Modern treatment for the mentally ill

By FARAJ DUMILIA

THE problem of how and where to treat those who suffer from mental illness rather than bodily illness has baffled mankind for a long time. Kenya first established a mental institution in 1914, just two miles away from the centre of the City known as Maitani Hospital.

The new software from mental health care has been the use of medicine and therapy, and the use of drugs. The use of drugs is the most important of these. The first institution was built in 1914, and it was the first of its kind in Kenya. It was built in Maitani, which is now a suburb of Nairobi.

The first known institution to treat seriously ill patients was built in 1812 in England. It was the first of its kind in the world. It was built in Maitani, which is now a suburb of Nairobi.

There, people used to have the mistaken idea that insane people were possessed by devils, and they should be treated by magic. This was the first institution to be built in Maitani, which is now a suburb of Nairobi.

The movement began in 1812 and moved to Kenya in 1914. It was the first of its kind in the world. It was built in Maitani, which is now a suburb of Nairobi.

Through Maitani Hospital started as a small institution, it has rapidly grown to be one of the largest in the world. It was built in Maitani, which is now a suburb of Nairobi.

The Maitani Hospital is under the Ministry of Health. It has a total of 100 beds. It was built in Maitani, which is now a suburb of Nairobi.

The same Mrs. Hill explained how a patient is treated. The medication used to find out what is wrong with the patient, the actual cause of his trouble, which takes longer time to diagnose, to determine proper treatment.

There are usually two kinds of patients who suffer from mild mental illness — neuroses — who require short treatment, or those who are unable to return to their jobs, and these suffer from serious mental illness, who require long-term therapeutic treatment, drugs and psychotherapy.

Because of the ever-increasing number of patients admitted to the hospital, a branch hospital was started at Gilgil in the Maitani Hospital. The opening ceremony was held on the 10th of August, 1966.

They have provided a good deal of help to many patients as Maitani who have problems concerning family, wedding, work problems and other difficulties. Kenya's game may disappear warns scientist Kenya's game would "disappear" — possibly in only a few years' time unless the economic viability of the animals could be proved by the end of the year, a research worker, Dr. David Hopcraft, warned in Nairobi yesterday.

Dr. Hopcraft, who is running a wildlife research project — the first of its kind — at Athi River, told Nairobi Rotary Club: "We realize that the game animals must prove themselves in order to survive."

"The only way ultimately that they will survive in the wild is if they prove to the Government that they are economically viable. If not, they will just disappear — and that may be a matter of six or 12 years. More than 90 per cent of the game had disappeared in the 40 to 50 years. That is a very high proportion. Some people say perhaps they are holding their own, but I don't think it is still doubtful, even in Nairobi National Park."

DESTRUCTION CONTINUES

Nairobi game birds were in serious danger last year but had made some recovery this year, Dr. Hopcraft said. The destruction of game birds and other animals in the Athi River area was continuing. The animals had been moved on to land — had been pushed back when the first European settlers had moved in.

Dr. Hopcraft is the son of an Athi River settler. He said that Hopcraft and other workers at Athi River were trying to determine the economic viability of game animals. He said that the game animals were being moved on to land — had been pushed back when the first European settlers had moved in.

MALAYSIA UNITE IN PEACE PACT

'New era' opens as confrontation ends

Malaysia and Malaya yesterday formally ended the unrelaxed state they have been fighting since 1963 — mainly a bitter campaign for the jungles of Borneo which has cost about 700 lives. A treaty ending relations between the two countries was signed at noon by Malaysian Foreign Minister, Mr. Adam Malik, and Malaya's Deputy Premier, Tun Abdul Razak.

Indonesia called the unrelaxed war a state of confrontation. It was launched in January 1963 by President Sukarno because he claimed the Federation of Malaysia was a neo-colonialist structure that had to be crushed.

Tun Razak said the signing marked the opening of a new era in Malaya and the end of the confrontation. He said there had been no victor and no vanquished. The agreement, he added, showed the success of the doctrine that Asian problems must be solved by Asian hands.

Formula decided at Bangkok

It was Mr. Malik and Tun Razak who worked out the formula at meetings in Bangkok last May and June. A move decided on by Indonesian Army leader Gen. Suharto, soon after President Sukarno handed over executive powers to the military following an unsuccessful general election.

