ASIAN TO CALLED UP

Combatant units will consist of volunteers

The Kenya Government has decided to introduce a call-up registration for all male Asian British subjects between the ages of 18 and 23. A Government statement on this subject says that of approximately 8,500 men to be called up without any previous declaration of intention of commerce.

Most of them will fill technical or semi-technical posts with the security forces, such as mechanics, fitters, clerks and draughtsmen. But because of lack of instructors, among other reasons, there will be no military training for Asians.

The announcement states, however, that it is proposed to establish, under the command of the Commissioner of Police, three or four self-defence units. Asian combatants will be recruited by calling for volunteers from amongst those who have been called up and, as soon as they are trained and equipped, they will be posted to operational areas.

It is hoped, also, to introduce shortly the appointment of a Director and Deputy Director of Asian Manpower.

The Commissioner announcing the measures said: "The Government is determined to maintain the command of the Commissioner of Police and to ensure that the police force is available in the event of any emergency. It is hoped that the introduction of a call-up system will help to meet this need."

Proposal accepted

The view of the Government of East Africa available to the public is that the proposal for a call-up system is likely to be accepted. It is expected that the proposal will be accepted by the Government and that the necessary legislation will be introduced in the near future.

Republic will be called on America

City Council's five-year plan to aid Nairobi Africans

Nairobi Africans £2,000,000 FOR HOUSING

This is the second and last article on African housing to be published by Mr. H. R. Bridger, the City Engineer.

VARIOUS estimates of the shortage of African homes in Nairobi have been made and it is now generally accepted that the figure of 10,000 represents a fair assessment of the number of persons in excess of the accommodation. Although much work has been done in the past, it is still necessary to provide for the housing of 10,000 Africans in the next five years.

The City Council's five-year plan to aid Nairobi Africans is the subject of this article. The Council is providing for the housing of 10,000 Africans in the next five years. This is the second and last article on African housing to be published by Mr. H. R. Bridger, the City Engineer.

Further notes on the various schemes are given in this article. The Council is providing for the housing of 10,000 Africans in the next five years.

Work started

Work on the layout of the estate has already started and plots will be available for allocation within two or three months. The estate will accommodate 7,000 persons.

Council's expense to his own plans and specifications should any of these schemes be adopted...

Determination

These notes deal only with the City Council's determination to provide for the housing of 10,000 Africans in the next five years.

Sever problem

Much has been said about the advantages of multi-storey dwellings over single-storey, and it may be necessary to explain why the Council is determined to build multi-storey houses.

Adaptable

The greater demand is required for the type of house known as the "adaptable" house. This is a house which can be adapted for use as a family home or as a single person's home.

YAIKA MINES HIT BY HIGH COSTS

Many forced to close today

ALTHOUGH many of Tanganyika's gold output last year was sold at a premium of 10 per cent, the industry has had to pay a heavy price for the "boom" policy of trade liberalisation. The account of the fixed exchange rate and the "boom" policy of trade liberalisation has been a heavy price for the "boom" policy of trade liberalisation.

Gold mining in the Central Province has been hit by a combination of factors. The price of gold has fallen from 196 to 180, and the cost of production has risen from 100 to 110. This has led to a sharp decline in output and a number of mines have been forced to close.

The Government has taken steps to subsidize the industry, but this has not been enough to offset the high costs. The industry is now in a state of crisis and the Government is considering further measures to support it.

TRUEMAN DISAPPOINTS IN FIRST GAME

The Counties' scoreboards

Sparkling form displayed by Denis Compton

FRED TRUEMAN, Yorkshire's best bowler, who is generally expected to share England's opening attack with the Australians in the forthcoming Test series, was so wicket-impressive on an easy-paced pitch at Manchester on Saturday. Trueman, who is now in the Manchester Force, showed more of the pace of hostility which he has so often exhibited on the England tour.

