MATTERS OF MOMENT

If an East African wants to know the price of an East African mining share on the London Stock Exchange, he must look in either the South African or the Miscellaneous section of the STOCK EXCHANGE. The price of a share of East African Mining Company Ltd. is 10/- and of East African Mining Company Ltd. is 10/-.

for some detail. It is not surprising that the trading of shares in which the above mentioned shares are included, of which the above mentioned shares are included. In those days in which South African mining companies were in, and have, while East and Central Africa industries were, and are, in between, it was not unusual that they should be bracketed in the Stock Exchange which like the London Stock Exchange is a geographical. Today, however, the maintenance of separate listings is clearly anachronistic. In fact, in this note was written, as instance, there were ninety-six entries in the London South Africa list, but only four of these are of that nature. In fact, the companies listed in Northern Rhodesia, and those in Kenya and Tanganyika, while a number of the others are listed in the spread between the territories.

change for permission to deal in their shares, so that the lists would grow without much delay. The very existence of such a subdivision in the form of racial markings would be good evidence for East African mining in general, and we therefore hope that this matter will be taken up by the appropriate bodies, and favourably considered by those to whom application must be made.

It is thus evident that a new classification which might be entitled "Rhodesian and East African" is justified, and the day chosen at random for the new classification would have been a day when the companies under that heading were compared with twenty other companies. Thus it cannot be held that there are objections to subdivision for a relatively small market. It is, of course, of several further East African companies which intend to make application to the Committee of Directors.

Southern Rhodesia's 1934-35 financial year. The Governor, Sir Lewis Carter, has a very interesting self-governance history. # Kenya Land Problems.

Sir Morris Carter's Review.

It is impossible to get at the true meaning of the evidence, which is only taken in buildings where space is restricted, and where those who do not agree with the chiefs do not find an opportunity of being present. We heard much evidence in the open air in various parts of the reserves, and it was our practice to ask for any who did not agree with the evidence to come forward and give evidence themselves. That the natives do not feel themselves unduly restrained may be gathered from two incidents.

In the Doroboo who had been cross-questioned by the senior Kikuyu, I became angry and asked: "What is the evidence made by talking to my witnesses? It is only a declining babe when I was a full-grown warrior." He then turned to us and said: "Why do you keep on waiting asking all these questions? I have been here a long time and you have been out to a good pack while I am hungry." We had better give me a shilling to buy bread." One of our members fell in with his request.

One of two representatives of the former Kikuyu Association complained that only the Kikuyu had been made to give evidence on oath. This remark not only indicates an absence of timidity in the witnesses appearing before us, but also is one instance among very many of the readiness of many of the Kikuyu to make statements in their own interests which bear no relation to the truth of the Kikuyu itself. We had already heard that evidence from non-Native invariably on oath on a regular basis.

Non-Native Reserves.

The picture sometimes given of the Native Reserves is not wholly correct. It is not the natives anyone who are troubled through those Reserves, and it is not impressed by the wonders of a country which many of the Native tribes are in possession of, probably some of the best agricultural and pastoral land to be found anywhere in the world. It is, of course, the case in such large expanses of country, there are, of course, bad areas as well as good.

What we have an opinion that land had been taken from the Natives, which by had a certain amount, we have taken into consideration the quality of the land taken and based our recommendations accordingly.

How far was one to look ahead? What increase in the population might reasonably be expected? What changes in habits of life were likely? Would these involve the need for more of the land? What did the people make of their land and what increase in skill in agriculture, both agriculturally and pastorally, might be anticipated? And at what rate was such increase likely to be obtained? What was the Native use of the land? How far was it a wasteful use of the land? In what directions can they reasonably be improved by legislation? What steps are to be taken to secure a better use being made of the land? These are some of the questions which appeared to be involved.

The ultimate knowledge of the people of the Masai and the Kikuyu of the conditions obtaining in their Reserves, and the conditions of the former Hills Commission, should be maintained in the future. It is not only the Natives who should be consulted, but also the Government, the British public, and the various other interested parties. It is not only the Natives who should be consulted, but also the Government, the British public, and the various other interested parties. It is not only the Natives who should be consulted, but also the Government, the British public, and the various other interested parties.

The position of the Natives in the Reserves is a complex one. It is not only the Natives who should be consulted, but also the Government, the British public, and the various other interested parties. It is not only the Natives who should be consulted, but also the Government, the British public, and the various other interested parties.

Additions to Native Lands.