After the formula decided the confrontation was raising Indonesia's demands. It also increased Malaysia's defence expenditure and caused the trade. In terms of human life it has cost Malaya more than 100 Malaysian and Commonwealth soldiers. Indonesia has lost at least 579 men. Fighting was mostly on the border between Indonesia and Malaya's British States of Sabah and Sarawak.

Malaya, in view of confidence, has agreed to pay $250,000,000 a year to Indonesia. It also agreed to supply 100,000 tons of rice to Malaya and Singapore including the East River.

Indonesia's military has agreed to withdraw from the border of Malaya and to give the border to the King of Malaysia. The King of Malaysia will be the person to sign the peace pact. Malik will be the person to sign the peace pact. Malik will be the person to sign the peace pact.

Solving the technical problems of East Africa's industries

INDUSTRIAL research activities in this country are little known as they are still on quite a small scale and while East Africa develops with a definite agricultural bias, industry is only a trickle for a small percentage of the gross domestic product. However, as it is the policy of the East African Governments to expand industry very considerably, industrial research will be playing an increasingly important part in the development of new industries.

The East African Industrial Research Organisation is one of the major services all of its work centres in East Africa. It is a non-profit-making body, established in 1954, and is a member of the International Development Organisation.

by MOORE

undertaking this research is concerned with the use of research into the problems of the horticultural and forestry industries and an on-going programme of research into the problems of the rubber industry. The research is carried out by a committee of experts which is now represented in the East African Organisation.

Better matches

A lot of interesting experiments are being carried out in the East African Organisation. One of the most interesting is the work on the production of better matches. The research is being carried out by a committee of experts which is now represented in the East African Organisation.

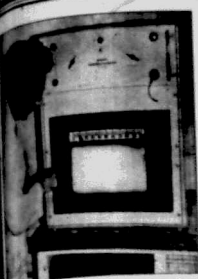

The results of the research are being used to improve the quality of matches produced in East Africa. This is a very important step towards the development of a self-sufficient match industry in the region.

The steam-heated dehydrator plant in the research organisation laboratory. Food such as mungbean is added into the trough, and heat is conducted throughout the experiment. Here two laboratory technicians, Mr. Andrew Chagwa and Mr. Nicholas Nyongoro, work on the drying of avocado peels before experiments on the extraction of an oil soluble in a commercial scale.

of the rubber department. The purpose of the investigation was to see whether by altering the conditions of drying, the quality of the rubber could be improved. The results of the experiment are being used to improve the quality of rubber produced in East Africa.

Pottery bowls

One recent achievement of the research organisation has been the production of pottery bowls. The research is being carried out by a committee of experts which is now represented in the East African Organisation. The results of the research are being used to improve the quality of pottery bowls produced in East Africa.

Dr. S. Mwanuzi of the technical services section roof tiles from the hills in which the tile has been fired. This is part of experiments being undertaken for a new type of roof tile for the hills. When used, the tile is made of a special material which is not too heavy and is not too expensive. It is a very important step towards the development of a self-sufficient roof tile industry in the region.

Dr. S. Mwanuzi, Director of the organisation, believes there could be a good market for three economically produced bowls in East Africa.

Bedford Diesel, there is a vehicle or chassis to suit every purpose. NORMAL or FORWARD CONTROL. You can have whichever you prefer. The Bedford forward control cab is ahead of rival designs. It offers ease of access to the engine and the ability to carry out adjustments under cover and with the engine running. The Bedford forward control design actually improves servicing accessibility. ENGINES FOR THE JOB give the Bedford range the best of all controls. There is a wide range of petrol and diesel power units available for Bedfords. Each and every engine is the outcome of many years of practical experience on an international scale. Japanese food preserves the traditional flavours

JAPAN is a beautiful country, few who visit it fail to be captivated by its charm, and the years since the war the people have revolutionized their way of life, discarding much that was cumbersome and outmoded and successfully assimilating into their own traditions the best—and some of the worst—of Western culture.

Even in Tokyo, the capital, the pace with the traditional and more successful of the world to be a woman in Tokyo has an inimitable expression and grace given the emphasis on the hair and the face. The woman who has the most beautiful face in the world is not always the one who is most admired by the men.

working population for its practicality, but the women are still wary to the home and an indoor life and of course there are those especially in country districts, who have never departed it.