He was clearly sharp at match practice and then in the first round of the season for Yorkshire. Trueman, who has been selected for the White Horse tour to the West Indies for 1952, was in sparkling form at Manchester on Saturday. He was in the county of his birth and was responsible to judge him as he has done for the last 20 years.

Century for Harvey, cheap wickets for Lindwall

THE Australian cricket touring team were well on the way to another quick victory at the end of the first day's play in their three-day game against the Minor Counties at Stoke on Saturday. They scored 289 in their first innings, and at the close of play the Minor Counties required another 112 runs with four wickets in hand to save the following day.

Neil Harvey, who scored a century and Ray Lindwall, who took four cheap wickets, were the Australian stars of the day. Harvey, after the midday tea, made 100 in 145 minutes while Lindwall, who took eight wickets for 52 runs, kept the batting side in trouble.

PLANS TRIP ROUND LONDON

Early morning tour in private car to see sights

FROM Birmingham to Borneo, from Teoting to Timor. Folks are pouring into London for the Commission at the rate of thousands an hour. Although the season is still a week away, the London scene—blessed at the moment by a spell of gorgeous weather—is truly amazing in its splendour.

The Queen plans to make a journey not included in the official list of engagements. "Very early" on the day before the Coronation she and the Duke of Edinburgh will drive through Central London in a private car. To avoid attracting attention the car will not bear the usual royal markings and the time of the tour is not being disclosed.

London yesterday was a sprawling open-air circus with just about everybody in town taking the children to see the show on the earth, "What's new in Glasgow for a week" and other things. The Queen's party will show on the earth, "What's new in Glasgow for a week" and other things. The Queen's party will show on the earth, "What's new in Glasgow for a week" and other things.

A ZANZIBAR EXPORT

The days of the majestic ocean-going liner may be numbered because of the development of high-speed jet-propelled aircraft carrying more passengers than ever.

This is the view of British merchant shipping expert, Mr. J. H. L. Wainwright, Chairman of the British Shipping Conference, who said in a speech at a luncheon given at the Grosvenor Hotel, London, last night.

Mr. Wainwright said that his organization is not in favour of large liners because they are too slow and too expensive to run.

He suggested that British shipping may be able to compete with other countries by using jet-propelled freight carriers. He proposed that the railway authorities be urged to scrap to make room for the use of the railway as a means of bringing heavy freight motor lorries.

It is not possible to say much about the sun which has not been expected as the weather was so good.

They still break the branches...

As a result of the work of the C. I. Research team, attention has been focused on the fact that clove pickers have been breaking branches which they are at work, says the Bulletin of Zanzibar Agriculture Department.

Some breakers are accidental but the majority are deliberate and are done by hand in Zanzibar. It is thought that the rapid fire has been the main cause of this unprecedented increase in the damage done to trees, but it has been suggested that the use of insecticides may be a possible means of getting the pest under control.

For diabetics

The commercial exploitation of seaweed has made great progress in temperate countries, and in places such as the United Kingdom, Canada, Norway, Iceland, the United States of America, Australia and Japan a flourish of seaweed has been observed.

Several types of seaweed are used in the manufacture of seaweed extracts from which various medicinal products are derived.

One of the most important is the seaweed known as 'Gelidium', which is used in the manufacture of 'Gelatin', a substance which is used in the manufacture of various medicinal products.

Quality first

'Laminates is rather more limited in application but has its own uses in the manufacture of food-stuffs and surgical preparations.'

The ease with which the extracts from the seaweeds can be prepared depends upon the quality of the seaweed and it is therefore important, as the Zanzibar industry is concerned, that the product used is as good as possible.

Only the particular type of wood required should be selected and the samples should be properly checked before drying and boiling. Chemicals of the sample is essential because of the presence of other types of wood, which may cause trouble in the treatment of the extract.

The quality of the material is also important because it has a direct effect upon the price paid by the buyers.

