The thing might make Mr. Hitler mad enough just to see affront to himself and his people, but the unrepeatable and the undesirable thing about it is the exhibition of bad taste which it represents.

This is what Mr. Hitler is to the dignity of his race. It causes him to lose faith in humanity — and in governments.

Evaluative Rights

Mr. Hitler is signing some of the things in his hand down to the people of the world. He is signing them down to the people of the world. He is signing them down to the people of the world.

Further Control Of Imports

It is notified for the information of importers that in order to counterbalance the interests of the year effort, Government has decided that the purchase of goods of non-designated origin must be further restricted.

In regard to the articles specified below, information is available that supplies are obtainable from the United Kingdom or other sterling countries, and consequently applications for import licenses will be granted only for goods from those sources.

The list includes, in addition, articles which are considered to be non-essential, and also goods which are obtainable even from non-sterling sources, owing to priority requirements for the war effort elsewhere.

The list comprises:—
Canned Fruit and Vegetables—
Certain quantities obtainable from South Africa and Australia. Also local supplies.

Radio Sets, Typewriters and Office Equipment, Catalogues and Publications—available from the United Kingdom.

Arms and Ammunition, Barbitone, Reasonable quantities obtainable from the United Kingdom, Australia, Canada and the United States.

Aluminium and its alloys, in any form, except as specified in the list.

Are The Supermen Wilting?

Without, they will produce photographs of their wives, children, dogs, or other pets, and talk at length about the burning of their homes. The permanent dangers in these things are so obvious to us that they themselves are so keen to be in the necessary making sense. The courage these sentimental bolshies to stand up to from home and go to see for you have them on the verge of a fit.

So far as not being judged, most of the soldiers now in the front have been some two years in arms. If asked about the end of the war they usually show their absolute and unshakable confidence in the prospect of the future. They certainly criticize the occupation of Denmark and Norway, and they wonder what they are doing in Belgium, "which will never become German territory."

They do not want to fight, they can easily be induced to profess that they are generally here no great sympathy for the First Government, they nevertheless have no firm faith in ultimate victory.

The oldest spirit of the Belgians has largely recovered, and the word "vandalism" is often whispered in the house now and with apparent truth, that since-then of all Germany are not of sympathy with their Nazi masters, but this is really no more than the positive sentiment, who will not of themselves rise in active revolt against the new order.

But there is another possibility, which some competent observers believe to regard even as a probability. The attitude of the Belgians towards the invaders is clear. The Flemish people also appear not so much to hate the Nazi Government as they do to hate the Germans. They are all really Belgians and their mutual antagonisms fade at the prospect of leaving the country again into their hands. The people of Belgium feel now that they have been deceived by (treason). They have no new clear idea as to who has betrayed them for their present plight, but all in Belgium know today that it is not the English who have betrayed them. Those who the Germans have sought to propagate this conception. It is touching and curious to observe how they continue to spread the news of their present plight, but all in Belgium know today that it is not the English who have betrayed them.

In spite of the thorough German militarization, or perhaps because of it, the Belgians show their real sentiments whenever they have an opportunity. During September there were horse races near Brussels, and during the race, one man called "Belgium" "Belgium" seemed to know something about the race, but it seemed that everybody was feeling it to be so. "Well," said Christian, says the curious thing about this is that they are not Belgians. Ah! a miracle happened that day; the dark horse (Belgium) came in first, and the crowd had all roaring, laughing, roaring shouting "Belgium, Belgium!" cheering one another on the track, and acting as if they had not merely won money but had received a welcome sign from Heaven.

SCOUTING AT THE COAST

Record Numbers & Considerable Activity

In spite of difficulties due to the closing of schools upon the entry of the "int" into the country, the Scout Movement in Mombasa during the past year has shown a steady increase. The Mombasa and Coast Boy Scout Local Association.

In point of fact the period covered is an even, and not a very, month. Very little reading between the lines is needed to see that the improvement of Scouting at the Coast springs from the fact that Scouters generally are firing Blunder in the role of Chief Scout Commissioner for the Colony.

With Captain A. M. Smith as District Scout Commissioner, a really serious effort of practical carrying out Scouting has been embarked upon. And when any boy is introduced to Scouting as Lord Baden-Powell stated it, by a man who has himself absorbed the spirit of the game, the result is as inevitable as the mixing of the acid of a sulphuric battery.

Mombasa's record in the period reviewed is one of flux and spar. Two more districts have been created. The number of Cubs has increased by fifty per cent. to 126. Scouters now total 163, and the Rover strength is practically doubled, at 101. That is in Mombasa itself. Outside the rest of all ranks, some amount to 170.