The word of change has not affected the hair beauty which remains the traditional working place of the most practical throughout Japan, apart where the hair-dressing girls, brought from cities to the art of being practical because

They had, however, no means of transportation, though doubt in downtown Tokyo the American influence has set its mark in hair-dog and hair-dog style.

The Japanese truly great use of hair and cosmetics and have two traditions, dandy and traditional, which Mrs. M. Yamamoto, the wife of a Japanese Ambassador in Moscow, recently demonstrated in a showing of the Japanese and Professional Women's Club. Mrs. Yamamoto was seen to have the hair styled in the traditional way, but she wore a hat which was the latest in fashion and she wore a dress which was the latest in fashion.

The Japanese are famous for their top bidders, though one can be forgiven for thinking that the hair is the part of their wardrobe in which they are most conservative. Mrs. Yamamoto is the wife of the Japanese Ambassador in Moscow. She is seen here in a kimono and a hat which she bought in Japan.

UNREALISTIC IRRIGATION PLAN

SURPRISE HAS BEEN CAUSED by the unexpected announcement of an irrigation scheme intended to use the waters of Lake Victoria, Albert and Tanganyika, and to wonder A Japanese visitor, Mr. Okami, who accompanied a major mission to East Africa last year, has said in Tokyo that he has reported to the Japanese Government on suggestions about the irrigation of waterways between the lakes which would irrigate 6,000,000 acres for the purpose of growing sugar.

He has been concerned with the general question of African irrigation of primary products from East Africa, starting out of the trade imbalance and the Japanese adviser has been impressed on the feasibility of the project. Because of the difficulty of the task, a canal system, although it might be envisaged at any time, Mr. Okami evidently believes that it is not a realistic project. He is from Lake Victoria to irrigate the old area.

He has also made a comparison of the business between Lake Tanganyika and Lake Victoria, and has been to visit Lake Tanganyika and Lake Victoria. He has also been to visit Lake Tanganyika and Lake Victoria.

The scheme is a large project and it is not clear whether it will be carried out. It is a large project and it is not clear whether it will be carried out.

Succour for the impoverished sick is Social Service League's ideal

THE old building in Nairobi's crowded Duke Street is modest and unimpressive. It is certainly not a place on the tourist trail and one can pass it a hundred times before even giving it a second glance. Yet this austere building has been for the last 33 years a centre of help for the sick and the suffering.

by CHARITY DANAH

Kenya's voluntary medical services are a feature in the life of the country. The Social Service League, which has been in existence since 1933, is one of the oldest and most active of these organisations. The League's headquarters are in Nairobi, Kenya, and its branches are in other parts of the country.

started it has treated a large number of Africans, Asians and occasionally Europeans. This dispensary which has catered for so many members of the community without any discrimination, depends almost on donations for medicines, dressings and the salaries of the staff.

The League has many more ways in which it helps to relieve pain and suffering. It runs a day hospital, the Marymount Home, which has been since the League's inception in 1933, and is now being run by the City Council and the Kenyan Government. It keeps a place for the blind and another for the deaf, and a special programme of training involving the blind and the deaf.

New extensions

The Kenyan Social Service League is expanding its work. It has just completed the construction of a new dispensary and is planning to build a new day hospital. The League is also planning to build a new home for the blind and a new home for the deaf.

GOLF HANDICAP NEED NOT EXTEND TO CLOTHING

by ANITA McGRIBON

The British male has for a long time enjoyed a reputation for being well dressed, to use a custom-made Savile Row suit in his attire in the drive. But, sadly, this reputation comes not only to a stop but to a dead halt on the golf course. This, perhaps, is not so apparent in Britain where more often than not, a golfer is muffled up to the eyebrows to combat the inclement climate, but here in Kenya the turnout on the fairways leaves one to doubt at all that dress is locally unimportant and that the only thing that matters is the correct swing and the club.

And why not? In this new name complex one for too short the immediate effect. To me, unfortunately, the only thing that matters is the correct swing and the club. And why not? SALISBURY TALKS BREAK UP

U.K. 'concern' at plan for new constitution

Leading British officials returned to London yesterday after their talks with Rhodesian leaders on the independence crisis came to a sudden end. Mr. Duncan Watson, Assistant Under-Secretary of State for Commonwealth Affairs, and Mr. Oliver Wright, Ambassador in Copenhagen, had only a brief meeting with their Rhodesian counterparts yesterday morning.

