

Abstract:

The study documented the development of dairy farming systems in Vihiga District. The study examined the role of women in livestock production, and in particular dairy production, as a complimentary incoming-generating activity which significantly contributes to the overall productivity and food security.