A Good Friend. The increase is firmly founded on a strong substratum of new recruits. London, sixteen first Warnants having been granted during the seven months.

Apart from training in Scouting, the Scout Movement has also been to the number of 170 have been applied. The Movement's fundamental principles of loyalty and service in war work of many kinds. Ten of them have undertaken special training and now form an Auxiliary Fire Brigade, for instance, and have recently received promotion.

New Mombasa is setting out to establish its own Scout Headquarters and premises. It has already done so and is collecting many respectable items of furniture for the purpose. Efforts to make a public appeal for funds directed to the present difficult times, a stiff path has been laid, but such positions still only the greater scope for the initiative and leadership that Scouting sets out to develop in the boy.

The past year's record progress was achieved with a great expenditure of £107 10s of Local Association Funds. Starting with £100 in hand, the Scouters of the Mombasa and Coast Boy Scout Local Association have secured a profit of £7 10s. This is a very fine result, considering the coming year promises well to improve even on the high level of achievement of the last.

BIGGER AND BETTER BOMBERS

Mighty Air Fleet For Final Stroke

["STANDARD" CORRESPONDENT] London. A decisive phase in the strategy of the air has been reached recently. The Daily Mail Air correspondent writes: "It is now a question of the R.A.F. and its planes to take the final stroke."

I can say today the confidence of the German Air Force has reached the point where it is now. On the other hand, the R.A.F. still grows a little more and to deal it would be a high victory. A high victory and a high victory.

The R.A.F. has in the last few months been a very matter for Germany. Our fighter aircraft have been better than ever. But it is our bombers - and we are getting more and more of them - that will give the Nazis have to take.

"If the Royal Navy can keep command of the sea - and they can - suddenly the seaward drive of a land bomber was based above us. It is the German Air Force that will play an even more important part."

Like a B.E. Commentary. "But," he announced, with gathering interest, pointing with the stem of his pipe.

"Look, now... two... three. They've hit the line. No, they haven't. Yes, they have. Not so bad as perfect weather conditions to knock the R.A.F. during August and September. They tried - and they failed miserably."

"They're nothing better than a clear blue sky up above. It has happened that our fighters like that sort of weather."

"In this official view, winter weather conditions will be to our advantage. Our balloon barrage, which has been greatly increased in height, will play an even more important part."

THE SPIRIT YOU CAN'T BEAT

How Londoners "Take It"

The story today, told by Alan Dick of the Daily Telegraph, is what in its matter-of-factness. The spirit which it shows is one which makes the Axis powers to rage furiously and indignantly, knowing that neither can ever overtake or intimidate it.

Mr. A. at his corner doing The Daily Telegraph crossword puzzle. I believe he has done all 4,000 of them. Miss B. was reading the woman's page of another paper. Mr. C. was filling his pipe.

There was that curious stillness which follows the waiting of the bandstand. Suddenly the swartling drone of a land bomber was heard above us. It was followed by the downward rush of Mr. C. looked up from his pipe.

Like a B.E. Commentary. "But," he announced, with gathering interest, pointing with the stem of his pipe.

"Look, now... two... three. They've hit the line. No, they haven't. Yes, they have. Not so bad as perfect weather conditions to knock the R.A.F. during August and September. They tried - and they failed miserably."

When An Axis Lie Is "Technically Correct"

November 20

Manually claim to be telling the truth regarding the three British First Air Arm squadrons at Tunisia. He said that three shells were taken as being technically correct.

With regard to reports it is stated that Italian battalions are not being in North Africa. But under contract and unless workmen are specially drafted to Tunisia to carry out extensive repairs, the bado's factories would involve that they be lowered away to private party. As this is the case, it is likely to be carried out at Trieste, such operations would involve that they be lowered from the boat of Italy to the head of the Adriatic (British Official Wireless Service).

The signs are increasing that the trouble, inflicted on the Germans by our fighters are affecting the morale of their pilots.

THE BRIDGE TABLE

By GRAND SLAM

An imaginary conversation regarding this hand was held on between Mr. North and Mr. South and the Kibitzer. The hand was: S ♠ 10 8 2, W ♠ A 10 8 2, N ♠ K Q J 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2, E ♠ A 10 8 2.

The Kibitzer entered in time to watch the hand played at a dummy table. He saw that North had opened with 1♠ and South had responded with 1♠.

One partner, Mr. North, engaged with the other, one spoke first. He had a contract of three diamonds. North had a contrary opinion. "I will not describe the details," he said.