In London there was some confusion about the reason why the talks had ended. The Prime Minister's Office announced that the team of British officials had completed its current talks in Salisbury and was returning home. There was no further comment from No. 10 Downing Street. Further informed sources said that the return of the British team should not be taken to mean the exploratory talks had broken down. Other informed sources in London believed however, that the British officials had broken down because they had learned with concern of an intention of the Rhodesian Government to introduce a Constitutional Bill containing powers of preventive detention and making changes in the specially restricted clauses of the 1961 Constitution.

'No legal validity'

The changes would of course have no legal validity unless Parliament are studying the implications of the new developments.

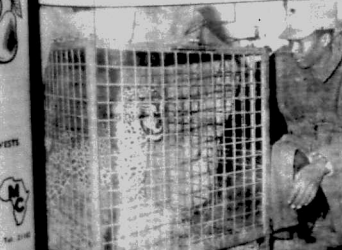

The Government's plan in the 1961 Constitution for the interests of the African and other non-White South African citizens, as a protective act, was the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference in London last month which will be dominated by the Rhodesian independence crisis.

The Rhodesian Government issued a letter yesterday to the British Embassy in London to the effect that the Prime Minister's Office had agreed to a number of amendments to the 1961 Constitution which have been agreed on in Salisbury. There was no further comment from No. 10 Downing Street.

The British Government issued a statement yesterday to the effect that the amendments to the 1961 Constitution which have been agreed on in Salisbury are not a part of the 1961 Constitution and have no legal validity.

Two leaders meet in Mombasa

Welcome for Dr. Nyerere

President Kenyatta met Dr. Nyerere in Mombasa yesterday when the Tanzanian leader stopped over on his way back to Dar es Salaam from Mogadishu.

President Nyerere flew into Mombasa yesterday morning on his way back to Dar es Salaam from his four-day State visit to Somalia. He is to be met at the airport by President Kenyatta. No details of Dr. Nyerere's talks with the Somali President and Ministers were given at the airport, but they are believed to have included discussion of the Kenya-Somalia border dispute in which Tanzania unreservedly supports Kenya.

The end column

THE WORLD Health Organization has urgently dispatched to Baghdad 200,000 vaccine doses to help fight the cholera epidemic which has broken out in Iraq.

BUMPER CROPS FORECAST BY K.N.F.U.

Turkey to consider 'quake tax'

BUMPER crops of wheat and other crops such as beans and peas are being forecast for this year by the producers' K.N.F.U. in a conference in Nairobi yesterday.

The Turkish Government has been urged to impose a special temporary tax on petrol, oil and cigarettes to help meet the cost of the earthquake which claimed 220 lives last week.

The suggestion was made at a meeting of K.N.F.U. members by the Prime Minister, Mr. Nyerere, during his visit to the K.N.F.U. headquarters in Nairobi.

The K.N.F.U. is a farmers' union which was formed in 1961. It has a membership of about 100,000 farmers in Kenya.

RESERVES MAY BE INCREASED

NEW reserve assets may have to be created in order to supplement existing types of international currency reserves, according to a report by ten of the world's richest nations, published recently.

The report, prepared by the World Bank, states that the world's reserves are insufficient to meet the needs of the world's nations. It suggests that new reserve assets should be created to supplement existing types of international currency reserves.

JUST ONCE IN A BLUE MOON SOMETHING SERIOUS GOES WRONG WITH A PEUGEOT

That's when to be grateful for Marshall's servicing. Very few cars have a more enviable reputation for sheer muscularity and stamina than the Peugeot. Come marm or mud.

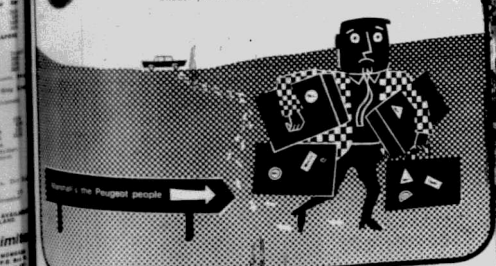

Partly, of course, this reputation rests on the astonishingly consistent performance of Peugeots on the world's toughest roads that chug it over on the millions of daily road miles covered by all kinds of Peugeots (and all kinds of drivers) on all kinds of roads.