Over and above the additions to the Reserves made to give effect to the economic requirements of the Natives, communications have been made that 930 square miles be set aside for the use of Natives outside the Reserves. It is not clear how these areas should be divided, but to any particular tribe this land is intended for providing for the needs of such tribes as the Natives have been living on. The land of about 400 square miles is generally known as the "Land of the Future." It is not to be used for any other purpose, and it is not to be used for any other purpose, and it is not to be used for any other purpose.

It is also intended for that class of Natives, whose numbers will increase in the future, who do not wish to lead a tribal life, but who wish to acquire some form of individual property. It is not to be used for any other purpose, and it is not to be used for any other purpose.

It is also intended for that class of Natives, whose numbers will increase in the future, who do not wish to lead a tribal life, but who wish to acquire some form of individual property. It is not to be used for any other purpose, and it is not to be used for any other purpose.

"That For Ever."

The Native Lands Trust Ordinance laid down that certain lands were reserved for the use and benefit of the Native tribes of the Colony "for ever," the apparent intention being that certain areas were reserved for the use and benefit of the Native tribes of the Colony "for ever," the apparent intention being that certain areas were reserved for the use and benefit of the Native tribes of the Colony "for ever."

The provisions of the Ordinance regarding the alteration of tribal boundaries are such too rigid, and the intention is that a particular tribe should be "that for ever" as the Natives are to be consulted, but also the Government, the British public, and the various other interested parties. It is not only the Natives who should be consulted, but also the Government, the British public, and the various other interested parties.

The Past Year in Uganda

Mr. D. N. Stafford Reviews the Position

In his presidential address at the recent annual meeting of the Uganda Planters' Association, Mr. D. N. Stafford gave an interesting review of the events of the past year.

Concerning that the dry and dusty roads of Kampala had caused the state's serious illness, he suggested that the roads should be the Protectorate and administered by a special trust, the nature of which would be determined by the expert opinion of the Southern Rhodesia.

The single coffee plantation had closed down in Uganda, and the embargo on Uganda coffee in the Nairobi market on account of the fear of the introduction of Stephanodores was to be removed. Uganda Coffee Sales, Ltd., formed for the purpose of selling the coffee crop, was open to Native producers. The idea, as mentioned to the Agricultural Department, that the proposal for European and Native coffee growers should jointly pay the subscription which would secure Uganda membership of the new Coffee Section of the British Empire Producers' Organisation.

If the other restriction scheme could be made to apply to from 1925, the capital which had been expended in so long would earn some interest, and it was again by extra employment of labour. Messrs. B. G. and J. B. Hall, who flew to the territorial conference and reported on the territories under the restriction scheme.

Mr. Stafford was very emphatic about the desirability of reforestation along their once beautiful roads. He suggested the formation of a National Trust for the preservation of the property of the community. Many of the roads destroyed were once native-owned, and he suggested that the Forestry Department was not free from criticism.

Criticism of Government

Referring to the department of the Government whose enterprise in establishing the roads industry in this country has been a constant movement on it to the detriment of any other individual.

When the board of directors under which the Government had arranged to purchase the properties of all very disappointed. The price paid for the land was definitely below its intrinsic value, and there was no recognition of the past services of the owners. It was a considerable error on the subject, the Government approved the conditions, although they are still in our opinion very insufficient.

But compare the treatment of those who were servants of the Government who were in the D.O. at Makerere, when he was selected to accept. Later on his salary was considerably reduced. They were given a swing or a period of time in the district. Officers in the condition of the present all senior in the Administration. They were also allowed to accept and take a period of time in the district. When he finds that the officer in the next to him on the Staff List has been made P.C. and thus does not have a higher salary, he then applies for an increase and is given a personal allowance of £200 in addition to his previous extra remuneration and living allowance. The person given for his increase is that he might have been a P.C. Now this has created the most wonderful precedent in the history of the Government, giving a personal allowance of £200 to a man who has been a P.C. for some time.

It is not to be expected that the President made some very important points. The President was not only a very important man, but a very important man in the Government. He was a very important man in the Government. He was a very important man in the Government. He was a very important man in the Government.

This may sound very pretty in theory, but in practice it is often a failure. The peasants have a very long leisure to spend in their districts. This has been a very important matter, and it is a very important matter. It is a very important matter. It is a very important matter.

It is a very important matter. It is a very important matter. It is a very important matter. It is a very important matter.

The Kenya and Bank

Important Developments in the Country

The Kenya and Bank has been a very important matter. It is a very important matter. It is a very important matter. It is a very important matter.

In the Kenya and Bank, the money is advanced. The Board of Directors has been a very important matter. It is a very important matter. It is a very important matter. It is a very important matter.