"What a waste of time," said Mr. South. "I will not describe the details," he said. "I will not describe the details," he said.

Balance of Naval Power

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1940.

For months the British Navy has been training for the day when the waters of the Mediterranean, East, West and Central, will be the scene of a great naval battle.

It is the hope of persuading Hitler to desist almost a year ago that the British Navy was formed.

It was fully realized by all those who had given the situation British Isles, the fact that the sea was the main theatre of the war.

It is the results of that encounter will depend upon the course of the war for many months.

The only a few months ago the British Navy since 50 it is not possible to exaggerate the importance of the sea in the present war.

It is written not the least Arm at Taranto. At a conference which will be that which is infinitesimal, and which is the fact of the present war.

Air Raids on Britain
MONDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1940.
When the Germans began their intensified bombing of London and other cities in the night of the 7th, the British people were told that the attack was the first of a series of attacks which would be followed by the winter being the most dangerous.

Preparing for the Big Offensive
TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1940.
There have been some encouraging signs in recent days that the tide of war is turning in favour of Britain and her Allies and although the end of the conflict is yet a long way off there is great assurance now that so many thousands of people have suffered in Great Britain in recent months.

Restrictions on Drinking
WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1940.
Two notices under the Defence Regulations, published in the current issue of the Official Gazette are designed to restrict the sale of alcoholic liquor in Britain have not escaped un-

British air and sea power in Kenya and should give some way association with our newly ally, Italy. Whatever may happen in the future we are determined to protect our communications against a possible attack by a German submarine force. The new regulations which come into effect from December 1 are very fair and have been framed in such a way as to permit of the smaller merchant and less important vessels against their meeting the principles of the amount of drinking without interfering more than can be expected with freedom of individual in this matter.

The first of the two orders restricts the hours during which alcoholic drinks can be sold in licensed premises and no reasonable person will quarrel with the prohibition of such sales between the hours of 2 and 6 p.m. every day. Some people may think that the restriction will have gone further but it will be wise to see how the new regulations work out in practice before any further restrictions are needed for still further curtailment of the drinking habit.

The second order deals with the treating of alcohol as an offence, except under certain conditions for anyone to buy any other than medicinal alcohol. This is perhaps the more important of the new regulations and it should go far towards restricting the excessive consumption of alcohol. Under the old system a great deal more drink than was desirable was consumed and this money expended unnecessarily because of the unwritten law that every man in a public house should buy a drink for everyone else in the party. The custom was not only unduly wasteful and harmful when it applied to soldiers who in the rather irresponsible manner of the time spent more than they could afford in this kind of entertainment. They were buying their own drinks and their own money which was being wasted in the purchase of drinks which were not needed for the individual. It is to be hoped that the new regulations will be longer constrained by custom to consume more than he desires to buy and to abstain from his own money.

The authorities have met one possible objection to the imposition of a restriction on the sale of alcohol by excluding from it women accompanying men. This is probably a reasonable concession to the prohibition might have led to difficulties and in any case would have encouraged evasion of the order. Further restrictions on the entertainment of guests at meal times though the regulations specify that the meal must be a dinner, are not necessary as a means of getting round the general prohibition.

We are glad that the regulations have been framed to include not only licensed clubs but all messes and canteens established by His Majesty's Forces, and any Expeditionary Army Force Institute. This shows that the problem is being tackled in a big part in the campaign which is planned some day to take place in Europe and there to be little doubt that the problem will be solved in the end.

Air Raid Reprisals
THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1940.
In those parts of the world which still believe in civilization as opposed to Herr Hitler's so-called "new order," recent German institutions from the air upon the civilian population of Britain has aroused feelings of horror and indignation. It is hardly to be asked surprise any longer because it has followed so closely the Nazi technique in other countries with the different course of course that readers on the sale of alcoholic liquor in Britain have not escaped un-harm and that the list of their losses in men and machines mounting up. It is the growing strength and effectiveness of the defence measures the Nazi air force for the most part by high, much too high, to them to be able to bomb military objectives, while there is accumulating evidence of attacks made deliberately for the purpose of causing as much damage as possible in districts far removed from centres of war industries and obvious as the plan to terrorise the civilian population.

In these circumstances it is inevitable that there should be a demand for reprisals; that people who have seen this wanton destruction and its effects on the non-combatant population should be treated for the Germans in their own country. In our correspondence columns yesterday a similar demand was made and the writer referred witheringly to the sentimentality which apparently believes is responsible for British failure to carry out such reprisals.

Sir, the writer yesterday apparently believes is responsible for British failure to carry out such reprisals.