Basically, Peugeots are superbly engineered pairs of machinery chasers, and engine are built to minute tolerances.

But to keep that engine sweet that chassis sound, mile is needed that the occasional offering of petrol and oil.

Marshall's servicing

Just as Marshall's make a specialty of selling Peugeots, this specializing in servicing them. So they have the most modern equipment and men really skilled in its use. Regular Marshall's specialist service of Peugeot service shops in East Africa. Marshall's specialist knowledge of Peugeot really pays off when you run into something serious - just arrive in a blue moon.

QUIET REVOLUTION IN DAIRY INDUSTRY

By HOSEA MWANGI

TOURIST EXPLOSION

BECAUSE CURRENCY EXCHANGE control in Kenya severely curtailed holiday traffic to most areas during the starting year, B.O.A.C. has decided to divert a major effort into the promotion of tourism to East Africa. When the B.O.A.C. sales manager for the U.K. Mr. Walsby made this point in Nairobi last week, he said that the B.O.A.C. flights to East Africa will be increased to 400 annually by 1970.

Now, following the summer increase in overseas travel, the tourist explosion has not really begun. Only about 10 per cent of the population are now in the tourist areas, but being travelling en masse for the first time. The general tourist of visitors to East Africa is a steady stream of the 4,000 expatriate Magarwa, who come to Kenya to work on the plantations. They are more numerous than any other group, reaching the 2,000,000 mark last year while some 1,000,000 tourists from Europe, America and Britain.

The majority limit of 10 allowed per person for spending money in the tourist areas. British tourists will be virtually eliminated from the manufacturing sector, but an estimated 2,000,000 will start looking for a holiday in the tourist areas where they can find their holiday money. It is estimated that 100,000 tourists will be in Kenya next year.

What remains to be done is to ensure that the tourist industry is not over-run. The Government is now planning to set up a Tourist Board to coordinate the industry and to ensure that the tourist industry is not over-run. The Government is now planning to set up a Tourist Board to coordinate the industry and to ensure that the tourist industry is not over-run.

KENYA needs improved agriculture in its economic development, but the Government has not been able to do this in the past. The Ministry for Agriculture and Livestock Development is now taking steps to improve the dairy industry.

In this year's Budget, the Government announced that it would spend 100 million shillings on the dairy industry. This is a significant increase from the 50 million shillings spent in the previous year.

The Government is now planning to set up a Dairy Board to coordinate the industry and to ensure that the dairy industry is not over-run. The Government is now planning to set up a Dairy Board to coordinate the industry and to ensure that the dairy industry is not over-run.

Non-IATA charter flights

It is expected that the new charter flights will be a boon to the tourist industry. The Government is now planning to set up a Charter Flight Board to coordinate the industry and to ensure that the charter flight industry is not over-run.

THE DEPARTMENT of Agriculture has announced that the value of marketed agricultural and livestock products in Embu District has increased from 154,000 shillings in 1967 to 171,000 shillings in 1968. This 11 per cent increase is due to the fact that the district has a larger area under cultivation and a larger number of livestock.

LEARNING FROM ISRAEL'S EXPERIENCE

by ANITA MCGIBSON

ISRAEL is a young country - but this does not prevent her from being among the foremost in developing countries such as Kenya.

In fact Israel is probably better equipped than most to solve the developmental problems facing under-developed countries because she has "learned from the experience of a successful nation."

In a very short time, the Israel's economic conditions were very favourable in Kenya, but they were not so favourable in the other parts of the world.

Education job

THE first thing that struck me when I came to Kenya was the fact that the people of Kenya were very keen to learn from the experience of other countries.

The enchanting mongoose

YOU may remember that last week I wrote about thornbush. Mr. Asher of the Nairobi State Park has very kindly pointed out that while the information I gave is correct, it was in fact applicable to the Jackson's thorn-bush in the same way as it is in Kenya.

BOOK REVIEWS

Useful study of the new imperialism in Africa

By ERIC MARSDEN

COMMUNISM IN AFRICA by Eric Marston (George Allen and Unwin, 7s.)

BOOKS on Africa are not only becoming more plentiful but also more varied and more useful. In the past, the only books on Africa were those written by missionaries and colonial administrators. Now, however, there are many books written by African writers and by Western writers who are sympathetic to the African cause. One of the best of these is Eric Marston's "Communism in Africa". This book is a study of the new imperialism in Africa, and it is a very useful and interesting study. Marston shows how the new imperialism is being used by the West to exploit Africa, and how the African people are being used by the West to exploit Africa. This book is a must-read for anyone who is interested in Africa.

