

Abstract:

This paper talks about trends and developments in the Central and East African literary scene between the years 2000-2004. It aims to put the region on the map of commonwealth literature by highlighting the gains achieved by writers and critics in the region