What for Pakistan

President Eisenhower and Republican Congressional leaders have agreed to back legislation for a loan of 1,000,000 tons of wheat to Pakistan, which has suffered from drought.

Disasterhead

It is a general disasterhead that is being met by the Director of Agriculture in Zanzibar to review the results of the work done in the past year.

The Director is expected to report to the Government on the results of the work done in the past year.

PIONEERING IN SOUTH AFRICA

TANGANYIKA

The Southern Province offers enormous scope for pioneer development. The position today is outlined in this article supplied by the Tanganyika Public Relations Department.

THE Southern Province of Tanganyika shared in the general acceptance of development immediately following the end of the war and probably would have enjoyed appreciable development in the normal course of events. A further stimulus to development, however, was given in capital development in the Southern Province by the selection of the Southern Province as one of the Groundnut Scheme in Tanganyika.

Among opportunities for capital development there are trade and agriculture. The Southern Province has a large area of available land for agriculture. The Southern Province has a large area of available land for agriculture.

Has she a right to equality?

It is time women gave it up their petulant cry that men are unfair to them and that they are denied their rightful place in the world. Let them, for a change, concentrate on what is their rightful place and face the facts, the chief of these being that, mentally, they are inferior to men.

Her power
WOMAN, before taking the wrong view of the situation, in so far as she is concerned, must be advised first to cease her petulant cry and to concentrate on what is her rightful place and face the facts, the chief of these being that, mentally, they are inferior to men.

Dreamy chant
YET women could satisfy their desire for power if they would only set their minds on it. They have the job and they have the money, but they have not the will to do it.

like Madame Curie she has taken the necessary steps to make the world a more habitable and successful place and she does not have to be Prime Minister of a country. She can work just as hard as the man and she can be just as successful as he.

And yet what an astonishing number of women are still in the position of being dependent on men for their support. It is a sad state of affairs, but it is one that can be changed. It is up to us to make the world a better place.

And should the fact of our being women be a disadvantage? No, it should not. It should be a source of pride and a source of strength.

A NOVEL assignment is to be given to two young women graduates in Physics and Mathematics from St. Andrew's University, Miss Olive Pearson (left), of Cookham, Berkshire, and Miss Margaret Murray (right), of Faversham. In the course of 1953, they will take part in the office of an expedition to the Antarctic, where they will help to solve highly technical problems connected with the oilfields.

First women to be appointed by the Shell Co. for this type of work. They will be responsible for the application of the newest techniques to the practical problems relating to the oilfields. During the past few months trends of exploration have been such that 16 future 'eyes' in the field will be sent to the Antarctic to take advantage of the early summer. They will have plenty of opportunity to play tennis and badminton in the spare time.

Miss Murray will be working on the oilfields in the North Sea. She will be working on the oilfields in the North Sea. She will be working on the oilfields in the North Sea.

Miss Pearson will be working on the oilfields in the North Sea. She will be working on the oilfields in the North Sea. She will be working on the oilfields in the North Sea.

1945, she obtained a State grant to study in the United States. She was a member of the British Council and the British Council Company at Berlin.

A Little Boy's Tribute To His Queen

Good King George is dead
Queen Elizabeth reigns instead
She is a very pretty sight
And I shall serve her with all my might God save the Queen and her
With courage and fortitude
To Philip for we wish all joy
And to Charles her little boy

Change of heart in Kiambu Reserve KIKUYU FLOCK BACK TO CATHOLIC MISSIONS

A BRIGHT, new shining clock was installed this week on a mantelpiece in the home of the Catholic Archbishop of Nairobi, the Most Reverend Dr. John J. McCarthy, on the Archbishop, whose personal motto is that it symbolizes the great change of heart taking place amongst the Kikuyu people of the Kiambu Reserve...

Change of heart amongst the people in this district, where a few years ago, many Kikuyus had recanted a white flag, much less missionary, was greatly impressed, the Bishop of the University of the Holy Cross...