The book is divided into two parts. The first part is a study of the new imperialism in Africa, and the second part is a study of the African people. Marston shows how the new imperialism is being used by the West to exploit Africa, and how the African people are being used by the West to exploit Africa. This book is a must-read for anyone who is interested in Africa.

TRADITION - GOOD SOURCE FOR NEW LITERATURE

by E. L. CLERIC

THE IMPRISONMENT OF OBATALA AND OTHER PLAYS by Obadiah Jones (Hansons, 4s.6p)

DELIVING into one's national traditions and using them as a source of inspiration for new literature is a very laudable aim. This is what Obadiah Jones has done in his new plays. The plays are based on the traditional Yoruba myths, and they are written in a style that is both modern and traditional. The plays are a good example of how to use tradition as a source of new literature.

From time to time, a writer is tempted to write about the new imperialism in Africa. This is a very important topic, and it is one that should be written about. However, it is not always easy to write about this topic. One must be careful not to be too general, and one must be careful not to be too specific. One must also be careful not to be too biased, and one must be careful not to be too objective. This book is a good example of how to write about this topic.

Livestock theft standing in the way of progress which remained one of the biggest obstacles to the realisation of the tremendous potential of Kenya's livestock industry, the president of the Kenya National Farmers' Union, Mr. J. B. Feingold, said yesterday. He paid tribute to the work of the new police and their teams. They are doing a wonderful job and farmers are very grateful, he said. But it cannot be everywhere at once. It is a long time ago the position had been improving. There had been several severe outbreaks with the loss of 20 sheep farms in Mombasa area alone in the two weeks of August. In Machakos 131 cattle were lost and 500 in Lamuria. Feingold appealed for help to be given to the districts in two ways. The first important was to see to it that the resources of the police and military were where most thieves came from. The union wanted to meet tribal representatives at some of the districts.

Delays over citizenship discounted

The Permanent Secretary to the Ministry of Home Affairs, Mr. A. C. Omanga, yesterday discounted allegations that the Ministry was taking too long in acknowledging receipt of applications for Kenya citizenship or its process there.

Mr. Omanga explained that many had waited until the last minute to submit their applications. About 10,000 applications had been received during the period November to December 12 last year. A good number of these had been issued with certificates of citizenship.

Discounting the numbers, Mr. Omanga said that more than 100,000 applications had been received each month. It was not a simple task. Each application had to be carefully scrutinised to make sure that the applicants were not for sale and that they were not in the country illegally. He said that the Ministry was not taking too long in processing the applications.

At a press conference held in Nairobi today, the students expressed their disappointment and anger over the way the press had portrayed them. They felt that the press had been unfair and biased in its reporting of their activities. They called for a more balanced and objective approach to news coverage.

Business Efficiency Supplement

East African Standard,

Friday, August 26, 1966

INSIGHT INTO AN INDUSTRY

THIS SUPPLEMENT is designed to give a complete picture of an industry, which although often working behind the scenes, brings the efficiency and speed which enable other organisations to reach modern standards.

The most revolutionary changes have been brought about by one of modern man's wonder inventions, the electronic computer, which is having one of its biggest effects on business organisation.

In Pages II and III there is a complete breakdown of its introduction and spread in East Africa, and a typist's guide to how a typical computer works.

There is also an account about a remarkable Englishman who first thought out the logical processes behind a computer 150 years ago.

The addressing machine may seem a poor relation to computation, but in fact its importance has increased tremendously as other office techniques have developed, as an article in Page IV points out.

In Page V, there is a light-hearted guide for people who may be prevented from reaching the top through indolence — and some information as to how indolence arises.

Microfilm as a space-saver and an educator is the theme of the article in Page VI.

A comparison of the efficiency of accounting machines compared with manual methods is given in Page VII, and the mechanical methods with hand-down.

In Page VIII, there is a plea for the end of "Cinderella" treatment for the drawing office, and a description of how modern methods have changed what is in fact the starting point for many business activities.

The importance of correct office lighting, the efficiency of tubes for communication, and the versatility of the tape recorder are the subjects of articles in Page IX.