These are, however, matters which lie beyond the scope of the Board of Directors. The Board of Directors has been a very important matter. It is a very important matter. It is a very important matter. It is a very important matter.

Kenya Financial Record

It is noted that of all the instalments due to the Government in September, only the instalment of £100,000 of the principal repayments has been made. Only two instalments of £100,000 each have been made.

The past chronicles the fact that the year 1924 was a noticeable one at the end of the year, an important factor in which was the loss of the market during the period of adversity. The market for existing property was very low, and the market for new property was very low. The market for new property was very low, and the market for existing property was very low.

Encouraging developments in this way will go further to equip the farmers to take full advantage of better conditions when they arrive. The market for new property was very low, and the market for existing property was very low.

Quite apart, a fact which is indisputable, to be regretted.

Mr. Stafford emphatically declared that the country was over-taxed. The total taxation for the three years 1924-25 was 30% of its exports; for 1925-26 it was 32% and for 1926-27 it was 36%, an increase of 45% in three years. The total income for these three years had decreased from £12,500,000 to £7,000,000, and the total income for the three years had decreased from £12,500,000 to £7,000,000.

The Study of Mankind

International Anthropological Congress

H.R.H. Prince George opened the first International Congress of Anthropological and Ethnological Studies at University College, London, on Monday. The congress covers all the departments of physical anthropology, the scientific study of man, and is being attended by over a thousand delegates from 25 countries.

The President, Lord Onslow, stressed the importance of anthropology, especially the governance of our race, and said that "the modern tendency to play for narrow nationalisms, the old-fashioned Europeanism, was by no means dead, especially as regards methods of government. This science sets one of the real problems of the day. A January report of the British and Foreign African Press will appear."

Devaluation of Currency

Kenya Government Assistance

The Kenya Government has laid on the table of the Legislative Council, and the Colonial Secretary announced that a date would be fixed for a debate on the "Asiatic Currency Bill." The Budget it will probably be a special session. At the meeting at which the production of a temporary currency legislation is being prepared, the Executive Reserves has been asked to leave the Government of the Kenya of the industry could not be so retarded by financial and uncertainties, but in small areas and very few natives were likely to be affected.

It has been stated that a revision in Customs revenue figures for the first four months of the year indicated that receipts would probably fall, the estimate being more than £200,000, but the Customs were less satisfactory and might require revision. It is still held, however, that there will be a small surplus at the end of the year.

The Governor, Sir Joseph B. Gurney, by attention to the Press on the subject of the devaluation of the East African shillings as the result of which the people had been encouraged to conserve the value of their capital from the Colony. His Excellency reiterated the assurance that the Government had confirmed, that the Government had no intention of considering any alteration or manipulation of the currency. Telegram from Nairobi.

East Africa in the House

Mr. Lunn asked whether the Secretary of State for Colonies could make any statement on the draft legislation of the Kenya Government instituting a moratorium on agricultural mortgages; and whether he had considered as an alternative, the resumption by the Government of the mortgage of estates, created by the Government, Sir John Gurney, who replied that he had received copies of the draft Ordinance published by the Government to provide that the title of agricultural property should not be subject to action for recovery without first giving due notice of the mortgage, and that the mortgagee should give notice which might apply to the Court for relief. This relief might take the form of an order to delay all proceedings for a period of six months, subject to such conditions as the Court may consider proper. As the aim of the proposed legislation was to assist the owners of mortgaged property, and to assist the repayment of unused funds within the year in view.

Dr. Lunn asked for details of the steps to be taken to the different parts of the Kenya Land Commission report, the cost of such a report, and whether it was possible to lose or cash of it; and whether that would be the case by the time that the Kenya Land Commission report is published. The Kenya Land Commission report is being printed by the Government Office and is of the order of £100,000. It is being printed by the Government Office, and is of the order of £100,000. It is being printed by the Government Office, and is of the order of £100,000.

Dr. Lunn asked whether the Government could provide copies of the report of the value of the land and whether the value of the evidence is the value of £100,000 and not infinitely with regard to all the Kenya Land Commission report.

Dr. Lunn asked whether the Government could provide copies of the report of the value of the land and whether the value of the evidence is the value of £100,000 and not infinitely with regard to all the Kenya Land Commission report.

"We Christians have a spiritual message which can change Africans. Africans have also a message which can change us. During my contacts with them they have changed me, and convinced me to "Friends of mine from Kenya says that Hitler's Nazi salute, so far from a pure Nordic more generations than African history records.

If German tourists invade Masailand, they will get that home-from-home feeling at once." A writer

"The Kampala Entebbe Road was once the pride

To-day part of the forest has been cut away,

Association.