Week of triumph They told him, said the Archbishop yesterday, that many of the Kikuyus had returned to the Catholic faith in the way of the mission schools...

As for the school, which had been closed with many others, for a number of years, it was re-opened with a new lease of life...

Kikuyu speaking Father Henry O'Leary, of the Holy Ghost Missionary Society, is interested speaker at a meeting held at the school...

Most of the couples had been married before according to custom, but now they know that they have been misled. After a time, they found that they had nowhere to contribute to go on Sundays, and their children had no schools, and so they began to cast their eyes about and found that they had only two alternatives...

Wrong way It is very true that they realize they were wrong, and want to make a fresh start, says the young teacher. They realize about all the things that are wrong...

Alternatives He said that this strange could be best expressed by one of the people themselves, he called him the house a young Kikuyu, former principal of Kenia Kaniwani Independent School at Elgon...

Another and more recent grievance of the loyal Kikuyus was that they had been given no remuneration for the night's quietude tax imposed on all Kikuyus, and had to pay the same amount as those who were dissident.

And with these words, Stephen Kim returned to the Mission sports ground to continue his distribution of more than 200 boys who will take part in the Corporation activities of Gakumba. Their contribution will be measured first chiefly with the actions in the words of St. Paul, Phil. 2:3.

CORONATION TODAY HAS NEVER SEEN ANYTHING LIKE IT! 10,000 arrive daily by air

Loyalty blossoms in East End's Russia Lane

THE Russian Lane East End of London is the scene of a great festival today. The people work hard and have known poverty and heavy wartime bombing. But today, in the days before the Coronation, in the streets of Russia Lane, the people are rejoicing. The streets are lined with flags and bunting. The people are dressed in their best. The atmosphere is one of joy and pride. The people are loyal to their Queen and their country. They are proud to be part of the Coronation. They are proud to be part of the East End. They are proud to be part of the United Kingdom.

TEN THOUSAND people a day are arriving at London's two airports for the Coronation. London has never known a rush like it. Incoming airlines are being cleared for their flights. The streets are lined with people. The atmosphere is one of excitement. The people are proud to be part of the Coronation. They are proud to be part of the United Kingdom.

The sun returned to London yesterday and finished drying the coronation drenched in the sudden downpour the day before. Although sporadic rain continued during the day, London streets had their biggest wash since city clerks poured from their offices and suburban factories workers went up to town to see the decorations. The sun was out for the first time since the Queen's arrival in London yesterday.

TODAY: THE FINAL REHEARSAL

PREPARATIONS were being completed yesterday for the final Coronation rehearsal in Westminster Abbey today, when the whole two-and-a-half-hour service will be gone through. The Coronation is the most important day of the Queen's life. It is a day of great significance. The people are proud to be part of the Coronation. They are proud to be part of the United Kingdom.

East African Standard

FRIDAY, MAY 29, 1953

PRAYER AND PREPARATION

"In the morning upon the day of the Coronation early, it is to be taken that the Ampulla be filled with Oil and, together with the Spoon, be laid ready upon the Altar in the Abbey Church..." Thus begins the Form and Order of the Service to be observed in the Coronation of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth the Second. These preparations, the tradition of nearly a thousand years, will be made again on Tuesday in Westminster Abbey, the Church of the Sacrifices founded by the Saxon King Edward the Confessor, in the Abbey Church. The people are proud to be part of the Coronation. They are proud to be part of the United Kingdom.

All the colour, the history, the magnificence of the great Royal Church, the long tradition of the peoples of many races and nations, provide the setting for a religious ceremony of the most moving character. On this hallowed ground the Coronation rite has been performed in an unbroken line of ceremonies of solemn grandeur for centuries.