If East Africa is to produce the business leaders of the future, training now is of vital importance. Page X gives information and pictures of some activities in this field.

The typewriter of the future, which can respond through electronics directly to speech, is described in Page XI, and there is a description of the smaller type of keyboard computer, which may well have an important role to play in East Africa.

Pages XII, XIII and XIV give the lowdown on those sometimes exasperating, sometimes heaven-sent errand-runners, secretaries, and shows that since they invaded what used to be a man's preserve, they really have not changed a bit.

There is a history of the secretary from the time of Alexander the Great, a guide to office dress, and some views on what makes a good secretary, and a good boss.

Security is essential to an efficient organisation, and Page XV carries some information about an unusual kind of safe.

Page XVI is all about typewriters, and contains a short history, complete with pictures of some unusual early models, of this fundamental office machine.

Finally on Page XVII, there are articles on modern filing methods, and the convenience of the dictating machine.

Skilful blend of brains and machines

...with the rest of the world, the demand for office equipment and machinery in East Africa is growing very considerably as the expansion of business in these developing countries. It is not only to look at the streamlining of manufacturing processes with the ever-increasing costs it becomes essential to rationalise

...the office depends on the possibilities of the work necessary for letters, orders, and so on. Everyone knows that the time and money of the office must be reduced and more

THEY teach they gamble, gamble by the mean, quite sharp prices, and even in the most advanced of today which show us the fruits of the use of computers.

The first working model was sent into operation in 1835 in the name of the 'Analytical Engine' which was designed by Charles Babbage. It was the first automatic machine which could be instructed to perform a series of operations. In fact, the first automatic machine was built in 1847, three years before the first automatic machine was built in 1852.

It is believed to have contained a mechanism or parts of which can be seen in London, while still at the University of Cambridge. The first attempt at building a machine to help accountants was made by Charles Babbage and his colleagues in 1835.

It was an electronic computer which was built by means of a series of relays, switches and other devices. The machine was able to perform a series of operations which were stored in a table of instructions.

Gambler that can break the bank

COULD a machine do a job that a human being could not do? The answer is almost certainly yes. For there are many tasks in industry, commerce and in most forms of service that a machine cannot do more quickly, more efficiently, than a man.

In England, an American inventor has developed the world's first machine that can do a job that a human being could not do. The machine is called the 'Gambler' and it is designed to play a game of chance called 'Blackjack'.

Are you afraid to decide? — then read this guide to success

Look quickly at each of these boxes. You have just five seconds to decide which is divided into most sections.

Will you decide? If you have to make up your mind on some vital subject, and allowed that counts, it is preceded by hours of worry and doubt. If you average, the chances are that at least 10 per cent of cases there is no right answer to a problem and it will be found certain lines of action are better than others. The right alternative? The right answer? The right decision?

Do not worry if you got the "box test" wrong. The very fact that you tried to reach an answer shows that you are not afraid of making decisions. An indecisive person would still have been trying to make up his mind when time ran out.

The need for mechanised accounting

THE history of accounting is the history of commerce and industry. They are linked by common ties and have evolved along parallel lines. The steam-engine industry of a century ago has evolved into the present age of automation, while the entrepreneur-owners who the characters of Dickens spent their lives have evolved modern progress of a business are linked in one way or another with the accounts department. The improvements in methods here permeate throughout the entire organisation and give the management a picture of the business as a whole. The evolution and refinement of administrative procedures which are necessary for the efficient operation of mechanised accounting are to be achieved only through the use of modern equipment, and this in turn will find its expression in the design and construction of the various mechanical devices.

Accounting machines in various modern mechanical equipment are subject to breakdown, and breakdown can be the result of normal wear and tear or even a fault in original manufacture which may not become manifest until some time after installation. Reproduction of the repair book for the equipment is the responsibility of the manufacturer, and the management must be made aware of this fact. It is the responsibility of the management to ensure that the equipment is kept in good working order and that the necessary spare parts are available.

The machine is really a means of preserving the calculation to obtain results which would not be obtained by manual methods. By the substitution of mechanical equipment, the calculation is performed by means of the machine, which is the only means of obtaining the results of the calculation.

CORRECT LAY-OUT ESSENTIAL FOR DRAWING OFFICE

REPROGRAPHS are now used to disseminate methods of reproducing documents and drawings. The choice of equipment and processes is so liberally wide and judiciously for the manufacturer of such equipment claim to be equally available.