"I came across the owner of a motor-boat engine

"The great majority of Europeans here are ability, and they have absolutely no experience of the kind of things required of them." From The

"The future of the coffee industry cannot be questioned. It is organized and controlled as one economic unit, with bold, far-seeing policy of development, based on high standards of production and on conservative financial methods.
The credit of the industry secured on the crop which

Since he settled in East Africa in 1922, Colonel L. G. Gray has taken an active part in local public affairs and has been a sound speaker on the Arusha District. He was a past Chairman of the Arusha Coffee Planters Association. He has served at different times on the Committee of the British Union of Tanganyika, the Convention of Associations of Tanganyika and the West Meru Coffee Planters Association. It was a short trip which brought him to the territory where he served from the Army, but he was so attracted by the country that he purchased a plot on the slopes of Mount Meru and here he has since made his home. In the hope of making Arusha a fair port of call on an Imperial Airways trans-African service, he was public spirited enough to give a substantial rent free piece of land for the construction of a public air-drome.

During the Boer War in 1899, he served with the Army for thirty-two years, principally on the North West Frontier of India, where he received fourteen years of the first three years of the Great War.
He was transferred to France in 1918, where he was and was made a member of the Legion of Honour.

"Tanks" Interests in East Africa

At the week's annual general meeting of Tanganyika Consolidated Ltd., a most interesting review of the company's operations and interests was made by Sir Robert Williams, the managing director, who, though absent from the meeting in medical advice, had written a very instructive report, in which he explained that the company's work had improved considerably, and that its interests in the new East African gold fields would yield big results.

He disclosed that the company had received £140,000 in account of expenditure and profit on the sale of 36 Kenyan gold shares. Tanks shareholders had been allocated 6% of their applications for shares in that company, whereas the general public had received only 0.5% and that though he had applied for 5,000, he had been allotted only 325 Kenyan shares, and had received 300 of the stock itself.

The Mining of Gold Mining Company would have a 2.5% share in 105, shares, the capital being supplied by Messrs. East African Consolidations, Ltd. (owned as to 60% by Anglo-Mineral Services, Ltd. (London), 30% by Anglo-Mineral Services, Ltd. (London), and 10% by Anglo-Mineral Services, Ltd. (London).

Of the 100,000 tons of day water now being pumped to the mine, it was estimated that 100,000 tons of water would be available for the mine. Arising exploration and development work has resulted in the extension of the reef, both in the area of the company's property and in the adjoining claims of the Anglo-Mineral company, which claims the Kibondo area. The company has acquired a 51% interest in Anglo-Mineral. In the capital of which Kimminki would have a majority holding, was to be formed in order to take over the 51% interest in the Yalakoa mine. It is estimated that 3,000 oz of alluvial gold had already been recovered from this reef discovery made in the area of the reef, both in the Kibondo and Yalakoa areas. It is estimated that in the Yalakoa area, the value of the ore discovered in the Yalakoa area was £1,000,000. The discovery of gold in the Yalakoa area, the value of the ore discovered in the Yalakoa area was £1,000,000. Following a loss in a main shaft of 20 ft, the company has now been able to drive a new shaft with a diameter of 10 ft, which is now being driven to a depth of 50 ft. ### Kilembe Copper Mine (Uganda)

Sir Robert Williams continued: Last year I told you that we were making a complete survey of the Kilembe mine area preparatory to carrying out a detailed electrical survey. Electrical and magnetic surveys were begun in September last and are being combined with a detailed geological survey. It is hoped to have the whole work completed next October. The results to date indicate that the bodies extend continuously for a distance of about 500 ft. The extreme limits are not yet determined, as the further extensions will not be completed next year. In the area of the mine then explored, there are estimated to be over 1,000,000 tons of ore with a grade of about 1.5% copper, 0.5% nickel, and 0.5% cobalt and nickel. The results of the geological surveys mentioned above are as follows: There are nearly twenty inflexions in the area, in which the primary tonnage were indicated, and the average mineralisation of the area is about 1.5% copper, 0.5% nickel, and 0.5% cobalt and nickel. The Ruwenzori concession in which the Kilembe mine is situated, has been re-leased to the British Congo 200 square miles until May 1, 1955, and a decision is expected about the time of the realisation of the concession. The indications of the geological surveys are being tested at various points by trenching and by later a program of drilling operations along the strike will be carried out. The Kilembe mine production was reported to be 1,000 tons in the last year. It is estimated that the Kilembe mine production was reported to be 1,000 tons in the last year. ### Central Purchasing of Sisal.