On Tuesday the Queen will make her promises to her people in the presence of their representatives, called together to hear and acclaim her. She will prepare to dedicate her whole life to them and to their just government according to the laws they make and the customs they observe, and will be consecrated to this high and noble purpose. She will promise to "cause Law and Justice, in Mercy," to be executed in all her judgments. She will promise also, to the utmost of her power "to maintain the Laws of God and the true profession of the Gospel." Laying her hand upon the Bible, she will say, "The things which I have here before promised, I will perform, and keep. So help me God!"

In preparation for these onerous duties and responsibilities, and for the dedication of her life to the service of the nation of the Commonwealth and Empire of which she is the Head, Queen Elizabeth has been brought up through her childhood and her youth to motherhood in a home where the highest principles of private conduct and of public duty have always ruled and guided her life. She comes to her inheritance surrounded by a great volume of affection, and the pride of nations which have faith in themselves and an awareness of the great part they have to play in bringing happiness to all humanity.

"In her humility she asks that during this solemn moment in her life her people of every race, faith in their own ways, will pray for her. In her Christmas broadcast she said: "I wish to ask you all to pray for me, that God may give me wisdom and strength... that I may faithfully serve Him and you all the days of my life." In this request she joins all with her in the observance of her unequalled responsibilities. They would be too great for any person to bear alone. On Tuesday her subjects will be gathered together in the places of their religious observance to pray that she may be strengthened to meet every demand her high office will make upon her. To the tasks of bringing peace and happiness to the world and friendly relations among all peoples we should all, with our young Queen, devote ourselves most faithfully at this historic moment in the story of mankind.

At the famed Goodwood Race Track in England, a Morris Minor created an endurance record which sets a new and far sterner standard for assessing car reliability.

The "Minor" covered 10,000 miles in 9 days, 8 hours continuous running. At no time did the wheels stop turning or the engine fail to maintain a forward thrust.

The distance covered, equivalent as the crow flies to a journey from England to Australia, was achieved without trouble of any kind. At the end of this amazing run the Morris pulled up smoothly and quietly, as if it had just returned from a placid amble around the countryside.

Exhaustive technical checks found nothing to reveal the ordeal over which it had triumphed—but everything to reflect credit on the reliability of this amazing small car. Average speed was 45.3 m.p.h. at more than 43 miles per gallon.

To you this endurance record means that you can place absolute faith in the "Minor" for long and economical service, with the added satisfaction of phenomenal performance. Test drive yourself in a replica of this record-breaking "Minor."

Endorsed under East African conditions:

The following is an extract from a letter which was received from an enthusiastic owner: "In 1951 the first time I had done 10,000 miles under East African conditions, I was in a Morris Minor. The one trip, 5,238 miles in 43 days including stops for sightseeing, was made in Rhodesia, Congo, Uganda, Kenya. This trip was fantastic—dreadful roads magnificent scenery, excitement, etc. Minima to Salisbury by road, and so on."

Uganda paper demes intent to promote ill-will

SEDITION, SAYERS PROSECUTION

An article headed "Mr. Thacker was not in the best of health" was the subject of charges of publishing and printing a seditious document against William Kibuka, Editor of the Uganda Post—a newspaper printed in Kampala—when he appeared in the Mengo District Court at Kampala. After the hearing, the Magistrate stated he would give his judgment on the case next week.

Mr. M. J. Barforth, Crown Counsel, appeared for the Uganda Post, while Mr. J. Wilton, Advocate, appeared for the Government. Mr. Barforth stated he would give his judgment on the case next week.

When read to the witness, the article was a sensational article of bringing into hatred and enmity the Government of Kenya and its administration of justice. The article, which was signed, intended to excite "distinction" against the administration of justice and to promote hatred and ill-will between different classes of the population.

Innuendo alleged

There was an innuendo, it was alleged, that the Government of Kenya was copying the Mau Mau movement, being a movement directed towards the Government of Kenya as an insurrection against the Mau Mau, which is a movement directed towards the Government of Kenya as an insurrection against the Mau Mau.