Reprographics does not mean the letter or memorandum is produced by means of a typewriter with the camera or created. But because of the improvement of modern reprographic equipment produced by the manufacturer of reprographic processes, the most desirable arrangements to make drawings convenient to reproduce is to use the camera.

Efficient lighting is essential to office efficiency. Poor lighting is a major cause of eye strain, fatigue and headaches. It also reduces productivity and increases the risk of accidents. Good lighting should be designed to provide adequate illumination for all tasks, reduce glare, and create a comfortable working environment. Regular maintenance of lighting fixtures is also important to ensure optimal performance.

Training East Africans for today's demands

TRAINING in business management is an important activity in a developing country, but training in other fields, such as the technical training of tomorrow's leaders of tomorrow, will play an important part in bringing the country up to par with the industrialized nations of today.

In a speech made recently at the East African School of Management, the Director of the school, Mr. J. M. O'Connell, said that the school was established to provide a high standard of management training for the continent.

Kenya and Uganda require a large number of technical and managerial staffs for the promotion of their economic development.

The school is a joint venture of the Government of Kenya, the Government of Uganda, and the Government of Tanzania.

After 2,000 years, women in the office are here to stay

In the days of Alexander the Great, a secretary was really a secretary. To hold a secretarial job in 300 B.C. you would have had to stay up all night, scolding a rabble and spend the next day fighting the enemy with a sword.

Based on SEIRA, it was a surprise, too — but desperate Alexander had all secretaries during the Asian campaign. By the month of June, he had 10,000 secretaries, and he had to equip them with a 100-ton cart of supplies. He had to have a 100-ton cart of supplies. He had to have a 100-ton cart of supplies.

The employment of women as secretaries and typists is now the universal rule — but this has not always been the case. Up to 100 years ago a woman in the office was unheard of. But then the revolution started. How it was achieved is described in this history of secretaries, starting with the times of Alexander the Great.

One legend told of a woman who had a secretarial position in the 1st century B.C. She was the first woman to work in an office. She was the first woman to work in an office.

The rapid growth in the number of female secretaries was due to the fact that women were better educated than men. They were better educated than men. They were better educated than men.

DOUBLE SECURITY FROM SAFE WITHIN A SAFE

If you want to be sure of protecting a safe from burglars, then lock it up — in a safe. This double idea has formed a basis for the development of a new type of safe, capable of giving a useful double security.

The new safe has two compartments. The outer compartment is made of heavy metal and is designed to resist fire and theft. The inner compartment is made of a lighter metal and is designed to resist fire and theft. This double security is achieved by the use of a special locking mechanism.

The new safe is available in a variety of sizes and prices. It is a safe investment for anyone who has valuable possessions to protect. It is a safe investment for anyone who has valuable possessions to protect.

Stationery & Office Supplies

EVERY office, whether large or small, has a form of filing system. Modern office equipment has been designed to ensure that this often tedious task is done quickly and efficiently. There are now basic units of filing equipment in the micro-recessed filing cabinet and the lateral-filing cabinet for filing employed.

In these units, filing apparatus is designed to enable the user to file his correspondence in the most suitable manner. The design makes the cabinet filing perfect with the use of the file, and the file has no need for the cumbersome rollers and gears of the older filing systems. The design of the file is such that it can be used in the micro-recessed filing cabinet or the lateral-filing cabinet. A variety of models and types

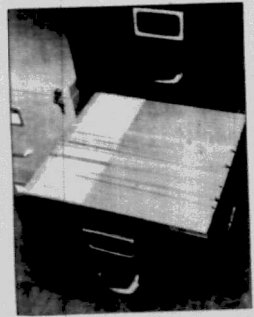

MODERN FILING

The sales supervisor of S. and O. Supplies, P. H. Woodward, describes the time saving which can be introduced by the installation of a modern filing system.

Looking to spend time because of a file for a modern filing system. It is not only a matter of time, but also of space. There are three ways in which a modern filing system can be installed. The first is the micro-recessed filing cabinet. This is a cabinet in which the files are held in a series of small compartments. The second is the lateral-filing cabinet. This is a cabinet in which the files are held in a series of drawers. The third is the lateral-filing cabinet with a follow-up system.