Last week we published extracts from a circular notice in which the Kenya Agricultural Corporation, the Kenya Central Sisal Purchasing Board, a body of which merchants and manufacturers are members, control the sale of the fibre. Since then the following has been published in the Walshe has been published.

Much as I appreciate Mr. Crawford's views, I cannot accept his definition of interest. The Kenya Agricultural Corporation publishes a report of proceedings of the Board, which is sent to all sisal manufacturers and exporters. Therefore, I ask Mr. Crawford to tell me what interest he has at the meeting, since I had a good reason for not giving the information to the Board. I had a good reason for not giving the information to the Board, which I had a good reason for not giving the information to the Board.

Mr. Crawford's views are set out in the Walshe and are reflected in the Walshe. The columns of the Walshe are devoted to the publication of the Walshe, which he has occasionally and as a result of this is a singularly weak example of the Walshe. Indeed, Mr. Crawford is undoubtedly in the respect for he does fit to be considered as the constituents have their own views of Major Wall's allegations and actions, and will bring them up for consideration at the appropriate time and place. Mr. Crawford's constituents seem to have been hardly assembled, for his answer to my letter appeared within twenty-four hours. I surmise that these gentlemen could scarcely have come from the uttermost parts of the Empire if to have been exceeding great numbers.

IMPROVED BUSINESS CONDITIONS

The One Hundred and Twenty-first Ordinary Meeting of the Standard Bank of South Africa Limited was held on July 25, 1961, in the Southern House, Johannesburg. The Earl of Athlone, K.C., was the guest of honor.

The Chairman said: "Ladies and gentlemen, before proceeding with the business of the meeting I must refer to the death last week of Mr. William Stuart, who had been a director of this bank for nearly twenty years. Mr. Stuart was appointed to the bank's staff in 1875 and immediately proceeded to South Africa. As you know, the bank was established in 1862, so that he was associated with it from its early years, and right up to his death he was devoted to its interests."

"It was my great pleasure to preside at our meeting to-day, for it affords me an opportunity of expressing my admiration of the courage and devotion of the people of South Africa during years of adversity, and of paying a warm tribute to the steadfastship which has carried the nation into a powerful entity, able to present a united front to the difficulties and problems which continue to perplex a disturbed and distracted world."

Changes in the Figures

In directing your attention to the accounts, I will briefly refer to the principal changes in the figures. You will observe that deposits, current and other accounts exceed £55,000,000, an increase of approximately 20 per cent as compared with the figures appearing in the last balance sheet. On the assets side, cash, in hand and at call and short notice amounts to £19,000,000, an increase of over £1,000,000; while investments at call under £10,000,000 show an increase of £1,000,000. Bills of exchange are £600,000 higher. Bills discounted and advanced to customers at £23,000,000 reflect a reduction of £3,000,000, but this is mainly in connexion with accounts outside the Union.

The balance of profit for the year, after making an appropriation to contingencies account is £45,000, which, with the amount of £75,400 brought forward, leaves for disposal the sum of £120,400. The interim dividend paid in January absorbed £125,000, and after appropriating £75,000 to writing down goodwill premises, there is available a balance of £45,400, which your directors recommend be disposed of by adding £100,000 to the provision fund and by the payment of a final dividend of 5s. per share, making a total distribution of 10s. for the year, and leaving forward a sum of £120,400, an increase of £180,000 on last year's figure.

Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika

Statistics show that the fall in the price of East African exports has had a very serious effect, but that there has been a marked movement of goods from Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika to the East coast. From £8,780,100 in 1960 to £10,037,700 in 1961, an increase of £1,257,600, or 14.3 per cent, and the previous year's figures are considered the amount of a prosperous year in comparison with the fall in the proceeds of iron being made in the world.

The Chairman's statement to the board was confirmed at our 125th meeting, but lost no interest, especially by personal investigation of a member known to be conducting extensive investigations, his observations during an extensive tour in East Africa will be of much interest to the board.

The Rhodesias

The Southern Rhodesia figures of the mineral production in 1961 approximate £50,000,000, just the same as in all other areas of the Colony. In 1960, still the same, but the mining industry in the Rhodesias has recovered enough to be able to deposit some hundreds of millions of pounds annually unimpaired and are expected to play an important part in the economic development of the country. The Rhodesias are also a source of raw materials, in which various developments have been pursued. The low cost of production is an important factor and provides an excellent example of the trade of Nyasaland, South Africa and the Rhodesias, which is tobacco. The result of a poor tobacco season has been felt but as an imported article in the United Kingdom, the industry is a promising one. ### The Dividend

The Chairman then declared a dividend for the 36 months ended March 31, 1961, of 5s. per share. The dividend for the twelve months ended on March 31, 1961, was a total distribution at the rate of 10s. per annum, which is a record.

