Scholar killed in freak accident

Stella Awinja was an engineering student at the University of Nairobi when she was killed in 1982. Described as a brilliant scholar, actor and poet, Stella was crushed to death by a building block that fell off a crane at Lilian Towers on University Way which was then under construction. Stella Awinja Hostel at the university, which was then known as St Marys Hall, was renamed in her honour in 1990.

Watch out for another historical figure in next week’s Fast Forward, Friday in DN2