Some time ago, it was alleged, that the Government of Kenya was copying the Mau Mau movement, being a movement directed towards the Government of Kenya as an insurrection against the Mau Mau, which is a movement directed towards the Government of Kenya as an insurrection against the Mau Mau.

Fair comment

Asked if it had been his intention to promote ill-will or hatred between Africans and Europeans in Kenya, Mr. Barforth replied: "Of course not."

He said that where he published the article he believed it to be a matter of fair comment on the public interest.

On May 18th, section continued, he had written a paper called "Kenya and the Mau Mau" and the Government of Kenya had used it in the Mau Mau trial.

'Very mistaken'

"We are sorry that we do not see from where Mr. Thacker got his information," said Mr. Barforth. "The article was written by Mr. Thacker and it is his responsibility to ensure that it is correct. It is very mistaken to say that the article was written by the Government."

For short time

Asked said that because Mr. Thacker was now a prisoner he had told his readers that consequently the trial at Kampala was unfair.

Asian women stage exhibition

FOR the first time in

Nairobi an opportunity is being given to Asian women to show their contribution to family planning.

A exhibition dealing with the subject was arranged at the Family Planning Hall which was opened by Dr. Paul, Director of Family Planning, East Africa. This is a very important exhibition and it is very interesting to see how much work is being done in this field.

Hygiene section

Another facet of the exhibition was covered with a poster competition on "cleaner habits and better manners." Many of the prize-winning entries showed considerable originality and an understanding of the vital needs of hygiene in the home and outside, and better food handling.

There were about 120 entries received, and the winning posters were chosen by the judges. The posters were displayed in the exhibition hall and were well received by the public.

The liturgical ritual to be followed at the Coronation is exceedingly complex. After the preliminary and exceedingly solemn Oath in which much of our history is embodied, the service contains three main elements. The first is the expressly ceremonial part which opens with the words of the service for Holy Communion, and reaches its liturgical climax with the anointing of the monarch. The second sequence is the state by the Sovereign in all the traditions and attributes of monarchy. The climax of this is reached with the actual Coronation and the mounting of the crown. The third stage is the paying of homage to the Queen by the orders of the peerage, and her acclamation in the sheets of prayer.

We shall trace in detail the course of the service from the moment when the Queen, supported by her husband, crosses the West door of the Abbey, to the West door of the Abbey, to the West door of the Abbey, to the West door of the Abbey.

The Archbishop, and the Bishops, and the Knights of the Garter, will form a procession to the West door of the Abbey, to the West door of the Abbey, to the West door of the Abbey.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. G. H. Fisher, who will officiate at the Coronation, is here seen at an entertainment given at the Cathedral in 1946.

THE CORONATION SERVICE

the Queen will be seated in King Edward's Chair, which she will occupy until the end of the service. She will then be taken to the Lord Chamberlain's room, where she will receive the two robes of antiquity which she will wear for the remainder of the service.

which the Queen swears to preserve inviolably. At this point will come the presentation of the Bible. The service then changes considerably in tone for several different elements are placed together in it.

How many years ahead for your car?

Follow the change now to the motor oil that LENGTHENS ENGINE LIFE

To give present-day car engines proper lubrication, a far tougher, far sturdier motor oil is called for. To keep those engines running smoother and longer here is a great motor oil—GALTEX PROTEX on the Premium Motor Oil H.D. PROTEX cleans engines and keeps them clean, prevents clogging machined parts on "glazing".

On Coronation Day, one small boy and his little sister will be the seventh heavens of delight. They have, long been in the centre of preparations for this special day, have been told about it from their mother and father, have watched the soldiers rehearsing outside the Palace and in the parks. And now the great day has arrived. If, of course, they don't understand their own significance in this scheme of things—this may be only four or five-and-a-half you don't understand anything that there is a very special day and there is plenty of fun to be enjoyed. The two children? They may have guessed—Prince Charles, the Duke of Cornwall, and his sister Princess Anne. Their pictures are familiar to most of us. The one, a chubby little boy, confident, sturdy and made with thick golden-brown hair and sensible eyes; the other, a fat-free Princess, with bright, rose-coloured, fair curly hair, laughing like a crescent and tall for her age.