Work of Management and Staff

The Chairman proposed a vote of thanks to the general managers, the London Managers and other officers for their valuable services during the year.

During my residence in South Africa, and in the course of my return journey to England through Central and East Africa, I came into contact with many of our officers, and was impressed by the high standard of efficiency which prevailed. On my return, our general manager in South Africa and his colleagues, to whom I have referred, have managed to maintain the bank's secretaries, and to the staff in all the spheres to have referred to you will, I am sure, wish me to extend our warm thanks for their services. (Heard here by Mr. B. A. Glass seconded the vote and it was unanimously recorded.)

Tribute to Lord Athlone

The Chairman proposed a vote of thanks to the Earl of Athlone, the Chairman and directors, paid tribute to Lord Athlone's visit to East Africa, which he said would be remembered and would never be forgotten.

Non-official reports from Tanganyika during the month of July when the British, German, Italian, and American expeditions were in the area.

Messrs. Leslie and Anderson have abandoned the business of valuing and appraising property in Kenya, together with the services of Mr. J. Valentine.

New penny and halfpenny coins will shortly be put into circulation in Southern Rhodesia. Both coins are perforated in the centre, thus resembling the subsidiary coins of East Africa.

Steps are being taken to try to restore the gold standard in Kenya. The new rules from the 1st of July 1932 to the 31st of July 1933, Compulsory gold is to be enforced.

Kenya and Tanganyika have prohibited the importation of industrial machinery of a value less than 10% of the value of the machinery to be replaced in the country, which we chronicle in the week.

The Branch of the Kenya Railways Company, Mandarini District, will run a monthly express train to services from Nairobi to Mandarini, Nakuru, and Zindzi, Mombasa, Bagani, and Brazzaville.

The Kenya Legislative Council has recommended that the sale of liquor should be made a Native Trust property, and that the sale of liquor should be made a Native Trust property.

The Secretary of State has approved the expenditure of £18,000 from the East African Guarantee Loan in respect of water supplies in Kenya. £6,000 is to be spent in Kisumu, £5,000 in Kabartonzi, £3,000 each in Mbitani and Morogoro, and £2,000 in Dar-es-Salaam.

Further experiments in spraying powdered arsenic on locusts from the air are to be made this time in Natal. The new machine to be used is to use the "Hercules" produced from Imperial Airways, and which can carry sufficient arsenic to spray the largest swarm.

Further news of the British mission in Kenya has come us by air mail. Colonel Gurney's No. 10 Squadron have had his arm broken in a battle with a rebel force. A sergeant of the 10th Squadron has been attacked by a party of rebels with a hammer. An English policeman was killed by a bullet which he had in his pocket. A Native also attempted to attack a British soldier. The rebels also tried to kill a British soldier. The rebels also tried to kill a British soldier. from the Report into the Administration in Kenya and Tanganyika, made by the Commission, published in this year and to its features, which will be once drawn public attention. It is not to be denied that the service did not receive the same recognition as it should have. The main process must not be allowed to slip through our walls, and it is not to be denied that the service did not receive the same recognition as it should have.

Of the many recommendations the Secretary of State intended to implement at once, those of the three Governments endorsed. They will not be numerous. The remainder appear to result from strained legal minds looking at problems from their particular viewpoint, and desiring above all a gradual return to British models of procedure. The scientific recommendations of the justly respected District Officers, and which proposals the local Governments unanimously disagree with, are the recommendations of the Secretary of State. The Government's difference of opinion is not to be denied that the service did not receive the same recognition as it should have.

The Report shows that everyone realizes that some reforms are needed, but, read with the accompanying speeches, it is clear that the administration is largely in the hands of the white man, and that how to be chosen may well be a matter of indifference. The writer of a leading review this month has said that we can avoid giving the African a white man's religion, as we are trying to help him develop an autochthonous religion. Perhaps we shall do the same with the law. There is a standard by which the recommendations of Mr. Bushe and his colleagues should be judged. To follow their advice would be to move away from the goal, and further from the just administration in the interests of the people of the governed. The Commission's aims of justice do not include Native Courts, but the District Officer's court is at present the most necessary link in the chain of justice, and is being run by a man who knows and is bound to the people of the land. It is an important part of the that no lawyer, pure and simple, could at the same time his court. The growth and development of courts on lines that are compatible with our ideas of justice is not to be denied that the service did not receive the same recognition as it should have.

the men of the Victoria Hall, and the same time his court. The main process must not be allowed to slip through our walls, and it is not to be denied that the service did not receive the same recognition as it should have.

