

The Centre for Translation under the auspices of the African Project, the continental initiative for the training of translators, interpreters and other language practitioners is now on Youtube.

Through the European Commission, the four Universities: The University of Nairobi, The University of Ghana, Legon, The Pedagogical University of Maputo and the University of Ain Shams in Cairo discussed the opportunities available for this kind of training in Africa.

These are the Universities that have already mounted the training programme.