Do's and don'ts

Royal etiquette—the do's and don'ts of life in the public eye—may have been all about that. Out in the park with his family, Mrs. Helen Lightbourn, Prince Charles knows he must keep straight in front of him in his park, must not talk to strangers, must not run away from his nurse. Struggling in a car through the streets of London, he knows how to behave, how to wave and how not to look too keenly at the photographers' flash bulbs. (Doesn't think the small boy him got the better of his royal training, and he knew a thing or two.) He already knows the correct procedure on a railway station too—he has obviously watched his mother, on Ballarat station last summer, at the end of a family holiday in Scotland. Prince Charles's familiarity about bands with the station master before boarding the train that was to bring him north to London.

And party etiquette has been learned. Loo and curtsy to their hostess. Prince Charles is just now learning why and why not to hug, to shake hands and to shake hands has already been described in the favour of the Duke of Edinburgh. One characteristic in particular he has in common with his father is his passion to use "Yes" works. "Out for a walk in London with his grandmother, the Queen Mother, for instance, they stopped to watch a mechanical organ at a park. Fascinated, he asked to watch a mechanical organ in the market and work the one. His grandmother insisted that he should wait until he was older. He did not wait, and he was very happy to see his father's eyes.

in the future. There have included his first public concert at the Royal Festival Hall, attended by 1,000 children; a trip on the Thames aboard a police launch, and a visit to a dockyard to watch the dock workers and the men who go down to the sea in ships. Prince Charles usually sees the films of his parents' public appearances. When the Royal Family moved into Buckingham Palace, Princess Margaret in 1952, Prince Charles was present.

stated on moving out of her own flat, so that the children could have her old room as a nursery with a view of the Mall and the Changing of the Guard. In this wing of the Palace there is now a self-contained flat, complete with kitchen, for the children and their staff. The nursery has light blue walls, many toys, a cot, a cradle, a baby's furniture, and small, half-size tables and chairs for the children's meals.

Princess Anne and frequent visitors are—Grassie (the Queen's favourite), the Princess Margaret, their aunt, who is always contented to play the piano for "square dancing". Another, when they were seen, was Mrs. Mary—when they were seen to distinguish her from their grandmother, who also delighted in children. Holidays are spent at Sandringham, Windsor, or Balmoral on Bessie. Both children are constant travellers. Princess Anne went on the journey from London to Scotland when she was barely a month old. The family gather at three centres at Christmas and during the summer holiday in August.

Dressed to match

Now that the children are in the same age group they are being dressed to match one another. They have double-breasted, button-down coats in cream and dark green, and pale blue for boys. For the garden, they are usually cloth. Anoraks, in tan, khaki, navy jackets, and country trousers.

Mechanical toys of all sorts fascinate Prince Charles—cars, aeroplanes, boats, trains. He is the proud possessor of a pale blue, steam-driven, gas engine on his own granddaddy's farm, and a model of a "radio" (a musical box). He also has a Scotland, porcelain "Caddy" and will probably have riding lessons when he is five, the age at which the Queen's son, Prince Margaret, learned to ride. The Duke of Edinburgh also wants him to take up cricket and other outdoor games. His education will probably begin at this age, too. His father has said in public that he wants his son to have as democratic an education as possible—recalling his own youth at the boarding school, Gordonstoun.

Toy soldiers

The Prince takes a great interest in anything military—soldiers, tanks, parades. He has a complete collection of toy soldiers, scale models of

The Monarchy And The British Constitution

THE United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Queen's Dominions beyond the seas, the Federation of Canada, the Union of South Africa and the Commonwealth of Australia, the Dominion of Pakistan and Ceylon are drawn together in a single system of justice, equity, government and order that stems directly from the English monarchy.