Having so often noted the importance of the film in the task of ending the economic stagnation of Africa, we naturally very glad that such an authority as Mr. O. J. Keeney, head of the British Industries Department, in his lecture at the Empire Summer School at Oxford, has said that we have several times used in these islands. The supreme importance of our undertaking the African and the equally important task of helping the African to understand it have been emphasised in the papers and discussions at the International Anthropological Congress. A great amount can be done in this second year of the film; more material, as instruction in hygiene, agriculture, and husbandry, would find the cinema a most handy and visual presentation of the data. It would be more than hours or weeks of lectures to persuade the Natives that they simply cannot be ruled. Another point is that the natives have hitherto had inadequate stimulus for development. The film might prove a great stimulus, and is one that can no longer afford to neglect. We have no objection about repeating the statement we have so often made that this is the age of aviation, of radio, and of the film. The first is making rapid strides in Africa, and the two have not yet been massed together. The stumbling block, if we doubt it, is the lack of a link in the chain of justice, and is being run by a man who knows and is bound to the people of the land. It is an important part of the

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Basuto Case.

Government of Orange Free State.

People of the Orange Free State, I have read with interest and sympathy your review of the Basuto case, and I am glad to see that you have made a full and fair statement of the facts, and that you have not only shown the conduct of the public authorities to be responsible for and concerned in the tragedy, but also that the people of the Orange Free State were not only ignorant of the full facts, but also that they have dismissed the case as entirely without justice. It is far from well in that matter to say that the Government of the Orange Free State has no evidence to bring against the Basuto, or that the Commission of Enquiry is a High Court of Justice, or that the death of Basuto is a case of all probability brought about by his own fault. It is a matter of fact that his subsequent conduct was impossible if he were innocent.

The matter cannot be allowed to rest there. It should be brought before the House of Commons when it is assembled, and before the Legislative Council of Tanganyika, both of which bodies are already concerned to do so. It is not in my own words, but in what evidence is given in the Territory, that the Territory overrides the verdict of the Commission. The Government should have shown extreme leniency to some of its servants, and supreme competency in not proceeding with your means, certain Natives, while the treatment by some officials of Mrs. Napier, the mother of the young man who met a tragic fate, has been characterised by a heartless lack of sympathy.

Yours faithfully,
TANGANYIKA

Nyasaland Overlooked.

That Tea Conference at Nairobi.

Your disclosure is astonishing, and has caused a great deal of interest in the East African States. It is not only the fact that the tea conference at Nairobi, Kenya, Tanganyika, and Malawi, has been held in a place where the tea is not grown, but also that the conference was held in a place where the tea is not grown, and that the conference was held in a place where the tea is not grown.

...the fact that the tea is not grown in the East African States, and that the conference was held in a place where the tea is not grown, and that the conference was held in a place where the tea is not grown.

Assignment of Blame.

A number of people, including the author of the article, have been assigned blame for the Basuto case. It is not clear who is responsible for the tragedy, but it is clear that the choice does them credit. I have been to a good many of the meetings, and I have not seen any of the people who were responsible for the tragedy. It is not clear who is responsible for the tragedy, but it is clear that the choice does them credit.

Forgetting the Pioneer.

How They Might Be Remembered.

To the Editor of "East Africa"
You refer in your issue of 1st January to the fact that many of the pioneers who have been forgotten. It is not clear who is responsible for the tragedy, but it is clear that the choice does them credit.

Yours faithfully,
JOHN BOYD

Eland and Cheetah

Plea for their Preservation

by the Editor of East Africa

Recently Mr. E. W. Champion De Vries, Conservator of Forests, some of whose views you have reviewed so favourably, declared that game being so ruthlessly destroyed in the Central Provinces of India that birds, eland and other species could soon be exterminated. While this is not justly applicable in Africa, thanks to the vigilance of the game rangers and Rangers, two species of the fauna of that continent should, in my opinion, be strictly protected, even against collectors of museum specimens. I allude to those semidomestic animals, the eland and cheetah. That noble animal, the eland, well known for its gentle nature, intelligence and capacity for domestication, should be immune from molestation.

Eland shooting cannot be classed as sport. These magnificent beasts, the largest of all horned animals, are as big as Christmas full-grown and have even standing six feet at the shoulders, and their sure-footed feet reach to the base of the tail. Being unsuspecting and such good targets, they fall an easy prey to the sportsman's rifle.

For over a century the Portuguese in East Africa have recognised the possibilities of these intelligent creatures. The eland is dumber by half than the average bullock, but is stronger, and decidedly more docile. They are easy to train and make excellent draft or pack animals. Two elands, if harnessed properly—that is to say, by least harness—the only way that enables them to use their full strength into it—will pull as well as six bullocks.

Horses, too, have advantages over oxen in that they are not at all stupid, but will at once leave back or stop, turn and rear when urged to do so, and will live anywhere. They are sure-footed and do not shy at everything they see.

That elands will adapt themselves to any climate is proved by the fact that in the regions they were plentiful on the snow and ice clad summits of the Drakensberg mountains of northern Natal, but were being shot off rapidly until they were made a Royal Game. There are still some left at Camp Castle, the highest point of the Drakensberg, where they are very strictly protected.

Elands are easily caught for they can be rounded up like cattle and roped. They take naturally to domestication, and within a week of their capture are as tame as any other farm animal.

I once visited the eland farm of Jan Van Rooyen near Tlokweng, in the Zoutpansberg district of the Northern Transvaal, some few years before the Boer War, and was astonished at what I saw. At the time Van Rooyen had about a hundred domesticated elands which he had kept for years. They were all tame and as docile as any other farm animal. I saw a young eland of the Van Rooyen family with the little dorp of their country on its back and a cheetah round its neck.

There are other eland farms in the Transvaal, but I have not visited any of them. It is a pity that the eland is not more generally domesticated, as it would be so valuable to some of the stranger stuff sold in Africa. I believe the eland, though less in quantity than that of our country, is far richer, while the bulk of our eland is a shabby sort. A bush eland of our condition will turn the scale at 1,500 lbs. but a professional hunter of forty years ago, whom I was not, would never shoot an eland of any necessity for food.

The Cheetah

During all my years in Africa I have been hunting for forty-five years, but I have never once heard of a professional hunter actually shooting a cheetah, and I very much doubt if any experienced hunter of that kind would allow any member of the party he was commanding to shoot a harmless and friendly creature that can be watched in the intimate life of champagne and caviar. Most of the sports who do not distinguish between a cheetah and a chimpanzee. This type of sportsman would shoot a tethered monkey.

His plea for shooting a cheetah might be, that he had mistaken it for a leopard, but even he would excuse for such an act, unless he was a sportsman which is most unlikely. The cheetah is a cousin to its cousin the leopard in all but that the leopard, a dangerous beast, is a bush dweller and seldom seen. It kills with the show of slaughter and will raid a low house or goat pen, destroy every one of the inmates, and leave dead bodies on the ground.

The cheetah's habitat is the open plain. It hunts small antelope by running them down. It is one of the most beautiful and graceful of wild animals, and of so gentle a disposition that it seldom shows fight even in self-defence. Although it can fleetly of any creature on four legs for a short distance, it cannot tire, and can be ridden down and tied up by a single individual.

Captured cheetahs soon become tame and very affectionate. That they make adorable pets will be admitted by all who have owned one. I have kept them in camps together with dogs, cats, goats and poultry, and have often watched cheetahs and dogs eating out of the same dishes perfectly amicably. Whoever disturbed the peace of my happy family was never the cheetah. On the contrary, they rested at my feet, and would seek shelter in my tent if a dog barked growled.

As a pet the cheetah has many advantages. It is beautiful, faithful, loyal to children, and as a companion to boys is as well trained as a dog. It can easily be kept in a hall provided it is taken out for a leash walk or three times a day.

In my collection I could vouch that eland and cheetahs be strictly protected, and that they should be strictly off the list of shooting animals. When such regulations are issued, the sports who are sportsmen should be notified, and the sports who are sportsmen should be notified.

Witchcraft Discussed

By Lord Alton of Liverpool, Anthropologist.

One of the most striking aspects of the modern history of Africa in the past century was that of the discovery that, in the eyes of the natives, the cause of the "pest" was not a foreign "demon" but the witchcraft of the natives. It was the belief in the existence of such a "demon" which led to the "witch-hunts" of the past century. The "witch" was the cause of the "pest" and he was a "demon" in the eyes of the natives. # Brush Teeth in a way that doesn't save them.

You brush your teeth. You are often disappointed with their appearance.

You remove the debris, but not the film discolors. It holds germs in contact with your tooth trouble and their source of ailment.

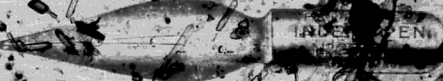

The way to keep free from film is embodied in Pepsodent, the special film removing tooth paste. The base is a special polishing material unique in its remaining power, twice as good as those in common use. It is absolutely safe.

That "bad" odour. No longer troubles, as film disappears.