The Queen is the sole source of law throughout these lands. Across the extraordinary diversity of the world's climates the Queen's Justice will be administered according to forms and customs originating from the Norman kingdom over England nearly 800 years ago. There are Parliaments and Assemblies meeting in more than 50 cities of the world that acknowledge the Queen and follow in their ways the traditions of the Middle Ages to the Parliament of Great Britain, and the Westminster, offered to the Monarchy to which Queen Elizabeth II is hereditary monarch. It is one of the greatest, longest-lived and richest of the most mysterious institutions in the history of mankind.

Every continent

PROVED our great Constitutional Monarchy is the Constitutional Monarchy of the world, extended by the ancient Monarchy to the present, and in a special degree the robust quality of the modern British Constitution.

The young monarch, our Queen Elizabeth II, is the most robust quality of the modern British Constitution.

the means of gain in every Continent

We do not gain our Constitutional Monarchy, as some nations have by "going constitutional." There is no single written code of Constitutional practice that lays down the powers of our new Queen, or of Parliament, or of the exact pattern of our law. We have arrived at our Constitutional Monarchy by a series of accidents and chances of history—which we may well excuse thinking lucky chances or well-considered accidents. At the danger of a little confusion we are entitled at the Coronation of a new Queen to look back on the history of how we came to be as we are—United Constitutional Monarchy with Dominions across the seas. And we may well proudly say that Britain has avoided the worst disasters of history that have befallen other monarchies, the destructive revolutions of the newer centuries.

Today the Queen is the source of law in over 50 sovereign countries, and her writs run through some 11 Colonies. Her Majesty's Government and Government Departments and Her Majesty's Courts of Law represent her abroad. Her Majesty's Courts of Law administer justice in the Provinces and Palace Justice, who carry her Justice to the Parliament of the Gilbert Islands or the study members of the Antarctic. Imagine the legislation passed of all the countries of the world and all the judgments handed down in the Queen's Courts. Look on her likeness printed on the postage stamps of the world and marvel.

Dim origins

YET our country does not dim origins of this complex network of law. The first King of the British people, King Alfred the Great, who ruled from 871 to 900, was a wise and just ruler. He was the first to give his subjects the right to be heard in their own courts. He was the first to give his subjects the right to be heard in their own courts. He was the first to give his subjects the right to be heard in their own courts.

Three elements

THIS was established the great medieval balance of power in England—with three elements: King, Barons and People. Because there was stability, and a fair degree of peace, the great permanent institutions had a chance to grow. The King's Court, instead of wandering with him, started to settle and establish a permanent administrative office. The King called his barons together regularly and made them the first House of Lords. Then later, Henry II and his sons made them the first Parliament. At the same time an agricultural revolution made property law more complicated and out of the right, buying and selling land, there grew to the code of Custom.

The Queen drives in the Irish State Coach to the State Opening of Parliament—the first great ceremony of the year. It was on a November morning 111 years ago that the Queen Victoria opened her first Parliament—five months after her accession. The King and Queen were also sworn by the great-great-grandparents of the King—rights that could not be insisted on by the unyielding King of France and Germany for many hundreds of years. There was comparative peace in England because William and his (Conquering) Normans insisted that private law could settle suits, and that the King's Justice would travel the country and sit in "Assize" to give the King's judgments. They were soon assisted by local knights and gathered together representatives of the Boroughs and the Counties to make the first Common. At the same time an agricultural revolution made property law more complicated and out of the right, buying and selling land, there grew to the code of Custom.

King William the victor of Normandy and his successors while kingdom of England. When we were the baronial strife that tore Normandy and France for the following hundreds of years we must be thankful that England which made William the stolid monarch of the first great assets that went to the King. It was several hundred years of comparative every other country in the Continent was something far from true and unimpaired.

Top to bottom, the Sword of Spiritual Unity, the Sword of Justice, and the Sword of Mercy.
